Bonner's Stand Is To Be Commended

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner is to be commended for going to bat for the farmers of the tobacco producing areas in an effort to have the Philippine government remove the discriminatory restrictions against the import of flue-cured tobacco, and comply with the spirit of the trade agreement between the U. S. and Philippine governments.

The Philippine Islands are a long way from Pitt County, but it is obvious that tobacco imports by the Philippines have been of vital importance to Pitt County and other tobacco producing areas in past years. The Philippines had been the fifth ranking importer of American flue-cured tobacco until legislation passed by the Philippine Congress cut to 25 per cent of its 1950 volume the amount of American flue-cured tobacco which could be imported.

When the United States and the Philippines signed a reciprocal trade agreement in 1946, tobacco was one of the American items which was to be imported in the island republic duty-free. The 1953 act by the Philippine Congress does not in itself remove tobacco from the list of American commodities which may be imported duty-free as the trade agreement specifies; but it sharply curtails the amount of tobacco to American tobacco producers and exporters to have duty-free importation of tobacco into the Philippines if the Philippine government cuts the amount of the product which may be imported to a fraction of what it formerly was.

Particularly is this true when the Philippine manufacturers need to import American stocks in order to keep their production at a level which will meet the demands for their products.

In our opinion, Congressman Bonner was completely justified in serving notice on the Philippine officials he will seek to block a Philippine request to purchase ships from the United States at give-away prices, and likewise seek to block a new trade agreement requested by the Philippines, unless the unwarranted restrictions against American flue-cured tobacco are immediately removed by Magsaysay's

REFLECTION ON SOME OLD HOUSES
Yesterday in driving along a New England road, I saw, high on a bleak hill, a deserted house. The windows had been knocked out, the shutters torn off, the doors were gone, there were great holes in the roof.

Recently someone was telling me about a building which had become unsafe because the rafters had disintegrated with age. Again we often hear of houses that actually dissolve under the action of termites. As we look at the structure which is disintegrating from age and the house which is ready to crumble because of the work of termites, they both retain their attractive appearance. One would never suspect that there was anything the matter with them. But they are in just as bad condition as the stark, deserted house on a New England hill.

You recognize this, of course, as a parable. The poor chap on that hill is a lost soul, and everybody knows it, including himself. He can certainly be redeemed, but the chances are 100 to one that he will not be. But there goes a man into church—seek, intellectual looking, pleasant in every way to behold. And his wife—likewise. But the termites are at work, and all the foundations of moral stamina which generations built under their lives are ready to collapse.

And here walks another man past my window. He has not had a new idea in forty years. The structure of what he calls his mind is beginning to sag with age.

How They Blocked T-H Action

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—With amazing frankness, the American Federation of Labor's legislative strategists on the Capitol Hill beat now reveal in their annual report of successful operations how they connived with Senate Democrats to block revision of the Taft-Hartley Act at the recent session of Congress. It is a fascinating story of masterful lobbying.

Republicans are using the AFL's boastful admission to answer the charge by Labor's top leaders, who are generally supporting Democratic Congressional candidates, that the Administration bogged down on this issue.

With his inability to obtain authority to reduce tariff, President Eisenhower's other major legislative failure was his attempt to amend the so-called labor-management law.

AFL'S MASTERFUL LOBBYING—The AFL opposed the proposed revision because, although it admittedly "had a few minor favorable proposals," it was considered to be generally "objectionable." However, there was a possibility that it might pass in the Senate if brought to a vote, according to the AFL canvass, and House approval was virtually certain.

So, the AFL joined with Lister Hill, able Alabama Democrat, to have the bill recommitted to the committee, and buried, at least temporarily, Senator Barry Goldwater, Arizona Republican, helped Labor's cause when he proposed a floor amendment that would have turned jurisdiction over all labor problems to the states.

Northern Senators, Republicans and Democrats, resented the Goldwater scheme. Since 17 states, mostly in the South, have "right to work" laws inimical to the unions, the Yankee bloc feared that the Arizona plan would swell the migration of northern industries to below the Mason and Dixon Line.

It certainly would not be fair for the Philippines to have their cake and eat it too, and leave the tobacco farmers of this region holding the bag. The outcome of the controversy into which Congressman Bonner has projected himself in behalf of the tobacco growers of this region will realistically affect the economic status of tobacco farmers, and in turn the whole flue-cured tobacco belt.

The Reflector urges the people of this area to support Congressman Bonner in the stand he has taken in this important matter.

ECC Is Truly A Tar Heel College

No one has ever seriously questioned the fact that East Carolina College is predominantly an Eastern North Carolina school so far as its student body is concerned.

It is most significant, nevertheless, to note that 96 per cent of the student body at East Carolina are North Carolinians. We are confident no other state-owned school in North Carolina can boast a higher percentage of Tar Heel natives among its student body. At East Carolina during the present term there are only 98 students out of a total of 2,496 who are not North Carolinians.

The fact that 96 per cent of the students at East Carolina are North Carolinians emphasizes the great service the institution is rendering to this section and to the state as a whole.

In its rapid growth over a period of several years, East Carolina has not had to look to other states or principally to other sections of North Carolina for students. It has found countless numbers of young people in its "own back yard" who are anxious to attend the school in order to obtain a college education. Unfortunately, the institution has had to turn away, in the past few years, many hundreds of other young people who wanted to attend East Carolina, but could not obtain living accommodations on the campus or in Greenville.

When the General Assembly meets next year to consider the needs of state institutions, it should give careful consideration to the requests from East Carolina; and particularly so in the light of the high percentage of North Carolina's own young men and women who make up the student body at the school.

BOSTON, MASS. QUINCY PATRIOT LEDGER: "We may uncompromisingly believe that freedom and democracy will ultimately win the world struggle, but we would be foolish indeed to assume that this will hold true if we allow unity to be supplanted by disension, understanding to be destroyed by suspicious animosity, and cooperation and compromise to fall victim to rigidity and insistence on conformity among nations."

"Communism, most powerful of the present reactionary groups, depends upon military forces only as an auxiliary to its chief reliance, which is the deterioration of free institutions, the indifference of the masses, and revolt by well-organized and disciplined minority." Robert H. Jackson, Associate Justice, U. S. Supreme Court.

"I view with some alarm the rapid disappearance of one of America's most precious national resources—our native supply of plain, old-fashioned common sense." Benjamin F. Fairless, U.S. Steel Corporation.

BRAZEN ADMISSION—"We, therefore," the AFL report brazenly states, "permitted the debate to continue for a couple of days, and then Senators Irving M. Ives (R-NY) and Herbert H. Lehman (D-NY) sponsored Fair Labor Practice amendments."

"This, of course, put the Southerners on the spot because they were obligated to oppose this, and it also did the same for the Republicans, who, as a Party are supposed to favor the proposal. The AFL was opposed to an FEPC proposal being added to a Labor bill."

Finally, according to the AFL revelations, "We made arrangements with Senator Hill to offer the motion to recommit before any amendments were voted on, and, as all factions were fearful and more or less confused, they voted to recommit the bill, 50 to 42."

The AFL credits Senator Hill with doing a "magnificent job," since the pitting of Northern Democrats against Southern Democrats led every member of the minority to vote for the few times that the Democrats voted solidly on anything.

UNCONSCIOUS IRONY—There is delicious, albeit unconscious irony, in this frank acknowledgment of the Federation lobby's strategy and tactics.

For many years, labor spokesmen and publications have delighted in denouncing lobby activities at Washington. They have pilloried the doctors, the industrialists, the railroads, the bankers, the farmers, the power interests, etc.

Somebody Told Me

Talk While On Fishing Trip

Hurricane notice: Amateur radio station W4-DXJ (that's me) is temporarily off the air. Hazel, the inconsiderate dame, blew my 120-foot tower down, completely destroying two antennas and twisting the tower beyond repair. So for the time being, handling of overseas messages has come to a screeching halt.

Yesterday I went fishing with Roy Phelps, Troy Dodson, and Hilary Phelps. Even then, the water was too rough for fishing so we were back in by nine in the morning, having left at six. So the highlight of the trip was conversation. Roy telling his experiences in Baghdad and Hilary telling jokes. Troy and I were most often on the listening end. On the way back we listened to South American stations on the car radio. I asked Roy, who speaks Spanish almost as well as he does English, whether he thinks in English or Spanish when he's listening to Spanish. "Spanish," he said. "If I thought in English I'd never get it." But Roy did admit that when he first started learning the language he did think in English.

For Hilary I got the inside story on stuttering. Although Hilary tripped on only a few words during the entire trip, he does stutter enough to know plenty about it. "I used to be worse," he says, "but I changed my entire outlook. I decided that in spite of the handicap, I was really no different from anybody else. In other words, I learned to overlook the handicap in myself. And my family certainly helped me a lot. There is never an unhappy time at the Phelps household."

Hilary reminded us that when two stutters get together both will start stuttering and gradually as the conversation progresses they will get worse and worse. He says, "One day I drove up to a service station and the boy who came to wait on me stuttered. The more he stuttered, the more I did. He thought I was making fun of him and I thought he was going to drag me out of the car and beat my head in before I could convince him that I stutter, too."

The stutterer can be helped by the tolerance of the non-stutterer. If the stutterer's handicap is completely ignored, he gets along much better. And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

OLD-FASHIONED DAYS (Shreveport Times)
A writer in the Dallas Morning News suggests that old-fashioned ideas are back in favor. Relaxing in a rocker on the front gallery is recognized as good for tension, and young mamas are being told that it's perfectly all right to hold their babies as much as they wish. It may be that castor oil and application of a thumbstick hickory stick again will come into vogue as cures for different types of juvenile disorders.

We doubt that there will ever be any particular agreement as to how to bring up youngsters, or on just what the elders should do to preserve the physical, mental and moral fitness of the younger generation. It is pretty hard to overcome the argument of some olderists that in the "decadent days" people did look after not only themselves but their families, kept their churches going pretty well without concentrating everything on building programs, and in most cases managed to stay out of the penitentiary without having a battery of lawyers to show them how to do it.

There is not likely to be any meeting of minds between the school of papas which holds that the child should be brought up leniently because "I want him to have all of the things that I was deprived of when I was his age," and the school which contends, "I want him brought up in the same rigid manner that I was brought up. It did me good and it will do him good." Chances are the papas in the former group were not deprived of half as much as they think; probably of things they thought they wanted but shouldn't have had. Chances are the papas in the second group are not the magnificent men they believe believe themselves to be now; and if they are, it may not in any way be the result of rigid upbringing in their teenages.

But there is a trend—although we cannot evaluate its scope—toward a return to the old-fashioned not only as to children but in many other things. Perhaps sassafras tea will be in vogue again and considered almost as essential as sulphur and molasses in the springtime of years long past.

If things keep up this way the time may come when every young mother will be told by her doctor that there are two ways to make a baby stop crying: One, known as the slow method, is to go on back to the baking and let the child cry it out. The other, the high-speed and sure-fire method, is to tie a piece of bacon rind around its neck and let the baby suck on it. This is guaranteed to stop crying in less than 10 seconds, whether the baby does or does not have teeth.

Non-Voting Voters To Play Dominant Role In November

By LYNN NISBET
STAY AWAY — It becomes increasingly apparent that the result of the November election will be determined largely by the eligible voters who do not go to the polls. There are three million men and women in North Carolina who can meet the tests of eligibility for registering. Almost a million of them are not registered, and hence cannot vote at all. Of the two million on the books only about two thirds of them voted in 1952—the largest vote ever cast, brought out by the intense presidential campaign. In that election 31,000 who voted for President did not bother to vote for Governor or any State officers.

With no President or Governor on the ballot this year, the top estimate of votes to be cast runs around 900,000—and that estimate is based upon an especially heavy turnout in the ninth and tenth congressional districts. Many observers think the total will not exceed 750,000, or about 40 per cent of the potential. The 50 per cent to 60 per cent who do not vote will therefore have as much influence on results of the election as those who do. Stated another way, the Democrat or Republican who fails to go to the polls is casting a half vote for the opposition party.

This point was touched upon by Congressman Charlie Deane at the Sanford rally the other day, when he urged the Democrats in the eighth district to turn in the biggest vote and consequently the biggest Democratic majority in history. Party organizations are putting out a lot of effort to get their own partisans to the polls, and these efforts are supplemented by various civic club activities urging everybody to vote, regardless of party affiliation. Similar efforts have increased the totals in previous years and may do it again.

DEANE — Congressman Deane told the assembled Democrats from his district that the Republican administration at Washington is characterized by fear, confusion and political maneuvering. He said one evidence of this was the lessening of restrictions in the new farm program immediately after the Maine election.

He told of visiting Dr. Hugh Bennett, now in retirement at Wadesboro. Dr. Bennett is the man who developed the soil conservation program. He said after leaving his job with the Federal government he was called to Brazil to inaugurate a soil conservation policy there. Upon his return to the United States he discovered that while he was trying to help the South Americans save their land the administration in Washington was tearing down the great conservation program which had been set up for his own country.

NEW TACK — Chairman John D. Larkins Jr., is trying a new tack this week in presenting the speakers at the party rallies. Last week he saved Senatorial Candidates Ervin and Scott for the last, considering that the place of honor. Some of the fellows who are not on the ballot this fall used so much time talking the big candidates had little opportunity to say anything, and on one or two occasions Scott

Candy Spending Dip

By ELMER ROESSNER
The average American is spending less for candy, liquor, beer and pop. The decline in unemployment and the fear of overweight are obvious reasons. But there may be other ones.

Spending for candy went down $10.56 per person in 1953 down $10.11 last year, and the rate has probably declined even more since then. Whisky consumption, judged by tax-paid withdrawals, is running 4 per cent under last year. Beer purchases are down about 1 per cent. Soft drink sales are slightly below 1953 levels.

Moderate summer temperatures had some effect on soda pop and beer sales. Lay-offs undoubtedly affected liquor and candy sales, as well as those of lighter beverages. Men out of work watch pennies; those employed become a little cautious when neighbors are laid off.

It is difficult to determine how much dieting had to do with the drop in candy and drink sales, but it is significant that the decline was most moderate in the soft drink field, where low-calorie concoctions are heavily promoted.

The National Association of Tobacco Distributors, which has a big equity in the candy business, does not believe that diet and employment are entirely to blame. This association conducted the research that disclosed the 45-cents-per-person drop in candy sales in 1953. The decline occurred before the drop in employment and before dieting reached its present proportions.

The tobacco association puts part of the blame on the candy industry's marketing methods. There was a marked concentration of candy products in fewer retail outlets, it says. While manufacturers' prices were rising, wholesale and retail prices were declining, it points out. And on top of that, candy manufacturers failed to do enough advertising to presell their products to consumers, it charges.

The association agrees that diet fads, and distorted impressions of the effects of candy on teeth

Pretzels Are Still Flourishing

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Everything has to have a new twist today, and the pretzel is no exception. Since this is National Pretzel Week (as if you didn't know), I went to a national convention of the industry and found that pretzels are flourishing like crabgrass.

The hand-twisted pretzel is a slowly vanishing art form. Lady pretzel twisters are crowding out the men from the field, and new pretzel-tying machines are replacing them both.

"Only about 20 per cent of our pretzels are now made by hand," said Alex V. Tisdale, executive secretary of the National Pretzel Bakers Institute.

A real expert can still twist pretzels as fast as a machine can tie them—about 60 a minute. But the machines seem to like the work better. Human pretzel twisters sometimes get knots in their stomach after a few years. The best pretzel twisters are usually nervous people, and the more pretzels they twist the more nervous they become. They get the bends.

The industry had a 6-million-dollar output. This year America's 90 pretzel manufacturers expect a 60-million-dollar business, next year 70 million.

"That means about 18 billion pretzels, or a pound and a half for every person in the United States," said Tisdale happily. "People sometimes get the idea that pretzels are only for beer drinkers. That isn't true at all. Housewives and children are a big market."

"Pretzels are fine for stuffing poultry, making crumb pie and pretzel bread, and they go well with raw oysters."

"They have a relatively low calorie content—only about 16 calories to a pretzel. "If the beer drinkers were our only customers, we'd have gone out of business during prohibition."

In Philadelphia, known for its brotherly love, they even have a pretzel sundae—made of ice cream thick chocolate sauce, and crumbled pretzels.

Here are a few historical facts about the pretzel: It was invented, according to legend, by a monk about 610. He baked bits of dough, molded in the form of arms folded in an attitude of prayer, and gave them to children who had learned their lessons well. He called them "pretzels—or little rewards"; and Austrians converted the name to pretzels.

In the 16th century besieging Turks thought up a half-baked scheme to capture Vienna by burrowing beneath its great walls at night.

They overlooked the fact that bakers twisted pretzels and baked bread during those hours. Hearing of the scraping of the tunneling Turks, the bakers dug work in their cellars, dug tunnels themselves until they met the enemy and routed them.

To reward their valor, the king gave them no dough but awarded the bakers their own coat of arms—a stalwart pretzel upright between two menacing lions. This sign is still used by many bakers throughout the world as an emblem of their trade.

The first commercial pretzel in America was baked by Julius Sturgis 1861 in Littitz, Pa., and today there are still 58 pretzel manufacturers in Pennsylvania alone.

"If all the pretzels produced this coming year were poured into one cellophane bag," said Tisdale, shaking his head "it would weigh 180 million pounds. Think of that!"
Why just think of it? Let's do it!

Captured Island Then Moored It

BOLTON, Conn. (AP)—Connecticut Fish and Game Dept. says that capturing an itinerant island was the "strangest assignment."

It happened during a heavy storm when the island in Bolton Lakes broke loose. As it bumped along the shore, it destroyed boats and knocked down docks. Conservation officers finally used outboard motorboats to shove the island against the shore. There it was moored with heavy ropes. The island measured 125 feet long, 75 feet wide and six feet deep. It consisted of a mass of tangled vegetation, some small trees and a thick growth of brush.

Water - Cooled Corn Is Tested

ALLEGAN, Mich. (AP)—Hydro-cooled sweet corn is being tested here. J.A. Bishop Sr., and his three sons, say the process gets the corn to market garden fresh.

Hydro-cooling simply means putting the freshly picked corn in 32-degree water to reduce field heat which sometimes reaches 85 to 90 degrees. Then it is sorted, graded and packed in ice for shipment to retail dealers who display the corn under refrigeration as part of the experiment.

Few Listeners For Propaganda

TOKYO (AP)—Chinese Communist propaganda broadcasts to Japan are listened to by only one per cent of the nation's radio owners, says the Metropolitan Police Department.

It said the Communists were "frantically" trying to get more listeners. Peiping radio has switched frequencies and has toned down some of its anti-American and anti-Japanese government propaganda, which aroused antagonism in Japan.

SOMETIMES MISSING
DES MOINES (AP)—A mother, watching her 7-year-old daughter wash the dishes, said appreciatively, "You must have Jesus in your heart."

"He's there now," said the girl. "But sometimes He takes little trips."

Roman forces occupied Britain for nearly 400 years early in the Christian era.

Higher Rates On Papers Approved

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Utilities Commission yesterday approved higher rates for newspapers hauled by bus, effective Nov. 10.

The rates are based on a new mileage-weight formula. At present, the rate is .0125 cents per pound regardless of distance with a minimum of five cents per bundle.

The Assn. of North Carolina Dailies protested the increase at a hearing before the commission last August. The newspapers admitted the increases did not amount to much dollarwise, but contended the percentage increase was too great.

The commission said the increases will be very large in some instances and very small in others, depending on the weight of newspaper bundles and the distance hauled. Overall, it said, the increase is "just and reasonable."

"Newspapers have not heretofore paid their proportionate part" of the cost of bus transportation, the commission's order stated. It pointed out that operating costs for bus companies are going up while revenue from passenger traffic is declining.

There are 16 weight brackets and 12 mileage brackets under the new rate schedule. Newspapers testifying at the hearing said the increase would up their transportation costs from about $2.25 a week for the Elizabeth City Daily Advance to about $20 per week for the Charlotte Observer.

It costs about $30 per pupil transported to provide school bus service in the United States.

The Way of Wisdom SOLOMON SHOWS HOW, WITH GOD'S HELP, IT SMOOTHS OUR PATH THROUGH LIFE

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. PROVERBS is the first book in the Bible to state the author's name at the beginning. Solomon's name is also mentioned as author of the 3,000 Proverbs in I Kings 4:30-32. Solomon reigned about 950 B.C.

It has been suggested that the teachers of the younger classes might be shown maps or charts or road maps such as travelers use when they go on a journey to show them the roads to travel to get to their destination. If we try to follow the directions given by Solomon in our own lives, with God's help, in our relations with others, life will be smoother and more satisfactory in every way.

Wisdom is the state of being able to decide to do the right thing, whether it is physical, moral or intellectual. This may be explained to the very young in simple terms. It is wise to obey one's parents, the rules of school, safety rules when crossing a busy street; and to watch all our words and actions in our relations with others.

Our lesson begins with the words from Proverbs 3: "My son, forget not my law; but let thine heart keep my commandments; for length of days, and long life, and peace, shall they add to thee."

MEMORY VERSE "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding; in all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths."—Proverbs 3:5-6.

heart keep my commandments; for length of days, and long life, and peace, shall they add unto thee. "Let not mercy and truth forsake thee; bind them about thy neck; write them upon the table of thine heart; so shalt thou find favor and good understanding in the sight of God and man."

And then, most important, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths."

Obedience to the laws of health, which we should study, practicing sobriety, temperance, chastity, industry, contentment, amiability, control of temper and passions, will bring the long life and peace that Wisdom promises. In these two, we are following the divine law.

"Let not mercy and truth forsake thee; bind them about thy neck; write them upon the table of thine heart. So shalt thou find favor and good understanding in the sight of God and man."

To try to understand our fellow human beings; not judging them too harshly, even when we do not like what they do or say, we shall show mercy. In all our relations with those with whom we come in contact, if we follow this law of God's, we shall be happier in our lives and win more friends.

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding;" is a warning. We may sometimes find the going hard, but if we trust in

Next week—Oct. 18-24—is National Bible Week. We need a rebirth of moral and spiritual values in our troubled world. To observe this week, daily Bible readings in the home would be helpful and appropriate. They could be short to fit into a busy schedule.

Greenville High Game Cancelled

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville High School this morning announced tonight's game against loop-leading Elizabeth City has been postponed until Saturday night or Sunday night due to storm conditions.

The Yellow Jackets are riding high atop the pack along with the New Bern Bears but three other teams are hot in pursuit. A loss to the Yellow Jackets would almost eliminate the Phantoms from the race whereas a loss by the Yellow Jackets would virtually do the same to them. In every respect, there is much hanging in the balance.

For the G-men it is a special occasion to play their best ball. It's homecoming for the Phantoms and that will fire them up even more. Coach Bill Kittrell's crew also is eager to amend the loss handed to them by the Jackets last year.

Cosch Kittrell is expected to go with a different line-up than what he usually starts with. He has promoted Billy Johnson to starting left end and has Jerry Drum as the starting quarterback. Bob Howell has been shifted to fullback. Coach Kittrell moved Howell away from the quarterback slot to give more passing ability to the attack. Drum, a junior sharp-shooter, has been passing impressively of late.

The starting of Johnson came as no surprise as the junior end has improved to the point where he is called the best defensive player on the team.

The starting line-up for the G-men will have Johnson and Harold Edwards at ends, Howard King and Tommy Smith at tackles, Harris Northrop and Pete West at guards, and Larry Powell at center. The backfield will have Drum at quarterback, Howell at fullback and James Speight and Mitchell Johnson at halfbacks.

Game time is at eight o'clock in ECC stadium.

Reds Top Blues In Midget Play

Charles Roberts raced 30 yards around right end in the fourth quarter yesterday afternoon for the deciding touchdown as the Reds beat the Blue 13-7 in Midget League action.

The teams were locked in a 7-7 dogfight until Roberts broke loose on his scoring play. Joe Moyer went over for the first touchdown for the Reds from four yards out. Roberts added the extra point. That was all the Red scoring until the final period.

The Blue team scored in the first half when John Boyd raced 7 yards for a score. Harry Forbes added the extra point, but from there on out the Red team held command.

For the Red team which now has a 2-1 record, Moyer, Roberts, and John Adams led the show offensively. On defense Moyer, Lewis Arthur, and Donnie Joyner stood out for Coach Warren Carroll's team.

Erskine Duff drew special praise from his coach for his play at defensive end for the Blue team. Duff led the defense with Boyd and Coleman Rufin sparking the offense.

The Blues now have an 0-3 record.

Bucs In Top Shape For W. Carolina

Coches Jack Boone, Jim Mallory and Earl Smith yesterday worked the East Carolina Pirates on polishing their offensive attack, both on the ground and through the air, preparing for Western Carolina's Catamounts tomorrow afternoon.

The drill was spirited although there was no contact work. The players seem to be in good physical condition. Only Bucs who'll miss the game because of injuries are Gaither Cline, center, and Al Owens, end. Cline had the stitches removed yesterday from the leg cut in the Catawba game. Owens still has the cast on his broken leg.

Coch Boone has announced that Boyd Webb, the number 1 quarterback when the season opened, will start at that post. "This will be his first start since the West Chester game in which he received a bruised hip. Claude King, senior fullback, will get the nod at his old position. He has missed the last four games. The remainder of the line-up will be the same as the club fielded against Elon: J. D. Bradford and Larry Rhodes, ends; Willie Holland and George Tucker, tackles; Don Burton and David Lee, guards; Louis Hallow, center; and Tippy Hayes and Emo Boado, halfbacks.

Coch Boone rates Coach Tom Young's team tough. The Catamounts got a lift with their sound 26-13 trouncing of Catawba last week. They'll be out to make it two straight and dim some of the lust of East Carolina's Homecoming.

The Catamounts were to arrive in Greenville this afternoon. They're bringing a contingent of 40 players. Coach Young will put them through a short limbering up drill tonight.

Leahy Fine, But Irish Better Not Lose Any More

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Frank Leahy said today that retirement from coaching had given him his best health since 1941—but Notre Dame had better not lose any more games.

"I feel the greatest I ever have," the former Irish coach told a reporter. He admitted that the second half of the Notre Dame Purdue game brought on some sympathy pains for his successor, Terry Brennan.

"I thought sitting up in the stands would cure me of that 't' htening up but I got awfully tense when our lads got way behind," he said.

Leahy is here for the filming of six more television programs. He is host-narrator on a series called "The American Story" in which drama is keynoted instead of football. The program will make its debut Nov. 9 on the Cavalcade of America show.

Weighting 220 pounds, U.C.L.A. tackle Jack Eilena is a former lumberjack from Susanville, Calif., and is a college heavyweight wrestling champion.

More Baseball Managers In Line To Fall By Wayside

By REN PHLEGAR
The Associated Press

The major league managerial merry-go-round is spinning at the fastest clip in history with a chance that two more baseball bosses may be taken for a ride in the near future.

Since the 1953 World Series, 10 of the 16 clubs have changed managers, two of them twice.

The latest switch came suddenly in Philadelphia yesterday where the Phillies named Mayo Smith, a greying stranger from the New York Yankees minor league farm system, to replace Terry Moore. Moore had been around only since July 15, when he took over from Steve O'Neill.

Cincinnati started the dizzy whirl a year ago in September by picking Birdie Tebbets to succeed Rogers Hornsby. Then came Eddie Joost for Jimmy Dykes on the Philadelphia Athletics, Dykes for Marty Marion at Baltimore and Walt Alston for Charlie Dressen at Brooklyn.

Action lulled until late March, when the Chicago Cubs replaced Phil Cavarretta with Stan Hack. O'Neill was fired in mid-July. Baltimore lured Paul Richards away from the Chicago White Sox in mid-September and Marion replaced him. As the season ended Washington fired Bucky Harris and brought Dressen back to the majors.

Harris was jobless only a week before being hired to replace Freddie Hutchinson at Detroit. Then the Boston Red Sox switched from Lou Boudreau to Pinky Higgins.

Still on the hot seat are Alston at Brooklyn and Joost with the Athletics. Joost is sure to go if the A's switch to Kansas City becomes official. Alston's fate will be decided on or before Nov. 29, the Brooklyn management has announced.

The 10 teams which have joined the whirl so far top by two the previous high for a single year.

The appointment of Smith, the newest new man, came as a total surprise in Philadelphia although Moore's personal future had been uncertain. The 39-year-old mild-mannered Southerner managed Birmingham to third place in the Southern Assn. the past season.

His major league experience consists of 73 games as an outfielder for the Athletics in 1945.

General Manager Roy Hamer said Moore was dropped because he lacked experience as a manager and for no other reason. Reports persisted, however, that the former St. Louis outfielder's chances of continuing with the Phils suffered a major setback when he had a run-in with second baseman Granny Hamner last August.

Basilio, Gronik Fight Tonight

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Garmen Basilio, the No. 1 welterweight contender, and hopeful Alie Gronik of Detroit slug it out tonight for a crack at the winner of the Kid Gavilan-Johnny Saxton title match.

About 5,000 fans are expected for the nationally televised (NBC) 10-round scrap at the War Memorial Auditorium.

The Syracuse area will be blacked out.

Basilio has been itching for many months for another chance at Gavilan, who took the Canadian boy here in September 1963 on a split decision in a title go. If Gronik, 24-year-old Michigan welterweight champ, should take Basilio, he would be in line for a title match with the Gavilan-Saxton winner.

Baby Phants Take 18-0 Win In Elizabeth City

ELIZABETH CITY—Greenville's Baby Phantoms roared for three touchdowns in the first three quarters yesterday afternoon and then relied on their stone wall defense to hold the Elizabeth City Junior Varsity football team scoreless in an easy 18-0 win.

The win was the first of the season for the Greenville eleven against two losses. The entire team played aggressive ball and used Elizabeth City mistakes to their advantage whenever they could.

In the first quarter a blocked kick was recovered by a Baby Phantom on the EC 30 yard line. From there the Little Spooks marched to the 3 yard line where Joe Wingate plunged over for the score.

In the second quarter the Spooks cut loose their secret weapon, a double reverse with Charles Smith totting the mail, and the fleet halfback gained almost 40 yards to the 20 yard line. From there the junior G-men marched to the 11. Needing one yard for a first down, quarterback Charles Rumley called for a sneak play. A hole was opened so wide that Rumley waltzed all the way through for the score from the 11.

In the third stanza fullback Jimmy Kelley dashed 7 yards for the final tally to climax a long drive. None of the extra points were good but the Spooks led 18-0.

Kelly Barnhill, Edwin Wilkerson, and Angus Duff led the play for junior G-men defense. On offense John Ed Arnold and Charles Smith led the running attack. Rumley directed the entire show at quarterback.

Other starters in the Greenville line-up who played good ball were Johnny Johnson, Roy Martin, Al Crawford, Sam Nixon, and Bennie Perry.

Shoemaker Wins All Of Races

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (AP)—The only jockey to enter the winner's circle at Tanforan Track for the first five races yesterday was Wee Willie Shoemaker, the sphinx of the American track.

It was the fifth time during the Tanforan meeting that America's leading jockey has ridden four or more winners in a day, and it boosted his total for the year to 324.

The figure is high in the nation, but is far below the blistering pace "the Shoe" set last year when he established his world turf record of 485 winners.

Jeff Heath Had An Anxious Hour

CLEVELAND (AP)—Jeff Heath, former Boston Brave slugger who broke his ankle the last week of 1948 season and missed the World Series, spent an anxious hour after the last game of the 1964 Series.

Heath traveled from Seattle to New York for the first two games. He accepted a ride from New York to Cleveland for the third game. After the fourth game the fellows who drove the car drove off with Heath's luggage. They returned an hour later.

Villanova Boasts Star-Studded Coaching Staff

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Villanova University boasts a star-studded coaching staff for its football team.

Head coach Frank Reagan was an All-America halfback at Penn and then played pro ball with the New York Giants and Philadelphia Eagles.

End coach Ken Kavanaugh was an All-America end while at LSU and was later named to three All-National Football League teams while playing with the Chicago Bears.

Backfield coach Bob Snyder was a quarterback with the Bears and then became head coach of the Los Angeles Rams.

Line coach Otis Douglas was a mainstay of Eagles' championship teams and was head coach at the University of Arkansas.

Clean Sweep By U.S. Predicted

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Tony Trabert, newly crowned Pan-American singles tennis champion, expressed confidence today that the United States will beat Sweden and challenge Australia for the Davis Cup although Vic Seixas has not been playing up to form.

"Vic has had a rough season and was tired," Trabert said after beating Mexican champion Mario Llamas 2-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 in the finals yesterday. Seixas was eliminated earlier in the tourney by Llamas.

The American team showed its superiority over the Swedes in the doubles finals when Trabert and Seixas defeated Sven Davidson and Lennart Bergelin 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.

Rabbit Defying 130-Pound Dog

CLEVELAND (AP)—Mr. Courage, a 130-ounce cottontail rabbit is standing off a 130-pound Pyrenees dog out in Warrensville Heights, Ohio.

The rabbit was taken into the John R. Arthur Family two weeks ago and put out to share a 10-by-20-foot doghouse with Duchess.

Next day the rabbit caught Duchess fooling around with his lettuce. Mr. Courage placed himself in the door and since then has refused to let Duchess come in.

Tears for the Bride

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

DAISY BROWN'S place was indeed two houses past the church, where I'd left my car. A lighted sign on the front lawn said: "Brown's Tourist Home—Room 3 by Day or Week. It was a fairly large house, well kept, with a cement walk, leading to a wide front porch. A lamp with a rose-tinted shade glowed behind a window. I went up to the door and turned the handle of an old-fashioned bell. It made a startling jangling sound. Almost immediately a woman opened the door and said in a low, pleasant voice, "Good evening."

"Good evening, I'm looking for Dr. Mazzini."

"I believe he's gone out, but I'll see." She opened the door wider. "Will you come in?" She was a medium-sized woman, a little plump, but not unpleasingly so, and probably past forty although she didn't look it. Her gray-tinged hair held a crisp permanent, her skin was remarkably white and soft-looking, her mouth full and carefully lipstick. She wore a partially fastened quilted house coat and a pink slip, and held a honey-colored cocker spaniel puppy in her arms. The puppy squirmed and bit at her fingers with tiny white teeth.

I stepped inside, took off my hat and she closed the door. It was a conventional room, with conventional furniture; dark blue rug, maroon divan and matching chairs, lacey doilies on end tables beneath flowered china lamps, a small television in a corner, a glass-doored book case against one wall which actually held books. On a glass-topped coffee table before the divan was a china ash tray in the shape of a sea shell a metal box containing cigarettes, an empty Coc-Cola bottle, a half-eaten sandwich on a saucer, a miniature ivory radio.

"Please sit down," the woman said, placing the puppy on the blue rug. "The dog is a present for my grandson. Tomorrow's his birthday—he'll be five."

She laughed a rich pleasant sound. "No dog is nice until it's housebroken. This little rascal isn't."

I sat down on the edge of one of the chairs and held out a hand to the puppy. It stood on wobbly legs, its head cocked, regarding me with bright questioning eyes. "Come, boy," I said.

"It's a female," the woman said. "Her name is Taffy."

"Come, Taffy," I said, snapping my fingers.

"Excuse me," the woman said. "I'll see if the doctor is in." She left the room her robe rustling. The puppy pounced at my fingers, her little teeth gnawing viciously. "Nice Taffy," I said. "Good dog."

The small radio beside me was humming. The dial was lighted and I heard faintly the opening announcement of a news broadcast. Evidently, Daisy Brown had been listening, and had turned it down when I rang the bell. I leaned over and turned up the volume.

A man's practiced homespun voice was saying . . . Mr. Bishop was killed instantly, according to county coroner, Dr. Gerald Sweet, who said that the bullet, apparently fired by a hunter in the area, had entered his heart.

The newscast went on to detail how Ralph Hollis had been accidentally wounded while hunting that day, by a shotgun charge fired by Miss Judy Kirkland of River Road.

I turned the radio down and looked up to see the woman standing in the doorway. "That was too bad about old Mr. Bishop," she said. "I knew him quite well. I know Ralph Hollis, too, and his family. They are fine people." She shook her head. "It's about time the farmers here just closed their land to anyone hunting but local people. It's getting worse every year."

"Yes," I said, and stood up. "I understand that the Kirkland girl lives here."

She pulled her finely plucked brows together in a faint frown. "You can't call Judy Kirkland local, though. She's away much of the time and when she is here, she just causes trouble. She was always wild, and if I were her aunt."

She stopped and smiled. "But I'm sure you're not interested in local gossip. I'm sorry, but the doctor is not in. If you would care to leave a message . . ."

"No thanks. It was a business matter. I can see him later. Thank you for your trouble."

"It was no trouble," she said. "Living alone, the evenings get, well, boring. Of course, on Sundays, I visit my daughter. Her husband teaches history and coaches basketball at the high school. They'll drive in and get me in the morning. The dog is for—but I guess I told you that."

"Yes," I said. The puppy was tugging at my pants cuff and I tried gently to kick her away.

"Taffy!" the woman scolded. As she stooped down to pick up the dog I got a whiff of freshly applied perfume. She straightened up with the dog, which tried to lick her flushed face. "Behave," she said, "you naughty girl."

I backed toward the door. "Thanks, again, Mrs. Brown."

"She smiled archly in surprise. "You know my name?"

"A man told me downtown—when I asked him where Dr. Mazzini lived."

"Everyone knows everyone else here. It is really quite boring. I—I'm sorry the doctor isn't in. If you'll give me your name I'll tell him you were here."

"My name's Bennett," I told her. "But don't bother. It isn't important."

"I know you're not local," she said. "I'm not, either really. I was born in Toledo, and moved here after I was married. Maybe if you would come back later, the doctor might be here. I never go to bed early on Saturday nights, since the next day is Sunday, and I'm all alone here, except for the few tourists that stop, and the doctor, but I hardly ever see him. After Claude died, I started renting out rooms, and the doctor has two rooms at the back of the house upstairs. I kept the downstairs for myself, and it's really more room than I need, being alone and all but it's home to me."

"I suppose it is. Good-night, Mrs. Brown."

"If you're coming back, I'll tell the doctor when he comes. I'll be up anyhow. On Saturday nights I just stay up until all hours."

"Will you be back Mr. Bennett?"

"Perhaps," I said, thinking it might be the truth, if I couldn't locate Dr. Mazzini in the meantime.

I went out quickly and closed the door. A drive ran along the side of the house. I moved on the grass to a garage in the rear. Daisy Brown did not have a car, I thought, since she had told me that her daughter and son-in-law were picking her up in the morning. It was a one-car garage, and it was empty. Out on the street I didn't see Dr. Mazzini's blue Ford parked anywhere along the curb.

I left the Mercury parked in front of the Methodist church and walked back to the business section of Ridge Center. Most of the stores had closed, and the Saturday night crowd had thinned out considerably. There were now plenty of parking places around the square and the moon was high over the courthouse dome. A red neon sign over the sidewalk told me that I was approaching Dan's Place. I went in and was immediately immersed in the smell of beer, frying hamburger and tobacco smoke. Muted music came from a juke box in a far corner. There was a long bar, booths and tables. A television, competing with the juke box, was apparently emitting a fussy mystery drama featuring a handsome private eye in a slouch hat and a neatly belted trench coat. There were people in the place but it wasn't crowded, with only a lone man at the bar.

I sat on a stool and ordered a bourbon and soda. When the bartender brought it I asked him, "Can you tell me where Earl Seltsman lives?"

"He lives at the north corner of Crawford and Tymocktee, south of the high school—when he ain't staying at one of 'is farms." He leaned on the bar and grinned at me. "But if you want to see Earl, he's in the back room playing poker."

"That's service," I said. "Thanks."

ROUND AND ROUND

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP)—All day, whenever he stopped his gasoline tank truck, driver Frank Kary heard what sounded like a cat, but regular inspections failed to locate the noise. Back at his terminal, he had the machine jacked up. He found that a very small kitten had been trapped between a dual wheel and the brake drum. It was much bedraggled, but unharmed.

Energy Of Sun Offers New Use In Appliances

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The sun's energy can be used to power stoves and other household appliances. It can also be used in small solar-power machines for such things as irrigation, heating and cooling houses, and charging batteries.

Use of such appliances and engines will be widespread within five years. And businessmen are missing a bet by not looking into the possibilities of a new solar energy industry.

These predictions are made as a sort of aside—by scientists who are meeting here today with manufacturers, engineers and utility officials for the primary purpose of studying the industrial uses of atomic energy.

The solar energy use these scientists are talking about is for small-scale power units. They think these things could come soon, if industrial leaders would take them up. They contend we shouldn't wait on the big-scale developments planned for the future use of atomic power plants or large-size solar engines.

"There is a worldwide demand for small solar-power machines," up to five horsepower, for irrigation, heating and cooling of dwellings, charging batteries, and other ranch uses," Charles G. Abbot of the Smithsonian Institution says. "The demand is very keen in Australia, India, Israel and other semiarid regions, where fuel is several times more expensive than in the United States."

But he notes there are at least 150,000 square miles in California, Arizona and Nevada where the sun furnishes sufficient energy for such power plants during 300 days per year.

"At present there is no company manufacturing such units, though the demand is large and constant," Abbot says. "I receive several inquiries a week where such devices are available. I have to reply that they exist now only at the Smithsonian."

Another scientist at the National Industrial Conference Board's forum on atomic energy in industry has her eye on the housewife. Dr. Maria Telkes, of the College of Engineering of New York University, says small household appliances powered by the sun can soon be a reality in many parts of the world, especially those where conventional fuels are at a premium. These areas will be candidates in time for large-scale solar energy power plants. But within five years, she believes, small devices will be in use. Her own university is testing a solar stove.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Workmen left a street sweeper standing on a street in suburban Lawrence because they couldn't start it. But along came 7-year-old William Decker and he had no trouble.

The hotter...the better
Carbon has a peculiar quality—it's at its best when "the heat is on"

IN THE ROARING HEAT of steelmakers' furnaces, molten metals boil and bubble like water in a teakettle.

STANDING FIRM in the intense heat of many of these furnaces are inner walls made of blocks of carbon.

Because pure carbon laughs at heat—actually grows stronger as it gets hotter—it has become vitally important in making iron, steel, and many of the other things all of us use every day.

IN CHEMISTRY, carbon and its refined cousin, graphite, handle hot and violent chemicals that would quickly destroy metal or other materials. Today there are pumps, pipes, tank linings, even entire chemical-processing structures—all made of carbon or graphite.

UCC . . . AND CARBON—For over 60 years the people of Union Carbide have pioneered in the discovery, development, and production of many carbon and graphite products for both industry and the home. This is one more way in which UCC transforms the elements of nature for the benefit of all.

U. S. Plans Showdown With Korean Critics

By JIM BECKER
TOKYO (AP)—The United States government is fed up with Korean obstruction and criticism of American-financed economic and military programs for Korea and plans to bring the issue to a showdown in the next few weeks, it has been learned here.

Constant Korean complaining and what the United States considers lack of ROK cooperation has gotten under the skins of top American leaders in Korea and Japan.

They intend to start talking—and acting—tough. This picture emerged after continuing recent diplomatic and military talks between the two nations. It is based on interviews with leading American officials both in Japan and Korea.

The United States has offered Korea a package economic-military deal to build up the country's armed forces and its economy—and has put it on a "take it or leave it basis."

Highly competent sources here and in Korea say the United States does not intend to back down.

Tough old President Syngman Rhee, who has opposed the package, will have to accept it if he wants the aid program and the army buildup continued. American leaders are going to make it plain to Rhee that they expect Korean cooperation in exchange for the 700-million-dollar aid program and U.S. military equipment.

The issues between the two nations are coming to a head over the ROK shift of Korean currency to the American military.

The United States needs this money to pay its 100,000 Korean employes, but it wants the Korean at a more reasonable rate than the current exchange of 180 hwan to $1.

Black market rate of the hwan runs to 600 to 800 to $1.

The Koreans refused to negotiate the issue, competent American sources say, and finally on Oct. 1 refused to advance any more Korean money to the United States.

The U.S. military in Korea, rather than give in on the issue, may begin paying its employes in dollars or partly in dollars and partly in food.

The military money issue is only a part of the split. The United States is ready to combat-equip 20 divisions for Rhee—the job is almost complete—and leave equipment of departing American troops behind to outfit a reserve force.

But if Rhee continues to insist on his demand for 35 to 40 combat divisions and will not agree to the American plan for a reserve force, the United States might well keep the equipment of departing U.S. troops.

And until Rhee agrees to a strong American voice in where and how the huge aid grants will be spent, the aid program will not go into effect, according to highly competent sources.

These sources believe that any delay hurts the Koreans more than it does the United States.

The South Koreans main objection is to the purchase of any goods from Japan under the rehabilitation program. The South Koreans have never forgotten the Japanese, who occupied Korea for so long.

Koreans are so bitter on this issue that they once held up for several weeks the drawing up of a simple agenda for aid discussions.

The Korean argument is that influencing the United States to make Korea dependent upon Japan rather than giving Korea the kind of capital equipment needed to become self-sufficient.

Children's Day At Fair Saturday

Attendance at Pitt County's Agricultural Fair Thursday night was 3,152, the management announced. The free outdoor acts are scheduled to continue through Saturday night. A fireworks display will follow the free acts.

Manager Norman Y. Chambliss said attendance through Thursday was gratifying and an unusually large number of children attended the fair this year.

Pitt County School Children's Day, scheduled for Friday, will be held Saturday and white children will be admitted free up to 6 p.m.

Stormy weather today was expected to affect attendance at the fair, an official stated.

Ed Crump Still On Critical List

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Political leader E. H. Crump remained in critical condition today for the 10th consecutive day.

Crump, 80, is suffering from a severe heart disorder. His condition has become progressively worse since he was placed on the critical list.

Bandits Wanted Extra 65 Cents

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A pair of bandits had taken all of a liquor store's money from Miss Helen Jones, the clerk, when a customer entered and bought 65 cents of merchandise.

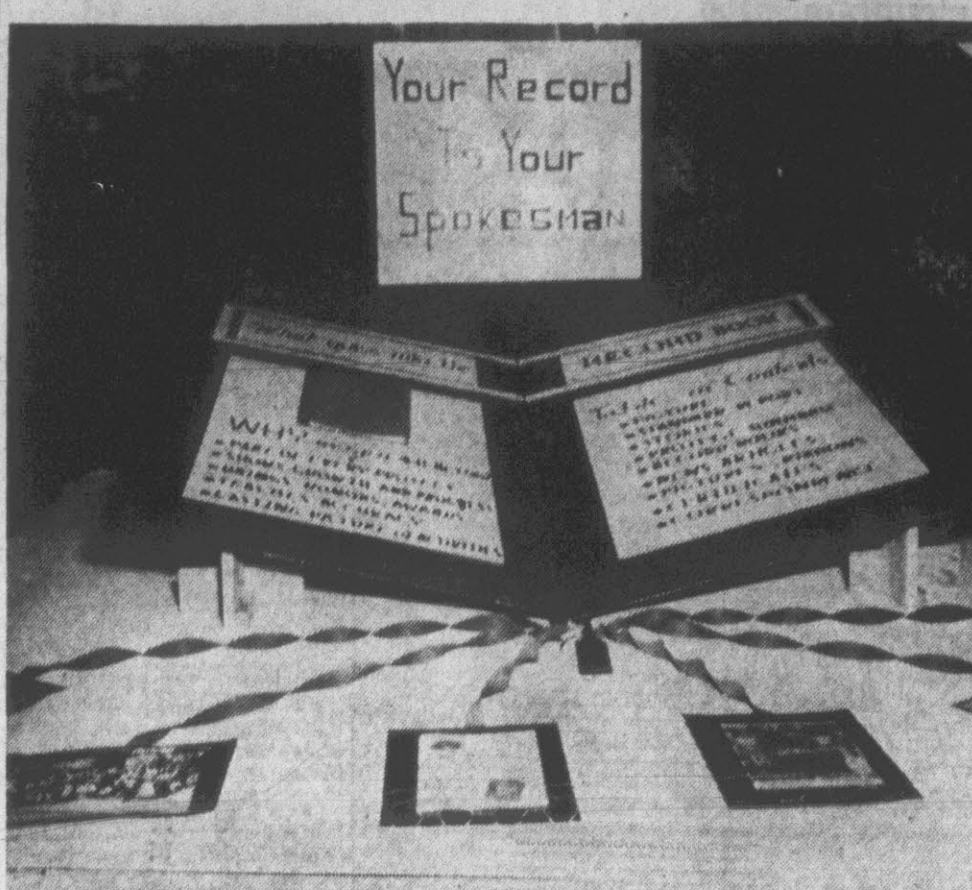

One bandit gave the customer 35 cents, took the $1 bill and both fled.

Another Blue Ribbon Winner Among Exhibits

The 4-H County Council was another first prize winner for its Pitt County Fair exhibit. Theme of the exhibit was "Your Record Is Your Spokesman." The County Council is composed of the officers from the 16 4-H clubs throughout the county. (Reflector Photo by Edwina Haymes).

ped about by the high winds, broke a window on the top floor of the State Bank Building. There were no known injuries from the falling glass, however.

Rides Disassembled
At the fairgrounds Manager Norman Y. Chambliss reported that some of the high rides will be taken down until the storm is over. He said this morning that the Ferris Wheel had been partially disassembled but noted that it would be put back up just as soon as the storm passes.

He stated that other rides would be torn down if it is necessary to protect them.

At 5:15 a.m. the National Guard was called out by a blast of 99 on the fire whistle. Captain Franklin P. Redmond, commander of the local unit, said it was the first time to his knowledge that the unit had ever been alerted by the fire whistle. He stated that the last time the unit was alerted was for the mobilization at the start of the Korean conflict when the unit went on active duty.

Redmond indicated that he was having the unit equipment checked over to prepare for any emergency. He stated that he was having members of the unit stand by at their homes in case the Guard unit is called on for assistance during the storm.

"Our job is to render assistance," the captain stated. "Actually in this type of operation it will be military assistance to local authorities."

Prevent Looting
He said that in the event of a power failure or other emergency the guard might be called on to prevent looting of local stores.

He also noted that the armory would be available to authorities for use as a clearing station or collecting station or "anything else they need."

The captain said at 5:45 a.m. that most of the Guard members had already called in or come down to the armory.

"We've got a few who live so far from town that they haven't heard it," he said at that time.

However, he noted an announcement of the alert was to be made over the local radio station.

Fire Chief George Gardner said this morning that it was the first

Star Witness In Speeding Case

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A cab driver in court yesterday on a speeding charge had lots of help—his witness was Edwin B. Meissner, president of the St. Louis Crime Commission and a former police commissioner.

The arresting officer testified that Elmer J. Fisher was driving 50 miles an hour. Meissner then testified he was driving behind the cab at the same time the policeman was and that Fisher was going 30 miles an hour—the limit.

Judge David W. Fitzgibbon of the Court of Criminal Correction said both the officer and Meissner had his respect, so he fined Fisher $10 and placed him on probation from the fine.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A cab driver in court yesterday on a speeding charge had lots of help—his witness was Edwin B. Meissner, president of the St. Louis Crime Commission and a former police commissioner.

The arresting officer testified that Elmer J. Fisher was driving 50 miles an hour. Meissner then testified he was driving behind the cab at the same time the policeman was and that Fisher was going 30 miles an hour—the limit.

Judge David W. Fitzgibbon of the Court of Criminal Correction said both the officer and Meissner had his respect, so he fined Fisher $10 and placed him on probation from the fine.

Teachers Hear ACC Instructor

Miss Rebecca Tomlinson, Atlantic Christian College instructor, gave a talk on art in the seventh and eighth grades at a meeting of the Pitt County grade teachers at West Greenville cafeteria Monday.

Miss Tomlinson gave numerous suggestions that may be used with inexpensive materials. She discussed woodwork, fingerpainting, weaving, and the use of clay and leather.

Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, supervisor of the county schools, distributed pertinent materials and made suggestions for the use of the new English book.

She emphasized that the teachers follow the book as written, use the manual, and pay particular attention to the summary of rules of grammar listed on the inside back and front covers of the book. She pointed out the book is set up to meet the needs of the different groups on the basis of reading, talking and working.

The teachers brought to the meeting copies of their schedules and reading groups with an outline of material for each group. They also brought a set of friendly letters which will be used in coordinating the instructional program.

A. S. Alford of the Mountain School was elected chairman of the eighth grade group.
