First N.C. Governor To Die In Office Since 1891 Umstead Funeral Tuesday

RALEIGH (AP)—Luther H. Hodges, 56, who was elected lieutenant governor in 1952 in his first political venture, will become North Carolina's governor tomorrow succeeding William B. Umstead who died yesterday.

Hodges, a former vice president of Marshall Field Co., will be sworn in at 4 p.m. by Chief Justice M. V. Barnhill of the State Supreme Court.

Umstead, 59, had been in poor health since suffering a heart attack on Jan. 8, 1953, two days after his inauguration as governor. He was readmitted to Watta Hospital in Durham Thursday with a severe cold.

His wife and 12-year-old daughter, Merle Bradley, were at the bedside when death came at 9:10 a.m. Death was due to congestive heart failure and bronchial pneumonia.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 a.m. at the Trinity Methodist Church in Durham. Burial will be in the Mount Tabor Church Cemetery at Bahama, a small community near Durham.

Umstead was the first North Carolina governor to die in office since 1891 when Gov. David G. Fowle was succeeded by Lt. Gov. Thomas M. Hill.

People In All Walks Of Life Voice Regrets In Umstead Death President Also Sends Condolences

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The death yesterday of North Carolina Gov. William B. Umstead brought words of sympathy from the President of the United States and others in all walks of life.

The popular governor, sick during most of his tenure in office, passed away in Watta Hospital in Durham. Doctors said he suffered heart trouble and pneumonia.

President Eisenhower sent a personal telegram of sympathy to Mrs. Umstead. In a public statement the President said, "The people of the state of North Carolina have lost an experienced and devoted public servant in the passing of Gov. William B. Umstead.

As a representative, then senator, and finally chief executive, Gov. Umstead served his state with integrity and distinction.

"His passing is a loss not only to North Carolina but to the nation," the President had met Umstead several times the last time a few months ago when Umstead accompanied a delegation to ask Eisenhower to speak in Charlotte.

Dr. William P. Holt, a retired Erwin physician, attended Gov. Umstead's mother at his birth in rural Durham County. Dr. Holt, now 85, said, "Bill was a great man. He was a good boy, a good man, and a great governor. His death came as a great personal blow to me. Nobody thought more of him than I did."

Umstead succeeded as governor, said, "He made a wonderful effort to do his job and perhaps he overextended himself on it. His loss will be felt over the state."

Gov. Thomas B. Stanley of Virginia declared that "both North Carolina and the nation have lost one of their outstanding citizens. He enjoyed the respect and esteem of his fellow governors throughout the country and we shall greatly miss him."

Members of the state's congressional delegation said they were shocked. U. S. Rep. Hugh Q. Alexander said, "North Carolina certainly has lost one of its best loved and most distinguished citizens. Bill Umstead probably rendered as much public service as any of our distinguished men and was as well loved by any person in public life."

U. S. Rep. F. Eriel Carlyle said, "I don't think there is any question but what he entered the governor's office as well equipped as any governor we've had. He had the greatest desire to fill that office to his utmost ability. He was extremely popular with the congressional delegation in Washington. He was always sincere and dependable. North Carolina has lost one of its greatest statesmen."

U. S. Rep. Graham A. Barden declared, "Umstead made a great contribution toward establishing and reinforcing integrity in government. I was in college with him; I served with him in the U.S. House of Representatives, and was in Congress when he was in the U.S. Senate. I have never known a finer type of public servant."

U. S. Rep. Herbert C. Bonner said, "He was an outstanding statesman with a deep interest in the general welfare of North Carolina and the nation."

"He made a great contribution to the progress and welfare of his state and nation," U. S. Rep. Harold D. Cooley said. "His death is a tragic loss."

U. S. Rep. L. H. Fountain said, "I was terribly shocked at the news. We've lost a great leader and friend of North Carolina. Umstead was a man whose devotion to duty exceeded his love of his own life."

Pageant Marked Dramatic Appeal

"Good health will aid in bringing peace and security to the world" was the central theme of the worship service for World Community Day observed Friday night at the Eighth Street Christian Church.

A dramatic appeal from the World Health organization, an agency of the United Nations, was contained in the pageant, "The Light from the Lamp." The four narrators for the play, which consisted of pantomimes, were Faye Sermons as the grandmother; Mary Pendergraft as the mother, Ann Mayo as the public health nurse; and Florence Baker as the health visitor.

Disease and suffering among the children of the world was portrayed by Petrice Brown, Joy and Lynn Sermons, Ruth Cotten Clark and Brenda Bowden.

The World Health organization was represented by a lamp, and light from it on the form of health aids was carried by church women to the suffering persons of the world.

Offering and material gifts of clothing and household linens were dedicated to a continuance of program building to meet lasting peace, for emergency relief needs and to support the work with refugees carried on by the World Council of Churches. World Community Day is sponsored annually by the Greenville Council of Church Women. Mrs. Bill Sermons, program chairman, was the leader at last night's meeting.

Club officers for the coming year will be elected at tomorrow night's meeting.

Nine Attended BPW Gathering

Nine local Business and Professional Women attended the meeting of the North Carolina B and P W mid-year council which met in Statesville this week end.

Representing the local club were Miss Julia Fisher, president; Mrs. Ruel Tyson, Mrs. Clem Garner, Mrs. Bertha Sutton, Mrs. Ruth Peterson, Miss Mattie Hobbs, Mrs. Katharine Walsh, Miss Lucille Rice and Miss Evelyn Beasley.

Among the activities included in the session were workshops, a parliamentary procedure class, a Board of Directors meeting, clinics and conferences on membership, the loan fund and the "Tar Heel Woman" club magazine, and an informal party. The group also heard a panel discussion "What's My Federation?"

The Statesville club was hostess at a banquet at which Mrs. Grace Taylor Rodenbough, Stokes County representative to the North Carolina General Assembly, spoke on the council's theme, "Able, Alert, and Active." The group also heard a message by Mrs. Cleo B. Hobbs of Warsaw.

Mr. Butler Speaker For Round Table

Mrs. C. T. Munford was the gracious hostess to the Round Table Club Tuesday, November 2.

The business of the club was presided over by the president, Mrs. H. H. Duncan. The books were exchanged and the program was turned over to Mrs. Browning who presented Mr. James Butler, East Carolina College Alumni Secretary.

Mr. Butler's topic was "The Oddities of North Carolina." Since there are few oddities in North Carolina he gave a very splendid discussion of the interesting things that are native to this state.

The hobby for the afternoon was the Home Recipes collected by Mrs. Royce Hunsucker. She was particularly proud of the Fruit Salad recipe of the late Mrs. S. J. Everett.

Mrs. Munford served a delicious salad course with coffee. She was assisted in serving by her guests, Mrs. Percy Wells, Mrs. F. S. Corbett, Mrs. H. T. Smith and Miss Mary Thomas Smith.

A gracious hostess, a good speaker and congenial friends made this a particularly happy afternoon.

Asks Damages After Two Years

Mary Shepard Edwards, Greenville, filed a case in Pitt County Superior Court Clerk's office on Monday, November 1, charging the City of Greenville with negligence in not repairing a hole near the curb on the west side of Fourth Street. She states in her complaint that her left arm was broken in two places, her elbow dislocated, and asks the court for a $15,000 settlement.

The accident occurred on November 3, 1952.

Name Board To Investigate Fees

DARIEN, Conn. (AP) — The Bald Head Club of America yesterday named a committee to investigate fees charged by barbers.

Members attending the biennial meeting here said barbers should charge by the hair — not by the head.

Dr. Larry Eckles To Address Faculty Club On Tuesday Evening

Dr. Larry Eckles of the East Carolina College department of English will speak at the Faculty Lecture Club of the college Tuesday night of this week on the subject "An Idealist Looks at Modern Existentialism." The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Flanagan building and is open to the public.

Dr. Eckles joined the faculty of the college in September. He is a graduate of Cleveland College in Ohio and of Western Reserve University. He holds the doctorate from the University of Paris. Before coming to Greenville, he served for four years in the army. His experience as a teacher includes service at South Dakota State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts.

At present Dr. Eckles is director of East Carolina's radio committee and is in charge of arranging programs broadcast over a number of stations in the eastern section of the state.

Resisted Effort Of Holdup Man

BALTIMORE (AP) — Taxicab driver Melvin Benton not only resisted a holdup here last night but he also wound up with a tweed overcoat left by the man who tried to rob him.

Police said Benton reported he yelled and kicked a passenger beside him when the other passenger in the cab seized him from behind.

Both Negro passengers ran. The man who had been in the back seat left his overcoat behind.

Let Us Not Mourn, But Be Grateful

To hundreds of people he was "Bill", and they'll miss him with a sense of personal loss. Other millions of North Carolinians, too, will regret the passage of Governor William Umstead. He was a well-loved man.

Two New Instances Of CD Preparation

Two small, isolated instances of Civil Defense rehearsals took place over the weekend, connoting the urgency felt by some for ample preparedness measures.

More than thirty students and faculty members of Washington Missionary College took to Maryland's freezing countryside in an unusual test of survival from simulated A-bomb attack. In Chicago, there was a test of emergency mass-feeding preparations by CD. Some 11,000 people took part in that.

The Maryland test, involving fewer people, was nevertheless the more spectacular of the two. To lend realism, the campers wore only the clothing they had on when they "fled" classrooms and offices at the sound of a siren. They remained in the open, in a damp creek bottom with no shelter, only bed rolls and small survival kits of concentrated food. Conditions were those which would presumably prevail if Washington were attacked.

Purpose of the outing was to test those concentrated food kits, but other hardships the party met offers food for thought. For instance, the weather was too much for an infant and 8-year-old brother.

"When they started turning blue (from the cold), I feared it was time to take them back," said their father. A couple of other children, a few years older, did all right.

It strikes us that while efficacy of food concentrates is very important, the problems of wandering multitudes from a stricken big city are many and varied. The cold of mid-winter is one such.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
NATURE OF GROWTH
It is the manifest destiny of every living thing to grow and mature. If the mind does not grow, a great tragedy ensues. If the body does not grow, then a child never becomes more than a dwarf. If a soul does not grow, one becomes a pathetic misfit in a spiritual universe.

Growth consists in the progressive development of one's ability to relate himself to his environment, to others, and to God. We must first of all relate ourselves to the circumstances by which we are surrounded. Some are annoying, others painful and restrictive, still others, sorrowful. We must also get along with the people with whom we come in contact. Many are ignorant and unreasonable; a few are vicious; quite a number are thoughtless. We must relate ourselves to God, and this is the most difficult challenge of all. We cannot see God. We speak to God and He answers us, but not in audible words. Our beliefs about God are founded on faith, not on sight. God demands the whole of our allegiance, a complete submission to His will. It is hard to bring ourselves to submit to this.

Love brings us into complete and satisfying relationship with things and persons; faith brings us into satisfying relationship with God. We have achieved spiritually when we look up to God in faith and reach out in loving service to our fellow man.

FDR's Forecast Being Upheld

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Federal judges, including the Supreme Court of the United States, are upholding Franklin D. Roosevelt's forecast that his reforms would survive, despite the election of Republican Presidents and Congresses. He and Harry S. Truman appointed 80 per cent of the Federal Judiciary. The Democrats still control this important branch of Government.

The Supreme Court, which has only two Republican members, recently blocked the Administration's attempt to replace Roosevelt-Truman Democrats in key offices with members of the one true party.

The second highest and Democrat-staffed court in the land, the District of Columbia Appeals Bench, has, perhaps, stymied the Administration in the case of Owen Lattimore, a Roosevelt-Truman adviser, under question as pro-Communist in his sympathies.

COURTS AND THE COUNTRY—Despite the election returns, it is the party which controls the courts that runs the country. And only age and death, together with Republican inhabitation of the White House for many years, will alter the current equation. It is a neglected factor which the voters rarely keep in mind.

The victorious Republicans set out in 1953 to create vacancies for worthy party servitors, who had helped to elect Eisenhower. They did not do it so audaciously as James A. Farley, Postmaster General and patronage dictator in 1933, after F.D.R.'s inauguration.

FARLEY'S RULING—"Jim" announced boldly that Democratic allegiance alone was not a qualification for a Government job. They had to be "Democrats F.R.B.C.," meaning "Democrats for Roosevelt before Chicago," where the 1932 convention had been held. If they had been for Al Smith, Newton D. Baker or "Jack" Garner, they were out.

It was the most brazen proclamation of the installation of the "spoils system" since the days of Martin Van Buren and Andrew Jackson. But the country—and, presumably, the courts—thought it a great joke, appreciated Farley's frankness, and roared with laughter—except those who lost their jobs.

DEMOCRATIC ACTIVITIES—Farley then proceeded to get rid of Republicans and to outfit the Civil Service Commission—then a complacent, do-nothing body—in devious ways. On the ground of economy, Umstead's own devotion to duty and service shortened his days. He must have known, soon after his inauguration, that his heart attack then was a grim warning to slow down. Another man probably would, and not inconceivably have retired from the harrassments and demands of public service.

No history-making legislation or gubernatorial action will be remembered long as bearing the mark of William Umstead's work; but he himself will live long in the memories of North Carolinians as a warm-hearted personality, God-fearing, devoted to his work and to serving people.

Mourning the dead is often an expression of self-pity for the loss of a friend or loved one; and though North Carolinians will miss William Umstead, we think it more fitting his passage be associated with tributes to his personal qualities and a silent prayer of thanksgiving for the gift of his welcome presence and earnest efforts to serve North Carolina.

With Danger Gone, So, Too, Is The Thrill

It wasn't so long ago that youngsters and their elder brothers were all fired-up by the romance of flying. Remember?

Sight of an airplane was then rare enough to bring people out of their homes and look skyward. More time was frequently used in "study period" at school for drawing of airplanes than work. Flight held the imagination of youth because it was their future.

Especially was this true in the years immediately following Lindbergh's epochal non-stop Paris flight; but though the magnetism became somewhat subdued with time it soared again in World War II. Afterwards there was a sharp letdown.

Evidence points today to acceptance of flying by our young people as a pretty commonplace undertaking. The "glow" has gone. Yesterday's kids who gaped at the skyways and pored over pulp magazine heroics of imagined airmen are either flying themselves or tried their wings and then returned to earth.

On Sunday a father of ten completed a solo trans-Atlantic flight in a small plane, carrying a few crackers to munch on and a couple bottles of softdrinks. Every once in awhile someone else has imitated Lindbergh, only they weren't "first"; but their feats have underscored the fact that aviation isn't for dreamers anymore. It's as firmly established a career as any other.

Max Conrad, the latest solo-Atlantic-hopper, said a primary purpose of the trip was to stir up young people's interest in flying.

We think he went about it wrong. He makes it look too easy.

Business Today

Adult Toy Market

By ELMER ROESSNER
Most toy manufacturers keep an eye on figures showing the number of youngsters in each age group. But not Jay Y. Zimmerman. He is interested in the total number of adults. Naturally, they are his best customers.

Mr. Zimmerman, a St. Louis toy manufacturer, regards youngsters as a good and growing market. But, he told members of the toy industry at a series of conferences in New York, grown-ups constitute a double market.

First most grown-ups have a secret desire to play. Dwight Eisenhower demonstrated it in the 1952 campaign when he had his entire organization playing with a jumping bug. And Mr. Zimmerman knows, too, because he sold more than 1,000,000 toy dogs that would jump away when a plastic hot dog was handed to them the wrong way. Some of the most important business executives in the country have left stockholders waiting while they played with Fido on their desks.

"This is a doodling age," Mr. Zimmerman says. So steel yourself for a rabbit that will roll its eyes and wiggle its ears when its foot is tickled with a carrot. And after that Mr. Zimmerman has ideas for enough desk-top playthings to keep all the salesmen in the United States cooling their heels in anterooms for six days.

Second, Mr. Zimmerman has found grown-ups will buy toys if they can put them to use. This week his company sold its 750,000th pair of toy telephones at $6. Many of his customers have bought them for children. But the biggest purchasers have been oil and construction companies, followed by rest homes and institutions. The phones, powered by batteries, work over half a mile. Wire fences can be used to conduct messages and they are so cheap that highway and building contractors abandon them when they are through with a job.

There are vast possibilities in making toys cheap yet able to stand up under grown-up use, the toy man believes. The way to do it is to simplify design, eliminate frills and keep costs down. He is working on a $10 "toy" vacuum cleaner with almost as much suction as a grown-up model. He hopes every executive will buy one to keep the dust out of his desk and the lint out of his pocket. After that, there may be a 4-inch desk top television set, a midget broiler that will cook a hamburger in 27 seconds, a one-bottle refrigerator that will fit in a desk drawer, a recorder that fits in a vest pocket, and many other things—all under $25. In fact, he has a walkie-talkie set he could sell at $25 for two units, if the government would let him. It won't. The set's too powerful.

A playful man himself, Mr. Zimmerman calls his company, concerned only with new items, the Vintage Products Co. IS PINT STILL A POUND THE WORLD AROUND?

Champagne prices may go up after January 1. The reason is that some Congressmen (we can say it now that election is over) say it does.

Under an amendment to the law on that lay the customs rate changes from a half-pint to a gallon base. Because of this, the tax on a case of 26-ounce bottles changes from $8.16 to $8.29, and for a case of 24-ounce bottles, from $6.12 to $7.65. The only way champagne makers can offset this is to start using 4-5 pint and 4-5 quart bottles. They'll die first.

Looking Back On The Famous Prediction Of Collapse

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — Twenty-five years ago I made a well-known forecast about an impending big break in the stock market. (Reprint of the article which appeared in the New York Times in 1929, recording my statement, will be sent to anyone free of request.) At the close of the previous day in 1929, the Dow-Jones Industrial Stock Average stood at 380. The market immediately began to weaken and shortly plunged down swiftly, closing at 230—a decline of 150 points in less than eight weeks. Today the Dow-Jones Industrial Average is 358, within 8 points of the highest figures since 1929. In fact, it has moved up over 100 points since September 1953.

REACTIONS TO BE EXPECTED
I expect another severe reaction sooner or later, of at least 50 to 75 points. Surely, present stock yields are now too low, when 1954 Federal Taxes are deducted. Such a break in the market could occur even during a period of good business activity such as I am now forecasting. Stock prices have of late demonstrated that they can move independently of both business and earnings. It is well to recall that, in 1929, there were few outward signs of the stock market crash ahead.

Investors were then anticipating larger dividend returns with a reduction in risk through diversified investment Trust holdings and promised mass production and investments "such as the world had never seen before." The research laboratories of our great industrial concerns were also then depended on to bring these miracles about. In short, a "New Era" was then confidently anticipated. Basically, there was weakness, but it was most apparent in stock market speculation.

Umstead Wasn't Counted On As Leader Of Legislature

By LYNN NISBET
GOVERNOR — Governor William Umstead was ordered back to the hospital by his doctors just ten days after he was released from a three weeks stay in the hospital for rest and treatment. During the ten days he had devoted about half time to the office and had held one news conference. He put in a strenuous morning Thursday with the advisory budget commission. Late that afternoon his doctors announced that he had been sent back to the hospital because a cold contracted several days before had not yielded to treatment and had caused a flare-up of a heart ailment which hospitalized him many weeks nearly two years ago.

That original attack kept him out of direct contact with the whole session of the 1953 General Assembly, and prevented his participation in many quasi-public functions ever since. During the early fall this year he gave full attention to hearings before the advisory budget commission, preliminary to making up appropriation and revenue bills for presentation to the next Legislature. These duties put a heavy burden upon his meager reserve of strength and contributed to the condition which sent him to the hospital early in October.

(Eds. note: this column was prepared prior to the Governor's untimely death Sunday.)

It is commonly believed that his determination to do the job for which the people elected him, and in defiance of instructions from his doctors, led him to over-tax himself at the office and to attend the latest public budget commission hearing a few hours before being sent back to the hospital.

as was present in 1929. The so-called clue chips have outdistanced the bulk of the issues on the market, due to concentrated buying, much of it by Institutional investors, Pension Funds, and Mutual Investment Trusts. There are in addition many new cross-currents in the market that did not exist in 1929. We have armament activity and other Government buying, heavy spending, support of farm prices, and especially the INTENSE NEW ADVERTISING PROGRAMS, WHICH I CONSIDER VERY IMPORTANT.

It is clear that the economic picture and the trend in the market can change abruptly and snowball rapidly to an unexpected degree. The real purpose of my column this week is to bring to your attention that the market may soon be in as vulnerable a position as in 1929, especially if the capital gains tax should be repealed, for which the "bears" are striving. Those who were unprepared in 1929 had no chance to take the profits they thought they possessed. Nor did they have purchasing power when the market reached the unbelievable bargain levels of 1932.

GENERAL CONDITIONS NOW GOOD
The banks are now sound; employment is now good; profits in most lines are fair; while very few stocks are being "bought on margin"; all must have a margin of at least 50 per cent. Home building is actually booming, and the inflation since 1929 has justified higher prices for both homes and stocks. Again, I commend the importance of today's advertising.

The boom in home building is, however, becoming a possible source of danger. This is a new factor which did not exist twenty-five years ago. Where the danger signals of 1929 are not now evident, this new danger signal of the "building boom" is surely with us. Furthermore, today's building is mostly on borrowed money. Only the Federal Government can prevent a wave of mass foreclosures some day. INSTALLMENT PURCHASES

This brings me to another present danger, namely, installment purchases. These purchases are today not increasing rapidly. They, however, are still very heavy. Curiously they are now being encouraged by the banks which would have nothing to do with small loans twenty-five years ago.

Another different condition today relates to labor unions. Every right-thinking person must approve the general usefulness of labor unions in their place. Unions are justified in striking if necessary to eliminate bad working conditions and to get a fair wage. The present system, however, of demanding more money merely because a union has a monopoly of a certain industry is wrong and could ultimately bring on a panic.

Better Than Old Age Pensions

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Fatherhood to a successful race horse often beats an old age pension. Take Native Dancer, for example. The big gray stallion, fourth biggest money winner in American turf history, racked up $785,240 in 22 starts and lost only one race — the Kentucky Derby, by a nose.

Now retired, he may earn even more money through planned parenthood in his leisure years than he did during his brief, fabulous track career. "It's quite possible, if he lives long enough," said his owner, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. The Dancer, whose stud fee is $5,000 already has a full calendar for his first year as a sire. He has been booked for 40 engagements.

Whether he continues to earn $300,000 a year as a career father depends on whether he transmits to his offspring his own dazzling qualities — speed, heart and strength.

Only time can determine that. But the Dancer's own tremendous record has given him a head start in his new vocation. In developing thoroughbreds, owners generally follow the maxim, "You breed the best to the best and hope for the best."

Native Dancer's $5,000 stud fee is high, but there's even higher. There are perhaps 20 American stallions that get a $2,000 to $3,000 stud fee. In some cases the fee is paid only if the breeding results in a live foal. "I'm not a stallion," said the age on the quality of his offspring is highly debatable. Native Dancer's famous grandfather, Discovery, was put to stud at the age of six. He will be 24 next spring, and is still active, although the number of his engagements has been cut gradually from 40 a year down to 12.

"But he's got more good horses the last five years than he did the first five years," remarked Vanderbilt.

Great track performers don't always go on to become the greatest sires. The fabulous Man O'War, still regarded by many as the racehorse of the century, led American sires only one year. In 1926 his offspring won 49 races and $408,137.

The most successful living sire, Bull Lea, not yet old enough to vote, never set any big money records in his saddle-wearing prime.

He was put out to stud in 1940 at the age of 6. Since 1947 he has led the sire list every year except 1950 and 1951. Bull Lea's offspring earned at least a million dollars in four of those years. In 1947 they set the modern record in track winnings—$1,630,655.

Like racing itself, siring is an unpredictable industry, and every colt is an expensive gamble. But Vanderbilt, at 42 one of the kingpins of racing, no longer has to dip into his 20 million dollar inheritance to support his expensive stable. It has run to 80 or more horses. Now he trims to 40 or 45 in training season.

"In the last four or five years it certainly has been paying for me," he said, cheerfully. "But the people will lose money with a stable than win."

"It has to be that way. The percentage is against you."

It is further commonly conceded that his admittedly weak physical frame houses an abnormal will power and determination to stay on the job. By almost unanimous consent this attitude is considered unwise. The comments range all the way from commendation for courage to go beyond the line of duty in fulfilling the obligation he feels, to quips about foolish disregard of his own condition.

OUT — Opinion prevailing around Capitol square is that regardless of motives or hopes or desires, Governor Umstead can be counted out of the picture as a vigorous leader during the upcoming Legislature. So almost the same extent he was out during the 1953 session. There are limits to the control which willpower can exercise over a physical body.

PRECEDENT — The existing situation is without precedent in North Carolina history. The nearest approach to a similar condition was in the administration of Governor Daniel G. Fowle more than sixty years ago. In that instance the Governor was a vigorous leader during the session of both Legislatures, although incapacitated between times, and he died shortly after his second Legislature adjourned.

Governor Fowle was inaugurated on January 17, 1889, ten days after the Legislature convened. (In those days the inauguration of a new Governor usually came later than in recent years.) Soon after that first assembly adjourned in March, Lieutenant Governor Thomas M. Holt was sworn in as acting governor. The oath was administered by Chief Justice W.N.H. Smith on April 29, 1889. So far as your reporter can ascertain from check of official records and newspapers that is the only time since the present constitution was adopted in 1868 that a Lieutenant Governor has been called upon to assume the duties of the chief executive office of the State.

Sometime later Governor Fowle reassumed the duties of the office and stayed through the Legislature of 1891. He died on April 7, 1891, and Thomas M. Holt next day took the oath of office as Governor by right of succession.

Files of old newspapers shed very little light on the extent of Governor Fowle's incapacity or the exact time which Acting Governor Holt served. The State Chronicle of May 3, 1889, gives passing mention to the activation of the lieutenant governor's authority and on April 8, 1891, devotes the entire front page to the death of Governor Fowle.

OMISSIONS — There are some omissions in the constitutional provisions governing the accession of the lieutenant governor to the highest office. It is stated that in "case of the impeachment of the Governor, his failure to qualify, his absence from the State, his inability to discharge the duties of his office," or, in case the office of Governor shall become vacant, the powers, duties and emoluments devolve upon the Lieutenant Governor.

Some of these points are very clear. About impeachment, or failure to qualify, or absence from the State, there can be no question. There is no criterion set out for determining "inability to discharge the duties of the office." Eminent lawyers have said that conviction of a felony or adjudication of insanity by a court of competent jurisdiction would constitute automatic "inability to discharge the duties of the office." Short of those extremes there is doubt about any agency, court or person other than the Governor himself through resignation having authority to declare inability in the meaning of the constitution.

It is recalled that under similar provisions of the Federal constitution an unfriendly Congress in 1920 sought some way to have President Woodrow Wilson disqualified, but without avail. It is recalled, too, that in several instances North Carolina Governors have notified Lieutenant Governors to stand by in event of emergency when the chief executive was going out of the State. And in one instance, Governor Gardner, diligently avoided leaving the State lest Lieutenant Governor Dick Pountain might take over the authority of the Governor's office.

These and other incidents throw some light on the existing and developing situation in North Carolina, but fall short of affording authoritative precedent for procedure.

Joe B. Bass Of Greenville Is Named Assistant Inspector General Of VFW

Commander-in-Chief Merton B. Tice of the Veterans of Foreign Wars has announced from Kansas City, Mo., appointment of Joe B. Bass of Greenville as assistant to Inspector General E. L. Jenkins of Kansas City. The Greenville World War II veteran is one of 18 assistant inspectors general appointed for the 48 states and Hawaii and Alaska. Bass, a long-time employe of National Biscuit Company who travels Eastern North Carolina, has held high office in Greenville Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 7032. He also has been an inspector for the second district. He came to Greenville about three years ago. Past VFW Commander Larry Averette said Bass was in his platoon in the Army of Occupation in Germany in World War II.

Group To Review Reaction To Idea

Replies from local civic and commercial clubs concerning the parking proposal presented recently by the Greenville Appliance Dealers to representatives from the various clubs will be reviewed at a meeting of the Appliance Dealers tomorrow night at 7 o'clock at Respass Brothers Barbecue House, Chairman E. J. Tipton has announced.

At a special meeting of the Appliance Dealers October 20 with representatives of the civic and commercial clubs as their guests, a proposal was introduced by Tipton whereby courtesy parking stickers would be issued by Greenville "to entitle all rural residents who have to do with tobacco selling and patrons of our merchants to non-penalty parking." Each representative was asked to present this proposal to their clubs to advise the Dealers of their groups standing on the matter. These replies will be reviewed at tomorrow night's meeting, and if a majority of the organizations approve the proposal another overall meeting of the Dealers and club representatives will be held, Tipton said.

The Appliance Dealers have decided to have as part of their program each month a member of their group to speak on matters or problems pertaining to the business. C. E. Williams has been asked to speak at the meeting tomorrow night.

Fire, Building Reports Issued

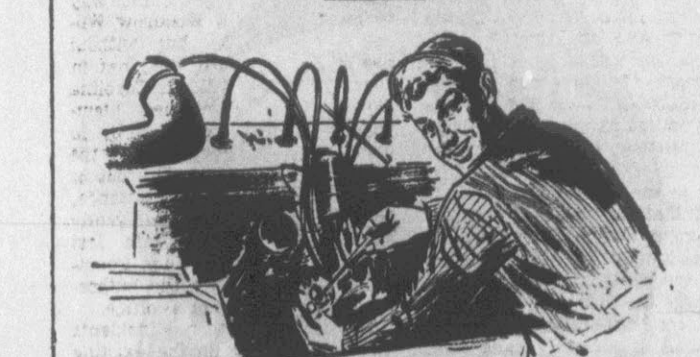

Fire Chief George W. Gardner reported today that the department answered a total of 45 alarms during the month of October - two of which were false alarms, nine box, 27 telephone, and seven county. Losses by fire have not been adjusted yet, stated Gardner, but "will report same in the next monthly report."

Gardner also reports that he issued 10 dwellings and one duplex permit valued at $121,000, and two commercials valued at $50,000. The volunteer firemen payroll for October amounted to $119.00, and for the entire fiscal year thus far, $448.00. The Mack Pumps, says Gardner, have been overhauled and are now back in service.

Ass'n To Hear Marshall Barney

Marshall Barney, District Manager of the Social Security Administration of Rocky Mount, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Greenville Furniture Dealers Association Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Old Towne Inn. Announcement of the regular meeting was made by Robert E. Tunnell, chairman of the association. He said a question and answer period will follow the address by the speaker.

The Perpetual Motion Man; Sen. McCarthy

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON — Sen. McCarthy fights like Henry Armstrong, the perpetual motion man who won three world titles in the 1930s with this "stock-in-trade: never step back, punch, punch, and forget the fancy footwork.

Even the Wisconsin Republican's enemies must concede he is one of the most aggressive politicians of the 20th century. But he has reached a point where he may have to change his style or wind up flat on his political back.

It was his style that got him into trouble. His problem is: Can he change it?

He made his reputation as a Communist hunter. His record as a lawmaker is not particularly distinguished. He was a comparative unknown, outside Wisconsin, for the first four years after his election to the Senate in 1946.

When he hit on the theme of Reds-in-government in 1950 he began to slug his way out of oblivion. If he had cooled off after his first few sensational charges he might have slipped back into obscurity.

Instead, he kept his name in the headlines by attack, attack, attack. Armstrong didn't back-pedal when the going got rough. He just belted the other guy. It was how he became king of the featherweights, lightweights and welterweights.

McCarthy became a national figure the same way. Trying to corner him didn't slow him up. He kept moving in betting away, throwing charges from all directions.

As it turned out, he was a little too rough for his own good. The Senate, four years after he had become a sensational figure, decided it was time to see whether he needed a dressing down.

He himself predicts he will be censured by the Senate, returning today to consider charges that his conduct toward others, including senators, was contemptuous and unfitting a senator.

McCarthy refers to what lies in store for him as "lynching bee," which, all by itself, might be considered contemptuous of the Senate since it implies that body is a mob of vigilantes.

But it's typical McCarthy. Here he is in the worst jam of his life, belting at a majority of the Senate even though he knows the verdict of that majority may in the end mean the ruin of his political life.

To be censured is, in a sense, to be discredited. It is the same as calling a foul on a fighter. It would mean his fellows thought he didn't meet the standards of what a senator should be.

Next to throwing him out altogether, a vote of censure is the worst verdict the Senate could render against him. Throwing him out doesn't seem in the cards.

McCarthy could still vote, if censored. He wouldn't lose his seat, at least before the 1958 elections when his second term ends.

Another man, censured, might be so humiliated he'd turn meek forever. That's hardly in McCarthy's nature. He's naturally too aggressive to take a setback as permanent.

In fact, he could hardly afford to go back into oblivion again unless he's willing to let his political career end without a further fight. He has no place to go but forward.

But how is he going forward? How is he going to stay in the headlines? By the same tactics that got him into trouble now? The next time the Senate verdict, with the Democrats in control, might be more drastic.

But if his free-swinging style is cramped — if he has to think of the consequences for himself every time he wants to act or speak in the future — will he be the same McCarthy? It's something he has to think about. It's possible he may not be able to change, that he's too much himself for that. But that he'll fight, somehow, to keep himself a national figure seems certain. If he loses that, he loses everything. He's probably already lost some of his following, and much public interest. Reports from the political fronts in the last campaign said he wasn't much of an issue.

FIRE BY ARRANGEMENT TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Fire broke out in the old city hall annex. It was quickly extinguished. Firemen were right there. They started the fire as a demonstration. Permission for the demonstration was granted by the Tucson City Council. The building is to be demolished.

EAST CAROLINA-TAMPA. MORE THAN THE SCORE

Although the 27-14 score implies a runaway, the contest in Tampa Friday night was a nip-and-tuck affair until the final two minutes. Coach Jack Boone's Buc went into the fray two-or-more-touchdown underdogs, a role they spurned for some 58 minutes.

The officiating was "lousy." On one occasion in the final period, the Pirates penetrated to the Spartans' 20 and appeared to be on their way to a touchdown. Before you could say "upset" the frustrated Pirates found themselves penalized 30 yards back to the mid-field marker. The first infraction was a "personal foul" and the second was for supposed "unsportsmanlike conduct." Neither was justifiable, in this writer's opinion.

The final Spartan touchdown which moved Tampa ahead by 13 points had no direct bearing on aspirant team strength. It was a case of the rich getting richer and the poor getting poorer and neither needed either. Tampa was well-satisfied with a 6-point margin.

With the score 20-14, ECC had no alternative but pass. Milton Collier's first two attempts from his own 20 were long. His third one—a flat pass intended for Tippy Hayes—was swiped by Bill Herndon, Tampa defender. He simply stepped casually over and the score read like an easy victory.

HAROLD O'KELLY, STRONG AND SWIFT

Possibly no one had given Harold O'Kelly, Pirate halfback-fulback, credit for being rapid. On his 91-yard jaunt in the final period which knotted the score at 14-all he almost cracked the sound barrier. After he sped past the close half of the secondary, two deep men had a great chance at him. Bill Minahan and Bill Herndon had the angles on him and it looked like O'Kelly may be caught off.

"I saw them approaching and slowed down a bit," O'Kelly commented after the game. "They broke their stride momentarily and I turned it on."

Turned it on was right. The High Point junior pulled away like Man o' War. The Tampa halfbacks continued their pursuit to the goal but it was to no avail.

GARY MATTOCKS, A COMMENDABLE PERFORMANCE

Gary played a good ball game. He directed the team smartly and was steady throughout the game. Coach Jack Boone was commenting on Gary Mattocks, sophomore quarterback.

The Southern Pines star started his first game for East Carolina Friday night. He, we might add, looked exceptionally well-cast. He directed the team into Tampa territory for the first TD setup and completed five out of 11 passes for 30 yards. Three of his tosses came at critical moments when yardage was needed to keep a drive alive.

He played the greatest part of the game at quarterback and gave evidence of future brilliance there.

CLAUDE KING, TAMPA TOOK TO HIM

The hard-running and outstanding kicking of Wilmington's Claude King impressed Tampa fans and sports writers greatly. The big fullback chopped at the Spartan defense for 74 yards in 10 carries for a nifty 7.4 average. He booted three times against a strong Florida wind for 182 yards, a sensational 51 yard per clip.

The entire complexion of the game might have been different had King not left the game in the third period with an injury.

Saturday before the train pulled out with the Pirates headed for home, a local news photographer rushed up and presented Claude several 8x10 action shots of him.

The Florida trips should remain scheduled each year. They're fitting rewards to hard-working grid-ders.

Franchise Shift Approval Seen At Today's Meet

NEW YORK — Despite opposition from Detroit and Washington, the American League was expected to approve the transfer of the Philadelphia franchise to Kansas City today at a special meeting of club owners and executives.

Cleveland held the ace card, and as early as this morning both factions were trying to win the Indians over. Six votes are needed to complete the transfer. New York, Baltimore, Chicago, Boston and, of course, Philadelphia favor the move.

The Indians voted for the original plan to move to Kansas City last month and nothing has happened that might change their minds.

General Manager Hank Greenberg of the Indians said his club would not make up its mind until the last moment.

"We want to sit down and talk over what's best for the league," he said. "Only then will we make up our minds."

Possibly the one point that would sway the Indians to the "approval" group was the endorsement of Arnold Johnson, the would be purchaser, by Commissioner Ford Frick. President Clark Griffith of Washington objected to Johnson owning the A's and the Yankee Stadium.

"I don't see anything wrong with Johnson retaining ownership of the Yankee Stadium and leasing it to the Yankees," said Frick. "Of course, he can have nothing to do with the Yankees and the lease must be passed by the American League and the commissioner's office."

"There are other conditions which will have to be met and Mr. Harridge (American League President William Harridge) and I have discussed them and are in perfect agreement. It's just the same as Connie Mack renting his ball park to the Phillies and to the Philadelphia Eagles for football."

Identical Twins Lead The Band

The dark-eyed brunettes, each 5-foot-6, step through precision routines as one. Split-second reactions that give football fans a "seeing double impression" breed from 18 years of doing everything together. June and Joan have handled batons since elementary school days. Murphy can't tell them apart anymore than the fans.

BUC OF THE DAY

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

Meet David Lee, 6-4, 245-pound junior guard from Tarboro.

The huge lineman, who enhances the East Carolina front line with his jarring momentum, culminates his college grid career here this Saturday night against Stetson.

Lee has played only three years for it Purple and Gold but he played one year at North Carolina University. That was back in 1949 when the Tar Heels were in their prime. He made the freshman starting lineup at tackle but suffered a broken neck in an early season game. It was doubtful if Lee was to ever play football again.

He enlisted in the service and spent the next two years under the auspices of Uncle Sam. He enrolled at East Carolina in the fall of 1952.

Lee was the most heralded high school footballer to ever darken the Buc's door. He was an All-American tackle at Hampton High School in Virginia. He was also All-State there. He was tagged "the greatest lineman in Hampton's history." Prior to his two years at Hampton, he was a standout lineman for Tarboro.

His initial year at ECC, he weighed 220 and played fine defensive guard. He received honorable mention All-Conference that season.

Lee really exploded into stardom last fall. The hard-rocking Pirate shredded opponent lines like a wood shaver. His thundering tackles and perfected blocking resulted in his selection to the All-Conference team and several All-State mentions.

He was profoundly instrumental in the Pirates' great 8-1 season. Tarboro fans filled College Stadium to watch their native son in action and his sparkling play still remains vivid in many minds.

"This season Lee got off to a good start in the Norfolk Navy game but was seriously hurt against West Chester the following Saturday. His knee was badly torn and he was kept out of action for three games. Unconsciously favoring that bad knee has held Lee below his standing of last year. But nevertheless he has shown streaks of his old brilliance. Against Tampa he played a great ball game and was a strong link in the Pirates' defense all night.

His absence next fall will require some filling. Lee wants to play professional ball and he's got the makings. He graduates next summer.

Big Opportunity Looms For Elon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Elon gets its big chance to clinch second place in the North State Conference football race this week, entertaining Lenoir Rhyne Saturday.

The Christians tightened their hold on second, with a 20-13 victory over Guilford Saturday. With the score tied 13-13 and less than two minutes remaining to play, Elon halfback Kerry Richards dashed 14 yards for the winning touchdown.

Appalachian already has clinched the championship. The fight for second rests between Elon and East Carolina, last year's champion.

Other games last weekend were non-conference contests. Davidson overpowered Catawba, 32-12; Emory and Henry stopped Western Carolina, 16-0; Wofford edged LeNoir Rhyne 21-13, and Tampa stopped East Carolina, 27-14, Friday night. Appalachian had an open date.

Maryland Back Retains Top Scoring Role In ACC Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Bielski Maryland fullback, still holds the individual scoring lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference but a host of other touchdown-minded players are closing in on him.

Bielski still leads the race despite the fact he didn't play Saturday in Maryland's 42-14 drubbing of North Carolina State. He has 32 points.

Clemson halfback Jim Coleman didn't score in Clemson's 27-6 victory over Furman of the Southern Conference. As a result, he is forced to share second place with Mackie Prickett of South Carolina, who scored one Saturday to up his total to 30 points.

In a tie for fourth with 26 points are Bryant Aldridge of Duke and Ken Keller of North Carolina. Keller scored nine points in the Tar Heels' 21-19 win over South Carolina to zoom into the scoring picture.

Tied for sixth are Joe Pagliel of Clemson, Bob Pascal of Duke and Herb Hartwell of Virginia all with 24 points scored on four touchdowns.

With the conference title still a loose ball, three loop games this weekend should give some indication as to who will win it and represent the conference in the Orange Bowl in Miami New Year's Day.

Maryland, with three wins and one tie in the conference, faces tough Clemson (1-1) at College Park, South Carolina (1-2), about out of the title picture, entertains Virginia in the Cavaliers first league game. Duke (1-0) goes to Wake Forest (1-2-1).

North Carolina kept its hopes alive in the conference race, downing South Carolina, 21-19, in a mild upset. Ken Keller, who booted three extra points, gave the Tar Heels their edge. South Carolina conversion tries were blocked by Roland Perdue and Connie Graville.

Maryland had no trouble handling North Carolina State its fourth conference loss and its seventh defeat of the season, 42-14. Maryland's Ronnie Waller scampered 61 yards for the first Terp score in the opening quarter. State scored on passes. Eddie West passed to Don Langston in a play covering 49-yards for the third period score, and tossed a 19-yard TD pass to Jim Medlock in the final frame.

Wake Forest suffered a 13-0 defeat by the University of Richmond. The Spiders scored twice in the first half, then kept the Deacons bottled up in the second half. Wake mustered only 85 yards on the ground and 91 yards through the air.

Quarterback Don King played a leading role as Clemson outplayed Furman, 27-6. King sparked three touchdowns, scoring once himself, for his unit. Quarterback Charlie Bussey led the fourth Clemson unit to the fourth touchdown. Furman played without first string quarterback Jim Boyle and halfback Ted Yakimowicz. But ace runner John Popson was held to 17 yards in 13 tries.

A surprise was the easy manner in which Navy rolled over Duke, 40-7, in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va. The Middies scored all houses, in addition to the East Carolina College Athletic office and alumni office.

The final home game of the East Carolina College Pirates with the Stetson Hatters of DeLand, Florida, on November 13, will honor the 1954 Pirate football squad and Coaches Jack Boone, Jim Mallory and Earl Smith.

A sellout of the stadium seats is being supported by Greenville civic organizations, a spokesman of the East Carolina College athletic department announced today.

Virginia had an open date.

This week's schedule, all Saturday games:

North Carolina at Notre Dame, Clemson at Maryland, Virginia at South Carolina, Duke at Wake Forest, and Richmond at North Carolina State.

Willie Mays Still Scoring At Bat

SAN JUAN (AP) — Willie Mays, who led the National League in batting last season with a .345 average, is showing signs that he plans to do the same in the Puerto Rican Winter League, where he is playing with the Santurce club.

The New York Giants' center-fielder sports a .640 average after 14 games. He didn't get his first homer until yesterday off Brooklyn's Tom Lasorda, but he leads the league in triples, 3; doubles 6; runs, 18; and total hits, 26.

Story Behind That Hemingway Winner

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD Producer Leland Haywood today disclosed how Ernest Hemingway happened to publish "The Old Man and the Sea," the book which helped him win a Nobel Prize last week.

It was on the set of "Mister Roberts," which Haywood is producing for films. He will also produce "The Old Man and the Sea" a year from next spring with Spencer Tracy as star. Naturally, Haywood was jubilant about the Nobel Prize for his friend Hemingway.

I expressed surprise that the author had said he would need part of the $35,000 prize money to pay off his debts. Hemingway is perhaps America's most successful writer and has had a dozen of his works purchased for films, many of them at top prices.

"Oh, Papa is often broke," said Haywood, using the affectionate handle Hemingway's friends have given him. "He has always been making bad deals for his books and film sales."

"He was broke when my wife and I visited him in Cuba some time ago. I asked him what he was writing and he said it was a big book with four parts and a coda (concluding passage). He had finished two of the parts, but he didn't like them and was doing them over again. He was satisfied with the coda, and said 'You want read?' He talks in a kind of shorthand.

"I sat down and read the whole thing in 20 minutes. I am a very fast reader and Hemingway's copy is typewritten in capitals with large spaces between the lines for revisions.

"He watched my face throughout the time I was reading. When I finished, the tears were streaming down my face. I told him it was the greatest thing he had written."

Haywood took the manuscript to the Hotel National and there it was read by his wife, the onetime model "Slim" Hawks. She finished it in the morning, and her eyes were filled with tears. Haywood returned to Hemingway's home.

"Papa, you've got to publish this," the producer urged.

"No," said the author. "It is meant to be a coda as part of a book."

"That's all right. You can put it in the book when it is all finished. No one will mind. You need the money." Then he reached into left field.

"Supposing I could get it published in Life magazine—complete in one issue without ads to break it up?"

Hemingway said that would be impossible. But Haywood remembered how the New Yorker had published John Hersey's "Hiroshima" in one issue. He got the author's permission to try.

Haywood convinced the Life editors and also sold "The Old Man and the Sea" to the Book of the Month Club. The book was acclaimed by the critics. Hemingway won the Pulitzer Prize and became the fifth American to win the Nobel.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER
When Edna L. McArdle, as a girl in her teens, was hired for two weeks to "work on the accounts" of the former Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, she had no idea of how long "two weeks" could last. In October (1954), Miss McArdle was honored for 45 years of continuous service in the accounting department of the former Board and its continued Board of Missions. Her service at 150 Fifth Ave., New York City, is believed to be the longest of any headquarters employee of the Board at any time.

"One of the big problems in Japan is that there has not been enough stress on winning the whole family to Christianity, but now the church is trying to emphasize that approach," reports Miss Doris Hartman, of Cedarville, Ohio, missionary in Hiroshima, Japan. "Even when a young person becomes Christian, it doesn't mean that he will establish a Christian home. Since marriages are still largely arranged by parents, they may succumb to the parents' wishes and marry a non-Christian, or even if they are both Christian but have to live with a Buddhist family, it is difficult to make a real Christian home. The oldest son is expected to live with his parents and the daughter-in-law becomes a member of that family, usually completely dominated by the wishes of the mother-in-law. If they make a break with the family, and cut themselves off, it causes much heartbreak, since the family is so closely knit and so much of the economic and emotional security depends on keeping the group intact."

Educational missionaries, men and women, are the most urgently needed of all classes of mission workers for 1955, says Dr. M. O. Williams, secretary of the Joint Committee on Missionary Personnel of the Methodist Board of Missions. Educators for secondary schools in the Division of World Missions in Africa, East and Southeast Asia, India and Pakistan, and Latin America are needed at once, he says. They should be between the ages of 23 and 35, have at least a year or two of teaching experience in addition to college training in the field of education. Persons interested may write to Dr. Williams at 150 5th Avenue, New York 11, N. Y.

The Inheritors

By JANE ABBOTT

CHAPTER ONE

This day in late May promised to be dull for Wickford Middleton, Killbuck's only lawyer. There were no appointments on his memo pad, nothing coming up in the courts in Malone that concerned him. He opened a drawer in his desk that was filled with old books. Not books on law but a collection of 19th-century writers—Thackeray, Austen, Dickens, Wilkie Collins, Trollope. He kept them out of sight. He chose Trollope's "Ralph, the Heir," settled comfortably back in his swivel chair.

His door opened and an old man came in. "Morning, Wick."

Wick closed his book. "Well, well, Josh! Glad to see you! Sit down." Though less than half the old man's age, he knew Jehosophat Trevett well, as did everyone in Killbuck. He assumed his was merely a friendly call. "What's the news, Josh?"

The old man sat down. "Want you to write a will for me, Wick. I've got it all in my mind but I don't know the hifalutin words to put it down in."

"Planning to die, young fellow like you?" Wick said, genially.

"Got to go some time. Eighty-eight years old tomorrow, May twenty-first." Though spare, hard-muscled, a healthy red under the skin of his face, he did not look that age or one to dwell on dying. "Ought to get things way I want 'em to be. I've been pondering it this winter."

Wick nodded his head. "That's sensible, Josh." He took a sheet of paper from a drawer, picked up a pen. "Tell me the way you want it and I'll write it out." It would not take more than 10 minutes or so, he thought, for he doubted that Jehosophat had more than his farm to will. "Your place there—near to 400 acres isn't it? Which of your kin do you think of leaving that to?"

Jehosophat said: "My notion is to parcel it among 'em. I've two nieces, Hester and Jennie, and a nephew Tom. Haven't laid eyes on one of them since they were young 'uns and come here two summertimes. All I know about 'em is what Hester writes me, once in a blue moon. Hester's married, lives in Buffalo, in New York state. Jennie's never well. Lives in a girls' school in Cleveland, Ohio."

"They are your nearest of kin?"

"Nearest and all."

Wick Middleton suddenly recalled a long-ago summer day when he had gone up to the Trevett place to fish and had run into three children there. One a skinny little girl with long dark braids and frightened eyes. Curiously, he could remember her more clearly than the other two, that he had felt sorry for her, with the bigger girl picking on her all the time.

He said, "Josh, why not leave it that your property be sold and the money be divided among those three?"

The old man said, "I want them to come back here and live on the place!"

"But how do you know they would come—leave their homes and occupations? Or would want to come if they could—country life might not appeal to them. And housed all together . . ."

"They needn't be housed together—guess you've forgot what the old house is like. There's the big wing to the north—got a kitchen and pantry, a bedroom off the sitting-room, a sloop outside. My grandmother had it fixed that way so's she could live independent of my mother. My idea is to parcel that off to Hester, Jennie can get the main part of the house; and the back part where I've been living, can be Tom's share. The land divided all fair among them, and what savings I have close to $6,000, too. Now ain't that pretty well figured out?"

"I don't know, Josh. Maybe you'd better do a little more thinking. It will make an odd situation."

Jehosophat nodded his head. "More'n likely there's a strain of quarrelsomeness in the Trevett blood. This Hester—times they come here, young 'uns, she was bossy, Grabby, too. Maybe she hasn't changed."

"Doesn't that show you that your plan may not work out well?"

"Mebbe it won't. Way I want you to write is that if any of 'em die before me, the ones who belong to them, got to come here, first summer, live on the place for three months. If one of them refuses her share goes to the other two. Or if two of 'em refuse, the one that don't gets their parcel . . . Seems as though out of the three there'd be one who'd like the old place. But if none of 'em come, I want it all to go to Gary Norbeck, the young fellow up there with me."

Wick knew this young Norbeck, but only by sight; he doubted anyone in Killbuck knew him any better than that. Though he came into the town frequently to buy provisions he never said more to anyone than "Good morning," or "Good afternoon." It was generally supposed he was up at the Trevett place to help old Josh with the work. But Josh had given up farming the land and it was plain to everyone that the young fellow was not the usual type of farmhand, so there had been considerable curiosity over him.

"Just what is this young man to you, Josh?"

Jehosophat said warmly: "Same as a son guess you might say. He come to the door one night, October it was, three years ago. He was taking a walking trip and got caught in a heavy rainstorm back in the hills. He was a mighty sick boy—I heated blankets and made him go to bed and he didn't get out of that bed for two weeks. Pneumonia likely it was. I kept onion poultices on him. He was pretty weak when he did move round and I'd grown used to having him with me—so I asked him to stay."

Wick said, "But Josh, your heirs can contest the will on that clause alone."

Jehosophat said, "If my kin are too ciftified to want it, why can't I say who'll have it?"

Before Wick could answer that, he went on, in a milder tone: "For got to mention that I want the south woods acre to go to Gary, outright. Has the creek runnin' through it—don't doubt he'll let you fish in it, same as you've done since you were knee-high."

"And where in this plan of yours would he live?"

"He's built himself a shack up in the woods. Nice snug place, too. Goes up there to paint pictures and right pretty ones they are."

Wick asked "Does Norbeck know of this plan of yours?"

Jehosophat laughed. "He hasn't an inkling of it. If you're thinking he's influencing me to it, put it out of your head, Wick. Gary'll be as surprised as anyone. But he loves that land."

"That's it," thought Wick. "The old man wants someone living there who loves his land." And this was within his comprehension—hadn't he himself chosen to practice here in Killbuck where he had lived his 41 years, and his folks as far back as the first settling of the valley? This understanding stalled the advice he intended to give Jehosophat. He drew the blank sheet toward him, wrote a date at its top.

Jehosophat said, "Guess you've got my idea, Wick—you write it out. He took a roll of heavy paper from his pocket. "Here's a sort of map I made of the land—and I've marked the three shares—and that acre for Gary." He put it on the desk, found another paper in another pocket. "Here's their addresses, Hester's and Jennie's and the one Hester sent me that was Tom's, then and likely'd reach him. I've some errands to do, 'long as I'm in town, and I'll come up in, say, an hour. I'll bring some witnesses to see me sign it a proper like."

"You haven't named an executor, Josh."

"That's so." The old man scratched his head. "Why not you, Wick? You could handle it best."

"Okay." Wick's voice barely concealed a groan.

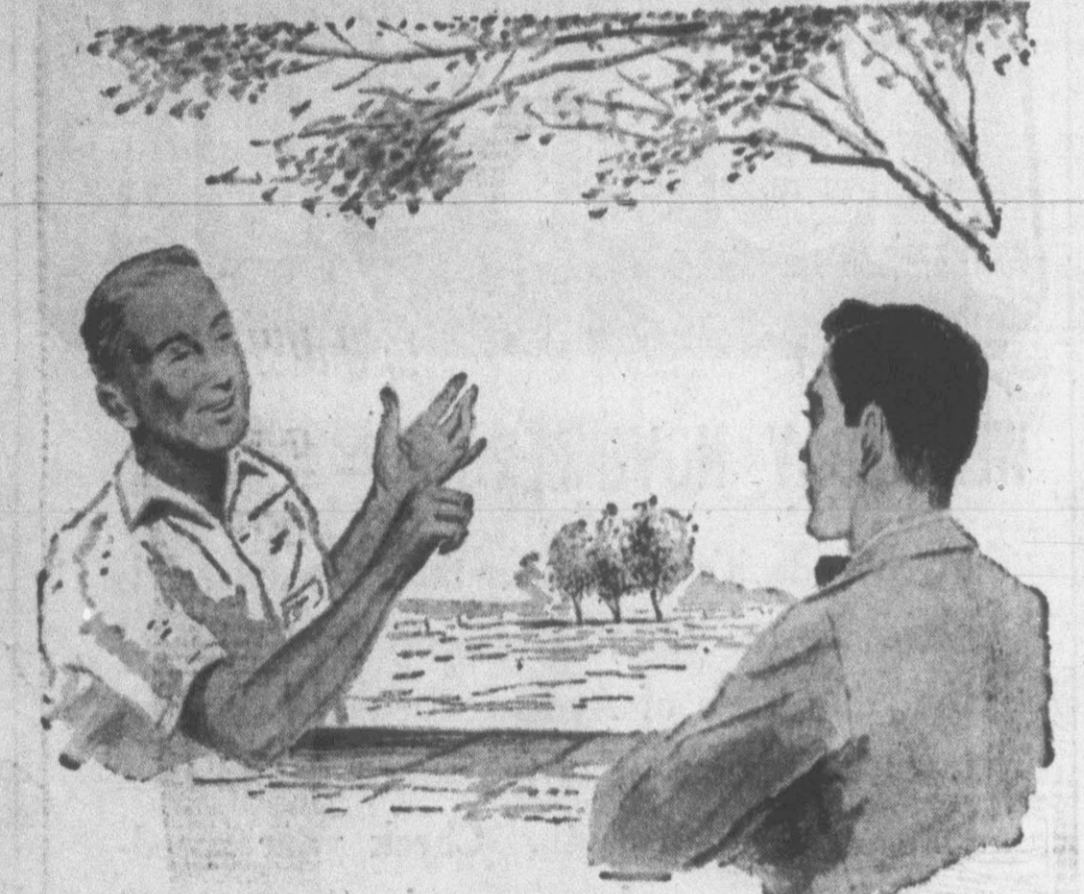

Jehosophat went out and Wick picked up his pen again.

4 Reasons Why Prohibition Always FAILS . . .

Prohibition DOES NOT prevent—it changes effective legal control by State law enforcement to the lawlessness of the bootleggers.

Prohibition DOES NOT decrease use. It's only human nature to want something even more when you are told you can't have it.

Prohibition DOES NOT promote law and order—it leads to widespread evasion of the law, provides a fertile breeding ground for crime.

Prohibition DOES NOT help community welfare—it moves legitimate business off Main Street into back alleys and it cuts off a valuable source of tax revenue needed to maintain public services.

"Legal Control" has proven to be the most practical way . . . the most tolerant way . . . the American way.

Prevents stalling due to carburetor icing! You may find it hard to believe, but ice is most apt to form in your carburetor when the outside temperature is above freezing. Thanks to an Esso-discovered de-icing additive - F-38 - TOTAL POWER ESSO EXTRA actually keeps ice from forming and prevents your engine from stalling.

Point by point here's why NEW TOTAL POWER ESSO EXTRA outsells every other premium gasoline!

- 1. Extra mileage where it counts most! Over one half of all trips are less than 5 miles in length. Amazing isn't it? Yet U. S. Government statistics prove that around-town driving - to market, to school - accounts for 62% of all trips. New TOTAL POWER ESSO EXTRA is the first gasoline engineered to give greater mileage under these extreme gasoline-consuming conditions.
- 2. "New Car" performance—longer! ESSO EXTRA burns so completely that more of every drop is converted into sheer energy and less remains to form power-robbing carbon deposits. Thus, it keeps the "New Car" power and performance of your engine for many thousands of extra miles.
- 3. Unbeatable warm-up! NEW TOTAL POWER ESSO EXTRA gives fastest possible starting and warm-up, especially important in cold weather. As a result, it increases gasoline mileage and prolongs battery life.
- 4. More delivered horsepower! The horsepower your car can deliver depends on the gasoline as well as the engine. The horsepower potential of TOTAL POWER ESSO EXTRA is so great that one of the nation's leading automobile manufacturers found it to be the best gasoline obtainable for rating the horsepower output of its new high-compression engines.
- 5. Highest octane you can buy! This is the real measure of anti-knock performance in your car. Day in and day out no other gasoline has consistently equaled the anti-knock power of ESSO EXTRA.
- 6. Prevents stalling!

Not just claims, but

FACTS | 8,960,000 TEST MILES
1,195 CARS AND ENGINES

All these statements are supported by facts compiled by the world-famous Esso Research Laboratories in the most comprehensive series of road and laboratory tests ever run by any oil company.

These facts are not based on "promotional" tests, but on a continuing long-range program of testing - including close cooperation with the automobile industry. The result has been not only better fuels for the cars of today, but new super gasolines which will make possible the cars of tomorrow. Esso Research is credited with more "firsts" in gasoline quality improvements than any other oil company. ESSO EXTRA sets the pace!

Five Executed By Firing Squad

TEHRAN, Iran, (AP)—An Army firing squad at dawn today executed five more officers convicted of spying for Soviet Russia. To date 20 officers of the army, police or air force and one civilian have been executed in the crackdown on the widespread Red spy ring. An estimated 600 officers and civilians have been arrested in the roundup.

OES in Kinston Staging Musical

KINSTON—The world premier of a musical comedy "Holiday Ahoy" written for local talent productions by individual chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star opens here tonight. A cast of 150 people is adapted to this show which will ultimately play in 2,000 towns throughout the United States and Canada, each time with a local cast, for the benefit of Eastern Star activities.

Miss Augusta Munro (above), professional director of New York, is directing the series; which is opening in the Grainger High School tonight and Tuesday night. As a special opening night feature there will be coronation of "the royal family" of Kinston—a king, queen, two princes and princesses, chosen from over 150 entries of children ranging between seven months and seven years of age.

Formosa Is Now Economic Prize

By FRED HAMPSON
 TAIPEH, Formosa, (AP)—Peiping's demand that Formosa be "returned" to Red China is usually ascribed to political motives. But a visit to this island after 18 months away makes a reporter wonder whether the Communists don't also have their eyes on its economic wealth.

Formosa has become a pretty rich prize to a nation which is tightening its belt. Four years ago, the island was a rundown operation. Its railroads were junk. Its roads were dilapidated. Its factories, mostly idle still were unpaired from the war. Its electrical grid was a mess. Its trade balance was adverse, and getting worse. Then Uncle Sam began to pour aid in here. Today the railroads are new. Roads are a good network and either new or resurfaced. Factories are running and harnessed to the production of consumer goods that lessen imports. For example, the aluminum plant at Koahsiung, instead of shipping ingots to Japan as before, now turns them over to local fabricators who turn out aluminum goods.

Key industries are slowly building up export margins. The power grid is rebuilt and enlarged, feeding new industries. Oil exploration is promising. Crop methods have been improved and more food is available for export on less acreage. Formosa is within two years of self-sufficiency in cotton textile production. Formosa thus offers quite a prize for Peiping, whose industrial efforts, concentrated on heavy industry, aren't going very well.

More Than 240 Injured In Panic

BEIRUT, Lebanon, (AP)—More than 240 Moslems were injured last night when fire, followed by panic, broke up a torchlight procession here honoring the birthday of the prophet Mohammed.

No deaths were reported, but official sources said many victims were in a serious condition. Beirut hospitals were crowded with casualties. Officials said additional injured were being treated at hospitals outside the capital. The fire spread through the crowd when torchbearers leaving a Moslem school accidentally dropped their burning brands.

Reeds were used as pens in Egypt before 4,000 B.C.

Asserts Doctors Require Faith In Supreme Being

By FRANK CAREY
 AP Science Reporter
 ST. LOUIS, (AP)—Dr. Elmer Hess, president-elect of the American Medical Assn., said today any doctor "who lacks faith in the Supreme Being" has no right to practice medicine.

"A physician who walks into a sick room is not alone," said the Erie, Pa., doctor who is a specialist in urology. "He can only minister to the ailing person with the material tools of scientific medicine—his faith in a higher power does the rest."

"Show me the doctor who denies the existence of the Supreme Being and I will say that he has no right to practice the healing art."

Hess made the statements in a prepared digest of extemporaneous remarks he planned for the opening of the 48th annual meeting of the Southern Medical Assn. The SMA with a total membership of 10,000 doctors, ranks second only to the AMA as the largest general medical organization in the country.

"Our medical schools are doing a magnificent job of teaching the fundamentals of scientific medicine," declared Hess. "However, I'm afraid that the concentration on basic science is so great the teaching of spiritual values is almost neglected."

At another point he asserted:

"Any man who enters the medical profession with financial gain as his sole objective is a discredit to his colleagues. The market place is where you go to make money, not the sick room. Doctors take care of sick folks—period."

The AMA official declared that organization has launched a long-range program designed to solve the medical care problems of the indigent and the chronically ill.

"Special attention must be given," he said, "to the problems of those who are unable to pay for their own medical care or buy insurance to protect themselves against such costs. We are urging state and county medical societies to make this a major project."

Deadline Set On Application For Naval Program

High school seniors and graduates in this area who are interested in the Navy's college training program have only until November 20 to apply, it was announced today.

According to the announcement, candidates who apply for the NROTC will take the qualifying mental examination on December 11 "as the first step in the competitive cycle leading to an appointment as midshipmen."

Male citizens of the United States, between the ages of 17 and 21 are eligible to apply. Necessary forms of application may be obtained from the local high school or Navy Recruiting Station, or by writing direct to the Chief of Naval Personnel, Washington 25, D.C.

The 5,000 degree temperature of the filament in a lighted electric light bulb is twice that of molten steel.

Queen Will Visit Naval Academy

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth of Britain and her party were due here today from Washington for a five-hour visit.

After a luncheon given by Gov. and Mrs. Theodore McKeldin, the Queen Mother will review a dress parade in her honor by the 3,600-man brigade of midshipmen at the U. S. Naval Academy.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES WITH COLDS

Relieve suffering this sure way that Does More Than Work On Chest!

The worst part of suffering from a cold is due to congestion and coughing. That's why you need medication that does more than just work on the chest. You need Vicks VapoRub—because it acts two ways at once:

1. VapoRub relieves muscular soreness and tightness, stimulates chest surfaces.
 2. At the same time, VapoRub's special medicated vapors also bring relief with every breath.
- You can't see these vapors, but you can feel them as they travel deep into the nose, throat and large bronchial tubes. Congestion starts breaking up. Coughing eases. Soon you enjoy warming relief that lasts for hours. So when colds strike, use the best-known home remedy to relieve such suffering—Vicks VapoRub.

Optimistic View Of Future By Two More Auto-Makers

By DAVID J. WILKIE
An Automotive Editor
DETROIT (AP) — Two more car makers — Cadillac and Oldsmobile — held previews of their 1955 models last week and took optimistic looks into the future. Their optimism probably was justified. Both did a larger volume of business this year than they did in 1953. Both have made styling and engineering changes for the year ahead. The changes are of the type that invariably stimulate demand. The Cadillac position, of course, is enviable. It has a backlog of unfilled orders for 90,000 of its 1955 models. It expects to build and sell 150,000. Most of its sales are on a full payment on delivery basis.

Oldsmobile's production and sales for 1954 undoubtedly will top those of 1953 which was the industry's over-all record year. It moved into fourth position in the industry this year. Its sales executives report it had no outgoing model clean up problem.

Production figures announced by General Motors show Cadillac built 97,484 cars and Oldsmobile 354,101 cars in this year's first 10 months. These figures compared with 89,742 and 284,487 respectively for the comparable 1953 period.

American Motors has scheduled a preview of its 1955 Hudson line for Monday of next week. That will leave only Packard, Nash, Kaiser and Willys to be given advance showings.

Of the various makes of 1955 models already in production only three have been formally presented to the public — Studebaker, Chevrolet and Pontiac. But the remainder will come in this month.

Right now the makers of the volume models are building up momentum on their assembly lines. They are heading into what promises to be the highest November-December volume the industry has achieved in many years. But for a very orderly cleanup of outgoing models the factories would not be able to schedule so heavy a volume of new cars during the closing weeks of the year. The cleanup, according to many sales executives will come close to a "sell out."

Of course the merchandising division never does dispose of all its outgoing models before the newer ones arrive from the factory. The industry never has been able to balance its distribution of inventories that finely. But on the basis of an over-all average the field stock situation is reported very good.

Thus the outlook is bright for high volume sales early in the new model year. The merchandising division lost some money in the outgoing model cleanup drive, but most retailers admit the result was worth the cost.

The flattening out of new car inventories automatically will cut off a lot of new car bargains. It probably also will mean few of the 1955 model cars will be sold at cut prices — at least during the first part of the new model year.

Prices for 1955 model cars still remain a matter of speculation in trade quarters. A good appraisal of price trends probably will not be possible until several more of the major competitive makes have been tagged. Indications now are that whatever changes are made will be of minor proportions.

MARLON BRANDO'S FIANCEE:—Josane Mariani-Berenger, 20, the fiancée of movie actor Marlon Brando, is shown as she relaxed on the sands of the French Riviera earlier this year. The stepdaughter of a fisherman in the little village of Bandol, France, Josane has been an artist's model and a governess in the family of a New York psychiatrist. She is presently in Paris and hopes to leave soon for New York. (AP Wirephoto).

Manufacturers Say Inner-Tube Soon Obsolete

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The inner tube may soon be just something for the kids to use when they learn to swim—if tire manufacturers are as right as they are enthusiastic.

"Within five years the inner tube will be as obsolete as car fenders," says E. F. Goodrich's Joseph A. Hoban vice president of the tire and equipment division. "The tubeless tire will become standard for everything from passenger car to airplane to farm tractor," says Goodyear's president, E. J. Thomas.

Most 1955 model cars will come equipped with tubeless tires, the rubber industry says. The next step is to sell the tubeless to owners of older models as replacements. Goodrich expects half of its replacement sales this year will be of tubeless tires. Owners of the oldest jalopies probably will put up sales resistance to a tire that costs more than the old-style casing, but as they disappear from the roads the inner tube may go with them.

Firestone, U. S. Rubber, General Tire & Rubber and others are also in the scramble. Superhighways are expected to be a strong selling point for the tubeless.

"The new highways mean higher speeds," Hoban points out. "And sustained high speed puts more heat on a tire and increases the chance of a blowout. The tubeless tire runs cooler. And there's no tube to chafe or wear out."

Thomas claims Goodyear's tubeless with a flatter tread provides a 12 per cent more mileage than their older tires.

After several years of experimenting and testing (and considerable bickering among some of the companies over rights) the tubeless has caught on fast in the last few months. Its first big boost, however, will come with many 1955 cars using it as original equipment.

The tire industry puts out several types. One has a puncture-sealing element under the tread. You can pull a nail out and the tire won't go flat. This is a premium price tire.

The original equipment on many new cars, however, will be a lighter, and less expensive, type with temporary puncture sealing. Pull the nail out and the tire goes flat.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Friday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of 16 cases and only five of them involved motor vehicle law violations.

Speeding: Charlie Blount, Negro, paid court costs; Harold C. Cook, William J. Toth and Thomas C. Barlow, each paid $20, costs deducted; Onwood L. Robertson paid court costs.

Non-support: James Dixon, Negro, 30 days suspended on payment of $17 before release from custody and pay $17 each week beginning November 13, 1954, for support. Elbert Pollard, prayer for judgment continued on payment of $50 before release and pay $25 a week beginning November 11, 1954, for support. The judgment also provides that he is to remain of good behavior and remain sober.

Four Negro defendants were tried on charges of assaults on females and assaults with a deadly weapon. The court found Floyd Mercer guilty of assaulting a female and taxed him with court costs. John C. Williams was found not guilty. Jessie Mae Hadry was found not guilty of assault with a deadly weapon (bottle) in one case and found guilty of assault with a deadly weapon (bottle) in another case. Judge Whedbee gave her 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of court costs.

The court found Leo Venters not guilty of assaulting D. B. Stokes. Albert Cuyler, Negro, larceny of leaf tobacco from Dixie Warehouse, 30 days on the roads.

Thomas Junior Hardee, Negro, was found not guilty of assaulting Perline Hardee, Negro.

Oscar Manning drunk, prayer for judgment continued on condition that the defendant shall not enter any pool room; shall not have in his possession any kind of intoxicating beverage; shall stay out of any store in which intoxicating beverages are sold, and this cause was retained for further order.

Okinawa Prison Inmates Escape

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Fifty Okinawans broke out of Naha Penitentiary last night in wild rioting by more than 850 convicts, and more than a score are still at large today, prison officials said.

One prisoner was shot in the leg and several Okinawan wardens and special police were injured by rocks in a three-hour battle.

No American troops were called to put the riot down and the United States civil administration for the Ryukyu Islands said the Okinawa police could handle the situation.

Wardens said between 22 and 36 prisoners were still loose. They could not hold a roll call in the seething prison today to make an exact count.

Local Jaycees To Help Organizing

A delegation of Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce members will journey to Ayden tonight for an organization meeting of a Jaycee Club in that town.

The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock at the Jenkins Motor Company.

It will be the second such meeting held in Ayden, Frank Dail, Greenville Jaycees president, said today. At the last meeting Bill Jenkins was named temporary chairman. Dail noted that about 25 individuals are interested in forming the Jaycee club at Ayden.

A panel of Greenville Jaycees will discuss the Junior Chamber of Commerce organization before the Ayden group at tonight's meeting.

The panel will be made up of: Dan Saleed, Harry Douglas, Dr. M. W. Aldrich, James W. Boykin, Ben L. Rouse, Charlie Horne, Dave Whichard, and Frank Dail.

Dail urged all local Jaycees to attend tonight's meeting.

Women have had a lower death rate than men for many years and since 1930 the lives of women have, on the average, been lengthened far more than those of men.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was strong today in the early afternoon with several issues shooting far ahead.

As a general rule, prices were up between 1 and 2 points, with not too many leaders in that category.

U.S. Gypsum was up 15 at 225, Union Pacific added 3 points at 144, and Goodrich was up 5 at 114. Johns-Manville gained 3 at 84 1/2.

Trading was quite heavy at a pace around three million shares for the day one of the highest totals of the year. On Friday when the market was falling slightly, volume came to 2,950,000 shares.

Most major divisions were higher including the steels, motors, aircrafts radio-televisions, metals, oils, airlines, and railroads. Farm implements were neglected along with distillers while chemicals were mixed, and utilities held steady.

Among stocks going up were Jones Laughlin, Bethlehem Steel, Atlantic Coast Line, New York Central, Cities Service, American Metals, General Motors, and Pepsi-Cola.

Tale Of Ex-Slave Rising To Power Again Repeated

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The rise of a slave to a position of power is an age-old theme of Arab storytellers. The saga was repeated when Arabia's King Saud appointed a new minister of finance to handle his country's oil revenues. The new minister is Mohamed Surour el Sabban, a Negro-born slave.

Mohamed Surour was called to the ministry after the resignation of aging Sheikh Abdullah Suleiman. Under the old administration, Saudi Arabia's government had slipped deeply into debt, even though it had an oil income of 230 million dollars yearly. A series of scandals in the ministry added to the fiscal confusion. Sheikh Abdullah Suleiman had to go, and King Saud sought a man both capable and honest to put his house in order.

His choice Mohamed Surour, had worked for Abdullah Suleiman as secretary for many years and had demonstrated his ability. Not the slightest tinge of corruption was attached to his name.

With some foreign technical help, the new finance minister hopes to put Saudi Arabia's finances in working order and to keep the free-spending royal family solvent.

Since most of the other key portfolios are held by brothers of King Saud, the former slave has become the strongest nonroyal person in the country.

His family were Negroes brought to Mecca from northeast Africa in the slave trade that still flourishes in the Arabian peninsula. Mohamed's father, owned by the Sabban family of Mecca, was freed as an old man. The Sabbans took the child Mohamed Surour into their household and brought him up with their children. Arabian traditions allow a slave to adopt the family name of his masters if he is brought up in the household, so Mohamed Surour officially became a Sabban.

The young slave became a brilliant student and early in his life emerged as the leading poet of the Hejaz. His political career began with a prison term. He was arrested and jailed for leading a conspiracy against King Ibn Saud years ago. Wily old Sheikh Abdullah Suleiman intervened to have him freed and engaged him as secretary in the Ministry of Finance.

Driver Charged In Sunday Wreck

A man was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way after the car he was driving was involved in a collision with a second vehicle yesterday afternoon.

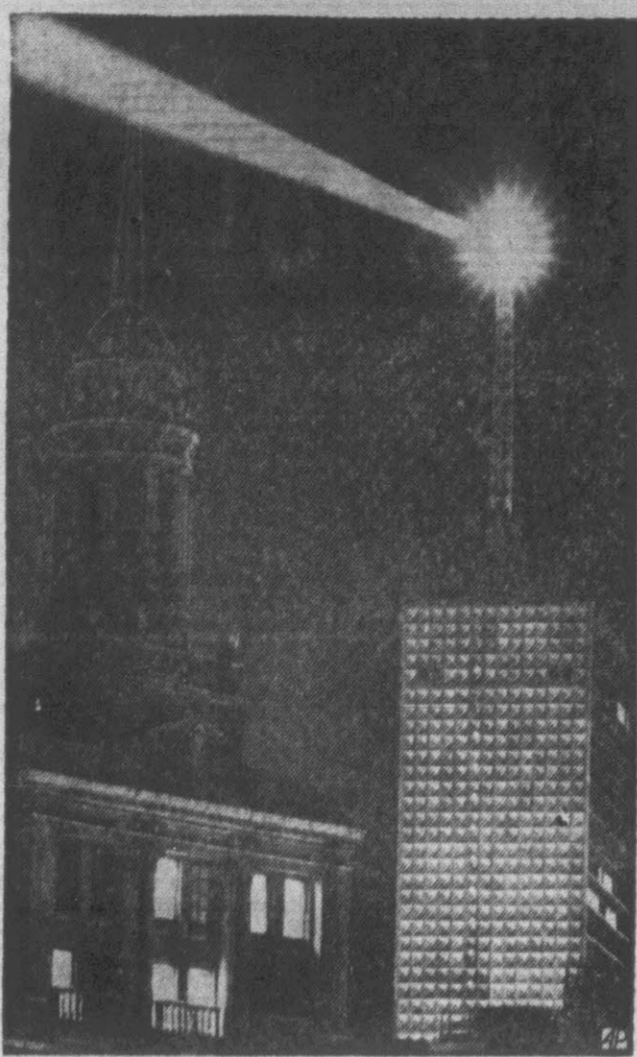

Jimmy R. Skinner was charged in the accident after the vehicle he was operating collided with a second car driven by Jesse McLawhorn of Elizabeth City. The accident occurred at Eleventh and Evans Streets about 3:10 p.m. Damage to the two cars amounted to approximately $150.

The accident was investigated by Lieutenant R. W. Harris and Patrolman J. E. Gurganus.

SUN ON A PEDESTAL? — This weird light is the huge beacon atop the 40-story Republic National Bank building in Dallas, Texas, visible from 120 miles away. The old bank building's tower is caught in the beam. John Mazzotta of the Dallas News set telephoto lens at F-16 for 30 seconds and got the bank to stop revolving beacon momentarily to achieve effect.

Military Study Plans For Emergency Center

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The military, with an eye on the hydrogen bomb, is taking another look at plans for alternate emergency command posts if the capital faces air attack.

Questions have been raised, it was learned today, over the wisdom of concentrating the military high command at a single location, such as the man-made cavern in western Maryland.

While that underground installation would be used for its original purpose of a central emergency communications center, it might not become the temporary headquarters for the entire Joint Chiefs of Staff and military commands of the three major services — an alternate Pentagon.

Instead, consideration has veered lately toward a dispersal of the headquarters of the several armed forces to separate points outside the capital area. Initial thinking was toward use of established military centers, such as Ft. Belvoir, Va., about 15 miles south of the District of Columbia; Ft. Meade, Md., about 20 miles east; and Norfolk, Va., 150 air miles to the south.

But a re-evaluation of the potentialities of the hydrogen bomb, made after the giant test explosion at the Marshall Islands proving ground last spring, apparently has brought new ideas about the blast destruction. Estimates of the zone of major damage from H-bomb blast effect alone run as much as 150 miles from the point of detonation.

While the underground installation at Ft. Ritchie, about 70 miles northwest of Washington in Frederick County, Md. presumably would escape the blast of a bomb exploded over the capital, it could be vulnerable to one dropped with the purpose of "cratering out" the subterranean installation.

A civilian defense test made last summer reportedly indicated the need for greater dispersal than previously planned not only of military command posts but of civilian government agencies.

The Atomic Energy Commission began planning months ago to move its headquarters out of Washington. Officials say no definite site has been selected yet. The Federal Civil Defense Administration already is moving far away from Washington — to Battle Creek, Mich.

ABC Enforcers Arrest Two On Bootleg Charges

ABC officers made two arrests during the weekend for illegal possession of bootleg whiskey. Officer J. M. Ward said today.

On Saturday night John Whichard, Negro, of Greenville Route 5 was charged with possession of illegal whiskey. Ward said one-half gallon of liquor was found in Whichard's house.

He will be tried in County Court. Also Saturday the officers arrested Willis Langley of 206 Moore Street. One gallon of bootleg liquor was found in Langley's house. He was released under $200 bond and his trial has been set for November 19 in city court.

Members of the sheriff's department assisted ABC officers in the arrests.

Colored News

On Saturday, September 25, 1954, a group of girls (ages 9-14) met at the home of Lucille B. Gorman, 210 Tyson Street. As a result of that meeting a Girls Club was organized and given the name of "Just Us Girls Club," better known as the J.U.G.'s.

The purposes of this club are to encourage them:

1. To use their leisure time wisely;
2. To promote a true spirit of sisterhood;
3. To be willing to share responsibilities with others;
4. To be better homemakers;
5. To promote Christianity;

One of their projects for this year is to contribute money to the School Bus Fund. In order to carry out this plan, they are selling "Booster Buttons" with a football, school colors and the name of the school on them. If you are approached by one of these girls to purchase one of these buttons, please cooperate with them in order that they might fulfill their plans.

Their second for this year is to give a basket of food to a needy family for Thanksgiving.

The members of the club are:

Eloise Smith, president; Jamesena Grimes, vice-president; Lucille B. Gorman, treasurer; Dorothy Latham, recording secretary; Gerald Wilson, corresponding secretary; Mavis Harris, business manager; Erlene Blount, Mary Daniels, Delores Davis, Pattle Laughinghouse, Jackie Smith, Verna Stokes, Virginia Whitehurst, keeper of peace, Ruth White, Rosa Brewington, Sarah Dixon and Mrs. Maggie L. Mallory, advisor.

At the close of the business part of the meeting, the club was entertained by the hostess' mother, Mrs. George T. Gorman, which was enjoyable. She said a closing prayer with the girls that was very encouraging.

The Ladies Social Sorority Club will meet Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Novella Hopkins.

There will be a joint meeting of Pitt 234 Antlered Guard Dept. and Golden Rod Temple 388 Antlered Guard Dept. with the La Grange Elks Lodge on Nov. 26 at the Elks Home on Nov. 9 at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Laura Perkins, formerly of Greenville, died at her daughter's home, 506 Gay Street, in Rocky Mount Saturday morning. Funeral services will be held at Shiloh Primitive Baptist Church in Greenville Tuesday at 2 p.m. Pastor H. B. Hemby will officiate. Burial will be in Brown Hill cemetery.

Surviving are two children, Miss Ethel Perkins of Rocky Mount and William Perkins of Greenville; five grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

The body will remain at Phillips Brothers' Funeral Home, 614 McKinley Ave., until shortly before the funeral service.

What is a martyr? Did Jesus foretell that His Church would have many members who would become martyrs? These questions will be open to discussion tonight at 8 o'clock in Saint Gabriel's Hall. The public is invited to these free talks.

American Legion Supper
The annual barbecue supper and Ladies Night of the Edgar Barnes Post No. 222 will be Thursday, Nov. 11, at 8 p.m. at Norfleet's Tea Room on West 5th Street. Comrades are required to have their 1955 membership cards, which will entitle the bearer to one plate plus a small fee for each guest. You will be able to secure cards the night of the affair, also from Vice Commander Leroy Barnes.
