Gayle Clapp Wins Student Election

Gayle Clapp became the new secretary of the Greenville High School Student Council association when she defeated Sally Beard in a close election Monday.

Miss Clapp won by a margin of 88 votes.

She succeeds Nelson Blount, who vacated the position when she enrolled in school at St. Mary's this year.

Managing Miss Clapp's campaign was Wayne Bishop, high school senior. Sylvia Satterthwaite, junior, served as campaign manager for Miss Beard.

Deadline for handing in petitions was September 17. Campaign speeches were heard last Friday.

To qualify for the position of SCA secretary, the candidate must be a member of the junior class with a scholastic average of a three.

Approximately 60 per cent of the high school students voted in the election.

Firemen's Wives To Sponsor Cake Sale

BETHEL—On Tuesday night at 8:00 o'clock nine members of the newly organized Firemen's Wives met with Mrs. J. R. Bunting.

The president, Mrs. Horace Tetterton, called the meeting to order after which the secretary, Mrs. Robert Weeks, called the roll. The minutes of the last meeting were read and stood approved.

Plans for a cake sale were made, which is to be Saturday, October 2, at the Bethel Public Library. All members of this community are urged to support the sale as the profit will be used for a building fund for the volunteer firemen to be erected on the new park later.

The next meeting will be on October 12 with Mrs. Tetterton. The hostess served chicken salad sandwiches, potato chips, pimento cheese ribbon sandwiches, brownies, lady fingers, olives and pickles to Mesdames Tetterton, Weeks, James, Crandell, Joe Andrews, Tom Bailey, Robert Whitehurst, Ernest Alexander, H. M. Andrews and J. R. Bunting.

F.D.R. FAMILY

Mr. John A. Stator was the week end guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. Herbert Waldrop, at his summer cottage at Shady Banks.

Mr. and Mrs. David T. Rouse, Jr. left on Tuesday night to attend the world series in New York.

Mrs. James Alton Manning is out again after being confined to her home with sickness last week.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Buck Roebuck and infant, Larry, for the week end were Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Roebuck, Sr. and daughter, Carolyn of Greenville, and one night their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Briley of Greenville.

Friends of Mrs. Bryant Tripp will be sorry to hear about the death of her father, Thomas William Watkins, of Cedar Grove.

Mrs. Tommy Adams Hostess To Timothy HD Club On Monday

Mrs. Tommy Adams was hostess at a meeting of the Timothy Home Demonstration Club Monday when Mrs. Lillie Little, assistant home agent, gave the monthly demonstration on Smooth Surface Floor covering.

The club women were reminded to participate in the County Chorus this year.

Plans for the group's county fair exhibit and concession stand were discussed, and a report was given on the recent County Council meeting.

Mrs. Rosa Smith gave four book reports; Mrs. Mack Ross gave reports on poultry and gardening; and Mrs. W. R. Wall, club president, reported on health and safety.

Mrs. J. G. Irving was a visitor at the club meeting.

Methodist Men Of Bethel Hold Supper Meeting On Monday

BETHEL—Forty-eight members of the Methodist Men's Club attended a supper meeting in Fellowship Hall of Bethel Methodist Church Monday night.

Rev. Henry B. Lewis was the speaker. President J. C. Wynne presided. Clifton Everett presented the speaker, Ronald Riddick conducted a devotional.

Routine business and religious matters were discussed and a period of fellowship followed.

It was the sentiment of the meeting that hereafter each member should feel a personal responsibility for helping to increase church attendance on Sundays and Wednesdays.

Mary Lambeth Circle of the Women's Society of Christian Service served supper.

McCarran Rites Set On Saturday

RENO (AP)—Arrangements were completed today for Catholic burial rites Saturday for Sen. Pat McCarran, 78 (D-NeV) who died Tuesday night.

A congressional delegation will attend the funeral. The rosary was scheduled for 8 p.m. tomorrow in St. Thomas Aquinas cathedral here, with the body to lie in state afterward.

Pontifical mass will be celebrated at the cathedral at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. An invocation with remarks from senators and benediction by Bishop R. J. Dwyer of the Reno diocese, was to be held at 1 p.m. in the state building.

McCarran, a veteran of 22 years in the Senate, will be buried Saturday afternoon in the family plot here.

State Democratic chairman Keith Lee challenged Republican Gov. Charles Russell's authority to appoint a successor to complete McCarran's term, which would have expired Jan. 1, 1937.

Lee contends Nevada law provides that an election be held in November. Russell asked the state attorney general for a ruling.

Church Honors Mrs. Johnston

On Sunday morning, September 28th, the First Presbyterian Church dedicated the two beautiful Kindergarten class rooms of the New Educational Building as a memorial to Mrs. P. M. Johnston who for fifty years was a teacher in the Sunday School. Rev. Leonard W. Topping, minister, read a tribute to Mrs. Johnston. A water fountain, the gift of friends, was also dedicated as a memorial to Mrs. Johnston. Beautiful markers indicate the memorials.

The Session installed Miss Olene Pleasants as the new Director of Christian Education. The pastor addressed the questions of installation to Miss Pleasants and the congregation and led in the prayer. Each member of the session welcomed Miss Pleasants to her office. Miss Pleasants, who received her training at Flora MacDonald College, Peace Junior College and the Assembly's Training School, Richmond, Virginia, began her duties with the church on June 1st, and is making her home at 825 Evans Street.

The roll was called with 22 members being present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the treasurer's report for the year was given.

All old business for the year was completed and the slate of officers for the new year was announced as follows: president, Mrs. M. W. Maxwell; 1st vice president, Mrs. Frances Amora; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Paul Bachelor; secretary, Mrs. Annie Carter; asst. secretary, Mrs. N. L. Garrison; treasurer, Mrs. James Piver; asst. treasurer, Mrs. G. H. Sturum.

It was voted upon motion made and seconded that the slate of officers be accepted.

The new president made an announcement of the plans for the new year and she invited the class to her home for the October meeting.

A delightful social period followed, during which refreshments of chicken salad with crackers and coffee was served.

Duchess Of Windsor Tells Of First Home

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

The Duchess of Windsor has her decorating problems, even as any housewife, she reveals in her first published article, which will appear in two issues in the October and November issues of Woman's Home Companion.

Her subject is the remodeling and decorating of the "first real home" she and the Duke have owned since their marriage—a quaint, old stone mill about a quarter's drive from Paris. Describing step by step the transformation of the mill into a home, the Duchess writes:

"After living in rented houses and with other people's things for so long, we've gathered together in this enchanted spot all our most cherished possessions. Like the garden we've planted here, we've put down roots.

"This is the first home the Duke and I have owned since we were married—in fact it is the only one—except for our house in Paris, which is leased. What endears it to me is not only that it is really ours, but that it is so different from any house we have lived in before. And because it is small and intimate and informal, I have been able to use the things we love most and have owned for years."

One of the problems faced by the Duchess was making room for all the priceless collections and furnishings owned by the man who once was King of England, and in blending harmoniously the many styles of furniture accumulated by both the Duke and Duchess from their many previous homes. She says:

"We've used a great deal of the furniture that came from Fort Belvedere, the Duke's home when he was Prince of Wales and King. We also have here some of the things we had in Nassau and the furniture we had made for the house we rented at La Crique—our first home after we were married. I suppose because we haven't had a house of our own for so long, the Duke and I like to surround ourselves with familiar things. Each small object reminds us of some event in our lives, some shared experience, some old friend or member of our families. We both are terrific collectors by nature and collections need a place to stay. Of course you have to add, too, my passion for fixing up and decorating houses.

"That began years ago when I was a navy wife. Wherever I lived, I soon learned that there were certain tricks which would turn an impersonal or discouraging room into something homelike and personal. And this experience has stood me in good stead since. I've learned that the things you love and that mean most to you are the important furnishings of a house."

The royal couple discovered their dream house two years ago, driving down a winding road from Paris. The old mill, consisting of four buildings, had been the residence of the painter Drian, who had done a portrait of the Duchess before the war. The Duke had been talking of buying "a little place in the country" while the Duchess was holding out for a house in Paris. But she lost her heart to the old stone mill. The remodeling presented many problems, as she explains:

"Stone walls two feet thick and hand-hewn beams a foot square aren't easy to alter. We wanted to make one large hall out of the entry and sitting-room on the first floor of the mill building. . . . Of course, plumbing is a problem in any old house and we had worked over and over our plans to fit into the tiny space the bathrooms we needed."

After getting a builder started on the major architectural changes, the Duchess left for New York, and a shopping spree. She writes:

"I adore to shop. All my friends know I'd rather shop than eat. I could hardly wait to get to New York to look for wallpapers and fabrics for the mill."

In its present finished state, the house is a charming blend of the old and the new, with every room filled with treasures from the romantic past of the famous couple. The Duchess has gone in for a great deal of color throughout the house, but her favorite room appears to be her bedroom, which she describes thus:

"My bedroom is long and narrow with sloping beams, a little like a tent—so I decided to emphasize this by draping the old beams with striped antique taffeta. The colors in the curtains are repeated in the harlequin bedcover—a present from my husband on my last birthday. Its pieces are put together by hand like a patchwork quilt—I had decided it would be too expensive but the Duke ordered it for me anyway as a surprise."

Explaining her theory of decoration, the Duchess says:

"I think every house should have a theme in decoration—even if the theme is as simple as the one I chose for the mill—fruit and flowers. Then the decoration becomes something like a musical composition, each room carries the theme but with variations of mood and pace."

No Resemblance To Zoo Keepers
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Bronze busts of Ibongo and Ngagi the late and well known gorillas of the San Diego Zoo, have been moved to prominent positions inside the zoo entrance.

So prominent, says Dr. Charles Schroeder, that he had two visitors come up to him the other day. Pointing to the busts one of the guests asked, "Are they the men who started the zoo?"

DRAWING ROOM . . . Here the Duke and Duchess of Windsor chat with their friend, Margaret Biddle, who helped advise them on the decorating and remodeling of their "first real home," near Paris. The sofa group is dominated by the famous picture Sir Alfred Munnings painted of the Duke on horseback when he was Prince of Wales. The coffee table, given the couple in Nassau, has a map of the Bahamas in black and antique bronze.

DUCHESS BEDROOM . . . The far window behind the dressing table opens over the millstream, of which the Duchess says: "What I love best about this room is the peaceful splashing of the waterfall under the window." She has used clear pastel colors in the striped antique taffeta draperies over the old beams, and in the harlequin bedspread. The little Victorian rocker in the foreground belonged to the Duchess' American grandmother.

DUKE'S DRESSING ROOM . . . Writes the Duchess: "One of our planning problems was the Duke's dressing room and bath just across the landing from my room. We solved it by building fixtures into closets and cabinets and setting a stall shower in one corner."

The Project Should Teach Us Something

Eastern Carolina will not now get its four-city, four-county airport; but its people should have learned several lessons during the past two years in which intensive efforts have been made to make the facility a reality.

We would classify the following as among the lessons which should have been gained from the experience which had its bitter ending this week:

1. There are a number of cities and counties in this area which can cooperate in a common project that is for the betterment of the area as a whole.
2. There are still petty politicians in various Eastern Carolina communities who by their opposition which stems either from lack of foresight and understanding or from selfish motives, can kill a project which would be of untold value to the area. They deprive not only their own people of the benefits of such a program, but also people of other communities when the project is on a cooperative basis.
3. Civil Aeronautics officials have clearly indicated by their ready approval of federal funds for the joint airport that in this area, the joint airport rather than fights between individual communities for air service is going to be the answer to air transportation for this area.

The airport project had to be abandoned because of the failure of Wilson and Nash Counties, in the final analysis the city of Wilson, to cooperate in the effort to which they officially committed themselves. Even so, the members of the Authority - particularly President Ray Bandy of Rocky Mount, vice-president W. W. Speight who represented Pitt County, and secretary-treasurer W. H. Watson who represented Greenville on the Authority - deserve the sincere commendation of the people of this area for the efforts they put forth in behalf of the project.

The information and experience which can be gained from the project will prove of great value in the future if some new alignment of local government units can

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
REAL BEAUTY

Two years ago a large university erected a science laboratory. It was a modern, functional building, plain and unornamented. Some of the university authorities, accustomed to more traditional architecture, demanded that at least the main entrance have some decorations. At their insistence, the architect designed two ornamental columns made of clusters of chromium plated rods, with a light on top, to stand outside the front door.

The columns did not support anything except the lights, which were unnecessary, since the doorway already had concealed lights which illuminated the steps and entrance. But they satisfied some people for a little while.

First a few students discovered what splendid targets the two exposed lights on the columns were. After the university had replaced the globes seven or eight times, the lights were removed altogether. Then came the snow and rain of the winter. The plating on rods did not live up to expectations, and soon they were streaked and pitted with rust. Instead of ornaments, they were eyesores.

At last enough people came to their senses, and the rusty ornaments were removed, leaving the building in its original simplicity. They had learned this truth (at considerable expense): that simple usefulness is always more truly beautiful than useless affectation—a truth not only about buildings, but also about life.

Rebellion Within The G O P

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Even though their open rebellion may give President Eisenhower a Democratic Congress to contend with for the next few years, Conservative Republicans are determined to defeat every New Dealish and liberal candidate on their Party's ticket in November.

They would prefer to rebuke Ike and lose control of Capitol Hill, if it will re-establish their control of the GOP. They want an immediate showdown on the future direction of policies of the national Administration and organization.

UNDERGROUND ANTI-IKE LEADERS — The anti-Eisenhower faction is well organized and heavily financed. It has underground leaders in almost every section of the country. Since it consists chiefly of politicians who worked for Senator Robert A. Taft's nomination in 1952, and of individuals who have helped to finance Senator "Joe" McCarthy's anti-Red campaign, they are professionals at the game, not amateurs.

It is not only Eisenhower's advocacy of so many Roosevelt-Truman reforms which they resent. In accord with the Taft-McCarthy philosophy, they oppose the Administration's general foreign policy, especially the assumption of so many responsibilities overseas and the costs which our new world leadership imposes upon American taxpayers.

EXAMPLE OF TACTICS—Republicans' opposition to the New Jersey bosses' nomination of Clifford P. Case for U. S. Senator represents the most spectacular example of their tactics.

Former Representative Case voted for many New Deal measures, and showed complete independence of the leadership on Capitol Hill. Many organization leaders have announced that they will not support him. The plan seems to be to write in the name of former Representative Fred A. Hartley, Jr., who joined with Taft to write the Taft-Hartley Act.

DEFECTION IN NEW JERSEY—In view of New Jersey's recent Democratic tendencies—it elected a be arranged to seek a similar joint airport.

While it would not be practical at the present to launch a new joint airport project, we believe the day will come in the not too distant future when the citizenry of this section of the state will realize fully the asset which air service would afford the area. When that day arrives, a new joint airport project will be undertaken and carried through to completion.

The Reflector hopes Greenville and Pitt County will be a part of the new organization when that day comes.

A Good Investment Of City Funds

There will be criticism of the Greenville City Council from some sources for their decision to convert the old swimming pool property into a parking lot.

For our part, however, The Reflector feels it is much wiser for the abandoned swimming pool to be utilized as a parking lot than to have it remain a useless eyesore in the business section of the city as it has since 1950.

City officials have estimated the cost of filling the swimming pool with dirt and converting it into a paved parking lot to accommodate approximately 40 automobiles will not exceed $2,500. At that price, the new parking lot will indeed be a bargain for the city. As parking lots go, it will be relatively small; but the lot will accommodate as many automobiles as can now park on both sides of the street for one-and-one-half blocks in the business district. Were there a possibility the swimming pool might be reopened for recreational use, it might be shortsighted for the City Council to cover the pool and convert the area into a parking lot. Events in the past four years, however, have pointed clearly to the fact the area would never again be utilized for the swimming. The pool was declared unsafe when it was closed in 1950. Its location is certainly undesirable for a swimming pool. The property could be left unkept and useless for another four or five years in the vain hope that the pool might be reopened; but that would be foolish.

As a parking lot, the area will relieve at least a portion of the traffic and parking pressure in the business district of the city. It will serve a much more constructive purpose than it has in recent years. And at the price which officials say the conversion can be made, it will be a good investment of city funds.

Selected Shorts

AMBRIDGE, PA. DAILY CITIZEN: "Frequently the remark is made that 'Communism is bad, it is what the Russians have done with it that is bad.' People who make such statements are naive. They have not read the works of the men who created the Communist movement. Whatever merit it may have had as a utopian scheme is outweighed by the fact that it offers men something for nothing and revolves around the proposition that the end justifies the means."

Democratic Governor last year—this defection may cost the Republicans a seat from this normally GOP state. And Eisenhower cannot afford to lose many Senatorial contests, if he is to retain control of the Senate.

But the Case revolt, although the most publicized, is not the only seat of rebellion. The regulars and reactionaries may stay away from the polls in New York, where Senator Irving McNeil Ives has been nominated as the Republican candidate for Governor. Governor Thomas E. Dewey is anathema to the Party rebels, and Ives is his protoge.

There is talk of a similar boycott of Republican nominees in several other states, such as Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Minnesota, Connecticut, to mention only a few. On the other hand, to sharpen the lesson, the Conservatives will turn out the guard for candidates sympathetic to their viewpoint, like Joseph Meek, who opposes Senator Paul H. Douglas in Illinois.

These Old Turks note that they do not have to vote for Democrats even more obnoxious to them than the Case type of Republican. They will simply play golf or go fishing on election day. It will be a sitdown strike.

THE MAIN TARGET—In addition to Dewey, other Eastern advisers and Ike himself, the principal cause and target of this Intra-Party division is Sherman Adams, former Governor of New Hampshire, the White House chief of staff and head of the anti-McCarthy faction in the Executive Branch.

Adams masterminded the original strategy for publicizing McCarthy's efforts to obtain favors for Private G. David Schine, which has turned out to be such a Republican handicap. He has insisted on a showdown vote on McCarthy before the election, although Senate leaders' rejection of the idea showed how unpopular it was.

In the opinion of the Old Turks, Adams is motivated by his personal and political hatred of Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, a McCarthy man, a Party Conservative and one of the most influential men in Congress.

Random Thoughts On Paper

While driving down East Fifth Street yesterday I saw the City Council in session on the sidewalk. Besides the Council, those present were Street Superintendent C. K. Beatty, City Manager Jim Hughes, Managing Editor Whichard of the Reflector and Greenville high school Band Director Jim Rogers. Jim must have been en route to the band room and dropped in on the meeting. Possibly he was wondering what was going to become of his band room.

As last night's Reflector reported, the Council decided to start filling in the old swimming pool to be used as a parking lot. It would be great if the council could have more sidewalk meetings with the same results. This morning I noticed that several loads of dirt have already been dumped into the path that cars some day take into the pool.

FEAR OF FAILURE ROAD TO SUCCESS

(Macon News)
If you're not already a top executive and you want to be, or you want your son to be, you'll be interested in the results of a study made of 33 high-ranking businessmen in Chicago. They tend to overturn some cherished notions.

The old idea that business leaders generally rise from humble beginnings isn't borne out by a check of these executives' backgrounds. The psychologist who interviewed the men found many had solid, upper middle-class upbringing, with happy family relations.

The study, by Dr. Robert M. Wald, also indicated that for the most part it's better to be raised with no baby sitter, this method works wonders. After the fourth night, bring her home a chocolate nut sundae. Note to Burney Warren and John Biggs: If you tell how many I pick up to get, revealing my efforts to get out of the dog house, you and I are through.

Yesterday it was difficult to go into a business establishment that didn't have the series tuned in on TV. How do I know? I left the TV set at our firm long enough to visit two others. Just think, Dusty Rhodes is too old for the regular line up.

Believe it or not: In our neighborhood we planned a wicker roast. Ten couples and 17 children will attend. The bill for the provisions came to $11. Conclusion: Twenty adults were no doubt robbing their refrigerators by 9:00 in the evening.

Anti-dog house technique: After attending meetings for four nights in a row, leaving the wife alone in a big city than on the farm or in a small town, if you seek the top. Exceptions, of course.

As for the personality traits and habits, a number of things stood out: Almost without exception, these successful men were completely wrapped up in their jobs and their organizations. They got most pleasure from work.

They were highly skilled in getting along with other people, using tact and showing consideration and poise in their dealings.

The 33 possessed extraordinary intelligence, particularly the knack of analyzing facts. On the whole they surpassed 96 per cent of the population in intelligence. The testers were surprised at this towering superiority. Apparently their chief weakness was that in self-confidence and emotional stability they were merely average. This might seem hard to believe for men who had achieved success and were governed by the search for it. But the psychologist observed that executive responsibility by its nature stirs anxiety in men.

The findings showed further that many were already driven to success by the fear of failure. They kept on pressing upward because they dared not stop. Obviously, not too many of us can aspire to real eminence in the business world. We haven't enough of the required ingredients, though some of us may cover certain shortcomings by a tremendous effort of will.

Moral Rearmament Introduced At A Bankers' Meeting

By LYNN NISBET

RESPONSIBILITY — At first thought a young banker's conference would seem an inappropriate forum at which to expound the theory of moral rearmament and the necessity for every individual to assume personal responsibility for the improvement of worldwide conditions.

Charles B. Deane, congressman for North Carolina's eighth district, made the occasion appear highly appropriate when he spoke to the young bankers at Raleigh at the closing session of their 1954 conference. Deane has just returned from Europe where he visited a number of political and military establishments and also attended a moral rearmament conference in Switzerland. He is going later this week to Saginaw, Michigan, for another world conference on the same subject. Deane is no sense a fanatic. He never loses sight of the economic and political situation, but unlike some other politicians he seeks definite relationship between these conditions and individual sense of moral responsibility.

He laid down as the major premise of his remarks the fact that "I can't expect my community, my nation or the world to change for the better, unless I myself change."

Then he suggested three basic principles for individual and communal development. (1) To admit error and be sorry when wrong. (2) Sacrifice individual selfishness for the needs of the community. (3) Assume personal responsibility for correcting evils.

He is convinced of the necessity for guns as weapons of defense and to enforce laws against the selfish for the protection of the weak, but he firmly believes that ideas are more potent than bombs. In the war of ideas America and the West are on the defensive because the Communists have more diligently promulgated their ideology.

INSIDIOUS — The attack has been insidious, but he is certain that the Communists are seeking out the "soft spots" all over the world where they can best capitalize on individual and mass dissatisfaction. He quoted as worthy of adoption by democratic and Christian people one of the dictums of Karl Marx: "The philosophers have explained the world; it is our business to change it." Marxian propaganda has been so successful that now more than 800 million people, one third of the population of the globe, are dominated by Communist influences.

Systems of politics and theology do not change human selfishness, he said, but individual attitudes change systems. You cannot shoot down an idea or legislate the atom bomb out of existence. The way to combat the global revolution engineered by the Marxians is to set up a counter revolution based in Christian morals.

Deane suggested that the young bankers through their positions of economic leadership could do much to further this counter revolution without ever losing prestige in their field.

It quite obviously was not the kind of talk the bankers had expected, but their response indicated they were pleased with it. Earlier in the conference they had heard more technical talks by Everett D. Reese, president of the American Bankers Association, Special Agent Dismore of the Charlotte FBI office, and others. The bankers liked one thing the FBI said. He warned them not to get themselves shot in any of these bank hold-ups. "In the first place," he said, "Your widow will not like it. And besides, the FBI needs witnesses."

The first young bankers conference sponsored by the N.C. Bankers Association was held last year. This year's affair was much better, and the conference has been established as a permanent annual event.

STRAW — One straw in the wind indicating direction pleasing to those responsible for balancing the North Carolina budget is found in a recent report of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Answers to a questionnaire showed 76 per cent of the merchants queried expect satisfactory business for the rest of this year, 23 per cent look for "excellent" business. Most of the retailers expect Christmas trade to be about like last year, a few look for it to be better.

Another straw is the planned step-up of selling efforts, including more extensive use of newspaper advertising. That leads to predictions of larger sales—consequently more sales tax to go into the State general fund account.

TRAVEL — Some of the architects of the 1955-57 state budget are known to be looking at the travel expense item as one place where increase can be avoided, if no actual reduction is possible. The particular object of attention is out of state and convention travel.

Admittedly not much can be done to reduce the overall cost of strictly business travel by auditors, inspectors, attorneys and

Very Much To Read

By ELMER ROESSNER
The other day Howard P. Abrams, a trade association executive, suggested department stores appoint a vice-president in charge of winter selling to rev up sales in January and February.

Now comes Robert Kaye, a publisher, who suggests that every large corporation appoint a vice-president in charge of reading matter.

He has a point. The amount of reading matter that rains in on the average executive is tremendous. On top is a vast volume of words and pictures on radio and television, and endless material on movies, stage shows and lectures that, if he had time, might be useful to him at work.

There are, to start with, several thousand trade magazines, some of them only big enough to kill a snake, others large enough to brain a cow. The executive of a pin-polishing company need not, for instance, read the trade publications in the textile field, but ing, pin-cutting, pin-pointing, pinning, pin-cutting, pin-pointing, pin-perchandising and pin-spotting field are numerous.

After that, there are the magazines on office management, administrative affairs and general business news. Then come the brochures, catalogues, newsletters and other material produced by business enterprises.

An executive who reads every bit of published material that might be of value to him would be late for cocktails every day, Mr. Kaye says.

So he proposes an executive in charge of reading and related matters. This executive might have to work nights. Each morning every key man would get a list of things to absorb or, in larger corporations, clippings of the articles themselves. For one, many an article in Fortune; two, ads from Business Week, an item from the Wall Street Journal, a feature from the Coney Raisers Review and (we hope) this column would be suggested. Another might be called upon to read a clipping from Women's Wear and a few marked paragraphs from the Kiplinger Letter, and to catch the commercials on a TV show.

No executive would be distracted in his reading by comics or the brasserie ads. The saving in the time of many executives would amount to millions of dollars a week.

The boys' and men's wear industry is now a $5,855,000,000-a-year affair, measured in sales, according to the 1954 Men's Wear Fact Book, published by Men's Wear, 7 E. 12th St., New York 3. The annual publication shows how sales volume is distributed among various types of retail outlets and presents other facts useful in planning advertising in the field.

Viewpoints Of Great Detective

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Robert Fabian, Britain's most celebrated detective since Sherlock Holmes, feels it might be a good idea if American cops quit carrying guns.

"The display of firearms is to be deprecated," mildly observed the ex-detective superintendent of Scotland Yard. "It incites the 'A' fiend; it is not an equalizer-criminal to carry one, too. It is an antagonist."

In his 28-year service with "the Yard" Fabian solved a dozen murders, helped send 9 men to the gallows more than 800 to prison.

"I never carried a gun in my life," he said "although twice I had to take guns away from men who seemed to want to use them on me. The only weapon I ever needed was my hands."

An expert in ju-jitsu, Fabian began his career as an ordinary constable. He still feels the best way to cut down crime is to put more cops out on beats, swinging a night stick.

"But I don't go along with this gun carrying," he said. "And it's not because I'm soft either. I'm not vicious, but I do think the pendulum has swung too far the wrong way in our treatment of criminals."

"We pamper both young delinquents and hardened criminals too much."

Fabian believes Britain made a mistake in doing away with the cat of nine tails in 1948. He is convinced that 10 lashes on a criminal's back with "the cat," or 20 strokes with birch switches on his bare bottom teaches him an unforgettable lesson.

"The physical punishment is not as bad as the degradation," he said. "When you birch a criminal, you treat him like a naughty schoolboy. He never lives down the shame of it—not even with his own class."

Since retiring from Scotland Yard in 1949, Fabian has turned out two best-selling books on his experiences, "Fabian of the Yard," and "London After Dark." He also writes a weekly column on crime for a British newspaper chain and recently completed 39 half-hour TV films, based on his own cases.

Known as "an unorthodox detective," Fabian, now in his 50's rarely employed men's disguise himself. He knew thousands of British criminals by sight—and ed British criminals by sight—wanted them to know him by sight, too. Some he helped reform. Many became—after business hours—his friends.

"If they wanted a helping hand, I'd give it to them," he said. In 1949 after Fabian risked his life to disarm a bomb planted by Irish extremists, 50 of London's leading crooks struck off a medalion in his honor, and threw him a surprise party. Later he was summoned to Buckingham Palace and presented with the King's medal for gallantry—for the same feat.

Here are a few observations on crime by Britain's "detective of the century."

"I don't mind an honest-to-goodness crook myself. But there is too much glamorization of criminals. They do 't look glamorous in a cell."

"It has been my experience that most killers do have gray eyes. People with brown eyes are more warm attured."

"Crime really doesn't pay. A thief doesn't get very much for what he steals—only about one tenth of the wholesale value of the goods."

"Criminals who work alone are usually the most difficult to catch. It is generally easier to catch a murderer than a robber."

"In detective work patience and attention to detail are everything."

"The most common mistake of criminals is that they go to the well too often."

"I'm a great believer in women—as detectives, I mean. They are often better than men in solving the disguises of women criminals. It is hard for one woman to fool another woman."

"Women detectives are sometimes more easily discouraged than men, but they'll take more chances. And they're better at shadowing suspects than men."

"Against a woman criminal they are relentless."

On the other hand, it is argued that there is no real justification for three or four—sometimes half a dozen—persons from one department to attend the same convention, and especially if that convention is held outside the borders of North Carolina. By limiting out of state and convention travel, it is thought there might be saved enough to make up the increases necessary for required business trips.

Three Americans Now Held By Reds Closer To Freedom, If Alive

By JOHN M. WIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Hermann, Noel and Herta Field, central figures in a sensational Iron Curtain mystery may be nearer freedom than at any time in the last five years—if they are still alive.

Officials said today chances of winning their release from Communist Poland and Red Hungary have been greatly increased by facts about their disappearance supplied by a refugee Polish secret police official.

Jozef Swiatlo, who fled through the Iron Curtain 10 months ago was "surfaced" by the government Tuesday after having worked undercover with U.S. intelligence agencies since he fled to the West at Berlin. Officials said he had provided much useful information about the European satellites of Russia.

Most public attention, however, focused on the Field case when it became known that the stocky, black haired, 39-year-old Swiatlo had arrested Hermann Field when the Red trap was sprung on him at Warsaw airport in August 1949.

Swiatlo, who was deputy chief of Poland's supersecret Communist party security agency, also interviewed Noel and Herta Field in 1949 at Budapest, Hungary, for possible evidence on espionage or conspiratorial work on which the Communists alleged they had been engaged in the United States.

Armed with this first hand information since the two brothers and Noel's wife Herta disappeared, the State Department filed notes to Poland and Hungary demanding the "earliest possible" release of all three. Hermann was held in a Polish prison. Swiatlo reported. Noel and Herta are assumed to be in Hungary.

Mrs. Kate Field, Briton, said in London she is "terribly happy" to get word that her husband, Cleveland architect Hermann Field is presumably alive. She said the information from Swiatlo "makes me feel that awful long period of waiting may soon be over."

The essence of Swiatlo's story was that the three Fields had been arrested by Red police in connection with a big purge trial being prepared against former Hungarian Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk. Rajk, since executed, was accused of treason in conspiring with Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito against the Hungarian government—in effect, against Soviet domination of Hungary.

U.S. officials said that in the past when Communist governments have been presented with factual information in cases of this kind, they have often dropped deception and dealt with the problem realistically.

This has encouraged some hope here that the Fields will be released. Adding support to this hope is that since Stalin's death, Russia's new rulers have taken a number of steps to ease minor tensions with the West. Freedom for imprisoned Americans has not been so hard to obtain as formerly—if the facts for making a case could be determined.

Swiatlo's defection to the United States was announced Tuesday by Atty. Gen. Brownell. The State Department followed with notes demanding freedom for the Fields. Later Swiatlo talked through an interpreter to a news conference, making these points:

1. He considers that both Noel and Hermann Field were "Communist sympathizers" and that Noel "may have been" a party member.

2. Swiatlo himself fled to the West because he became convinced that the Polish Communist party was "devoted to the Soviet government and not to Poland." He said the great purge trials a few years ago in Eastern Europe were organized under Moscow supervision "and for the interests of Soviet imperialism."

3. There is "a great resistance movement" against Communist rule in Poland, and "there must be some central headquarters directing this movement."

4. The greatest resistance was shown by the peasants against collectivization of land. In one province peasants holding religious symbols, pictures and crosses, threw themselves under the wheels of tractors sent to tear down the fences marking individual farms.

5. Many people both in the Communist party and the Polish government itself do not support Communist rule of the land. "Everything possible should be done to encourage those people and give them opportunity to come over to the west," Swiatlo said.

6. The chances of an open revolt are small because "in Poland today the Red army is everywhere and Polish life is penetrated by security agencies."

The names of one or another of the Fields came up in the great Communist purge trials, but aside from that there was no word of them until Swiatlo defected.

Noel Field, a U.S. diplomat in 1926-36 and after that a League of Nations employe, went to Czechoslovakia and disappeared in May 1949. In August that year his wife went to Czechoslovakia and also vanished. The Czech government replied to American inquiries by saying that both had left for Hungary. The Hungarian and Russian governments told the United States they knew nothing about the two.

Hermann Field, seeking word of his brother flew from Prague to Warsaw in August 1949 and vanished.

Warrior Relives Indian War Days

ISLETA PUEBLO, N. M. (AP)—Pablo Apache keeps looking for his uniform and waiting for his pension check - for service as a scout in the Indian wars and the Philippine Insurrection. Sometimes late at night, frail Pablo rouses his battle scarred body for a vain search of the room where he rests - too old and too sick to take much interest in other things. He is an Apache Indian.

Mrs. Phillip Lucero, his daughter, says Pablo's life is dimming after more than 100 years. He doesn't know his exact age.

He used to tell of battles against leaders of his people who had revolted against the whites. "He used to say Victorio was a great warrior," Mrs. Lucero recalls. "Geronimo, on the other hand, was just a renegade outlaw."

"I believe he is entitled to an Army pension," says Mrs. Lucero, "but I don't know how to go about getting it. When he becomes restless in the night, sometimes I go in there and he tells me he is looking for his uniform. He seems to be living in the past."

A total attendance of 85 million - half the U.S. population - is estimated by the International Assn. of Fairs and Expositions for the 2,000-odd county, regional and state fairs held this year across the United States.

The average U.S. dairy cow last year gave about 2,000 quarts of milk.

More Than Flip Of Coin Needed

EMPORIA, Kan. (AP)—It took more than a flip of a coin to settle some ties in the primary election balloting for Democratic precinct committee posts in Lyon County. Write-in votes were made for several jobs for which no regular candidate had filed. In some instances tie votes resulted. It was discovered belatedly that three of the write-in winners after the coins were tossed were registered Republicans. The job of filling the vacancies was turned over to the county Democratic committee. The foundation for the modern paper industry was laid about the year 1800, when Europe's first straw pulp mill was established in London.

Weather Bureau Budget Slim, But Exciting New Developments Abound

By DON WHITEHEAD
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen, like everybody else, complain about the weather. And, like everybody else, they don't do much about it.

For, despite the fact hurricanes, violent storms and drought cost Americans hundreds of millions of dollars annually and take a heavy toll in lives the federal government—through Democratic and Republican administrations alike—has long treated the U.S. Weather Bureau as an official stepchild.

In keeping with what has almost become a Washington tradition the Weather Bureau today has available for weather research in 1955 only one-sixteenth as much as the eight million dollars which is paid for a single B52 jet bomber.

The $500,000 earmarked for research is squeezed out of the bureau's $24,750,000 budget, one of the more modest of all federal budgets.

The big money in weather research and operations is spent by the Air Force and the Navy with programs geared largely to military needs.

A top Weather Bureau official says the bureau doesn't even have access to all the "classified" weather secrets uncovered in military research.

This doesn't mean the Weather Bureau operates independently and without the benefit of the huge military weather network spread around the world. The Air Force, Navy and Weather Bureau work together on many projects and share most of the benefits of their collective effort.

But in money and personnel, the Weather Bureau is running second to the military. The Air Force has some 12,000 officers, noncoms and civilian personnel in its weather service and the Navy has another 3,000.

The Weather Bureau can number only about 3,800 plus a few parttime workers on the forecasting payroll.

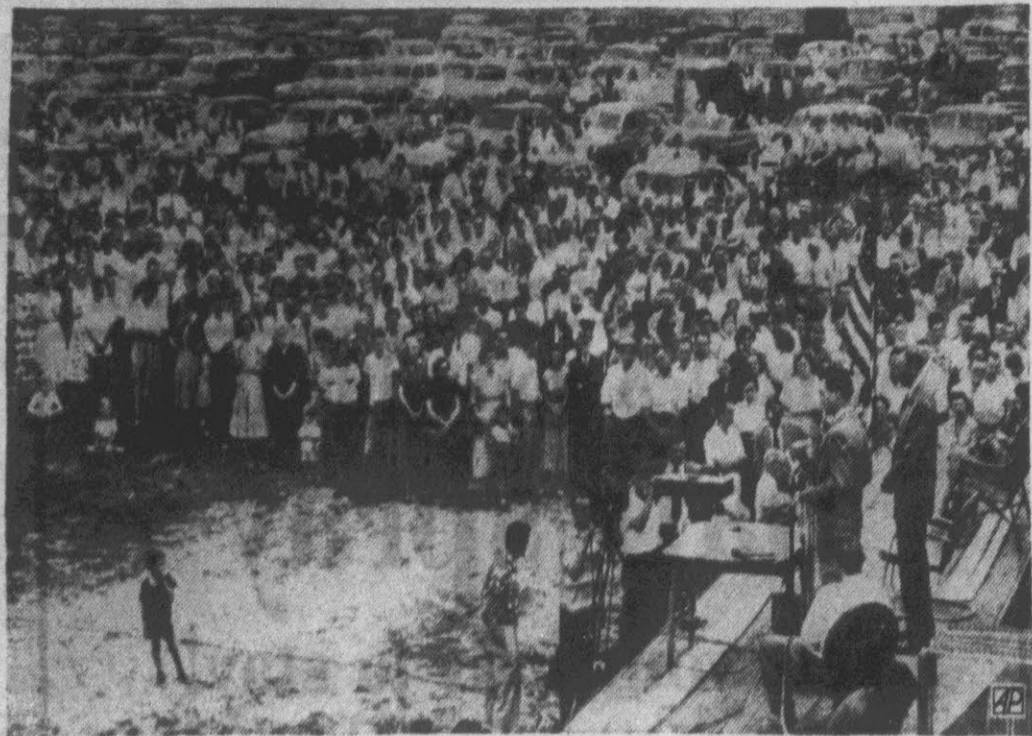

Today the Weather Bureau is correct 85 times out of 100 in its forecasts. But that 15 per cent is too great a margin of error. A wrong forecast or lack of warning can mean deaths and suffering.

The recent hurricanes "Carol" and "Edna" were painful reminders of man's struggle with the elements ever since the beginning of history.

A man who has spent 40 years trying to piece together the puzzles of weather is 64-year-old I. R. Tannehill, assistant chief of the U.S. Weather Bureau.

Tannehill is optimistic about the chances of predicting weather ac-

Suggests Keep Children From School

Bryant W. Bowles (at microphone), president of the National Association for the Advancement of White People, suggests to a crowd estimated at 3,000 that they keep their children home from school until the segregation problem in Milford, Del., is solved. curately for an entire season—and of outlining a weather pattern in advance for a span of years. But the experts admit that except for short-range weather predictions, they still are in the groping stage trying to match theory with fact.

Perhaps the most exciting developments in the Weather Bureau these days revolves around these projects:

1. A promising new method of pinpointing the paths of tornadoes which may mean the vicious twisters aren't likely to strike without warning as the, now do so often.

2. A new method of making more accurate weather forecasts by a mathematical formula fed through a huge computing machine.

3. Long-range weather forecasts. The new research into weather represents the sum of man's knowledge about the weather gleaned over the centuries.

The Greek philosopher Aristotle in 600 B.C. did the first meteorological writing that had any real authority.

Nobody improved much on Aristotle's thinking until the first thermometer and the first barometer were invented some 2,000 years later.

In the middle of the 19th Century a Cincinnati astronomer, Cleveland Abbe set up what is now generally recognized as the first organized weather service in America.

He got weather observations from the surrounding area by the infant telegraph network spreading westward—and then he figured it "probably" would rain or "probably" would be fair on the morrow. He became known as "old Probs."

At this time unpredictable storms were raising hob with shipping on the Great Lakes. In 1869 alone, more than 1,900 vessels were sunk by storms on the lakes. Shipping interests, farmers and others in the region set up a clamor for a federal storm warning service.

The next year Congress passed a joint resolution giving the storm warning responsibility to the Army Signal Corps. Gen. A. J. Myer, commanding the Signal Corps, figured his organization could make observation at Army posts and thus track the storms moving across the Midwest.

The general put a Milwaukee Increase A. Lapham, in charge of the storm warning service and this was the beginning of the Weather Bureau. But Lapham quit soon.

Myer then called in Cleveland Abbe to take over the job. Abbe moved into Washington and stayed on the job for 45 years before he retired.

It wasn't until radio came along that forecasts and storm warnings could be pushed out to the people.

The weather service remained in the Signal Corps until 1890, when it was moved into the Agriculture Department because of the importance of the forecasts to the farmers. In 1940 Congress put the Bureau into the Commerce Department, where it now is.

Radar and electronic gadgets developed in World War II opened up a vast new world of weather study and new knowledge on weather has piled up fast in the past 10 years.

But Tannehill said: "In a couple of hundred years they'll laugh at us and the methods we are now using will look like 30 cents."

Then he added: "but the atmosphere is not a simple thing, God knows."

Soviet Indicates Travel Interest

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Russia may be preparing to open its vast frontiers to foreign tourists.

Two vice president of Intourist will attend our ninth general assembly in London opening tomorrow, the International Union of Travel Organizations says. "This is the first time since the war that the Russians have attended one of our meetings. We believe their interest indicates they have decided to take a step they have hinted at for years."

Intourist is the Soviet Union's state-operated agency set up to handle foreign tourists. Before the war it maintained offices in many countries and yearly brought several thousand foreign travelers to Russia.

Many Americans visited Russia through Intourist before the war. The largest groups were school teachers. Intourist did not encourage trips by individuals to Russia, but many of them went anyway.

The Soviets once advertised a two-week bear-hunting holiday for about $280.

Last January the Communist Daily Worker said negotiations were under way to open Intourist's bureau here but so far nothing has happened.

Approve Call For German Rearing

SCARBROUGH, England (AP) — Britain's Labor party today approved Clement Atee's call for German rearmament—but by the tiny margin of only 248,000 votes out of 6,292,000 cast at the annual party conference here.

The vote backing continued efforts to enlist West German troops in western defense was 2,270,000-3,022,000.

The delegates by a similar slim majority then defeated a motion backed by letting Laborite leader Aneurin Bevan calling for an absolute ban on German rearmament. The vote on this resolution was 2,190,000-3,281,000.

The debate before the vote, the 71-year-old former prime minister had staked his prestige as party leader on a declaration that opposition to West German rearmament would be a "sterile and negative" course.

Burdensome Tax Structure Over Nation May Force Economies

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (AP)—Your federal income tax isn't due next year until April 15, but there are those other taxes — "hidden taxes," they're called — and you pay them every day.

Harold L. Henderson, director of the Minnesota Institute of Governmental Research, has told the National Tax Assn. conference that most state tax departments are raising revenue with taxes on motor oil, motor licenses, liquor, bread, banks, insurance and inheritances.

"And yet," Henderson said, "Most states are finding these sources don't furnish enough revenue. These are the states that have turned to the sales tax."

If you don't pay a sales tax then you're one of the 17 states yet to adopt this tax.

"In 1953 some 2½ billion dollars were derived from sales taxes by 31 states," Henderson said. State income taxes — 33 states have them—provided 17 per cent of the tax revenue of all states. The only thing that keeps state income taxes low Henderson pointed out is the competition the federal government gives them in this department.

Henderson said he believes the attitude of the states toward taxation of industry might be the difference of "job today, gone tomorrow."

"Many states definitely shun taxes that tend to hurt industry. New Jersey, Texas, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio are good examples," Henderson said, adding:

"Others keep their general tax burden well below those of neighboring states. Missouri, Kentucky, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Jersey, Illinois and Ohio are following this procedure.

"The exemption of personal property taxes on manufacturing inventories and equipment would be helpful . . . in retaining and inviting industry in states.

"New York, Pennsylvania, and Delaware exempt all tangible personal property. Exemptions of real property for industry for five or 10 years may be necessary in some states.

"Economists may question this practice but it must be remembered that many states must make some drastic overtures if they expect to obtain new industries."

Henderson said he believes the Southern states, the New England states and the central agricultural states should reconsider their tax systems in order to create a more favorable atmosphere for encouraging industrial development.

"States that appear to be in difficulty from excessive tax burdens are Virginia, New Mexico, Delaware, Louisiana, South Carolina, Oklahoma, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Minnesota and Colorado," Henderson said.

"Texas, New Jersey, Michigan, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Ohio, North Carolina, Delaware and Pennsylvania are all placing heavy burdens on industry by annual franchise taxes."

Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Tennessee are in an unfavorable position to compete for new industries, Henderson said, because they impose both annual franchise and corporate income taxes.

These states face trouble, Henderson said, because "well informed industrialists are not going to move into a state that is poorly governed no matter what the picture is."

Henderson summed up the state tax picture with these words: "There are apparently no new types of taxes on the horizon with the exception of tolls on new super highways. Perhaps the easiest way to solve the tax problem in most states would be a real good dose of economy."

McCarthy Not Touched For Marshall Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP)—For dressing down a one-star general, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) gets roundly chided by a "grand jury" of fellow senators.

The Watkins committee says his handling of Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker was "reprehensible" and "inexcusable." The committee says the whole Senate should censure McCarthy on this and other grounds.

And yet for assailing a much better known military figure—a five-star general, in fact—McCarthy goes scot-free so far as the Watkins group is concerned. Its official report calls for no censure of the 1951 speech in which McCarthy said Gen. George C. Marshall made "common cause" with the Russians after World War II.

What's the difference? Both the Zwicker and the Marshall incidents were cited among the 46 original accusations against McCarthy. Why did the Watkins committee throw out the Marshall case, yet use its strongest language in condemning McCarthy for the Zwicker affair?

The basic reason, the committee says, is that McCarthy made his speech against Marshall on the Senate floor. And the committee says that while it "may disagree" with statements made in the Senate about public figures, to do anything about them "would tend to place unwarranted limitations on the freedom of speech in the Senate."

McCarthy had his set-to with Zwicker on the other hand, far from the Senate floor—at a New York hearing of McCarthy's own permanent investigations subcommittee. And there, says the Watkins committee, McCarthy's conduct "was not proper under the circumstances."

What was McCarthy's conduct? Telling Zwicker, among other things, he questioned either the general's honesty or his intelligence. And saying Zwicker, a much decorated World War II veteran, wasn't fit to wear the uniform of a general. This wasn't abuse, McCarthy argued—it was just vigorous cross-examination to get the truth from what he called an evasive, arrogant witness.

The Watkins committee slapped McCarthy down on that point. It held Zwicker behaved very well under a barrage of questions McCarthy had no business asking him. And McCarthy's behavior, it said, would have been out of bounds "in the case of any witness, whether a general or a private citizen."

This wasn't the only "indictment" brought by the Watkins committee. The group also recommended the Senate, when it comes back to town six days after election, censure McCarthy for (1) refusing to appear for questioning before an earlier committee which investigated him in 1951-52, and (2) using "arsh language about members of that committee."

In addition the Watkins committee found fault with McCarthy's conduct in a number of other fields—his accepting secret FBI data, for instance—though it stopped short of recommending formal censure in these cases.

But the toughest language in the whole 68-page report buttressed by 1,027 pages of testimony and exhibits was reserved for the Zwicker affair, which pitted a senator from Appleton, Wis., against a general from the town of Stoughton in the same state.

That was a fateful encounter for both men. It plunged the general into a political controversy which he makes no secret of detesting. And, in a sense, it was the start of most of McCarthy's recent troubles—for it led straight to his full-scale row with the Army's top officials, and to various conflicts with President Eisenhower and other republican leaders.

Life would have been brighter for both men if one or the other had stayed back in Wisconsin.

Largest state fair in the country is the one put on each year by Texas. It drew 2,382,712 persons during a 16-day run in 1953.

Tobacco Growers Advised Invest In Saving Bonds

Tobacco growers in this area are urged to invest part of their earnings in U.S. Savings Bonds as a reserve fund for the future by J.H. Waldrop, county Savings Bonds chairman.

"Even though the tobacco grower does not have the problem of replacing costly farm machinery when it wears out, since tobacco raising is chiefly by hand labor, he is nevertheless in one of the world's risky businesses," Mr. Waldrop comments. "He needs a reserve fund for bad years and other financial emergencies, as all farmers do. Besides giving him this protection, bond savings can help provide better homes and living equipment, college education of children, and more security and independence in later years."

"There is no safer investment in the world than U.S. Savings Bonds. Their cash values and interest yields are guaranteed by the Treasury, printed right on the back of the bond, and backed by the full faith and credit of the United States."

Two series of Savings Bonds are sold only to individuals. One is the popular Series E Bond, "sold by the billions to millions of Americans since May, 1941." The other is the current income Series H, sold since June 1952. Either series returns 3 per cent compounded semi-annually if held 9 years and 8 months to maturity. The cash value of the E bond increases each six months. The postman brings the interest checks to the H bond owner twice a year.

"In the first half of 1954, Americans have invested more of their savings in these bonds than in any similar period since wartime 1945," Mr. Waldrop concludes. "Cash-ins have been the lowest since the outbreak of the war in Korea. Thrift is certainly on the upswing across the country and tobacco growers will be wise to invest in these safe and sure Savings Bonds as so many other Americans are doing these days."

The tobacco we grow in the United States is in demand all over the world because of its high quality. This superiority is the result of long years of effort by tobacco growers, aided by state and federal agricultural research workers, to improve quality and yield. It didn't just happen.

The United States dollar is in demand all over the world, too. We want to keep the dollar sound and relatively stable in buying power in both the export and domestic markets. This can be done only through the concerted efforts of individual Americans and our Government.

Tobacco growing is not a big-scale operation like wheat, corn, cotton and some other mechanized farming. The average tobacco planting is about an acre, and the crop is produced largely by hand labor, which machinery cannot replace. But these small individual plantings add up to an important crop both in money value and consumer use.

When the average tobacco grower puts away part of his crop money in United States Savings Bonds the amount he invests is not great, but, added together, these sums can have an important effect on the stability of the United States dollar. Money invested in Savings Bonds helps the Treasury to manage the finances of the nation in the way that is best for all concerned — and that means for every producer and consumer. The soundness of our whole economy rests upon the productivity and thrift of the individual citizen. And a sound and strong American economy is the foundation of our national defense against the spread of communism and other totalitarian systems.

When the tobacco grower, or any other citizen, invests part of his earnings regularly in U.S. Savings Bonds, these sums grow into substantial reserves to protect and improve his own and his family's future. They provide a ready-cash reserve for emergencies. They make possible the improvement of the home and its equipment, college education for the young folks, more security and comfort for the old folks, after working years are over, and other benefits too numerous to mention.

The Series E and H Savings Bonds that are sold only to individuals yield 3 per cent, compounded semi-annually, if you hold them to maturity in 9 years and 8 months. The popular E Bond, sold since May, 1941, adds the interest to the cash value each six months. For those who'd rather have the interest paid by check twice a year, the H Bond, sold since June, 1952, is specially designed. E Bonds can be held up to ten more years after they mature and will continue to grow in cash value.

There is no safer investment than U.S. Savings Bonds; their cash values and interest yield are guaranteed by the United States Treasury and not subject to the ups and downs of the market. Like American tobacco, they are top quality. Realizing this Americans so far in 1954 are investigating more in them than in any year since wartime 1945. We think it wise for still more Americans to do likewise.

West Virginian Running On 'I Don't Like Ike'

By DON WHITEHEAD
CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)—West Virginia's fiery, 79-year-old Sen. Matthew M. Neely (Democrat) is fighting today for a fifth term in the U.S. Senate on the politically surprising platform: "I don't like Ike."

Generally Democratic candidates have aimed their criticisms at "the administration" while tiptoeing around any direct assaults on President Eisenhower.

But Neely is an exception and he's waging an anti-Eisenhower campaign in his effort to defeat his Republican opponent, 50-year-old Thomas B. Sweeney of Wheeling, who is making his third bid for a Senate seat. Eight years ago, Sweeney fell short of beating Sen. Harley Kilgore (D-WV) by only 3,852 votes.

Neely has aimed at Eisenhower such darts as these:

"In 32 years in Washington, I've never seen a more useless President than Dwight D. Eisenhower."

"Eisenhower is a political myth."

"He's the poorest President the United States ever had."

Neely says he has no fears that such attacks will hurt his own chances for re-election. He supports his argument by pointing to his nomination with more votes than all of his three opponents combined.

At this stage, even Republican leaders concede privately that Neely's tactics apparently have done him no great harm and they don't seem inclined to make Eisenhower's economic record the issue.

The GOP theme of "peace, progress and prosperity" appears to have a doubtful appeal in a state with the highest unemployment in relation to size of any state in the union. The jobless total is estimated as high as 173,000, most of them in the soft coal fields.

Arguments are developing around whether the Democrats or the Republicans are to blame. Republicans say their best chance of beating Neely would come from a coal field revolt against the Democrats.

Sweeney is counting on just such a rebellion. He said in an interview:

"The miners know that twice as many mines closed during the Truman administration as in the Eisenhower administration. They know their troubles began under the Democrat's long before Eisenhower took office. But the Democrats are trying to shift responsibility on the Eisenhower administration."

On the surface, it would seem to be wishful thinking to gamble that the miners' Democratic voting pattern will show a sudden shift toward the Republicans unless "the word" should come from President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers. There is no reported sign that Lewis is making any effort to change his men's voting habits.

Neely, who usually has UMW backing, said in an interview: "If the Republicans come in here talking progress and prosperity they'll get booted off the stage. During the last month of Harry Truman's administration, this state had 12,000 unemployed. Today there are 173,000."

At this stage, even Republican leaders concede privately that Neely's tactics apparently have done him no great harm and they don't seem inclined to make Eisenhower's economic record the issue.

On the surface, it would seem to be wishful thinking to gamble that the miners' Democratic voting pattern will show a sudden shift toward the Republicans unless "the word" should come from President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers. There is no reported sign that Lewis is making any effort to change his men's voting habits.

Neely, who usually has UMW backing, said in an interview: "If the Republicans come in here talking progress and prosperity they'll get booted off the stage. During the last month of Harry Truman's administration, this state had 12,000 unemployed. Today there are 173,000."

At this stage, even Republican leaders concede privately that Neely's tactics apparently have done him no great harm and they don't seem inclined to make Eisenhower's economic record the issue.

Table Setting Regarded As Key To Personality

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

The way you set the table is a key to your personality, outlook and way of life, says Helen Chamberlin, of Seattle, a natural-born hostess who has made a career out of it.

"For instance," says this vibrant, sparkling westerner, "there's the traditional gal who clings to grandmother's damask and haviand chins, even though she has no maid to serve a formal dinner. There's the slipshod one who takes the course of least resistance, and slops the food on the table in chipped dime-store dishes."

"There's the fussy type who uses a real lace tablecloth and priceless crystal, and then worries throughout the meal for fear one of her guests is going to spill or break something. In each case the table setting is a dead giveaway."

Mrs. Chamberlin came upon her career somewhat by accident. A former newspaperwoman with a knack for entertaining, she was asked by an Oregon newspaper to design some table settings for a home show sponsored by the paper. Invitations from other organizations followed. All of a sudden she found herself in business.

Now she spends a great part of each year traveling from home show to home show, accompanied by her unique table settings carefully packed in separate trunks, each complete down to the last teaspoon.

She represents only American manufacturers, and uses china, glassware, silver and linen made in the United States. Says she:

"Some of the best design in the world is being done right here in the good old U.S.A. For generations we've looked to Paris for fashions to England for bone china, to Italy for Venetian glass and so on, until we've developed a national inferiority complex. American china and tableware is designed specifically for the American way of life."

"Your table should be as personal as your wardrobe," says Mrs. Chamberlin, "and your supply of china should be just as versatile."

Proposes Tax Cut For Autos

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP)—Michigan's Governor G. Mennen Williams has proposed the nation's income tax laws be revised to allow a deduction for the family automobile to offset what he called "the automobile recession."

Such a bill would stimulate automobile sales and get many old and unsafe "junkers" off the road, he said.

Life Termer Wants Rope; He's Haunted

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Kenneth Hastings, a life termer in the Idaho State Penitentiary, says he wants to be taken out of his solitary confinement cell and hanged to escape the ghost of his former partner in crime.

He has given prison guards a typewritten statement saying the name of Ivan Baker—whom he says he shot after a tavern holdup in 1951—comes to "sit in my cell and grin at me. I just can't take it."

The 31-year-old convict's story was disclosed yesterday by penitentiary officials, who said they were sceptical. Hastings told it after an abortive 56-hour prison break ended for him Saturday with his capture in the mountains north of Boise.

Hastings said he had decided that if he failed in the escape attempt he would confess and ask for the death penalty. He said he was unable to shake off the spectre of the murdered man while he shivered in the woods, scores of policemen closing in on him.

Warden L. E. Clapp said that Hastings, long a trouble maker in the penitentiary, might be "working some sort of angle."

A search of the desert county near Atomic City in Eastern Idaho, where Hastings said he left Baker's bullet-ridden body, failed to bear fruit Monday or Tuesday. A search party is going out again Wednesday.

William Owens, a penitentiary inmate who joined Hastings in the Boise tavern holdup and in a Boise grocery store robbery three days later, was asked about Hastings' story.

"He's crazy," Owens said. Hastings and Owens were sentenced to death for the fatal shooting of the Boise grocer. The sentences were commuted to life imprisonment. A companion in the grocery holdup, Ruth Seckinger, is on parole after her conviction for assault with intent to commit robbery.

Contacted in Pocatello yesterday, she said she was too drunk after the tavern holdup to remember what happened.

Hastings said in his statement he was in love with Miss Seckinger, but that Baker wanted to force her into prostitution. So he shot Baker four times in the chest and once in the back of the head, Hastings said, and hid the body under a clump of sagebrush.

The disappearance of Baker has long been a mystery to police. Owens and Hastings had maintained that he left for Seattle soon after the tavern holdup.

Kept Promise For 18 Years

BELLS, Tex. (AP)—George Dugan still drives his Model T — But he hasn't driven in nearly 18 years since he ran a stop sign.

That time he made a deal with a traffic cop.

"Well, sir," he said, "just let me turn around and go back to Bells and I won't bother you any more." Dugan has kept his promise. Recently the Sherman police chief heard about it. He sent word to Dugan that the cop has long since retired and Dugan can drive his Model T in Sherman any time he wants.

Dugan declined. He said he still doesn't want to go back on his word — and, besides, the model T is getting too old to be cutting up in that city traffic.

Friendly Skunk Climbed On Lap

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania State Game Commission says the postmaster at Carmichaels, Greene County, is apprehensive about sitting on his own front lawn these days.

They quote the postmaster this way: "I was sitting in my easy chair on the lawn one night reading a newspaper, I felt a tickling and scratching on my bare feet. Thinking it was one of the cats, I paid no attention."

"When the animal climbed on my lap and started rolling around, it seemed time to glance down. I did the 'kitten'—a baby skunk."

Nixon Says GOP Defeat Is To Bring Left-Wing Rule

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Vice President Nixon says that if the Republicans lose control of Congress this November it will be ruled by "left wing" Democratic forces headed by "three men on a horse riding backward."

Nixon addressing a GOP rally at nearby Averill Park last night, lashed at Adlai Stevenson, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for President in 1952; Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic National Chairman, and Sen. Wayne Morse (Ind-Ore).

"Why do I say riding backward?" He asked. "Because from Stevenson on all we hear are quips and criticisms: from Mitchell, smear and fear; and from Morse—well, he just acts like Morse."

Nixon, on a 33-state tour to drum up Republican votes in the forthcoming Congressional elections, told newsmen on arrival here that the GOP faced "an uphill fight" to retain control of the House.

But he said Republican candidates were running ahead in nine of the 10 Senate races he had looked over during his tour.

Nixon said that while Democratic Sen. Hubert Humphrey appeared to be leading Republican Val Bjornson in Minnesota, he was "very much impressed" with Bjornson's campaign.

The vice president also issued a standing invitation to Gov. Thom as E. Dewey to join the Republican administration in Washington. Dewey will leave the governor's mansion Jan. 1.

"In my opinion," Nixon said, "there is no position in the federal government today that Governor Dewey could not handle superbly."

He added that he knew of no plans for Dewey to take a federal post.

Nixon told an audience of about 2,000 Republicans that "there is a new climate in Washington."

"This is an administration," he said, "that is cleaning up and not covering up."

If the Democrats win Congress those calling the signals, he said, would be the "ADA (Americans for Democratic Action) left wing elements."

He said Stevenson, Mitchell and Morse were "united in their opposition to President Eisenhower, in their advocacy of the election of an anti-Eisenhower Congress in their dedication to the philosophy of the ADA left wing of the Democratic party, and in their desire to return to the policies of Harry Truman."

Asked earlier at his news conference to name some Democratic candidates he considered as "left wing," Nixon listed Richard L. Neuberger, running for the Senate in Oregon, and John Carroll, campaigning for a Colorado Senate seat.

Nixon predicted that the GOP would hold two Senate seats each in Nebraska and New Hampshire and one each in Michigan, Massachusetts and Kansas.

He claimed that Republican Rep. George Bender was leading Sen. Thomas Burke in the Ohio senatorial campaign and that Republican Joseph T. Meek was out in front of Sen. Paul Douglas in Illinois.

Pitt County Scouts joined with others in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida in holding Campfire meetings last Saturday night to recruit new troop members and bring old ones back.

The campfires, which were held in each community in Pitt County that supports a scout troop, begin activities which will continue through December in an effort to bring new members into the organized troops, according to Pitt County Scout Executive Lester Dollar.

Round-up rallies are being held during September and October is slated as Unit Roll Call, activity and program month. During this month interested youngsters will attend unit meetings.

November is to be clean up registration month when a final effort to obtain new members is to be made and December has been designated as recognition month. At that time a second campfire program is planned when new members will be inducted.

Awards are to be presented to scouts bringing new members during the drive. Members recruiting one or more boys will receive "Recruiter

Little Dutch Girl Is Spirit Of Independence

By NOAH HALPER
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Inez de Koning admits that she doesn't exactly like living alone, but the 12-year-old Dutch girl says she manages to keep occupied enough to prevent boredom and loneliness.

Inez, who came to this country less than three years ago, has an apartment in a central Philadelphia hotel where she cooks and keeps house for herself, when she's not in school.

She has been living there alone, since her father, Theodore de Koning, an electrical engineer, returned to The Netherlands for a visit more than a month ago and then found himself barred by immigration rules from immediate reentry to the United States.

Blonde blue-eyed Inez had gone to camp for the summer. She got back on Aug. 21.

Since then, with Mrs. Agnes Allen, the hotel manager, keeping a motherly eye on her, Inez has made her own way. Inez is a "very independent and self-sustaining child," says Mrs. Allen.

The girl attends Friends Select school, a private institution run by the Quakers and has made many friends in her three school years. She passes part of her time with them and devotes many hours to reading and studying.

Inez' father was in the United States for eight years, having entered on a first preference classification because his services were "urgently needed," by an American concern according to Henry Mülle, acting district director of the immigration and naturalization office here. De Koning returned to Europe without "any knowledge on our part and even without the knowledge" of his employer, Mülle added.

An extension of the first preference classification was rejected, Mülle continued, because the "concern advised us" it was no longer interested in his services.

The director said de Koning could return to this country under a first preference classification if another American concern filed a petition for reentry. The first 50 per cent of a foreign country's immigration quota is reserved for first preference classifications.

The other way de Koning could come back, said Mülle, would be under the regular quota system.

De Koning wrote his daughter that he was trying through both Dutch and American officials to speed his re-admission.

Century-Old Jewish Temple In Cincinnati Mothered Reform

AP Newsfeatures
By CHARLES E. FRANKEL
CINCINNATI — It's not the oldest Jewish synagogue in the country but none has exerted more influence on the tone of American Judaism than the red Moorish building which sends its twin minarets reaching for the sky just across from City Hall here.

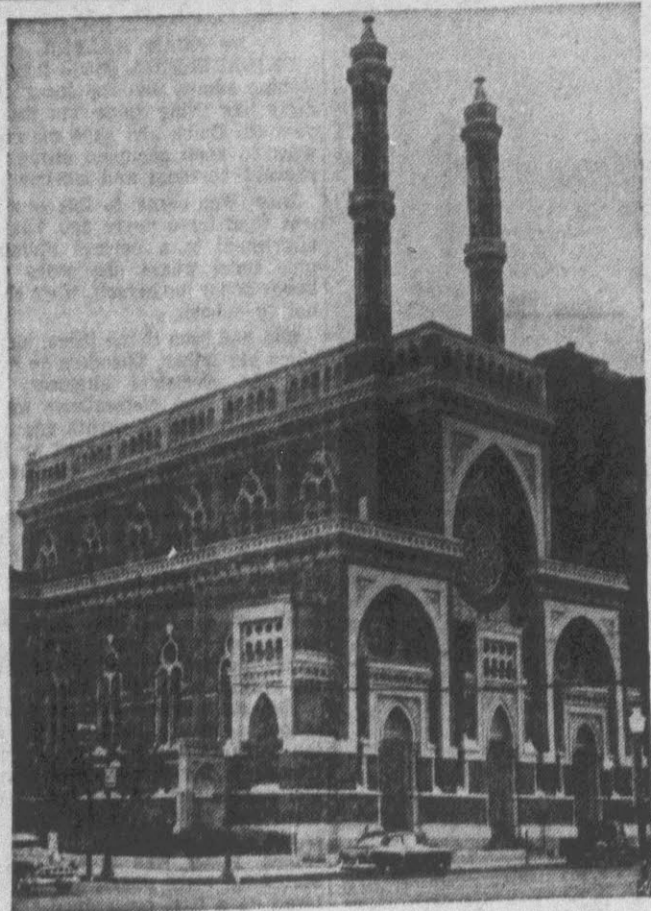

It is the Isaac M. Wise Temple, often called the "Mother Church" of Reform Judaism.

This year is doubly significant for the members of this famous synagogue. Not only is 1954 the 50th anniversary of the arrival of the first Jew in what is now the United States, it also is the 100th anniversary of the arrival in Cincinnati of Rabbi Isaac M. Wise, who came here from Albany, N. Y. Wise was one of those who wanted to cast off the shackles of the past and build an American Judaism wedded to the tradition of the prophets but integrated with the culture of America.

Reform Judaism was the result. It is the liberal branch of Judaism and is contrasted to Orthodox, the fundamentalist group within the religion.

"Out of the reservoir of this temple all the currents of American Reform Judaism began to flow," said Samuel Wohl, one of the temple's two present rabbis. "This is the historic shrine of Reform Judaism in America. It is here where Reform Judaism received its great interpretation. Here the Hebrew Union College—the first Jewish theological seminary in America—was founded."

Reform has created a type of worship which is esthetically pleasing and understandable, he said. Family worship has been encouraged and the segregation of men

Delaware Sifts Ideas On How To Resolve Issues

MILFORD, Del. (AP)—Gov. J. Caleb Boggs of Delaware today sifted the recommendations of his attorney general, members of the state board of education and "many others" on what action to take in the tense school segregation situation in the southern part of the state.

New trouble spots cropped up yesterday in various communities around this town of 5,700, center of the dispute for almost two weeks.

Schools are being boycotted here and in surrounding communities in protest against the integration of 11 Negro students among 1,562 students registered at the elementary high school here. One of the Negroes has since transferred to an all-Negro school at Dover.

Tonight, the National Assn. for the Advance of White People (NAAWP), headed by Bryant Bowles, an Arlington, Va., man who has actively opposed integration in this area during the past week, will hold a meeting to call for the ouster of School Superintendent Ramon C. Cobbs.

Last night in Laurel, 12 miles to the southwest, Bowles and his followers took over a meeting called by a local committee there to arrange a referendum on voter sentiment on the issue in Laurel district schools, which have not attempted integration.

Mrs. Charles S. Workman, a member of the local committee which had arranged the meeting, attempted to address the gathering but was shouted down when she said that "under no circumstances" should there be a boycott of schools in Laurel.

At the height of the noisy interruption, Bowles, a 34-year-old ex-marine, stepped in and asked the crowd whether they wanted to listen to her group or his. The majority of the estimated 1,500 persons attending yelled their approval for Bowles to take over.

Later, Dr. William E. Prettyman, president of the board of education of the Laurel school district said:

"I think it should be emphasized that three-fourths of the thousands of people who attended this rally tonight were not residents of this district. They came from other parts of the state, from Maryland and as far away as Virginia.

"I don't like the idea of this excitement. Our school will remain open. We don't anticipate any difficulties."

World Series Bringing A Big Golden Harvest

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The World Series starting yesterday is expected to set money records.

If the tussle between the New York Giants and the Cleveland Indians goes to six or seven games, more dollars are expected to change hands than in any previous series.

The ball clubs and players won't be the only ones in on the bonanza. Because of midwest baseball fever, and because this year the contest isn't just a subway series confined to New York City, some businessmen are looking for a golden harvest.

Even on the eve of the series, rooms were hard to find in the better New York hotels. Cleveland hotels in Akron and Toledo are taking the overflow.

Railroads and airlines serving the two cities report reservations scarce. The New York Central is putting on extra cars to bring Ohio folk to Gotham.

Bars, restaurants, night clubs, beverage makers and hot dog tycoons are looking for their biggest series. Pennants, caps and other souvenirs are likely to sell in usual quantities, because Midwest pride is expected to more than fill the vacuum when the Dodger fans—baseball's traditionally most exuberant group—were pushed out of the series.

Two sets of businessmen who aren't likely to prosper. However, are retail store owners and stock brokers. Customers stay out of the stores during game hours and either visit the ball parks or take in the game on radio or television.

Trading on the stock exchange traditionally falls off to a trickle during the game period.

But others are expecting a golden flow.

For one thing, more cash customers can crowd into the ball parks for this series than for any previous one. That means more visitors in New York and Cleveland spending their money for lodging, food, drink, and entertainment after game hours.

The Polo Grounds here is the largest park in the National League holding around 55,000. The Municipal Stadium, Cleveland is the largest ball park in the world, and can crowd 86,000 in to watch the Indians.

Cleveland thinks perhaps 40,000 from out of town will jam into the city for the series excitement and maybe leave a million dollars behind, beside what they spend for tickets. Cleveland itself will get a neat little sum in taxes on the tickets.

New Yorkers talk of a similar flood of out-of-town visitors—counting smugly not only on Midwest series fever but also on the families who like to visit the big city while dad is at the Polo Grounds, and business executives who always find urgent business reasons for consulting associates in New York whenever a World Series is on.

Giants and Indian managements both report ticket sell-outs. Ticket agencies say they can't raise any more ducats.

Bus Traveled At Donkey's Pace

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—A bus had to travel at a donkey's pace to save a Syrian from wolves recently.

On the road from Damascus to Beirut, a man on a donkey stopped the bus and asked for protection from a pack of wolves which had been on his trail. The driver offered to take the man aboard, but the bus couldn't accommodate the donkey.

To save them both, the bus jogged along as slowly as the donkey trotted. After several miles, the man and his donkey reached home.

Tears for the Bride

SYNOPSIS

Jim Bennett, noted sleuth of Cleveland, Ohio, accompanies his secretary, Miss Sandy Hollis, to her family home in rural Ohio, for a week-end of pleasant shooting. He is received well by Sandy's parents, and rugged Rex Bishop, their farm-hand, regales him with tales of "shootin' days" in the old west. Jim also meets Sandy's war-vet brother, Ralph. He had recently broken his engagement to handsome, spirited Judy Kirkland, in favor of docile Eileen Fortune. Everyone, including her father, Jake Fortune, had expected Eileen to marry Earl Seltzman, Jake's partner in a cattle-buying business. Later at a gathering in the Hollis home, Bennett meets all these people. Fun and fellowship prevail.

CHAPTER FOUR

In the living room Ralph Hollis and Jake Fortune were in conversation by the fireplace. Eileen had left Ralph and was now sitting beside Earl Seltzman. He was talking to her in low tones, his head bent forward, his eyes bright and intense behind his glasses. She was listening, but I saw her gaze dart to Ralph, who very carefully avoided looking at her. Mrs. Hollis was sitting comfortably in a rocking chair on the far side of the fireplace with a darning needle and a basket of heavy wool socks.

Homer had sat down by a table on which was a stack of farm journals. I pulled up a chair beside him, said, "Where's Rex?"

"In bed. He gets up at five o'clock in the morning, winter and summer. He wouldn't need to, but he still lives in the old days, before we had electric milking machines and tractors and automatic feeders." He smiled his shy smile. "Of course, we still have to see that the right buttons are pushed."

"Oh, sure," I said, laughing. "You farmers certainly have it easy."

He smiled, more with his eyes than his mouth, and sipped at his whisky.

"He's one of the family," Homer said. "He won't work for anyone else. This place belonged to him at one time—until the depression. He lost it in '32 and the bank eventually sold it to me. I guess he thinks he still owns it the way he acts sometimes." He laughed softly. "Rex is more of a partner than a hired hand. He has a share of the wheat and corn, and all the truck stuff, and the pigs are his."

"Can he really shoot—like he said?"

"He's a fine shot, as old as he is. Got quite a little gun shop out in the barn. He's all excited about you—thinks you'll give him some competition. If you get time tomorrow, maybe you wouldn't mind doing some shooting with him."

"I'd like to," I said, and I meant it. "How much land do you farm?"

"A hundred and forty acres now. I've been selling land, and going

The picturesque thatched roofs of the English countryside are gradually giving way to slates, tiles and asbestos shingles.

in more for blooded stock."

He also told me that the morning hunting party would consist of himself, Sandy, Ralph, Eileen Fortune and her father, any myself.

"Aren't you going to invite young Seltzman?" I asked.

He lit his pipe and said shortly, "That's up to Ralph."

I gazed around the room. Sandy had joined Ralph and Jake Fortune and her father and myself. Earl Seltzman's pale, intense face, at the glitter of his glasses at the movement of his lips as he muttered into Eileen's ear as they sat on the divan, I thought that he was acting very badly, he was going to marry the girl beside him. I wondered why he had come, and I thought, Forget her, son, and back up. The best man won and all that and stop trying to talk her out of it. She's made up her mind and you'd better find a new girl.

Sandy moved away from the fireplace to a phonograph console at the far end of the room. In a moment the soft piano magic of Frankie Carle filled the room. I settled back in my chair with a sigh of contentment. Sandy came and stood beside me and her father.

Homer Hollis said, "I wish you'd come here more often, honey."

She leaned down and kissed him. "I would, Dad, but Jim works me too hard."

"Really cracks the whip, does he?" Homer's eyes glistened with amusement. "Maybe you need it. I remember when you were a little girl your mother could never get you to make your bed."

"I have a terrible time with her," I said. "I'm thinking about getting a new girl—a blonde, this time."

"Now listen—," Sandy began, and then she gazed out of the window. "Oh, fun. More company."

The lights of a car were streaking up the lane. They disappeared and we heard the rattle of stone as the car braked to what must have been a skidding stop.

"That's Judy," Sandy said. "Nobody else in the world drives like that."

The room was suddenly quiet, and the piano melody from the console was soft and bell-clear. Even Earl Seltzman stopped his low monologue, and both he and Eileen Fortune looked toward the archway leading to the front hall. Ralph Hollis and Jake Fortune turned expectantly from the fireplace, and Mrs. Hollis stopped her gentle rocking. Homer puffed silently on his pipe.

Sandy moved out into the hall. The front door opened and closed; there were voices of greeting and a woman's quick laughter. Sandy returned to the living room with an arm around a slender black-haired girl, who was murmuring in protest, "But you have guests."

"Nonsense, Judy," Sandy said. "I'm glad you came." The two of them stopped and faced the room.

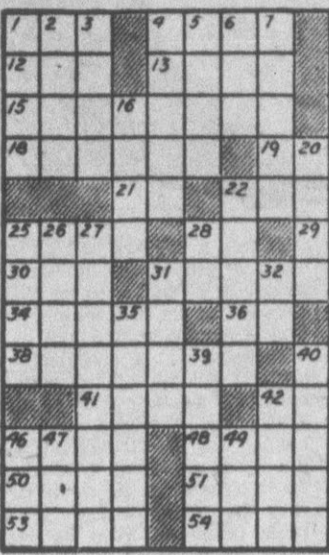

I got to my feet, as did Homer Hollis, who said quietly, "Good evening, Judy."

Greer Garson Plays In Sagebrush Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A few years ago western actor Chill Willis was visiting on a set with Greer Garson, who remarked that she would like to appear in a picture with him.

"Shucks, Miss Garson," Chill replied. "That'd never happen. I make a s a g e b r u s h picture and you're in them carpet movies."

I've got news for Mr. Willis. Miss Garson is now off the carpets and out in the sagebrush. For her first independent picture after 15 years at MGM, she's doing "Strange Lady in Town," the story of a woman doctor who comes to a frontier town in New Mexico.

The regal redhead has just returned from a location in Tucson, where she rode horses and buckboards and sweated in 112 degrees in the shade. I asked if that didn't make her long for the carpets and drawing rooms of MGM.

"Not at all," she smiled. "The location was rugged, but I asked for a change and I got it. This is the sort of a thing I have wanted to do for a long time. I think there's a great appeal in outdoor pictures now, especially to people who are cooped up in cities. It's a kind of escape for them."

She said the script grew out of a conversation she had two years ago with writer Frank Butler. She had become intrigued with the country around the New Mexico ranch of her husband, Buddy Fegelson. She had done some research into early New Mexican history and discussed it with Butler. Armed with some of her material, he went ahead with the story.

Oddly enough, the locations had to be done in Arizona.

"They looked for places in New Mexico," Miss Garson explained, "but they found that the Indian pueblos were bristling with TV aerials. The towns all looked too modern for the period—around 1870."

If the location was rugged on her, she didn't show it. She was a colorful sight with her tangerine hair and lavender costume, and she glowed with enthusiasm about her new career as an independent. She made it clear that she would keep active.

"I think an actor should work," she reasoned. "A musician can refrain from making appearances and go on practicing. But an actor needs to continue working or he goes stale.

"I've always thought it was a shame when some of our great talents are kept from work. Like Ronald Colman. There is no one to equal his charm. Though we wish soon be seeing him on TV in 'The Halls of Ivy,' he has been inactive on the screen, and it's a shame.

"Another one is Marlo Lanza. I don't know him personally, but I love his voice. I don't care if he is fat. He has a great voice and it should be heard."

She explained that this reasoning of hers caused her to be in some of the "clinkers" she made at MGM.

"Sometimes I would go to the bosses before a picture and tell them that I personally wouldn't put a nickel in it," she said.

"But I said I would do the picture if they had the faith to put their money in it. I felt it was more important for an actor to get seen at least once a year if only in a poor picture than to be on suspension and not appear on the screen."

Opening Game Of World Series 'Had Everything'; Giants In Good Position

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—It will be necessary to go on and play out the World Series, but it is difficult to think of anything that might happen from here on that the boys didn't dish up in that 10-inning opener yesterday at the Polo Grounds.

That was a real hard rock of a baseball game, from the moment the first ball was thrown until, more than three tense hours later, Dusty Rhodes draped the fourth pinch homerun on all World Series history into the right field stands to wrap it up for the underdog New York Giants 5-2.

The Giants today were in an advantageous position. They have the fully rested Johnny Antonelli, a 21-year winner, poised for a second game, starting at 1 p.m. Another capacity crowd, matching yesterday's $2,571 turnout, was expected. The weather forecast was cloudy and warm.

Yesterday's game was the sort that two fighting league champions as the Giants and the Indians figured to put on. The feeling here is that it set the pattern for what may be one of the greatest play-offs in history. The Indians are not beaten by a long way, but the club must have been jolted out of its complacency and made to know that it faces a grim battle.

It is true that Rhodes' climactic swipe was very much of the Oriental variety for which the Polo Grounds is notorious. No shorter homerun can be hit in any ball park than was this 270-foot specimen that a fan muffed only inches above the green barrier. But it also is a fact that the slugging Indians had the same target to shoot at all through the sunny afternoon.

Of deep satisfaction to Leo Durocher's club was the fact that it stayed in there and finally defeated Cleveland's best.

Also of glad tidings to the winners was the manner in which their relief star, the veteran Marv Grissom, walked in there to stop the Tribe in its tracks after their starter, Sal Maglie, suddenly fell his 37 years in the eighth inning and his reliever, Don Liddle, had been clouted for one of the longest and most sensational putouts ever seen anywhere.

And last, but far from least, it was their winder-by and official team electricifier, Willie Mays who saved the game with his truly amazing over-shoulder catch of Vic Wertz' towering 450-foot smash to the centerfield wall with two Indians on base and none out in the eighth.

The boy from Alabama didn't get a hit off Lemon's sinking stuff, but he gave notice that he will be a telling factor all the way with that catch and his steal of second after Lemon had walked him for the second time with one out in the 10th. The steal caused the Indian ace to pass Hank Thompson purposely to set up a possible double play, and that gave Durocher the opportunity to insert the lefty swinging Rhodes for slumping Monte Irvin.

The best Irvin had been able to do in four tries was lay down a sacrifice bunt, and more than a little complaint had been heard in our section that Leo still had Rhodes sitting upon his hands when things looked so desperate. The record crowd of 52,751 gave Dusty a nice ovation, and the next thing anyone knew that lazy little fly was being boosted along by the wind toward its destiny.

The ironic part of it was that the same wind, blowing with some velocity across the field from left to right, almost surely robbed Jim Hegan, Cleveland's catcher, of a bases-loaded home run off Grissom in the eighth inning, and also blew one back off Al Dark's bat that would have given the Giants a 3-2 win after two were down in the ninth. Both knocks clearly were headed for the seats when they set out.

From the very start it was evident that Maglie was short on control, even though the veteran had warmed up for close to 20 minutes. His first three pitches to the Indians' leadoff batter, Al Smith, were not even close, and the fourth one plunked Smith.

Bobby Avila, the American League's leading hitter, followed with a looping single into short right which Don Mueller kicked around, permitting Smith to race to third. However, Sal settled and got Larry Doby and Al Rosen on

Buccaneers Stage Heavy Workouts; Catawba Is Strong

By Bruce Phillips
Reflector Sports Writer
The East Carolina Pirates held a shower of heavy work in yesterday's practice session. Coach Jack Boone, with an eye in respect of aspirant coach Clyde Biggers' team strength directed maneuvers in the two-hour assault.

The first-string line played defense against an aggressive freshman unit running Catawba plays. Coach Boone expressed satisfaction with the way the linemen snafued the Indians' style of attack. George Tucker and Don Burton, in particular, looked sharp. Larry Rhodes and J.D. Bradford looked keen at the flanks. Captain Willie Holland, George Rice, and Louis Hollow rounded out the other positions.

All-Conference Terrell Hall starts at one end. Bill Smith, a converted guard, handles the other. Hall, a good receiver, a good blocker, and a terror on defense, has gotten to be a fixture at one terminal. Smith is a good defensive man. Fred Sibley is an excellent receiver but doesn't measure up to Smith as a defender.

No. 1 tackle is Gary Sherrill, a 220-pounder from Kamaspolis, and No. 2 is Ralph Yarborough, a 215-pounder who played second team last fall.

Concentration also dwelt on downhill blocking and punting. Three units of linemen took part in the drill with an array of backs alternating. Topsy Hayes, Emo Soado, Harold O'Kelly, Jim Stanley, James Henderson, Bobby Perry, and Tom Allsbrook did most of the running.

Milton Collier, Gary Matlocks, Eddie Dennis, and Allsbrook took turns booting. Dennis, especially, got off several good kicks.

O'Kelly ran from the fullback post. Bobby Gay, injured in the West Chester game and sidelined during the Lenoir Rhyne meet, shared the duties. He'll be ready for action against the Indians this week.

Claude King was out in light equipment again. The big Wilmington brusier received a muscle hematoid in the Norfolk game and has been on the inactive list since. His status this Saturday is uncertain.

Boyd Webb, senior quarterback, will most likely miss the bout with Catawba too. He was the Bucks' number one signal-caller after Dick Cherry went out with a broken ankle. Webb is plagued with a badly bruised hip. He hasn't dressed for practice this week.

Other than the above-mentioned disabled, Coach Boone says his squad is in pretty good condition. Practices have been spirited all week and the Pirates are looking to this game eagerly.

So are the Indians. Coach Biggers will unleash a fired-up Tribe come Saturday and game time. A feud was naturally in order when Biggers resigned at East Carolina and moved west two years ago. The Buc's narrow 13-7 win last fall in Salisbury was literally throwing coals on the fire.

Remember? It took a last minute desperation toss by Cherry to obtain the margin. Up to then, it looked like the Indians had Coach Boone's Pirates by their scalps.

What's more, the Indians were

JOHNNY POWELL

"The finest lineman I've ever coached," is the tag Coach Biggers has for All-Conference guard Johnny Powell. He is a 60-minute man and a great competitor. Bill Smith and Wayne Harrelson run one-two at the other guard slot. Hal Quinn anchors the Indians' middle at center.

Except for fullback, the backfield is touch and go, with a fine first four available. Harold Carter handles the QB chores and with as near perfection as can be seen in the North State. Halfbacks are Rodney Nantz and Leslie Swanner. Fullback is well fortified with Dick Smith, All-Conference and Catawba's leading-ground gainer last year.

Biggers should know the East Carolina system frontwards and backwards. From this angle alone, the game should prove very interesting.

Drum Will Start Against Pam Pack

Coach Bill Kittrell announced today that Jerry Drum, star in Greenville's 7-6 upset victory over Kinston last week, will start at quarterback for the Greensles against Washington's Pam-Pack there tomorrow night.

Playing only in reserve capacities before the Kinston game, Drum proved himself with a sparkling 75-yard touchdown pass in the third quarter. He then promptly tossed to James Speight for the point-after for the evening margin.

One other change will be noted in the starting lineup. Harris Northrup will get the nod at left guard. He also turned in an impressive performance against the Red Devils.

Otherwise, Coach Kittrell will go with the same unit which opened play in the Kinston fray. By position, they are Harold Edwards and Bobby Adams, ends; Howard King and Tommy Smith, tackles; Gene Hudson and Northrup, guards; Pat Sawyer, center; Bob Howell, quarterback; James Speight and Mitchell Johnson, halfbacks; and Larry Powell, fullback.

Coach Kittrell said today that he expects Washington to be the toughest and best team they've met. He said his club will be undermanned physically but hopes to offset that with determination.

Greenville was beaten by Washington 13-7 last season. They have many standouts from that club returning. They have two of the conference's top linemen in Tackles Ken Upton and Larry Dickson. Lo-

Maryland Chanting 'Ruin The Bruins'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Atlantic Coast Conference football squads cautiously polished their plays yesterday as they looked to this weekend's schedule. Workouts were less strenuous generally to avoid possible injuries to players.

"Let's ruin the Bruins" was the chant at College Park last night as the Maryland Terps prepared to board a plane for Burbank, Calif., and tomorrow night's game with UCLA.

Coach Jim Tatum put the Terps through a light contact workout before the squad attended a rousing pep rally after which the 40-man traveling squad took to the air.

The emphasis was on defense as the North Carolina Tar Heels prepared for their Saturday game with Tulane at New Orleans. Head Coach George Barclay expressed pleasure with what he saw in a defensive scrimmage.

The Tar Heels will fly south tomorrow afternoon on a mission that has awaited them since Nov. 1922.

That was the day Monk McDonald and Red Johnson more than made up for Lester Lautenschlager's 95-yard kickoff return, leading Carolina to a 19-12 win in the first game of the rivalry with the Green Wave.

A Tar Heel team hasn't won in New Orleans since. Four times their visits have been with Tulane and twice they have appeared in the Sugar Bowl Classic. Tulane leads the Tar Heels in their feud, five games to two with one tie.

At Wake Forest, Coach Tom Rogers juggled putting his team through more changes than a Broadway chorus girl. Disappointed with the Deac's showing against Virginia Tech, Rogers shook up the starting eleven in an effort to find a winning combination.

Wake Forest meets North Carolina State Saturday for the 48th meeting of the teams. The Wolfpack holds the advantage, if comparative scores mean anything. State will be seeking to break a nine-game losing streak and Wake Forest would like to push the streak to 10 in the worst way. The Deacs just don't like to lose, especially to a Big Four team.

Coach Earle Edwards meanwhile made a general checkup of offensive and defensive strategy of the Wolfpack.

The same South Carolina lineup that smashed Army last week will meet West Virginia at Columbia Saturday night. Coach Rex Enright yesterday had his full squad run through a scrimmage. Taking note of the Mountaineers' lighter line Enright also stressed passing.

Coach Art (Pappy) Lewis of West Virginia was worried. "They have twice as much manpower as we do," he commented.

Pass defense was the thing at Virginia as coaches had the Cavaliers preparing for a shower of passes from George Washington Saturday and the same subject was stressed at Clemson. Don King and Charlie Bussey threw accurate passes yesterday as Coach Frank Howard drilled his Tigers for Saturday's meeting with Virginia Tech.

Duke knuckled down to playing timing, passing offense and defense and punt returns in preparation for their home opener against Tennessee Saturday.

At Knoxville, the Tennessee Vols concentrated on their passing attack with star tailback Jimmy Wake still a doubtful starter.

Buc Of The Day

By Bruce Phillips
Reflector Sports Writer
"Mole," as Larry is affectionately known, is a senior from High Point. He stands 6 feet tall and weighs 205 pounds.

He entered East Carolina in 1951 as one of the most heralded high school stars in the south. Under Coach Tony Simon, Larry played four outstanding seasons for the High Point Blons. In fact, so supple was his play he was named to the All-Western AAA Conference team his junior and senior years.

His prep career really came to a pinnacle when he was selected on the All-State eleven as a junior and repeated the achievement his senior year. As culmination, he was invited to play in the Optimist Bowl.

Upon donning East Carolina colors, he letched his freshman year at end. As a yecing, he played behind the Pirates' great Dwight Shoe. Throughout his sophomore his play was also bounded by the sensationalism of Shoe, but he earned his second monogram.

Last season it was different.

Little Leaguers In Grid Contest

The Whites defeated the Blues 19-0 in a Little League football game Tuesday afternoon.

After a scoreless first period, Howard Garner, Whites' quarterback romped 25 yards with an intercepted pass to score. Just before the second quarter ended, the Whites tallied again. This time on a 10-yard end run by Halfback Bill Clapp.

The Blues bulled up at this point and it was toe to toe until the final period. Again it was Clapp scoring. He reeled off 15 yards for the touchdown. The extra-point was added after the first score in the second period to widen the margin.

For Coach Blackie Trevathan's Blues, Charles Rouse stood out on offense and Reggie Johnson performed well on defense. Coach Jack Wintley's Jeff Fountain and Garner were outstanding for the White team.

Another Little League game was on tap for today at 4 p.m., pitting the Red and Gold teams.

Pitcher Prefers His Relief Role

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Johnny Hetki, relief pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates, figures it's good to be on relief.

After making 50 relief appearances for the Pirates, Hetki was given a starting role against the Cubs. He lost 4-1.

Teen-Age Girl Is Sports Veteran

COMPTON Calif. (AP)—Diane Williamson, pert and pretty, is a cautious champion. And she is a sports veteran at 14.

Recently she won the women's Grand American trapshooting championship for the second straight year at Vandalla, Ohio.

The 14-year-old says she practices on the range of her Compton, Calif., home "only about once a month." She thinks too much practice "might overdo it."

She won her second year's championship with a tape bound tightly around her right wrist. But she had a legitimate excuse for this handicap in her title trapshooting trials.

"I fractured it when I was playing baseball at school," she explained.

Missouri Star In Better Shape

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Pete Corpeny, star end for the Missouri football team, played most of last season with a broken hand. Despite this handicap he caught 12 passes, two of which went for touchdowns.

This season Corpeny's broken hand is healed and he has increased his speed by slimming his weight from 200 to 160 pounds.

DETROIT (AP)—Bobby Layne, quarterback for the Detroit Lions, is a busy man during the football season. But he is just as busy during the off season.

Layne led the Lions to the National Football League championship in 1952 and 1953. During the off season he travels around Texas dealing in oil leases.

When Pirate lineman crouch at the line of scrimmage Saturday night, they'll be looking across at three of the best defensive men in the conference. They are (left to right) Guard Wayne Polyak, End Bill Smith, and Tackle Harry Young. All three are returning veterans from Coach Clyde Biggers' 1953 team which finished only second best to East Carolina in lopp play.

Monday's Cases In City Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Monday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of 25 cases, only five of them involving motor vehicle or traffic laws.

Five persons, three men and two women, were tried on forcible trespass charges at Gene Clark's home on the Pactolus highway. The court not procced cases charging trespass and assault against Leona Adams and Dalton Clark. Judge Whedbee also not procced charges of trespass and disorderly conduct against Raymond Clark, Sr., Leatha Clark and Letha Mae Smith. The court classified the cases as a "family row."

Rufus Stepps, drunk, 30 days in jail, to be suspended on payment of $20, costs deducted; in another drunk case, the court gave Stepps 30 more days in jail, to be suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted. The court found Stepps guilty of the charge of being a public nuisance and gave him six months on the roads, sentence to be suspended on payment of court costs, provided he not enter any place where alcoholic beverages are sold and remain of good behavior for a year.

Drunk: Louis Adams, called and he failed to answer. An instant capias was issued for him. Clifford C. Gardner, Negro, 30 days or $10; William Linney, an itinerant printer, was found guilty of being drunk and disorderly and using profane language. Judge Whedbee gave him 30 days on the roads, sentence suspended, capias and commitment to issue at 3 p.m. Monday. A public nuisance charge against him was not procced. The defendant left town, the record shows.

Judy Garland Is Hailed For Film

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Judy Garland's comeback was complete today as a star-packed first night audience and critics hailed her new movie.

The little girl with the big voice, considered washed up in pictures four years ago, scored a personal triumph at the world premiere of "A Star Is Born" last night. Her arrival was given a hysterical reception by fans at the Hollywood Pantages theater and most of the first nighters agreed she is a shoo-in for an Oscar next March.

Arriving with husband Sid Luft, who produced the picture, Judy looked radiant in a black velvet gown with jeweled collar and cap. She greeted friends, posed for photos and admitted she was "happy but nervous." She added: "I'll be glad when it's all over with."

She was a far cry from the Judy whose tantrums led to an end of her long MGM contract.

She started the comeback trail with her hit at New York's vaudeville shrine, the Palace. Warner Bros. agreed to star her in a remake of the 1937 classic, "A Star Is Born." The film had a stormy history and the bill mounted to a whopping six million. Critics agreed it was worth it.

Assault on a female: In the case against Rufus Brown, Negro, the court taxed the prosecuting witness with court costs for failure to testify, Arthur Wooten, Negro, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of court costs and he is not to molest or harm his wife. Woodrow Wilks, Negro, the prosecuting witness was taxed with the costs for failure to testify.

William J. Smith, Negro, driving drunk, 90 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $100 and costs, and he is not to operate a motor vehicle for a year. A reckless driving charge was combined with his case.

Eddie Boy Gatlin, Negro, disorderly conduct, suspended on payment of court costs.

Robert K. Thigpen, driving after his license was revoked, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $200 and court costs, and he is not to drive a car in this state for a year. The court recommended that his driver's license be revoked for a year.

Levi Green, Negro, disorderly conduct, suspended on payment of costs.

George Pittman, Negro, was found not guilty of damaging personal property. For being drunk and disorderly the court gave him 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of costs and $25 to W. B. Woodward for eyeglasses.

Martha Paul, 702 East Gum Road, was found not guilty of careless and

IR Club Hears ROTC Speaker

"The defense effort now being made by the United States is a game of wits with Russia," Lt. Harold R. Selridge of the East Carolina College Air Force ROTC staff, told members of the college International Relations Club Tuesday night.

Each side, he said, is trying to outwit the other and to achieve superiority, especially in technological progress.

He was introduced to an audience of students and faculty members by A. Irving Maynard of Wilmington, president of the International Relations Club.

Using a map to illustrate his remarks, Lt. Selridge gave an analysis of the defense perimeter of the United States. His talks included a discussion of radar defenses, air bases, guided missiles, and other weapons and methods important to the defense of this country.

John O. Sanders of Fayetteville, junior at the college, was elected vice president of the International Relations Club and will serve in this position during the present school year. Grey Ward of Naklas is secretary-treasurer.

Week's Best Food Buys Have Variety

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Leg of lamb will be the outstanding favorite as a special in the nation's food stores this weekend. Almost as popular as an attraction for thrifty shoppers will be frying chickens.

Meat specialists agree that leg of lamb is a first-rate buy. Prices will be down anywhere from four to 10 cents a pound in stores featuring it.

Frying chickens will be two to six cents a pound low week-ago prices. One food man observed that his store's price this weekend will be 10 cents below that of three weeks ago.

The Poultry and Egg National Board says wholesale prices of broiler-fryers are the lowest to this season since back in 1940. One of broiler-fryers this year is expected to total sound a billion.

Another food specialist commented that turkeys are worth considering for Sunday dinner. "They've been almost a weekly bargain," he said.

There will be scattered specials on various cuts of beef and pork—round roast, prime ribs, steaks, smoked hams, fresh pork picnics and pork loin. But in buying any of these you'll do well to shop carefully because wholesale prices of beef and pork have held at pretty high levels lately.

There was a dip in wholesale pork prices in midweek, however, which led some meat buyers to predict that retail prices will be a bit lower within the next week. Some stores are selling items like pork chops at prices below last week's.

Egg prices are going up, as is usual at this time of year. One big chain expects to hike prices by a penny to as much as eight cents a dozen in its stores all over the country. Butter also is in an up-trend—increases of one to six cents a pound are expected this weekend.

You'll find the usual good variety of vegetables available this week. Produce specialists suggest cauliflower, peppers, sweet potatoes, cabbage and potatoes as especially good values. Also good buys are beans, celery, eggplant, Brussels sprouts, lettuce and onions.

Grapes and apples are tagged the best buys in fruit.

Pears and oranges are rather high. Grapefruit is considered moderately priced, with supplies from Florida increasing. The prune season is about over and peach supplies are light, with the nearby season almost over in most areas. Instant coffee prices came down at the wholesale level this week, so you can look for cheaper retail prices soon. Major producers cut prices about two cents on the two-ounce jar and 6 cents on the six-ounce lower.

Everett R. Shaw Is Addition To Faculty Staff

Everett R. Shaw of Washington, D.C., who joined the faculty of East Carolina College this week, has begun his work in the department of business education. He fills a new position created this fall because of the large enrollment of students in the department.

Mr. Shaw, a native of Grand Rapids, Michigan, is a graduate of the University of Michigan and has done work toward a doctorate at the University of Illinois. He is a certified public accountant.

Before coming to East Carolina, he had experience both as a teacher and an accountant. Among schools where he has been a faculty member and has taught economics, business administration, accounting, business law, and other subjects are Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Jamestown College in North Dakota, and Arizona State College. As an accountant, he has held positions with firms in Detroit and Chicago.

Received Mail After Ten Years

RICHLANDS Va. (AP)—A money order for $27.50 has finally caught up with Douglas Mullins after almost 10 years.

The order, dated Dec. 7, 1944, was mailed to Mullins at Company I, 14th Infantry, Ft. Benning, Ga. It arrived here almost 10 years later in a letter to Postmaster B.P. Lambert from the American consulate in Florence, Italy. The consulate said it got the money order by mail with no explanation except that it was found in the lining of an old army uniform. Postmaster Lambert forwarded it to Mullins, who now lives at Fort Pierce, Fla. and also notified the sender, Marie Buckles.

Death Sentence For 61-Year-Old

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A middle-aged, white-haired 61-year-old man—whose three wives have died violently—will be sentenced to death here Monday.

George F. Sack, questioned by police about his first wife's death and found innocent by reason of insanity after his second wife's death, was convicted by an all-male jury here last night of murdering his third wife.

A death sentence is mandatory, but Sack's attorney said he would appeal.

The jury took seven hours to decide that the dapper, precise Sack did away with his wife because he feared she was going to divorce him and claim part of his $125,000 in property.

The state contended he did it by shoving her into the luggage compartment of his automobile last February and keeping her there until she suffocated. The body was found dumped in a vacant lot.

George Cary, who said he happened to be walking near the lot at the time, was the state's key witness. He said he saw a man carry something from a car into the lot. He "kicked down the car's license number, and turned it over to police. The number was Sack's."

Sack's first wife died in an apartment house fire in Chicago in the early 1920s. His second was killed a few years later in Chicago by a gun shot. Sack was accused of killing her.

Defended by the famed attorney, Clarence Darrow, Sack was found insane, and went to a mental hospital for several years.

He came to Oregon in 1940, and bought an apartment house, where he lived alone until he met Goldie Goodrich, 55, a Great Falls, Mont., school teacher, at a public dance hall here two years ago. They were married shortly afterward. Witnesses said it was not long until Sack was quarreling violently with her, and she began considering a divorce.

Safest Place In Storm Is Indoors

DALLAS (AP)—The safest place during an electrical storm is indoors, a weather expert says.

Meteorologist M.C. Harrison of the Weather Bureau says a person caught outdoors during lightning should stay away from such well grounded objects as metal fences or isolated trees. Better shelter is in a ravine or in the open. A grove of trees is fairly safe.

Inside, you should stay away from plumbing fixtures.

 6 tablespoons Triangle butter
 6 tablespoons brown sugar, firmly packed
 1 package white cake mix or your favorite one-egg cake recipe
 Drain syrup from fruit cocktail and cook down to about 1/2 cup. Add butter and sugar; stir until mixed. Pour into a 9-inch square cake pan. Arrange fruit on sugar mixture. Mix cake according to package directions. Carefully pour batter over fruit. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, 45 to 50 minutes, or until done. Cool 5 minutes then turn out on a plate so fruit mixture is on top. Makes 1 9-inch square cake. Serve warm or cold with whipped cream.

NOTICE OF SALE OF LAND NORTH CAROLINA PITT COUNTY

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain deed of trust executed by John A. Mayo and wife, Amanda Mayo, dated the 17th day of March, 1951, and recorded in Book R-25 at page 2 of the Pitt County Registry, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured and said deed of trust being by the terms thereof subject to foreclosure, the undersigned trustee will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the Court House door in Greenville, North Carolina, at noon, on the 2nd day of October, 1954, the property conveyed in said deed of trust, the same lying and being in the County of Pitt and

State of North Carolina, in Greenville Township, near Sainsville on the Briley Road and more particularly described as follows:

BEGINNING at an iron stake in the northern edge of the Briley Road which stake is about one hundred seventy-five (175) feet east of the intersection of the Briley Road with the Alpines Road, runs thence North twenty-eight-ten (28-10) East eight hundred fifty-four (854) feet to an iron stake; thence South eighty-six-twenty (86-20) East one hundred eleven and five-tenths (111.5) feet to an iron stake; thence South twenty-eight-ten (28-10) West eight hundred fifty-one (851) feet to an iron stake in the northern edge of the Briley Road; thence North eight-ten (8-10) West one hundred twelve (112) feet to the BEGINNING, containing one and ninety-nine hundredths (1.99) acres, according to a survey made by Joe M. Dresbach, R. S. January, 1947. This is the same property which was conveyed to John A. Mayo by J. Sam Fleming and wife, Mary C. Fleming, by deed dated January 30, 1947, and recorded in Book W-24 at page 329.

But this sale will be made subject to all outstanding and unpaid taxes and special assessments.

This the 30th day of August, 1954.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market turned lower today after a mixed and quiet start.

Prices in the early afternoon covered a range of around 2 points either way with the downside more thickly populated.

Volume continued rather low at a pace in the neighborhood of yesterday's 1,810,000 shares.

The second game of the World Series again exerted a dampening influence on trading activity. Youngstown sheet & Tube was hard hit by selling right after it was announced that the Justice Department had disapproved plans for merger with Bethlehem Steel. The price of Bethlehem was down but it was not the target for concentrated selling.

Some motors and oils were strong early in the session, but they subsided later. A few higher priced oils, however, clung to their gains.

Chrysler, at the top of the most active list on Tuesday and Wednesday with a total gain of 3%, opened today on 7,000 shares up 1/2 at 69 1/2. It had difficulty, however, in holding to that price.

CHICAGO — USDA — Salable hogs 7,000; general trade active; butchers steady to a full 25 higher than Wednesday's average; hogs largely steady; instances 25 higher; bulk choice 190-280 lb 19.40-19.50 with a large share 19.50 and above; top 19.85; few choice 200-300 lb 19.25-19.50; 160-185 lb 18.25-19.40; a lot 130 lb 16.00; choice 300-400 lb 17.50-18.65; some 400 lb weights 17.75 or slightly above; lighter weights 18.75-19.00; larger lots 425-500 lb 18.75-19.50.

Salable cattle 2,500; calves 200; steers over 1,200 lb scarce; about steady; lighter weights and heifers active; unevenly steady to 50 higher; cows and bulls slow; about steady; weaners strong; choice to low prime steers and yearlings 24.00-26.75; several sales mixed good and choice grades 23.25-26.75; good grade steers 21.00-23.00; a load 950 lb utility grassers 14.00;

Last Rites Friday For Mrs. D. S. Morrill

FARMVILLE—Mrs. Alice Atkinson King Morrill, 74, wife of Dr. David S. Morrill of Farmville, died at her home here Wednesday evening about 6 o'clock.

Funeral services will be held at the home, 204 Church street, Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. LaFon Vereen, Methodist minister, and Rev. H. L. Davis of Warrington, a former pastor of Farmville Methodist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Forest Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Morrill was born in Pitt county and spent her entire life in the Farmville community. She was a lifelong member of the Methodist church and a charter member of Benjamin May Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution, and an active leader in community affairs.

Surviving in addition to her husband, are one son, John King of Farmville and one sister, Mrs. Helen Horton of Farmville and two grandchildren.

Fountain School Objectives Set

FOUNTAIN—Policies and objectives of the Fountain school was the topic of discussion at a school professional meeting Sept. 20.

The discussion was led by Mrs. Laura H. Tanner, who based her remarks on the North Carolina Handbook of Elementary and Secondary Schools.

One professional meeting a month is held at each school in the county during the school year, with each teacher responsible to co-responsible for the program.

At the Fountain meeting ten objectives and policies for the school were set up and evaluated by the entire faculty.

These objectives include: develop needed skills; develop better manuscript writing throughout the grades; teach moral and spiritual guidance; meet needs and broaden interest; foster personal and community health and safety; teach wise use of resources; develop democratic citizens; continue to improve; provide adequate instructional materials; provide for guidance of children; plan special programs for exceptional children.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA) — Hog prices mostly steady. Tops of 20.00 at Kenly and Fayetteville; 19.75 at Micro, Elizabethtown, Siler City, Freeman and Clinton; 19.50 at Tarboro, Enfield, Hamilton, Beaufort, Tabor City, Whiteville, Kingston, New Bern, Benson, Lumberton, Rich Square and Woodland; 19.25 at Wilson, Newton Grove, Dunn, Burgaw, Bally, Lillington, Goldsboro, Warsaw, Clarkston and Smithfield.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Central North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers steady, farm price 21, f.o.b. plant price, few sales 21 1/2; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 50.

Asheville fryers and broilers steady at 20-21; eggs steady, A large 42-45.

Christmas Cheer Excludes Gloom

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP)—"Merry Christmas, Linda," laughed the merry fellow in the bright red suit, "Merry Christmas!"

Christmas came early for young Linda Cargill because doctors don't expect the 7-year-old girl to live until Dec. 25. She is incurably ill of leukemia, they say.

The excitement of Christmas filled the small family home last night. If there were any tears among friends and neighbors they were carefully hidden.

The room was literally filled with packages and gifts from all over the country. The festivities centered around the gaily colored Christmas tree which Linda helped decorate.

Wearing a crisp, new pink dress and with a ribbon in her blonde hair, little Linda cried with joy when Santa Claus burst into the room.

Santa handed the frail child a lovely bird cage with a live parakeet inside.

"Oh, Santa another bird!" she said.

Toys, candy, gifts galore were pulled from Santa's bulging pack. One neighbor brought a doll for Linda's rapidly growing nursery. Another brought a cake with a doll resembling Linda on top.

"That looks like me," she beamed.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cargill have not told Linda and her two brothers, Robert, 5, and Tommy, 2, that she will die. The early Christmas was explained by telling her she might be in the hospital when the real one comes.

Greenville Mart Has $57.39 Day

The Greenville Tobacco Market averaged $57.39 cents on yesterday's sales, Sales Supervisor W. L. Wheelbee said today.

He stated that 1,244,454 pounds of tobacco were sold for $714,241.70 yesterday to make the average.

The sales supervisor noted that the floors continued to be flooded with low grade tips and medium and low grade leaf.

More than a trillion kilowatt-hours of electric power will be produced annually in the United States by 1964, experts predict. That's more than double estimated production for this year.

Funeral Friday For Mrs. W. B. Pollard

Mrs. Rena Pollard, 84, widow of W. B. Pollard of King's Crossroads community, died Wednesday shortly after midnight.

Funeral services will be held at Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. D. W. Alexander will officiate. Burial will be in the family cemetery.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. H. E. Hathaway of Falkland, Mrs. Thelma Carlyle of Conetoe, Mrs. B. F. Everette and Mrs. Pauline Burgess of Tarboro and Mrs. B. Y. Briley of Richmond, Va.; six sons, B. F. Pollard of Rocky Mount, J. A. and Glen Pollard of Greenville, L. E. and G. T. Pollard of Fountain and Theodore Pollard of Tarboro, and 32 grandchildren.

Judging Young Growers' Tobacco

Judging of tobacco entered in the Junior Tobacco Show and Sale was completed yesterday morning and prizes were awarded to the winners last night. Above are pictured the two judges, who considered the floor appearance of the tobacco, as they examine a basket of leaf entered in the show. To the left is Judson Whitehurst of Raynor and Harris Warehouse and Luther Finch of the government grading service. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Month By Month Highway Safety Rate Improving

CHICAGO (AP)—Month by month your chance of coming back alive from an automobile trip is getting better.

The National Safety Council reported today that August was the eighth month in a row in which traffic deaths have been cut.

The safety streak means a saving of almost 1,500 lives. At the end of August 1953 traffic deaths totaled 24,200; the same time this year they amounted to 22,780 a cut of 6 per cent.

August's toll of 3,330 was the lowest for the month since 1950 and a reduction of 10 per cent from August 1953.

"There is a real chance now to keep the record going for the remainder of the year," Red H. Dearborn, council president, said. "The big danger now is the tricky fall season with its changing weather and earlier darkness."

One hundred eight cities reported no death records for the eight months.

New Polio Cases Drop 12 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP)—New polio cases last week dropped about 12 per cent from the year's weekly high in the preceding week.

The Public Health Service reported today there were 2,344 cases last week against 2,678 in the previous week. In the comparable week last year there were 1,853 cases.

Last week's cases pushed this year's total number to 26,347, less than 100 below the 26,444 recorded up to this time in 1953.

However, the total is still far below the 38,982 cases listed for the corresponding period in 1952.

Farmville Attains $58.68 Average

FARMVILLE—The local tobacco market averaged $58.68 in selling 455,014 pounds of tobacco for $267,004.82 on yesterday's sales, Charles S. Edwards, sales supervisor of the market said today.

Edwards also reported that the Farmville market had sold 14,938,456 pounds of tobacco so far this season through yesterday. He stated that amount had brought $8,027,665.28 for a season average of $53.74.

The sales supervisor noted that the market is full today and is expected to be full tomorrow.

There are fewer than half as many independent banks in operation in 1954 as there were in 1921.

Pitt-Beaufort ABC Men Raid Small Bootleg Still

Pitt County ABC officers assisted Beaufort County ABC officers in destroying a 50-gallon steam plant distillery yesterday morning, Officer J. M. Ward said today.

Ward stated that the plant included a 50 gallon drum boiler and 30 50-gallon barrels of mash were found at the scene for a total of 1750 gallons of mash. In addition the officers found 35 gallons of bootleg whiskey at the scene.

The officer stated that the still was heated with bottled gas. He indicated that it was found about two and one-half miles south of Washington off U.S. 17 and was in operation at the time of the raid.

However the operators were not at the still site when officers arrived. Ward noted that the still operators drove through a cow pasture to the distillery site. A section of the fence could be taken apart to enter the area.

Participating in the raid from Pitt County were Ward, H. B. Lilly and Glenn Perkins.

The local officers also assisted Martin County officers yesterday in breaking up a still near Oak City. It was a 50-gallon unit and 200 gallons of mash were found at the scene.

Ward said it is a usual practice for ABC officers to assist one another in surrounding counties.

"We feel that when we destroy a still in an adjoining county we are keeping a lot of bootleg liquor from coming into our county," Ward said.
