Air Secretary Says Weapons Can Lay Waste Entire Continent

Talbot Emphasizes Need To Avoid Using Today's Mass-Destruction Tools

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Air Force Harold Talbot said today there are weapons which "can lay waste an entire continent."

And efforts to keep these weapons from being used, he said, can succeed only if nations seek the help of God.

Talbot's address was prepared for a Veterans Day ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

The Air Force chief was designated to represent President Eisenhower in the annual observance of what until now has been known as Armistice Day.

Talbot said he visited the national cemetery recently and walked among the graves of the dead of the past wars. Then he declared:

"The weapons which claimed the brave young men who lie here were formidable enough. And yet they were puny compared with the weapons that human beings can bring to bear against each other in this nuclear age. These are weapons of great destruction.

They can lay waste an entire continent—men, women, children, even the beasts and the vegetation. They can abolish in a single night not only an army, not only a nation, but a whole civilization.

Talbot did not explain which particular weapons he had in mind. He apparently referred to hydrogen weapons.

He said that in his official position he has "intimate knowledge of these weapons, then added:

"Some of them are of such awful power that even the men who build them cannot fully visualize the carnage that would follow their use. This is not the time or place to dwell upon them but I will say this much—just one of these weapons can cause more destruction than all the bombing done by all the nations in the last world war."

"The trouble he said, is with man, not the weapons. He said he knows no man, however ingenious, who destroys, except at the command of man."

"Through the ages," he said, "men in great danger have sought inspiration from a source higher than themselves. It must be so now, more than ever. The more I see of modern engines of destruction, the more I believe that mankind needs the ancient guidance and compassion of religion.

"I do not believe that any government that deals in ruthlessness, in cynicism, in godlessness, can long endure. I do not think that we, or any nation, can face overwhelming dangers of the atomic age and emerge free without the guidance of the wisdom, that only God can give to human beings."

"I believe with all my heart that we can keep the peace only if we seek His help, not to destroy our enemies, but to help us summon the patience, the courage, and if need be, the sternness that will be needed to prevent a war which would destroy us both."

The new designation for "Armistice Day" was authorized by Congress last June.

Budget Is First On Hodges' List

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Luther Hodges says it is his determination to meet squarely the big problems facing the state, "to study them carefully, and to handle them to the best of my ability."

He told his first news conference yesterday that he plans to approach the "man-killing job" of governing in "such a way as not to break anyone down." He was referring to the many leading state officials, including the late Gov. Umstead, who have died in recent years.

Hodges told newsmen he considers the preparation of budget recommendations for the 1955 Legislature as the "most imminent" of the problems. Despite the fact that today is a holiday, Hodges planned to confer with Asst. Budget Director D.S. Coltrane about the budget.

He said he understands the Advisory Budget Commission has "its basic recommendations at least partially worked out."

The new governor was asked if he considers increased taxes inevitable. He replied, "I made the statement several weeks ago as lieutenant governor that some increase would be inevitable if you are to continue the services that are demanded."

Hodges was poised and answered the questions with ease. He had been sworn in only 24 hours earlier to succeed Gov. Umstead who died Sunday.

Hodges said Umstead was "a great and good man" whose "career was one of dedicated devotion to public service."

Asked if he plans to carry out

"the expressed wishes of Gov. Umstead" in meeting problems, Hodges said he would "like to be guided" by Umstead's wishes "subject to convictions of my own."

He indicated he would take into consideration the platform on which Umstead was elected.

A reporter wanted to know if he plans to run for governor in 1956. He replied, "I'm too busy now. . . even to think about any time except the next few months."

Hodges told newsmen he expects to be "guided in large measure by the considered opinion of state committees appointed to study the problems and to make recommendations on the many critical subjects."

He said he plans to confer with the committee appointed by Umstead to make recommendations on the segregation problem and also the committee named to study reorganization of state government.

In answer to a query, Hodges said that for two years he has told local governments they should prepare to shoulder more of the tax burden. He added that his answer did not "relate to the forthcoming" state budget.

The governor was asked if he was in favor of a special tax dispensation as a lure to new industry. His answer was "No." He added that he and other state officials had taken the position that industries which the state wanted would not seek tax advantages.

He said that "at the proper time" he will state his position on a minimum wage law and proposals to separate the Prison Department from the Highway Commission.

Drafting New Note To Russia

Will Reflect Conciliatory Tone Of President In Discussing Air Incident

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department is drafting a new note to Russia on the shooting down of a U.S. Air Force plane, hoping to find out whether the Soviets would seriously like to avoid such incidents in the future.

There is an unusual absence of belligerency in the attitude of both the American and Soviet governments, despite their opposing versions of last Sunday's Far Eastern affair, which cost the life of one American airman.

Only last Sunday Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov expressed to U.S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen at a Moscow dinner the desire to make greater use of diplomacy in ironing out East-West differences.

Malenkov said this means should be taken to prevent relatively minor problems from becoming major issues, according to a report from Bohlen to the State Department.

The new U.S. note, it is understood, will reflect the conciliatory tone in which President Eisenhower discussed the plane incident at his news conference yesterday. And it will be responsive to two paragraphs of a Russian note of last Monday which seemed to create a slight hope of avoiding such aerial clashes in future.

In that note, the Russian government expressed "regret" that what it called previous "violations" of Soviet frontiers by U.S. military planes had led "to absolutely unjustified losses."

It then said it would be in the interest of both the Soviet Union and the United States "to take measures for the prevention of further violations of the Soviet border by American aircraft."

The note added that Russia expects the United States to give "appropriate instructions" to Air Force generals.

Diplomatic officials rejected the Russian claim that the attacks on American planes result from flights over Soviet territory. But they were studying with considerable interest Russia's proposal, however one-sided that something be done.

Just what authorities said, is difficult to foresee unless the Soviets are willing to give rigid instructions to restrain trigger-quick pilots from firing on American aircraft.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

Throng Convergence On Washington To Oppose Censure Move McCarthy Endorsers Rally

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate picked up its censure debate today in an atmosphere of tension heightened by the descent of hundreds of McCarthy admirers on the capitol.

By trains, busses and private cars, partisans of the Wisconsin Republican senator flocked into the city for a "National Rally for McCarthy" to be held in Constitution Hall tonight.

Many of them came to the capitol to buttonhole senators and urge against censure of McCarthy.

Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass.) told reporters 60 persons from Massachusetts had visited him and brought signatures from 4,000 other McCarthy supporters. He said he told them he would listen to the debate before making up his mind.

In advance for the session, Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) said he would propose that the Senate put off a vote on the censure issue until January.

This idea seemed to find little favor. Republican Senator Knowland (Calif.) told newsmen the present session was called for the specific purpose of acting on the censure issue and "I think it should be disposed of during the present session."

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

He added, however that he was "distressed about the theatrical atmosphere." He said he was referring to the crowds and the "tension" in the air.

In response to questions, Dirksen said he did not know of any move among friends of McCarthy to filibuster against a vote at this session.

Knowland said he had found "no evidence of any desire to filibuster," and added: "I don't think it will be tried."

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) predicted Capehart would fail if he tried to get the Senate to postpone the issue until January.

The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the recommendation of a special six-man committee that McCarthy be officially rebuked on grounds that he acted "contemptuously" toward a Senate elections subcommittee which investigated his finances in 1951-52 and that he "repeatedly abused" Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, a witness before McCarthy's investigating committee earlier this year.

Capehart said in an interview before the scheduled resumption of debate that he believes "the great majority of senators" would agree with him a two months' delay would mean "a far more judicial and deliberate consideration of this important matter."

But Capehart who has announced he will vote against censure appeared to lack any widespread support. Jackson, a McCarthy critic, said there was "not a chance" for such a delay move to succeed.

"The Senate wants to get this thing out of the way as soon as possible," he said. "It would reject any postponement."

Such an action as Capehart proposed would entail a new start on the censure move, since the resolution now pending and the committee report in its support will die with the present Congress.

McCarthy clashed yesterday with Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) and was lectured by Sen. Case (R-ND) for "personal abuse" of colleagues in an alternately spirited and dull session before filled galleries.

Asked how he thought he was progressing in his defense, McCarthy replied:

"I don't know. I can tell you more about that in three weeks."

McCarthy disclaimed any knowledge of delaying tactics or of proposed compromises which might fend off a direct vote on censure. Senators Dirksen (R-Ill.) and Bridges (R-NH) were reported trying to draft a substitute for the committee's resolution, but they would not discuss it.

McCarthy gave no evidence that he has in mind anything other than a brilliant display of his position. He has predicted the Senate will vote to censure him.

Sen. Case, a member of the Watkins' group, took issue yesterday with McCarthy's assertion—that in urging censure the committee had served as "the unwitting handmaiden" of the Communist party.

Tobacco Market Here Will Close On November 23

Closing date for the Greenville Tobacco Market has been set for Tuesday, November 23, Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee announced today.

The closing date was set by the executive committee of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade in a meeting yesterday afternoon.

"Greenville will hold its final sale on that date," Whedbee stated in making the announcement. "I want to urge the farmers to get those last barns of tobacco ready and bring them on to Greenville before November 23 which is the date of the final sale."

"The prices on tobacco instead of declining as the end of the season approached have gone higher and tobacco sold higher in Greenville yesterday than it has at any time during the entire year," the sales supervisor declared.

He noted that the market will reopen tomorrow after today's Armistice Day holiday and continue its regular sales until the closing date.

Whedbee said he was "very much pleased" that prices had risen instead of fallen at the end of the season.

He reported that at the end of Wednesday's sales the local market had sold 67,343,096 pounds of tobacco for a total of $36,407,230.73, averaging $54.06 so far this season.

This is 2,046,462 more pounds than were sold during the entire season last year and 4,828,912 more pounds than the local market sold in 1952. The sales supervisor pointed out. Greenville sold 65,296,634 pounds in 1953 and 62,514,184 pounds in 1952.

Says Red China's Actions Belie Peaceful Words Dulles Sees Aggressive Aura

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles declared today that Communist China is showing an aggressive intent in Asia which belies its protestations of peace.

It was against this menace that the United States and seven other nations signed the Manila Pact two months ago, he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in calling for approval of the agreement.

Dulles addressed the committee for a half-hour, then submitted to questioning by members. While no effective opposition is expected, some senators—like Mansfield (D-Mont.), who has traveled the Orient extensively—said they had some questions to ask.

Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.) forecast quick committee approval of the treaty. At the same time Wiley, chairman of the group, hoisted a caution signal on new German sovereignty and rearmament agreements.

President Eisenhower yesterday asked the committee to complete its study of the Southeast Asia defense pact during the current special Senate session. This would pave the way for speedy action after the new Congress meets Jan. 5. Senate leaders hope to confine the present session to the move to censure Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

The secretary said the Manila Pact marks a "major further step" in the Free World's efforts to sustain peace in the Pacific as elsewhere. Significant also, he said, is a companion document—the Pacific Charter which emphasizes the right of peoples to choose their own governments.

Dulles ticked off places and situations which he said showed Red China's "aggressive intent."

Among these he listed:

1. Existence of a "Free Thai" movement inside China, just across the border from Thailand.

2. Doubling since the Geneva conferences the portion of Indochina claimed by the Communist Vietnamese.

3. Domination by the Communists of two provinces in northern Laos.

4. Vigorous efforts to communize China in Singapore.

5. Maintenance in China's Yunnan Province "where there certainly is no risk of attack," of a large armed force of Red Chinese.

There are other examples he said, and all of them add up to

"an aggressive intent which belies their protestations of a desire for peace."

"That fact," Dulles said, "is recognized by the nations which met early in September at Manila and signed the Manila Pact."

Dulles said the United States would have welcome more members—presumably a reference to such Asian countries as India, Burma, and Indonesia. But he noted these and others could come in upon agreement of the signatory countries.

Even so, he said, the eight-power agreement is "important and adequate to build a very substantial defense against the menace to which I referred."

50,000 Take Oath As Americans

By RAY KOHN NEW YORK (AP)—Call it imagination, but the Statue of Liberty today has her chin raised a proud notch and her torch held even higher as she listens to the oath of allegiance fervently voiced by 50,000 new citizens of the United States.

It's our first Veterans Day—formerly Armistice Day—and our first holding of mass naturalization ceremonies, from coast to coast of the 48, and across the Pacific to Hawaii and Guam.

These 50,000 are men and women from many countries. Most are Displaced Persons.

They include a Catholic priest who narrowly escaped execution by the Nazis, a Rabbi who fled from invading Russian and German armies, a Russian seized by the Nazis and thrown into a concentration camp in Poland.

Imagine how "Miss Liberty" must look to them, with what warmth they recall the phrase graven on her statue: ". . . Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free."

Some 16,000 new citizens take "the oath" in New York City alone. Their swearing-in occurs in typically American surroundings—baseball's Ebbets Field in Brooklyn and the Polo Grounds in Upper Manhattan.

Is it only the eager, the ambitious, the young who want U.S. citizenship?

Take the case of Aron Rimsky. He was born in Odessa, Russia, 74 years ago. The first 43 years of his life he resided in his native land. Then came the Russian revolution.

The mass naturalization ceremonies, originated by the Immigration Service to dramatize the importance of citizenship, cuts batches of red tape to clear up

Claim Treasure Is Japan's Hope

TOKYO (AP)—A fantastic treasure of 64 billion dollars in gold bars, reputedly buried in a Japanese mine by a warlord who sacked Korea in the 16th century, was cited today as Japan's best hope for prosperity without American aid.

If there is such a treasure. The newspaper Sangyo Keizai today said recently discovered documents, certified as ancient and authentic by historians, tell of the treasure buried in a deserted silver mine near the central Japan industrial city of Osaka.

It said the Sumitomo Metal Mining Co. would hunt the gold. Kanichiro Kamel, an obscure former legislator, is credited with finding the documents. They tell the final chapter in the saga of Toyotomi Hideyoshi, a powerful war lord who invaded Korea in 1592.

Hideyoshi, often called the "Napoleon of Japan," overran the southern half of Korea in a few months. But six years later the Ming Dynasty marched its Chinese army horde down the Korean Peninsula and Hideyoshi fled to his Osaka headquarters.

Besides the gold, he is credited with bringing back 10,000 Korean ears which were pickled and kept in a shrine for years.

Hideyoshi fell ill at Osaka and moved to safeguard the gold. He cleared the Tada silver mine, 15 miles northwest of Osaka, of miners. He forced convicts to bury his fabulous treasure.

Tobacco Crop Is Fourth Largest

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department says this year's tobacco crop will be the fourth largest on record, exceeded only in 1946, 1951 and 1952.

The estimate was made despite a reduction of one per cent in the department's earlier forecast for the flue-cured crop. The new estimate for the flue-cured crop is for 1,328,000,000 pounds. The estimate for all types of tobacco is 2,156,000,000 pounds.

Burley production was estimated at about 12 million pounds more than a year ago, around 582,000,000 pounds. The burley yield is expected to be about 1,460 pounds an acre, 65 pounds above the previous record yield two years ago and 224 pounds above average.

North Carolina's burley production was estimated at 20,500,000 pounds, the same as last year.

Here is the breakdown of the flue-cured production shown in parentheses:

Type 11—North Carolina 312,550,000 (261,870,000). Type 12—Eastern North Carolina Belt 475,950,000 (450,160,000). Type 13—North Carolina 111,800,000 (120,275,000). South Carolina 143,940,000 (172,630,000).

'Special Amendment' Urged On Governors

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP)—Acting Gov. Charley E. Johns of Florida proposed today that President Eisenhower call a special session of Congress immediately to submit a constitutional amendment which would allow the states to maintain separate but equal public schools for the races.

Johns made the proposal in opening the annual Southern Governors Conference. He urged the conference to make such a request of the President, or in the alternative that Southern governors call special sessions of their legislatures to petition for enactment of such a constitutional change.

"I feel that in doing this, we as the governors of the sovereign states of America will be facing up to our responsibilities and that the President of the United States and the national Congress should do likewise," Johns said.

Johns' proposal came as somewhat of a surprise, since the segregation matter wasn't on the official conference agenda and most governors attending had expressed the views in separate interviews that each state should decide for itself what course it should pursue.

But Johns fired up the touchy segregation issue at the very outset, thus clearing the way for a probable general discussion of the issue at an executive session of the conference Saturday afternoon which includes resolutions.

Johns said the U. S. Supreme Court may if decision outlawing segregation in the nation's public schools had upset an earlier ruling that equal but separate facilities for white and Negro students was legal.

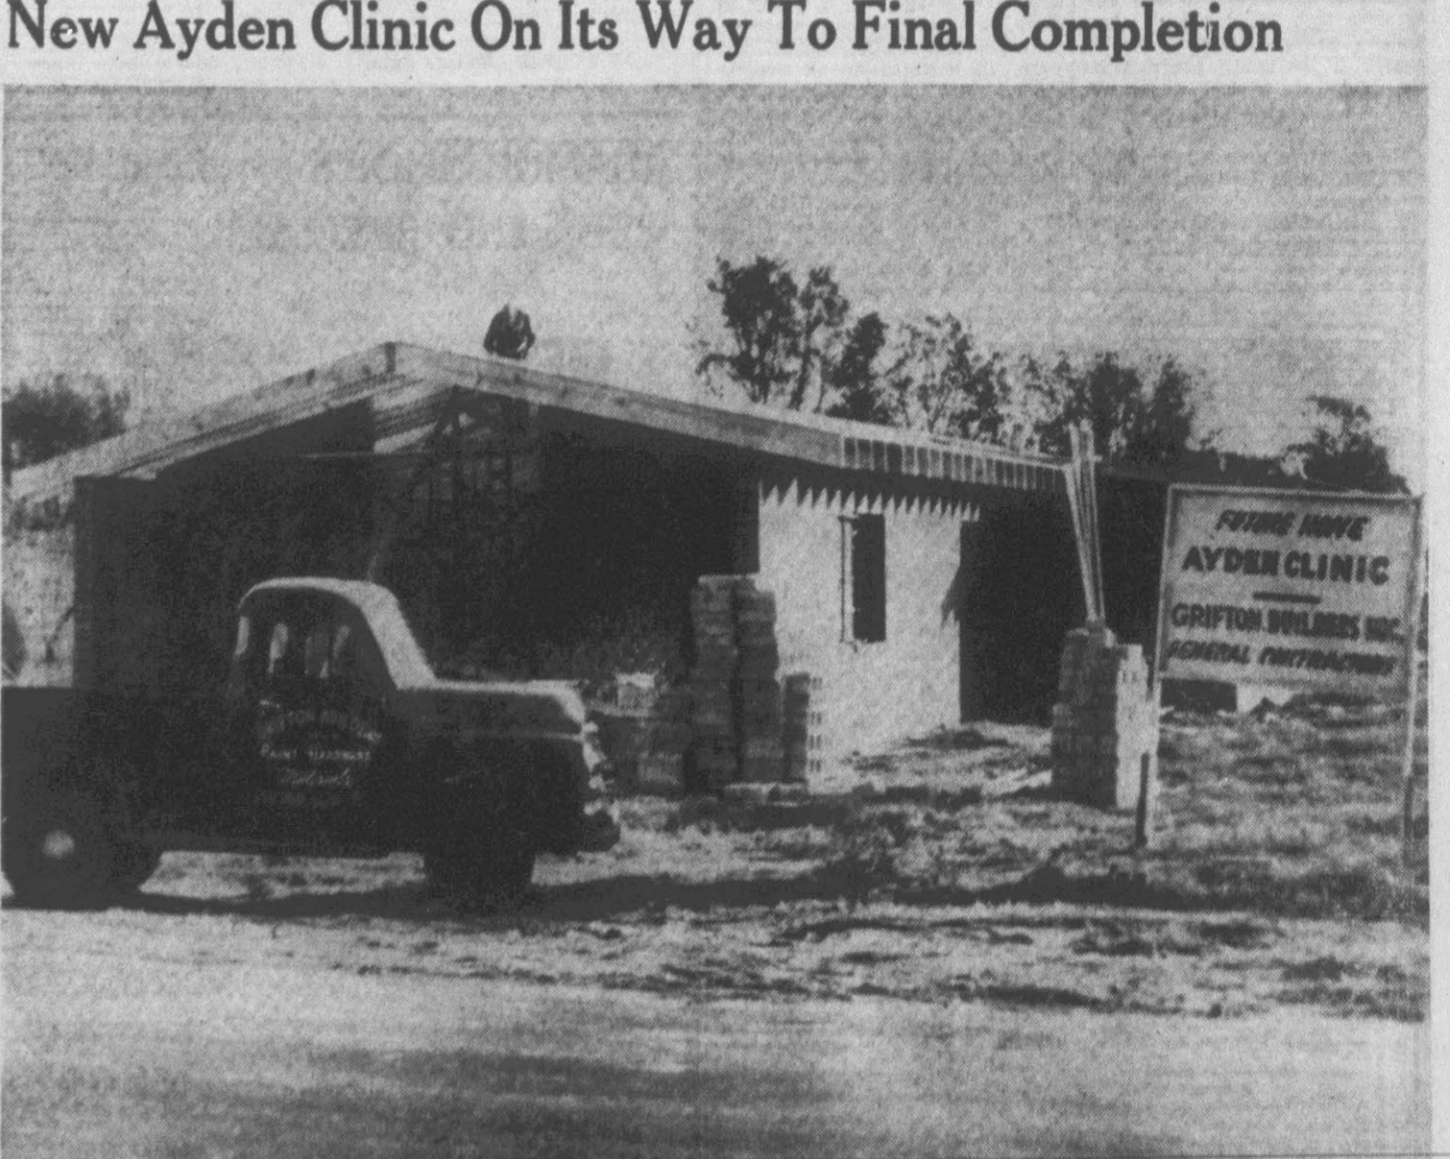

we in the South, as well as those in the North and in the West, have made tremendous investments to provide separate but equal educational facilities for our white and colored," Johns said.

"Then came the decision of the United States Supreme Court which represented a change in thinking on the part of the justices who occupy the highest tribunal in the world," the Florida governor said.

"That decision, which impressed the philosophy of those justices upon the Constitution as written by our forefathers, has created turmoil and confusion, not only in the Southland but also from Maine to California.

"The question of whether or not our schools shall be segregated is by far too great an issue to rest simply upon a judicial opinion of only nine men, particularly when there is a constitutional method by which the people themselves may be permitted to speak."

Earlier, it had appeared that most Southern governors had discarded any idea of trying to recommend a common course of action in meeting the Supreme Court edict that segregated public schools must go

Work on the new Ayden Medical Clinic is approximately one-third completed. S. M. Edwards, Jr., secretary of the Ayden Clinic Builders, Incorporated reported today. The out-patient section of the new building is pictured above. An in-patient section is to be built when additional funds are raised. Edwards said. The entire project is to cost an estimated $60,000. The clinic to be staffed by two physicians. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor.)

S. M. Edwards Jr., secretary of the Ayden Clinic Builders Inc., said today that about one-third of the new Ayden Clinic Building has been completed.

The one-third completion refers to the out-patient treatment section, which will contain about two-thirds of the Clinic, according to specifications in the present contract.

Edwards also disclosed that citizens are now being canvassed for additional funds for the construction of an in-patient clinic which will also be a part of the same building. The entire project, it is estimated, will cost about $60,000.

The clinic will be staffed by two new doctors for Ayden, Dr. Clifton Davernott from Dover and Dr. M. Alexander from Lexington. They will rent the building in the beginning, and plan eventually to buy it. The Ayden Clinic Builders Inc. is a non-profit association of private citizens formed for the specific purpose of planning, constructing and raising funds for the new building.

Existentialism Discussed At Lecture Club

Dr. Larry Eckles of the East Carolina College department of English discussed the main postulates of the modern philosophy of Existentialism at a meeting Tuesday night of the Faculty Lecture Club of the college. He spoke before an audience of approximately fifty members and guests from the city of Greenville.

Dr. James Poindexter of the faculty introduced Dr. Eckles, who joined the East Carolina staff last September. Dr. Poindexter pointed out that residence in both France and Germany and philosophical studies over a long period fitted Dr. Eckles to deal competently with his subject.

Introducing his remarks, Dr. Eckles told his audience that this "philosophy is not for the faint of heart" and added that to present "an expose of Existentialism is also not for the faint of heart."

Basing his discussion mainly on the writings of Joan Barro, a leading exponent of Existentialist views, he outlined and analyzed in detail the position of the Existentialists and indicated the wide influence exerted by the philosophy today.

Discussion from the floor, with Dr. Theodore Eaton as presiding officer, followed the talk by Dr. Eckles. Comments drew attention to the importance of Existentialism in literature of the present day and perhaps of the future and to the derivative nature of many of its ideas.

The Building Fund Committee reported progress in its work and told of the new sign which has been placed on the site of The King's Daughters Home for the Aged on East Tenth Street.

Following the report of the committee, Miss Mamie Chandler, in a very impressive ceremony, installed the following officers for the coming year: Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, president; Mrs. V. P. W. Winstead, assistant treasurer of the building fund.

Mrs. V. P. Scoville presented the program for the evening. She told of The King's Daughters work at Chataqua, describing the work done there in supporting three homes—Benedict Scholarship House, Florence Hall and Bonnie Hall—which house the boys and girls from all states in the Union.

During the social hour the hostesses served spiced tea, sandwiches and cookies. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. H. C. Sugg, Mrs. E. L. Baker, Mrs. Annie Long and Mrs. Virginia Perkins.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR November 11, 1924

Armistice Day was observed in Greenville in a most appropriate manner. Several weeks ago the American Legion sold to the business houses flags to be used in decorating the city. They were placed in front of each store and will be used as a permanent decoration. The parade which was the feature of the program was composed of the Boy and Girl Scouts, school children, ex-service men, Civil War and Spanish American War veterans and floats from the various civic organizations.

Following the parade a barbecue dinner was served at the Fair Grounds. In the afternoon the Greenville High School football squad staged a game. Several hundred visitors with the ex-service men attended the celebration, and it drew the most enjoyable Armistice Day since the memorable event six years ago.

Report Senator To Be Improving

HYANNISPORT, Mass. (AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy former ambassador to Britain, says that contrary to "disturbing rumors" his son, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), is doing well after a recent operation.

He said "unfounded" rumors imply that his son's condition is such that he will be unable to resume his seat in the Senate. Such reports are not in accordance with the facts.

The Hospital for Special Surgery, New York, where Kennedy underwent surgery for a spinal condition, described his condition as "very satisfactory."

Traffic Control For Home Use

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A Charlotte man found his two-car garage simply wasn't big enough for both his car and his wife's. At least when she got there first.

So he borrowed an idea from the traffic department and painted two broad yellow stripes down the center.

It works.

Art Notes

By James A. Walker
A series of 23 watercolors by Phillip Moore of Newton, N.C. opens the art exhibition season at the Greenville Art Gallery, Sheppard Memorial Library. His one-man show consists of paintings executed in Europe and in New Mexico.

Phillip Moore, besides having received a 1948 Pulitzer Art Award, two scholarships from the Tiffany Foundation, a Fulbright Scholarship, has had many other honors by way of awards and one-man exhibitions. He has also exhibited in England and in New York City with favorable reviews.

There is a change in the work of Phillip Moore since his paintings were last seen at the Greenville Art Gallery. His watercolors used to be much like "Along the Lake" in Maine. Now we see more modernistic paintings such as "View of Cagnes," painted on the French Riviera, "Rooftops" painted in Salzburg, and "On Capri" painted in Italy. None of his newer paintings are too abstract for the public to enjoy. They are, however, semi-abstract and mainly executed while on a Fulbright Scholarship.

"View of Cagnes" is a somewhat closed-in design with triangles of dark buildings enlivened by bright colors which convey the mystery of the life within the sheltering walls on the French Riviera. It is an unusually interesting painting and one that stands out from others in the show. "Bayou Church" is another interesting painting.

In other works of Phillip Moore we see a rather literal representation and the brushwork throughout is free and mostly opulent. One might hope that occasionally such a capable painter would use more exaggeration or imagination in composing his pictures.

There are mostly landscapes. In some, such as "By The Sea," "Harbor-Capri" and "Munich Ruins," the picture is made up of an arrangement of flat, strongly colored shapes against bluish skies. Sometimes accented with pen and

Ladies of Courage Reviewed Before Aries Book Club

The Aries Book Club was entertained Thursday evening, Nov. 4th, at the home of Mrs. Leo Jenkins, in the absence of the president, the meeting was called to order by Mrs. Marshall Starkey who presided over the short business session.

Guests for the evening were Mrs. Dixie McLawhorn, Mrs. Lillian Weeks, Miss Velma Lowe and the club sponsor, Mrs. Wendell Smiley. Mrs. Dallas Clark gave an extremely interesting review of "Ladies of Courage" by Eleanor Roosevelt and Lorene Hickok. One hundred and six years ago, July 20, 1848, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, wife of State Senator Stanton, stood up at what was the first Women's Rights Convention and read, "It is the duty of the women of this country to secure for themselves the right to the elective franchise." Some of the other ladies of courage mentioned were Lucretia Mott, Anna Dickinson, Molly Dawson, Helen Gahagan Douglas and Dorothy McCullough Lee. The "Ladies of Courage" is dedicated to Molly Dawson who came to Washington in 1933 to take over as head of the country's Democratic women and to inaugurate a new deal of her own, a new deal for women in politics. The book contains a profile of Eleanor Roosevelt which is most interesting.

As club president Mrs. A. W. Bryan is leaving, the short subject matter was utilized to present surprise gifts to her when she came to the refreshment hour. Each gift was to have been accompanied by an appropriate poem.

Following this guests were invited into the dining room where delicious refreshments were served. Books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Patrolman Added To Police Force

James Lee Ross has recently been added to the local police force as a patrolman.

Ross is from Ayden, is married, 32 years old, and formerly worked for the Ayden Police Department, and for the DuPont Company. He is also a veteran of five years service in the army.

Pitt County Girl Scout Council To Support National Project

The Pitt County Girl Scout Council held its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening, November 8th, at the Rotary Club with 12 members present. Mrs. Charles A. White, president, opened the meeting by asking all members to stand and repeat the Girl Scout Promise. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, and approved by the Council, after which Mrs. White called for reports from chairmen of the standing committees.

Mrs. S. M. Crisp, Juliette Low Chairman, announced that a national project of the Girl Scouts was the restoration of the birthplace of Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scouts of America. Since Savannah, the site of this beautiful old home, is in Region VI to which the local Council belongs, Mrs. Crisp expressed the hope that individual Council members would contribute generously and that every troop in the Pitt County area would make a contribution.

Mr. C. B. Bissette, chairman of the Camp Committee, reported that Camp Hardee withstood "Hurricane Hazel" with remarkable stamina but that several trees had been uprooted and the beach had sustained some damage. He stated that necessary repairs would be made immediately.

Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Jr., publicity chairman, reported on newspaper publicity during the month of October.

Mrs. M. P. Hoot, Service League representative, stated that she had contacted the civic clubs of the city with respect to giving camperships to deserving Brownies and Scouts next summer and had received affirmative replies from several.

Mrs. Frank Allen of Farmville announced that the Farmville Community Chest had assured the Pitt County Girl Scout Council that the financial support requested from that community would be forthcoming.

Mrs. J. K. Proctor, Executive Director, reported that response to the "Trick or Treat" program was very gratifying in both Greenville and Farmville. Brownies and Scouts, instead of asking for a "treat" on Halloween, asked for clothes and bedding for victims of the recent hurricane. These were collected at troop meetings and turned over to the American Red Cross for distribution.

Mrs. Proctor also informed the Council that Dr. Leo Jenkins had requested that the Girl Scout organization give a program in connection with the college course entitled "The Pre-Adolescent Child and His Environment." This is a continuation of the television course now in progress under the direction of Miss Annie Mae Murray on "Guiding Your Child." Thirty-six subjects will be considered during the winter quarter and the influence of Scouting on the pre-adolescent is one of them.

It was announced that the Pitt County Council is fortunate enough to be on the itinerary of the Girl Scout Camping Caravan. This consists of a team of experts on every phase of camp life which is sent from national headquarters to train troop leaders and camp personnel in the intricacies of camp craft. The caravan will visit Pitt County next year.

Mrs. White asked the Council whether it considered an annual tea or dinner the most desirable means of presenting the Girl Scout program to the public. After a brief discussion the Council voted to continue the practice instituted two years ago, of holding a tea in January to which everyone interested in Scouting will be invited. At that time the annual report of the Council will be presented to the public.

After welcoming two new members to the Council (Mrs. Witcher Dudley III, newly-elected president of the Leader's Club, and Mrs. Edgar Barrett, leader-representative from Farmville) the meeting was adjourned.

Shaping Up The New-New Look

INSIDE STORY... Henry Plehn inspects two new bra models designed to mold the figure to the new long-torso silhouette. "Saint" is the white bra, with modified bust, "Sinner," in black, has more curves.

By DROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor
The fit of the new French look fashions depends on the shape of the girl beneath, says Henry Plehn, American bra manufacturer who has been influencing U.S. curves for a number of years.

No sooner had Christian Dior's edict of a flattened bustline rocked the world than Plehn, who was among startled spectators in the Paris designer's salon, rushed home to bolster up the American girls morale—and her curves. Says he:

"We have modified and adapted the new look so that it will flatter the American figure, and I really think the girls are going to like it. There's positively no flattening of the bust in the new bras. The boxom is less exaggerated than formerly—but there was a period there when most women seemed to get there 10 minutes ahead of their feet."

"One thing is certain—the new long-torso fashions with the higher bustline must be worn with foundation garments planned especially for the new silhouette."

Plehn's version of the French look is a long strapless bra which molds the body from hipline to bust. The waist is less nipped than formerly, but not exaggerated. The distance from waist to bust seems longer because the line is straighter. Actually this U.S. version of the French bra raises the bust only about one inch, instead of the two inches advocated by Dior. Says Plehn:

"If you tried to raise the bust a full two inches, women would have a pouter pigeon look. That we do not advise."

Plehn first got his idea for an uplift bra while observing the George Washington bridge—the uplift principle, you know. Cogitating on stresses and tensions, he set about designing a bra along engineering principles because, as he explains:

"I wanted to do something for the forgotten woman. I had noticed that at this period most U.S. women were undersized in the bust, and also figured that 75 percent of the women were wearing the wrong size bras. They figured the bra didn't show, and so didn't worry too much about it."

"Now we've changed all that. Most women know that it's just as important to have a fitting for a new bra as it is for a new dress. And if you want the dress to look as it should, the shape beneath must be right."

Plehn believes that the present modified adaptation of the French silhouette is here to stay for quite a while—and a good thing, too, says he.

A Timely Report For Tar Heels

For North Carolinians who want full and factual information on the Supreme Court decision banning segregation in public schools, and a discussion of the legality of various plans to meet the consequences of the ruling, we recommend the recently published report to the governor by the Institute of Government of the University of North Carolina.

The report has been published in book form is attracting considerable attention

A Difficult Task Faces Gov. Hodges

Has ever the mantle of governor fallen upon the shoulders at a more crucial time than now upon the shoulders of Gov. Luther Hodges?

Among the many problems which face North Carolina in the coming months are the all important questions concerning the Supreme Court's decision outlawing segregation in public schools, and the matter of state finances in the face of high government costs, demands for more state facilities and services, and shrinking revenues.

It is a gigantic task which faces Gov. Hodges as he assumes the responsibilities of the chief executive of the state. He has perhaps watched more closely the state's administration than any lieutenant governor in many years, but still he can not be expected to be up to the minute on the intricate operation of state affairs. For a while at least he must work with subordinates chosen by another man, and who perhaps do not fully agree with his political philosophy or his methods of administration.

For a while at least he must follow the administrative program already begun by the late Gov. Umstead, and at the same time seek to formulate his own program and make the two dovetail in the best possible manner. He must carry out the programs approved by the last General Assembly, and in two short months formulate his own legislative program for presentation in January.

All in all, it is a big job for one man. He'll need a great deal of drive, patience, tact and cooperation to get the job done.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THAT SURE VICTORY

In a new book on spiritual recovery about to be published, J. Edgar Hoover, in the introduction, declares that "Our record of law violation has become a national disgrace. Today, one out of every 16 persons in the United States has been arrested and fingerprinted. . . For every dollar given to the church, crime cost us $10." Mr. Hoover has also announced that the year 1954 may be the worst crime year in our nation.

Add to Mr. Hoover's statement the fact that a major crime is committed every 14 seconds and that the present divorce rate, if it continues at its present trend, will mean that by 1960 we will have half as many divorces each year as we have marriages, and the jeopardy of our position is clearly recognized.

What are we going to do about this? Throw up our hands in despair? Or sit with folded hands and say we can do nothing about it? Or shrug our shoulders and say, "So what?" There have been moral crises in the world from the beginning of time, and our forebears have wrestled with evil and got the upper hand. As Christians we should remember that Jesus Christ won a complete and permanent victory over evil, and to the extent that our lives mingle with His and that we share his power, we also can be victorious. Present-day moral situations are appalling but they are not hopeless. "There is a victory that overcometh the world, even our faith."

Zionists Count On Democrats

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—American Zionists count heavily on the next Democratic Congress to reverse and repudiate the Administration's allegedly pro-Arab and anti-Israel policy in the strategic Middle East. They placed their hopes and their votes on the opposition in the recent off-year election.

Although it is not generally realized, resentment against the Eisenhower-Dulles program for building an anti-Communist front in this area figured importantly in the November 2 contest. Politicians estimate that a vast majority of the Jewish vote in the large and small cities went to the Democrats because of this single issue.

It is believed to have accounted for the defeat of Senator Irving M. Ives by Averell Harriman in the New York Governorship fight, and for Franklin D. Roosevelt's loss of the Attorney Generalship to Representative Jacob A. Javits. Another victim in the controversy may have been John Lodge, Republican Governor of Connecticut. He lost out to Abraham A. Ribicoff.

With the Congressional races so close, a few thousand votes swayed by a single factor could have decided the outcome.

DRIVE FOR ISRAEL—The pro-Israel forces staged a determined propaganda drive on the eve of election, admittedly in an attempt to elect friends to Congress. In reply to protests by the Egyptian Embassy here, they maintained that, as American citizens, they had every right to "criticize certain policies of their Government which they regard as mistaken and harmful to true American interests."

The pre-election campaign began on October 25, when the leaders of sixteen American Jewish organizations called on Secretary Dulles. They represented groups interested in labor, civic, welfare, veterans, religious and public affairs.

They protested formally against any grant of arms to the Arab states until they agree to negotiate a final peace with Israel. They also demanded that military aid be given to Palestine.

not only in North Carolina, but in other Southern States and throughout the nation.

In a recent editorial in the New York Times entitled "A Southern Reconnaissance," the newspaper said in part:

"North Carolina has been one of the Southern peacemakers in studying the implications of the Supreme Court's opinion. As able, nonpolitical commission composed of state leaders in education, in business and in the social science and in the professions was named by Governor Umstead to study the public school system of the state in the light of the court's opinion. The Institute of Government of the University of North Carolina has made a report to the Governor dealing with the interracial life of the state, which, historically and statistically and for its educational value is almost without parallel in this field of research."

North Carolinians may not like all they read in the report to the governor, or agree with all the conclusions drawn by the authors of the report. Nevertheless, it must be admitted that the report is a legal analysis of the issues confronting Southern schools, and therefore contains reliable and timely information for lawyers and non-lawyers alike in North Carolina.

It affords the people of the state a comprehensive insight into many of the problems which will confront all the citizens of the state in the days ahead.

Armistice Day Now Has Become History

The old "Armistice Day" observance had lost its significance for a new generation of Americans who in their turn had fought two wars in the name of Freedom.

So today the nation is observing Veterans Day as a tribute not only to the men of World War I, but for all . . . past, present and future . . . men and women who served their country in uniform.

The survivors of World War II knew that in scope theirs was the greatest conflagration in history; the veterans of Korea would willingly compare the bitterness and hardships of their campaign with any; but there was no day of observance for the close of those conflicts. Today belongs to all our veterans, their parents and survivors.

There are thousands of veterans in Pitt County, and hundreds are now in uniform. We're fortunate no casualty lists pose a daily dread for relatives and friends, but though there is no war our servicemen are contributing much to the peace and security of our homes and theirs.

We have much to be thankful for in our veterans. In peace or war they serve America.

Selected Shorts

FORT PIERCE, FLA., NEWS-TRIBUNE: "There is no doubt about it, when governmental agencies—whether they be federal, state or local—go behind closed doors to conduct business, the people's interests are likely to suffer. So-called 'executive' sessions should be a danger signal to freedom-loving Americans. Many of our scandals, our international failures and troubles, our graft and abuses have their source in governmental secrecy. The people's business, whatever and wherever it be, should be conducted out in the open, aboveboard and without fear of consequences."

TIFFON, GA., DAILY GAZETTE: "The U. S. Army, it seems, has found itself much overstocked on an item it calls a staff study." To quote a recent news dispatch, the Army "makes so many staff studies it cannot keep track of them all. Sometimes two or more staffs are making the same study at the same time."

OPPOSE SUEZ SETTLEMENT—The delegation also criticized the settlement of the Anglo-Egyptian dispute over the Suez Canal base, which President Eisenhower and Dulles cited as a major diplomatic achievement. They argued that this agreement, with our subsequent promise to lift the arms embargo on Egypt, would further upset the military balance in this area.

The American Zionist Council next issued a pamphlet, entitled "Stop the War against Israel." It charged that "our Government is actually subsidizing aggression, strife and social decay" in the Middle East. Secretary Dulles promised to give consideration to these protests, and denied that the United States had any intention of favoring the Arab bloc over Israel.

But the Zionists demand action rather than words. They note, significantly, that Dulles did nothing when these same verbatim complaints were presented to him many weeks ago by Abba Eban, the Israeli Ambassador at Washington. He has seen Dulles many times on this problem, and has made no attempt to conceal his resentment.

HEAVIEST POLITICAL ROUND—The American Zionist Council fired its heaviest political round a week before the polls opened. It made public a statement incorporating the protest it submitted to Dulles, and signed or approved, it said, by 315 candidates for Congress. The final paragraph declared:

"The premature supply of arms to the Arab states without conditions will, in effect, delay peace, stimulate Arab hostility against Israel and obstruct the organization of an effective defense system in this region. Verbal assurances of good intentions, alternating with threats and appeals to hatred, are meaningless performances upon which no reliance can be placed."

More than 200 of the 315 who signed or approved this declaration were Democrats, and many were elected to Congress. It is now a major headache for Ike and Dulles, in view of the political threat at home and the diplomatic repercussions abroad.

Somebody Told Me

Sounded Like Army Recruiter

Yesterday I was talking to Master Sergeant Charlie Hooks of Greenville, who is now stationed in Kinston. Charlie didn't know he was talking for print, but his spell resembled that of the recruiting department.

It started when I asked Charlie when he was going overseas. He said he had applied for transfer to Trieste when it was decided to withdraw American and British occupational troops from the country.

Since I have been talking to the GI's in Germany via short wave, I have been particularly interested in the conditions over there. Charlie says they are great. Nice homes and everything furnished. For example, here's the set-up Charlie would have: A six-room house, completely furnished, with a lawn already developed. The Army cuts the grass, if the oil tank is empty the Army fills it up and if the fence falls down all you have to do is put in a phone call and the fence is immediately erected for you.

Schools? They are paid for by the Army, with capable instructors. And let's not bring the retirement angle into the story. That would make it almost appealing enough for me to go back in.

When the two-year-old son, Don, found some of my bolts and nuts, took them to the table and poured them into the beans, I slapped myself on the forehead so hard that my ring made a knot. Wife Rachel didn't laugh, but merrily flamed the nuts and bolts out of the beans and continued the meal without a hitch.

History in the making: The world's biggest monthly magazine, the Reader's Digest, will begin to take advertisements. The decision changes the 33-year-old policy of the magazine, because a survey of readers revealed that they had rather have ads than to have an increase in subscription rates. The ads will be limited to 32 pages. A black-and-white full page ad in one issue will cost $25,500. That figures up to about $10 million a year in additional revenue for the Digest.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

VISION IN THE SOUTH (Editor and Publisher)

During dedication ceremonies at Bowaters' new $60,000,000 newsprint mill in Tennessee October 9, the president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association paid tribute to the company's "vision and initiative" in selecting the site in the South.

We think Peyton Anderson of the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph and News, SNPA president, was characteristically modest as to the role all Southern newspaper publishers have played in the development of this and the two previous newsprint mills built in the South.

Certainly, Bowaters is to be congratulated for this outstanding achievement. It took vision and initiative. No one can or would detract from the credit due this great organization.

But we think it should be remembered that it was the Southern newspaper publishers themselves who had the vision and initiative 15 years ago to finance and build the first Southern mill at Lufkin, Texas, and pioneer in the manufacture of newsprint from Southern pine. It was the Southern publishers again who showed the initiative in promoting the Coosa River development. And again it was the Southern publishers whose 15-year contracts for tonnage played an important part in obtaining the necessary financing for the new Bowater mill.

Southern newspaper publishers had faith in the economic future of their community. They had faith in the work of Dr. Charles Herty and they backed up that faith with dollars in the first large-scale application of Dr. Herty's process at Lufkin. Other interests might eventually have built newsprint mills in the South. But it was the Southern newspaper publishers who led the way. It was they who had the first vision. It was they who have been largely responsible for transforming the South's cotton and tobacco economy into a diversified industrial economy. Foremost in this has been the development of its vast forest resources as an annual crop.

Around Capitol Square

The Record Written, And Eulogies Wouldn't Change It

By LYNN NISBET
FUNERAL — More than a thousand people gathered in Trinity Methodist Church at Durham for the funeral services of the late Governor William Umstead. Other thousands heard the simple ritual over outside amplifiers. Streets were lined for blocks with still more thousands who stood reverently as the funeral cortege moved from the big city church to the graveyard at Mt. Tabor church in upper Durham county.

Among the attendants were the new Governor of North Carolina and Governor Thomas B. Stanley of Virginia; nearly the whole delegation in the Congress, half of the General Assembly, and a full coterie of State officials. Also present were tenant farmer neighbors of the young William Umstead, Negro servants in the home and the Executive Mansion, bank presidents and school building janitors.

Services in the big church were brief and simple consisting of a few musical selections, the reading of the 23rd Psalm and excerpts from the 14th Chapter of John's Gospel, and a very brief eulogy by a former pastor. Mention was made by one of the ministers that a favorite hymn of the late Governor was "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder." The incident was used to emphasize how many roll calls the deceased statesman had answered—in public school as pupil and teacher, in the service of his State and Nation in numerous capacities—and now had answered the final call.

Other mention included reference to his origin in the red soil country of Durham County, and the fact that "the red earth was in him; the smack and tang of elemental things." Tributes, however, were brief because it was commonly understood they were not necessary. The record has been written and nothing any eulogist can say will change it.

PATROL — The State had mobilized about half the strength of the entire highway patrol to handle convoys of attendants from Raleigh, Chapel Hill, the Raleigh-Durham airport and to escort Governor Stanley from the Virginia line.

Many commendations were heard for the precision and smoothness with which the physical matters were managed. More than a hundred patrol cars were available for official parties, and as many more were stationed along the routes of procession to protect other traffic and keep the convoys moving.

Patrol officials had personally gone over the proposed route the day before and use of intercommunication radio enabled every vehicle to be in position every minute of the time. So it was that without haste or flurry, in a manner that would have delighted William Umstead, the details moved to their ultimate conclusion.

BIG DAY — Oldtimers could not recall from memory, nor historians from records, another day when as many distinguished public officials had gathered in Raleigh and Durham. The usual inauguration ceremonies held every four years brought no such attention as was given the funeral of Governor William Umstead and the equally simple and impressive induction ceremony at which the oath of office was administered to Governor Luther Hodges late that afternoon in the staid old capitol building at Raleigh.

Every time a new Governor is inaugurated it means an old Governor is moving out. The events of Tuesday were unique in that the retiring Governor was retired forever, so far as physical appearance on the scene is concerned, and the New Governor was entering upon what many people believed would be the longest tenure of any Governor in more than one hundred and fifty years.

SWearing in — Shortly after four o'clock Chief Justice M.V. Barnhill of the North Carolina Supreme Court, administered the oath of office as Governor to Luther Hodges. The occasion was a serious event in State history. The oath itself is a very solemn obligation. Actually, Hodges had all the powers and authority of Governor since 9:10 Sunday morning, when Governor William Umstead died. The oath was necessary for him to assume the full title and auxiliary prerogatives of the highest office.

The Chief Justice was serious, the new Governor was obviously impressed by the significance of the occasion. He expressed a very few words how he feels. He said he felt a sense of deep humility and inadequacy, and "I am greatly in need of your prayers, your help and advice."

The actual oath administration and the Governor's comments took less than five minutes. The whole matter of getting the officials and spectators in and out of the century-old capitol building required approximately a full hour.

The solemnity of the ceremony was marred by the almost bizarre array of television lights and cameras, radio microphones with attendant connecting wires, and the intermittent flashing of photographic bulbs. Added to the fact that more than four hundred people were jammed in the ancient hall with seating capacity for about two hundred and fifty, including galleries and lobbies, this made for conditions which did not contribute to the dignity or solemnity of the occasion. The confusion emphasized some of the problems facing the new Governor. The immediate need for modern facilities in the capitol is a small item. More significant was the illustration that Governor Hodges comes to the highest office at a time when many established customs must be abandoned and long time practices changed—not only in the immediate facilities of the capitol building but in all phases of State government.

Opportunistic Niche

By ELMER ROESSNER
Planters may be men with cotton acreage down South. Or they may be individuals or firms with television, movie and a lot of other connections. Like the finders we were talking about yesterday, they occupy a special, opportunistic niche in the economy.

Ever watch television when one comic says to another, "You sure are a ham—a genuine Schultz" or watch a kitchen scene in a movie and spot a large, economy size box of Plunk cereal on the table?

You may wonder why a program sponsored by a soap company would sneak in a plug for Schultz's hams, or why the movie company used Plunk cereals as a prop instead of Pole's flakes.

The answer is that a planter has been at work. For a fee, he has persuaded a prop man, a writer, an actor, a director or someone else to work in the mention. The movies don't like it and have threatened to fire those responsible. The movies get a lot of nasty letters from small-town exhibitors when the plugs romp by. And the networks don't like it and their continuity acceptance departments have instructions to delete trade names unless essential to the plot or gag. But they still get by. One of the reasons they do get by is that the planter rewards his ally with a gift certificate, a case of beverages or a check.

There are a number of companies in New York and Hollywood that specialize in planting. One was started more than 30 years ago to supply movies with free props—most of them, of course, with a trade name clearly visible. Others are publicity firms. Still a lot more planting is done by various hangers-on, or boys with a few angles.

There's one publicity man who used to offer to get a person or a thing mentioned in three movies, two press associations, eight gossip columns, seven magazines and 25 radio or television shows. His fee was somewhere around $25,000 if he got all those mentions in a year and not 1 cent if he failed to fill the quota by as much as one radio show.

Boy, that's planting!
NATIONAL ADVERTISING
7 PER CENT AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

National advertising in September was 3 per cent above a year ago but showed no gain over August, according to Printers' Ink's index. During the first nine months of the year, advertising was 7 per cent above the same 1953 period, with only network radio, women's magazines and farm magazines showing a decline. Network television was up 42 per cent.

CHECK LIST COVERS FOREIGN CONTRACTS

The Foreign Operations Administration conducts a Contact Clearing House Service, by which it attempts to get American and overseas firms together for mutually profitable deals.

So that both parties may fully understand each other, it has prepared a 30-point check list in question form. While it does not pretend to be complete, it does include a lot of points that might easily be overlooked in drawing up agreements and then cause trouble later. It should be useful for firms negotiating without, as well as under, FOA auspices. For copies, ask the Office of Small Business, FOA, Washington 25, D.C., for "CCHS Special Notice No. 54-8." Free.

Seven Days In New Yorker's Life

By BELMAN MORIN
(For Hal Boye)
NEW YORK (AP)—Diary of a New Yorker—

MONDAY — Architect Frank Lloyd Wright, silver mane, opera cape and all, is back in town. He was 85 this year, but nobody could be more youthful in outlook. Says his formula for this is to "keep your people around all the time." Actually, it's more because of his tremendous enthusiasms. He personifies the observation, "Zest is the last gift of the gods." He has great zest.

Right now, he is all excited over his new job — building Guggenheim Museum. Says he has been dreaming all his life of the opportunity to create this particular form in a building. When he looks at his drawings, he has the expression of a man in love. Last time I saw him, he was interested in the writings of a Greek mystic. He is convinced that death is an illusion, and for him certainly life is a great joy.

TUESDAY — Went to a little shindy for Hildegard, who was looking radiant. A very attractive girl, "Hildy," mainly because she has the same zestful quality as F.L.W. Did you ever know she possessed a fine collection of paintings, and is practically an expert in the field?

WEDNESDAY — Sat late and fascinated tonight listening to a discussion of Israel.

It came about when Alfred Liffenthal blew in suddenly from the Middle East. He wrote "What Price Israel," a book that sets forth the reasons why anti-Zionists oppose a Jewish political state. An old Washington pal, Leo Margolin, has had considerable experience with these matters from the legislative angle. His views are about 180 degrees apart from Liffenthal's.

Anyway, we got together and it was a grand thing to hear the pros and cons from two brilliant guys with opposite feelings on the same subject.

THURSDAY — Speaking of books, it was hard to turn out the light tonight on "The Reason Why." This is a wonderful job on that famous incident, the charge of the Light Brigade — by a lady author, no less. In spots, it borders on being hilarious, but I couldn't help but suffer for the poor British Tommy quietly following such officers. The British soldier is a great guy.

FRIDAY — Spent all day working on a piece about Univac, the electronic brain. You may have seen it on television election night.

To me, the interesting fact is that the whole group of technicians has come into existence because of "the Brain." They are trained to translate problems into the "language" of the machine. It's another example of the principle that each invention opens up new areas of specialization.

SATURDAY — Mme. Daria Shafik, who is famous in Egypt, came in for a quick visit. She is the leading feminist in that fascinating country, and is trying to raise the status of women in the Arab world. She's here for a lecture tour and is then going on to Japan and India.

At a news conference in Cairo last summer, we asked the Egyptian government heads if the new regime will give women more rights. The reply: "We have to do something for the men, first."

SUNDAY — Went to Central Park for the weekly horseshoe-pitching. I am a high-spinner, myself, and while some landed as ringers, very few stayed there. About two, as I recall. Funny, you think of "barnyard golf" as being a province of people in the Middle West, but these New York characters who work out in the park on Sunday are the best I ever saw.

Cigarettes Are On Trial Today, And The Smoking Public Makes Up Jury

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter
NEW YORK (AP)—Cigarettes seem to be on trial. You are the jury.

The charge: Cigarettes are harmful, contributing to cancer and heart disease.

The defense: That isn't proven yet, others call cigarettes innocent pleasure.

The bits of evidence of your verdict are coming from scientists, physicians, statisticians. This is expert testimony from both sides.

There also are declarations from zealots in both sides, people who attack or defend smoking on emotional grounds.

The trial came to full public attention only within the last two years. Here are some main reasons:

Statisticians found an "alarming" increase in lung cancer, particularly in men over 45. They said the increase was worrisome even after allowance is made for the fact more Americans are reaching the older ages at which cancer becomes more common and that cancer nowadays is diagnosed more accurately than in the past.

These two things—increasing average age and better diagnosis—could account for some or much of the increase from 3,900 reported lung cancer deaths in 1939 to about 27,000 in 1952. A few physicians and statisticians say these two factors could account for most or all of it.

But the majority by far see a real increase in lung cancer deaths. Some find the rate doubling every 10 years, and predict 60,000 American lung cancer victims annually by 1960.

If there really is an increase, what is causing it?

From their own observations some physicians blamed cigarettes because most of their patients were smokers. Statistical studies of hospital patients added much weight to this view.

Cigarette sales increased sharply during the years when lung cancer was rising. This, to their view, was a pretty suspicious association.

Others doubting, pointed to an increase at the same time in sales of nylon stockings and automobiles and in taxes.

Then came more than statistical evidence against cigarettes. One was the skin-painting experiments by Doctors Evaris Graham and Ernest Wynder. Concentrated tars from cigarettes smoked by machines was applied to shaved skin of mice. After a year of treatment, many mice developed skin cancers—evidence of a cancer-causing chemical or chemicals in the smoke.

Similar experiments had been performed before. This one caught the public eye fairly well. It was pretty convincing evidence to some doctors and statisticians.

Others still doubted. They said skin cancer in mice is not the same as lung cancer in humans. The tars concentrated from smoking machines might not be the same, anyhow, as tars collected and heat of burning cigarettes in the machines might hold different chemicals or distillation products than those the human smoker is exposed to.

The doubters could point to at least one experiment in which mice were exposed to daily, measured amounts of cigarette smoke, from adolescence until they died and were compared with other "non-smoked" mice. There was just one case of lung cancer in 132 "smoked" mice—not significant statistically.

But cigarette accusers could point to a similar experiment in which 19 of 32 mice exposed to smoke got tumors after a year's time. None of the tumors was cancer of the type occurring in humans, but this could be evidence of how smoke can alter living tissues.

Some scientists asked: Was the discrepancy due to some difference in the genetic strains of the mice used? Just what did it mean in regard to human smoking? How well can mice be compared with men?

Benzyrene, a chemical which induces cancer in mice, has been identified by one scientific team in smoke and tars from the burning of enough cigarette paper to make 80,000 cigarettes—an 11-year supply for a pack-a-day smoker.

There is still some question, though, as to whether a human smoker might get enough of this to cause human lung cancer.

Benzyrene also has been found in the polluted air of cities.

Some researchers suspect polluted air as a cause of lung cancer. Some say the rise in lung cancer might be coming from a combination of things including cigarette smoking and polluted air.

Some studies find lung cancer more frequent in cities than rural areas. One explanation advanced is that city people smoke more. Another is that city air is less clean or pure.

Some scientists question whether people who smoke may be constitutionally different from non-smokers, more tense perhaps, with a different production of hormones. Hormones can influence cancers. But there's no evidence that really answers this question.

Sex and jobs are elements in the evidence.

Many women smoke, have smoked for years. But lung cancer is at least four to five times more common among men than women.

Several explanations are advanced. One: Not so many women smoke. Another: Most women have not smoked as long as men have, and it is argued that it takes 10 to 20 years of smoking to induce lung cancer; that in the future the cancer rate in women will begin to rise. Yet another: There is a sex difference—men may naturally be more susceptible to lung cancer than women.

As for air pollution as a cause of lung cancer, it is argued that women breathe the same air as men. But it's also argued that men, commuting from suburbs into cities daily, get more city air than stay-at-home wives.

Men may be subjected to more cancer-causing chemicals or agents in their jobs than women. There is no doubt that a large number of chemicals to which some workers are exposed can produce cancer in animals.

A leading expert on occupational hazards in cancer, Dr. W. C. Hueper, of the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., reports substantial direct and indirect evidence that certain kinds of industrial fumes and other agents can cause human cancers.

Men almost exclusively are exposed to these hazards he says. But in at least one case when men and women workers were exposed equally, they both tended to become liable to lung cancer.

Dr. Hueper feels the total evidence indicates that not one but several "almost" eric pollutants are responsible for the causation of lung cancer. His studies lead him to conclude that "while it is possible cigarette smoking has played a contributor role, the total evidence available if critically evaluated, does not favor the concept that cigarette smoking represents a major factor."

In scientific and medical circles, there have long been questionings, evidences and counter evidences about the role of cigarettes in health. To the public, which could not be aware of all of the findings being made, some of the reports had to come with bombshell effects.

HUNTING SEASON HERE

NEW DUCK HUNTING RULES

There has been some relaxation in wildfowl hunting regulations for the new hunting season which opened yesterday. If you're the robust outdoor type you might be interested.

Previously, you were allowed to kill only one wood duck a day. This year, your daily bag of four ducks may contain two wood ducks.

Used to be, you couldn't have wildfowl in possession for longer than 90 days after the season closed. That regulation has been dropped. Also, it is now possible to ship the possession limit (two day's bag) to any member of a hunter's immediate family. Heretofore, migratory waterfowl shipped to a hunter's immediate family were considered as still in his possession.

This year, you may hunt from a motorboat, provided the boat either is beached or resting at anchor while you are shooting.

Also, any American and red-breasted mergansers killed will count against your daily and possession limits of ducks. This was done, said the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, to prevent the wasteful killing of these birds.

Well, there are the rules, grab a gun and I'll grab a skillet. GOLF'S GREATEST PUTT, BOBBY JONES

The late Grantland Rice called Bobby Jones' putt in the 1929 National Open "golf's greatest putt." They celebrated the silver anniversary of the putt recently at the Winged Foot Golf Course in Mamaroneck, N. Y.

It was 25 years ago on that same course's 18th hole that Bobby Jones made it to tie Al Espinosa. It was a wicked, sidehill 14-footer on which the odds were stacked heavily against the grand slam master from Atlanta. But Jones rolled it in and went on to beat Espinosa in a playoff.

The anniversary was marked by a re-enactment of Jones' most famous stroke, with Bobby present to point out the approximate locations of his ball and the cup at the time. The greenskeeper made a hole at the spot. Four other oldtime stars of the game, taking part in the celebration, attempted to duplicate the putt. Tommy Armour, Gene Sarazen, Craig Wood and Johnny Ferrell tried several times but they couldn't repeat "golf's greatest putt."

THAT'S A LOT OF BALL PLAYER

In a recent edition of the Sporting News, it was pointed out that 11 tons of ball players were deposited on the major league scenes in 1954. The total weight of the 120 newcomers was 21,966 pounds, or 34 pounds short of the 11-ton mark, with the average recruit weighing in at 183.06.

Johnny Gray, pitcher of the Athletics, was the heaviest at 226, one pound more than Ron Jackson, bonus first baseman of the White Sox. The lightest was Jehosiah Heard, pocket-size southpaw of the Orioles, at 147.

PRO BASKETBALL LOSES GREAT PERFORMER

The professional basketball season has already gotten underway. One of the game's greatest and most colorful characters has retired from the game. Joe Fulks, known around Philadelphia as the man who helped establish the modern pro game in the Quaker City, decided to call it quits after eight seasons. His career scoring mark is 8,591 points. He led the pro in scoring in 1948-49 with 1,389 and still holds the single-game record of 63 points.

Yellow Jacket Passing Attack Could Give Phantoms Hard Time On Friday

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
Roanoke Rapids' aroused Yellow Jackets come to Greenville tomorrow night with a new-found passing attack that would send chills up any opposing coach's spine.

Rumors around the conference have it that the Yellow Jackets completed something like 18 out of 22 passes last week in downing Oxford Orphanage four touchdowns to one. With that kind of passing no team can afford to rest against the Jackets.

Coach Bill Kittrell of the Greenville Phantoms is trying to get his boys into peak condition for his team's season finale. After the spectacular win over Goldsboro last week there is bound to be some let-down.

The Goldsboro win gave the Green Phantoms a record of five wins, two losses, and one tie for the season with just one more game to go. A win would make it an extra great season whereas a loss would cut down the enthusiasm just a little.

Last season Roanoke Rapids trimmed the Greens by two touchdowns in a downpour of rain and mud at Roanoke Rapids. During basketball season the Greens made up for that with three wins over the rivals, but a football victory will put the Greens way ahead of the Yellow Jackets.

For the G-men it will be the finish of what has been one of their shortest seasons. In years past the season dragged by for the uninterested players, but this year Coach Kittrell put together a great group of boys who love the game thoroughly. For them it was the shortest season possible.

The Greenville mentor is still uncertain whether end Harold Edwards will dress for the game or not. Edwards has been the tough luck member of the squad this year. He missed the first three games with a bad shoulder, missed another game because of the death of his father, and now has missed the last two games with a hip injury suffered in the New Bern game. Edwards has dressed in only two games all year long.

Bobby Adams and Billy Johnson will probably be the ends Friday night with Howard King and Tommy Smith at the tackles. Pete West and Gene Hudson will probably be the guards with Larry Powell at center. Bob Howell will be the quarterback with James Speight, Mitchell Johnson, and Billy Sermons in the backfield with him.

Wolfpack Has Its Chance To Better Last Year's Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The North Carolina State Wolfpack has but two games to go this season and if its poor record of last year is to be improved upon it appears this week's game with Richmond is its do-or-die category.

The Spiders, boasting a record of five wins and only two losses, will be seeking their first win in history over State — but the charge of Coach Ed Merrick are heavily favored.

The series between State and Richmond goes back to 1902 when the Wolfpack won handily. In 1906 a scoreless tie resulted. In all other games of the 12-game series State has turned up victorious, Richmond having scored on only four occasions.

The Spiders are rated the nation's No. 5 defensive team and No. 3 on pass defense.

Yesterday the Wolfpack held a brisk practice with the emphasis on defensive drills. Reserves used Richmond's T-formation attack to familiarize the squad with the Spiders' style.

At Durham, Duke brushed up on all phases of offense and defense for the important Atlantic Coast Conference game with Wake Forest at Durham Saturday.

The Blue Devils hold a 24-10 victory margin, with one tie, over the Deacons in the 35-game series which started in 1889.

Wake Forest Coach Tom Rogers put the Deacons through a long offensive and defensive scrimmage, the third this week, yesterday.

First and second teams tried to halt the reserves running Duke plays. Earlier the line worked on blocking and goal line stands while the backfield brushed up its passing and running plays.

The Maryland Terrapins let up on its practice sessions with a two-hour dummy scrimmage and passing drill yesterday as the Clemson Tigers were sent through a long scrimmage, each team readying for Saturday's meeting at College Park.

Coach Jim Tatum, who had worked the Terps long and hard the past two days eased off the rough stuff. He scheduled a light drill for today too.

It was an impressive offensive show yesterday as the North Carolina Tar Heels continued to drill for Saturday's game with Notre Dame.

Earlier the Tar Heels concentrated on defense against Irish plays, after which Coach George Barclay remarked, "a very good showing."

Junior Jim Mense is expected to start for Notre Dame but a replacement for injured Dick Szymanski at center probably won't be determined until the kickoff.

The Irish held a long offensive drill yesterday with Mense, Lou Loncaric, a converted sophomore end, and Dick Fraser, senior reserve, scrapping for the Szymanski spot. Szymanski has been lost for the season due to an injury suffered last Saturday when Notre Dame beat Penn 42-7.

South Carolina's squad went through a heavy drill in preparation for Saturday's game at Columbia with Virginia.

Virginia was idle last week while South Carolina was losing to North Carolina, 21-19.

Selvy At Home As Professional

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Frank Selvy, who shattered more than a score of college basketball point-making records, returned here today as a professional.

The former Furman University star and his Baltimore Bullets meet the defending champion Minneapolis Lakers in a regular National Basketball Assn. game.

Despite his team's 1-4 record, Selvy brings the top scoring mark of the N.B.A. season with him, a 25-point average. The Bullets are last in the Eastern Division.

Selvy, who graduated from Furman last spring after three brilliant seasons of varsity play, came to Furman from Corbin, Ky.

Defense Strategy Pushed As Bucs Prep For Finale

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

The East Carolina Pirates were put through another hard workout yesterday afternoon as they went about preparing for Stetson University here Saturday night in the Pirates' final football meet.

Coaches Jack Boone, Jim Mallory and Earl Smith directed the squad through a lengthy defensive scrimmage. Three units of the varsity worked as defenders in an aggressive group of freshmen ran Stetson's tricky offenses. The action was heated and results pleasing. The Pirate defenses worked well against the Haters' spreads and unorthodox formations.

Although the going has been extremely rough this week, only two mishaps have occurred. Larry Rhodes, starting right end, received a small cut above his eye and Harry Rainey, reserve halfback, sustained a badly twisted knee. Rhodes will be okay for Stetson but it's doubtful if Rainey will recover in time.

Otherwise, Coach Boone will go with about the same lineup that was fielded against Tampa last week. J. D. Bradford is set at left end. The Fayetteville junior has had his best year this season, catching two touchdown passes and playing heads up defense. If Rhodes, a senior from High Point, is unable to start, Ray Pennington will replace him. Pennington, a sophomore from Greensboro, has shown great promise as a pass-catcher and is counted on for brilliance in 1955.

Co-Captain Willie Holland and big George Tucker have the tackle situation well in hand. Holland is a definite favorite for All-Conference laurels. Tucker, once nominated for AP Lineman of the Week, has had a great year and been one of the Buc's standouts up front. Don Burton and David Lee will be playing their last game at the guards.

Lee has played out his eligibility and Burton graduates in May. Louis Holloway wants to end the year with as good a performance as the opener with Norfolk. The big pivotman is expected to make everybody's All-Conference list.

Boyd Webb will get the nod at quarterback. The Gastonia senior has had an up-and-down season but is still one of the better passers in the league. Co-Captain Toppay Hayes will culminate an illustrious career as a Buc runner. The swiftie from Durham County High School has played four years of varsity for the Purple and Gold. Tom Ailsbrook and Emo Bardo will share in the right half duties. Claude King of Wilmington will be another closing out a brilliant career here. The hard-running, long-kicking fullback will leave a big gap in the 1955 club. King will be out to end his campaign in a flare of glory.

Stetson will bring 33 players into Greenville Saturday morning by plane. Coach Frank McQuillan's team will be out for their second win of the season. According to a news release from Stetson, the Haters are primed for this one and will be in good physical shape.

Predicts Race To Set Up Clubs On West Coast

CHICAGO (AP)—The start of a race by the National and American Leagues to establish clubs on the West Coast is approaching and the Chicago White Sox predicts the move will come within three years.

Lane, chairman of the major leagues realignment committee, foresees San Francisco and Los Angeles as getting major league baseball as part of a 10-club league set-up.

"It may come within three years," he said. "The time is rapidly approaching when one league or the other must move into the fertile area on the Pacific Coast."

Bill Veck, former club owner who has been commissioned by P. K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs, to investigate the possibility of establishing big league baseball on the coast, feels the National League should assert itself.

Veck, who has an option to purchase Wrigley's Los Angeles ball park, yesterday conferred in Brooklyn with Walter O'Malley, Dodger president. They both agreed that the National circuit "had better get busy or lose the initiative to the American League."

They met briefly and spoke of the westward trend in general terms. A Dodger spokesman said "they did not speak about moving any certain club to California."

Lane pointed out that "it's a question now whether the National or American league will be first to grab the territory—but whichever one it is will be top dog."

San Francisco already has approved a five million dollar bond issue to build a stadium, Lane

continued. "The Los Angeles Park District has earmarked 10 million dollars for the same purpose."

Lane envisions the major league player limit being cut from 25 to 21 which would make 60 players available for use in organizing big league clubs on the coast.

"It would mean relaxing the present rules which govern the recall of optioned players," Lane said, "and also the rule requiring an injured player to remain on the disabled list for a minimum of 30 days. But all these things could be arranged without too much trouble."

Future Of Fight Game Contracts Up To Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—The future of boxing's "exclusive contract" rested today with the Supreme Court, weighing a government challenge of the International Boxing Club (IBC).

The government urged the court to declare the fight game to be a business engaged in interstate commerce. Such a ruling would threaten the tight control the IBC has exercised over championship fights for the past five years.

There was no way to determine when the court might rule on the Justice Department's appeal from a ruling by the U. S. District Court for Southern New York.

That court denied the government's monopoly charge. It held that boxing is analogous to baseball and the Supreme Court already has ruled baseball to be exempt from the nation's antitrust laws.

In legal arguments before the high court yesterday, the IBC attorneys centered on the baseball precedent claiming that when baseball was exempted from the antitrust laws so were boxing and all other professional sports.

Philip Elman, special assistant to the attorney general, said in arguing the government's case that the boxing setup is in no way comparable to that in baseball.

Elman based much of his argument on the widespread use of television in boxing events. He said promoters get most of their fight income from TV rights and that as far as they were concerned, "fights might just as well be put on in TV studios."

Belvoir, South Edgecomb Split Twin Basketball Bill

SOUTH EDGECOMBE — Belvoir and South Edgecombe split a basketball doubleheader last night, South Edgecombe taking the boys game 54-36, and Belvoir fighting back to annex the girls affair, 49-30.

With Sherry Warren and Joan Parker scoring 13 points apiece, the Belvoir lasses got hot in the second half to easily outclass the home club. Marjane Clark also contributed much to the scoring with 10 points.

The high scorer for the evening though was Overman of South Edgecombe with 17 points. Webb and Barnes added six and seven each for the losers.

Belvoir's big quarter was the third. With the score 28-18, Belvoir poured it on and racked up 16 points while holding South Edgecombe to two points. Outstanding on defense for Belvoir was Harrell, Harris and Windham. A Summerlin, Norville and Bland played best on defense for the losers.

South Edgecombe got even in the boys' tiff. Pridgen and Dunn each tallied 14 points to lead the way. Craft and Ellis also had good nights on offense. Belvoir's Parker lead the scoring for both teams with 17. Warren and David Moore were his best backers. Belvoir made only one substitution in the game while the winners scored five.

South Edgecombe outmanned the visitors from the start. They scored eight points in the first quarter, 12 in the second, 16 in the third and 18 in the final. Belvoir's best period was the last when they collected 13 points.

Those interested in joining, says president Thomas L. Terry, may attend the next meeting at 7:30 p.m., November 17, 509 Shepard St.

Officers are Thomas Terry, president; James Hagans, secretary; George Barrett, treasurer; Dennis Norris and Jack Atkinson, trainers.

Cadet Juggernaut Outclassing Its Foes

NEW YORK (AP)—You can argue about how the 1954 Army team compares to the Cadet juggernauts of 1944-46, but not even the Blanchard-Davis teams of that era outclassed their opposition by as big a statistical margin as the present cadets, official NCAA Service Bureau figures showed today.

No. 1 in total offense and in rushing offense, Army's average gain of 453.4 yards a game is 57.8 yards a game better than runner-up Mississippi's 395.6.

Included in the present West Point average are such items as a 499-yard blast against previously unbeaten Yale last Saturday, 436 against Duke and 344 against Michigan.

Army has more total offense yardage in seven games than the No. 2 team has in eight, 3,174 to Mississippi's 3,165. The Cadets' bulge is more modest in rushing, 329.9 to 307.1 for UCLA and 304 for Colorado.

UCLA is tops in scoring, averaging 41.6 points a game. Army is second with 38.6 followed by Arizona with 38.3.

UCLA took a hand in the passing race, knocking Oregon out of first place for the first time in three weeks by holding George Shaw and his mates to 47 yards, allowing only four completions in 15 tries.

That let Purdue take the lead as it raised its yardage per game to 187.9. California is second with 177.6 and Mississippi third with 167.6. Oregon now is fourth with 167.1.

Purdue also has the most touchdowns passes, 14, but California has a good claim on overall efficiency. The Bear have the most completions, 117, and a completion record of 63.9 per cent — an all-time record if maintained. All this is through the courtesy of Paul Larson, the country's top individual passer.

Andrews, Varona Rematch Seen In Narrow Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—The close decision of middleweight Al Andrews, a 7-5 underdog, over Chico Varona in Chicago Stadium last night has opened the way for a rematch, probably Dec. 22 in Detroit.

The International Boxing Club is working on the projected date and this time the national television audience will be let in on the fun.

Andrews, a rugged mauler from Superior, Wis., who six weeks ago knocked out Gil Turner, finished strongly to tain the edge over his clever, hard-hitting Cuban foe in a free-swinging scrap.

Andrews outweighed Varona 156½ to 152.

In another scheduled 10-rounder, Bob Satterfield, 182, Chicago, knocked out townsman Johnny Holman, 204, in 1:18 of the first round with a left hook to the chin.

'Shell Crackers' Placed In River

The Wildlife Resources Commission recently released 10,000 "shell crackers," the first of this kind of fish to be emptied into Tar River and Tranter's Creek.

Some of them were about three inches long. The "shell cracker" resembles the bream, but it is a longer fish, attaining from two to four pounds at maturity.

Fish and Game Protector J. O. Teel said it will be about a year before they may be fished. The fish were hatched at the State Wildlife Hatchery at Fayetteville.

Orioles Sign Up 2 Ex-Servicemen

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two young baseball players just out of the armed services have been signed by the Baltimore Orioles.

The club announced yesterday that contracts have been signed by Robert C. Johnson, 23-year-old catcher from Buttonwillow, Calif., and 22-year-old Hal Hughey, an infielder from Shelby, N.C.

Johnson was assigned to York (Pa.) in the Class B Piedmont League for the 1955 season and Hughey was ordered to report to Anderson (S.C.) in the Class B Tri-State League.

Over-Harmony Is Tough On Voters

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democrats and Republicans may try to get along like brothers in the next two years — there's been mention of harmony — but it would be tough on the voters if they acted like twins.

How could the voters decide between them in the 1956 elections if there was nothing but harmony?

The two parties probably won't try to be closer than third cousins: for political reasons with 1956 in mind, and because of some differences in viewpoint, although to many voters the differences may seem neither profound nor sharp.

The voters have shown in the past two elections they're having trouble making a choice.

In the 1952 elections the voters gave the Republicans control of Congress by a margin so thin that, if it was any thinner, the Democrats would have run the show. In 1954 they indicated Democratic control by an edge almost as fragile.

The overwhelming 1952 vote for President Eisenhower can be taken as a personal triumph for him. The amazingly narrow vote for Congress that year showed how the people felt about the two parties.

While it is possible the voters have been too nearsighted to recognize any great differences in the features and performance of the elephant and donkey it may be that the differences were more apparent than real.

Once they're elected to Congress the Democrats and Republicans sometimes vote along strict party lines. More often than not at voting time on any given issue they break up into factions, with Democrats and Republicans making switches in benches.

Since both parties have men who consider themselves conservative and others who consider themselves liberal, it is natural at voting time for the think-alikes to vote alike.

But what occurs on the floors of House and Senate at voting time is not, of course, all that happens. The two parties can make a lot of political hay and headlines in the committee hearings, where most of congress' work is threshed out.

And since the party which has a majority controls the committee, it is in the best position for haying, particularly in the field of investigations, by deciding what needs looking into and how to handle those jobs. Then it would be McClellan, not McCarthy who would direct what the committee is to investigate.

McCarthy spent the first two years of the Eisenhower administration mainly hunting for Red influences in government. McClellan hasn't specified yet what turn his interest will take on the matter of what's to be probed.

The Democrats will probably use their committees to dig around in other Eisenhower administration performances for the past two years.

The Democrats have a wide field to choose from in asking questions. They will probably want to pin the Republicans down on their claims that they've rooted more than 6,000 security risks out of the government.

Just how many of those risks were Communists or otherwise subversive? Vice President Nixon threw a lot of security risk figures around in the recent campaign. He seemed to irritate the Democrats more than any other Republican campaigner.

Senate Has Final Say On Global Atom Agency

By A. I. GOLDBERG
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.S. Senate will have the final say on how far the United States can go in setting up an international atomic energy agency, opponents of the plan stress.

The final form of the agency, widely discussed here since President Eisenhower proposed it in December 1953, has not been decided. But Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief U.S. delegate, says the United States is sticking pretty close to an outline it made last March in a secret note to the Russians. It is the line the United States is following in negotiating bilateral treaties with seven countries on setting up the agency.

Lodge and other U.S. spokesmen in discussing the proposed agency with newsmen, emphasize that it would be set up on a treaty basis. Each treaty would have to be approved by the Senate.

Site for the agency has not been decided, although delegates expect it to be in the United States or Canada. That is another of the things the United States must negotiate with its fellow partners—Britain, Australia, Belgium, Canada, South Africa, France and Portugal.

Here is the gist of the first U.S. outline:

All states signing agreements would be members of the agency with a board of governors exercising the highest executive authority. This board would be based on geographic distribution, membership and importance of the government's contribution.

The executive board would appoint a general manager who in turn would organize a staff.

Supporters of the plan say the agency, after it gets going, should be linked with the U.N. like one of its dozen specialized agencies. The agency would act as a clearing house in handling requests for laboratory material, medical radioactive substances, industrial isotopes, information about nuclear developments and, ultimately, power reactors.

Mendes-France Acting To Curb Alcoholic Trend

By CARL HARTMAN
PARIS (AP)—The average French working man thinks nothing of putting away a quart of wine at each meal. It costs him only about 70 francs (20 cents).

An active farmer can double that consumption without being considered a drunkard.

But many Frenchmen are stepping over the line. There has been considerable public comment on the increase of "alcoholism."

That's where Premier Pierre Mendes-France is stepping in with a quiet campaign for moderation.

The milk-drinking Premier wants to persuade the French to use less wine, brandy and other alcoholic beverages.

Nothing so drastic as prohibition is in prospect. Anyone who proposed that in France would be laughed out of public life. But the Premier wants to crack down on bootlegging and moonshining and slap some extra taxes on wine to make it more expensive.

Mendes-France, moving at his usual fast pace, would like to get something done before he starts his visit to the United States and Canada next week. His staff has decided that if he can get Cabinet agreement to enforce even some of the laws already on the books, new legislation may not be needed.

There has been little public reaction so far to the Premier's plans. One reason is that, although the subject is close to his heart, he has not given it much publicity.

Laws now on the books, but not strictly enforced, include a five-gallon-a-year limitation on home distillers of hard liquor.

Many farmers make a great deal more than the limit. They sell the booze to traders who transport it illegally to the towns. It can be bought for 40 francs (about 11 cents) a shot. This practice has fostered a big bootlegging industry.

Some Ballots Cast For Nobody

RODMAN, N.Y. (AP)—Some ballots were cast for nobody, running for nothing, a canvass of the Nov. 2 vote here shows.

Harry LeCrosse, custodian of the voting machine in this northern New York community, explained that the machine did not have enough locking bars to block off all the blank spaces election day.

Officials said some voters apparently were so anxious to vote the straight Republican ticket that they did not stop when the list of names and offices ran out.

Tear Gas Bomb In Court Room

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP)—A tear gas bomb in the pocket of Dist. Atty. George G. Priest exploded in District Court. Priest had carried the bomb during an investigation and accidentally touched the discharging mechanism.

Priest was the only one to get enough of the gas to have to leave the room.

Special Iron Lung For 2-Year-Old

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A special small iron lung was flown here yesterday from Denver in an effort to save the life of 2-year-old Gary Patrick Burdette, who has bulbar palsy.

Gary entered the hospital Saturday. He was put into an adult-sized iron lung—the only one available—but it failed to work satisfactorily.

Accidental Deaths From Guns Chiefly In The Home

RALEIGH—Additional emphasis on firm-arm safety during the hunting season was called for by the N.C. State Board of Health in predicting that 80 North Carolinians may be killed by shotguns, rifles and pistols during the next year.

The State Board of Health's Accident Epidemiologist, Dr. Charles M. Cameron, Jr., of Raleigh, revealed that official records show that each year deaths from fire-arm accidents average between 70 and 80 in North Carolina.

Dr. Cameron complimented the sportsmen of the state in calling attention to the fact that the smallest percentage of these accidents occur in the field when hunters are actually in pursuit of game.

"More than half of the fire arm deaths occur in the home," the epidemiologist said, "where our studies show some can be traced to the cleaning and handling of weapons preparatory to actual hunting."

Shooting Ended Divorce Effort

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—Pretty Betty Ann Brannon 15-year-old bride of a year, yesterday filed suit for a divorce from her 19-year-old husband R. C. Brannon.

As Betty and her mother sat talking last night, Brannon walked into their room. He was carrying a .22 rifle.

He tossed some papers into Betty's lap, papers saying she had filed for divorce charging cruel treatment.

"This is a mess of lies you told on me," he said.

"You don't scare me," Betty replied.

He fired one shot into Betty's head and fled.

Policemen found him about 200 yards from the house—a single shot through his head.

Sheriff Edgar Doran ruled it murder and suicide.

Hunt For Little Sisters Goes On

BECKLEY, W. Va.—National Guardsmen continued for the third day their search for two little sisters who disappeared 10 days ago. No trace of them has been found.

The foot-by-foot search for Irene Agee, 8, and her sister Mary, 6, has covered an area one by five miles in the remote, Egeria section of mountainous Raleigh County, southeast of here.

The girls were last seen when they were dismissed from classes at Egeria school Nov. 1.

Three National Guard units, totaling 120 men, were called out Monday at full army pay for a week's intensive search. They are covering ground searched last week by hundreds of volunteers before a deep snow halted the hunt.

Steve Agree, father of the girls, holds little hope of finding them alive after a week in the open with temperatures near or below freezing every night. He has offered a $50 reward for information leading to finding his daughters—dead or alive.

Businessmen Not Only Read, They Write, Too

By W.G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—Businessmen are sometimes thought to have the prosaic mind and practical temperament that may go with book-keeping but not with books.

Don't you believe it. The businessmen not only read books, he even writes them.

Or it may be the other way around: the writer goes into business. At any rate, writer and businessman are often brothers under the skin.

There is, for instance, Ludwig Bemmelmann, of a family that owned and operated hotels. He himself worked in hotels, and the subject of one of his best known books, "Hotel Splendide," was New York's Ritz. He recently paused long enough between books to buy himself a bar on the Ile de la Cite in Paris, across a narrow bridge not far from the rear of Notre Dame Cathedral.

There is the more characteristic example of Edward Streeter. Author of this spring of "Mr. Hobbs' Vacation," he began his string of best sellers in World War I with "Dere Mable." To be sure, he started out in life as a newsman in Buffalo, N.Y., but quickly switched to banking, became a member of a Stock Exchange firm, is now vice president of the Bank of New York.

Men in other occupations and professions have changed their minds and turned into writers, of course. Erle Stanley Gardner began as a lawyer, and so did Melville Cane, who writes poetry and books and poetry. In an earlier time, Honore Balzac and Arnold Bennett were once lawyers, and Charles Dickens was a court reporter. Bennett was also a journalist, and Ernest Hemingway and Theodore Dreiser both had editorial or journalistic experience. W. Somerset Maugham was a doctor, and Sherwood Anderson was managing a paint factory when he decided to be a full-time writer.

The identification of Streeter in "Who's Who starts off with the word "banker." The same reference book gives "insurance" as the key to the story of another man who managed a most successful switch from counting house to publishing house. He is Wallace Stevens, native of Reading, Pa., who studied at Harvard and the New York Law School. After a legal practice in New York, he joined the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Co., of which he has been vice-president since 1943. His first book of poems appeared in 1924, and within the last five years he has won two important awards, the Bollingen prize and the National Book Award.

Better known in the last few seasons for their novelistic successes are Jay Richard Kennedy, Madison Cooper, and Cameron Hawley.

Kennedy, of Wall Street, is the author of "Prince Bart," of Hollywood. Cooper, who runs his own real estate and investment management business in Waco, Texas, wrote one of the longest novels on record: "Sironia, Texas." Hawley retired as advertising director of Armstrong Cork to give all his time to writing; his novel, "Executive Suite," has been made into a movie.

Immigration To Canada And U.S. Sees Increase

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Since World War II there has been a resurgence of immigration to both the United States and Canada, with the increase being relatively greater in Canada, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's statisticians report.

Immigrant aliens entering the United States during the postwar period have averaged nearly 190,000 a year, which is four times the average for the preceding 15 years. Canada's postwar average is slightly more than 100,000, which is five times the annual number between 1930 and 1944.

Because of its smaller population, the impact of immigration has been more heavily felt in Canada than in the United States, the statisticians note. Canada's postwar immigration rate has averaged 7.7 per 1,000 of population, or about six times the United States rate.

About half of the immigrants to both countries since World War II have come from continental Europe, and about one third of the immigrants to Canada and one eighth of those to the United States are people from the British Isles.

Seen as of especial interest is the fact that a smaller proportion of Canada's immigrants are from the English-speaking countries than was the case earlier. Counting those from the United States, about two fifths of the people coming into Canada are from English-speaking countries; in most earlier years the proportion was about three fourths.

The majority of the postwar immigrants to both countries have been people in the prime of life, with two thirds of the arrivals in the age group 18 to 49. Males have constituted a higher proportion of the immigrants to Canada than to the United States, the figures being 53 percent and 43 percent respectively.

"The admission of war brides and fiancées of service men augmented the recent influx of women to both countries," the statisticians comment. "The United States experience also reflects the quota preference for wives and relatives of immigrants already in the country."

Selective Service Qualification Test Dates At College Announced

Selective Service College Qualification Tests will be administered at East Carolina College Thursday, December 9 1954, and Thursday, April 21, 1955.

Dr. Hazel E. Taylor, director of testing and member of the psychology department at the college, will be in charge of giving the examinations. The time and place for each testing period is 8:30 a.m. in Room 200 of the Graham building on the campus.

An application for the tests, a mailing envelope, and a bulletin of information may be obtained from any Selective Service Local Board, Dr. Taylor says. Applications for the December 9 test must be postmarked no later than midnight Tuesday, November 23, 1954. Applications postmarked after midnight of that date will not be accepted for that test.

To be eligible to apply for the Selective Service tests a student must intend to request deferment as a student, be satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction, and must not previously have taken the qualification test.

The Inheritors

JANE ABBOTT

At 86, Josh Trevitt makes his will, leaving an equal share of his rambling farm in New York state to each of his nieces, Mrs. Hester Wilmer, Miss Jennie Todd and his nephew, Tom Todd. But to acquire final title, each must remain three months on the land, those leaving sooner relinquishing their share or shares to the final "resident." Josh also assigns an acre with tiny cottage, to Gary Norbeck, a stranger who'd come to live there. Shortly after making his will, Josh falls from a rafter of his barn, and is killed. At a girl's school in Cleveland, Ohio, where she is house-mother, niece Jenny receives news of her inheritance, and refreshes the prospect of living on a farm.

CHAPTER FOUR

Hester Wilmer awakened on the morning of June 2, alive in every bit of her to the importance of this day. At 2 o'clock the nominating committee of the board of directors of the Athena club was to meet to appoint the club's officers for the coming year. And it was certain in her mind, and in the minds of her friends that she would be chosen unanimously for president. This year the presidency was even more to be desired for the club was co-operating with civic organizations to put on a gigantic pageant in celebration of the 200th anniversary of the coming of the Holland Land Co. to this frontier. It had the responsibility of costuming the cast of the pageant. Though the affair would not come off until August, a committee, of which she was chairman, already was working over designs and materials for costumes.

A glance at her watch told her that Hubert would still be at the breakfast table. Usually he was gone when she went downstairs and, as they used separate bed rooms, she seldom encountered him until dinner time. But it would begin the day as this day should begin—to have this opportunity to tell Hubert, Enid, too of its importance. He should realize that her prominence in the social life of the city was a definite asset to him in his insurance business. Enid should realize that it helped her, socially, too.

Hers was a home beautiful in every detail and, as she walked down the stairs this morning, it seemed particularly so. "I'll invite a few in for tea this afternoon," she thought and instantly went swiftly over in her mind the ones she would ask to rejoice with her over the honor accorded her.

She found Hubert at the table in the breakfastroom. At her coming he said: "Why down so early?"

"I've a busy day." She rang a bell and when a maid appeared, said: "Good morning, Doris. Just fruit juice and toast, please."

Then Hubert said: "Glad you have come down. Hes before Enid. A bill came to my office yesterday from Jaffe's. For a fur coat—$1,000."

"It's for Enid."

"Enid has a fur coat—you have one."

"Enid's is two years old. Out dated, too. You want her, I hope, to look well-dressed. And there is a discount if you buy furs in spring."

"Hester, we've got to go more carefully! We've been living up to the limit of my income these past five years. Where do you think we are going to finish up when all my savings are gone?"

Hester sat very still. To count 10 before she spoke, when she was angry, long had been a practice of hers. She reached five and broke off for Enid was coming into the room.

"Good morning, mother. Good morning, dad." Enid did not sit down. "I had some breakfast in the kitchen a half-hour ago. Just stopped to say hello."

Hester said: "Why couldn't you wait to eat with us, darling?"

"I told Gert Nichols I'd stop at her house before 10."

Hester's smile stiffened a little. She did not like this friendship between Enid and Gertrude Nichols. The girl was nice enough, but she wasn't in Enid's set.

"Enid, it's going to be a beautiful day! I'm not using the car—why don't you call up Martha or Peg and drive out to the club and spend the day. Play some tennis."

Enid said, without looking at her mother: "Gert and I are going to apply for jobs as copy girls at the Evening News! They take extra ones in in the summer."

"What a fantastic idea, darling!" Hester said.

Hubert got up from his chair. "I'll drop you at your friend's house on the way to the office."

"Thanks dad. I'll be ready in a minute." Enid hurried out of the room.

Hubert said: "Ever thought that you plan Enid's life for her too much? That maybe there's a lot in the old saying against trying to fit a square peg in a round hole?"

He went on out of the room without waiting for her answer. She heard Enid run down the stairs, the door close behind them.

She was not going to let the two of them spoil this day. She finished her coffee, went from the breakfast room to her study, a charming, glass-enclosed room, at the end of the hall. The morning's mail lay on the desk. Usually she read it before she let anything else occupy her but now she sat at the desk merely fingering the top envelope. For she found staying with her the echo of what Hubert had said as he stood beside her at the table. "Why shouldn't a mother plan what was best for her daughter?"

The St. Agnes Academy here—expensive, yes, but the daughters of the best families in Buffalo attended it; had for three generations. That finishing school in North Carolina—there Enid had had the opportunity of making lifelong friends with girls from old Southern families. The Assemblies here, Enid's junior membership at the country club, her golf lessons, tennis, riding... Everything she had planned through the years had been for Enid's good!

She drew the telephone toward her. To talk with her friends would restore her composure. Mary Morgan first, then Della Richards. Anne Babbitt—Anne was one of the directors.

Each said she would come about half-past 4. Dell Richards laughed. "We'll celebrate."

Feeling calmer, Hester opened her mail—a few bills, two wedding invitations an appeal for money. She considered each, put it back in its proper pigeonhole and picked up the larger, thicker envelope that had lain at the bottom of the little pile.

Registered she noticed. From Wickford Middleton in Killbuck, the man who had signed the telegram notifying her of her Uncle Jehosaphat's death. She had wired flowers.

She broke the flap of the envelope, spread out its sheets.

"The Last Will and Testament of Jehosaphat Trevitt."

She smiled—the old man leaving what little he had to her in appreciation for the letters she had written to him occasionally from a sense of duty?

But as she read the will she gave sounds of mounting indignation. Live up there in that desolate place—with Jennie and Tommy? Three months—and the present in August? Enid's summer to think of? And who was this Gary Norbeck? Certainly no relative. The old man was senile, of course. "I'll contest it. I'll call Robert Drew tomorrow morning and tell him to start at once whatever proceedings have to be taken. The entire property should come to me rightfully—I'm the only one of the family who ever has given him a thought!"

Two o'clock—it would not take the board long to name the officers. Then Anne Babbitt would call her. She dressed for the afternoon, went down again to her study. While waiting for Anne's call she would start a list of guests for a dinner—perhaps next week at the country club.

Her telephone rang. The "Hello" was in Anne's voice.

"Yes, Anne!"

Anne said: "Hester, I'm so furious I could burst! What do you think they did today? Elected Lydia Holzworth for president. Unanimously..."

Hester's knuckles were white where one hand gripped the receiver; the other the edge of her desk. But her voice was even, soft. "You were there, Anne!"

"I know it, but what could I do? I argued and argued about it, said, oh, all the things about you. Do you know what their reason was? That you were indispensable as chairman of the pageant committee—that you'd done most of the work on it so far and it would set everything back if you couldn't give all your time to it! But Lydia

Overseas Plane Traffic To Rise

MONTREAL (AP)—The International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) says more than 80,000 flights will be made over the North Atlantic this year and the figure will jump to 90,000 the next five years.

That kind of overseas traffic, says ICAO, makes additional safety devices necessary. The North Atlantic Regional Air Navigation Section of ICAO tackled the problem and came up with some recommendations.

To remedy this situation the regional meeting advised the installation of additional radio beacons in Iceland, South Greenland, the Azores, Eastern Newfoundland, Labrador, Nantucket Island and Atlantic City. These stations would be in addition to those already operating in Europe.

Canada was called upon to consider installation of a number of visual omiranges on the routes between New York and Gander, Nfld.; New York and Goose Bay; and Montreal and Gander. The visual omiranges are improved short distance radio navigation devices, operating on a static-free high frequency, which give the navigator a much more complete picture of flying conditions.

First Communist Arab Is Elected

By WILTON WYNN
DAMASCUS, Syria, (AP)—Khaled Bekdash is the first Communist ever elected to an Arab Parliament. He polled 16,000 votes, third highest among all candidates in Damascus.

Bekdash ran as an independent, because the Communist party is outlawed in Syria. But there was no doubt about his true colors politically, nor about Bekdash having Russia's blessing. Most Syrian voters know that Bekdash has visited the Soviet Union the last time in 1953. Many Damascenes have heard his voice broadcast over Moscow Radio.

Many Arabs supported Bekdash as a symbol of anti-Westernism. Nearly a million Arab refugees from Palestine blame the United States for loss of their homes and they applaud anyone opposing the West.

Bekdash's influence in Parliament is expected to be largely negative. He has been appointed to the Foreign Affairs Committee and is expected to join other anti-Western elements in fighting any pro-Western moves by Syria.

The Communist deputy admits the time is not ripe to try to "Sovietize Syria." Certain Syrians believe Bekdash will serve the purpose of keeping the West from taking Syria for granted.

"One Communist in Parliament can do much harm," they explain. "But he should give America a good scare."

14-Room House Still Too Small

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Pauley have a 14-room house but are still short four bedrooms. Their 12th child was born Sunday.

"We're anxious to learn if it's true that children are cheaper by the dozen," said the 46-year-old Pauley, as a suburban Ferguson municipal judge.

Pauley, who said he and his wife "just went along having children and we'll keep on going," said they may expand the house in the spring.

Second In Series Of Forums Soon

Speakers from East Carolina College and the city of Greenville will participate next Thursday, November 18, in the second in a series of forums on contemporary problems, events sponsored by the Unitarian Fellowship of Greenville.

"Are our methods of attacking subversion destructive of our rights?" is the topic for the evening. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Sheppard Memorial Library of the city. The public is invited to attend and to participate in the discussion.

Michael M. Luskin of Greenville, president of the Unitarian Fellowship, will act as presiding officer, and Dr. George Past of the East Carolina faculty will be moderator.

Dr. John D. Bennett, director of religious activities at East Carolina; Judge Charles Whedbee of Greenville; Dr. Kelly Crockett and Dr. James Poindexter of the college department of English; and Gerald Adecock of Durham, East Carolina junior, are among those who will appear on the program.

Comic George Gobel Startles Everybody

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The least likely person to be the biggest new sensation in television is a 34-year-old Chicagoan named George Gobel.

He is certainly not what you would expect in a TV star. He is short, with a face that is reminiscent of a persimmon. He addresses the audience without smiling. Between his lines he drops pauses in which Milton Berle could squeeze five jokes.

Yet the sober-faced Gobel is being hailed as the greatest comedy find in TV since I Love Lucy debuted three years ago. After only five weeks with his own show, he is the talk of the town. Children—and their parents too—are repeating Gobelisms like "Well, I'll be a dirty bird" and "You can't hardly get them no more."

When David O. Selznick put on his million-dollar show for the electric industry, he passed up the name comics and gave the only comedy spot to Gobel. He convulsed 65 million viewers with his wacky explanation of an electronic brain.

Gobel's success isn't easy to analyze. His comedy style certainly doesn't translate on paper. For instance, band leader John Scott Trotter will comment: "It has come to our attention that some people aren't watching the commercials."

Gobel: (pause) "Well, I'll be a dirty bird." (pause) "Now that just isn't in keeping with the American way of life." (pause)

It's those pauses that drive his show's creators nuts. Director Hal Kanter will carefully rehearse Gobel through the show, correcting him several times on the reading of a line. At showtime, Gobel will read the line entirely differently, then pause and milk a tremendous laugh. Gobel's delivery sometimes amazes even Gobel. When he saw the film of his first show, he exclaimed: "Don't I even open my mouth? I look like a ventriloquist!"

In an era when most TV comics bat you over the head, Gobel applies a feather duster. He is the reverse of the know-it-all, being the somewhat more suave version of the bedeviled souls like Charlie Chaplin and Harry Langdon, who evoked sympathy on the silent screen.

This rapid rise appears to have changed Gobel not at all. He finds he is much busier than he used to be, but otherwise he remains the same.

The war did many things to people but it made a comic out of George Gobel. He had done some radio work as a singer. As an Air Force pilot he was drafted for shows and his mumbled comments on Army life drew guffaws from the GIs.

His delivery was the same then as now, George attributes it to the fact that he is inhibited.

"I was always the smallest boy in school," he says. "When I went in the Air Force I was 5 feet 4 1/4 inches. The limit was 5 feet 5. Life has always been like that."

First Plane Ride For 91-Year-Old

DALLAS (AP)—A 91-year-old great-grandmother who says she has "109 young'uns" took her first plane ride and declared it "wonderful." Mrs. Ellen Skinner Carruth, of Denison, Tex., took the five-minute ride in an airliner between Fort

Final Exams For Fall Quarter Will Begin November 22 At East Carolina

Final examinations for the fall quarter at East Carolina College will be held from Monday afternoon, November 22, through noon Wednesday, November 24, according to an announcement by Dean Leo W. Jenkins.

Thanksgiving holidays will be observed at the college from Wednesday noon until 8 a.m. Monday, November 29, when the winter quarter will begin.

Examinations are scheduled over three days so as to allow two periods of fifty minutes each for tests in courses giving three, four, and five quarter hours of credit. In other courses one-period examinations have been scheduled.

Practically all students at the college will leave the campus for the Thanksgiving holidays. They will return to the college November 29 to enroll in classes for the winter quarter.

Students now attending the college consulted with their faculty counselors and prepared their schedules for the winter during a pre-registration procedure extending through the week of November 2. These students and those entering the college for the first time will complete their schedules November 29. Late arrivals may register through December 6.

The world's greatest builder of V-8's presents
THE TOTALLY NEW '55 FORD!

ON DISPLAY TOMORROW!

with styling inspired by the Ford THUNDERBIRD

New FAIRLANE Series . . . The new Club Sedan, like all six models in Ford's new Fairlane Series, features the new wrap-around windshield, new luxurious interiors and wide choice of stunningly new, single and two-tone exterior colors.

Longest, Lowest, Roomiest...most Powerful ever built !

New CUSTOMLINE Series . . . The Tudor Sedan (above) and Fordor offer a wide selection of exciting new color and upholstery combinations. Like all 1955 Fords, they have a new wider grille, new visored headlights and sturdier, extra-narrow pillar-posts for better visibility.

New STATION WAGON Series . . . The new 6-passenger, 4-door Country Sedan (above) is one of five new do-it-all beauties. There's also an 8-passenger Country Sedan, an 8-passenger Country Squire and a 2-door, 6-passenger Ranch Wagon and Custom Ranch Wagon.

We invite you to come in and see for yourself. And we tell you in advance you'll be amazed. For this new Ford is totally new—outside, inside, and in thrillingly different performance.

The distinctive, long, low lines of the Thunderbird were its styling inspiration. Inside, you'll be greeted by rich, roomy luxury . . . by fabrics never before offered in a motorcar at any price.

Mighty engines, mightier than in any Ford before—supply its exciting power. You now have three engines from which to choose. And each gives you the safe, split-second response of Trigger-Torque Power.

Your ride will be up to 15% smoother—even on smooth roads. You'll find automatic driving at its most versatile, most obedient, with new Speed-Trigger Fordomatic. Best of all, you'll find your kind of car, for there are 16 body styles to choose from in four fresh new lines.

When you come in, don't be surprised if you tell yourself: why look farther—why delay—you just can't buy better than when you buy Ford.

New MAINLINE Series . . . Each of the three Mainline beauties offers the same engineering advancements, the same graceful contours and clean lines that distinguish all '55 Fords. Fordor Sedan is illustrated above.

EXCLUSIVE TRIGGER-TORQUE POWER IN 3 MIGHTY ENGINES

1. 162-h.p. Y-block V-8
2. 182-h.p. Y-block Special V-8
3. 120-h.p. I-block Six

(1) The new 162-h.p. high-torque Y-block V-8 has a higher (7.6 to 1) compression ratio, greater displacement. And, like all '55 Ford engines, it has Ford's famous deep-block build for extra smoothness . . . short-stroke design for greater savings.

(2) The new 182-h.p. Y-block Special V-8 is offered in combination with new Speed-Trigger Fordomatic Drive on Fairlane and Station Wagon models. It features 4-barrel carburetion, dual exhausts and an extra-high (8.5 to 1) compression ratio.

(3) The new 120-h.p. I-block Six has a new higher (7.5 to 1) compression ratio, turbo-wedge combustion chambers, deep-block build. It's the most advanced six-cylinder power plant in the industry.

Corrosion Said Tooth 'Decayer'

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Tooth decay may be caused by the same erosive forces which level mountains and which nature uses to break down soil minerals to provide fertility for plants. The process — known as chelation — is a peculiar kind of chemical reaction which makes ordinarily insoluble minerals, such as those present in teeth — and in rocks — dissolve in water.

This kind of corrosive action may be more effective in tooth decay than the time-honored lactic acid theory say research scientists at the National Agricultural College here.

Dr. Joseph J. Martin, a dentist, and Dr. Albert Schais, the college research director and co-discoverer of streptomycin, made their report appearing in the journal, Euculides. They say that many common foods and chemical substances produced by microbes present in the mouth can extract calcium from teeth by the process of chelation.

LANGUAGE EXPERIMENT
GRAND HAVEN, Mich. (AP) — Third-grade students at Christian Elementary School are getting a 55-minute class in conversational Spanish every day. School board officials plan to teach Spanish to all Grand Haven youngsters if the experimental class proves successful.

Beach Aldermen Adopt Proposal

The Board of Aldermen of Atlantic Beach in a recent special emergency session adopted a resolution in connection with the disaster caused by Hurricane Hazel, which should be of interest to Greenville residents who own cottages in that area.

The resolution recommends "a long range plan of implementing natural conservation of the strand (between Bogue Inlet and Fort Macon) by whatever means may be deemed necessary; and that a copy of this resolution shall be delivered to the State Director of Civil Defense, US Corps of Engineers, the Governor of North Carolina . . . and other key figures whose interest may be appropriated to the cause."

The town has already made application for temporary relief from the federal government through the Governor's Office, "with respect to municipal damages only."

Studying Rabies Control Program

A representative from the Gaston County Health Department has arrived in Greenville to study the local rabies control program. Health Director Walter C. Humbert revealed yesterday.

Humbert said Joe McLean has been sent here to study all phases of the rabies control operations since Gaston County has recently decided to begin such a program in its locality.

"After a great deal of study and looking over other programs, Gaston has decided to adopt one similar to ours," Humbert said. He noted this is the fourth county this year which has sent personnel to Pitt to be trained in rabies control.

McLean, who expects to be here several weeks, is studying all phases of the local program including administration, personnel, budget, stray dog control, operation of the pound and the dog vaccination program.

He has been chosen by the Gaston County Board of Health as chief dog warden in its new rabies control operations.

While here he is residing at Quinlan Manor.

Plans To Refuse $200,000 Legacy As Undeserved

LONG BEACH, Calif. (U)—Explaining she doesn't feel she deserves the $200,000 legacy of her grandmother Mrs. Clementine Gardula Hess says she's going to refuse it.

The 52-year-old Long Beach woman told newsmen yesterday she had been advised by her uncle, Joseph Gardula that her grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Gardula, of Gostingen, Luxembourg, had willed her extensive vineyards and a small inn there.

"I never had anything to do with the vineyards," said Mrs. Hess. "My uncle deserves the land. My husband and I and our two children could use the money, and I'd accept it if I felt I deserved it."

"Furthermore, I don't want to get mixed up with anything that might take me away from here. America is our home and we like it here. I've been here since I was 4 years old."

SBI Director To Study Reports On Vote Misuse

RALEIGH (U)—Director James W. Powell plans to study reports today and tomorrow of the SBI investigation into alleged misuse of absentee ballots in five western North Carolina counties.

Powell said he would turn the reports over to Atty. Gen. Harry McMillan not later than Monday. The SBI's entire field force of 14 agents was sent into the five counties prior to the Nov. 2 general election to look into charges that absentee ballots were being sold. The counties were Graham, Clay, Ashe, Alexander and Randolph.

Powell reported last Friday that in Graham and Clay his agents had found "what in my mind is sufficient evidence to show violations of the election laws in connection with absentee ballots by representatives of both parties."

Big Harvest

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite heavy drought damage in some areas, this year's harvest is estimated to be within 3 per cent of the large 1933 yields.

Reporting this yesterday, the Agriculture Department said crop prospects increased about 1 per cent in October, indicating a total harvest nearly equal to the 1947-48 average.

Besides the drought damage, production was held down somewhat by government controls on planting of such crops as wheat, cotton and corn.

Looking ahead, the department said the outlook for next year's crops of wheat and other fall-sown grains is generally good.

Juvenile Gangs In Mass Battle

PHILADELPHIA (U)—Some 500 Negro boys and girls rioted last night in what police described as the "biggest outbreak in juvenile gangdom in West Philadelphia."

Police broke up what they said was a fighting, screaming mob, after seven gun shots were fired, and arrested 46 boys. Most of the milling teen-agers fled through alleys and side streets.

Lt. Millard Mears of the Juvenile Aid Bureau said the fight was between two gangs known as the "Syndicate" and the "Bottoms."

No one was injured seriously, and police said the shots apparently were fired into the air.
