About that time communication with Ocracoke was restored and it was learned that the inhabitants of the island were safe. # Clubs Clear Up False Impressions Of U. S.

WASHINGTON—The little German woman was talking to a small group in an office at the U. S. State Department. She had just finished a three months trip around the United States as a government guest.

"This I will certainly say when I get home," she said. "American women do NOT spend all their time in night clubs. They are good cooks, good mothers. They work hard."

She had visited among other places, a South Dakota farm. Later the State Department conference group heard from the South Dakota hostess, who wrote:

"Mrs. Burkhauser was certainly a good sport. We tried to let her see our everyday life. She has no washing machine so she helped with our wash. The machine broke down.

"Then we drove into town so she could shop in one of our chain stores. The car broke down!"

In the past two years 431 foreign women—all leaders in their home communities—have come to know Americans in homes, at club meetings, at local elections, at City Council meetings, at public health clinics.

The guests, who come from about 55 nations are routed, met at trains taken to meetings and into homes, and helped to study through the combined efforts of the State Department, women's clubs and four agencies, including the American Council on Education, the U. S. Labor Department's office of international labor affairs, the National Social Welfare Assembly, and the Governmental Affairs Institute.

The State Department pays the visitor's travel expenses, and gives each $12 a day for hotel room, meals and incidentals.

Each visitor chooses some special study. Foreign women writers and radio commentators are all routed to American newspaper offices and radio stations. Foreign labor leaders meet with their American counterparts. Farm women have visited the Midwestern farm co-operatives.

The State Department, with no staff to accompany the visitors, calls on the four agencies to plan the actual trips. The agencies, in turn, ask help from the large American club women groups—like the League of Women Voters, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Assn. of University Women.

The visitors are picked abroad by joint committees groups which always include the American embassy's cultural officer.

League of Women Voters officials feel the choice of German women visitors has been especially good. Many of them are now members of the West German federal legislature at Bonn where they can influence German foreign policy.

American women's urge to make friends is taking many forms. One of the most successful is Ankara, Turkey. Wives of the many Americans working there have formed a Turkish-American Women's Club of 350 members about half of them Turkish. They meet in each other's homes to study languages, cooking, literature and dances.

In Kyoto, Japan, the Thirty-Three Club is composed of 15 American women and 15 Japanese who study each other's countries. For American women who volunteer to spend some time with a foreign visitor, the League of Women Voters has prepared directions. Two things are emphasized:

1. Don't take them out to expensive dinners. They will learn more from having a simple family meal in your home.

2. Give them some free time to look around by themselves. They must feel that the government is not trying to direct or censor what they see.

The visitors spend a week in Washington both at the beginning and end of their visit: first, to learn about us, and second, to report on their impressions.

These final reports have turned up some interesting stories of spontaneous American friendliness.

One German girl was lost in Chicago because she got off her bus at the wrong stop. She was due at the stock yards, and worried about missing her appointment. She stepped into a factory office where a secretary dropped her work, got her car, and drove the visitor to her appointment.

Defense Outlays Still Bolstering Business Health

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) War scares are less pressing today but defense spending continues to play a sizable role as a built-in and fairly permanent bolster to American business.

Sometimes the spending is to maintain a defense plant for quick use if war comes—as the plan just announced to give businessmen contracts to keep plants in readiness.

Sometimes the spending is aimed more at bolstering a shaky part of our economy—as the plan recently announced to buy up more domestic lead and zinc for the strategic stockpile to take up the slack in civilian demand for these metals. Sometimes the spending coincides partly—as the calling for bids to supply cloth for new green uniforms for the Army. The depressed textile industry welcomes the Army's decision to change the color of its uniform.

And the shipbuilding industry—running short of commercial orders for new vessels—welcomes Washington's decision to spend a little money just now in the shipyards.

Defense spending often is an arm of the diplomat's too. Contracts to buy Bolivian tin and Chilean copper for the strategic stockpile are aimed as much at bolstering foreign policy as at building up stores of metal for possible war needs.

Government economy has cut back sharply in much defense spending in the last year and had much to do with pulling over-all industrial production figures down. This decline, with its accompaniment of canceled orders, plant layoffs and idle machines, took most of the spotlight.

But the backdrop of the picture is the solid amount of government money which continues to flow into industry.

The nation's defense buildup is expected to reach its goal in three more years. From then on, according to the present blueprints, the defense problem will be one of maintenance.

In a world where weapons and defenses change so rapidly, however, replacing obsolete military hardware will be a major piece of business for years to come.

And the Office of Defense Mobilization is taking steps to see that industry is ready not only to maintain and replace military goods but to spring quickly into full-scale production should war break out.

Government-owned machine tools and production equipment are being kept packaged at or near the plants that would need them for war production. Each package contains all the tools that would be needed to produce a given military item.

And now privately owned plants and machinery that would be necessary to produce war goods fast are to be kept in readiness—with government cash. Maintenance contracts will be given various companies.

In some instances they will even retain a "human package"—a group of key managers, engineers and other skilled workers who know how to make the military hardware.

SEVENTY PERCENT COMPLETE—The new Moose Lodge, shown here, is about 70 percent completed. Moose members hope to move into the new modern, air-conditioned building that includes a 600 seat auditorium in the latter part of November or early December. The building, which contains about 11,000 square feet of floor space, will also contain dining facilities, reading room, TV room and a game room. The Moose membership now exceeds 400 and it is hoped to have 600 members by the time the new Lodge is occupied. (Reflector Photo by Bob Boyette)

The announcement was made today by O. E. Dowd, principal of the high school.

"This includes new students and eight graders who are coming from the elementary school," Dowd said. "All students who were in the high school last year will report at the same time to their old home room of last year."

Dowd said approximately 650 students are expected in Greenville High School for the school year which begins next Wednesday. This represents a slight increase in enrollment over last year for the high school.

WINDOW SHOPPERS

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Within a few weeks, a store was burglarized 10 times. Each time, the intruders smashed a big window. Tired of sweeping up broken glass, the owners hung this sign on the window: "If you need the key, let us know and we'll leave it for you."

Again the place was entered, the window broken. Written on the sign was this message: "No thanks, we don't need a key."

Penal System Investigation Is Needed

The current State Bureau of Investigation into the death of an 18-year-old Negro inmate of Woman's Prison can contribute a great deal to the state's penal system, if it is carried far enough.

Conditions surrounding the death of the woman who was found dead some 25 minutes after being bound by prison officials because of disorderly conduct are being investigated by the SBI. As we understand the investigation, it is to determine whether negligence of officials or employes of the penal institution was a contributing cause of the woman's death.

Building Delay Must Be Overcome

Concern of city school officials over the slow progress being made on construction of the elementary school in the Elmhurst section is certainly justifiable.

When construction was begun in the school back in May, school officials expressed the hope the building would be ready early in the coming school year to meet the need for more classroom facilities.

The work on the South Greenville School addition - started approximately the same time the Elmhurst project began - has progressed nicely, and the facility is expected to be ready by January. The Elmhurst project, however, has shown little progress for months.

We know that contractors run into snags now and then just like other businessmen do, and have difficulty in making the desired progress on jobs. Yet, it seems to us all out of reason that the Elmhurst project has been delayed as long as it has.

The Elmhurst school will be sorely needed by the city school system when local schools begin the fall term next week. In the interest of the school system, the youngsters and the adults of the city local school officials should leave no stone unturned to press the contractor on the Elmhurst project to end the unnecessary delay on the building and continue work on the building as rapidly as possible.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
A LADDER TO HEAVEN

There is a story in the Book of Genesis (chapter 28) of the young Hebrew, Jacob, fleeing from the wrath of his brother Esau and spending the night near Bethel, with the cold, stony ground as his couch. He had a dream, "and, behold, a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven; and, behold, the angels of God ascending and descending on it."

When Jacob awoke from his dream, he realized that his life henceforth would be supported with a new hope and power. This was God's way of telling him that there is a definite communication going on between earth and heaven, and heaven and earth. The word "angel" means "messenger." Messengers were going up to heaven, taking petitions from men to God. Angels were coming down the ladder, bringing help from God to men.

This may seem to many a naive story, but it is the embodiment of one of life's greatest truths. We wend our ways through this labyrinth called life and sometimes it seems there is nothing in life but its bewildering ways and byways. Yet over it all presides God—not a God of fury, wrath, and punishment, but a God of loving help and grace. Our desires go up to Him. His gracious responses and deliverances come down to us.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Democratic Congressional candidates figure that they have a valuable asset for the November campaign because of the neglect which the Eisenhower Administration and the Republican-controlled 83rd Congress showed toward millions of war veterans. Not in years have they fared so badly on Capitol Hill.

Every measure on their behalf was opposed by the Budget Bureau and the Veterans' Administration, which, of course, voiced the White House viewpoint. In accord with these Presidential directives, House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana and the Rules Committee tried to bottle up and block all pro-veterans' legislation.

A WOMAN'S COURAGE—They would have succeeded, had it not been for the courage and determination of Representative Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, Chairman of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs. Defying the leadership, she obtained enactment under privileged procedure rarely used, of a bill increasing pensions by 5 per cent.

When she finally got her proposal to the floor, it passed by a vote of 399 to 0, showing how the Congress felt. It was promptly accepted by the Senate. But this was the only major measure on behalf of the veterans to be adopted.

MRS. ROGERS' IRRITATION—Although an orthodox Republican, Mrs. Rogers has difficulty in concealing her irritation toward the Administration's attitude on veterans. In fact, she may have contributed to the adoption of an extremely critical resolution by the Veterans of Foreign Wars at their recent national convention.

The American Legion, which holds its national convention here next week, is expected to denounce the Eisenhower Administration's indifference to the veterans.

When the VFW invited Mrs. Rogers to address their gathering, she replied that she could not accept because she had to remain at Washington to fight for their interests. Partially as a result of her suggestion Prisons are not suppose to be institutions of country club atmosphere or anything like that. Inmates are imprisoned to be put to work to pay their penalty for crimes committed against society. Yet penal institutions are supposed to be institutions where inmates are not abused.

North Carolina has had a good bit of trouble with its prisoners in penal institutions around the state in the past couple of years. In some instances, prisoners have complained of mistreatment at the hands of guards, and in other instances they have complained about various other conditions. It may be the series of prison troubles in North Carolina is a sort of chain reaction of efforts of prisoners to win softer lives while they are in penal institutions. On the other hand, their complaints may not be without foundation.

A good many conditions which the general public is not aware of can exist behind locked gates and prison walls. Many doubts can be raised in the mind of the public about conditions in the state's penal institutions.

In the interest of the penal system of North Carolina, we believe it is imperative the State Bureau of Investigation make a thorough investigation of conditions in the various units of the state's prison system, and make public a complete report of its findings.

A Giant Step For Stamping Out The Menace

The most vicious outlaw in the United States at last has been officially and legally declared an outlaw by Congress.

Congressional action outlawing the Communist party was long overdue. Even so, passage of the outlawing bill in the closing hours of the session this week came as a fluke. Regardless of circumstances surrounding its passage, however, the law outlawing the Communist party in this country is a stroke which will arm the government with new power to break the back of organized communism in the United States.

Outlawing the Communist party will not drive the despicable organization any farther underground than it already is in this country. The Communist party does not recognize the constitution of the United States except as an instrument for protecting the party while it is trying to overthrow the government which exists under the constitution. Certainly the Communist party should have no rights under the American constitution, and it is only fitting that it be officially stripped of any rights by Congressional action.

Although the new law does not prohibit an individual from being a Communist, the Communist Party as a political entity in the United States is now outlawed.

There will still be Communists in the United States, and they will continue their efforts to overthrow the government; but the recent Congressional action is a step in the right direction toward stamping out this menace to freedom.

Setting Up The Suckers—

Somebody Told Me

Harrowing Day Reached End

Today's column is a continuation of yesterday's account of the harrowing experience I had Sunday at Atlantic Beach. In search for a man sinking in the sand on the beach I had established the location of the man at the end of yesterday's story.

After Marine Major R. A. Bjorson and his wife told me they had seen a car they believed to be the man I was looking for, I concluded that he was out of my reach (I had driven 15 miles looking for him) and it was a job for the Swansboro Coast Guard at the other end of the beach. And now that I had witnesses, it would be no trouble convincing them that a car was sinking on the beach.

Shortly after talking to the Major and his wife I got too close to the sand (not the water) and got stuck myself. Fortunately, I was only about a mile from the beach so I left the car and took off for the nearest cottage. It so happens that the one next to the west end is that of the J. S. Ficklen of Greenville.

My first move was to call the Coast Guard and tell them the man's location. Hearing my pilot, Mr. Ficklen offered me the use of his car to get a tow truck to get me out of the sand. Only a block from the Ficklen cottage I saw a beckoning jeep. The three occupants, J. R. Holden of Maysville and Jim Miles of Pink Hill and Jim Jr., were anxious to help me get out of the sand. So, I returned the Ficklen car and jumped in the jeep.

En route to the car I told them my story up to date. Jim Miles was anxious to drive down the beach and perform the rescue. Johnny Holden wasn't. So for 20-odd miles we travelled down the beach as Jim and Johnny debated the trip. I made every effort to keep them off the subject; naturally I wanted to keep going.

Within two or three miles of the destination Johnny won and we turned back. Jim howled inside. I howled, too, but since I was just along for the ride it wasn't up to me to howl out loud.

When we got back to my car we soon discovered that the jeep wouldn't pull it out. So I was given a lift back to the cottage and we parted company. A quick call to the Coast Guard revealed that they had picked up Jim Cunningham. And a trip to the Fort Macon Coast Guard Station resulted in their decision to help me out of the sand.

Yesterday a tan Chevrolet drove up in front of our place of business and the occupant turned out to be Jim Cunningham, the amateur radio operator who was the subject of my proposed rescue.

Wife Rachel and I debated as to whether or not I should put this next fact in the story. She voted for keeping it out, but to make the story 100 per cent accurate it must go in. Jim had hauled down a fishing boat and they had notified the Coast Guard ahead of me. When my call came in Jim was already sitting in the Coast Guard station.

My efforts were to no avail, but I had a good time trying. Jim left Greenville this morning safe and sound. Really, I didn't shoot him. And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

WATER SUPPLIES VITAL

(Henderson Dispatch)

More than once in years ago Henderson has felt the pinch of severe scarcity and been confronted by potential famine conditions with respect to its water supply. Within a period of about three years, nearly a million dollars has been spent, or committed, to tap new sources and to provide more dependable storage facilities. Now we are relaxing in the confidence that our worries are over for a long time to come.

Other sections of North Carolina are not so fortunate, however. For the State as a whole, the problem of water resources is becoming an increasing concern. This is true in many instances not only as to the actual volume of water obtainable but likewise its quality. Stream pollution, either from manufacturing plants or from sewage dumpings, adds to the seriousness of the situation.

Only Two N.C. Congressmen Facing Election Campaign

By LYNN NISBET

ELECTIONS—Adjournment of the Congress permits all the members to get back into their home territory for some intensive campaign preliminary to the November election. Only two members of the North Carolina delegation have any semblance of personal worry about the general elections outcome. Nothing except the end of time before November 2 will prevent the election of Kerr Scott and Sam Ervin to the U.S. Senate, or the election of any other statewide nominee of the Democratic party.

It is practically as certain that Congressman Herbert Bonner of the first district, L.H. Fountain of the second, Graham A. Barden of the third, Harold Cooley of the fourth, Thurmond Chatham of the fifth, Carl Durham of the sixth, Eriel Carlyle of the seventh and Woodrow Jones of the eighth will be elected. Odds are better than 100 to one that C.B. Deane of the eighth and George A. Shuford of the twelfth will come through with overwhelming majorities.

The situation is different in the ninth and tenth districts. In the ninth Hugh Alexander had a real fight against Republican challenger William E. Stevens, and in the tenth betting odds presently favor Republican Charles Raper Jones to retain his seat against Governor Umstead has requested a State agency to make a study of water resources and have a report ready for the legislature next winter, with the idea of shaping up legislation for protection of both large and small communities. Already some cities are preparing to increase their sewage disposal facilities as a safeguard for other localities further downstream that have to rely upon the state rivers or creeks to obtain their water.

This is becoming necessary, in the midst of an intensive campaign for new industries, to devise a method of preventing contamination of water they must have. The governor is hopeful that a solution may be found, and surely it can be. Indeed it must be in the interest of the over-all wellbeing of citizens generally.

Henderson, fortunately, is not at this time troubled by either of these problems. Its water source is abundant from streams that receive no flow from industries nor from sewage disposals.

But this is not all. Droughts of recent summers have pointed up the scarcity of adequate water supplies for the needs of municipal centers, large and small. Many are finding that their growth is making such demands upon available supplies that greater and more dependable streams must be found. This will be a problem also of the State Water Resources Commission in its current study of conditions. Finding of a way out will not be easy. Very probably it will at best be expensive. An abundance must be discovered that is suitable for human consumption. An answer must be found that will meet all these requirements. Water supply is most vital for all communities. Without it progress will be throttled, and even health may be menaced.

Business Today

Skilled Hands Needed

By ELMER ROESSNER
Gallopings industrial and technological advances in America are giving the unskilled laborer a hard ride. The large number of trade schools, the increasing number of company training programs and the time effort and money expended by business to track down the trained men it needs indicates the ever-growing need for skills.

While the trend has accelerated in the last 15 years it has always been there. A study of Department of Labor figures by the Institute of Life Insurance shows that among nonfarm workers in 1910 there were 5,400,000 classified as unskilled; 3,300,000 semi-skilled, and 4,300,000 skilled. Two decades later the number of unskilled had risen to 6,100,000, and semi-skilled had jumped to 5,500,000, and skilled to 6,200,000. A score of years later the unskilled group had dropped back below the 1910 level to 3,600,000; but semi-skilled and skilled had gone right on soaring to 8,600,000, and 7,900,000 respectively.

The Institute points out some of the ramifications of the trend towards more skill. Earnings of skilled workers are greater than common laborers and this has been reflected in their higher standard of living. Such workers are more productive as well. Also, the jobs have changed. Trades like airplane, auto and radio mechanics, tool and die-makers, etc., have grown faster than the population as a whole. Older trades, such as electricians, plumbers and upholsterers, also have gained.

On the other hand, the number of tailors has been cut in half and the blacksmith has vanished about as completely as the spreading chestnut he once stood beneath.

Prize trade is carpentry—do-it-yourself or no. They still outnumber the other craftsmen and have as far back as records go.

Most interesting in the Institute of Life Insurance's figures is the semi-skilled group which rose from the smallest to the largest of the three. Presumably the semi-skilled includes bolt tighteners, lever pullers and buttonpushers on assembly lines and the like.

Thus, the question arises whether industry still has a way to go in utilizing the native ability in the working force, whether the lack of skilled workers has forced industry to compromise between the technical advances possible and the ability of workers to handle such advances, whether there is a limit to the number of workers who can be highly trained, or whether the increasing competence of machines has lessened the over-all need for highly trained personnel.

STILL VALUABLE... A large number of blocked foreign bank accounts, possibly equivalent to many millions of dollars, still remain unclaimed by their American owners, who are unaware that they own such accounts a New York foreign exchange firm (Deak & Co.) reports.

Apparently, many who had accounts in Europe before World War II or who became heir to such accounts assume they were lost, destroyed or confiscated and have made no effort to recover them. While these accounts are blocked by currency regulations of various countries, a market for them existed usually at a discount of from 1/2 to 5 per cent.

Offers to sell such accounts have declined in recent months, the foreign exchange firm notes. This may be due to improved conditions in foreign countries encouraging account holders to wait for full convertibility and to holders having found profitable investments abroad for their blocked accounts.

BOOSTING OUTPUT... Tobacco growers apparently aren't worried about what the doctors say about smoking. Total production for harvest in the second half of 1954 is estimated by the Department of Commerce at 1,632,000 acres against 1,634,000 acres in the second half of last year. But this will come to some 2,105,021,000 pounds of tobacco compared with 2,057,221,000 pounds in the 1953 period.

A SPRINKLE OF... NUTMEG, SONNY?... A Cincinnati, Ohio firm (G.P. Gundlach) has developed a new nonalcoholic eggnog drink with a "trace of rum flavor" and plans a promotion program aimed at the "growing youth market"—a move that will undoubtedly bring joy to distillers, bartenders and all Cubans.

Nothing like developing the taste early. CREDIT FRAUDS RISE... Credit frauds are increasing, Consumer Credit Letter reports. And by frauds, it doesn't mean the fellow, who just buys more than he can pay for.

Common frauds include the use of false names when buying on credit, the use of credit cards that have been lost by others, and the use of false credentials.

Bill France Makes Speed Pay

By HAL BOYLE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—In an age when airplanes go twice the speed of sound, millions of Americans are still more thrilled by seeing how fast horses and automobiles can race around a track.

Why? "People are interested in all kinds of speed today," said big Bill France, a kingpin of the thriving stock car racing industry. "But to get really excited over it, they have to be close enough to see and feel it."

France, who stands 6-foot-4 and weighs 230 pounds, built his own racing car as a rawboned kid of 20 back in 1929. He drove in 75 races in the days when the rewards came in the form of thrills and peanut prizes.

But the sport, first popular in the South, started mushrooming across the country in 1938, and its starvation times seem over. It's big business now.

Big Bill is president of the largest organized segment of the industry—the National Assn. for Stock Car Auto racing. "This year there will be some 2,000 events on 100 tracks in all parts of America," he said. "Close to 8 million people will pay from 7 to 10 million dollars to see them."

"The big wheels in the auto business are getting interested now. Some people are even building stock car racing stables, just as they do to stables of racehorses. Paul Whiteman, for example, has a two-car stable."

Some 4,000 drivers now compete regularly in stock car races on a national point rating system. Leading drivers fly by plane from one track to another.

"At least four drivers should earn $25,000 in prize money this year," France said. "And probably 20 more will do better than $15,000."

"The national winner, in addition to his prize and bonus money, can also count on about $20,000 more for personal appearances."

This possibility of earning up to $50,000 in a year has attracted many drivers.

The Kentucky Derby of the stock car speed field is the Labor Day race at Darlington, S.C., which pays $30,000 in prizes this year and is expected to draw a gate of $150,000.

But plans are underway to build a two million dollar track at Daytona Beach, Fla., a project which France and his fellow promoters hope will enable them to put on contests that will make the AAA's annual Indianapolis Speedway classic look like a turtle race.

"The Indianapolis track was built 40 years ago," he said. "Now almost any modern track now they can use the same equipment and go up to 40 miles an hour faster."

In one race in which he participated, France's car turned over and over several times, and he had a number of ribs pulled loose. It was his only injury in 75 times at the wheel. But big Bill doesn't like to dwell on the perils of the trade.

Just as horse racing is traditionally defended as a way to "improve the breed," so motor car stock racing has its moral platform, too.

"We feel," said France, "that we have given an incentive to mechanically minded kids who want a chance to make a little money and win national recognition—and, of course, this also keeps them off the highway."

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR AP Newsfeatures

The world of children and the field of photography enjoy a unique and rewarding partnership. Probably more people have started snapping pictures because of children than any other single cause. In return, good children's pictures probably have more universal interest than any other single group. The other day the final results of a national photo contest were tabulated. The theme was "Folks Are Fun" and 1500 prize winners were announced. One of the officials noticed the preponderance of children's pictures in the winner's rank. He made a private tally and discovered that they were the subject matter for more than 90 per cent of the prize winners. If you don't have youngsters of your own, does that deprive you of the chance to focus your camera in the direction of this apparent gold mine? Shucks, no! The grand prize winner in the contest is a 25-year-old bachelor, Robert Chinn of Denver, Colo., is $5,000 richer because he saw, through his camera, two children in a mud fight while vacationing on a California beach.

There are several lessons we can learn from Chinn's performance: 1. He recognized an amusing and photogenic event even though it involved strangers, and didn't hesitate to shoot.

2. Technically, he got a better picture by combining flash with sunlight though retaining the outdoor quality. He did this by subduing the flash (a handkerchief over the flashbulb or a diffuser) which lightened the shadow areas without overpowering the daylight look.

3. He got the subjects' address by promising to send them a print. This enabled him to obtain a photo release when the picture turned out to be of contest caliber. Without this release, he couldn't have collected the $5,000 award.

We're all aware that aiming a camera in a child's direction does not automatically guarantee a prize winning picture every time though some parents might argue that point where it concerns their own children. Their most lovable qualities are revealed when youngsters are strictly themselves, absorbed in their own play and activities. Far too often, adults rudely barge into that child world and interrupt the proceedings with a command to pay attention to a strange device—a camera. No wonder the great mass of average snapshots of children look strained and posed. They are.

For the most successful pictures, a photographer should call least attention to his camera and his mission. The ideal role is that of unobtrusive spectator, carefully watching backgrounds, selecting angles and shooting at the moments of peak action or expression. Since camera stores are not yet selling invisible cloaks, camera fans can be silent spectators, try a bit of indifference and exhibit great patience until they are ignored or forgotten by the youngsters—then quietly shoot. A bit of strategy, often successful, is to bring out a favorite game or introduce a brand new toy to divert children's attention from picture taking itself. Instead of chasing after the subjects, it is often possible to create conditions for favorable play in a certain area, then be prepared to shoot in that zone.

Quite often when pictures of children are to be taken, mother will insist that the occasion calls for primping and fussing. While some semblance of neatness is desirable, there is no necessity for overdoing it—If mother can be overruled. Once again, the watchword is "naturalness"! You'll treasure Junior's picture, and think it more normal, with his hair slightly tousled than all slicked back in geometric perfection. Even if it doesn't win a $5,000 grand prize.

JAP INDIAN CHIEF CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP)—Japanese Ambassador Sadae Iguchi will become an honorary Cherokee Indian chief here Saturday.

The United Nations Children's Fund estimates that two-thirds of the 900 million children in the world do not have adequate food, clothing, shelter, sanitation or medical protection.

Chronic hunger is one reason a Chinese farmer produces only about one thirteenth as much as an American farmer, says the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

It's the shape beneath the dress that makes the fashion. And that is what gives corset and bra manufacturers ulcers. Just after American manufacturers had completed their fall orders, along comes Christian Dior in Paris with his proposal to re-shape the feminine figure, flattening and raising the bustline widening and previously nipped waistline. It developed that Dior himself has designed a foundation garment for this purpose, but its specifications, thus far, have been as closely guarded as a new atomic formula. Best descriptions from sleuthing members of the press in Paris indicate that the new garment is a "long cage, reaching from waistline to above the bosom, with no cups."

First news of the new Dior silhouette, which sounded frighteningly like the flat-chested mode of the flapper era, brought cries of derision from American designers, manufacturers and merchants. Now, however, after due deliberation, most American corset and bra manufacturers have decided there is no cause for alarm, and are willing to keep an open mind until the eventual unveiling of the Dior bra.

A similar garment, made in the form of an all-in-one foundation, with half-cups at the top, designed to lift the bosom, is being manufactured in Paris by a Mme. Le Faucheur, reportedly an associate of Dior, for sale in the United States.

The attitude of U.S. manufacturers is reflected in the following statement from John C. Conover, executive director of the Corset and Brassiere Assn. of America:

"When first report came from Paris that Christian Dior had 'abolished the bustline,' the change in the silhouette was pronounced revolutionary. Now the change is more correctly recognized as one of evolution rather than revolution. Curves are not to be abolished, but curves are somewhat minimized. The bust is not so much flattened as raised and rounded.

"Some modification is necessary in the Dior line before it will be acceptable here. Curves are curves, and no woman wants to deny that she has them.

"Since the corset and brassiere industry is a fashion industry, manufacturers will design garments that give new shape to the bosom, ease the waist and flatten the hips. In fact, the trend to casual coyness already is evident in new foundations for fall. Manufacturers will not produce garments reminiscent of the breast-binding practiced in the 1920s, nor would any sensible American woman wear such an unhealthy garment.

"Now that the first sensational stories on the Dior showing are subsiding, American women can be assured that their figures and their current wardrobes are not doomed. In any season one silhouette may dominate the fashion headlines, but there are always several from which to choose. Any American woman is clever enough to wear the one that suits her best."

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARRETT, Real Estate Editor

All of this home-care-and repair and do-it-yourself business we hear so much about nowadays has a lot of reason back of it. Briefly, we are obliged to take care of our homes because new homes cost so much.

Of course, it's getting to be almost old-fashioned to talk about the high costs of building. We've been talking about that ever since World War II and costs still show no signs of going down. So it's interesting to run across some reasons for this situation.

Taxes are a big item says an expert Myron L. Matthews of the Don Service Building reports of New York. He cites an average size house selling with its land for about $17,225 and finds that taxes account for $1,854 of that cost.

"In 1939-41," he says, "the sales price of that house included only about 2 per cent to cover the miscellaneous taxes then current. Today taxes add almost 13 per cent."

And he isn't talking about the taxes you pay after you buy the house. He means taxes on the builders' corporate profits and taxes on salaries and on labor in the production of the materials and the house.

Matthews incidentally divides the cost of that house as follows: 39 per cent for materials, equipment and appliances; 30 per cent for labor on the site, and 31 per cent for land and builder's overhead and profit—of which he says the land probably amounts to $2,000.

He had figured other mark-ups since pre-war days, such as $972 on the same house for loss of productivity at mill, mine, quarry, forest and site; and $244 for added benefits to the building trades, but those bring up another story. Death and taxes are enough and we don't aim to be funeral, so we'll settle for the tax argument today.

There's a new paint coming on the market this fall. You take the top off the can tip it upside down and the paint doesn't run out. It's jellied. Still it is supposed to spread with a brush just the same as any liquid paint.

The big idea is that this form of paint will never have to be stirred no matter how long it stands on the shelf. The chemist who developed it says they tested a can that had stood for more than two years and there was no settling.

The secret lies in the vehicle of the paint, which in this case is a formula of thixotropic alkyls. The manufacturers of this ingredient don't intend to make paint but rather to license the use of the vehicle to various paint makers, similar to the way ethyl is licensed for gasoline.

In using this paint, you dip the brush in the jelly, bring out a blob of paint and spread it. There's no

No Doubt About Assault Cases

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Police Chief Jeter L. Williamson, relatively new on the job, was startled to note that Greensboro reported more cases of aggravated assault last year than Richmond, Va. — nearly three times as big. Officers were reporting more cases of aggravated assault than simple assault. Aggravated assault is supposed to involve a deadly weapon.

Shedding some light on the situation was one officer's reply to questions about a typical fracas: "But, Chief, everybody there was aggravated."

dripping on the floor, nor down your arm when painting overhead.

And here's one for the birds: You can get aerosol "bombs" loaded with a special gelatin compound which is harmless to birds, but so disagreeable to them underfoot that they will not roost on your window sills, shutters, or roof eaves. It's hated by pigeons and starlings. Still it's odorless and harmless to humans. The makers claim it will cling to any metal, hard stone, wood, or other building material without staining. It is propelled out of its can by liquefied freon gas.

American Coed Finds German Schools Differ

EDITOR'S NOTE—The Associated Press asked Barbara English to jot down her impressions of the young people of Europe during a student tour this summer. Barbara is a daughter of Earl English, dean of the School of Journalism, University of Missouri. Here is the second of her dispatches.

BY BARBARA ENGLISH (Written Exclusively for AP (Newsfeatures))
BONN, Germany—German university students—and only 10 per cent are able to go from high school to college—don't have to attend class if they don't want to. But the final exam is required, just the same.

That's one of the interesting facts I discovered from talking to two young Germans who were guiding a conducted tour in Bonn, similar to the one I was taking.

I became interested in the German school system when I visited the office of the U.S. High Commissioner and found some interesting data which made me eager to talk to students themselves.

The two German guides were about 20 years old and had just been graduated from "hoehere schule" or secondary school. Since American students usually graduate at an earlier age, I asked them how their system worked.

Children start school at 6. After the first part (four years) of the elementary or "Grundschule," 75 to 80 per cent go on to "volk-schule" or higher elementary school. Here, many of the children must pick a trade and take up apprentice training. Others go on to the secondary schools, or what we call high school.

Who will take advanced schooling is decided in the fourth or fifth grades. My friends explained to me that it's based on what is called a maturity examination. Even if this is passed, faculty members and parents must approve. Only about 20 per cent in the elementary schools go on to the secondary education.

At the end of the secondary, the student is ready to take the entrance exams of the university. College classes are largely lectures and as students advance in their work, they attend seminars for specialized work.

At the end of eight semesters, the students are awarded a doctor of philosophy degree. It is generally accepted, however, that this is equivalent to our master's degree. When I asked if the two students had any criticism of their system, they said they thought children must make up their minds too early about what course they would follow. They felt if they could go on into high school without having had to decide whether to enter apprentice training or secondary school, it would be more satisfactory. They also commented that they approved of our co-educational system. Here, it seems, it is allowed in a few secondary schools from necessity. Elementary schools, however, are co-educational.

Churches In U.S. Report Increase In Membership

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Council of Churches says church membership in the United States has reached an all-time high, with 6 out of every 10 Americans enrolled in some church.

The council's Yearbook of American Churches reported yesterday the membership reached 94,842,848 in 1953.

Other statistics from the yearbook were: Protestant churches, which account for 58.9 per cent of church membership, had a gain of 3 per cent.

Roman Catholic churches showed a 4 per cent gain.

Jewish congregations kept the same total as in 1952—five million members.

New churches built since 1940 numbered 50,040 making a total of 294,359 throughout the country.

Worm Farm Keeps Two Ex-Teachers In Money

THERE'S GOLD IN THOSE CRAWLERS . . . Gladys Pederson, left, and Minerva Cutler pack Maine earthworms in cartons for shipment to every state. Carton of 500 brings $4.

By FREDERICK JAMESON of the Boston Post
AP Newsfeatures
Until five years ago the Misses Minerva E. Cutler and Gladys M. Pederson, two retired school teachers, now of West Brooksville, Maine would have run a country mile if anyone held a wiggle worm in front of them.

But they are no longer squeamish. In fact the more they see of them the more they like them. Worms mean money in their pockets.

When they jointly purchased an old farm known as "David's Folly" in this "down east" locality their intention was to renovate the buildings and operate it as a summer resort. They also intended to work the farm but found the soil was sadly depleted.

Then they heard that an underground operator, called Lumbricus terrestris, would bring their soil back to its original fertility. They also learned that their income could be supplemented by raising them. So they made an initial purchase of 3200 crawlers from an earthworm farm in Ohio. Now the two former school marmas are considered the largest growers of worms in New England.

Neither will try to guess the number of worms currently growing on their farm, but if you needed a million or two, they'd be able to furnish them to you just as fast as they could be counted.

So far the pair have sold and delivered their Maine-grown worms to customers in every state in the Union and have sent thousands of egg capsules to Canada and England.

The worms multiply with astronomical speed. One earthworm can produce from 350 to 500 new earthworms every year. It takes 50,000 earthworms they say, to turn over a cubic yard of earth in a month. In properly composted waste, they can make a ton of the richest topsoil known.

The Misses Cutler and Pederson ship worms the year round from their Maine farm. In winter the worms are grown in the cellar. Ice cream containers are used for shipping. A quart carton will hold from 250 to 350 worms. Current prices are $4 for 500 worms including spawn and culture. They are sold in lots of as many as 10,000. And to make sure that you get all the worms you bargain for, the ladies count 'em all, one by one, by hand.

Plans No Inquest In Pistol Death

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse announced today that no inquest will be held in the shooting of Ben Lindsay, Negro, of near Falkland.

The coroner said that Bruce Lee Newton, who gave himself up to authorities after officers began a search for him in connection with the shooting, will be taken directly before the Grand Jury when it convenes Monday.

Rouse said Newton will be held without bond pending Grand Jury action.

Lindsay gave himself up to Farmville police Monday morning following the Sunday night shooting. He led officers to the spot where the .38 caliber pistol was discarded near the scene of the shooting.

To Open Highway Bids On Sept. 7

RALEIGH (AP) — Highway engineers will open bids Sept. 7 on 30 projects covering 250 miles of road improvements in 29 counties.

In advertising for the bids yesterday, the State Highway Commission said the projects include a 2.7-mile long bridge across Croatan Sound between Manns Harbor and Manteo.

The bridge will cost some three million dollars and will have a 24-foot wide roadway. Water traffic will have a vertical clearance of 45 feet and a horizontal clearance of 80 feet.

Liked Everything Except Cooking

By GEORGE McARTHUR
AP Newsfeatures
PARIS—A French couple young enough to honeymoon 11,000 miles over the United States on a motor scooter and $300 liked everything fine—except the cooking.
They learned to like hot dogs and hamburgers, but the rest . . .
"The food is very different from France—is good to be back home," says pretty brunette Denise Baud, the 20-year-old bride who furnished the scooter as her dowry.
Perhaps it should be explained that Denise and Antoine Baud work at the Paris restaurant owned by Antoine's father and no French restaurant keeper thinks much of anyone else's dinner table.
Otherwise, the rambling trip over the United States was delightful.
The happy young couple worried less about the long scooter jaunt than most travel agents would about a trip around the block.
"We were on honeymoon," Denise laughed. "Nothing mattered."
"I liked very much Niagara Falls. He liked the big bridges." They packed 200 pounds of baggage on their scooter and simply took off, Denise speaking school-book English and Antoine none. In slightly more than one month they visited New York, Washington, Raleigh, Atlanta, Birmingham, New Orleans, Houston, San Antonio, Las Vegas, Santa Fe, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo and points between.

The only time their tight budget really pinched was in Las Vegas. They couldn't afford to gamble.
In Texas, Denise said she couldn't understand the language. Antoine took to Texas fine. He got a crew haircut and saw a cowboy. "Now we know is for realistic," Denise said. "No like movie."
They stayed in motels, which they think are the best thing yet designed for motor scooterists, and would travel up to 300 miles daily. Weather permitting, Denise wore shorts, which might explain why "Everybody kind for us because we are French."

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Government sources today said Chinese Nationalist planes flew deep into the Red Chinese sea land last night and dropped rice for victims of the Yangtze River flood. They also loosed hundreds of thousands of propaganda leaflets.
The sources said "many" planes took part in the mission and all returned safely to Formosa. The drops were reportedly made in Hupai, Hunan, Anhwei and Kiangsi provinces.

Ex-Outfielder Bob Lemon Verges On Another 20-Game Pitching Year

By BEN PHLEGAR

Bob Lemon, who moved from obscurity in the outfield to stardom on the mound, needs only one more victory to complete his sixth season of 20 or more triumphs.

Only one other active pitcher—Lemon's Cleveland teammate Bob Feller — has enjoyed such success.

It took the 33-year-old right-hander eight seasons of professional ball to decide to concentrate on pitching. But once he put his mind to it in 1948, he became a 20-game winner immediately.

Only a slump in 1951, when he posted a 17-14 record mars his record.

Percentage-wise, 1954 could be Lemon's best year. He won his 19th game last night 4-3 over Philadelphia in 10 innings, and he has lost only five. The last 10 triumphs have come in succession.

Always a workhorse, Lemon has pitched at least 10 every year. Last season he finished with a 21-15 mark. He's the first hurler in either league to reach 19 this year. The Indians had to struggle for their success last night, coming from two runs behind to tie the score at 3-3 in the eighth, then winning on a walk and Hal Naragon's triple in the 10th.

Second-place New York and third-place Chicago also won, leaving Cleveland 4½ in front of the Yankees and 8½ ahead of the White Sox.

The Yankees defeated Baltimore 5-1 and Chicago beat Washington 7-2. Boston whipped Detroit 5-3.

Brooklyn and Milwaukee gained half a game each in the National League when rain washed out New York's scheduled game in Chicago. The Dodgers thumped Cincinnati 13-2. Milwaukee shade Philadelphia 4-3. St. Louis took over fourth place with a 13-0 runaway over Pittsburgh.

Eddie Lopat checked the Orioles on three hits, including a home run by Bobby Young for his 11th victory. His Yankee support included homers by Yogi Berra, Hank Bauer and Irv Noren.

The White Sox jumped on the Senators for seven runs in the first two innings. Lefty Billy Pierce struck out 10 in one of his best performances of an injury-riddled season.

Boston put together three doubles, including one by Ted Williams, a walk, an infield single and a sacrifice fly for five runs in the fifth inning in shaving the Tigers' fourth-place margin to one percentage point.

The Dodgers, who hit four home runs Tuesday night in Cincinnati, smashed five in last night's rout of the Redlegs. Al Walker, the Dodgers' second-string catcher hit a pair. Gil Hodges hit two and Carl Furillo one in support of Billy Lopez' three-hitter.

The Dodgers now trail New York by 3½ games with an off day today while the Giants play a double-header in Chicago.

Milwaukee, seven games behind, used five hits and two Philadelphia errors to shade Curt Simmons and the Phillies. Lew Burdette gave up 10 hits in eight innings but registered his 12th victory.

Stan Musial replaced Duke Snider as the National League batting leader with an average of .347. He collected a double and two singles in five times at bat against the last-place Pirates while Snider went hitless in six times up at Cincinnati.

The Cardinals got 16 hits all told and rookie Gordon Jones won his second major league game with a five-hitter. It was his first shutout.

Canadian Football Experiment Ready

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — The great Canadian football experiment is only two days away, and the ones who are doing the most sweating about it as the fateful hour approaches are the two American "experts" who have been entrusted with the task of explaining to a nationwide television audience what in the world is going on.

High in a booth all by themselves when the Toronto and Ottawa professionals invade at one another on Saturday afternoon will be Lindsey Nelson, NBC's able commentator, and Jim Crowley, who learned considerable American football a member of Notre Dame's famous "Four Horsemen," as coach at Fordham and as president of the All-American Conference, deceased.

Nelson will be expected to call off the play-by-play, or a reasonable facsimile thereof, for his American audience, and Crowley to supply the "color" during periods when there's no action on the field. After thinking it over carefully, they've decided not to have a Canadian within speaking distance.

"It would only confuse things," Nelson explains, "to have a Canadian expert coming on every now and then and saying that it hadn't happened quite the way Jim and I told it. We don't want anybody

Phants Continue Opening Drills

With more boys reporting all the time, the Greenville Phantoms might have a decent looking squad by the end of the year. The team is getting close to 29 players, almost double what they had last week.

Many of these players are young boys who are going to play junior varsity ball. The junior varsity team opens its schedule September 9. Coach Bill Kittredge urged all boys planning to play junior varsity ball to report as soon as possible. The players that report after school starts will not be in shape by the first game.

The junior varsity last year won three games and lost one in a highly successful campaign.

The Phantom varsity continued drilling in the morning and at night as they get their attack and defense ready for the season opener against Wilson on September 3.

The Phantoms will continue with twice a day drills until school starts September 1.

Gulf Stream Fishermen Enjoy Better Than Average Catches

HATTERAS—Despite stormy weather last weekend, Gulf Stream fishermen were having better than average luck in waters off the coast of Dare County during the month of August.

Count of sailfish and white marlin was lost during the middle of the month when the big blue marlin started hitting. From Hatteras, and— or Oregon Inlets during a 10-day period of mid-August six giant blue marlin ranging from 165 to 425 pounds were landed by anglers skipping bait for the big fish.

In addition to the billfishes, plenty of dolphin, larger than average in size, some of which went to 35 pounds each, wahoo, the largest a 56 pounder, amberjack ranging from 18 to 30 pounds, false and true albacore, little tuna and other varieties were landed. Those who have followed Gulf Stream fishing along the North Carolina coast are unanimous in their belief that this has been the greatest summer of all for blue water fishing. More billfishes have been landed from Oregon Inlet southward to South-

Sharp Fish Hooks Help Keep 'Big Ones' Hooked

By DION HENDERSON

AP Newsfeatures. . . . . The angler might as well . . . . . fish hooks—are something like women, under various circumstances you can be stuck with them, on them and without them.

And a real sharp observation like that should serve as a reminder that even sharper—would reduce considerably the crop of stories about "the big one that got away."

The fact that we may be losing fish because our hooks aren't sharp enough to do their proper work simply never occurs to most of us. Those hooks, as most of us find out sooner or later, are plenty sharp enough to stab the unwary finger.

But a tender finger and a fish's bony jaw are two different things. And dull hooks are as common with veterans as among neophytes.

In the first place, most hooks—particularly those on casting lures, aren't really sharp when you buy them. Maybe they were when they left the factory, but jostling around on the way, and jouncing on count-

Bouncing Back . . . . . by Pap'

It was a lucky break that Hal Newhouse signed with the Cleveland Indians — lucky for both the Indians and Newhouse. The 32-year-old southpaw who signed with the Indians this spring after he had been given his unconditional release by the Tigers has been most helpful. He has taken some of the pressure of the Indians' Big Three — Lemon, Garcia and Wynn — through his efficient relief hurling. His record isn't too impressive, standing at 5-2 in 19 games, but Manager Al Lopez insists he has been invaluable in some tight spots where his experience and pitching wizardry paid off handsomely.

Newhouse thought he was through with pitching when the Detroit club released him in July of 1953. His 1953 record showed no victories and one defeat. He had pitched 200 victories in the American League while earning close to

Tennis Queen Of Forty Years Ago Still Plays

RICHMOND, Va. — The toughest thing about approaching 70 is keeping away from your major interests.

And major interests of Mrs. Willard Sullivan are sports. She still swings a mean tennis racket, but she gave up coaching the men's tennis team at Randolph Macon College after piloting it to a Virginia "Little Six" college championship in 1952.

To those who were around shortly after the turn of the century Mrs. Sullivan was well known as Connie Evans. She first gained fame locally by coaching a championship football team of boys. They were her pupils in a Sunday School class at Monumental Episcopal church, where her father was pastor.

She played in her first tennis tournament in 1902 and went because women played poorly. She does not remember if it was the Virginia State or the Old Dominion both of which she won repeatedly.

She later became widely known for her play in the Southern and the Nationals, which were then played at the Merion Cricket Club in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Sullivan's coaching at Randolph Macon men's college at Ashland began in 1948 when the school had no money for a coach. Told that there would be no financial

Hard Luck Girl Doris Hart Has Her Big Chance

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

AP Newsfeatures

CHICAGO — Doris Hart, tennis' hard-luck gal, has a great chance to shrug off the "runner-up blues" in the nationals at Forest Hills. (Dates for the nationals are Aug. 28 through Sept. 6.)

The affable 29-year-old star from Coral Gables, Fla., has finished second five times in the nationals. In the 1946 finals, she bowed to Pauline Betz. In 1949 and 1950 she lost to Margaret Osborne DuPont. The last two years she was soundly beaten by Maureen Connolly.

With Maureen sidelined with a broken leg, Doris figures to have a fine chance at Forest Hills.

"Naturally, I feel my chances are better with Maureen out of the tournament," Doris says. "But that accident Maureen had is a shame. She is such a great little star."

Miss Hart was among the first to send condolences to "Little Mo" after her horse shied against a truck and she suffered a leg fracture and torn tendons.

"Including myself, there are five women players who can beat each other at Forest Hills," says Doris. "The one who is up on her game at that particular time will win. The four I must watch out for are Louise Brough, Shirley Fry, Margaret DuPont and Beverly Baker Fleitz."

Doris has never broken through at Forest Hills in nine years of campaigning, but she has won just about everything else. She took the Australian crown in 1949, the Wimbledon in 1951 and the French title in 1950 and 1952. She also has won the Italian and Egyptian championships.

Recently, Doris was drubbed 6-3, 6-1 by Maureen in the finals of the National Clay Courts in Chicago. It was their first meeting since the 1953 nationals.

As a small tyke Miss Hart was injured in a fall against a metal top, paralyzing her right knee. It took two years for her to walk again. She was 10, a critical stomach operation threatened to keep her invalid.

"But with the help of my brother, Bud, I took up tennis to regain my health," she says. "Five years ago I thought my days of competition were ended. I needed an operation on my eye caused by dust and chalk particles kicked up during tennis play. But it was a success."

In addition to the 1,140 pounder, Woodward boated an 888-pound black marlin, lost three and saw five more. His fish were taken on a 39 thread line.

Mixed-Up Marathon As European Games Open

By MILT MARMOR

BERN, Switzerland (AP)—Five judges pondered, debated, and then came up early today with a solution for the European Games' "wrong way" marathon that even Solomon might have envied.

So the track and field games entered their second day with an unprecedented squabble and a decision that will take its place in athletic annals.

Last night Ivan Filin, a Russian coal miner, came into the Neufeld Stadium with a comfortable lead in the marathon. But he turned left when he should have gone right.

The Russians protested bitterly that he had been misdirected and that the officials' error had cost the 28-year-old runner victory in his first international marathon.

Moses Bids For Bout With Troy

NEW YORK (AP)—Back in the limelight again with three straight victories, hard-hitting Moses Ward of Detroit is after a return bout with Willie Troy now.

Ward, a 22-year-old auto worker, handed Tuzo (Kid) Portogues of Costa Rica a sound drubbing last night in a television 10-rounder in Madison Square Garden. He won on a technical knockout in 1:23 of the fifth round.

In the process, however, he suffered a cut over his right eye that required three stitches and just about canceled out a proposed match with Joey Giardello, top-ranking middleweight contender, in Philadelphia Sept. 24.

"The chance of such a bout now is remote," said Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club. "We may put Ward in with Troy on a later date."

Portogues was shaken up in every round from the second on last night. Referee Ray Miller halted the bout after Ward rocked the bleeding Portogues with a long right to the jaw.

Ward weighed 161 to his opponent's 157½.

Musial Meant His Early Claim

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial must have meant it when he said, "I'm going to win the batting title this year."

The St. Louis Cardinals' slugger took over the National League lead last night by collecting three hits in five trips against Pittsburgh, lifting his average to .347, one point higher than Brooklyn's Duke Snider.

Snider, who went hitless in six at bats against Cincinnati, had set the pace since June 20.

Uneasy Peace In Phillies' Camp

MILWAUKEE (AP) — An uneasy peace hung over the Philadelphia Phillies today.

Manager Terry Moore and Graney Hamner made up late yesterday following a haul of accusations and counter-charges that had hurled at each other through the newspapers. Neither had seen the other until a hotel room conference in late afternoon.

"I talked too much," said Hamner.

"He admitted he was wrong," said Moore.

Moore did not punish Hamner, despite a threat of disciplinary action following the second baseman's crack that the Phillies were "treating the players like high school kids."

But later, asked what effect he thought his action might have on players he earlier accused of keeping late hours and other extracurricular activities, Moore shook his head.

"I don't know," he said, with an appearance of disgust. "That'll have to develop."

"After all, you know I haven't signed for 1955 yet."

The remark was in direct denial of statements attributed to the 44-year-old ex-St. Louis Cardinal last Monday, when he said he would be in charge of the Phillies next season.

General Manager Roy Hamay, who arrived in Milwaukee Tuesday said the same thing although Moore had said earlier in connection with the Hamner business that he had "100 per cent backing" from both Hamay and owner Bob Carpenter in any punishment he decided to impose.

"Hamay has not signed for 1955," Hamay said. "We have a mutual agreement that if he is satisfied with the Phillies and we are satisfied with him, we'll offer a contract."

Hamay expressed dissatisfaction with the entire situation, commenting "Something drastic will have to be done."

"We can't have a player running the show," he added.

Hamner's remarks, touching off a delicate situation which started developing a month or so ago when he caught a private detective hired by the club trailing him, were made Tuesday night.

"I never saw so many silly and unfounded statements stem from one club as have been issued by the Philadelphia club," Hamner said, apparently referring to Moore's remarks at a clubhouse meeting in Brooklyn last Friday night. The manager, who took over for Steve O'Neill after the All-Star game in July, at that time told the players that he had evidence of several infractions on recent road trips.

Traber Is Top Seeded Entry At Forest Hills

NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Trabert, the top player in the United States, has been seeded No. 1 for the National Tennis Championships which begin at Forest Hills on Saturday.

Vic Seixas, twice a finalist, is No. 2, followed by Hamilton Richardson, the national intercollegiate champion from Tulane; Art Larsen champion in 1950; Ed Loyal; Straight Clark; Gardner Mulloy; Tom Brown; Bernard Bartszen and Bill Talbert.

The foreign seedings are headed by Lew Hood of Australia. His Davis Cup teammate, Ken Rosewall is No. 2. Then, in order follow Even Davidson of Sweden, Rex Gellin of Sweden, Neale Fraser of Australia, Owen Williams of South Africa, Kosmo Kanada of Japan, Lorne Main of Canada and Roger Becker of England.

Harry Eads' Sir Mango, son of Gilded Knight, is being mentioned for "Horse of the Year" honors for his many mid-west victories.

Sharp Fish Hooks Help Keep 'Big Ones' Hooked

ers has left them lacking that important point.

Here's a test for you: Pick up a standard ½ ounce lure by one of its gang hooks. If the points don't sink in a mite just with the weight of the plug, they aren't sharp enough.

The remedy is simple. Invest a quarter in one of those small pocket hones and leave it in your tackle box. Whenever you put a new lure in the box, or take one out after it's rested a while, use the hone gently on each hook. Hone on the inside of the bend, from the bars to the point.

Don't worry about the barb itself. It'll hold your lunger, if it gets a chance.

And don't make a grand sweep through your lures just once, then forget about it. Most hooks will rust themselves dull in a few days, even in fresh water, and if lures are rattling around in your gear they'll show the effects of jouncing after only a short trip.

Try it next time out. It won't really be magic, it will just seem that way.

Sky-Spraying Field Has Girl Pilot Doing Work

By BILL ACHATZ
AF Newfeatures

FORT WASHINGTON, Pa. — Women tackle practically every kind of job these days, but attractive Mary Wilcox doesn't have much competition in her field—yet.

At 26, Mary is an experienced sky-sprayer. That means she has to be a topnotch flier and know a great deal about fighting weeds with chemicals.

In the off-season, she bones up on the latest developments in herbicides at an experimental farm near here.

Then during the three summer months she puts this knowledge to practical use for Canadian ranches. Flying a few feet off the ground at more than 85 miles an hour, she sprays miles and miles of Alberta wheat and other grains.

From her small open cockpit bi-plane, Mary can spray an acre in 15 seconds. The operation kills the weeds chemically, an estimated 40 times faster than ground methods. It costs the farmer $1.25 an acre—but don't call on Mary if you only have an acre or two.

When she lands for the chemical, her business partner, Canadian rancher Frank Young, pumps the spray solution into a 40-gallon tank in the plane. From this tank the spray is distributed to a total of 12 nozzles under the wings—six on each side. Flow is controlled by a trigger on the stick, similar to the device which fires machine guns on a fighter plane.

One loaded, Mary takes off and does a couple of rolls to mix the solution.

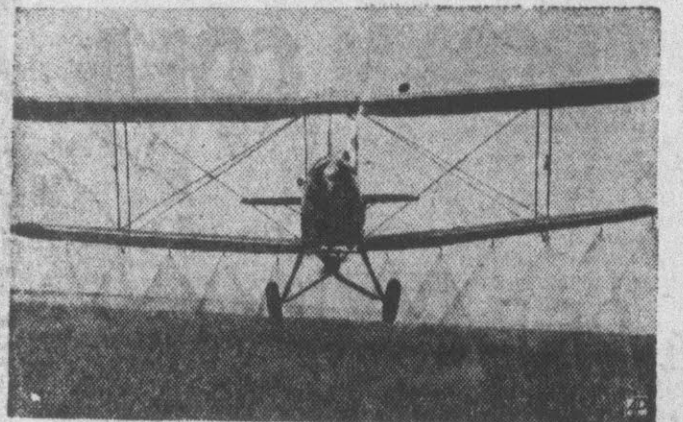

Two helpers stand in the field, serving as markers for the swath she'll spray. As she approaches, they dive flat to the ground to avoid being clipped by the plane. Then they run across the field to mark the next swath while Mary does a sharp turn for the reverse flight. This procedure is necessary because the chemical does not leave a plainly-visible mark on the crop.

The pretty flier, who likes to ski and play squash rackets in her leisure time, has logged more than 2500 hours in the air without a crackup.

Dependent Care Is Big Problem In Armed Forces

By RAY HENRY
WASHINGTON (AP)—The armed forces have a king-sized nationwide problem on their hands.

It concerns medical care for dependents of servicemen. A Defense Department order cutting the number of doctors in the services from about 4 per 1,000 men on active duty to 3 per 1,000 is making it hard for the Army and Navy to continue its traditional service to the families of soldiers and sailors.

The cut stemmed from a recommendation by a presidential committee in early 1953. The theory was that the services should make better use of their doctors, and if the number were cut they would be forced to.

Secretary of Defense Wilson told the armed forces to make the cut June 30, 1954, for at least a year.

Actually there is only vague legal sanction for providing care for servicemen's dependents. The practice grew out of an 18th-century appropriation act which said "that the medical officers of the Army and the contract surgeons shall wherever practicable, attend the families of officers and soldiers free of charge."

The services put their own guidelines into regulations which assured rather broad dependent care as a matter of policy. Few ever questioned the policy.

The services contend that when they provide the care it improves morale; that it is an important factor in getting and keeping competent career military personnel; that it is essential to the maintenance of good health conditions at military bases; and that it is essential to the maintenance of good health conditions at military bases; and that it is economical since it makes use of space and personnel when military hospitals are not crowded with military casualties.

With these things in mind, and with fewer doctors, the services are still attempting to continue the care. But say defense and service officials:

1. The Navy must resort to emergency measures. Medical officers assigned to ships are being pulled off as soon as they land in port to supplement staffs of naval hospitals. Some doctors assigned to units stationed at naval bases must report to naval hospitals when they're not needed by their units.

2. Night and weekend work is routine. At the largest military hospital in the world—San Diego (Calif.) Naval Hospital, with some 2,800 beds—medical officers have been averaging a 68-hour week. 3. In some areas where there is a heavy concentration of dependents the service officials say, "We are not able to provide as much dependent care as we had been accustomed to doing." This includes places such as Norfolk, San Diego, Chicago, Pensacola, Jacksonville and San Francisco.

4. Research and administrative work for medical officers has been cut considerably. Sanitation inspections, training and preventive medicine programs have been trimmed or turned over to non-physician medical administrative officers often less qualified.

5. Special types of training programs for medical officers, such as attendance at staff colleges, have had to be cut drastically or done away with.

Some service officials believe the 4-per-1,000 ratio of doctors will eventually have to be restored.

Tornado Cellar Rules Invoked

DUNCAN, Okla. (AP)—Two Duncan, Okla. women with storm cellars had to adopt rules for the neighbors who rushed there at the threat of a tornado. Among them were:

Don't let the kids yell and fight. Bring your own snacks; don't expect your hostess to furnish food. No smoking; the air gets thick. Don't gripe because you're here. Be thankful your neighbor has a cellar. And don't criticize seating facilities.

And please leave immediately after the storm. This is not a social event.

Elephant-Power Moved Autos

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—Elephant-power accomplished with ease yesterday what horsepower failed to do.

When automobiles were bogged down by a sudden thunderstorm high turned a Ringling Bros. Circus parking lot into a quagmire, circus officials brought the tuskers into action.

The elephants gently nudged and pulled one car after the other free of the mud.

Investigations Stole Spotlight From Serious Work Of The 83rd Congress

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Blaring headlines on investigations directed by and at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) chronicled a spectacular segment of the record of the 83rd Congress.

The big sensation was the stormy, 36-day feud between McCarthy and top Army officials. With the verdict still not in on that one, the Senate has some unfinished business left on another growing party from it—an inquiry starting next Tuesday into charges behind demands that the Senate censure the Wisconsin senator's conduct.

Other inquiries plodded on in less showy fashion or blazed across the congressional horizon like momentary meteors.

Committees dug into housing scandals, racketeering, crime on the waterfronts. Three of them went relentlessly after Communists in and out of government. The House Un-American Activities Committee tried to subpoena former President Truman and got a rap on the knuckles from President Eisenhower.

Scores of witnesses took cover behind the Fifth Amendment on questions about communism. Some were fired or suspended from jobs with the government, in defense plants or in schools and colleges. Some were cited for contempt of Congress, a step toward trials in court.

With so many witnesses ducking for cover under the constitutional guarantee that they need not testify against themselves, Congress passed a law to take away this immunity under some conditions.

In its place, the witnesses would get immunity from prosecution in federal courts for any testimony they would be compelled to give.

There was hardly a day in the last 19 months when Congress wasn't investigating something. If it wasn't vermin pills for the Inchohese or ice box deaths it was the high price of coffee or alleged Army coddling of athletes.

Behind the inquiries is a story of conflict and controversy, and of jockeying at times for political advantage in a congressional election year.

Yet the McCarthy-Army row was largely a family affair among the Republicans. And the upcoming investigation of McCarthy's conduct was set off by a Republican, Sen. Flanders of Vermont.

Furthermore Republicans as well as Democrats have produced one major offshoot of the investigations—demands that Congress police its committees in some way and set up a code of fair practices designed to meet criticisms that inquiries have spawned abuses and mistreatment of witnesses.

Eisenhower, too, has stressed time after time his desire for fair plan in investigations although he has said this is a matter for Congress itself to handle.

And time after time the President sidestepped head-on clashes with McCarthy only by refusing to indulge in personalities or namecalling. Even so, he shot some unmistakable shafts in the senator's direction.

Some investigating committees had internal troubles.

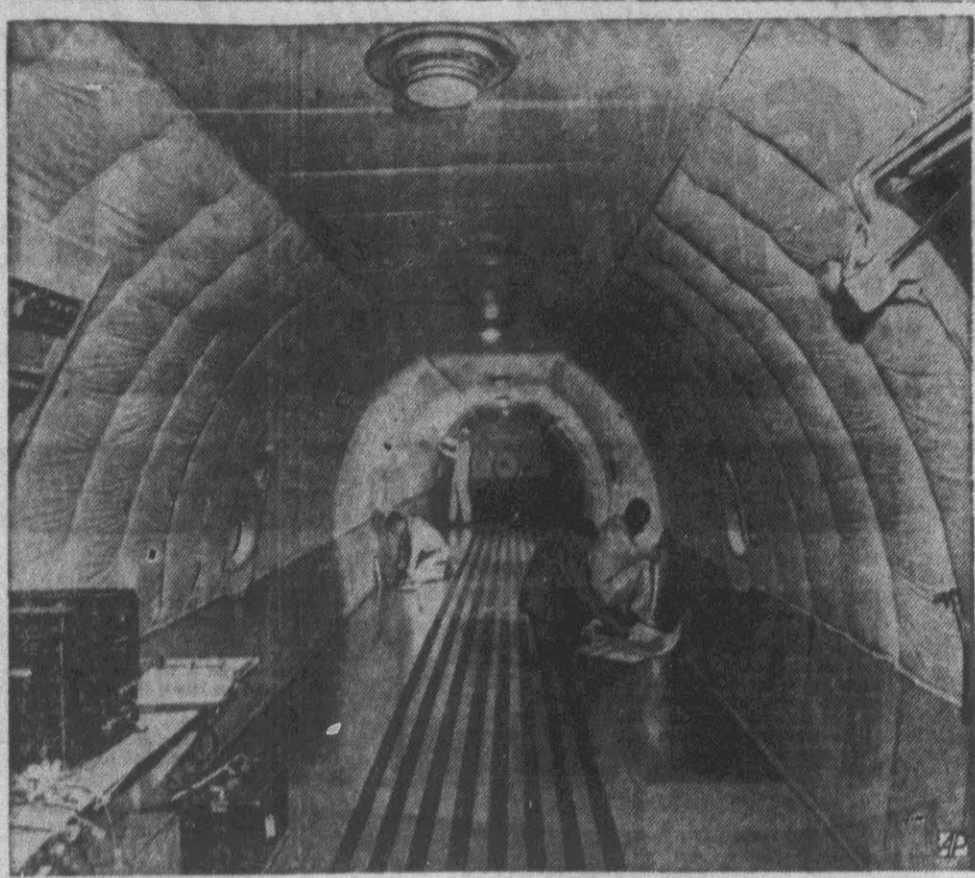

Democrats stamped out from McCarthy's Senate Investigations subcommittee when the GOP majority voted the chairman exclusive rights to hire and fire staff members. It took months, and a change in that decision to get them back.

Under pressure for a staff shake-up, McCarthy reluctantly accepted the resignation of Roy M. Cohn as chief counsel and transferred Donald A. Surine to his own office staff.

On a subcommittee which has hammered away at security risks, it developed that Surine and another staff aide, Thomas Lavenia, had been denied security clearance by the Pentagon. Lavenia was kept on the payroll with an understanding he would have no access to secret information.

Staff troubles, the Army hearings and the censure move are just a fragment of the McCarthy saga in the 83rd Congress which has just wound up its second session. From time to time, the senator banged away at these targets:

Books he said were pro-Communist in U.S. libraries overseas;

Council Awaits Disputed Report

By WILIAM J. CONWAY
EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—A report denouncing communism as the road to "totalitarian dictatorship" and making some criticism of democracies awaited action by Christian leaders today.

The report was discussed by delegates to the Assembly of the World Council of Churches yesterday in afternoon and evening sessions. Delegates to an assembly represent 163 denominations in 49 countries.

The 51-page document concerns the main theme of the convention, "Christ—the Hope of the World." Some who joined the debate stated it didn't lay enough stress on the second coming of Christ.

Others contended it didn't place sufficient emphasis on the possibility of achieving justice, with Christ's aid, in this world.

And some figured it didn't go far enough in condemnation of communism as a "false hope."

Archbishop Michael of New York head of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America and one of the six new presidents of the council, asserted:

"False doctrines which are mentioned in the report especially that of communism, threaten the whole of human existence. All of these dehumanize life.

"It is this aspect of false hopes with which the church is primarily concerned. The danger for man which these false doctrines present appears to be sorely underestimated in the report."

The "main theme" report was placed before the assembly by a coordinating committee. Submitted with it was a statement from the coordinating group in the nature of a report on its work and its findings.

Delegate after delegate went to the rostrum to comment on the report or the statement—many to quibble over a word or to suggest a change in phrasing.

The night session ended without a vote. No time was set for renewal of debate and a decision.

The assembly, now in the 12th day of its 17-day meeting, also will act on reports on other subjects and on an over-all message before the session ends Aug. 31.

A 10-page section of the "main theme" report is devoted to forms of contemporary governments and movements.

Under communism, it states, "happiness, justice and love are no longer possible; and man in the class struggle is no longer truly man."

"The Communist doctrine of the dictatorship of the proletariat has led in most cases to totalitarian dictatorship in which the freedom of man is in fact denied," it says.

The report says democracy is founded upon "Christian tradition" and in its basic beliefs is a "child or step-child of Christian belief and Christian compassion." It adds:

"To Christian teaching it owes, in large part, its recognition of the worth of every person of the fundamental equality of all men as human beings, of their interdependence and of their mutual obligation to one another.

"But inequality, discrimination, injustice, reliance on naked power or exploitation and aggression are not absent from democracies."

Archbishop Michael and five other high-ranking clergymen were elected presidents of the council last night. The others are:

Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill, Greenwich, Conn., presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States.

The Very Rev. John Baillie of the Church of Scotland, noted theologian at the University of Edinburgh.

Bishop San'te Uberto Barbieri of Buenos Aires, bishop of the Methodist Church in Argentina, Uruguay and Bolivia.

Bishop Otto Dibelius of the United Evangelical Church in Germany.

Mar Thoma Juhanon, head of the Mar Thoma Syrian Church in south India.

A threatened floor fight was averted when those who wanted a layman on the six-man presidium did not insist that one be chosen.

Hungary Invites Church Council

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Churchmen from Communist Hungary invited the World Council of Churches to hold a future executive meeting there with the promise of "full freedom."

Bishop Albert Berecsky of Budapest extended the invitation last night at a session of the council's assembly. He said:

"Without doubt the members of the assembly understand the far-reaching significance of the fact that such an opportunity for an ecumenical meeting is offered in Hungary."

There, he said, "within the framework of the World Council of Churches, the churches of the Western and Eastern parts of the world may confer with full freedom."

Bishop Berecsky, senior bishop of the Reformed Church of Hungary expressed thanks to the assembly "for the signs of open-hearted Christian love and attention which we have received."

There are five delegates at the assembly from the Hungarian Lutheran and Reformed churches. Two of them were elected last night to the council's Central Committee, its interim governing body.

Presumably, Berecsky's invitation was for this group to meet there.

HOLLOW SILVER

By HELEN TOPPING MILLER

Penn swerved her speeding sufficiently to avoid striking the crouched figure that had loomed suddenly on the highway. She slammed on her brakes to be confronted by a very angry young man who had stopped by the roadside near Washington, D.C., to think with the help of the dead on his hands. She learns that he is Marsh Nichols, war-vet and resident of the area. Penn offers to drive him to his home, identifying herself as Penn Houk, niece of Senator Elihu Storey. He rejects her offer scornfully, adding that he wants no part of the Storey clan. When Penn reaches the Storey "mansion" where she resides with her Uncle Elihu and his wife, Aunt Maude, she finds the Senator greatly perturbed, ready to leave on an unexpected plane-flight to his home-state in the middle west. Penn wonders what would become of the Storey family should her uncle's life or political career suddenly end.

CHAPTER FOUR

PENN went to the mirror and spent a moment getting her part straight. Her back was turned she flung her next remark behind her with cool deliberation. "Winifred doesn't love Gil because she's in love with someone else." "With who?" Quincy jerked upright, her heels hitting the floor. "How do you know?" she demanded. "I think it's quite obvious, when you see them together. She's not only resenting Gil and his Navy job all the time but she's comparing him with somebody else to his disadvantage. Sooner or later I'll know who it is." "A female Mike Hammer in the family?" jeered her sister. "You'd be pleased if they did dust up, wouldn't you?" "It would grieve me to see Gil hurt, but your insinuations that I'm soft about Gil have about as much foundation as the rest of your ideas. Anyway, Gil is like Uncle Elihu, entirely complacent. He'll never notice what she's up to." Penn said. "He should have married Kelly," mused Quincy. "She'd see no evil but if she did see it, it wouldn't matter."

"Kelly," Penn stated firmly, "is the one wholesome person in the Storey tribe beside Gil. She hasn't made a leech of herself like the rest of us. She got herself a good job and went to work—the thing you and I ought to do. We aren't getting by on that little income from daddy's insurance." Quincy said: "You know Uncle Elihu wants it that way. He likes dispensing largess." "Kelly had courage enough not to wait to be just another Storey parasite and I admire her for it. Look at Gregg, always borrowing, bringing notes around to be endorsed. Look at you and me!" "I like looking at me," Quincy poised in front of the mirror studying her eyebrows. Her eyes had shone through the sooty tangle of her lashes. Her piquant face always looked a little enchanted, as though she were about to glimpse something entirely magical and exciting. Her skin was clear, of the same ivory tint as her sister's, the sort of skin that did not tan or freckle, and she had a soft, impudent mouth. In Penn, that identical shaped mouth was always drawn at rifle too straight "Why," demanded Quincy, approving what she saw, "can't that stupid idiot discover that I'm a decent-looking female? Now if I were the broody type like you, with a lot of anxieties and grievances sticking out like quills to stand a man off, there would be some excuse for his soggy attitude."

"I hope you know what you're talking about," snapped Penn, jabbing in the last bobby pin.

"I'm talking about Yates Underwood the slippery prawn! He was supposed to take me across the river to see Rufe's show tonight, so what does he do? Calls up and says he has to get some poisonous brief ready for court tomorrow."

Penn hung a yellow cap over her hair. "Naturally Yates has to do what he's told. He's a very junior junior in the firm and juniors take orders from the senior seniors. Yates, I surmise, makes about $3,000 a year. Uncle Elihu's secretary gets more than that."

"Oh, but precious old Claudia has been around forever. She flew west with Uncle Elihu tonight."

Penn went down the stairs to the library, turned on a desk light and spread her papers out on the blotter. Then with an abrupt gesture she pushed them into a jumble, pressed her knuckles into her forehead. Something had seemed wrong ever since the night before last, when young Marsh Nichols had scowled at her, refusing her help, implying with brusque coldness that he wanted nothing to do with her or any of the Storey family.

It was stupid to be so resentful and troubled at being ignored by a stranger, and a rude stranger at that. It was stupid to have the feeling she had now about this house; as though Marsh Nichols, Junior, had left some part of himself behind in the place where he had been born, some reproachful hostile, homesick ecstasism that haunted the rooms and hated the people who lived in them.

That Marsh Nichols was young and engaging in a brusque sort of way, she told herself fiercely, had nothing to do with it. Last spring, when they had draped a bachelor's hood around her shoulders, she had resolved that men were never going to complicate her life. Everything had been arranged then. She would study hard all summer, she would take the diplomatic exams next spring, get into some branch of service where a cool-headed young woman who spoke Russian could do something important.

It had been a goal set with rigidly the same grim control she had put on herself ever since that day five years ago, when her cousin Gilbert Storey announced his engagement to Winifred, the blonde daughter of an under-secretary in the state department.

From the moment when the orphaned Houk twins, leggy and slim as dark young colts, had come into the Storey household Penn had known a secret adoration for Gil, 10 years older than she was. She remembered her desolation during his two years of sea duty and some of the letters she had written him. A fear that woke her sometimes in the night was that Winifred might some time find one of those letters.

Upstairs, Quincy had a radio blaring. Penn closed the library door and set her papers firmly in order. Determinedly she attacked the exercise before her. After an hour or two she heard a car stop outside, and voices in the back hall. Then the door opened a crack and Winifred's big eyes blinked at her.

"Here's Penn—being studious," she called over her shoulder. Maude opened the door wide. "Hello, darling. We're home. We're going to make coffee. Come along and help us."

"Thank you—I really should finish this," Penn hedged, hoping none of the turmoil of her evening's brooding showed on her face, hoping she could manage to be nice to Winifred.

But Winifred was gaily unaware. She closed her book under Penn's hand with a slap, pulled at the girl's arm.

"Come along. Leave all that morbid stuff to the Bolsheviks." "How was the play?" Penn followed Winifred into the kitchen. "Wonderfully well done," declared her aunt spooning coffee into the percolator.

"But slightly corny, Maude, dear, you must admit," put in Winifred. "Poor Rufe did wonders with what he had, but the play was strictly turkey."

"Was Kelly there?" Penn asked. "Oh yes, she was there. Unimpressed. She's coming out with Rufe."

"And will you see about the beds upstairs, Penn dear?" asked her aunt. "They're all spending the night. I don't know if the sheets have been changed since Gregg and his family were here over Labor day."

Penn went dutifully up the stairs. The rooms were hot and she flung up the windows and turned down three beds. They were in order, she was glad to discover.

Somebody would have to get up early to get breakfast for Kelly. Penn decided that she would do it. Kelly was noisy and brisk and handsome in a fulsome sort of way. She gave the pillow Kelly would sleep on an extra pat. In the other room, she frowned at the bed Winifred Storey would occupy. Winifred should lie there till noon, then crawl down in somebody's borrowed negligee to drink a lot of black coffee and smoke cigarets, while down in the hot city Gil would make his own breakfast in their little apartment.

The little pain still stabbed at Penn when she thought of Gil. The other Storey sons were no sandy as he was, nor did they have his boyish manner. Gregg and Rutherford were dark like the Houks,

None More Amazed Than Yvonne Herself

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hollywood has long been amazed by Yvonne DeCarlo's love life, and so is she. At least by the things she reads about herself.

Just back from Europe and getting ready to leave for an Arizona film location, the much-traveled actress paused to clear up some of the misconceptions about her romantic affairs. This was no small matter.

Yvonne makes it a point never to blab about her real love matches. That's why so many fanciful tales appear in print about her. Recently she saw a clipping from a German paper proclaiming in big headlines that she was in love with a German baron.

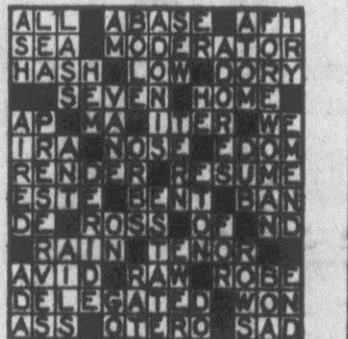

et. That one was really out of this world. I have never even laid eyes on the man." One of the other fables she wanted to put to rest was that she was trying to steal Aly Khan from Gene Tierney. Such is not the case. She said that she, the Duchess of Devonshire and two other women were linked to the Aly by a London paper. All were house-guesting at his villa and laughed over the report.

Secret Struggle Under Way Over Espionage Reins

BONN, Germany (AP)—A behind-the-scenes battle is raging here over the mysterious figure of former Nazi Lt. Gen. Reinhard Gehlen, with the prize at stake control of West German's powerful espionage services.

The sensational desertion to the Communists of federal security chief Otto John touched off this struggle within Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government.

The outcome is considered so vital that many of the highest figures in the Adenauer administration are now reported lining up with pro-Gehlen or anti-Gehlen forces. Total victory for Gehlen would make him a combination J. Edgar Hoover and Allen W. Dulles.

Former chief of Hitler's intelligence services on the Russian front, Gehlen bosses an American-financed international spy network.

He was considered a shoo-in for the nation's top intelligence job soon after John deserted July 20. But opposition has boiled up against Gehlen among some influential government officials because he has worked for the Americans. They want an intelligence chief not closely identified with any of the Allied Powers.

Gehlen's opponents also argue that he has a "bad reputation" in other European countries. He has been assailed in France recently for allegedly stationing agents in Paris. The British too are said to be cool toward him.

Some say Gehlen has dabbled in political affairs even though he has no governmental post and that he has a number of former SS officers on his staff.

Gehlen's supporters use these arguments with Adenauer to support their case:

Gehlen is a fine administrator, and only a firm hand can restore order to the nation's shattered intelligence setup. His private organization is called by the Allies one of the ablest intelligence setups in the West. He is the only West German who has been engaged in almost continuous espionage activity against Russia since 1942.

Chancellor Adenauer is reported toying with the idea of dissolving the discredited German FBI as a result of the John scandal and organizing a superintelligence office patterned after the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. This office would control all the nation's undercover organizations and handle both political and military intelligence. John, as FBI director, handled only political snooping.

Some of Adenauer's closest advisers favor this solution and they want Gehlen as the superspy boss. As boss of 4,000 American-paid spies, Gehlen has no official capacity in West Germany although he is one of Adenauer's trusted advisers on intelligence matters and the Soviet Union.

If the Gehlen forces fail to push through their plan for a superspy outfit, they intend to push him for the post of director of military intelligence in a future defense ministry.

May See Fight For Giant Firm

NEW YORK (AP)—Word is due today from financier Louis E. Wolfson on whether he plans to challenge the 23-year rule of Sewell Avery as boss of the billion-dollar Montgomery Ward & Co.

Wolfson has promised at a news conference "to issue a statement and to answer questions as fully as possible" on widespread reports that he plans to wage a proxy fight to oust Avery.

Prices of Ward's stock have soared on the rumors of such a fight between Wolfson, 42-year-old industrialist, who has risen from junk dealer to head of firms with 200 million dollars in assets, and Avery, hard-fisted octogenarian board chairman of Ward's.

Ward closed on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday at $77 a share, about $10 higher than before the reports that Wolfson was buying shares.

Wolfson took cognizance of the reports Monday when his office issued a statement calling the news conference. But the statement neither affirmed nor denied that he planned a battle with Avery, who once defied the Roosevelt administration to take over Ward and was carried bodily from his office.

Water Supplied By Fire Trucks

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP)—Fire trucks have made regular runs to Smith-Reynolds Airport here for the past three days.

No fire. The well which supplies the airport with water is dry and the fire trucks have been pinch-hitting. Officials say a city water main to the airport would be "too expensive."

Clean-Up Job

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—It is expected to take two or three days to gather up unexploded 105-mm live shells scattered here in an explosion of an ammunition-loaded freight car.

Ordnance disposal experts from Ft. Sheridan, Ill., and Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., are picking up the shells.

Capt. L. J. Blazer, conducting the cleanup job, estimated that from one-fourth to one-third of the 1,820 rounds of ammunition in the car did not explode in Tuesday night's blast.

Souvenir hunters were warned not to pick up the shells.

U.S. Gifts Will Be So Labeled

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Hungary has agreed that the aid the United States is sending to the 40,000 to 50,000 flood victims in this Communist country will bear Red Cross markings and the label: "Gift of the American People."

An agreement was signed last night with the International Red Cross for distribution of the food medicine and other supplies offered by President Eisenhower on July 20.

The Hungarian Red Cross, handling the distribution, promised to give out the aid without regard to race, religion, nationality or political views. An International Red Cross team will be on hand to observe.

It was signed: "Sincerely, Dwight D. Eisenhower." President and Mrs. Eisenhower are vacationing here.

Republicans Hold Hopes Of Farm Program Acceptance

By OVID A. MARTIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican-controlled 83rd Congress finds itself in about the same controversial spot on farm legislation as did the 80th Congress, the last time the GOP was in the driver's seat.

Democrats are sizing up a new farm program passed by the present Congress as a major issue in the fall's congressional election. They contend the program will hurt farmers.

In 1948, Democrats fired a similar charge against a GOP Congress. President Truman beat out Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the presidency and Democrats regained control of Congress. The farm vote was credited with being a major factor.

But Republican leaders predict the comparison will end there. They express confidence that farmers will approve Congress's recent action in setting up a system of flexible farm price supports to supplant war-born high, rigid price floors.

In 1948 the issue centered largely around Congress' stripping the Agriculture Department of authority to provide storage facilities for farmers' surplus crops. Farm prices tumbled and Democrats blamed the GOP.

Seeking ouster of GOP congressmen from farm states, Democrats are predicting that the new support system — passed by a somewhat reluctant Congress at insistence of President Eisenhower — will bring on lower farm prices, a reduced farm income and possibly an agricultural depression.

But Eisenhower, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and other administration lieutenants stand ready to defend the new legislation.

The flexible system provides a sliding scale of supports for the basic crops — wheat, cotton, corn, rice and peanuts — ranging from 82½ to 90 per cent of parity for 1955 and 75 to 90 thereafter. Parity is a price declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices they must pay.

Present supports are at 90 per cent of parity for the basic crops. The theory of the variable system is that supports should be high in times of shortages to encourage production and to encourage production and to encourage greater consumption.

The administration, in pushing flexible floors through Congress, argued that the mandatory high supports, first enacted during the war to spur increased output, have been working to the detriment of farmers because they encouraged overproduction and the buildup of price-depressing surpluses totaling nearly 6½ billion dollars in the hands of the government.

Flexible floors the GOP leaders contend, will help farmers adjust their production pattern to post-war demands and, in time, regain more favorable prices in the market places as output is reduced to buyers' demands.

The new program does not have the full support of the GOP members of Congress. And there are some Democrats who favor it.

More controversy appears to center on other legislation affecting farmers.

Generally approved were administration proposals to dispose and set aside big chunks of the huge farm surpluses, in order to minimize their depressing effects on market prices.

One act along this line authorized the President to sell up to 700 million dollars worth of farm surpluses for foreign currencies which would in turn be used to finance U.S. military and other projects abroad. It also authorized the chief executive to donate 300 million dollars worth of the surplus for relief use abroad.

Congress authorized the administration to set aside up to 2½ billion dollars worth of the surpluses for such noncommercial uses as foreign aid programs, barter for strategic materials, foreign and domestic relief, national stockpiling and research.

Of special importance was a provision that the set-aside crops were not to be considered in setting price supports under the sliding scale. Because of this, price floors will average higher for the next few years than they otherwise would have.

The GOP says farmers have been helped by new legislation that will cushion the change-over to a revised formula for setting parity prices, scheduled to go into effect in 1965. The revised prices will be lower but the 83rd Congress provided that the change will be limited to 5 per cent a year.

Another measure authorized government production payments to wool growers to make up any difference between support levels and the prices they get in the market place.

To provide money for support financing, Congress increased from 6½ to 10 billion the funds for the Commodity Credit Corp.

Congress voted more money for federal subsidies to farmers for carrying out government-approved soil and water conservation practices—240 million dollars against 190 millions last year.

In this connection, the new tax law enacted by Congress gave farmers a break on money spent for conservation purposes. Twenty-five per cent of such expenditures may be deducted annually in figuring a farmer's taxable income. The tax law also removed the tax on proceeds from the sale of cattle when the sale is forced by disease, provided the proceeds are reinvested in cattle within one year after the close of the taxable year.

Under a new social security measure, Congress extended old age and survivor insurance benefits to 3½ million farm operators, effective April 1, 1965, and to 2½ million additional farm workers.

Atomic-Powered Soviet Sub Is Real Possibility

By C. YATES MCDANIEL
WASHINGTON (AP)—The ranking American admiral in the Pacific could have been thinking about possible Russian development of an atomic submarine when he said there was no unusual Soviet submarine operations over — "that we can talk about."

The Navy here is not trying to answer any of the provocative questions raised by the remark, made in an interview this week by Adm. Felix B. Stump, Pacific commander in chief. Pentagon officials merely point to the long line of warnings made from Washington in recent years about Russia's estimated strength of some 350 to 400 submarines.

Stump said about 100 were in the Pacific. The existence of hundreds of Soviet submarines is not in itself sufficient cause for the frequently voiced official concern, for most of them are known to be old types, suitable primarily for close-in coastal defense in waters such as the Baltic and Black seas.

Pentagon informants say however, that the Soviets have been working intensively for years on atomic power for vessels and probably other war machines. They say the Russian search began at least as soon as the United States made it known that atomic power could be applied and that this country was going ahead with a nuclear powered submarine.

It is known, for instance, that a Russian tank production expert of World War II was shifted to a military atomic project several years ago. In 1950, after open American predictions that atomic power plants were practicable this same expert was moved to the "special shipbuilding industry." It is also known that atomic-powered submarines, with their freedom from depending on nearby bases for refueling, fit neatly into Russia's global strategy requirements. Unlike the United States, with its numerous ports and bases at home and abroad, Russia has comparatively few direct outlets to deep water.

While American navy men are well aware of the Soviet drive to develop atomic-propelled ships, they have been keeping a tight secret their estimate as to how far the Russians may have advanced.

Rules Described For Old School

CLINTON, MO. (AP)—Lee Klutz of the local post office staff lifted an eyebrow when a letter arrived the other day addressed to Baird College, Clinton, requesting a catalogue.

Answering, Klutz took it on himself to enlighten Harold Ehrnholtz of Ada, Okla., about the girl's school.

For one thing, the rules were strict — girls were not permitted to correspond with young gentlemen without parental authorization. And man callers at the campus called forth at least one chaperon.

There were additional details, including the fact the school closed 50 years ago.

More Talk Over Phones In South

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Southerners DO talk more than anybody else in the country—at least on the phone.

The telephone company has figures to prove it. Easterners talk the least.

Westerners and Midwesterners, including Northerners, talk more than Easterners but not so much as Southerners.

These conclusions are based on statistics compiled by the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. The phone company has what is known as a "calling rate"—that is, the number of daily calls per telephone in relation to the total number of phones in a city. Of 19 cities listed by the company, New Orleans has the highest rate—8.11—and Washington the lowest—4.08. Chicago's rate is only 4.10.

What accounts for the South's talkativeness? R.M. Watson, Louisville district manager for Southern Bell, has this explanation:

The South, traditionally noted for hospitality, does more "socializing" on the phone.

Whether women or men talk more the phone company can't say. But "residential usage is much higher than business usage," Watson says, and this indicates women are more talkative than men.

An average of 66 railroad tank cars were loaded every hour during 1963 in the United States.

Sewing Machine Tricks Make Bathroom Decor

APPLIQUED MONOGRAMS... They're easy to stitch, with new automatic sewing machine or zigzag attachment.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
One of the easiest ways to attain a luxurious look for your bathroom is to brighten it up with some handsome monograms on shower curtain and towels.

Time was when monograms were expensive, but now, with the new automatic sewing machines and attachments, it's easy and thrifty to do them yourself.

Local sewing center experts suggest appliqued monograms as effective and simple. They advise selecting a fresh new color scheme for the bathroom as a starting point, choosing towels and shower curtains in a coordinated theme.

One effective combination is green and white. A plain white nylon shower curtain can have a huge monogram in green, and dark green bath towels are handsome when monogrammed in white. The appliqued monograms may be stitched on either with one of the new swing-needle machines or with the zigzag attachment on a standard sewing machine.

To make the appliques, first trace the monogram on the fabric and baste the whole square of fabric to the shower curtain or towel. Then, using either the swing-needle machine or the zigzag attachment, stitch around the outline of the monogram. Use a small, sharp pair of scissors to trim away excess fabric.

You'll find this such an easy way of making monograms that you may want to stitch up a batch of handsome monogrammed towels for a $15,000 chapel-in-the-pines, paid for by an anonymous donor, has been finished at Hartwick Pines state park, Michigan, for non-denominational public use.

Circus And Parade Are Coming To Greenville Friday

The more the elephants, the bigger the circus, has long been the rule by which the size of a circus was judged. In the old days, when circuses moved by wagon train, one or possibly two elephants were considered a lot. Today a herd of seven or eight is nothing more than a beginning. With the enlarged King Brothers Great Circus, now the second largest, coming to Greenville Friday, a total of sixteen performing elephants will be presented at the same time in three rings.

Real, Old-Time Circus Parade Is Special Feature

The circus comes tomorrow! Stars and oddities specialty performers and elephants—all will mingle on the circus grounds opposite Smith Stadium early tomorrow morning as the huge King Brothers Combined Circus, the second largest in the world, with literally scores of internationally known stars and features, arrives for afternoon and night performances under the auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

And, as an extra special feature, a real, old-time circus street parade will be presented downtown at 11:30 as a reminder of circus day and the galaxy of thrills in store for youngsters of all ages.

A concentration of all that is outstanding in the land of sawdust and spangles—with fifteen performing elephants—wrinkled old fellows—wiser and niftier than ever many strange beasts from far off jungles including a two-ton hippopotamus, —80 handsome horses and ponies, and almost countless other attractions in addition to a big double sideshow with a congress of human oddities from all parts of the world.

This year's program presents more new faces and displays than in many a long year, it is said, and introduces a lavishly produced professional pageant in which great masses of people and animals take part. It is a most fitting prelude to the wealth of circus features which follow.

New features, some from foreign lands, are in abundance this season. Among them the Riding Conleys, a family of nine brothers and sisters, back riding marvels from Europe, who are making their first tour of this country; the Estrada Sisters, acrobatic stars who hail from Spain, and the Great Eugene Troupe of Intrepid performers from England, who dare death twice each day on a slender wire in the dome of the big top—60 feet above the ground,—without a net below.

Other famed spangleland features on the King Brothers' 1954 program include Walter Jenner and his internationally famous sea-lion, "Buddy"—recently featured on television; the Fly—"La Forms, high trapeze stars; Dorothy Herbert, world's most daring rider of high-jumping horses; Eddie Hendricks, the "Slide For Life" star; Miss Helaine, solo aerial headliner; the fantastically beautiful Aerial Ballet featuring Aerialita, the "Aerial Queen"; and many other outstanding displays from among the 150 arctic performers this season.

Three rings full of performing elephants,—the greatest in the land of sawdust and spangles; companies of super-educated horses including the liberty horse act featuring the King Brothers' famed Palomino Stallions and the free running Shetland ponies; the groups of trained and educated canines, and the revival of the sensational Roman Standing and Chariot races, are still other things in store for Greenville and Pitt County circus fans tomorrow.

Clowns?—Yes, there will be thirty of those funny fellows on hand at each performance, together with their clown animals and their screamingly funny skits and dances,—including Merle Cook with his "Funny Ford", and Chick Yale and his toppling tables.

A menagerie filled with wild jungle beasts from the earth's four corners including a two-ton hippopotamus just over from the river Nile, a Sloth, a giant Ant-Eater, and scores of cute monkey families, together with a huge sideshow with a congress of human oddities and weird people, will be additional circus features.

The performance are scheduled to begin at 2 and 8 P.M. and for the convenience of circus patrons, a downtown ticket office will be in

Mother Admits Killing Her Baby

BRainerd, Minn. — A distraught mother who first reported her 6-week-old daughter missing broke down early today and admitted throwing the child into a lake near the family small rural home.

Sheriff Roy Wickland said Mrs. Archie Sanders could give no reason for tossing tiny Janet Ruth, apparently still alive, into Pelican Lake. She first reported that she and two older daughters awoke from an afternoon nap yesterday to find the baby missing from her crib.

Wickland said the mother still was in semihysterical condition. Her statement was made at her father's rural crossroads store, where she had gone after reporting the child missing.

Wickland said Mrs. Sanders told him this story:

She took the baby and her two other daughters Phyllis, 5, and Sharon, 4, in the family car and drove over a back road to the lake. After parking the car 300 feet from the shore, she left the two girls in it and walked 300 feet to the lakeshore.

There she waded out up to her waist and then threw the baby "as far as I could."

Wickland said he and his deputies would start searching the lake at daybreak. Sanders, a carpenter said he could not explain his wife's action. He was absent at work.

Wickland said he was holding her without charge for further questioning when her condition improves.

DOG MUFFLED

LYNN, Mass. (U)—Intruders ransacked Peter Bufalino's home yesterday—but not before they eliminated an obstacle.

They tied a strip of cloth across the mouth of Bufalino's pet dog so he couldn't bark.

Bufalino said he knew there was something wrong when Ginger failed to bark as he usually does when his master enters the house.

operation tomorrow at Bissette's Drug Store, where tickets for both performances will be on sale at the same prices charged at the circus grounds.

Democrats And Republicans Put Chips Into Fight For 17 States

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (U)—Republicans and Democrats are putting their political blue chips down in 17 states in an all-out battle for control of the Senate in the 84th Congress.

These same states, along with nine others where there are marginal districts, also may prove to be the major battlegrounds in contests for command of the new House.

As the situation now stands, with active campaigning just starting, the two parties appear almost evenly matched in their chances to alter the present hairline margins in Senate and House.

The Senate lineup is now 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and 1 independent; the House count, 218 Republicans, 213 Democrats, 1 independent and 3 vacancies. Thirty-seven Senate and all 435 House seats are at stake this fall.

As party leaders analyze the matter, nine Senate seats now held by Republicans and eight held by Democrats are in varying degrees of danger.

Republican incumbents who apparently face stiff challenges include Senators Cooper of Kentucky, Cordon of Oregon, Dworshak of Idaho, Ferguson of Michigan, Mundt of South Dakota, Saltonstall of Massachusetts and Kuchel of California. Republican-held seats in New Jersey and Wyoming also fall within this category.

Democrats likely to be hard pushed by their opponents include Senators Anderson of New Mexico, Douglas of Illinois, Frear of Delaware, Gillette of Iowa, Humphrey of Minnesota, Murray of Montana and Burke of Ohio. The seat being vacated by Sen. Johnson of Colorado also is among these.

House seats in most of these states will be hotly contested. In addition, there are marginal districts in Virginia, West Virginia, Florida, North Carolina, Maryland, Missouri, Pennsylvania New York and the Nevada at-large contest where both parties figure they have a chance.

That doesn't mean that states like Connecticut, Indiana, Kansas, Washington and Wisconsin will be overlooked. But the parties' major national efforts are likely to be turned elsewhere except perhaps for a few individual congressional districts.

In Senate races, Democrats are claiming a 14-6 edge over Republicans in what they regard as almost certain victories. Republicans contend they are certain to elect two senators in New Hampshire, two in Nebraska and re-elect Senators Schoepfel of Kansas and Margaret Chase Smith of Maine.

Democrats figure as safe the seats they now hold in Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia Louisiana, Mississippi, two in North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

While Republicans will concede most of these, they haven't given up hope of upsets in Oklahoma, Rhode Island and West Virginia. Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said in a statement today that the "final blueprint" for the Republican effort will be drafted at a GOP National Committee session in Cincinnati, Ohio, beginning Monday.

He said the committee, meeting with Vice President Nixon, will try to pin-point basic issues, make plans to get out a record vote and discuss ways to "get the Eisenhower administration — Republican 83rd Congress story before the people."

Hall said that despite the narrow Republican margins the accomplishments of the Republican Congress which just ended "match those of any Congress in a generation."

"Think what this Republican team — the President and a GOP Congress — could do with a sound working majority," he said. "With an economy to be brought firmly on to the pathway of American free enterprise after 20 years of wandering off into Socialist experiments and with prosperity-with-peace at long last within our grasp, we still have a tremendous job to do."

Nixon, in announcing yesterday that he will make an eight-state campaign swing beginning Sept. 15, said he wants to help the Republicans complete the job started with Eisenhower's election in 1952.

"I feel that we only did half the job in 1952 and that we must push forth at least as much or more effort this year to assure that we have a Republican majority during the 84th Congress," he said.

Nixon has been assigned by Eisenhower to make several campaign tours before the Nov. 2 election.

Beginning with a speech at the Ohio State Republican Convention in Columbus Sept. 15, he said he will visit Kansas Sept. 16 Missouri Sept. 17, South Dakota Sept. 18, Nebraska Sept. 20, Michigan Sept. 21, Minnesota Sept. 22 and Indiana Sept. 23.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Selling that was largely centered in the aircrafts today sent the stock market lower in the early afternoon.

There were many losses between 1 and 2 points and some extended beyond that point. Gains usually were confined to stocks affected by special considerations.

No selling congestion developed, but there was a definite spurt in business as prices fell away. The pace was brisk at a rate better than yesterday's 2,280,000 shares when the market was falling.

Also lower today were the utilities, steel, motors, rubbers, copper, chemicals, oils, and railroads.

Mack Trucks created a stir with a 4-point drop on an opening sale of 20,000 shares at 17 1/2 after it was announced that talks on a possible merger or sale of Mack to White Motor had ended.

Northeast Capital, which has substantial holdings of Mack, was down between 2 and 3 points. White remained quietly steady.

Hilton Hotels Corp was up around 2 points at time after the company reported second quarter earnings equal to $1.03 a share as compared with 69 cents a year ago.

Among lower stocks were Seaboard Railroad, Standard Oil (NJ), American Telephone, Kennecott Copper, Allied Chemical, Smith-Douglas, Bullard, Vanadium, Collins & Akman, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, General Dynamics, Boeing and Bell Aircraft.

Child Near Death After Beating

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP)—A 3 1/2-year-old girl was reported near death in St. Anthony Hospital today and deputy sheriffs said her mother admitted beating her with a claw hammer.

The deputies quoted the mother as saying she hammered the child on the head and body last night because she wanted to "offer the baby to God" rather than let her husband have the child.

The deputies said the mother, Mrs. Maxine Gilbertson, 29, was separated from her husband Grover. Their daughter Angela suffered skull fractures and severe lacerations on her face and body.

Deputies Joe Feron and Mike Isparro found the child in a pool of blood in her crib in a bedroom of the Gilbertson home in suburban Lovespark. A blood-stained hammer was on the floor they said. They said Mrs. Gilbertson had telephoned the sheriff's office and reported the attack on the child.

The deputies said Mrs. Gilbertson in an oral statement related that her husband had tried to take custody of their daughter. They said Gilbertson yesterday filed a $1,500 suit against Lovespark police officials, charging false arrest.

They said Mrs. Gilbertson had had him arrested Sunday night and he had been held in jail overnight. She was held without charge today.

GRANITE CITY, Ill. (AP)—Soldiers at the Granite City Army Engineers depot are confined to the base for two days after a near riot involving civilian teenagers in Granite City.

Lt. Col. Frank E. Lambert, who heads the 593rd Engineers Group at the base said last night he was told that 100 soldiers and about 200 young civilians met near a skating rink Tuesday night to settle disputes of previous nights in which several soldiers were beaten.

Police arrived in time and prevented trouble, Lambert said. The confinement period began last night.

Lambert said the young civilians apparently resented a dating of Granite City girls by the soldiers.

Estimates of the number of Americans who are battered by hay fever vary from three to five millions.

At least two of the schools already have permission to operate on the limited schedule beyond September 1.

Capitol Square Colored News

BACK DOOR - It has been suggested, with some evidence to support the idea, that Republican strategy would be to play upon the admitted weakness of the Democrats over losing the tenth district last time and their desire to recapture it this year by feigning fear of the election results there in order to lure all out Democratic attention.

Democrats in the 11th and 12th districts admit they are more interested in recapturing the tenth. The tenth district comprises six counties, its eastern border running from the South Carolina line south of Charlotte, N.C., and Rock Hill, S.C., to the Tennessee line about halfway between Boone and Elizabethton.

Manila Meeting To Face 3 Big Issues

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign secretaries of eight nations meeting in Manila Sept. 6 to form a Southeast Asian defense organization will have three key problems to work out.

Diplomatic sources said they were: 1. How far will the countries go in binding themselves to a common defense of the area.

2. What sort of pledge will they make to combat Communist subversion.

3. What sort of continuing machinery will be set up, to keep the countries advised and prepared to meet emergencies.

The United States and the other countries pioneering the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) — Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan — have made no advance commitments, but have exchanged views on all these points.

Opinions presently range widely, with the Philippines and Thailand understood to be urging strong military commitments and Britain counseling more emphasis on an economic rather than a military approach.

The Philippines was said to be seeking a North Atlantic Treaty Organization type agreement in which an attack on one of the countries would be regarded as an attack upon all of them.

Secretary of State Dulles was understood to prefer a more limited approach: an attack on one country would be recognized as a threat to the security of all pact members. This is the principle underlying the Anzus pact, linking the United States, Australia and New Zealand, and also the defense treaty between the United States and the Philippines.

The Anzus formula, milder than NATO declares that an armed attack on any of the signatories would be considered dangerous to the peace and safety of all and that each nation would act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes.

Britain reportedly wants an even milder commitment than that. But the Philippines was said to

Civil Term Of Court Concluded

Judge Joseph W. Parker adjourned this week's civil term of Pitt Superior Court this afternoon after exhausting the cases set for trial this week.

In the case of C. F. Hardee vs. W. Glenn Scott trading as Scott Motor Sales which was heard yesterday, the jury decided in favor of the plaintiff and ordered Scott to pay to Hardee $860.82 with interest at six per cent from October 20, 1953 until the amount is paid.

The defendant, through his attorney, gave notice of appeal to the Supreme Court.

Next Monday, Judge Parker will open a week's term of criminal court for Pitt, which will be the county's first criminal term of court since last spring.

Folies Bergere Trip Cancelled

ANDOVER, England (AP)—The Rev. Ivor Machin has canceled 15 seats he booked to give his parishioners a glimpse of Paris' famous Folies Bergere.

The cleric said he bought the tickets for the edification of his flock during a tour he will conduct to the French capital next month.

But the newspapers got word of it and he began getting nasty letters.

"I acted in all good faith, but some of the letters were very abusive," he said sadly today. Earlier he had said the Folies were part of Paris and therefore should be on the grand tour.
