Wife Has Learned To Take Her Life With Atoms 'In Stride'

By DOROTHY ROE AP Women's Editor

Laura Fermi of Chicago has lived in the midst of atom splitting for more than 20 years.

Married to Enrico Fermi, leader of the group that achieved the first atomic chain reaction, this quiet, motherly woman has learned to take bombs and stockpiles in her stride. She has written about it in her new book, "Atoms in the Family," describing her famous husband in the slightly amused and completely unawakened manner common to wives.

During a one-day stopover in New York en route from a summer chasing atoms in Europe to her husband's research job at the University of Chicago, Mrs. Fermi chatted brightly about how it feels to be married to one of the world's greatest scientists.

"I guess it's a good deal like being married to a businessman or a farmer," she says, "because I never knew what was going on when all the top secret experiments were under way. We just never talked about the atomic bomb project by mutual consent."

How a wife could contain her natural feminine curiosity for five years during the war, when Fermi worked with the Manhattan Project and later with the final perfection of the first atomic bomb, is a secret known only to Mrs. Fermi.

The Fermis were married in Italy, when Enrico was even then recognized as a brilliant and promising young scientist. After they came to America, his wife was worried mostly about the servant problem and the difficulty of keeping house in wartime.

"At first it was a strange and different kind of life," she recalls. "But now I have learned to love America. I do my own housework like everybody else, and have learned to do everything other American wives do, even painting walls and making over clothes."

Fountain News

FOUNTAIN — The Circles of the Women of the Presbyterian Church met Tuesday night in the church. Mrs. J. L. Peele, Circle One leader, gave the devotional, using "Paul in Ephesus" as her subject. Scripture was taken from Acts beginning with 18th chapter, twenty third verse through twentieth chapter, thirty-eighth verse. From this Mrs. Peele gave a very interesting account of Paul's third Missionary journey. Ten members were present. Mrs. W. R. Harris, president dismissed the meeting with a prayer. Mrs. A. C. Gay read an article on Church Extension, which gave some very interesting facts about the church.

Compliment For Tar Heel Congressmen

The Charlotte Observer, in a recent editorial, asserted members of Congress from North Carolina received a high compliment from the Americans for Democratic Action when the ADA asserted they voted "wrong" on a majority of measures the ADA picked out as their own.

We agree with the Charlotte paper it is a compliment to the North Carolina delegation in Congress that they did not go down the line for measures promoted by the left-wing ADA.

The Charlotte Observer put the situation bluntly in its editorial:

"The ADA has appointed itself as the arbiter of what is 'right' or 'wrong' in all legislation that comes before Congress and in all other issues that come before the American people. Usually its 'right' means wrong to those who believe in the fundamentals of American constitutional government, because ADA will be found on the side of unlimited executive power, bureaucratic tyranny, and all measures that set the direction toward state socialism."

In North Carolina, as elsewhere, there are extreme liberals who adhere to the policies voiced by the ADA concerning legislation and what is in the best interest of the American people. By and large however, North Carolinians are far to the right of the thinking apparently behind the ADA program. To a man, North Carolina's delegation in Congress is conservative compared to the ADA line of thought; but in our opinion, not one of North Carolina's members of Congress is sufficiently far to the right to be called reactionary.

Born and brought up in the Democratic party, most North Carolinians adhere to the fundamentals of the Democratic party. They balk at going too far to the left even though some national party officials advocate drastic actions at times, and they constantly fight against extreme and outdated conservatism in the federal government and policies.

Although we have the utmost confidence in the soundness of North Carolina's Congressional delegation, it is reassuring to note the ADA has listed most of the Tar Heel members of Congress as voting "wrong" on the majority of the measures before Congress.

Is Your Name On The Registration Books

Saturday is the final day of the registration period for voters of Pitt County who are properly registered for the general election to be held November 2.

Most eligible voters in the county registered during the registration period which preceded the Democratic primary last May. However, there are probably several hundred eligible voters who neglected to get their names on the registration books at that time. Unless these people register by Saturday, they will not be eligible to vote in the general election.

Registration has been extremely light during the current registration period which ends Saturday. The registrars of the 25 precincts in the county will be at their respective polling places throughout the county on Saturday. They will be there for the sole purpose of registering eligible voters whose names are not on the registration books.

The Reflector urges citizens of the county who have not made sure their names are on the registration books to attend to the chore this coming Saturday. Admittedly, there is relatively little interest in Pitt in this "off-year" general election; but it is nevertheless important as all elections are important. It is the obligation of every eligible voter to see that his name is on the registration books, and to cast a ballot in the election.

Dreams Of Power Ended A Nightmare

Utah's Congressman Douglas Stringfellow would likely testify that a man misguided by his own illusions of greatness and desire for power is hurting himself more than any other person.

Fortunately for Stringfellow, he realized his mistake and by making a clean breast of the falsehoods he has told his constituents to gain political power, he may some day be able to start anew in the political arena. As a political name in Utah now, Stringfellow, the Republican, is but a shadow of what it was a week ago.

The GOP had no choice but to take his name from the ticket after his hoax about being a great war hero was exposed.

The Reflector has no sympathy for the hoax Stringfellow created in seeking political office and political power. We do not appreciate such qualities in an individual (or a politician), and we certainly can not condone such frauds.

Nevertheless, giving the devil his due, we must admit it took a great deal of courage for Congressman Stringfellow, the disabled veteran, to face the people of Utah and tell them frankly, "I'm a liar". It took a great deal more courage for the Congressman to confess his hoax than it did for him to carry it out.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
FREEDOM OF THE WILL
A great deal is written today about the necessity of strengthening the will. Philosophers dwell—and have dwelt—on this necessity, and many modern ethical movements have been based on the theory that a strong will can do anything. Not only ethical movements but unethical as well have been based on this principle. Hitler and his minions talked a great deal about the possible achievements of an unbending will.

But much of this talk about strengthening the will is beside the point. What the wills of most of us need is not strength but liberation. The trouble with our wills is that they are in bondage. We look upon certain evils and know that it is our duty to avoid them, and yet we are drawn to yield to them because of some little promise of pleasure which they hold out. On the other hand, we aspire to do some good thing and find we cannot because our vices, great and small, interfere.

What we need to do is to strike from the will the fetters which bind it. The liberated will may be weak and ineffectual, but at least it is free. Being liberated, it is now prepared to be strengthened. But no amount of strengthening will make it adequate so long as it is held in bondage.

The wills of some men are bound by ignorance; of others by prejudice. But the greatest bondage of all is the bondage of sin.

National Whirligig

Why They Don't Like Politics

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—It did not require Charles E. Wilson's dogmatic flight of speech to prove that the nation's biggest and most successful businessmen do not make the smartest politicians.

In a misery-loves-company chorus since the Defense Secretary's seminar on human and canine laziness, the majority of his Cabinet associates agree that they, too, are innocents abroad in a Washington wilderness of words.

Long before the Wilson faux pas, if such it was, business and industrial executives had been questioned on their experiences as national figures, and on their reaction to the transformation from Mister to Mister Secretary. Most of them admit frankly that they do not enjoy public life, and that they accepted appointments only because they considered it a civic duty.

When they backed away from Cabinet assignments, Ike retorted: "You fellows have always complained that the government was being run and ruined by the politicians. Now, it is up to you to take over, and to demonstrate that you can do a better job!"

SACRIFICED SALARIES—Almost every Cabinet member—in fact, all but one—look a steep cut in salary. They also abandon complete control of small or large corporations for service in a goldfish-bowl organization. They gave up many personal comforts and solaces which they enjoyed as highly-paid, private citizens. As one asked me in a bitter tone:

"How many men and women, with a sufficient income and assured security in private industry, would swap those blessings to be a Mayor or a City Commissioner, when low pay and brickbats are the order of the day?"

Anyhow, they came to Washington for one reason or another. But they find that their experience, background and training handicap them severely in the prosaic public business. Here are, in brief, their own explanations:

utterances to a passionate, partisan multitude. They are no politically articulate. They forget that their audience is a nation of 160,000,000 people instead of a sympathetic board of directors. Wilson's General Motors associates would have been wowed by his up-to-date, Assoc's Public Labor was not!

Ike's Cabinet members do not possess the rolling and ready tongue of their Roosevelt-Truman predecessors, who were drawn from the list of politicians, professors and lawyers. They were master-performers in pitching their appeals to public mobs, classrooms and juries. They doted on political sex instead of logics or economics. F.D.R. was their tutor.

There are only two lawyers, one politician and no professors in Ike's Cabinet. The two lawyers—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Attorney-General Herbert Brownell—are debarré by their judicial and diplomatic duties from public politicking. The politician, Brownell, is keeping his head down.

"SUMMER BOARDERS"—But there are even more weighty liabilities to the businessmen-turned-politicians. They cannot hire and fire on the basis of efficiency, retaining the busy bees and shooting out the drones. Civil Service prevents that.

Too many Federal employees at Washington regard themselves as "summer boards," sure of their jobs and retirement pensions. Their bosses do not have such assurance.

Defense Secretary Wilson, as head of General Motors, could buy materials from the lowest bidder. But not now! Even though it costs the government many millions of dollars, and produces a less desirable product, he must, for political reasons, award contracts on the basis of politics and votes. He must, when possible, give preference to "distress areas," where unemployment is high.

For these and many other reasons, including their awkwardness and inexperience in dealing with newspaper reporters, Wilson and his Eisenhower companions—and Ike, too—think that the old-fashioned methods are "a hell of a way to run a government."

Somebody Told Me

Catching Up Odds And Ends

The trip last weekend to Washington is a subject that could fill weeks of columns. But here's the final chapter:

Stude Ficklen was sitting a few rows in front of the Seales aggregation. Hooper hollered down at Stude and asked him for some popcorn. Stude obliged by throwing a handful.

Later, after the embarrassed crowd who had been riding Washington Quarterback Jack Scarbath discovered that his family was sitting right in front of them, the remarks were turned to Ficklen.

Now Stude is labeled as the only football fan in existence who ever got mad enough at a player to throw popcorn in his mother's face!

Be the Good Lord and the bank account willing, I'll make that trip next year.

Hurricane forecast: If you think Hazel was rough, wait until Tallulah comes!

Last night on the air short wave radio operators were relaxing for the first time since Hazel. Previously, we didn't take time to call each other by name or even extend normal courtesy to each other at times. It was just a matter of handling as many messages as fast as we could. The Tar Heel network handled an estimated 10,000. Most were welfare messages. People calling in from outlying states who couldn't get telephone calls in constituted a big majority of the callers.

Of course there were messages for phone companies, Red Cross, and power companies, the Army and Marines, concerning equipment to restore services and missing persons. And there were death notices.

On one occasion I even heard somebody make a hotel reservation for some power-line workers. Normally, this would not have been allowed on the network, since emergency messages only were allowed when going was rough. But there was a slack moment at the time.

Ray Martin, Roy Phelps and I were in the position of having the only outlets into Kinston at times. There are amateurs in Kinston, and Washington but they spent very little time on during the emergency because of conflicting duties. The local telephone company had lines in, so we relayed important messages by phone. And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

FATHER OF THE BRIDE AS HOLDER OF THE BAG (Richmond Times-Dispatch)
A columnist out in Wisconsin erupted not long ago with a pungent suggestion, namely, that there is no logic in the custom whereby the father of the bride always picks up the tab for the wedding expenses. The father of the groom is an equally logical sitting duck for this rite, opines the aforesaid citizen of Wisconsin—Tex Reynolds, of the Racine Journal-Times.

Tex emphasizes that he is interested solely in the principle of the thing and "the broad effect on the millions of other fathers throughout the land." Monetary considerations have nothing to do with the case, says he. (He's the father of two unmarried daughters, and no sons, but perish the thought that the little matter of digging up a couple of thousand berries incident to the marital ceremonies of the aforesaid daughters ever so much as crossed his mind.)

Anyway, Tex has put his finger on a problem that has vexed many a pater, and has been brought forcibly to public notice in The Father of the Bride, that hilarious book, play and film. The "Old man" is accurately depicted therein as holding the fiscal bag on everything, while having practically no voice in deciding the questions which bear upon the amount he is going to have to cough up. In the end, he is a sadly disillusioned fellow, with his bankroll not only shot to ribbons, but his chassis wracked with fatigue, his feet hurting and his psyche damaged almost beyond repair.

This soul-stirring saga of a father's tribulations ought to have aroused nationwide sentiment in his behalf, but apparently it remained for a newspaperman in Wisconsin to sense the true significance of the heart-rending spectacle and suggest formally that the father of the bride and the father of the groom split the expense of the ceremonies 50-50, or at least 40-60. It's a noble and beautiful idea.

Spectacular Storm Damage Appealed To Sympathies

By LYNN NISBET

FAIR Since the first North Carolina State Fair was held in 1853 there have been several times when the exposition was not staged, because of war or desperate economic conditions. So it is that the present fair is the 87th, instead of the 101st. It has been billed as the greatest of them all, both in educational and entertainment features.

Exhibits of livestock, agricultural products, domestic arts, farm and home machinery and such like are better than average. Improved facilities at the fairgrounds make it possible to display them to better advantage. The midway shows by James E. Strate have added features from previous years.

The newspaper-radio-state official preview of grandstand attractions presented Monday night drew an appreciative audience.

Just about time for the grand opening of the fair at 10 o'clock Tuesday it began to rain and some of the wags commented that the 17 record of Dr. J.S. Dorton, director of the fair, for fine weather was endangered. Before noon the rain had stopped, the skies had almost cleared and Dorton's luck was holding—because the light shower laid the dust and cooled the air.

SPECTACULAR—The damage wrought throughout eastern North Carolina by Hurricane Hazel will probably approximate $75 million. At least eighteen lives were lost from causes directly traceable to the storm.

The monetary losses were not greatly in excess of losses due to the drought in North Carolina this year, and the number of deaths was about the same as the number dying from other violent causes during the week-end period that the storm raged. It is the unusual, unexpected and spectacular nature of the hurricane losses that make them stand out.

APPEAL—The swift and in some communities almost total devastation of the storm appealed to the sympathies of the people who were not affected much more readily and effectively than the spectacle of crops on broad fields slowly burning to death. Furthermore, the storm damage was greater where it hit and individual losses were in most instances heavier than from drought, and the needs arising from the losses more of emergency nature.

That is why the Federal and State governments through civil defense organizations moved so much more swiftly through the mass of red tape to make relief available, than they did in the case of relief for drought sufferers on the farms and in cities and towns where water supplies diminished to the danger point.

Storm losses might be roughly divided into two classes: The less important is the destruction of beach homes, pleasure boats, automobiles, warehouses and other items involving only dollar loss. Much of this means that lifetime savings are gone, and results in real hardship, severe but not tragic.

The tragedy comes when the destroyed property represents not only savings or investments, but the means of livelihood such as fishing boats, and the destruction of permanent homes leaving families desolate. One man, who estimated his personal loss at around $50,000, said it just about broke him but he was happy that his family was safe and his permanent home not damaged. He was going about helping those who had lost much less in dollar value, but so much more in actual fact.

Residual damage from disease, mental worry and other intangibles cannot be computed in dollars and cents but its impact will be terrific. It is recalled that on occasion of a Texas flood last year the immediate damage was not so great as that resulting from poisonous snakes and diseases. It is to combat these effects as much as to give immediate relief that Civil Defense, Red Cross and other agencies moved so quickly into the devastated areas.

INSURANCE—One of the most serious immediate economic problems involves insurance coverage. It is basic in the whole theory of insurance coverage that payment to policy holders does not reduce the total loss. It serves only to spread the impact by using premium payments of those not affected to relieve those who suffered individual loss. It is entirely probable that the widespread damages resulting from Hazel's devastating march from Haiti to Canada may "break" some insurance companies.

Incidents have already developed of some policy holders making absurd claims for damages, and of some honest policy holders discovering that the fine print on their policies left them helpless on items they thought

DRYERS HELP APPLIANCE SHIPMENTS TOP 1953

August was the first month this year in which shipments of major appliances exceeded those in the corresponding 1953 month, according to the Retailing Daily major appliance index. Dryers led the upswing, and dryers are the only major appliance to show a gain in the first eight months of the year.

Business Today

Government Business

By ELMER ROESSNER
Doing business with the government can be a vastly complicated procedure. George A. Renard, executive secretary of the National Association of Purchasing Agents, writes in the organization's Bulletin.

The popular idea that the government does most of its buying by advertising for bids and awarding contracts to lowest bidders is all wrong, he points out. It is not only true but it's impossible under conditions today. Most money is spent and most contracts awarded by negotiation.

The government negotiator has a difficult time, Mr. Renard points out, because he must conform to these policies:
Buy American goods.
Help distressed labor areas.
Meet all fair labor standards.
Aid small business.
Avoid concentration of purchases.
Avoid discrimination.
Disperse contracts geographically.

Use available capacity.
Conserve critical materials.
Encourage subcontracting.
Then, Mr. Renard says, there are five methods of procurement: separate, single, joint, collaborative and interagency. After that, one of these types of contracts may be used:
Firm fixed-price.
Fixed-price with redetermination clauses.
Fixed-price with incentive clauses.
Cost-plus-a-fixed-fee.
Cost without fee.
Time and material.
Open-end contracts, call contracts and master contracts.
Letter contracts, or letters of intent.
Basic agreements.

Purchase orders.
"At this point," Mr. Renard concludes, "it may become a tiny bit difficult to concentrate on the price, the value and the service that will best meet the requirement."

IDEAS THAT REQUIRE POSITIVE ACTION
Ideas that could spark other ideas were presented in this space yesterday. Here are some ideas of a different type; they call for definite action by businessmen interest:

Promotion: If a company believes any of its newspaper advertisements or window or interior displays has been of prize-winning caliber, it should write to the N.R.D.G.A., 100 West 31 St., New York 1, for details on the annual retail advertising contests.

Playthings: If a company sells toys, it should ask the Toy Guidance Council, 1124 Broadway, New York 10, for "Prestige Toys, 1954," a 46-page booklet listing 104 toys approved by educators. Free.

Variety: If a company has a product for the variety-store market, it should ask Variety Store Merchandiser, 192 Lexington Ave., New York 16, for "Nickels, Dimes and Dollars," a marketing guide. Free.

Finance: If the owner of a small business wants to improve the organization of his finances, he should send 30 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D.C., for "A Handbook of Small Business Finance." New.

Discounters: If a company is interested in discount houses, it can get a national directory of them from Hoge, Farrell, Inc., 69 Madison Ave., New York, for $9.95.

White Shirts, Just A Uniform

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—The biggest mistake the white collar class makes today is to cling to the white shirt.

The white shirt for a couple of generations has been a genteel badge of superiority in America, a stuffy emblem of stuffy respectability.

When a guy had nothing else to boast about, he could at least feel proud in his heart because he earned his living indoors and wore a white shirt. For some obscure reason this made him feel a cut above the rough-hedged skilled workmen who went bolstered to their jobs in dungarees or old leather jackets.

Whatever reason existed for this feeling vanished when the skilled workmen began dragging down more take home pay than the office workers, and that has been true for some time now. A policeman can wear a blue uniform so he can be readily identifiable when you have to help for help. But the office worker's white shirt has become a uniform to him, too, although he doesn't realize it, and really doesn't need to wear a uniform at all. It seems to me his white shirt has become a symbol of inferiority, not superiority.

For years I have been crusading against the out-of-date snobbery of the white shirt, which most men actually wear for one of three reasons:

1. Their fathers wore one.
2. They are afraid to wear a colored shirt because they don't want to stand out from their fellow white sheep in the herd.
3. Their wives tell them they look younger or cuter in a white shirt. But the wives should know better.

It is a pleasure indeed to note now that one of the nation's leading shirtmakers is attacking this old shibboleth in a series of ads entitled: "Never wear a white shirt before sundown."

"A white shirt with a business suit is really the loudest thing you can wear," this firm asserts. "It looks clean in the morning, but by afternoon it gets soiled at the collar and cuffs. This looks awful. Wearing a white shirt at the office is... a pitiful abdication of individuality. No well-dressed man should wear a white shirt before sundown."

This verdict makes sense, even if one be so unkind as to suspect that it is—part of an insidious campaign to get us into the two-shirt-a-day class—a colored one at the office, a white shirt in the evening.

But something has to be done to lift the American male from the anonymity and monotony of his invariable white shirt. Even the denim shirts of convicts at least have numbers stenciled on them, so they can be told apart. Men who stubbornly cling to the white shirt might take a tip from this and lend a little variety to their looks by having their auto license or social security number printed on their starch-pale bosom fronts.

Personally, I blame American women for the fact their husbands generally look like penguins rather than people. They usually select the family clothing, and they buy papa white shirts because they are too lazy to take the trouble to dress him as well as they do themselves. Or else they fear to.

So long as mama can ape the peacock, what difference does it make if papa looks like a pallbearer? Does she really want anybody to notice him anyway?

Any man looks more virile and masculine at work in colored, plaid, checked or striped shirts, and any wife who would pause and think this through would realize it.

Why not be the first guy in your office to dare to stand out from the crowd? Even if you show up in a bright green shirt or a lumber jacket, you'll have lost that dismal white collar worker look—the empty zero with its hair combed.

were covered. Almost certainly there will be cases of policy holders seeking more than they are entitled to, and of companies seeking to duck obligations for which they are morally, if not legally, liable. The extent of damages and the wide area affected will necessitate delay in adjustments. Quite likely there will be numerous lawsuits arising out of disagreements as to coverage and amounts due, perhaps on account of delayed appraisals.

Charles F. Gold, commissioner of insurance for North Carolina, moved quickly to cut red tape and permit appraisers and adjusters to get on the job without the usual processes for hurricane license. The fact that Hurricane Hazel moved through nine or ten states, some of which had not recovered from the visits of Hazel's elder and evil sisters Carol and Edna, makes it impossible for the companies to concentrate adjusters in North Carolina.

Opinions freely voiced around Capitol Square are of the general tenor that North Carolina is fortunate in having a commissioner of insurance with capability and courage to act, and with honest purpose to assure equitable treatment for policy holders and carrying companies alike.

What part of every prescription weighs nothing at all?

Your pharmacist's scale is so sensitive it will respond to the weight of a hair!

But into every prescription he compounds, your pharmacist puts one ingredient that never moves the scale's needle. It is the most important thing you buy whenever you have a prescription filled!

It is the professional knowledge and skill of your pharmacist. Without it, no prescription could be properly filled. The physician orders the required drugs in the specific amounts needed, but the compounding of the finished prescription is the sole responsibility of your pharmacist.

Before he could fulfill this responsibility, he devoted years to the study of the highly specialized subjects of his profession. To earn his college degree, for example, he had to acquire a fundamental knowledge of many sciences such as chemistry, physics, biology. He mastered, too, the details of compounding and dispensing drugs, chemicals, and other medicinal agents.

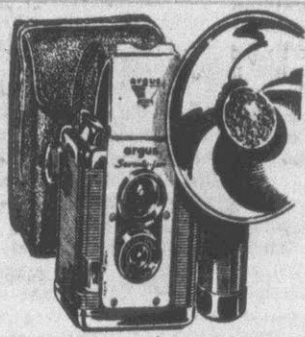

And after his formal education, your pharmacist's course of study does not end. For there are constant changes and progress in medicine and pharmacy with which he must keep abreast.

Dethroned Gavilan Claims He Got No Breaks In Bout

By MURRAY BOBE
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Johnny Saxton won the welterweight title from Kid Gavilan last night.

Today, with cries of "robbers" from the Gavilan camp echoing around him, Saxton went into court to face a possible 18-day sentence. He is charged with 13 traffic violations.

"I hope the judge will give me a break," said the 24-year-old New Yorker.

Gavilan insisted he got no breaks last night when a highly controversial unanimous 18-round decision relieved him of the 147-pound crown he had worn for 3½ years.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Facts and figures on last night's Kid Gavilan-Johnny Saxton welterweight title match at Convention Hall:

Attendance—7,900.

Gross receipts—$97,121.

Net receipts (estimated)—$45,220.

Television receipts—$40,000.

Gavilan's purse—$40,000 (Guaranteed).

Saxton's purse (60 per cent of bet and TV minus Gavilan's guarantee) $11,132 (estimated).

While the referee and two judges were in accord and had Saxton the champion by the 13th round barring a knockout, 20 of 22 boxing writers at the ringside had Gavilan the winner in what had to be the worst fight of his career.

Gavilan, alternately crying and screaming and alternately retreating and unretreating, sobbed after the fight.

"People don't talk for nothing. I know from the first round on that I cannot win. The referee gives Saxton everything his way. I no want to fight no more. I give my left hand—I give my right hand to the Pennsylvania commission. Everything steens."

"The Keed, he is robbed," screamed his manager, Angel Lopez. "The Keed, he is jobbed. I know he have to win big but after he take last three rounds I figure for sure they must give him the decision. I say to the Keed, "You cannot take it away from you. I am wrong. I give you the Pennsylvania commission. They can take the championship, and keep it."

"It was a lousy stinking fight," said Chairman Frank Wiener of the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission. "If Gavilan fought like I've seen him in the past, Saxton wouldn't have won."

He made that statement to Frank (Blinky) Palermo, manager of the champion, and Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club in the Saxton's dressing room.

Later Wiener said, "If Gavilan's handlers are still crying robbers, crooks and fix after they have had time to cool off, it will cost them. Both Gavilan and Saxton stunk out the house. Let Saxton take his title to Syracuse and fight Carmen Basilio, and let Gavilan fight anywhere but in Philadelphia."

There was more action and confusion in Gavilan's dressing room, including a fist fight, than there was in the "fight."

Wiener frowns on return bout contracts and there was none recorded with the commission. However, Lopez, in between saying the Keed was through fighting and then maybe not, insisted he had an ironclad contract for a return bout in New York City within 90 days. Palermo who had told reporters that Lopez was correct, reversed his field. He said Saxton might face Basilio, the No. 1 contender, first, with the winner to meet Gavilan. Then he said it's up to Norris.

Norris said, "We'll see what happens. I think Gavilan should fight as a middleweight."

Meanwhile, Saxton, bewildered but happy, said, "I fought the fight like I planned—to win. I had him puzzled."

What Wiener said about the dull, listless, clinch-filled fiasco undoubtedly goes double for the innocent 7,900 fans who shelled out $97,121. The customers booted through most of the activity.

This observer had Gavilan in front, 8-4-3. The officials voted for Saxton this way: Referee Pete Pantele, 9-4; Judge Jimmy Mina, 7-6-2; and Judge Nat Lopinson, 8-6-1. They all gave Gavilan the last three rounds.

When they didn't pose and wait for the other to lead, the boxers buffed and puffed at close range.

There were no knockdowns, naturally, and few solid blows were landed.

Gavilan weighed 145½; Saxton 146½.

G-Men In Role Of Little David Against Goliath

By WAYNE BISHOP
Coach Bill Kittrell's Greenville Panthers, 20 strong, met the New Bern Bears, who have 26 players on their squad roster, in a modern day meeting of David and Goliath on Friday night in New Bern.

The mighty Bears, who were rated as almost untouchable at the first of the year, have not quite lived up to their rave notices. They were lucky to come off with a tie against Washington and even lowly Jacksonville scored against the Bears, Jacksonville had a -7 yardage total against Greenville.

All the Greensies would have to do to make it a perfect rematch of the two Biblical characters would be to "slay" Coach Joe Caruso's glamour boys. Going by what the Bears have shown so far it seems a little luck the G-men could turn history into modern news.

Coach Kittrell ran his G-men through a long scrimmage drill yesterday afternoon at the Brookgreen practice field. In the long drill captain James Speight took part in full activity. The senior speed demon has been ill for almost a week but is ready to go back to work at full speed now.

Coach Kittrell said he was pleased with the way the team played in the 7-7 tie with Elizabeth City Monday night. The Greenville head mentor especially praised his defensive unit which played its best ball of the season. Coach Kittrell commented on the game, "There isn't much blame on the players in that contest. I made the mistakes myself, but I thought we played a great game to have only 20 players. The loss of Harold Edwards and the fact that James Speight could play only part of the game hurt tremendously. I don't think people should complain about our showing; after all we've come pretty far for a team that was supposed to win only one game all year long."

Three players from Virginia Tech were among the 11 nominated in the second week of screenings—halfback Dickie Beard, quarterback Bill Cranwell and end Grover Jones.

Beard turned in a sparkling performance in Tech's 19-12 victory over Richmond. Cranwell entered the game when Johnny Dean, the team's regular quarterback, fractured an ankle in the first quarter and directed the Gobblers to victory. Jones stood out on defense.

Two players from West Virginia were nominated. One of them, tackle Sam Huff, made 11 tackles in the Mountaineers' 19-14 upset triumph last Saturday over Penn State. The other, end Billy Eillen, played the full 60 minutes.

Three of the six nominators tagged Johnny Popsop, Furman halfback, for All America consideration. Popsop made three touchdowns as Furman outscored The Citadel 31-20. One came on a 103-yard kickoff return.

Another ace who caught the nominators eye was Dick Miles, freshman quarterback at The Citadel, playing in only his second college game. He gained 106 yards rushing and completed 13 of 24 passes for 100 more yards, ran 63 yards for the longest run of the game from scrimmage to set up one touchdown and engineered and scored the final touchdown.

The conference All America list now includes 21 names.

Good Chance To Play Next Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Whether an able-bodied Roy Campanella will be behind the plate for the Brooklyn Dodgers next season won't be known for another four or six weeks at least.

It will be that long before doctors can test the results of the second operation in six months on the veteran catcher's left hand.

In Backfield

Kirk Newton of Farmville will be at left half in the starting backfield for Methodist Orphanage when it meets Oxford-Orphanage in the 17th Orphanage Bowl football game in Raleigh tonight. Proceeds of the game, sponsored by Sudan Temple Shriners in cooperation with Methodist and Masons, go to the two institutions.

Eleven Offered For All-America

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Eleven more Southern Conference football players have been nominated for the 1964 All America team by the area's nominating board.

The new nominations came after last week's play in which two conference teams—West Virginia and Virginia Tech—remained undefeated and untied.

Three players from Virginia Tech were among the 11 nominated in the second week of screenings—halfback Dickie Beard, quarterback Bill Cranwell and end Grover Jones.

Beard turned in a sparkling performance in Tech's 19-12 victory over Richmond. Cranwell entered the game when Johnny Dean, the team's regular quarterback, fractured an ankle in the first quarter and directed the Gobblers to victory. Jones stood out on defense.

Two players from West Virginia were nominated. One of them, tackle Sam Huff, made 11 tackles in the Mountaineers' 19-14 upset triumph last Saturday over Penn State. The other, end Billy Eillen, played the full 60 minutes.

NCAA Ruling Is Stiff Blow For Miami Gridders

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The ambitious University of Miami (Fla.) rising to national football prominence in the past few years, today faced the possibility of going through the season undefeated and sitting out New Year's Day without an invitation to a bowl game.

The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. handed Miami and City College of New York one year probation yesterday for alleged infractions of NCAA regulations.

The 18-member executive council of the NCAA also reprimanded the University of Portland (Ore.) and Western Illinois State College at Macomb for reported violations of other NCAA rules.

The committee on rules infractions reported Portland violated NCAA regulations by conducting tryouts for 11 prospective basketball players last April while Western Illinois State participated in the Corn Bowl football game at Bloomington, Ill., last Nov. 28. The Corn Bowl is not recognized by the NCAA.

The council also announced at its final session that Michigan State College, placed on probation in August, 1953, for conducting football tryouts, had been restored to all "rights and privileges of an NCAA member."

The probationary period handed CCNY bans the New York school's basketball team from playing in the NCAA national championship tournament at Kansas City in 1955. The council's move was the first action taken against CCNY since the school's basketball scandals of 1950 resulted in a complete overhauling of the college's athletic setup.

The council's report said that the "high school records of 14 or more athletes admitted to City College of New York during the years 1945 to 1951 were sufficiently and fraudulently changed to establish eligibility for admission to the college."

Nat Holman who guided CCNY to the NCAA and National Invitational Tournament championships, was suspended as head coach, but was recently reinstated.

The ruling affects only CCNY's basketball team with respect to NCAA-sponsored or approved tournaments or post-season events.

All of Miami's teams, on the other hand, are barred from competing in any NCAA-approved post season game or tournament.

The ruling dealt a stiff blow to Miami's football team which is undefeated in four games this season. Miami has brushed past Furman, Holy Cross, Baylor and Mississippi State and has been mentioned prominently for a berth in a post-season bowl game.

The school had been given a chance to play in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans Jan. 1 if the team made a good showing through the rest of its schedule. The rest of the season includes Maryland tomorrow and then Furman Auburn, Alabama and Florida.

There was a possibility Miami could go through without a blemish, leaving the school in the unenviable spot of having an undefeated team with no place to go.

Miami drew the probationary period, the council said, because the school violated NCAA regulations by providing "transportation costs of prospective athletes to visit the campus during at least the past four years" and for conducting "tryouts" for prospective football players."

Bobby Perry May Get ECC Starting Line-Up Position

Preparations for East Tennessee were stepped up yesterday afternoon as the East Carolina coaching staff ordered a long defensive scrimmage.

Coach Earl Smith directed a freshman group in running the wide-open split-T attack employed by East Tennessee. The first three varsity units under the guidance of Coaches Jack Boone and Jim Mallory worked on defenses against the system.

East Tennessee boasts a great passer and quarterback in Pete Wilson. With this in mind, the Pirates spent a great part of the day's workout polishing pass defenses.

Emo Board, fleet halfback, suffered a torn muscle in his hip against Western Carolina and his action this Saturday will be limited. Coach Boone announced today that Greenville's Bobby Perry will most likely start at right halfback.

The little speed-merchant has been used sparingly this season, mostly as a pass receiver and to return kickoffs. He has been running well in practice and shows great promise as a break-away back. He and Tom Allsbrook have alternated at the right half post this week.

Tackle Charles Smith was the only player missing from yesterday's session. He is still in the college infirmary with an infected throat. Jim Stanley, junior halfback from Washington, N.C., was back in heavy equipment. He received a knee injury in practice the first of last week. Bill Helms continued to work out light. The big end has a slight shoulder injury. He and Stanley are expected to be okay for East Tennessee.

Coach Boone said today that he anticipated a tough game. "They're big and fast and play a tricky game of football, he elaborated. Coached by Hal Littleford, a great halfback on the University of Tennessee's national championship club, a few year back, the Pirates (both teams are nicknamed Pirates) have won four of their five games. The only possibly comparison that can be made between the two teams is they both have met Western Carolina. East Tennessee whipped them 20-7 and East Carolina licked them 27-13.

The East Tennessee eleven is experienced and well-taught. They have for the past several years been at the top among small college powers of the nation. The East Carolina tutors are aware of this and are pulling all stops to get the Pirates prepared for a rugged 60 minutes come Saturday night.

BOBBY PERRY Probable Starter

County Fare Featuring Ayden, Contentnea Tilt

County high school games this week find the big one at Ayden where the Tornadoes of Coach Stewart Tripp meet Contentnea High in what could decide the Coastal Conference title.

Both antagonists are currently in a jam at the top of the league and the winner tomorrow night should have a clear-cut path to the throne.

Coach Tripp will welcome back Quarterback W. O. Jolly and this, with the factor that the game is homecoming for Ayden, should give the Tornadoes a spiritual advantage anyway. Milton Worthington, big fullback, will share in the offensive burden with Jolly and give the Tornadoes a good pass-run punch.

Robersonville entertains Nashville High. The Rams are playing good ball with a young team comprised of non-lettermen and freshmen. Nashville boasts a strong club and the Rams will have their hands full. The game will start at 8 p.m. tomorrow night.

Williamston High plays host to Plymouth tomorrow night. Coach Roger Thrift is in the rebuilding stage, having lost 15 first-line players from his 1963 team. In Co-Captain Larry Chesson and John Dunn, Thrift has two outstanding linemen. His best back is Don Christopher, a sophomore quarterback. Plymouth will bring a big and fast team into Williamston. The Green Wave has its work out for them.

Farmville celebrates homecoming with Vanceboro as the opposition. Coach Charlie Tucker believes his boys can take this one. His club is anxious to get in the winners circle after losing to Tarboro, Nashville, Morehead City, and Contentnea. Last year, Farmville played its best game against Vanceboro, trouncing them 45-0. Vanceboro is small and has a lot of inexperienced players. Coach Tucker will count on Billy Baker and Mack Holmes to muster offensive power and Tull Taylor and All-Conference Tackle Carroll Wooten to halt the Vanceboro attack. It will also be a Coastal Conference game.

Durocher Feted But Says Credit Belongs To Team

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Leo Durocher—the brand-new Durocher—makes no claim to genius.

"I am deeply grateful to 27 players on the New York ball club," the Giants' manager said last night with obviously intense feeling.

His statement climaxed a testimonial dinner given in his honor by fellow members of the exclusive Hillcrest Country Club. There must have been 500 there, including a host of outside guests.

Leo said he had been described as a genius after the Giants' astonishing four-straight game World Series triumph.

He laughed and said: "I am a genius. Last spring I asked Horace Stoneham to get rid of Dusty Rhodes. I said he can't do nothing."

Well, Leo went on, Dusty still can't throw and he's liable to get hit on the head by a fly ball. But Dusty, as all will recall, was the pinch-hitting hero of the series against Cleveland.

One by one, Leo reeled off the names of his players and gave little sidelights as he went down the line.

He held of the fourth game in Cleveland. Capt. Alvin Dark dropped the word to Leo that they were having trouble in the later innings hitting the Cleveland left-hand pitching.

"Something in the center field bleachers," Durocher continued. "A hot dog stand. People moving around. They didn't have any trouble with right-hand pitching, but I remembered what Al told me. "That's why I put in Johnny Antonelli (a left hander). What was it, three strikeouts? We got 'em out of there."

Durocher told another sidelight. Indicating the confidence of his team, Dark yelled to his teammates as they took the field that day for the final, fourth game: "This is a lousy town. Let's get out of here."

Which they did that night.

Such professional roasters as Jack Benny, Groucho Marx, George Burns and Danny Kaye led off last night's proceedings with fierce but affectionate swings at the Durocher fame.

Eppes To Meet Homecoming Foe Friday Night

The Eppes High Bulldogs meet one of their most spirited rivals tomorrow night when they play the P. S. Jones High team of Washington, N. C.

P. S. Jones boast a strong club while the Bulldogs have come close to upsetting some very highly rated teams. Eppes High will be celebrating its homecoming and from this angle alone will be out to win against the vaunted visitors.

Eppes High band will lead a parade in the afternoon. The kickoff will be at 8 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium.

A Recoil Pad May Help If Mama Joins Hunting Trip

AP Newsfeatures
By DION HENDERSON
Hunters always knew that shooting can be fun, but it's been a masculine secret their wives are just learning.

A good many husbands, let it be noted, have tried to make it as easy as possible for the little woman to worm the truth out of them. A wife who appreciates sports afield is likely to be understanding about muddy boots and dogs in the living room, too.

However, a thoughtless initiation into the fine art of field shooting can backfire and leave the devoted smoothbore operator in worse shape than when he started. For if his wife—or son, or daughter—is not pleased, she not only will consider him selfish for following his sport thereafter, but a trifle unbalanced as well.

Since bird shooting of one kind or another attracts most of the upland hunters that rabbit shooting doesn't, this discussion can be limited to the shotgun that can be used on both by the young or the fair, or both.

For, of those disappointed in their first shooting experience, roughly one-half were overgunned so that ears, shoulders and cheeks took a fearful pummeling, or they were undergunned so that they decided they'd never be able to hit anything anyway.

Even the most feminine woman can learn to handle a 12-gauge shotgun as well, or better than, Dad. A trip to any big trap or skeet tournament will prove this.

But the 16 or 20 pounds of recoil to a big shotgun is nothing to apply without warning on a lady whose previous experience was limited to insecticide guns.

And on the other hand, there is the persistent fable that has discouraged as many people out of shooting for fun as the big gun has bruised out, the thought that a .410 shotgun is best for little folk because it's the smallest regular shotgun. Fact is, of course, that the .410 is the weapon of real artists, the shotgun virtuoso who can put that small and lightly impelled shot pattern right on their target.

Here's the whole thing in a shell-case, then. Let mother start out with a middle gauge gun, 20 or perhaps 28 gauge, properly fitted to her. Don't bother a 20 from Uncle Herman, because if it's too long in the stock it may loosen her bridgework.

A good single shot gun can be had for under $25 new, and the stock shortened for nothing if you can handle a saw. Shorten it an extra two inches and add a recoil pad for comfort. If the little lady has no padded shooting coat.

If she has no previous gunning experience, start a family's competition with junior's air gun in the backyard or basement. It will save time and ammunition later.

And if shooting becomes a family sport, think not about the good old stag safaris of the past. The little woman's companionship, to say nothing of her cooking, are worth the sacrifice.

Snooze News for Small Fry

FARMERETTE . . . She's ready for bed or a TV session in Sanforized checked flannelette overall pajamas with ruffled shirt.

JUST LIKE GRANDPA . . . His warm cotton flannel nightshirt, cap and slippers come in a set, are printed with bright medals.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
Boys and girls should be eager for bedtime this winter, what with all the gay new sleepwear with which designers are beguiling them.
There's nothing dull about the cotton flannelette pajamas, nightgowns and nightshirts for small fry these days. Several manufacturers are doing pajamas for junior engineers in the narrow stripes typical of railroad uniforms, complete with railroad emblems.

There are Robin Hood pajamas for the youngest set, done in two shades of green and dashing as all get-out. And there are red and white candy-striped leotards for little girls, with dark blue smock tops.
Junior borrows a style from Grandpa this winter, and turns up in gay flannel nightshirt, peaked cap and matching slippers, printed with medals.

Little Sis goes for overall flannelette which look cute enough for play wear.
The good news for Mom in all this is that practically all cotton "Magie" show of traffic safety and Sanforized against shrinkage, can be washed repeatedly and come out the same size.

Church Benefits In Lord's Acre Plan

FOUNTAIN — A financial blessing to three Pitt County churches has been made possible through a program known as the "Lord's Acre Plan," according to the Rev. Phillip M. Cory.
Since this plan was undertaken three years ago at the suggestion of a young deacon in the Fountain Presbyterian Church, this church, with membership ranging during the past six years between 55 and 82, has become one of the leading per capita givers to benevolences, paid for a modern manse and added $10,000 worth of improvements to the church. Rev. Cory, pastor of the Fountain, Falkland and Grace Presbyterian Churches, asserts these achievements could not have been attained except for the Lord's Acre Plan.
The plan calls for enlisting the church members to plant an acre of corn for the church, the proceeds of which will go into the building fund. Rev. Cory reports there have been as many as 17 acres of corn raised in one year since the plan was adopted, with each year three non-farming members pledging to five for the building fund either an amount equal to the top acre's proceeds, or an amount equal to the average received from all the acres.

The officers of the church have provided a roadside sign identifying the specific acre of produce which is being planted for the church. Each member who will raise an acre of produce signs a card to that effect. This card is filed with the church treasurer and the member given the sign to place on the roadside by his acre of produce. When it is harvested and sold, the proceeds are turned over to the treasurer of the building fund.
This year under the leadership of R. Herman Bright, ruling elder of the Grace Presbyterian and Falkland churches, these churches also entered into the plan. Rev. Cory reports the Grace Church now has seven acres under cultivation and plans are to use the proceeds to provide an adequate heating system for the church this year and chairs of the proper size for the Sunday School children.

5-Day Trucking Strike In New York City Ends

NEW YORK (AP)—A five day strike by truck drivers in the New York metropolitan area ended last night as the last "hard core" employer group agreed to the union demand for a 25-cent-an-hour package increase.
Trucking company officials predicted that the settlement will raise trucking fees by 10 to 15 per cent, that many trucking companies will go out of business and that manufacturing firms will flee the area to avoid the increased rates.
David Kaplan, chief economist for the union, urged the drivers to "give the employers a good day's work and to cooperate in every way possible to increase efficiency so as to minimize the unit cost of the wage increase."
To the employer predictions of the effect of the increase, Kaplan said it could not be "so disastrous or the strike would not have ended so quickly."
Two small northern New Jersey firms, employing about 1,000 drivers, continued to hold out. The reason for the firms' resistance is an added 41-cent-an-hour increase they would have to pay to close the gap between wages in their areas and those in New York City.
At the start of the strike, 24,000 drivers were out.
The walkout ended officially when Joseph M. Adelizzi, chairman of the Area-wide Employer Negotiating Committee, announced that all of the area's 3,500 firms were released from a pledge to resist the demands of the striking AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters.
However, a majority of the firms broke the solid employer front Monday, the first work day of the strike, and signed individual contracts with the union.
"It is evident that the trucking industry serving the area from Trenton N.J., to Poughkeepsie, N.Y. has been conquered by the union in a manner not much different than as though they had been conquered by the Communists," Adelizzi said.
Adelizzi charged the union has business concerns, a power which even the federal government does not have because of the protective provisions of the Constitution.
At the same time, Adelizzi announced withdrawal of a 10-million-dollar damage suit against the union and seven large trucking concerns which were among the first to give in. Adelizzi conceded the suit did not have "much law" in it.

The new contract provides for a 20-cent-an-hour straight wage increase plus 5 cents to cover pension insurance and vacation benefits. The union originally demanded 79 cents.
Wilson Indicates More Political Speeches Ahead
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has indicated he may make more political speeches.
The cabinet member, whose bird dog-kennel dog remark raised a political furor, was asked yesterday if he intended to make more political talks. Grinning, he replied:
"I don't know why not. I haven't been doing too badly at it. As a matter of fact, I plan to make a speech in Dayton, Ohio, on Oct. 29 that could be interpreted as political."
Inspecting jet fighters at the Northrop aircraft plant Wilson told a reporter he believes the national defense should remain above party politics but added: "I believe in the purposes, objectives, methods and means of the present administration and I don't mind saying so."

Nixon Claims Plan For 'Socialization'

CHICAGO (AP)—The Truman administration, says Vice President Nixon, had prepared "a virtual blueprint for socializing America" when the Eisenhower administration took office in 1953.
The blueprint, Nixon said in an address last night, would have added "40 billion dollars to the national debt between 1952 and 1956."
He said it called for socializing medicine, housing, agriculture, water and power, "but most disturbing of all, socializing of America's greatest source of power—atomic energy."

"We found the proof that this was the case when we came to Washington on Jan. 20, 1953," he said.
He said if the blueprint found "in the files" had been carried out it "would have led the nation straight down the road our British friends have taken—to socialism."
He said the Eisenhower philosophy "simply and bluntly . . . rejects socialism as an effective answer to our economic need."

It is a philosophy, he said, that believes that the government should promote "solid wealth-creating activities" and that "government activity should not be one of the leaf-raking, boondoggling, make-work type of the '30s."
He said the Eisenhower administration activities "not only stimulate greater production but avoid recession." He cited "the biggest highway program in history, the greatest housing program and the greatest public works program, including such projects as the St. Lawrence seaway."
The U.S. Forest Service was started Feb. 1, 1905.

Miss Wyman's other husbands were Myron Fatterman and Ronald Reagan. She and Karger were married in Santa Monica in 1952.

Third Marriage For Star Fails

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Movie actress Jane Wyman's third marriage has failed.
Her husband musical director Fred Karger, has moved out of their home and Miss Wyman says there will be no reconciliation this time. The couple has had several arguments and separated a few times, but reconciliations always followed.
"We're not happy and there's no use remaining together," Karger said yesterday.
The actress told newsmen: "I've tried to keep this marriage together but it just doesn't seem possible to make it work." She denied that her many movie roles and much hard work in films had caused an estrangement.

Delaware School Issues Becloud Vote Outlook

Editor's Note—This is another of several stories by roving Associated Press reporters analyzing the campaign in key states.

By BELMAN MORIN
WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Delaware's election picture is clouded by the controversy over school integration—though this question is not an open issue between the two major parties.

"It's the only thing people are talking about," one of the candidates said.

Most observers feel the situation probably is hurting the Republicans, solely because the state has a GOP administration. "If we were in office now," a Democrat said, "it would be bouncing on us."

A white high school in Milford is the storm center. In conformity with a U.S. Supreme Court ruling earlier this year, integration began there Sept. 7 with the admission of 10 Negro students. But pressures began mounting, a new school board was installed and the 10 were dropped from the rolls.

Chancery court ruled Oct. 14 that the Negroes have "a clear right" to be reinstated. The Milford School Board has appealed this ruling to the Delaware Supreme Court, which set a hearing for tomorrow.

All of which is outside the areas where the two parties are contending for a seat in the U.S. Senate and one in the House of Representatives. The candidates:

For the Senate—Sen. J. Allen Frear, Democrat and Rep. Herbert B. Warburton, Republican. For the House—Mrs. Lillian J. Martin, Republican, chief accountant of the Budget Commission, and Harris B. McDowell Jr., former Democratic state chairman.

At this point, election analysts give Sen. Frear an edge in a tight race. They see Mrs. Martin leading McDowell. The GOP state chairman, Clair Killoran, said, "If it hadn't been for this segregation fight, we would have had a Republican landslide."

Now, however, some Republicans are by no means optimistic. But they are encouraged by the thought that the party has not lost an "off-year" election in Delaware in 32 years.

So far, no issue—except school integration—has appeared to stir the voters much. There has been some discussion of employment, but the Republicans say the situation in Delaware is good and the Democrats describe it as "spotty." The Delaware Chrysler plant recently got a 160-million-dollar contract to make Army tanks.

McDowell criticizes GOP farm policy in the state's poultry-raising areas. Republicans plead for the election of Warburton so control of the U.S. Senate will remain in GOP hands. Frear talks about the tax bill and foreign policy.

Present registration is only about 120,000 against a total vote of 173,000 in 1952 and 129,000 in 1950, the both parties have been urging people to register and soundtracks and newspapers are trying to get out the vote.

Frear 51, went into office in 1948 on his first try for office. He is a farmer and businessman, generally considered conservative, and he apparently is well liked by some Republican elements in spite of his being a Democrat.

Delaware businessmen, regardless of party, report they found him "very helpful" in Washington. And he voted more than two thirds of the time on major issues in agreement with his Republican colleague, Sen. John J. Williams.

This cuts two ways, however. Some elements in the Democratic party consider Frear too conservative. The CIO has not endorsed him. And he had a nomination fight with James M. Tunnell Jr., former state Supreme Court judge. Tunnell pulled 40 per cent of the convention votes.

Frear's opponent, Rep. Warburton is a 38-year-old lawyer. He held high office in Young Republican organizations, spent four years in the Army overseas during World War II, and was elected to Congress in 1952.

News In Reverse At Negro College

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP)—For many years Negroes have been making news by applying for admission to colleges in states where segregation laws barred them. The news was reversed when more than a dozen white applicants were denied admission to Virginia State College, a school for Negroes. The college turned them down after being advised by the State Board of Education that they could not be admitted under Virginia law.

Bank Says Fake Loans Written

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A man described by the Girard Trust and Corn Exchange Bank as "a trusted employe for 26 years" has been charged with approving fake loans totaling a quarter-million dollars and spending $45,000 of it on "wine, women and song."

Officials of the bank yesterday preferred fraudulent conversion charges against Edward B. McCall, about 45. They said the money was taken through a series of faked loans approved by McCall over a period of 18 months. The bank said the loss was covered by insurance.

At his arraignment before Judge Curtis Bok, McCall was held in $10,000 bail for action by the grand jury.

It was testified at the arraignment yesterday that a routine audit of McCall's accounts in the bank's loan department brought the shortages to light last May. McCall was dismissed at that time and a further check was made to determine the full extent of the alleged defalcation.

The bank said 180 loans were involved, most of which McCall was permitted to make simply on his recommendation or signature. Officials charged that the basis of the scheme was a series of loans obtained by friends of McCall, who then turned the money back to him. Succeeding loans were used in part to cover due payments on previous ones, they said.

Japanese Sword Making An Art

TOKYO (AP)—They are making the Samurai sword in Japan again. But now it is an "object of art," not a weapon of war. Occupation authorities banned the manufacture of the deadly two-handed sword, which dates back to Medieval times.

A thousand sword makers turned to the manufacture of farm implements, and other goods. Now Juko Miyaguchi, 57, and his son, swordsmiths, have finished the first Samurai sword made since the war.

The Trouble Is, Picking Place In West Europe For That Trip

By ED CREAGH
(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Suppose you were offered a free trip to Europe—to any place this side of the Iron Curtain you wanted to go. Which country or countries would you pick?

Nine out of 10 people will give you an answer to that question as quick as a wink, I know because I've already asked nine. You're the 10th.

It's fun to dream about foreign travel, and everybody has a favorite dream. Maybe it's of drifting down the Grand Canal in a gondola. Or of assassinating grouse on a Scottish moor. Or of making an on-the-spot check to see if Paris night life is as wicked as it's painted.

But let that dream become reality and you've got a problem on your hands.

I know because I've just been offered a free trip to Europe, and I can't for the life of me decide where in Europe to go.

How come I get a free trip? Well I took some pictures of my little boy, dropped the roll at the corner drugstore and then, out of a clear sky, a man called up and said:

"Congratulations. You have won the grand prize in our contest. When do you want to leave for Europe?"

(Tip to other amateur photographers: to win a prize you must have three things—a camera, a little boy who will make faces in front of it, and a lot of luck).

Anyway, as soon as the numbness wore off I started planning the trip I would take. And, while I won't pretend I'm not enjoying myself, the problem of where to go is driving me nuts.

The trouble is, of course, you can't go everywhere on a 15-day trip. And every time you scratch out a name on your list of happy possibilities it hurts.

England, for instance. Haven't been there since 1947, and it would be fine to go back. Same with France. But wouldn't it be better to strike out for some new place? Or would it?

There are all sorts of places a Washington reporter, who often has to write about foreign affairs, could visit with profit. I once learned more about French communism by arguing for half an hour—pocket dictionary in hand—with a rag-packer in Paris than in months of reading about it in the papers.

So Berlin might be a good place to go. Or Austria. The problems of that neck of the woods are going to be with us a long time.

But golly, a man doesn't want to work all the time. He wants to do some sightseeing. So how could you leave out Rome? Or Venice? Or Athens?

What about Scandinavia? The Low Countries? Too cold and rainy with winter coming on? So is Washington cold and rainy?

Of course the sun would be glorious in Seville. Or in Sicily. And from Sicily maybe you could manage a quick trip to North Africa.

But if you go that far you'd hate to miss Egypt, and there you're only a stone's throw from Jerusalem . . . and Istanbul . . . and You see the problem? It's enough to give a man an anxiety neurosis.

My friends are not sympathetic. They tell me I am looking a gift horse in the mouth and complaining because it isn't an elephant. Maybe they're right.

All I know is that I wish I could make up my mind. My wife does too. She's tired of having the living room cluttered up with travel folders.

Orang Outangs' Romance Ended

LONDON (AP)—A mutual friend announced with regret today that Arabella and Mr. Jiggs have called it quits.

Arabella, the first orang outang ever to appear on a British television show, caught Mr. Jiggs' eye in the regent Park monkey house only four months ago.

Mr. Jiggs promptly gave his current girl friend the old heave-ho, and he and Arabella started keeping house together.

For a couple of weeks everything was hearts and flowers, or anyway bananas and carrots. But visitors to the zoo who had seen Arabella on TV all wanted to toss sweetmeats to the celebrity. Very few had any time for Mr. Jiggs.

In due course Mr. Jiggs took to throwing his weight around, and his weight is 240 pounds while Arabella is a mere welterweight. Yesterday the keepers stepped in and restored Arabella to the hairy but loving arms of her mother Mary.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO
A RED-FACED man at the bar said, "Jake, I saw you over on Seltzman's place around supper time. Is he figuring on buying more beef?"

"Yes," Fortune said over his shoulder. "He's building up a big herd."

Another man laughed shortly. "Maybe he knows what he's doing, but I can't see raising Texas steers in Ohio."

"Why not?" Fortune asked. "They get better feed here, and plenty of water, and Earl's got acres of grazing land."

"The climate ain't right," the man said. "Them longhorns won't thrive up here."

Fortune made a scoffing sound, turned to me and winked. "Try anything new around here," he said. "And everybody thinks you're crazy. Just a few years back they thought it was outlandish if a man rotated his crops. If you raised corn in a field, you kept on raising corn in that field until the land burned out. Now they all rotate."

"Did you get any birds this morning?"

I shook my head. "Sandy got one, and right after that Ralph was hurt."

"That Judy," he said, shaking his head. "She's always been wild, but she's handled guns since she was twelve years old. It seems to me that she could have seen Ralph."

"Ralph came up over the top of the ravine just as she fired."

"It could happen," he agreed. Then he mentioned the death of old Rex Bishop, blaming it on a strange hunter in the area. "Maybe a city hunter hit Ralph too," he added.

"No—Judy was the only one around that I could see, and a shotgun doesn't carry far. She must have fired at the bird twice, because I heard two shots, and the second one hit Ralph. I saw Judy this afternoon. She blames herself, and feels pretty badly about it. She hates to face Ralph's folks."

"I suppose she does," he said heavily. "Even if it was an accident. My girl's taking it hard, too."

"Yes," I said, remembering Eileen's obvious grief at the hospital. I finished my drink and slid off the bar stool.

"How about another?" he asked.

"No, thanks. I'd better get back out to Homer's place. They'll be wondering what happened to me."

"Going to be in town long?"

"Just until tomorrow."

"Come down again before the season's over," he invited. "Maybe we'll have better luck then." He held out his big hand. "Glad to have met you, Bennett. I get into Cleveland pretty often. Maybe I'll look you up."

"Do that," I said, shaking his hand. I went out.

The night had turned colder and I closed the car windows and turned on the heater. When I was a mile out of town I glanced in the rear view mirror and saw the car following me. It was fairly moonlight, but I couldn't tell what kind of a car it was except that it was light-colored. Its lights were off and it stayed maybe fifty yards behind me, a silent shape on the road, with the moonlight occasionally glinting on chrome and glass. I reached the Hollis farm, drove up the lane. The car went past the lane slowly and disappeared up the road.

One dim light burned in the living room of the farmhouse. I stopped my car in a conspicuous place in the drive by the front porch, turned off the lights, and waited. In a minute I saw the shadowy outline of the car drift back again. It stopped by the lane a moment, and then moved back along the highway toward Ridge Center. I was tempted to follow, but decided against it. Whoever was driving the car would be watching for that, and they wouldn't let me get close.

I entered the house quietly and moved along the dark hall to the archway leading to the living room. Sandy was sitting alone by the cold fireplace. She wore a blue flannel robe over her pajamas. Her soft brown hair was brushed severely back from her pale face and tied with a blue ribbon. In the soft light, and with a lipstick or make-up, she looked about sixteen years old.

She gazed at me silently as I moved across the room and stood beside her. Then she looked up and said gravely, "Hello, Jim. Have you learned anything?"

I pulled a hand down over my face and sighed. "I don't know what's going on. . . I stopped at the hospital. Ralph is the same." I didn't tell her about my little scene with Dr. Massini. There was plenty of time for that.

"Mom wanted to stay there all night—so they gave her a room next to Ralph. Dad and I are going back early in the morning."

"You should be in bed, then."

"I was waiting for you—worrying about you."

I touched her cheek. It was cold. "Don't worry about me. Anyhow, I've got to go out again."

She grasped my hand. "No, Jim. Let it go. Just tell the sheriff. . ."

"Not yet. Can I borrow your dad's car?"

She looked puzzled. "Of course, but—"

"Somebody followed me out from town. I parked my car by the front porch, where they can see it. I want to leave it there, in case they check later."

"So they'll think you're still here?"

"Something like that."

Her fingers tightened on my hand. "Jim, I—I'm scared."

Women Nourish Idea That They Are Best Buyers

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (U)—About this time of year a man begins thinking about a new fall suit. As often as not he ends up by buying what his wife picks out.

Why do men take their wives along? Merchants will tell you that a large number of them do. And many of those who make a show of choosing for themselves take wearing apparel home on approval—and you know whose approval.

There are men of course, who won't let their women within shooting range of a clothing store. A man, say, who in his young manhood was badly bitten by a bunch of Christmas ties from female kin. Or, one who, way back before the honeymoon was entirely over, let his wife pick out a suit for him, and when he came out of the daze discovered he was walking around in something that once must have blanketed Man O War. Such men go alone to the clothing store.

But most men, whether they know it or not, don't really choose their clothes themselves. There are several types.

Some discover by the trial and error method that it's the better part of valor to let the wife's taste win right from the start, rather than to listen to comments on the clothing after the husband brings it home. These criticisms range from open laughter (rare, let's hope) to a polite murmur that it's an awfully cute suit but are you sure you're quite the type to wear it.

Other males are convinced their wives really do have better notions about what men should wear and rely gratefully on their women-folk's taste.

Actually many a man hates to shop. He knows his tendency to buy whatever the clerk hands him—even when aware that the salesman may be palming off something he hasn't been able to unload before. The customer knows his wife won't let him go for that.

Most women love to shop. They are willing, even eager, to go from store to store, to have their husbands try on garment after garment, to party words with salesmen when they're suspicious and to insist on extra care in the alterations. Many husbands value this aid.

Women nourish—and without doubt deserve—their reputation as the better shopper, the one with the real nose for bargains, and the unerring eye for value. They don't let their men forget it.

Just 100 Years Ago They Started

LONDON (U)—One hundred years ago tomorrow a determined and dedicated English nurse set sail for the Crimea, where Britain and France were at war with Russia.

Reports of suffering among the sick and wounded soldiers had aroused Britain's secretary of war, Sidney Herbert. He sent the nurse—Florence Nightingale—on a historic mission of mercy.

In the utter confusion of battlefield casualty stations, the 34-year-old nurse fought through snarls of military red tape to organize effective care for the sick and maimed. The death rate in her hospitals dropped from 42 per cent to 2 per cent.

Among her staff of nurses were five nuns from Our Lady of Mercy Convent in Bermondsey, the first Roman Catholic convent established in England after the reformation. Bernard Cardinal Griffin, archbishop of Westminster, Britain's leading Catholic churchman, has scheduled a high mass in their memory.

Camera News

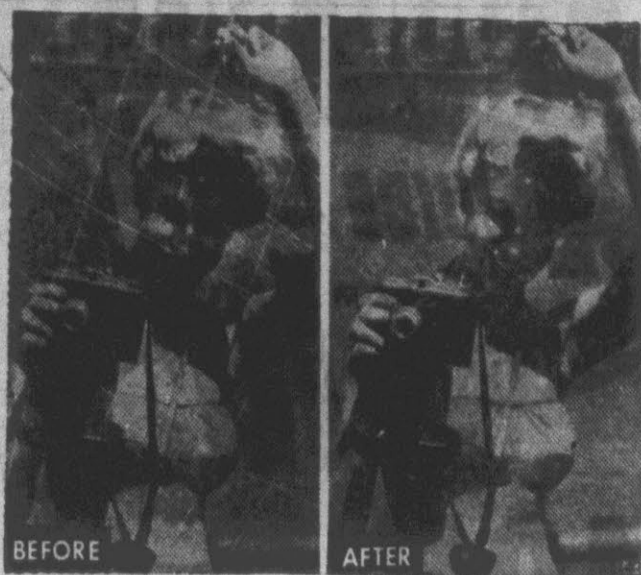

By IRVING DESFOR

AP-Newsfeatures
So I took the 35mm negative and deliberately scratched it, first with my fingernails, then with a key and finally with a file. On top of the fingerprints and scratches, we sprinkled some cigarette ashes. Then we made an enlargement. Naturally, the print was horrible, showing the scratches and dirt spots in magnified detail.

Then came the magic and if I didn't see it with my own eyes I would hardly believe it was possible. The same scratched negative was put into a special negative holder which contained a rubber bulb, this fluid flowed over the negative, removed the fingerprints and dirt and filled in the scratched areas. When an enlargement was made now, it was a perfect print with no scratches or blemishes visible!

What I had witnessed was the practical application of a special liquid called Refractisil, the discovery of Dr. C. Guy Suits, a scientifically minded amateur photographer. The test took place in the small darkroom of Modern Photography magazine under the direction of John Wolbarst, managing editor. Wolbarst had previously made the first public tests with the magic liquid in order to write a complete story for the magazine's October issue.

Refractisil was born because when Dr. Suits went playing with a miniature camera he is a vice president of General Electric Corp. and director of research. Like countless other 35mm camera fans, he had been plagued with scratches, fingerprints and static-attraced dust on his negatives. Some photographers have used glycerin and vaseline to minimize these blemishes but they were not always successful and had a questionable effect on the negatives.

SURFACE SCRATCHES on a negative (white lines) disappear when covered with a new liquid discovery, Refractisil. Scratches which remain have pierced the silver image layer of the emulsion and appear as black lines (right). These un-retouched pictures were printed from a small section of a 4" x 5" negative, cut down to fit in a glassless 35mm frame.

Fundamentally, a film negative is a sandwich. The silver image is the meat of the sandwich between a top layer of gelatin and the bottom film base, also gelatin. When viewed microscopically, Dr. Suits found that most of the scratches were in the top or bottom layers of gelatin rather than in the middle silver portion. In making enlargements, light rays passing through the negative were deflected from the sides of the scratch, causing an image on the print of the scratch itself.

Dr. Suits figured it might be possible to find a special liquid that would match the optical qualities of gelatin and thereby fill in the valleys formed by the scratches. The ideal liquid would also have to be nearly water-white, non-toxic, odorless, harmless to film and emulsion, flow easily and have the ability to evaporate neither too slowly after use nor too quickly while in use.

A long series of experiments finally led Dr. Suits to a comparatively new family of compounds known as silicones. One of the silicone oils answered the description above and added an extra dividend of its own. It acted as a negative cleaner and removed oily fingerprints like magic.

Dr. Suits next devised a special film holder for 35mm film that would enable the liquid to do its work. The film fits in a groove around which the liquid flows when a rubber bulb is squeezed. A few ounces of liquid is used over and over again, passing through a filter which retains any dust particles it wipes off the film. The whole film holder fits in a standard Omega enlarger.

From the demonstration it was apparent that Refractisil did eliminate all signs of ordinary negative scratches normally encountered.

However, we also saw that it could not remove those scratches which penetrated the middle silver layer or remove dust particles or fingerprints which are imbedded in the silver. In other words, if these blemishes occur in a film during processing, before the film has gotten its protective dry coating, they are not likely to be helped by Refractisil's magic.

Another disadvantage was in handling the special negative carrier. It proved to be an awkward procedure because of the extra care necessary to prevent spilling the liquid. However, anything spilled is entirely harmless to furniture and clothes and dries quickly.

There was no effect on image sharpness or print quality or contrast when Refractisil was used. In our tests, the image was refocused because the negative lay in a slightly different plane in the special film holder. After printing the negative was removed and the excess liquid wiped off with a tissue. In a moment it was perfectly dry and ready to file away. However, Refractisil has no permanent effect on the negative and if another print was needed later a new bath would be necessary.

This enlarging technique will be available for all camera fans, but how soon is a question. One of the gentlemen present at the demonstration was Rudolph Simonson, an enlarger manufacturer. His problem is to estimate the probable demand for such a process and how much it will cost to put a workable unit on your dealer's shelf.

But long before the unit itself appears, you can expect to find the liquid Refractisil on sale. It can be used without the holder I saw demonstrated, but the job of keeping the liquid on the negative and off enlarger lens and printing paper presents a respectable challenge to the experimenter.

Whether you want to jump in right away or wait for a ready-made holding attachment, you can keep in mind the fact that those negatives in your files now marred by scratches may yet produce perfect prints.

Church Studying Prayer-Changes

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Episcopalians from the Middle Atlantic area today considered a suggested change in the wording of the Lord's Prayer.

The proposal would change the phrase, "Lead us not into temptation," to read, "And let us not fall when tempted."

It was met with mixed reaction on the floor of the meeting of the 25th Synod of the Episcopal Province of Washington, Representatives of 13 Episcopal church dioceses are attending.

The new phrasing, introduced by Lt. Gen. John C. H. Lee of the Harrisburg Pa., diocese, was sent to the resolutions committee for formulation and introduction at today's closing session.

Best Food Buys For This Weekend Under Scrutiny

FOOD REVIEW

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Housewives shopping at the meat counters this weekend will find prices generally unchanged to a bit higher than last week. Sirloin steak, frying and stewing chickens and smoke-hams will be the most popular specials.

Advertising also will feature eggs which are reduced again across the country, and apples, which are in abundant supply and offer a wide selection.

Steaks, which have been on the expensive side, will be trimmed by three to six cents a pound in some sections.

Frying chickens will be up two to four cents a pound in most cities but still remain a good buy, according to meat men. Specialists say stewing chickens and turkeys also are worth consideration. Smoked hams will be featured in many stores.

Rib roasts and veal will hold about last week's levels. One major chain plans an increase of two to four cents a pound in leg of lamb and a slight rise in center cut pork chops.

Egg prices will be down around six cents a dozen over most of the country and as much as 11 cents in some areas.

The Poultry & Egg National Board says eggs are selling about 25 cents a dozen lower than a year ago and notes that egg production for 1954 is running around two billion more than in 1953.

Hens are coming to market in record numbers, according to the board, because of low egg prices which have caused many farmers to market them for meat instead of keeping them. There are still large numbers of hens ready for market which farmers have not sold because of unfavorable prices the board states.

Coffee will be cheaper in many stores this weekend as a result of wholesale price cuts of five cents a pound by two major roasters.

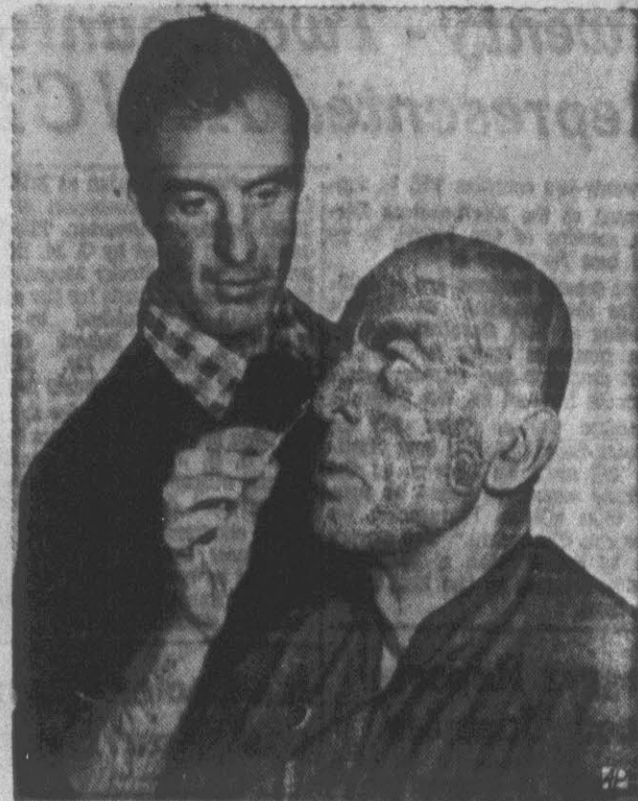

Produce men say the best buys in vegetables are cabbage, potatoes, onions, winter squash and cauliflower. Also recommended are brussels sprouts, sweet potatoes, celery and turnips. Lettuce and carrots are lower and moderately priced.

Among vegetables going higher are cucumbers, honey dew melons, beans and tomatoes.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has some words this week on apples, which are one of the best buys available at present.

"Dunking for apples on Halloween," says the USDA. "As is traditional as the very goblins and Jack O'Lanterns that dwell mischievously in dark places. There is no need to curtail the use of apples to the selfish delight of Halloween games and they're just the thing to satisfy a 'trick or treat' youngster. With an abundant supply now forecast, they belong in the fruit bowl, as well as in pies, dumplings, desserts and tasty tart sauce."

The USDA estimates the country's commercial apple crop at more than 103 million bushels, nearly 700,000 bushels more than earlier estimates. Eastern apple orchards weathered the recent hurricanes far better than had been first believed, the agency says. Oranges are in greater supply in most stores and prices are lower. Otherwise it is pretty much a case of dwindling supplies at the fruit counter. Grapefruit and most types of grapes are higher.

Twenty-Two Counties Will Be Represented At NCEA Session

Twenty-two counties will be represented at the Northeastern District meeting of the NCEA to be held here November 5.

Two general sessions are scheduled for the gathering in Wright Building at East Carolina College, with numerous guest speakers, a panel discussion and musical entertainment featured on the program.

Sanford Martin, editor of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel, will make an address at the morning session to begin at 9:30. His topic will be "Educating for American Citizenship." The session will be opened with a 30-minute musical program by the East Carolina band.

The afternoon session at 3:15 will feature a panel discussion of the NCEA legislative program. The discussion will be led by C. M. Edson, principal of the Rocky Mount Senior High School. Music for the afternoon will be furnished by the Greenville High School Choral Group directed by Dr. Elwood Keister of the college music faculty.

A diversified program for the day has been prepared by District President D. S. Johnson, his staff of District officers and the various division and departmental leaders.

The classroom teachers will have a business meeting at 12:45 p.m. followed by luncheon at 1 p.m. with Edmund Harding of Washington as luncheon speaker.

Superintendent A. B. Gibson of Laurinburg will address the superintendents at a 12:15 luncheon. His subject will be "Discipline and Student Control."

Dean Leo Jenkins of the college will be the luncheon speaker for the division of principals, with two speakers addressing the division of supervisors. These will be Henry C. McPadden, NCEA director of public relations, and Dr. Eva Williamson of the ECC faculty.

The division of higher education will meet for dinner at 6:30 p.m. Commercial exhibits of professional materials will be on display throughout the day.

80,000 Attended Fair Yesterday

RALEIGH (AP)—A parade of livestock champions and harness horse and pony racing featured today's program at the North Carolina State Fair.

Dairy and beef cattle queens will be crowned at 7:45 p.m. in the State Fair Arena.

More than 60,000 persons visited the fair yesterday. First prize of $300 in the Negro 4-H exhibits was won by Warren County. Craven received second prize of $250. Jones won third and $225. Bertie, Richmond and Martin received $175 each.

William D. Kearney of Goldsboro won first place in the statewide apprentice bricklaying contest. He received a $100 savings bond. Max Brandon Parker of Albemarle was second and D. L. Kellams of Charlotte third. Parker and Kellams received $50 and $25 bonds, respectively.

Dr. J. S. Dorton, fair manager, announced that a new competitive department was opened at the fair for "regular American saddlebred colts." Animals will be shown in three classes: registered weaning colt, yearling, colt, and two-year-old colt.

The fair continues through Saturday.

Beggar Reports Good 'Business'

CHICAGO (AP)—Business is so good, blind George Williams told the judge yesterday, that he spends only two hours a day strumming his guitar and singing hillbilly songs on Chicago streets.

He said $20 to $25 an hour is dropped into his tin cup. Judge Oscar S. Caplan warned Williams, however, that begging is illegal and put him on probation until Dec. 2.

It's Cooler Than Last Year Here

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 65 degrees, and last night the local U. S. Weather Station's thermometer registered 37, five degrees above freezing. At 8 a.m. today it was 43.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 82. Lowest that night 52, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 53.

Pakistan Prime Minister Leaves

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan heads home today to shore up his own political position—apparently taking with him a pledge of increased American aid for his country.

Present U.S. military and economic assistance to Pakistan, a strategic country in the East-West chain of anti-Communist alliances, amounts to about $2 million dollars a year.

All was reported to have won American agreement to increase this by possibly 50 per cent or more.

All had planned to leave Washington today for a two-day visit in Canada. But he called off that trip yesterday so as to get back home two days earlier than his previous schedule.

Authorities said the unstable political situation at Karachi undoubtedly was back of this unusual change in plans.

Demo Caravan Is Near Tour's End

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP)—The Tar Heel Democratic caravan, nearing the end of its three-week state wide tour, moved into Elizabeth City today for the First Congressional District rally.

The tour winds up tomorrow at Kinston with a Second District rally.

Some 200 persons turned out for the Third District rally yesterday at K-nansville. The speakers unloaded a barrage at the Republican party. Among the things they cited were what they called "confusion in Washington," "muddled foreign policy" and "confused farm policy."

With his tongue in his cheek, U.S. Rep. Graham A. Barden hinted the Republicans had something to do with the hurricane. "We never had a hurricane that bad during a Democratic administration," he said gravely.

Barden stated the Republican Congress "has sharpened me as a partisan Democrat." He added, "The Republicans simply don't know how to run the government."

Sen. Sam Ervin told the gathering that the "fundamental difference" between Republicans and Democrats is that the Democrats "feel that the government owes an obligation not only to big business and industry but to every segment of society as well."

Booby Trap Blew Up Train Cars

WEBSTER SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—State police searched today for the person who rigged a crude "booby trap" which blew up beneath a train hauling coal from a strike-bound mine, killing a member of the crew.

Fireman Robert Nicholas about 52, of Bolair, was buried alive yesterday beneath a carload of coal as he jumped from the locomotive, tender and three cars of the 39-car "drag" were overturned.

Violence has been spasmodic since the United Mine Workers struck the Maust Coal and Coke Co., operator of three unionized "deep" mines and a nonunion "strip" or surface mine in this area.

The train was hauling the first load of coal from a Maust mine since a bridge, dynamited Oct. 1, was replaced.

UMW officials were not available, but in the past they have disclaimed knowledge of any of the incidents of violence.

Girl Run Over By Train, Unhurt

OLIVER SPRINGS, Tenn. (AP)—A Louisville & Nashville locomotive and two cars passed over a 13-year-old high school freshman yesterday but she escaped serious injury.

Patricia Dincas, on her way from a school building to the lunch room slipped and fell on the tracks. The engineer was unable to stop the short train, and it passed over her as she rolled between the rails.

She was treated at Oak Ridge Hospital for minor abrasions.

STASSEN IN CONCORD CONCORD, N. C. (AP)—Foreign Operations Director Harold E. Stassen will address a Ninth District Republican rally for congressional candidate William E. Stevens Jr. here Oct. 30.

Safety Magic Show For School Children

Sergeant Carl S. Pike of Grand Rapids, Michigan will present his admission-free combined "Safety Magic" show of traffic safety and entertainment to Greenville High School and Eppes High School when he visits Greenville on October 26.

Sergeant Pike will be on a tour of 33 North Carolina high schools which will last for three weeks.

He is presenting his show under the sponsorship of the State Department of Public Instruction, the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association, Inc., and the American Trucking Associations, Inc.

The show is designed to highlight the rules of good safety behavior, according to John C. Noe, Advisor of Safety Education, State Department of Public Instruction.

Sergeant Pike is presently on leave from the Kent County Sheriff's Department, Grand Rapids, Michigan and has spent 20 years as a policeman and later police safety officer at Jackson, Michigan. During that time, he helped to train schoolboy safety patrol, assisted in the development of driver education and safety projects and originated his unusual "Safety Magic" show.

The sergeant opens his admission-free program with a talk on accidents and how they can be prevented, using actual cases on which he has worked as a police officer to show why "Safety First" is the best policy.

"Safety First" are the key mystery words in the show. Drawing on his professional experience, the sergeant performs such feats of magic as making water flow from an empty jar and flags appear from nowhere when the audience calls out "Safety First". Sergeant Pike makes use of a stage full of show equipment and five trunks-loads of properties during the performance.

He appeared in ten North Carolina high schools last February during a thirty state tour. The sergeant is currently including North Carolina in his eighteen state tour of eastern and mid-western states.

While in Greenville he will also make an appearance over Television Station WNCT.

Sergeant Pike will present his performance at Eppes High School at 10 a.m. on October 2 and at Greenville High School at 2 p.m. that afternoon. He will be accompanied by Greenville policemen Caesar Corbett and V.C. Ackert and to GHS by Ackert.

Name For India Being Debated

NEW DELHI (AP)—The old dispute over whether India should really be called Bharat has cropped up again, this time in the Delhi state assembly where some members urged use of that name. In Pakistan it is argued that the undivided sub-continent was India and that division in 1947 made it Pakistan and Bharat — not India.

But Indians say that as the legal and constitutional heir of the rights and liabilities of undivided India their country is rightfully called India. The word India is an Anglicized version of "Hindustan," the land of the Hindus. Ancient maps show Bharat as covering not only what is now India but Pakistan, Afghanistan, parts of Iran, Nepal, Tibet and most of the Chinese mainland.

Jet-Age Carrier Is Joining Fleet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The reconditioned and modernized USS Oriskany now one of America's most potent jet-age aircraft carriers, will sail Friday to join the active fleet. The Navy announcement did not say where the carrier is going.

The Essex class Oriskany has just completed a five-month overhaul at Hunters Point Navy Yard, where she was equipped to handle the fastest and largest of ship-based jet planes.

British Clocks Set Off Dispute

By ALVIN STEINKOFF LONDON (AP)—Milton Shubert, a member of the New York theatrical family, visiting Britain recently, wrote a letter to the London Times suggesting that Englishmen don't know what time it is.

Walking down London's busy Strand to keep an appointment, Shubert found he was going by spurts and jerks as each successive street clock indicated it was earlier or later than he estimated it should have been.

In New York, he observed, "by-laws impose financial penalties upon the owners of clocks which deceive the public." If British clocks have to be wrong they should be wrong uniformly, fast or slow, and not given to confused error which adds a visitor's wits, Shubert wrote. It should be necessary, he thinks, to guess in only one direction. The British reaction was swift. D. M. Lewis of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, wrote:

"I, at any rate, developed a fixed distrust of American clock when I discovered on the first day of my stay in the United States that it was an hour earlier inside the Pennsylvania Station than it was outside. Later discoveries that in the summer one had in practice to change one's watch in the middle of a time zone and not on the border, and that in Butte, Mont., it was an hour later than anywhere for 500 miles around, hardly modified my conviction." Shubert commented: "I have had a lot of letters, and one fellow made a really constructive idea which I am considering. He said, 'Carry a watch.'"

Cabinet Meeting In Rural Section

MANILA (AP)—President Ramon Magsaysay took his Cabinet to a remote village on Mindoro Island yesterday and held the first outdoor session of its kind before the wide-eyed stares of curious villagers.

Top Filipino leaders met under a palm leaf lumber shed in San Agustin, about 90 miles south of Manila.

Boys Set Fire To Hide Looting

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)—Two 10-year-old boys set fire to a house in Port Huron to destroy evidence they had ransacked it, police reported yesterday.

Police quoted the boys as saying they defaced the interior Tuesday and then returned and set it afire after remembering they had written their names on pieces of paper left in the house.

The boys were released to custody of their parents.

About 23 per cent of the world's population in Europe, North America, Australia and New Zealand use about 86 per cent of the world's annual production of 60 million metric tons of paper.

First Million Dollar TV Show On Sunday

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—On Sunday night, home viewers will see the first million-dollar production in TV history, a two-hour network show including such stars as Eddie Fisher, Lauren Bacall and President Eisenhower.

Thomas E. Edison invented the first practical light bulb 75 years ago today. To celebrate the event, 300 electric companies are footing the bill for a TV show that should merit strong adjectives in a season of so-called "spectaculars."

The electric people selected as producer David O. Selznick, a logical choice since he has made the most successful movie, "Come With the Wind." I caught up with him during his whirlwind schedule and pumped him for details on the show. Until now he has been close-mouthed about it.

"They came to me with the idea for a diamond jubilee of light show last spring," he said between bites of a hasty lunch at his desk in CBS' TV City. "The deal was finalized in early summer. I was given no instructions, except that it would be a two-hour show on all networks and with no commercials."

He couldn't name the cost of the show but local estimates place it at around a million dollars. The professional actors include Judith Anderson, Walter Brennan, Joseph Cotton, Dorothy Dandridge, Brandon DeWilde, George Gobel, Helen Hayes, Guy Madison, Thomas Mitchell, David Niven and Kim Novak.

Ben Hecht wrote the script with assists from such men as John Steinbeck and Irwin Shaw. Film portions were directed by King Vidor, William Wellman and Christian Nyby.

"At first I thought of a format in terms of one story," Selznick explained. "It was to be a sort of American cavalcade, weaving in the changes that happened to one family starting with the electric light but that appeared to be too dreary, too sustained."

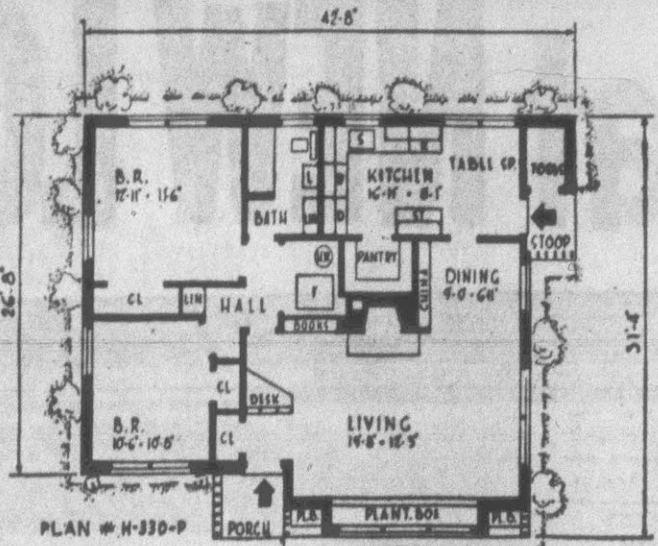

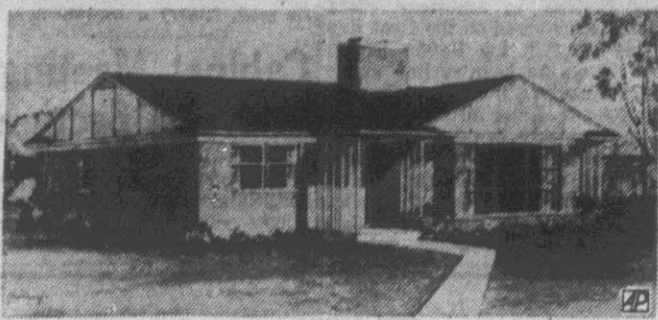

"Then I got the idea of basing the show on the word 'light.' And so the various parts of the program will depict the light of faith, of liberty, of learning, etc. Since the show was going wherever television is received, I felt it should appeal to all parts of the audience."

"I worked out a chart to include elements that would appeal to babies, to adolescents, to young married people to the middle-aged and old folks. Thus I have Kim Novak, Guy Madison and Eddie Fisher for the young audience, and Helen Hayes and Judith Anderson for the more mature viewers."

"The main thing I wanted to get across was the hope for the future. That is what everyone is looking for."

The program starts at 9 p.m., EST.

Red Europe Has Opened Hole In China Trade Ban

By SEYMOUR TOPPING
LONDON (AP)—Russia and her European satellites have opened a big hole in Western barriers against war potential exports to Communist China. They are buying strategic goods from the West and selling them to the Chinese, making a neat profit in the bargain.

American and British officials here and elsewhere know what is happening but say they can see no way of stopping it.

This is the Western gimmick the Kremlin has turned to Eastern advantage.

The United States and her allies forbid the export of certain strategic goods to both Eastern Europe and Red China. But the list of goods embargoed for Red China is far longer than the one for Eastern Europe.

Red Europe thus can buy Western goods that the Chinese cannot—things like generators, machine tools and petroleum equipment. Western officials say European Communist nations are buying these items for transshipment at top prices to the Chinese Reds.

One of the big Communist transshipment points is Gdynia, Poland. From there Western goods go by rail to Pelping via the Trans-Siberian Railway, or are carried into Chinese ports by Red ships able to evade the Chinese Nationalist naval blockade.

Several shipments of strategic items from the West were recently held up at Gdynia by a transport bottleneck, according to information reaching Western diplomats.

The strategic ban on Red China, imposed by the United Nations during the Korean War, has always been tougher than the cold war embargo on Soviet Europe. And with tensions easing in Europe, the West relaxed embargoes for the Soviet bloc last August, cutting the number of prohibited items from 250 to about 170.

But the Far East situation remained potentially explosive and similar action on the Red China list was deferred.

Western European businessmen are urging their governments to let the Chinese Reds buy what European Reds can buy.

The United States opposes any change in the China lists before the signing of a full Korean peace.

Track Lit Up By 6,000 Bulbs

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP)—The world-famed Horseshoe Curve of the Pennsylvania Railroad was lit up last night by 6,000 flash bulbs set off simultaneously in an experiment of photoflash picture taking.

The light was estimated to be greater than the power of 15 million ordinary household electric lamps.

The experiment highlighted two industry celebrations: the 100th anniversary of the Horseshoe Curve and the 75th anniversary of the modern incandescent lamp. The PRR and the Sylvania Electric Products Co. cooperated in the project.

Photographers took pictures from towers set up for the purpose. Three generators provided power to set off the flash bulbs, mounted in stakes around the curve.

Offers Cash For 'Cotton Bonds'

HOUSTON (AP)—A Houston brokerage firm is offering $10 good hard cash for certain examples of the Confederate treasury's handiwork—$1,000 cotton bonds.

The firm's weekly bulletin made the offer for an unnamed Houston man it said seeks to buy up the $100,000 Confederate States of America 7 per cent cotton bond issue due in 1863. The bonds were issued for $1,000 each.

The bulletin said the man "chooses this way to reaffirm his faith in those bygone principles and his conviction that the South today needs sorely to revive and recapture them."

Trying Shock In Safety Campaign

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State Police are trying shock to reduce the state's highway death toll.

An 18 page booklet of pictures showing ways in which motorists can die is being given to traffic offenders. The introduction is gruesome enough. It reads, in part:

"The pictures in this booklet aren't pretty. They're gruesome—they're horrible—but they are true. No one likes to look at bones sticking through flesh from compound fractures or faces smashed beyond recognition by windshields or heads and arms severed from the body—but that's what happened 166 times a day last year."

Shoes shaped differently for the right and left feet were first made just before the American Civil War.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U)—The stock market moved higher today, with steel shares taking over the leadership. Advances went to a point or two in key stocks. Buyers also sought the motor, television, aircraft, cement and airline stocks.

Trading was active, although at a slightly slower pace than it was yesterday, when 2,360,000 shares changed hands in a strong market. The steels became active in late morning, when large blocks appeared on the tape. Within a short time, issues like Inland Steel, Armco, Youngstown, Bethlehem and Republic were ahead a point or more. U.S. Steel was up fractionally at a new high.

Cement stocks, popular because of expected extensive highway programs improved by a point or so in most instances. Most aircrafts were higher, but they encountered some profit-taking.

A sizable list of individual stock found favor: Remington Rand, Pullman, Schering and Mead Paper scored good gains.

Among the more volatile issues, Corning Glass was ahead eight at one time and International Business Machines up 12.

Railroads were irregular, but Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred added a couple of points in late morning.

Also higher were such leaders as General Motors, Chrysler, DuPont and Radio Corp. A few stocks were off to two points including Gillette and International Paper.

RALEIGH (U)—(NCDA)—Hog markets mostly steady to 25 higher today. Tops of 19.75 at Beulaville, Keno, Rocky Mount; 19.25 at Tarboro, Enfield, Hamilton, Dunn, Mount Cive, Newton Grove Goldsboro, Wilson, Lillington, Warsaw, Jacksonville, Plymouth, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Smithfield; 19.00 at Burgaw, Clanton, Bailey, Wilmington, Weldon, Scotland Neck, Colerain, Whiteville, Tabor City, Shallotte, and Lumberton. Other markets were unreported.

At Least 15 In S.C. School Bus Wreck Injured

EDGEFIELD, S.C. (U)—A school bus smashed into a pickup truck and careened down a 25-foot embankment near here today, injuring at least 14 pupils and one woman.

Sheriff C. R. Jackson said an earlier report by his office that one boy had been killed had proved incorrect.

The accident occurred 14 miles west of here while the bus was bringing pupils from the Modoc section to the Edgefield schools. At least three of the injured were in a critical condition.

They were identified at University Hospital at Augusta, Ga., as Mrs. Alice White, 38; her daughter, Tericia, 13, both of whom were riding in the truck, and James Burnage, 7, a passenger in the bus.

Edgefield County Sheriff C. R. Jackson said Mrs. White was trying to overtake the bus to put her daughter on it. He said she caught up with the bus, stopped too quickly in front of it and the bus crashed into the rear of it.

Jackson said the bus driver, Billy Johnson, 17, of Edgefield, lost control of the bus and it plunged over a 25-foot embankment into Gundy Creek in the Modoc section of Edgefield County. Johnson was treated at a doctor's office here for minor cuts and bruises.

Also admitted to University Hospital was Tommy Miller, 7, of Modoc, a bus passenger, whose condition was not regarded as serious.

The truck was demolished. The front end of the bus was smashed, its front wheels torn off and the motor pushed back into the body.

Passersby and nearby residents rushed to the injured from the scene. Two ambulances were sent to the scene from here.

Walton Mims, editor of the Edgefield Advertiser, said school books were scattered over the area.

Here is the list of injured admitted to Nicholson Clinic at Edgefield:

Vera Bussey, 11, lacerations; her sister, Glenda Bussey, 14, lacerations; Ross Holmes, 9, possible kidney injury; Catherine McDaniel, 15, lacerations and two broken ribs; a sister, Patricia Ann McDaniel, 12, lacerations; another sister, Mary Jean McDaniel, 14, chest injuries, lacerations; Nancy Clegg, 8, bruised leg; Billy Johnson, 17, bruised back; Edna Smith Bush, 12, bruised eye, abrasions.

All live on Rt. 1, Modoc. The clinic said the conditions of all were good. Sheriff Jackson said an undetermined number of bus passengers were given first aid at doctors' offices here and dismissed.

Beanie Cap Has Become Obsolete

CHICAGO (U)—The green beanie for De Paul University's freshmen, it appears, is as obsolete as the falcon coat.

Instead, the upperclassmen of the Student Activity Council have decreed that freshmen wear a white baby bib with letters, "I'm a little demon from De Paul." The school's nickname is the "Blue Demons."

Investigate Area Of Disturbance

MIAMI, Fla. (U)—A Navy hurricane hunter plane took off from Jacksonville at 8 a. m., to investigate a weather disturbance in the central Caribbean Sea 600 miles south of Miami.

"OPERATION CLEANUP"—Now that the water has receded, crews of men and machines have started the grim task of cleaning up the destruction left in the wake of "Hurricane Hazel" in and around Toronto, Canada. Here a crane pulls a car loose from what once was fertile farm land. Water covered more than 7,000 acres around Toronto, making 3,000 persons homeless. Damage was estimated at $10,000,000. Explains Red Cross Does Not Substitute, Duplicate Governmental funds made available to communities in North and South Carolina following hurricane Hazel do not "duplicate or substitute for" American Red Cross aid to individual families, W. W. Jefferson, manager of the organization's Southeastern Area headquarters said today.

In making the statement to clarify any misunderstanding persons in disaster stricken areas in the Carolinas, Jefferson called attention to the statement of understanding by the Federal Civil Defense Administration and the Red Cross signed last year which reads in part: "The Federal Civil Defense Administration and the American National Red Cross will endeavor to insure that the public understands that federal governmental assistance to state and local government under public law 875, as amended is restricted to work essential for the preservation of life and property, clearing debris and wreckage, making emergency repairs to and temporary replacement of essential public facilities damaged or destroyed in a major disaster."

Jefferson pointed out, "All Red Cross assistance to disaster victims is made on the basis of need and is always a grant and never a loan."

E. Hoover Taft, chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross chapter, said local residents applying for Red Cross aid because of the recent hurricane should make their applications to the Red Cross office in the municipal building in Greenville.

Count On Penny For Every Dollar

GIESSEN, Germany (U)—The U.S. Army in Europe is disposing of surplus material that originally cost a billion dollars at its big quartermaster depot here, hoping to get one cent on the dollar return.

Army officials said they hoped they could sell the old, used and obsolete equipment—ranging from butchers frocks and blacksmiths' anvils to vegetable peeling machines—for around 10 million dollars.

They said special efforts were being made to prevent the material from going to buyers who could sell it to Iron Curtain countries.

Courtesy Parking Stickers Idea Offered By Association

Greenville's Appliance Dealers Association last night proposed courtesy parking stickers be issued by Greenville "to entitle all rural residents that have to do with tobacco selling and patrons of our merchants to non-penalty parking."

The proposal was made by Ed Tipton, president of the association at a meeting attended by representatives of some 13 local business and civic organizations.

At the outset of the proposal, Tipton praised the "tremendous job" done by the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade this year in promoting good will for Greenville among residents of rural areas.

Concludes Series Of Meetings On Study Program

Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, Pitt County school supervisor, has just completed a series of meetings with various school groups designed to further coordinate the county instructional program.

Mrs. Baker met with seventh and eighth grade teachers, librarians, and instructors in science, mathematics, social studies, business education and English.

At the meeting for English teachers, Mrs. Louise Little, of the Ayden school, who is chairman of the group, introduced the new teachers and discussed plans and procedures for the year. The group then held a discussion on various ways of presenting the short story in each of the high school classes.

The science teachers examined science material, checked on new books and discussed plans and procedures for the year. James D. Nicholson of the Bethel school serves as chairman of this group.

Organization of Future Business Leaders of America clubs in the schools was one of the main topics of discussion at the meeting of the business education teachers. Mrs. Guyla Clark of Ayden gave detailed suggestions and facts pertinent to the organization of these clubs and displayed the FBLA handbook.

Mrs. Baker discussed for the group the Kuder Preference Test to be administered to all Pitt County school seniors under the guidance of the business education teachers.

Mrs. Beatrice Aycock of Farmville was elected chairman of the group.

Unique devices to make mathematics more interesting were presented at the meeting of math teachers. Plans for forthcoming meetings were made, with a committee appointed by presiding officer Elizabeth Edwards of Farmville to work on materials for a 1954-55 teachers bulletin. Mrs. Eva Jackson was named chairman of this project.

Mrs. Nannie Lee Manning of Ayden was elected secretary of the math teachers.

Dr. Edgar Beatty, East Carolina College history professor, met with the social studies teachers to discuss a junior history and citizenship project. He encouraged the teachers to participate in such projects.

Mrs. Daisy Lee Latham of Bethel presided at the meeting.

A discussion of the librarian's handbook prepared by Mrs. Baker was featured at the librarian's session. This year the librarians are concentrating on the use of the library. The group discussed the purchase of books, and they were urged to start a file including free materials and clippings.

"While this organization was busy distributing good will to our farmer friends and bringing them to Greenville at a faster pace than ever before," Tipton's statement said, "our parking ordinance served well in destroying this good will. From this point, it is time we merchants and civic organizations alike rise to offer and put into effect some means of restoring this good will to our farmer trade."

The organization proposed that courtesy parking stickers be furnished rural residents, to be placed on the windshields of their motor vehicles, and these stickers would entitle "them to parking with no violation of our parking rules and regulations and no reserved parking spaces."

Also included in the proposal was a provision whereby a person would be hired to have control of issuing the stickers to make sure they were issued only to rural residents of the surrounding area. The proposal likewise suggested the program be put in effect and carried out until the end of the Christmas shopping period this year, and each year thereafter be in effect during the tobacco selling season.

The proposal was discussed at length at the meeting last night, but no official action was taken. Representatives were asked to inform their respective organizations of the proposal, and to contact chairman Tipton of the reaction of the various organizations toward the proposal.
