Claims Censure Step Initiated By Red Conspiracy

Jenner To Try Block Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jenner (R-Ind) said today he will ask the Senate to kill off censure charges against Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) but Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) predicted the move will fail.

Jenner, who told the Senate yesterday that "the strategy of censure was initiated by the Communist conspiracy," said he had discussed his plan with other members and "the idea has a generally good reception."

Jenner's proposed motion would shut off debate and bring a vote on the parliamentary question of tabling, and thus killing, a censure resolution recommended by a special six-man committee.

Ferguson said in a separate interview in advance of today's resumption of debate he believes most members want to meet the issue squarely, and not in such indirect fashion.

Ferguson, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said he hasn't made up his mind how he will vote on censure.

McCarthy, saying "I still believe I will be censured," told newsmen he hopes the matter can be decided promptly.

He read a newspaper yesterday while one of the members of the special censure committee, Sen. Ervin ((D-NC) accused him of "besmirching" his colleagues.

Ervin told the Senate that while he won't urge it, he believes McCarthy is subject to expulsion for his comment that the committee served as "the unwitting handmaiden" of the Communist party.

"Foul and fantastic charges," he said if McCarthy's remark. He said if McCarthy made the statement while not believening it, he was guilty of "moral incapacity," and that if he did believe it, he was guilty of "mental incapacity."

McCarthy commented to newsmen:

"If I had said that about him (Ervin), I would be censured for it."

McCarthy said a switch in position yesterday by Sen. Case (R-SD) "is a very important development and may change the picture."

Breaking away from his colleagues on the committee headed by Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), Case announced he will vote against rebuking McCarthy on grounds he abused Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker.

Case did not discuss in his statement the first of two counts—that McCarthy treated with contempt an elections subcommittee which looked into his finances in 1951-52. Case previously said McCarthy could purge himself on this charge by apologizing to those involved. McCarthy has said he won't retract.

Other members of the Watkins group stood behind their charges.

Case said he changed his mind about the Zwicker count because of "positive evidence" that the Army staff let Maj. Irving Peress "slip out of their grasp" although they knew McCarthy had demanded a court-martial for Peress.

Peress, an Army dentist, had invoked the Fifth Amendment against possible self-incrimination when he was questioned by McCarthy's Senate Invetigations subcommittee about alleged Communist connections. McCarthy wrote Secretary of the Army Stevens Feb. 1 asking for a court-martial for Peress. The next day Peress was given an honorable discharge at Camp Kilmer, N.J., then commanded by Zwicker.

Knowland Is Told Policy Statements 'Dangerous Talk'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) said today Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) engaged in "dangerous talk" yesterday when he told the Senate "ultimate Communist victory" would result from "coexistence and atomic stalemate."

Two other members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—Senators H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) and Sparkman (D-Ala)—said they were puzzled over the point Knowland was trying to make. Knowland is the Senate Republican leader.

Fulbright said it was "dangerous talk" to suggest that the United States could see no possibility of working out a peaceful solution of pressing world problems. He cautioned that this country could lose the cold war "by losing the allegiance of India and other nations through our emphasis on military power." He urged "a lot less talk and a lot more responsibility" in the foreign and military policy fields.

Knowland called for a congressional inquiry into "our foreign and defense policy to find out where ... it will take us and whether this clear and present danger which appears to me to exist is such that a basic change in the direction of our policy is warranted."

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the Senate Democratic leader, approved the idea of a policy review and he said: "I'm afraid today that we are weaker than we should be."

Knowland agreed with some Democratic senators that the United States should be able to negotiate with the Russians "from a position of strength," but he said he could not concede their arguments that the armed forces had been weakened by administration cuts in the defense budget.

Nonetheless, his speech — the first at this special Senate session to deal with a matter not related to the censure charges against Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis)—appeared to place the GOP Senate leader at odds with President Eisenhower on U.S. policy toward Russia.

Eisenhower told a news conference last June the hope of the world lies in peaceful coexistence with Russia and other Communist nations. But he stressed he would "not be a party to any treaty that makes anybody a slave."

Knowland said Russia is deliberately pushing the concept of "peaceful coexistence" for "the purpose of gaining sufficient time to accomplish what we may term 'atomic stalemate'." He said the Soviet target date for reaching this objective probably is between 1957 and 1960.

By then, he said, Russia will be in position to start "operation Nibbling, wherein they will seek to take over the peripheral nations bite by bite."

Smith said he was "convined" the Eisenhower administration "knows exactly what is going on and makes all the reappraisals necessary of our foreign and military policies."

He said he would not object to a congressional review of adminis. tration policy early in January, adding that it "might throw a little light on our situation." A White House briefing on foreign affairs for congressional leaders of both parties is scheduled for tomorrow.

Sparkman said in a separate interview he wished he had Knowland's answer to this question. "What is the alternative to coexistence?"

The only answer he can think of, Sparkman said, is "the inevitability of war." But he noted Knowland asserted he was not advocating preventive war against Russia. Fulbright said it would be "disastrous" to create an impression that this country favors such a war.

City Council Awards $48,000 Worth Of Contracts

Street Contracts Let

Greenville's City Council last night awarded contracts for approximately $48,000 worth of curb, gutter and paving on streets in various residential sections of the city.

Officials expressed the belief that the contracts let last night were for what is probably the largest street improvement project undertaken by the city other than street projects financed through bond issues.

Clark Construction Company of Greenville was awarded the contract for approximately 22,000 feet of curb and guttering at a price of $1.45 per foot, and White Construction Company of Greenville was awarded the paving contract for approximaitely 13,000 square yards of paving. The pavihg contract award was made as an extension of an existing contract at a price of 79 cents per square yard.

"We are going to make every effort to get the paving done this fall," City Manager James S. Hughes said this morning. He added, however, there is a possibility all the paving work will not be completed until next spring.

Petitioners Pay Share

Property owners along the streets on which the work is being done will bear approximately one-half the total cost of the work while the city government will foot the bill for the remainder of the work.

It was reported at the Council meeting last night that property owners who signed petitions for the paving work already have paid the city in cash $20,387 on the projects, and more checks were being received from property owners today. Signers of the petitions for the work are required to pay the city in cash for their proportionate share of the work while property owners who did not sign the petitions repay the city their proportional share of the cost over a five-year period.

$90,000 This Year

The awarding of the contracts for this new street work brought to approximately $90,000 the contracts let by the city for street work during 1954.

In addition to the curb and gutter and paving work called for in the contracts, there is also a provision for the paving of a sidewalk on Elm Street from Tenth Street to the Brookgreen school. Hughes said the sidewalk has been earmarked as the first item to be completed in the project.

The City Manager added that curb and gutter work will be done first on streets which are also to be paved.

Streets In The Project

The contracts awarded last night called for curb and gutter on all the streets in the Hillsdale section within the city limits. The Council had previously decided it would not be feasible to pave the streets in the Hillsdale section at the present time because of extensive utilities work done on the street in recent months. Also slated for curb and gutter only is two blocks of Vance Street between Ward and Third streets.

Curb, gutter and paving work is to be done on the following streets:

Sixth Street, Oak Street to Forest Circle; Spruce Street, Manhattan Ave. to Paris Ave.; Nash Street Third to Colonial; Hickory Street, Fourth to Fifth; Davis Street, Third to Colonial; Ione Street, West Dickinson Ave. to May Street.

Paving only is to be done on Twelfth Street, Evans to Washington, and Ridgeway Street is to be curbed, guttered and widened from Dickinson Ave. to Factory Street.

U.S. Offers Material For Atomic Reactors

Gift Of Fission Material

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Western diplomats today hailed the dramatic U.S. offer of 220 pounds of fissionable material for atomic reactors around the world as the biggest step forward since President Eisenhower first broached his atoms-for-peace plan.

Delegates viewed the unprecedented offer, which would virtually double the number of reactors this side of the Iron Curtain, as a momentous step toward placing atomic discoveries at the service of man.

U.S. Chief Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. made the announcement last night to the U.N.'s 60-nation Political Committee, which is debating the Eisenhower proposal.

Informed sources said the fissionable material offered—estimated to be enough to make at least one atomic bomb—would provide enough fuel to run 30 or 40 new reactors. France's atomic spokesman, Jules Moch, said there now are 32 reactors in existence outside Russia and her satellite nations.

Lodge had announced Nov. 5 that the United States stood ready to conclude bilateral agreements with other nations to furnish fissionable materials for atomic reactors. But few delegates here thought Washington would act so quickly.

In a terse aside to Russia's Andrei Vishinsky who had charged that the United States had "narrowed down" the scope of Eisenhower's original plan Lodge voiced hope that the U.S. offer would "once and for all remove from the mind of all any confusion as to how specific the United States atoms-for-peace proposition really is."

U.S. sources indicated the fissionable materials would be earmarked by the proposed international atomic agency to participating nations for building reactors for peaceful purposes.

The United States and six other Western atomic powers have sponsored a resolution designed to set up an international atomic agency along the lines of an autonomous specialized U.N. agency.

The Russians have submitted a series of still-secret amendments to the resolution. Reliable sources say the Soviet changes would place the proposed agency under the U.N. Security Council, in which the Russians wield a veto, and would give Red China a say in the negotiations on the agency. The West already has made it clear it will accept no such conditions.

Warns Of More 'Security' Steps

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said today that if the Western Powers try to carry out the Paris agreement on West German rearmament, the Soviet Union and its allies "will examine further necessary measures to ensure their own defense and security."

The broadcast quoted the Communist party newspapr Pravda as saying: "The U.S.S.R. cannot reconcile itself to the rearming of Western Germany."

The English-language broadcast, beamed to North America, was devoted to a Pravda article signed "Observer." It said it was a mistake to suppose that the Soviet Union, which recently proposed a 26-nation meeting on European collective security, "can be put off" until the agreements on West Germany are ratified.

The Western Big Three already have decided not to take part in any such meeting while West Germany is still outside the Western defense camp. American, British and French officials met at the Foreign Office here yesterday to begin drafting their joint replies to the Soviet proposal.

The East German government news agency ADN announced last night that Communist Czechoslovakia has accepted the Kremlin suggestion for a conference Nov. 29. The Prague regime was the first of the 25 states invited to approve the idea. Presumably the other Soviet satellites will follow suit quickly.

Merchants Adopt Election Change

Greenville Merchant Association's Board of Directors voted unanimously last night to adopt four recommendations from the Legislative Committee regarding the election of Directors for 1955.

The major change will be in the new Directors' terms of office, which will be staggered. Directors have been serving for the same period of time.

The Legislative Committee, headed by H. L. Hodges Jr., recommended next year five of the fifteen Directors be elected for three years, five for two years, and five for one year, with five new Directors being elected for three year terms each year thereafter.

According to the committee, this suggestion was made so a few new members might be elected to the Board each year, to be better educated in the work of the Association. The immediate past president of the organization will also serve on the Board.

Ballots will be mailed to the entire membership for voting as usual, with the method of tallying recommended by the Legislative Committee providing the five men receiving the largest number of votes to be elected for three years, the five receiving the next largest number of votes to serve two-year terms, and the five obtaining the next highest number of votes to serve for one year.

The recommendations also provided when a member goes off the Board of Directors he cannot be re-elected for a period of one year.

The secretary was instructed to mail ballots to the entire membership during the latter part of December.

Airliner Flies Los Angeles-Copenhagen Trip

Polar Skyway Route Open

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, (AP)—The first scheduled commercial airline flight over the lonely wastes of the arctic was completed today when a Scandinavian Airlines System plane landed here four minutes less than 24 hours after it left Los Angeles.

Another SAS Super Cloudmaster meanwhile was speeding westward from Copenhagen to Los Angeles to complete the route in the opposite direction. It carried a top-level load of passengers, including three Scandinavian prime ministers and a Danish prince.

The trail-blazing 5,800-mile flight to Copenhagen was made by the airliner Royal Viking. It left Los Angeles at 12:22 a.m. (3:22 a.m., EST) yesterday and landed here today at 9:18 a.m. (3:18 a.m., EST).

The flight brought Denmark and Southern California only sunrises apart by air.

Prince Knud of Denmark and other Danish dignitaries were on hand to welcome the 32 passengers and crew of 10 aboard the Royal Viking when it landed here.

Lt. Gov. Harold J. Powers of California was the first to leave the plane. He was followed by actor Jean Hersholt, the only Danish-born passenger; movie star Walter Pidgeon, who was greeted with the question "How is Marilyn Monroe?"; and Los Angeles' Mayor Norris Poulson, who held up a large sign "Los Angeles City Limits."

They and the other passengers, including two dozen newsmen, were welcomed to Denmark by Per M. Bakke, SAS executive vice president, who termed the flight "an historical event in the endless struggle of humanity toward progress and development."

The westbound flight is due in Los Angeles later today. It is flying the reverse of the Royal Viking's route, with stops in Winnipeg, Man., and Greenland. Aboard are Prince Axel of Denmark, Prime Miniters Hans Hedtoft of Denmark, Oscar Torp of Norway and Tage Erlander of Sweden, SAS Chairman Per M. Hansson, SAS President Per A. Norlin, and Scandinavian newsmen.

The Royal Viking made the first leg of its run, the 1,634 miles from Los Angeles to Winnipeg, in 5 hours and 43 minutes. Then it skipped 1,984 miles over the bleak Canada northlands and Hudson Bay to Greenland in 7 hours and 34 minutes.

The last and longest leg of the flight — the 2,162 miles from Greenland to Copenhagen — took 7 hours and 22 minutes.

The entire flight was remarkably smooth, possibly because it was made mostly at an altitude of 17,000 feet or more, safely above possible storms.

Recreation Commission Backs Follow-Up Use In Park

Permanent Parade Units

The Recreation Commission last night placed its approval on a plan by Recreation Director Warren Carroll to construct permanent units for the Christmas parade this year which can be dismounted and used at Elm Street Park for the remainder of the Christmas season.

Carroll said he had talked the matter over with the Merchants' Association who sponsor the parade and made arrangements with a group of local artists, some high school students and members of the Industrial Arts department at the college to assist in the construction of the type units he had recommended.

Under the plan, Carroll said, civic organizations would be asked to construct units to be carried in the Christmas parade on trucks or other vehicles. The scenes would be dismounted from the trucks following the parade and installed at Elm Street Park to form a "Christmas Lane".

One of the units suggested by Carroll was a North Pole with a mail box for sending letters to Santa.

Community Service

He said he also planned to ask the Ministerial Association for a community Christmas service to be held at the park on the Sunday before Christmas.

"The things we are planning will be permanent, Carroll declared. "It can be used this year. It can be used next year. It can be used until it is worn out."

Most of the units should last about five years, he noted.

Carroll stated that local artists are now making sketches of the type Christmas scenes to be used in the parade and Christmas lane.

He said the same plan has been tried in other cities in the past and has proved highly successful.

Halloween Dance Successful

Mrs. Carrie West reported that the teen-age Halloween dance "certainly was a success." She estimated that between 90 and 100 teen-agers attended the Saturday night dance at the recreation building.

Carroll reported that entertainment was provided for all age groups during the day and night.

Recreation member John Bizzelle told the group that the Halloween party held at South Greenville School was "very successful" despite cold weather that night. A dance was held on the paved tenn courts at South Greenville School that night. Temporary lights were installed for the party.

Chairs and Tables Donated

Carroll told the group that 36 new folding chairs had arrived for the Elm Street Recreation Building and a dozen card tables have been ordered but have not arrived. He said the equipment had been donated to the Recreation Commission by the Service League.

In addition he reported, the Junior Woman's Club had presented an aluminum punch bowl to the commission.

The recreation director said the Greenville Garden Club is placing shrubbery at Elm Street Park. He said that the club is asking for shrubbery donations from local citizens. Shrubbery given to the club will be set out at the park.

He also told the commission members that a Thanksgiving football game to determine the champion among the four local midget teams will be played Thanksgiving Day. A similar playoff is planned

Auto Collision Fatal To Seven

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Two automobiles collided at high speed on a highway near here early today and killed seven persons.

Two were seriously injured.

Highway Patrolman R. B. Leonard said a car driven by Sgt. Eugene F. Holder, 24, of Ft. Bragg collided with one driven by William Carlie Johnson, 33, of Rt. 2, Lillington and killed Holder and six of eight passengers in the Johnson car.

"Both cars seem to have been traveling at high speed and the car driven by Holder, judging from tire marks on the pavement, seems to have swerved into the path of Johnson's car," said the patrolman.

He listed the dead as Holder, Johnson, Talmadge E. Jones, 39, Norma Phillips, 51, Johnny Johnson, 4, Mrs. Rene Poole Johnson, 30, and Reta 7.

The wreck was at the crest of a hill on the highway between Lillington and Ft. Bragg. Four soldiers were killed last March at the same hill in a wreck of two cars.

Coroner Grover C. Henderson said indications were that Holder was driving on the left side of the highway. The coroner said no inquest would be held.

The Johnsons, all of whom lived at Dunn, were returning from Rockingham where they had visited relatives.

Lionel Barrymore Dies After Coma

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Grumpy, warm-hearted Lionel Barrymore, who had no stomach for the theater but was long one of the most illustrious of actors, died last night. He was 76.

Stricken at home Sunday night while recording the "Tomorrow and Tomorrow and Tomorrow" soliloquy from Shakespeare's "Macbeth," the senior member of acting's "Royal Family" had been in a coma 19 hours at Valley Hospital.

A complication of ailments included arthritis, which, after two hip fractures, had forced him to use a wheel chair and crutches the past 17 years. Dr. John Paul Ewing said heart congestion was the immediate cause of death.

Only Ethel Barrymore, a year younger, survives Lionel in the famed family of stage and screen. Their brother John died in 1942.

Radio fans remember Lionel's portrayals for years as "Mayor of the Town," as narrator of the Sunday night Hall of Fame and his annual Christmas enactment of Dickens' crusty "Scrooge." His last movie was "Lone Star," in 1951, with Clark Gable and Ava Gardner.

Dore Schary, head of MGM, the studio where Barrymore has been under contract, said his death "is a loss to the entire world of the theater. He was a great actor and a wonderful man."

But of his own talents Lionel said:

"I have managed to get along all these years through a series of undeserved promotions and by fraud."

This was in a book, "We Barrymores," as told to Cameron Shipp, in which the senior Barrymore observed also:

"I was born with a conviction, to which I still hold, that anything resembling work is a nauseating spectacle."

The Barrymore-Drew clan to which be belonged had first appeared on the stage in 1752. Lionel was born in Philadelphia to the celebrated theatrical team of Maurice and Georgia Drew Barrymore.

He made his debut on the New York stage at 15 in "The Rivals," in which his grandmother, Mrs. John Drew, played Mrs. Malaprop.

"I stunk," he opined afterward, and he recalled that his grandmother sent him a note telling him regretfully he was "somewhat inadequate" and was no longer needed in the cast. Later she told him to continue on the stage.

He said in later years he had "no stomach" for the stage but became an actor because it seemed the easiest way to earn a living.

He studied art in Paris, returned and worked as an illustrator, and acted in silent movies in New York. His brother John lured him back to the stage in 1916 in "Peter Ibbetson."

Lionel became a star with his appearance in "The Copperhead."

He joined Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to star in "The Barrier" in 1921. He won an Academy Award for his performance in "A Free Soul," with Norma Shearer, in 1931.

Senate Campaign Costs Ran Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Less than $1,000 was spent by the Republican and Democratic candidates in North Carolina's U.S. Senate race Nov. 2.

The winner, Democrat W. Kerr Scott reported yesterday he spent only $50 in the campaign. He said he received no contributions.

Scott's opponent, Paul C. West of Raleigh, said $300 was contributed to his campaign and he spent $508.40.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin of Morganton, who had no opposition from the Republicans, reported he spent $100, all of it in traveling expenses.

Refuse Retrial For Wm. Heirens

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois Supreme Court has refused to reconsider its denial of a new trial for William C. Heirens, 26, slayer of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan and two women in Chicago.

Heirens is serving three life sentences for the mutilation killings of the Degnan girl; Miss Florence Brown, 33, a former Wave; and Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43, a widow.

The court yesterday gave no reason for rejecting Heirens' plea for a new trial.

Predict Building Boom Will Go On

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Construction will keep right on booming in 1955, rising to a new record outlay of 39½ billion dollars, the Commerce and Labor departments predict.

This would be 2½ billion dollars or 7 per cent above the record construction which the government says is in prospect for this year.

The forecast was based on assumptions that construction costs will not rise next year, and that "the general level of economic activity will remain relatively stable'

Three Killed As Trolley, Truck Crash Together

CHICAGO (AP)—The motorman and two passengers in a streetcar were killed and 35 other persons were injured, several seriously, in a collision yesterday of a trolley and a semitrailer truck at a South Side street intersection.

Police said the truck driver, Ernest Taylor, 46, was charged with drunken driving, reckless homicide and driving on the wrong side of the street.

Witnesses said the northbound truck, loaded with pianos, hit a concrete safety island. The trailer jackknifed across the path of the southbound trolley at 61st Street and Western Avenue. Some 50 passengers were in the street car.

The dead were Gusto Carlson, 64, a motorman for 38 years; James K. Ziegler, 46, a bus driver; and Arthur Duffin, 72.

Bent Over, In Front Of Goat

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—It happened when Mrs. Iola Heckman, 49, bent over to pick up a stake. Her goat was tethered at the other end.

Result: one hip fracture. Hospital attendants said Mrs. Heckman's condition was good.

Merchants Plan Santa Parade Here On Dec. 3

December 3 has been set as the date for the annual Santa Claus and Children's Parade sponsored by the Greenville Merchants Association, with the Christmas street lights to be turned on that night.

Chairman of the parade committee J.L. Harris has reported if present plans are carried out Greenville will experience something new this year in the way of a city-wide celebration of the Yuletide season.

Plans this year, according to Harris, include asking various civic, church and school organizations to place a float in the parade, with the Christmas scene constructed so it may be removed from the truck or trailer and placed at the Elm Street Park until after Christmas. The scenes, pertaining either to Santa Claus or the Christmas Story, will be lighted, forming a Christmas Lane "for the enjoyment of the entire community," Harris stated. "Our desire this year is to make Greenville a community Christmas city," he declared.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Merchants Association last night Harris reported progress is being made on the parade plans, while chairman of the Christmas decorations Charles A. White reported on the funds which have been received for decorating the streets.

Harris said the various organizations of the city have been requested to send representatives to meet with Recreation Director Warren Carroll Thursday night at 8 o'clock at Elm Street Park to discuss the planning of floats. Harris revealed Carroll will have ketches and will assist each group in planning its float.

The Recreation Director has reported the scenes can be preserved and used again next year, and he hopes additional scenes will be added each year, making this Christmas Lane program an annual event.

Consensus Seems To Be North Carolina's Desegregation Brief Makes A Good Case

By LYNN NISBET

RALEIGH — Consensus among capitol square observers and those from other sections with whom it has been possible to talk is that the brief filed by North Carolina's attorney general's department makes out a good case for the Supreme Court of the United States to postpone effective date of any mandatory decree for the abolition of segregation in public schools.

There are three distinct groupings of sentiment with respect to segregation. A small minority of North Carolinians apparently and sincerely believe segregation should be abolished forthwith, and all schools, churches and other public places opened without semblance of distinction to all races. Another and larger group with equal sincerity believes that the traditional policy of segregation of races should be maintained, regardless of costs and even at the expense of bloodshed.

Preponderant majority of the people with whom your reporter has discussed the matter concur in the ideas expressed in the brief filed with the Supreme Court by the Attorney General and his staff, that integration is inevitable in the long run and that North Carolina can effectuate the idea without material disburbance of friendly relations among the races if given reasonable time to work out the problem along established lines and without compulsory orders from outsiders who do not know anything about local conditions.

The brief emphasizes what most informed North Carolinians have known for years, that this State occupies a sort of middle position between the extremes, and that North Carolina has gone farther and faster in conforming to previous court requirements for separate but equal facilities for the races in educational opportunities.

The facts and the arguments included in the brief would seem to justify the conclusion that children of all races in North Carolina would be better served by continuing the segregation policy. The text of the brief conceties that exemption of North Carolina, or any other area, from a national application policy cannot be expected. So the appeal is for time to permit orderly change-over from long established policy, into which the State has put multiplied millions of dollars to effectuate the "separate but equal" edict of previous court decisions (which actually has operated to advantage for the minority groups).

The brief and accompanying exhibits clearly show that in ratio of population, tax payments and other factors the Negroes in North Carolina have obtained better services under the segregation policy than they can expect under integration. That is particularly true if the change-over must be made immediately and because of effective orders from outside.

Major emphasis in the brief is on the point that a court decree which would be equitable and fair in some other State might well operate to the distinct detriment of the interests of all parties in North Carolina.

The whole thing boils down to the argument that North Carolina wants and expects to comply with the spirit of the non-segregation policy enunciated by the Supreme Court decision last May, but that too fast application of enforcement decrees will result in hardships to all parties, with the minority groups which are sought to be protected as the major victims.

Petition Drive Said Picking Up

NEW YORK (AP)—The headquarters of a move to collect 10 million signatures in support of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) says it was swamped with visitors and phone calls yesterday.

"The thing is catching on like wildfire," commented Rear Adm. John G. Crommelin (ret.), chief organizer of the drive for signatures on a pro-McCarthy petition. He said 26,000 copies of the petition, each with space for 50 names, were distributed during the day from his two-room headquarters in the Hotel Roosevelt.

Crommelin said the Organization, called "Ten Million Americans Mobilizing for Justice," hopes to get more space and better telephone facilities soon.

The organization announced Sunday it hoped to find 10 million signers for its petition within 10 days. The petition urges the U.S. Senate to reject censure charges against McCarthy.

No Misfortune For Two Weeks

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Things are looking up for the family of Kenneth R. Little — nothing bad has happened for the past two weeks.

If you think you have troubles, consider the misfortunes which have hit the Lansing bank teller recently.

On July 15, acting as pallbearer at the funeral of his uncle, Little felt something snap in his back. Driving home, he tried to stop his car and found he couldn't move his legs. He spent three weeks paralyzed in a Flint hospital.

After he returned home, his wife Shirley drove their car into a tree. Their 5-month-old daughter was killed. Mrs. Little suffered torn shoulder ligaments and her teeth were knocked out.

In September, fire burned a barn on a neighbor's farm where Little stored his tractor. The tractor had to be rebuilt.

Oct. 27, attending a relative's birthday party at St. Johns, Little got word his home had burned down.

But some nice things have occurred to compensate.

Merchants, near Little's home, contributed $160.

A contractor has offered to rebuild his house foundation free.

Debate Topic Is Not For Cadets

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Defense Department says cadets of the U.S. Military Academy and midshipmen of the Naval Academy are not permitted to participate in college debates on whether the United States should recognize Red China.

The department said the question "is a controversial subject and one concerning which national policy has been established."

The Defense Department policy became known after a West Point team withdrew from a scheduled debate with the Newark Colleges of Rutgers University. The Princeton University debate panel protested the ban.

ECC Plans Winter Quarter Course In 'CPA Problems' For Accountants

In its adult education program for 1954-1955, East Carolina College is offering for the winter quarter a course for accountants which promises to be of interest to a large number of people in the eastern section of the state.

"CPA Problems" has been planned, Director Elmer R. Browning of the business education department states, to meet the needs of practicing accountants who plan to take examinations qualifying them as certified public accountants.

Class periods will be scheduled for the evening hours so as to make the course available to all who wish to take it, Dr. Browning has announced. An organizational meeting is set for Wednesday, December 1, at 7 p.m. in Room 114 of the Flanagan building at the college. At this time the days and hours of class meetings will be determined.

Those completing the course, entitled Business Education 412, will receive three quarter hours of college credit. The course may also be taken on a non-credit basis, Dr. Browning says. In addition to the organizational meeting, ten three-hour sessions will be held.

John C. Parker of Farmville, CPA and member of the business education faculty, will be instructor in the course.

Harriman And Company Need Watching

New York's governor-elect Averell Harriman isn't going to halt the industrial move to the Southern States in spite of his boasts, but he may prove a thorn in the side of Southern states before his efforts to stop the industrial migration is over.

The Responsibility Should Be Clearly Defined

It is too early yet to guess the outcome of the alleged cutting of state timber in the sprawling Angola Pocosin, but we are fairly certain of one thing. We don't think the state Wildlife Service should be made the whipping boy or one of the whipping boys if it turns out that timber has been cut on state property.

The Angola Pocosin matter should be cleared up by the state as rapidly as possible; and if state timber has been cut, the individuals responsible for the cutting should be made to pay the state for its loss.

Early reports of the alleged cutting of timber on state property in the pocosin were somewhat vague as to whether the State Board of Education or the Wildlife Service is responsible for the timber in the Angola Pocosin area owned by the state.

Information we have been able to secure on the matter indicates the Wildlife Service is only responsible for wildlife in the Angola area, and has nothing to do with the timber on the land. Timber rights and supervision thereof, as we understand it, have never been in the hands of the Wildlife Service. Initial reports on the matter may have left the impression that the Wildlife Service shares the responsibility for the timber on the state-owned land involved, and if that is the case – and our information is correct – the misleading impression should be corrected.

There are many overlapping functions and fine lines of jurisdiction among the multiplicity of agencies of the state. When a matter such as the one over the Angola Pocosin timber arises, the responsibility should be immediately pinpointed in order that one agency will not have to take the blame or responsibility for something over which it has no jurisdiction.

Industry is and has been moving South because of the growing Southern markets for products, good transportation, moderate climates which make for more workdays per year and a less expensive type of plant construction, the vast labor pool in the South, the absence of labor troubles compared with northern industrial areas, the natural resources of the South, and a dozen other sound business reasons.

Gov. Harriman can not change any of those factors. The Southern states offer industry many advantages they no longer have in northern industrial areas, and many advantages the northern states have never been able to offer industry. What Harriman probably will do is try through a coalition of Yankee politicians to force through Congress some types of legislation pointed at discriminating against the Southern States who are making a big dent in the north's industrial empire.

Harriman already has proposed a higher federal minimum wage law which he asserts would eliminate what he called "unfair competition" for industry from Southern states. He has announced he plans to hold conferences with Democratic governors of five Northern states to formulate plans for federal legislation on matters of their mutual interest.

This move indicatees to us that Harriman and his left-wing cohorts of the Democratic party are planning to use the Democratic party organization to force through Congress legislation which would be unfavorable to the Solid Democratic South so far as the attraction of new industry is concerned.

Is the South, which has always been the backbone of Democratic party strength, going to allow these left wing party members to use the Democratic party machinery to effect legislation which would seriously impair the South's industrial development? Are Harriman and his group going to try to use the national party machinery to get legislation favorable to their own individual states and detrimental to other real Democratic states?

The South had best keep a sharp eye on Harriman and company lest the group succeed in usurping the Democratic party power for their own purposes.

Strength for the Day

KEEP GOING

Some time ago it was necessary for me to go to a shop run by a very old man. He had been a skillful artificer in his day and he still is, although life has almost gone out of him. He has allowed his shop to become dusty and disarranged. One thing struck me as being particularly significant and symbolic—the place was full of clocks but not a single clock was running.

On the other hand, I live in a community where some of the most amazing elderly men in this country reside. The chief of these, of course, is Dr. Einstein, who only a few years ago evolved a mathematical formula to end all formulas. But there are other elderly men here who produce a book a year. I am personally acquainted with two elderly men nearly 90 who are writing articles in their fields which by every criterion must be given the highest possible rating.

Not only in this village, but all over the country there are elderly men who are doing remarkable things and there are others sitting dejectedly in a little room in which all the clocks have stopped.

The human brain is a marvelous mechanism. If we only understood it, men at 90 could be doing as good or better work than many of the middle-aged leaders of our country are doing today.

Don't give in to old age. There is no reason why you should.

ELGIN (ILL.) COURIER-NEWS says:

Congressmen's pay should be raised from $15,000 to at least $20,000, says the United States Civil Service Commission. This recommendation is an indirect way of achieving the Commission's real purpose, which is to raise salaries for civil service employees generally. Congress is naturally loath to vote salaries higher than they themselves get. If congressmen were paid more, they would be less apt to oppose increase for others.

Generally speaking, federal salaries do not compare with the schedules in private business. Heretofore, they have been kept down by the voters' unwillingness to permit salaries which many of them have no prospect of attaining. Now it is widely understood that if we want an efficient government we will have to pay for it.

Business Today

Indoor Sport Begins

By ELMER ROESSNER

Turning leaves and early morning frost always herald one of business' favorite seasons—the indoor sport of forecasting.

Armed with double-barreled, repeating press agents and camouflaged with a screen of economic analysts, executives figuratively sally forth to see if they can bring down a prediction or two.

It is generally agreed that the turn of the year provides the best hunting, though there is no closed season.

All of which leads us to Dun & Bradstreet, an early riser that was first to our desk with a game sack satisfyingly full of freshly-bagged forecasts.

The concern queried 1309 business executives, comprising a random cross section of the nation's larger and medium-size manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, on the outlook for the first quarter of 1955. The results were mildly optimistic.

Higher net sales were predicted by 56 per cent; lower sales by 13 per cent; no change by 31 per cent. Profits did not fare as well, percentagewise: higher, 43; lower, 12; no change, 45.

The reason for less faith in higher profits was indicated by the third question. Seventh-six per cent forecast no change in selling prices. Increase-minded and decrease-minded squared away at 12 per cent each. The creeping rise in the cost of doing business without a compensating price rise puts the squeeze on earnings—unless there is a really big or general rise in sales, which is not anticipated.

The level of inventories, an important economic indicator, fared no better. Twenty-four per cent saw a rise, 23 a drop and the balance no change. Fourteen per cent looked forward to a rise in number of employees, 79 per cent no change and the result a decline.

One encouraging fact revealed by the survey was that the increases, declines and no changes were relatively constant through the three groups.

A rise in sales was forecast by 60 per cent of the manufacturers, 52 per cent of the wholesalers and 54 per cent of the retailers. A rise in net profits, in the same orders, were 47, 41 and 39 per cent. A drop in selling prices: 11, 14 and 11 per cent.

Thus, activity in all three groups apparently will be stable in relation to each other. A significant balance.

The frustrating thing about the survey is that there is no analysis of who forecast which way and by how much. If most of the big concerns, instead of the middle-size ones, felt a sales and profits rise was due in the first quarter, it would indicate a boom. Vice versa, it would indicate some drop. If those executives predicing a rise saw a 50 per cent increase while the negatives saw a 5 per cent decline, things would appear good. The other way around, the picture would be less happy.

But that's all part of the game. The more "outs" a predicter provides, the safer he is.

If inclined to dabble in this very popular sport, be comforted by the fact that last year's forecasts were quickly forgotten.

Good hunting.

ADVERTISING VOLUME STEADY IN SEPTEMBER

National advertising in September continued at the same level as the previous month but was up 3 per cent over September of last year, the Printers' Ink index shows.

For the year to September 30, advertising dollar volume was up 7 per cent with all categories sharing in the rise but women's magazines, farm magazines and network radio.

Network radio was off 13 per cent in 1954 for the biggest drop, while network television was the best gainer with an increase of 42 per cent.

PHONE NUMBER DRAWS SALES

A Buffalo appliance dealer used his own phone number to spark a sale. The number, 5110, (belonged to Weinheimer's Appliances) and was billed as the customers' lucky number in a refrigerator and range promotion.

In addition to a trade-in allowance of $69 on a refrigerator, the phone number was turned into $51.10, doubled and then substracted from the regular price. On an electric range, the $51.10 was added to a $33 trade-in allowed in figuring the price.

Result: A good crowd, sales of eight to 10 of the items and a general improvement in the day's business.

Somebody Told Me

Cold Feet Are Explainable

Naturally it kills a story to tell the incident and leave out the names. But this particular one is about my neighbors and I think to keep our relationship on the up and up it might be better to leave them out in this case.

Several days ago Wife Rachel and I were in a discussion with this couple and the subject of cold feet came up. It seems that women have colder feet and inevitably put them on their husbands at night in order to warm 'em up.

This particular husband was annoyed by this practice. So one night he bolted out of bed, stuck his feet under the cold water in the bath tub, dried them off, jumped back in bed and stuck his icy feet on his wife. She yepped and says that she felt like leaving him.

What are the real facts about cold feet? For the answer I called the doctor. One of the joys about writing this column is that it gives you an excuse to call up people and ask them foolish questions.

The answers were of extreme interest. In the first place, there is no scientific reason to support the fact that a woman's feet should be colder than a man's. In fact, women are less subject to hardened arteries and therefore have a better chance to have warm feet in old age.

Of course the shoes and stockings figure largely into this subject. After having their feet exposed all day to inadequate cover, the girls have a lot of cold to overcome.

The doctor said a great deal of the explanation lies in the fact that women are more prone to talk about their cold feet than men are. Can you imagine a grown man admitting that he has cold feet? It simply isn't masculine.

But in the confidence of their doctors, many men do admit that they have trouble with cold feet. Actually, the man who stuck his under the water later had warmer feet than before his wife iced them. The water improves circulation. While on the discussion I wanted to find out if the water should be hot or cold. So many people have given me this story about a cold shower to make you warm.

Actually, a warm shower would improve the circulation quicker than a cold one. The cold water restricts the pores but causes the blood to rush to the cold area. The warm water opens the pores and also brings the blood for warmth.

And I thank you.

AGE ALSO HAS ITS DAY

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Seldom in history have so many old men occupied the national and international stage—and with such distinction.

The last general election seemed to reaffirm the fact that no man is too old for office until the voters say so.

Take the case of Alben W. Barkley, who will be 77 on November 24. When he returns to the Senate by virtue of his considerable achievement in defeating Republican Senator John Sherman Cooper, it will be a resumption of duty which, except for the past two years, has been uninterrupted since 1913—a long time ago.

"The Veep" made no effort to avoid the issue of age in the election. Instead, he made it a point of virtue by arguing that he's a "darn good man at 76," full of experience and political wisdom, to say nothing of vim and vigor. Mr. Barkley attributes his long and continuing success to a good choice of parents and lack of inner tension.

Lack of inner tension seems to characterize other aged leader in this and other lands.

Theodore Francis Green, Democrat, was elected in Rhode Island to a fourth, six-year Senate term the other day. He has been in and out of public life since 1907. He is now 87 years old, having been born just after the end of the Civil War.

Another elder statesman reelected is Matthew M. Neely, West Virginia Democrat. He is past 80. He's been in public life since 1908.

Senator James E. Murray of Montana is another veteran who was re-elected on November 2. Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, at 67 is hardly more than a "kid" among these oldsters.

On the House side, Rep. Daniel A. Reed, New York Republican, at 78 is as erect as the football coach he once was at Cornell. Ditto for Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, who at 73, has been elected to his 22nd term along with Carl Vinson, 71 of Georgia, who boasts an equal tenure. Other elderly House members include Representatives Howard Smith, 72; Clarence Cannon, 74; John Taber, 76.

Not all members of Congress are elderly, of course. The average age is and will probably continue to be in the middle 50s.

The continued activity of Bernard Baruch and Herbert Hoover who, although past 80, still contribute so much to the nation is proof that age need not be a crpipler. Overseas, 80-year-old Winston Churchill is going strong as Britain's Prime Minister. West German Chancellor Conrad Adenauer, about the same age, is revitalizing his nation and has become one of the recognized world leaders.

All this in a way, proves that perhaps we should reconsider some of our clearly outmoded ideas about the compulsory retirement of people in good health at the age of 65 despite their experience, wisdom and wishes to the contrary.

Why Don't Women Live Longer?

(By RELMAN MORIN)

(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—I see by the papers where a British scientist has been making comparative studies of men and women, and now has arrived at a conclusion.

He finds the ladies superior in most ways.

They live longer, he says, and have more vitality. They are less sensitive to cold. They have more courage and a greater emotional range. Linked with this latter point the professor said, women are more dangerous than men when aroused, and more prone to mayhem, battery and assault.

Well, it is good to have all these facts certified to by science itself, although they are not exactly new nor worth a flash. Most of us suspected the situation.

However, I was unable to find any comparative data in the areas of intelligence, ingenuity, imagination or creative ability. If the professor's research covered these items, he seems not to have written any findings — possibly for reasons of personal safety.

Could it be that women are deficient in these fields?

For example, there is no great woman composer of music. Offhand, I can't recall a single name in that art.

Same with painting. Unless you like cows and horses, and therefore are a fan for Rosa Bonheur, the feminine batting average in this field is pretty low.

As for literature, there are some fair-to-middling women writers, but none who can play in the same league with Ernest Hemingway or any of the other top-flight male writers. In fact, lady authors seldom produce "creative" literature. What they tend to produce is simply idealized reporting.

That is, they write about themselves, their families, themselves, babies, theselves, the other woman, themselves, etc. . . .

Nor have they done much in the theater, compared with the great dramatists. This is surprising, too, when you think of it, because the average woman has a fine talent for histrionics and high drama when she wants a new kitchen or a trip to Honolulu.

We will brush over the field of original thought, and simply say there are no great feminine philosophers.

Presumably, the ladies should finish one-two-three in the cooking and culinary departments. But the fact is that the great chefs are all men and the truly noble sauces and recipes were created by men. Seems to indicate again, that women have no creativeness and are not good at original thinking.

Moreover, getting back to the professor, it is not so surprising that women live longer.

The answer may lie in the fact that the average housewife doesn't have to overexert herself in the pursuance of her daily chores.

She will make it sound like a man-killing job, but this is largely sales talk. The soap operas, I'm told, are still getting along fine and the "vacuum cleaner audience" runs into the millions. Of course, afternoon bridge can be very wearing sometimes. But when a woman sighs, "What a day I've had," it is usually designed to soften up Papa for cold cuts and canned beans.

Yes, sir, professor, it's a wonder women don't live forever.

No Longer Merely A Skirmish

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The New Deal-Fair Deal public power advocates' fight against the Dixon-Yates TVA-AEC deal, it now develops, represents their last stand for expansion of the Federal hydroelectric empire rather than a mere skirmish over a questionable contract. It marks a basic struggle between the interventionists in business and industry and the private enterprise bloc.

Behind all the financial and engineering technicalities of the document now in dispute on Capitol Hill lies the Eisenhower Administration's desire to limit Federal development of power. Ike's politico-economic adsisers believe, as the Supreme Court has frequently said, that if Washington can create and sell electricity, it can likewise enter the field of making shoes or any other commodity.

In a famous decision involving California litigation on this subject, the late Justice Robert H. Jackson delivered an obiter dictum in which he urged that the New Dealers invoke the "general welfare" rather than the "interstate commerce" clause of the Constitution to justify expansion of the government's activity and authority in almost any field.

BLOW AT DEMOCRATIC PHILOSOPHY—In proposing that the Dixon-Yates interests instead of TVA supply needed juice in the Tennessee Valley, the Eisenhower Administration challenges this theory and this Jacksonian interpretation. Thus, if successful in the current controversy, Ike will strike a serious blow, at least temporarily, at the Roosevelt-Truman-Ickes philosophy of "Let Uncle Sam do it."

The TVA-AEC transaction assumes even greater importance to the public power school as a result of their more comprehensive study of the recent election returns. They have been deeply disappointed by a detailed survey of the votes in Richard L. Neuberger's defeat of Senator Guy Cordon of Oregon, who has handled the Eisenhower power program in the Senate.

OREGON'S NEUBERGER—For many years, Neuberger has been the unpaid but recognized publicist for public power on a national scale, writing for the most popular as well as the so-called intellectual magazines. He and his wife rode into the State Legislature on this and other conservation issues. He was a law student of Senator Wayne Morse, who daily denounces Eisenhower policies in this field as "the greatest giveaway since Teapot Dome."

Thus, the Neuberger victory over Senator Cordon was hailed as a distinct advance, and as evidence that the voters in this historically Republican state opposed Ike's private enterprise program. But their post-election canvass dismays them, and also casts the Dixon-Yates question in an entirely new light.

It now appears that the power issue was not a decisive factor in the public power publicists' victory, to wit:

PUBLIC UTILITY DISTRICTS—Oregon is studded with Public Utility Districts, which are local and miniature TVA's. Based on bond issues authorized by the voters, they may buy generating plants and transmission lines to service counties or groups of counties. They are the light infantry of the public power brigade.

But Oregon showed surprising and unprecedented hostility toward P.U.D.'s on November 2. In North Lincoln County, a proposal to expand was defeated by a 1586-401 vote, marking the fifth defeat for the project since 1939. Yet Neuberger won over Cordon here by 29 votes.

In Willamook County, the ballot carried a $2,700,000 bond issue for extension of P.U.D. lines and eventual condemnation of a private company's property. It was beaten by 3,694 to 2,533, although Cordon carried the county by only 181 votes.

In Union County, a proposed $4,500,000 bond issue was defeated so many times that the discouraged P.U.D. directors, on November 2, asked the voters if they wanted to dissolve the district. They did, by a two-to-one decision.

A BAD BLOW—The worst blow of all, perhaps, came in the Second Congressional District. Al Ullman, who heads the Hells Canyon Development Association, made public power almost the sole issue. He lost out to Representative Sam Coon by 4,300 votes. Government construction of a high dam at Hells Canyon, as against the Idaho Power Company's proposed three dams, has become an obsession with the pro bono public group.

It is this factual, ballot-box deflation of their dreams which transforms the Dixon-Yates affair from a contractual matter into the power battle of the century.

Disappointment Over Slow, Meager Hurricane Relief

By LYNN NISBET

HURRICANES — As estimates of aggregate and residual damages and losses occasioned by Hurricane Hazel mount, the individuals and communities affected are becoming concerned about the relative lack of available relief. Also about the delay in assurance that the meager aid promised will be forthcoming in time to be of full value to the beneficiaries. There is widespread feeling among storm victims in southeastern North Carolina that they are being further victimized by slowness in cutting governmental red tape.

Rumors are current that other State governments and Governors are doing much more and more quickly to relieve situations in their areas. Undoubtedly some of these rumors exaggerate the differences, but there seems documentary support for the belief that South Carolina, Maryland and Massachusetts (to mention only three of the hurricane ravaged States) have responded to pleas for aid more adequately than has North Carolina.

The illness and death of the late Governor Umstead is largely responsible for this situation. That comes under the head of further "act of God" for which no person or agency can be held culpable. It does none-the-less add to the problems facing the North Carolina sufferers.

Immediately after the storm passed over and although Governor Umstead was then in a hospital bed, the Governor's office and the Civil Defense organization moved quickly. A hastily called meeting of the Council of State allotted $100,000 of State funds and President Eisenhower responded promptly to the first appeal with allocation of $550,000 of Federal funds. Even before that the National Guard and the highway patrol had been mobilized, and the Red Cross has moved in for immediate aid. Since then most of the activity has consisted in unraveling red tape.

LIMITATIONS — Even after several liberalizing revisions of original interpretations of the purposes for which Federal aid funds might be used, it is still found that both the amount and the extent of application are inadequate to afford the relief needed. The inadequacy is emphasized by the rumors of what other States are doing. Official information is not at hand for most of the States, but Jack Farrell, executive secretary of the South Eastern North Carolina Beach Association (SENCBA), has a letter from Col. John J. Maginnis, director of civil defense for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which makes him see red when he compares activities there with what is being done for his own area.

CONTRAST — Hurricane Hazel did not do much damage in Massachusetts, but her elder evil sisters, Carol and Edna, did plenty. Dollar-wise the damage by Carol and Edna in the New England State might have exceeded losses from Hazel in North Carolina. In terms of human tragedy the impact was not as great. Contrasted with the original $650,000 of State and Federal relief aid for North Carolina, Massachusetts had $14.5 million—$12 million State and $2.5 million Federal.

Col. Maginnis responded to inquiries from Farrell with this information:

"Following Hurricane Carol, his Excellency Christian A. Herter, Governor of Massachusetts, asked the Legislature to appropriate twelve million dollars for hurricane relief purposes. This was done and these State funds are available to reimburse cities and towns for such expenses as cost of debris clearance, emergency repairs to public property, temporary restoration of essential public services and similar emergency expenditures made necessary by the hurricane. . . In addition the Governor requested the President to declare the area affected by the hurricane a major disaster area and to allocate Federal funds for disaster relief purposes. The President did so, and thus far has allocated one and half million dollars for Hurricane Carol and one million for Hurricane Edna."

COMPARATIVE — Nobody, not even the worst damaged victim or the most extreme radical, expects North Carolina to appropriate $12 million dollars of non-existent money for storm relief. It is doubted that many of them think the Federal government ought to allocate $2.5 million, although considering the much larger area affected and probable overall greater dollar loss in North Carolina than in Massachusetts, such Federal allocation would not be out of line.

At the same time, it is impossible to explain to victims of the hurricane and difficult to make unaffected up-staters understand the discrepancy between

Old Rule Changes

Right turns on the red light at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets become a thing of the past yesterday when workmen from the street department removed the "Turn Right on Red" sign which was mounted by the stop light facing west on Fourth Street. Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs said the right turns on the red signal are being abolished because of the large number of students who cross at the intersection. He declared that the signs "are being taken down from the pedestrain safety standpoint." (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Buildings Cover Up Scars Of War

LONDON (AP) — A construction program, spurred by recent lifting of government restrictions promises to fill the bombed-out gaps which still mar the heart of London.

Fine modern buildings, including a few baby skyscrapers will go up in the empty spaces.

About one third of the City of London, a square-mile financial center, was devastated by German bombs. The city planning office estimates that one fifth to one fourth of the area, including buildings and streets, has been returned to normal use. This leaves a number of stark "bomb site" areas.

After the war, building materials were funneled into housing and into factories and other construction which directly aided Britain's economic recovery. Only recently, after prodding by business interests and newspapers, the Churchill government scrapped its building licensing controls and put the matter back into hands of local planning authorities.

Plans for London's tallest office block, with 27 stories, were recently announced.

Ohio State Assumes Top Spot In Grid Poll As Unbeaten UCLA Idle Saturday

The Associated Press

Trouble with sitting one out is that some folks might get the idea you're a wallflower. That's what happened to the unbeaten Bruins of UCLA in the Associated Press college football poll this week as the unbeaten Buckeyes of Ohio State took over the No. 1 spot by a sevenpoint count.

UCLA held first place last week with an overpowering vote total, but was idle last Saturday while Ohio State, edging closer to the Big Ten title and the Rose Bowl, mauled Purdue 28-6.

The Bruins, with an 8-0 record identical to that of the Bucks, still managed to edge Ohio State in first place votes, 92-87, but on the usual basis of 10 points for first, 9 for second, etc., OSU polled 2,010 points to UCLA's 2,003.

All of which means this Saturday's contests probably will decide the running battle between Ohio State and UCLA — each having held the No. 1 position twice this season.

Both teams complete their regular season schedules — UCLA against Southern California in a game that could give the Bruins the Pacific Coast Conference championship, and Ohio State against Michigan, with the Bucks needing at least a tie to win the Big Ten crown and the Rose Bowl trip outright.

Oklahoma the only other major unbeaten team (also 8-0), wound up in third place for the third straight week after beating Missouri. But Notre Dame picked as the preseason champion, moved up a notch to fourth after whipping North Carolina. The Irish replaced Arkansas, which was knocked down to ninth after losing its first game of the season to Southern Methodist.

Army, once-beaten like Notre Dame, also moved up one to fifth. Mississippi rose to sixth. Navy and Southern Cal were deadlocked at seventh.

Minnesota jumped from 13th to 10th after defeating Iowa. The Hawkeyes, ninth a week ago, settled at No. 19.

The leading teams with first-place votes in parentheses:

1.	Ohio State (87)	2,010
2.	UCLA (92)	2,003
3.	Oklahoma (28)	1,761
4.	Notre Dame (2)	1,222
5.	Army (7-1)	1,167
6.	Mississippi (7)	671
7.	Navy (tie)	670
	Southern Cal	670
9.	Arkansas (5)	533
10.	Minnesota	271
	(Second 10):
11.	Southern Methodist	270
12.	Michigan	244
13.	Maryland	151
14.	West Virginia	101
15.	Virginia Tech	81

Didn't Want To Play On Sunday

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—A smiling Alvin Dark last night told a church meeting that the New York Giants took the World Series in four games "so we wouldn't have to play on Sunday."

As a youngster playing football, the major league baseball star also related, he believed "you had to pray to win.

"But if you had 11 good Christians on one side and 11 good Christians on the other, what would you do?

"I decided to pray that nobody would get hurt and let God take care of the one who wins," Dark said.

ACC Meeting To Be Held Dec. 10

GREENSBORO (AP)—The Atlantic Coast Conference will hold its annual meeting Dec. 10-11 at Sedgefield Inn here, Commissioner Jim Weaver announced yesterday.

Members voted by mail to hold the meeting the second weekend in December instead of the first, the usual date, because of a conflict with the University of South Carolina's final football game with The Citadel Dec. 4.

A proposed extension of the Orange Bowl contract and the formation of an official booking office are among the business matters to be discussed.

Selvy And Pettit Lead Pro Cagers

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Selvy of Baltimore and Bob Pettit of Milwaukee, the two gents who were one-two among major college scorers last season, have taken over the same stand this week in the National Basketball Assn.

Selvy, the Bullet rookie who revised the college record book with his scoring sprees at Furman, still is top man in the duo, pacing the NBA with 200 points in nine games. Pettit, the former Louisiana State star in his first year with the Hawks, is again the runnerup, but he shares that position with Vern Mikkelsen of Minneapolis. Both have scored 146 points in eight games.

G-Men Chalked Up Good Record

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Winning their last three games impressively, Coach Bill Kittrell's Greenville Phantoms wound up their 1954 football season as one of the best teams in the eastern part of the state.

The Phantoms had a big edge over their opponents in just about every phase of play. The final statistics on the G-men show that they outscored their opponents 144 to 46.

The Green Phantoms averaged 175.7 yards rushing per game and 46.3 yards passing per game. Their opponents averaged 111.7 and 40.2 in these same departments. Whereas the G-men completed 47 per cent of their passes their foes could complete only 34 per cent of their aerials.

Jerry Drum was the individual passing leader for the Greenies with 24 completions in 37 attempts for 321 yards. Bob Howell hit 7 of 21 passes for 92 yards.

James Speight led the G-men in several phases. Speight led in scoring with 67 points. Bob Howell tallied 18, Billy Sermons 12, Pat Sawyer 10, and Ike Riddick 7 to lead the Greenies. Five others scored a single touchdown.

Speight also led the team in rushing with 755 yards in 96 carries for an average of 7.7 per carry. Sermons averaged 5.1 per carry and Mitchell Johnson 4.9 and Bob Howell 4.5 trailed him.

Pat Sawyer punted 31 times during the year for an average of 32.8 on his kicks.

With a 6-2-1 record the Greenville footballers can now sit back and relax after giving their fans three months of victorious football. That is some of them can, many of them started hitting the basketball court yesterday where Coach Bo Farley has started rounding his boys in shape.

Ovation For Coach After Harsh Speech

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Members of the Towncats, downtown booster club for the University of Arizona football team, remained silent today after Head Coach Warren Woodson told them off at their weekly luncheon yesterday.

Woodson told the businessmen to mind their own business and quit interfering with his team.

"You may not like it," he said, "but you are going to hear the truth. Let's see if you can take it.

"I think you have killed our quarterbacks here in Tucson."

The coach went into details and at the end of his blistering talk members of the organization gave him a standing ovation that lasted for several minutes. They took it.

Enlarging on the subject of quarterbacks and the criticisms that have been made in the past relative to the way they handled the team during games, Woodson said:

"I know you have crucified Bleakley (quarterback Barry Bleakley) right here. You've torn him to pieces. He knows how you feel about him. He doesn't think he has a friend.

"This upsets the quarterbacks and the team . . . This sort of propaganda hurts us.'

"Give us a chance to organize," Woodson said, "instead of causing disorganization.

"I know more about football than anyone here, and Im smarter about football than you. Stay out of my business so I can do better.

"I don't tell you how to run your business. I don't interfere with you. I ask that you give us the privilege of coaching our quarterbacks. You have them in such a condition they are afraid they are going to make a mistake almost every time they call a play."

Grifton Shares In Doubleheader

GRIFTON — Walstonburg High and Grifton split a basketball doubleheader here last night, Grifton winning the boys game 60-48 and Walstonburg taking the girls encounter 52-49.

The Grifton defense couldn't cope with the fancy accuracy of Walston' burg's Kraft and the tall forward dumped in 31 points. Gay and Walston contributed 17 and 4 points respectively to the winners' cause. Peggy Grifton and Dawn Smith had 24 and 23 points apiece for the losers.

The Grifton girls led down to the final minutes. Walstonburg got its lead when several of the Grifton guards left the game via the foul route. Grifton led 30-26 at the half but Walstonburg came back strong scoring 26 points in the final half to Grifton's 19.

The Grifton boys evened things up with a win in the nightcap. Worth Kraft hit for 27 points to lead the scoring for Grifton. Ronald McGlohon was second high with 17 points. Walston had 27 points for the losers.

Grifton led all the way with Walstonburg making its biggest threat in the third period. While Grifton chalked up 13 points in the third frame, Walstonburg scored 17 points. Grifton got its biggest advantage in the first quarter, 16-5.

Expand Stadium At Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Arnold Johnston today stepped up his giant-sized task of readying a major league baseball club and stadium for the new Kansas City Athletics by season opening next April.

Heavy construction equipment moved into old Blues Stadium. The remodeling is being handled by a company organized specifically to handle this one rush-order job.

Johnson, who only last week acquired the Athletics from the Connie Mack family, yesterday named Parke Caroll, general manager of the Kansas City Blues since 1951, as a vice president and business manager of the club for three years.

"We hope to have our field manager selected by tomorrow," Johnson said.

Speculation here is that the skipper will be Lou Boudreau, recently fired as manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Johnson would neither confirm nor deny it.

"Several men are under consideration," he said. "No, Eddie Joost isn't out of the picture." Joost managed the A's at Philadelphia last season.

Meet Claude King, 6-1, 190-pound fulback from Wilmington.

King put a sensational icing on his college grid career last Saturday night against Stetson by pounding out 108 yards rushing, scoring two touchdowns, and owning a 50.5 punting average for the evening.

The performance was typical of King, who Coach Jack Boone claims: "the most underrated player in the conference." The hard-running senior has provided the spark in every game in which he has appeared in this season. His power runs through the middle and halfback-like sweeps have singled him out as one of the best fullbacks in the state.

In seven games this season he rushed for 372 yards in 54 tries for a formidable 6.9 average. His booting is probably unsurpassed by any kicker in North Carolina. He toed the leather 26 times during the season for 1290 yards and a phenomenal 45.7 average. King scored five touchdowns and kicked eight extra-points in the course of the year. He missed three games because of injuries. He didn't play against West Chester, Catawba, or Lenoir Rhyne.

Last year King was neglected in the All-Conference and All-State selections and this oversight brought roars of disapproval from Buc followers. He finished the year well among the rushing leaders and his booting topped the league. The inattention given King last year should be compensated for this season, according to fans in this section of the country.

Whereas, last season it was the name Dick Cherry on which the sports experts centered their conversation, the subject of their gab this season was turned to King. He impressed scribes and scouts alike from Boone to Tampa, Fla. Not a flashy, hip-swilved runner, King relies on sheer power and a deceptive rate of speed. Once past the line of scrimmage, he turns it on like a halfback and hasn't been caught from behind this season.

He came to East Carolina in 1951 after having a brilliant four-year prep career at Wilmington's New Hanover High. He played three years of varsity ball there, two years at guard and one year at fulback. So impressive was his play in the backfield, he was selected All-Eastern AAA his senior year. He has lettered every year at East Carolina and has been one of the Pirates' true stalwarts for the past three years.

If you want to start an argument, come into the Pirates circulation area and start belittling King. Folks around these parts think a lot of him personally. He graduates in May with a B. S. degree in Physical Education.

Hit 'Jackpot' In Rockfish Catch

MANTEO, N.C. — Ulysses S. Midgett of Manteo became the rockfish champion of Dare coastal waters on Friday. From 9 o'clock in the morning until near sunset he trolled with one line from a small power boat and caught over 300 fish, all of them rock or striped bass as the off-islanders call them.

Midgett was fishing alone in the vicinity of Beacon No. 33 in Roanoke Sound which is one of the markers between Manteo's Shallowbag Bay (the local harbor) and Ballast Point, up the island away Just how many stripers became victims of his bucktails was not checked. He said that he quit counting after passing 300.

The fish were not wasted. "I gave away 10 messes and carried a 50 pound sack full home for my personal use," he said. "That did not include $23.20 worth that I sold at a local fish house."

Dean Jenkins Outlines Progress Of College At County Club Meet

Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College, speaking at an organizational meeting of county clubs among students Monday night of this week praised students for their loyalty to the college and outlined for them recent progress at the college and plans for future improvements in physical facilities and academic work.

Wade Cooper of Raleigh, president of the Student Government Association presided at the general assembly in the Austin auditorium. Students from various counties met in groups during the evening and organized approximatelt eighty county clubs.

"The loyalty of students at East Carolina has been effective in assuring the rapid growth of the college in size and prestige," Dr. Jenkins told the students as he commended the county clubs for their work in behalf of the college.

The excellent training of the faculty, the active support of citizens of the state and of members of the General Assembly, and the progressive leadership of President John D. Messick were cited also by Dr. Jenkins as factors in making East Carolina one of North Carolina's outstanding institutions of higher learning.

The college, he said, is rapidly expanding its physical facilities. Umstead Hall, dormitory for men, is now under construction; and a new dormitory for women will be begun in the near future. Both buildings, he stated, are scheduled for completion by fall 1955.

Other improvements in the college plant, he continued, include the renovation of the former library into a music building, which is also expected to be completed by next fall.

The entire Wright building will be used as a Student Union, he said as soon as the new music building is completed. The headquarters of the college Air Force ROTC will soon be transferred from the fourth floor of the Austin building to the first floor, where work anticipating the change is already in progress.

Other needs of the college which it is hoped will be met in the near future he cited as renovation of the fourth floor of the Flanagan building for use by the science department enlargement of the Administration building, and construction of an outdoor theatre.

Pointing to other evidence of progress at East Carolina, Dr. Jenkins stated that eight new positions on the faculty were created this school year because of increased enrollment, which now includes 2496 men and women taking courses on the campus. These new teachers include three in business education, two in English, and one each in science, health and physical education, and geography. A large number of additional teachers will be needed next year, he said.

A block of new courses in the humanities, he continued, has been approved and will be offered next fall. He also mentioned the fact that East Carolina is one of fifteen pilot centers in the United States which are now carrying on a project dealing with Religion and Teacher Education and sponsored by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

$14.5 million public aid for Massachusetts and $650,000 for North Carolina. In terms of Federal aid only the discrepancy between $2.5 million and $650,000 is hard to explain.

DIGGING OUT — Meantime there are conflicting reports from the southeastern North Carolina coastal area about the attitude of resort property owners. Most of them are digging out of the disaster with energy and courage and faith. A few seem hopelessly resigned to the belief there's no use to try for a comeback on their own.

Some time this week, exact date not yet determined, a delegation representing county and municipal governments, business and community organizations from the hurricane-ravaged area, will confer with Governor Hodges on ways and means to expand relief measures. The Governor has some first hand knowledge of conditions. Two days after the storm, while he was still Lieutenant Governor, he flew over most of the devasted territory and rode many miles for on-the-ground inspection of damages. It is recognized that there isn't a lot he can do, except possibly speed up relief activities, but the storm victims generally feel he will go to the limit of his ability to help them.

Proposes Death For Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Walter (D-Pa) takes to the House Democratic leadership today his proposal that the House Un-American Activities Committee be abolished and its functions transferred to another group.

Walter, who is in line to replace Rep. Velde (R-Ill) as chairman of the committee, told newsmen he would discuss with Rep. Rayburn D(Tex) his plan to shift to a House Judiciary subcommittee the work now done by the un-American activities group. Rayburn, now Democratic House leader, is due to resume the post of speaker when the Democrats organize the House in January.

"I think it is the most logical move we could make,' said Walter, who has been critical of some of the committee's operations in the past two years.

Walter has argued that a more effective investigation of communism and subversion could be carried on by a subcommittee responsible to the judiciary group, which deals with legislation in the security field.

He indicated he would push his idea only if assured of both Democratic and Republican support. A vote of the House would be necessary to change the committee's status.

Helpful Women Interfere With Child's Routine

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., (AP)—Five-year-old Norman Cohen makes a 14-mile interstate trip home from school alone each day. The only trouble is well-meaning women disrupt the routine, thinking he's lost.

Norman's mother says he "comes home very well by himself until they interfere." Just yesterday Norman was taken in tow by a woman while he was changing buses in downtown St. Louis.

She turned him over to police, thinking he was lost. It was the second time the same thing has happened recently.

Norman son of Rabbi and Mrs. Benjamin D. Cohen, attends the H. F. Epstein Hebrew Academy in Ladue, a St. Louis suburb across the Mississippi from his home. His dad takes him to school each morning but Norman makes the return trip by himself, including two bus transfers.

About 46,000 miles of road will be built in the United States in 1955.

Marines 'Embattled' On Onslow Beach Today

By ELTON FAY

ONSLOW BEACH, N.C. (AP)— A Marine force of 25,000 strong, deployed to fight with and against simulated atomic weapons, moved in from the high seas at dawn today to strike at an "enemy" holding a length of the Carolina coast here.

Wide dispersion and speed of movement predominated in the mock battle plans. The big fleet of hundreds of ships was scattered over hundreds of square miles as it approached the beachhead.

The landing craft and helicopters to put the Marine force ashore were assigned to leave transports much farther from the beach than in the amphibious attacks of World War II. To speed up the initial wave of assault, seaplanes were used, along with the helicopters, to put early elements of the attacking force ashore.

Two landing zones, each 1,000 yards long and separated by a 3,000-yard interval, were plotted. This also was with view to dispersion. The assumption was that tactical-size nuclear weapons (apparently of about 15-kiloton power) would be used in simulated form.

To clear the approaches for the landing force underwater demolition teams of "frogmen" stole into the beach area last night to attach explosive charges to beach obstructions of the "Orange" enemy.

Today's battle was built against a hypothetical background which assumed that the "Orange" invaders had attained a foothold last year near New Orleans then expanded their position north and eastward until they held territory as far north as Richmond, Va. The "Blue" force made today's strike to establish a foothold at the enemy's eastern flank.

Backing up the Marine landing force for the fifth phase of a widespread sea-air-land maneuver designated as "Lantflex" was a force of about 212 ships built around two carriers and powerful anti-submarine units.

Not Optimistic For Revised T-H

CINCINNATI, (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said at a news conference here yesterday that he is "not optimistic" about any major changes being made in the Taft-Hartley labor law in the next Congress.

Here to address the convention of the AFL United Brotherhood of Carpenters, he said his department would make certain recommendations about the Taft-Hartley law—which he declined to disclose—but he added he did not believe there would be any major changes.

VACATION FOR MOTHER

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP)—Every year, Dr. Earl J. Baker gives a free "dream vacation" to 25 lucky Michigan mothers at one of the city's plush resorts. Dr. Baker, a former philosophy professor, started the idea as a memorial to his own mother. Preference is given to widows and to women with large families. The 1954 group of 25 had 212 children between them.

The Inheritors

By JANE ABBOTT

If the three heirs to old Josh Trevitt's sizeable upstate New York farm remain on it for at least three months after his death, each will inherit one-third of the land. Those leaving sooner must relinquish their share or shares to those remaining, final resident to be awarded the entire farm. So when old Josh died, his kin were notified and copies of his will mailed them. In the late spring, we find Jennie Todd, an inheritor, a spinster, at the Trevitt place, making ready her quarters in the rambling old farmhouse, and being assisted by Wick Middleton, executor of the Trevitt estate.

CHAPTER EIGHT

It was after 4, so Wick did not stop at his office but drove on to his home. Though he had lived in it his 41 years, there was always a pleasantly satisfying feeling in turning into its driveway under the big maple trees, knowing the comfort that awaited him in the big, homely old house. His cousin Nettie was cooking supper.

Nettie had said, when she came after his mother had died 15 years ago: "I'll stay until you find yourself a wife, Wick." But he had not found anyone he wanted to marry. The town said it was because Nettie took too good care of him. His friends teased him about it. "Look at you! Ten pounds overweight!"

Nettie had friends in the town—sometimes he had heard it suggested that Jim Meese might be more than a friend but had laughed at it, for Jim was as set a bachelor as he was.

He always went into the house through the kitchen door. Nettie was in the kitchen. "You're home early Wick."

"Yes. I drove up to the Trevett farm. One of the nieces has come—drove in, while I was there, in Ed's taxi. Jennie Todd—the unmarried one."

"What'll that mean, Wick?"

"All it means is that she is in her wing of the house." He added: "Ahead of her right to be there."

The legality of it did not bother Nettie. "It's nice one of them came, the way Josh wanted them to!" Then she exclaimed: "My goodness, Wick! I forgot—there's a telegram come for you. Pete Morey brought it here when he couldn't find you at the office. I put it on your table in the sitting-room." She hurried to get it.

Wick read it. "My word! Another one's coming. . . ."

"Another what?"

"Another of Josh's heirs. The other niece."

He read the telegram aloud: "Arriving by motor with daughter late Thursday afternoon. Please reserve rooms with bath for us at best hotel, for such length of time as it will take to put my part of the Trevett homestead in liveable order. Please engage reliable woman to clean place and housekeeper for the summer. Hester Wilmer."

"Sounds like she may be a little uppity," commented Nettie.

Wick began to laugh. "Our best hotel! Wait 'till she sees the Buck House here."

Nettie said: "Wick, they can't go there! It isn't even clean! They'll have to come here."

"Here!" he looked at her in horror. "Are you crazy, Net? I've an idea this Hester Wilmer is a tough one to take."

Nettie shook her reprooving finger at him. "Now don't go jumping to conclusions about someone you've not laid an eye on! They can have the two front rooms. I won't mind a bit giving them meals. And I'll speak to Mrs. Dean tomorrow about the cleaning up there. She needs work."

Near noon the next day a thickset, sandy-haired man opened Wick's office door, came hesitantly into the room and asked: "You're the lawyer Middleton?"

Wick said: "Yes. And you are—Thomas Todd?" He barely made it a question, so certain was he that the third heir would appear.

"No. I'm Dan Dooley, friend of Tommy's. A good friend. Tommy couldn't come, so I come and brought Tommy's girl. She's down in my truck waiting. Thought I ought to speak to you before I drive her up to that place."

"Sit down Mr. Dooley. The will hasn't been probated. I sent a waiver to Thomas Todd to sign. I haven't had it returned to me. This girl cannot occupy those quarters up there until these technicalities are covered, the estate proportioned out. Then only if her father chooses to meet the provisions of Jehosophat Trevett's will. She, herself, has no claim on it."

Dan Dooley sat down on the edge of a chair, a puzzled concern on his face. "I don't know nothing about law but I thought what was Tommy's was Cindy's."

Wick was thinking he never had seen more honest eyes than this man's, fixed on him, asking something, asking it in desperation. He said: "Is there any reason why it was imperative that you bring the girl now?"

Dooley said: "The girl had to go somewheres—there was only this place to come to. Heard of it in the nick of time, it seemed. Or so Brigit said. We're Cindy's guardians, sort of, Brigit and me. Tommy brought her to us when she wasn't much more than a baby and we've reared her. She's a good girl, 19 now. Through school and graduated head of her class. . ."

He saw Dan swallow as if it were hard to say what he had to say. "Tommy's in trouble just now. It looks bad—this time."

"Under arrest?"

"Held, they call it. And the girl doesn't know. She would if she stayed with us there in Covington. The paper'd be full of it, for Covington was—well, you could say Tommy's head office. We've kept her from knowing all along what Tommy's business was."

"Gambling?" asked Wick.

Dan nodded. "Some. Horse racing. Numbers. But it's these here pin-ball machines now. They got up a syndicate—covers as far as the west coast. They got them, though in St. Louis. Someone started a big hullabaloo there. You see Tommy works under another name—Richard Cornelius. But it'll come out who he is and Cindy'll know."

Wick said: "Has she any funds, Dooley? She can get nothing from the estate as things are just now."

"I've brought the money she's been earning. I'll leave it with her. It'll keep her for some weeks. She's good at cooking."

Dan got to his feet. "I'll drive her up if you'll tell me the road to take. I figure to see her sort of settled before I start back. I'll sleep in the truck tonight—go at daybreak." Then he drew a big envelope from his pocket, slightly worn from long carrying. "Here's all this you sent to Tommy. I couldn't forward it to him, 'count of his going under another name, see? What you want me to do with it?"

"Take it back with you—get it to him when you can."

Dan Dooley held out his hand, and Wick shook it. He glanced at a small clock on his desk. "It's lunch-time, Dooley. Let me take you and—Cindy as my guests to a restaurant nearby. Then I'll drive up to the farm—show you the way."

"That's right kind of you, Mr. Middleton."

They went down the stairs together. Wick saw Dan's truck at the curb and the girl in it.

"Cindy, this is Mr. Middleton. He's asked us to eat with him before we go up to your place. Climb down!"

Cindy climbed nimbly down, held a small hand out to Wick. "Very glad to see you, Mr. Middleton! I'm awfully excited to be here. Starving, too!"

She ate heartily of the food Mrs. Plebby of the Midtown lunch parlor put on the table.

Outside of the restaurant Wick said to Dooley, "Miss Todd will need some provisions. There's a store down the block."

"We bought some stuff. It's in the truck."

"Well, we'll start off, then. My car's right here—I'll lead the way."

There was no sign of Miss Jennie Todd when he drove into the farm. Nor of Gary Norbeck.

"This is it," he said to Cindy and motioned to the back door of the kitchen wing. She was due for a let-down Wick thought, remembering Josh's limited quarters. Dan Dooley was following Cindy toward the door, a battered telescope bag in one hand, a filled brown paper bag in the other.

But Cindy, standing in the middle of the kitchen wing, looking around it, cried out, "Dan, isn't it cute? See the little stove?" She went to the stove, lifted a lid. "What do you burn in it, Mr. Middleton?"

"Wood," he said. "The pile's back of the house—plenty for the summer."

Cindy was not dismayed. "We cooked with wood at the YW camp."

Cindy went to old Josh's bed in the corner, thumped the mattress. "Any sheets and things?" asked Dan Dooley of Wick.

Wick had asked of himself the same thing when Cindy crossed over to the bed. Jim Meese had stripped it of its sheets, he knew, directly after old Josh died.

"Maybe in this big chest," cried Cindy going to the huge old chest. She opened a bottom drawer. "Yes, here are sheets and pillow cases."

Wick moved toward the door. "If there's nothing more I can do, Miss Cindy . . ." He held his hand out to her. "You know where my office is and where there is a grocery store."

"Yes. And thanks for the lunch, Mr. Middleton."

"It'd be nice if she had a dog with her here," suggested Dan.

"No, Dan! A cat! I'd love a cat!"

Wick heard himself saying, "I'll get you a cat, Miss Cindy."

Land Feform Has Met An Obstacle

MANILA (AP)—The Filipino tenant farmer has been handed what proponents call the most progressive land reform to be passed anywhere in Asia to meet the age-old hunger for land. The new law grants increased management rights to tenants and a better security of tenure. A tenant now can be evicted only by court action. All doubts are to be resolved in favor of the tenant.

Land tenure reform supplements the land for the landless program. Resettlement projects have been undertaken for landless on the big southern island of Mindanao. But many tenants on populous Luzon do not want to move south.

Honorary Title Is A Demotion

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Cornelius A. Brinkmann, state director of Civil Defense, has been made an honorary commodore in the Oklahoma Navy roughly equivalent to a Kentucky colonel.

Most people would consider this a promotion. However Brinkmann retired from the U.S. Navy in 1947, after 36 years service, with the flag rank of rear admiral — one notch above commodore.

U. S. Business Girding For Global Trade 'War'

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are heating up their war for world trade. Both industry and government are in on it, as competition gets sharper.

Many Americans complain bitterly that a resurgent Europe, built up with the aid of U.S. loans and grants, is pushing American businessmen out of some world markets.

Businessmen are seeking, and getting, government-backed underwriting of part of the risks of collecting payment for goods sold abroad. This is to meet European competition. Some other nations insure their businessmen's overseas trading.

Private banks here also are discussing a plan to join with federal agencies in providing credit to finance exports of capital goods.

More than 2,000 businessmen interested in importing, exporting, shipping or financing world trade are here today for a three-day meeting sponsored by the National Foreign Trade Council. They're discussing these and other problems facing Americans trying to do business abroad.

Other developments elsewhere:

The U.S. government once more — at the Geneva conference on the general agreement on tariffs and trade — is urging other nations to lower the barriers against American goods. It wants this done before lowering U.S. tariffs further.

Washington is also backing a plan for an international finance corporation to underwrite part of the risks of private investment in underdeveloped countries.

A week from now Americans will go to Rio de Janeiro for a 21-nation economic conference to discuss the currency and trade barriers that businessmen battle in the Western Hemisphere.

And in about seven weeks a new Congress will meet. Early in the session the President's plan for liberalization of American foreign trade probably will be laid before it and seems sure to touch off a big fight.

The rebound of European industry, while it has stiffened competition in world markets, also has produced prosperity among European consumers. And many American makers consumer goods have been selling their products there this year, thus moderating the effects of the recession here.

College Site Is Sold At Auction

BOYDTON, Va. (AP)—The campus and the original buildings of the first Randolph-Macon College, oldest Methodist college in America, have been sold to Mrs. Zadie Stuart Hundley for $19,273 at public auction.

Mrs. Hundley, who held a mortgage on the property, isn't sure what she will do with the 88½ acres and buildings. The site has not been used for college purposes for many years.

Chicod Ruritan Elects Officers

CHICOD — The Chicod Ruritan Club at its meeting last week, elected James H. Edwards president for 1955. Uran Cox was elected vice-president; G. K. Brunson, treasurer, and Grady G. Smith, treasurer.

Otis Stokes, Grover Smith and William Gardner were elected directors. Lee Willingham was elected chaplain, F. V. Gaskins, song leader, Jerome R. Worsley, reporter, and Norman Stanley sergeant-at-arms.

The club elected F. V. Gaskins and L. D. Stanley delegates to the Ruritan National convention to be held in Washington, D. C., January 22-24.

Fodie H. Hodges proposed that each member take a guest to the club's next supper meeting, and invite them to become Ruritans.

R. V. Turner, vocational agriculture teacher at Chicod High School, a guest of the club, will be inducted into membership at the next meeting.

The Women's Auxiliary of Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church served the supper.

'Tuck' In Heart Said Promising

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

ATLANTIC CITY N.J. (AP) — Taking a tuck inside the heart looks promising for overcoming one dangerous kind of heart trouble, three surgeons said today.

The tucking could narrow a heart valve which became too wide because of rheumatic fever, a big heart killer disease. The widened valve lets blood shoot backward into the heart instead of being sent through the body when the heart beats.

The tucking operation can narrow the valve ring to help the valve close tighter when the heart beats.

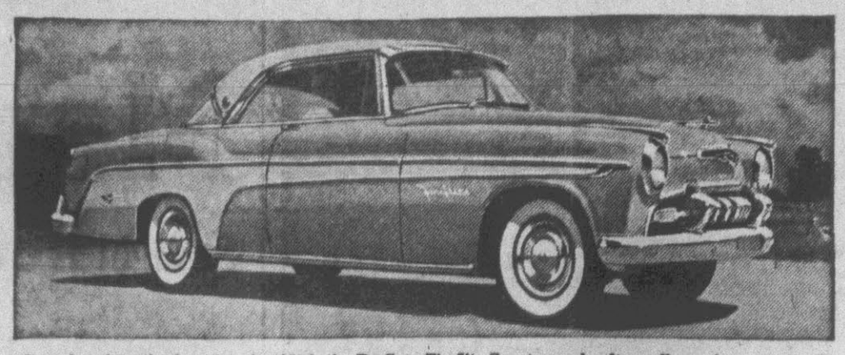

It is done by cutting away a wedge of the outer wall of the muscular wall of the heart, at the proper spot. When this opening is pulled together by sewing, the inner wall of the heart is crowded or gathered together, to create a tuck or pleat which faces inward and closes over part of the faulty valve.

The heart-tuck method was described to the American College of Surgeons, opening a week-long clinical session here, by Doctors Elliott S. Hurwitt, Paul W. Hoffert and Ruthven Ferreria of Montefiore Hospital, New York.

From successful tests on animals, the tucking method looks good for overcoming one kind of rheumatic heart valve trouble in humans, and is ready for trial in humans, Hurwitt said.

Parents Jailed For Murder And Beating

EBENSBURG, Pa. (AP)—The young parents of a family of five children were in jail today—the mother charged with murder in the rat poison death of a daughter and the father with assault and battery with intent to kill in the scalding and beating of a son.

Mrs Eileen Bell, 28, is held without bond pending Grand Jury action. Also awaiting Grand Jury action, and unable to post $10,000 bonds, is her husband, William, 26, a Korean War veteran. Both pleaded innocent.

The five children range from five weeks to 6½ years.

Stat Police Pvt. Matthew O'Brien said he entered the case last Wednesday night after a hospital reported the couple's 2-year-old daughter, Ruth Ann, had died of rat poison.

O'Brien said 3-year-old Robert Bell was being treated for serious scald wounds on his feet in the same hospital, reportedly suffered the day before his sister died.

The officer said Bell admitted holding the boy's feet in boiling water to chastise him for taking a piece of bread from the table and beating him while he hung from a door in a duffel bag.

Mrs. Bell was released after questioning but last night, O'Brien said she broke down and admitted putting rat poison on bread, giving it to Robert and telling him to hand it to his little sister because "she's hungry."

O'Brien added that Mrs. Bell told him "Ruth Ann cried all the time," was crippled and that neither she nor her husband believed the youngster would live very long. The officer said Mrs. Bell declared she acted on her own free will and her husband did not cooper ate with her in planning to poison the child.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) Electrical equipment, television and steel shares rallied in the stock market today, but much of the list presented a mixed appearance.

The market was irregular at the start and then began to sag a bit. When buying began in issues like General Electric Radio Corp. and Bethlehem Steel, however, most shares managed to move up from their lows.

Advances were around a point at the best, but Reynolds Metals and Climax Molybdenum added several points. Also higher were U.S. Steel, Douglas Aircraft, Zenith, Westinghouse, General Dynamics, Mission Development, Skelly Oil and Santa Fe.

Mixed groups included the motors, farm equipments, rails, utilities and coppers. Chemicals were mostly lower.

Trading was active. Yesterday, 3,080,000 shares changed hands in a mildly lower market.

General Tire was steady and Motor Products advanced after General Tire disclosed it is preparing an offer of preferred stock for Motor Products Common.

Believes Russia Has Few Secrets

ARCH COLEMAN

"There is little doubt this country has more information on Russia and its satellite countries than most citizens suppose," declares Arch F Coleman, a former secret service agent who will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Pitt County Executives Club Thursday night at 7 o'clock in the North dining hall at East Carolina College.

Now a busy public relations counselor from Southern Pines, Coleman has served with the United States secret service, his activities in that capacity carrying him to Mexico prior to World War II and to the Far East during the war. In the East he organized espionage and counter-espionage groups in Turkey, working out of Istanbul.

A graduate of the University of Minnesota who also spent two years at West Point, Coleman was one of the original cloak and dagger representatives of what became the OSS -- Office of Strategic Services.

An early experience with the United Fruit Company in Central America, and with an oil company, subsidiary of the New Jersey Standard, as well as acting sales representative for heavy machinery in Mexico, led to his employment with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and later with the secret service.

VOTES ON VOTE

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The City Council was tied 3 to 3 on the question, "Does the mayor have to vote if requested by a councilman?" Mayor Fred Emery cast the deciding vote—"yes." He then proceeded to vote on a zoning matter which had brought up the question.

Bench Molds

Carroll reported on two types of molds which would be used to make concrete benches for the city's parks. An aluminum mold would cost $193, he said, while a steel mold would cost $50. Benches could be made for around $5 apiece with the molds, he declared. The same type benches retail for $19.95. No action was taken on the matter by the commission.

Members voted to send a letter to the city council reminding them of the need of lifting the $30,000 ceiling from the city's recreation budget. The ceiling was set by the North Carolina General Assembly and the council must request that the General Assembly lift the ceiling.

Chairman Tyson Bilbro, who presided over last night's meeting, appointed City Manager James S. Hughes, A.C. Ruffin, and Mrs. Emily Johnson as members of the nominating committee to choose Recreation Commission officers for the coming year. Hughes is to serve as chairman of the committee.

The commission members voted to dispense with the December meeting of the Recreation Commission "provided there is no urgent business."

Doctor Describes Eye Bank Service

An eye bank for North Carolina is maintained at Winston-Salem, Dr. E.W. Larkin, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, told members of the Lions Club last night.

The doctor explained that those who desire can specify that their eyes be presented to the bank upon death and the eyes can be used to restore eyesight to others.

Larkin explained that a waiting list is maintained at the eye bank. He said the eyes must be used within 24 hours after death and when the bank receives word that an eye is to be received, they go down their waiting list in an effort to find someone who can undergo the operation immediately. The list is maintained on a first come, first served basis, Larkin said.

He told the group that the cornea is generally the portion of the eye used for such an operation.

Larkin pointed out that there is a great "need for eyes to be used in restoring sight to others."

He said forms for donating eyes are available.

The Winston-Salem eye bank is a part of a national chain of eye banks now being established the doctor declared.

Larkin also showed the group a film entitled "Eyes of Service" which explained the work of the eye banks.
