Further Censure Charges Fail To Worry McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McCarthy said today in response to a move to broaden the rebuke proposed for him that he hopes the Senate will promptly "go ahead and vote all the censure they want to."

Yesterday Sen. Bennett (R-Utah) announced that he will put before the Senate a new count based on McCarthy's attack on a special bipartisan committee that recommended an official rebuke for him.

Bennett's announcement followed an emotional appeal from the chairman of the special censure committee, Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), who asked his colleagues what they were going to do about McCarthy's statement that the Communist party had extended "its tentacles" into the Senate itself.

An indignant Watkins denounced as a "hit-and-run speech" McCarthy's accusation that the special committee had acted as a "unwilling handmaiden" of the Communist party in recommending censure.

"It was the Senate who called upon us to perform this duty," said the 67-year-old Watkins, a man spare in speech and manner.

"How can the Senate of the United States hold up its head among other free deliberative bodies of the world unless it does something about this matter?"

Sen. Bridges (R-NH), temporary president of the Senate, said in an interview Bennett, proposed additional charge will make it "a little more difficult" to try to work out a compromise.

McCarthy never delivered the speech to the Senate. He gave advance copies to newsmen and then had it printed in the Congressional Record the next day as a statement.

posed of three Republicans and three Democrats recommended unanimously that McCarthy be censured both for his treatment of Zwicker and for what it called his contemptuous conduct toward a Senate elections subcommittee that probed his finances in 1951-52.

One member Sen. Case (R-SD), has since announced he will not vote for censure on the count involving Zwicker.

McCarthy, after learning of the additional charge promised by Bennett, said "now they want to censure me because I am defending myself—that is getting so ridiculous it's beyond comprehension."

"I wish they would go ahead and vote all the censure they want to so I can go back to work," he added.

As the Senate met on the issue last week, McCarthy said the American people should recognize that the Communist party "has now extended its tentacles" to the U. S. Senate and that "it has made a committee of the senate its unwilling handmaiden."

He went on to say he would demonstrate that the Watkins committee had "done the work of the Communist party" and that, in writing its report recommending his censure, it had "imitated Communist methods."

McCarthy never delivered the speech to the Senate. He gave advance copies to newsmen and then had it printed in the Congressional Record the next day as a statement.

Accord By U. S. And S. Korea

Wrangling Ends; Way Cleared For $700 Million Economic Aid Program

SEOUL, (AP)—South Korea and the United States today settled their outstanding differences and cleared the way for a 700-million-dollar economic aid program.

U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs and Prime Minister Pyun Yung Tai signed the agreement, formally ending three months of wrangling.

The settlement sets forth a broad area of agreement on political, economic and military questions and reiterates the interest of the United States and South Korea in achieving common objectives.

The United States agreed to provide South Korea in the next fiscal year 250 million dollars worth of economic aid and 450 million dollars in military assistance. A reliable source said it would be America's largest single aid program for 1955.

South Korea agreed to:

- 1. Encourage private ownership of industrial projects.
2. Establish new procedures for converting dollars at "a realistic exchange rate" both for use by United States forces and assistance fund officials.
3. Make "efforts to balance its budget and to continue to resist inflation."

4. Procure aid supplies "wherever in non-Communist countries goods of the required quality can be obtained at the best price."

This presumably ends South Korea's bitter opposition to buying from Japan, which once occupied Korea.

Gen. John E. Hull, U. N. Far East Commander, and ROK Finance Minister Lee Joong Jae have agreed South Korea will accept repayment of hwan loans to the Allied Forces at rates set by the United States. The ROKs have insisted on repayment at 180 hwan to $1 which U. S. officials considered unrealistic.

The formal agreement says South Korea pledges "to cooperate with the United States in its efforts to unify Korea, including possible efforts through the United Nations." But this does not commit President Syngman Rhee's government to accept a plan without its specific approval.

South Korea also accepted "proposed levels and principles for a strengthened military establishment consistent with economic stability and within available resources."

Harmony Parley On Foreign Policy

By CHARLES F. BARRETT

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Eisenhower meets with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders today in the first critical test of post-election pledges of bipartisan cooperation in the new Democratic Congress.

Related foreign and military policy was the scheduled topic of the conference in the White House Cabinet Room. Secretary of State Dulles planned a briefing on worldwide developments since Congress adjourned last August. Secretary of Defense Wilson also was to participate.

The significant meeting was the first of its kind since the Nov. 2 elections when the Democrats recaptured control of Congress.

It was held against the backdrop of a controversial foreign policy speech by Republican Senate Leader Knowland of California and intermittent outbreaks of "hot war" between Chinese Communists and Nationalists around Formosa.

The New York Times said today that powerful Republicans would "look very coldly" upon any plan to bring the Democratic leaders into regular domestic legislative discussions with Eisenhower during the next Congress.

(A Washington dispatch to the Times said the GOP leaders expect intimate liaison between the new Democratic-controlled Congress and the Republican White House to be confined to high foreign and military policy.

The story quoted Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. (R-Mass.), as saying that to have the Democratic congressional leaders join the Republican chiefs in their customary weekly legislative talk with the President would "lead to the destruction of the whole principle of the two-party system."

Knowland two days ago called for a searching congressional review of administration foreign and defense policy to determine if "a basic change in the direction of our policy is warranted" in view of what he called "this clear and present danger." He lashed out at talk of "peaceful coexistence" with Russia, terming Soviet feelers in that direction a Trojan horse tactic aimed at winning time for Russian atomic armament and ultimate Communist victory.

Dulles told his news conference yesterday he believes Eisenhower's foreign policy adequately covers the present world situation and that he knows of no emergency requiring an extraordinary review.

As for the danger of what Knowland called "nibbling aggression," Dulles said the free nations, largely under American leadership, have strengthened themselves against Soviet pressures and that these measures on the whole have been quite successful.

And Eisenhower, speaking yesterday before a meeting here of land grant college presidents, pleaded for a better understanding between the peoples of the United States and Russia as the only sure way to a lasting peace. The White House also expressed support for Dulles.

Daughter Returned Home To Find Scene Of Death Child Finds Shotgun Victim

A nine-year-old girl returned home from school yesterday afternoon to find her father lying in the living room of their home dead of a shotgun wound.

The dead man, an apparent suicide, was listed by police as Oscar Roebuck, 59, of 313 West Second Street. He was found lying on the floor of the duplex apartment where he lived with his wife and young daughter, Carolyn.

Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse stated this morning that he was ruling suicide in the man's death. He declared that no inquest will be held.

Police stated that no suicide note was found at the scene. Roebuck was reported to have been in poor health recently and was said to have been unemployed at the time of his death.

Police Detective R. T. Rogerson, who investigated the death, said the man's daughter came home and found her father lying in a pool of blood.

"She told me that when she came in she saw her father lying on the floor in the blood around him," Rogerson stated. "She said she called "Daddy, Daddy" and he didn't answer."

The young girl told the detective she then ran to the Cascade Laundry on Dickinson Avenue where her mother is employed. The pair were brought back by a second employee of the laundry.

Shot Not Heard

Rogerson stated that he talked to occupants of the next-door apartment in the duplex house and they said no shot was heard during the afternoon. He also talked to other neighbors, the detective declared, and none heard the blast of the .12 gauge shotgun which was found by the dead man's side.

Coroner Rouse stated that when he arrived at the scene he found Roebuck's body lying partially on his right side on the floor in the middle of the living room. The coroner noted that the shotgun was located to the left of the body and a carnival-type walking cane was found to the right of Roebuck's body.

Rouse theorized that Roebuck sat on the floor, pressed the muzzle of the gun to his chest, and operated the trigger of the single-barreled gun with the walking cane.

The coroner declared that Roebuck caught the full load of the blast in his chest just above the heart. He said most of the number six .12 gauge shot penetrated deep into the dead man's body and a few of the shot actually passed entirely through his chest.

Time of Death Unknown

Both the coroner and the police department stated that the exact time of the man's death had not been established.

Authorities and the fire department rescue truck, which was also called to the scene, were called shortly after 3:30. Members of the rescue squad said the man had been dead for some time when the rescue truck arrived. Firemen made no attempt to move the body until police arrived.

Carolyn, who discovered the body, was the youngest of the three Roebuck children. The child's school books were found on a couch in the living room of the apartment where she apparently threw them upon discovery of her father's body.

In addition to the daughter, Roebuck is survived by his wife and two sons, one living in Greenville and the second in Bethel.

Polio Vaccine's Value To Be Known In Spring

RALEIGH (AP)—The answer to the effectiveness of the Salk polio vaccine will be known by next spring, possibly by April 1, volunteer March of Dimes workers from North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia were told yesterday.

Dr. Herbert T. Wagner, regional medical consultant for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said the March of Dimes must take a calculated risk, investing nine million dollars in production of the vaccine.

Should the vaccine prove an effective polio preventive, he said, "it would be unthinkable if we did not have it in sufficient quantity for use in the 1955 polio season."

He said investing the funds on the chance the vaccine will prove effective is a calculated risk "for the benefit of thousands of American children."

Dr. Wagner spoke to approximately 200 volunteer workers at a one-day meeting here. Joseph F. Nee of New York, national fund raising director, presided.

Edgar R. Fisher, March of Dimes campaign director for Swain County, received the 1954 North Carolina state chairman's award. State Chairman Palmer Laughridge Jr. of Salisbury presented the award, which recognized Swain as having the largest per capita increase in contributions—500 per cent—of any county in North Carolina.

Plans for the fund raising drive next January were discussed, as well as the foundation's year-round programs of patient care, research and education.

Dr. Wagner said a medical team at the University of Michigan is evaluating results of the mass inoculation of approximately 650,000 children with the Salk vaccine last spring. If the vaccine proves effective, he said, plans are to give it next year to all first grade children in the nation and to all pregnant women.

Airport Damage Topped $5,000

Damage at the local airport as the result of hurricane Hazel amounted to $5,093 according to official estimates received by the Airport Commission last night.

The Commission authorized P. S. West Construction Company to go ahead with repairs on the storage and shop hangars which suffered the major damage. The doors of these structures were blown in and the roofs torn off.

Repairs have already been made to the VFW club and the garage building which suffered roof damage. The lighting system, knocked out by the hurricane, has also been repaired, Willard T. Kyzer reported. He said this damage was "minor" compared to that received by the hangars.

The Commission also authorized the execution of a contract with Lawrence Tyson permitting him to crop the grass areas adjacent to the runway. The contract is to also provide that he keep the other grass areas mowed.

November 29 was set by the Commission for consideration of the renewal of the operating lease with Serve-Air Aviation Corporation of Kinston.

Censure Session Cost No Burden For Taxpayers

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate session called to consider censure of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) may be costing a lot in terms of frayed tempers and frazzled nerves but not much in dollars and cents as such things go.

Senators get no extra salary for it. Regardless of the time they put in in Washington they get the same annual amount — $12,500 salary and an expense fund of $2,500.

The biggest cost of the special session is earmarked for travel expenses. Senators get 20 cents a mile from home to Washington and back again when called here on official Senate business.

Total tab for travel is estimated by the Senate disbursing office at between $40,000 and $50,000.

Next costliest item would seem to be the printing bill for the Congressional Record. The daily record, which includes a transcript of everything said in Senate debate, costs $84 a page.

Since the Senate returned here Nov. 8, 199 pages have been added, plus 36 pages to the appendix.

At $84 a page, that totals $19,740, not counting yesterday's debate. The cost may reach to more than double that.

Labor expenses have not increased, Senate officials said. Most Senate employees such as official reporters of debates, doorkeepers, page boys and parliamentarians, are paid on an annual basis.

Nor is there any additional expense in keeping the Capitol heated or lighted. It's heated and lighted anyway.

As to other drains on the taxpayer, no specific amounts are available. But they would include the small expense of purchasing newspapers all over the nation for the use of Senators. And the expense, also minor, of pencils and pads of paper and special bottled water. And, of course, the snuff box in one corner of the Senate chamber must be kept filled.

Actually, no senatorial hand has been seen pinching snuff out of that box for 20 years or more.

Tarboro Plywood Plant Destroyed By Fire In Night

TARBORO, N.C. (AP)—The General Plywood Corp. plant here was destroyed by fire last night. No body was hurt.

Loss was estimated at $500,000 by George Alexander, Louisville, Ky., a director and former general manager. He was "sure" the plant would be rebuilt, when contacted by telephone at Louisville.

Three or four buildings were ablaze soon after the fire was reported at 11 p.m. Firemen were hampered because of weak water pressure.

The fire was centered first in the one-story main manufacturing building but spread quickly to the other, smaller buildings. The property is outside the city limits.

The corporation also owns plants at Georgetown, S. C. and Louisville.

Giant Bells Will Ring Out Again

READING, Pa. (AP)—The bells of St. John's Lutheran Church, silenced because their swaying weight had cracked the church's steeple, will ring again on Advent Sunday thanks to the magic of electricity.

The three bells, weighing a total of 11,851 pounds, originally were hung in the German building at the St. Louis Exposition of 1904 and there were rung by the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

Later, they were bought for and moved to St. John's Church here. Recently, the church tower had begun to rock whenever the bells were rung by the nine bellringers—three to a bell.

Now the choppers will be operated electrically.

R. A. Conclave Is Held In Winterville

About 200 boys and Counselors from 21 of the 57 R. A. Chapters in the Missionary Baptist Churches of the Roanoke Association met at the Baptist Church in Winterville at 10 o'clock Saturday, Nov. 13, for their annual Associational Royal Ambassador Conclave.

The theme for the day's program "On the Highway of the King" was emphasized beautifully by the boys and leaders throughout the meeting.

During the morning session, Mr. M. L. Garrett, missionary to Nigeria, held the boys spellbound as he took them on an imaginary Sunday's visit to the Baptist Boy's High School at Oyo, Nigeria, where he was principal. As they traveled along together, from early morning until late at night, Mr. Garrett, in a most interesting manner, described the country, the people, their customs, and told of the great need found in Nigeria for Christian education and training.

At the noon hour, the boys enjoyed a delicious turkey dinner served by the ladies of the Winterville Church.

During the afternoon session, Mrs. Paul Waters, Associational Community Missions Chairman, presented Knightly Deeds to the group in a most charming way. At this time she not only told the boys the importance of this phase of their work, but also gave the boys many ideas and suggestions as to the Knightly Deeds they could do in their Chapters.

The boys were then given a chance to question Mr. Garrett about his work in Nigeria. This part of the program proved to be most interesting and inspirational to all who attended.

The Rev. W. E. Cholerton, Divisional R. A. Counselor, presided throughout the meeting.

The program for the day was planned and directed by Mrs. A. M. Mumford, R. A. Counselor for the Roanoke Association.

Tour Of WNCT Taken By Chatham Club

The members of the Chatham Book Club had a most enjoyable experience Tuesday afternoon when it toured the WNCT studio. Mr. J. G. Reaves, production manager, conducted the tour and gave a most vivid picture and description of the "behind the scene" work that is so necessary to give the public the many wonderful programs that this station offers the viewers in this area. Each lady present will appreciate even more than she did before just what WNCT means to Greenville and the surrounding counties.

At the conclusion of the tour the members met at the home of Mrs. L. W. Topping. Mrs. Bowen, president, presided over a short business meeting. She urged everyone to stop by the library November 17 as they celebrate their 50th anniversary. The club also voted to buy a TB bond.

The hostess served a delicious salad course with coffee and mints. After a delightful social hour, which was made more enjoyable by the many lovely arrangements of fall flowers, the books were distributed and the club adjourned.

Impressive Street Improvement Record

Greenville is catching up on its street paving. The city still has several miles of dirt streets and considerable work to do before it can boast it has all the paved streets desirable. Yet the street improvement programs carried out this year have set a new record for the city without the use of bond-issue money for street projects and is taking more and more streets in residential districts "out of the mud."

The contracts for street work let this week will bring to approximately $90,000 the amount of street work contracted for by the city this year. City officials are to be commended for their efforts which have brought about the large amount of street work. Also local residents who have cooperated in the major street improvement programs are to be commended for the interest they have demonstrated.

The impressive street improvement program could not have been carried out without the cooperation of property owners. Neither could it have been carried out without careful study by city officials in formulating a sound policy for spending funds the city receives under the state's Powell Bill.

Without question, the policy formulated by the City Council last year for the city's and property owners' participation in street improvements has been a big factor in the amount of street work contracted for this year. The policy has offered property owners an attractive proposition for getting their streets paved. At the same time, it has offered considerable encouragement for curb and gutter as well as paving to be included in street improvement projects. This factor, in the long run, will cut appreciably the city's cost of street maintenance.

Also to be considered is the City Council's policy of determining which streets are to be improved by taking into consideration the traffic use of the individual streets, and the willingness of property owners on individual streets to participate in the cost of the improvements.

All-in-all, we think Greenville has made a tremendous showing in the realm of street improvements since January. There is still a great deal more street work needed in the city, but the city has come a long way since the first of the year.

Killing The Goose That Lays The Egg

It's not too difficult to kill the goose that lays the golden egg; and from the wave of fraudulent unemployment compensation claims uncovered in Pitt County in recent months, it appears some people are moving toward killing the goose.

Another Negro woman has been convicted of failure to report earnings while filing for unemployment compensation. It is the latest in a series of cases in which local residents have drawn unemployment checks while being gainfully employed.

The purpose of unemployment compensation is to provide income for individuals temporarily out of a job - not to supplement the income of people who are gainfully employed. Individuals who try to milk the government by fraudulently getting unemployment compensation are materially contributing to the breakdown of the entire program.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
STARS AND MUD

Recently in one of our national magazines an article ended with the words, "Keep your eyes on the stars but keep your feet in the mud."

This is a striking way of saying that life's satisfactions arise from balance and that the balance most necessary to maintain is the balance between idealism and realism. There are some poor folks who go through life looking only at the stars. They refuse to believe that they live in a wicked world. They fall victim to all sorts of "isms" for the simple reason that they will not believe that the heart of man is desperately wicked and that no good system can be made to bring forth good results unless good men operate it. On the other hand, there are some cynical people who declare that the only thing you can appeal to in the human heart is self-interest. There is enough truth on both sides of these lines to lend some credence to their assertions but not enough to make a balanced judgment and nurture a happy life.

For the earth beneath our feet and the stars above our heads are both very real. From the largest of these stars—the sun—proceed elements without which we cannot live; and from the earth comes everything by which we are sustained.

So the stars and the mud are both important. Balance! Balance! Balance! This is the secret of life. "Keep your eyes on the stars and your feet in the mud."

Olympics Are Battleground

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The comprehensive character of the "cold war" between democracies and dictatorships is illustrated vividly by the fact that the 1956 Olympic Games in Australia have become a weapon in the conflict of civilizations. The Reds now aim to make the white race lose "face" on the track as well as on the grim battlefields of Korea and Indo-China.

This suggestion may seem comic and fantastic to Americans, who applaud a fine play by the visiting team and hate only the umpire, but it is extremely serious statesmanship with the Communists. By claiming that their artists and inventors have been first in every field, from jitter-bugging to the H-bomb, they reveal how much even the most trivial things mean to them.

IMPORTANCE OF "FACE"—But it would be unwise for the West to underestimate the importance of this intangible factor of racial superiority. To more than a billion people in China, Asia, Africa and elsewhere—about half the world's population—"face" means self-respect, confidence, prestige—and inner security.

It was because the colonial powers denied them this equality, both material and spiritual, that the United States has had to assume so many Anglo-French burdens throughout the world. Unfortunately, the semi-Oriental Russians understand and appeal to this attitude, whereas we have no conception of its meaning.

WEST LOST PRESTIGE—There are no Toybnbes in the Eisenhower Cabinet, and Churchill's imperial complex blinds him to these realities. England lost her empire because of this blindness.

Washington concedes that the Reds have outmaneuvered us in this psychological contest. Western prestige sunk to an all-time low when the Chinese fought American and European troops to a standstill in Korea and in Indo-China. Backward peoples everywhere exulted as the colonists did when Andrew Jackson at New Orleans repelled the redcoats who had vanquished Napoleon.

CALCULATED DESIGN—With apologies to President Eisenhower, the Russo-Chinese repeated destruction of American military planes is not an accident. It is deliberate policy. It is designed to impress upon the once faceless peoples that they, too, can insult Uncle Sam, murder our men, challenge our so-called supremacy—and get away with it!

The impulses of restraint and humanity, which lead us to shy from retaliation lest it provoke a disastrous global war, are not understood by the vast audiences for whom Moscow stages this bloody ballet. For these reasons, the Russians are making special preparations to defeat us in the 1956 Olympics. Until the last event, they outscored us at Helsinki in 1952. So serious does Congress regard the outcome that it has designated October 16 as "Olympic Day." And if funds to finance American contestants are not forthcoming from private contributors, Eisenhower may ask Capitol Hill to appropriate money for this phase of the "cold war."

REDS' BRAZEN METHODS—Jack Sholar, a radio-television devotee of athletics at Columbia, S. C., envisages possible American defeat. He also reveals that the Reds will have a distinct advantage over us because of typically unsportsmanlike methods. He writes:

"Russian officials have but to subscribe to our newspapers and magazines and monitor our broadcasts to keep a running account of practically every American athlete of note; they can easily buy films and make their own, showing contests and performances for analysis and study; they can attend just about any meet and contest. In short, we can be 'scouted' by anyone."

Sholar then points out that the Russians refuse to furnish any data on their athletes' performances or records. In short, Moscow withholds sprint, shotput and jumping data just as it denied vital military information to us in World War II, when we were Allies. Showing the new connection between sports and statesmanship, Sholar concludes:

"Of no small import is the fact that the principal contests will be held in the area of the world where our prestige is taking the worst beating, and where the Communist movement seems to be the most active."

formulating a sound policy for spending funds the city receives under the state's Powell Bill.

Without question, the policy formulated by the City Council last year for the city's and property owners' participation in street improvements has been a big factor in the amount of street work contracted for this year. The policy has offered property owners an attractive proposition for getting their streets paved. At the same time, it has offered considerable encouragement for curb and gutter as well as paving to be included in street improvement projects. ## Sen. Ervin Has Said A Mouthful

North Carolina's Senator Ervin has spoken out in no uncertain terms in the Senate fight over the McCarthy censure, and in doing so, we think he has voiced the sentiment of the proponderant majority of his constituents.

It was probably surprising to some people that Ervin, who has been in the Senate only a few months, would speak out with such vehemence on the issue. In spite of his brief time in the Senate, however, he could have done no other way and still upheld the prestige of the Senate, the special McCarthy committee of which he was a member, and kept faith with his people back in North Carolina.

There is certainly no truth in McCarthy's statement that the special committee which recommended he be censured by its action became "the unwitting handmaiden" of the Communist party.

Sen. Ervin termed McCarthy's remark "foul and fantastic charges" and went on to say if McCarthy made the statement while not believing it he was guilty of "moral incapacity", and that if he did believe it he was guilty of "mental incapacity."

McCarthy is using against the members of the Senate who feel he should be censured the same tactics he has used all along against people with whom he disagrees. He tries to label them communist or fellow-travelers. Certainly the loyalty of the members of the special committee which aired the McCarthy censure charges in the first place can not be questioned. Neither can the loyalty of the members of the Senate who will determine finally whether McCarthy is censured be questioned.

Somebody Told Me

Steady Entertainment Source

What one-way streets have done for me: Every morning I go by Greenville high school en route to the Post Office in order to have the best line-up for a parking place.

This is a real experience. Just a drive by while the students are arriving in the morning is a show within itself. My feeling is that of envy, because those are the days.

This morning I particularly noticed the Monogram jackets. If only one human being in many millions could ever have the experience of seeing his face on a postage stamp. Of all unlikely people who might ever find their way to such a hall of fame, we would put journalists high on the list. But look what has happened in Oklahoma. The good people of the Ryukyus celebrated Newspaper Week by issuing a stamp which shows a portrait of a leading newspaper publisher. Last year another journalist was so honored.

Such fame is usually reserved mighty dead of ages past, Monfor crowned heads, or for the was driving somewhere in town and heard a discussion by high school students (I didn't hear enough to get their names) about dancing. Since I was so amazed to see the current dances last summer, I was particularly interested in their comments.

How about this dance they call bopping? Is there anything wrong with it? "Definitely not," said one member of the panel. "When our teachers were younger they did the big apple. Now we bop. It's just a matter of changes of times and styles in dancing."

Having done the big apple, I would say there is a considerable difference in the implications of the dance, but I must admit that the student has a point.

About slow dancers, the panel agreed that those who clinch and almost stand still are showing off.

And they insist that those dancers are in the minority.

The view that teachers have of high school students must be a source of constant entertainment. For that matter, anyone who has the opportunity to observe a large group of individuals is in for a treat.

It's just a matter of whether or not you enjoy people. In the current issue of Look Magazine there's an article on Sid Richardson, claimed by Texans to be the world's richest man. His secret is in the observation of others and a great deal of gambling blood, businesswise. He's been broke several times.

Back to point: If you drive by GHS enough you'll enjoy what you see.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

(A NEW FAME BECKONS THE FOURTH ESTATE)

(The Louisville Courier-Journal)

Only one human being in many millions could ever have the experience of seeing his face on a postage stamp. Of all unlikely people who might ever find their way to such a hall of fame, we would put journalists high on the list. But look what has happened in Oklahoma. The good people of the Ryukyus celebrated Newspaper Week by issuing a stamp which shows a portrait of a leading newspaper publisher. Last year another journalist was so honored.

Such fame is usually reserved mighty dead of ages past, Monfor crowned heads, or for the arches take such matters seriously. King Oedrick IX of Denmark is said recently to have forbidden his barber to cut his hair a little shorter on one side, for fear it might keep him from looking like his own image on the postage stamps.

If the lowly journalist is a candidate for such honors in any part of the world, the whole atmosphere of the Fourth Estate may change.

The editorial writer, hunched over his typewriter, may suddenly begin to wonder how his profile is looking. The traditional green eyeshade of the city editor, so beloved of movies on newspaper life, may give place to such as a laurel wreath. The reporter may get his hair cut often than once a month. Perhaps he will even think of replacing that old coat that previously seemed so costly relaxed and Bohemian.

The magazine Esquire may even "new function along Newspaper Row. Instead of the portraits of lightly-clad but heavily endowed girls which sometimes find their way from its pages to the bulletin board or the editor's wall, we may see a picture of a snappy suit or a male hair-do. After all, a fellow has to look sharp if his likeness may some day go all over the world on letters.

'Jury' Of Six Conclude Democrats Did Well In Voting

By LYNN NISBET

BIG VICTORY — The occasion was one of the numerous street corner post mortem inquiries over the recent election. The "jury" of half a dozen men considered the evidence and rendered verdict to the effect that Democratic victory, both in the nation and in the state, may have been more emphatic than the voting figures indicate on the surface.

In the first place, the Democratic capture of the Congress was more significant than the usual loss of congressional control by the party in power as result of mid-term elections. That is because it was the first time congressional control had been lost by the administration after only two years in the White House. Previously it had required six to twelve years for the voters to get sufficiently fed up with Congress to switch control to the other party.

The further fact that several States which returned Republican Senators and Representatives to the Congress also elected Democratic Governors, would seem to justify the conclusion that President Eisenhower is still stronger than the party and the voters were responding to the appeal to "give Ike a working team" rather than voting for Republicans as such.

PERSONALITIES — The volunteer jury took cognizance of the trend toward voting for persons rather than parties, nationwide and in North Carolina. In most instances it was personal records rather than party affiliation that determined results; but when the issue was clearly partisan the Democrats had the edge almost everywhere.

The personality appeal of Eisenhower all over, of Charles Raper Jonas in the tenth district, of Jimmy Byrnes and Strom Thurmond in South Carolina were more responsible for failure of the regular Democratic nominees to win than because the voters preferred the Republican party over the Democratic.

ISSUES — When issues other than personal appeared controlling, these issues had little relationship to party affiliation as such. In some instances the question racial segregation was important. At national level the platforms of the two parties are very similar on this point, and there are many people who regard the attitude of the Roosevelt New Deal and the Truman Fair Deal more positive against segregation than that of the Eisenhower administration. The voting on this point was influenced more by local conditions than by party platforms.

In some cases the important issue was the attitude of candidates, rather than parties, to the handling of natural resources, mainly forests and minerals—including petroleum. That was a three-pronged controversy involving Federal control, State rights and private enterprise.

It was agreed among the members of the impromptu jury considering the matter that the major issue was private power or public power. Electric power, that is, with related issues of water for generating electricity, irrigating farmlands and supplying the industrial needs. This was a vital issue in the northwest, the southwest and the TVA territory of the southeast.

Election returns in several western North Carolina counties, including the 30th senatorial district which elected a Democrat for the first time in its history, reflect the influence of the private-public power issue. The Republican senator from that district last session sought to tax REA on the same basis as private electric utilities. He did not run this year because of rotation agreements but his party nominee paid the penalty. Other counties in that TVA-REA area sent Republicans to the Legislature instead of Democrats on more vital local issues and in spite of the private-public power question. In none of these cases was there any clear cut Democratic against Republican party issue.

SEATING — There will be a vacant seat in the Senate chamber during the next session of the Legislature, but it probably will not be No. 17, which will be officially vacated when Senator Luther Barnhardt of Cabarrus is elected President of the Senate.

No. 17 has been assigned to Senator Barnhardt by Secretary of State Thad Eure under provisions of a joint resolution ratified some years ago which provides that any returning member of the General Assembly may hold his seat or claim any that may have been vacated by election results on basis of first come first served.

On the House side there are 120 members and only 119 seats. Smart oldtimers usually ask for No. 120, the mythical seat of the representative who is elected Speaker, and which is usually

Business Today

Self-Service Trend

By ELMER ROESSNER

Chances are that in the next five years or so, most of the larger variety stores will have followed the supermarket's lead to self-service.

The rush is already on in the chains, with Woolworth opening almost 30 last year and over 100 this year. Kresge has somewhere around 75; Newberry, 40; and Ben Franklin a whopping 1,000. Neisner is experimenting with two and Murphy with one.

Many of the independent, particularly the larger ones, have converted to self-service or are considering it.

This change is tremendously important to firms selling to the variety stores because it offers new opportunities and, to be sure, some new limitations. Suppliers already servicing food supermarkets will be in an advantageous position because situations are much the same.

Products will have to be attractively packaged to compete visually with other items. Packages must also be tough to stand a great deal of consumer handling. Rack displays will play an important role, as will easily seen price tags, convenient sizes, unbreakable containers, tie-ins, preselling through advertising and prime locations in the store.

There will be advantages for the supplier willing to adapt and push his merchandise.

First of all, self-service variety stores permit greater display area and more varied products. Chain Store Age reported that one New Haven, Conn. store pulled out its hollow square counters and installed back-to-back, multi-shelf racks, thus increasing merchandise assortments by one-third.

The magazine also noted many examples where chain stores, in converting to self-service, enlarged actual floor space as well.

Second, store managers will be particularly receptive to suppliers who provide merchandising aids and service their accounts.

Third, self-service stores depend a great deal on low profit margins but high volume, which means the supplier who gets the order will sell more.

SEPTEMBER CONSUMER PRICES UNCHANGED

The consumer price index was steady in September, dipping slightly to 100.3 from 100.4 in August and 100.3 in September of last year, the National Industrial Conference Board reports.

Food costs were down a scant 0.7 per cent, almost balanced by a 0.1 per cent rise each in housing, transportation and sundries. The dip, if it can be called, was shared by the 10 principal cities in the country, with Detroit off 0.5 per cent at one end and New York and Philadelphia off 0.1 per cent at the other.

ALL-RAYON HOME EXHIBIT READED

The cotton industry has made strenuous efforts to hold its share of the textile business and develop new uses and markets. Many are well thought out and effective.

But competition is working just as hard to do the same for their own products.

Most recent is the Rayon Institute's sponsorship of an all-rayon home furnishings exhibit created by a well-known designer and decorator. Included will be curtain, drapery and upholstery fabrics, carpets and rugs, domestics, lamp shades and trimmings.

BUMPER MEXICAN COFFEE CROP DUE

Mexico's coffee harvest this season will set a record, the American Embassy in Mexico City reports.

It's still too early for an accurate forecast, but favorable weather and improved care are expected to result in 1,750,000 bags of 132 pounds each. Exports of the bean (90 per cent to the U.S.) are estimated at 1,100,000 bags.

This is just a small part of what Americans consume, but should add that much more to keeping gyrating coffee prices on a more even keel.

Planning To Build A Dream City

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Most people have dreams. Sydney M. Siegel has a "dreamopolis."

That's a dream city.

At 39 Siegel says he is now ready to make his dream city come true—at a cost of $175,000,000.

He and a group of 16 syndicate teammates figure that with the sum of money they can build what they believe will be America's first thoroughly planned modern city.

It will be called Suffolk City. Siegel has assembled 2,000 acres, for its site near Yaphank, at the geographical heart of Long Island, some 56 miles from New York City.

"I have been working on this for more than six years," said Siegel quietly, "and when I have finished it, I don't care what happens to me afterwards."

"The men who are in this with me need money like I need hair—and I don't need hair. But it's not a philanthropy. It's just a mixture of good business and good works."

What he has in mind is an ideal suburban community of 6,000 moderately priced homes. It will be completely self-sustaining, having its own industries, schools, churches, and shopping centers.

The New York area is one of the greatest reservoirs of skilled workers in the world," said Siegel. "And most of them would accept less pay—and save money at that—if they could work close to their homes and avoid commuting into the city."

Siegel's scientifically planned town isn't just a drafting board project. He went into real estate selling at the age of 19, pioneered in the building and management of suburban shopping centers. In the last five years he has had a big hand in real estate transactions totalling $200,000.

He has had his ups and downs in the business. Shortly before going into the Army during World War II he talked a plumbing supply company into taking 17 old Manhattan brownstone houses off his hands for $150,000.

"They did me a favor at the time," he said, "because if anything happened to me I didn't want my wife and kids stuck with the problem of handling those old houses. But now I kind of wish they hadn't done me a million dollars."

Siegel now feels that real estate in old cities is stagnant and static, and that the best investments are in the outlying suburban areas.

"The modern industrial plants in the suburbs don't look like a factory, and they don't create slum areas," he said. "They are built to resemble a high school, and they are well landscaped and have plenty of light and air."

Five years ago, Siegel said, the project of building a complete new city would have been rejected as fantastic.

"Today businessmen want to rent space in your shopping center before you can build it. What used to be fantastic is now accepted as commonplace."

Siegel expects to start building his dream community in the spring and finish it in about 30 months.

well located. The first applicant gets it. There are 50 seats in the Senate chamber for 50 Senators, since the constitutional President of the Senate is the Lieutenant Governor, who is not a member of the Senate.

For the first time in modern history and General Assembly will convene without a Lieutenant Governor and the President of the Senate will be elected from the membership. Although it is as certain as anything political can be that Luther Barnhardt will be elected President of the Senate, the official seating diagram has already been completed and he has No. 17. Con-

Teen-age Turnout

By FRANCES ADAMS and MARY WILL LONG

This Friday night G.H.S. students will fasten on their space helmets for a fast trip to Mars at the annual "Freshman Follies." The freshmen are using "Thanksgiving on Mars" as the theme for their dance. The affair will begin at 8 o'clock and will be highlighted by the floor show at 10:30. Kelly Baruhill, class president, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Eight new members have been inducted into the local chapter of the National Honor Society. Frances Adams, Patsy Baker, and Shirley Holland were the senior inductees. Juniors tapped were Hal Edwards, Ronita Respass, Josephine Hendrix, Henrietta Swayne, and Lella Davenport. The members were inducted in an impressive ceremony before the entire student body.

Greenville High School is being represented in many meetings in North Carolina and out of the state too.

Mary Ann Bryant, Patsy Baker, and Henrietta Swayne, accompanied by Robert B. Starling, attended the National Forensic League Congress in Sumter, South Carolina, October 29-30. "The meeting was very educational as well as a lot of fun," stated Patsy Baker.

Representatives to the third annual fall convention of the Future Teachers of America at Duke University November 6 were Patsy Mardry, president; Margaret Moyer, vice-president; Nancy Brown, historian; Jean Moyer and Grayson Waldrop.

Last week students were astonished to see a number of parents attending classes in G.H.S. These "mama's" and "papa's" weren't coming to renew their education, but to see their little "darlings" in action in the classrooms. They came at the invitation of teachers and students in observance of American Education Week. During the observance of this week, many high school students took part in radio and television programs sponsored by the North Carolina Education Association.

As a result of the magazine sale campaign, the junior class is now "rolling in money." $829.73 was their share of the $2,496.10 total. Margaret Moyer, high salesman, with a total of $195.80, received a 17-jewel Bulova watch. Selling subscriptions totaling $151.75, Dora Pierce captured the honor of second high salesman.

The 1955 Tau, the yearbook, is progressing rapidly. Seniors have filled in blanks concerning their section. They were asked to state their likes, dislikes, nickname, pet expression, ambition, and activities. Superlatives are being chosen this week.

Birthday Party For Martha Sue Langley

ROBERSONVILLE—Immediately after school Friday afternoon, Mrs. R. J. Langley honored her daughter, Martha Sue, on her seventh birthday. Twenty-five little friends gathered at her home on Main Street to help celebrate the happy occasion. After the guests arrived the hostess entertained with games and contests. Harry Gray and Bob Gray were the prize winners.

An attractive table was set on the enclosed porch. The pretty cloth was centered by a large cake led in white and decorated with pink roses and green leaves. Seven lighted candles surrounded the inscription "Happy Birthday." When the tapers were blown out the cake was cut and served with ice cream. Each child received a box of candy containing a favor.

Martha Sue enjoyed untying her many beautifully wrapped packages and displaying her gifts and toys.

Fountain 4-H Club Wins Commendation For Booth At Fair

FOUNTAIN—At a meeting of the Fountain 4-H Club November 10 the group was commended by assistant Farm Agent and county 4-H Leader C. J. Goodman on its fair booth which won third place at that recent event.

A treasurer's report revealed the club has a sum of $57.74 and there was some discussion as to what to do with this money. However, no action was taken.

After a few remarks from the 4-H leaders, Goodman and assistant Home Agent Josephine Cusick, the boys and girls formed separate groups with Goodman talking to the boys on the planting and care of trees and Miss Cusick discussing with the girls care of clothing.

THE PIRATES, THIRD BEST IN NORTH STATE

The Elon Christmas moved into second place last Saturday night behind front-running Appalachian for the North State Conference final first division reading. Their cruise seemed hopeless for three quarters, the Lenoir Rhyne Bears had a six to nothing lead. Two spasmodic TD thrusts in the final two minutes saved the day and strongly indicated the Christmas worthy as runners-up.

Before the season opened, nobody would take 20-1 odds that East Carolina's Pirates would suffer a league defeat. The defending champions were shoe-ins for another reign.

As far as natural aptitude was concerned, Coach Jack Boone's 54 Pirates stood on even terms—man to man—with any league eleven; still, it was obvious to everyone that something vital was missing. It can't be singled down to one man, then again maybe it can. The Bucs were minus the incentive of their 33 predecessors. There's little doubt upon whose brow the crown would have been retained had the 5-4-1 club been endowed with "the spark of old."

THE MANAGER. A PART OF THE TEAM

Here, we'd like to give Bill Lovell and his company a plug for good service during the past ECC grid campaign. Shouldering immense responsibility and bearing incessant gripe from players are only parts of their jobs. Assistant managers were Nick Shoulters and Jimmy Truelove.

CAROLINE AND BATES, COOLED OFF IN A HURRY

What has happened to the "hottest pair of running backs to play in the same college backfield since Glenn Davis and Felix "Doc" Blanchard ran outside, inside and over Army's opponents in 1944-45-46?"

Last year they accounted for an amazing 1,856 yards of Illinois' total of 2,461 in rushing. The players in mind, naturally, are J. C. Caroline and Mickey Bates.

Caroline of S. Carolina led the nation with a 1,256 yards rushing, set a new Big Ten record with 6.5 yards per carry, kicked, caught passes, surpassed marks set by Illinois immortals Harold "Red" Grange and Claude "Buddy" Young and made seven of the ten "approved" All-American teams. Bates, less ballyhooed, score 11 TDs to Caroline's five.

But who has heard their names this season? How does the twosome stack up in national rushing this fall? Illinois has won only two games so far and the big noise over Caroline and Bates has died to a shriek. The reason is apparent. Coach Ray Elliott is experiencing what Carl Snavely of UNC did after good backs remained but the beef up front departed. Caroline hasn't rushed over 150 yards in a single game this season and has scored only two times. Bates has scored only three. The blocking just hasn't been there. You don't lose players like Mike Regale and Tom Hunt at the tackles and Jim Neville and Carl Phillip at guards and hope to reproduce top-notch football.

The going for Caroline and Bates will continue to be rough until Coach Elliott gets the line keen on blocking assignments. Both backs will be lucky to make the All-Conference team, let alone an All-America list, this winter.

Carter, DeMarco In 15-Round Title Rematch Tonight

By BOB MYERS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mechanical Jimmy Carter steps into the ring tonight favored to regain the world lightweight championship from Brooklyn's Paddy DeMarco, the young man who relieved him of the title 10 months ago.

The setting for the 15-round encounter between the top two 135-pounders in the nation is the spacious Cow Palace in South San Francisco.

The contest, a replay of an upset registered by the 26-year-old Paddy in New York last March 5, will be televised coast to coast by CBS.

It is scheduled for 10 p.m. EST. Carter, a veteran of 30 years, remained a 2-1 betting favorite today to whip his more unorthodox fellow New Yorker. The workmanlike fighter from Harlem already has the peculiar distinction of having lost and then regained the same lightweight title.

He will be the first in ring history in the division to repeat such a stunt if he wins tonight. Carter first captured the crown in May 1951, when he knocked out Ike Williams in Madison Square Garden.

champion—last June and then in September—because of a virus and then an elbow ailment.

Paddy has trained hard and he is confident. He said he beat Carter and received a unanimous decision and he frankly sees no reason why he can't do it again.

Carter said he expects to win decisively, if not by a knockout.

Reports Dodgers Consider 'Move'

NEW YORK (AP)—The baseball winds were blowing west again today with a report that the Brooklyn Dodgers may move to Los Angeles.

John B. Old writing in the Los Angeles Herald-Express, said the tentative plans to switch the Dodgers were "hush, hush," and that they would be aired at a special meeting here Nov. 22.

Old's story brought denials from National League President Warren Giles and Brooklyn Vice President Fresno Thompson.

Also, perhaps coincidentally, the Brooklyn Junior Chamber of Commerce announced the organization of a drive to "keep the Dodgers in Brooklyn."

Old warned his readers to "look for and expect vigorous denials" concerning the proposed switch.

Walter O'Malley, Brooklyn president has long eyed Los Angeles as a possible future home for the Dodgers, he wrote. "...the special meeting, quietly arranged it."

without previous publicity, was called to offset the urging of Cleveland's Hank Greenberg that the American League expand to 10 clubs at the earliest possible opportunity.

Old also said Cincinnati might join the move and shift to San Francisco. Owner Powell Crosley has been "quietly liquidating his vast interest," he said.

"I'll never have suggested to me that the Brooklyn club be moved to Los Angeles," said Giles when told of Old's story. "How could we have one club out there and the other seven way back here?"

Giles admitted there was a meeting scheduled for Nov. 22, but said it was to consider a revision of the constitution and bylaws.

Brooklyn President Walter O'Malley was en route home from Puerto Rico and could not be reached, but Thompson said: "We don't know anything about it."

Five Lettermen In GHS Basketball Squad Of 13 Candidates; Newcomers Promising

By WAYNE BISHOP

Reflector Sports Writer
With five lettermen returning from last season's conference tournament champion team, Coach Bo Farley rounded up the Phantom hopefuls for the coming 1954-1955 basketball season. The Greenies have been working out all week in the GHS gym.

So far the Greenie athletic director and head basketball coach has 13 candidates for the squad. Other than the five lettermen are two non-lettermen returning from last year and six players up from Coach Bill Kittrell's fine junior varsity team.

The big five all are veterans and all were starters some time during the year last season. They are Edgar Moore, Bob Howell, Harold Edwards, Pat Sawyer, and Tommie Saleed. All are seniors except for Edwards, who is a junior.

Promising JV's
Several boys up from the jayvee team of last year are counted on by Coach Farley to give considerable help during the year. Ike Riddick and Tommy Norris are a pair of stellar guards who have been playing together for some time. Riddick averaged over 14 points a game last year and Norris averaged nine. Big Larry Powell is a bruiser who came along fine last season. Jerry Drum, Ray Hardee, and Billy Johnson are the others up from the JV team.

Harry Scott and Harris Northrop both played on the varsity last season but did not play enough to earn a letter. Both boys should help the Farleymen this year.

Not Optimistic or Pessimistic
Coach Bo Farley is neither optimistic or pessimistic about the chances for the team this year. The Phantom coach believes his veterans will be better, but he is worried over the loss of some of last year's stars. Gone from the team of last year are Walter Perkins, George Sideris, Bobby Starkey, Dixie Hobbard, and Bobby Conway.

"Perkins was a good defensive man, but we won't miss him like we will Sideris," Coach Farley stated yesterday. Sideris was the playmaker and sparkplug of the team for two years until he graduated this summer.

Big Five

Coach Farley has the big five, whose capabilities he already knows, but the others are question marks. Howell and Edwards were the leading scorers on the team all last season, both being named to the all-tournament team. Moore is a six-footer with a sure one-handed push and jump shot. Not a steady performer, Moore runs hot and cold with his shooting. He is being counted on to fill one of the guard or forward slots this year. Pat Sawyer came along very well last year after he missed a year because of a knee operation. Sawyer was one of the outstanding players in the tournament last year and his fine all-around play in the last half of the season showed great promise for this year. Saleed is a 5-9 dead-eye set shot. He is the boy Coach Farley used to wreck opposing zone defenses with last year. Saleed has picked up some speed and height from last year and could be one of the team's outstanding players.

After those five Coach Farley is lacking in strength. Ike Riddick and Tommy Norris appear to be the best of the JV graduates.

The G-men have only until December 1 to prepare for their first game, a home tilt with Rocky Mount. The schedule for the year calls for six non-conference games before Christmas and then the 12 loop contests after the holidays. Coach Farley announced they may fill in a few of the open dates in the latter part of the schedule.

Got His Buck In Slugging Match

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP)—Fred Cashen, a 19-year-old amateur boxer got his buck on the second day of Michigan's deer hunting season yesterday after a slugging match as rough as any he has encountered in the ring.

Cashen wounded the animal in the head with his first shot. The deer got up and charged. Cashen fired again, hitting the buck in the ribs.

The deer charged again. Cashen ran with the deer close behind.

The boxer ducked behind a tree and clubbed the oncoming deer with his rifle. The rifle broke. Cashen dodged from tree to tree for almost 30 minutes before the deer, weakened by loss of blood, broke off the fight. Cashen picked up a tree branch and finished off the buck.

Boxing Tourney Set In January

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The Carolinas AAU boxing tournament for 1955 will be held here Jan. 20, 21, and 22 in conjunction with the annual boxing event conducted by the Charleston Playground Department, Nolly Sams Jr., who directs the playground tournament, made the announcement today.

The winners in the open class of the tournament qualify for the AAU finals in Boston next April. Sams is ready to receive entries for the tournament. A novice division also is included.

The tournament was held at Myrtle Beach last January.

Fifty Years Of Thrills In Grantland Rice Book

By FRANK ECK

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor Grantland Rice's "The Tumult and the Shouting" is the most complete autobiography anyone would ever care to read. It covers more than 50 years of all the exciting events and personalities Grantley knew as dean of the sports writing profession.

This remarkable book just published by A.S. Barnes & Co., is as fast moving as was Ty Cobb on the bases. And it's only natural that Grantley puts Cobb near the front of his 368-page tome for it was Cobb who insisted he be discovered by Rice back in 1904. Cobb had sent Grantley numerous letters and postcards, each postulating an 18-year-old phenom. Cobb was the phenom.

"His legs must have been the most remarkable known to man—even Paavo Nurmi," writes Grantley who had seen Ty play 24 seasons in the majors.

He quotes Cobb as saying "I recall intentionally spiking one man." That man was Frank (Home Run) Baker who was squarely in his base running path one day in Philadelphia. He tells how Cobb brought the slide and toe tag into baseball. And he tells how Cobb was the first to recognize that Babe Ruth in 1924 had changed the game with his home runs. "Power has replaced speed and skill," Cobb said.

Grantley rates Joe Di Maggio "near the top," and says a Cobb-Speaker-Ruth outfield, even with Ruth's power, could not match an outfield of Musial-DiMaggio-Williams.

He names Jim Thorpe Red Grange and Bronko Nagurski as the three top football players and goes even further by saying 11 Nagurskis could beat 11 Granges or 11 Thorpes. And he names Sammy Baugh as the passer for this backfield.

Grantley writes that Bill Tilden

"depended more on body action for his power than perhaps any other athlete."

He calls Jack Dempsey a tiger in the ring and recalls how the Dempsey-Firpo fight was "four minutes of the most sensational fighting ever seen in any ring."

He describes the Tunney-Greb fight of 1922 as the bloodiest he ever covered and how Tunney, when he was thinking of Dempsey, threw punches at an imaginary Dempsey between shots of a Florida golf match.

Grantley writes of Tommy Hitchcock and Devereux Milburn as the "forerunners of modern polo," how Knute Rockne put Notre Dame into headlines and that the Four Horsemen (Harry Stuhldreher, Don Miller, Jim Crowley and Elmer Layden) were his greatest stars; that Pop Warner was football's greatest inventor, and that Babe Didrickson and Thorpe were the "two greatest all around athletes we've ever known."

Grantley also writes that Jesse Owens' running style was flawless and that Walter Hagen did for golf what Ruth did for baseball.

The champions Rice writes about are chronicled as intimate friends rather than as impersonal news copy.

The other side of that personal relationship was summarized by John Kieran who, Grantley said, turned from a walking encyclopedia in sports to a lover of birds.

At a black tie testimonial before some 250 champions and writers, Kieran said:

"When Grantley Rice died a big chunk of my heart went with him."

Weill Objects To Return Bout Ban

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Al Weill, manager of world heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, said last night he couldn't go along "at this time" with outlawing of the return contest clause in contracts for championship fights.

The ban was imposed yesterday by the World Boxing Championship Committee in London. It said it would not approve title fight contracts with return bout clauses.

Asked whether Marciano would defend his title without a return bout written into the contract, Weill said:

"When that time comes I will make my own terms."

"I am really surprised at this action," he said. "This is a free country and I am being paid to manage my fighter. He looks up to me to get matches and to help boxing, and he also looks to me to get the best financial deal possible. That's what I am paid for. I have always abided by the (New York) commission rules, but at this time I cannot go along with the ruling of the World Boxing Championship Committee."

While Weill dissented from the year-old committee, which was set up to standardize championships, Robert Christenberry of the New York State Athletic Commission said:

"For the first time in the history of boxing we have a committee which is determined to control the sport all over the world."

Speedy Pat Sawyer, trick knee and all, will be one of the starting guards and chief sparkplug of the G-men basketballers this year. Sawyer is a steady performer on offense, and probably the best defensive player on the team.

Virtually No Rest For French Chief

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Pierre Mendes-France, who comes here today for talks with the Eisenhower administration, has had virtually no rest since he became French premier last June. He is an active man of 47, an economist by preference, a shrewd, a tough bargainer. He is also, in the long pull, an unknown quantity.

By standing aside while the French Assembly killed the European Defense Community he steered France away from European federation and perhaps eventually union.

The France he took over, split by factions, was drifting. He has tried to give it a sense of direction. A nationalist, he wants to make France self-sufficient but is probably too realistic to think she will be a first-class power again.

Where there was drift, he has provided blazing energy and action. But energy and action by themselves spell neither wisdom nor success. Whether he can, by vision and ability, bring France back to her feet is something he still has to demonstrate.

In France he has plenty of admirers and plenty of critics. His one finished product to show for five months in office is an end to the Indochina fighting. It was, in effect, a French surrender. His admirers say it was the best settlement any Frenchman could find. His critics say surrender is not a distinction and anyone could do as much.

He promised on taking office to revitalize the French economy. On that it's been talk, so far. This is understandable since his time has been monopolized by problems of foreign policy.

He had no stomach for EDC, the plan for rearming West Germany, bringing her into a single European army. The French themselves had first proposed it, but the French Assembly stalled on approving it. The French feared a rearmament of Germany and objected to seeing France merge her army with those of other nations.

Mendes-France said EDC didn't have a chance. But whereas his predecessors didn't have nerve to call for a vote, he did. But he sat idly by while the Assembly killed it.

Then in a burst of action he got together with the United States, Britain, West Germany and others and worked out a new plan for rearming the Germans. This would let them have an independent army, allied with France, who would also have an individual army. Germany would join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) with the United States, Britain, France and 11 others.

And NATO would be able to keep controls on the Germans. But the French have fewer guarantees against resurgent German militarism under this arrangement than they would have under EDC. This is still unfinished business but Mendes-France backs it, will bring it to Assembly vote in mid-December, and hopes it will pass.

If Germany does turn militaristic again and breaks away from the NATO controls, Mendes-France will have proved to be short-sighted in not fighting for EDC.

PTA-Barbecue Meeting Is Held

The Nichols School of Bell Arthur sponsored a joint P.T.A. meeting-barbecue supper recently in the school's auditorium honoring the community parents.

A panel discussion of "Absenteeism and Its Effects On The Child" was the main feature of the business session. The church, school, and community were represented by two faculty members, Mrs. V. O. Monk and Miss M. L. Dupree, a parent, Mr. Herman Taft, and Rev. Mr. S. Hemby, pastor of the Arthur Free Will Baptist Church.

Mr. Gaston Monk, principal, presided over the meeting as master of ceremonies and introduced the members of the panel.

Mrs. Monk discussed "Absenteeism and the Retarded Child," thoroughly pointing out various ways by which absenteeism retards a child's academic progress.

Miss Dupree, discussing "Absenteeism and Drop-Outs," gave several reasons why continuous absence causes eventual drop-outs before a child has completed his education.

Mr. Taft gave a very interesting talk on "Absenteeism and Juvenile Delinquency." In it he also pointed out the fact that sometimes adult delinquency is to be blamed for allowing degrading conditions to develop through parental negligence and indifference.

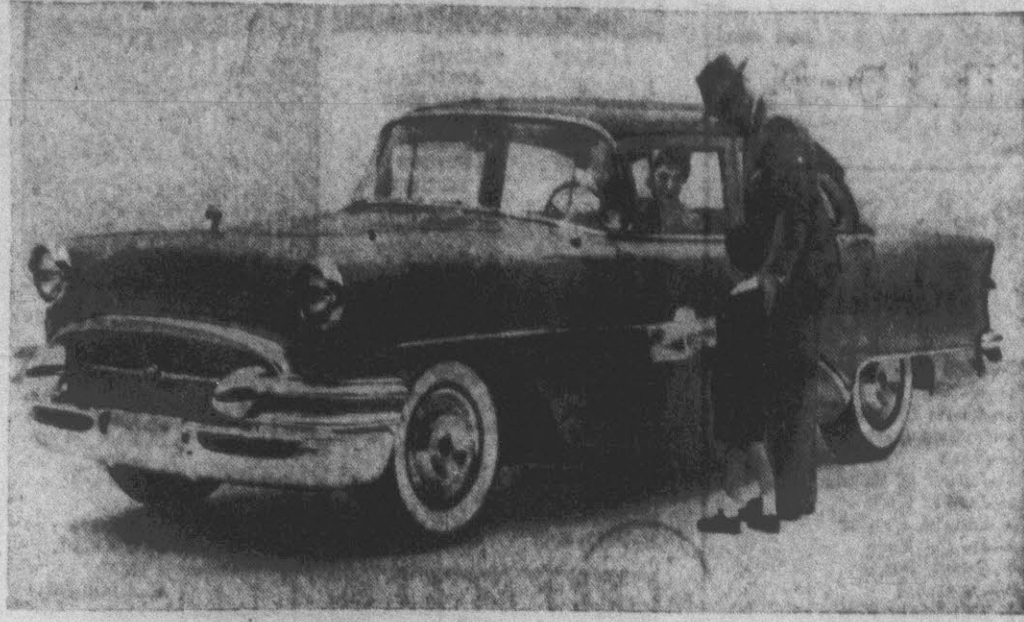

Rev. Mr. Hemby culminated the discussion in his topic "The Relationship of Church and School," thus showing how the spiritual and academic needs of the child are both influenced upon his development. He urged the parents to support both organizations for the betterment of the community through better educated future adults.

The honored guest for the occasion was Mr. D. H. Conley, Superintendent of Pitt County Schools, who made remarks concerning the preceding discussions and also urged the parents to use foresight in an effort to make better, useful citizens of their children.

At the conclusion of the business session plates of barbecue, sweet potatoes, corn bread and slaw were passed to each attending person.

Over fifty persons were present.

New Buick For 1955

SLEEK NEW STYLING and record-high horsepower make the Buick Special four-door sedan for 1955 a standout in the lower priced field. Its V-8 power plant has been increased to an all-time high of 188 horsepower which, with Buick's new Variable Pitch Dynaflex transmission, gives the Special performance and maneuverability unequalled by any automobile in its field. Setting a new styling trend are a wide-screen grille and a roll-edge bumper with sturdy dual wing guards. For the first time, Buick's choice selection of power assists—power brakes, power steering, window lifts and front seat adjustment—are available as optional equipment on the Special.

Island Area Is Most Dangerous Spot In World

By SPENCER MOOSA
TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—The most dangerous real estate in the world today has a total area of less than 200 square miles.

It consists of Nationalist-held islands just off the Red China coast, some within easy shelling distance of mainland guns.

They range from the Tachens—where Communist torpedo boats sank a Nationalist destroyer escort Sunday—to Quemoy, 350 miles to the south.

The Reds easily could attack these islands. If they do and the Nationalist fight as they have vowed to, there will be carnage. An undisclosed element is whether the U.S. 7th Fleet would intervene. American policy is to keep the Reds guessing.

The only Nationalist territory the United States openly has committed itself to protect is Formosa and such satellite islands as the Pescadores which are in the Formosa defense zone. The offshore islands are outside this zone. Yet for 350 miles they lie along the Communist coastline.

Southern anchor is Quemoy, only six miles from the Red-held island where the city of Amoy is located. This situation is only 130 miles across the Formosa Strait from Formosa. The Quemoy garrison includes some 1,500 former prisoners of war from Korea.

The Communists began a series of bombardments of Quemoy Sept. 3, but this time did not repeat their invasion attempt of 1949 when they suffered heavy losses.

The northernmost outpost consists of the Tachens and Quemoy, which unlike Quemoy are deep water islands with rugged shores easily defended except against air attack. They are garrisoned by upwards of 1,500 troops.

In between the Tachens and Quemoy are the White Dog and Matsu groups dominating the mouth of the Min River on which the Peking provincial capital is located.

No one in Taipei doubts that Nationalist determination to hold these islands, and Communist determination to liquidate them, combine to create the most explosive potential since the Nationalists took refuge on Formosa in 1949.

Drivers' Eye Test Has Set Off Line Of Study

RALEIGH (AP)—Failure to pass visual examinations for driver's licenses account for about 7.9 per cent of the 9,182 applications disapproved in North Carolina during an average month.

This is shown in a three-year research released by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Ed. Scheidt and Dr. D.J. Moffie and Prof. Charles Millon of the North Carolina State College Department of Psychology.

The survey shows that significant differences exist in the visual capacities and incidences of accidents among drivers in the state. Accident-free drivers tend to have better ability to see details, and better depth perception, than do drivers who have had two or three accidents, according to the survey.

The motor vehicles department uses the ortho-rater for eye tests in licensing drivers. The ortho-rater replaced the regular eye chart in July, 1951. The department installed 100 of the visual screening devices throughout the state.

The State College Psychology Department was given a grant to investigate the relationship of vision to accidents as measured by the ortho-rater, and to evaluate the visual standards being issued for licensing.

Under the law, the state's 1 1/2 million drivers are required to take visual tests every four years.

Each month about 2 per cent, or 730 out of 36,000 Tar Heels, fail to meet the minimum visual standards for obtaining a driver's license. After being referred to eye doctors, about three-fourths of the 730 are able to pass the vision tests.

The survey showed that male Negro drivers have the highest ratio of accidents and violations to miles driven of any sex-race group.

The ages of 30-34, 35-39, and 16-19 are crucial years for Tar Heel drivers.

A young mother referred to an eye doctor was found to have a malignant tumor in her right eye. The eye had to be removed, but her left eye was saved from the spreading disease.

Fifteen-Year-Old Admits Murder

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP)—A married 15-year-old girl, who police said admitted the fatal strangling of her 6-year-old stepister because "I hated her," was held today for mental tests.

Police said Mrs. Marion Mosley would be examined today to determine whether charges will be placed against her in the death yesterday of Katherine Nadine Bannister.

The dead girl was found in her home tied to a door knob by a dish towel looped around her neck.

Police said Mrs. Mosley called them to the home and related she had strangled her stepister with a towel. They said she later told them the strangling took place after she had an argument with the girl's mother Mrs. William Bannister.

Mrs. Bannister told police she didn't know of her daughter's death until officers entered the home and found the body.

Mrs. Mosley was held at the Montrose School for Girls, a detention home at Reisterstown.

Stassen Favors Draft-Ike Step

HOUSTON (AP)—Harold Stassen said yesterday President Eisenhower, regardless of whether he seeks re-election in 1956, should be drafted "for the good of the country."

Stassen, twice a candidate for the Republican nomination, said he will not announce again in 1956 because Eisenhower should be allowed to continue his program.

Hopalong Almost Came To Grief

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Hopalong Cassidy—actor William Boyd—almost came to the end of the long, long trail at Adelaide's Norwood Oval last night.

The idol of American youngsters stepped forward on the stage in the center of the arena to speak to the crowd during an exhibition of boomerang throwing.

At that moment the wind caught the fast-traveling missile, dipping it under the awning of the stage. Hoppy heard the whistling, ducked quickly, and the boomerang missed his head by inches. The boomerang later was presented to Hoppy.

The Inheritors

JANE ABBOTT

If the three heirs to old Josh Trevitt's sizeable upstate New York farm remain on it for at least three months after his death, each will inherit one-third of the land. Those leaving sooner must relinquish their share or shares to those remaining, final resident to be awarded the entire farm. So when old Josh died, his kin were notified and copies of his will mailed them. In the late spring, we find Jennie Todd, an interior, a spinster, at the Trevitt place, making ready her quarters in the rambling old farmhouse, and being assisted by Wick Middleton, executor of the Trevitt estate. Cindy Todd, a pretty little motherless teen-ager, joins her Aunt Jenny at the farm, to file claim for her "missing" father's share of the land.

CHAPTER NINE
Wick started out the driveway, but stopped his car at the road, got out of it and went to the front door of the house. He should tell Miss Jennie Todd that her brother's daughter had come.

Jennie Todd opened the door to his knock.
"Oh, Mr. Middleton, I didn't know, I heard some talking . . . Come in."
Wick went into the parlor.
"I stopped in to tell you that your brother's daughter has come."
Jennie stared at him puzzled. "I did not know my brother had a daughter!"

It struck Wick suddenly that he had no proof that this Cindy was any kin of old Josh's.
"Yes, a friend of her father's brought her here. He's going back to Covington early tomorrow. I've heard from your sister, too. She's coming tomorrow—motoring here with her daughter."
At that announcement, to his consternation, Jennie Todd caught her hands together, burst into tears.
She dried her face quickly. "I'm sorry. But I came here—I needed to be alone to learn something—now Hester is coming. I can't call my soul my own when she's around!" She flushed. "Oh, I'm dreadful to talk in this way before a stranger!"

Wick was remembering the skinny little girl with the frightened eyes. He said gently: "I don't want you to think of me as a stranger, Miss Todd. I was a friend of your Uncle Jehosaphat. I'd like to have you look upon me as a friend. And you can be quite independent here—there are bolts on the doors going into the other wings, you know!"
Wick glanced around the room. "Maybe you'd like some books—I've shelvesful of them at my home. I'd be glad to bring you some. Only they're the older books."
"But I like them best," said Jennie. "I didn't have room in my bags to bring any."
"I'll put some in my car next time I come up. Do you like Trollope? He's a favorite of mine."
"Yes, I can read his books over and over. I used to work in a bookshop."
An odd woman he reflected, as he drove away. Yet he felt sympathy for her.
Back in the village he drove to the Buck House, where he went into the bar.
"Hello, Steve," he said. "Some time tomorrow afternoon, late, probably it may be that a lady stops here, asks if I've made reservations for her. Tell her to come to my house. She's a client of mine."

Bright had reassured Cindy that she would have her aunts. Well, she hadn't been any happier for seeing the one who came to her back door in the afternoon. She said: "I am your Aunt Jennie. I stopped to ask if there is anything I can do for you." She said it as if it were choking her to get it out.
Cindy was rather proud of her own coldness in answering. "Nothing, thank you." She went to bed before it was dark. "I won't stay—I won't! I'll write to Dan to come and get me—I'll write to my father."
But in the morning, refreshed by a long sleep, she felt more strong-hearted, as Bright would express it. She built a fire and cooked some oatmeal. When she finished breakfast, she cleared up her dishes, swept the floor. Now she'd explore . . . She went first to the barn. She never before had been in a barn like this. Then she went through the orchard and on into the open fields. The woods beyond the fields attracted her and reaching them, she came to the creek. She followed it, climbing over rocks, and old logs, up and down the shaded bank.

She came to a wide pool of quiet water and stopped. It would be fun to wade into it. She shook off the loafers she wore, rolled her slacks above her knees. As the icy water struck her ankles she let out a squeal of surprise but she went on, stepping carefully on the slippery stones.
"Stop!" a man's voice shouted above her, and, startled, she missed her footing and sat down with a splash in the water.
She got to her feet with some difficulty, glared up at the man on the bank above her. "You made me do that! Yelling at me!"
"I yelled at you because it gets deep."
"You surprised me," she explained, with what she thought was cold dignity. "I did not think there was anyone within miles of here."
"I was surprised myself. I've rather looked upon this pool as private. And mine the exclusive right to use!"
"Oh, I'm trespassing! I thought all this was part of my uncle's farm." She looked across at the woods on the other side of the creek. "You live over there?"
"Yes. At least for the present."
"Who are you?" asked Cindy.
"Gary Norbeck. And you?"
"I'm Cindy Todd. My father inherited part of this farm. He could not come but I came. I'll be here all summer."
All he said was "You'll get chilled in those wet clothes."
She noticed the box and easel he had dropped to the ground, when he shouted at her. "You're an artist?" she asked.
"I work at it."
"I never met an artist! Not a real one."
Gary Norbeck took a step toward her. "I'd like to paint you as you are now—sitting on that rock—the sun on you—the tree shadows beyond."
Cindy, delighted, glowed up at him. "Will you? But not in these old clothes. I'll put on my best dress!"
"No, no . . ."
"Well, something that isn't wet!" Cindy got up from the rock. "I'll come back. Though not this afternoon—this afternoon, if I can find a spade, I'm going to try to dig up some ground for a vegetable garden."
Gary Norbeck said, "I'll dig some ground for your seeds, if you'll pose for me some day!"

"Check," said Cindy. "Will you dig it this afternoon?"

Dorothy Collins Will Return On Nov. 20

By WAYNE OLIVER
NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Spruce up, men. Dorothy Collins, secret flame of millions of males from 6 to 60, will be back on your TV screen Nov. 20.

She has been taking time out to become a mother. She and Raymond Scott, musical director of Your Hit Parade, on which she stars, are parents of their first child—a daughter, Deborah. Dorothy, whose fresh, unsophisticated beauty has caused heart flutters from coast to coast on NBC-TV, has been off the air since June 1 when Hit Parade began its summer vacation. Polly B. has been taking her place since the show resumed Sept. 11.

Miss Collins has been one of the distinctive new personalities developed entirely on TV. While entrancing men she has come so as the old-fashioned girl a man wouldn't dare whistle at, but who stirs visions of a vine-covered cottage and kids around the door.

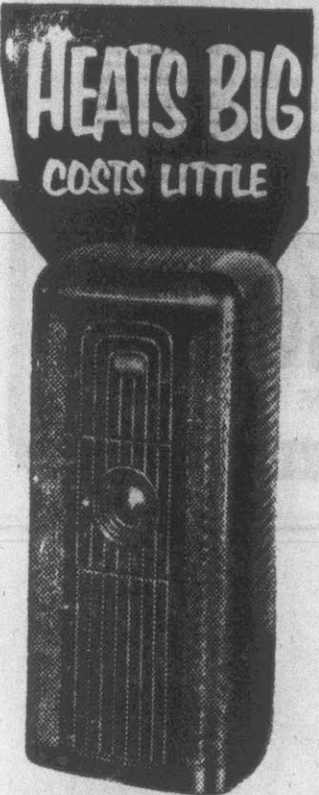

That's exactly the kind of girl Dorothy is off camera, say those who know her best. She always has insisted the most important thing in her life was home and family and that a career came second.

She and Scott shun cafe society and Dorothy still hasn't been inside many of New York's famous night spots.

Since their quiet wedding in July 1952, she and Scott have lived in a comfortable, large home overlooking the water at Babylon on Long Island. However, when they learned a baby was on the way they decided the place wasn't suit-

Firms Hopeful Buying On Time Is Re-Emerging

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Buying on time is picking up a little. And the merchants and finance companies are counting on the postelection enthusiasm in stock market and industrial centers to seep through to the consumers. This could end the trend this year toward paying up old debts rather than hurrying to take on new ones.

Installment buying may pick up speed first in the auto and home appliance fields, where it's an old American custom. Merchants too are expecting installment buying of clothing and furniture to increase.

The way people feel about their own income and job prospects has more to do with the cycles in installment credit than anything else, finance company officials say.

About this time last year, people were worried, and the rate of on-the-cuff buying of cars began to slump. The low point was reached in January of this year, and repayments exceeded new credit extensions through April.

But, as Sidney Rolfe, economist for C.I.T. Finance Corp., explains it, by spring people had decided that the recession would not become a depression, and they began buying more cars on time. With the new models coming out, the finance companies are looking for a big spurt in business.

Today members of the American Finance Conference, a trade association of 360 independent automobile installment credit companies, are meeting here to compare the prospects in various sections of the nation. Like the car makers, they're hoping the outlook for wages and employment is bright enough to induce consumers to take on new auto monthly payments.

The Federal Reserve Board reports that by the end of September Americans owed more than 10 billion dollars on the cars they were driving, auto paper having increased 13 million during that month.

Merchants had $6,674,000,000 on their books in the form of charge accounts, which was 35 million less than a year ago.

But merchants also had another form of credit, installment plan buying, which has grown notably in the last two years. Officials of James Talcott, Inc., one of the firms that finances retailers' credit facilities, report a gain of 30 per cent in that period in this type of financing.

Complaints Over Doggy College

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP)—Washington and Lee University isn't going to the dogs but the dogs are going to the college.

Professors complained to the administration because stray dogs, petted by students, insisted on attending classes. One big hound, denied admittance at the door, leaped through a window.

The problem was referred to Buildings and Grounds Supt. D.E. Brady, who may become chief dog catcher.

Birds often were symbols of ancient Greek gods—the heron for Athena, the cuckoo for Hera, the swan for Apollo.

No Substitute For Water In Civil Defense Planning

RALEIGH — There is no substitute for water in case of atomic attack, Lloyd Layman, Director of fire service for Federal Civil Defense Administration told firemen from seven southeastern states in conference last week in Atlanta. Fifteen firemen representing water-furnished North Carolina listened attentively as he said it.

Today, State Civil Defense Director General Edward F. Griffin stated, "the State Civil Defense office has been concerned for two years with trying to secure temporary relief for drought-stricken communities in our state."

"Water is nature's way of combating fire," he stated, "and in case of enemy attack, there must be plenty of it. During World War II, it was found that in military attack by bombs, fire destroyed sometimes 80 per cent of a city. While state and local officials are considering the seriousness of water shortage under normal conditions, it is important that they realize also the extreme seriousness of such shortage under disaster conditions."

"One of the lessons learned in World War II was that water supplies designed for normal peacetime use were not adequate for fighting war-time fires. Because similar conditions would prevail in our cities if attacked by atomic, incendiary or high explosive bombs, responsible authorities should think in terms of auxiliary water supplies as well as a constant

Private Boat To Move Her Dogs

ISLE OF CAPRI, Italy (AP)—The Countess Maria Anuso has lost her crusade for the 162 homeless dogs of Capri. But when the wealthy countess moves the dogs from their nurse-tended refuge here, by police order it will be done in style.

A private boat will take them to Naples. A special truck caravan will take them to Venice. There new quarters await them, in a fancy home for founding cats which the countess maintains at her villa.

The countess, member of a noble old Venice family and owner of the Villa di Sira, where Mussolini and Hitler met, began it all by collecting whatever stray dogs appeared on Capri. She built her dog refuge in fashionable Anacapri, surrounded by villas.

A neighbor, Giuseppe Duchesne, complained of baying and barking. "When we had guests," he said, "it was impossible sometimes to hear a conversation at the dinner table. "a had to go into other rooms to be able to talk."

71-Year-Old Is Learning To Fly

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—At 71, Mrs. Ida May Relf, a professional photographer of Ponca City, Okla., is learning to fly. Fay Linehan, civil aeronautics safety agent says he thinks she is the oldest woman ever to receive permission to take flying lessons, although there have been many women who have continued to fly past that age.

"I plan to fly for pleasure but it will also be of great help to me if I can fly to Oklahoma City to buy supplies for my studio," she said.

Suggest Stores Close On Dec. 24

It has been recommended by the Greenville Merchants Association that local businesses observe Saturday, December 25 for Christmas and that stores remain open until 8 p.m. December 20-24.

This does not mean every business will remain open at night prior to the holiday, but this procedure has been suggested to local businessmen by the Merchants Association.

The annual Santa Claus and Children's Parade sponsored by the Association will be held December 3 at 4 p.m. and Christmas street lights will be turned on that night.

Plans this year call for the various organizations of the city to enter floats in the parade, with the scenes constructed so they may be removed from the truck or trailer and placed at Elm Street Park. Here they will be lighted to form a Christmas Lane "for the enjoyment of the entire community during the Yuletide season," according to J. L. Harris, chairman of the parade committee.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR

Picture taking has moved indoors for many camera fans and brings with it a few special hazards if photoflood lighting is used. If you're aware of the possible dangers, they can be avoided by prior planning and exercising caution.

Examine your electric wiring to make sure the connections are in good condition and the wires aren't frayed. A central control box is a handy gadget to have near the camera. It can be homemade or bought from your camera dealer. It consists of a series of outlets, into which your lamps are plugged, a long wire which plugs into the electric wall socket and a foot pedal or other switch which turns the current on and off.

If children are being photographed, or are present during a shooting session, you must be alert to their natural inclination to reach for strange objects—even hot photoflood bulbs.

Baby's bath is a favorite subject for camera fans for both stills and home movies. If shot in the bathroom itself, space is small and wires and lamps might be temptingly close to active hands. The water and wet fingers are added dangers in connection with electricity and frayed wires. Mothers with picture taking ambitions should never attempt such a session alone.

Another menace indoors is tripping over wires, light stands, tripod or out-of-place furniture. It can happen to subject, kibitzers, stray children and even yourself.

the subject. It should be placed just a bit further away than the main light. The third light can be used to accent the hair or figure by being placed towards the rear of the subject, opposite the main light. Care should be taken that the light rays don't shine into the lens. The third light might also be turned towards the background for effectively providing a separation of light between the subject and the background, or a fourth light might be added for this purpose.

Opposing Forces Strain To Decide India's Economy

By EUGENE LEVIN
NEW DELHI (AP) — The future of India's economy may be decided in a mounting struggle between private property interests and the Nehru government.

The government contends its entire domestic economic program is at stake. It wants the unlimited right to determine, with parliamentary approval, how much it will pay for any property involved in land reforms, housing and industrial development schemes, including nationalization. Compensation at full market value the government contends, should not be expected.

Property owners a powerful bloc within Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's own Congress party, demand that the government recompense them fully. The controversy is expected to dominate the winter session of Parliament, opening today. Nehru and his party are pledged to create a "welfare state" in India. Key portions of their program call for wholesale property acquisitions.

The government must pay owners for any property "acquired or taken possession of." But the constitution does not say how that compensation should be determined. Officials claim the government is entitled to set a price based on "what society can afford to pay," providing the sum gives a "fair return" and does not amount to confiscation. But recently the Supreme Court said the constitution, as it stands, must be interpreted to mean "full compensation at market value." Nehru and his Congress party then decided to amend the constitution to give Parliament the right to set compensation. In effect, this would mean the government would decide how much to pay; Parliament would be asked to give its approval. Business interests, besides claiming "the fundamental right" of full compensation, insist this amendment would discourage the foreign investors India is trying to attract.

Cancer Research Sum Is Granted

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Dr. Peter A. Lindstrom, ex-husband of screen actress Ingrid Bergman, has received a $4,980 grant from the American Cancer Society for research work.

Dr. Lindstrom has helped develop pain controlling brain operations by use of high frequency sound waves instead of surgery. A neurologist, he is a research associate of the Addison H. Gibson laboratory at the University of Pittsburgh. He also is a member of the staff at the Aspinwall Veterans Administration Hospital.

New Floor Care Ends Waxing

One of the most difficult jobs of housekeeping is to keep linoleum and asphalt tile floors waxed and gleaming. Now, thanks to Glaxo, it is no longer necessary to wax and scrub. All you do is apply Glaxo with a brush about twice a year. It maintains a high luster, non slip coating that seals out dirt. Glaxo dries in one hour and is water clear. It's cheaper than wax in the long run, besides saving a terrific amount of work, plus truly a beautiful floor. Glaxo is available at Belk-Tyler's on the third floor.

Japan And South Korea Relations At Low Ebb

By MURRAY FROMSON
SEOUL (AP) — Relations between Japan and South Korea — bitter rivals although two of America's principal allies in the Far East — are at low ebb.

South Korea has indicated no intention of settling its long-standing feud with Japan even at the risk of losing American aid.

Dr. Karl Hong Ki, Korean government spokesman said recently, "Japan is rapidly becoming a willing tool of the Communists." He also accused the Japanese of helping smuggle Communist agents into Korea and of flooding the country with narcotics.

Even though the Japanese ignore such statements, it is feared they have hurt the possibility of forming a northeast Asia defense alliance, long a rumored but never acknowledged project in U. S. foreign policy plans.

The most recent Japanese-Korean talks broke up in November 1953 after a Japanese delegate said he believed the Koreans actually benefited under the 40-year Japanese occupation which ended in 1945. The Koreans have refused to meet again until the Japanese apologize for that remark.

Koreans want Japan to withdraw all property claims on Korea. They also want the controversial "Rhee Line" recognized before meetings are resumed. And they want back their national art treasures which they claim Japan took during the occupation.

The Rhee Line, extending 60 miles out from the Korean coast, is one of the most critical issues. It originally was established by Gen. Douglas MacArthur at the outset of the Korean War in 1950 to clarify areas of military commands.

President Syngman Rhee of South Korea in 1952 directed that the line be considered the boundary of Korean territorial waters. His ships have seized and confiscated 66 Japanese fishing boats and their 690 crewmen within those waters since September 1953.

The fishermen were returned but Korea kept the boats. Two other amoudering issues are little Tokto (Takeshima) Island and the need for an increase in Japanese-Korean trade.

The Koreans have occupied Tokto, a bleak stack of rocks midway between the two countries. Both countries claim it.

On trade, many feel that Japan's industries are in an excellent position to supply Korea's consumer and capital goods needs but Koreans say this is not so. The United States has indicated that unless Korea weakens its opposition that American aid may be curtailed.

There is renewed talk of bringing the adversaries back around the conference table. Some believe the United States, prompted by Red China's growing strength, may have to step in and take a firm stand.

American observers here and in Korea don't feel that would accomplish much. They say Korea wants to win the game before it ever starts by forcing Japan to give up any bargaining position.

One Car And Two Trains In Wreck

CHAPPELL, Neb. (AP) — Ed Wolf's car was hit by two different trains but he walked away uninjured.

The 78-year-old former mayor of Chappell was driving across the tracks and hit the third car of a westbound streamliner. His car was slammed partially around, still on the tracks. He was helped out of the damaged car and was walking away from the scene when an east-bound freight train smacked the car.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Heavy demand for railroads today sent the stock market boiling ahead in the early afternoon.

Prices were strong with gains going to around 2 points. At the same time there were many losses, some of them quite heavy because of corporate developments.

Deep Rock Oil was down considerably after no dividend action was taken at this time. International Salt fell back on declaration of a $2 dividend making payments this year $3.50 as against $2.50 last year.

Chrysler was lower in the midst of labor difficulties and downward price adjustments on its new models.

Russia Asked To Prevent Future Aerial Incidents

MOSCOW (AP)—The United States asked the Soviet Union today to prevent any more incidents such as the Nov. 7 shooting down of an American plane off the northeast tip of Japan.

The plane an RB29 photo bomber was shot down by Soviet MIGs. Ten men were rescued but one drowned.

A U. S. note delivered to the Soviet Foreign Ministry by the U. S. Embassy, said:

"Such actions are in flagrant contradiction to recent statements by high Soviet officials that the Soviet Union seeks to abate international tension."

The note added that if the Russians fail to take steps to prevent further air incidents, the United States will be forced to take its own action to protect its planes on legitimate missions.

The surviving works of Aristotle mention about 170 species of birds.

See Unanimous UN Approval

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Diplomats from both sides of the Iron Curtain predicted today that President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace plan would win the same unanimous approval the U.N. Assembly accorded the East-West disarmament proposal.

Russia's Andrei Vishinsky was scheduled to speak before the Assembly's main Political Committee today after two days of closed-door talks with American and other Western diplomats on the seven-point resolution to promote the Eisenhower program.

U.S. Chief Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. expressed confidence yesterday that the Assembly would give solid support to the proposal to set up an international atomic agency. East European diplomats were reported making the same prediction.

Speculation mounted that if Russia decides to go along with the seven-point proposal Vishinsky might follow up by announcing the Kremlin will match the U.S. offer of fissionable material to start an international atomic stockpile for peaceful purposes.

Band Boosters To Seek Support

Members of the Greenville High School Band Boosters Club were given membership cards to sell to local citizens at a meeting last night in the high school band room.

The memberships are to be sold for $1 each and proceeds are to be used for the band.

"We are asking everyone in town that will buy one," Mrs. Carrie West, publicity chairman for the club said today. "We have one of the best bands in the state and I certainly think the people of Greenville should get behind them."

She said Frank Steinbeck pointed out at last night's meeting that the Merchant's Association had asked the Tarboro band to participate in the Christmas parade and Tarboro citizens wanted to know why the Greenville band would not participate in parades in Tarboro when requested. Steinbeck said the band had not been able to participate because of lack of funds for transportation to surrounding cities.

Band Director James Rodgers told the club that the most urgent need of the band at present is 10 new uniforms. He declared that a number of new instruments are also needed for the high school music organization.

The group also agreed last night to sponsor a basketball game on December 3 between Greenville housewives and students at the Greenville Beauty School. The band will furnish entertainment at half time and home-made cakes are to be furnished for a cakewalk. Proceeds will be used for benefit of the band.
