President Takes Off Again Today For Politicking, Speech Making

Two Major 'Nonpartisan' Addresses Scheduled On Radio And Television

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, barely settled back in the White House after eight weeks in Denver, takes off again today for a crowded two days of speaking and politicking in Connecticut and New York.

In between two major "nonpartisan" addresses, the President is expected to make a radio address to the nation on the 30th anniversary of the founding of the Jewish faith in America.

It is scheduled for 10 p.m., EST. But first Eisenhower planned to fly to Hartford, Conn., to receive an honorary degree of doctor of laws from Trinity College and to speak briefly.

Afterward, he planned to drive to Bushnell Park, across the street from Connecticut's State Capitol, to join in a 51st birthday celebration for Republican Gov. John Lodge, a candidate for re-election.

Eisenhower's personal plane, the Columbine, was due at New York's LaGuardia Airport at 2:30 p.m.

The Du Mont network will televise tonight's address from the Astor Hotel. NBC scheduled a radio rebroadcast at 10:30 and CBS a radio rebroadcast at 11:30.

The President originally had been scheduled to make only a few remarks, but this was expanded this week into what now is billed as a major "nonpartisan" address.

Tomorrow, the President hoped to boost the Republican campaign in New York state by a visit to the Roosevelt Hotel headquarters of Republican Sen. Irving M. Ives, now battling Democrat Averell Harriman for New York's governorship.

More than 500 Republican campaign workers including the entire New York GOP slate for Congress and state offices, will hear his talk.

Tomorrow afternoon, Eisenhower scheduled a conference at his Waldorf-Astoria Hotel headquarters with former Rep. Clifford P. Case, New Jersey Republican who is locked in a hot fight with Democratic Rep. Charles R. Howell for a U.S. Senate seat.

This appointment was viewed as a renewed expression of Eisenhower's support.

The President planned another major "nonpolitical" address tomorrow night at a dinner in honor of the late Alfred E. Smith, former New York governor and Democratic candidate for president in 1928. It is scheduled at 10:30 p.m. EST.

Eisenhower is due back at the White House Friday morning. He plans to go to his farm at Gettysburg, Pa., Saturday for a luncheon with Republican candidates in Pennsylvania.

The Citizens for Eisenhower organization announced yesterday the President would speak over radio and television networks from Washington the night of Oct. 28 in his drive to help elect a Republican Congress. He also plans election eve broadcast appeal for the GOP.

Halleck Praises Jonas' Record

NEWLAND (AP)—Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R-Ind.), House majority leader of the 83rd Congress, last night told 1,500 Avery and Mitchell County Republicans that the people voted for a change in 1952.

"The President deserves continued support of the people," he said in calling for a return of a Republican Congress next month.

"Why take a winning team out of the middle of the game?" he asked.

Halleck endorsed Rep. Charles Raper Jonas of Lincoln for re-election, saying Jonas is "one of the best representatives in Congress."

Indicted

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—Joseph E. Petersen was indicted today on three charges of unlawfully handling government defense secrets. He promptly pleaded innocent.

One charge is that Petersen, 46, long a trusted employee of the supersecret National Security Agency, used classified information in a manner prejudicial to this country and beneficial to another nation.

The indictment did not mention the Netherlands, which has acknowledged exchanging information with Petersen.

The Dutch government says it assumed Petersen had authority to give out the information, in a continuation of the close cooperation during World War II.

The first of the three charges against Petersen relates to copying and taking information relating to intelligence communications.

The second charge is the one involving the Netherlands government.

The third charge is that Petersen unlawfully concealed documents and papers.

The man and his dog stayed out of a small room on the Carolina Beach front. The room broke off from the main structure, he said, and floated some distance where it became entangled in fallen telephone lines and debris.

McEachern suffered a small cut. "I've always wanted to see a real hurricane," mused McEachern, "and now I've seen it."

Tobacco Industry Opens Big-Scale Study Of Effect

NEW YORK (AP)—A big-scale research program has been launched by the tobacco industry's scientific advisory board in an effort to pin down tobacco's exact effect on human life.

It will include lung cancer studies in 10 major medical centers, a wide survey of people's smoking habits together with emotional patterns and other factors, and a variety of experiments with animals.

The various research projects, to be financed with a $500,000 tobacco industry fund, were outlined by the scientific board set up to put the program in motion.

Its announcement gave only a general picture. Specific research grants are to be announced later.

Meanwhile, one researcher who has linked cancer with cigarette smoking urged that the tobacco industry concentrate efforts on producing a "safe" cigarette.

Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, statistical director of the American Cancer Society, said it is "nearly impossible" to prove conclusively whether smoking is or is not a factor in cancer or heart disease.

Dr. Hammond, addressing the ACS annual meeting, said there is hope of producing a safe cigarette in far less time than in showing that present types are harmful.

Carbon Monoxide Fumes Kill 8 In Rooming House

DETROIT (AP)—Deadly carbon monoxide gas fumes, seeping from a faulty chimney, last night killed eight occupants of a multi-story rooming house on the edge of Detroit's downtown district.

Nine other roomers were rushed to downtown Receiving Hospital for emergency treatment. Their condition was said to be "temporarily serious."

One of the victims was identified as Muroc Elmine, 76, of Detroit.

Hospital attendants said most of the victims were clad only in night clothes making positive identification difficult. Most of the victims were between 50 and 70.

Police said 24 persons occupied the three-story rooming house. Quick action by Joseph Filjakowski, 58, owner of the building, was credited with saving additional lives.

Probe Cause Of Dynamite Blast

RALEIGH (AP)—An investigation was under way today to determine the cause of a dynamite blast which damaged the Bryan Rock and Sand Co. at its quarry near Raleigh yesterday.

No one was injured. Flying rock smashed two diesel power shovels, conveyor belts, other equipment, and an office building. Unofficial estimates set the damage at more than $100,000.

Quarry Superintendent J. D. Roberts said workmen had made a "wall shot," a blast which requires the use of 32 sticks of dynamite. Then they stationed themselves a safe distance to await the explosion.

When the dynamite exploded, it was said, the explosion appeared to have gone straight up instead of up and away.

Dulles In Paris For Conferences

By JOSEPH E. DYMAN PARIS (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State Dulles arriving here by plane today from Washington, called upon Allied leaders to transform the "hopes of London" into the "realities of Paris."

Dulles arrived for a series of meetings which are expected to enlist a rearmament West Germany into the Allied defense setup as a member of a revived Brussels treaty and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In a brief statement at Orly airfield, the secretary cited the "vast network of interrelated problems incidents to the restoration of German sovereignty the joining together of West Europe for a measured defense and the solidification of NATO."

The secretary will meet British Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden, French Premier Pierre Mendès-France and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in the Palais de Chaillot this afternoon to end the Allied occupation of Germany and to restore its sovereignty to the Bonn Government.

Tomorrow Dulles will attend a nine-power conference to amend the Brussels treaty, and on Friday, with other members of the NATO council, will vote on Western Germany as the 15th NATO member.

The secretary described this series of meetings as "of decisive importance from the standpoint of peace, security and freedom in Europe."

He added: "At the recent London conference important decisions were taken as to how these problems should be resolved. Now the task is to translate those decisions into final executive acts."

"I am well aware of the difficulties of this task. However, the parliamentary and public reactions to the London accords provide new impetus and the intense and constructive labor of our experts mark good advances."

"Thus," the secretary concluded, "the hopes of London may become the realities of Paris. That will be our dedicated purpose."

The session to end Allied occupation of West Germany is expected to be a smooth one, but it was learned that at least two minor problems remain for settlement.

One is the definition of the emergency situation which would entitle the three Western powers to resume their occupation. The other concerns conditions under which the Allied troops are to remain in West Germany.

But American and other sources predict a prompt agreement.

Yesterday Mendes-France and Adenauer met for almost eight hours to discuss the Saar and a variety of economic subjects. Informants said the two made progress on the question of the Saar territory, which Mendes-France has tied in with a solution of West German rearmament.

British Shipping Paralysis Grows

LONDON (AP)—Striking dockers walked off the liners Queen Elizabeth and America at Southampton today, spreading the shipping paralysis that now threatens this island nation's food supplies.

Approximately 39,000 men—half Britain's waterfront working force—were out at London, Liverpool, Birkenhead, Hull and Southampton. Some union leaders striving to get the men back to work say the strike is being fomented by Communists.

Prime Minister Churchill's Cabinet may decide later today to use troops to unload ships—particularly those with cargoes of meat, butter, eggs and fruit—if the men don't return to work by Saturday.

These vital cargoes are beginning to rot in the ships.

The strike picture by ports: London—26,000 men out, including 4,500 tug and bargemen. Complete paralysis of the port.

Liverpool—8,000 out and 5,000 working.

Birkenhead—Entire force of 2,000 out.

Hull—2,000 out.

Southampton—Situation still fluid but nearly 1,000 men either refused to report to work this morning or walked off ships being worked.

A snap meeting called by unofficial leaders spread the strike to Southampton this morning after dockers there voted overwhelmingly at a meeting last night to stay on the job.

"Hurricane Hazel ruined us on attendance," he said. "On Thursday night we were rained out and we had only half as many as on Thursday night of last year."

Chambllis noted that 9,301 adults attended the fair on Friday last year along with about 4000 children.

"This year we did not have any," he said.

A breakdown of the attendance showed that 17,210 adults attended the fair last week and 7500 children visited the fairgrounds. In addition 3200 passes were given out.

"Under the circumstances, I think the attendance was very good," he stated.

Chicago Police Found Her Daddy

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Police Department's "lost and found" department found Mary Ann Perkins' daddy for her.

Mary Ann, 12, of St. Louis, wrote in a letter received Monday asking police to help locate her father. She said his name is Lee Perkins and that he is from Vicksburg, Miss. Her letter was addressed to "Police Headquarters, Lost and Found Department, Chicago."

Sam Perkins, a construction worker, told the missing persons bureau yesterday he is Mary Ann's father and that he would telephone her that everything's okay.

on the job.

About 700 workmen met near the dock labor board office this morning and a self-appointed leader shouted, "All who want to go out step over to the left."

When about two thirds of those present complied, the leader shouted, "Right, we are on strike. Another meeting here tomorrow morning."

Word of this meeting spread quickly to the piers and ships where men already were at work.

Shopkeepers predicted severe food shortages, especially of meat, butter and eggs, unless the 17-day-old walkout is ended by Saturday.

The stoppage is holding up 200 million dollars worth of exports and imports and poses a serious threat to Britain's whole economy.

Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton pledged the government yesterday to "any steps which may become necessary to protect the national interest."

Some 27,810 persons attended the Pitt County Fair last week, according to figures released by Norman Y. Chambllis manager of the fair.

Chambllis blamed the hurricane for this year's poor attendance.

"Hurricane Hazel ruined us on attendance," he said. "On Thursday night we were rained out and we had only half as many as on Thursday night of last year."

Chambllis noted that 9,301 adults attended the fair on Friday last year along with about 4000 children.

One Look, And More Heavy Equipment Ordered For Beach Job Army Begins Big Clean-Up

By NOEL YANCOY WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The Army took one look today at the tremendous cleanup job at battered Wrightsville and Carolina beaches and immediately sent a rush order to Ft. Bragg for more heavy equipment.

A combat engineer battalion of the 82nd Airborne Division which arrived yesterday went to work this morning clearing streets at the two beaches so that water and sewage facilities may be repaired.

"Now that the battalion commander has seen the staggering size of the job, he is sending to Bragg for more heavy equipment," Col. R. L. Hill, Wilmington district engineer for the Army Engineers, said.

"He estimates that at Carolina Beach alone the sand that must be moved from the street immediately totals 165,000 cubic yards," Hill said.

Meanwhile the toll of North Carolina storm dead mounted to 19 with the recovery yesterday of one additional body from Ocean Isle Beach. Previous reports said three bodies had been recovered yesterday.

The body was that of a man and state highway patrolman said there was a possibility it had washed up from a South Carolina beach. The highway patrol was contacting South Carolina authorities in the hope of identifying him.

The combat engineers joined thousands of civilians in the huge cleanup operation along the storm-smashed coast.

Col. Hill said the 300 soldiers—175 at Carolina Beach and 125 at Wrightsville Beach—hope to finish their work in about three days. Then they will move to other points.

"We expect to use them all the way from Topsail Island to the South Carolina line," he said.

He explained Wrightsville and Carolina beaches were selected first because of the greater populations involved at those large resorts.

Civilian residents of the two towns are not permitted to remain there after 5 p.m. pending restoration of water and sewage facilities.

Meanwhile Mayor Mike Brown of Wrightsville Beach said rapid progress was being made. "The day when Wrightsville Beach will be almost back to normal is not as far away as we first feared," he said.

Officials had high praise for private construction firms which put men and equipment to work on the beaches at Southport last Saturday.

Construction firms working on the huge ammunition loading terminal at Sunny Point moved in with heavy equipment and gave the town two days work.

The workers hoisted trees from houses, cleared streets of debris and put back in the water 16 shrimping boats and sport fishing craft.

Mrs. J. M. Harper Jr., wife of the editor of the Southport state Port Pilot, said "What they did was a lifesaver... it has taken the sting out of our trouble."

Meanwhile below Southport preparations were being made to start dredging channels so that large ocean-going menhaden fishing boats, blown up on land by the storm, can be refloated. One floating fish factory was blown high and dry at Southport.

The Red Cross continued to register persons seeking assistance and sent additional relief workers to Southport and Shallotte. It reported about 350 persons have been registered so far about two-thirds of them in Brunswick County.

At Myrtle Beach, 300 soldiers from Ft. Bragg joined civilian workers in the rehabilitation of South Carolina beach areas.

Col. Robert McCallum of the Civil Air Patrol urged non-residents who own property to reclaim personal belongings and other movable items from the beaches.

The North Carolina Hurricane Disaster Committee has recommended to Gov. Umstead that $655,000 be made available to Wrightsville, Carolina and Kure Beaches and other areas for repairing sewer and water systems and other essential public services.

The committee recommended that Carolina and Wrightsville get $200,000 each, Atlantic Beach $100,000; Morehead City $60,000; Beaufort $75,000, and Kure Beach $20,000.

A. O. McEachern, 85-year-old Carolina Beach resident, found the fulfillment of a lifelong dream in the hurricane.

The man and his dog stayed out of a small room on the Carolina Beach front. The room broke off from the main structure, he said, and floated some distance where it became entangled in fallen telephone lines and debris.

McEachern suffered a small cut. "I've always wanted to see a real hurricane," mused McEachern, "and now I've seen it."

Sen. Ervin Will Speak Friday To Greenville Clubs

North Carolina's junior senator, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., will address an inter-club meeting of Greenville's five civic clubs here Friday night.

Sen. Ervin's address is slated as "non-political."

The inter-club meeting will be held at 8:30 in the north dining hall on the campus of East Carolina College.

Ben L. Rouse, chairman of the inter-club steering committee, said approximately 270 members of the five local civic clubs are expected to attend the meeting. Arrangements for the meeting were made by the steering committee composed of representatives of each of the five clubs.

Members of the committee in addition to Rouse are: Henry Swayne and W. W. Speight of the Lions Club; Frank Strawn of the Jaycees; Dr. Howard L. McGinnis of the Rotary Club; Hunter Keck and Dr. John Reynolds of the Kiwanis Club; and D. C. Wade and Frank Harrington of the Exchange Club.

Rouse will preside at the meeting and Dr. Howard J. McGinnis will serve as toastmaster. Prior to the address by Sen. Ervin, a brief musical program will be presented by Dr. and Mrs. James L. White and Miss Janet Watson.

Sen. Ervin will be introduced by Jack Spain of Greenville, his administrative assistant.

Rouse urged all members of local civic clubs participating in the inter-club meeting to attend the meeting Friday night.

Sen. Ervin will arrive in Greenville tonight and visit with Spain. Tomorrow, Spain said, he and Sen. Ervin will be visiting in Pitt and surrounding counties, and on Thursday they will attend the First Congressional District rally at Elizabeth City. On Friday they will attend the Second District rally in Kinston, and return to Greenville for the meeting Friday night.

Mrs. R. P. Rogers presided over the business meeting in the absence of Mrs. Jesse Moya. A cordial welcome was extended Mrs. Warfield Syrett, a guest of the afternoon. Among the announcements, Mrs. Rogers emphasized United Nations Day to be observed October 24 at the Methodist Church.

'Pickwick Papers' Reviewed By Dr. Hirshberg

The Pickwick Club, a newly-formed book society, had its first formal meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. William Corbett. This meeting followed spring organizational planning when charter memberships were conferred and officers elected.

In March the following became members of the club: Mrs. H. A. Allen Jr., Mrs. L.M. Boyd, Mrs. William Corbett, Mrs. O. W. Dudley, Mrs. M. B. Massey, Mrs. Connor Merritt, Mrs. J. K. Proctor Jr., Mrs. C. Rowlett, Mrs. W. H. Watson, T. C. D. J. Whitchard, Mrs. A. J. White Jr., Mrs. S. T. White II. Officers elected for the year were Mrs. D. J. Whitchard, president; Mrs. T. White II, vice president; Mrs. William Corbett, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. O. W. Dudley, librarian.

At Tuesday's meeting Mrs. L. M. Boyd, program chairman of the club, introduced Dr. Ed Hirshberg, English instructor at E.C.C., who reviewed the life of Charles Dickens and "Pickwick Papers" for the group.

The hostess served afternoon refreshments prior to a short business session when books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Paper On Virginia Given At Round Table Meeting

Mrs. H. H. Duncan entertained the ladies of the Round Table at her home on Dickinson Avenue. The living room was attractively decorated with roses, petunias and gladioli.

The president, Mrs. Duncan, presided over the business meeting. Mrs. E. R. Browning talked very interestingly on the book she some day hopes to write.

Mrs. D. L. Moore gave the paper for the afternoon. It was a most informative one on the state of Virginia. Mrs. Moore took the club members on an imaginary tour of the state, telling of the historical interest of its many beautiful homes and of the many noted men born in Virginia.

Mrs. James Hughes was the guest of the afternoon. The hostess, assisted by Miss Lella Higgs and Mrs. D. S. Spain, served a delicious salad plate with coffee.

Circle K Members At Illinois Meeting

Four representatives of the circle K Club at East Carolina College are attending this week the International Convention of the organization in Carhage, Illinois. Circle K, student branch of Kiwanis International, has a large membership among men students at the college and carries on an active program during the school year.

Those representing East Carolina at the convention are Robert E. Julian, Greenville; Dalton L. Mann, Manns Harbor; Harold Colson, Hertford; and Howard Rooks, Turkey. Mann is a member of the board of directors of the campus organization of Circle K.

European Arts And Crafts Displayed At AAUW Meeting

Miss Lillah Gaut of the Home Economics faculty of East Carolina College talked entertainingly and informatively to the members of the American Association of University Women Monday evening on the arts and crafts of the European countries through which she traveled this summer, and showed interesting and beautiful art work of many kinds.

Miss Ola Ross, her companion on the summer trip, was also a guest, as was Mrs. Wright, sister of Miss Elizabeth Walker.

Hostesses of the evening were Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Miss Lela Brown Stancill, and Mrs. Janie Starling.

After the informal supper, the president, Mrs. D. S. Spain, conducted a short business session. At this time reports were made on U.N. Day activities, including a series of articles by Dr. Dora Jean Ashe and plans for taking part in the public program. At the request of the Arts Committee, presented by Mrs. Edgar Hirschberg, the AAUW voted to underwrite the expense of launching a Classic Film series for showing at the college.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Louise Williams, chairman of the Arts Committee.

Miss Gaut, who saw something of 11 European countries this summer in her travels from June 4 to Aug. 9, said that she saw the creative work of these countries through the eyes of a tourist, that she was not studying, but traveling for pure enjoyment.

After expressing her feeling that the art objects she had bought, created though they were in many places and under widely differing conditions, all show a universal love of beauty and help us understand better the people of these nations. She showed beautiful examples of arts and crafts in many media and from each of the 11 countries visited. The audience enjoyed the touches of humor in her running commentary as well as the beautiful objects of art which she had to show.

The meeting was held in the Mammie E. Jenkins Faculty-Alumni House at the college.

Women In The Church

Methodist women across the country — and on mission stations around the world — will observe their annual "Week of Prayer and Self Denial," Oct. 25-31. The annual offering, which in recent years has averaged nearly half-a-million dollars for projects of the Woman's Division of Christian Service, Board of Missions will go to support the Retired Deaconess Pension Fund in this country and to nine projects in India and Pakistan. In 1953 the Week of Prayer gifts amounted to $463,571. A deep and trailer for a hospital in India, mobile equipment for a rural dispensary, new buildings and equipment for schools, and Christian literature for adult literacy programs are among the projects to be secured through the 1954 offerings.

Speaking at a dinner under the auspices of the National Council of Christians and Jews in New York City, Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, former president of the United Nations and now India's high commissioner to London, said in part: "For America's greatest weapon is not the atom bomb. Your greatest weapon is your power to help develop countries that are underdeveloped. The technical assistance given by America to India is the greatest investment the United States of America has ever made. The U.S.A. will get dividends from that investment through the understanding of the 400,000,000 people of India. We in Asia can understand that democracy is equivalent to education to understanding one another, to abiding by the will of the majority, to better health, to better living conditions. Let us get together and talk about the good things of democracy. Let democracy stand up and take its chances with communism. If it fails, it deserves to fail."

The Department of Christian Social Relations and the Department of Work in Home Fields — agencies of the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church — have declared that schools maintained by the Woman's Division of Christian Service are expected to stand by ready to enroll students and appoint faculty regardless of race or color. We also accept full responsibility to work through all available church and community channels to speed the process of transition from segregation to a new pattern of justice and freedom and equality of opportunity."

The publicity director said the executive committee of the new organization is now making a study of by-laws for the club.

Other officers elected at last night's organizational meeting included: Ed Griffith, vice-president; Joe Dudley, secretary; Mrs. Jasper Tripp, treasurer. Committee heads include: Mrs. C. B. West, Jr., publicity; Mrs. Bill Sermons, entertainment; Mrs. Julius Whitchard, chaplain; Wendell Smiley, transportation.

The objects of the club as set forth in the proposed by-laws are: 1. To arouse and maintain an enthusiastic interest in the Greenville High School band; 2. To lend all possible support, both moral and financial, to the instrumental music program in Greenville High School; 3. To cooperate with those in charge of the music department to the end that this department be brought to the highest possible degree of efficiency. To build an independent thinking organization which will help build up the music program.

You Can Dance With A Robot, One Is Hanby

AP Newfeatures

ADA, Okla.—It looks like a cross between a helicopter and a maypole. It was conceived to help the lame walk again. And it has everything but sex appeal, if you can believe its inventor.

It is a robot dance instructor, a strange-looking framework of steel and aluminum that is supposed to remold any wallflower into a Gene Kelly or Ginger Rogers.

The thing is the brainchild of Ralph Holcomb, veteran inventor and one-time test pilot who developed a series of training methods used by the Navy in World War II, and whose silent "tactile talk" is being developed by the CAA into an international language of flight.

The patented device has six pairs of movable lights which are projected on a dance floor one pair to guide each pupil. Signal lights are taped to the feet of the dancer who leads. The lights are set to move in a pattern duplicating the leader's footwork, and to the beat of a steady dance tune.

It works something like the multiple check writer, except you move your feet instead of your fingers, and you're dancing instead of paying the bills.

Just put your feet where the lights flash and you're in step with the leader. Soon you get the rhythm and you're dancing.

So says Holcomb, and preliminary tests were convincing enough to get well-beeled backing and put the dancing robot into production.

This invention, like others by Holcomb, was an outgrowth of personal tragedy. His 5-year-old daughter was injured in an accident that caused paralysis and finally death. His father R. L. Holcomb, also of Ada, was crippled by a stroke, but with the aid of a device turned out by his son, is able to get about and even go fishing.

Moved by the plight of immobilized polio and other paralysis victims, Holcomb began development of the walking aid that now is teaching the awkward to dance. The technique, he says, is very little different from teaching the lame to walk.

"It will undo your frustrations," he says "banish your bobbles, get your feet on the beam, strengthen your legwork, steady your rhythm and prepare you in record time for advanced lessons in the arms of a master teacher."

School Band Boosters Organize

Frank Steinbeck was elected president of the newly organized Greenville High School Band Booster Club at the first meeting of the club last night.

The new booster club made plans to sell memberships in the club at one dollar per member.

"The GHS band is not supported by the state," Mrs. C. B. West Jr., publicity director for the group said today. "The state does not set aside funds for the upkeep of the band. It all has to be done with private funds. Those kids have sold stationary and candy and anything else they can get their hands on to make a dollar."

Mrs. West noted that the band had been awarded first place in their class at the Greensboro Music Festival for the past two years.

"Mr. Rodgers has certainly done a wonderful job with them," she said.

Mrs. West said the purpose of the club is to get people interested in the band and to let them know more about the organization. She said the group would assist Band Director James E. Rodgers.

She said the group plans to meet on the third Tuesday night of each month in the band room at the high school.

The publicity director said the executive committee of the new organization is now making a study of by-laws for the club.

Book of Luke Is Study For Atheneum Club

On Tuesday, October 19, members of the Atheneum Book Club were delightfully entertained at luncheon at her home on Evans Street by Mrs. T. I. Wagner. Lovely fall flowers were used throughout the home, forming a beautiful setting for the second meeting of the season.

Luncheon was served in two courses at small tables in the sun parlor and music room.

Following luncheon, guests were invited into the living room where Mr. Robert Moyer read a most interesting and enlightening paper on the "Book of Luke." This program was a continuation of the club's study of the New Testament.

Duo-Pianists Entertain Members Of Faculty Wives Club

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Tribble, duo-pianists, entertained members of the Faculty Wives Club of East Carolina College at a concert in Austin Auditorium last night. The opening number of the program of four numbers was "Adagio in C Minor" by Haydn-Berkowitz. The audience especially enjoyed the artists' interpretation of "Variations on a Theme" by Beethoven which was presented with skill and forcefulness.

Mr. Tribble teaches library science at the college and his wife teaches piano at her studio on East Third Street, Greenville.

Prior to the concert, Mrs. James Fleming presided at a short business session, after which Mrs. Charles Adams was welcomed as a new member and Mrs. Courtney Stromsta introduced Dr. Stromsta's

Feminine Curves Still In Style According To Spring Forecasts

Women who have been worrying about return of the flapper silhouette of the flapper era need feel no alarm about next spring's clothes.

Feminine curves are still in style, according to forecasts in early spring fashion showings in New York. Buyers who are crowding every showroom on busy 7th Avenue show definite expressions of relief as the 1955 picture becomes clear. Here are the highlights as they now emerge:

The long torso silhouette is the big news in practically all collections. Many new dresses which will be shipped to the stores in December and carry on into early spring will have either no belts at all, or the belts will be dropped to the hipline. This, however, is not as frightening as it may seem, so that the effect in most instances is flattering.

There are many pleated skirts, the pleats starting at a smooth hipline yoke.

The sweater look is much in evidence, knit dresses appearing in versions for every hour of the day and evening.

There's a relaxed look about many of the new styles. Waistlines are not as sharply nipped as in previous seasons—but the waist is still there, and carefully fitted foundation garments are going to be necessary to achieve the slender "long-stemmed" look that most of the clothes require.

A number of designers have their models wear new all-in-one foundations or long bras to achieve what is now referred to as the "French line." This is a slim, straight look through the torso, and a slightly higher bustline. The idea seems to make the midriff look longer and slimmer, many new dresses robbing the figure from bust to hips in one long, unbroken line.

Business Education Fraternity Organized On College Campus

Men students in the department of business education at East Carolina College have completed organization of the Delta Zeta Fraternity. Lloyd Whitley, senior from Sanford, heads the group as its first president.

The fraternity, professional in its aims has as its purpose the promotion of a closer affiliation between the commercial world and students of commerce and the furthering of a high standard of commercial ethics among members and of civic and cultural welfare in the community.

John Council Parker is faculty advisor of Delta Zeta. Student officers, in addition to Whitley, are Donald Umstead, Leaksville, and Jimmie D. Smith, Jr., Rocky Mountain, vice presidents; John W. Brown, Hickory, treasurer; George T. Pate, Bridgeton, secretary; Clarence E. Brown, Hickory, historian; James L. Thompson, Durham, ritual chairman; Russell S. Newman, Leaksville, social chairman; and David A. Evans, Norfolk, Va., publicity chairman.

ECC Faculty Members To Hold Symposium On United Nations

As a preliminary to United Nations Day, the Unitarian Fellowship of Greenville will conduct a symposium Thursday night of this week on the United Nations, its work and influence.

Speakers will be Dr. Hubert Coleman, Dr. Martha Pingel, Dr. Paul Toll, and Dr. James Poindexter, all faculty members at East Carolina College.

The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the Shepard Memorial Library in Greenville and will be open to the public. Dr. George Pasti of the East Carolina social studies department is chairman of the committee in charge of the program, and Michael M. Luskin of Greenville is president of the Unitarian Fellowship.

Dr. Coleman will consider the question "Can the United Nations, 'frozen in futility, divided by dissection,' bring peace?" Discussing "The Attack on UNESCO," Dr. Pingel will suggest an answer to the argument presented by the opposing views of this organization as a "propaganda ministry of international conspiracy" and as a "marshalling of spiritual and intellectual resources of the world for mutual understanding, help, and peace."

Dr. Toll's topic is "Weaknesses Built in the Charter." The work of the specialized agencies of the UN will be outlined by Dr. Poindexter, including the vaccination of a hundred million children, a world fight against tuberculosis, and multiplying the world food supply.

At the conclusion of these talks, Dr. Walter Krausnick of the East Carolina faculty will give a summary of ideas advanced by the speakers. An open discussion will give the audience an opportunity to participate in the program.

Idea Shouldn't Be Completely Discarded

The interest which Civil Aeronautics Administration officials—at least on the district level—showed in the now-abandoned joint Eastern Carolina airport, leads us to the assumption the project was somewhat of a pet of those officials.

We do not mean to imply that CAA officials instigated or promoted the idea of a joint airport for this area; but we do mean they showed a great deal of interest in the project's becoming a reality after the proposal was presented to them.

Judging by their interest, The Reflector is inclined to believe the CAA officials were interested in the joint airport as a sort of pilot project which may have developed into a pattern that could be followed by other relatively small communities in different sections of the country. There are doubtlessly many cities throughout the nation which in themselves are too small to justify commercial air service, and yet they are in need of that service, and are in close proximity to other communities in a similar condition.

Reading between the lines of a letter received by the secretary of the airport authority from the CAA district airport engineer at Atlanta, we get the idea that the CAA may still be interested in giving whatever assistance it can if new efforts are made to salvage the idea of an Eastern Carolina airport.

We doubt that a satisfactory new alignment of communities can be arranged in the immediate future to launch anew such a project. Yet, we consider the interest shown by the CAA a good indication that the idea of a joint airport for Eastern Carolina communities should not be forgotten completely. It is our guess the CAA still has hopes that such a project will become a reality. In view of that, it is perhaps unwise for the local government units and the people of this area to completely give up hope that some arrangements may be made in the future whereby the airport and air service may be had.

A Treaty To Strengthen Western Alliances

The signing of the Suez agreement between Britain and Egypt by which control of the historic canal is passed over to Egyptian hands should serve to strengthen the alliance of the free nations of the world in the Middle East.

British control of the Suez has long been a thorn in the side of Egyptian governments. The presence of British troops in the canal zone has caused bitter resentment against not only toward Britain, but by association, toward strong British allies such as the United States.

With the culmination of the treaty by which control of the Suez goes back to Egypt, the Egyptian government should feel—and indeed is—a more important part of the alliance of Western nations than it has been before. The Suez is an important link in the defense lines of the free nations of the world. The responsibility for keeping that link in the hands of free nations, and protecting it from communist seizure now lies in the hands of the Egyptian government.

With control of the Suez back in the hands of Egypt, we expect to see the source of much trouble in the middle east eliminated. We expect the treaty to strengthen, rather than weaken the friendship between Egypt and Britain; and likewise strengthen the relationship between Egypt and the other nations of the Western bloc.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LIFE TAKES COURAGE AND THOUGHT
Carl Van Doren, in his autobiography, says: "If this were fiction, I might say that I went into retreat to think things out. But it still is history. I have never in my life thought things out, nor have I known anybody who ever did. I have always had to live them out, thinking as I went along."

Some people think they can plan out their lives and make everything conform to a schedule. Everybody, of course, should have a plan for his life, but he should be well aware of the fact that this plan will have to be modified in many respects and perhaps utterly put aside in the interest of a better plan. As Van Doren insists, there is no such thing as going into retreat and thinking things out. What we have to do is to get into the thick of things and work them out as opportunities open up. There are times when quiet reflection on principle is the only profitable employment. But when the great situations of life are upon us, we cannot go into seclusion and think them out. We have to live them out, thinking as we go along.

Life is not an abstraction; rather it is a pilgrimage. There is something disconcertingly concrete about the whole of it. It consists not of nicely laid plans or carefully spun theories, but in perplexities, frustration, and a few overwhelming joys followed by a series of blighting mistakes, griefs, and triumphs.

National Whirligig

Poor Political Salesmanship

WASHINGTON—Secretary Ezra Taft Benson has failed to publicize properly and widely a key reason for the Administration's demand for flexible and smaller Federal payments for farm products in surplus production. It is another of many recent examples of blundering political salesmanship at Washington.

As a result of several roving newspaper correspondents' articles in the Eastern press—the unbelievable story is well known in farm areas—Benson's wheat experts now admit that the Federal bounties have led many growers to raise wheat that is unfit for flour milling or for human or animal consumption, except for pigs.

In order to collect more cash from Uncle Sam than they could in the market place, they concentrate on quantity yield rather than quality.

STORAGE BINS BULGE—Government storage bins now bulge with about 800,000,000 bushels of wheat, which is almost a full year's crop, and valued at $3 billion. With the government support price averaging $2.20, the total may amount to 1.2 billion bushels at the end of this year.

Wheat experts at Agriculture concede that a vast amount of this surplus, especially that which was grown for cash rather than for consumption, is fit (1) only for sale to the government, or (2) for feeding to pigs. Taxpayers will make up the loss resulting from the price paid to farmers and the eventual disposal figure.

Although Kansas has been singled out as the principal offending area because it raises a fourth or fifth of the nation's output, Benson's men say that similar conditions—that is, disregard of quality for quantity—exist in parts of Oklahoma, Texas and Nebraska. The itch to profit is contagious.

POINT TO LOSS IN WHEAT SURPLUS—Other

Disaster Aid Means Loans; Not Gifts

Disaster aid which is open to Pitt and other North Carolina Counties in the wake of the recent hurricane will not be in the form of handouts from the federal government.

The Small Business Administration has named 27 counties in the state disaster areas because of the hurricane, and thus made individual citizens in the area eligible to apply for loans to repair homes or business structures damaged by the storm.

The disaster aid, as we said, is not a handout from the government. It will be in the form of loans at an interest rate of three per cent, which is lower than the going commercial rate for loans of that type.

It should also be understood by the people of the 27 disaster counties that loans will not be approved on summer beach homes unless the dwellings were occupied by their owners year-round, or were rented and provided prime income for the owners.

In other words, the federal loans in this disaster area are to be provided to enable residents to replace their homes which were damaged or destroyed, or to rebuild their businesses or real estate which provided a primary portion of their income.

It will take considerable time for the SBA officials to sift through the many applications for loans which will be made under this program. It will be of considerable help to the officials and to the individuals whose permanent homes and businesses were destroyed in the hurricane if the office is not flooded with applications for loans on property not included in the eligible list.

factors point toward a tremendous loss on this expanding wheat surplus. Many millions of bushels are improperly stored for lack of adequate space, and will have to be destroyed. Foreign nations gladly accepted low-grade stuff when we gave it away, but now they buy in other markets.

The Bensonites offer several demurrers to wholesale indictment of the wheat farmers. The milling industry, they note, is sick because of smaller consumption of bread, cakes and other flour products. The new quick "mixes" thin out the retail market. Therefore, the millers can afford to be more "choosy" and selective in their purchases of wheat.

COUNTERING MEASURES—Official and private "breeders" have resorted to education and publicity to offset the effect of cash incentives. They stress the fact that the "gravy train" will not operate indefinitely, and that resumed competition will place a premium on quality.

The American Farm Bureau Federation will conduct a seminar on the problem at its next convention. Agricultural colleges and Kansas Chambers of Commerce emphasize the need for improved grades. And, despite the current uproar, such varieties as Comanche, Pawnee and Wichita still rank as the finest in the world wheat market.

ABANDONED SCHEME—Benson tried to solve this problem during consideration of the 1954 farm bill. He proposed a sliding support scale, based on quality. But political protests from farm areas forced him to abandon this discriminatory scheme.

The quantity versus quality development raises another fearful suspicion—namely, how many other Federally subsidized farm products are being grown on this basis? And is this to be the outcome of "Hank" Wallace's noble crusade for "the more abundant life"?

Somebody Told Me

Hide-And-Go-Seek On A Train

Of the 18 Greenville men who went to Washington last weekend to see the Carolina-Maryland and Washington-Philadelphia football games, about eight of them played a game of hide and go seek with the train conductor.

As much as it grieves me, I have decided to name all 18 and let you imagine which ones crashed the train. The 18 were Booger Scales, Graham Jefferson, Les Garner, Dall Laughinghouse, Jim Ficklen, Judson Blount, Jack Whitfield, Ben Rouse, Gene Ward, J. B. Spillman, Charlie Howard, Dick Worsley, Dale Gidley, Jim Lanier, Sweeney Moyer, Polly Williams, Jim Sutton and Ed Harris.

Of the group, 10 had the foresight to pay a small additional charge and get a reserve seat ticket for the return trip when they left for Washington. My thanks go to the remaining eight, not only because they neglected to get the tickets, but because they had the spunk to jump the train. These topics don't often get back to me.

Notice to the Atlantic Coast Line: The boys made every effort to buy the reserve tickets, but none were to be had. Then, even though it would have meant an additional expense ten times the cost of the reserve ticket, they tried to buy pullman tickets in order to get on the train as a unit.

Flatly refused, the eight fireballs jumped the train. The conductor took a very dim view of the situation. So the chase was on. The boys used every trick. They hid in the men's room. They rushed to club car, picked up newspapers and hid behind them.

The conductor fumed and threatened to throw their baggage off the train. Then the truth about one member (ask Booger Scales which one) came to light. He had been enjoying the merry chase more than any of the group. But when the baggage threat came he said, "They'd better not throw my baggage off! I've got a reserved seat ticket!" A man who's in the right to play hide shows real sporting blood!

Another one of the characters was caught by the conductor. "OK! I've got you!" said the conductor.

"What do you mean? What are you talking about?" The conductor dropped his lip and said, "Aren't you one of that crew with no reserved seat?"

"I certainly am not! But I certainly hope you catch 'em. They came running by me so fast they knocked me down!" Embarrassed, the conductor continued the chase. And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

QUALITY THE GREAT NEED (Henderson Dispatch)

Even with a decline of eight million pounds in the flue-cured tobacco crop within the past month, this year's yield is placed at 915,750,000 pounds and ten percent greater than the 1953 production of 832,305,000 pounds.

An over-all yield of tobacco in the United States this year of 2,153,000,000 pounds is forecast by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which is a drop of one-half of one percent from the estimate of a month ago. Production in 1953 was 2,067,000,000 pounds.

In this section, plagued by severe drought for two years in succession, and an unseasonably dry year in 1952, a more normal yield is needed and would be welcomed.

Young Journalists Took Their Roundtable Seriously

By LYNN NISBET

SCHOOL EDITORS—Some 225 editors of high school newspapers and yearbooks gathered at Western Carolina College at Cullowhee last Friday and Saturday for the annual High School Editors Roundtable, sponsored jointly by the college and the Asheville Citizen-Times. More than 60 publications and numerous news photographs were entered in the competition, with prize winners receiving cups and ribbons. The delegates and exhibits came from schools located in 30 or more counties comprising the western third of the state—west of the Southern railway from Reidsville to Charlotte.

Your reporter was privileged to participate in the program, which included panel sessions devoted to special topics, criticism of competitive exhibits and other phases designed to raise the level of high school journalism. The youngsters and, in many instances, their accompanying faculty counselors gave serious attention to the business at hand, with little time for recreation or play.

Panel discussions were led by experienced newsmen and photographers, and undoubtedly were helpful to the youthful editors. It was conceded that perhaps as much good came just from the young folks getting together and swapping experiences and ideas. The yearbook and school paper editors represent the top in scholastic and social leadership in their various schools.

Expressions from the student editors and from the faculty representatives indicated that results of last year's Roundtable and the outstanding success of this year's event fully justify the expense and effort on part of the sponsors. Organized and directed by John E. Jones, promotion director for the Asheville papers, and W.B. Harrill, director of publications for the college, the Roundtable sets an example that might well be followed in other parts of the State.

MUNICIPALITIES—The 1954 convention of the North Carolina League of Municipalities at Winston-Salem this week may prove to be one of the most important in the life of the organization. Each year the officials of Tarheel cities and towns get together to discuss mutual problems and seek ways to improve administration at that level of government which comes in closer contact with the citizens than any other. They will consider the usual things this time. The municipalities face more serious problems than ever before.

Water and water rates, the fair distribution of water department maintenance costs among domestic and industrial consumers, the growing demand for modern sewage disposal, cause headaches in every city hall.

The most acute problem with city government right now is revenue. For many years the municipalities have complained that the State had invaded some revenue sources which the local people feel should be left for their exclusive use. Accelerated encroachment upon such sources as privilege and franchise taxes by the State has driven the municipalities to depend more upon ad valorem taxes. In that field they were hamstringing by the fact that valuations are made by county, not city or town, officials; and the further that property owners in town have to pay the same county tax as outsiders in addition to the municipal levy. Yet when the State and county get ready to distribute tax money the disposition has often been to stop at corporate limits with the suggestion that support of public roads, streets, maintenance of public health, libraries, fire departments and law enforcement agencies "is up to the city."

In joint activities it is usual for the county commissioners to provide half the cost the municipalities the other half, and sometimes it is forgotten that taxpayers within the cities have made more than half the money provided by the county.

ON GUARD—During the era when the State treasury was swelling with surpluses which could not be spent, and municipalities were striving to keep their fiscal heads above water, the State continued to collect privilege taxes which the cities and towns sorely needed.

Now that the State treasury is also empty and budgeteers are desperately seeking new State revenue the municipal officials are on guard to protect what is left of their tax sources from further encroachment. Further complications arise from the disposition of the Federal government to pass back to the several States some of the responsibilities for social services, and the prospect the State in turn may seek to pass back to the counties a larger part of the burden.

Worth Noting

"We're trying to get government out of business, every way possible. We have quite a number of industry councils, and one of the things we keep asking these businessmen is this: 'Where is government competing with you?' Then, when we get an answer, we try to do something about it." (Secretary of Commerce Weeks)

New Business Ideas

By ELMER ROESSNER

Its "idea-ness" is one of the outstanding characteristics of dynamism comes from the fact that it is ever eager to try new ideas and from the additional fact that each enterpriser is usually determined to improve on the other fellow's ideas, rather than merely to adapt them.

So, to stimulate further idea, here is a roundup of new ones: SAVINGS. Several Minnesota banks are offering to double deposits under $1,000 if the depositor dies before the age of 60. Depositors must affirm that, as far as they know, they are in good health. The plan is underwritten by a life insurance company.

SHOWERS. Half in jest, some one suggested "showers" for the groom as well as the bride. At least one Indiana hardware store took the idea seriously and is promoting "him" showers. Those attending a shower can check with the store to make sure their gifts will not duplicate those of others.

ATTENDANCE. A booklet of 20 ideas trade show exhibitors can use to increase buyer attendance is being published by the Popular Price Show of America, 51 E. 42nd St., New York 17

PORTABLE. Awkward parcels—even watermelons—can be made easy for customers to carry by attaching old-fashioned wood-and-wire handles with a new, gripping, Scotch tape.

MENSWEAR. The biggest area for expanding sales of men's clothing is in sportswear, Michael Daroff manufacturer, told the Clothing Manufacturers Association. Sportswear has grown from almost nothing—sales of several billion dollars a year, he said, and further expansion in the field will increase volume and, in addition, help level off the seasonal dips.

UNINHIBITOR. Some people hesitate to order wine with their meals because they are afraid of making a boo-boo. A wine dealer is giving restaurants cards telling what goes with what. When attached to menus, cards have increased sales up to 300 per cent.

SELLAPHONING. Every salesman in a flourishing Chicago store must phone at least seven previous customers a day, asking if they are satisfied with their last purchase and offering the "special of the day."

FESTIVALS. Almost sure-fire are festivals at which merchants in a community celebrate a local farm product. In recent weeks, a tomato, a watermelon, a sweet corn, a grape and a pumpkin festival have brought thousands of visitors into as many communities.

RETAIL SALES FOUND A TINY BIT BETTER

Retail sales in September were even with sales in August and 1 per cent above September 1953, according to the Department of Commerce's flash report. The food eating and drinking places, general merchandise, apparel, furniture and appliance, lumber, building and hardware, gasoline service stations and drug and dignified article of furniture. Plans 125 Tons Less Women

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — If all goes well, Claire Mann will reduce the supply of American womanhood by 125 tons by the end of this year.

"It isn't very much, is it?" sighed Miss Mann, founder of "Overweights Anonymous," as she pointed out there are some 18 million women in this country who have eaten themselves out of shape.

Her goal is to get all these plump ladies to lose an average of six pounds each, or a total of 54,000 tons of feminine fat. If loaded on the battleship Missouri, this weight would probably sink her. Converted into tallow, it could be made into a candle big enough to light a city. Might be a good idea, too. Make a splendid monument to the sex.

Claire, who has a daily women's show on Station WABD-TV, started "Overweights Anonymous" three years ago, frankly patterned it after "Alcoholics Anonymous" in many ways. "Overweight and alcoholism, after all, spring from the same emotional causes," she said. "The problem is psychological, not physiological."

The main theory behind O.A. is that obese people who are unable to solve their problem on an individual basis often are able to do so when they attack it by group therapy.

"Sometimes you have to identify yourself with other people's problems in order to realize your own," said Miss Mann. "Overweight people simply have substituted the love of food for the love of life. By recognizing this, they can help each other to learn to do the reverse."

The motto of O.A. is, "Don't put off for tomorrow what you can take off today."

In three years the organization has grown to 100,000 members. There are no dues. The members meet at each other's home in groups of 5 and 10 twice a month, and Miss Mann distributes free diets and exercises at her own expense.

But O.A. differs from A.A. in one important respect. If a member feels an overwhelming urge to indulge in a chocolate éclair, she can't telephone a fellow member to come racing through the night to save her from temptation.

"As a matter of fact, if a member scales down her poundage, she must maintain the weight loss for at least six months or be dropped from the rolls," said Claire firmly.

Those who do reduce to the weight they desire are encouraged to be more active in community and charity work to give them an outlet for their new energy. Ninety-nine per cent of O.A. members are women, but a male champion. He is an engineer who in three years dropped from 292 pounds to 173—a loss of 122 pounds. Just one more proof of the old truth that a good man can beat a woman at anything.

Miss Mann, a former ballerina and pianist, became interested in therapy as the result of an accident. The accident was a collision in which she suffered a broken neck. She was told she would never be able to dance again, might not be able to walk.

After six months in a hospital, she set out to rehabilitate herself. She went to Vienna and studied psychology and anatomy, worked out her own system of exercises to rebuild her wasted muscles.

Her stubborn will worked a miracle. She recovered completely, then opened a studio to help other people with physical and mental problems. She was among the first to recognize the therapeutic value of music and dancing. Married to a psychiatrist, she has made a fresh career for herself in television.

"If it weren't for my accident, I'd have been only a second-rate dancer or pianist," she said. "It enabled me to do something new."

An attractive green-eyed blonde, Miss Mann weighed 138 pounds as a dancer, now weighs 112.

"The diet in my case," she said wryly, "was pain."

Nixon Says All But One Security Risk A Holdover

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Vice President Richard Nixon says all but one of 164 State Department employees removed as security risks were holdovers from the Truman administration.

That one, he told some 3,000 diners at a $100-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinner last night, "was a 90-day temporary employe who lost his job the moment that his security check was complete."

Nixon said the information came from the Civil Service Commission report which showed that 6,926 security risks "were removed from the federal payroll" during a 13-month period ending June 1954. The vice president said he cited the figures to prove what he called this "fact":

"That the Truman administration failed miserably to deal effectively with communism in the United States and that the Eisenhower administration has succeeded magnificently in cleaning up the mess they left."

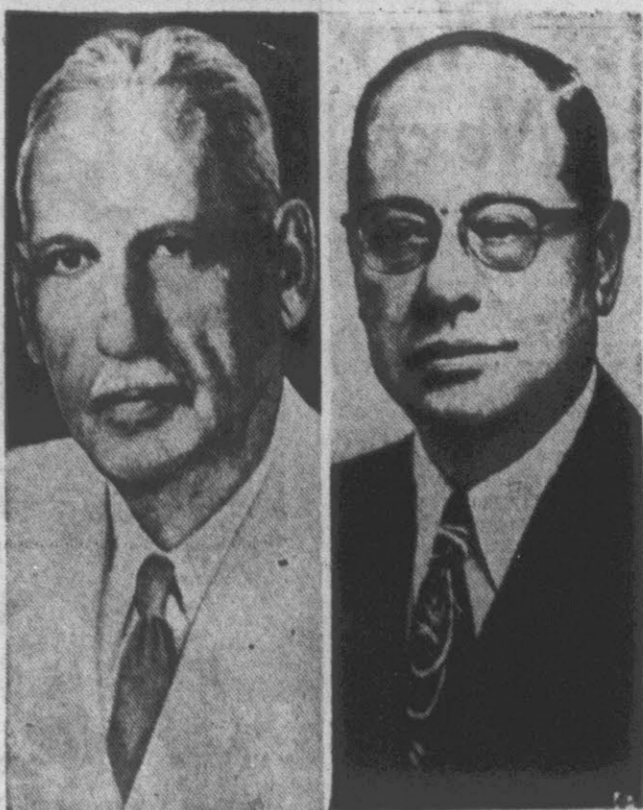

Nixon's charges have drawn fire from Democrats, including Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC), who last Saturday telegraphed a demand that the government give figures to show by whom the discharged employees were hired. He quoted a Washington newspaper story that reported up to 75 per cent of those removed may have been hired by the Eisenhower administration.

Under the administration program, security risks include those with records of drunkenness, talkativeness, criminal records, sexual perversion and other factors in addition to subversive activities and associations.

The Nixon speech gave this breakdown of the 164 State Department employes:

1. Seventy employes were removed after their files showed they associated with or were members of the Communist party, Communist - controlled organizations or other organizations designated as subversive by the attorney general.
2. Ninety-four employes had "information in their files indicating sexual perversion," Nixon said, "this entire nest of 94 employes was inherited from the Acheson regime."

Hint Clues Pointing To Phenix City Assassin

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (AP)—The gunman whose bullets cut short the crime-fighting career of A. L. Patterson four months ago is still a hunted killer, but investigators may have the goods on him.

Despite the cautious secrecy of Acting At. Gen. Bernard Sykes, who is directing the murder inquiry, homicide detectives say privately they think they know the assassin's name.

"We feel sure we have a good, sound case against the man who did it," said one homicide detective, "but there are a few loose ends to be tied up."

And, he added, "there may be others involved, and we want to get them too."

Other sources close to the investigation corroborated the story, but none of the officers would divulge details.

Sykes commented merely "we think we're making progress." Neither would he say when the case will be presented to the emergency grand jury which was empaneled to investigate the Patterson slaying and to prosecute racketeers caught in Phenix City's wholesale vice cleanup.

The elder Patterson had been nominated for attorney general on a pledge to rid Phenix City of organized crime. His law partner son won the nomination without opposition after his father was killed.

Hundreds of witnesses have been questioned, but no one has been charged with the killing.

New Technique Teaches Piano, Without A Piano

A new enthusiasm of young children for practicing music—with silent piano keyboards—is causing a revolution in the attitude of youngsters toward music and in teaching methods in thousands of schools throughout the country.

This "keyboard experience" route to music follows the principle that children learn best when the subject matter is made a part of group activity, when it is interesting and when they can readily feel they are making progress. The system does not seek to make piano players of them, but uses the piano keyboard as a lively, effective replacement for dull scales that once marked the youngster's introduction to music.

Designed to stimulate interest and understanding of music rather than to make "finished" musicians, the new "keyboard experience" approach is showing that young grade school children can associate and identify sounds with the musical symbols written on paper. Familiar with the meaning and the sound of each note, the children then develop the basic ability to read notes and sing them.

Once the children have learned the position and sound of each note, both on the piano keyboard and on the sheet of music, they sing the simple melodies directly from the music or pick the song out on the piano with equal ease. Psychologically, the approach has proved to be remarkably effective. Not only has it made music attractive and easy to grasp, but it has affected the children's entire attitude toward school.

Sense of Achievement
Lottie Parks Hess, music supervisor of the Crane Elementary School, Yuma, Ariz., credits the keyboard approach, as a basic part of the school music program, with an important effect on the pupil's overall development his general attitude and his social adjustment.

"Children are able to taste success and achievement in the music class, and it provides them with 'Psychological vitamins!'"

Success with the keyboard classes in Park Public School Lincoln, Neb., was explained by Elizabeth Wright, coordinator of music in the elementary schools. "Even after only one semester of the experiment most of the children had made remarkable progress. Many of them did excellent work although only 25 of the 100 music students had pianos on which to practice."

All School Work Improves
Remarkable results were noted at Little Flower School, Chicago, where Sister Mary Yvonne, music teacher, in cooperation with the American Music Conference, carried on a controlled experiment with the keyboard experience method to determine the extent of the benefits from the keyboard classes. Marked improvement in all phases of school work was noted.

Teachers in the public schools at Wilmette, Ill., report that keyboard experience teaches better concentration, discipline and cooperation, as well as developing musical skill and understanding.

Demo Caravan At Kenansville

KENANSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina's Democratic leaders came here today for a round of speech making at the Third Congressional District rally in the Duplin County Courthouse.

Tomorrow the caravan goes to Elizabeth City for a Second District rally and winds up the three-week tour Friday with a First District rally at Kinston.

Some 300 Democrats turned out yesterday at Pittsboro for the Fourth District rally. They heard U.S. Rep. Harold Cooley assert the Republican administration's farm program "is a hoax, a fallacy and a fraud."

Leaning on a rubber cane, Cooley said Utah Rep. Douglas Stringfellow, who admitted his war record was a fraud, "is not the only hoax in the Republican party."

He described Secretary of Agriculture Benson as "a phony friend to the farmer." Of Vice President Nixon Cooley said "He's just funny."

Cooley said the rubber cane was Sen. nominee W. Kerr Scott's idea of showing how flexible farm supports fall when the support is needed the most.

East Carolina Pirates Play E. Tennessee Pirates Next

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

The East Carolina Pirates held a lengthy dummy scrimmage yesterday afternoon in serious preparation for East Tennessee here this Saturday.

Coach Jack Boone worked the Bucs on their offensive game, allowing special concentration to both running and passing. The Bucs, in high spirits after their 27-13 win over Western Carolina, went through their paces vigorously.

During the course of the drill, Coaches Jim Mallory and Earl Smith worked the linemen on individual blocking and line play. Several units ran through the offensive plays to be used against their inter-sectional foe Saturday. Boyd Webb, spark in last week's win with three touchdown passes, shared in the passing with Milton Collier and Gary Matlocks. Ends J. D. Bradford, Larry Rhodes, Bill Cain and Ray Pennington took part as receivers, along with several members of the second and third backfields.

Bradford, the Fayetteville junior who caught two touchdowns against the Catamounts, is just coming into his own as a pass catcher. His ability on defense had been long established. The remarkable performance Saturday gave evidence of achieved aptitude as a receiver, too.

Charlie Smith, sophomore tackle, missed the workout. He is in the college infirmary with a throat infection. Jim Stanley and Bill Helms, back and end respectively, worked out in light equipment. All three are expected to be ready for East Tennessee. No other injuries were incurred in the homecoming tiff.

The coaching staff know they've got to get the Pirates ready for a tough contest with East Tennessee. Also known as the Pirates, the school, located in Johnson City, has been one of the nation's top small college teams for the past several years.

So far, the Pirates, coached by Hal Littleford, former Tennessee halfback, have won four of their five games. They opened the season with a 28-7 win over Austin Peay. Western Kentucky State handed them their only defeat to date, 24-6. East Tennessee retaliated well and on concurrent Saturdays whipped Western Carolina 20-7, Maryville 20-14, and Carson-Newman 14-13.

The team emphasizes offense and boasts a hard-running heavy of backfield men. Joe Davis, senior fullback, is the fastest man of the Buccaneers squad and has been the team's leading ground-gainer this season. He's light at 165 but is a very elusive being. Pete Wilson, senior from Athens, Tenn., is the club's most heralded player. He is the heart in the Pirate function at quarterback. Called one of the state's finest passer and signal-callers, he also does the punting.

Another scabback who has eaten up yardage for East Tennessee his four years there is Buddy "Hall" Murray, 195-pounder. He has alternated at halfback and fullback this season. He is a great linebacker and good kicker. The other starting halfback is Ed Foster, 195-pound senior from Sunbright, Tenn. Nicknamed "Beet," he has had two outstanding seasons with the Buccaneers. He is considered the best broken-field runner on the squad and is very dangerous as a punt-returner. He is also a good tackler and plays heads-up on defense.

Ironically, the Bucs' leading passer-receiver and defensive end is named Jack Boone. He is a senior and co-captain of the team. He is a hard worker and a very fast and coordinated athlete. Bob Merritt, sophomore, is the other starting flanker. He is a letterman as a second year man and has shown great natural ability at pass-snagging. He is also an excellent kicker and has seen much action in that capacity this season.

Bill King and Joe Collins, 200 and 185 pounds respectively, are the first-line guards. King is a freshman from Kingsport, Tenn. He is a veteran of service ball and is very strong at his position. He is considered potentially one of the team's all-time greats. Collins is a junior. He is the team captain and was selected to the All-Conference team last fall.

Don Rawls, 200-pound sophomore, and Grayson Dawson, senior from Johnson City, man the tackles. Rawls is a very strong athlete, coming to East Tennessee with a sensational high school record. Dawson is considered the most versatile and dependable player on the team. He played almost 60 minutes of every game on his Bucs' card last year. Fred Quarles, a junior, is the number 1 center. This is his first year as a starter. He is a good offensive center and has improved on defense.

East Tennessee scouts have visited a bunch of East Carolina's games—they should be pretty well informed. The intersectional angle only adds flavor to an already anticipated good game.

Bobby Clatterback — paste that name in your hat. You'll be hearing lots about this youngster if you are a National Football League fan, and especially if you are interested in the gridiron fortunes of the New York Giants. Clatterback is a 22-year-old quarterback who has been the Giants' new head coach, Jim Lee Howell, all steamed up.

As a quarterback at Houston University, Clatterback claimed no special attention. The Giants picked him up in the draft on the 27th round, after 816 other players had been purely a hunch on Coach Howell's part. No one from the Southwest would recommend Clatterback as a prospect and the Giants seemed well fixed with quarterbacks with Charlie Conerly, Arnold Galiffa and Don Heinrich.

"Clatterback played like an old pro in the very first scrimmage in camp," said Coach Howell, "and has continued to impress in every workout. He gained stature in every game and showed enough to convince me that we could get along without Galiffa and Heinrich. Scouting reports on Clatterback indicated that he was a fine defensive player and only a fair passer. We've found him weak on defense and a fine passer. Those scouting reports may have been the reason other coaches passed up the youngster." Clatterback is a six-foot-three, 195 pounder. His teammates rave about the way he hangs the ball out there for the receivers as well as the team. Bobby Clatterback—remember that name!

Gavilan Claims He'll Knock Out Saxton Tonight

By MURRAY ROSE
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan predicts he'll knock out Johnny Saxton tonight "if I hit him solid" and Saxton says, "I'm going to be the new champion."

A crowd of around 11,000 may pay around $80,000 for the twice-postponed 15-round title bout in Convention Hall.

It will be telecast coast to coast by CBS, Philadelphia and a 100-mile radius around the city, with the exception of New York, will be blacked out of the TV. Local stay-at-homes will get a radio broadcast.

Starting time is 10 p. m. EST.

The 28-year-old Cuban, making his eighth title defense, radiated extreme confidence, as usual, as he moved into town from his Summit, N. J., training camp.

"Saxton is a pretty good fighter," said the Kid from Camaguey. "He's strong and likes to crowd. I throw plenty of punches at him and we see what happens. If I hit him solid, he go."

"Gavilan is a great fighter," said the 24-year-old challenger from New York. "I'm not underestimating him. But I'm confident I've got the strength and style to beat him."

The odds, however, favor the champion at 19-10.

Saxton said he wasn't worried over going 15 rounds for the first time.

"I've trained hard and long for this one," the muscular Negro youngster said, "I've always had plenty left after 10 rounds and I'm sure I'll be better over 15."

Johnny has the style which has bothered Gavilan most in the past. He is pantherish in his movements, punches very fast, and presses his opponents persistently.

"Maybe that style doesn't always please the fans," said Saxton. "But that's the way I win. I'm not going to give him any punching room if I can help it."

The crowding, bulling style has enabled Saxton to post a 43-2-2 record. His two defeats were by split decisions to Gil Turner and Del Planagan. He has 19 kayos to his credit. Gavilan's record is 92-14-4 with 27 knockouts. Neither ever has been stopped.

This is Gavilan's first fight in six months and his first title defense since he drubbed Johnny Bratton in Chicago 11 months ago. A half year ago he dropped a 16-round decision to middleweight champion Carl (Bobo) Olson. He claimed he fought that one with an injured right hand.

It was that injury which forced the first postponement of his title tiff, with Saxton. The second time he came down with a virus infection and the mumps the night before the scheduled Sept. 1 contest.

There's Power In Marciano's Punch

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—Up to now when anyone asked whether we thought Rocky Marciano could have whipped Joe Louis when the Brown Bomber was at his wonderful best, the answer has been in the negative.

The memory of Joe on the night he knocked out and hospitalized Max Schmeling with a single sustained flurry of punches still is too green to go back on him this soon, no matter how great our present admiration for Rocky.

Our argument has been based on the belief that Joe hit so hard and so much when he got his opening that Rocky, no defensive genius, would have found it impossible to survive.

But what, we have been asked about Rocky hitting Joe while at that was going on? Well, the reply has been, Rocky surely would have hit the Bomber with a few rights. Everybody did that, and many of Joe's opponents knocked him down too. But he always got up mad, and no doubt he would have arisen after Rocky had pinpointed his jaw.

That has seemed to be a reasonable assumption because Louis shook off some brutal punches first and last. He was a great champion despite the fact that his chin was vulnerable to a degree. The only question is whether he ever got hit quite as hard as Rocky would have hit him, and that brings us to our present state of uncertainty.

There's a book just out entitled "TV Boxing Book." The author is Joe Williams, and his avowed purpose is to give the home expert some idea of how to score a fight. Nobody can do that, not even Joe, but he does something else is a lot more interesting. He discloses exactly how hard Marciano hits.

Seems that after Rocky took Jersey Joe Walcott out with one shattering punch at Philadelphia a very scientific testing outfit was asked to measure the velocity of the new champion's haymaker.

Rocky—wheeled—a light-punching bag, and somehow, by using electronic gadgets and physics equations, they got an answer.

"It proclaimed," swears Williams, "that the champion's best punch is more powerful than an armor-piercing bullet. Specifically, the punch received a rating of 925 foot-pounds, as against 690 foot-pounds claimed for the most powerful American hand gun bullet. A foot-pound is the energy required to lift one pound one foot off the ground. By way of comparison in a somewhat similar test Bob Feller's best pitch recorded 900 foot-pounds."

One of the men who conducted the test had boxed a little in college, and he gave it a dry run before letting Rocky take his lick. His highest figure was 200 foot-pounds, or maybe normal for a good bond salesman.

"The gentleman," Williams continues, "dug into his scientific satchel for a last fact. A 45 Colt's ammunition is rated at 429 foot-pounds and is credited with being able to knock a man down. If that knocks a man down, what does Rocky do when he lands with 925 foot-pounds?"

Ayden High Plans Big Homecoming

AYDEN — Ayden will celebrate its homecoming football game when the Tornadoes meet Contentnea Friday night.

At 8:30 p. m. a parade will start the homecoming festivities. Participating in the event will be the Ayden-Winterville High School Band, Ayden Primary Rhythm Band, the homecoming queen and runners-up, football players and their sponsors, and cheerleaders.

At 8:00 Ayden will play host to Contentnea. This game will decide the Coastal Conference championship. During the half time the Ayden - Winterville High School Band and the Contentnea High School Band, the homecoming queen and runners-up will provide entertainment for the spectators.

Immediately following the game there will be an open dance at the community building sponsored by the Student Council.

Cubs Purchase Right-Hander

CHICAGO (AP)—Bob Thorpe, 19-year-old righthander who topped 1954 minor league won-lost pitching records with 28-4, has been purchased by the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs bought the 6-1, 170-pounder from their affiliate at Stockton in the Class C California League and he will report to the club's 1955 spring training camp at Mesa, Ariz.

G-Men Meet Mighty New Bern On Friday

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville's Phantoms, winless since September 24, take on the league-leading New Bern Bears Friday night in a Northeastern Conference contest in New Bern.

The Bears with their 86 players will be meeting a team that dressed only 30 in Monday night's game. Coach Bill Kittrell of the Greens has the unenviable honor of dressing the smallest squad in the conference. The Greenville mentor went along with 38 boys at the first of the season, but some of those boys are now playing junior varsity and the squad has dwindled to 21.

The Greens did not have practice yesterday because of the funeral of Harold Edwards' father. Edwards, a fine all-conference candidate at end, missed the Elizabeth City game because of his father's death.

Splight Slick

Captain James Speight, who reeled off a 59 yard dash for the only Greenville score against Elizabeth City, has been sick and was not up to par in the EC game. Speight will dress Friday night against New Bern but he still will probably be slowed down.

Although Speight was sick Monday night, he rolled for 78 yards in 7 carries. He gained 78 of his team's 108 yards by rushing.

Coach Bill Kittrell was very pleased with the play of the defense in the EC game. The alert Greenville defenders turned back all but one of six EC threats within their own 30 yard line. The time EC did score was when several G-men thought time was out.

In New Bern the G-men will be facing a team that has a highly potent offense. Although the

In S. Carolina, It's Big Thursday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
South Carolina and Clemson, heading the list of Atlantic Coast Conference football games this week, were scheduled to take it easy today, the eve of their annual "Big Thursday" conflict at the South Carolina State Fair.

Yesterday the Clemson Tigers were physically fit as they ran through dummy drills on offense and pass defense. Coach Frank Howard said he would take 40 of his squad to Columbia tonight.

Halfback Mike Caskey and center Hugh Bell rejoined the South Carolina squad yesterday, putting the Gamecocks in good physical shape.

A vaguely familiar figure on the South Carolina coaches' bench will be recognized tomorrow by old-time fans.

James G. Driver, athletic director and backfield coach when South Carolina beat Clemson 22-7, in 1912, will be on the sidelines for his first look at a Big Thursday game since 1927.

Coach Bill Murray held a brisk two-hour drill for Duke's Blue Devils in his preparations for Saturday's family event against North Carolina State Saturday night at Raleigh.

Duke will be seeking to bounce back from a 28-14 trouncing by Army last week. The contest opens a four-game ACC schedule for the Blue Devils, who have compiled a 2-1 record against strong inter-sectional opponents.

State, on the other hand, has already played a two conference games losing to North Carolina and Wake Forest.

Coach Earle Edwards, who would like nothing better than to win from Duke in his first year at State brushed up on defenses yesterday.

State hasn't won over Duke since 1946. In 1948 there was a scoreless tie.

Wake Forest reserves ran North Carolina split-T plays in an hour-

West Virginian Accorded Honor

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — A 60-minute stint of superb quarterbacking earned West Virginia's Freddy Wyant the Southern Conference "Player of the Week" award for last week's play.

The Weston, W. Va., junior scored two touchdowns and pitched out for the third as the undefeated Mountaineers knocked off favored Penn State 19-14 last Saturday at State College, Pa. He also completed seven of 14 passes for 130 yards.

Wyant wiggled his way 15 yards for one touchdown, drove across from one yard out for the other and faked pitch-outs to two different players before tossing the ball to a third for 40 yards and the deciding score. He also stood out defensively.

Coach Art Lewis called Wyant's work "superb."

Others nominated for "Player of the Week" the past week included: John Popson, Furman halfback, who scored three touchdowns as Furman defeated The Citadel, 21-20. He ran back one kickoff 103 yards, rushed for 88 yards in 14 trips.

Worthy Miles, The Citadel, for completing 12 of 24 passes and rushing for 106 yards to wind up with 206 yards total offense.

'Back Of Week' Isn't A Starter

J. D. BRADFORD
New Pass-Catcher

LOS ANGELES (AP)—One of the unusual facts about young Jon Arnett of Southern California is that while he was named Back of the Week by The Associated Press, he has yet to win a place on the Trojans' starting team.

Even today his coach, Jess Hill, reiterated that he has not decided whether the 19-year-old sophomore or Aramis Dandoy, a senior and All-Pacific Coast Conference back last year, will lead off at left halfback against California here Saturday.

Hill did name Jon to start in the Oregon game last week, the nationally televised contest which proved a wonderful stage for Arnett's running artistry.

But this was the only game thus far in which he got the opening role.

Does this disturb him?

"Not a bit," he promptly replied. "I'm glad to see Dandoy get the assignment."

An extremely modest young man, he seemed a little abashed by the Back of the Week designation. This has been his attitude since the spotlight began to shine on him, particularly after the Pittsburgh game a month ago.

Arnett, who stands 5-11 and weighs 185, is an expert gymnastic tumbler, runs the 100 in 10 flat and broad jumped 24-¾ to take second place in the National Collegiate meet last spring. He is also an excellent student.

These attributes perhaps explain his speed, his split second reactions, a surprising degree of power and the ability to "think on his feet."

Alvin Dark Signs 2-Year Contract

NEW YORK (AP)—Alvin Dark, the quiet, taciturn guy who kept the New York Giants on the hustle to the National League pennant and their smashing World Series victory, today signed another two-year contract. He is the first player to sign with the world champions for 1955.

There was no indication how much money was provided in the contract, mailed in by Dark from his Lake Charles, La., home, but Eddie Brannick, club secretary, said the stubby shortstop was "very satisfied."

It was the second two-year agreement signed by Dark since joining the Giants in 1953. The first accepted by Dark in 1953, called for a reported $31,500 a year. He signed then only after holding out until March 3.

Dark, a 5-foot-11 scrapper at his best in the clutch, wound up a superb year with an individual performance that matched the team showing of the Giants' four-game sweep of the Cleveland Indians in the World Series. A .293 hitter during the regular season, the 31-year-old veteran batted .412—the best series average of any of the New York regulars.

Games Decided On Extra Points

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

Missed conversions, the biggest problem in the cutoff to platoonless football, have decided no less than 30 major college games in the first half of the current season. Coaches today must win at the thought of the point after touchdown—the importance of which increases as its mastery declines.

In 1952, last year of unlimited substitutions there were only 36 major games determined by extra points. In 1953 there were 45 and at the present rate there will be at least 60 this fall.

The story, of course, is that there were specialists in the art of kicking extra points during two-platoon days but now the man assigned to the job must be proficient in all departments of the game.

Of the 30 point-after battles to date, 10 have come in the East where almost none of the teams hold spring practice. That means they have less time to try to cure this rules change-spawned headache.

At least the squeakers are playing no favorites. Harvard edged Cornell 13-12 one weekend and lost to Columbia 7-6 the next. Brown lost to Yale 26-24, then downed Princeton 21-20 Utah lost to Washington and trimmed Oregon by the same 7-6 count. Washington lost to UCLA 21-20, a vital victory for the Bruins.

Even that tremendous scoring marathon between Bucknell and Lehigh which went to the former, 48-46, was decided by someone's toe.

Not every phase of the kicking game is being neglected. There's more emphasis on punting in this year's tighter ball games than there has been in some time.

But the conversion, like the field goal, may become a lost art in the college game.

There have always been some people who have favored the abolition of the extra point and it appears their ranks are swelling. They contend its unfair to award a decision to two evenly matched teams that have scored the same number of touchdowns because one has a better kicker.

Navy Transfers Entire Crews

Storm Pointed Up Need For Auxiliary Power Generators

RALEIGH. — Hurricane Hazel, ill wind that she was for Eastern Carolina, was a timely warning which may be a blessing in disguise. State Civil Defense Director Edward F. Griffin said today in pointing out the lessons to be learned from the devastating experience.

"From the first warning that the hurricane would cut a destructive swath across the state, there was desperate need for three things which this agency has urgently requested," the director said, "three essentials to effective state-level operation, which were submitted early in September to the Advisory Budget Committee.

"Civil Defense, responsible for coordination of all services needed in disaster operation, must have (1) a communications or control center (2) auxiliary power units throughout the state's several communications systems and (3) all 'hams' (radio amateur operators) incorporated into an organized, state-sponsored radio network to serve as a pick-up to regular communications service.

"As proposed by Civil Defense, the Communications or Control Center, would enable all communications pertaining to disaster operation to funnel in to a central place. This would in no way supplant or take control of existing communications, instead it would tie together such diverse systems as the Weather Bureau, State Highway Patrol, National Guard, Radio Amateurs, the various public utilities and others. As matters stand—and as they stood at the approach of the hurricane, neither the Governor nor State Civil Defense has any one place from which to receive and disseminate vital information when normal means fail. A Civil Defense Control Center would fill this need.

"The hurricane's disruption of electric power service proved the vulnerability of the present communications system unless means are provided for auxiliary power. Prior to the storm, State Council of Civil Defense had initiated efforts to procure auxiliary power units for key communications, hospitals and similar installations.

"The hurricane also proved the value of the state's radio 'hams' in such an emergency. Plans long in the making are now nearly ready to submit to the Federal Communications Commission for approval of a Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service. This would be a well organized state network meeting government standards and assisted by State Civil Defense. On a moment's notice, the valuable talents and equipment of these capable citizens could be used in saving life and property.

"The destructiveness of this recent storm will not be forgotten for a long time. . . but compared to what could be caused by enemy attack, it isn't a drop in the bucket. All agencies involved did an excellent job as long as power and communications were available, but when those functions were wiped out, they had to sit by and wait. Such immobilization can be avoided by proper precautions, which should be taken on the strength of this devastating warning.

"We hope that the people of the state will understand what they need for future protection, that the necessary steps may be taken to avoid a repeat performance," the state director concluded.

Faulty Exhausts Can Be Killers

RALEIGH—While smash ups still cause the greatest concern for safety authorities of the Motor Vehicles Department, safety director C.A. Speed suggested today that motorists pay careful attention to their exhaust systems as the cold weather months approach. "Inspection and replacement of defective exhaust systems is a must," he warned. "According to research by manufacturer's agents the average safe life of the original muffler and exhaust system is 18 months or 18,000 miles, according to the operating conditions of the car."

Carbon monoxide, a tasteless, colorless, and invisible gas is produced by every operating engine, Speed said. Older persons and children are especially susceptible to its dangers.

The repair of automotive exhaust systems, he said, is illegal in some states and is poor economy at best. Proper installation of new mufflers and tailpipes is recommended for protection against being overcome or killed by exhaust fumes.

Audrey Still On Honeymoon Idyl

ALBANO, Italy (AP)—Husband Mel Ferrer has to leave for work at 7 a.m. but it's still a honeymoon idyl for him and Audrey Hepburn.

Since Sept. 29, the newly wed film stars have been living in a secluded villa here in the Alban Hills some 20 miles south of Rome. They have a guard at the gate to discourage visitors but you can't keep secrets in the Italian countryside.

The countryside will tell you that after Ferrer leaves in the morning, his bride usually dozes in bed until nearly noon, then goes to the kitchen and helps the cook prepare a light lunch.

No spaghetti, though. The pencil-slim star doesn't want to gain weight. She sips wine with lunch.

The rest of the day she plays with the villa's eight cats and one dachshund or chats with the servant couple. The servants are the same who worked for Gregory Peck when he lived there while making "Roman Holiday," the film which catapulted Miss Hepburn to screen fame.

Only twice has Audrey ventured into Rome. Both times fiascos swarmed around her. She returned pale and nervous and wants to make no more visits to the city.

Busy with a new film, her husband normally gets home in the late evening. They discourage callers and their only guests have been a few Roman aristocrats who live in nearby villas.

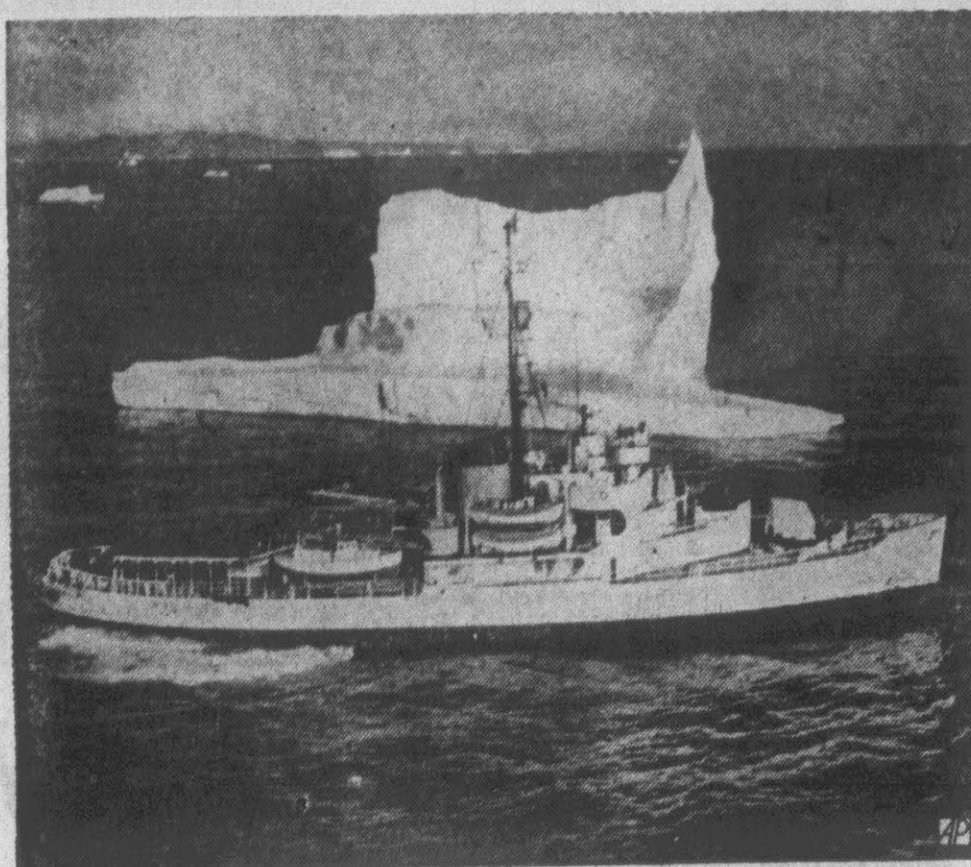

The lease on the villa expires at the end of this month and with it the honeymoon ends. Miss Hepburn will go to her native Holland to raise funds for war veterans. Her husband will accompany her if he can finish his movie in time.

Passage Seen To Mineral Wealth In North Canada

VICTORIA, B. C. (AP)—The Northwest Passage, which for centuries has stirred the imaginations of mariners and landlubbers alike, may one day be the key to open a vast mineral empire in Canada's northland.

Capt. Owen Robertson, skipper of the Canadian ship Labrador, latest ship to navigate the passage, says the route his 6,500-ton vessel charted would be essential to bring out the North's great iron, copper, oil and coal resources. He explains: "I know those resources exist because I have seen them with my own eyes. . . . Someday when we get atomic power in the North we will use those resources to become one of the great creditor nations of the world."

Examination For Mail Carrier Planned Here

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination to fill the position of rural carrier for the local post office.

Applicants for this examination must actually reside within the delivery of the Greenville post office and must have so resided for one year next preceding the closing date for receipt of applications. Age limits, waived for persons entitled to veteran preference, are from 18 to 50.

Full information and application forms may be obtained from the local post office or from the Commission's Washington office. Applications must be filed with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. and must be received or postmarked not later than November 16.

Two Watches Keep The Time

BOSTON (AP)—Some out-of-town visitors at the Boston Conference on Distribution are displaying two watches, one set at New York time and the other at Boston's daylight time.

They say it helps them to time calls to their offices and plan plane schedules.

One two-watch man said he sometimes became confused and couldn't remember which timepiece was which.

Massachusetts has extended its daylight time to the end of October.

To Our More Than 12,000 Electric Customers

Since the beginning of the Utility Commission in 1905, we have not suffered such destruction to our electric distribution system as that wrought by "Hazel". No part of our service area escaped and although the damage may not be too apparent in some spots the area as a whole has suffered.

Thanks A Million

Through it all you have been wonderful. We thank you for your patient understanding. All of our own crews, plus contract crews and tree experts have been brought in to alleviate the condition as promptly as possible.

Although we are doing everything we can, it will be several days before our operation is back to normal. Be assured that we will continue to do everything we can to make your period of inconvenience as brief as possible.

Again Thank You.

Eisenhower Looks Like 'One Termer'

By ED CREAUGH
WASHINGTON (AP)—One reporter's opinion: President Eisenhower will not run for a second term.

This is climbing out on a long limb. What the voters do Nov. 2—whether they give the Republicans another two years in control of Congress—could have a lot to do with making up the President's mind.

Unless, that is, he already has made it up. This reporter's impression is that he has.

Mind you, it is only an impression—an educated hunch at best. The only man who can say with certainty what's in the President's mind is the President himself. And following well-established practice, he's keeping his thoughts on this question very much to himself.

So any forecast that is more than idle crystal gazing must be based on (1) what the President's attitude seems to be, as well as newsmen covering his activities can determine it, and (2) what the people around him think he will do.

It is from these sources that this reporter who sometimes covers the White House, has formed the impression Eisenhower will not run again—always barring some unforeseen factor.

James B. Reston wrote in the New York Times recently that in his opinion it is doubtful the President will agree to run. Reston quoted an unnamed close associate of the President's as telling him:

"The one thing that really makes his eyes light up is talk of his farm in Gettysburg."

Others have told this reporter much the same thing. And I've been able to watch the President inspect the almost completed remodeling job on his Pennsylvania farmhouse.

It was hard to avoid the impression that here was a man lovingly planning a home—his first real home in many a year—that he meant to live in, and not just retire to on weekends.

Another strong impression is that, while Eisenhower is determined to do a good job as president, he still doesn't like the job and still less does he like the politics—that go with it.

There is fairly general agreement among those in daily contact with the President that, if his personal wishes were all that counted, he'd be delighted to say farewell to the White House in January 1957.

But it's taken for granted there will be tremendous pressure from the Republicans to persuade Eisenhower, their first successful candidate for the presidency since 1928, to run again. And there are many who feel this pressure, which would include appeals to patriotism and duty, would be too strong to resist.

The argument also is put forward that if the Democrats win control of Congress next month Eisenhower might want to run again—to seek "vindication."

Maybe. But the President could argue that (1) he has done his duty by putting in four years as president on top of an unparalleled military career; (2) the bulk of his legislative program was enacted in his first two years; and (3) if the people want Democrats in office they can darned well have Democrats in office and he'll go home to Gettysburg.

It may be recalled that Sherman Adams, the President's chief assistant, made a speech a while back saying Eisenhower might not run in '56 if the Democrats won in '54.

Eisenhower said at the time Adams was only speculating—that he hadn't discussed his plans with anybody.

But if he didn't say Adams was right, he didn't say Adams was wrong either. It could well be that a Democratic victory would only strengthen a feeling on the part of the President that he's done his bit and should be allowed to wash his hands of politics—and wash them in Pennsylvania spring water.

West German Navy Is Ready To Take To Sea

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY
BREMERHAVEN, Germany (AP)—A West German navy will be able to take to the seas 24 hours after final ratification of the London rearmament agreement—thanks to the U. S. Navy.

It won't be much of a fleet at first, only some mine sweepers, tenders, oilers and small patrol craft. Nevertheless it will be a navy.

Under the London agreement, rearmament of Germany would be limited to 20,000 naval personnel. Warships must be 3,000 tons or less.

There is no 3,000-ton vessel for the new navy available. But a fleet of rebuilt German mine sweepers now waits for ratification's X-day. These ships have been operating with German crews but under the American flag for two years.

Readiness of West Germany to step into its own sea role has been made possible by a quiet program instituted in 1952 by the U. S. Navy and a handful of its officers.

Two 10-boat squadrons of R-boats, each with a tender, regularly sweep the Baltic Sea to clear World War II mines from sea lanes. The R-boats are 167 tons, have a top speed of 18 knots, carry no armament at present, but are equipped with radar.

Their task is to widen present lanes and cut new ones for the safety of merchant shipping.

It is common knowledge that not many mines have been located for a long time. But every day the lina within twelve months from the date hereof; otherwise this notice will be placed in bar of their recovery. All persons indebted to said estate will please make immediate settlement.

This the 5th day of October, 1954.

Better Highway Drainage with Economical CONCRETE PIPE

Your tax dollars pay for culverts and other installations to keep highways properly drained and open to traffic. Concrete pipe is a wise investment in better drainage because it (1) is economical, (2) has extra long life, (3) can be easily installed to replace old bridges or to improve drainage with minimum delay to traffic.

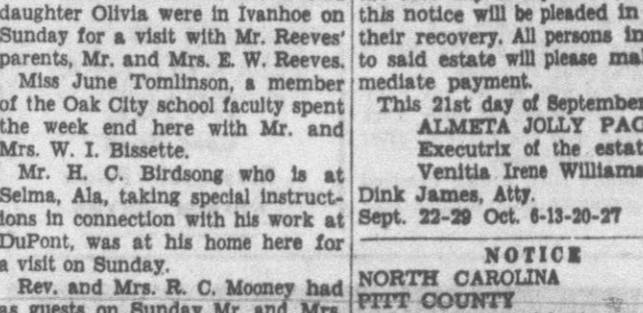

Concrete pipe culverts, ditch enclosures and subgrade drains have outstanding service records in thousands of installations from coast to coast. Concrete pipe has ample strength to resist the impact of heavy traffic and the load of high fills. It's moderate in first cost, needs little maintenance, lasts longer. Result: low annual cost.

Tears for the Bride

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

THE DOOR opened, and the little red-haired nurse stepped inside Ralph's room. I put the gun back in my pocket. "Yes, doctor?" the nurse said.

He said in a tight voice, "Please bring me a hypo and three hundred thousand units of penicillin."

She nodded, glanced at me curiously, and left. Dr. Mazzini said, "What the hell is this all about?" "Never mind."

He shrugged helplessly and turned back to the bed, Ralph stirred a little and muttered something incoherently. The doctor watched Ralph, and I watched the doctor. We didn't talk. Presently the nurse returned, handed him a needle. He said to her, "Will you give it to him please?"

"Of course," as she bent over the bed, the doctor looked at me with dark, brooding eyes. As the nurse turned and moved for the door, he said to her, "I'm going home now. I'll be back in the morning. If his condition changes during the night, call me. It's all on the chart. You'd better tell Miss Donovan, too."

"Yes, doctor." The door clicked shut behind her.

He said sardonically, "Satisfied?"

"For now." I backed to the door. "Why, in God's name—?" he began.

"Doctor," I broke in. "If I'm wrong, I'll apologize. Do you mind if I keep your hypo?"

"Would it make any difference to you if I did?" he asked bitterly.

"No."

"It's loaded with venom," he said mockingly. "Or maybe arsenic. If you hadn't stopped me in the nick of time, Ralph would be dead by now. I suppose, being a famous detective, you know my motive."

"Yes," I said.

He gazed at me silently. Then he smiled and moved to the door. "You're wrong," he said quietly.

I sighed. "Maybe I am. I hope I am. If Ralph lives, let's just forget the whole thing."

"And if he dies?"

I shrugged.

"Bennett," he said in a level voice. "I should beat you to a pulp."

He was big enough to do it, and much younger besides, but I said, "You're welcome to try. We'd better go outside, though."

For a moment I thought he was going to take me up on it. But he didn't. "That wouldn't prove anything," he said.

He smiled now, a bitter twist of his lips, and went out, leaving the door ajar. When I stepped to the corridor I saw him talking to the nurse on the desk. Then he left without looking at me. The little red-haired nurse wished past me I touched her arm. "Miss."

She stopped and turned. Her eyes were sky-blue and she had freckles over her short nose. I took a twenty-dollar bill from my wallet and handed it to her. "Take good care of him tonight, will you?"

She glanced at the twenty, and then at me. "Of course but you don't need to say me."

"Just stay with him." I tucked the twenty into a pocket of her white uniform, beside the clip of a thermometer.

"Thank you," she said. "Are you a relative of Ralph's?"

"Just a friend. What's your name?"

"Mary Lou O'yle."

"I'm counting on you, Doyle," I said, thinking that there should be someone I could count on. I left her standing there and went out into the windy night.

Dr. Mazzini was turning into the drive at Daisy Brown's house before I caught up with him. I cut my lights and coasted to a stop in front of the church and watched as he put the Ford in the garage and entered the house by a rear entrance. Light showed at an upstairs window, and a blind came down. Dr. Mazzini was home at last, but too late for Daisy Brown to give him my message.

I turned on the Mercury's lights, swung around in the street, and drove back to the square.

The lights in Dan's Place were still bright. I parked at the curb and went inside, thinking that a little bourbon might boost my sagging spirits. There were several men at the bar a few couples in the booths. The juke box was turned low on the old Bunny Berigan recording of "Can't Get Started," a long-time favorite of mine.

"Well, sir?" the bartender said. "Bourbon and soda."

He nodded, and then squinted at me. "Ain't you the guy that asked for Earl Seltzman tonight?"

English Enters French Language

By PRESTON GROVER

PARIS (AP)—Part of the French press is worried that English is creeping in to corrupt the French language.

Most indignant is the Dimanche Matin a fellow-traveling newspaper, which recites a whole list of English words crowded into a single talk by an editor to an author.

"The standing (reputation) of the house requires resitting (that is the way rewriting looks in French) of your story. It lacks suspense (the paper had a hard time explaining this in few words). You abuse the flashback (it had a harder time with this). It lacks pep (pim ent is about as good in French). Your book is too teuf (tough) and sexi. It sounds like a rimeque (remake) of an old trilleur (thriller)."

Complained Dimanche Matin: "It is very disturbing that it should be in the literary world that the French language is so beaten around."

Le Monde, a far more serious newspaper, says some English words are getting into the language because there are no French words of similar meaning.

"Living room" is now mentioned in apartment contracts and there doesn't seem to be anything in either the language or French habits that covers it. The French drift from the dining room to the salon. The salon definitely is not a living room. So "living room" now is legal. It is in the dictionaries.

"Weekend" has found a place because it has a tone of rest and recreation that "fin de semaine" misses.

Until 75 years ago, man's only source of artificial light was the open flame.

Nine-Year-Old Confesses Arson

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Arson investigators say a 9-year-old boy has admitted burning down his neighbor's $10,000 home.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Young was burned last Saturday while they and their children were absent.

The youth was held in the Van Nuys juvenile ward pending the filing of a petition in Juvenile Court.

'Easy Money' Is New Big Power In Housing Boom

NEW YORK (AP)—A new phase of the housing boom is under way. It is powered by easy money.

Mortgage investors say today they apparently have the blessing of Washington, judging both by the new Federal Housing Act and the Treasury's policy toward the federal debt. They think nothing will halt the boom as long as people go on craving new or larger homes — on easy terms.

Applications for mortgage insurance are piling up in the offices of the Federal Housing Administration. In some areas 10-week backlogs appear. FHA has decided to let home builders start construction before the agency processes the applications.

The rush to borrow to build may push the mortgage loan total for the year near 22 billion dollars, the Home Loan Bank board believes. Last year 19 1/2 billion dollars worth were written.

Home building in September was at a record level, the Commerce and Labor departments report. F. W. Dodge Corp., construction news and marketing specialists, say residential building contracts in the states east of the Rockies were 53 per cent higher in September than for the same month a year ago.

The men who finance the mortgages say that if the Treasury took a new tack on the federal debt when the next big refinancing comes up in December and started tightening money again, the resultant withdrawal of idle money from the home mortgage market would quickly choke off the building boom, which is the big prop to prosperity right now.

The new housing law has given renewed impetus to the speculative operations of enterprising single-family home builders," says George W. Warnecke, president of the mortgage investment firm bearing his name.

In his opinion the new law, plus the Treasury's easy money policy (in deciding against long-term bonds last month) has made clear the government's "determination to keep construction at an even pace of one million or more homes a year."

He says interest rates have eased in recent months and may ease further.

Police reported he let his companion, John Brown, of New York City, take over the driving after the ticket was issued.

Two hours later, Brown crashed into a concrete wall, killing both men.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—A spirited rally spread through the stock market today, sending some shares up a couple of points and more.

The rails, aircrafts, steels and motors were strong, and buying soon embraced the oils, rubbers and radio-televisions. Selected issues in other groups also performed well.

Volume showed a big improvement over yesterday's rather slow market. In the first two hours 1,000,000 shares changed hands. Yesterday's total for the day was 1,900,000 shares.

Well ahead at one time were such issues as Inland Steel, Gillette, Corning Glass, Reynolds Spring, Western Union, Amecott, Texas Pacific Land Trust, Zenith Radio, Northrop, United Aircraft, Douglas, Goodyear Schering, Pullman, Pacific Mills, Santa Fe, Illinois Central, Southern Railway, Union Pacific and Atlantic Coast Line.

Standard Oil (NJ) returned to the 100 mark on a series of sales totaling more than a quarter of a million dollars. Sun Oil was up better than four points at one time on a proposal for a 5-for-4 stock split.

St. Regis Paper lost a little ground following announcement of an increased dividend—indicating the news had been anticipated. Lukens Steel, which failed to declare an extra dividend, was off.

Car And Truck In Collision Here

Two vehicles were involved in a collision at Five Points yesterday causing damage estimated at $300.

Drivers of the vehicles were Clifton E. Warren of Stokes Route 1 and William D. Howell of Fletcher. Damage to Warren's car amounted to $275 while damage to the truck operated by Howell came to $25. No charges were placed by investigating officers R. W. Harris and H. H. McGowan.

Arrest Man On Bootleg Charge

ABC officers arrested Charles D. Carmon, Negro, of near Cannon's Crossroads about 1 o'clock this morning for the illegal possession of 27 half-gallons of liquor.

ABC officer J. M. Ward said the jars contained 13 1/2 gallons of liquor and the booze was found in a smokehouse.

Carmon was released under $300 bond pending the next term of court. The ABC officers were assisted in the raid by members of the Ayden police department.

Fly Propaganda Into Red China

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist planes carried the propaganda war against Red China to the main land again yesterday, dropping leaflets in the Folan and Changpu areas of southern Fukien province, the Defense Ministry announced today.

Nationalists and Reds exchanged sporadic artillery fire between Amoy and Quemoy and in the Tachen Island area yesterday, the ministry also announced.

Big Majority In 'Nickels' Vote

RALEIGH (AP)—With returns still incomplete, at least 94 per cent of Tar Heel farmers who voted in Friday's referendum favor continuation of the Nickels for Know-How research program for the next three years.

Of 28,468 votes reported in 72 counties, 26,074 favored the program while 2,395 opposed it. Officials explained that the hurricane disrupted communications and prevented many counties from reporting their returns.

Truck Crashed Into Bridge Railing

The above truck overturned and tore out large sections of the railing on the bridge over the Tar River between Falkland and Belvoir. Several pieces of the lumber went into the cab of the vehicle and came out the rear. The driver of the truck, Lenwood Earl Brewer of Greenville Route 4, was uninjured in the accident which happened Monday night. (Photo by Highway Patrolman D. E. Perry).

Church Plans Proceed On Enlargement Work

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church congregation has directed the church's Building Committee to go ahead with plans for the rebuilding and enlargement of the sanctuary.

The move was made Sunday at the regular morning worship service as the congregation authorized the committee to make plans for the second phase of a church building program adopted in 1948.

The first project of this program was an educational building, the second the enlargement of the sanctuary and the third the revamping of the entire church building. The educational building, begun in 1949, was completed in 1950.

During the early summer of this year the church Building and Finance Committees were nominated by a group from the official board of the church and elected by the quarterly conference. Plans for the sanctuary are to be submitted to the Building Committee to be approved first by them and then by the congregation.

C. C. Benton and Sons of Wilson are the architects for the project.

School Bus Hit By Car Tuesday

A man who gave his address as Macclesfield route one was taken into custody yesterday afternoon after being involved in an accident at Lang's Crossroads, and a few minutes later ramming the rear of a school bus one mile west of Ballard's Crossroads.

Patrolman D.E. Perry who investigated the accidents, identified the man taken into custody as Jasper Hymrick Harrell, 40, of Macclesfield route one. Harrell was charged with driving drunk in both accidents, and charged with hit and run in the accident at Lang's crossroads.

Perry said the pickup truck driven by Harrell crashed into the rear of a school bus which was stopped on the highway left off school children. Only three children were on the bus at the time of the accident, he said, and none of them were injured. There was only minor damage to the rear of the bus. Perry identified the driver of the school bus as Isaac Monk, 17-year-old Negro of Bell Arthur.

A short while before the school bus accident, Harrell was involved at Lang's Crossroads. The truck at Lang's cross roads, the truck Harrell was driving ran into the rear of a truck driven by Elmer Bryant Hardee of Greenville, causing minor damage.

State A S C Head Will Speak In Winterville

H. D. Godfrey, North Carolina head of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation organization will speak tomorrow night in the agricultural building at Winterville High School at 7:30.

J. H. Mobley, agricultural teacher at the Winterville High School said Godfrey will discuss what to plant in 1955, the penalty for overplanting, cross compliance, and diverted acres.

"This meeting is very important to the farmers because he will give us the latest information on the new farm program," Mobley stated. "I think he is one of the most important men we have lined up."

Tomorrow night's program is one of a series being held at the Ayden High School on Wednesday nights and the Winterville High School on Thursday nights. However both Ayden and Winterville school patrons will attend tomorrow night's meet at the Winterville school since the Wednesday night meet will not be held at the Ayden school this week.

Voices Identify Bank Bandits

DETROIT (AP)—Identified as bank robbers only by the sound of their voices Simon H. Thompson, 37, and Leslie W. Reamer, 39, of Detroit were convicted by a federal court jury yesterday in the $11,500 hold-up June 28 of the Trenton State Bank.

Judge Ralph M. Freeman set no date for sentence.

Three bank employees who had been tied up by two masked gunmen said they recognized the voices of the defendants.
