World Community Day To Be Observed By Church Women

Greenville church women will observe World Community Day November 5 at 7:30 p.m. at the Eighth Street Christian Church with "Parcels for Peace," Miss Venetia Cox, local Council president, has announced.

This year the special project for World Community Day has been announced by Morton R. Kurtz, executive director of the North Carolina Council of Churches, as clothing and blankets for children up to six years of age.

Local women are urged to collect clothes and shoes to help clothe this nation's friends and allies around the world this year. Kurtz reports 5,000,000 pounds is the amount needed.

The State Council of Churches is cooperating with Church World Service and CROP in collecting clothes to meet this goal. Seven area clothing centers are set up to receive clothing all year. From these places, trucks pick up the clothes and take them to the nearest processing and shipping center in New Windsor, Md.

Church women are also urged to bring adults' and older children's clothing and shoes to the World Community Day observance and place them in a separate pile from where they can be later sent to the nearest reception center.

Bearing the significant label "Parcels for Peace," the cartons of clothes will go to Korea, Trieste, India, Pakistan, the Near East, Hong Kong, Germany, Greece and many other areas.

Mrs. Leighton Blount Hostess to Joint Clubs

At the Woman's Club building, as hostess jointly to her Bethel Book Club and the Sans Soucis of Greenville, Mrs. Leighton Blount afforded a most delightful afternoon to many friends, her own absence being the only drawback to the happy occasion. The clubs were united in their sincere regrets that sickness prevented her being with them.

Mesdames Marvin and Judson Blount graciously received the members of the respective clubs as they gathered in different rooms for their business sessions.

This being completed, the clubs came together in the assembly room where, unless they enjoyed a most delightful musical program presented by Misses Janet Watson of Greenville as pianist and accompanist and Jeanne Pritchard of Elizabeth City as soloist.

These talented young ladies were introduced by Mrs. Mesack with justifiable pride as they reflected great credit to the musical department of the college.

Their program was chosen from classical and semi-classical selections, both of which were thoroughly enjoyed and won enthusiastic applause. The Greenvilleans were especially proud of Miss Watson's perfect performance which was only equaled by Miss Pritchard in song.

Delicious refreshments were served from a beautifully appointed table by Mrs. John Staton of Bethel and Mrs. Hugh Ragdale, president of Sans Souci.

A most pleasant social hour ensued.

'Safety First' Are Words Of Magic

Sergeant Carl Pike appeared before students at Eppes and Greenville High Schools yesterday with his unique "Safety Magic" show. The sergeant combines a safety talk with the magic show. He also has students participate in the show. Shown above are Lois Simmons, a high school junior from Stokes; Sergeant Pike, John C. Noe, of the State Department of Public Instruction; Greenville Traffic Officer V. C. Ackert; and Tommy Norris, a GHS Junior from Greenville. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Sergeant Carl S. Pike appeared yesterday before students at Eppes High School and Greenville High School with his "Safety Magic" show.

The sergeant later made an appearance on the Cactus Jim television show on Station WNCT yesterday afternoon.

Presently on leave from the Kent County Sheriff's department in Grand Rapids, Michigan, Sergeant Pike has spent 20 years as a policeman and later as police safety officer at Jackson, Michigan. During that time he helped to train schoolboy safety patrols, assisted in the development of driver education and safety projects and originated his unusual "Safety Magic" show.

He opens his admission-free program with a talk on accidents and how they can be prevented, using actual cases on which he has worked as a police officer to show why "Safety First" is the best policy.

"Safety First" are the key "mystery words" in the show. The sergeant performs such feats of magic as making water flow from an empty jar and flags appear from nowhere when the audience calls out "Safety First."

Sergeant Pike appeared in ten North Carolina high schools last February during a thirty-state tour. He is currently including North Carolina in his eighteen state tour of eastern and mid-western states. He will supplement his school appearances with radio, television, and civic club performances in each town.

The sergeant is traveling under the sponsorship of the State Department of Public Instruction, the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association, Inc., and the American Trucking Association, Inc. The show is designed to highlight the rules of good safety behavior, according to John C. Noe, Advisor of safety education, State Department of Public Instruction who is traveling with the show.

A Plan For The Future, Not Today

Inclusion of plans for recreation areas in future subdivision developments has been talked before; but now the city's Recreation Commission has put the thought into a three-point recommendation for the Planning Board.

The desirability of such a requirement seems self-evident. No one pretends to believe location of present recreation areas will long continue to be favorable for all segments of a steadily expanding Greenville. And, we think too, that a system of "neighborhood playgrounds" would be an invaluable supplement to the now existing facilities.

The plan deals with future needs, and we must adjust our thinking not to needs of today, but of tomorrow.

Kids need space to play in. Lots of space. Anyone who has visited large cities is likely to be immediately struck by the fact that everyone is hemmed in by buildings, buildings everywhere. Only in outlying areas, where residents enjoy the benefits of real city planning, do there appear playgrounds and space to breathe in.

Someday Greenville will be a good-size city. Why, we don't know; any more than we know why it's growing today.

But here's the point: with sound, far-sighted planning Greenville can avoid so many pitfalls encountered by other cities now cramped and tortured by haphazard growth.

Neighborhood recreation areas comprise just one aspect of good planning for the future. We'd do well to act in that direction.

Call This The 'Good News Era'

It seems our world has moved into a cycle of good news, replacing the troubles and fears so long with us.

Incredibly, there is no war anywhere. Equally incredible: relations between France and Germany have become so mutually desirable that not only have they become comrades in arms for their own defense but the current prime minister of France is advocating closer economic ties.

Closer to home, unemployment over the nation has dropped to the lowest point this year; living costs are reported at the lowest level since last April; consumers are spending more than ever; construction records are being broken regularly; earnings are up; taxes reduced; and national production surpasses the wartime peak of 1944.

Good news? The air is full of it. With all the faith and confidence ever manifested in America and her people, it is still something to marvel at how so many obstacles, real and feared, have been overcome to reach new plateaus of prosperity, security and satisfaction.

One thing, though, we should remember. It all didn't just happen. A lot of work was required; a lot of prayers and a lot of thinking. We still need all three to be able to say:

"There's good news tonight".

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
RELIGION A TRUE POWER
One of the outstanding contributions which religion makes to a man's life is that it adds significance to everything he does. As Sir Henry Jones once wrote, "True religion impresses the spirit of its disciples and adds consequence to the things it sanctions or condemns."

If a man has no religion, then life does not have for him any deep and abiding possibility. If a man has no religion, then he regards none of his acts as morally wrong. But just as soon as people get religion and really integrate it into their lives, then goodness takes on a new significance and evil becomes evil in a way that we cannot adequately describe. Goodness thrills a religious man and sin horrifies a religious man. Religion has impressed his spirit and has added consequence to the things that it either sanctions or condemns.

Jesus once said that Christians are the salt of the earth, meaning that they keep life from turning rotten and bring out the latent flavors of life. Religion acts like salt. It brings out the latent flavors of goodness and allays evil so that it cannot rot away a man's soul. It adds consequence to whatever the believer sanctions or condemns.

There is a quality of goodness which exists apart from religion; but imperishable, never-falling goodness rests firmly on religious faith.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—In a polite exchange of letters with his predecessor, Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson has shown that the Democrats' basic farm program under Truman was identical with the Eisenhower policy of "flexible" price supports, which the opposition now condemns as "disastrous" to American farmers.

Coming on the eve of next Tuesday's election, the Benson evidence may knock the props from under a key Democratic issue. The Democrats count on winning normally Republican farm votes with their charge that the Administration's less rigid support system, which became law during the recent Congress, will undermine agriculture.

Benson quotes from Truman's 1948 message to Congress, from the Democrats' 1948 platform and from former Secretary Charles F. Brannan's speeches to prove that the Eisenhower long-range program does not differ from the Democrats' approach to a permanent solution of the surplus quandary.

CONTROVERSY STARTED—Brannan began the controversy when he wrote a personal letter to his successor from Denver on September 17. He challenged a Seattle newspaper interview in which Benson had said:

"Every Secretary of Agriculture for the past 20 years has advocated flexible price supports!" "I am sure," wrote Brannan, "you are aware that [at no time advocated or embraced the sliding scale of price supports by that term, or by the term 'flexible,' or by any other term. My opposition in opposition to this philosophy has been notorious."

After three weeks of careful research of the files, Benson replied with irrefutable proof on October 8. After noting that Truman's 1948 message and the Democratic platform of that year had called for "flexible price supports on a permanent basis," he cited two Brannan speeches.

BRANNAN'S DECLARATION—On September 9, 1948, according to Benson, Brannan issued the following declaration of agricultural policy:

To Revive Life When Life Is Failing

Pitt County's six new members of the "gallon club", people who have given eight or more pints of blood, are certainly due much commendation for their generosity. They have set a laudable example to all of us, their neighbors.

Why did they so generously give? Summing up their reasons it seems to be just a case of wanting to help others and even feel it a bit of "insurance" for their own family's protection. Those are good reasons; probably the best reasons anybody could give for the whole blood-collecting program.

And the real immediate need for such a program was amply demonstrated during and following the recent hurricane. "Hazel" was a killer; hundreds of people in its path were slain, others maimed. Plasma and blood were life-savers for an unknown number of storm victims. The Center's stockpile was depleted, and must be replaced as a safeguard against all the little and major disasters of everyday life.

Odds are, that most of Pitt County's "gallon club" members will be on hand November 1 and 2, helping as they have in the past. Others on their way to becoming members of that select group will be there too; but there are innumerable others who can help, and haven't.

It's all needed. Every bit of blood will be used, one way or another, to revive hope where hope was fading, to revive life where life was failing.

ITALY, TEX., NEWS-HERALD: "The News-Herald editor has said time and time again that he does not claim to know the answer to all problems. He does try to think of some through and present his line of thought to the readers of this publication. The editorial policy of this newspaper is based on the slogan 'I'm going to settle a question right as when they discuss it freely.'" act to alleviate the difficulties in the troublesome potato situation. All that was required was a simple adjustment that would make the support program flexible.

"Mr. Anderson urged this in November, 1946. He urged it again in January, in May and in November, 1947. He brought it up in February, 1948. Again and again, he asked Congress to make an adjustment."

RECOMMENDATIONS—In that speech, Brannan condemned Congress for not enacting the flexible price support system which he now opposes. He continued: "Instead, the Congress this year extended to the end of 1949 a system of price supports that is not as flexible as the situation demands. The major farm organizations, the Department of Agriculture and the farmers of America recommended otherwise. The recommendations of all these interested parties went for nothing."

TRUMAN'S MESSAGE—Benson's clincher consists of a quotation from a Brannan speech on June 9, 1948, to wit:

"President Truman, in his special message to Congress on May 14, asked for four kinds of action. First, he recommended flexible price supports on a permanent basis. As you know, our present price supports are quite rigid."

NO REPLY FROM DEMOCRAT—"We cannot go back to the prewar price supports, and the wartime system should be adapted to new conditions."

Benson concluded his letter with this question: "Do I need to say any more about the accuracy of my statement that every Secretary of Agriculture for the past 20 years has advocated flexible price supports?" Mr. Brannan has not replied.

Somebody Told Me

AA Plans Open Meeting Here

Notice to alcoholics: November 7th is a big day! And the same applies to non-alcoholics who are interested in the drinking problem.

Last night I attended the regular weekly meeting of Pitt County Alcoholics Anonymous in their club room over Fleming's on the corner of West 5th and Washington streets. The club's business consisted of formulating plans for an open meeting on Sunday, November 7th. The program consisted of three Goldsboro AA's who spoke on the drinking problem.

The open meeting will feature a speaker from New Castle, Delaware. Dr. Tom McGuire is a psychiatrist and owner of his own alcoholic hospital in New Castle. And of course is a dry alcoholic.

The national headquarters of AA helped the Pitt County group to engage Dr. McGuire. He has the reputation of being one of the best speakers in the nation on the subject. And I give you my personal guarantee that he will not preach at you. Never have I heard an alcoholic preach. They simply tell how they have arrested their desire and what sobriety means to them. Notice I call Dr. McGuire an alcoholic? He will call himself such. All AA's realize they still have the make-up of an alcoholic but they have arrested the desire.

The November 7th meeting will be at eight o'clock at the Eighth Street Christian Church. In addition to the speaker, a local panel will conduct a discussion. It will consist of Judge C. H. Wheeler, Moderator; Dr. E. B. Aycock, physician; Mrs. F. P. Brooks, representing the WCTU; Judge J. W. Parker, Superior Court Judge; and Dr. H. G. Haney, Pastor.

Last night's speakers were excellent. It has always amazed me that AA speakers are so talented. Yet, they come from all walks of life, many of which are not known for development of public speakers.

Russell last night pointed out that when he was drinking everything was wrong, but it wasn't liquor that was causing it. "No, sir," he said, "my boss was crazy or I was mad at somebody all the time." And that seems to be the opinion of the alcoholic. They all think it's something else besides the bottle that's causing the trouble.

To hear them speak is inspiring. It almost seems like a miracle to see a man or woman standing before you making a speech, describing what a terrific hold the bottle had on them at one time, and how they escaped it.

November 7th, eight o'clock, will give you an opportunity to have a closer look at the AA program. Please don't miss it.

And I thank you.

The Voice Of The People

correctly—as were those of his opponent.

S. A. Whitehurst carried Pactolus Precinct in June 1954 in the second Primary, yet I and the other officials of Pactolus Precinct, were accused by S. A. Whitehurst of allowing votes to be improperly cast and of other violations of the election laws. The evidence he offered was "flimsy" and was to the effect that the votes improperly cast had in fact been cast for Whitehurst! The County Board of Elections, in the public meeting on the night of June 29, refused to allow me or any other election official of Pactolus Precinct, to be heard to refute those false charges.

The County Board of Elections simply made up its mind to order, and did order, a recount. By that action, the Board publicly affirmed its disbelief of the signed certificate of the poll holders of Pactolus Precinct that our return was correct and honest and said, in effect, that we could not count correctly or that we had not fairly counted the votes.

I resented that action then and I continue to feel that the poll holders of Pactolus Precinct, as well as the voters of Pactolus, were not fairly treated. Because of that fact, I have resigned as a poll holder and have refused to serve in the general election which will be held Tuesday, November 2.

Because of these things and because I do not appreciate S. A. Whitehurst's unwillingness to abide by law and order and the rules of the Democratic Party, I expect for the first time to vote against S. A. Whitehurst in this "write-in" campaign.
Very sincerely,
J. R. Jimm Channey

Around Capitol Square

Signs Grow Of Legislative Action On Absentee Ballots

By LYNN NISBET
ABSENTEES—Opinion is general around capitol square that the upcoming Legislature will outlaw absentee voting except for armed forces personnel. It is regarded as possible that effort might be made to limit military service absentee balloting to Federal related offices—members of the Congress, President and Vice President—since the right is extended to such voters by congressional act and cannot be rescinded by a State Legislature.

Abuses of absentee voting privileges in the primaries reached such proportions in 1938 that the 1939 General Assembly banned absentees in the primaries, but retained them in the general election. It was freely charted at the time that Democratic Legislature based its action on the premise that "it is all right to steal from Republicans in November, but it is wrong to steal from other Democrats in May and June."

It now appears that Republicans have learned and adopted the "stealing" tactics previously alleged against the Democrats, and demand for investigation of abuses in several marginal counties originated with Democratic leaders. First complaints came from Graham county where Democrats charged that Republicans had established a curb market price of $75 to $85 per vote. Subsequent protests came from Clay, Alexander, Randolph and other counties in which members of both parties asked for investigation of abuses. Report from Clay is that out of a total registration of less than 3,000 more than 650 absentee ballots have been issued—not counting military service voters. Alexander reports over 300 absentees, many of them allegedly illegal, have been distributed to date. In every county from which protests have come into Raleigh the margin between Democratic and Republican voters is so narrow that absentee ballots may determine results of the election.

OVERT—While no other county has reported a going market price for absentee votes as high as that alleged in Graham, in every instance it is charged that votes are being openly bought. An interesting commentary on this situation is that in several instances the protests are based not so much on the practice of buying and selling votes, as upon the price paid. Further interesting and unflattering comment by a high ranking State official is that the increasing expense, rather than the principle involved, will lead to repeal of the absentee voting law.

REMEDY—Suggestion has been made that the situation might be improved and the voting rights of honest citizens protected by reducing the time in which absentee ballots might be delivered to a period of not more than one week before the election. That would preclude much of the advance negotiations and would still permit the voter who became unexpectedly disabled or was called away from home on emergencies.

Majority opinion hereabouts is that the situation has gotten so

Business Today

To Please Is Costly

By ELMER ROESSNER
While you may not have noticed it, most people try to please. This simple fact costs survey companies millions of dollars a year.

Because people try to please, they have to recheck surveys, often doing them over. They have to conduct expensive research to measure the bias produced by this human trait, and they employ costly mathematical talent to recalculate results.

A man knocks at Mrs. Kilroy's door and asks if she prefers muffins with raisins or blueberries. Now Mrs. Kilroy is a toast girl, as anyone can plainly see. But she wants to please. The man at the door looks like a blueberry man. So she says she prefers muffins with blueberries. In the end, the man finds that 68 women like muffins with blueberries, 31 like muffins with raisins and one woman likes them with both. The blueberry people rush in berries by the case, and then wonder why they don't sell.

Study after study shows that answers aren't accurate simply because people want to please. "Do you drink?" asks the ministerial poll-taker. "Only water!" you answer. "Do you drink?" asks the rogue with the magenta nose. "Anything!" you reply.

If all this sounds fanciful, look at the Ottawa Cheese Survey, reported in the October Journal of Marketing by Leslie E. Drayton, of the Canadian Department of Agriculture. Pollsters asked Canadians how much cheese they bought. In one poll the average was 3.5 ounces for a given month, in another it was 4.2 ounces.

The only trouble was that government figures showed that sales in another it was 4.2 ounces. The interviewees were simply trying to please, in a curdy sort of way.

They ran the survey again, wedging cheese in with a lot of questions about meat, eggs, fish, etc. The average purchase came to 2.6 ounces a month, a much more credible figure. The real purpose of the surveys, incidentally, was not to find out how much cheese was used, which was already known, but to gather data on buying habits, criticisms of the way cheese is sold, recipes and uses.

Because of this aim-to-please, many pollsters "bury" their questions. That woman who asked you whether you preferred cheesecake with pineapple or with cherries was really interested in seeing what type of curries you used. But took a lot of extra time and hence added to the costs of the survey.

SEX HERE TO STAY
IN OFFICES, A.M.A. TOLD
The completely automatic office made up of only "sexless and shapeless machinery" will never come, the American Management Association's annual office management conference was assured by J. Douglas Elliott, a Detroit Edison executive. There will always be people around, he declared.

Electronic brains, he added, are really "complete morons without God-given qualities. They must be led, figuratively, by the hand and told every move to make. Fortunately, they need to be told only once."

MORTGAGE MONEY TIGHT
IN ONLY FEW AREAS
Mortgage money is tight in many small communities, but plentiful at reasonable rates elsewhere, a survey by the National Association of Real Estate Boards found. In cities for $8,000 and over, FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed loans were generally either "ample" or in "moderate" supply. Only a few larger cities reported money tight.

Duffy's Place Draws Churchmen

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Every occupation or hobby group in Manhattan has its favorite meeting places.

The college crowd holds reunions "under the clock" in the Biltmore Hotel lobby. Actors hang out at the Algonquin, Ralph's and Sardi's.

Outdoor checker players cluster in Washington Square, horse-shoe pitchers in Central Park, musicians and pickpockets in Times Square, dog walkers on Park Avenue, professional bums on the Bowery, Army men at the Astor, sirmen at the Hotel Lexington, and politicians at the men's bar of the Waldorf.

Clergymen have a rendezvous place, too. They often meet at "Duffy's Tavern"—as many refer to it—across the street from the New York Public Library's famous twin lions at 41st street and Fifth Avenue.

The "tavern" is the clerical department of Rogers Poet Co., a clothing firm. The department has been run for 30 years by Frank Duffy, who probably knows more clergymen than any other man in America. He travels 40,000 miles annually and outfits some 10,000 priests, ministers and rabbis.

"We've taken care of ministers from every corner of the world," said Duffy. Challenged as to whether he could outfit a Buddhist priest properly, he said: "Certainly, although I don't know what would happen if he went out without trousers and tried to convince the nearest cop he was a priest."

Duffy said clergymen were relatively easy to please because they know what they want; they don't usually bring a wife along and their styles change slowly.

"They have a wonderful sense of humor," he said. "They enjoy a good joke, and when they meet here they rarely talk about ecclesiastical or political matters."

"The younger clergymen today are taller and more muscular than those of 30 years ago. You run into more and more 6 footers. The average collar size now is 15 to 15½, the coat size from 40 to 42.

"Among Protestant clergymen there is a trend toward more informality. The double breasted suit has taken the place of the long coat for daily wear, and the three-button jacket with natural shoulders is even more popular. The old wide-brimmed hat has given way to the homburg.

"Most clergymen today want to find a sensible compromise somewhere between the Broadway drape shape and the out-of-date 'where's-the-corpse' look."

Orthodox rabbis provide a special problem, as they abide by the Biblical injunction, "thou shalt not wear a mingled stuff, linen and wool together." So Duffy rips apart rabbinical suits, replacing the linen with silk thread, which like wool is an animal fiber.

Duffy estimates he has outfitted more than 30,000 clergymen, has yet to meet a dishonest one. Only death or a long disease has ever kept a clergyman from meeting his bills.

The only exceptions were six imposters, all of whom, Duffy remarked cheerfully, "went to jail."

The day I visited "Duffy's Tavern" one of his customers was the Most Rev. Paul Yulin, the 6-foot-11 Chinese archbishop of Nanking.

"The Communists have condemned me to death," said Father Yulin, smiling. "Unlike the Japanese did, however, they put no price on my head. All the Communists want is my head—they don't want to pay for it."

Among Duffy's former customers is Pope Pius XII, who bought a topcoat during a trip to the United States when he was Cardinal Pacelli.

Duffy treasures a note sent him by the late Rev. Ambrose Hyland, the famous chaplain who built "The Church of the Good Thief" inside the walls of Dannemora Prison.

"Will you please send me a couple of cackocks for my altar boys?" it read. "One is a 46 long and the other a 44 regular. Both are lifters."

Skids are less likely on CONCRETE

The difference between a deadly skid and a safe, quick stop is often the pavement. You can stop faster, even in the rain, on concrete. That's because concrete's gritty surface gives your tires a firm, tight grip, wet or dry. Besides permitting better vehicle control, concrete makes nighttime driving safer too! Concrete's light-colored surface reflects up to four times more light than dark colored pavements. You can see farther and have more time to slow down or stop to avoid danger. Concrete roads also are safer because they're free from hazardous ruts, washboard wrinkles and raveled edges. It's worth remembering that when the weather is rough you're much safer on skid-resistant concrete.

Special Study On Legal Aspects Of Test Tube Babies

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bar Assn. has ordered a study of artificial insemination with a view to recommending a law to the 1955 Legislature.

Illinois presently has no law covering rights of persons involved in "test tube baby" cases. There are two such cases pending in Superior Court.

Samuel A. Rinella, chairman of the association's Matrimonial Law Committee, yesterday appointed a two-member subcommittee to begin hearings Wednesday. Rinella said a recent report by a Chicago physician that he performed between 300 and 400 such inseminations indicated an immediate need for such a law.

Rinella said physicians and lawyers will be called before the committee for recommendations and discussion of these questions to be covered by the proposed law:

1. Defining the rights and liabilities of the doctor performing the insemination.
2. Defining whether the donor is the child's legal father or whether the mother becomes the sole natural parent.
3. Determining whether the practice of artificial insemination is adulterous.
4. Is prior consent of the husband legally necessary and is such consent a bonding contract?
5. Is the husband, with or without prior consent legally bound to support the "test tube baby" in the absence of formal adoption?

6. Establishing inheritance rights of a baby born of artificial insemination.

Judge Gibson E. Gorman has been asked to rule Nov. 15 in one case involving a 5-year-old boy. The 36-year-old mother, who is suing her 48-year-old machinist husband for divorce, contends the boy was born of artificial insemination and that her husband is not the father.

The mother asks the court to rule artificial insemination is not contrary to public policy, does not constitute adultery that the child is legitimate and that the husband has no right or interest in the child.

Whether the child was born of artificial insemination is the issue in a second case. The husband, 32, petitioned for custody of a 3-year-old boy and an injunction restraining the 30-year-old mother from calling the boy a "test tube baby." Results of blood tests are to be made known in court Nov. 4.

The mother, a physician and a nurse have testified the father consented to artificial insemination and it was performed about eight months before the baby was born. The father denied consenting and claimed blood tests will prove he is the father.

Sermons Saved By Random Holes

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The ceiling in the new West Des Moines Methodist Church is made of acoustical board with the holes scattered at random, instead of set in straight lines.

The Rev. J. Henry Teels explained: "The committee chose the kind with the holes spattered across it. Now nobody who happens to glance up when he's in church will begin to count the lines of perforations and forget to listen to my sermon."

No Cigaretts In The Juke Box

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Craving a cigarette, a man dashed into a nearby cafe and jammed a quarter into a machine. The juke box began to play.

An appeal to the bartender for restitution drew this retort: "Mister, we have a lot of peculiar characters come in here, but you're the prize."

Ears Too Big, Puppy Trapped

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A puppy got his head stuck in the middle hole of a discarded auto wheel. Mrs. Eleanor Rowe and her four children couldn't get it out.

Sgt. L.C. Earnest of the sheriff's force folded the pup's ears back close against its neck and pulled it out by the tail. The ears (Cocker Spaniel type in this case) had trapped it.

Fund-Raisers Advised That Housewives 'Poor Prospects'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP News Features Writer

People who raise money for causes find you ten a financial problem.

This glittering generalities emerge from reading a new little book called "Fund-raising Made Easy" by two sports, Edward S. Newman and Leo J. Margolin.

Actually, the volume, designed to help causes meet budget goals is an eye-opener for many of us on the checkbook, or quarry, end of this little operation.

Generally speaking, say Messrs. Newman and Margolin, it is best to keep wives away from husbands if you would separate the latter from a good-sized contribution. In recommending a dinner as a fund-raising device for instance, these two veterans counsel stag get-togethers.

"Though women will give generously when called upon at their own fund-raising functions," they comment, "they tend to hold down the level of giving at mixed events."

"What actually happens," confided Margolin in person, "is that when a man's wife is present, he figures he'd better be careful about contributions. Probably just that morning he told her, in the midst of a great big argument, that they couldn't possibly afford new furniture for the dinette."

This sort of husbandly caution can be lethal to a carefully plotted campaign, when all the details have been rigged to make it practically impossible for Mr. X to give less than Mr. Y without showing up publicly as a cheapskate or a ne'er-do-well.

Newman and Margolin recommend, in fund-raising a sort of subtle segregation of women. This is called the "women's division," and the girls are there permitted to work like crazy for the cause—among other women, where they won't louse up prospects of big (male) contributions. They are to be encouraged to go in for such activities as luncheons, fashions shows.

"In general," they state, "the gifts should be in the nature of cash contributions from household money rather than pledges. In this way, the individual women personally identify themselves with the campaign and do not merely raise their husbands' obligations."

The authors estimate that during 1954 some 16 million volunteers will extract from American contributors approximately five billion dollars for causes ranging from small local projects to great big nationwide organizations.

Personally, I would like the authors to follow up this revealing volume with another directed toward the contributors. I would enjoy learning, for instance, how to gracefully get out of contributing $5 to the Society for the Prevention of Head Colds Among Eskimos when my neighbor across the street is doing her house-to-house bit but still maintaining amicable relations so that when I'm making my rounds for the Assn. to Aid Iranian Medical Students she'll kick in.

Margolin, prodded a bit, had one suggestion to offer the average contributor who is generous but doesn't want to play sucker.

"Ask for a copy of the organization's budget," he advised. "Or a copy of the annual report. Then ask questions. And if the percentage of the budget used to raise funds is over 10 per cent—many are lower—figure something is wrong or there's an unusual situation. Ask questions."

Rough Survival Formula For A-Bomb Blast Area

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

CINCINNATI, (P)—Here's an A-bomb or H-bomb survival tip:

If you see or sense a sudden brilliant or blinding flash of light—duck and count slowly to five.

If you reach five, you have survived. Then take stock. If you have the customary number of fingers, legs and other body parts, if you can hear, and aren't bleeding badly anywhere or bleeding from the nose or ears, you probably have nothing to worry about.

It will mean you haven't been hit at all, or significantly, by the three killers in thermonuclear weapons. The three are radiation—including X-rays and neutrons—heat or fire, and the blast wave. The blast wave itself, and objects like bricks, stones and glass sent flying by the blast, could be lethal.

Counting off the five seconds will mean you were at least a mile from the heart center of the atomic bomb. It takes five seconds for the sound or blast waves to travel a mile. And at a mile distance, you probably won't get any significant amount of radiation.

This rough formula was given today by Col. Harvey C. Slocum at the annual meeting of the American Society of Anesthesiologists. Slocum is professional consultant in anesthesiology to the surgeon general, and chief of anesthesiology and operative service of Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C.

It applies to A-bombs such as exploded over Japan and can apply to H-bombs too. For much of the deadly effects of all these bombs go straight up in the air, or could miss you by hop-scotching over you if you had ducked soon enough, or had ducked behind sufficient protection, he said.

Slocum mentioned the formula in saying that if a nuclear bombing catastrophe occurred, anesthesiologists could and should have special lifesaving jobs to perform.

'Forecasting Game' Is Near Seasonal Climax

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (P)—The forecasting game nears its seasonal climax.

Every week sports oracles tell you how next Saturday's football will turn out and every Monday they explain how the upsets that or sed them up were really as unusual as the weather you know where.

And this week every political pundit is proclaiming just how next Tuesday's election will go in this, that and the other place, and if you read it all you'll be too tired to go to the polls.

But warming up in front of the stands is still another team of forecasters—the nation's economists, in industry or government, in colleges or just out on their own as consultants.

1954's by anywhere from 5 to 10 per cent.

Since so far this year, industrial output has trailed 1953's record by about that same rate, the predictions seem to promise that 1955 will be nearly as good as 1953.

But there are professional looking-aheaders from other camps who see only stagnation in the future, with a growing population finding new jobs increasingly hard to come by.

The trouble with some of these forecasts, on both sides of the fence, is that you wonder if maybe they aren't made just now with half an eye on how they might influence the voters.

Already they are issuing guesses as to what will happen to business if the Republicans retain Congress and what will happen if the Democrats capture it. (If the Republicans win, they say, business will be encouraged through knowing it still has a friend in court. If the Democrats win, they say, business will be comforted by the thought that the tendency might be toward inflation—and a mild dose always makes business look better, whether it is or not.)

If this "heads you win, tails you lose" sort of reasoning confuses you, remember that forecasting is a ticklish business at best and the business soothsayer just does the best he can, knowing full well that the public can cross him up with its buying whims, or the Russians can do it by changing the thermostat on their cold war.

Soon the economists will be swarming all over the printed page telling you how business will be in the coming year.

A few have already jumped the gun with tentative forecasts for business in 1955.

Most of them, encouraged by the signs of a pickup in the making this fall, are guessing that 1955's business activity should exceed

Oleo Smuggling Is Big Business

MONTREAL, (P)—The shadowy figure in the background completed his order, then said as an afterthought: "Throw in 25 pounds of margarine while you're down there."

This picture of a Montreal buyer ordering a supply of the lower-priced butter substitute, banned in Quebec province, was painted today by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police as they told of the big-scale operations of smugglers of cigarettes and other merchandise from the United States.

Smuggling of margarine from the United States, they said, merely was a sideline for the men who in 15 months brought 2½ billion cigarettes into the country without paying federal or provincial tax.

Of Canada's 10 provinces, only Quebec and little Prince Edward Island in the Maritimes ban the sale and use of margarine as a threat to their dairy industries. It is much simpler to bring margarine into Quebec from Ontario than to smuggle it across the guarded international border.

In recent weeks, more than 60 persons have been arrested as RCMP and Quebec provincial police cracked down on a smuggling ring which they say cost federal and provincial treasuries millions of dollars in revenue. More arrests are expected.

Compared with smuggling of cigarettes and other merchandise such as American refrigerators said an RCMP official who declined use of his name, the illegal importation of margarine is "peanuts." In 15 months, the RCMP has proof of only 20 tons of margarine being smuggled into Quebec from the United States.

Veterinarian Claims Possible Answer To Dam Silt Problem

RESERVOIR SAVER?—Here is the model of a proposed desilting device which was tested at Oklahoma A&M. Engineers said it worked as a model and hope it would work full-scale. Water flows against the baffles (bottom to top in the picture). Silt is washed into central pipe and carried below dam.

By GENE KINNEY

OKLAHOMA CITY—A retired veterinarian thinks he has the answer to the problem of silt filling up the huge reservoirs built all over the country in recent years.

Dr. George N. Russel offers a desilter which he estimates would be worth millions in prolonging the life of the multiple-purpose projects. He proposes to trap the silt at the head of the lake, divert it through a conduit on the lake floor and empty the mud below the dam.

Bonus Features

Dr. Russel says his desilter will not only prolong the life of a reservoir almost indefinitely—but has two bonus features:

1. Curbing upstream deposits which fill the river channel and cause lowland flooding.

2. Dumping diverted silt below the dam to fill in the erosion channel often dug by water rushing from hydroelectric power turbines.

And the amateur engineer has the backing of reputable professionals and solid laboratory success for his claims.

John H. Dawson, associate professor of civil engineering at Oklahoma A&M College, said the model which he tested recently caught 98 per cent of the sand and 96 per cent of the silt.

The metal traps, were 12 inches by 4 1/2 inches in the experimental model. There were settling basins to catch suspended material which was washed through a concrete pipe downstream.

Stream conditions were duplicated as nearly as possible. The professor said various kinds of sand and silt were placed on the inlet pan and washed into the desilter under different rates of flow.

The result, he said in a formal report, was complete substantiation of Dr. Russel's theory. Furthermore, the desilter cleaned itself by the flow of water.

Dawson photographed every stage of the experiment. In an interview later, he said, "It's the first I've seen that's likely to work on a large scale. I've talked with several hydraulic engineers and if there's anything wrong with it, we can't find it."

Dr. Russel said he had also received favorable reaction from engineers at the University of Oklahoma, Texas A&M and the University of Kansas. "Every one of the engineers believes my desilter will do the job," he said.

Leslie E. Hamilton, a consulting engineer on such big dam projects as Bull Shoals (Arkansas), Table Rock (Missouri), Fort Gibson (Oklahoma), Whitney (Texas), Norfolk (Arkansas), and Denison on the Red River between Oklahoma and Texas, gave his stamp of approval, Russel said.

But a full-scale test is yet to be made on the patented device. The hitch is money. Prof. Dawson estimated the cost of installing a desilter on a major project would be one to two million dollars—a fraction of the outlay for most dams these days.

Russel predicts his invention will get a test under actual conditions within a year or so.

"If it should work, and I think it will," Dawson said, "it would prevent lake dredging, save old primary dam sites by prolonging the life of reservoirs, and save having to build other dams on poorer sites."

IN GREENVILLE :

Bucs Next Meet Surprising Apps

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer
This is the weekend of decision! East Carolina, defending North State Conference kingpins, hook up with league-leader Appalachian.

only unbeaten, untied college football team. Their streak of six games is the biggest NS surprise of the last decade. Before the season began, they were picked to end in the bottom half of the conference standings behind EOC, Catawba, Lenoir Rhyne and WCC.

They opened their season with a 19-6 win over Guilford, this was expected. But then they commenced to run roughshod over WCC, Eion, Lenoir Rhyne, and Catawba. They also whipped Emory and Henry last Saturday, 21-0. The Pirates, P.C.

and Tampa remain on their schedule. The personnel of the title-bound, bowl-bound Mountaineers wasn't so impressive prior to the opener. But since they have blossomed out into a team with excellent material three-deep in strength. The Apps employ a wide-open split-T system on offense. The masterminding of the attack is in the capable hands of veteran quarterback Ned Penell.

The guards are the Mountaineers' Rock of Gibraltar with All-Conference Ben Quinn, R. E. Cummings, Bert Voit, and Larry Simmons there. Quinn is an All-State candidate and Cummings is pushing for an All-Conference berth. Joe Eller is the starting center. The huge pivotman has the snapperback post well-fortified.

Opportunity For Northwestern This Saturday

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—The victory-starved Northwestern Wildcats could turn this dismal season into a real success with a triumph Saturday over Ohio State.

Coach Bob Voigts, flustered because his team has lost three of its last four games by one touchdown, realizes Ohio State is the No. 1 team in the nation.

"Ohio State is a very fine team," he said yesterday. "I think they're better defensively than they were last year and they have a good forward wall. Both (Bobby Watkins and Hopalong) Cassidy are real good and that Cassidy can break up a ball game any time."

"But we're out to beat them, and we can do it, I think, if we play the type of ball we did against Michigan in the last half. Cassidy, of course, is our big problem."

Northwestern fell before Michigan 7-0, but the Wildcats held the Wolverines to a scant eight yards rushing in the second half and finished with a big advantage in the statistics.

Bothered with fumbles most of the season, Northwestern appears to have solved the problem. The Wildcats lost the ball only twice to Pitt last Saturday. However, the Panthers scored in the final seconds to win 14-7.

Upsetting the Buckeyes will be no easy problem. Fortified with an excellent line, Coach Woody Hayes, in addition to Cassidy and Watkins, has a smooth quarterback in Dave Leggett and one of the best sophomores in the conference in fullback Hubert Bobo.

It was inevitable that Chuck Dressen would return to the big show. After all, he had established himself as a pennant-winning manager with the Dodgers and he left the Brooklyn club in 1953 after a disagreement over the length of his future contract. Few could fault his handling of the club even though the Dodgers did lose again to the Yankees in the world series. The failure of the Dodgers to win the pennant this year under Manager Walt Alton only served to place Dressen in a more deserving light. With the numerous changes in pilots made this year, a man of Dressen's proved ability could have his pick.

Dressen revealed that he had accepted Washington's offer back in August, although the actual announcement was not made until after the close of the major league season. Chuck pointed out that once the terms of the contract were agreed upon, he quickly accepted the offer because he did not want to give Clark Griffith the impression that he was stalling for time to shop around for a better offer.

It is a fresh start Dressen is making in coming back to the big show with Washington. His managerial experience and most of his coaching days were spent in the National League but he did have a ton of duty as a coach with the Yankees. Chuck feels that he still has a fair idea of the American League clubs although he has been out of the league since 1948. He feels there is a wonderful opportunity to do a rebuilding job with the Washington club. It's a challenge, and he feels that he has a pretty good nucleus in Washington with the material on hand.

102 FOES IN 61 YEARS
MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP)—West Virginia University has played 102 different football rivals in 61 years. The Mountaineers have won 304 games, lost 204 and tied 33.

Coach Abe Martin of the TCU football team calls his regulars the "white" team and his sophomores the "blue" team.

Branca Out Of A Job, Should Be At His Peak

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—There was an item on the sports page the other day which said that Ralph Branca, at 28 years of age, had been waived out of the big leagues, a washed-up pitcher who didn't know which way to turn next. Immediately three pictures came to mind of this tragic young athlete who only a few years ago appeared destined for greatness.

there in the spotlight on the big stage were both Branca and the man who had laid him low, Thomson. You never heard such a commotion as went up, most of it out of sincere admiration for the boy from Brooklyn.

The incident about convinced the baseball world that Branca had the heart of a lion just for having shown up if nothing else, and we heard the belief expressed more than once later in a long night that he finally was ready to take up again where he had started four years before.

But it wasn't to be. The next year there was arm trouble and Branca got into only 16 games. Two seasons ago, in '52, Manager Charlie Dressen permitted him to work in only seven innings before he gave up on him for good, and in July of that summer Branca was waived out of the National League. Detroit took a chance on him, then the Yankees. But now Branca, who should be right at the peak of a great career, is looking for a job again.

Act On Sale Of A's Tomorrow

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Barring unforeseen developments, 10 days marks the final hours of the Mack baseball dynasty—a half century of Philadelphia Athletics ownership by Cornelius J. McGillicuddy.

Tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. the owners of the other seven American League clubs gather in New York to vote on sale of the A's stock to an eight-man Philadelphia syndicate.

If their vote is favorable—and Arnold Johnson notwithstanding, there appears little chance it will be otherwise—the only Mack contact with the Athletics will be a one-ninth share in the club retained by son Roy Mack, and the title of honorary president bestowed on Connie Mack Sr.

Johnson, Chicago businessman who "almost" bought the A's earlier this month and then lost out to the Philadelphia group, announced yesterday he planned to attend the league owners meeting in New York tomorrow and stated he was "still interested in buying the Philadelphia franchise for transfer to Kansas City."

Check For Bands On Game Birds

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A national conservation leader today reminded hunters to look for metal bands on the legs of wild game birds which they bring to bag.

"These birds have been banded by research workers to secure needed information about game habits and movements," said President Claude D. Kelley of the National Wildlife Federation. "The facts thus obtained help federal and state wildlife agencies to do a more scientific job of setting open seasons and bag limits."

A band recovered from the leg of a wild duck, goose, dove or other migratory bird should be mailed to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington 25, D. C., along with information about where and when the bird was shot, Kelley said. In return the hunter will receive an answer telling where and when the bird was banded and its approximate age.

Many states carry on banding projects in search of facts about resident species such as quail, grouse and pheasants. These birds should be turned over to a game warden or returned by mail to the state game department.

Bettor Won, But He Won't Collect

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP)—Anthony J. Morretti called a Cranston resident yesterday and placed a $10 bet on a horse running at Suffolk Downs, Mass.

The horse, Flying Tuck, won and paid $206.50 on Morretti's bet—but Morretti won't collect. He's a police inspector and he placed the bet merely to gain evidence against the bookie.

Whether Johnson will make an effort to be heard at the New York session—and whether such an effort would be successful—will have to wait until tomorrow for answers.

The general feeling in Philadelphia last night was that the long, hard struggle was nearly over, with the Athletics destined to remain in the city where they were first fielded as an American League entry by Connie Mack at the turn of the century.

TCU Helped By Soph's Switch From Wisconsin

FORT WORTH (AP)—Football coach Abe Martin of the T.C.U. Horned Frogs is mighty glad that Arvid R. (Buddy) Dike changed his mind.

Dike, who played his high school football at Oak Park near Chicago, originally was enrolled at Wisconsin. But when his family moved to San Antonio, he became interested in T.C.U.

As a sophomore fullback this season Buddy has made the starting team and is going great guns on the gridiron. In four games against Oklahoma, Southern California, Arkansas and Kansas he rolled up 260 yards. He is near the top of the Southwest Conference list for total offense even though he doesn't pass.

If Dike continues his present ground-gaining pace of 65 yards a game he may hit the 700 mark for the season.

Winning Streak Broken With 19-13 Upset Loss

Coach Warren Carroll's Red team finally upset the easy street of the Whites yesterday afternoon in Mid-get football when they recorded a 19-13 win over the White team.

Husky Charles Roberts led his Red team by scoring all three touchdowns against the White defense. It was the first time any team had scored more than 13 points against the White.

At the beginning it looked like another White win. In the first quarter quarterback Howard Garner raced for the White's first touchdowns. Then in the second quarter Garner passed to Fountain to give them a 13-0 lead.

From there the Red team came back and behind Roberts' spark scored 19 points to win.

Non-Conference Game May End Phants' Losing Skein

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
It's been a long time since Greenville's Phantoms have won a game, but the G-men are hoping to get back on the victory list trail Friday night when they play Selma in a non-conference encounter in Greenville.

The last G-man win was the 7-6 squeaker over Kinston on September 24. Since then the Greensies have had two open dates and have lost to Washington 7-6, to New Bern 19-6, and have tied Elizabeth City 7-7. With a few breaks the G-men could have won all three of those games.

In the Washington game the Pack capitalized on Greenville penalties to break two scoring runs. Elizabeth City caught the G-men when they had their star end, Harold Edwards, out and the ace rusher, James Speight, sick.

New Bern Plain Lucky

The New Bern game was a heart-breaker for Coach Bill Kittrell's crew. The Bears marched for a touchdown the first time they got the ball but the G-men clearly outplayed them the rest of the ball game. Very strict enforcement of the rules brought a 15 yard penalty to the Phantoms in the fourth period and gave the ball back to the Bears and a first down when it looked like the Greensies had taken over on downs. The ball was placed on the 16 yard line and the Bears scored from there.

The final touchdown was one that Preached Parker of New Bern will long remember. The New Bern all-eastern star was keeping the ball wide around end on what was supposed to have been an end run. When Parker was trapped he reversed his field and went deeper. Just before he was tackled he cut loose a pass where his halfback was blocking the Greenville safety man. Jerry Drum tipped the ball for Greenville and it fell in the arms of the New Bern halfback for the score.

The general consensus around the Greenville camp was that New Bern had a good team, but that they were not world beaters. The Phantoms praised George Slaughter, the fleet New Bern halfback, and thought he was the best they had. As far as Bud "Preacher" Parker goes, the G-men were not overly impressed. They believe if Parker is all-eastern, then James Speight should be all-state. Parker generally had a rough night as the Greenville line continually rushed down his back. Parker will probably remember Pete West for many years. West raced in several times to pick the New Bern quarterback off his feet and slam him to the ground. West has been the surprise of the year in the Phantom camp. The hustling junior has improved with every game and has flashed brilliant form in every game he has played.

Other bright spots in the Phantom line-up last Friday night were Bob Howell and Tommy Norris. Howell connected on a brilliant long pass to James Speight in the closing seconds and may be hitting his stride on throwing the ball.

Norris has been playing bang-up ball as a defensive linebacker for the G-men. The 145 pound junior drew a lot of praise from New Bern journalists Friday. Norris also has been improving steadily since the first of the season and is sure to see plenty of action the rest of the way.

The game with Selma will be played in ECC stadium Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Fish' With Fur Broke Fly Line

PITTSBURG, N.H. (AP)—Here's a "fish" story with a new angle. It's about a big one that got away.

J.F. Perkins was fishing in Lake Francis recently with guide "Ving" Judd. They spotted a "big one" swimming across the lake—a 125-pound bear.

Excitedly trying to head off the animal Perkins' fly-hook accidentally tangled in the bear's fur.

Swimming with renewed fury, the animal made it to shore and ran into the woods, the hook still in his side.

BUTCH RETURNS
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Clarence (Butch) Avinger, quarterback for Alabama in 1949 and 1950, has returned to his alma mater as assistant coach. Avinger played with the New York Giants of NFL last year. In 1952 he was in the Canadian League. While playing for the Crimson Tide under coach Harold Drew, Butch won the Jacobs Award as the best blocker in the Southeastern Conference.

Tears for the Bride

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

I drove slowly around the square and through the dark village and past the high school, to the corner of Crawford and Tymocktee Streets. Except for a dim and distant street lamp, the neighborhood was dark. I stopped at the curb and gazed at the windows of Earl Seltzman's house at the vacant drive, the yawning emptiness of the garage. A car without lights drifted like a ghost up beside me. I caught the movement out of the corner of my eye and turned my head. Instinct made me duck in the instant the shot exploded loudly beside me. I saw the reflection of fire, heard the crunch and tinkle of breaking glass, and it seemed that a hot, wicked whisper filled the car. I huddled low, waiting for the second shot, but none came, just the snarl of gears as a car sped away. I raised my head. The ghost car was turning a corner a block away, a swift, glinting bulb of darkness.

My nerves were like taut, twanging rubber bands, and my hands were too numb to get the car in motion, to give chase. I let the ghost car go. Whoever was driving it knew the alleys and the cross-streets and the out-lying by-roads. Play dead, Bennett. This is the third time—let 'em think they got you at last. For now, A cold jet of air brushed my face and I turned my head. The bullet had made a splintered hole directly beside the spot where my head was now, and another hole, but bigger, in the opposite window. If a like had been drawn between the two, it would pass through my ears. I sighed deeply and lit a cigarette, and after a while my nerves settled down and feeling returned to my hands.

I turned the Mercury around and drove back to the square. On the far side a small dog snuffed along the curb beneath a yellow street lamp, and there was no other sign of life. Everyone's dead, I thought, dead in their beds. This is a ghost town and I'm the only one alive. The person in the ghost car is a ghost, too, and I'm stalking someone, something, in a silent world and this night will go on forever.

Dan's place was dark. I parked down the street a short distance, walked back, and tried the door. Locked tight. Far in the rear was a tiny glow of light. I left the door and moved to the mouth of the alley beside the place, and it seemed that I was again hearing the shots, feeling the sting of brick dust on my face. I didn't want to go back there into that darkness.

"Mind if I come in?" "This is a private game." I lifted a foot and kicked the door violently. It flew wide open. Somebody shouted as I stepped inside and the eight men at the poker table jumped to their feet, all except one, who appeared to be asleep with his head on his arms. A voice muttered, "A holdup!"

Not counting the sleeper, I recognized four of the men as being in the game earlier in the evening. They all watched me silently as I stepped to the table, grasped the sleeping man's hair, and tilted his face. It wasn't Earl Seltzman. He mumbled, and tried to brush my hand away. I let his head fall back to the table, and stepped away. It could have been a hold-up, all right; there was enough money on the table to make it worth while. Here then, was Ridge Center's night life, vice in the corn belt.

A burly man in a heavy plaid shirt blurted stammeringly, "Now, looky here—" "Shut up. Where's Earl?" "That ain't none of your business." The burly man moved toward me threateningly. The rest closed up a little, like a pack of wolves. The half-face who had opened the door began to edge along the wall toward the door leading into the bar. I showed them the gun then and it froze them all. Maybe it wasn't necessary, but a gun is a great equalizer, and my ego was suffering an inferiority complex. A gun puts you in the driver's seat, most times, and it was time for me to drive a little.

I said, "Where is Earl?" "The burly man said sullenly, "He ain't been in the game since you come looking for him the first time." "Why did he duck out, and why did you cover up for him?" "He said you was an insurance salesman hounding him, and he didn't want to talk to you." He looked at the rest. "Ain't that right, boys?"

Three of them nodded silently, the three who had been in the game before and they eyed the gun. "Anybody know where Earl would be right now?" I asked. "Or Jake Fortune?"

They realized that their money was safe, and they felt better about the whole thing. The man by the wall volunteered, "Earl's probably with Eileen Fortune—now that Ralph Hollis is laid up." He giggled nervously.

The burly man said, "Jake was in here early a couple of times, but I ain't seen him since midnight." I backed to the door put the gun in my pocket. "Thanks, boys." Seven pairs of eyes watched me as I closed the door.

I stood in the alley a moment listening to the excited voices inside. Then the lock clicked. Apparently, none of them had pursuit in mind. They were happy that it hadn't been a holdup, and they could continue their illegal gambling, a form of amusement outlawed in a public place in Ohio. I walked up the alley and down the street to my car. I tried not to notice the holes in the windows. Viciously I started the motor, gunned the car around the square, and was hitting sixty when I left the village limits.

I guess I was frustrated. (To Be Continued)

Jennet Has Career As Grandmother Of Mules

AF Newsfeatures
LEXINGTON, Ky.—The Biblical beast of burden the plain old jack-ass, has invaded Lexington, Blue Grass horse capital long popularized by the glamorous racing thoroughbreds.

The animal, whose name is synonymous with stubbornness and other uncomplimentary traits, figured in the news recently when the Jack and Jennet Registry of America transferred its headquarters from Garden City, Kan. to Lexington. The registry is the national office for recording the name number and pedigree. The jack is the pappy of the mule.

Jacks and jennets, as such, are unsuited for work stock because they are slow, sluggish and stubborn.

Demand Is Heavy
Right now, jacks and jennets and mules are reported much in demand and short in supply.

Thomas L. Adams, circulation manager of The Lexington Herald-Leader, who has about one fourth of the 200 jacks and jennets registered in the United States, reports a thriving market.

Much of the demand comes from South America. Only registered jacks and jennets are exported. In America many farmers find it more practical or economical to use mules than machinery.

Specifically, the mule springs from a male ass and a mare. The mule's head, ears, rump and tail distinctly reflect the "prepotency" of the ass, but in bulk and stature the animal is nearer the horse.

The hybrid possesses the sobriety, patience, endurance and sure-footedness of the ass, and the vigor, strength and courage of the horse.

But in the matter of voice, the mule is short changed. The animal emits neither the bray of the ass nor the whinny of the horse. Its voice is a feeble, hoarse noise.

Hinny Is No Mule
The hinny is often confused with the mule, but is the hybrid offspring of the female ass and stallion.

The mule is more valuable than the hinny, which is inferior in size and strength. It is not deliberately bred.

Mules generally are sterile, and this has led to the mistake of supposing that sterility is a necessary consequence of hybridization. Actually, however, female mules can be crossed successfully with a horse or an ass. But the more numerous males seem to be constantly sterile. Only one or two exceptions to this rule have been recorded and they are not regarded as authentic.

As long as there is a demand for mules, jack and jennet herds will be maintained. But good jacks are scarce and expensive ($500 to $3,000), and breeders often have difficulty finding one. They command only a $10 to $20 fee for breeding services. Jennets cost $300 to $500. This cash outlay and the small, uncertain financial return discourage many farmers from keeping them.

Big Variety
Jacks go into service at two years of age, and some are used until they become 20. The best age is three to seven.

Late in the 1800s American breeders developed a distinctive type of stock—the mammoth jack. An ideal specimen stands 15 to 18 hands high—5 feet to 5 feet 4 inches—and weighs 800 to 1,150, several hundreds pounds lighter than large work horses.

The Chinese believe that the first bread made from wheat was eaten in China about 2,000 B.C.

'Mr. Germany' Comes To Washington Today

By ED CREAGH
WASHINGTON, (AP) — "Mr. Germany" comes to town today.

Konrad Adenauer, chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, might reject that title. And a great many of his fellow Germans might have misgivings. The idea of wrapping up a whole nation, or even half a nation, in the person of one man seems to have perished there with Adolf Hitler.

Still Adenauer is a symbol of the new Germany to most other Western countries. Since the deaths of Ernest Reuter and Kurt Schumacher, he is about the only West German political figure whose name is widely known in the United States.

He occupies a dominant position too in the eyes of Western political leaders who deal with Germany. It is a respected position. Secretary of State Dulles went out of his way, in addressing Monday night's televised Cabinet meeting, to praise Adenauer as a "great statesman."

Many of these political figures can't figure out who the Germans have to fill Adenauer's shoes when, inevitably, the time comes for someone else to become chancellor. And Adenauer will be 79 next January. Only Winston Churchill, among the West's political leaders, is older. Churchill will be 80 Nov. 30.

In a real sense Adenauer can be called the "father" of the new West Germany. He directed the drawing up of the basic law which set up the Bonn Republic. Actually, this law is a constitution but Adenauer prefers not to use that word until such time as it can apply to a united Germany.

Just when East and West Germany can be brought together under such a constitution, nobody in a responsible post cares to predict. But Adenauer — like Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and most others who were involved — say that day may well have been brought nearer by the agreements reached in the past few weeks at London and Paris.

By means of these agreements Germany changes from an occupied country to a practically sovereign member of the Western defense system.

That means 12 German divisions, some 800,000 men, along the Iron Curtain by the spring of 1957, if all goes according to plan.

It also means a voice for Germany in all the cold war planning of the West. And as the voice of a much strengthened country in Europe's strategic heartland, a country whose eastern half is occupied by the Red army this promises to be a firm and influential voice.

So Adenauer comes to Washington today as a bigger man than he was on his last visit.

That was in April 1953. Soviet Premier Stalin had died not long before, and the whole world wondered if a change in Russia's attitude toward the West might follow. Adenauer was one of those who cautioned again: too rosy expectations.

"We must not reject everything in advance," he said in a speech to the National Press Club, "but we must also avoid promoting any attempt to destroy the unity of the West and its unified front with regard to Soviet Russia."

Luxury Service On Trains End

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's nationalized railroads will abolish first class accommodations by next April the railway board says. The railroads have been in the process of liquidating first class equipment since May, 1952, when 1,600 Indian trains carried first class cars. At present, only 13 trains have first class space.

An expansion of air conditioned service — which is rated above first class and costs considerably more — is responsible for the abolition of what used to be India's most luxurious rail service.

To Map Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Umstead met with his Hurricane Disaster Committee today to map an over-all plan for distributing $655,000 in federal and state hurricane disaster funds.

As matters now stand, only incorporated municipalities are eligible for the relief money under the law. This leaves many privately developed coastal beaches ineligible for aid from the funds.

The federal government has granted the state $550,000 and the state has put up $100,000 for the aid. The funds are earmarked for Wrightsville, Atlantic, Carolina and Kure beaches and the municipalities of Beaufort and Morehead City.

Monday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court Monday, Jesse J. Kinney, 37-year-old Negro, charged with larceny of a pair of shoes, failed to pass the "Cinderella test," and the court found him guilty.

Testimony was that Kinney stole a pair of shoes from Black's Shoe Shop. When the defendant testified that he bought and paid for the shoes, Judge Charles H. Whedbee ordered the "Cinderella test."

Kinney could hardly get his toes into one of the shoes. When the court queried, "How come?" Kinney said, "They fit when the weather turns cold—my feet always shrink in winter."

"These are not glass slippers," Judge Whedbee said, "and I'm going to give you six months on the roads. This sentence may be suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted." He placed Kinney on probation for two years and the judgment provides that he is not to enter Black's Shoe Shop for a year. Black recovered the shoes.

Drunk: Howard Smith, $15; Jack McLawhorn, $10 on costs and $8 on medical bill; Betty Lou Hennington, Negro, 30 days in jail or pay $10; Frank Evans, $10; James E. Whitakers, $10; Albert Cuyler, Negro, 30 days or pay $10; Early Telfair, Negro, (and disorderly), $25, costs deducted; Lilly Mae Whichard, Negro, (and disorderly), $10.

Jasper E. Morris, charged with driving drunk, was called and when he failed to answer an instant capias was issued for him.

Forcible trespass: James A. Cox, Jr., and Benjamin L. Carson, not guilty.

George Moore, non-support, six months on the roads, suspended on payment of $10 before release for his children's support, and then he is to pay $15 a week beginning October 30, 1954. This cause was ordered held for further order.

Clyde W. Peele paid $10 for speeding.

Thermometer At 81 Yesterday

With Indian Summer weather continuing to prevail in this part of the country, the temperature in the Greenville area registered 81 degrees yesterday. Lowest temperature here last night 58, and at 8 a.m. today it was 62.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 75 degrees. Lowest that night 52, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 62.

The local U.S. Weather Station reported today that the first frost of the 1954 fall was October 18. The first frost last year was nearly a month later—November 12.

Wild Nightmare of Terror On Stage

State Theatre — Wednesday, Nov. 3rd

If it's thrills you want, it's thrills you'll get when you see the man who brings back the dead, that "crazy mixed-up" Dr. Jekyll and his WEIRD SHOW, playing the stage of the State Theatre Wednesday. Performances will be given matinee and night.

Yeh, Man, dig this show for a real goner thriller! Do not judge by anything ever seen before! It's NOT just another "spook" show! It's a gruesome adventure into fear and dread!

You'll scream as a maniac as horrible creatures from beyond the grave roam the theatre and land right in your laps!

You'll meet Mr. Dead face to face! Fanged and fiendish vampires will caress you in the dark! Hideous monsters grab girls right out of their seats! You'll shudder! You'll shake! You'll have nightmares for a week!

Of "CORPSE" it's all in fun, but to play safe the management promises to have plenty of nurses and ambulances on call at all times!

If you're a girl, make your boy friend bring you so you can learn if he's man enough to take it!

A free booklet on "How to Embalm a Corpse" will be given anyone on request!
