'Books and Stuff'

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

We hope you saw Harvey Breit's "talk" with Ernest Hemingway in last Sunday's Times, headed "The Sun Also Rises in Stockholm"—referring, of course, to Hemingway's first great novel, "The Sun Also Rises," published in the early '20's, and to the fact that Hemingway has just been awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature.

Breit — and we agree — thinks Hemingway should have been given the Nobel Prize long before now, since he has become, in the last thirty years, perhaps the most imitated and most influential writer in the English-speaking world. . . . At 55, he is still in his prime, and still writing—at this point on a new novel. And about writing, we think the following is worth quoting, from Breit's article:

"What a writer must try to do is to write as truly as he can. For a writer of fiction has to invent out of what he knows in order to make something not photographic, or naturalistic, or realistic, which will be something entirely new and invented out of his own knowledge." Which is a pretty big order—but Hemingway has done it, and we hope will do it again.

News about another great writer: Shakespeare has just been reissued, but in his original form, which is very different from what we are used to reading in slick modern editions. . . . The Yale University Press has come out with a photographic facsimile edition of Shakespeare's First Folio—the book in which the plays first appeared over three centuries ago, with all the errors—over 5000 of them—printing mistakes, and typographical inconsistencies of the original, primitive, at least to us, published edition. . . . Never available before unless you happened to want to pay around $100,000 for the First Folio will contribute to Shakespeare scholarship, and also, we think, to the fun of reading Shakespeare—we'll be able to see how much harder it was for the folks back in 1620.

And something more recent—and a little more immediate—a book about our own Lost Colony, called "Roanoke Renegade," by Don Tracy, about the people—some of whom probably had seen Shakespeare's plays performed for the first time—who landed where Man-to is now and—as we all know—unaccountably disappeared. . . . We hope to have it for review in this column soon.

And coming out next week, from Macmillan, another book on alcoholism, called "Should You Drink . . ." by Charles H. Durfee, who points out the step whereby a mere "social drinker" can develop into an alcoholic, and the signs to watch for if he wants to avoid becoming one.

Big local event of next week is the commemoration of the Public Library's 50th Anniversary. . . . The anniversary is being celebrated in a series of programs, which we think is a marvellous idea—and we hope lots of you will get around in either cars or cabs and get those old library books back to where they belong—and all will be forgiven and forgotten — with not even a dirty look or a raised eyebrow.

In connection with the 50th Anniversary also there will be a tea at 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon at Sheppard, sponsored by the Library Board and the 20th-Century Book Club. . . . All who are interested are cordially invited.

Also next week: The second volume of controversial subjects, sponsored in the public interest by the Greenville Unitarian Fellowship. It will be at the Sheppard Library on Thursday evening, November 18, at 7:30, and will deal with the subject of "Freedom and Security." With the McCarthyism issue coming up, this should be an interesting discussion.

Our reviewer this week is Dr. James Poindexter of the East Carolina English Department. He reviews a book by a native North Carolinian, Mrs. Jan Cox Spears—who, we hope, will appreciate his frankness.

Bride of the MacHughs, by Jan Cox Spears. Indianapolis: The Bobbs-Merrill Company 1954.

For those who like their Scotch fiction straight and their heroines fiery and robust, this is the book. It is the reply of the book trade to Rob Roy in the movies. Opening with a kidnapping, it presents all the kinds of adventures which the Highlands during the early seventeenth century could possibly offer: duels, pitched battles, escapes, prison deliveries, not to mention the softer recreations of

Public Invited Inspect New Building On November 23

Just three years ago disaster struck the Carolina Sales Corporation when a fire broke out that completely destroyed the large building housing the general offices here in Greenville.

Practically all of the records of the company were destroyed, all of the furniture, office supplies.

However, anyone who happens to walk by 101 West 14th Street today and takes a look at the new buildings of the company, is bound to be impressed by the progress the company has made since the fire wiped out so many of their assets.

The two buildings there are new, clean, modernistic in appearance, ballroom, banquet hall, and bedroom.

In a very limited sense, this is a historical novel dealing with the machinations of James I of England and his agent, the Earl of Argyll, in Scottish politics. Argyll is leading his Campbells against the powerful MacDonalds in an effort to dominate the Highlands, though the why and wherefore of all this feuding are not made particularly clear. The important fact is that Argyll has a ward, Elspeth Lammond, whom he is trying to use to further his own selfish intentions, proving to the reader that he is a poltroon without decency or remorse. It is only when Elspeth gets thrust into the camp of the MacDonalds, (and that happens early in the story) that she really begins to live, for she finds her soul-mate in Alexander MacHugh, the tall, dark, and mysterious chief of one of the strongest clans allied with the MacDonalds.

There is a rival woman, Katherine MacLachlan, but she does not count for much, despite her formidable first appearance. In fact, as a woman, Elspeth is practically irresistible, just as the MacHugh is as a man. It is inevitable and obvious that they should mate, and beside that vivid fact, everything else in the book; particularly the high-level plotting of Argyll, seems rather extraneous and tiresome. Argyll is playing with a marked deck, and his game is dull, even to the author.

Ed. E. Rawl, Executive Vice-President of the company, said today that he is issuing a special invitation to the general public to come in and inspect the new buildings on Tuesday night, November 23, between 8 and 10 o'clock, in celebration of the 25th Anniversary of the founding of the firm. The next day, November 24, stated Rawl, over 700 of the company's dealers will come to town to hold conferences and inspect the new buildings.

At present there are less than fifty stockholders in the company, full branch office of Refrigeration Discount Corporation employing approximately thirty persons serving exclusively the distribution area of Carolina Sales Corporation; (5) A modern building to house the Parts and Commercial Departments at Greenville, N. In 1929 the company consisted of one building staffed by four persons, distributing one product in thirty-four North Carolina counties.

Now, according to a booklet recently issued by the company, their operations have been expanded to include: "(1) Distribution of twenty-three major products in eighty-two counties in Eastern North and South Carolina; (2) A subsidiary company with an annual sales volume of approximately $5,000,000; (3) A fully operating branch office in Columbia, South Carolina; (4) A

We Can't Endorse The Proposal

Proposals that Senator Lennon resign immediately in order that Senator-elect W. Kerr Scott may go to the Senate now and thereby gain seniority over senators who will take office in January, should be given consideration by the people of North Carolina.

The Reflector is sure Senator Lennon will not resign his office to allow Scott to assume the Senate post early. Nevertheless, proponents of the idea have presented an argument which, superficially at least, offers strong support for their case.

Seniority is an important item in the Senate and in the House so far as committee assignments and prestige are concerned. The state is particularly seniority conscious right now because Sen. Ervin is still a fledgling and Sen. Scott will be brand new in Senate ranks come January.

Not only have Scott supporters advanced the idea, but some Lennon folks in the state have nodded their heads in approval of the suggestion that Lennon step down and give Scott the opportunity to take office while the Senate is in its special McCarthy session.

The Reflector can not go along with the proposal. We take this view not because we are anti-Scott or pro-Lennon. We feel that the resignation of Lennon now would set a rather unwise precedent for the future of North Carolina.

Suppose Lennon resigned now, and Scott went to the Senate. The next time we had a senatorial contest, if the incumbent were defeated, he would be expected to relinquish his office in order to give the new man the advantage of whatever seniority he might gain by taking office early. In our estimation, the proposals for the incumbent's resignation would come soon after the Democratic primary rather than on the heels of the general election as has been the case this year.

Since the Democratic nomination in North Carolina is tantamount to election where the balloting is on a state-wide basis, it would be just as logical for the incumbent to resign following defeat in the primary as it would be for him to resign

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DECISION
Some years ago there was a youngster in a mid-western community who prided himself on going about with a tough gang. He wanted the excitement of speed, and got it. He regarded the religion of his parents with amiable tolerance and looked upon most of the church people whom he knew as a lot of slobber old dodos.

One day his minister invited and urged him to come to a New Year's Eve party which the young people of the church were giving. He went and had a swell time. He never knew that Christian people could be as fun-loving as these kids were. Little by little he gave up the old gang and found his social life in the church.

When he was a sophomore in college, his father said to him one day, "Don, did you see those young hoodlums in the morning paper?" Don's account is as follows: "I looked at the story and the pictures. There, staring out at me were the frightened faces of my own 'gang,' which I had left when I joined church." The boys had just been sentenced to six years in the penitentiary. "Sure," continues Don, "my eyes were playing tricks, but there in the middle of the picture was a space just my size."

Don is now in a theological seminary, and he went in the hopes that he will some day be able to help youngsters who are as foolish as he was some years ago.

Repercussions In Davies Case

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The dismissal of John Paton Davies Jr. for alleged diplomatic indiscretions has had a more depressing and devastating effect on this country's foreign service than all Senator "Joe" McCarthy's indictments of the State Department. From every aspect, it is a most puzzling affair.

Although Davies has been one of McCarthy's principal targets, Secretary Dulles announced his months-delayed decision only a few days before the Senate convened to consider censure of the Wisconsin Senator. The latter's friends have cited the Davies incident as evidence that "Joe was right all along." Together with the Peress case, it clouds any decision the Senate may make.

Was Dulles seeking to woo the McCarthyites so that they will not feel too hostile toward the administration, if the Senate does condemn their hero? Or was this merely another example of the political ineptitude that cost the Republicans so many votes in the recent election? There is no official answer to these embarrassing questions that so many GOP-ers are asking on Capitol Hill.

REASONS FOR DISMISSAL—Davies had been cleared of disloyalty in nine previous investigations. Dulles and his predecessors concurred in these findings. But after a personal review of the evidence, Dulles found the fired official guilty of "lack of judgment, discretion and reliability."

In view of the basis for Dulles' conclusion, the same charges may be leveled against General George C. Marshall, Averell Harriman, Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen and many other distinguished figures in the Truman and Eisenhower Administrations. Indeed, they may logically be made against Truman himself. If Davies is guilty of these blunders, so are they.

A major charge against Davies is that, before China fell completely to the Communists, he recommended that we try to drive a wedge between the Chinese Reds and Moscow. To this end, he urged an attempt at a coalition between Mao Tse-tung and Chiang Kai-shek.

LOOKING BACK—In retrospect, such a proposal seems so fantastic as to be proof of "lack of judgment."

after a general election.

In the long run, we feel North Carolina would be better off for its representatives in Congress to serve the full terms to which they are elected or appointed, rather than setting a precedent for the practice of the incumbent resigning as soon as his successor is reasonably assured.

How Is Greenville's Business Doing?

How's Greenville's business compared with that of other cities of comparable size in this area?

One probably could get a number of different horse-back opinions on that question depending on who was asked.

State sales and use tax collections have pointed to the conclusion that retail sales throughout North Carolina are lagging behind just as they are throughout the nation. In view of that condition, it is interesting to look at the percentages to see how Greenville's business—based on these figures—stacks up beside that of other cities.

Latest figures available, which are for the month of September, show that sale and use tax collections from Greenville for September of 1954 were 6.4 per cent lower than they were in September a year ago; but even so, collections rose 8.3 per cent above August.

Now let's compare those figures with the figures from nearby cities. For Kinston, the sale and use tax collections for September this year were 8.6 per cent behind that month a year ago; Rocky Mount's collections showed a drop of 14.2 per cent from the same month of last year; Wilson showed a drop of 1.9 per cent compared with September of last year. Greensboro, which can not be considered a city which depends largely upon agriculture for retail sales, showed a drop in retail sales for September of 10. per cent compared with the same month last year.

As a whole, Pitt County showed a drop in sales and use tax collections of 4.04 per cent in September of this year compared with the same month last year; while Lenoir County showed a drop of 8.5 per cent an appreciable percentage drop in the comparable figures.

All of which indicates to us that business in Greenville and Pitt County is slightly above the average for the counties and towns of this section and throughout the state. We always wish business here is as good and perhaps a little better than elsewhere.

A study made by the National Association of Manufacturers of the cost of living and the purchasing power of the dollar contains food for serious thought.

Between the first of 1953 and July, 1954, the purchasing power of the dollar declined only 1.1 cents. In the two prior years, by contrast, the cost of living rose 10.4 per cent and the dollar's value shrank by 9.2 cents. The study states, "The leveling off of prices occurred after the discontinuation of price controls, while during price control, the cost of living kept climbing."—(Industrial News Review)

Somebody Told Me

Friend Mac To Make Change

Yesterday I ran into Carl McKinney on the street and verified a rumor that I had heard: Mac's Music Rack is going on television! Effective December 1, WGTC will change hands and effective January 1 Mac goes to WNCN. WVOT, Wilson, has purchased WGTC and will take charge of the operation the first of the month.

Mac readily admits that not many disc jockey shows have made the grade on television. He gives as an example Kirk Webster of Charlotte. Kirk, as you will remember, is the Charlotte disc jockey who made the record 'Heartaches' famous. I think it's safe to say that he was probably the most listened-to late-evening disc jockey in the state.

Kirk went to TV and changed entirely. Tried to act, so the reports go. If you know Carl Joseph then you realize that he can't act. His show has been the most popular on WGTC because of his casual approach.

How will it change? Not much, says Mac. He still will ad-lib all commercials. He'll have a band, a parakeet and a gismo that will give the weather at all times.

Yesterday it was noticeable that Mac has lost some weight. "How did you do it?"

"It was easy. All I did was chase back and forth feeding parking meters."

Mac will not let up on the meters. Says one day he was feeding one at the front of the car while the lady was tagging it from the back. It was a close race, but he won.

If anybody can make a disc jockey show a success on TV it should be Mac. All of us like the informal approach and he's 100 per cent informal.

Amateur radio interest is on the increase: Reid McLawhorn has already taken his exam and is awaiting his license. Preston Jarvis will take his Saturday. Betty Jackson and William Johnson are studying for the exam and there are five in Ayden (Clay Stroud and four others) who are preparing. Burke Standell and Herman Nelson are also getting underway. If Nelson becomes licensed there will be an official Air Force station at the College. Nelson heads up the Air ROTC supply and can serve as custodian of the station.

For the prospect I formerly recommended the entire set of manuals for learning how to get a license. The entire set will eventually be needed. But for just a look-see you can order How to Become a Radio Amateur for 50 cents from the American Radio Relay League, West Hartford, Conn.

Tomorrow night is our last opportunity to see the Pirates of East Carolina. They've had a good season and deserve your support for their final game.

And I thank you.

U.N.C. LOSES ONE OF ITS GREAT MEN
(Charlotte Observer)

Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina, who died in Chapel Hill Monday night, had for years been recognized as one of the leading sociologists of the United States. That recognition brought him high honors from the leading universities and learned societies in his field from coast to coast.

He had devoted his life to a study of the social problems of the South. But he did not stop with study. He made direct contributions to the solution of these problems through his active membership in such groups as the North Carolina Commission on Interracial Co-operation, the State Planning Board, the North Carolina Conference for Social Service, the Southern Regional Council, and many others.

Being a native southerner of humble parentage who had personal, intimate, and sometimes unpleasant contact with the social problems peculiar to the South, he avoided the pitfalls of impatient radicalism that trapped too many other sociologists who knew the southern scene only from what they read in books.

Dr. Odum was born and reared with these problems and lived with them most of his life. He knew that the solutions would have to be found in a process of evolution, that they admitted of no easy short cuts, and that no waving of a magic wand could eradicate conditions that had grown up through nearly three centuries.

As a consequence, his contributions in this field were uniformly level-headed and sound. We shall never know just how much of the almost incredible growth and development of the South in the last half century can be attributed to his work and influence. We do know, however, that many forward steps would not have been taken without his guiding hand, and that much trouble was avoided through his restraining coolness.

During the many years that he taught at Chapel Hill, it was a high privilege for a student of sociology to get enrolled in one of Dr. Odum's classes. There he heard words spoken with authority, but tempered by a delightful humor and a sympathetic understanding.

One of the greats of Chapel Hill has left us.

Hodges' Accession To Bring Changes In Legislature

By LYNN NISBET

LEGISLATURE—The death of Governor Umstead and the accession of Lieutenant Governor Luther Hodges to the highest office will necessitate some changes in the organization of the Legislature, especially in the Senate. The House of Representatives will be affected only indirectly.

Under the constitution the Lieutenant Governor is President of the Senate. For the first time in nearly a hundred years a Legislature will convene without a Lieutenant Governor in office. Consequently the Senate will elect a President, rather than a president-protem — or perhaps both. Existing Senate rules provide that the Lieutenant Governor shall have full authority to appoint committees. That rule will have to be changed so as to vest the authority either in the President or in a special committee.

It has been apparent for weeks that Senator Luther Barnhardt of Cabarrus would be unopposed for the office of president protem. There seems no likelihood he will have opposition for election as President, and opinion prevails among competent observers he will name the committees. It is further opinion that he will confer with and consult his colleagues in the Senate and perhaps other State officials, including the new Governor, about these appointments to greater degree than such conferences and consultation had been expected of Lieutenant Governor Hodges.

The overall situation is further complicated by the fact committee assignments in the 1955 General Assembly may be more important than in any session within twenty years, because of the admitted necessity of levying new taxes and reducing appropriations in order to achieve the statutory requirement of a balanced budget.

MATERIAL—The President of the Senate will have some good material from which to select committee chairmen. Good material, that is, from the viewpoint of personal ability and legislative experience. It is estimated that approximately half the Senate membership can qualify under those standards. The task of selection is complicated, however, by the probable change in administration policy and objectives due to change in the Governor's office.

Although the House of Representatives has 120 members while the Senate has only 50, a review of the elected membership discloses not many more than the same number (20 to 25) members regarded as capable of the kind of leadership essential for major committee chairman.

To date no opposition has developed to Larry I. Moore Jr. of Wilson for Speakership of the House, a post that under longstanding rules carries full authority to name committees. The upset in the Governor's office has much less impact upon the House situation than upon the Senate, but there will be some effect because of the traditional custom of presiding officers checking sometimes interferred during past

ve. That practice is one of the places where lack of veto power by the Governor actually accords to him more influence over legislation in advance of enactment than veto might have after passage of bills.

The point is that the Senate situation must be revamped completely and the House situation probably revised by reason of the fact that a different man occupies the office of Governor since most of the existing commitments for legislative offices were made.

RULES—It is known that Governor Hodges had in mind some changes in Senate rules for the next session, if he had continued as presiding officer. These proposals included more adequate provision for reporters, cameramen and television equipment, along with further restrictions on access to the Senate floor by registered lobbyists and casual visitors—whose presence sometimes interferred during past sessions with orderly processes of legislation. It is doubted that he will have time under the much greater burden imposed upon him as Governor to sponsor these rule changes.

On the other hand, as ex-officio chairman of the Board of Buildings and Grounds, he will have more authority to effectuate his ideas of revamping physical facilities in the capitol than he had as Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate. Certain it is that increasing use of news cameras and radio with advent of television as a medium

Business Today

Business Trend Up

By ELMER ROESSNER
It is early for 1955 forecasts. Nevertheless, prospects for the coming year are looking up.

Business activity is, at the moment, surging upward. New models are zooming automobiles sales and the rush to build them is increasing the demand for steel and other materials, and fattening payrolls from here to Detroit and back again. The appliance picture is brightening, even more than with the usual glimmer as the holidays approach. Several television manufacturers have increased prices, something none of them would have dreamed of say, August 10. Increases in orders outbalanced decreases 4 to 1, and increases in production outbalanced drops 3 to 1 in October among members of the National Association of Purchasing Agents. And Christmas demand looks helthy.

All these are creating a moderate wave of prosperity that is likely to carry on into 1955.

In addition, the $5 billion in orders the Defense Department placed in the four months ending October 31, the continuing high rate of commitments for capital expenditures, and the sustained strength of the building boom—once more enhanced by a Federal housing program—all point to prosperous conditions in the coming year.

New contracts for housing have been running consistently 40 per cent above corresponding months last year, the F.W. Dodge Corporation reports.

"The month of October has brought further evidence of business pickup and strengthened confidence," says the National City Bank.

"The normal, seasonal industrial pickup reported by Purchasing Agents in September... is confirmed by October reports," says their national association.

"There are indications that the low point of the 1953-54 recession has already been reached and that a gradual upswing is under way," reports the University of Illinois Bureau of Economic Research.

And government figures show fairly consistent rises in employment and declines in the "un."

DISCOUNTER'S ADVERTISING AT RIVALRY'S FRONT DOORS

There are a lot of red faces down in Knoxville, Tenn., and some of them are pink with anger rather than embarrassment.

Seems that there was space for rent on some sidewalk trash-cans, and that a cut-rate appliance dealer rented it. So he splashed advertisements offering television sets at "less than wholesale price."

Life And Times Among Belgians

By HAL BOYLE
BRUSSELS (AP)—The poor man's Baedeker to Belgium:

There is no law about it, but by custom the seventh child in every Belgian family is the god-child of the King.

However, a mother doesn't have to raise that large a family to start getting something from the government. She gets an allowance equivalent to $6.50 a month for her first child. The figure gradually rises until the payment reaches a peak of $13.90 monthly for her fifth child, and any thereafter.

There are also small birth and death allowances, and a nonworking mother also gets an allowance from the government to stay home and raise her kids.

These family bonuses increase the birth rate in rural more than in industrial areas, however. The clear bracing air in rural zones is regarded by some authorities as even more important to the birth rate than government bonuses.

Belgium's 8,725,000 people have three different national tongues—Flemish, French and German.

Now some of the trashcans are located right in front of the stores of dealers who obey the "fair trade" laws and charge the full retail price.

They haven't said much about it. They are so angry they can only splutter.

GETS SIX FOR ONE—AND A PRIZE, TOO

A special plaque from "the newspapers of America" has been presented to (Deering, Milliken & Co.), a textile manufacturer, by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The plaque is for excellence in use of newspaper advertising. One of the things that won the award was the fact that the manufacturer got more than five times as much advertising as it paid for. Its copy was so good, its timing so perfect and it merchandised its advertising so well to dealers that for every ad the company used to promote suits of its special fiber blend, its retailers used more than five advertisements.

HOTEL INCOME DROPS UNDER 1953 LEVELS

The race to buy hotels makes it look as if they were gold mines.

But, according to figures compiled by Horwath and Horwath, accountant in the field, hotel occupancy averaged 73 per cent the first nine months of this year, compared with 76 per cent during the same period a year ago. Despite a 3 per cent increase in rates, room sales total were 1 per cent under last year ago. Sales of food and beverages were down 3 per cent.

NEW USES FOUND FOR RARE RHENIUM

Dig that rhenium! It may have startling possibilities.

Rhenium is one of the rare metals. It resembles manganese, has the highest melting point of all metals (about 3180 degrees centigrade) and while ductile at room temperature, it hardens when worked more than any other pure metal. It has an atomic weight of 186.31. The Germans used it during the last war for pen points and thermocouple materials.

Studies at Battelle Memorial Institute, disclosed at the recent National Metals Congress, indicate that it may be used in electrical contacts and as electrode materials. It has other possible uses under high temperatures and under great wear. The metal is found in molybdenum-copper ores. Battelle scientists have developed a new method of refining and preparing the metal, but its costliness will prevent its use except for highly special purposes.

Some 3,039,315 in 1950 spoke French only, 3,473,291 Dutch only, 49,003 German only.

It was also discovered that 334,206 inhabitants couldn't speak any of the three languages. It turned out most of them had a reasonable excuse—they were still under 2 years of age.

Belgium produces no romantic films, does go in heavily for serious home-produced documentary movies. But cinema fans here like American stars and currently Jane Russell is ahead of Marilyn Monroe by a wide margin.

Television is state controlled here, and separate networks are provided for the Flemish and French-speaking populations. Two hours of TV are scheduled for the kids each Thursday afternoon off every week, but so far Hopalong Cassidy didn't invade the frontier. So far there are only an estimated 40,000 TV sets in the nation, and most of them are in cafes. Here as in America the thoughtful bartender is in the forefront of any move that will help bring culture to his customers.

Long Apprenticeship For Comedian Gobel

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Like many an "overnight sensation," George Gobel put in many years of apprenticeship before hitting the big time in show business.

As viewers of his Saturday night TV show can see, Gobel has one important element that distinguishes top stars. That is timing. In delivering his lines and waiting for laughs, he can judge that split second which governs whether an audience will continue being amused or boredom will set in.

He learned this the hard way—before the pleasure seekers on the night club circuit. It was a far cry from his start as a performer, in the choir of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Chicago.

George was born in the windy city on May 20, 1920. He was the only child of Herman and Lillian Gobel, who ran a grocery store.

A sterling soprano, George was graduated from the choir to a spot on radio's National Barn Dance. He acted on the Tom Mix air serial and continued singing on hillbilly shows until 1943, when he joined the Air Force.

A B-26 flier stationed at Frederick, Okla., he played his guitar and sang for service shows. He also began telling stories. The G. I.'s were convulsed by his deadpan delivery.

Out of the Air Force in 1946, Gobel tried to find work as a comedian in Chicago. He was tabbed as a comer by David O'Malley, who remains his agent today. O'Malley started booking his young client into conventions and night clubs, gradually building in class.

Was he impatient for fame in those early days?
"No, not really," Gobel reflects. "Each new date was more important and presented new challenges. I was doing very well."

"The only thing that bothered me was not being able to spend much time with my family. I have three children and my wife Alice is a home-type girl. She had never been near show business, and she couldn't get used to not being at home. When she'd come visit me on the road, she'd be itching to get home after a week."

"I had hoped to eventually reach the point where I could stay in Chicago most of the time, traveling only 12 weeks a year. But I didn't expect to be able to do that until I was around 40."

The break came when he appeared for eight straight weeks on the Hoagy Carmichael TV show a summer ago.

"I had done good guest spots on shows like 'Toast of the Town' and 'This is Now Business,'" he said. "People thought they remembered me, but they couldn't quite place me. It wasn't until I was on for eight straight weeks that I made an impression."

NBC signed him up for a show of his own, which made his debut this fall. He was immediately hailed as the brightest comedy talent in years.

George and his wife Alice, whom he met in high school, have settled in the San Fernando Valley with their son Gregg, 9, and daughters Georgia, almost 4, and Leslie, 7 months. I asked him if his family thought he was funny.

"Alice does," he said. "Gregg sometimes. Sometimes he doesn't." Like many comedians, Gobel is not especially funny in person. Occasionally he will say something in the faltering whimsical manner he displays on TV, but most of the time he talks seriously.

Unlike most comedians, he is shy. This makes it difficult for him to accept the praise that has been heaped on him by TV fans. Only last week he was making a March of Dimes short for TV at RKO Studios. Barbara Stanwyck was acting in a picture on the next stage.

When she heard he was nearby, she rushed over to his set, kissed him and said she never missed his show. He had never met her before.

All kinds of nice things have been happening to this brush-haired, sober-faced funnyman from Chicago.

Ayden Officials Hope New Well Will Largely Augment Town Water Supply

AYDEN — A new water well, which town officials hope will supply 500 gallons of water per minute for Ayden's water system, is nearing completion on Snow Hill Street.

Town Clerk Ansen Sawyer said yesterday that the new well is expected to be completed shortly. When tied in with the town's water lines the well will be Ayden's main source of water. It will be maintained by the town in addition to a 350-gallon well and two 150-gallon water sources which are now operated by Ayden.

The 350-gallon well now serves as the main municipal water source. While the two 150-gallon wells have been used as reserve water supplies.

Water mains will be laid down Snow Hill Street to Second and Third Streets to tie in with the town's network of lines, according to Sawyer. The pump at the well site will send water into the town's 60,000 gallon tank. Sawyer noted that future plans call for constructing a second water tank on the lot along with the well when such a project is needed. The well was sunk on one corner of the town property to allow room for a tank.

Ayden's water pumps were hard pressed to keep up with demands of local citizens for water during the summer months which prompted the city fathers to authorize the construction of the new well.

Sawyer said the new water source is expected to supply ample water for the town at present. He said the other three wells are to be kept as reserve units to supplement the new well is expected to furnish.

The well, which is expected to cost $8500, is being drilled by the Carolina Drilling and Equipment Company. It is a gravel pack type, Sawyer stated. He explained that a ten inch pipe is sunk in the well with tiny slots in the sides through which water enters the pipe to be pumped out of the ground. Course gravel is packed around the pipe to keep sand and dirt from seeping in with the water. The gravel is too large to pass through the slots.

Sawyer declared that work had been in progress for the past three weeks and the well has reached a depth of 561 feet.

He noted that the State Board of Health will check a sample from the new water source before it is used by the town.

Sawyer stated that the Board of Health checks a sample of Ayden's water, as it does with all municipalities, once a month. He pointed out that the town so far has not been required to purify water pumped from its wells.

An electric pump is to be used for the well and transformers and other electrical equipment are now being installed at the site.

Ansen Sawyer, Ayden town clerk, stands beside the drilling rig which is now being used to sink a new well to serve the Town of Ayden. The well, which is expected to cost around $8500, will have a capacity of 500 gallons per minute, town officials hope. One 350 gallon per minute and two 150 gallon wells now serving Ayden, will be kept in reserve when the new water source is placed in service. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Heart-Effect Statistics In Cigarette Study Is Offered

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the most sensational reports of danger in cigarettes came last June with announcement of findings in the American Cancer Society's big statistical study.

Oddly, many people apparently missed one of its most significant findings—its evidence that cigarette smoking stepped up the risk of heart attacks. This aspect, new to most people, could have been overlooked in concern over cancer.

In main essence, this study found:

Men, aged 50 to 70, who smoke a pack of cigarettes or more daily run about twice the risk of heart disease and cancer as nonsmokers. Smokers run more risk not only of lung cancer, but other forms of cancer. Heavy cigarette smoking might cut an average of seven years from the life span.

This study, headed by Doctors E. Oyler Hammond and Daniel Horn, attracted attention because it was based upon interviews with some 180,000 men about their smoking habits, then checks to learn what they died of later.

Said Dr. Hammond, who switched from chain-smoking cigarettes to a pipe:

The effect found on the heart is much more important than the effect found in lung cancer, because heart disease is so much more frequently a killer than lung cancer.

Again, there are many medical men who do not agree with Hammond that cigarettes play any great role in contributing to heart attacks.

It has long been known that smoking can make tiny blood vessels narrow down, kick up pulse rate and blood pressure. Nicotine is usually blamed for this.

In some diseases, particularly Buerger's disease—a plugging of blood vessels in the extremities—smoking is banned as a measure to save life or avoid amputations.

Publication of the Hammond-Horn results sent tobacco stocks tumbling. But they recovered just as they had from previous drops caused by research reports.

Apparently the announcements of cigarette-danger studies have knocked consumption down to some degree, and have been an impetus for greater sales of filter cigarettes.

They have persuaded some people to stop smoking, at least temporarily. A number have switched to cigars or pipes, since the cancer society study has so far at least found little risk in them.

On the other hand, a few surveys or observations do not find pipes and cigars as free of indicated hazard as the cancer society study does.

Clearly, one effect is that most Americans are aware of the questioning over cigarettes. New bits of news, pro or con, are coming regularly.

A month ago, the Public Health Cancer Assn., a small organization of cancer specialists in public health responsibilities, by a 13-3 vote adopted a resolution advising the public to stop smoking as a way to reduce lung cancer deaths, and suggesting that youths ponder whether the risks in smoking were worth the pleasure.

Some authorities now term cigarettes "a major factor in causing" lung cancer. The New England Journal of Medicine has said editorially that the evidence amounts to "proof within the ordinary meaning of the word."

But other authorities—physicians and scientists—say a link is by no means proved.

The American Medical Assn. has not yet made any editorial pronouncement, nor has its House of Delegates passed any resolution.

Life insurance companies have not raised their rates for smokers.

Pirates Losing 10 Stars This Season

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer
East Carolina will observe the last services of ten outstanding football players here this Saturday night against Stetson University. Players who were instrumental in producing the Pirates' greatest football season in 1953 are bidding adieu to North State Conference football.

Their absence in 1954 will leave gaping weaknesses which the ECC coaching staff will have to deal with. Six of the finalists are linemen and four are backs. Co-Captain Willie Holland, 220-pound tackle from Wilson, heads the forward wall members and Co-Captain John (Tippy) Hayes, 166-pound half from Durham, is the big man in the backfield.

Holland has been an outstandingly strong link in the Pirates' line of defense for the past four years. He is a strong bet to culminate his career with "All-Conference" nomination. Hayes is the team's leading ground gainer and scorer. The fast-stepping little leader has been an indispensable ingredient in successful Pirate grid teams during the past several years.

David Lee, 240-pound guard from Tarboro, was All-Conference last year. The huge lineman came to ECC after an All-American prep career in Virginia. An injury this season hampered him but his play still has been sparkling. George Tucker, 200-pound tackle from Monroe, was last year nominated as AP's Lineman of the Week. His play this season hasn't declined in fervor and he has stood out as one of the Pirates' strongholds. Don Burton, 200-pound guard from Roanoke Rapids, is one of the most underrated players on the team. His love of scrap and relentless drive has earned him adulation of his teammates.

Larry Rhodes, 200-pound end from High Point, has maintained one of the Buc's flanks for the past two years. He came to ECC as an All-State performer both in football and basketball. He has been of great value to Coach Jack Boone's two grid editions. Gaither Cline, 205-pound center from Gastonia, was seriously hurt in the Catawba game this year and missed the remainder of the season. His play in '53 and the early part of this season earned him the reputation of a fine footballer.

Boyd Webb, 165-pound quarterback from Gastonia, has looked brilliant in splashes this season. A mid-season injury has plagued his efforts somewhat though. He is still one of the best passers in the conference. Thomas Allsbrook, 170-pound halfback from Scotland Neck, has played four years of spot football. His kicking has always been outstanding and his clutch running a big part in Pirate fortune. Claude King, 195-pound fullback from Wilmington, has been the Pirates workhorse for the past two seasons. The ramming power runner is considered by many the best fullback in the league. His kicking has been sensational. At the moment he is averaging 44.6 yards a boot and once this season kicked 88 yards from the line of scrimmage.

Special "Pirate Night" ceremonies have been planned to honor these departing gridlers.

Russian Olympic Team Powerful

By MURRAY ROSE
NEW YORK (AP)—An all-out effort and the sternest possible competition will be necessary if the U.S. hopes to match the powerful Russians in the 1956 Olympics, says a veteran official who has seen Soviets in recent action.

"The Russians claim to have seven million registered athletes and from that number they're bound to have a great number of exceptional athletes," said Dan Ferris.

The gray-haired executive secretary of the AAU saw the tremendous job the Russians did in Helsinki in 1952 and witnessed their performances in Switzerland last summer.

"The Russians are building up in every sport," he said in an interview. "They are better in most every event in track—and they were good enough before—except in the sprints. The other Iron Curtain countries are developing their stars too. We've got to dig in and work—and hard."

"The Russians won the world hockey, weight-lifting and gymnastic championships. They swept the European track and field championships. The Hungarians impressed in winning the European swimming championships. The Russians even came up with some excellent men and women divers and they never had anything like that before."

What will the United States have to do to meet opposition?
"We must have competition and more competition," replied Ferris. "We must have more summer competition in every sport, particularly in track and field. We hope to get the program rolling next summer and follow it up in '56, the year of the games."

Soon To Disclose Team Managers

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP)—Arnold Johnson, the man who bought the Philadelphia Athletics and is moving the franchise to Kansas City, says he'll name his field manager and general manager next week.

Johnson made the statement last night at Pittsburgh in an airport interview. He mentioned no names. However, in Chicago, Lou Boudreau, former manager of the Boston Red Sox, said he had been in touch with Johnson.

"But nothing is definite yet," Boudreau declared.

The Chicago Tribune said Johnson announced recently he planned to confer with Joe Cronin, general manager of the Red Sox. The Tribune said:
"Boudreau's contract with Boston, calling for an estimated $40,000 to $45,000 had another year to run. Johnson would want to know if the Red Sox will have to assume the entire obligation, or only the financial difference if Boudreau lands another job in 1955. Boudreau admitted he didn't know of such a twist in his contract."
Johnson said he has had many applications for the field job.

Seven Stalwarts Take Final Bows

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
Greenville's Phantoms wind up one of their best seasons in many years tonight at ECC stadium when they play host to a fired-up gang of Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets.

The game is a regular Northeastern Conference game although it has no bearing on the final standings. The Yellow Jackets are hopelessly mired in sixth place in the league while the Phantoms only have a chance to finish fourth. If the Kingston Red Devils should lose to New Bern and the Greenies should beat Roanoke Rapids the G-men would wind up in fourth place. Both Greenville and Kingston have identical 2-2 conference marks.

Although the Greenies do not have an outstandingly impressive conference mark, the overall record of 5-2-1 shows how well the team has played.

Tonight's game should be a hum-dinger. The Yellow Jackets feature a strong passing attack where the G-men are almost solely a running team. Utilizing the split-T offensive the G-men have rolled all year long on the ground. Quarterback Jerry Drum comes in to supply the passing when needed for Coach Bill Kittrell's gang.

Drum has completed 19 out of 29 passes for the year for the G-men. Whether he will be called on or not tonight depends largely on how the Greenville running game goes. Last week the Green Phantoms gained so well on the ground they did not have to pass but three times and scored on one of them.

Seven Departees
Tonight will be the last game for seven Greenville performers. Those who will graduate this year are James Speight, Mitchell Johnson, Bob Howell, Harris Northrop, Tommy Smith, and Pat Sawyer. Guard Gene Hudson has played out his eligibility although he still has another year of high school.

James Speight
For Speight tonight will be the climax of one of the greatest careers in Greenville high school football history. Speight has been a letterman for four years in football and probably has scored more points than anyone in GHS history. Speight scored seven points in his sophomore season, adding 36 last season to his total, and this season has already scored 55. Maybe after tonight's game he will raise his total to 98 points over the century mark.

Speight also is probably the highest ground gainer in GHS history. For two consecutive years now he has picked up over 600 yards rushing and with his sophomore season efforts, his final rushing figure should reach 1300 or more by the end of the year.

Mitchell Johnson is also a four letterman for the Greenies. Johnson was a part time regular two years ago, but was delayed by injuries most of last year before coming into his own this season. Johnson is one of the most dependable players on the squad and has the second highest rushing average on the team.

Bob Howell has played every backfield position on the team in his three years as a letterman. A great plunging back and blocker for two years, he was moved to quarterback this year and ran the option like a pro. A fast and shifty runner, Howell will be hard to replace.

Harris Northrop has been the little-boy-make-good story. He started off as a manager for two years, then went out for the team last season and came around fine. At 133 pounds he is one of the lightest guards ever to play in the Northeastern Conference. Northrop is best noted for his defensive play, especially at defensive end. Last season he wrecked Mt. Airy's reverse almost single-handedly while playing in his first varsity game.

Tommy Smith is one of the finest all-around tackles in Greenville history. The 195-pound tower of strength is highly regarded by college coaches around this area. Smith opened up Speight's hole over tackle all last year and was highly responsible for the fleet back to get through. Smith has been the steady man in the Greenville defense all year.

Pat Sawyer has been forced to quit football time and again because of his trick knee. This year Sawyer came back in a new capacity as a special punter and extra point kicker. He is one of the top punters in the league and has boot-ed 7 out of 10 PAT's.

Gene Hudson is the kickoff man for the Greenies and a very valuable man of the inner defense. Gene has only played varsity ball for two years but has been one of Coach Kittrell's best.

These seven boys wind up their careers tonight in ECC stadium with a team of the calibre of Roanoke Rapids it might not end victoriously, but you can bet you new hat that those seven and 20 more GHS heroes will be giving it all they've got.

Big Overtime Period By Belvoir Tops Hookerton

BELOIR — Visiting Hookerton basketball teams bowed twice here last night to their Belvoir hosts. The Belvoir girls took an easy 52-30 victory while the Belvoir boys' quintet staged a rousing 19-1 overtime period to break a deadlock and close out the game with a 57-39 triumph.

Marlene Clark with 17 points, led the Belvoir girls' scoring parade; Sherry Warren was a close second with 14. Starters included Marlene Clark, Sherry Warren and Joan Parker as forwards; and Florence Harrell, Vera Windham and Dorothy Harris rounding out the team. Substitutes included Jean Blake, who scored eight points, and Shelia Wooten and Shirley Peaden.

Belvoir 11-16-15-10
Hookerton 11-2-9-7
Doug Parker and Donald Warren shared top-scoring honors in the boys game with 19 points each. David Moore was hard on their heels with 16.

The game was a see-saw affair all the way with Hookerton lying it up in the last two minutes to go into overtime, which saw the host team break loose with a scoring spree.

UNC And Irish Pitting Pennsylvania Fullbacks

By JERRY LISKA
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Two dashing fullbacks from Pennsylvania may butt heads when Notre Dame's once-defeated Irish oppose North Carolina's improving Tar Heels in Notre Dame Stadium tomorrow.

The Irish fullback is Don Schaefer of Pittsburgh, a converted quarterback, whose 5.9 yard average per smash exactly matches the 1953 thrusting power of his illustrious predecessor, Neil Worden.

His Tar Heel counterpart is 213-pound Don Klochak, sophomore of Fairhope, Pa. who turned the tide in Notre Dame's surprising conquest of South Carolina 21-19, last Saturday. Klochak has averaged 6.7 yards for the season. However, there was some doubt that he would play since he hurt a shoulder in practice yesterday.

While talented quarterback Ralph Guglielmi mainly has been the big wheel in Notre Dame's grind to five victories and fifth spot in the Associated Press poll, Schaefer has given great joy to Terry Brennan, the youthful Irish coach.

Filling Worden's shoes appeared a major problem, even after the current season started. But the 187-pound Schaefer, who was third string Irish quarterback last year as a sophomore, really took hold.

Quick-starting and as slanting, slashing runner, Schaefer tops all Irishball-carriers with 410 yards in 70 carries for a 5.9 average. That's the same average the bulle-like Worden had last season on 895 yards in 145 carries.

Like Klochak against South Carolina, Schaefer really had his coming out party against Pennsylvania last Saturday. He rambled 135 yards in 13 carries, including a 69-yard dash for the longest Irish scrimmage run this season. It was powerful Klochak amassing 124 yards in 12 tries for a 10.3 average in the game, who ignited the Tar Heels in a 68-yard drive which whipped South Carolina in the final three minutes.

The Irish season, marred by an Oct. 2 loss to Purdue 27-14, could be further blighted if Notre Dame putters with the Tar Heels with an eye on a revenge-seeking

A Study in Values

KING SOLOMON SHOWS HOW TO BE TRULY SUCCESSFUL AND HAPPY IN LIFE.

Scripture—Proverbs 11:24-28; 13:7; 15:13-17; 16:3, 16; 20:11-13; 22:1-5, 9; 23:4-25.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. WHAT MAKES a happy, successful life? The same manner of living which the wise King Solomon of old advocated for men and women of his day, and which is just as true now as it was then.

of the heart the spirit is broken. "The heart of him that hath understanding seeketh knowledge; but the mouth of fools feedeth on foolishness."

"All the days of the afflicted are evil, but he that is of a merry heart hath a continual feast."

Did you ever notice when you are walking down a crowded street, how many of the people into whose faces you look are sad or just blank? I have seen people who looked so sad that I was tempted to stop them and ask if they were in deep trouble and if there was anything I could do to help.

How delightful it is to see a happy face; to hear a gay laugh to which we immediately respond with a smile; to share anything more delightful than the happy laugh of a child? Not the vacant giggling in which young and old may indulge, but hearty laughter which cheers the dullest day, and makes us feel life is indeed worth living.

"Better is little with the fear of the Lord than great treasure and trouble therewith. Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith."

The table may be set with fine china, exquisite glass and gold cutlery, but if people are unhappy, lonely or with uncongenial com-

As Solomon wrote in his Proverbs, "Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom," so our lesson today shows us what it is wise to do and also the folly of lesser aims.

These are words and warnings that should be impressed on the youth of today from their earliest years to help them to shape their thoughts and actions that they may succeed in life—not only in material things, but also in ethical and spiritual ways. Thus they may not only please their fellow men and bear honorable names, but please the Father who made us all.

"He that diligently seeketh good procureth favor; but he that seeketh mischief, it shall come unto him. He that trusteth in his riches shall fall; but the righteous shall flourish as a branch."

MEMORY VERSE

"A good man is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold."—Proverbs 22:1.

Testaments alike is man likened to leaves or branches of trees! Even in small children one may notice the difference between those who seek good and those who are inclined to do evil.

Wise and loving training for children who incline to sin will help them to overcome these tendencies, so that when they are grown to adulthood they may be upright and seek the good rather than the evil.

How much depends upon parents and teachers in this matter of teaching and setting good examples to these tender minds! Prayers for guidance and constant vigilance will help.

A man may be extremely successful and amass great wealth, but if he uses deceit and trickery to gain his ends his life will be disastrous—he never can be happy. Wealth is no sin; in fact men who make a great deal of money may put it to such good use that they accomplish wonderful benefits to the world.

We read about such things all the time. However, the man who loves money overmuch and becomes a miser, depriving himself and his family, friends and those poorer than himself of the benefits thereof, is the one against whom we are warned. His is not a tale of success but of failure in something more important than wealth.

"A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance; but by sorrowful countenance, the heart is troubled."—Proverbs 17:22.

panions, how can even a luxurious feast be enjoyed? On the contrary, how happy can a family be with very common, even scanty, food, if all love one another and are happy together.

Solomon, a rich man, was not deceived by wealth. It did not necessarily make a man happy! He wrote, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold."

"The rich and poor meet together; the Lord is the maker of them all."

He makes no distinction between rich and poor. "Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure, and whether it be right. The hearing ear, and the seeing eye, the Lord hath made even both of them."

"A prudent man foreseeth the evil and hideth himself; but the simple pass on and are punished. "By humility and the fear of the Lord are riches, and honor, and life. Thorns and snares are in the way of the froward; he that does keep his soul shall be far from them."

There is more of this lesson than is included in the portion printed. There are many wonderful suggestions and advice which would be helpful if we had space to include them in our lesson. The teacher will no doubt read and draw some helpful thoughts from them.

JANE ABBOTT

SYNOPSIS

At 84, Josh Trevitt makes his will, leaving an equal share of his rambling farm in New York state to each of his nieces, Mrs. Hester Wilmer, Miss Jennie Todd and his nephew Tom Todd. But to acquire final title, each must remain three months on the land, those leaving sooner relinquishing their share or shares to the final "resident." Josh also assigns an acre with tiny cottage, to Gary Norbeck, a stranger who'd come to live there. Shortly after making his will, Josh falls from a rafter of his barn, and is killed. At a girl's school in Cleveland, Ohio, where she is house-mother, niece Jenny receives news of her inheritance, and relishes the prospect of living on a farm. But in Buffalo, New York, Jennie's sister, Hester, is outraged at the thought of having to give up social plans for her debutante daughter, Enid, so as to benefit by her uncle's will. But Hester means to benefit and to get Norbeck's share of the land too!

CHAPTER FIVE

Hester continued to grip the desk, for she had the feeling of every spring in her suddenly broken. Then a fury of frustration coiled up in her. It had room for Hubert as well as the directors of the Athens club. If he had consented to buy that house on Elm Rd.—a much more exclusive residential section than this! Lydia Holsworth lived on Elm Rd. Enid—if she were not so utterly dull! She thought of Jennie who was at that school. Perhaps someone knew about her brother Tom, a disgrace to the family. When twice, he had appealed to her for a loan of money she had sent it simply to forestall his appearing at her door.

"They did not want her as president so that she could go on working on that pageant committee! Indispensable! Ha—"If I am not in the city?" A sweet revenge

It would take care of Enid. "She'd have no place to live—I'll close the house." Perhaps, alone with Enid, she could break down the girl's indifference to so many things. "Hubert can live at the club." She smiled—after three months of that he would appreciate the home she made for him!

Another thought went through her head. Jennie could not get away from her job to go up there to live—Tom would not think of leaving his dubious occupations to isolate himself in the country. "Their shares will come to me, I can dispose of that Norbeck person later."

Her friends came at the appointed hour. She met them composedly. To Ann's "Really Hester, I'm sick about it," she said, lightly, "I'm not! I really don't care a thing about it! Lydia will make a good president. Tea, everyone?"

Dora brought in the sandwiches. Hester's guests admired the room, as they did each time they came. "You've the most wonderful sense of colors, Hester!"

"That's why you're indispensable on that pageant committee," said Anne Matthews.

Hester said: "I am going away for the summer. Going quite soon."

"You can't!" A little chorus lifted. "But where, Hester?"

"It's come up quite suddenly. My uncle died a few weeks ago—he's left an estate up in northern New York. It has belonged to the family, my mother's family, for generations. It may be run down but I'm itching to bring it back to what it was. And I should begin right away. I'll be good for Enid, too."

But, Hester, the pageant committee is going to be sunk!"

"I'm terribly sorry but it just can't be helped."

Hester mentioned the will to Hubert and Enid at dinner, in much the same way. Hubert was not interested enough in her affairs to ask to read her copy of the will.

She began by asking Enid: "Did your whim go through—that job, whatever it was?"

"No. They'd taken on all the girls they needed."

"That's just as well—I've a wonderful summer for you and me. You too Hubert if you can get away."

She told her story—the old family estate, run down, possibly, and needing to be put in good repair. Some money—she couldn't say how much. A wonderful spot for vacations—staying in the winter. She said that to Enid.

Hubert said: "I've never heard you speak in those glowing terms before of that place up there!"

She met that with a smile. "Perhaps because I never thought of it as being mine. I should go next week. . . ."

Enid broke in, an unwonted eagerness in her voice: "Mother, I'll stay here with dad!"

"But I'll close this house, let Dora go, it will save quite a bit of money, and your father is worried just now over expenses. Anyway, darling, I'll need you there with me—your ideas about things. There'll be other young people around—I imagine there's quite a summer colony there now. Hubert, you won't mind living at the club for a while?"

Hubert said: "No, I'll be very comfortable there."

Dan Dooley parked his truck a half-block from the doorway of the Rendezvous and jined the doorman under the awning.

"Evening, Dan."

"Hi, Benny."

"The kid's okay, far as I can see Dan!" Benny laughed as he said it. It amused him that Dan Dooley had not missed stopping to take the kid home a single night in the two weeks she had worked here.

Dan stepped to a corner of the wide doorway from which point he could see a part of the cocktail lounge beyond the red and gold foyer. He did this every night, when no patrons were going in or coming out, and often was rewarded and reassured by a glimpse of Cindy.

"That snake here tonight?" he asked Benny.

"Sure. Didn't you see his limo, sine parked ahead of yours? Every night he's come this week—sitt alone in there." He saw "Tan's" ominous scowl and laughed. "Don't forget, Dan, I'm the bouncer here. And 'tan's' likely I'd lay a hand on Joseph Micelli, is it? I'd have one of his henchmen on me quick-er'n I could draw my breath. No, if you've an itch to punch his handsome face, go do it down the block. Anyway, can't your kid take care of herself?"

"She wouldn't know a snake when she met one," muttered Dan. The doorman could believe this. He knew all about the way Dan Dooley and his missus had brought Tommy Todd's girl up—as if she were a little jewel of some kind and had to be kept in a glass case away from everybody.

At that instant Cindy crossed Dan's point of vision. He had only the barest glimpse of her but he knew just how she looked. Golden hair and big eyes, long black lashes making little shadows on her cheeks, her smile that came straight from the youngness of her. The way she moved, as if she were no more than a fluff of thistle-down. Yet, as his heart lifted with pride and affection, the worry he had had for the last two weeks came crashing down on it. Business Seers Expect Pickup Carry Into '55

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (U.S.)—A growing number of industrial leaders today are saying that the current pickup in business should carry over into the new year.

Predictions of sustained output and better sales are coming from many sides—textiles, steel, automobiles, railroads, oil, petrochemicals, electrical appliances, tires and food.

These forecasts include no claims for sensational gains next year, but most of them insist that the present slow betterment in their industries should hold through the winter at least. There are also some general forecasts to backstop them.

For example, the report this week of the Organisation for European Economic cooperation advises European members they can count on a moderate upturn in U.S. economic activity for a year or more.

Evidence of a change for the better continue to pour in. Inventory cutting draws to a close, and in September there was actually the first increase in total inventories to be reported this year. Freight car loadings are picking up, reflecting more activities at the mills and factories, and promising that the railroads' sad earnings picture this year may be reversed in the final months.

And here are some of the predictions for individual industries:

At the American Petroleum Institute meeting in Chicago, oil executives are predicting another increase in oil consumption next year, and some expect the industry to spend more next year on capital outlays.

Petrochemicals, one of the oil industry's sidelines, should hit a $2-billion-dollar production pace, T. G. Hughes, president of Orin Chemical Co., says.

Replacement tire demand should rise next year by around two million more tires than this year's 54½ million according to William O'Neill, president of General Tire & Rubber.

Declared Victims Of Deadly Fumes

NORFOLK, Va. — The state medical examiner says deadly carbon monoxide fumes, escaping from a faulty heater, caused the deaths here last week of the young wife and infant son of a Navy enlisted man arrested and jailed on a murder charge.

A verdict of accidental death was announced last night in the mysterious deaths of Mrs. Harry Roland Lockhart, 17, and her 2-month-old son.

The ruling was given out by Dr. C. O. Barclay, Norfolk medical examiner, after what he termed a "re-enactment of what must have happened" before Lockhart, 21, was discovered in the apartment last Saturday with the two bodies. The young sailor was nude and appeared dazed.

Norfolk authorities said a preliminary hearing for Lockhart on two warrants charging murder would be held as scheduled Nov. 23 in Norfolk Police Court provided Lockhart is well enough to be present.

The young sailor was removed from City Jail to a Norfolk hospital yesterday on the recommendation of Barclay and Dr. C. D. J. McDonald, jail physician. The two doctors said Lockhart was suffering from a physical illness apparently caused by the inhalation of gas fumes.

Announcing his ruling last night, Dr. Barclay said the faulty operation of a small heating stove in the Lockhart apartment caused incomplete combustion and resulted in the accumulation of carbon monoxide fumes.

Lockhart, from North Platte, Neb., maintained his innocence before and after murder charges were filed against him. Witnesses said Lockhart at the time the bodies of his wife and son were discovered appeared to be incoherent and muttered something about his wife being sick.

'Staff Of Life' May Be Imported

GUATEMALA (U.S.A.)—Corn is the staff of life in Guatemala, with the average adult using about two pounds a day. Just now it's in short supply, due to floods and storms in October.

While the government is encouraging the replanting of damaged fields, it may be necessary to import corn from the United States. One import program already under way is in purebred crows. To build up herds here, cattlemen have imported 1,432 heads from the United States in the last two months.

Old Age And Survivors Insurance Discussed For Dealers' Association

Old age and survivors insurance is protection for the individual and his family, Marshall H. Barney, district manager of the Social Security Administration in Rocky Mount, told Greenville furniture dealers at a meeting last night at the Olde Towne Inn.

Barney explained this insurance protection is based on the individual's earnings in work covered by the Federal Social Security law. He said at present there are 8,300 persons drawing social security benefits with $400,000 being paid out yearly.

The manager revealed a recent study indicates 80 per cent of the people over 65 rely for the most part on social security for income, while social security serves as the chief means of support for the remaining 40 per cent. He also noted more benefits are paid per capita in Pitt County than in some industrial counties.

Robert E. Tunnel, chairman of the local Furniture Dealers Association, presided at the dinner meeting.
