Patsy Ann Baker Wins 'Voice Of America' Honor

Patsy Ann Baker, a petite young Greenville High School senior, was awarded a $50 government bond at last night's Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting as winner of the Jaycee sponsored "Voice of America" contest.

Miss Baker won the award after competing with four other county high school winners with a five-minute tape recorded talk on democracy.

As winner in Pitt County the GHS student's record speech will be entered in state competition. The state winner is to compete for national honors and four national winners are to receive all-expense paid trips to Washington, D. C. and Williamsburg, Virginia. In addition, the national winners are to receive $500 college scholarships.

The Voice of Democracy contest was conducted in four Pitt County schools - Greenville, Bethel, Chilo and Ayden. It was open to tenth, eleventh and twelfth grade students and the winners at each school recorded their speeches in Greenville Wednesday night. Following the recording sessions, judges considered the speeches from the tape recordings. The three judges did not see the contestants.

Chosen for second place in the contest was Mary Jo Wynne of Bethel. She received a $25 savings bond. The other two school winners who competed in the county contest were Sandra Porter of Chilo and Ann Griffith Yorkie of Ayden. All four girls attended the Jaycee meeting last night along with their parents. They did not know who the judges had chosen for county winner until the award was made by Bill Corbitt, who has served as chairman of the Jaycee committee which conducted the contest.

The three judges who chose the first and second place winners on the basis of originality, content, and delivery of their speeches were: Bill Watson, Dr. Larry Eckles and Wendell Smiley.

The $50 savings bond to the first place winner was donated by the Greenville Jaycees. The second place $25 savings bond was given by Phil Goodson.

Corbitt paid tribute to the contest entrants for the time and effort that they put into their talks. "All of the speeches were excellent and it was a hard decision to choose the winner," the project chairman declared.

He also paid tribute to R. B. Stirling, advisor to the National Forensic League at Greenville High School. Corbitt said that Stirling was active in arranging the details of the contest and "gave the Jaycees wonderful cooperation."

PLAN HOSPITAL
FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—The Army has set aside funds for a new 500-bed hospital at Ft. Bragg to cost approximately $8,000,000. Rep. P. Eitel Carley told the Fayetteville Observer today.

Judge Dismisses Anti-Trust Action

CHICAGO (AP)—U.S. Dist. Judge Walter J. Labuy today dismissed the government's civil antitrust suit against the duPont interests, General Motors Corp. and the United States Rubber Co.

Judge Labuy held that the government had "failed to prove conspiracy, monopolization, a restraint of trade, or any reasonable probability of a restraint."

The judge held, "There has been no conspiracy to restrain or to monopolize trade, and no restriction or monopolization of the market."

"The essence of the conspiracy and restraint which the government charged and sought to prove in this case," he said, "is the alleged limitation on General Motors' ability to deal as it pleased with competitors of Du Pont and United States Rubber."

He continued, "There is no limitation or restraint upon the freedom of General Motors to deal with its chemical discoveries, no restraint or monopolization of the General Motors market and no restraint or monopolization of the trade and commerce between Du Pont and United States Rubber."

The government has described the action as the biggest antitrust case in U. S. history.

Labuy's opinion said, "The court finds that there has not been, nor is there at present a conspiracy to restrain or to monopolize trade, and no limitation or restraint upon General Motors' freedom to deal freely and fully with competitors of Du Pont and United States Rubber."

Butler is regarded as the choice of Mitchell, who told a news conference yesterday that if some successor isn't picked, the committee will have to go without a chairman after Jan. 1. He said he is determined to retire to private law practice, which he left to head the committee in 1952 at the request of Adlai E. Stevenson, then the party's presidential nominee.

Butler said he was "in the race to stay," adding he has especially strong support in the South.

The choice of Butler apparently would not please former President Harry S. Truman, whose support was claimed by Disalle's backers.

However, Truman said in Kansas City yesterday, "I am taking no active part in the choice of a chairman. I do not have any candidates. I hope the committee will elect a chairman who will take the party to victory in 1956."

Pinneaux, who recently underwent a major operation and found it impossible to come here, was being presented as a sort of compromise candidate, accepted to Stevenson and Truman.

Any ruling that a majority of the full committee membership would be necessary to elect might be overturned by Mitchell in a decision that could be appealed to the committee itself and settled by a majority vote there.

At his news conference later in the day, Gov. Hodges commented he expects business next year to be better than in 1954. "I think generally speaking it is slightly on the upgrade," the governor declared.

Sales tax collections, a good barometer of current business conditions, amounted to $5,163,400, a gain of $100,437 or 1.98 per cent over November of last year.

Total general fund receipts last month were $10,386,121, an increase of $864,740 or 9.08 per cent over November, 1953. For the first five months of the current fiscal year, general fund receipts stand at $54,260,633, up $1,686,582 or 3.21 per cent over last year.

November's highway fund collections totaled $6,594,795, down $81,802 from last year. For the fiscal year so far, the highway fund has collected $34,563,814, a gain of $414,977 over the same period last year.

"This view is supported by the fact that our sales tax collections showed a decrease every month during the current calendar year except March."

Student Problems Discussed By College Curate

Mrs. Craven Hughes was hostess to the Delphin Book Club Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 30, at 3 o'clock.

The president, Mrs. Ed Tipton, opened the meeting and welcomed Mrs. Robert Messner back to the club. Business was discussed and plans made for the club's Christmas party.

Mrs. Hughes then introduced Rev. C. Edward Sharp, St. Paul's Episcopal Church college curate.

Rev. Sharp discussed his work here in Greenville with the Episcopal student center and student activity on campus. He discussed problems of the students and the importance of spiritual growth along with intellectual growth. He stated this development was the most important time of the student lives and that members of the different churches can help the students through their friendliness and encouragement.

Books were then exchanged and a short tea hour was enjoyed.

The Junior Woman's Club met at its regular scheduled business meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Club House.

The president, Mrs. T. R. Jones, called the meeting to order by reading the club collect in union. The secretary, Mrs. Mack Stocks, then called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting.

The club voted to contribute $150 to the Children's Home Society. The Junior Women decided to purchase a Christmas Seal Bond which will benefit the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association.

The president, Mrs. Jones, mentioned the fact that the North Carolina State Legislature will meet in January, 1955. She urged all members to read their papers and listen to all news broadcasts so that they will be aware of what is being introduced to legislators. Each member was urged to write or contact the legislators for approval or disapproval of the bills which they will consider.

Final plans have been made for the Junior Woman's Christmas party which will be held December 15 at the Club House. Each member and their husbands are invited to attend this covered dish supper and party. Guests at this Christmas party will be the Circle K Boys.

The hostesses, Mrs. Mack Stocks and Mrs. Henry Trevathan, served delicious donuts and hot coffee. After the meeting adjourned the club members met in the New Dixie Warehouse for the purpose of decorating the float which will appear in the Christmas parade.

Could, Might, Possible, If And Maybe

Re-reading the grim possibilities of disaster outlined to the second annual Mayors Conference in Washington this week, we are again struck by the paucity of civil defense effort over the nation as a whole.

Billions of dollars are spent annually by the government to strengthen our retaliatory arm in the nation's military establishment; but only niggardly sums allotted to the specific purpose of safeguarding lives and property.

There are reasons for this, of course.

It is hoped that the United States' power of destruction will deter any initial blow by an enemy; then, there is a limit on how much the government can afford to spend, and retain its economic equilibrium. Add to these factors the already strained budgets of state and municipal governments, and one can understand why political leadership is reluctant to divert sums from present needs to meet a mere "possible" contingency.

One hundred cities in the United States lie in the shadow of that possibility, warns the Continental Air Defense Commander; and wishful thinking cannot erase their peril.

Should one try to rationalize that peril, it would appear to be diminishing as the

More Recognition For N.C. Industrial Potential

Elizabeth City has landed a new industry which has significance for the state as a whole in addition to the Albemarle section. It's significance for the immediate area of Elizabeth City is that the new industry will employ some 250 to 300 people in its clothing factory. It is significant from the state standpoint in that it is the first midwestern industry to move to North Carolina lock, stock and barrel.

For years North Carolina has been attracting industries from the Northeastern states. Now, apparently industries in other sections of the country are beginning to look at the industrial advantages offered by North Carolina.

This move of the midwestern industrial plant to Elizabeth City may open new fields for North Carolina's industrial development.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LANDING AT THE BOTTOM

A religious writer of several generations ago made the statement that there are two ways of coming down from the top of a church steeple. "One," he says, "is to jump down, and the other is to come down by the steps; but both will lead you to the bottom. So, also, there are two ways of going to hell; one is to walk into it with your eyes open and the other is to go down by the steps of little sins; and that way is the more common. . . . The devil need only once get the wedge of little sins into your heart and you will soon be all his own. Never trifle with little sins." We moderns have become so enamored of our age that we are likely to discredit much of the wisdom of the past. The material world round about us has changed remarkably in the past one hundred years, but the nature of man and the nature of his moral purposes still remain about the same as they have always been. Ancient counsel, therefore, may be as helpful—and often vastly more helpful—than modern counsel.

At any rate it certainly is true that whether we jump into the evils of life like a man jumping from a church steeple, or go into them gradually, like one descending the stairs, the end is the same. We land at the bottom.

Political Sessions In South

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Many Democratic politicians here privately fear that today's New Orleans session for selection of a new Party Chairman and promotion of harmony may reopen wounds and revive differences between the Northern liberal and Southern conservative factions. Arranged by the Stevenson-Mitchell forces, the meeting has a New Dealish coloration.

The most prominent figures in attendance and on the speakers' program are devoted admirers and supporters of the Roosevelt-Truman political, social and economic program, which is extremely unpopular below the Mason and Dixon Line. Their appearance is understandable because it was in the North—Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania—that the Democrats made their greatest gains in the November election.

Comparatively few Southern State Executives accepted National Chairman Mitchell's original invitations. It may be an exaggeration to suggest that they are boycotting the convocation, but it is obvious that they are not too delighted with this apologetic invasion of their domain by men still regarded as "political carpetbaggers."

HARRIMAN AS STAR PERFORMER—Governor-elect Averell Harriman, for obvious reasons, has been booked as the star performer.

But it does not require an elephantine memory, although they have it, for certain Southern leaders—Byrd of Virginia, George and Russell of Georgia, Byrnes of South Carolina, Shivers of Texas—to recall that Harriman asked Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. to become a member of his New York cabinet. And it was young F.D.R. who headed the movement to oust Dixie's delegations from the 1952 convention.

Two other feature attractions are Governor-elect Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota and Senator-elect Patrick V. McNamara of Michigan. As a Democrat-Farmer-Labor champion and an American Federation of Labor official, respectively, both represent atomic arsenals of the world's main protagonists grow.

Consider.

Great cities are more than centers for manufacturing and shipping war materiel. They have life, tradition, culture and wealth that is shared with the world. We know that, and to the Russian it must be self-evident too, as he looks about his society, it would take the brutality and callousness of an Attila to erase all moral factors in deliberately setting off a retaliatory war of mutual ruin.

Who would profit by the sudden wiping out of millions of women, children and elderly people? Who would profit by erasing of great cultural centers? Who might gain, and what, in reducing great and little churches to rubble? How could victory be served by such tragedy? For as long as Man might remember, the instigator of atomic war would bear the stigma of having destroyed so much of the past, so much of the future.

Wonder if maybe such considerations have not disturbed concepts of strategy "over there" and even here? Could be that Mars has met his match, and no longer can indulge in major wars.

Yes, there is a possibility elaborate civil defense spending would be a needless waste; but it is still just a "possibility". Knowing how ruthless Communism can be, though, still leaves a big question mark after the word "possibility".

December 15 Is A Good Day For A Miracle

December 15 could be a good day, or just like any other on the calendar.

Think of it! Twenty-four hours with no traffic accidents.

We think, and so do you, such an idea is impossible. But motorists could try some of that extra-safe driving for just one day, and see what happened. Might be surprising.

Everyone who drives a vehicle is in a position to offer his or her share of extra safety toward a day of miracles. . . for it would be something of a miracle, no accidents across our highways for twenty-four hours.

If everybody got behind the idea, and really pushed, something might come of it.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., NEWS-TRIBUNE: "Courtesy costs nothing. It makes living easier and more pleasant. The employee, or the self employed, no matter how hard he works, is giving less than his best if he forgets the need for courtesy in dealing with people."

MIAMI, FLA., JEWISH FLORIDIAN: "A free society needs men . . . who are actively engaged in governing themselves. . . . Effective citizenship as a goal of education is more important now than it has ever been in our history."

PINE BLUFF, ARK., COMMERCIAL: "Excessive pampering, too much spending money, the chance to raise hob with the family car, too many late dates and filthy comic books . . . have not sufficed to dim the light of youth. . . . Here is a sample of idealistic youth at its best. A 17-year-old high school student wrote the following: 'Think of all the great men this country has known, and what they've done to advance modernism of today. Edison, Lincoln, Washington . . . remind us too often of how little some of us have done to help the great nation they so devoutly served.'" elements distasteful to the South.

HOUSTON CHOICE FOR GOP PARLEY—The South's new importance in the changing political system is reflected in the fact that the Republicans' selection of Houston as the site of a National Committee parley constitutes a definite bid to that section. Once taken for granted by the Democrats and ignored by the GOP, this flourishing area is now a supposedly debatable battleground on the national level.

The Republicans think they have a chance to make new gains in the 1956 Presidential election. They won a Congressional seat in Texas last month, and retained four out of five House places in Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee.

SOUTH'S PRESENT POSITION—In South Carolina, former Governor J. Strom Thurmond, a "write-in candidate," won the senatorial contest over the regular organization's nominee. Thurmond was entered in the race by Governor Byrnes, who was an open supporter of Eisenhower in 1952. Running against Thurmond in 1948 was the "Dixiecrat" entry, Thurmond carried four states.

The South may be a long way off from becoming a two-party area, although it could become such in national elections, as 1948 and 1952 suggested. But it has attained the comfortable spot in which it may say with safety: "A plague on both your houses!"

BOOST FOR MILK CONSUMPTION—Secretary Ezra Taft Benson may soon send a thank-you note to Pierre Mendes-France, but it will have nothing to do with politics or diplomacy.

He hopes that newspaper pictures showing the French Premier as a hard drinker of milk will boost his campaign for increased consumption of that product.

Whether due to the foreign statesman's advertisement or to Benson's persistent efforts and example, sales of this important farm commodity are showing a definite increase, as against a normal seasonal drop in cold weather.

Somebody Told Me

Good Market For Light Bulbs

Last night I had a good time walking the streets of Greenville, selling light bulbs for the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Also, I found column information about an entertaining event that's coming up tonight.

Ed Bass, Charlie Lewis and I comprised a three-man team and it took us only a few minutes over an hour to sell our quota of 50 packages of light bulbs. At the last count all Jaycee teams had sold out and of course the profit goes to help needy families at Christmas.

Ed and I broke up the city council meeting; sold all seven packages we had on hand at the time.

Naturally the type of reception we received differed. Many, as a result of advanced publicity, had their dollar bills ready for the occasion. One man said the bulbs in the package were too strong for him; he didn't burn over a 25-watt. Many offered us a seat and we were tempted to take Howard Waldrop up on his invitation for coffee.

Final results were not in when we finished, but it was assumed that Patrolman Jim Boykin was the champion salesman. When the prospects opened the door and saw him standing there with his uniform on most of them would have given $5 for him to go away with no further comment. Not that they had any reason to fear the law, but you can imagine how shocking it would be to open the door and see the law there.

After the selling session J. B. Smith, Jim Rogers and I convened over a cup of coffee. Jim told me about the GHS Band Booster's Club basketball game tonight at eight in the high school auditorium.

School funds provided are not adequate for the size and calibre band Jim is building, so band parents and students have become organized into this group in order to raise additional funds for instruments and uniforms.

Tonight it will be a girl's game between the band mothers and the students at the Greenville beauty school. Lineups were incomplete last night, but these girls will play: Mesdames Julius W. Ward, Conner Eagles, Elmer Bland, Dorothy Johnson, Sally Broughton, Eva D'Arcangelo, Julia Harris, and Marjorie Manning. Cheerleaders will be Mesdames C. B. West, Jr., Lilly Parks, Frank Steinbeck, Amos Evans and Ed Moore.

Frank Steinbeck is president of the GHS Band Booster's Club and membership fee is $1. Admission to the game is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. Greenville merchants have made a terrific contribution to the band; 68 uniforms. But now there are 83 in the band. Civic clubs gave more last year. But this year the Booster's Club is determined to make enough money to supply the need. If you want to help, see any member of the band for a membership card.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

TO THE MIDDLE AND TO THE LEFT
(Henderson Dispatch)

North Carolina's two United States senators were sworn into office in Washington Monday with much fanfare and pomp on the part of their admirers who went to the capital for the occasion. Senator Ervin is the senior senator by reason of his appointment last spring to the vacancy created by the death of Senator Clyde Hoey, and Senator Scott defeated Senator Lennan at the polls after Lennan had been named to fill out the unexpired term of the late Willis Smith.

In these two officials, North Carolina has in the upper house of Congress a middle of the road in the person of Ervin and a liberal in Scott. In such roles they are reflecting attitudes and convictions held through the years and while serving in public office previously, mostly in the State.

Scott, as is well known, was extremely liberal in his conduct of the office of governor. He went into that office on such a platform, and cut to the right and the left in smashing precedent. He was elected to the Senate on a similar platform and may be expected to carry on in that manner while in Washington. He would have been a perfect fit for the Truman era.

Ervin is not as far to the left as his colleague, but is not by any means a mossback conservative. He is generally recognized as a middle of the road thinker and official. He is about as conservative as any man who could be elected to public office in North Carolina. The State as a whole has shifted considerably in the last decade or two in its outlook and approach to governmental issues. There are, however, many who have not gone along all the way with that political complex, but their number is not as great as formerly.

In Scott and Ervin, therefore, North Carolina has in the Senate two men who do not always see eye to eye on public questions, but the liberals have their representation and the center and right groups are pleased with their man. It is a divided political complex, and one which suits the State in many respects.

Around Capitol Square

Constitutional Inadequacies Are Again Pointed Out

By LYNN NISBET

OMISSIONS — Omissions and inadequacies in the North Carolina constitution respecting succession to the Governorship and other guaranties of continuing stable government have been pointed out from time to time. Most of these inadequacies could be cured by advance thought, but human nature being what it is there is understandable unwillingness to give thought to unpleasant prospects.

The recent death of Governor Umstead and the succession of Lieutenant Governor Hodges to the office of Governor has focused attention on some of these points which have been ignored through 75 years since the present constitution was adopted.

The present situation is unprecedented, in that the Lieutenant Governor has been called upon to assume the duties of Governor before the convening of a session of the General Assembly, thus creating a vacancy in the office of president of the senate when the Legislature was not in session. The last time a Lieutenant Governor had to take over the chief executive office was in 1891, after the second legislature of Governor Fowle's administration had adjourned. That situation presented no acute problem and in the 63 years no body has thought to make provision for a condition such as now faces the State.

While there is some confusion as to exact process and as to titles, the constitutional provisions are fairly clear on methods of assuring succession to the governorship. If the elected Governor is for any reason incapacitated, the Lieutenant Governor takes over. That leaves a vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate. But there is provision for the senate to elect a president if it is in session, and for the secretary of state to call into special session if the vacancy occurs during a recess.

In event of further vacancy in the Governor's office the President of the Senate assumes the duties. All of that is fairly clear.

CLOUDY — The expression "fairly clear" in the foregoing paragraph is used advisedly, because there are some heavy clouds on the horizon.

The Legislature is not in session, and will not convene until January 5. Membership in the 1953 Legislature was destroyed when election of members to the 1955 was certified. Only the Governor, with concurrence of the council of state, can call a special session of the full General Assembly. If occasion should require the secretary of state can call a special session of the senate, only for the purpose of electing a president to assume the office of governor. That would seem to take care of the situation, except in extreme contingencies. Such extreme contingency might have arisen last Monday.

On the same airplane going to Washington for the swearing in of Senators Ervin and Scott were Governor Luther Hodges and Secretary of State Thad Eure, the only two men with constitutional authority to convene the General Assembly or the Senate. Since the office of Lieutenant Governor is vacant, if the plane had crashed and those two men incapacitated to perform their official duties there is no constitutional provision for selecting a governor.

A few years ago it was noted that Governor J.M. Broughton, Lieutenant Governor R.L. Harris, and Senate President pro tem J. Hampton Price were all three in one automobile on an out-of-state trip. That left no authoritative Governor in North Carolina, but there remained the opportunity for the secretary of state to convene the senate and get a governor, in event the three top men should have been incapacitated.

The situation created by the presence of Governor Hodges and Secretary of State Eure in the same plane Monday was different and comparable to the situation which this column has often pointed out in connection with quadrennial inaugural ceremonies when the outgoing and incoming Governors and Lieutenant Governors, along with all members of the Council of State, the General Assembly and the Supreme Court congregated in one building at the same time.

NEEDED — There is apparent need for amending the constitution to provide for filling this gap. Plane crashes and automobile accidents are more spectacular, but the unpleasant fact is that the combined toll of such incidents is less than the aggregate toll of heart diseases. There is always the possibility of vacancies suddenly occurring for which there is no present provision for

Business Today

Liability And Juries

By ELMER ROESSNER

The larceny in so many hearts—and the generosity of juries with other people's money—has made product liability insurance a matter of urgency with many companies. The bigger a company is, the greater the need for protection. Once a corporation is known as a giant, people are quick to demand damage payments on the grounds the product ruined their health and psyche, and juries are eager to move decimal places to the left.

Product liability insurance protects companies from claims arising from death, injury or financial loss caused by a product under circumstances for which the manufacturer is responsible. A piece of metal in a car of hash, improper wiring in an appliance, lethal germs in a jar of cheese, a falling airplane—all result in claims.

At a recent American Management Association discussion on insurance by which companies can minimize losses from such claims, the figures ran amazingly high.

The offer of a chemical company said firms in this field should carry a minimum of $1,000,000 in product liability insurance. An executive of an airplane manufacturing company said that in his field the total liability arising from the failure of a single plane might run as high as $16,000,000. Against this he said, the maximum amount of insurance available is $10,000,000 a ship, and rates are so high that a policy on an entirely new model might cost $20,000.

One of the authorities pointed out that insurance is not the complete answer. Constant checking and testing of the product itself is an important part. Furthermore, he added, insurance companies are likely to settle for small amounts in doubtful cases, but these tacit admissions that the product is at fault may eventually injure the manufacturer's reputation. His own manufacturing company, he said, handles all claims under $500 and insists on being consulted in all other settlements.

Many claims against corporations are just shakedown, he said. His company has faced claims resulting from alleged shingle nails in ice cream, upset stomachs among dogs and impotency in male minks. He added:

"All dogs that we have come in contact with as a result of product liability claims were either grand champions or potential grand champions. Where the pedigree or direct observation would not support the noble lineage, we usually find that these are exceptionally intelligent dogs performing many essential and intricate tasks around the home, or are eligible for honorary college degrees if not actual diplomats."

CLUSTER OF GLOBES IN CEILING PASSE

Lighting in the homes of the future will be far different, according to engineers of one of the largest electrical companies. The portable lamp will still be used, they think, but most lighting will come from luminous ceilings and walls. They also believe there will be a greater use of colored lights, more flexible control of lighting and "more dramatic effects."

The typical businessman, fast-talking on his feet, "speaks like a man walking on stilts" when it comes to dictating a letter, according to C.L. Shetter, training director for Minneapolis-Honeywell.

Utilities Preparing Special Service

Greenville Utilities customers will be able to pay their bill at any time during the day or night when the new depository now being installed in city hall is completed.

When the device is completed the customers can place their check or money into an envelope, along with the utilities bill mailed to electricity, water and gas uses each month, and drop the envelope into the depository.

The payment will be promptly credited against the customer's account.

Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam said today that the depository will be ready for use within a week or ten days.

"When the installation is completed the east entrance to the lobby of city hall will be open at all times," Bloxam asserted.

Workmen are now busy installing an additional set of doors in the hallway. The doors are at the opposite end of the passageway from the outside doors. The new doors, which open into the lobby of the building, will be locked when city and utilities office close in the afternoon. However, the outside doors will remain open for the convenience of late-paying utilities customers.

In Hallway

The new depository is being installed in the short east hallway. Envelopes for paying utilities bills are placed in the upper portion of the device and when a knob on the front of the depository is twisted a quarter turn it ejects the envelope ready for use.

Once the payment and utilities bill is placed in the paper envelope it can be dropped through a slot in the depository. The payment falls into a vault which is opened by a combination lock. The vault will be cleared out each morning.

Bloxam pointed out that plans call for installing a desk in the hallway for the convenience of customers who use the new service. The utilities superintendent said a pen and blank checks are to be kept at the desk for those who wish to pay by check.

The service will also be available during the day time, according to Bloxam.

"Anyone wishing to pay by check or by cash when there is a line during the day can use this same facility," the utilities superintendent declared. "It is available for daytime use if customers want to eliminate standing in line. It's a 24-hour service."

Enclose Bill

It is requested by the Utilities Commission that the monthly bill sent out by the commission be enclosed in the envelope along with the payment, whether it be by cash or check.

However, for those who forget to bring their bills, space is provided on the envelope for the name, address and the amount enclosed.

For those who do not have the correct change if they are paying by cash, instructions on the envelope advise that they "come as close as possible in excess and the over-payment will be credited to your deposit account."

Bloxam estimated the entire cost of the project at "in the neighborhood of $450."

DEAN TO RETIRE

A hippopotamus can grow to be 14 feet long.

WINTERVILLE — The Parent-Teacher Association of Robinson Union and Warren's Chapel schools had a joint meeting last week at the Warren Chapel School.

President David Henderson of the Robinson Union School P.T.A. conducted a devotional period. Committee member Miss R. L. Harris gave a summary of future programs.

Mrs. Rebecca Harris and Mrs. Mary Hammonds, delegates to the recent district P.T.A. meeting, made their report. The meeting's theme was, "New Responsibilities In A Changing Society."

The program at Warren's Chapel School included a panel discussion by grammar grade teachers of "Know Your School." The discussion was based on what the grammar department is doing about: Learning by experience, health safeguards, recreation, study habits, mental, physical and emotional development, the frustrated child and citizenship.

No Longer Eager To Give Asylum

BERLIN, (P)—The Russians are no longer eager to grant asylum to Allied servicemen who cross to Soviet-occupied East Germany.

In the past, they welcomed such defectors usually soldiers in serious trouble with their own army—and tried to make propaganda capital of the desertions. But in recent weeks the Russians have sent back seven British soldiers and one American within a few days after they turned up in the East.

Western officials believe the Soviets no longer want to be bothered with "small fry."

The first instance cropped up three weeks ago when Sgt. James R. Bissonnette of Grand Rapids, Mich., asked political asylum in the East and was returned.

Testimony at his subsequent court-martial for desertion showed he fled to East Germany because he was in trouble in his infantry unit in Berlin. Soviet authorities got in touch with American liaison officers here and virtually compelled him to go back.

Later, seven British privates crossed to East Berlin. Five had broken out of a guardroom at British barracks and the other two went East while on pass. Soviet authorities returned all within a week.

Saint Nick Has 'Warm-Up' Role

SCHULENBURG, Tex. (P)—Children in this little German-American community will hang up their stockings Sunday night in hopes St. Nicholas will fill them with presents.

Christmas morning, they'll dive for the Christmas tree to see what Santa Claus brought.

Now you may think that Santa Claus and St. Nicholas are one and the same. But children here expect St. Nicholas to fill their stockings with little "warmup" presents. They look for Santa Claus to leave the big toys under the tree Christmas Eve.

It's an old custom brought here in the 19th century by German settlers.

Phantoms Tackle Wilson With Dream Of Conquest

Winterville Wins Double-Header Over Grimesland

GRIMESLAND—Winterville handed Grimesland defeats at both ends of a Pitt County Conference doubleheader here last night, the girls winning 84-74 and the boys winning 64-44.

Winterville's profile scorers, Little and B. Evans, were just too much for the fighting Grimesland sextet. The former dumped in a round 42 points—the largest total recorded in the conference this season—and the latter contributed 21 markers.

Grimesland's big three—Joy Lewis, Pat Tucker and Becky Mills—led the way for the losers. They collected 22, 20, and 21 points respectively.

Reflector Sports Writer
Greenville's Phantoms move after their second consecutive AAA victory tonight when they tangle with the Wilson Cyclones in the ACC gym in Wilson.

The Cyclones, usually one of the stronger teams of the AAA Eastern Conference, may have a lot to say about the Greens getting their second straight win. Last year the Green Phantoms overpowered the Cys two times as they swept on to one of their best seasons in year. The Cys are supposed to have a better team than the one they fielded last season, however.

The G-men looked alternately good and sloppy in the season opener against Rocky Mount. Numerous wild passes hurt the team considerably. This week in practice Coach Bo Farley has had his squad drilling on the fast break. While the G-men have been looking good against their reserves it could be a different story when they play a club like the Cyclones.

In yesterday's drill the Phantoms looked especially sharp. Tommie Saled was extremely sharp as he popped in point after point. Harold Edwards and Bob Howell showed up very well in leading the fast break as did guard Pat Sawyer. Six foot forward Edgar Moore also looked good. Ike Riddick, who alternated in the first team five considerably, was hot as a firecracker. The junior speedster was scoring from every angle, almost as consistently as Saled.

Clark Noble was used at center some by Coach Farley and looked good on defense, although he still is not up to par on offense. Noble is not a plop on offense. Noble repeatedly blocked shots attempted by the reserve center.

The Greens go into tonight's encounter without as much rust on their bones as they did Wednesday night against Rocky Mount. The G-men will be trying to show more offensive power than the 46 points they could muster against Coach Bill Lundy's crew.

With a strong opponent on hand the G-men will have to go hard all the way. Coach Farley probably will go with his same starting line-up of Moore and Howell at forwards, Edwards at center, Saled and Sawyer at guards. Riddick, Noble, and Tommy Norris will be the chief reserves.

Ayden Hoopsters Drop Twin Bill Against Belvoir

BELVOIR—Ayden High's Tomatoes went down to defeat in both ends of a Pitt County Conference basketball doubleheader at the hands of Belvoir here Wednesday night.

In the first game, the Belvoir girls rode to an easy 62-27 victory. The top point-makers for the winners were Clark with 19, Parker with 17 and Stevens with 12. High scorer for the out-classed Ayden girls was Varfield with 13 markers.

It was the fourth win for the Bethel lassies as compared against one loss and one tie. The game marked the season opener for Ayden.

The second game, which the Belvoir boys won 50-49, had a story book finish. The action was fervent throughout the contest and the scoring nip-and-tuck. With one minute remaining, Ayden was out in front 49-48. Doug Parker was fouled by an Ayden player on the baseline and went to the free throw line with two gift shots. He sank them both for the victory.

High scorer for Ayden was Doug Worthington with 23 points. Warren led the Belvoir scoring with 18 points and Parker had 16.

Aussie Net Ace Target Of Criticism For Play

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—Lewis Hoad, once Australia's tennis hero, was criticized in Melbourne newspapers today as an "irritating and half-hearted" player whose career has been irreparably damaged by an "outrageous performance" in the Victorian championships.

Alan Trengove in the Daily Argus said, "Hoad can give up any hope of turning professional in the near future."

Frank Bird in the Sun said Hoad, in losing to America's Vic Seixas, gave the "worst demonstration of bad court manners since Art Larsen was here four years ago."

Seixas beat Hoad in straight sets in the semifinals yesterday. Seixas had been scheduled to play in the doubles final today with Tony Trabert against Rex Hartwig and Mervyn Rose, the Australian Wimbledon champs, but rain washed out the match. It was rescheduled for Monday in deference to Seixas who meets Ken Rosewall for the singles title tomorrow.

Bird added that hundreds of spectators left the court when Hoad smashed a ball into the backstop and another high into the grandstand.

Jack Harper in the Age wrote Hoad must improve 50 per cent in rate selection on the Davis Cup team.

Class AA Grid Title At Stake

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The North Carolina Class AA football championship will be decided here tonight when Reidsville and Graham meet.

Reidsville, the Western division champion, is undefeated except for one tie. Graham lost two games at the start of the season but hasn't lost since.

Reidsville with 10 victories beat Andrews 21-7 for the Western title. Graham stopped Clinton 20-6 for the Eastern title.

Newcomer Ryff Favored Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Young Frankie Ryff has come up so fast this year that he's a candidate for fight rookie of the year as well as being in line for a shot at the lightweight title.

The 22-year-old New Yorker will get the second big test of his budding career tonight when he faces 26-year-old Orlando Zulueta in Madison Square Garden.

Frankie is the 8-5 choice although the clever Cuban is ranked higher in the division. Zully is ranked as the fourth contender and Ryff No. 5.

Speight And Others Earn Honors For Football Play

Halfback James Speight of the Greenville Phantoms was honored by the News and Observer by his selection on the first team All-Eastern AA honorary squad.

Speight was picked at halfback as the only Greenville player to make the first squad. Several others from the Northeastern Conference made the team, including Bud Parker of New Bern and Buddy Potter of Kinston.

Speight was picked for his outstanding running and general all-around play by the coaches of Eastern AA teams. For the year the speedy Phantom senior scored 67 points and led the team in rushing with 755 yards in 96 carries for a 7.7 rushing total per carry.

The Greenville senior also was captain of the team this year. His service as an offensive back was not the only one he gave to his club. Speight was used as a defensive halfback and was instrumental all year long in bringing down enemy runners before they broke through the secondary.

Although Speight was the only member of the Phantoms to make All-Eastern several other players were rewarded by the coaches poll in other ways. Bob Howell and Speight were both named All-Northeastern Conference halfbacks. Honorable mention for All-Conference went to Larry Powell, Pete West, and Tommy Smith.

Powell was the Phantoms' first team center while West and Smith were offensive guard and tackle. West was most valuable as a linebacker on defense.

With other "all" teams to come, the Greensville should put a host of their stars into the limelight.

Midwest Raises All-America Crop

By BOB HOBBING
The Associated Press
The bountiful Midwest and Pacific Coast offer the majority of this year's All-America football candidates—like Ralph Guglielmi, Alan Ameche, Howard Cassidy, Paul Larson, Bob Davenport and George Shaw.

In fact the Midwest All America Board has come up with more players in their own area than there's room for in any one backfield.

Quarterbacks Guglielmi of Notre Dame and Len Dawson of Purdue, halfbacks Howard Cassidy of Ohio State and Bob McNamara of Minnesota and fullbacks Ameche of Wisconsin and Hubert Bobo of Ohio State all received strong support from their area.

Oregon's George Shaw and California's Paul Larson, a pair of field generals who rank 1-2 nationally in total offense, wound up on the first all PCC team together and are among the leading nominees. Reports from the Pacific slopes indicate that Davenport of UCLA's unbeaten, untied Bruins, is as fine a fullback as there is in the land.

And from Southern Cal's Rose Bowl-bound Trojans comes halfback Lindon Crow.

These two sections don't have a monopoly, of course. Rice halfback Dick Moege capped a great year by scoring two touchdowns, one on a 91-yard punt return, as the Owls knocked Baylor out of a possible Southwest Conference first place tie. Another Big Southwest name is fullback Henry Moore, workhorse of regional champion Arkansas.

In the East, Army's Pete Vann and West Virginia's Freddie Wyant proved master ball handlers at quarterback for their respective teams. Penn State junior halfback Lenny Moore and Boston University fullback Sam Pino have been rated tops as runners.

Fullbacks are plentiful in the Southland with Maryland's Dick Bielski, Auburn's Joe Childress and Tennessee's Tom Tracy among them.

Earl Lunsford, of Oklahoma A&M and wingback Frank Bernard from Colorado head the choices from the Midlands.

Coaches, officials, and others interested in basketball for women are invited to attend a clinic and demonstration at East Carolina College Wednesday, December 8.

Neil Stallings of the college health and physical education department, president of the North Carolina Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, is in charge of arrangements for the program. Meetings will be held in the Memorial Gymnasium on the West Campus.

A discussion and demonstration of basketball rules for women, opening event of the session, will take place at 4 p.m. in Room 104. Standardization of interpretations of rules will be stressed. A film on rules will be shown.

A demonstration and practical work in officiating will be staged at 7 p.m. on the main floor of the gymnasium.

Duke Mentor Is Coach Of Year

GREENSBORO — Duke's Bill Murray has been chosen football "Coach of the Year" in the Atlantic Coast Conference in a vote of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Assn.

Murray, who guided the Blue Devils to the ACC title and a berth in the Orange Bowl game on Jan. 1 against Nebraska in his fourth year at Duke, had a comfortable margin in the vote of 43 newsmen. He won 145 points. Voting was on a 5-3-1 basis.

B.F. Goodrich SAFETYLINER TUBELESS

is the new-car Tubeless with the 6-year lead,
COSTS NO MORE THAN REGULAR TIRE AND TUBE

Car Manufacturers' Adoption of Safetyliner Tubeless climaxes 6 years of single-handed B. F. Goodrich Tubeless Tire development.

SAFETYLINER GIVES PATENTED PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS, REVOLUTIONARY PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDS

B. F. Goodrich announces a new Tubeless—the B. F. Goodrich SAFETYLINER—that puts Tubeless Tire safety in the regular tire-and-tube price range!

Engineered exclusively for today's streamlined new cars, this streamlined Tubeless Tire is the choice of many car makers for new 1955 cars. It has no inner tube to blow out. Instead it has a patented inner liner, part of the tire itself. In case of a bruise-break, cause of most sudden blowouts in tires with tubes, the SAFETYLINER does not blow out. You merely get a gradual loss of air—a safe s-s-slowout that gives you time to stop safely.

17% Better Skid Resistance
A new tread design gives the B. F. Goodrich SAFETYLINER greater skid resistance than previous new-car tires. In locked-wheel stopping tests on smooth, wet pavement, SAFETYLINERS stopped in 17% less distance. It is designed for modern highways, and the new powerful cars. It practically eliminates squeal.

A Cry Out of the Depths

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalms 86; 130.

"Out of the depths have I cried unto Thee, O Lord. Lord, hear my voice. If Thou, Lord, shouldst mark iniquities who shall stand? But there is forgiveness with Thee."

"My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning." The Levite watchman in his tower watched for the morning when the first sacrifice would be offered.

"Among gods there is none like unto Thee, O Lord; neither are there any works like unto Thy works. All nations shall come and worship before Thee and glorify Thy name."

"Teach me Thy way, O Lord; I will walk in Thy truth; I will praise Thee, O Lord, with all my heart, for great is Thy mercy toward me."

A Cry Out of the Depths

MAN PLEADS WITH GOD THAT HIS PRAYERS MAY BE HEARD, CONFIDENT OF FORGIVENESS

Scripture—Psalms 86; 130.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

"OUT of the depths have I cried unto Thee, O Lord. Lord hear my voice; let Thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications."

How many in deep trouble have so cried to the Lord for aid all down the centuries since these words were first written! Men and women who never attend church, never pray, turn to their Maker when deep trouble or tragedy strikes, and ask His help.

The saying coined during wartime, that "there are no atheists in foxholes," is just as true of everyone in trouble.

The lesson is rather a difficult one for small children. They might be asked how many of them say their prayers when they go to bed; how many talk to Jesus in the morning when they wake to a new day.

The evening prayer might well begin by asking their Father in heaven to forgive them their wrong doings during the day, and to help them to be better. In the morning they might thank Jesus for a new day, the comforts they enjoy and the love of parents, relatives and friends.

Also they could thank the Maker for the beauty of the world in which they live, and, if the comforts mentioned are not theirs, for His help in bearing their trials and in so living that their lives may be acceptable in His sight.

"For Thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon Thee."—Psalm 86:5.

was not a military watchman, but to the "custom of the Levites who kept the night watch in the temple appointed to watch for the moment of dawn, when the daily sacrifice was to be offered." The dawn brought them not only release from work, but the blessing of the renewal of God's mercy.

"Let Israel hope in the Lord; for with the Lord there is mercy, and with Him is plenteous redemption. And He shall redeem Israel from all his iniquities."

Psalm 86 is "A prayer of David," and you remember David's sin in coveting another man's wife, commanding that the husband be sent to the front of battle that he might be killed so David could marry the wife.

David was punished for his evil, and forgiven, but in this prayer he cries to the Lord to be merciful, "For Thou art good, and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon Thee."

"Among the gods there is none like unto Thee, O Lord; neither are there any works like Thy works. All nations whom Thou hast made shall come and worship before Thee, O Lord; and shall glorify Thy name. For Thou art great, and doest wondrous things; Thou art God alone."

A prayer for us all to remember and repeat continually is David's plea:

Give Something For The Home

You Will Be Doing More "At Home" Entertaining

Christmas is a happy time and from all indications, the happy spirit will be maintained throughout the year. Americans are returning to home entertainment—musical entertainment. This means the addition of new items of furniture to meet the demands of an old custom—the family gathering.

Music - to listen to, and to make - is growing into our lives as a background for gracious living. Gay grace notes trip across dress and drapery fabrics, and you'll find sprightly measures from the classics in wall coverings. Telling lines from the classics have been framed as wall accessories as well as miniatures of musical instruments, and in many homes, real instruments are hung on walls.

Perhaps it started with the portable radio which lets you take music everywhere. Or with television, which to date, keeps us in one place to watch. Perhaps it stems from today's easy-to-play instruments like the chord organ, and a desire for personal achievement as a part of our relaxed living program. At any rate, today there's music in the air, and throughout our homes.

There is a reason for more music in our home today - we entertain more at home and the family spends more leisure time there. With all this our furniture gets more use, and possibly pieces that we have had around the house for many years, suddenly show their age. Then too, maybe you have found that your present furnishings are not suited to your new found home entertaining.

THE NEW CURVED sectional sofa is a natural for your television area. Chairs with revolving bases or easy rolling casters are also a must for your television room.

If you have a separate music room which doubles as a den, you will want to select furniture that can take the wear and tear this room will get.

Among popular music centers in the home are family activity areas where wall and floor coverings are easy to care for, where furniture design and upholstery invites family relaxation - an area combining TV, hi-fi, radio, an electronic organ, and such portable instruments as violin, horns, or even a mouth harp.

Little Storage Chest Is A Big Gift

Storage has always been a great problem in the small home and apartment. The solution lies in wise planning and selection of storage pieces, and their strategic placement about the home.

CHEST OF ANY and many sizes are a boon to good storage. The wise homemaker can utilize them so that they will be attractive in her home as well as useful. Their flexibility gives the homemaker an unlimited amount of play in the arrangement of her home. The night stand in the bedroom may become a chairside reading table or a small wall console in the living room. Drawers in even the smallest chest, afford valuable storage for items peculiar to a particular area.

The very small low slung foot chest, which are utilized in the bedroom to hold extra blankets and linens, will also suffice for storage purposes in the dining room or living room. Paired under a window and topped in attractive accent color cushions, they serve well in a seating capacity too. Styles come in Traditional, Provincial or Modern and will either match or harmonize with the general decor of the home.

The gift for the home makes everyone happy. Shown is a roomful of home gifts that will enable you to get the most out of life. There is a return to home entertaining, and this room setting provides all the ingredients. The stacking tables for snacks, the arm chair and ottoman with zip-on upholstery covers for foam rubber cushions, the television set, the spinet organ, the radio, the lounge chair, the new curved sectional sofa, and the glass topped coffee table are all designed to make your home a more enjoyable place for many years to come. The sofa too, has zip-on upholstery covers. Just send them out to be cleaned when they become soiled. Note how the organ in this room becomes the focal point. There is an ever-increasing interest in music in the home. It's fun; it's healthy—and you can select furniture that is beautiful yet requires the minimum amount of care.

Corner Items

There is no dust gathering in corners these days, as furniture manufacturers are presenting items of style and utility to fit squarely into those corners.

Utilizing what would otherwise be wasted space, corner cupboards have been designed for the dining room, giving the homemaker the utmost in storage for her dining room accessories.

Corner desks have been designed for the bedroom or den. Corner tables fit snugly behind sofas, and are constructed to match the sofa height to hold lamps and accessories for the living room corner.

Your Dining Room Sets The Pace During Holidays

Dining on a large or small scale is always a highlight of any Christmas entertaining. Whether it be a dinner party to reunite the entire family, the exchange of presents, or an open house to display this year's Christmas tree, the way you serve your holiday snacks becomes a focal point.

The holiday season will utilize dining facilities to the utmost. In addition to the standard item of tables and chairs, the well-organized dining room should have furniture to co-ordinate serving.

Breakfronts, of course, are among the most elaborate additions to the dining room. They are elaborate in size, utility and fashion, and are designed for the storage of China, silver and linens, all in their proper places.

A somewhat modified version of the breakfront is the buffet with the interchangeable hutch. Hutch tops may be the cabinet or see-through divider type. Such pieces offer the homemaker a variety of changes in her dining room or dining area.

Buffets are also very sufficient within themselves to make the dining room attractive and functional. Slate tops, ceramic tiles, especially treated wood finishes, all add up to give the utmost in service and beauty in dining pleasure.

Buffet interiors have attained the ultimate in design engineering—partitioned and proportioned for silver, glassware, decanters, and large serving dinnerware.

In the dining room, too, mobile pieces are an especially appreciated item. The serving cart that is also a semi-divider serves a dual purpose. These start in small thrifter sizes and graduate to buffet size.

For a fashion note in dining tables, circular tables lend a smart distinction. This is true in both the full size dining table, or the smaller wall console type, which serves well for that informal dining.

The wall console table is an excellent dress for a living, or dining room wall. It also doubles admirably for extra serving duty. It can be used to hold the food laden serving dishes, or for a small dinner party. Buffet consoles, too, may hold food warmers. Many are designed for even the most formal of dining rooms.

There are perhaps many other multi-purpose areas in your home in which you will also dine as the mood and fancy moves you. In a living-dining area, an extremely unique idea is the use of occasional tables. These, when used in a contrasting style, will accent the general decor, and fill in corners or other niches of your living room. For dining purposes, they may be paired in front of a window or in the center of a room to create an adequate and sturdy dining table.

So very good too for the living-dining areas, are the buffet and cabinet pieces that are finished on both front and back, and those in which the storage room is accessible from either side. These make excellent dividers and provide a great amount of flexibility in use and storage purpose.

Matching see-through hutch tops create a delightful effect and help retain the general feeling of spaciousness. Dividers of this sort may be utilized for decorative and functional purposes. Intricate shelf design and styling provide room for knick knacks of all sizes.

Your ingenuity, combined with any of the furniture selections offered by furniture manufacturers and designers today, will make your dining room and your entire home a most welcome and attractive place in which to entertain your holiday guests, and for you to enjoy the year around.

Don't Forget The Really Comfortable Gift-A Chair

Have you included a chair among the many furniture items that might be selected for someone on your Christmas shopping list? Chairs of any size and style are a sure fit into today's entertaining conscious home, and they are never in excess. In addition to their seating comfort and value, chairs make excellent decorative tools about the home.

Occasional chairs are always welcome to provide needed seating in the conversational circle, but wise placement of a chair at various other locations in your home does much for the dressed up appearance of it. A vacant or doubtful corner, the hallway, a short wall, these are a few spots where an attractive chair will help your decor.

For Dad, a reclining chair and ottoman still possesses the strongest appeal of complete relaxation. The chair and ottoman make excellent Christmas gifts. The new reclining chair need no longer be restricted to the confines of the den. All of its comfort has been wrapped up in a new design with the mechanical features subtly concealed behind good furniture fashion and contemporary requirements.

Mother will be pleased with an attractive occasional chair selected from the many new fashions offered for her use. The lovely wraparound, sculptured look of the wood frame, the bandings in brass or silver, the many bright and light new colors found in leathers and even on wood frames to match the upholstery—all these will appeal to her sense of beauty—a beauty that she will want in her home.

NEW CHAIR FASHION touches are also noted in chair ferrules, which also come in white formica and ebony, as well as brass.

The swivel chair and the rocking chair are exceptionally desirable in their new guises. Foam rubber is used for cushions and is attractively covered in Provincial and Modern prints. To hide the rocker or swivel base most of these chairs have skirts. They provide all the contemporary needs in an old-fashioned idea.

Cheer your home, or the home of a friend, this Christmas with a new chair for the hearthside.

Make Everyone Happy This Christmas

Make everyone happy and give something for the home this Christmas. Furniture is a beautiful and practical gift that will serve you for many years, and you can enjoy it while you pay, if the item is a major purchase.

At holiday time when we are filled with the spirit of giving and sharing, our homes will be utilized to the maximum. Furniture that is functional, as well as attractive, will be very much in order.

Now—this Christmas season—is the time to take action about the new piece you've had in mind for some time for the living room, the dining room, or the bedroom.

If these rooms are complete, perhaps there are other possibilities in your home which you might have overlooked until now.

Check your extra rooms - the guest bedroom for the out-of-town friend, or the recreation room which doubles as a sleeping room during this festive season. Are they supplied with sufficient storage facilities? The small chest, designed for use at the foot of the bed, adds to the decor, and is ideal for extra linens and blankets. It may serve as a dressing bench or luggage rack.

Is there a comfortable chair or two for your guests to lounge or read? Are tables placed appropriately to hold reading light, smoking accessories or late night snacks?

PERHAPS THE CHILDREN'S room needs new furniture - furniture that will grow with them, furniture that will satisfy their needs of pride and security, furniture with which they can entertain their own social set.

Perhaps too, there's an item you've overlooked for the man of the house - an ottoman, a new reclining chair with all the comforts of the old, but with all the style requirements of present day furniture fashions, new bookcases or even a man's chaise longue.

If, on the other hand, you've planned and chosen furniture well for your own family and home, then Christmas time is an ideal time to help friends furnish their homes by giving a furniture gift.

No matter who the friends are—a family or an individual - there isn't anyone on your Christmas gift list who wouldn't consider an item of furniture a welcome gift. A gift of furniture is a lasting and a cherished gift.

The young man or woman living out and pursuing a professional career rather than a domestic one, and the newlyweds, will of course more than welcome a gift for their home.

FOR THE SMALLER HOMES occasional tables or stacking tables will compliment the basic furnishings and provide a functional note.

Storage pieces, even to the smallest degree, are always a certain success in your gift giving. Here again the small chest of drawers of any variety is ideal.

If the home or apartment you are Christmas shopping for is sufficient to accommodate larger furniture items, then desks, vanities, divider-book shelves and other such dual and triple purpose items are wise selections.

For either the small home or the large, ideas and selections of furniture gifts this Christmas are many. There is a wealth of return in such an investment for both you and the friends for whom you have chosen furniture as your Christmas gift.

Even the very young dream of the very finest in their futures, and what could be finer for this young lady's bedroom than furniture of her own fashioned after Mother and Dad's. This grouping is of solid rock maple and is finished in a maize tone. Note the abundance of drawers and the variation in drawer sizes. You can add pieces to this grouping as the child grows. It is furniture children will be proud to own.

Children's Furniture Creates Big News

Children's furniture fashions today are given as much attention and thought in design and construction as are those of adults.

THEY ARE KEEN imitators of Mother and Dad, and there is now a recognized need for them to have worthwhile possessions of their own. Much consideration has been devoted to styles of groupings, as well as construction and wearability, which formerly preceded everything else in the making of juvenile furniture.

Now the same styles have been introduced in children's furniture as have been used in their parents.

Early American styling constructed in maple is still a strong favorite, but Modern styling is also making popularity gains. French Provincial is another strong contender. The colors that have become so popular in adult groupings are now extending to the teen-age groupings - frosty pinks, beiges, blues, greens.

Formica surfaces are found more and more on chest and desk items.

In the very young furniture fashions, playtime dinettes are styled in modern tubular steel, wrought iron, and chrome, with durable plastic coverings and table surfaces.

FOR CHILDREN who have been longing for a well-furnished room of their own, Christmas time is an excellent time to give them additions or replacements for it. New furniture will, of course, be more than thrilling to exhibit to friends as visits are exchanged during the holidays.

Having furniture of their own is as helpful to the parents as to the children. It's an ideal way for children to develop pride and respect for their own possessions, while developing respect for the property of others.

It is also necessary to have a place where school work can be done without the distracting elements of general family activities or the television set. Too, hobby projects can be developed and pursued without disturbing the remainder of the family.

Furniture for your children this Christmas will afford you a full measure of happiness and value in return for your investment.

JANE ABBOTT

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

By JANE ABBOTT

Hester did not speak to Enid of the contents of the letter about Gary until after she and Enid had finished their supper of which she ate scarcely anything. Enid washed their dishes came back into the living room.

Hester was holding the letter in her hand. "I heard from Anne Babbitt today—from Salem."

"Did you? That was nice." Hester said. "I think you'll be interested in what she wrote to me about this Norbeck man here. A few weeks ago I happened to discover that he was from Salem or at least had connections there. I asked Anne to make some inquiries about him while she was there. She did—and what she found out is here in the letter for you to read."

"I don't want to read it," said Enid.

"Enid! You'd know, then, what sort of a man he is!"

"I do know."

"He's a fugitive from justice?"

"I don't believe that," Enid said. "That he was involved in a scandal with his brother's wife?"

"I know there was what you would call a scandal!"

"You can say it like that? Enid, have you no sense of what is decent, moral behavior . . ."

Enid said quietly: "I don't think it was decent, or moral of you to write to Mrs. Babbitt about him! Or for her to write anything back to you."

Hester got up from her chair. "It is important for me to know something about him. What I have learned gives me good ground for contesting that absurd will that brought me here. Though my real concern has been for you—that you might be letting yourself become involved with this man . . . Where are you going?" For Enid was walking toward the door.

"To drive up for eggs," she said, and went out of the room.

Wick had a bad day a few days later. Though it started pleasantly. He told Nettie at breakfast time of Jennie's wanting the job of postmistress in the village.

"That'd be nice, if she wants it," Nettie said. Then—"But up there on the farm, come winter . . ."

"She might find a place here in the town."

"She could stay here," said Nettie promptly. "Goodness knows there's enough room. She's good company—she don't talk much but she's friendly."

Wick was inordinately pleased at Nettie's suggestion, held for a moment a mental picture of long winter evenings and Jennie Todd in the living room sharing his books. He had just ordered more Trollopes from a second-hand shop in New York. She would enjoy those.

"It'd mean more work for you, Net," he reminded her. "She'd help—she's that kind," said Nettie.

Wick was pleased that Nettie and Jennie Todd had become friends. He knew that Jennie had called at the house with Cindy, and Nettie had liked Cindy, though she continued to speak of her as a child—"That poor child."

"I've asked Jennie to go with me to the Guild luncheon next Monday," said Nettie. "She spoke of wanting to join the church here and I thought it would be nice for her to meet some of the women. She seemed pleased."

Wick was pleased, too. The survey of the farm had been finished and he has checked the drawings with Josh's rough map. Jennie could have those fields she wanted, her stone walls . . . The citations were being published; in September he could go ahead with the probate without Thomas Todd's signed waiver.

Anyway, the man had forfeited his share of the farm by not occupying it—that Cindy was there did not establish his claim. His third would be divided between the two women.

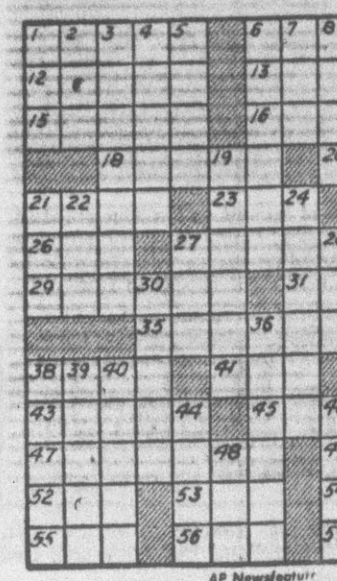

At midday he stopped at Mrs. Pebbly's for some lunch. Stan Bellows from the bank had just finished his; he came to Wick's table, sat down, hitching his chair close to Wick's. "You're just the man I wanted to see, Middleton. I was planning to go up to your office."

He looked around to be certain no one was within hearing. "This is all off the record—I guess you might say it was only a coincidence but it sticks in my mind only a few minutes." "Sit down, Mrs. Wilmer."

She sat down in the chair he drew forward for her, very erect, her hands folded over her handbag.

"I stopped in to speak to you of information I have concerning the Norbeck man who is living on part of the land up there."

"With the right to do so—he inherited that acre from your uncle."

Hester drew forward, smiling. "Yes, so the will was written! But from what I know of the young man now—you were indifferent to my suggestion that you find out more about him, so I took it upon myself to do so. He has a very bad record, was forced to leave Salem to escape a charge of having killed his grandfather by striking him down. It is plain that he found living with my uncle up on the farm a safe hiding place. And there is no doubt in my mind but that he influenced my uncle to write that will."

Wick swung forward in his chair. "This information—from whom did you get it?"

"A good friend of mine who lived in Salem before her marriage, and has been visiting there very recently."

"The law, Mrs. Wilmer, doesn't recognize evidence based on hearsay. A man isn't condemned on gossip."

Hester Wilmer got up from her chair, her face white despite the two spots on her cheeks. "You refuse to take seriously what I am telling you? I see no alternative but to go to another lawyer."

"I thought you had one in Buffalo."

"I shall go to one nearer at hand. Anticipating this with you, I have made inquiries of law firms in Malone—Granger and Cole have been recommended to me. And Mr. Middleton, I intend to contest this will when it goes to probate. And it is possible that I may bring charges against you for negligence in your duties as the executor of the estate. If it is necessary for you to get my signature for anything you can reach me through that law firm in Malone. Good afternoon, Mr. Middleton."

The doubt and suspicion which Wick had had at the time of old Josh's death returned to him. He remembered the look of sorrow that had come to Norbeck's face when he went to the dying man's bedside.

It was after 3 o'clock; he had no appointments during the afternoon. Drive up and talk to Norbeck? He was in his car and well out of Killbuck before he started to ask himself what he was going to say when he got to the cabin. Certainly he couldn't ask Norbeck if he had killed his grandfather!

and may in yours." "What?" asked Wick, though without much interest. "This morning, shortly after the bank opened, Norbeck came in—the young fellow who's living up on the Trevett farm. He wanted to deposit some money. There was nothing different about that except that it was quite a bit more than most deposit at one time here in Killbuck. Two thousand dollars. Cash."

Wick was lifting a sandwich to his mouth. He put it down. "Good money?" "Yes—bills all regular. He seems a straight sort. I wouldn't have thought about it perhaps, if Mrs. Wilmer hadn't come in an hour later. He paused to smile. "She isn't much like the one you brought in the back door that day!"

"No, she isn't."

"She's stopped in several times. Guess she thinks old Josh had a safe deposit box which we're hiding in the cellar. She's a persistent one! Have an idea she's going to the banks in Malone, same way."

Wick saw Mrs. Pebbly's eyes on him. He picked up his sandwich again. "What's the coincidence?" "She has it that there is about $2,000 of Trevett's savings not lo-

This General Is Really A Major

ENT AIR FORCE BASE, Colo. —It isn't every day that an Air Force major becomes a major general.

But for this week an officer newly assigned to Continental Air Defense command headquarters here holds that honor — on paper, at least.

The Air Force Journal, an unofficial publication in Washington, listed officers with the rank of major general reassigned this week. Among these is Maj. General R. Pearson of Escondido, Calif.

Pearson probably is getting used to the title by now. His first name is General. His rank is major.

Bus Workers To Buy Up System

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Bus workers in this city of 145,000 are going to buy out the privately owned system in a two-million-dollar deal. Officials of the Tacoma Transit Co. and the AFL Motor Coach Employees Union announced yesterday a plan calling for union members to buy the firm's stock through a payroll deduction plan and to retain the present company officials. The company has 250 employees.

WILL TRY AGAIN CHICAGO (AP)—Mayor Martin H. Kennedy, has announced he will seek renomination in the February Democratic primary. He is 67.

Capitol Square

There is no provision in constitution, statutes or legislative resolutions about the hour for convening the Senate, except that after the General Assembly has been organized both branches shall meet at noon, unless some other hour is fixed in previous adjournment motion. Secretary of State Thad Eure says he anticipates no difficulty or conflict. He can under constitutional authority convene the Senate at 11 or 11:30, preside over deliberations while a president is being chosen, and then move across the hall to convene the House under joint resolution authority at high noon. In fact, he could convene the House first, but inasmuch as the constitution takes precedence over legislation, it is his purpose to get the Senate organized before convening the House.
