Special Meeting Of City Council

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A special meeting of the city council has been set for 7:30 tonight to consider street paving and curb and gutter projects.

The council will discuss the projects at tonight's meeting and also consider what course to take for projects on which property owners have not paid their assessments.

City Manager James S. Hughes said this morning that around $17,000 of the approximately $19,000 in assessments had been collected from those who signed paving petitions.

Deadline for paying the assessments had been set for noon today.

Low bids for the curb and gutter work under the current street improvement program was received from Clark Construction Company. That company offered to do the work for $1.45 per foot.

The city turned down a bid of 90 cents per square foot for paving work from one contractor. However, Hughes told the council at their last regular meeting that a second concern, White Construction Company, had offered to do the paving at a lower price provided their asphalt plant is still located in Greenville at the time the work is done. The company set a price of 95 cents per square foot if the plant has been moved at that time.

The city manager told the council at the last meeting on November 4 that only 62 percent of the property owners had paid up. At that time only one street had paid up 100 percent.

He stated this morning that individuals who had not paid their assessments were being contacted by telephone in a last effort to collect the money.

The current street improvement program calls for installing curb and gutter in the entire portion of the Hillsdale section which is within the city limits, Hughes declared.

In addition plans call for paving: Sixth Street from Oak to Forest, Spruce Street from Manhattan to Paris; Manhattan from Myrtle to Spruce; Nash Street from Third to Colonial; Hickory Street from Fourth to Fifth; Davis Street from Third to Colonial, and Ione from West Dickinson Avenue to May.

Also Twelfth Street from Evans to Washington is being considered for paving only. Curb and gutter have already been installed on that section, Hughes said. On Vance Street from Ward to Third, curb and gutter only is to be installed under present plans.

Four Navy Airmen Survived In Crash

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. (AP) — Four crewmen of a Navy patrol plane with five aboard that ditched last night were found safe today in Pamlico Sound about 75 miles south of here.

A spokesman for the 5th Naval District said the fifth crewman went down with the plane, a PV2 Harpoon.

The spokesman added there was no word on a Marine Corps jet with two aboard that disappeared last night while searching for the Navy plane.

A Coast Guard patrol plane which could land on the water spotted the four survivors in Pamlico Sound, an arm of the Atlantic formed by the North Carolina outer banks barrier reef, and brought them to the Coast Guard Air Station here. The Air Station Hospital said all were too ill to talk about their ordeal.

The port lookout man on the rescue plane spotted orange smoke and a green die marker on the water shortly before 7 a.m. Lt. R. T. Penn Jr., the pilot said three of the survivors were standing on a navigation light in the sound, and the fourth was in the life raft.

The water was fairly calm, and Lt. Penn was able to make a slow landing and taxi within 100 feet of the life raft. The survivors then paddled to the seaplane. There was a little difficulty in getting one man with the broken leg aboard. Another of the rescued men had head injuries.

Later the four survivors were taken to the Portsmouth, Va., Naval Hospital.

Five crewmen were on the Navy craft, a two-engined PV2 Harpoon, which reported it was going down at 6:30 p.m. while en route from Miami to its home base at the Anacostia Naval Air Station near Washington. Two were aboard the Cherry Point-based F3D Skynight jet, last heard from at 9 p.m. after it was diverted from a routine tactical mission to hunt for the ditched patrol plane.

By the white glare of flares and searchlights and with the help of radar, the destroyers Goodrich and Turner, the submarines Burrfish and Croaker and two Coast Guard planes from Elizabeth City, N.C., scoured the crash area in heavy fog last night some 46 miles southeast of the big Cherry Point marine base. They found nothing.

Disclose Search For Test Site

LONDON (AP)— The Daily Express said today the British government is looking for a remote place in the Pacific to test "a novel type of thermonuclear weapon operating on the same general principles as the H-bomb."

Science writer Chapman Pincher reported: "Defense chiefs may seek permission to use the U.S. testing ground at Eniwetok Atoll in the Pacific. If this is refused—as they expect it will be—some other Pacific island well clear of shipping routes probably will be selected."

The government had no immediate comment on the Express report.

Highway Toll

RALEIGH (AP)—The Motor Vehicles Department's tally of highway deaths and injuries for the period from 4 p.m. Friday through 10 a.m. today:

Killed	5
Injured (rural)	117
Killed this year	837
Killed to date last year	959
Injured to Aug. 1, 1954	8,161
Injured to Aug. 1, 1953	8,189

Neighborhood Clean-Up Begun

WASHINGTON (AP)—A nationwide organization called ACTION — American Council to Improve Our Neighborhoods — came into existence today with an approving gesture from President Eisenhower.

The President scheduled an address at the kickoff luncheon of the Board of Directors of the new nonprofit, privately supported group aimed at the eradication and prevention of slums.

The movement is headed by retired Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, former superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy, and a 53-member board made up of leaders in civic affairs, business, labor and the church.

After more than a year of planning in cooperation with federal housing officials, ACTION annouced it will launch "a major program in the spring of 1955" to enlist industry and community support in protecting the country's 22-billion-dollar investment in its 50 million homes. It will work closely with federal and local agencies.

ACTION said it will concern itself with "the entire range of housing," grouping its activities in these categories:

About seven million dwellings which are in good shape. Here the effort will be to help maintain them in that condition.

About 35 million dwellings in need of some repair. The organization will try to assist their rehabilitation and modernization.

Another eight million dwellings in slum areas. ACTION will devote itself to helping remove the slum conditions.

Virginia Offering No Panacea

Brief On School Desegregation Does Not Foresee Complete Solution At Any Future Time

WASHINGTON (AP)—Virginia informed the Supreme Court today it has "no plan or panacea" for carrying out the school desegregation decision which it said has raised "the spectre of impending edu_ational chaos" in the state.

In a new brief filed with the court, Atty. Gen. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. urged the tribunal to give the commonwealth a "substantial period" in which to work out a scheme of "gradual adjustment" to the May 17 ruling outlawing segregation in the public schools.

But even with sufficient time, Virginia "does not foresee a complete solution at any future time," said the 26-page brief.

"Government still derives its foundation from the consent of the governed. The people of many sections of Virginia have stated forthrightly that they will not consent to compulsory integration of the races in the public schools.

"Neither court decree nor executive order can force in those sections a result so basically opposed by a united majority."

The Virginia brief was one of several filed by Southern states at the request of the court which asked for views on implementing the desegregation decision.

In contrast to the Virginia plea for extensive time, the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People urged the court to order an end to segregation as promptly as administrative changes can be made.

But an early end to segregation, said the state brief, might "well drive Virginia's children from her schools" and bring a collapse of the 84-year-old public school system.

Morse Will Run As 'Independent'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore), who has promised to vote to give Democrats control of the Senate next year, said today he intends to seek re-election in 1956 as an independent.

"It's my intention to run as an independent," he said in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U.S. News and World Report.

"... There is a group of Democrats in our state quite different from some Democrats in some other places. They are making a great fight against the reactionary Republican machine in Oregon, and if I could be convinced that the best hope of a sound, liberal cause would be to join forces with them, I would not hesitate to do it.

"However, that is not my present intention, but I shall always keep myself free to change my opinion. My present intention is to run as an independent."

Morse was elected to the Senate in 1944 and re-elected in 1950 as a Republican. He resigned from the party in the 1952 presidential campaign and supported Democratic nominee Adlai E. Stevenson.

Some weeks before this month's congressional elections, he announced he would vote with the Democrats on organization of the next Senate. Since they captured 48 Senate seats, that will provide the key 49th.

In the interview, Morse said he had made up his mind in 1952 to vote with the Democrats on the issue of Senate control in 1954. He voted with the GOP in 1952, he said, because he felt that President Eisenhower, having won the election, was entitled to have his party hold committee chairmanships for two years.

BIG MANEUVER

CAMP LEJEUNE, N. C. (AP) — More than 20,000 Marines of the 2nd Marine Air-Ground Task Force will launch a four-day amphibious assault tomorrow on nearby Onslow Beach, climaxing month-long joint Navy-Marine maneuvers in the Atlantic.

Supreme Court Brief Advises Latitude For Action By District Judges

N.C. Asks Time In Desegregation

RALEIGH (AP) — In a brief filed with the U.S. Supreme Court, North Carolina has asked that plenty of time be given in carrying out the court's decision outlawing public school segregation.

The state argued that if desegregation is put into effect immediately it may cause "much bitterness" and abolition of public schools.

The brief urged that federal district judges be given wide authority to supervise the change-over in the light of local conditions. Pointing out that conditions are different from those in other states and vary within the state, North Carolina argued that a blanket decree covering all states would be impractical.

The brief setting forth the state's position consisted of 188 pages including 141 pages of exhibits. It was signed by Atty. Gen. Harry McMullan and Asst. Attys. Gen. T. Wade Bruton, Ralph Moody, Claude L. Love and I. Beverly Lake.

The Supreme Court invited briefs from states not directly involved in cases which resulted in the court ruling school segregation unconstitutional. North Carolina had until today to file a brief, as a friend of the court.

No plan was proposed by North Carolina. The state said the brief "is not intended to present any solution to the extremely difficult and dangerous problem which has arisen" as a result of the supreme court decision.

It added the brief was being "submitted for the purpose of showing the unparalleled gravity of nullifying the constitution and laws of North Carolina affecting its most cherished, important, and expensive enterprise, its public schools, and for the purpose of stating sincerely and emphatically that the subsequent decrees of this court in these cases should allow the greatest possible latitude to the district judges in conducting subsequent hearings and in drafting final decrees, if any of the objectives sought by this court's decision are to be attained."

The U.S. Supreme Court had suggested ways of carrying out desegregation. One way would be specific degrees, with compliance required "forthwith." Another would permit "gradual adjustment." The third would permit district judges to frame decrees.

Most of the state's exhibit was concerned with answers to questionnaires sent to county and city school superintendents and police officials. An overwhelming majority of answers said immediate desegregation would not work in North Carolina and would lead to violence.

The brief stated, "If the public schools and the public peace are to be preserved the decrees to be entered in the South Carolina and Virginia cases (which brought the desegregation ruling) must be framed to fit the conditions in the actual communities involved, not to fit conditions in a non-existent, average community.

"Only a court conversant with local conditions and granted wide discretion can tailor the decree to fit the local variations."

The brief referred to the late Justice Jackson's suggestion that to send the cases back to lower courts without standards for guidance in further proceedings would mean a generation of litigation.

"If so," the brief said, "such a result is far preferable to a generation of strife outside the courts and of chaos inside the schoolroom."

The brief pointed out the diversity between North Carolina and other states: (1) the number of Negroes in proportion to whites, (2) the intermixture of white and Negro homes throughout rural areas, (3) the general reaction to the court's interpretation of the 14th Amendment (on which the court based its desegregation decision), and (4) the number of Negro teachers employed.

Regarding point No. 1, the brief noted there were demonstrations against integration in Delaware, where "there are only 13 Negroes to every 87 white people." The proportion of Negroes in North Carolina is one to four.

"Most North Carolinians, white and colored," the brief stated, "do not live in cities but live in rural areas where the residences of white and Negro neighbors are interspersed."

The brief added, "In determining the decree to be issued a court of equity is not required to shut its eyes to reality especially when the victims of an unwise decree will be children."

North Carolina, with the same size Negro population as New York, "employes five Negro teachers for every Negro teacher employed by New York," the brief stated.

It pointed out the following possibilities if immediate integration is ordered:

"(1) Public schools may be abolished. (2) If the public schools are not abolished, the presence in the same classroom of white children and Negro children may well bring about daily confusion, physical conflicts, ridicule of one group by another, and other conditions which will make it difficult for children to study and teachers to teach.

"(3) If public schools are not abolished, parents financially able to do so may send their children to private schools, and public schools will come to be regarded as a dole to paupers, repulsive to everyone, black or white, having that pride and self respect essential to good citizenship in a democracy.

"(4) Conflicts in the schoolroom, on the playground and between parents and teachers may lead to a racial bitterness in a community and bring to North Carolina the bloody race riots which have disgraced cities and states where justifiable racial pride among both Negroes and white people has been ignored."

The North Carolina brief referring to the questionnaire answers of school superintendents and police officers, said their opinions "indicate that the mixture of the races in the school busses is the most difficult problem confronting" them as a result of the courts decision.

"To require that Negro children and white children be commingled forthwith on these buses, without adult supervision and police protection, is to invite conflicts on the bus, which will make riding on them so hazardous few parents will consent to their children's using them," the brief stated, adding, "This is a substantial danger a court of equity may well consider in formulating its decree."

Eisenhower Asks Treaty's Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower asked the Senate today to approve treaties freeing and rearming West Germany on the side of the Western Powers. He said the treaties "are founded upon the profound yearning for peace" shared by peoples of the free world.

He sent the treaty documents, signed in London and Paris, to the Senate with a letter saying they represented years of work to bring independence to Germany and integration of that divided country into the Western defense.

The measures would restore sovereignty to West Germany, ending the U.S.-British-French occupation. Germany also would become a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and with Italy join the 1948 Brussels pact.

These steps, Eisenhower told the Senate, could be accomplished under the agreements "in a manner which will insure freedom and equality for the people of Germany and at the same time will avoid the danger of a revival of German militarism."

Eisenhower, apparently aiming at Russia's often expressed fears of a rearmed Germany declared:

"The agreements endanger no nation. On the contrary they represent one of history's first great practicable experiments in the international control of armaments."

Adding Germany and its resources to Western defense will be a principal consequence, Eisenhower said. But he said he wanted to emphasize that "these agreements are founded on the profound yearning for peace which is shared by all the Atlantic peoples."

Eisenhower said while the security agreements are complex "their purposes are simple." He added, "the Federal Republic (of West Germany) is placed on a basis of full equality with other states."

"But," Eisenhower said, "the military strength of West Germany will be combined with that of the other countries in the Atlantic Community in such a way that development and use of the German military contribution will be in accordance with the common need."

On the subject of ratification, the President declared:

"I urge the Senate to signify its approval of this great endeavor by giving its advice and consent to ratification ... I hope these instruments may be studied with a view to enable the Senate to act promptly on these matters when it meets for its new session in January."

Red China Sinks Nationalist Ship

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Red China used torpedo boats for the first time in battle yesterday to sink the 1,800-ton Nationalist destroyer escort Taiping.

This development in the long civil war was viewed generally by the Nationalists as a stark warning of stronger Red measures to come.

The Taiping, formerly the USS Decker until transferred to the Nationalists in 1946, was attacked at 1:45 a.m. by four swift torpedo boats, which the Nationalists said were Russian-built.

The destroyer, with 180 men aboard, was convoying a motorized junk from the Tachen Islands, 30 miles off the coast of Chekiang province and 215 miles north of Formosa, to nearby Yushan Island. The first torpedo missed, but a later one hit amidships, well below the waterline Chinese press reports said. The reports said she sank "with guns blazing," six hours later.

A sister destroyer escort the Taiho, picked up most of the crew, including the captain. Search continued for five officers and 26 naval ratings.

One of the rescued died, and many others were wounded, the Nationalists said.

Nationalist reaction was strong. The official Central Daily News described the attack as a "prelude to an offensive against Formosa."

The Hsin Sheng Pao, which speaks for the provincial government of Formosa, urged Nationalists to start a "defensive offensive" against the Reds.

There was considerable thought here that the U.S. 7th Fleet, guarding Formosa against any invasion move by the Communists, has been on patrol near the Tachens. One question being asked is: What if the Taiping had been flying the American flag?

The Nationalist view of the incident, which is Red China's first such naval victory, was summed up by Shen Chang-huan, acting foreign minister.

He said the sinking served as a warning to those who persist in believing the Chinese Reds want peace and do not intend to invade Formosa. Most non-Chinese quarters in Taipeh, however still doubt the Reds would presently violate the defense zone which the 7th Fleet is committed to defend.

That zone embraces Formosa, the Pescadores and other satellite islands of Formosa but not the Tachens or other coastal islands.

As a result of the Taiping incident, Nationalists may press the United States for:

1. Inclusion of National-held outpost islands just off the Red China coast in the 7th's defense zone.
2. Speedy conclusion of a mutual defense pact.
3. Increased military aid to meet any Red threat to the offshore islands and Formosa itself.

It also is possible the Nationalists will seek an understanding with Washington to enable them to bomb Communist air and naval bases.

Island Clean-Up

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Key West, although it rapidly "shed water over the side" of the island, was still in the middle of a huge clean-up today after record-shattering weekend rains.

A unique weather formation dumped 19.88 inches of rain on the city of some 50,000 during an 18-hour period Saturday and yesterday.

Mayor C. B. Harvey said business establishments, which were flooded with water, suffered "considerable damage." He said that it "cannot yet be estimated what the extent of damage was."

Some streets were under three feet of water Saturday.

Gen. Collins In Diplomatic Post

SAIGON Viet Nam (AP)—Gen. J. Lawton Collins, special envoy of President Eisenhower, took charge of the U.S. mission in chaotic, non-Communist South Viet Nam today, replacing Ambassador Donald R. Heath.

Heath, a 60-year-old career diplomat who had served in Indochina four years, flew to Washington yesterday for reassignment.

Collins, formerly U. S. Army chief of staff, has the personal rank of ambassador. He is charged with coordinating American diplomatic, military and economic agencies in South Viet Nam.

Honeymoon Pair Are Suffocated

REDFIELD, N.Y. (AP)— Ahoneymooning couple and the bridegroom's soldier brother died in their sleep yesterday when a gasoline lantern apparently burned all the oxygen from their tightly closed house trailer, state police said.

The bodies of Robert Steffenhagen, 28, his bride, the former Dorothy Fritz, and Alfred Steffenhagen, 21, were found in the trailer parked beside a road in this central New York community.

Angry Words In Suddenly-Called Committee Meet

McCarthy, Watkins Clash

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sen. McCarthy accused Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) today of being "derelict in his duty" in saying he didn't know if anyone was at fault in the Peress case. Watkins fired back: "I don't believe you can ever be satisfied unless you can find somebody who could be shot or hung."

The two big figures in the McCarthy censure row confronted one another at a suddenly called hearing of McCarthy's Investigations subcommittee.

McCarthy said he scheduled it to find out whether Watkins could throw any light on who was responsible for the promotion and honorable discharge of Maj. Irving Peress, an Army dentist who had refused to say whether he had Communist connections.

Watkins told the Wisconsin senator the way to fix the responsibility was to question 30 Army officers whose names were submitted to the McCarthy subcommittee last June by Secretary of the Army Stevens.

Watkins said Stevens had advised that the list included all officers involved in the Peress case.

In a hearing spattered with sharp words and caustic phrases, Watkins refused to be budged from his position that perhaps no one was "criminally culpable" for the Peress matter.

Watkins said the Senate Internal Security subcommittee of which he is a member could undertake to nail down those "responsible" for the honorable discharge.

But if it did he said, "I never could find out to satisfy you unless you could find some one who could be shot and hung."

McCarthy snapped back that "many young men will die" because of traitors. He said traitors should be "shot and hung."

McCarthy said it was "no laughing matter" when "secret masters in the military" cover up for Communists.

Watkins said: "I was not laughing and the record and the picture will so show."

"I should perhaps be censured for what I am about to say," McCarthy told Watkins in stern, lecturing tones. "But a senator who represents the great state of Utah who comes here and says he does not know if some one ought to be blamed for promoting a man ... who owes allegiance to a foreign country, a traitor to his country ... such a senator certainly is derelict in his duty and that is putting it very mildly."

Watkins said repeatedly that only a "jury of his peers" could convict a spy. Accusations, he said, could not convict.

He said the Peress matter "could have happened purely as a matter of mistake" and criticized what he called "a lot of charges" without the proof.

Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, ranking Democrat on the Investigations subcommittee, asked Watkins if he would put a motion before the Internal Security subcommittee to call all the 30-odd officers listed in the Army report.

Watkins said he would. And McClellan said he would be glad to second that motion.

McCarthy kept repeating he was "sorry" that Watkins had "wasted our time" by testifying.

Watkins replied he had given the committee the best answer he could.

Fumes Block Rescuers; Mine Entrance Is Closed

Presume 16 Dead In Coal Mine Blast

By CHARLES STAFFORD

FARMINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Beaten by deadly gas in their attempts to rescue 15 miners, or recover their bodies, mining men last night completed their grim task of walling up entrances of Mine No. 9.

One man was dead. Fifteen were missing and presumed dead.

The Jamison Coal Co. pit was rocked by a violent explosion Saturday. A second Saturday night sent flames roaring from the ventilation shaft.

A third, a sort of pouf, shook the tiny mining valley yesterday evening.

The job of sealing No. 9, in an effort to cut off the flow of air and smother a fire burning deep underground, was completed late last night. It will not be reopened until tests show the air inside is safe enough for rescue teams to enter. That might take days or months.

Also closed today was James Fork Elementary School, only a few hundred yards down the valley from the mine entrance. Officials feared another explosion or escaping gas might endanger the children.

Rescue crews worked their way almost a mile down the slope and into the passageways of No. 9 late Saturday. Deadly carbon monoxide fumes from the mine fire forced them back.

After three hours of conferences between company, state and federal mine bureau officials the decision to seal was announced early yesterday.

State Mines Chief Frank B. King, visibly moved, explained, "There is just nothing else we can do." He said the action would remove any slender hope that some of the men might still be alive.

Miners began walling up the five openings with the approval of John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers chief.

Lewis, who spent two hours at the scene yesterday, said the sealing appeared to be the only course. He commended officials directing the operation.

As the miners labored to close the entrances, gas pressure began building up in the wrecked elevator portal and the destroyed ventilation shaft. Another explosion was threatened by the highly combustible methane gas.

No one could say what caused the explosion.

Vice President James Hyslop of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., which recently acquired the corporate stock of Jamison, surmised that the blast resulted from ignition of methane gas.

But only 30 minutes before it was touched off, he said, an atmosphere test in the mine showed the air was clear. "Something suddenly happened to release a considerable portion of methane," he said.

One man working at the entrance of the mine, was killed. Two, a short distance inside the main portal, heard the rumble and felt a rush of air. They reached the surface in a state of near - collapse but unhurt. The whereabouts of the others were not known.

Gen. Naguib Ousted As Egypt's President; Cairo Quiet, Tense

By WILTON WYNN

CAIRO, Egypt, (AP)—Maj. Gen. Mohamed Naguib was in the political ashcan today after his ouster as Egypt's president by the ruling military junta. Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, taking over as acting president yesterday, held undisputed power.

Naguib popular hero of the 1952 revolution against ex-King Farouk, was charged with being implicated in a recent unsuccessful plot by the fanatic Moslem Brotherhood to assassinate Nasser.

A long rivalry between the two soldier-politicians had flared into an open struggle for power last spring. Nasser emerged then as the nation's strong-man ruler. Naguib became a figurehead president.

He was unseated yesterday and placed under arrest in a government house outside Cairo without any major outbreak of violence.

The capital remained still calm today, but the atmosphere was tense.

Two civilians were killed and two policemen seriously wounded in a clash early yesterday, before Naguib's ouster, in suburn Heliopolis. A government spokesman said the fighting occurred when police closed in on Youssef Talaat, fugitive leader of the Moslem Brotherhood's secret order, and his guards tried to clear the way for his escape, using machine guns and hand grenades.

The government said Talaat, taken into custody, confessed that Naguib had approved a brotherhood plot to kill Nasser and take over the government.

Events moved swiftly after Talaat's confession. The 10 army officers who make up the Revolutionary Council met in an emergency session and assigned army chief Gen. Hakim Amer and Wing Cmdr. Hassan Ibrahim to notify Naguib of his ouster. At the same time the army threw a heavy guard around his official residence Abdin Palace.

Amer and Hassan escorted Naguib to a home in Merg, eight miles from the capital.

A special Cabinet meeting approved the council's action.

Egyptians reacted to the government's drastic moves with no outward show of emotion yesterday. Nasser's position as a public idol has mushroomed since an assassin tried to shoot him down while he was speaking Oct. 26 in Alexandria. Eight shots missed.

Ten Million Signatures Sought For Petition Backing McCarthy

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten million signatures are being sought on a petition that supports Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) and urges the Senate to reject censure charges against him.

The petition is being circulated throughout the nation by a newly formed organization called "Ten Million Americans Mobilizing for Justice" and headed by retired Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer of the Air Force.

Stratemeyer said the group wants to give support to McCarthy and "the fundamental principle he symbolizes."

The organization announced yesterday it would try to reach a goal of 10 million within the next 10 days.

A copy of the petition, addressed to The Senate, reads in part:

"We declare that it is your duty to reject the recommendations of the Watkins committee as an affront to the dignity of the Senate, as contrary to its rules and as a serious threat to the power and prerogatives of the United States Senate.

"Sen. McCarthy is really not the issue. He is a symbol of your constitutional right to inquire into the acts of the executive branch, without which you could not get dishonest and disloyal employes out of government.

"A vote to censure one of your own members for doing his sworn duty would establish a dangerous precedent that could only lead to the destruction of constitutional government—the very objective sought by the enemies of the United States."

Stratemeyer said the organization is nonpartisan and nonpolitical and the petition urges senators to ignore "political partisanship or political expedience" in making a decision on the censure charges.

Stratemeyer, who was reported ill of heart trouble in Winter Park, Fla., issued his statement through the organization's headquarters here, where Rear Adm. John G. Crommelin (Ret.) is in charge as chief of staff. Vice chairmen of the group are:

Adm. William J. Standley, former chief of naval operations and former ambassador to Soviet Russia; Gen. James A. Van Fleet, retired 8th Army commander in Korea; Lt. Gen. Pedro A. Del Valle (ret.) of the Marine Corps; Charles Edison, former secretary of the Navy and former Democratic governor of New Jersey; Mrs. Grace L. H. Rousseau, president of the American Coalition of Patriotic Societies and former president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; John Francis Neylan, California attorney; and John B. Trevor, former attorney general of New York state.

The King's Daughters Junior Circle

The Hortense Moye Junior Circle of The King's Daughters met on Wednesday, Nov. 10, at the home of Rosemary Eagles. Mickie Sumrell rendered the devotion and prayer.

The president, Ronita Respess, gave the real meaning of the Silver Cross and why we wear it.

The leader, Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, gave a brief report of the Senior King's Daughters convention held in Rocky Mount Oct. 13.

The old and new business was discussed. The bake sale held Saturday, Nov. 13, was quite successful. It was decided that each member would bring a gift for a Christmas box, which is to be sent to hospitals and needy people.

The meeting was adjourned by singing the circle song.

Visits Historical Spots of Boston

Miss Jackie Moore, daughter of Mrs. Leonard Burt of 207 Grande Avenue, participated in a "Know-Boston" tour made on Thursday, Nov. 11, by all Fisher Junior College students who were interested in visiting the historical spots of Boston. Local students as well as dormitory students participated in the program. They followed the famous "Freedom Trail" and included such points of interest as the Old North Church, Old State House, Bunker Hill, Faneuil Hall, and the Frigate Constitution. The trail ended at Durgin Park's where the students partook of a typical New England dinner.

Farmville News

Christian Women's Fellowship

The Christian Women's Fellowship met at the church Monday afternoon. Mrs. Charlie Letchworth vice president presided in the absence of the president.

During the business session Mrs. Arch Flanagan service chairman, reported on the results of the bazaar and thanked the members for their splendid cooperation. She suggested that during the coming months the women consider participating next fall in an "imaginary bazaar" and making sacrificial offerings in keeping with the teachings of stewardship being emphasized this year by the Brotherhood.

Time was devoted to discussing plans for the Centennial November 21. The group decided to employ workers for the annual fall cleaning of the church.

It was decided to purchase fifteen dollars worth of new books for the Fellowship library at the Convention book store. Members were reminded of the State convention being held in Wilson this week and urged to attend the missionary luncheon on Wednesday. After the business session a program sponsored by Group 5 was presented. The program featured a discussion of the United Nations and its work for peace. Mrs. A. C. Turnage and Mrs. H. D. Moye, who had the privilege of visiting the U. N. in 1953 under the auspices of the Home Demonstration Clubs, gave most interesting and informative talks on its organization and work. Mrs. Moye also presented the devotional meditation.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
November 15, 1924

The End of the Century Club held a very interesting meeting with Mrs. J. L. Hassell on Thursday afternoon with 14 members present. After a short business session Mrs. C. A. Bowen gave a splendid outline of "Casual Wanderings in Ecuador" by Blair Niles. Mrs. B. W. Moseley gave the most important current events. The club members gladly welcomed their two new members—Mrs. E. T. Dickinson and Mrs. R. G. Fitzgerald and were delighted to have with them the following visitors: Mrs. J. Frank Jenkins of Shelby and Mrs. D. Y. Cooper of Henderson.

Leader's Club Will Conduct TV Study Course

FARMVILLE—The Girl Scout Leader's Club met Wednesday morning at the Girl Scout Hut with Mrs. Edgar Barrett presiding. The meeting opened with the repeating of the Girl Scout promise after which the minutes of the October meeting were read and approved.

The president thanked the leaders for their splendid cooperation in the Hallowe'en "Treats for the Needy," in which all Girl Scouts participated, and which was termed a success. She said the residents of Farmville are to be praised for their generosity.

It was announced that the Pitt County Girl Scout Council has been asked to conduct one of the study courses on the "Guiding Your Child" program on WNCT for the next quarter.

Mrs. Frank Allen announced that the Social Service League will sponsor her troop, and Mrs. Newton's troop will be sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club. Other troop sponsors will be announced at the next meeting. Each troop leader agreed to have her troop contribute to the Juliette Low Foundation which is erecting a memorial in Atlanta, Ga. in memory of the founder of Girl Scouting. Mrs. Barrett asked all leaders to have their troop registrations completed and turned over to Mrs. Allen by Monday.

Clothing gathered Hallowe'en was sorted and packed for Mrs. Knott Proctor, executive secretary of the Council, who will come for it.

Committee Of Three To Name Candidate

Mrs. Ruel Tyson, Alya Ray Taylor and Ada Jones were appointed as a committee to suggest a candidate for the vacancy on the Pitt County Board of Education at the November 11 dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Julia Fisher, as presiding officer, read a letter from J.H. Rose who requested the group to conduct the 1955 March of Dimes in Pitt County, and a motion was made and passed by the club to that effect.

Evelyn Beasley accepted the chairmanship of the drive and Mrs. Tyson volunteered to act as chairman for the rural women.

Elizabeth Deal presented a program concerning the sources of revenue and the budget for Greenville, while reports were heard from committee chairmen concerning each group's activities.

Mrs. Tyson reported on the work of the Salvation Army and the Red Cross. The club voted to bring toys and clothing to the December meeting. These articles will be distributed to needy children through the Salvation Army.

Louise Gauphin, Ruby Edens and Margaret Farley were appointed to revise the local by-laws so they will be in accordance with the national by-laws for the club.

Miss Fisher reported on meetings she had attended which she thought would be of interest to club members.

Table decorations carried out the Thanksgiving theme.

Frances Wahl To Be Guest Speaker At Kinston School PTA

Frances Wahl, principal of the Wahl-Coates Laboratory School at East Carolina College, will be guest speaker at a meeting Thursday, November 18, of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Harvey School in Kinston.

She will discuss "Cooperation of Home and School," the theme of PTA meetings there for this year, at 8 p.m. in the school building. Mrs. Thurman Vick, president of the Kinston association, is in charge of arrangements for the program.

Miss Wahl has been a teacher in the campus elementary school for a number of years and since 1936 has been principal. Last spring by action of the college Board of Trustees, the school was named in honor of Miss Wahl and Dora E. Coates of Raleigh, now retired, whose long and competent service at the college was thus recognized.

Sadie Hawkins Day Observance Nov. 20

In celebration of Sadie Hawkins Day, the East Carolina College Science Club will stage Saturday, November 20, its annual observance of the event made famous by cartoonist Al Capp.

A series of events planned by Roy McGinnis of Morven, president, and other members of the Science Club will bring Dogpatch and its characters to the campus to afford entertainment and amusement for students and guests at the college.

A dance in the Wright building will begin at 8 p.m. During the evening a costume contest, for which prizes have been provided through the courtesy of local merchants, will be staged. Music for both round and square dancing will be provided by a combo made up of students at the college.

Religious Emphasis Week Plans Readied

Religious Emphasis week at East Carolina College, annual observance on the campus, will begin January 23, 1955, according to an announcement by Dr. John B. Bennett, director of religious activities at the college.

The event is sponsored each year by the Inter-Religious Council at East Carolina, an organization made up of representatives of the YMCA, the YWCA, and other student religious groups. Sara Giles of Linden, president, and various committees of the council are cooperating with Dr. Bennett in planning the program for the event.

Five visiting speakers will participate January 23-27 in a series of assemblies and of meetings for informal discussion and will hold conferences with student groups and individual students, according to present plans. By special arrangements with departments of instruction, they will also speak before various classes at the college.

Bishop Thomas Wright of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina; Dr. Maxine Garner of the department of religion at Meredith College; Dr. Robert L. Holt, vice president of Mars Hill College; and Dr. Gordon W. Lovejoy of the National Conference of Christians and Jews have been announced as members of the visitng group of religious leaders who will be present at East Carolina for Religious Emphasis Week.

A consultant from the Danforth Foundation will work with faculty groups. Discussion will center attention upon a five-year project on Religion in Teacher Education which is now being conducted at East Carolina and fourteen other pilot centers in the United States under the sponsorship of the American Association of Colleges for Teachers Education.

Church Planning Integrate School

GREENSBORO (AP) — Catholic white and Negro students will be integrated in a parochial high school to be established here next year, it was announced last night by the Most Rev. Vincent Waters, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Raleigh.

The site of the new school will be St. Leo's Hospital, closed nine months ago for lack of business.

The school will become co-educational when the parochial high school for girls at Southern Pines moves here. The girls' school known as Notre Dame Academy will become Notre Dame High School.

Bishop Waters said: "We are going to integrate Catholics. We are not going to integrate non-Catholics."

Only freshman boys will be accepted the first year. When the boys become sophomores, second-year students will be accepted and so on until the school becomes fully co-educational in four years' time.

Bishop Waters pointed out that he already has ordered integration in Catholic high schools in North Carolina, which are located in Raleigh, Charlotte, Winston - Salem, Asheville and Southern Pines.

Couldn't Stand For Separation

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Jett E. Wilson, 61, was deeply grieved when he learned he was soon to be separated from the family with whom he had been living.

"He was very much attached to my small children," Mrs. Bennie Jean Lambert said of her boarder. "We decided to rent a smaller house and I told Mr. Wilson I would find him a new place to live."

Yesterday, when the moving van came, Mrs. Lambert said she found Wilson's body hanging from a garage door. Police said he committed suicide, using a noose fashioned from a pair of overalls.

Blacklist Covers 'Unfair' Firms

CINCINNATI, (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell disclosed today the government has "blacklisted" in the last fiscal year 20 building contractors who "break down hard-earned labor standards, cheat their own workers and place fair bidders at a competitive disadvantage."

He said the number of cases was five times as large as for the whole 17-year period from 1935-52.

Contractors employed on government - financed jobs may be barred from federal projects for three years if they violate federal wage laws.

Mitchell told the 27th general convention of the AFL United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America in a prepared speech that his department is taking "vigorous action" against violators.

He did not identify the blacklisted companies. However, he cited as general examples of wage law violators:

In Texas, a contractor used experienced workers and paid them as 'carpenters' helpers and "junior helpers."

In New Mexico, crews at an Air Force base were working seven 8-hour days a week without oyer-time compensation.

At another New Mexico base, a contractor gave each employe a slip of paper with his pay check showing "just how the juggling was done," Mitchell said. "We are now developing the case for criminal prosecution and blacklisting."

Medical-Dental Society Elects New Officers

Pitt County Medical and Dental Society at a meeting last Thursday elected Dr. Fred Irons president for 1955.

Dr. L. E. Ross was chosen vice-president and Dr. E. W. Larkin, Jr., secretary and treasurer.

Assistant Executive Secretary of the North Carolina Medical Society William Hilliard, was the principal speaker.

Dr. Grady Dixon and Dr. Dan Jordan were elected delegates to the North Carolina Medical Society, and Dr. C. F. Irons and Dr. E. B. Beasley alternates.

Elections Board To Study Charge

MOCKSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The Davie County elections board scheduled a meeting here today to consider charges of voting irregularities in the Nov. 2 sheriff's election.

In a petition filed with the board last Wednesday, Republican Sheriff G. A. Tucker demanded a recount. Tucker lost to his Democratic challenger, Ben Y. Boyles, by a 70-vote margin.

Tucker based his demand for a recount on an alleged discrepancy of ballots in the Farmington precinct. He contended in his petition that the Farmington poll books showed a total of 494 personal and absentee ballots were cast, while the certified returns from the precinct showed that 546 votes were counted in the sheriff's race.

Arena Stage For Playhouse Drama

Using an arena stage, the East Carolina College Playhouse will present Tennessee Williams' "The Lady of Larkspur Lotion" in the TV Room of the Wright Student Union Thursday, November 18, at 8:15 p.m.

This production will be the initial experiment by the Playhouse in the use of a "theatre-in-the-round," which places the audience in a circle about the players. The play will be one of a series of short drama scheduled by the dramatic club during the school year.

Attendance at the performance will be limited. Members of the Playhouse will invite a number of interested guests. Others who wish to see the unusual production may obtain tickets by request from members of the dramatic club; Dr. J.A. Withey, faculty advisor; or Dr. Edgar W. Hirshberg of the English department.

Nancy Cooke of Dunn will direct the production. The cast includes Robert Hamilton of Fayetteville, Betty Lee Sugg of New Bern, and Patricia Goodwin of Memphis, Tenn. Dr. Hirshberg will evaluate the play at the close of the performance.

"The Lady of Larkspur Lotion" is a short drama based on life in the South and written by the author of "A Streetcar Named Desire" and other successes.

Are We Neglecting Next-Door Neighbors?

Has the United States focused too much attention on nations across the seas in its foreign relations program and neglected its relationships with its Latin American neighbors?

For quite some time, The Reflector has felt that such is the case.

We have lavished attention and billions of dollars upon nations of Europe and Asia seeking to win their confidence and alliance. By comparison, we have done little to win and hold the respect and friendship of Latin American nations. Perhaps we have taken their friendship for granted. Perhaps we were safe in doing so; but it shouldn't be surprising if one day the United States finds its Latin American neighbors feeling a closer relationship with countries across the Atlantic than with Uncle Sam across the Carribean.

A congressional committee which looked into the Latin American nations in recent months asserts the Kremlin is making a major bid for footholds in Central and South America. For years we have been aware that the communists have been operating in Central and South America, and in the opinion of The Reflector, our government has not taken sufficient steps to make sure the relationships between Central and South American countries and the United States have not suffered because of communist activities.

At best, the State Department has given secondary attention to Latin America in its foreign relations program. To be sure, many of the nations of Central and South America are small, and by no means are major powers in the world today. Yet collectively, the nations of Centrol and South America are equally important if not more important to the United States than nations of Europe and Asia.

It is time the United States put more action into its "good neighbor" policy with Latin American nations. We have talked the good neighbor policy for many years, and realistically, the nations of the Western Hemisphere have been good neighbors. As the elder brother of the Western Hemisphere community of nations, however, we have the feeling the United States has not given the attention it should to other members of its immediate community.

It is high time we quit taking Latin American friendship for granted and put forth a little more effort to see that the friendship is made one of lasting quality.

More Cars Neccissitate Greater Driver Caution

Noticing more cars on the highways these days? If you think you are, rest assured it's not just your imagination. They are really there.

For the first time in history more than a million passenger cars are registered in North Carolina; and the total registration of cars, trucks and other vehicles has gone to a high of more than 1,418,000. That's 52,000 more motor vehicles than were registered with the state at this time last year.

With more passenger cars on the state's highways, more people are traveling more miles, and the chances for highway accidents are therefore increasing. In spite of highway improvements in recent years, the increasing number of motor vehicles in the state is increasing highway congestion in many areas. North Carolina drivers, already safety conscious for the most part, are going to have to exercise even more caution in the future to keep the toll of highway deaths and injuries from going beyond the high mark already reached.

Visit Should Promote Better Understanding

The visit of French Premier Mendes-France to Canada and the United States should promote a better understanding between the head of the French government and the leaders of the United States and Canada.

It is significant that the French Premier has seen fit to make a trip to the Western Hemisphere. He is the first French Premier in a long time to feel his position in his own government was sufficiently secure for him to leave his home country for an extended trip. It is likewise evident that Mendes-France would not have chosen to make the trip to Canada and the U. S. unless he sought to cement the relationship between his country and the two major nations of the Western Hemisphere.

Mendes-France' position on EDC caused strained relations between France and other nations of the Western bloc a few months ago. Although most of the issues at stake have been resolved without too much outward misgivings between the nations, it is apparent that some feeling about the incident remains.

The French Premier, we believe, is seeking by his visit to smooth any ruffled feathers that remain in the United States and Canada because of his position on EDC. It is our guess that his visit will serve to strengthen the relationship between France and the United States and Canada.

HOW ABOUT YOUR RELIGION?

The difference between true religion and false religion is the difference between the internal and the external. True religion is internal; false religion is external. True religion is "in"; false religion is "on."

We can see this easily when we look at the religion of primitive peoples. We observe their idolatry and animism and recognize them as nothing but superstitious practices.

But many moderns living amid civilization also have a religion which is "on" instead of "in." There is a type of religion which people put on every Sunday morning and take off as soon as they get home from church. There is another type of religion which people keep in the attic—a set of beliefs which they inherited from their forebears or themselves learned by rote; and these beliefs have not the slightest connection with the way such people behave day by day.

There is a vast machine made up of wheels within wheels and tended continuously by a crowd of ecclesiastic mechanics. Some people call this the Church, but the real Church lives in the quiet hearts of believing men and women who have grasped the essentials of the faith and pledged themselves to live on the basis of these essentials. For these people, religion is "in," not "on."

Liberal Republican Reverses

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The most significant but least publicized aspect of the late election is the stunning reverses suffered by the liberal Republican leaders who headed the movement which resulted in President Eisenhower's nomination in 1952. Literally and figuratively, they have been wiped off the political map from New England to Texas.

The most spectacular evidence of this repudiation was the collapse of the Dewey machine in New York state, although the rout of the President's 1952 organization was duplicated in many other states.

Despite his 12 years in power and his painstaking efforts to build an invulnerable Party in the State, Ike's principal backer could not hold it against a generally unknown New Dealer making his first run for office—Averell Harriman.

For the first time in many years, Tammany controls New York City Hall, the Governorship at Albany and elected an unprecedented number of Democrats to the normally overwhelming Republican Legislature. And this in spite of the fact that Dewey is regarded to have been an able and efficient Governor.

BRIDGES-ADAMS FEUD—New Hampshire, the home of Sherman Adams, White House Chief of Staff, remained Republican, but by a slim margin. And the outstanding victor there was Senator Styles Bridges, who has been feuding with Ike's closest adviser for many years, and still is.

The Lodges, Henry and John, were among Eisenhower's most enthusiastic supporters two years ago. In fact, Henry made several trips to SHAPE's headquarters at Versailles to persuade Ike to abandon his military career for politics.

He was the liaison man between the General and the anti-Taft faction within the Republican Party. But he was defeated for the Senate in 1952 by a relative youngster making his first try for national office—Senator John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

The other Lodge, John, suffered a surprising defeat a few weeks ago when he sought re-election as Governor of Connecticut. A rabid New Dealer, Abraham A. Ribicoff, won over this blue-blood Yankee and former Hollywood star.

OTHER PROMINENT IKE ENTHUSIASTS—Two other prominent figures in the Eisenhower-for-President camp were former Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey and Governor John S. Fine of Pennsylvania, although the latter sat on the fence until the last victorious moment. Both of their normally Republican strongholds elected Democratic Governors this year, meaning oblivion for Driscoll and Fine.

Ranking alongside the Dewey debacle is the utter crack-up of the Stassen-Youngdahl dynasty in Minnesota. New Dealers and opportunists at heart, neither made a serious attempt to build a strong and permanent organization at home.

They leaped at the chance for Federal office when Truman named Youngdahl to a judgeship in the District of Columbia, and Eisenhower made the perennial Presidential hopeful, Stassen, head of the Foreign Operation Administration.

DEMOCRATS IN MINNESOTA—As a result of their failures and departures, the Democrat Farmer-Labor Party, on November 2, scored its most sweeping victory in 16 years. It re-elected Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, installed a Governor and virtually took control of the State House at St. Paul.

According to Walter Mikkelson, New Ulm editor and veteran political observer, Minnesota voters figured that "if they have to have something of a spend thrift New Deal on either the state or national level, they would elect the experienced New Dealers, who believed in the program." In other words, why not vote for the real thing instead of a Republican imitation?

SENATOR CORDON'S DEFEAT—Governor Dan Thornton of Colorado did not run again, and Senator Ed Johnson, an old-time Democrat, succeeded him. In Oregon, another Eisenhower intimate, Senator Guy Cordon, lost out to a former law student of Senator Wayne Morse, who quit the GOP because of Ike's policies and Cabinet personalities.

In view of these casualties, the political landscape presents a dismal scene to viewers from White House windows. Although Ike is still personally popular, it appears that the so-called "palace-guard" are not. Many leading Republicans, thinking of Ike's and the Party's future, recall Dewey's 1948 slogan: "It's time for a change!"

Aid Higher Education

By ELMER ROESSNER

An interesting idea was put forward this week by Thomas B. McCabe president of Scott Paper Company. He suggests that business organize to aid higher education through granting fellowships to professors, instructors and, perhaps, to the more promising graduate and undergraduate students to carry out projects in industry.

The idea of his plan is to augment institutions' grants, give qualified people a chance to apply some of their philosophical and abstract ideas to actual business situations and even to teach management a thing or two.

It is meant also to encourage business leaders to take a greater part in college life through seminars technical aid and lecturing.

Mr. McCabe makes the proposal from a strong position, since his firm already has done some experimenting along those lines; namely, an analysis of a merchandising research program by Harvard faculty members. Scott Paper has established scholarships, made grants and supplements employees' contributions to their alma maters.

The advantages of the proposal are clear. Industry would gain objective reports and studies by qualified men who would be primarily attached to their schools and under no obligation to industry. The fellows' income would be supplemented. Real problems, which cannot be reproduced in the classroom, would be available.

It might reduce the number and size of the raids business occasionally makes in the educational field to get the trained men it needs.

But, there would be dangers.

Such a plan conceivably could bring about in the school an overemphasis on fields that would naturally fit into the scheme: psychology, sociology, marketing and human motivation.

While the plan was presented partially as an alternative to the colleges' growing need for government aid (which would entail supervision and controls), business too could be an overbearing taskmaster.

A third problem might have some amusing ramifications; how would business list the cost on its tax return? It would be a gift to a nonprofit organization, but the concern might benefit to the tune of many thousands of dollars. On the other hand, the company might not get anything but the satisfaction of contributing to the country's educational system.

And what about the travel expenses of an executive going to lecture at Far Away U.?

TRAVEL EXPENSE DEDUCTION VALID

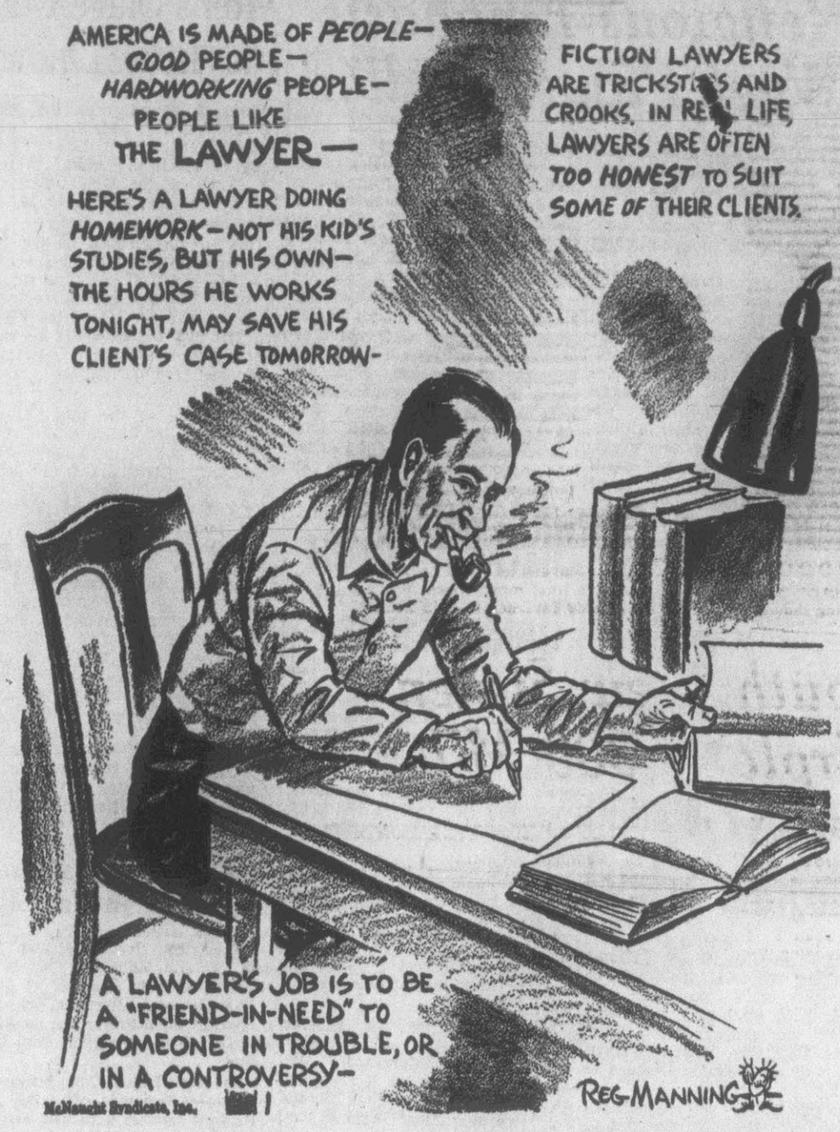
A Supreme Court ruling permits income tax deduction for traveling expenses between the town or residence and the place of business if there is business activity at the place of residence, Prentice-Hall notes.

For instance, if a man lives and works in town A but spends a considerable amount on travel and for meals and lodgings in town B where company headquarters are then he may deduct the expenses.

FIGURES FROM THE ECONOMIC LEDGER

A $30,000,000 rise brought consumer installment credit to $21,340,000,000 in September and marked the sixth increase in a row. . .Food chain sales were up 5.5 per cent. . .British gold reserves last month rose $35,000,000 to $2,936,000,000. . .Iron ore shipments, a basic indicator, declined to 7,251,905 gross tons in October from 11,538,392 a year year.

The 'Ordinary' Americans



Super - Super Mathematics And Psychological Strategy

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Last week the Babson Organization celebrated its Fiftieth Anniversary. Famous speakers and about 2,000 clients, friends, and guests were present. Readers have seen references to these addresss in the press but I have saved my remarks exclusively for this column of my 418 newspaper clients. Here is the story:

TURNED DOWN AT MONTE CARLO

When I last visited Monte Carlo, Monaco, to look on as a spectator, I was required to give my business card before entering. The only card I had referred to me as a statistician. As a result, I did not get into the gambling casino. I tried a second and third time, but with no better results. I then went to the general offices of the company to find out the reason why I was not admitted. This is what I found:

The French Government had learned that the German Chiefs of Staff, just before the German armies collapsed in 1945, had made marked studies in what is known as Psychological Strategy. It is said that this is what enabled the Germans to nearly break through at the time of the famous "Battle of the Bulge," which was stopped by Montgomery and Patton. The super-super mathematicians of Germany had figured out in advance that it would be possible to break through at that time, in view of what the American Generals were thinking and counting upon.

WHAT THE FRENCH AND RUSSIANS ARE DOING TODAY

The French are now making great progress in such studies. It was because of these known studies that the "bank" at Monte Carlo was becoming frightened of statisticians and mathematicians. I now learn that the U.S. Navy and Air Force have taken up these studies, with the help of the Princeton Institute for Advanced Study. In fact, from this Institute, President Eisenhower has just taken the super-super mathematician John von Neumann and appointed him to the Atomic Energy Commission.

While these super-super mathematicians have been studying how to ascertain in advance what the Chiefs of Staff of enemy armies are thinking and planning to do, a group of younger statisticians led by J.C.C. McKinsey have been studying games—from poker to chess. McKinsey has even written a book on the subject entitled "Introduction to the Theory of Games." Next to the possibilities of uranium, this ability to figure out in advance what your enemy is going to do is the hottest subject in Washington today.

FORECASTING BUSINESS AND THE STOCK MARKET

The past Fifty Years I have given to the study of Charts, Tables Earnings, and other tangible records of past events. From now on my able associates, who now know more about such things than I do, will carry on this orthodox work. I will devote the next Fifty Years to the study of the fundamentals.

While the super-super mathematicians are learning how to tell what enemy Admirals, Generals, and Strategic Boards are thinking and going to do, I want to learn what consumers, investors, and labor leaders are thinking and what they are going to do. This will enable me and my successors to forecast correctly what business, commodity prices, and the stock market will do. It will also enable the forecasting of style changes, political events, and even crime waves.

WHAT THE RESULT WILL BE

Most present forecasting will be scrapped. The stock market will then fluctuate only a little more than the bond market does today. Individual corporations, separate industries, and even some localities will continue to suffer from the Law of Cycles. These will have their big "ups and downs" but, with this advanced knowledge, the National Business Cycle will be flattened out.

Remember: Newton's Law of Equal and Opposite Reaction does not state when the reactions will come or how big they will be. His law simply says that to the extent that we go above normal — mechanically, chemically, socially, politically, and economically — we must rest a corresponding amount in area. This will continue to be true.

Means Of Cutting Legislative Red Tape Are Considered

By LYNN NISBET

RED TAPE — Rep. Larry I. Moore Jr. of Wilson, who is slated to be Speaker of the House of Representatives in the upcoming General Assembly, is seeking ways to cut through some of the red tape which usually retards efficient work in the Legislature.

He conferred with a group of a dozen of his colleagues the other night and plans to see many more before end of the year to discuss speeding up organization procedure.

The General Assembly will convene at noon Wednesday, January 6, the time fixed by the constitution. Usually on the first day very little is done except effect organization of the House and Senate, confirming nominations made by the Democratic caucuses the previous night. From then until the Budget report comes in usually around the middle of the following week, the Assembly more or less marks time. Occasional local bills and sometimes important measures are introduced, generally without hope of action until later.

Presiding officers devote time to getting acquainted with new members and selecting committee assignments for them. When the budget report with accompanying appropriations and revenue bills comes in the bills are referred to the respective appropriations and finance committees. Senate and House groups then meet in joint session, one joint committee dealing with appropriations another with taxes and finance matters. Inevitable result is that half the members of the Legislature are familiarized with one bill, half with the other, but none having opportunity for a perspective view of the whole problem or the definite relationship of appropriations to taxes.

CLASS ROOMS — One idea being batted around among prospective legislative leaders is to spend the first week of the session going to school. That contemplates having both branches convert themselves into committees of the whole, where discussion can be more informal than in regular legislative sessions.

For two or three days all of the Representatives would study the total appropriations bill, while the Senators would be studying the revenue act. Then the "teachers", who would be officials of the budget office and the revenue department, would swap places and the Representatives would get the overall picture as to revenue and the Senators as to need for appropriations. These "class room" sessions would not in any sense replace the later detailed hearings by the joint appropriations committee of agency, department and institution spokesmen; or the chance for affected taxpayers to present their views to the joint finance committee.

The preliminary informal discussions will enable members of the spending committee to appreciate the probable limitations of prospective money to spend, while giving the taxing group a better understanding of the situation with respect to educational, health and other services rendered by the State to its citizens.

A further practical advantage would be to give the presiding officers opportunity to study the attitudes and reactions of members before assigning them to one of the major money committees. There would not be as great urgency for naming the main committees so early in the session.

Effectuation of the plan might be handicapped if there should be delay in getting the budget report from the printers. How much the death of Governor Umstead will affect the mechanics of getting the report compiled and printers has not been determined. Chances are the effect will be of small consequence, and the report will come along on schedule.

DUPLICATION — There is also discussion of whether it will be expedient to limit the number of committees upon which any one legislator may serve. Custom for many years has been to name every member on either the appropriations or finance committee, and to put all lawyers on one of the judiciary committees. Practice has been for the judiciary committees to meet in the mornings and the money committees in the afternoons, Tuesday through Thursday. Until legislation begins to jam during final weeks of the session, no committee meetings are scheduled on Monday or Friday. Further practice has been to have the regular Monday session at night, to make the Friday sessions short and to limit Saturday sessions to consideration of purely local bills. This limited time for committees frequently has delayed procedure, because of duplicating memberships and inability to obtain

A rule prohibiting any member serving on more than three or four committees, other than appropriations and finance, would speed up committee action and make for better legislation, in opinion of many experienced legislators.

WEEKENDS — There has been criticism of the legislators for the long week end recess, and for actually working full time only three days—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Most experienced members and many offside observers recognize that the opportunity afforded for legislators to go home and keep contact with their constitutents is more important and valuable than staying in Raleigh and taking action on pending bills without knowledge of how the folks back home feel about them. Traditional policy in this respect is not apt to be materially changed, although effort may be made to keep the members on the job full six days a week during the latter part of the session.

Emotional Letdown On Return

By HAL BOYLE

SPA, Belgium (AP) — When you return in peacetime to a place you knew 10 years before in war, there is often a big emotional letdown.

The small landmarks you thought you'd never forget can no longer be found. The landscape looks different. The people seem different, too. They often do not want to be reminded of the past, and you have an uneasy feeling of being lost in time. You are a stranger to the quiet present, a phantom echo from a noisy previous period better forgotten.

But it wasn't that way at all coming back for a luncheon at the Hotel du Portugal here, which 10 years ago was home to some 40 or 50 war correspondents of the American 1st Army.

Mrs. Maria Thonart, widowed owner of the hotel and her son, Robert, gave me a warm welcome. So did Alice the chambermaid, whose boast for 25 years has been she never lost a shirt.

"Things have improved and now the world has come again to us," said Mrs. Thonart. "Life has resumed. We are normal again."

Spa, now back to its prewar population of 9,000, is one of Europe's most famous watering places. Members of nobility, including Peter the Great and Charles II of England, over the centuries came here to enjoy its bath and mineral springs. It was from here that the Kaiser Wilhelm fled to Doorn at the end of the first World War.

And when the American 1st Army came here in September 1944 it promptly moved into the old German headquarters in the Hotel Britannique. The correspondents then took over the Hotel du Portugal and gay and sad times we had there. It is the best remembered press center of the European campaign.

The weather was grim; the battles were grimmer. Several correspondents were killed in action during our stay here, several wounded. The hardships were many, but it was a time of tremendous vitality. The possibility that a sudden break might lead to a quick end to the war gave each daily trip to the front an air of expectancy.

After writing their dispatches, the correspondents usually celebrated the evenings in a big double room, Chambre Six. Decorated with an enormous captured Nazi flag, it soon became a hangout for generals, visiting celebrities and Red Cross girls as well as newspapermen. Some of the greatest campaigns of the winter were fought out in Chambre Six or at least begun there — campaigns Adolf Hitler never even heard of.

Mrs. Thonart, recalling the varied history of Chambre Six then invited me to go up to the second floor for a look at it.

I opened the door, and a silence loud with the echoes of a vanished time flooded over me. The red decor of the room had been retained but a bathroom had been added, cutting the chamber almost in half. There was no Nazi flag on the wall, although I looked — half expecting it would be there.

When I came back down the stairs, Mrs. Thonart looked up with a gentle smile, and said:

"Chambre Six — it is different?"

"Yes it is different."

She mentioned some of the personalities at our press center, including Marlene Dietrich and Ernest Hemingway. Of the dead we did not speak aloud, nor had we need to. But suddenly, caught by her own memories, Mrs. Thonart began to weep.

When it was time to go, she poured us an aperitif, and said "They were the best days of a bad time."

Her son, Robert, said something else that added a welcome footnote to the wartime history of Chambre Six and the responsibility shown by footloose gentlemen of the press.

"The correspondents were here for months," he said, "and during that stay only one man left without paying his bill."

Worth Noting

FLAT RIVER (MO.) JOURNAL says:

. . . The nation is definitely on its way to a peacetime economy which naturally will not be as inflated as the wartime years, but must level off to a healthy medium.

A friend once told us that this nation's frontiers were all gone, and that democracy could no longer work. He was wrong. We have still many frontiers which will be developed for our ever increasing population and a wealth of discoveries yet to be made will keep our industries and manpower striving always in the pioneer spirit.

Youth Flew Stolen Airplane 300 Miles

GLADSTONE, Mich. (AP)—An 18-year-old Gladstone boy who had "fooled around plan : some" yesterday flew a sleek stolen plane from Grand Rapids to Gladstone, giving several Air Force jets the bird en route.

After landing the single-engine, $26,000 Beechcraft Bonanza at a small airstrip near this Upper Peninsula town Darryl Spaulding calmly said:

"I just wanted to get to Gladstone in a hurry."

State police, who arrested him on investigation of at least three charges, including grand larceny, said he told them he intended to fly home for a visit and then pilot the craft to Detroit, where he was scheduled to be inducted into the Army today.

The youth's rush trip of 300 miles weaving along the coastline of Lake Michigan had the Air Force, Civil Aeronautics Authority, state police and civilian pilots dizzy in an air and ground search for several hours.

The plane was owned by Lear Inc., a Grand Rapids aircraft instrument company.

A Lear mechanic at Kent County Airport said he heard the plane's engine start but figured Edward F. Conklin, chief pilot for Lear, was in it until it weaved erratically while taxiing for takeoff.

Air Force jets intercepted the light plane but Spaulding, with his lower air speed was able to outmaneuver them, the Air Force said. The jets were forced to turn back because of low fuel supplies.

The plane finally was spotted by Fred Sensiea, a private pilot, on a small landing strip near Gladstone.

Spaulding was arrested at his grandmother's house near Gladstone.

Police said he readily admitted the unauthorized flight. They quoted him as saying he had no formal pilot training. He was removed to the Delta County Jail at Escanaba.

Speaker Praises Lack Of Juvenile Delinquency In Ayden At Club Meet

AYDEN — Rev. Jack Fogleman, "National Education Week" speaker at the Ayden Rotary Club last Friday night, declared "there is less juvenile delinquency in Ayden than any town I know of."

He praised the work of the Ayden schools and said it is in line with the work of the church, Boy Scouts and other active institutions for controlling juvenile delinquency. The speaker reminded that from three Ayden churches about 10 young men had entered Christian service.

Rotarian Thelbert Worthington led the discussion in a skit entitled, "Buyer and Seller Relations." Warren Kinlaw, Billie Jenkins and Tom Wheless, Jr., were the "actors" in the skit. Gynn Merritt, Larry Davis, Lee Nance, Bob Booth, Joe Fort, Roy Turnage and others participated in the discussion.

Jack Quinerly won the "fellowship" prize, and the "on time" prize (cash) was given to the Boy Scout treasury. Visiting Rotarians were Jim Butler of Greenville and Wilfred Buck and Tom DuBois of Vanceboro. President Roy Turnage presided.

Egg-Production System Leaves Him Impressed

TOKYO (AP)—What a Japanese politician saw on a Soviet collective chicken farm near Moscow last summer has convinced him he says that Communists "will stop at nothing to gain their ends."

Isamu Imaizumi, right-wing Socialist, writes in a newspaper article he saw a food pipe thrust into a chicken's stomach.

"An operator steps on a pedal and one portion of food is sent into the stomach of the bird. Suddenly the stomach swells up and the hen screams. This is indeed an outrage of chickens' rights, as it were," says Imaizumi.

"I asked the woman in charge, 'Why do you do such a mean thing?' She explained to me: 'Our primary objective is not to raise chickens, but to get eggs . . . We do not care about the will of hens."

"We can never approve of such a way of thinking" in Japan, concludes Imaizumi.

Women In The Church

Women in the Church
By Mary Fowler

One of the big needs in the fight against Hansen's disease (leprosy) in the Belgian Congo is for more missionary nurses, according to Dr. R.E. Kleinschmidt, medical director of the Africa Inland Mission station at Aba, Congo Belge. The number of patients in the eleven Africa Inland Mission colonies has increased to almost 3,000, Dr. Kleinschmidt reports. And the distances between the widely scattered settlements make it difficult to give adequate medical supervision. One round trip is more than 2,000 miles. Though some arrested cases are preparing to become nurses' aides, the nursing personnel is still woefully inadequate, he has told the American Leprosy Missions which serves all Africa on behalf of the Protestant churches.

A woman Methodist minister from California, who years ago served as a missionary in Korea with her husband, has returned to service in that land — alone. The Rev. and Mrs. Richard Swinney were Methodist missionaries in Korea from 1927 to 1940. Then Mr. Swinney held a pastorate in California and died there in 1947. His widow was ordained a minister and became pastor of the Orosi (Cal.) Methodist Church. But, despite a successful pastorate, Korea still called her. And in October she returned there to carry on district evangelistic work from the city of Kangnug, south Korea. She has three children.

Mrs. Agnes Nilson Howard, has been named by the Norwegian Methodist Church as its first woman elder. She is wife of the Rev. Henry G. Howard, of Western India Mission of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. Mr. and Mrs. Howard have been evangelistic missionaries in the Islampur and Kodoli areas since 1941. They assisted in the establishment of "Spiritual Life Center" at Nasrapur, near Poona, a place where national and international Christian gatherings are held. Mrs. Howard was for nine years a missionary of the Methodist Church from Norway, in the Punjab, India, before her marriage in 1941 to Mr. Howard. She studied in Norway and at Theological Seminary of Gothenburg, Sweden, and has an M.A. degree from Drew University, Madison, N.J.

Dacron Plant Is Award Winner

KINSTON — The DuPont Company's General Manager's Safety Award was won by the local plant for the second time, it was announced by W. E. Gladding, plant manager. The Kinston Plant qualified for this award at midnight on Wednesday, November 10, 1954.

The local plant first won the General Manager's Award on August 16, 1953 and then went on to qualify for the President's Award and the Board of Directors' Award, before experiencing a major injury on May 20, 1954. This major injury, which involved an employee losing the tip end of a finger in a door, is the only one of a major nature which has occurred since the startup of this plant.

The Company's Safety Award Plan is based on employees working a certain number of exposure hours without a time-losing or major injury. The Kinston Plant has now operated 174 days, or 1,700,000 exposure hours without such an injury since May 20 of this year.

Mr. Gladding expressed his appreciation for the excellent team work and cooperation of each employee in continuing to operate a complex industrial plant with a minimum of serious injuries.

The Safety Award Plan provides for each employee to choose one of forty or fifty articles of merchandise as his personal award. These articles are on display in a showcase just inside the plant entrance to enable employees to make their selection.

Reservist Unit Wins 'Excellent' Inspection Rate

The 3015th Reception Station of the U. S. Army Reserves, located at the Reserve Corps Armory, 106 Ficklen street, in Greenville, received an "excellent" rating at the annual formal inspection November 2.

Truman Asserts Steady Nerves Can Win Peace

LEXINGTON, Mo. (AP) — Former President Truman says free countries can by adequate defense measures make it clear that aggression will be doomed to failure.

"If we are to succeed in maintaining a free world we must have steady nerves and stout hearts," he said last night at the 75th anniversary ceremonies of Wentworth Military Academy.

He said military strength is needed to back up the nation's moral and educational strength.

Some people in this country in the 1800s claimed strong national defense was too costly and that some magic formula should be found without having to pay for defense, he said.

"That point of view is being echoed today, but there is no magic way," he said.

The percentage of men teachers in U.S. elementary and secondary schools has been increasing — 15.2 per cent in 1947 and 22.8 per cent in 1951.

East Carolina Smothers Stetson With 26-7 Triumph

Bucs Had Huge Yardage Figures

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

The East Carolina Pirates, their offense shackled for the most part this season, got their juggernaut rolling Saturday night and pounded out a 26-7 win over the University of Stetson.

The victory, which was more decisive than the score indicates, wrote a complimenting finis to Coach Jack Boone's 1954 grid season.

The Pirates hit pay dirt in two fast strikes and had a 13-0 lead after eight minutes had elapsed in the initial period. Six more points were added in ECC's favor in the second period and at intermission the Bucs were well on their way to triumph. Both teams tallied in the fourth period for the final reading.

Statistics	ECC	Stetson
First Downs	17	11
Yds. Gained Rushing	438	64
Yds. Lost Rushing	34	9
Net Yds. Rushing	404	55
Passes Attempted	16	33
Passes Completed	4	15
Passes Intercepted By	3	2
Net Yds. Passing	37	145
Fumbles	2	2
Fumbles Lost	1	1
Punts	4	9
Punting Average	47.5	29.3
Yds. Lost Penalties	60	20

The 404 yards gained rushing is phenomenal when recorded by a ball club under almost any circumstances. The Pirate ground crew traversed the length of the playing field four times and then some. Big Claude King, senior fullback, contributed 108 yards to the cause and Co-Captain Toppy Hayes rushed for 73. Tom Allsbrook picked up 60 in 11 carries and Jim Henderson gained 65, which included a 43-yard touchdown trot in the final period.

Claude King Outstanding

The 190-pound Wilmington product scored twice besides gathering over 100 yards running. He smashed over from 2 yards out for the Pirates' second tally and faked himself open for a TD toss from Quarterback Boyd Webb in the second quarter. He also booted the point-after to the first score. He punted twice for 101 yards and a 50.5 average. The Stetson Hatters lost heart endeavoring to halt King's advances. If, on a series of downs, King didn't carry the mail and the Buc offense was bogged down, King would send the leather booming over their heads.

Pirates Struck Fast

It took just three minutes and seven plays for the Pirates to cover 70 yards and their first touchdown. Toppy Hayes returned Gene Stephenson's kickoff to the 30. King burst over tackle for six yards and Hayes danced to the Hatters' 26 on a nice 38 yard gallop. Hayes moved to the 20 and King furthered the ball down to the 17. Hayes lost to the 19 but King picked it up to the 14. Allsbrook then spun off tackle and twisted through the secondary for the score. King's conversion was true and the Pirates went ahead, 7-0.

Second Score

Five minutes later, King darted through tackle from two yards out for ECC's second marker. The drive measured 49 yards and took just seven plays. During the drive, Webb passed to end Larry Rhodes for 11 yards and a first down on the 35. Allsbrook made another first and ten with a four yard advance at the 23 and Harold O'Kelly made another with a five yard gain at the four. King plowed two yards to the two and went over on the next play. His conversion attempt was short and the Pirates had a 13-0 advantage.

19-0 Halftime Lead

With three minutes remaining in the first half, the Pirates got another drive in motion which carried 70 yards to the double lime lines. After receiving a Stetson punt at the 30, Webb directed the assault utilizing the expert stepping of Allsbrook, Hayes and rookie Bob Maynard. Webb found King in his sights at the goal for a 15-yard pass and a Pirate victory was assured.

Pass-Minded Stetson

Stetson, employing a spread pass formation, caused havoc all evening and several times would have marked up tallies of their own had not one defender remained between the receiver and the goal. Dick Saltrick, a freshman pass-master, couldn't miss in the third period and completed eight passes, four in a row. His favorite targets were Stephenson and Tom Hoffard. Many incomplete passes were simply dropped by incompetent receivers. The Hatters drove into Buc territory and threatened a penetration of the goal, only to be repelled.

43-Yard TD Run

After a scoreless third period, Coach Boone's Purple and Gold came roaring back to add their final points. With mostly reserves handling the situation, the Bucs went 45 yards in two plays. Emo Boado scooted to the 28 but the run was nullified by a 15-yard clipping penalty. On the next play, Gary Mattocks, Southern Pines sophomore, lateraled out to halfback Jim Henderson on a belly play and the fleet Virginian shot down the right sidelines 43 yards untouched for the score. Mattocks calmly booted the extra-point and the Pirates had their 26 points.

Hatter Score

On Saltrick's outstanding pitching arm, the Hatters were destined to save a whitewash. After returning the ensuing kickoff he connected for five passes which carried to the one yard line. He sneaked over for the score and pitched to Hoffard for the point-after. Nine plays later the final gun sounded.

The win ran East Carolina's overall won-lost record to 5-4-1 and dropped Stetson's to 1-7.

The game had many standouts for both teams. Saltrick was almost the whole show for the Hatters. He completed 16 passes out of 33 attempts and on occasions ran well. Stephenson was his best help in the backfield. Hollingworth, Hoffard, West and Shamrock were strongest on defense.

The entire first unit played a good ball game for the Pirates. Ends J. D. Bradford and Larry Rhodes did an excellent job turning the flanks. Co-Captain Willie Holland and George Tucker, tackles, snafued almost every advance their way. Don Burton and David Lee ended their college careers with commendable performances. Lou Hallow played his usual splendid game at center and linebacker. Reserves Mattocks, Henderson, Rice, Helms, Pennington, Smith, Overton, Popov, Burgess, Stanley, Monds, Chesson, and Perry turned in exceptional play in the season's conclusion.

Carter Favored To Regain Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jimmy Carter, the return bout champion, aims for a record and a title Wednesday night when he faces lightweight champion Paddy DeMarco in a television fight in San Francisco.

The 30-year-old New Yorker lost the 135-pound crown and regained it once before. He's done the same thing often enough in nontitle scraps. If he beats DeMarco—and he's favored to do so at 11-5 odds—Carter, of New York, will become the first lightweight champ to lose and regain the crown twice.

In May 1952 he yielded the throne to Lauro Salas but took it back in October.

DeMarco, a 26-year-old Brooklynite, outhustled Carter all the way to take the title in 15 rounds in New York last March. Their return bout was twice postponed when DeMarco suffered a virus attack and then injured an elbow.

Terp Fullback Stretches His ACC Scoring Lead

By THE ASSOCIAED PRESS

Dick Bielski, Maryland's hard charging fullback, has extended his individual scoring lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference, but the ace runner had to use his toe to do it.

Bielski holds the No. 1 spot with 36 points, four more than he had last week. He kicked a field goal and one extra point against Clemson Saturday to protect his lead.

Clemson's Jim Coleman and South Carolina's Mackie Prickett, who were tied for second with 30 points last week, still are second this week but two other scorers have caught up with them.

Ronnie Waller, a shifty-hipped halfback, scored twice against Clemson to up his production to 30 points. Duke's Bob Pascal tallied once against Wake Forest to join the four-way tie at 30.

Ken Keller of North Carolina is next with 26 points.

Maryland finished its conference schedule Saturday, beating Clemson, 16-0, at College Park. This put the pressure on Duke, which in licking Wake Forest, 28-21, remained in first with a 2-0 record.

The Blue Devils have two conference games remaining, facing strong South Carolina this week at Durham, and the traditional game against North Carolina the week after.

A vote of the conference schools will send the Atlantic Coast's representative to the Orange Bowl to face a Big Seven school.

Waller dashed 60 yards for one score and then took a pass from Charlie Boxold in a play covering 57 yards for another as Maryland stopped Clemson. This left Maryland with a 4-0-1 conference record and a 5-2-1 overall mark.

Touchdowns engineered by Capt. Jerry Barger that gave Duke a 21-0 lead proved too much for game Wake Forest. Sub quarterback Sonny Jurgensen passed to halfback Ed Post in a play that went 65 yards for the cincher. Fullback Nick Maravic scored twice for the Deacons and played his best game of the season, though in a losing caue.

South Carolina unleashed its strength to topple Virginia, 27-0. Halfbacks Mike Oaskey and Carl Brazell led the powerful Gamecock ground game.

North Carolina State looked sharp downing Richmond of the Southern Conference, 14-6. The Wolfpack scored in the second period when quarterback Eddie West passed eight yards to end Ronnie Gall.

Richmond got back in the game on halfback Ed Santoro's touchdown pass to Phil Corley in the fourth period. On the return kickoff to State, halfback George Marinkov broke away on an 82-yard scoring jaunt to ice the game.

Badly outclassed, North Carolina bowed to Notre Dame, 42-13. It was the sixth victory of the season against one loss for the Irish and their sixth straight in the series. The Tar Heels have yet to win against Notre Dame.

North Carolina was game to the end, scoring twice in the final quarter. A pass from Albert Long to Larry Parker provided the first. Another pass from Doug Farmer to Larry McMullen brought the other ar Heel touchdown with only 35 seconds left.

This week's schedule, all Saturday afternoon: South Carolina at Duke; George Washington at Maryland; North Carolina at Virginia; Wake Forest at William and Mary; North Carolina State at West Virginia; and Clemson at Auburn.

Clemson's Frosh Defeat Blue Imps

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Quarterback Gene Crocker sparked Clemson's freshman football team to a 12-6 victory over the Duke Blue Imps here Saturday night.

Crocker passed for one touchdown, a 30-yard heave to end Don Hendrix, and bulled over from the one for the second.

Duke's only touchdown came in the second quarter on a 30-yard pass play from quarterback Bob Brodhead to end Steve Crihfield. It was the second loss of the season for the Blue Imps.

Orange Bowl Foe Will Be At Stake

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Either Nebraska or Kansas State will represent the Big Seven against an Atlantic Coast Conference football team in the Orange Bowl Jan. 1.

The decision will be made Saturday, last day of conference activity, in games at Norman, Okla., and Boulder, Colo.

Nebraska meets Oklahoma and Coach Bill Glassford's Cornhuskers can cinch the Miami trip by upsetting Oklahoma, something no Big Seven team has managed since Bud Wilkinson took over at Sooner land in 1947.

The Sooners assured themselves of nothing worse than a tie for another league title by humbling Missouri 34-13 at Norman last Saturday.

Kansas State, which squeaked by Iowa State 12-7 in an unimpressive performance at Manhattan, must beat Colorado at Boulder to get the Orange Bowl trip.

Should Nebraska follow the form chart and lose to Oklahoma, the Cornhuskers will have a 4-2 Big Seven record. A Kansas State victory over Colorado would leave the Wildcats 4-2 and give them the postseason berth by virtue of their win over Nebraska in regular season.

Elon Clinches Its Second Place Bid

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North State Conference football race almost was history today with only a dispute over fifth and sixth places to be settled.

Elon, showing a never-say-die spirit, rolled into second place for the season behind Appalachian. The Christians scored two touchdowns in the last two minutes of their game against Lenoir Rhyne Saturday to cinch second with a 14-6 score.

The win moved Eastern Carolina to third and left Western Carolina in fourth. Elon, trailing 6-0, turned in a 52-yard march with hal.back Kerry Richards going the last 15 yards. The winning point was kicked by Jack Simpson.

Not finished, Elon intercepted a pass. Whitney Bradham plunged for the score.

Catawba beat Guilford, 33-7, for its first conference victory of the season. The last conference game remaining is between Catawba and Lenoir Rhyne on Thanksgiving Day. A win would move Catawba into fifth ahead of Guilford.

Appalachian, the conference champion, lost its first game of the season Saturday to strong Presbyterian College of the South Carolina Little Three, 14-7. Other non-league results saw East Carolina stop Stetson, 26-7, and Western Carolina maul Newport News Apprentice School, 64-7.

Three games are set this week. Guilford plays Hampden-Sydney at Danville, Va., Friday night. Elon is at Davidson Saturday and Appalachian invades Tampa Saturday night.

Civil Defense Reminds N. C. Farms Vulnerable

RALEIGH. . .State Civil Defense Director Gen. Edward F. Griffin warns farmers throughout the state that they are vulnerable to biological warfare attack by enemy agents or airplanes carrying disease-laden mists and destructive chemicals. In a bulletin issued form his office General Griffin called for unending alertness by farmers to detect and report immediately to county agents or state livestock veterinary officials, any sign of unusual crop or animal diseases, or any increase in native diseases.

"Precautions against attack on our farm production is equally as important as precaution against bombs", the director stated. "there is no chance of warning and results can be just as fatal.

"Biological warfare is a Civil Defense problem because it is the intentional use of disease-producing agents against man, animals and crops. It can be used directly against man, to cause serious illness and death. Or it can be used indirectly by limiting the source of his food clothing and medical supplies. North Carolina farm products and rural population are vital to the state and the nation. . .I hope our farmers will give serious consideration to the country-wide appeal recently made by the federal government."

Ten precautions advocated by the federal government are detailed in a new booklet, published by FCDA and currently being distributed through Civil Defense and national agricultural organizations, called "What The Farmer Should Know About Biological Warfare". North Carolina Council of Civil Defense used the theme for its State Fair Exhibit this year and distributed hundreds of copies of the handbook at that time. Additional copies may be secured through local or state Civil Defense, or by ordering direct, for 15 cents, from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D C.

In September President Eisenhower approved delegation of authority by FCDA Administrator Val Peterson, making the Secretary of Agriculture responsible for combatting biological and chemical warfare against animals and crops. The Department of Agriculture has protection services now existing, such as inspection and border quarantine, to help carry out this responsibility with cooperation from Public Health Service, Bureau of Customs and Naturalization Service.

This protective system is further back-stopped by state cooperation and is organized for quick response in case of emergency.

Jap Hermit Has Grown A Forest

TOKYO (AP)—Back in 1912—so the story goes—Yoshio Suda was falsely accused of illegally cutting trees. He was 26 and a great lover of the woods.

In the anguish of his deep hurt, he retreated to a lonely hideaway in a northern Honshu mountain valley.

The newspaper Asahi told the rest of Suda's story today.

There he lavished his love of vegetation on a bleak mountainside. Every day he set out seedlings and cultivated them carefully until they were strong enough to make their own way.

"Cedars can be trusted much more than human beings," he once confided to a friend on one of his infrequent visits to the village at the base of the mountain.

He lived simply on rice obtained through barter.

Over the years his tiny trees grew into a towering forest of 13,000 trees, and the story of his life became a legend.

Then one day, 12 years ago, love came into his life. A geisha girl came to live with him. She stayed a year and left. Three years later she returned and stayed two more years.

In 1949 she died, the villagers say, and Suda resumed his solitary existence.

He now is 68 and still professes to hate the outside world. He would rather live with his trees.

Since the first U.S. Diesel-powered streamline train was put in operation in 1934, that train has traveled over 2½ million miles.

Soviets Re-Raise Stalinist Policies

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Stalinism is coming out of hiding in Moscow. More and more the Kremlin is hewing to the Stalin line, despite outward demonstrations to the contrary. It seems to mean that while talking of peace, the Soviet Union is digging in for a long cold war.

And there will be no letup in pressure against areas of least resistance.

This does not mean a reversal of policy by Premier Georgi Malenkov's regime so much as it indicates the Kremlin is cautiously reasserting those aspects of Stalinism which best suit Soviet world designs.

In Soviet foreign affairs, this probably will bring concentration on two avenues of operation:

1. Those areas the official Communist line dubs "colonial and dependent"—most of Asia, including Japan all of Africa and most of Latin America.

2. Communist-controlled organizations outside the Soviet borders, such as the World Council of Peace, the World Federation of Trade Unions and various associations whose members are conscious or unconscious tools of Soviet foreign policy.

Indications are that the honeymoon between the Communist party leadership and the Soviet people is all but over before it is two years old. The honeymoon began with concessions the nervous regime extended in the days immediately following Stalin's death.

Where Stalinism injured the Soviet Union in the past, it has been repudiated. That permits such things as the determined wooing of Yugoslavia. It also permits more flexibility in maneuvering, particularly with gestures having the look of an ardent desire for world peace.

But Stalin's words more and more creep into the official party press without quotation marks. An important article in the Academy of Sciences magazine Problems of History states that the middle classes of Western nations once were "progressive" in character but changed in the "era of imperialism." Thus it continues, the middle class became reactionary, lost contact with the people and thereby weakened itself. It adds that "progressive forces (meaning those inspired or owned by Communists) are today defending bourgeois democratic freedoms from the attack of imperialist reaction."

Those are originally the words of Stalin, in his last speech. They were directed not to the Soviet party but to the "fraternal" parties abroad, at the Octbber 1952 congress of the Soviet Communist party. Then Stalin advised 115 Red leaders from abroad to go back to their countries and be its patriots, to espouse "democratic freedoms."

Stalin — and the Soviet party — had no tender regard for "democratic freedoms." There were advantages to be had from such a policy, however. It would associate Communists with such freedoms. This association would damage such freedoms and thus cause frictions in such countries as the United States, England and France.

The Soviet press emphasizes the "colonial and dependent" countries and their "struggle for liberation." Such areas can be a source of irritation to nations of the Western Alliance, and the indications are that Communists will overlook no chance of fostering such irritations.

On the home front, Stalin is quoted frequently, though not by name on tasks ahead—more "socialist competition," more progressive raising of output quotas for workers, more "productivity of labor" in town and farm. Concessions to the people—particularly the peasants—appear to have solved little for the Malenkov regime.

There is a strong hint that controls will be tighted on Soviet economic and cultural life, that a brief experiment in extending a bit of freedom proved somewhat dangerous. The people seemed to have liked the taste.

Burned Hotel's Key Is Returned

ISHPEMING Mich. (AP)—Postmaster John T. Burke received a hotel key in the mail recently. The key, of the variety forgetful guests can return by dropping in a mail box, was marked "Room 16, Nelson House."

The Nelson House was destroyed by fire in 1929.

The Inheritors

JANE ABBOTT

If the three heirs to old Josh Trevitt's sizeable upstate New York farm remain on it for at least three months after his death, each will inherit one-third of the land. Those leaving sooner must relinquish their share or shares to those remaining, final resident to be awarded the entire farm. So when old Josh died, his kin were notified and copies of his will mailed them.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Wick walked back over the path, across the stones in the creek. He went into the barn. He had done this both times before when he had come up to find Gary Norbeck. The last time he had stepped off the distance between the door and the spot where Jim Meese said they found Jehosophat between that and the back wall. He had not climbed the steep ladder to the loft—it was old, some of its rungs were loosened by rot; he did not dare trust his weight to it.

That same day he had gone into the back wing of the house which had been old Josh's living quarters, looked through the drawers of an old chest in one corner, under the padding of an old rocking chair, in the pockets of Josh's few clothes which still hung on hooks behind a faded cretonne curtain, inside the old clock on a shelf, inside the stove, under the rug carpet. But he had found no money.

Today he had an impulse to go into the other wings not to search them but merely to see what they were like. No doors between the rooms were locked, though each had a heavy bolt. Quarrelsomeness in the family, Josh had said.

The shutters of the parlor were shut—he remembered they had been closed for years—but one hung loose on its hinges and let in a bar of light. A marble-top table stood in the center of the room, on it an enormous Bible and some waxed flowers under a glass dome. Three stiff horsehair-covered chairs and a sofa were placed primly in order, a what-not was loaded with china pieces in one corner. Wick was satisfied to do no more than glance into the two smaller rooms off from it, one a bedroom, the other a kitchen.

Then he went through a door into what Josh had called the north wing. This he found much pleasanter, alight for there were no shutters at the windows, the carpet faded but still with some brightness; the chairs, here, seemed more comfortable. Back of the living-room was a bedroom with a four-poster bed which he recognized as a good antique. The big chest of drawers, too, a small table and two chairs. A part of a porch running along the wing had been walled in to make a kitchen, big enough to give room for an old dropleaf table. All this, he remembered, was to go to Mrs. Hester Wilmer. The grabby one, old Josh had called her.

He heard a car stopping on the drive outside. He went in the kitchen wing and through the window he saw Ed Pauly's taxi with a woman getting out of it, slender, primmish, in a dark blue suit, nervously opening her handbag to pay Ed. Then a startling realization came to him. She must be one of Josh's nieces. Ed was taking out two suitcases and a big brown paper bag. She was coming toward the door. He went to the door, though his inclination was to escape in the other direction.

At sight of him she paused. "Oh! This is the Trevett farm?"

"Yes. I happened to be up here. You are . . ." Though he knew, before she spoke, from the frightened look in her dark eyes. She was the skinny little girl the older one had bossed around!

"Miss Jennie Todd, Jehosophat Trevett's niece. I had a letter . . ."

"Yes. From me. I'm Wickford Middleton."

"Where should I put this luggage, Wick?" asked Ed Pauly.

Wick thought swiftly of the dreary part of the house that was to be Miss Jennie Todd's. He said: "Put them down, Ed. I'll take care of them."

As Ed went away she said to Wick: "You wrote that the main part of the house was mine."

"Yes. There's a door around here." He picked up the suitcases and she picked up the brown paper bag and followed him.

In the parlor he put down the bags and waited for some expression of dismay from her. Instead she said, low, as if she were speaking to herself: "It's wonderful!"

"I'll get those shutters open, let in some light—the windows, too."

When he returned to the room he found her sitting in one of the old horsehair chairs her hands folded, a look of ecstasy on her face.

"Thanks, Mr. Middleton. It is better to have the windows open-" She spoke absently as if she were still in a thrall of pleasure at being here.

"If you had let me know ahead—I'd have had the place aired and cleaned and ready. There's wood cut for the stove—but do you know how to work a woodstove?"

"My mother used one summer times. Yes, I'll know. I'll be quite all right here, Mr. Middleton."

"You'll need food, Miss Todd. No "I brought some things tea and coffee and bread and some canned things. I'll walk down to the town when I need more."

"It's two miles."

"I like to walk."

She locked her hands together, asked with some hesitation, as if she dreaded to put the question: "Have you—have you heard from my sister—and brother?"

"No." Wick would have said more except for the great relief he saw come into her face. "But you've no near neighbors, Miss Todd." Then he remembered Gary Norbeck. "I'm wrong—there is somebody fairly close. The young man to whom your uncle willed the south acre. He's living in cabin down there. I imagine, if you needed to call him, he could hear you."

Jennie Todd got up from her chair. "I won't need to call him. It's going to be heavenly to know that I am here all by myself."

He said: "My office is on the main street over Nickerson's hardware store. Any time . . ."

"I'll find it, if I need to."

"Heavenly!" He repeated her word aloud as he drove down the hill. "Well, if it's her idea of heaven, she can have it!"

Loot Returned With A Note

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP)—After discovering someone had stolen the distributor cap from her car Miss Kay Wilson returned to her garage to find this note, along with the missing part:

"I thought it over and decided I would be mad and feel badly if it happened to me. In the future, keep your garage door locked."

The note was signed, "The returner and lowest thief."

India To Raise Army Of 500,000

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India is to raise a 500,000-man national volunteer force in the next five years to aid in the defense of the country.

This was announced today following a meeting of the Central Advisory Committee for a Territorial Army, under the chairmanship of Prime Minister Nehru.

A committee resolution said the volunteer force—similar to the U.S. National Guard—could serve as a "potential nucleus for future defense thereby reducing dependence on a standing army."

If McCarthy Is Saved From Censure, He'll Keep Attacks

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even if Senate Republicans work out a compromise to save Sen. McCarthy from censure — and that may not be possible — he will probably continue raking the Eisenhower administration for Communists.

He has already spent four profitable years, from the standpoint of his personal eminence, digging into and at officials and employes of the executive branch of the government.

He did it for two years while the Democrats ran that branch. Without losing stride, he continued it the next two years while President Eisenhower controlled it. And Eisenhower will boss it another two years.

McCarthy has said, win or lose on censure, he will go on with his anti - Communist campaign. So, judging from the direction his attentions took in the past, the Eisenhower administration seem his logical hunting ground.

Besides, the executive branch of the government has an immensely greater number of employes than either the legislative or judicial branches and therefore offers a wider field.

Yet, no Republican senator who votes to censure McCarthy can ignore the political implications.

Censure would be an outgrowth of a series of events put in motion earlier this year when the Eisenhower administration took a stand against the investigation—or the kind of investigation—McCarthy was making of the Army.

Since the Republicans lost the last election, they may need both party harmony and every vote they can get in the next voting in 1956, a presidential election year.

McCarthy might not feel obligated at all but, rather, consider it an admission of weakness if, for the sake of party harmony, Republican senators were inclined to spare him censure and found a way to do it.

He might, indeed, look upon escape from censure a proof of his necessity to the party and an addition to his power within it.

He did not show any great concern for harmony last year when he tore into the Eisenhower administration's handling of Communists and communism. There's no reason to believe he'd show any more concern in the future, censure or no censure.

His position has always been that he doesn't play politics in looking for Communists.

Nevertheless, he has a large following — how large and how effective is not known. It did not appear decisive in two states — Illinois and New Jersey — where he most obviously tried to make his influence felt in the last election.

In a tight 1956 election, the McCarthy following, if angered by the treatment given him during the Eisenhower administration, could conceivably mean the difference between victory and defeat for the Republican party.

But how? That's not an easy one. McCarthy's admirers could hardly vote Democratic since he has made the Democrats his main target, calling them the "party of treason." If they stayed home from the polls, they'd be helping the Democrats.

They could form a third party, but no one is seriously suggesting that now. McCarthy and his friends, provided he was still a force and had a following, could probably make their weight felt most at the Republican National Convention in 1956 if Eisenhower didn't run again.

Eisenhower's withdrawal would leave a party vacuum into which the McCarthy team could move as a force, if not the dominant force, in picking the party candidate and shaping the party platform.

Instead of being on the defensive when the Senate censure debate began, McCarthy went on the attack and stayed there. To suggestions he might get off the hook by apologizing for his conduct, he said he would apologize for nothing.

Korea's 'Man-In-Street' Feels Economic Pains

By MURRAY FROMSON

TOKYO (AP)—Korean fishermen have an old saying: shrimps get hurt when the whales are fighting.

That pretty wells sums up the economic picture in this country, still licking the wounds of the Korean War.

While the United States and the Republic of Korea swing their oratorical roundhouses, it's the man in the street who takes the body blows.

His money has little value. The price of rice—his staff of life—is going up, when it should be going down after a good harvest. There is no fuel for trucks and buses, nor for lamps and stoves. The enormous machinery which pumps millions of American aid dollars into the country is stalled.

The heart of the dispute the ROK government says, is the exchange rate of the Korean hwan. The Koreans want it held at the present 180 hwan to $1. They insist that if the United States paid at that rate for the hwan it has borrowed from the government, the Korean economy would flourish.

American officials say the currency issue is only a minor point —a symptom of a sick economic structure.

The United States wants a devaluation of the hwan to something like its open or black market rate of 500-700 to $1, which the United States calls "more realistic."

But, in addition, it lists three more "minimum" conditions that Korea must meet before Washington gives the green light to a 700 million dollar economic and military aid program for 1955.

Korea must:

1. Give full information on dollar holdings of the ROK treasury.

2. Take strong anti-inflation measures.

3. Agree to buy goods in all non-Communist nations including Japan.

The Koreans say the United States is trying to intimidate them and shove them around. Top U.S. officials say the United States is sick and tired of being kicked in the shins by the people it is trying to help.

The ROK government Oct. 1 refused to advance the U.S. 8th Army any more hwan until the army paid up its back accounts at the 180-1 rate. The United States in turn shut off gasoline and oil shipment to Korea to a trickle.

Gen. John E. Hull, U.S. Far East commander, hurried to Seoul for conferences with President Syngman Rhee. He left two days later, angrily terming his trip "a complete failure."

Hull began paying his 100,000 Korean employes in American greenbacks and treasury notes. The ROKs retaliated by cracking down on Koreans who accepted the currency. Hull then offered them payment in soap, cigarettes, blankets and toilet articles from post exchange supplies.

He also threatened to sell petroleum products on the Korean market to get hwan—at the 500-1 rate.

The ROKs softened somewhat under Hull's strong stand. Early this week they offered, and Hull accepted, an advance of 800-million hwan—"no strings attached."

But that is just about enough to meet one month's 8th Army payroll. It only postponed what must be the ultimate showdown.

The Koreans say they are willing to talk over hwan devaluation, providing the new rate would be made permanent. American officials won't buy it. They say a permanent rate would mean a permanent American subsidy of the Korean economy.

Switzerland has electrified 94 per cent of its railroads.

No Fines

No fines for overdue books will be charged during "Forgiveness Week" at Sheppard Memorial Library next week, head librarian Elizabeth Copeland has announced.

Forgiveness Week is part of the observance of the fiftieth anniversary this month of public library service in this city.

During next week "no fines will be charged and no questions asked" regarding overdue books, according to Miss Copeland.

She said it makes no difference how long a book has been overdue. "We are only interested in getting the books back for the library, not in the fines."

Musical Group Played Friday For Exchangites

At its weekly supper meeting Friday night of the Greenville Exchange Club, a clarinet quartet from East Carolina College give a musical program. Exchangite Robert S. Moye had charge of the program.

Herbert Carter of ECC music faculty introduced the four students, Neil Williams, Ralph Chason, George Knight and James Alexander, all from Rocky Mount. They played four selections.

Vice-President Jimmy Wells presided for President Ed Parkinson.

After the program, the Exchangites made plans for the annual "ladies' night" banquet to be held at the Greenville Country Club next Friday night at 7:30. During this meeting the Exchange Club will award the "Book of Golden Deeds."

Local civic and veterans organizations have been invited to submit nominations for this award. The winner will be selected by a secret committee from names submitted, Exchangite Jack Wallace stated.

Youngster Killed In Gun Accident

THURMONT, Md. (AP)—A 12-year-old boy shot and killed himself near here yesterday when he accidently discharged a pistol while trying to put it away on a shelf.

Richard J. Hurley died in his mother's arms before a doctor could arrive.

State police said the boy had taken a loaded .22-caliber target pistol from a mantel. His older brother saw him and told him to put it back. As he was doing so, it went off. The bullet struck the boy in the stomach.

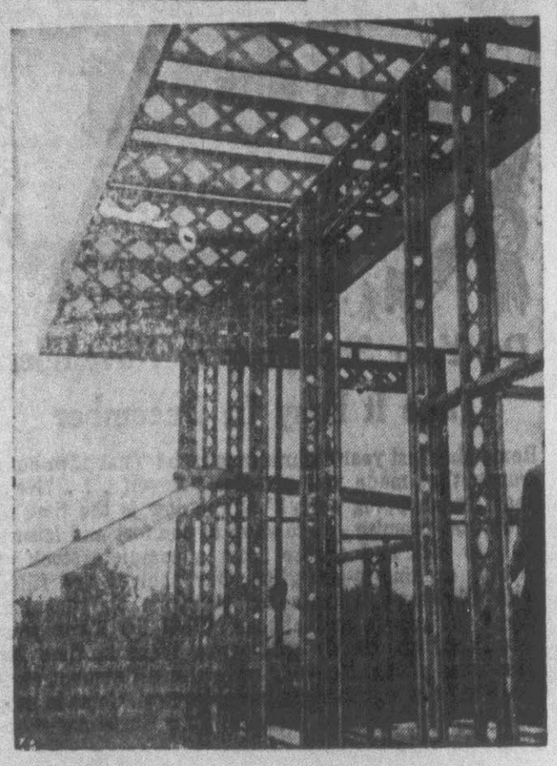
ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor



SKYSCRAPER-STYLE steel skeleton used for house framing.

Many new tricks are being performed with metal in home building.

Complete houses are now being built with welders' torches instead of carpenters' hammers. The same thin curtain-wall panels that have made it possible to enclose a skyscraper in less than a day are now adapted to houses. And new wrinkles in metal rolling have brought us a step nearer to solar heating—the dream of using the sun's rays instead of a furnace.

Skyscraper style houses have been built in various locations. Lewis Berry has one at Hanover, N.J. It was put together entirely by welders. Thomas A. Kindre, who watched the job made this report about it in Steelways trade publication of the American Iron & Steel Institute:

"This erector set house hasn't a nail in it and the only wood that hungry termites will find is in its doors. But even more significant is the fact that the steel framework is not just a one-time stunt. You can buy it, prefabricated to size.

"Home builders in some parts of the country are already using steel roof trusses, so light that two men can carry them yet strong enough to span an entire house so no interior walls need to be load bearing. Others are using lightweight steel floor joists in the same way to eliminate cellar columns and floor beams—and also to cut costs. A major steel company has in the works a new all-steel house, which will hit the market within a year."

Lightweight steel floor joists are now designed along the lines of a cantilever bridge. Taking the place of heavy timbers, they are lifted into place by one man. H.R. Davidson used them in his new house in Zanesville, Ohio.

"Better check the power line to your home workshop, advises Kindre, "and lay in a supply of metal working tools. The day may come when the wrench and the welding torch will be as familiar on the home repair scene as the carpenter's hammer is today."

Curtain walls have been one of the smartest developments in skyscraper construction. For the home builder they are of interest not only for speed of erection, but also because a 4-inch wall built with these metal curtains shows better insulating qualities than 12 inches of masonry.

Such walls were used to add more office space to Pittsburgh's huge Gateway Center. In porcelain enameled form they sheathe Dallas' new Statler Hotel as well as towers in Los Angeles and Denver. Norman Tishman used them to set a record by enclosing a 22-story building at 460 Park Ave., New York, in 9½ hours. He used panels two stories high containing all window frames and made entirely of aluminum.

Aluminum sandwiches now herald new possibilities in solar heating. These are designed for roofing to store up so much heat from the sun that it can heat our homes even through long rainy spells. Massachusetts Institute of Technology is testing the idea.

Here's how they're made: On a large sheet of aluminum, a complicated design, like a street plan, is traced with what is called stop-weld. Then another sheet of aluminum is placed over this weird picture and the two are rolled through a hot press which welds them into one panel. They are sealed at all points except where the stop-weld has been painted. This process is roll bonding.

A needle then is inserted at one end of the panel and hydraulic pressure raises into an embossed design the pattern made by the stop-weld. This creates a continuous tubular passage throughout the panel.

If water should be circulated through such panels on your roof, allowed to heat by the sun and automatically stored in insulated tanks, you'd have a solar heating plant. That's what MIT is working on.

In announcing this sandwiching process, the metals division of the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. stated: "Roll bond panels could form the walls ceilings, or floors of the home. The hot water passing through the panels provides proper temperature control. MIT reports that a roof made of roll bonded sheets is the most efficient means yet found for trapping the heat of the sun."

This product also is being tested by aircraft manufacturers for use in cooling planes at supersonic speeds. It already is in use in some refrigerators and air conditioners.

Last Week Saw Animals Make Odd News Items

By PETE ARTHUR

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—As happens every so often, animals made more fascinating news last week than humans. Particularly when the paths of the two crossed.

In London, a thief posing as a plumber was met on the stairs by two poodles. As he approached they raised their paws—to shake hands. On his way out, carrying $9,800 of their mistress' jewels, the burglar stopped a second time to shake hands—before the maid let him out.

When a Santa Monica, Calif., engineer, 63 years old, got a divorce, he told the judge he gave his 39-year-old wife the choice of sleeping with him or their Manchester terrier. She chose the dog.

In Montgomery, Ala., a dog-catcher was criticized for shooting dogs on the street. He had a boy who barked at him arrested. Then he quit, saying he wants a job with a better future.

In New York the public library opened its doors to dogs. The only condition: they must be library broken . . . In Chicago, Brookfield Zoo exhibited a new gnu. It's the only male in the country, which may be good news for four female gnus in other zoos, to whom he'll be bred . . . In Beverly Hills, Calif., police found a two-foot alligator crawling down Wilshire Boulevard. It bit one of the cops, quickly found itself in jail booked for resisting an officer.

Quote of the week in the animal world came from a Creek Indian with the appropriate name of Turner Bear who bagged a 10-point deer near Stringtown, Okla. Asked if he used a bow and arrow, as many other hunters are doing, Bear replied: "Indian use 30-30 rifle. Bow and arrow for white man."

On their own, humans didn't do badly in making odd items for the papers.

With vote rechecks going on everywhere, authorities in Orleans, Mass., were properly confused by an individual who voted the straight Prohibition ticket—but was wet right down the line when he came to local option liquor questions.

And on Veterans Day in Pawtucket, R.I. the annual parade was rolling along smoothly as far as the City Hall. There the marchers discovered someone had forgotten to put up a reviewing stand or invite city officials who customarily review the event.

Fred Beal Dies Of Heart Attack

LAWRENCE, Mass. (AP) — Fred E. Beal, who served four years of a 17-year prison sentence for conspiracy to murder in the fatal shooting of the Gastonia, N.C. police chief during a 1929 textile strike, is dead.

An admitted former Communist, Beal fled to Russia in 1929 and returned disillusioned after two years.

He died of a heart attack yesterday at his home. He was 57.

A native of Lawrence, Beal went to work in a textile mill at 14 and was active in the city's big textile strikes of 1912 and 1922. He said he joined the Communist party in 1922 believing it was "ushering in a new society based on love of one's fellow men, freedom from ... want and with security for all."

The Gastonia crime was the slaying of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt in a skirmish at union headquarters June 7, 1929, during a violent strike that began earlier that year at the Manville-Jenckes mill. Beal and six other strike leaders were convicted of conspiracy and appealed.

Beal said afterward the Communist party ordered the six to jump bail and flee to Russia. Their convictions subsequently were affirmed by the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Beal returned from Russia an avowed anti-Communist.

He went back to North Carolina in 1936 and was sentenced, but he was paroled after four years.

In 1948, in the same court where he first was convicted, he regained his U.S. citizenship.

Rayburn To Talk Foreign Policy

BONHAM, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) says he will go to Washington tomorrow to talk with President Eisenhower about U. S. foreign policy.

The veteran Democrat, expected to be House speaker in the new Congress, said, "The President wants us to tell him how to get along in foreign affairs and I'll have to admit that the President needs some help."

New Polar Route Is Opened By Airliner

By HUBBARD KEAVY

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—The airliner Royal Viking took off early today to inaugurate the first commercial transpolar passenger service between Los Angeles and Copenhagen Denmark.

The Scandinavian Airlines System's DC6B rose from fogbound International Airport at 12:05 a.m. with film actors Jean Hersholt and Walter Pidgeon, public officials and two dozen newsmen, including this writer, aboard.

Shortly before the takeoff, actress Cyd Charisse christened the Royal Viking with the traditional champagne bottle. A reception and dinner honored the passengers earlier in the evening.

At 8:10 p.m. today, a similar plane — and likewise loaded with newsmen and dignitaires — will leave Copenhagen headed West. The eastbound plane's flying time, for the 5,800-mile "short course," is 22 hours. But the westbound craft, due to prevailing westerly winds, will be in the air about 25 hours. It is due in Los Angeles Tuesday. There is, incidentally, a nine-hour time differential between Denmark and the Pacific Coast.

Six exploratory flights by SAS established the practicability of the flight, which stops only at Winnipeg, Manitoba, in Canada and Blule West 8 an airfield on Greenland. What military significance this transpolar route has no one has yet said, but undoubtedly it has some.

Scandinavian Airlines, a consortium since 1946 of Swedish, Norwegian and Danish airlines, will establish southern California's first direct link with Europe. The arctic route, only about 30 per cent of it over water, is 600 miles shorter than the usual flying path via New York. And plane changes in New York, SAS estimates, require a minimum of seven hours.

Each DC6B used on the trip, which will be twice weekly each way will carry 32 passengers and crews of 10. There are eight berths on each with a sleeping charge of $50 each way. The round trip fare is $1,034.50. Each plane also will carry up to 2,000 pounds of cargo.

Heifer Trapped 2 Days In Sewer

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Jewel, the heifer that behaved like a mole, is back on farmer Ernest Florian's farm today after two days in a sewer.

A 5-foot-2, 130-pound construction worker maneuvered her out after bigger men had failed.

Jewel fell down a manhile into the sewer main, only an inch higher than she, on Friday. She had nudged aside several rescuers and retreated farther into the 500-foot line, which lies 4 to 20 feet below the surface.

Yesterday construction worker Eddie Seaton got into the sewer through a second manhole and prodded her toward the manhole she had entered. When she balked, he splashed her face with water from a pail he had carried down with him.

At the manhole, the 600-pound heifer, held by wooden barricades, was hoisted out on an improvised sling attached to a crane truck.

Failed To Note That Accomplice

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Patrolman Richard Voight, 35 caught a man breaking into a motorcycle shop early yesterday.

He handcuffed him, but as he started walking away someone turned off the lights and slugged him.

When he regained consciousness he found his handcuffs and keys missing — along with the prisoner. Apparently an accomplice had been hiding nearby.

Evidence that heart disease, cancer, diabetes and mental disease tend to run in families has been reported by statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined today following five advances to new 25-year peaks.

The selloff in the early afternoon went to between 1 and 3 points with most losses small. There were many moderate gains, some running well past a point.

Business was quite heavy and maintained a pace right around Friday's big total of 3,720,000 shares which was the best in nearly four years.

Prices opened steady, turned mixed, and then started down in the first hour. Steels and railroads were heavily traded.

General Portland Cement was up between 3 and 4 points after directors proposed a two-for-one split.

A lot of big blocks were on the tape. A block of 21,000 shares of Pacific Western Oil sold at 37¼ up 4. International Telephone had a block of 15,000 shares up ⅜ at 23⅜. Southern Co traded blocks of 3,000 and 10,000 shares at 17 off 3-8. A block of 12,000 Pennsylvania Railroad went at 18½ up ¼. Cities Service opened on 1,500 shares off 1¾ at 115 and soon lost between 2 and 3 points.

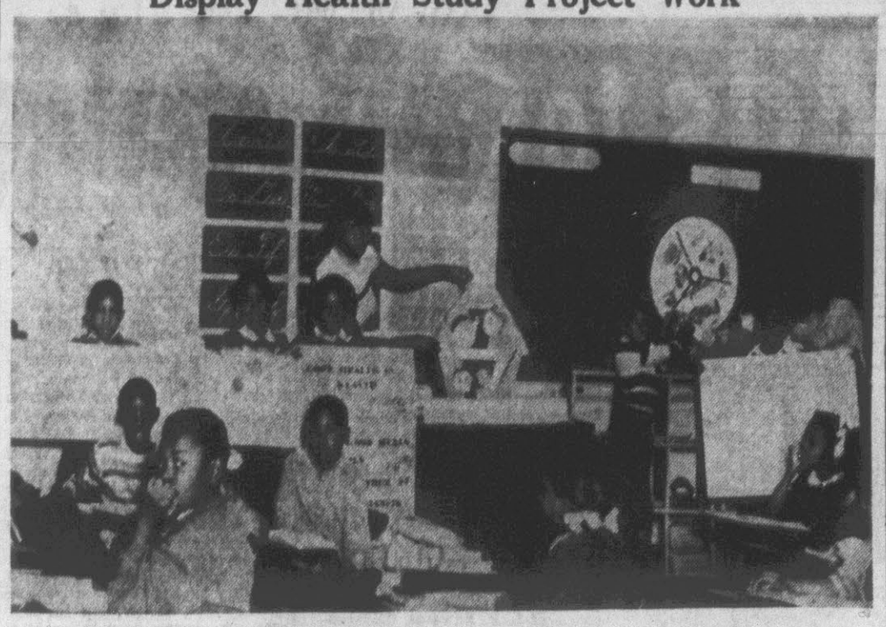
Display Health Study Project Work



Some of the children in Mrs. Lucille J. Sledge's 3A2 class at the Fleming Street School display a few of the projects the group undertook in its recent health unit study. Experiences in art were enjoyed throughout the study and "the biggest thrill came when making the Nutrition Express train and the wheel of good eating," Mrs. Sledge commented. The art activities also included the construction of a House of Good Health and the making of numerous posters. In its health study the class made health rules and recorded them on charts, took "pretend" trips to the incinerator, dairy, bakery and A and P store, and held round table discussions. Climax of the unit was an assembly play, "Mother Goose's Health Program," which included an original health dramatization with songs and poems. (Reflector Photo by Edwina Haymes).

Three-Car Crash Here Yesterday

A traffic accident involving three cars occurred here yesterday at the intersection near Pitt and Third Streets, when a car driven by Ander Manning, Negro, of Greenville, came up a one-way street the wrong way and was rammed by a second car coming from the opposite direction driven by Lillia R. Taylor, Negro, of Greenville, according to a report from the local police department.

The impact caused the car driven by Lilla Taylor to collide with a third car which was parked.

Two occupants of the cars were injured: Dorothy Manning, Greenville, received a cut on her elbow, abrasion of knees, a cut on forehead, and was rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment; and E. Dixon, Greenville, received abrasions, and was also sent to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

The car driven by Manning was reported a total loss, and Taylor's car was damaged an estimated $500.00.

Manning has been charged with "failing to yield right of way, also traveling wrong way on one-way street", and has been arrested by local police.

Woman Convicted Of False Report While Filing Unemployment Claim

A Negro woman was convicted this morning of failure to report wages while filing for unemployment insurance, C. A. Dees, claims deputy for the Employment Security Commission reported today.

Ertie Blackwell of 600 Vance Street was convicted on the charge before Justice of the Peace F. E. Brooks. She was given a 30-day sentence suspended on payment of court cost and provided that she refund $170 to the commission in small weekly payments.

Testimony was that the woman earned up to $13 per week while reporting no more than $2.50 per week to the Employment Security Commission.

The false reports were said to have been made in April, May and June of 1953.

VFW Schedules Regional Meet

Mrs. Edna Earle Baker and Miss Annie Lee Jones are at the two-day meeting, which began today. They will return to work here Wednesday morning.

Bethel HD Club Meets; Plan For Luncheon

BETHEL — Bethel's Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. W. C. Whitehurst, with Mrs. R. B. Edmundson, club president, and Mrs. A. D. Brown giving the monthly demonstration on care of clothing.

Each member brought kitchen utensils to be sent to inhabitants of the island of Zante, a Greek possession, which recently suffered severe earthquake damage.

Mrs. Edmundson reported on the Achievement Day program, while Mrs. Dennis Hardy gave a report on enriched corn meal.

The club chose hostesess for each month during the coming year, and also decided to have a covered dish luncheon at the December meeting.

The devotional for the afternoon was given by Mrs. Edmundson. Mrs. Hardy read the minutes of the last meeting and gave the treasurer's report.

Durnig the social hour the hostess served hot tea and fruit cake.

Hold Suspects For Store Theft

The sheriff's department announced today the arrest of two Negro men in connection with a recent break-in at Guy Moore's store on Highway N.C. 43 south of Greenville.

Charged with breaking and entering and larceny in the robbery of the store were Willie Bryant and John Henry Taylor. The pair is being held in Pitt County jail pending trial during the November 29 term of court, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said today.

He noted that the two men have also been charged with breaking and entering and larceny in connection with a break-in in Edgecombe County. The men were alleged to have entered a store at the intersection of the Penny Hill road and N.C. 42 in that county.

They will be turned over to Edgecombe County authorities when they have been tried for the Pitt County robbery, Tyson said.

The break-in was investigated by members of the Pitt County sheriff's department and Clye Pentress, of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Colored News

Senior Choir of Selvia Chapel will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Lena Bradley for a called meeting.

The Ladies Social Sorority Club will meet Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Hattie Williams, 1302-A Mill St.

Saint Gabriel's Hall will be open this evening at 8 o'clock. Anyone who is interested in learning about Catholics and Confessions are most welcome. Can a priest forgive sin? If so, does not this change the Bible to suit Catholic teaching? Does the priest tell others about our sins? Would he accept money from one who wants to learn about the hidden sins of his neighbors? These questions will be openly explained at Saint Gabriel's tonight. Why not bring a friend along?

All Odd Fellows of Greenville are requested to meet at the lodge tonight for special business.
