Council Again Defers Municipal Parking Lot Action

The construction of a parking lot at the corner of Fifth and Washington Street is apparently hopelessly deadlocked after owners of the lot informed the City Council that the offer would be withdrawn if not accepted at last night's meeting.

hinted that they would approve the idea of cities with parking problems leasing lots on a long-term basis. City Attorney R. B. Lee told the council that a copy of the State Supreme Court decision could be obtained in a "day or two."

The lot is just across the street from the Person-Garrett Tobacco Company. Superintendent of Public Works Ken Beatty declared that he had talked to the owner of the lot and he had expressed interest in the project.

$1000 appropriation after they were told by Ben Rouse, who was representing the group, such a unit was badly needed in this area and would be of great value to Greenville. He told the council that the county had approved an appropriation of $1500 for the truck, Farmville had appropriated $250, and Ayden would be asked for $250.

$10,000 this year and will be maintained at that amount under present plans to cover small claims up to $10,000 which, under terms of the policy the city would be liable for.

'Books and Stuff'

Not that this has anything to do with books—but have you noticed that the Rocky Mount auto license tags are doing us one better this year? . . . Where Greenville claims to be "The World's Largest Tobacco Market," Rocky Mount declares it is "The Best Market On Earth"—which certainly takes in a lot of territory.

This week is Christian Literature Week, according to a little magazine called Vision, which we snatched from a church worker's office last Sunday—we hope she hasn't missed it yet. . . . We're encouraged to read any literature this week, and especially Christian literature and periodicals of all kinds—and the churches are supposed to have them on exhibition, so look around.

An interesting bit of statistical information that we lifted from Vision also, was:

A year ago a Gallup Poll disclosed that only 17 per cent of the American adult public were reading a book of any kind at all—a new low in reading in this country, it saddens us to say, Americans are below—in reading books at least, if not in general intelligence—Canadians, Australians, and Brits—85 per cent of whom were reading a book when the poll was taken, incidentally, which is a lot better than we are doing. . . . On top of that, a University of Denver poll showed that 6000 out of 9000 of its graduates had never read the Bible.

Which reminds us that last week was Bible Week, when the publishers were supposed to be encouraging everyone to read more Bible and read it more often. . . . And next week, beginning November 7, will be American Education Week, when you should be taking even more interest than usual, if possible, in education. . . . Reminding us that another rather controversial book has just come out on that subject, called, provocatively enough, "The Diminishing Mind: A Study of Planned Mediocrity in Our Public Schools." The author, Mortimer Smith, who published last year "And Madly Teach," another attack on public education, here claims that our schools are not preparing children for college because those who are smart enough to go are being neglected by their teachers. . . . We personally are getting a little weary of these "Attacks" on the Educators—who, after all, are doing a wonderful job in many areas, with the limited resources they have to work with—not enough money, not enough teachers, and too many children.

Speaking of teachers, the dual October selection of the Book-of-the-Month Club is about one. . . . It's called "Good Morning, Miss Dove," and was written by Frances Gray Patton, a native of our own Raleigh, N.C. . . . The book probably will become a national best seller, is well on its way right now, and the movie rights already have been sold, so watch out for Miss Dove—who teaches elementary geography and first got her start in "The Ladies' Home Journal" at your local theatre. . . . We're sorry we missed the boat last week, not scooping the Associated Press on the news that Ernest Hemingway had won this year's Pulitzer Prize for Literature. . . . In accepting, he modestly claimed that others were more deserving—one he named was Bernard Berenson, the prolific art critic who lives in Italy and has been coming out with significant works about art for years. . . . Two of them were just issued this week by Macmillan—"The Arch of Constantine," about the decline in sculpture that this arch illustrates, and "Piero della Francesca," concerning Piero's importance in the long recovery of art form during the past 500 years or so.

For Faulkner fans—another book about the sage of Yoknapatawpha County (We think we spelled it right—we wonder if the typographer will)—called "The Private World of William Faulkner," by Robert Coughlan. . . . Originally appearing, most of it, as a two-part serial in Life Magazine last year, the book no doubt will please some and bother others. We personally were not too impressed when we read it in Life—we were unhappy about it because it reduced a really great American literary figure to the status of just another ordinary guy, which we think is a trifle irreverent. . . .

Speaking of Faulkner, we were glad to receive a letter from our ex-colleague, Professor Donald Murray, now teaching at the University of North Dakota. . . . Among other things, he relates that he has just finished reading Faulkner's latest novel, "A Fable," and is now "pooped"—and that, "Aside from one fine horse-race in the middle of it, it is just a hard job of winter reading." So much for "A Fable"—and Dr. Murray also relates, for those who are complaining about "the cool" weather, that they have just had their first big snow in North Dakota. . . .

On the local scene, an important event: Celebration of the 50th Anniversary of Greenville's Free Public Library during the week of November 15. . . . In conjunction with this celebration, we've been asked to let you know that a tea will be thrown by The Library Board, assisted by the End of the Century Book Club, to which all interested parties are cordially invited, especially book-club members. . . . It's to be on Wednesday afternoon, November 17, at the Sheppard Memorial Library, from 4 to 6 P.M. . . . If the refreshments are as good as those we had when we were the program for the Sans Souci Book Club, we will certainly be among those present.

Another future event: On the day after the tea, Thursday, November 18, at 7:30 in the evening, also at the Sheppard Library—a busy place these days, the library—another Forum on controversial questions in the public interest, sponsored by the Greenville Unitarian Fellowship. The subject: "Security and—or Freedom," with the sub-title "Are Our Methods of Attacking Subversion destructive to our rights?" . . . Which certainly doesn't finish off all the news we have to tell you, but this is all the space they'll give us. . . .

End of Century Plans Open House To Note Founding of Library

Mrs. James S. Picklen entertained the End of the Century Club on Tuesday, November 2, at her home on Elizabeth Street. Luncheon was served from the dining table which was decorated with arrangements of fruit. Elsewhere in the home were lovely vases of fall flowers.

Mrs. J. H. Thomas presided in the absence of Mrs. J. B. Spilman, and committees were appointed for the open house to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Sheppard Memorial Library.

Outreached By Arm Of The Law

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Two long arms reached out in the dark stillness. The first was extended through a window into a baking company here. It withdrew with a handful of rolls and doughnuts.

The second was the long arm of the law. The arm grabbed Ray Douglas, 28, and Charles Kent 28, as they walked away from the window yesterday. They were charged with storehouse breaking.

Patrolmen Roy Myers and Norman Kiper said they drove past the bakery just as Douglas withdrew his hand.

Murderer Dies In Penitentiary

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Convicted murderer Petes Bozzelli, who went on a hunger strike three weeks ago in Eastern Penitentiary, died Wednesday of broncho-pneumonia.

Dr. Nathan Blumberg, prison physician, set the cause of death, but said also yesterday that there was no doubt Bozzelli "became ill as a result of being weakened by lack of food. He just didn't want to eat anything and wouldn't listen to any argument by the prison staff, the priest or even his own brother."

Bozzelli, 44, was convicted of strangling his 24-year-old daughter Gloria, eldest of nine children in a motherless family, in April 1953. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

A cheerful open fire made the lovely home all the more inviting, while arrangements of azaleas and especially attractive. During the short business session, a note was read from Sheppard Memorial Library inviting the club to a tea on Nov. 17 celebrating its 50th anniversary.

Club members who had not already done so were urged to vote. The books were then exchanged, after which Mrs. Waldrop presented as her guest speaker Dr. Edgar W. Hirschberg, member of the English faculty at East Carolina College, who gave the program for the afternoon.

Dr. Hirschberg spoke on the life and works of George Eliot and it was particularly interesting inasmuch as he spoke of her life as it was reflected in her letters, three volumes of which have only recently been published.

The club enjoyed this delightful program and was happy to forget for a bit the new fiction of 1954 in consideration of that of George Eliot's time.

At the conclusion of the program, Mrs. Waldrop served a delicious salad plate with coffee.

Tedious Balance Will Mean Caution

The tedious balance of power between the Democrats in control of Congress and the Republican Eisenhower in the White House for the next two years is going to make bi-partisan cooperation almost mandatory if much is to be accomplished.

Control of Congress swung back to the Democrats in this off-year election, but in the Senate the margin is going to be so close even the Democrats can not be sure the cracking of the party whip will insure passage of controversial measures.

Already officials of both parties are trying to read into the results of this week's election indications of what is going to happen in 1956. So far as we can see into the political crystal ball, it is only

No Need For Further Hesitation

The hint of the North Carolina Supreme Court that it will give official sanction to the provision of off-street parking facilities by municipalities with off-street parking should come as a relief to many cities in the state.

Although the high court did not rule on the New Bern test case, it gave sufficient indication it will favor such municipal action where it is needed. Cities with parking problems need not hesitate in providing off-street facilities for fear the court will rule they are not within the jurisdiction of municipal government.

The burden may rest upon a city to show that such parking facilities are needed if such a case again goes to the Supreme Court, but what city would go to the expense of providing off-street parking facilities if they were not needed?

Frankly, we are inclined to believe that most cities in the state are just beginning to feel the first pinch of what will become a major problem in the years ahead. In the years ahead, as more and more motor vehicles are put in use, the demand for parking space is going to become more acute than it is today.

In our opinion, it is going to be the obligation of cities to provide necessary parking facilities just as they now provide sundry other services to their citizenry.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
STAND BY

Among the track repair gangs working on a railroad there is always one person whose only duty is to watch for approaching trains. He keeps a sharp lookout and when a train is approaching, blows a whistle. The men know that at the blowing of this whistle they are not only to get off all the tracks, while they are watching one train pass by, another may speed down upon them from the opposite direction. The whistle says, "Get off the tracks completely and stay off until the way is clear."

The railroads learned that it is good business as well as humanitarian to employ a man in every work gang whose sole duty is to watch for approaching danger.

We need men like that in the nation's capital and in the state capitals. We need them in every business to warn the enterpriser of dangers to his trade and profits. We need men like this in the pulpit, warning us not only on the basis of human experience but on the testimony of the Word of God that the wages of sin is death.

It is significant that the railroads take no chances in the face of danger. Workmen must leave all tracks and stand by. And those who would warn their fellow men must warn them not to take chances with any unnecessary dangers.

Gifts And Favors In Florida

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Federal authorities are conducting an investigation of expensive gifts and entertainment furnished to former members of the Civil Aeronautics Board by the Dade County (Miami) Port Authority at a time when that agency was seeking government funds for improvement of the international airport at the Florida resort. It obtained $5,000,000.

Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks ordered the inquiry, and Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr. has given him the use of FBI agents. It also is understood that the Hoover Commission for Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government has shown an interest in the revelations. It plans a report on methods for improving both the efficiency and the ethics of the numerous regulatory bodies at Washington.

FAVORS TO COMMISSION MEMBERS—Preliminary studies, including a survey by Fortune Magazine, indicate that too many members of these commissions are inclined to accept elaborate hospitality from the interests they are supposed to regulate. As a result, they become servants and advocates for the private concerns instead of looking to the interests of Uncle Sam.

In ranking the principal commissions on this basis, Fortune placed the Civil Aeronautics Commission and the Federal Power Commission at the bottom of its list. It ranked the Securities and Exchange as tops. It should be noted that all these independent bodies have been reorganized since the advent of the Eisenhower Administration.

GIFTS AND GUESTS—The two figures alleged to have accepted gifts and free lodging at several swanky Miami hotels are Delos W. Rentzel and Phillips Moore. Ironically, they enjoyed this free loading, according to the investigators, at the very time when the CAB was adopting a code of ethics, which said:

"It is particularly improper that persons interested in the business of the Board should provide unusual hospitality to the Board or its staff; nor should such apparent that each party is going to have to be on its good behavior during the next two years in order to win sufficient support for the next presidential election.

Although there are many people who see numerous handicaps in having the administration in control of one party and Congress in control of the other, we feel in this instance that Democratic control of Congress is going to mean more will be accomplished during the next two years than if the GOP had retained its congressional control.

President Eisenhower has been forced to lean on Democratic support in Congress to get any sort of program written into law. The many splits in the GOP brought about by the 1952 presidential battle are still apparent in the Republican delegation in Congress as in the remainder of the Republican party. Had the GOP remained in control of Congress, the President would have found his problems just as acute in the next two years as he has found them in the past.

With Congress under Democratic control, the White House will temper its legislative program to more nearly meet the standards of the Democrats in Congress. As a result Eisenhower, whom we believe must be classified as a liberal Republican, will be able to offer a more progressive program than he did during his first two years in office.

It will mean the nation will be better off in the long run. The tedious balance will keep both parties on their toes to make the best possible impression on the people during the coming two years.

Nash Set An Example For Western Counties

Whether anything comes of all the charges of illegal activities relative to the election in Western North Carolina, Nash County has made it plain it intends to crack down on individuals who usurp their right to vote.

True bills of indictment have been returned by a Nash County Grand Jury charging a man and his wife with being registered in two of that county's precincts, and voting in both precincts on several occasions since 1950.

While that action may seem mild compared with the charges of widespread corruption in connection with absentee ballots in some western counties, it is encouraging to see that more attention is being given enforcement of regulations which govern elections in the state.

There is certainly ample ground for the many demands from around the state that legal action be taken against individuals in the western counties who participated in the alleged buying and selling of ballots. Nash is apparently setting a good example for some of its sister counties in the west by making it apparent it is going to eliminate irregularities—even the minor ones. It is doing so even though Nash County has had no election troubles comparable to those which have arisen in other counties of the state.

When Pressure Is Great—

Somebody Told Me

A Mad Race In City Council

Last night the Greenville City Council almost came to blows. That's the headline; now let me give you the events leading up to the near-battle.

One month ago last night the Junior Chamber of Commerce voted to raise $5000 for the purchase of a rescue truck designed primarily with equipment to remove victims of wrecks.

The committee was formed: Ben Rouse, Dave Whichard, Patrolman Jim Boykin of the Highway Patrol, Dan Saled, and Dr. Warren Aldridge. Jim, Ben and Dave comprised the traveling team of the committee.

From Commissioner Ed Scheidt of the Department of Motor Vehicles in Raleigh they received a hearty endorsement and an offer to use the State Division of Purchase and Contract to get the best possible price on the equipment.

At the Department of Civil Defense they hit the jackpot. They received written assurance that CD would match their drive, dollar for dollar, up to a $3,000 expenditure on their part.

With $3,000 assured provided they could match it, the boys felt better. Pitt County kicked in their

$1,500 without hesitation. Farmville donated $250. Ayden was in the list for $250 and six smaller Pitt County towns are listed for $100 each.

Greenville was scheduled for $1,000. "The City Council is now in session," Ben said at the JC meeting, "and if we go up there in a body it might make the right kind of an impression on them."

The Board room was full of Jaycees; 28 if my count was correct. Ben made the standard presentation, showing pictures of victims pinned in wrecks, some of whom died before they could be removed because of a lack of the right kind of equipment.

When Ben finished Mayor Wheabee asked City Manager Jim Hughes if Greenville had the dough. "We do in the contingent fund."

That was when the fight almost started. All the councilmen tried to make the motion of approval at once; the four who lost ran a race to see who could second it.

Councilman Wesley Harvey asked one innocent question and was almost thrown out because he delayed the approval 30 seconds.

It was real fun! This is the first drive I ever heard of that the goal will have to be raised in order to take care of the donors. Only $250 more will make the $6,000, but it wouldn't do to leave the other six Pitt County towns out. After all, they want to feel right when they benefit from the service of the truck.

An important factor: There would be no truck if the Fire Department had not conceived the idea and agreed to accept the responsibility of operation. Patrolman Jim Boykin sold the Jaycees and the committee sold the others with Jim's help.

Jaycees who showed up for the City Council meeting were Alvin Taylor, Bill Corbett, Charlie Lewis, Jack Whichard, President Frank Dall, John Lautares, Paul Scott, Richard Briley, Roscoe King, Ashley Hudson, J. B. Smith, Charlie Hudson, Jim Sutton, Bill Hudson, Dr. Warren Aldridge, Frank Diener, Harry Douglass, Red Taylor, Clarence Johnson, Walter Whitehurst, Craven Hughes, Lyle Gnagey, Ben Rouse, Frank Strawn, Les Turnage, John Saled and H. B. Gaskin.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE CRYING TOWEL (Winston-Salem Journal)

If men want to live longer, they've got to learn to blow their tops regularly, like women do. One reason why women live longer than men is that women let off pressure, through tears and occasionally hysterics, according to Dr. William T. Sower of the United States Public Health Service.

Release from pent-up tensions has been advocated generally. Ulcers are caused sometimes by stifling the gorge that rises when the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune beset us. Maybe the reason why so few women, in comparison with men, get ulcers is that they blow off steam now and then.

If a man is disappointed, or thinks he's being put upon, or crossed in any way, he might try to reason the situation out with others. Or he may just say nothing and let the poisons of frustration eat him up. But with a woman it's different. She is able to cry and get away with it. She can go on a rampage—and be forgiven. She can nag.

The situation is deplorable. But what can be done about it? It isn't going to be easy to get men to take to crying. And many men don't want to make a habit of hysterics.

Perhaps the thing to do is organize men in citywide, countrywide, or neighborhood groups. They can meet together and tell one another all about their troubles. Build a modern wailing wall, use a tremendous crying towel.

That may not be the panacea to promote longevity among men. But at least it's a start in a direction.

Perhaps the thing to do is switch one's life goals now. Suppose you are the ambitious young man. Instead of worrying about selecting an ideal corporate wife, why not concentrate instead on becoming "the ideal corporate husband" yourself?

Here's what you do. Pick a

Around Capitol Square

N. C. Political Forecasts Proved Better Than Average

By LYNN NISBET
ACCURATE — The pollsters and dopesters who gave out with pre-election forecasts did better in North Carolina than in the country at large. Not counting the recognized extravagant claims of party managers and candidates, the unbiased forecasts were almost 100 per cent accurate.

The total vote was slightly less than the average of the estimates, but was in line with the conservative predictions. Results at State level were never in doubt, and the final tallies gave approximately the predicted ratio as between the major parties.

Effective results in the ninth and tenth congressional districts also were in keeping with nearly all impartial forecasts, although in both districts the spread was somewhat wider. In fact of claims by Republicans in the ninth and by Democrats in the tenth that upsets might be expected, majority of impartial observers had figured that incumbents would retain their seats in the Congress, but by narrow margins. Complete official count may change the figures, but cannot change the effective results. At the time this is written it looks like Democrat—Hugh Alexander held the ninth by about 7,000 and Republican Raper-Jonas held the tenth by approximately 9,000. That compares with margins of 4,000 in the ninth and 22,000 in the tenth two years ago. In other words, Democrats greatly increased their lead in the ninth and substantially reduced the Republican majority in the tenth.

Returns from county elections are not available at this time sufficiently to base a review, but piece-meal information indicates no more than the usual number of upsets or switches in court house and legislative personnel.

NATIONAL — Control of the Congress is still in doubt. Early returns indicate that neither party will have a "safe" working majority susceptible to party discipline, although it looks like the Democrats may organize both branches. National election results very clearly indicate that Eisenhower is still much stronger than the Republican party.

The appeal for "sending Ike a hand" was not effective in North Carolina, as proven by failure of the appeal to work in the ninth district and the lesser majority in the tenth. (Although percentage wise the Jonas margin this year is perhaps fully as high as it was two years ago—that being a personal tribute to the man.)

The fact that the ratio of State Governors was reversed, from 29 Republican and 19 Democrat to 29 Democrat and 19 Republican, in face of the narrow margins in both branches of the Congress, would seem to indicate that the voters generally prefer Democratic administrations but still like Ike.

SURPRISE — Folks around capitol square were surprised—shocked might be a more accurate word—at the overwhelming write-in majority given Strom Thurmond over the regular Democratic nominee Edgar Brown for the Senate in South Carolina. The folks hereabouts were prepared for a relatively close race, expected Brown to win but would not have been surprised if Thurmond had won by a few thousand.

and. The nearly two-to-one victory of Thurmond is attributed to two major factors. One is the personal hold which Governor James F. Byrnes has on his following in South Carolina.

Perhaps more important is the traditional resentment of South Carolinians against attempts of outsiders to influence or control their voting. They resented intervention by Stephen Mitchell, Democratic national chairman, almost as much as they did attempts of President Franklin Roosevelt, in the hey-day of his power, to "purge" Senator (Cotton Ed) Smith.

SIDE—ISSUES — By and large the voting Tuesday was along party lines. There were numerous side-issues of personalities and local interest, which influenced some votes, and contributed to the lively interest or general apathy on part of the citizens.

In the City of Greensboro there was a preferential referendum on the question of fluoridization of the municipal water supply. The people voted to keep fluoride out of the water.

Wilmington and New Hanover voters approved several local bond issues for improvements, turned down some others.

Lee and Wayne counties, perhaps others, faced the issue of changing from the present plan of electing all county commissioners every two years to staggered four year terms.

Other counties and cities had collateral local issues which directly or indirectly affected the turn out at the polls. A few days before the election there was some effort to inject the ABC liquor store issue in Alamance

Change In Thinking

By ELMER ROESSNER
Paradoxically, the boom in air conditioners is building a boom in electric-panel heating.

The sharp rise in the use of air conditioners has shifted the peak demand for electric current to summer. The nation used almost 56 per cent more electricity in August, 1953, than it did in the same month in 1949. And that has changed the thinking of the power companies.

Until recently, electric companies were unwilling to promote the use of electricity for home heating. They feared it would mean extensive capital investment in generators, transformers and lines, and that equipment would be taxed during the few cold months and be partially idle in warm months.

Now that air conditioners have increased demand for power in summer, the utilities are eager for something that will balance the load in winter and electric panels may be their answer. Utility companies may soon be promoting them as aggressively as manufacturers.

The glass heat panels are flush mounted or recessed into walls. A network of aluminum grids fused into quarter-inch thick glass raises its temperature to 240 degrees, but yet will not scorch the skin if accidentally touched. Each panel has its own thermostat.

The cost of installing a complete radiant glass heating system is considerably less than installing any other kind of modern system, regardless of fuel, according to Continental Radiant Glass Heating Corporation, one of the leading manufacturers. The cost of operation compares favorably with other heating systems as long as the cost of electricity is under 2 cents a kilowatt hour. The price is less in most sections of the country, though not in New York, Boston and Philadelphia. Other advantages claimed for radiant glass include absence of maintenance costs, ease of cleaning and savings in space.

PRIVATE WORKS ANSWER, FAIRLESS CONTENTS

The idea of Benjamin F. Fairless, U.S. Steel chairman, speaking out for free enterprise is scarcely new or unexpected. But in a recent speech, he made an interesting point:

Last year private industry invested nearly $28 billion in new plants and facilities, creating more than 2,000,000 jobs.

"Well," he said, "if the Federal government were to take from every taxpayer in the country every penny of his taxable income above $2,000 a year, it still wouldn't get the $28 billion."

Future Executives And Wives

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Some ambitious young men, anxious to get ahead in life, are afraid today to marry.

Why? Because they are afraid the romantic bride of their dreams may become a frowzy-haired nightmare who will later hamper the progress of their careers.

In picking executives many corporations weigh not only the kind of work a man does, but the kind of wife he goes home to. Will she be a credit to the firm, or a social liability? Does she have it in her to become what industrial leaders now look for in the mates of their potential executives — the "ideal corporate wife?"

"My girl suits me all right now," said a young bachelor. "But will she be able to grow up with me as I move ahead in the world? Will she, 25 years from now, be the kind of wife my corporation wants me to have?"

"The boss I have now thinks my girl is real cute. But what about when she's middle-aged? Will the boss I have then think she's a handicap to the firm?"

One can easily sympathize with this young man. The mere fact he is worried about the future shows he is serious-minded as well as ambitious. His problem is real. As any married man knows, it is hard enough to tell what a wife will be like 10 minutes from now, let alone 25 years.

What can this young go-getter do? Well, frankly, let's face it: It is impossible to marry a girl of 20 or 25 years and be certain that at 45 or 50 she will have matured into "the ideal corporate wife."

Corporations change, too, and how can we tell whether in the fast-paced world a quarter century from now the ideal corporate wife will look and act like Myrna Loy, Shirley Temple, Kate Smith or Marilyn Monroe?

Is there any solution then? Yes. One could wait until he had become an executive and then marry a woman pleasing to the chairman of the board. But most men don't want to postpone the pleasures of home cooking, etc., for 25 years.

An even better way is to switch one's life goals now. Suppose you are the ambitious young man. Instead of worrying about selecting an ideal corporate wife, why not concentrate instead on becoming "the ideal corporate husband" yourself?

Here's what you do. Pick a clean-cut, hard-working career girl with a good job and a big future with a growing corporation. Marry her. Then help her climb, step by step, to the top.

Here's how:

1. Keep your morale up by praising her at all times. Don't be a knocker. Even if she makes mistakes, tell her she's got the best businesswoman's head since Hetty Green.

2. Show an interest in her job, but don't tell her how to run it. Never gossip about her associates, and don't make her unhappy by hounding her if she doesn't get raises as often as you think her merit deserves.

3. If her job requires that she move to another city, don't cry. Chin up, boy. Just move with her.

4. Don't make scenes if she has to work late at the office, and don't get jealous if she has a male secretary. Send him a birthday card. Send him two, and make a real friend.

5. Avoid getting out of touch with things just because you spend most of your time at home watching television. Keep posted on baseball and politics and read good books, so that she'll be proud of the way you can hold up your end of the conversation at office gatherings.

6. Don't be penny wise and pound foolish about your clothing. Buy expensive suits. Remember, it is important to your wife's career that you look neat and well-dressed at all times.

7. Drink only to be social. Never show up drunk with a blonde at night clubs patronized by members of your wife's corporation. You'd be surprised how many $50,000-a-year tattletales there are in America.

8. When invited to the home of your wife's boss for dinner, remember they are looking you over to see if she married the right kind of guy. Be pleasant but reserved in a gentlemanly way. Don't try to tell the boss his business. Your wife probably does that to him all day long.

If you follow these simple basic rules you are bound to have a rich full existence. You will be known as "the ideal corporate husband." Your wife will be a wealthy corporation executive — and know in her heart she owes it all to you, the little man without who she'd have been just another cog in a big machine.

P.S. One final tip—don't forget early in your marriage to teach your wife to bring her paycheck home in her mouth. It's really for her own good.

Draw Attack In Ohio 'Sandwich' Legislators

By RICARDO J. BROWN
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"P.y them?" one Ohio Senate official roared. "Pay them? Why, the whole business is a blanket-blank nuisance!"

A House official looked puzzled. "Who are they?" he asked. "They are Ohio's 'sandwich' legislators, squeezed into short terms to fit the letter of the law. These short-termers fill out the tail end of the old term of state senators and representatives who resigned or died in office."

Their special election was held with the general election Tuesday. And their short-lived statesmanship may be almost as precedent-shattering as the fifth term of Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

Regular congressmen will take the oath of office the first Monday in January. That means the short-term legislators probably never will sit in the General Assembly unless a special session is called. At best they will serve about a month and a half compared with the regular two-year term.

Statehouse observers say the short-term legislator problem is unique, the first of its kind in the history of Ohio politics. Already Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill has been asked for an opinion on how much they should be paid. House Clerk Carl Guess requested the ruling. Legislators both Senate and House, receive $3,200 a year. O'Neill said the short-termers won't officially be in until they receive their election certificates and are sworn into office. He said getting the certificate takes about 10 days after election.

Brushed aside during the regular election, the short-term legislators have become a problem. Several state officials frankly admit they're baffled.

Senate Clerk Thomas E. Bateman said there were two vacancies in the Senate while House Clerk Carl Guess estimated about six in the House.

Besides Rose, who are the other short-termers? One state official said, "I don't know. Nobody's ever mentioned it."

Does this mean a special session may be called just to swear them in? Bateman doubted it, but said it's possible.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, Ohio's chief election official, says he's not even sure how many short-term legislators were elected. He plans to clear out that corner of his desk soon.

Why do people run for such uncelebrated jobs? One "sandwich" representative, Atty. E. M. (Manny) Rose, of Cleveland, who also ran for a regular term, said he bid for the short-term term to gain seniority for committee appointments.

He won the short term but didn't even come close in the regular balloting.

"As it turned out," he said wryly, "I didn't gain much."

The brief-term problem stemmed from a threatened lawsuit against Gov. Lausche. When Anthony Celebrezze resigned from the Ohio Senate to become mayor of Cleveland last year, some Cleveland residents demanded Lausche call a special election to fill the vacancy.

Lausche turned to the attorney general, who said the governor was compelled to fill the vacancy but could choose his own time.

Lausche then called for the special election at the same time as the general election. He said it would save taxpayers money.

Senate Clerk Thomas E. Bateman said there were two vacancies in the Senate while House Clerk Carl Guess estimated about six in the House.

Besides Rose, who are the other short-termers? One state official said, "I don't know. Nobody's ever mentioned it."

Hold Talks On Security Pact

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The United States is holding talks with Nationalist China with a view toward a security pact, diplomatic authorities said tonight.

The talks are being held by Asst. Secretary of State Walter Robertson and George Yeh, the Nationalist Chinese foreign minister currently in Washington. Robertson recently flew to Formosa to talk with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Diplomats said that the final decisions on the pact have not been made. They said that the Chinese Nationalist government has been without the advantage of a U.S. security guarantee and had sought such an arrangement for many months.

The U.S. supplies arms for the Nationalist forces on Formosa and the American 7th Fleet protects the island against the possibility of Communist invasion attempts.

At present the United States and the Nationalists have a "gentlemen's agreement" whereby the Nationalists will consult Washington before undertaking any action, even of a defensive nature against the Communist mainland.

Informants said that the proposed pact would continue this arrangement.

'BEST MEDICINE':—Former President Harry S. Truman holds up a newspaper headline proclaiming Democratic gains in Congress as he tells newsmen in Kansas City that election outcome is the "best medicine" he has had since a gall bladder operation in June. Truman said the election establishes a trend toward 1956 presidential race, and he added: "The public has had enough of . . . government by special interest." (AP Wirephoto).

BSU Will Show Movie On Bible

"Our Bible—How It Came to Us," a film in three parts will be shown at East Carolina College by the Baptist Student Union this month. Programs scheduled for November 8, 15, and 22 will be open to those who wish to see them.

The motion picture, a costly and elaborate production, was released recently by the American Bible Society. Central Press describes it by saying that "This film is undoubtedly the most authentic document ever developed about the Bible."

"Formation of the Bible," the first of the three parts, will be shown Monday, November 8, at 5:30 p.m. and again at 7 p.m. in the Y Hut on the college campus. "The Bible Spreads Across Europe" and "The Making of the English Bible," the other two parts, will be shown November 15 and 22, respectively, at the same hours and place mentioned above.

The film was made with a cast of 250 players. It traces the history and development of the Bible from the centuries before Christ to the present.

Uncover Bomb In Nick Of Time

DENVER (AP)—A homemade bomb of six sticks of dynamite was discovered at Pipefitters Union headquarters here last night only three minutes before it was set to go off.

Detective Capt. Clifford Stanley said the sputtering fuse was noticed on a window sill. The local business agent, Thomas E. Hamby, opened the window and cut the fuse, Stanley said. There were five others in the building.

Union officials said they knew of no one who had a grudge against the local.

Greenville And Goldsboro Teams Clash Here Tonight

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville's Phantoms and the Goldsboro Earthquakes tangle tonight at EOC stadium in one of the top non-conference games of the state. The Earthquakes are out to prove they can beat a AA team after all since Kingston dunked the Quakes in their other AA game.

The Phantoms and the Quakes have a long and colorful basketball series behind during the years in which the smaller Greenville school has more than held its own. Last season the G-men whipped the Earthquakes in two net games.

Many of the Goldsboro basketball players are on the football squad and are out for revenge. While the Goldsboro team lost its game against AA competition, the Greenville went up to Goldsboro's AAA league and whipped Wilson 6-0 in the season's opener.

Head Coach Bill Kittrell of the Phantoms was worried about the game yesterday. The Greenville leader thought his team had its worst practice of the season Wednesday afternoon and was thoroughly displeased.

Coach Kittrell also was in doubt about end Harold Edwards being able to play much. Edwards will not start but Coach Kittrell hopes he can use him in the pinches. Billy Johnson will be at Edwards' place at end. Fullback Billy Sermons is also on the injured list and may not be able to start. If Sermons can not start Coach Kittrell will go with Bob Howell at fullback and Jerry Drum at quarterback.

With the Goldsboro team so strong Coach Kittrell said his squad would have to play its best game of the year to win. The Greenville mentor commented, "Goldsboro is reported to have one of the best backfields in the state. We will have to stop that strong backfield if we are going to stay in the game."

The Greenville line-up will probably have Billy Johnson and Bobby Adams at ends, Tommy Smith and Howard King at tackles, Pete West and probably Angus Duff at guards, and Larry Powell at center. Drum, James Speight, Mitchell Johnson, and Howell will compose the backfield.

Coach Kittrell said he would probably start Angus Duff in Gene Hudson's place for the game. Duff has been coming around of late and Coach Kittrell is planning to give him his chance.

On defense the Greensies will send Tommy Norris, Charles Hollingsworth, and Ike Riddick into the line-up. Hollingsworth and Norris will be linebackers while Riddick will go in as defensive safety.

Game time at EOC stadium will be 8 o'clock.

BUC of the DAY

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

Meet Boyd Webb, 5 feet 11, 185-pound senior quarterback from Gastonia.

Boyd has shown streaks of greatness this season, having taken over duties relinquished by Dick Cherry's pre-season injury.

In East Carolina's opener against Norfolk Navy, he made big strides to fill-in for the renowned Little All-American. His brilliant impromptu performance personally sank the Navy. He tossed for two touchdowns, one an 87-yarder. His play created quite a stir around the league.

Boyd's chance for a classic season was snuffed abruptly the following weekend against West Chester. He suffered a badly bruised hip in the first half and missed the Bucs next two games with Lenior Rhyne and Catawba.

He managed to see only limited action against Elon.

He was unable to regain the sparkling flashes exhibited in the opener until Western Carolina came to town. Against the bewildered Catamounts, he passed for three touchdowns.

Aim To Protect Minor Leagues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Legislation aimed at aiding the ailing minor leagues will be considered Nov. 29-Dec. 3 at the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues meets in annual convention at Houston, Tex.

George M. Trautman, president of the association, today announced the convention would consider 23 amendments to the major league agreement, many of them mapped by joint committees from the big and little leags.

Among the amendments up for action are:

To allow major league teams to draft 3 players instead of 1 from each minor league club, but boosting the draft price to $15,000 for players from Class D through AAA and $20,000 for those in the Coast League.

To curtail all major league radio and telecasts beyond a 50-mile radius of the ball park, except unsponsored programs like the World Series and the All-Star game.

To require major league teams with working agreements to pay traveling and other expenses of its selectees during training seasons, and to assume a part of the manager's salary if they have a hand in his appointment.

To set a minimum of $5,000 for a Class B working agreement, $4,000 for Class C, and $3,000 for Class D with the major league club paying an additional $100 minimum for any player selected from the farm team.

To ban the signing of a college player after he has started his sophomore year, until he or his class have graduated, or he has reached age 21.

To move the recall date from July 31 up to June 30, to prevent late-season elevation of optioned players.

And to change the present league limit of 25 active and 15 optioned players to 23 active and 17 optionees, which would permit 32 "bench riders" from the majors to see action in the high minors.

All amendments passed by the minors will be submitted to the majors at their Dec. 6-8 convention in New York. Both conventions must approve the legislation for it to become part of baseball's code.

Turning Point In Football Season

By RIP WATSON
The Associated Press

College football turns the corner tomorrow into November, the traditional month for determining the bowl game teams, and in this whacky season the teams who can't go to the bowls will be stealing the headlines from those who can.

UCLA, for example, finds itself in a painful position. The nation's top-ranked team can add to its prestige by whacking Oregon, but if it does, it will go a long way toward boosting Southern California, UCLA's bitter cross-town rival into the Rose Bowl. UCLA is ineligible this year, but the No. 10 team Southern Cal. will be almost certain of the spot if the Trojans beat Stanford tomorrow.

Similarly, Oklahoma, the No. 3 team, is barred from another trip to Miami for the Orange Bowl this year, but the Sooners are the determining factor in the Bid Seven Conference. Oklahoma meets Iowa State, which doesn't figure to bother the Sooners tomorrow, but Nebraska and Missouri, the leading contenders at the moment, follow on the Oklahoma schedule.

And the University of Miami, barred from bowl activity by an NCAA ruling, can add to its No. 6 ranking by whacking off-beaten Auburn tomorrow and following that up with victories over Alabama and Florida. Both of the latter are in the running for the Southeastern Conference title, with designs on the Sugar or Cotton bowls.

Arkansas, the surprise team of 1954, will be going after its seventh consecutive victory against Rice, and another win by the fourth-ranked Porkers would just about wrap up the Southwest Conference title and an automatic berth in the Cotton Bowl. They'll be in the bowl for sure if Texas A&M should end its victory famine with an upset of Southern Methodist.

It's almost unheard of however, for the Southwest Conference race to be decided so early and nobody would be surprised if Rice upended Arkansas, thereby throwing the race into the usual mad scramble.

Purdue, No. 8, is the only other team in the top 10 with a game that has bowl significance. The Boiler-makers have only an outside chance of overhauling high-flying Ohio State in the Big Ten race. They won't have any chance at all if passer Len Dawson and runner Bill Murrakowski don't subdue Iowa, which is currently ranked 12th and anxious to get back in the select group.

Ohio State, ranked just behind UCLA in the poll can't afford to let down against Pittsburgh, which already has bounced two teams (Navy and West Virginia) right out of the top 10.

Tar Heels Put Stress On Defensive Strategy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The up-and-down University of North Carolina Tar Heels meet South Carolina tomorrow with the irrefutable knowledge drilled in them that opponents who can't score, can't win.

North Carolina Coach George Barclay doesn't claim to have originated the philosophy, brought home last week with the results of two Atlantic Coast Conference football games.

The Tar Heels lost to Tennessee, 26-20, at Knoxville. Barclay said later week defense was the prime reason for the defeat. Maryland, meanwhile scored a three-touchdown shutout over South Carolina, the first time in 42 games this had happened.

Taking his cue from this, Barclay has stressed defense the whole week. Should South Carolina win tomorrow it will be the first time in the 51-year history of the series that the Gamecocks have won two straight games. They won last year, 19-0.

The Gamecocks have what probably is one of the best backfields in the conference, topped by quarterback Mackie Prickett, the ACC total offense leader with 529 yards in 49 plays. Prickett also has passed for 354 yards, completing 39 of 65 attempts. Both teams ended their heavy work yesterday. Barclay looked for replacements for his injury-riddled team while South Carolina Coach Rex Enright announced that his top guard Frank Mincevich, would be ready to play tomorrow, bringing the Gamecocks to top strength.

There was some bad news for Maryland yesterday, which meant good news for North Carolina State which must face the Terps tomorrow. Terp Coach Jim Tatum said his ace fullback and top ball carrier, Dick Bielski, probably will not play because of flu. Bielski also is the leading scorer in the conference.

Tatum said George Albrecht will take Bielski's place. He switched halfback Tom Selep to run fullback. State stressed passing.

Connie Mack's Beloved A's Are Leaving Philly

By TOM BRADSHAW
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bustling big league baseball and aging, ailing Connie Mack were all but separated today after an up-and-down "marriage" that lasted more than half a century.

Mack was abed in his suburban apartment with a million memories and a check for $604,000 received yesterday from Chicago businessman Arnold Johnson for Mack's share of the stock in the A's franchise.

There remained to formalize the sale of the A's some paper work involving Mack's sons Roy and Earle Mack and the granting of approval by the league owners.

A league meeting was scheduled by President Will Harridge Monday morning at New York's Commodore Hotel. At that session the owners of the seven other clubs in the loop will be asked by the Mack family to okay the sale to Johnson 47-year-old former naval lieutenant commander and present coin-machine tycoon.

Johnson plans to pay Roy and Earle Mack each $450,000 for their stock and shift the Athletics to Kansas City, where plans were being pushed to remodel the ball park now occupied by the American Assn. Blues.

Harridge said in Chicago yesterday that Johnson's ownership of New York's Yankee Stadium "will be thoroughly explained" at Monday's meeting.

There have been reports of opposition to Johnson because of this tie-in.

Prior to the Oct. 12 meeting in Chicago at which the American League had approved the transfer of the A's to Kansas City, Johnson had given assurance he would take any steps the league wished in regard to Yankee Stadium.

Only one league owner, W. O. (Spike) Briggs of Detroit, has expressed opposition to the Johnson deal and he would have to be joined by two others to block the transaction.

Tommy Richardson, president of the Eastern League, who had made an unsuccessful bid for the A's last month, said last night he still is interested in a deal. He said he and a group of associates would be willing to pick up the Athletics losses through 1955 up to a maximum of $250,000 and then buy out the Macks.

Bucs Work Out In Florida Sunshine; 2 TD Underdogs

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. — Coaches Jack Boone and Jim Mallory and a contingent of 33 East Carolina football players arrived here yesterday afternoon.

After riding the train all night from Wilson, the coaches and players checked in at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel before holding an hour workout in preparation for Tampa University's highly touted Spartans Friday night.

Taking part in the workout, held in true Florida weather of around 80 degrees, were all the Bucs mid-season hurts. Eno Boado ran at his normal right half post, although Boone refused to say whether he'll start. Tom Allbrook has been replacing Boado.

The players went through their paces in fine fashion, appearing to be in good spirits. General squad feeling is that a win over the Cigar Bowl-bound Spartans will mean the difference between a fair season and a very poor one for the Pirates.

The Spartans, boasting a 4-1 record, are two touchdown favorites although their star-halfback, Fred Cicado, will miss this game with an injury.

Boone commented that the Pirates are in good physical shape. He also pointed out that the boys know how important this game is and will be out to give the Spartans a run for their money.

The game is being billed as one of the tops in the state and over 10,000 fans are expected to be on hand.

Baby Phantoms Lose By 14-6

Roanoke Rapids scored twice and held on from there to defeat the Greenville Baby Phantoms 14-6 yesterday in the final junior varsity game of the year for the Baby Phants.

The Roanoke squad scored twice on two long marches into Greenville territory with Carlton Brantley and Lee Thomas plunging for both scores from close up. Both extra points were good for Roanoke.

Jimmy Kelly, who alternated between end and fullback, set up the only Greenville score with a 60 yard run. Kelly scored from the three.

After that the Greensies could not move until the last few seconds of the ball game. Charles Smith and John Ed Arnold led a drive to the Roanoke one foot line but a penalty carried the ball back to the six and the G-men were stopped. Roanoke took over on downs with 10 seconds left to play.

Smith, Arnold, Kelly, and Charley Rumley led the Greenville offense. Coaches Bo Farley and Fred Soles saw their team drop its third game of the year against two wins.

GROWING BOY

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Roland Perdue, tackle on the University of North Carolina grid squad, is a growing boy. Last year his playing weight was 195 pounds. This season the husky youth from College Park, Ga., is listed at 224.

Delay Filing Of Baseball Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys for a Piedmont League owner have delayed indefinitely the filing of a suit seeking millions in damages for alleged "invasion" of minor league territory by radio and TV accounts of major league baseball games.

James P. McGranery, lawyer for Frank Lawrence who owns the Portsmouth, Va., club in the Piedmont circuit said yesterday he was not yet ready to act. McGranery said the suit will be filed, but he refused to indicate when.

Lawrence has said he will seek damages from the 16 major league clubs and Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick. Previously, Lawrence had said the suit would be entered by Nov. 1.

Hero's Welcome For Antonelli By Home Town

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Johnny Antonelli, New York Giants south-paw pitching ace, received a hero's welcome and a new auto (Buick) from his hometown fans here yesterday.

Antonelli, his wife, Rosemarie, and 14-month-old daughter, Lisa, came here from their Lexington, Mass., home for the "Johnny Antonelli Day" celebration which began with a parade in the morning and ended with a banquet at night.

The 24-year-old World Series star was carried to City Hall in a mile-long motorcade, was serenaded by his old high school's band, and was presented a foot-long key to the city by Mayor Samuel Dicker.

Antonelli responded to the tributes with some good news for his local fans.

"My wife and I have been talking it over and we have decided to move back to Rochester in the very near future," he said.

The Splendor of Self-Control

Scripture—Proverbs 14; 15: 1-5; 16; 20; 23: 29-33; 25.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL IN THE LAST 3,000 years, since the Proverbs were written, everything has changed except man. Our vocabulary has changed, so have our means of travel, the manner of earning our living—everything but man's nature. That remains the same. We sin in the same manner in which those men of old erred; and we find that the same laws of right living, acting and thinking that brought them happiness bring the same to us.

In the lesson assigned to us today we are shown the characteristics of the wise man contrasted with those of the foolish man.

"He that is slow to wrath is of great understanding; but he that is hasty of spirit exalteth folly."

"A soft answer turneth away wrath; but grievous words stir up anger. The tongue of the wise useth knowledge aright, but the mouth of fools poureth out foolishness.

"The eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding the evil and the good."

No more wholesome training can a child have than to impress upon him the rightness of these words. Old and young alike can show their wisdom if, in the middle of a disagreement that may have unpleasant consequences if everyone loses temper, we re-arise, and brings peace to the house in which there could be strife.

Chapter 20 begins with these words: "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

Wine and other strong drinks are indeed "mockers," tempting the youth to his (or her) undoing, leading possibly to shameful acts and bringing disaster to themselves and great grief to family and friends.

"Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who had contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes?"

"They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine."

"Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

"Yes, thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea, or as he that lieth upon the top of a mast."

"They have stricken me, shalt thou say, and I was not sick; they have beaten me, and I felt it not; when shall I awake? I will seek it yet again."

Drunkenness in Solomon's day was as prevalent as it is now.

MEMORY VERSE

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."—Proverbs 16:32.

member that a "soft answer turneth away wrath" and may avert a fight that everyone will regret later.

The hot-tempered, selfish person who wants always to prove his way is right even if he has to antagonize others, is the fool. His is the mouth "that poureth out foolishness."

In chapter 16 the heart, spirit and soul of man are the subject. Every word of this chapter could be the subject of a lesson, if we had but space to comment on it. "What seems the 'key verse' is the one we must concentrate on. It is: 'He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city.'"

Considering generals and their soldiers are given much public acclaim. They ride in triumph down our streets to the applause of the populace. But the person that "ruleth his spirit" is even more a hero than the conquerors of war. Ask the children if they know of a person close to them who never loses his temper; who uses the "soft answer" when quarrels

Strong drink makes a person see strange things; makes him utter foolish things—things that, in his sober moments he never would talk about. He may reveal secrets that he should never even whisper—secrets that may mean life or death, or shame and disgrace to some, if he has a position of trust and confidence. Thousands of accidents have occurred and many innocent lives lost because men drink to excess.

I cannot help quoting these words from the 16th chapter: "Commit thy works unto the Lord, and thy thoughts shall be established. . . . By mercy and truth iniquity is purged; and by the fear of the Lord men depart from evil."

"He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down, and without walls." Can you picture such a city—nothing but ruins left? Alas, we have all seen men who resembled such a ruin. If we can only learn to rule our own spirits, with help from our Father God and Jesus His Son, we may achieve it, difficult as the task seems.

Won Election 'The Hard Way'

GALENA, Ill.—Mrs. Emma Grebner, 46, wanted her husband's job as sheriff of Jo Davies County and she won it the hard way. She was defeated for the Republican nomination for the post by Percy Hutchinson. But in Tuesday's election, running as an Independent, she beat Hutchinson by 39 votes and was far ahead of the Democratic candidate. Mrs. Grebner, who is chief deputy sheriff, will take over the post held by her husband, who was ineligible to succeed himself.

Vote Tally Still Below '50 Mark

WASHINGTON—The total vote in Tuesday's elections already has been tabulated at 40,355,345 with many precincts still to be counted. The incomplete total as of last night stood well below the 1950 record of 42,324,232. It also was far short of forecasts that the vote this year would reach 45,115,000. The final count, however, still could top the 1950 mark. Totals tabulated for comparison with the vote in the last mid-term election four years ago represented the highest vote in each state, whether for senator, governor or combined House ballots.

Car Stopped At Police Station

LOS ANGELES—Mrs. Phoebe Londelius' brakes went out coming down 1st Street hill, but she stopped her car by aiming it at the handiest object. It happened to be the Central Police Station. Mrs. Londelius honked her horn and pedestrians scattered like geese—all except Mrs. Louise Alarcon, who suffered an arm injury in the mishap yesterday. The driver was unhurt. Self service dining cars have been placed in operation on British railways.

Tenth Fireman Dies Of Injuries

PHILADELPHIA—A 10th fireman has died as the result of injuries suffered in the explosion of a tank containing a textile solvent. Bernard Junod, 32, who died yesterday had been under treatment for inhalation of fumes released in the explosion Oct. 28. City chemists found that one of several gases discharged was phosgene, used in gas attacks during World War I. Three Fire Department officials died at the scene, the Charles W. Berg Chemical Co. The others died subsequently. The first successful beet sugar factory in the United States was in 1879 in California.

Tears for the Bride

CHAPTER THIRTY FIVE
 "POOR Earl," I said sadly. "Never mind him," Jake Fortune said bitterly.

"He's not such a bad guy," I said gently. "He tried to protect you and your daughter, whom he madly loves. He had a problem, and he wasn't talking, not until he knew the score. When Eileen heard me accuse him of trying to kill Ralph, she believed me, thought he had really done it—for her. That almost drove Earl crazy, trying to figure it out. For all he knew, Eileen might have been mixed up in it, too. He—"

"No," Jake Fortune said harshly. "Earl knew the score. Right after I saw you carry Ralph away, I guessed that he was still alive, and I began to run. I met Earl, and I lost my head, and told him what I'd had to do—because he wouldn't loan me the money. I told him that I'd swear I'd seen him shoot Ralph, out of jealousy, and because he wanted Eileen. The whole country knows that she jilted him for Ralph. I told him that you might come snooping around, and to watch the ravine—I didn't want to take a chance on being seen there. Then I left him got a rifle, and waited behind a rail fence out back where I could watch the ravine. At noon you showed up, began your poking around, and I took a shot at you."

I said, "And Rex Bishop, fixing a fence in the bottom, saw you shoot at me, and he came up to you and asked questions—and you shot him."

"I never saw the old man. I was watching you. He came walking fast up along the fence, and he was mad. He knew I'd shot at you, because he told me he'd been watching all along. He began to shout at me, and he pointed at the ravine—and I always liked old Rex, but I had to shoot him, to keep him quiet."

I shivered, thinking of all the things that made a person kill, and I said "Jake, there's a woman, I suppose?"

His heavy mouth went loose, and he gave me a boastful grin. "Two women, and I'm fifty-six years old." He leered at me lewdly. "A blonde in Cleveland, and a brunette in Toledo. They cost me a lot of money."

"The bet," I said. "When did you get the idea about Judy Kirkland? When I told you in Dan's Place that she did not want to face Ralph's folks?"

"That gave me the idea," he admitted, smiling at me. "There was no harm in trying. I went out to her place. The lights were on, and it was wide open. I found her upstairs on the bed, asleep. I locked the windows, rigged a pencil with a cord tied to it, and stuck it in the key. I read it some place, and it worked."

"It's an old trick," I said. "You ran the cord from the pencil under the door, turned the key until the bolt was almost ready to click shut, closed the door and pulled the cord. The pencil acted as a lever and flipped the key over, locking the door from the inside. The pencil fell to the floor, and you pulled it out under the door. I saw the yellow speck on the key last night, but I didn't tumble until now that it was part from one of your pencils. You couldn't be certain of what Earl Seltman would do, so you tried to frame Judy, too."

He tossed the pencil he'd been holding across the table. "Maybe that's the one I used," he said.

"There'll be dents in it, from the pressure on the key," I said.

"Why don't you look at it and see?" he invited.

I let the pencil lay and watched him. "And then you typed the suicide note on Judy's typewriter."

"With one finger."

I thought of old Rex Bishop and of Judy, too. She would have died if I hadn't found her as I did. Maybe, for me, in the final scoring, the one life would cancel out the other. I hoped so, and I said, "You followed me to Dan's Place, knowing that I was looking for Earl Seltman, because I'd been to his house. You went in ahead of me, warned Earl that I was hunting for him. He ducked out the back door, after telling his poker pals that I was a pesky insurance salesman, and to cover for he was already leery of me because I'd slapped him around a little, and he didn't know what you were up to. You leery of me, because I'd slapped him around a little, and he didn't know what you were up to. You knew that I would guess that Earl had scooted out the back door, that I would come out that way, too, and you waited behind the can in the alley, and—" I stopped, remembering the sound of the bullets.

"I'm a rotten shot," he said.

"Always have been."

"You missed me three times," I said.

"I won't miss now."

The fear returned, and I had a wild desire to jump up and run. But with the fear there was the rage suddenly flaming, and at the same time another part of my brain cautioned me to be crafty, to induce him to delay the moment when he would decide to pull the trigger of the gun I knew now he held beneath the table. "It won't work," I heard my voice saying. "They'll get you, Jake."

"Earl's car is out in back," he said. "The keys are in it and the tank is full. I checked, before I came in. The tires on my car are bad, but in Earl's car I can get a long way, maybe to Mexico. I've still got a couple of thousand in cash from the Cleveland cattle deal." He paused and said in a whisper, "Buck up, Bennett. His teeth showed between his lips. "You can only die once."

"Don't do it, Jake," I screamed. Violently I pushed against the table, and my chair went backward. The kitchen roared with the blast of his gun. It was as if a baseball had been thrown, quite hard, against my right side above the belt. The impact made me gasp and I slammed on my back on the kitchen floor. My legs felt dead, but there was no pain.

Jake Fortune was on the floor, too, twisted sideways, the table on top of him. I clawed the 38 from my overcoat pocket, pushed myself to one elbow, tried to steady the table, and he fired as he rolled the bullet splintering the wooden cabinet beside my head. I fired, my wrist wobbling, and I knew that I had missed. A flower pot on the window sill behind him flew to bits. He pushed himself upward, swaying on his knees. I had plenty of time to aim carefully. The kitchen seemed to jump with the muzzle blast and a little black hole appeared in Jake Fortune's shirt over his right shoulder. The impact rocked him, and his gun arm dangled limply.

"All right, Jake," I said. "You're done."

Grimacing he grasped his right wrist with his left hand and he brought the gun up and around. I yelled, "No!" but he swung the gun toward me.

There was only a split second of time left, and I didn't have any choice. I shot him in the face.

I made it to the telephone and pulled the receiver toward me and asked for Sheriff Morrissey. Then I passed out on the floor.

Close beside me a voice said, "Hello, Jim."

Europeans See Isolation Setback

LONDON (AP)—West European editors interpreted the American election results today as a setback for Republican isolationists and the followers of Sen. McCarthy but they assured their readers that President Eisenhower's personal prestige remained undiminished.

There was general agreement that the Democratic gains in Congress would bring no startling shifts in U.S. foreign policy.

A few papers thought that on domestic issues Eisenhower will find as much cooperation from the Democrats as he has had from members of his own Republican party during the last two years.

London's Liberal News Chronicle said: "There has been no sign of any marked reaction against American internationalism, and the worst excesses of anti-Communist fever seem to be passing."

The independent London Times commented: "Happily for America's allies, foreign policy which played only a marginal part in the campaign, appears increasingly to be left outside the party battle."

Stockholm newspapers agreed that Eisenhower's prestige saved the Republicans from a more serious defeat. The conservative Svenska Dagbladet regretted that "some of the best men of the Republican party's moderate wing were defeated."

Oslo newspapers said a Congress dominated by Democrats would support more willingly the President's basic program than one controlled by right-wing Republicans.

Oslo, Norway, claims to be the smallest city in the world served by a subway, says the National Geographic Society.

BETTER STAY HOME

In 1953, she reports, only 960 persons were killed by cars turning left while 2,200 were killed by those turning right.

But for middle-of-the-roadsters she has this solemn fact: over 30,000 were killed by cars going straight ahead.

Freer Spending Expected By New Congress In Coming Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen expect the new Congress to be a little more free spending than the last — and a little more inclined to give the economy a nudge.

But they also note that conservatives for the most part will still be in control — the party name of the committee chairmen will be changed, but the character of most of the chairmanships won't change much.

And the other thing that businessmen note in the election results is that the political nature of the nation seems to be just about as much in balance as the state of the economy at the moment.

Stability always encourages confidence in business. And the election hasn't upset this confidence.

Some segments of business however, look for a change in their fortunes.

Utility executives feel that a Democratic Congress may be more public-power minded than the outgoing Congress.

Manufacturers of hard goods used by the military see a chance that the new Congress may appropriate larger sums to be spent for defense.

Exporters and importers expect that the Democratic Congress will give friendlier attention to President Eisenhower's proposals to liberalize foreign trade than did the 83rd Congress.

Domestic manufacturers who have been urging more protection for their products feel that higher tariffs are less likely now, while the move to lower tariff barriers may have picked up some more friends on Capitol Hill.

Business in general will watch most closely any trend of the Democratic Congress to appropriate more freely.

It is sure to have some chances offered to it. The President is expected to advocate a start on his proposed big federal highway building program.

A treasury deficit — certain anyway — won't seem as frightening to Democrats. And deficit spending always has an inflationary nudge.

Some Democrats who have been critical of cutbacks in defense spending may seek higher appropriations next year. The administration already has stepped up orders for armament this fall as part of its nudge to the economy. A freer-spending Congress could give this nudge considerable momentum.

Another result of the election was the approval by the voters of various new bond issues by state and local governments. More than one billion dollars will be spent on projects around the country, another assist to the already prosperous construction industry.

And if businessmen are right in their first sizing up of the situation — that conservatives will still be in charge of most congressional committees — their plans for continued spending on new plant and equipment will go forward.

Plans now call for such spending to be only slightly lower next year than this. The peak was passed some time ago. But this year industry will spend nearly 22 billion dollars for expansion and modernization, in spite of the mild recession in production and trade.

Management has been building for the future growth of the nation — a growth it expects because it has full confidence in this nation's economy and its way of doing business and governing itself.

Voters Followed Most Of Advice

FARMINGTON, Mo. (AP)—Voters followed Jess Stewart's editorial advice—with one exception. The exception was Jess Stewart. Stewart, editor of the weekly Farmington Press, yesterday was re-elected St. Francois County circuit clerk despite his editorial campaign for his own defeat.

Voters, however, heeded his advice to oust all other incumbents in the county—10 Republicans and 1 Democrat went out of office.

Stewart, a Democrat, had urged the people to support his Republican opponent and criticized himself for dividing his time between the county office and his newspaper.

Record Number Of Women Will Be In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—There will be a record number of women in the new Congress.

One woman senator and 11 representatives ran for re-election and won. In addition, four new women members, all Democrats, were elected.

A 17th woman, Mrs. Joseph F. Fanning, a Republican, was elected to Hawaii's nonvoting seat in the House.

The previous record of 14 women was set in the present Congress.

Mrs. George P. Abel, Republican, won a two-month term in the present Senate to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Dwight P. Griswold. She was not a candidate for a seat in the new Congress but, if certified in time, will sit in the session convening next Monday to consider censure of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.). She succeeds another woman Republican, Mrs. Eve Bowring, who had been appointed but did not seek election.

The lineup of those elected includes Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine), re-elected in September, and 6 Republicans and 9 Democrats in the House in addition to Mrs. Fanning. All the new members are Democrats.

The newcomers:

Mrs. Iris Blitch, of Homerville, Ga., only two-term woman member of Georgia's State Legislature and wife of the owner-manager of a small drugstore. They have two children. She was unopposed in the general election.

Mrs. Martha W. Griffiths, of Detroit, friend and former law partner, along with her husband, of Michigan's Gov. G. Mennen Williams, and a member of the State Legislature from 1949 to 1952. Now judge of Detroit's Recorder's Court, she ousted Republican incumbent Rep. Charles G. Oakman.

Mrs. Dora Knutson, of Oklee, Minn., former high school teacher and state legislator who defeated Republican Rep. Harold Hagen, a veteran of six terms. She is the wife of a hotel owner and mother of a 14-year-old boy.

Mrs. Edith Green, of Portland, Ore., former schoolteacher. Married and the mother of two sons, she defeated Republican Tom Lawson McCall for the seat of Rep. Homer D. Angell, Republican.

The winners' list is topped by Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass.), dean of women legislators, who won re-election to her 16th term. She had no opposition. Only nine men in the House served longer than she.

Also unopposed for re-election was Rep. Katharine St. George (R-NY), who will begin her fifth term.

Others who won re-election include:

Republicans: Representatives Marguerite Church (Ill.), Cecil Harden (Ind.), Ruth Thompson (Mich.) and Frances Bolton (Ohio).

Democrats: Representatives Gracie Post (Idaho), Vera Buchanan (Pa.), Maude Kee (WVa.), Leonore Sullivan (Mo.) and Edna Kelly (NY).

Council . . .

Both Hughes and Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs stated that a conventional type stop light which would remain green on Fifth Street for one minute would snarl traffic on the busy thoroughfare. Hughes said he had asked the college to participate in the cost of the project and they had said they could not.

In acting on the matter the council requested that the chief of police and the city manager make a survey at the entrance to determine how many cars leave the entrance each day.
Paving and Curb and Gutter Bids
The city manager also reported that a low bid of $1.45 per foot had been received from Clark Construction Company for curb and gutter in addition he reported that a bid of $8.00 per square yard for paving had been received for paving. However, he reported that White Construction Company had agreed to do the paving work at a lower price provided their asphalt plant is still located in Greenville when the work is done. If their plant is not located here at the time, Hughes said, their price will be $9.50 per square yard.

The city manager also reported that only about 62 percent of the property owners are paid up so far on their share of the paving projects. He said only one street has paid up 100 percent so far.
The council set a special session for November 15 for awarding the bids to give property owners time to pay their share. Hughes had announced earlier that the bids cannot be let until the money is collected.

Hughes reported that one of the police desk clerks had resigned and Chief of Police Gibbs had requested that the money used for that position be used to hire three women police guards to be stationed at school crossings. He said that the salaries for the three part-time school guards would be approximately the same as that paid to the desk clerk. A uniformed officer will serve on the desk at the police station, Hughes noted.

The council unanimously approved the plan.
The council approved a request for a taxi permit for Edward Kenneth Bought.

They were given copies of a proposed charter revision to study. The matter will be discussed at the next regular council meeting. The Greenville Garden Club asked to sell shrubbery on November 9 without paying city tax and approval was granted.
The council also voted to install drainage in about 300 feet of ditch on the Tucker property outside the city limits. The ditch ties in with the city drainage system and Lee was asked to place a letter in the city files pointing out that it is legal for the city to do the work outside the city limits. Lee had declared it would be legal as long as it tied in with the city's drainage system.

Councilman Harvey brought the proposed project to the attention of the board. It was pointed out that Tucker had asked that the drainage line be installed.

Also, Harvey reported that Tucker and Carolina Dairies had offered to give a 50-foot right-of-way through their property for a road connecting Hillsdale with the Hooker Road provided the city would open the road. Lee told the council that the city would not have the legal right to open the road and no action was taken.

A suit against the city for injuries to Mrs. Mary Sheppard Edwards on November 3, 1952 was turned over to the insurance carriers by the board. Whedbee pointed out that the accident occurred before the present body took office.

Finally Whedbee was authorized to sign an agreement with the Norfolk Southern Railroad concerning a temporary road crossing over the company's tracks leading to the new school near Elmhurst.

Praises Precinct Officials
Elections Board Chairman Gilbert Peel had high praises for the county's precinct officials as did the candidates in Tuesday's elections. "There is not a finer group of precinct officials in the state of North Carolina than the poll holders of Pitt County," Peel declared. He said precinct officials followed the election law to the letter in Tuesday's balloting and handling of the election.

The precinct officials too seemed pleased with the smoothness with which Tuesday's election went off; and they were likewise conscious of the long tedious hours of work they had put into the election. One commented, "I wonder if the voters really appreciate the amount of work precinct officials put into an election like this?"

Jaycees Reveal Yuletide Plans, Truck Progress

Greenville Jaycees last night announced plans for their Christmas activities which will include a light bulb sale to raise funds with which to provide Christmas baskets for needy families.

Harry Douglas, chairman of the Christmas activities committee outlined the plans for the club.

A report from the rescue truck committee was made by Ben L. Rouse who informed the club the Pitt County Commissioners have agreed to appropriate $1,500 toward the purchase of the truck and the town of Farmville has appropriated $250 for the purchase of the truck. Rouse said the Jaycee committee appointed to work on the project is seeking $3,000 from local government units in Pitt County, and believes matching funds will be available from state Civil Defense for purchasing and equipping a rescue truck for the county. Plans call for the truck to be stationed in Greenville and manned by the local fire department, but it will be available for rescue work throughout the county.

J. B. Smith, Jr. reported on the Jaycee district meeting held recently in Washington which was attended by 16 members of the local club. He also called attention to the state quarterly board meeting which will be held in High Point November 20 and 21.

It was also reported to the club that efforts are being made by the local Jaycees to organize a Junior Chamber of Commerce in Ayden.

Phil Goodson, Jr. reported the Voice of Democracy contest, sponsored annually by the local club will be held on December 1. Nick Simonovich was a guest of the club at the meeting last night.
