Eden Maps Plan In Closed Session

PARIS (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Eden told the 14 nations in the North Atlantic council today about his new plan for a European alliance...

It was a closed meeting with no information about it issued officially. French Premier Pierre Mendès-France, whose consent to the plan Eden still is seeking, presided.

No debate had been scheduled on Eden's presentation, and he and Mendès-France left the meeting after it was finished. The others remained to talk about plans for a meeting of the members' foreign ministers...

U.S. Secretary of State Dulles, who wants the meeting soon is due in West Germany today. There he is expected to hear renewed German insistence on membership in the NATO, toward which the United States is sympathetic.

Eden's success or failure depended on his final talks this afternoon with Premier Pierre Mendès-France, whose lack of enthusiasm for the six-nation European Defense Community helped the French National Assembly scuttle that keystone of Western policy.

In his search for a substitute for EDC, Eden has won support for his new plan from the leaders of the other five members of the ill-fated European Army plan.

The British, who backed EDC but would not join it, propose to link a rearméd West Germany and Italy to the Brussels mutual defense pact signed in 1948 by Britain, France and the Benelux trio.

Sec. Dulles Voices Belief In SEATO As Strong Barrier

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles switched his drive for stronger anti-Communist defenses to Europe today, outwardly confident that a strong barrier has been erected against any new Red aggression in Southeast Asia.

Death Welcomed By Escapee From Institution; Wouldn't Give Self Up

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Shouting "come and get me, I want to die," a crazed carpenter pushed a woman hostage at gun point onto her front porch then stepped through the door to his death in a hail of bullets from an off-duty policeman's gun.

J. H. Long, 42, an escapee from the Arkansas State Mental Hospital yesterday held Mrs. A. D. Lynn captive in her home while he deliberated his next move and repeatedly shouted to police: "You'll have to come get me, I want to die. I don't want to go back to that lie-place."

Mrs. Lynn said, "I felt sorry for him and tried to talk him into giving up his gun. I told him that was better than death, but he wouldn't listen."

Long was on his way from his ward to the barber shop when he bolted the line and escaped. During his short-lived freedom he terrorized persons in West Little Rock by brandishing a .22 caliber rifle.

Entering the home of Mrs. Effie Callihan, he said: "I won't hurt you, I just can't go back to that lie-place."

He left after Mrs. Callihan gave him a bottle of water. Long found Mrs. Lynn in her backyard and ordered her into the house. He asked if she knew anyone who owned a car. "I need a car to get away," he said.

Mrs. Lynn said she began dialing the telephone but Long suddenly jerked the receiver from her hand. "I've changed my mind," he told her.

A neighbor, A. Lewis, had heard the commotion in the yard and called police. A dozen officers surrounded the house and called to the man to surrender. When Long refused, a policeman asked if he would free Mrs. Lynn.

Long then began marching Mrs. Lynn through the house and onto the front porch. Mrs. Lynn walked calmly — "as if she were on her way shopping," one officer said — although Long was behind her with a gun at her back.

Long kept Mrs. Lynn covered with the rifle he had taken from a house in the neighborhood. Gene Smith, an off-duty policeman, was the only officer who had a clear side view of Long. Smith started shooting and Mrs. Lynn immediately stepped away.

Long fell under a fusillade of six shots — only one missed the target. As he rolled to the ground, he groaned: "Thanks fellows... That's good enough, it's just what I wanted."

A moment later he was dead. Americans military plans, he said.

Border Belt Set To Curtail Sales

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Effective Sept. 27, flue-cured tobacco markets of the South Carolina-North Carolina Border Belt will curtail sales, while the Old Belt will begin normal operations.

This was decided last night by the sales committee of the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn. Fred S. Royster of Henderson, president of the association, said the action was taken because sales on Border Belt markets are approximately 20 per cent behind the corresponding time in the 1953 season.

Old Belt markets will continue to operate on the basis of 50 per cent of normal sales through the week of Sept. 20. Royster said, Border Belt markets will continue to operate on their present schedules until Sept. 27.

Royster said, "Considering the large amount of tobacco left to be sold on the Border Belt and the fact that the grading service and certain buying companies have signified their intention not to grade or sell more than 2,000 pipes per sale per day, and in order that fairness may prevail between the several markets of the border belt, the sales committee recommends a reduction in baskets per day."

The sales committee recommended that four-sale markets operate with three sales, selling a total of 5,000 baskets per day. Three-sale markets will operate with two sales, selling 4,000 baskets per day, and one-sale markets will sell 1,400 baskets per day.

The grading service has agreed to cooperate with the plan, Royster said, "and we sincerely request the cooperation of all buying companies."

Nixon Advises Republicans To 'Run Scared'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon last night urged Republicans to "run scared" to the business of winning elections and warned them of the dangers of party disunity.

"If you were for Eisenhower in 1952," you have no choice but to vote for Republican candidates for the House and Senate in 1954."

"One of our major dangers is disunity in the Republican organization. The Maine organization was fighting amongst themselves," he said.

A Democratic governor recently was elected in Maine the first time in 20 years, but Republicans won the state's senatorial and con-

Mother Struck By Car, Dragged For Five Miles

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — A 23-year-old mother of three children was killed last night when hit by a car and dragged five miles on its bumper.

The victim was identified as Mrs. Grace Sullivan Frank of New Brunswick.

Police said the car struck her on Rt. 18 here, and dragged her along five miles until another motorist halted the driver down in Sayreville. The driver was identified as Norman F. Childers, 49, of Milltown, N.J., where he is a Rutgers Agricultural College, was charged with causing death by auto.

Police quoted Childers as saying he didn't know about the body until he was flagged by the other motorist. He said he felt a bump but wasn't aware that his car struck anything.

President Said Vacationing 'Hard' At Camp

FRASER, Colo. (AP) — President Eisenhower was pictured by aides today as "vacationing hard" at his Rocky Mountain trout fishing camp here.

The small White House staff which accompanied the President from Denver yesterday was attempting to keep all but the most pressing official business from interrupting the chief executive's rest.

The President waded into St. Louis creek shortly after arriving at the Byers Peak Ranch of an old friend, Aksel Nielsen, and with a brief break for lunch — still was casting for trout at dusk. There was no word on what luck he had.

Dulles Says W. Germany Must Be Partner 'Alternative' Is Urged

BONN, Germany (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles declared here today "an alternative must be found" to bring West Germany as an equal partner into the Western alliance.

Arriving by plane for emergency consultations in Germany and Britain, the American diplomatic chief was greeted by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. Adenauer arranged for almost immediate private discussions with him in search of a substitute for the dead European Defense Community treaty.

The talks with Dulles will be decisive for Germany's fate, the 78-year-old Chancellor had told deputies before departing for the airport from a parliamentary debate. In the debate, Socialists were attacking his government for what they called its "system of secret decisions."

Dulles made it clear in a statement at the airport that he was interested perhaps more in what Adenauer has to say than in any idea he may be bringing with him. Dulles commented, for example, that Adenauer's government "has consistently followed such enlightened policies that its views must now command great respect."

Adenauer, long an advocate of European unity, thanked Dulles for coming in the present crisis and said "it does seem that the best Europeans come from the United States."

Surrounded by Allied and German officials, and accompanied by a State Department staff of five, Dulles told the assemblage:

"I have come to discuss with Chancellor Adenauer the means of restoring sovereignty to the Federal Republic of Germany and bringing Germany as an equal partner into the society of the free. Such action has been suspended while various parliaments dealt with the treaties which contemplated that Germany sovereignty should be returned within the framework of an European Defense Community. "Since that program has been halted, at least temporarily, an alternative must be found. "The postwar Federal Republic has consistently followed such enlightened policies that its views must now command great respect. Therefore I come to Bonn for an exchange of views with the Chancellor. "Before final decisions are reached, there will of course be further exchanges of views between all who are genuinely concerned with the peace, security and freedom of Europe."

Dulles flew to Bonn in a U.S. Air Force DC-6. After his brief airport speech, he joined U.S. High Commissioner James B. Conant to drive to the Bonn chancellery for the talks with Adenauer.

He will fly to London tomorrow to consult with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden.

Urges Republicans End 'Myths' And Distortions Adlai Calls For Reappraisal

CINCINNATI (AP) — Democrat Adlai Stevenson last night called for an "agonizing reappraisal" in the hearts of Republican politicians "who for so long nourished us on myths and McCarthyism."

"One of the myths and distortions that has been carefully cultivated for a long time is that the Democratic party is anti-business," he told a Democratic campaign dinner.

The 1952 presidential candidate said the Republican "hatchet men will conduct the smear attacks on the flanks" while President Eisenhower delivers "little sermons."

But he said the election this week of a Democratic governor in Maine for the first time in 30 years confirms that "our people are tired of this unending diet of equal portions of niceness, nonsense and nastiness."

His reference to "an agonizing reappraisal" was a take-off on a similar phrase used by Secretary of State Dulles several months ago regarding foreign policy and Indochina. He said:

"The 'agonizing reappraisal' for which Mr. Dulles called should begin first of all in the hearts of the Republican politicians who for so long have nourished us on myths and McCarthyism for political profit."

Stevenson made no further direct reference to Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Stevenson devoted a substantial part of his address to business and how he said it prospered under Democratic presidents.

"For every three business enterprises exist in this country when the Democrats took office in 1933, there were four by 1953," he said. "The rate of business failures during the so-called Golden 20s was 20,000 a year. But that figure dropped to only 6,000 a year even during the hard post-World War II period of adjustment from war to peace to defense mobilization."

While the Democrats favor business, he said, the party regrets the present prevailing theory of the Republicans that the way to help 165 million people is by "granting special favors and advantages to a few, whether by tax laws, smothering public power development, or giving away our natural resources."

Stevenson also discussed foreign policy. "The folly of attempting to conduct foreign policy by slogans and bluff has produced a bitter harvest," Stevenson said. "I pray that the Republicans have at least learned a lesson from it. Perhaps they will cease to look for an explanation of losses abroad to treachery at home now that have suffered reverses."

He listed as setbacks what he called a Communist victory in Indochina, the evaporation of American influence in the world, and the disintegration of alliances.

Martin Begins GOP Vote Tour

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin Jr. last night said election of a Republican Congress in November is necessary to continue the job of restoring our country to solvency.

Americans are faced with important decisions which will determine whether they step over "the threshold of a new era full of promise and abundance," Martin said, and added:

"One of those decisions will confront us with stark urgency in the 1954 election for Congress. At that time, the American people will be called upon to pass judgment on the historic Republican accomplishments of the past two years."

Martin, launching a nationwide speaking tour to boost the Republican party pictured the forthcoming elections as "the most crucial non-presidential balloting of our times."

He told a 850-a-plate dinner of the Finance Committee of the GOP organization of Middlesex County that Americans "will decide whether they want that dynamic, far-sighted program to go forward to completion—or whether they want it to be sabotaged and ripped to shreds by a Congress hostile to President Eisenhower."

Tax Prepayments Ahead Last Year

Prepayments on the current year's tax levy for Pitt County are running slightly ahead of those last year, Auditor H. Reginald Gray said today.

Total collections so far on the new levy amount to $142,950.17, only $366 less than collections through September of last year.

Largest taxpayers in the county so far on the current year's levy are Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, J. P. Taylor Company, and Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Prepayments of taxes from these four companies have brought into the county coffers a total of $61,328 for the current fiscal year. Atlantic Coast Line Railroad company is the largest single taxpayer so far this year at $21,888.99. R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company has paid Pitt County $18,987 in taxes, J. P. Taylor Company $10,289.32, and Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company $10,153.33.

Gray said this morning some of the prepayments of taxes this year may have to be adjusted because of adjustments in valuations made by the County Commissioners sitting as the Board of Equalization and Review.

The one percent discount on prepayment of taxes which normally extends only through September has been extended through October this year because of the revaluation program which delayed the getting out of tax notices by the county.

Gray said the last of the county's tax notices for this year are expected to be mailed to property owners on or before October 9.

Of the total of 19,000 tax notices which the county will mail, slightly over 4,000 already have been sent to taxpayers of six townships. Notices already have gone out to taxpayers of Arthur, Belvoir, Fountain, Stokes, Falkland, and Grimesland townships. Notices to taxpayers of Child township are expected to be put in the mail by the end of this week, Gray said.

Personnel of the County Auditor's office and Tax Office are now in the process of rechecking valuations set by the Board of Equalization and Review, and getting out notices to taxpayers.

To Open Bids

Bids for the new Health Department building here will be opened tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, Health Director Walter C. Humbert has announced.

The County Commissioners will meet at the Health office for the opening of the bids for the new Department which will be located near Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Humbert said present plans call for 150 working days for construction of the new building. "If the bids are successful tomorrow we hope to begin construction right away," he stated.

Argue Senate Recall To Hear McCarthy Finding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Democratic senators divided today on whether the Senate should be called back before the Nov. 2 congressional elections to act on censure charges against Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) said that if a special committee appointed to investigate the charges makes its report before or shortly after Oct. 1, "the Senate should promptly reconvene to consider whatever recommendations it may submit."

But in a separate interview Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.) said any such report should be put aside and no action taken on it until the next Congress meets in January.

Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) took the view that the nature of the committee's report would determine whether a Senate session should be called. He said there would be no reason for such a session if the committee recommended against censure.

The special bipartisan committee, headed by Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) completed nine days of public hearings on the case Monday and has indicated its report may be ready by Oct. 1 or earlier.

Once the report is completed, it will be up to the Senate's Republican and Democratic leaders

Knowland of California and Lyndon Johnson of Texas, to set a date for the Senate to return.

The censure resolution, introduced by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.), asked the Senate to condemn McCarthy's conduct as unbecoming a senator and as tending to bring the Senate into disrepute.

Flanders and Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) and Morse (Ind-Ore) filed 46 supporting charges. Thirteen of these grouped into five general categories, are being considered by the special committee.

The charges under study range from McCarthy's alleged contempt of a Senate subcommittee that investigated his financial and other affairs in 1952 to claims that he has been abusive of Senate colleagues and that he illegally received and made use of material from a secret FBI memorandum. McCarthy entered a denial on all counts.

Gore said he would favor prompt Senate consideration of the special committee's report, provided it is submitted around Oct. 1.

However, he said, "I wouldn't think the senators should be called back during the last week or two weeks before the election. They owe a responsibility to themselves and to their people to present their cause."

Young Democrats Gather For Meet

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Young Democrats registered here today for a three-day state convention which will feature speeches by state party leaders.

Gov. William B. Umstead will make an appearance tomorrow afternoon and State Democratic Chairman John D. Larkins Jr. will make the keynote address.

Then will come U.S. Sens. Lenon and Ervin, Kerr Scott, U.S. Senate nominee, and others.

The whole convention will be pitched at pushing Judge J.C. Sedberry in his 10th District campaign against Rep. Charles R. Jonas, who perhaps not so incidentally will address a GOP gathering at Radio Center here tomorrow.

A sidelight will be a few remarks by Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay, who will stop over in Charlotte enroute to a Republican rally at Hickory.

Mingled amongst all the politicians will be a collection of beautiful women — Miss University.

Besides Miss Miriam Stevenson there will be Miss North Carolina and Mrs. America.

Then comes the Democrats main attraction, Sen. Henry D. Jackson of Washington, who will put in a few words for Judge Sedberry.

Utilities Show Net Of $49,274 During August

Greenville's Utilities showed a net operating profit of $49,274.57 for the month of August.

The financial statement of the local utilities was discussed and approved by the Commission at its meeting Tuesday night.

Total revenue of the electric, water and gas departments for the month of August amounted to $183,188.37, and operating expenses came to $133,913.80.

The net revenue of the Utilities, after deducting from profit the monthly fixed obligations of $11,875 to the city's general fund, and $8,333.33 for bond retirement, the net profit for the month's operation was $29,566.24.

A breakdown of the income, expenses and profit from the individual departments for August is as follows:

Water department: income, $19,280.68; expense, $13,487.22; net revenue, $5,793.46.

Unfolds Story Of Big Illicit Earnings

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Charlotte man, described by a witness as "a big operator," opened his skeleton-ridden closets behind the shield of statute limitations in a Federal Tax Court here yesterday.

Joe Frank Davis told the court all about his earnings from illicit liquor traffic and his ventures into pinball machine operations.

A sum of $40,000, which has intrigued federal income tax agents, was made from bootlegging, said Davis, and preserved in fruit jars which he buried under his garage, in his mattress or swung in his chimney.

The government contends that Davis owes it about $29,000 in back income taxes, another $14,000 in 50 per cent penalties, and another $10,000 in interests. The taxes allegedly unpaid for the years 1944 through 1950.

Judge Clarence V. Opper listened gravely and at times was astonished as Davis unfolded unique methods of deposits out of the past.

Davis explained that he stored the cash in question in four glass jars which he buried under his garage, each jar contained exactly $10,000, he said.

James R. Harper, government attorney, questioned Davis as to how he was sure each jar contained exactly that amount.

Davis answered with a demonstration of bill rolling. Davis said he had another $8,000 in a glass jar which he kept swinging inside the chimney of his home and still another $7,000 secreted in his mattress.

As to how much in all Davis could only guess, but he was sure it all came from illicit whisky sales.

Sheriff John C. Hunter of Mecklenburg County said that Davis' reputation was that of "a big operator," and Davis' attorneys indicated they would prove that the $40,000 in question came during years other than those for which taxes were allegedly unpaid.

Another witness, Latorro P. Ward of Columbia, S.C., who identified himself as a pinball-machine expert, told the court that Davis couldn't have made much money on the pinball machines he started out with after he "retired" from bootlegging because the machines were not very good.

Time Granted

RALEIGH (AP) — The U. S. Supreme Court has granted North Carolina an extension of time for filing its brief in the Old Belt markets case pending before the court.

This was announced yesterday by Atty. Gen. Harry McMillan. The original deadline for filing briefs was set for Oct. 1. The state had asked for a 60-day extension. McMillan said the court had notified him the deadline for filing the briefs was being extended, but the length of time will be determined by the court when it convenes next month.

The court will consider the implementation of its decision outlawing public school segregation.

North Carolina will present oral arguments in addition to its brief. The brief will be prepared by McMillan and his staff.

ADOPT AMENDMENT

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A state constitutional amendment allowing the legislature to abolish public schools if necessary to maintain racial segregation received final legislative approval today.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon last night urged Republicans to "run scared" to the business of winning elections and warned them of the dangers of party disunity.

"If you were for Eisenhower in 1952," you have no choice but to vote for Republican candidates for the House and Senate in 1954."

State President Addresses Club Meet On Leadership

Highlighting the meeting of the Fifteenth District of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, here yesterday, Mrs. Edwin P. Brown, State president, addressed the group on the subject of Leadership. In her brief, but most informative speech, Mrs. Brown stated that leadership, in all professions, is the crying need today. She then showed, in her discussion, how everyone of the 17,000 Club Women in our state, can help, no matter where her interests lie.

In her discussion of the various departments of the Club work, the many activities of each one were given. The Communications Department—has such wide interests, one of the most important, perhaps, is that of visual education of our children. Mrs. Brown said that it is our responsibility to suggest to our theater managers that there be good movies shown on Saturday afternoon; that we make contributions to a film library for our schools. Discussing the Welfare Department, she gave many things which need the services of the women of North Carolina. Some of them are: clinics for the sick, care of homeless children, care of the aged, help in drives for the handicapped, improve sanitation in our communities, do all possible to provide good health for our neighborhoods. One of the most interesting parts of this is the Sally Southall Cotten Fund, which is available for all girls who need help. The loans for this fund can be made, and paid back without interest.

In the Education Department, we have an obligation to give out attention to legislation regarding Education. Mrs. Brown emphasized that we should do all possible to make our school system the best. By taking an interest in our Club Institutes and classes in Parliamentary Procedure, by instigating Safety Programs in our community—driver training, patrols for schools, and by slowing our own driving speed, we can improve our cities and towns.

Other important activities which Mrs. Brown called to the attention of the Club women, were giving our time and aid in the beautification of our cities, homes, and gardens; give sunshine to older people "Golden Hours for Golden Age"; give time, thought and leadership to the youth of our country; be organized and give attention to the management of our homes, for that, stated Mrs. Brown, is where our children learn the simple fundamentals, which are so important in making them good citizens—love, understanding, and faith. She reminded the group that homes should be happy places, that the children know that their presence brings love and joy to the parents.

In closing, Mrs. Brown said that we have much leadership in the 17,000 Club women in North Carolina. If they will but give it, believing that with God's help, all is possible. The other principal speakers were Mrs. Raymond Dent, of Spruce Pine, second vice-president, who spoke on "Developing Our Talents," and Mrs. J. M. Jenrette Jr. of Raleigh, Junior vice-president, who spoke on the excellent work our Club women are doing. In Mrs. Dent's talk, she emphasized that everyone has a talent, but unless we exercise and use it, it will die. Club women of North Carolina need to develop their own talents, as well as look for talents in other people. She discussed various ways that talents can be developed.

Mrs. Dent told of hearing Dr. Gallup, of Gallup Poll fame, speak on "How Do We Use Our Leisure." She quoted him as saying that "American people now have 1000 more hours of leisure each year, than our grandfathers had." She emphasized that we should use this leisure to improve ourselves, thereby making better citizens, homemakers and, consequently, a better state and nation.

Mrs. Jenrette told of the activities of the 85 Junior clubs in the State. She listed as their projects for the year the mentally retarded children, at Kinston; the children's clothing project, which is in connection with the County Welfare Boards; the Children's Home Society in Greensboro, which is maintained by voluntary contributions. She then discussed the combining of the departments in the Junior Clubs, and the chairman of these, Mrs. Jenrette emphasized the importance of Civil Defense, and the importance of everyone joining hands in every community, to make it a better place as well as to get the job done better. She closed, quoting from the Bible, in which Paul said, "Let no man despise your youth, but set a good example..."

Mrs. Harry Smith, of Windsor, president of the Fifteenth District, extended words of welcome to the participating clubs, by Mrs. R. P. Rogers, president of the Greenville Woman's Club, and Mrs. T. R. Jones Jr., president of the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville. The past presidents of the District, and the presidents of the clubs were introduced. The clubs from the following places participated in the meeting: Aulander, Ayden, Colerain, Columbia, Farmville (Littler), Greenville, Jamesville, Plymouth, Powellsville, Swans Quarter, Washington, Williamston, Windsor, Woodville and Lewiston. The Windsor club and Columbia club won first and second prizes for attendance.

Routine business matters were conducted, including committee reports. Two solos were given by Mrs. F. Carter, accompanied by Mrs. Wm. Keister, both of Greenville. An invitation to meet in 1955 was issued by the Columbia Woman's Club. The invitation was accepted. The collect was given, followed by the adjournment. A luncheon at the Woman's Club, at 1:00 followed. Approximately 200 women attended the meeting.

Miss Shirley Manning, whose marriage to John R. Postas will take place Sunday, September 19 in the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, was honored Tuesday night by Miss Nancy Proctor at the Greenville Country Club.

The bride-elect was presented a corsage of white carnations upon her arrival. A two course dinner was served to approximately thirty guests. The dining table was centered with an arrangement of pink asters and chrysanthemums, flanked by pink tapers in silver candelabra. On opposite ends of the table arrangements of pink and lavender summer flowers, flanked by pink tapers in silver holders were used. Each guest's place was marked with a bridal place card.

Following the dinner, Miss Manning was presented a basket filled with many useful gifts.

Organization Of Band Discussed At Grifton PTA Meet Tuesday

GRIFTON—The first meeting of the Grifton P.T.A. for the 1954-55 term was held on Tuesday night in the school auditorium with a good attendance.

Mr. Jack Calvert, president, called the meeting to order and Rev. R. C. Mooney offered the invocation.
Mrs. James Hudson, program chairman, was in charge of the program which included the allegiance to the flag and group singing of "America" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Mrs. Dolly Mae Carson was accompanist. Mr. E. B. Bright, principal, in behalf of the P.T.A. welcomed the faculty and friends and introduced the faculty members for the year. He mentioned additions to the high school course of study, stating those offered will fulfill requirements for college entrance in most colleges. He also stated a driver-trainer program was under way. The local Lions Club is helping with this program. Vocational home economics has also become a part of the high school program. In connection with this Mrs. Don Casey announced a supper to be given in the home economics department on the 23rd, the proceeds to be used for additional equipment.

Mrs. Carson gave a brief outline of the band which will be organized in the school this year in which she will act as instructor.
After the program Mr. Calvert read committees for the year, heard the minutes and treasurer's report. Mr. Charles Kline reported for the membership committee 312 members so far. The contest among the grades for securing new members was won by Mrs. Whitley's third grade.
Mr. John Groat spoke for the house and grounds committee, saying a lounge for the teachers and the sick room in the main building had been renovated. Mr. Ad Daniels reminded all boys interested in football to be on the playground on Saturday morning.

The count for cakes was taken and the fourth grade, Miss Johnson and Mrs. Brickhouse's seventh and eighth were winners.
A motion was made that menus for lunches be published in the Grifton Times each week. After discussion Mr. Bright agreed that this would be a regular feature weekly.
It was called to the group's attention the traffic hazards on Church Street and the president appointed Mr. Hunter Shackelford, Mrs. Clifton Baldwin and Mrs. John Groat to look into this.

After the meeting the hospitality committee headed by Mrs. George C. Sugg served refreshments. The table was covered with a yellow linen cloth and held a center arrangement of yellow gladioli and asters, tall green candles in brass holders, flanked this. Lime ice punch, cookies and salted nuts were enjoyed. Assisting in the entertaining were Mrs. Sallie Johnson, Mrs. Dorothy Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Mooney acted as a welcoming committee.

Billy Gray Honored On Birthday

ROBERSONVILLE—Saturday afternoon from 2 until 4, Billy Gray entertained 12 friends at the home of his mother, Mrs. Dell Moyer Gray. Several contests and games were enjoyed. Each child tried to give the closest guess to the number of peacans in a jar before trying their skill at word building with "Happy Birthday." After frolics in the yard, they were invited to the dining room where the table, covered with a blue and gray cloth, was centered by a white cake holding ten candles. The inscription "Happy Birthday Billy" matched the lighted pink candles. A bouquet of pink roses was in one corner while pink delicate lattice work overlaid the white icing in the other corners. The oblong cake had a fancy top and bottom border. Roses an inch in diameter and rose buds were artistically dotted on the large cake.

The cake was served with ice cream and salted peanuts. The favors were whistles and snappers. After the refreshments, the children went outside to play with these. Billy received many useful gifts from his guests and his numerous relatives.

How's Your Mail Service?

How is the mail service throughout Pitt County?
That's a question we would like to direct to the people in the county's rural areas. It is particularly appropriate now, in view of the recent change in mail service in some sections of the county.

In this economy drive by the Postoffice Department, Pitt has been included in a number of changes in postal service which supposedly save the department money. From the effects of these changes in Pitt County, we can only see that the moves have caused a deterioration of postal service to people in the rural areas.

Consider the Stokes and Pactolus sections for example. Formerly there was a star route which made two round trips daily from Greenville to Stokes and Pactolus to serve the people of those areas. With the new change in effect, mail from Greenville now goes either to Rocky Mount or Washington for transfer to Highway postoffices which go through those areas.

We can't see much economy in taking mail from Greenville destined for Stokes and routing it around through Rocky Mount. On top of that, there have been a number of people who have complained the service now is not on a par with what it formerly was. In some instances, they say, mail is being delayed from one to three days by the new system of operation.

What can the people in rural areas do about such deplorable mail service?
For the most part the local postmaster or the mail carrier is the one who hears the complaints. But they are not the ones who make the rules. They only carry out the orders of the Postoffice Department.

axsg
The people in Pitt County who are not getting the calibre of service they should have should write Congressman Herbert Bonner's office. The Congressman carries a great deal more weight with the Postoffice Department than the local postmaster does.

We have received information that Congressman Bonner's office has received complaints about the postal service from practically every county in the First Congressional District. So far, we are told, Bonner's office has received only two complaints from Pitt County about the mail service.

Maybe the people in the rural sections of Pitt are satisfied with the mail service they are getting. If they are not, the only way to get something done about it is to let the Congressman's office know.

Frankly, we think Pitt County's rural residents deserve much better mail service than they are now getting. And while we are on the subject, we think the towns of the county should have a better quality mail service also.

Time To Let Others Carry The Ball

It might conceivably be good tactics to let another government carry the ball in promoting a program for West Europe's defenses. Uncle Sam was the biggest booster of EDC, which France blocked, and someone else just possibly could bring out some agreement on the rebound.

The thought that such a plan is already underway has been provoked by several recent developments at home and overseas:

- (1) A sudden burst of activity by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, which is earning support for a new seven-nation defensive alliance to replace EDC;
- (2) The announcement U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is again on his way to Europe to talk over problems of rearming Germany;
- (3) U. S. willingness to "stand in the wings" and let Asian peoples of SEATO take center stage might be duplicated in matters pertaining to Europe.

It is readily understandable that having once balked at American leadership on the European Defense Community, that leadership has lost some of its earlier appeal.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
SALVATION IS A GIFT

What is the greatest obstacle which God encounters in his dealings with men?

It is undoubtedly the unwillingness of man to accept God's greatest gift—the gift of salvation. Men spend hours on their knees asking God for lesser gifts. They ask for security and here it is, ready for them. They plead for more light, yet all the while walk in darkness. Often they plunge into church work determined to be zealous servants in the Lord's vineyard. And all the while they refuse to extend their hands and accept the gift which God is holding out to them, namely the gift of salvation.

For in spite of the warning which appears on almost every page of the Bible that man cannot attain salvation through good works, man usually strives to attain it in just that way. But salvation is a gift. No effort of ours can achieve it. God is tapping us on the shoulder, knocking at the doors of our hearts, trying to attract our attention in every possible way and to let us know that he has a great gift for us. But we think that we must do something to get that gift other than just ask for it and receive it.

But what of good works? These God demands as the fruit of our salvation. We cannot work for our salvation, but we are commanded to work out our salvation in fear and trembling. Good works follow salvation. They do not precede it. They are the fruits of salvation, not its roots.

Allies Felt Dulles Bluffing

By RAY TUCKER
PARIS—Our European Allies do not expect to suffer any loss of U.S. money or military supplies from the "agonizing reappraisal" of our overseas responsibilities.

Secretary John Foster Dulles promised a restudy of our foreign commitments if France prevented the European Defense Army from becoming a reality. They have always regarded Dulles' statement as a mere diplomatic bluff.

Every member of NATO, and especially France and Britain, figure that we are too deeply committed to the idea of checkmating Russian aggression for us to withdraw from the international position, now or ever. In their own informal and nondiplomatic phrasing, Europe has us "hooked" to European politics, economics and possible wars.

So long as we continue to beat the drums for and finance the anti-Communist resistance movement throughout the world, we must and shall bribe them to stay on our side and build up their economic and military structures.

SMUG ATTITUDE IN EUROPE—They may misjudge the future Eisenhower-Dulles policy and the reaction on Capitol Hill, when Congress reassembles. But that is the slightly smug, cynical attitude prevailing over here today.

We have not played smart diplomatic poker, having kept our hand exposed since World War II. Both Eisenhower and former President Harry S. Truman overemphasized the fact that French participation in EDC and Germany's rearmament were essential to any effective defense force.

The politicians at Paris and Bonn would be foolish if they did not try to trade on our excessive eagerness. They have maneuvered ourselves into a position where we are both international beggars and buyers.

With top hats in hand, the diplomatic representatives of the nation which has saved Europe twice sit in the anterooms of French and German Foreign Offices awaiting the decisions of leaders of a recently occupied and a conquered country. Never before, perhaps, was the principal victor so humiliated. Both French and Germans contrive to capitalize on our embarrassing status.

BONN GOVERNMENT AGAINST RESTRICTIONS—The Bonn Government, for instance, will no longer accept the restrictions on its political sovereignty and its military organization, which it was prepared to tolerate, if France had ratified EDC.

In forthcoming parleys on this problem, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will insist on full freedom for Western Germany. In his opinion, such granting would mean the collapse of Moscow's attempt to infiltrate the Low Countries, France, West Germany and Spain.

Adenauer recognizes that he might be ousted from office if he accepted the original provisions for Allied control of Western Germany. His departure from the world stage would be a severe blow to the peace faction headed by the U.S. and Britain. Adenauer is needed at Berlin to forestall rising of another Hitler.

Somebody Told Me

Hargrove Preceded Our Ellis

If Marlon Hargrove hadn't already done it, Jimmy Ellis could write a book that would out-sell "See Here, Private Hargrove." Jimmy, former Sports Editor of the Daily Reflector, displays his wit in a letter back to Managing Editor Dave Whichard. He emphasizes, "Don't take this letter seriously; I really LOVE the army."

Jimmy's description of the infiltration course: "I guess the roughest thing so far has been the infiltration course and that was rough. We had a dry run in the morning sun (about 90 degrees) and then took a break for lunch. We crawled it again in the afternoon sun (about 190 degrees) and then took a break for supper. When the sun went down we marched back out to the course and took a little moonlight crawl under tracer ammunition (temperature had dropped a little by then: about 89 degrees). The afternoon crawl was under live ammunition, too, but the psychological effect was not quite so awesome as it was when you look up and see those tracers slipping around your ears—especially when your ears are as big as mine. The crawling was enough to kill a good man because it was done in Fort Jackson's inimitable loose sand that's about four inches deep and absolutely devoid of anything except South Carolina cactus (littleweeds) and 60 trillion little bugs, all aiming to take part of your hide off when you crawl by them. I came through with only two skinned places, on the bony joints of my wrists. I'll recover, I think, when they get the casts off my arms. Almost as bad as the crawling was all of the marching we had to do to get to the crawling place. The lieutenant who accompanied us to the area (and then stood around watching and shaking his swigger stick at the slow crawlers) figured up that we traveled about 18 miles on Pat and Charlie getting to the course. We marched out and back three times while he rode out in his little '53 Ford.

On KP: 'All these stories you hear about KP aren't true at all, I've found out. Here in our company, the KP's are addressed as Mister and—sir, wear white dinner jackets, and work 15 minutes and get off 45 minutes out of each hour. That what they told me, but I've pulled KP three times and I wore fatigues, was referred to as "that knuckle head on the back sink," and worked from 7:30 a.m. until eight at night. The only free time we got was to eat and then the old KP pusher stood around and wanted to know why it was taking us so long to eat."

The rest of the letter is just as amusing. Let me repeat: Jimmy says not to take this letter seriously; he LOVES the army. And I thank Jimmy.

JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THERE'S LIGHT ALL AROUND BUT IT IS DARK HERE (Washington Daily News)

A self-styled spiritualist and evangelist who claimed to be a doctor of medicine, conjurer, and magician is dead.

He is dead as a result of bullet wounds inflicted by a woman over whom he was supposed to have cast a spell or "hex." She shot him five times, and in her own mind she had to watch for an opportunity to catch him when "he didn't have on his conjuring shirt." She believed that no earthly harm could come to him so long as he had on that shirt.

So she caught him in bed and she unloaded the gun on him. Josephine Whitley, a colored woman, believed that in her own mind. And the Rev. Kinzo Otto Devontenno VI was capitalizing on the ignorance and fear which he was able to spread.

It is purely a case of so much light in the distance but so much dark right here before our every eyes. It is a sad drama that in a day of so much knowledge, so much enlightenment, and so much education that people must hark back to the dark days and cling to superstitious beliefs that educated society long ago abandoned.

To some people this belief held by the Whitley woman is a subject of amusement and laughter. To others it is a matter of crazy superstition. But to the Whitley woman it was a matter of life and death. And the story which has unfolded is really one of life and death.

How is it possible that such an existence can be carried on in this day of enlightenment? That question is most difficult to answer. Newspapers, radios, television sets, school, churches, and human contacts make it seem out of question because it happened.

This woman will be punished for what she did. But we doubt seriously that she is really guilty of what the state will charge her with. She killed the man, but what she wanted to kill was an evil spirit. In order to murder that spirit, she had to murder the man who possessed that spirit. She probably is resting easier now that he is dead than she ever could rest with him alive and in her home.

The price of ignorance is high. The high cost of low living has paid an enormous sum. The state will have to fight against the crime. But the state needs also to fight hard against the cause of that crime. Ignorance can be a deadly weapon. It was in this case. The woman was being slowly killed by her own ignorance by a man who exerted a weird influence upon her.

There is so much darkness in the midst of so much light. We need not only to punish her for her act, but we need to eradicate the darkness which is in the midst of all this light. It is a sad thought for a civilized people to think about.

N.C. Farmers Not Too Happy Over Agriculture Outlook

FARMERS—Upwards of 3,000 farmers came to Raleigh for the 32nd annual meeting of the N. C. Cotton Growers Co-operative Association and the 20th anniversary of Farmers Co-operative Exchange, better known as FCX. They heard Manly G. Mann, general manager of both outfits, and other officers give financial and progress reports. They heard ex-Governor and Senator-nominate Kerr Scott introduce Dr. Frank Graham, who has served as university president, U.S. Senator and United Nations mediator to make the principal address. And they heard Dr. Graham make his usual eloquent appeal for better understanding among peoples and more complete co-operation among nations. They ate hundreds of pounds of barbecue. Mostly they met old friends and made new ones and talked among themselves about prospects for agriculture in the Carolinas during the next few years.

PROSPECTS—The farmers are not very happy about the situation. They are proud of the business developed by the co-ops and credit savings made through these agencies as contributing substantially to prosperity since the depression. Some individuals among them have good crops this year and are getting fair prices. Many of them have taken a drubbing from drought and high production costs, have used up cash reserves and are having to

Business Today

No Boom 'Boomed'

By ELMER ROESSNER
Eventually, cooling of homes and offices will be as common as heating now is.

But the great boom this year was only a fizz-pop.
The weather, as for all ills of business, has been blamed.
True, summer sizzles were less than average in many regions. But there were other reasons. Paradoxically, one reason business was so bad is that the prospects are so good.

Everybody is manufacturing air conditioners. Most of the major appliance manufacturers are turning them out; so are makers of motors, pumps, fans and furnaces. As television set sales slipped, some manufacturers switched some production facilities to room coolers.

So both last year and this, more sets were produced than sold. And the public was mightily confused.

The myriad of brand names, some old and some new, contributed. So did the conflict of superlative claims. All this summer, 1953 sets were being advertised at heavy discounts—and the fact that "1953 models" often appeared in tiny type didn't help to clear up matters. Then price-cutting spread to newer models and variations in prices were so great that many consumers had no sharp conception of what a good air conditioner was worth. Definitions of air conditioners were baffling. Some people, of course, know what half-ton and three-quarter-ton conditioners are, but a lot of people think those refer to the weight and doubt their window sills will sustain it. Few advertisers did much to set them straight.

There was also a lot of confusion as to what size conditioner was needed to condition what size rooms. Ask three salesmen about a room 10 by 16 by 8 and you could get three different answers. And claims for central-heating and cooling systems made many wonder if room coolers were not soon to join the doodle and 12-inch TV sets. Whether additional house wiring would be necessary also puzzled many prospects.

As an advertising newswriter said, the market was in a crazy, mixed up skid. So consumers by the million sat it out.

Eventually, things will get straightened out. Leading manufacturers will conduct educational campaigns to clear up misunderstandings. Advertising will establish greater recognition of the better makes, and shoestringers and opportunists will fade away.

At the start of this year, Electrical Merchandising reported that 96.8 per cent of all wired homes were without air conditioners. By now, the figure is probably down to 95 or 94.

That leaves 40,000 prospects!

TREASURY WANTS TAX ON DIPLOMATS' CIGARETTES
Foreign diplomats can't buy tax free cigarettes in this country, the Treasury has decided.

While diplomatic officers are exempt from American taxes, the Treasury has decided that since the manufacturer—not the smoker—pays the Federal tax, the diplomats must pay the regular price.

However, there is nothing in the ruling that would prohibit the diplomats from importing their own cigarettes tax free or, for that matter, buying untaxed American cigarettes abroad and having them sent here under diplomatic privileges.

STRIKES IN U.S. CHILE CUT COPPER SUPPLIES
The copper situation may become acute next month.

The Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers has closed the Phelps Dodge, Anaconda, Inspiration Consolidated and Miami copper companies. These establishments produce about half of the United States copper.

Meanwhile, two large Anaconda and one Kennecott copper mines have been struck in Chile. Supplies on hand are moderate; most users have little more than enough to last out the month, they say.

Recollections Of A Master Spy

By BELMAN MORIN
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—One of those quiet-spoken intelligence agents came in the other day to ask me some questions about an old friend. Ever hear the name, Richard Sorge?

Richard Sorge was a spy, a Communist spy, a true genius in that desperate trade.

For my money, he was the greatest of them all, a man who made Mata Hari look like a little girl playing cops-and-robbers. He got his hands on two of the most vital pieces of information in the history of our time, and succeeded in transmitting them to the Kremlin.

One was Hitler's intention to tear up the nonaggression treaty with Russia and launch his attack in June, 1940. Sorge had the correct date and some of the troop dispositions.

The other was Japan's timetable. He seems to have had advance information about Pearl Harbor.

He had previously organized, and was directing, an espionage network operating all through the Far East. It may still be operating there and here. Some U.S. top intelligence people fear so.

Through his agents, many of them in very high places, Sorge reached into every chancellery from Japan to Java. He knew some of the deepest secrets of the great powers.

Nobody ever served the Reds better—even against his own country. Richard Sorge was a German.

I knew him in Tokyo as a fellow correspondent. That was merely part of his "cover," of course, although he actually worked at the job. He never let on the extent of his information, but he must have had many a lusty laugh at the rest of us.

He made a wonderful companion, gay, amusing, a fascinating talker. He liked food, liquor, late hours and the ladies. In fact, the story is that it was a girl who brought him to destruction, but I am not too sure about that.

He had a perfect facade for his job.

As a newspaperman, and a very presentable one, he had entree everywhere. As a German, he was highly persona grata with Japanese officials.

More important, he had become a pet of the German Embassy. In part, this was because of his brilliant record in World War I. He came through covered with medals, and the old German army was something less than lavish with them. He became a close confidante of the German ambassador in Tokyo—so much so that when World War II started, the ambassador made him the Embassy press officer.

In that post, he had access to the Nazis' top secrets.

He was equally well fixed for getting information about Japan. One of his lieutenants had been the private secretary to the Prime Minister.

To get his information to Moscow, Sorge used all the tricks, the microfilm messages in cigarettes, etc. After the war started, he began transmitting over a portable radio.

Japan's secret police—the dreaded "Kempeitai"—knew a spy was operating somewhere in the country. But evidently Richard Sorge, correspondent and war hero, was the last man they suspected.

Then the break came. After Pearl Harbor, Sorge requested a transfer. He told the Kremlin his usefulness in Japan was ended. Apparently, he never got an answer. Why, nobody knows.

While he was waiting for it, according to the story, one of his girl friends gave him away in a fit of jealousy. He was arrested and executed.

So went a brilliant, if twisted, man. He once told me he felt deeply that "something" was needed to break the recurring cycle of war in western Europe. He didn't say what it was. Apparently, he thought communism was the answer.

I wonder whether he would still think so.

Warning System Set Up By Army

By ELTON C. FAY
 WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army is taking special steps to warn citizens if deadly gas, radiological or germ warfare materials escape during shipment.

A new regulation requires public announcement "in event that toxic agents are released through accident in a populous area which make immediate warning and evacuation necessary."

A spokesman said today the regulation was issued as a "precautionary" step, and that there had been no accidents involving CBR (chemical, biological, radiological) material.

Army specialists who escort each shipment of CBR material from depots or production installations are directed to "request the assistance of newspaper, radio stations, local police, etc." if an accident makes imperative the prompt warning of persons living in the area.

The regulation says that "if the technical escort personnel... are killed or seriously injured and cannot issue" a warning announcement the military shipping agency chemical officer of the nearest military installation or a similar agency should sound the alarm and send a representative to the scene of the accident immediately.

The wording of the regulation and of a blank form for use as a news release indicates that the precise nature of the material involved might not be disclosed.

The proposed announcement would say only that an accident had occurred on a certain rail, truck, maritime or aircraft line at a named town or at a specified point on a highway route and "may have resulted in the escape of hazardous material which was being transported for the United States Army."

The announcement also could say, depending on the circumstances, that guards had been posted to prevent entry into the danger area; or that "evacuation of this area was necessary to the welfare of the community" because of wind and weather conditions; and that a further announcement would be made when the area was safe.

Presumably, the most lethal of the CBR materials which might be spread by such an accident is the "G" or nerve gas.

Exposure to nerve gas causes strangulation and death within minutes. Like other war gases, G-gas clings close to the ground, drifting with light wind. Detection and treatment must come swiftly.

Radiological material—the by-product of nuclear fission which produces poisonous contamination hours, days or weeks for effect. Thus, there is more time for preventive measures.

The accidental release of germ warfare material probably would be the easiest with which to cope, since the onset of disease takes a comparatively long time.

Automation Grows, But People Are Here To Stay

By WAYNE OLIVER
 NEW YORK (AP)—With the rapid growth of automation in which a robot-like machine replaces a 100 or 200 workers at a particular chore, are people here to stay?

Emphatically yes, say the experts in the field of automation—automatic controls in industry and business.

"I think the result will be that people will work less time and produce more goods and services," says John Diebold, consultant on automatic controls to several firms.

Diebold, editor of the magazine "Automatic Control," forecasts that the effects of automation will be gradual rather than drastic and says "we may start having three-day weekends which in turn would increase employment."

Admiral Corp. of Chicago a few days ago began operation of equipment that automatically assembles parts equivalent to half of a television set chassis in a matter of seconds. Although it performs functions formerly requiring rows of assembly line workers, John B. Huarisa, executive vice president of Admiral, says it hasn't thrown people out of jobs. To the contrary, because of the increase in production, "it has been necessary to hire more women employees to complete the final hand assembly of the printed circuit boards from the automation line."

Automation through use of electronic computer and controls systems "will relieve man from the more routine and repetitive mental operations of the civilian economy," says Dr. M. J. Kelly, president of Bell Telephone Laboratories.

He terms automation probably the century's greatest contribution to the reduction of man's burden.

Henry F. Dever president of the Brown Instruments Division of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co. says automation already has made some products available that we wouldn't otherwise have, and will do so in the future.

"Workers themselves long ago had the choice of doing without the products we now take for granted in our 20th Century mode of living," he declares. "They decided they did want these things, and the machines to make them were introduced."

"Those of you who have foreboding about this trend to automation, thinking perhaps it will obsolete the human being, must remember that the worker himself, even when we call him unskilled, is a magnificently sensitive and adaptable machine. He performs sensing, safety and other operations which it is often difficult to do automatically."

Judge Is Tough On Divorce Day; Couples Scolded

AP Newsfeatures
 PORT HURON Mich.—When the judge hands down a divorce in Circuit Court here the couple receiving it also gets an "unmarrying ceremony"—whether they like it or not.

Here's the way it goes: Judge Edward T. Kane has the two stand before him just as if it were their wedding day rather than their parting day. He fixes upon them a stern look and says: "You have no right to feel elated just because you are being granted a divorce. You are not to be pleased, but blamed for failing to make your marriage work."

After this, the judge reviews the couple's wedding vows and their married life and points out to them where they failed. He often then makes an attempt at reconciliation. "Sometimes this works," he says, "but more often the damage has been done."

I first saw him 20 years ago," said Mike Menosky, a probation officer. Recorder Judge John P. Scallen said: "$100 or 1 days."

Said Adams: "That fine is too stiff for a poor man."

HONG KONG (AP)—Newsmen Richard Applegate and Donald Dixon and Ship captain Benjamin Krasner spent their first night of freedom quietly last night at their hotel in Kowloon.

The trio were released yesterday by the Chinese Communists after 18 months of solitary confinement, brainwashing and Communist interrogation. They had been nabbed by a Red gunboat while cruising in Applegate's yawl near here.

Although they had eaten only broken rice with scraps of fish, meat and vegetables for a year and a half, they did not overeat last night.

Wary lest their shrunken stomachs "backfire," each had only a fruit cocktail and a steak in their hotel room.

They visited with a few newspaper and radio friends and went to bed well before midnight.

Applegate and Krasner expect to remain here indefinitely but Dixon said he planned to return to the United States in a few days.

He said later he did not know the Russians were in the audience but was aware they were attending the conferences. There was no comment from the Russians.

Color Bars On West Coast Start Discrimination Issue

Editor's Note—On the West Coast a problem of racial discrimination involves Orientals—two Chinese business men, members of Exchange Clubs. A lively fight is in prospect next month when the dispute comes to the floor of the national convention.

By LAWRENCE MALKIN
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A group of civic-minded California businessmen has joined the fight to let down the color bars in American society—and posed a perplexing question:

Should private organizations—which are not governed by anti-segregation laws—admit nonwhites to membership?

Yes, say dissident members of a number of Exchange Clubs around the San Francisco Bay area, who feel it is up to them to admit whom they want, regardless of race.

No, says Harold Harter of Toledo, Ohio, founder and national secretary of the Exchange Clubs, who stands behind his organization's constitution.

By-laws of the organization—with a national membership of about 100,000—contain a clause restricting membership to "white, male business and professional men."

The controversy came to light last June after the Exchange Club in suburban Menlo Park unanimously voted to disband because a national representative told them to get rid of Robert U. M. Ting, a Chinese-born business executive who was a charter member of the local club.

The Stockton club soon found itself in the same fix when the national exchange asked Richard Wong, a merchant of Chinese descent, to step out as president a job he had held for six months.

Within a month, clubs in six other California towns either quit or were suspended for backing the Stockton and Menlo Park clubs.

Some had no Orientals on their roster but sided with Menlo Park Vice President Val Peterson, who says:

"A man has a right to pick his own friends. If you want to discriminate, you can do it in voting."

Matters came to a head in July when 15 Northern California clubs met in Oakland to plan ways of leading a possible secession from the national group.

They met again last month and eased their stand to the point where they indicated they would merely attempt to bring what they called the "exclusion policy" of the Exchange Clubs to debate at the national convention. No new organization was formed.

None of this went unnoticed by Harter, a cheerful, balding man who started the Exchange Clubs in 1911. He saw them merged with the National Progressive Clubs in 1922 and has been national secretary of the combined group since then.

The Exchanges are basically service clubs, with about 50 members in each community. Like Rotarians, Lions and Kiwanis, they invite outstanding members of their communities to meet at weekly informal luncheons and plan civic projects and discuss contemporary affairs.

President Calvin Coolidge was a member of the Rutland, Vt., club and Earl Warren, U.S. chief justice who wrote the historic school segregation opinion this year, is still a member of the Oakland club, which has been suspended in the current controversy.

Harter arrived in the San Francisco Bay area the Sunday following the protest meeting with some sobering thoughts for the rebellious clubs.

In a news conference following a long speech before a secret meeting of representatives of California clubs Harter made it clear the national board of control, which runs the clubs as an incorporated, private enterprise had no intention of bowing to the locals.

"We are a private club, and members are selected solely on an invitational basis. So there's no discrimination. Each loyal club can invite whomever it pleases—but they must be white men," he told reporters.

Harter urged members who did not like the exchange to "join other clubs."

"This is a lot of trouble over one Chinaman," he said.

Several clubs agreed with Harter's view. The Richmond, Calif., group issued this statement:

"The constitution of the National Exchange Club provides procedure—not in rule by riot."

This is precisely the right the Redwood City club says it is being denied.

Back in Menlo Park, where the controversy started, most of the former Exchanges have joined the Lions Club. Ting, the Chinese executive, has been invited to join the Lions but is not sure he will take up the invitation.

foreign countries who are constantly being brought to East Germany all expenses paid. Squired by the Russian salesmen, these groups sit around the cafes and bars night after night, eating and drinking all they wish and singing Russian songs.

This brand of Russian is far different from the Stalin era type. He always wears a necktie. He seldom wears a hat and he never wears the trench coat once the badge of every Soviet police operative.

The young men drink seldom and then in moderation. They haven't any fear of talking to a Westerner, and one young interpreter said that's because they have been trained for just such a job. Together with the broad German back and capacity for work, they make a tough combination. This "occupation" of East Germany is more deeply embedded, perhaps, than outright occupation by troops ever could be.

The world's oldest statues, molded by Cor-Magnon men, were found in 1924 in a cave near the French village of Montespan in the central Pyrenees.

New, And Smart Type Russian Is In East Germany

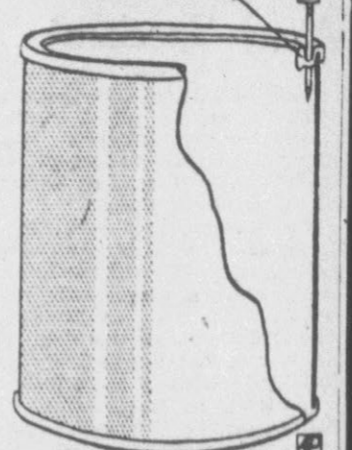

By TOM REEDY
LEIPZIG, East Germany (AP)—A smart, new type of Russian is carrying the ball for Moscow in East Germany these days. He's in evidence in the Soviet headquarters in Berlin and he showed up in force for the Leipzig Fair to handle the East block's drive for trade.

He is apparently the graduating class of a system now 37 years old. Konstantin Pavlov, barely out of swaddling clothes when the Czar fell, sets the pace for the Leipzig business campaign. Pavlov and his men working morning, noon and night. They speak all necessary languages and unlike the Russian of past years in Germany, they never bother to try to sell Westerner on the merits of communism. They're busy extolling the merits of a drill press or expressing a readiness to trade with anybody.

One of the Russian salesmen assigned to the fair showed the East German manager how to adopt a Western private enterprise trick to advantage. The Russian noted a display by a state-owned factory turning out shoe polish. He recruited five young German boys, put them in neat work uniforms, set up a shoeshine parlor and invited the throngs of visitors to get their shoes shined free.

Pavlov has another staff with yet another task—language-wise men usually in their 20s. These are assigned to visiting delegations particularly the "workers' groups" of Communists from for-

Denise tries other versions, such as the pigtail and the chignon, and a good time is had by all. The turban can be worn as many different ways as a girl can change her hairdo.

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor An ex-Follies girl with a sense of humor is carving out a new career these days as a designer of fashionable whimsies. She is Dolores DeMonde, who was a dancer and comedienne with the original Ziegfeld Follies and starred in many other Broadway musicals before deserting the footlights for fashion. After starting her designing career with a collection of hand-made stoles, Miss DeMonde now has launched a yarn-trimmed turban which can be worn in umpteen different ways, according to the mood and the occasion. It's simply a close-fitting wool jersey cap with a long yarn ponytail attached to the crown. By braiding, twisting, twirling or knotting the yarn in different ways, an infinite variety of hat-dos may be achieved. The hat of all moods comes in many colors, and is budget priced, for hat customers.

Concerts Outdraw Ball Games

By RUSSEL LANDSTROM PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Robin Hood Dell is a huge, shell-shaped amphitheater in a woodland city setting where the famed Philadelphia Orchestra and brilliant soloists stage a 6-weeks summer concert series each year. It is a widely heralded cultural experiment which fares better, on the whole than does major league baseball at Connie Mack Stadium 10 blocks away.

On one night in the current series while 6,209 customers watched the league-leading Cleveland Indians beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 25,000 stormed the Dell.

The Dell engages such artists as Lily Fons, Yehudi Menuhin, Jan Peerce, Dorothy Maynor, Claudio Arrau, Jarmila Novotna and others. Celebrating its silver jubilee it is a thriving project. Yet in 1948 it was ready to draw the screen across its huge band-shell. It pottered through half the season, then gave up.

Next year, an industrialist named Frederick Mann, went to work on what seemed a case of rigor mortis. He brought the Dell 'round beautifully, paid off more than $55,000 in debts put fire into the staff, handled programming with something like inspiration.

Last year Mann tried out the great cultural scheme—outdoor concerts for the people, all free so far as the public was concerned. He got the city to appropriate $75,000 a year for the Dell's support, mobilized 750 patrons to donate $100 a year, their reward the glow of good works and two tickets to every concert. He didn't have to overstrain himself with the city fathers because, along with everything else, he is Philadelphia's recreation director. He gave it to them straight—"recreation must be cultural as well as physical."

More than 407,000 attended the 1953 concerts, three a week for the six weeks, plus three morning concerts for children. Mann is confident the Dell will beat that figure by at least 15,000 this year. To get in, a person has only to fill out an application blank, printed in Philadelphia newspapers, and mail it to the Dell offices. Requests are filled on a first come first served basis.

The 50-year-old, Russian-born Mann, enthusiastic and expansive, dismissed two secretaries, rattled through two phone calls, bade good-bye to a caller heading for Europe, waved in a barber to shave him, put a match to a fine cigar, and said:

"People ask, 'Why free concerts?' The answer is that more people love music than can afford to pay for it," Mann says. "Under our plan, they can eat and hear music, too. The free concerts help musicians and artists. They stimulate interest in good music everywhere, for they are comparable to the best festivals in Europe. Every big city should have a Dell, just as it has a public library a museum

Jackson Asserts GOP Has Failed

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) says the Republican administration "talks tough and carries a golf putter" and has failed to come up with any ideas to "stop the onward march of communism."

Speaking last night at a rally for Rep. Charles R. Howell the Democratic candidate for U.S. senator from New Jersey, Jackson said Communist aggression in Greece and Turkey was halted by previous Democratic administrations.

Since that time, Jackson declared, the Republicans haven't done anything towards stopping communism.

Jackson told the rally that unlike President Theodore Roosevelt "who said 'talk softly and carry a big stick' . . . this administration talks tough and carries a golf putter."

"I wish this administration would follow the sound policy of a great president, a Republican president, if you please, Teddy Roosevelt," Jackson remarked.

Jackson said the Republican program "reminds me of an iceberg. It is cold, it is slow moving. We are told that it is big and dynamic, but so little of it shows. Like its Arctic counterparts, the Republican iceberg program is 10 per cent visible 90 per cent submerged and 100 per cent at sea."

Sec. Dulles Isn't As Bold In Statements As Year Ago

By JAMES MARLOW
 WASHINGTON (AP)—That the United States is living in a troubled period was illustrated last night by Secretary of State Dulles who talked to the nation while flying to Europe.

Before he boarded a plane for Germany to discuss European problems he recorded a television broadcast about Asian problems which appeared on the nation's screens hours after he had departed.

It was a cautious Dulles who explained the treaty he signed last week at Manila with seven other nations for the defense of Southeast Asia.

The treaty itself is cautious. It doesn't pledge the United States ahead of time to get into war if the Communists attack in Asia. That is left up to the President and Congress to decide if the time comes.

Dulles was cautious even on the subject of helping Southeast Asia economically. The treaty signers agreed, as he explained, to "co-operate in the development of economic measures which will promote economic and social well-being."

Then, almost as if conscious of being watched questioning by next year's Congress which will have to vote the money for Southeast Asian "well-being," Dulles said:

"The treaty recognizes the importance of economic welfare. But it does not commit the United States to any 'handout' program."

Its full meaning will have to be explained later. In fact, the whole meaning of the treaty will be understood better later than now. Whether it ever becomes more than names on paper depends on the eight nations which signed it: The United States, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Pakistan and Thailand.

Dulles acknowledged this in his broadcast when he said "treaties are not self-operative . . . There has to be a genuine will to carry out the treaty purposes."

There was a time earlier this year, during the Indochina War, when Dulles was bolder with the language he used. He spoke then of "massive retaliation" if the Chinese Communists got into the Indochina War where the Communist-led Viet Minh had been fighting the French for almost eight years.

The Chinese didn't have to get in, directly. Their supplies to the Viet Minh were enough. The French were forced into an armistice giving away half of Viet Nam, largest of Indochina's three states.

Dulles remembered that period almost wistfully last night, recalling that in the Indochina crisis he appealed for "united action" by the Western Allies to save Viet Nam.

That appeal, he said last night, "proved impracticable," another way of saying he had been turned down. It was after the Indochina armistice that the United States persuaded the other seven nations to sign the Manila treaty.

"Better now than never," Dulles

Iran Arrests Its Top Counter-Spy

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—The Iranian Army's chief counter intelligence agent for the strategic Abadan oil area has been jailed in the sweeping cleanup of Soviet spies in Iran's security forces.

The top plainclothes agent in Khuzistan Province, Capt. Gholam Hossein Garagozloo, was the leader of 133 operatives assigned to work against Red spies around the Abadan oil refinery on the Persian Gulf. The captain went under the name of "Mr. Moghadam."

Authorities arrested Garagozloo yesterday charging that he himself was a Russian spy.

Nearly 500 officers in the army and police force have been caught up in the nationwide drive against spies. The number eventually taken into custody may exceed 1,000 officials said, since the lower military and police ranks have not yet come under extensive investigation. The purge also is being extended to civil branches of the government.

Intelligence officers said the ring using algebraic equations as codes, slipped the Reds not only Iranian secrets but detailed information on "every tank, gun and uniform" the United States has been supplying Iran.

Army informants said Gen. Alexander Rodionov, military attache in the Russian Embassy, played a key role in the vast spy system.

Capitol Square

acres are supposed to go into pasture and soil improvement projects. Actually, many of them are simply abandoned to weeds and brush, because the farmers do not have the capital to "improve" them. Even with mechanization and stepped-up acreage yield there is serious question that the producing acres can yield enough to supply the needs of the population in food and fiber, or return to the farmers a decent return for investment and labor.

PROBLEMS—These are some of the problems which the farmers attending the co-ops anniversary meetings discussed among themselves. There were political ramifications, because within the past few years farming has gotten into politics to comparable extent that banking, manufacturing, merchandising and transportation had been for many years. Farming is now big business, requiring a lot of capital and a lot of managerial ability. Paradoxically, North Carolina is still primarily an agricultural state, and yet the average farm income is less than half the average State per capita income—which itself is far below the national average.

No wonder the attendants at the big farm gathering here were concerned and disturbed about prospects and not as happy as the same people were when they came to similar meetings in recent years. Running through the conversations, however, was the definite thought that by sticking together and working together they can lick these problems.

Seeking Curfew For Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Councilman Paul d'Ortona plans to introduce a curfew ordinance for Philadelphia youngsters in hopes of curbing juvenile delinquency.

D'Ortona said yesterday he would ask the city council to pass a curfew law under which parents, rather than the youngsters involved would be punished for violations.

The curfew would be effective from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m., Sunday through Thursday, and from midnight to 6 a.m., Friday and Saturday nights. It would cover minors under 17 years of age.

KINGSTON, England (AP)—An 80-year-old miscreant, whose 42 prison terms span the reigns of six British rulers, was given another two years yesterday on theft charges.

The culprit, Arthur Pavett, has spent 4 years behind bars since he was first sent up in 1900 during Victoria's rule.

"You," said Judge Tudor Rees, "seem to have broken all criminal records."

Broadway Stars In Film 'Unlearn' Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Time for a checkup on "Oklahoma!"

Filming of the great Rodgers and Hammerstein musical has resumed in Hollywood after a lengthy location in Arizona. So I thought I had better pay a call on the film, which is being made in the new Todd-AO process.

On the set there was a ranch, complete with water tank and windmill. And at the other end of the stage, a farmhouse with a backdrop that looked like a huge Grant Wood landscape. That's where all the activity was taking place.

Director Fred Zinneman was in the center of the cast, directing the wedding of Curley and Laurie. This was strictly a rehearsal and the many young dancers were decked out in some of the wildest get-ups imaginable.

"Now this is a movie," Zinneman was instructing the largely Broadway-trained group. "You will have to unlearn some of the things you have learned on the stage. Broad gestures will be out."

He rehearsed the scene with the chorus and the principals, including Gordon Macrae, Shirley Jones, J. C. Flippin, Gloria Grahame, Charlotte Greenwood, Gene Nelson, James Whitmore. The wedding party streamed out of the house and went into a rousing chorus of "Oklahoma!"

Oscar Hammerstein II is the film's overseer Rodgers having left for New York and his revival of "On Your Toes."

"Yes, I have learned much from the picture," he commented. "This is the first time I have ever followed a picture through I used to write them and let others carry the ball."

"I've been on the set for almost every scene. One of the eyeopeners for me is the manpower involved in a picture. We might have a simple scene of a girl swimming in a lake. That would require 150 men behind the camera, and all of them necessary."

He said the experience has whetted his appetite for more films, and he and Rodgers will probably do "South Pacific" and "Carousel." But not for some time, because of stage commitments.

The Todd-AO process is a new one developed by producer Michael Todd and the American Optical Co. It uses 65 mm. film instead of ordinary 35 mm. The wider film plus a wide-angle lens gives an extraordinarily clear picture on a wide screen.

Arizona rains added 11 days and much money to the picture, Hammerstein reported, but he felt the locations were worth it. There will be no locations in Oklahoma, as originally planned. Why?

"Because Arizona looks more like the Oklahoma of 1907," he replied. "I don't think Oklahomans should be unhappy because the show should do them good. And look at John Huston. He went to an Irish village to shoot New Bedford of the 1800s for 'Moby Dick.' Nobody's complaining about that."

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO
THE TROUBLE was that Quincy didn't know whether or not she was really in love or if this was only a kind of weary desperation. If Yates did ask her to marry him, would she want to accept or would something cautious within her shy away from definiteness? She debated these questions while she lay in a hot tub, and crept out finally when darkness fell and she heard Penn and her aunt coming in at the side door. Penn had obviously driven Aunt Maude to the hospital for the daily visit she cle Ellhu and Josh Henning were partners in that defense thing that busted—whatever it was. I don't believe it. I don't know what to believe," Penn declared mournfully, dragging off her hat.

"I'm not going to believe anything against Uncle Ellhu, the sweet old blunderbaster," stated Quincy. "Whatever he did, he had the best intentions in the world."

"I hate to have them break his heart," worried Penn. "Even if he's cleared there will always be some people who won't be convinced—like old Mr. Yates."

"I had lunch with him today," Quincy said. "He isn't so grim, really. Sort of a sweet, stormy old thing. Yates look me there."

Maude came upstairs then, her hat in her hand. Her tragic mood of last night had evidently lifted; she walked lightly and there was smug complacency on her face. "Did Uncle Ellhu telephone?" Penn asked.

"No—no, he hasn't called, but I'm not worrying any more. It's all so completely ridiculous. Nasty little men with axes to grind trying to get their names in the papers, Rutherford says. But I do have good news. I'm sure I've finally broken down all Kelly's objections so that now we can have our poor, suffering boy at home where he ought to be."

The Houk sisters looked at each other in consternation and Quincy gave a little involuntary moan. "Oh, my Lord!" she cried under her breath. "And today I threw a cute little monkey wrench into what was undoubtedly a perfectly genuine proposal of marriage."

Penn cut all the clippings from the papers. They made her a trifle sick to see Uncle Ellhu's name belittled, to read even in the routine reports of the House investigation an undertone that was partly cynical and partly contemptuous. A great man was laid low and brought under suspicion, made a dismal figure. Senator Storey was no longer a noble personage, wrapped in the dignity of the toga, unassailable. Now he was a target and the smaller minds loved a target.

Penn tried to keep her anxiety out of her letters to Gil. He might not receive them for weeks, and by the time he had her letters the investigation could be over and all the trouble and unfavorable publicity forgotten, just another flash sensation cheap politicians contrived for their own aggrandizement.

"Your father seems not to be worried by this absurd business," she wrote, aware that she was stretching the truth a little. "His morale is fine."

Maude had her way, eventually. On a cold Sunday, the last in November, an ambulance arrived, delivering Rutherford Storey and a male nurse. The big guest room was warmed and aired and Maude had ordered a bowl of roses and had a small radio installed. Rutherford did not so much as look at the flowers, and when Kelly came in cold and weary from standing all during the long ride on the bus, he snapped at her: "Turn that thing off!" His mother, looking dazed and apologetic, rushed to silence the radio.

"I mean to have television for you," she explained. "But if we get the elevator in you'll be able to be downstairs all day." Rufe did not comment on this except for a grunt, so Maude turned to Kelly. "You're having Gil's old room, Kelly. We'll stay with Rutherford while you arrange your things."

"That will not be necessary, Mrs. Storey," said the young man in white. "I will attend to everything for Mr. Storey."

Penn went downstairs and met Almeda in the hall. "There's a young man, Miss Penn. He wants to see you. He's in the library."

A strange young man stood in the middle of the rug in the library as Penn went in. He wore no hat, his jaunty overcoat swung loosely. He had quick, intent eyes and a small moustache.

Penn said: "You wanted to see me?"

He nodded. "You're Penn Houk? I'm Larry Kissel, a friend of Gil's. Newspaper bureau. Can we talk somewhere—alone?"

"Why—I don't know—" She looked about her, uncertainly. Aunt Maude might come in at any minute. Or Quincy.

"How about my car?" he suggested. "It's a rented car but the heater works."

"I'll get my coat." She flew for it, and they walked out through the chilly dark to the car.

"I'm one of Gil's oldest friends, Miss Houk," Kissel explained. "I served aboard ship with him. Before Gil went away, he and I had a long talk." He opened the door and helped her in, went around to the other side and slid in beside her. "Gil told me that if I heard anything—any rumors, I mean—he wanted me to come to you and tell you first of all. Even before anything was confirmed. I have special sources of information. Have to have, on my job."

"And you've heard a rumor?" Penn asked in a whisper. "About my uncle?"

"Not about your uncle. That House investigation adjourned today. This came from old Navy friends, who have to remain anonymous because the rumor is dangerously secret."

"The submarine!" she choked. "Nothing's definite." He hastened to assure her. "It's being kept under very close wraps at present. If the Navy knew that I'd heard it even, a lot of heads would fall."

"It's in trouble?" she seemed to be feeling nothing at all. Even her heart was numb and so cold it seemed reluctant to beat.

"They don't know yet. The craft was planned to stay submerged for a long period—that was a secret, too. Testing, you understand. But there were certain electronic communications—signals—and for two days they haven't come in. That's all I know, Miss Houk, but when it came to me from my underground sources I remembered my promise to Gil. You can't breathe this to anyone, of course—but you can be—sort of prepared. The senator has had trouble himself—he might need a lot of moral support if one of those telegrams from the chief of Navy personnel came in."

Penn whispered prayerfully "What shall I do?" But after all—it is merely a rumor?"

"Entirely unconfirmed Miss Houk. Maybe this was a foul thing for me to do—harrow you like this—but Gil made me promise. By morning a contradicting rumor may be in and everything will be all right. But meanwhile, you're more or less prepared. Gil said you were the level-headed one in his family, the one with courage and the capacity to keep calm and support the rest of them."

"I'm not doing so well at it am I—" There was the jerk of a sob in her voice. "I don't know if I can go back in there and face them again right now. I'm not a very good actress."

"Want to ride around a little?" He turned the key. "Sorry I threw it at you this way—but Gil was insistent. Tell Penn first," he said—anything that might come up about himself, about his father or his brother. Anything I picked out of the air."

"I know. He counted on me. I'll try not to let him down."

"When it's final, I'll get that, too, of course—when it's definite, one way or another. I've never jumped the gun, betrayed anyone. They trust me." He backed the car out of the yard, drove slowly off into the dark. "Take your time. Cry if you feel like it. Just remember that you could be laughing tomorrow."

"You're awfully kind," Penn said after a while. "I think I can go back now."

"I'll call you in the morning. I'll say 'No News' or 'Good News.'" He drove back in silence, helped her out at the door.

Penn looked at herself in the hall mirror and was startled by the drained whiteness of her face. She scrubbed color into it before she went in where her aunt and Quincy were at dinner. The senator had not come home.

"Who was the boy friend?" asked Quincy.

"Just an old friend of Gil's. Nobody you know."

She got away as soon as she could. In her own room she flung herself down on the bed, gripping the pillow with shaking hands, trying to stop thinking of that dark, cold, secret sea—deep, savage, dreadful. Down—re—Gil.

Why was she torn with such inward agony? Had it always been Gil—would it always be Gil for her, forever and ever?

Bit Of Moslem Istanbul Is In Haifa

By ERIC GOTTFREU
AP Newsfeatures

ACRE, Israel—Jewish Israel has a miniature Arab Istanbul nestled here among the palm trees of the northern shore of Haifa Bay.

Some say it is the oldest city in the Holy Land. In the Book of Judges (1, 31) it is called by its ancient name: Accho. Its history goes back thousands of years—it was already a Canaanite fortress long before the first coming of the Children of Israel.

Now its imposing mosque, its slender minarets and vaulted bazaars recall the Oriental splendor of the late 18th century, when it was rebuilt after the style of the former Turkish capital. The two Ottoman governors who brought about the rebuilding were Sheikh Daher el Zumar and his successor Jezzar Pasha, after whom the city's beautiful mosque is named.

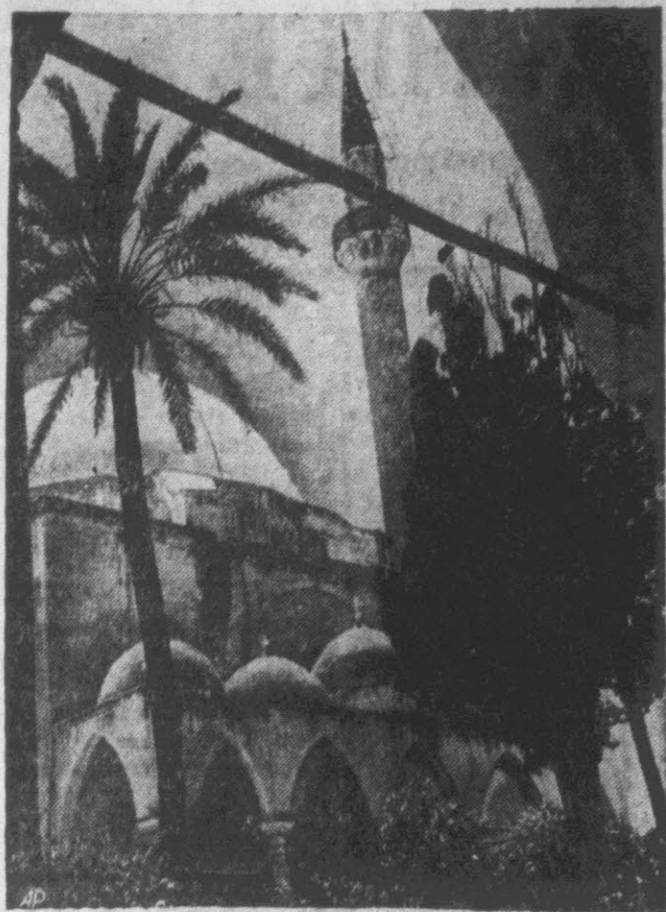

The preservation of Acre's early history has been neglected. But now a half-forgotten Turkish Bath with a multi-colored stone floor, the 160-year-old Hamman el Bacha, has been transformed into a well-organized museum. Or display are coins from the Bronze Age (2500 to 1800 B.C.) and archaeological relics from Hellenistic Roman and Crusader times. The Crusaders used Acre, situated in the lower part of the eastern coast of the Mediterranean, as the chief port of the old Kingdom of Jerusalem.

For the modern periods, the town itself is a living museum. It is dominated by its thick-walled fortress which even Napoleon could not conquer. On his march from Egypt farther east and possibly to India—which he never completed—he had planned to gain a foothold here. World history took a decisive turn when he was beaten and forced to retreat by Jezzar Pasha and his British ally from the sea Adm. Sir Sidney Smith.

In Turkish and British mandate times Acre was an all-Arab town. With the partition of Palestine, the Arab-Jewish war of 1948 and the subsequent population moves this was changed. Today it is inhabited by 4,500 Arabs and 12,500 Jews. In general, the Arabs still live near the great mosque in the historical central part of the town while many Jewish newcomers are settled in a recently built suburb.

But the skyline of old-Acre itself has not changed; care is being taken to preserve its original architecture and fascinating character. In close cooperation with the local Moslem Advisory Committee, $75,000 has been spent on repairing the interior of the Ahmed Jezzar Mosque. Plans are now under way to open a Moslem theological seminary. Most of the leading Moslem scholars left the country in 1948, and a new generation of religious leaders and judges is required for the 125,000 Moslems who have remained here.

ISRAELI ISTANBUL—The Mosque of Ahmed Jezzar, graceful center of Arab life in Acre, which once was a port for Crusaders and now is a Moslem gem flourishing in Israel.

U. S. May Be Repeating One Of Hitler's Errors

NEW YORK (AP)—Is one of Hitler's major mistakes being repeated in the United States? The Fuehrer's error had a lot to do with Germany losing the war. But it concerned nothing so dramatic as secret weapons or high strategy.

This involved a prosaic matter which has some Americans worrying today — railroads. For wars are fought with railroads as well as bullets and bombs.

During World War II America's railroads moved 90 per cent of the nation's military freight, 97 per cent of all organized military travel moved by rail.

Hitler's weakness lay there, said Gustav Metzman, board chairman of the American Railway Car Institute. Metzman retired two years ago as president of the New York Central Railroad.

"Hitler spent a lot of money on highways, just as we have, on the theory that they could move things quickly in small units," said Metzman.

"But he didn't think about volume movements. So, first the railroads were bombed then the highways. When there was a need for any kind of bulk movement, the German highways just couldn't absorb it."

James K. Knudson, when he was defense transport administrator said:

"You've got to build up enough freight cars before war starts if it does. Once a war is on and you're short you'll never turn out enough to meet military needs. Germany learned that during the last war."

Metzman said, "we are arriving at a situation which I am afraid is somewhat similar to what Germany ran into."

"But you can't blame the railroads," he added. "The railroad business, generally, is in a depressed state and carloadings now are roughly 20 per cent below last year. Net earnings are down some 45 per cent from a year ago."

Because the railroads are not making money, he said, they're not buying many new cars — and the result is that five major independent car-building plants have closed permanently and five others have shut down for lack of orders.

Where does this leave the goal decided upon by the government and the railroads four years ago of boosting the freight car fleet up to 1,850,000 cars by the end of this year?

Metzman said by last Jan. 1 the fleet stood at 1,776,000 cars and by Aug. 1 it was 1,756,000 cars — or 96,000 cars short of the goal. The deadline incidentally has been extended to the end of 1955.

This spring, to encourage more defense-related rail equipment purchases, the Office of Defense Mobilization boosted the percentages of fast tax write-offs in this field. But reports are that this has not sparked freight car orders appreciably.

Meanwhile, said Metzman, the nation's future needs loom higher. By 1960, he said, the estimated U.S. population should be 177 million and its normal need would be for 1,844,000 freight cars.

"But this would only be 87 per cent of the need if there is a national emergency," he added.

REPORTS FOR DUTY—Lt. Roy Cohn, former member of the National Guard, Cohn was called to conference. A first lieutenant. Cohn is a member of t

Due to the current business re-roads are buying few new cars. So adjustment, said Metzman, there are now 80,000 surplus cars and 120,000 in need of repairs. Railroads "should set up a program of regular replacement of their freight cars at least equal to the number of cars they retire."

Youngster Gets Early Training

BARDSTOWN, Ky. (AP)—Talbot Tavern features novel salt shakers — so novel that a little boy with a family of tourists stuck one in his pocket.

The father didn't discover the boy had the shaker until he had driven 110 miles from Bardstown. But he turned right around and came back.

"I wanted to make an example of it," he told the tavern manager, "so he'll learn never to take something that doesn't belong to him."

Conference Drops Its Eligibility Rule

The Northeastern Athletic Conference met last night under its new officers for the first time in the 1954-55 school year. The new officers are, left to right: John H. Bendor, acting vice president for Cameron West, Earl Brinkley, president from New Bern, and J. W. Talley, secretary-treasurer of Roanoke Rapids.

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
The Northeastern Athletic Conference met for its first meeting of the 1954-55 school year last night in Greenville, and started the conference plans rolling for the year. On one of the main topics brought up by the conference was the eligibility rule invoked last year. This rule would not allow an athlete to play in the high school if he lived out of that school district. By a 5-2 vote this rule was deleted and the conference is going by the State rule on eligibility. The conference saw no right to penalize the schools in their conference when other schools all over the state were not being penalized. The conference officials also decided to do something about the minor sports situation. Several schools would like to have a conference track meet every year. There was much discussion on this problem, but most of the officials went along with the idea. A committee was appointed by league president, Earl Brinkley of New Bern, to look into the matter and report at the next meeting. This committee also will try to get an annual tennis meet, or golf match in the conference. Additional publicity for the conference through the medium of television was also discussed. Bill Stuckie, representing station WNCT, talked to the representatives on the possibility of getting TV coverage. A plan was proffered for the purpose of announcing scores and standings over the Thursday night sports program. The next conference meeting will be in Elizabeth City.

Another Delay For Heavyweight Bout

BULLETIN
NEW YORK (AP)—The Rocky Marciano-Ezzard Charles heavyweight title fight today was postponed from tonight until tomorrow night because of rain. President Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club announced the second postponement of the Yankee Stadium 15-rounder as a drizzling rain continued. NEW YORK (AP)—Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles worried more about the weather than each other today as they peered anxiously at the skies and hoped for the best. If the weatherman gives them a break, they'll go at each other at 10:30 p.m., EDT in their return 15-round title bout at Yankee Stadium. And judging by the gloomy forecast, the gladiators will have to sweat out long hours. Following intermittent rains during the night, the weatherman forecast at 4 a.m. "some rain or drizzle this morning" followed by cloudy weather "with some rain or drizzle tonight, low near 60." If it rains throughout the day and their scrap is postponed a second time, the fighters as well as the promoting international boxing club will have plenty to worry about. The big hitch on the Saturday date is theater television. Nate Halpern, president of Theater Net-

Standing behind Allen is Simon Moye Jr., tournament chairman; Harold Thomas, Country Club pro; and Reynolds May, all entrants except Allen are required to play an 18-hole qualifying round before entering the tournament. ### One Point Margin All Coach Boone Is Asking

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer
"I'll be satisfied if we get one point on them and win by that margin," Coach Jack Boone said today, referring of course to the West Chester encounter here Saturday night. "Those are my sentiments exactly," he continued. "This West Chester club has been right at the top of the small college pinnacle for the last ten years and emphasizes high-gear offense," he pointed out. The Rams have compiled an astonishing won-lost record during the past seven years and have participated in four major bowl games. In 1947, they were invited to two bowls. On Thanksgiving Day they were participants in the Burley Bowl at Johnston City, Tenn. and played in the Clear Bowl at Tampa, Fla. on New Year's Day. In 1949, they were invited to the Burley Bowl again and accepted a similar invitation from the Pretzel Bowl at Reading, Penn. in 1951. The game should be an interesting one from the spectator's point-of-view. The two antagonists run from the right T-formation and correlate in size. The coinciding systems should produce a game of unusual texture. On paper, the pre-game edge goes to the Pirates. The Bucs have more returning lettermen and a larger array of seasoned backfield men. The Rams, though, have a veteran returning at every post in the line but center. Line Coach Jim Bordine, has Co-Captains Dick Paciaroni and Bob Janick back for their senior years. Others with seasoning and proven ability include Ronald Gatski, Joe Motin, Al Unger, Lyndon Sorber, Ray Kanter, Sid Mollar, Ken Ober, Joe Chilbert, and Eli McLaughlin. Ram Quarterback John McAneney, a renowned passer and slick field-general, is the motivator in the West Chester attack. Rounding out the first string backfield unit are Dick Wolff and Lee Royer, halfbacks; and Walt Buechle, fullback. Yesterday, the Pirates held a lengthy defensive scrimmage. Pass protection came in for much attention. The ECC coaching staff had the starting unit of last Saturday's game running number one in the drills. J. D. Bradford and Larry Rhodes, ends; Willie Holland and George Tucker, guards; Don Burton and David Lee, tackles; Louis Hallow, center; Boyd Webb, Topsy Hayes, Emo Boado, and Claude King, backfield, comprised the defensive eleven. Milton Collier and Gary Mattock, reserve quarterbacks, did most of the tooting for the second unit. Ends Ray Pennington and Bill Helms turned in several nice catches. Tackles Charles Smith and Ray Overton, Guards Paul Popov and George Rice, and Center Waverly Chesson rounded out the wall. Tom Allsbrook, Harold O'Kelly, Bob Gay, Jim Stanley, Bobby Perry, James Henderson, Howard McAdams alternately cohered the backfield and looked impressive. The Pirates are expected to go into the West Chester game at about the same strength of the Norfolk game last week.

Brooklyn Just Unbeatable In Rain; Outsplashed Reds

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Sports Writer
They may be dead ducks by next week, but as of today the Brooklyn Dodgers are aquatic kings of the National League. At least four of their victories are thoroughly waterlogged and if they try to play any more games under conditions such as prevailed yesterday, the front office better consider equipping the club with fur-lined swimming suits. The defending champs have discovered some amazing ways to lose games this season, but when the rains come they are unbeatable. Back in May they beat the Phillies 3-0 in six innings in Philadelphia when rain brought a halt. Then in June they skidded to a 7-6 victory at Milwaukee in five innings, scoring five runs in the fifth. Last week, they repeated over the Braves, 2-1 in five rain-soaked innings just before Hurricane Edna hit Fltibus. Yesterday, the bad weather brought a 10-4 triumph over the Cincinnati Redlegs with the Reds screaming that both clubs should have stood in bed. At the Polo Grounds, some 15 air miles from Ebbets Field, the first-place New York Giants and the third-place Milwaukee Braves never left the clubhouse. The temperatures hovered in the 50s and water stood in puddles over the covered infield. In both cases the decision to play or not was in the hands of the umpires. They came close to calling time at Brooklyn with the score tied at 2-2 after four innings. But after a brief huddle the umpires sent the players back on the field and they sloshed to a finish. Only two other games were played. The St. Louis Cardinals defeated Philadelphia 3-1 and Baltimore moved out of the American League cellar with a 2-1 squeaker over Boston. The Dodgers moved within three games of the Giants and have nine to play. The Giants have 11 left including a doubleheader today against the Braves who trail by 5 1/2 lengths. Gil Hodges put the Dodgers on Sicily is the largest Mediterranean island with Sardinia and Cyprus next.

Tornadoes Prep For Vanceboro

AYDEN—Coach Stewart Tripp led the Ayden High Tornadoes through a light scrimmage yesterday, preparing for the Vanceboro game there Friday at 2 p.m. Tripp reported his squad in good physical condition, having sustained no injuries in the 0-0 deadlock with Benvenue High last Monday night. Work on offense came in for much attention in the workout. The first backfield unit had W. O. Jolly, quarterback; R. L. Collins and Marshall Tripp, halfbacks; and Milton Worthington, fullback. The number one line which did an outstanding job bottling up the Benvenue team in the season opener included Elwood Stokes and Doug Worthington, ends; Robert Harris and Sidhey Brit, tackles; Sonny Smith and Lathan Dennis, guards,

 With the school season at hand, another phase of photography in the annual cycle unfolds as most of us say goodbye to the summer beaches and pack away the swim duds and vacation luggage. But whatever you do, don't pack the camera away or make it less accessible.

There are plenty of picture opportunities as we continue to enjoy outdoor picnics and short excursions. Very shortly, Mother Nature will stage her annual colorful foliage display that seems to have been expressly designed for camera fans and color film manufacturers.

"SCHOOL DAYS" can be a home production, directed by mother, starring Sonny Boy and assisted by a supporting cast.

What's new? The first of the picture annuals makes an early bow with the "1955 Photography Annual," a selection of 250 unusual pictures by Bruce Downes and associate editors of Photography magazine. These are pictures to look at as text has been kept to a minimum. As in previous editions, a section at the rear provides pertinent technical information alongside a thumbnail reproduction of each photo.

The pictures here are predominantly of people, candidly caught in their various decisive moments. You may wonder why some are included because when your pictures came up blurred or with excessive grain you considered them spoiled. However, there are times when a blur can effectively convey motion or create a pleasing pictorial design. It's a matter of keen perception, proper cropping and good printing.

There's no mystery about shooting flash indoors either. Many flash units snap into place and bulbs pop out at lever tip without burning the fingers. Each flashbulb carton has pertinent information for shooting according to the film you are using. Or hubby can preset all the controls so that mother shoots at a specific distance... say 10 feet. By shooting first and asking questions later, when the results are back, the facts about focus, lens openings and shooting speed might make more sense.

Picture situations vary with each age group and each child reacts as an individual. Some are eager and some reluctant; some drag toys, flowers or books and some can't drag themselves; some sparkle in their Sunday best and others are a bit droopy—but each is worth a picture.

Some school first have a place in the family album—from the youngster's first day in school to the teen-ager's packing for college. A whole series of rear views can make an interesting picture story; hands or carrying her books, stopping, meeting a classmate, holding with books on shoulder (or draping to pet a dog, going through the school gate and up the school steps.

All these classic situations may sound corny, but when it's your child and the time is now, they'll be brand new pictures and of general interest.

That's your homework assignment. Stick to your subject and you can't fail. Class dismissed.

Note Of Luxury Living For Norway's Students

EDITOR'S NOTE: An American coed's impressions of Europe are being written for the Associated Press by Barbara English, daughter of Dean Earl English, of the Missouri University School of Journalism. Following is the third of her dispatches, sent during a student tour.

By BARBARA ENGLISH (Written exclusively for AP Newsfeatures)

OSLO, Norway — Our American colleges have activities they are proud of, but they would have to go a long way to beat the tremendous scope of the Norwegian Student Assn. in Oslo.

This organization has the usual social events, both formal and informal, and every week sponsors special guest speakers with open debates afterward.

One of its unique functions, however, is managing the Studentbyen. It is the hotel in which I am staying and is the largest in Oslo.

Talking to Kare Doehlen, former president of the National Union of Norwegian Students, I found that the hotel is a dormitory for students during the winter and is used as a hotel only during the summer months.

The proceeds make it necessary for the students to pay only 75 kroner (about $15) a month for a room with electricity, heating, bath, private hall and telephone. Touring the building I saw that all the rooms contained modern furnishings and some even had private balconies. The rooms are organized in apartment groups. Off the hallway entrance of each apartment are four private rooms, a bath and a kitchen.

The Studentbyen is about 15 minutes from the city by tram, so the students still have the advantages of the city for entertainment during their weekends.

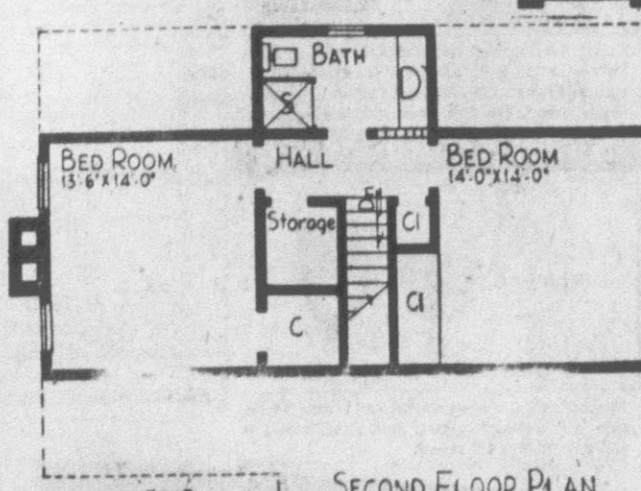

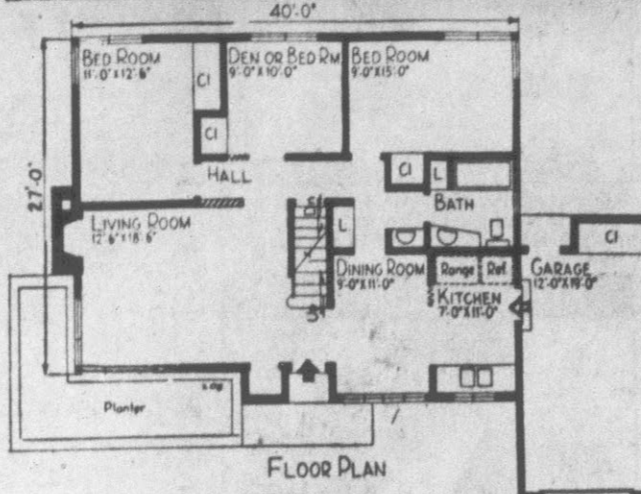

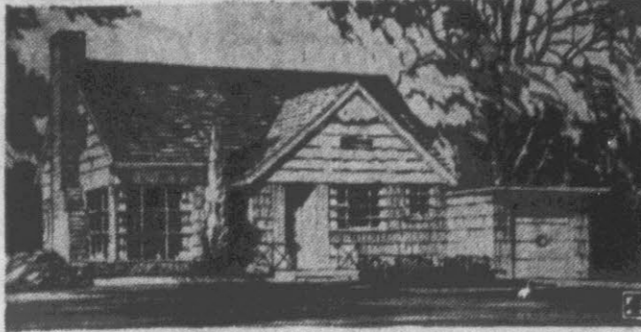

An unusual feature of the hotel-of the greatest and finest art dormitory is the possession of one collection of Edward Munch—his etchings, drawings and paintings. These works are in every student room in the hotel and are valued at some 3,000,000 kroner ($600,000). The collection is not insured against theft or damage because the donor felt money would be worthless if the paintings were gone.

Students also have charge of four other hotels and seven restaurants.

It's the big Success today

It's the Beautiful Buy right now

It's the 'High Resale' car for years from now

No Wonder - Buick Sales are Soaring!

You can read it in the sales figures—Buick's the car that's climbing to a phenomenal public preference. For Buick today is outselling all other cars in America—regardless of price class—except two of the so-called "low-price three." And every month strengthens Buick's new leadership position. It's the "hot" car for style, for power, for performance—and, most emphatically, for value.

Any way you look at it, Buick's the buy of the year, hands down. For Buick prices start close to the lowest—just a few dollars above those of the "low-price three." But those few more dollars you pay for a Buick buy you a lot more power, room, comfort, style, ride steadiness. And get this: with our tremendous sales volume right now, we can offer you a really top allowance on your present car. That's the added bonus you get from our big volume.

With Buick's year-ahead beauty today, you'll be driving a car that's right up front in the style parade of tomorrow. And when you're ready to resell your Buick, it will still be fresh and new-looking, with the modern features the others will adopt in the coming years. And that means you're bound to get a higher resale price when you do trade it in. Drop in and see this beautiful buy right now.

ECC Orchestra Is Organized

With 55 members present, the East Carolina Orchestra held its first rehearsal for the 1954-1955 term Tuesday night of this week in the Wright auditorium on the East Carolina College campus.

The orchestra is composed of students and faculty members at East Carolina College and of musicians from various towns in the eastern section of the state. Fifteen new members and forty members who played with the orchestra last year were present Tuesday for the organizational meeting.

Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the orchestra and of the East Carolina department of music, stated that the number and musicianship of members this fall and the enthusiasm shown at the initial meeting promise a year of fine accomplishment for the orchestra.

Charles Starnes of Wilmington, student of music at East Carolina, was chosen Tuesday as president of the orchestra. Other officers, also students at the college, are Ralph Chason of Rocky Mount, vice president; Alice White of Greensboro, secretary-treasurer; and Charles Lovelace of New Bern, manager.

The first public program by the orchestra is scheduled for Sunday, November 1. Dr. Cuthbert has announced that this concert will include Mozart's Concerto in E flat for Two Pianos and Orchestra, with Jack Williford of Farmville and Janet Watson of Greenville, East Carolina music majors, as duopianists.

Pauline Catel of Ste-Foy-les-Lyon, France, has arrived at East Carolina College, where during the 1954-1955 term she will be a student in various departments of instruction and a teaching fellow in the department of foreign languages. Miss Catel comes to East Carolina through arrangements with the Institute of International Education in New York. For the past several years this organization has made plans for one foreign student to enter East Carolina annually and to study on a scholarship provided by the college. Miss Catel is a graduate of the Cours Belmont, a private school in Lyon, where she studied for seven years. Later at the University of Lyon she specialized in the study of English language and literature and was graduated as a "Licenciee es-Lettres." During 1950-51 she taught in England at Wash-on-Dearne Grammar School in Wath, Yorkshire.
