

Police Action Taken After 2 Fire Dept. Calls

Woman Is Charged In Fire

Fireman Harvey Case, Assistant Fire Chief Jasper Jones and Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs are shown examining a burned wall which the fire department was called to extinguish last night. Police later arrested Virginia Randolph, 25-year-old occupant of the house, located at 1019 Mack Street, and charged her with damage to real property. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

The fire department was called on to put out two separate fires within an hour last night in a home at 1019B Mack Street.

Later the fire department called in police to investigate, and they arrested Virginia Randolph, 25, Negro, an occupant of the house, and formally charged her with maliciously setting fire to the dwelling.

The first call came to the fire department at 5:38 last night. When firemen arrived on the scene they found and extinguished a fire in a downstairs closet, and then returned to the fire station, Fire Chief George Gardner said this morning. A few minutes later, at 6:04 p.m., Gardner stated, another fire call was received from the same house. This time the fire was in the corner of a bedroom upstairs, which the firemen quickly extinguished. At the same time the firemen discovered evidence of a third fire which had been put out before city firemen were called in for the other two fires, the fire chief stated.

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs said this morning the Randolph woman is being held for trial in municipal court probably Friday morning. She denies the charges of maliciously setting fire to the structure.

The Randolph woman reportedly lives in the house on Mack Street with her father, John Randolph, who rents the place from Miss Leila Higga.

Members of the police department are still investigating the fires. It is reported that a house in Ayden in which the Randolph woman lived last year also burned recently.

Fire Chief Gardner also stated this morning that 5 out of 6 suspected fires within the past year have been cleared up by investigation.

Consider Surplus For Soviet

Sec. Benson Favors Iron Curtain Trade In Agricultural Surpluses

NEW YORK (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson says the administration is considering direct trade in agricultural surpluses with Russia and its satellites.

At a news conference yesterday, Benson said study would be given both to direct sales of such commodities to Iron Curtain countries and to trade with "third party" nations which might sell to the Soviet Union.

"My feeling is that we should be willing to trade with Iron Curtain countries so long as the trade is in our favor whether it be butter or anything else," Benson said, adding:

"We are considering some sales to countries which may in turn sell to Iron Curtain countries."

In any event, the agriculture secretary said, it was difficult to "police" sales of American goods to nations which might resell to Russia.

Last January a U.S. broker was denied a license to buy surplus American butter for export to Russia.

In line with Benson's statement, however, there were reports that the administration would re-assess the situation at meetings to be held within a few days.

Benson also said he was giving "serious consideration" to revising the entire farm parity formula.

He said revision would include "re-weighting" of some of the factors involved in the formula.

Asked if the farmers would get a "better shake" out of a contemplated formula revision, Benson replied:

"They may, but the end objective is to make the formula up-to-date and as accurate as possible as a measuring rod."

Benson and the Republican administration instituted a "flexible" support policy in place of the previous administration's "rigid" supports.

Parity is a standard set on farm prices by the government designed to keep the farmer's income in balance with the changing costs of things he buys.

Under "rigid" support, farm income was pegged by the government at 90 per cent of parity. Now some products get less than 90 per cent—depending on current conditions affecting a particular product.

Earlier, in a speech before the 26th annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Benson predicted a "bright future" for farmers under present and contemplated administration action.

"Maximum progress will come only if agriculture is free and farmers can make their own management decisions on their own farms with a very minimum of government regulation and control," he said.

Add Extra Help To Handle Mail

As the Christmas rush really gets underway, the local Post Office has already hired two temporary employees to help with the handling of the mails.

John Farley and Edwin Wilkerson began work at the Post Office yesterday. Farley is working at the drop box, taking incoming mail, while Wilkerson is working at the canceling machine.

Post Office officials report nine more employees have been hired to begin work Saturday. All will work through Christmas Eve.

The public is again reminded by Postmaster J. Knott Proctor to be sure all mail is correctly and completely addressed to insure delivery.

He also urges that local and out-of-town mail be separated before being given to Farley at the drop box. This will facilitate the handling of the vast quantity of letters, cards and postals to be mailed during the coming week, Proctor said.

The Postmaster also cautions that all parcels be packed, wrapped and tied securely in order that they may be delivered in good condition.

S-D Day Traffic Toll Reported 45; Had 64 Killed Dec. 1

Survey Shows Lives Saved

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's first observance of Safe Driving Day appeared today to have succeeded in cutting the toll of deaths and accidents on the highways and streets.

In the 24-hour period ending at midnight, a survey showed, 45 persons lost their lives in traffic mishaps. That number compared with 64 during a Dec. 1 survey made by The Associated Press for comparative purposes.

A year ago yesterday, Dec. 16, 60 traffic deaths occurred. In the first 10 months this year traffic deaths averaged 97 a day and the average in both 1952 and 1953 was 104 a day.

The nation's major cities, it was indicated, contributed largely to the reduction in traffic fatalities.

Among the 12 biggest cities, only three fatalities were reported, one each in New York, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. None was reported in Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Detroit, Baltimore, St. Louis, Washington, D.C., Boston or San Francisco.

No traffic deaths were reported in any major city in the six New England states.

Many other big cities reported no traffic deaths. Neither did 35 of the 48 states which observed the nation's first mass effort to save lives by safe driving.

Adm. H. B. Miller (ret.), director of President Eisenhower's Action Committee on Traffic Safety, which sponsored S-D Day, commented on the toll:

"We thank the millions of Americans who sincerely tried to avoid an accident—and succeeded. If we can do it on S-D Day, we can do it every day."

"Naturally, we wish the S-D toll had been lower just as we wish the traffic toll could be lower every day. But we feel the reduced toll offers definite proof that aroused public opinion and concerted effort can and will bring about a substantial reduction in the traffic toll and sooner than we think."

Two states—New Mexico and Indiana—reported the biggest death toll, with four killed in each state. All the fatalities occurred in rural areas. Four persons died in a one-car accident near the Arizona-New Mexico border near Datil, N.M.

Three deaths were reported in each of the following states: New York, Florida, Illinois, Mississippi and Pennsylvania; two each in California, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Ohio, Virginia and Washington; and one each in Georgia, Louisiana, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas, Vermont and Wisconsin.

The National Safety Council figures that for each accident in which someone is killed, there are 35 persons injured and 225 accidents.

The number of injured and accidents on S-D Day was not immediately available. But on the basis of average injury-fatality ratios, 45 fatalities would represent 1,575 injured and 10,125 accidents.

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's "Safe Driving Day" observance yesterday was marked by one highway fatality and 17 persons injured in 50 accidents, the State Highway Patrol reported.

Manuel Randall, 67, was struck and killed near Charlotte early yesterday afternoon.

Col. James R. Smith, head of the Highway Patrol, said, "We were hoping we could get through the day without a fatality. However, so far this month our record is better than for the same month last year."

Smith said 101 persons lost their lives in highway accidents in the state during December, 1953, an average of more than three a day. He added that to date this month "we've been averaging about two a day." Compared with yesterday, one person was killed on the same day last year.

Smith commended motorists for their cooperation in "S-D Day." The patrol's more than 500 men were on duty in the mass safety campaign.

Safe At Chicod School Reported Stolen In Night

The sheriff's department reported this morning that a safe containing an undetermined amount of money was taken from the Chicod school sometime last night.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said the thieves apparently entered the school, located on the Vanceboro Highway, through the east entrance of the building.

The sheriff declared that it was believed the safe was carried out a door, loaded on some type of vehicle and hauled away.

The amount of money in the safe was not immediately known, according to the sheriff, but there was a certain amount of change locked in it.

The thieves broke open the east door to the building and then broke the locked door to the principal's office, which is located to the right of the main entrance to the school. They also unlocked the front door to the building after gaining entrance.

Tyson said nothing else had been reported missing from the school other than the safe. The time of the break-in was not known.

Investigating are members of the sheriff's department and SBI Agent Clyde Pentress.

Set Record For Home Financing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The demand for FHA home financing in November more than doubled that for November last year and set a new record for the month, the Federal Housing Administration reported today.

It was the fourth straight month for which a new record was set. Despite the onset of bad construction weather, FHA said, 52,700 home builders and buyers applied for FHA mortgage insurance—only 5,750 fewer than in October.

The number was more than twice the 23,700 applications in November of last year, and well above the previous November record of 46,600 in 1947.

FHA credited the activity to the new housing law which reduced down payments and liberalized purchase terms on both new and used dwellings.

As in October, nearly half the applications were for the purchase of older houses—25,850 for used dwellings, 26,850 for new.

Tough Note

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Russia today warned France that ratification of the Paris agreements to reform West Germany "will cross out and annul" the French-Soviet mutual assistance treaty of 1944.

The warning was conveyed in a formal note handed by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov to the French Ambassador, Louis Joxe.

Notable Record In County For Safe-Driving Day Report 3 Minor Accidents

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County came through with a minimum of traffic accidents on Safe-Driving Day yesterday, though dreams of a perfect record were spoiled early in the morning.

A survey of the highway patrol, Greenville, Winterville, Ayden, Grifton, Bethel and Farmville police departments showed only three wrecks had been reported in the county during the day. None of the accidents were considered serious and no personal injuries were reported.

S-D Day Director for Greenville, Herbert White Lee, said he was pleased with the low accident rate for the day.

"Considering the weather yesterday we were very pleased with the results of S-D Day," Lee said. "I would like to thank all of those who made conscientious efforts to promote S-D Day."

"I'd like to thank not only the local and civic organizations who did so much to promote S-D Day but all of those citizens in the community who cooperated by driving carefully and observing the law."

The highway patrol reported only one wreck on the highways yesterday. That one came early when two cars collided on N.C. 43 one mile east of the Greenville city limits. Damage to both cars amounted to $150.

The nearest comparative day last year was Wednesday, December 14. On that day the patrol reported four traffic accidents in which three persons were injured seriously. Property damage on that day amounted to $4,500. The totals for that day did not include wrecks investigated by police in incorporated towns.

Corporal C. E. Whitfield reported that only ten arrests were made by the patrol yesterday. Three were for speeding, two for passing in the face of oncoming traffic, one for a stop sign violation, three for operating a vehicle with no driver's license and one for bad brakes.

"Yesterday traffic was unusually heavy because of military personnel moving through the county," Whitfield pointed out. "It certainly was outstanding the way people drove during the day."

The patrolman declared that it "was very noticeable how carefully people drove."

"We appreciated the way people cooperated," he continued. "They certainly went along with us and tried to drive the way they should."

He said the county's patrolmen made a very close observation of all moving traffic and reported it was very unusual the way motorists were observing traffic laws.

All Pitt County patrolmen were on duty yesterday and speed clocks were used on the highways.

Chief J. A. Jones of Ayden reported only one very minor accident on the nation-wide safety day. That occurred when two cars collided on a street intersection. Damage equipped with a loudspeaker donated by a local radio shop was used to remind pedestrians and motorists of the safety day. He expressed appreciation to the general public for making the day a success.

Chiefs L. T. Lucas of Farmville, S. H. Martin of Bethel and Assistant Chief D. D. Sandrella of Grifton reported no accidents in those towns.

Greenville police said no accidents had been reported so far for the 24-hour period.

A car was reported to have been hit by a train yesterday on Memorial Drive but investigation showed that that accident happened Tuesday night before S-D Day. Officially, however, it was not reported to police until yesterday morning. It does not count against the S-D Day accident total.

Several Favor Exchange For Americans In China

Lawmakers Endorse 'Deal'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several key lawmakers said today they favor efforts to exchange 35 Chinese students in this country for 57 Americans detained in Red China, including 11 airmen imprisoned by the Communists as "spies."

Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, retiring speaker of the House, said that if the students want to go to Red China he would welcome any negotiations that might lead to such an exchange.

But he and Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.), retiring head of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said there must be no deal which would force the return to his homeland of any Chinese who wished to remain in this country.

The State Department indicated through Press Officer Lincoln White yesterday that the United States might consider any offer forthcoming from Red China to exchange for the Americans Chinese students who have applied for exit permits but thus far have been denied them.

Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he knew of no reason why this government should insist on keeping in this country any students who wanted to return to China.

The State Department has said the 35 involved have not been permitted to leave because specialized skills they acquired here might be valuable to the Communists from a military standpoint.

"The fact that these students may have learned some valuable technique does not justify holding them in this country if they wish to return to China," Sparkman said.

Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) said that while he doubts the advisability of any "deal" with the Chinese Communists, he is willing to back any decision Eisenhower administration officials make on negotiations.

Dag Hammarskjold, United Nations secretary general, is attempting to arrange a meeting with Communist China's Premier Chou En-lai to discuss the fate of the 11 imprisoned airmen as a followup to the U.N.'s 47-5 vote condemning their sentencing.

In Los Angeles, retiring GOP Senate Leader Knowland of California voiced hope these efforts will be successful, but he added: "I have my doubts."

He told a news conference that if the U.N. efforts do fail "we can't sit back and let Americans in American uniforms stay in Communist jails." He renewed his suggestion that this country might blockade Red China—a proposal which President Eisenhower has rejected as an act of war.

While the first State Department reaction had been adverse to hints from the Peiping radio that an exchange deal might be acceptable, White said yesterday that consideration of any offer which might be forthcoming "would depend entirely on the nature of the offer and the circumstances as of that moment."

Observing that "our concern is to get our people safely home," White said that 57 Americans still are held in Red China, including the 11 sentenced airmen, 4 other Air Force personnel also in jail, 28 imprisoned civilians, 3 civilians under house arrest and 11 who have been denied exit permits.

He contended that the Chinese students in this country had been treated in a perfectly proper manner, whereas he said the airmen had been held illegally by the Peiping regime.

Ban Shipment Of S.C. Hogs

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina has slapped a ban on the movement of hogs into this state from South Carolina.

State Veterinarian H. J. Rollins said he cancelled all permits for moving swine into North Carolina from its southern sister because of outbreaks of vesicular exanthema. The highly contagious disease is similar to the hoof and mouth disease of cattle.

Dr. Rollins said the permit would not be issued again until the disease has been wiped out in that state.

Nevada, California Rock To Severe Earth Tremor

RENO (AP)—A rolling earthquake of high intensity shook Nevada and California early today but only minor damage was reported.

The quake, described as the heaviest of three that have jarred this area since last July, was felt as far as Elko, Nev., 200 miles east of here, and throughout most of California to the west.

It was timed at 3:07 a.m. in Reno and 3:10 a.m. in San Francisco. A second, minor, tremor was felt here at 3:09.

Fallon, Nev., a small agricultural community approximately 60 miles east of Reno and the center of two recent quakes, was believed to be the center of today's quake.

However, Sheriff George Wilkins said preliminary checks showed only "minor damage with some ceilings cracked and some bricks knocked loose." He said his deputies still were checking the outlying farm areas which took the brunt of other shocks.

Wilkins said today's earthquake was "by far the heaviest of all three." He attributed Fallon's light damage to the fact the "last quake just about knocked everything down that was at all loose."

Parts of Lovelock, Nev., also east of Reno, were blacked out when a section of the city's electric power system failed briefly. However, no other damage was reported. Lovelock police also described today's quake as heavier than the previous ones.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co., giant utility serving most of California, said a check of its system indicated the earthquake was felt almost from the Oregon border to deep in Southern California. A PG&E spokesman said, however, there were no reports of damage.

Yuletide List Of Needy Families In Pitt Is Growing

By EDWINA HAYMES
Reflector Staff Writer

There are still 137 needy families on the list at the local Welfare Department whom people may help have a brighter Christmas this year.

Though at the last report 110 families were on the list, and though a number of these have been taken by local individuals and groups, still more have been added to make the total even higher than before just a week before December 25, assistant case worker Mrs. Elizabeth Avery, who is in charge of the department's Christmas program, reveals.

Twenty-three families have been taken since last week, Mrs. Avery reports, with ten white and five Negro children in boarding homes being provided for by various individuals and one club, according to Mrs. David Proctor, child welfare agent, and Mrs. Eloise Beech, Negro child welfare agent.

Three individuals, who wish to remain anonymous, are taking care of four families, while one has contributed to the Child Welfare Fund. Organizations which have taken families, in addition to the 24 already reported, are the local National Guard unit, an Eighth Street Christian Church Woman's Circle, St. James Methodist Church, Winterville-Greenville 4-H Club and a Sunday School class at the Christian Church.

In addition, a list of 13 families has been sent the Rev. T. A. Cooper of the Bethel Baptist Church so that church may provide toys for the children in those families. Mrs. Avery said these families may be referred again to persons offering to help with clothes or food.

The case worker also reports the Lions Club is continuing its yearly project of giving 24 baskets of food to blind persons and their families at Christmas time.

All but four white children in boarding homes have been taken by individuals, according to Mrs. Proctor.

Mrs. Beech reveals there are still 14 Negro children in boarding homes, four Pitt County Negro children at Morrison Training School at Hoffman and four in the homes of relatives who will need assistance if Christmas day is to be a bright one for them.

She said the Matron's Social Club has taken four boarding home children and one individual has taken a child. In addition, two individuals and the Twentieth Century Club have given cash to help provide for some of the remaining children, though Mrs. Beech reports this amount will not take care of nearly

Anyone who desires to give help to bring Christmas cheer to either a family or some children this year should call 2943 right away. All the remaining needy must depend on help from either individuals or groups for all Christmas joy, as the Welfare Department does not provide this, Mrs. Avery said.

Faculty And Staff Of College Have Annual Christmas Dinner

Members of the faculty and staff of East Carolina College and their guests enjoyed Tuesday the annual Christmas dinner at the college. The event took place in the North Dining Room and was attended by approximately two hundred people.

Holiday decorations made the dining hall attractive and expressive of the spirit of the Christmas season. A large gaily decorated and brightly lighted tree, the gift of Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville, added a festive note to the scene. Mobile sculpture designs in colorful metallic paper, the work of art students of the college, hung from the light fixtures; and hand-made and decorated miniature Christmas trees ornamented the windows.

Tables were centered with Christmas trees in mobile sculpture design. Red candles and arrangements of red berries completed the decorations.

Dr. Howell, UNC Gives Reading Before Inter Se Book Club

Mrs. W. H. Taft in a gracious manner greeted the members of the Inter Se Book Club and special guests as they entered her home on Tuesday, December 14, for their Christmas meeting, and introduced them to the guest speaker, Dr. A. C. Howell of the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, and Mrs. Howell, who accompanied him to Greenville.

The Christmas season was very evident with decorations throughout the house appropriate for the program of the afternoon. The console table in the hall was lovely with a Madonna arrangement done in white and gold softened by candlelight. The mantel in the living room was banked with pink magnolia leaves sprinkled with glitter, and pink angel hair with Christmas ball trees on each end.

A musical church on a side table played "Silent Night" as the little choir boys entered. In the library the manager scene with the wise men and shepherds was attractively arranged.

Mrs. Ercell Webb, president, called the meeting to order and Mrs. Taft introduced her guests and presented Dr. A. C. Howell, who in a very dramatic and impressive manner read "The Other Wise Man" by Henry Van Dyke. Each member felt that she had caught anew the spirit of Christmas in listening to this beautiful Christmas story.

After an exchange of books everyone was invited into the dining room for refreshments. The table was covered with a hand-made lace cloth with a Christmas centerpiece of Christmas balls in different shades of pink interspersed with angel hair and tiny silver flowers.

Open House Held At Chicod School

The Future Homemakers of Chicod School had their Christmas party in form of open house, at the lunch room and Home Economics cottage Tuesday afternoon, December 14th. They had as their guests parents of the girls, Home Demonstration agents, demonstration members and teachers of the school.

First they gave a program giving customs of other countries in observing Christmas, meanings of Christmas carols, singing carols and games.

After this part of the program they went over to the cottage where there was a display of Christmas ideas, made by the girls, under supervision of Mrs. Fodie Hodges. They showed that much originality, thought and work were involved.

Then from a beautiful table, covered with white cut-work cloth, decorated with red lighted candles and holly, Home Demonstration women served punch, party cakes, tarts and nuts, prepared by the young homemakers.

These young people, with Mrs. Hodges as leader, are doing outstanding work. They have worked the kitchen over, and with aid of Home Demonstration women furnished the living room of the cottage. They made Christmas corsages, earrings, etc., and sold them in order to get money for this project.

Printed menus bearing a design appropriate to the season were placed for each guest.

Mr. Wendell W. Smiley of the faculty acted as master of ceremonies and introduced special guests attending the dinner. Dr. John D. Messick, college president, extended greetings and welcomed staff members and visitors.

Mr. Paul A. Hickfay of the department of music, accompanied by Mrs. Hickfay, gave a program of songs. Group singing was led by Dr. Kenneth Outhbert of the faculty.

Following the dinner, many of those present for the dinner went caroling, singing Christmas songs near the student dormitories.

The dinner was planned by the Social Committee of the faculty. Mr. Paul Julian, steward, and the dining room staff planned the delicious meal which was served.

Tables with silver candlesticks with pink candles burning on each side and on the buffet.

Mrs. V. C. Fleming poured tea and Mrs. Taft invited the guests to serve themselves to dainty sandwiches and delicious Christmas sweets, spiced nuts and mints.

Special guests in addition to Dr. and Mrs. Howell were Mrs. Kenneth Outhbert, Miss Mary Thomas Smith, Mrs. W. M. Howard, Mrs. John Reynolds, Mrs. Howard Moye and Mrs. V. C. Fleming.

Hostesses Fete Miss Windham

Miss Josephine Cusick and Miss Mary Alice Howard entertained at a coffee hour last evening from 8 to 9 for Miss Margaret Windham, bride-elect, at the home of Miss Howard on Eighth Street.

The bride-elect wore a corsage of yellow throat chrysanthemums, presented by the hostesses. The home was beautifully decorated; the mantel featuring an attractive arrangement of green magnolia leaves, red candles and Christmas balls and a gaily lighted Christmas tree lent a festive air to the occasion.

The guests were served individual mince meat pies decorated with miniature red Christmas candles, coffee and after-dinner Christmas red mints topped with white icing.

The guest of honor received a dinner knife in her silver pattern from the hostesses.

The Christmas Story Is Presented At W.S.C.S. Meeting

GRIFTON—The W.S.C.S. met on Monday night in the church for their Christmas meeting. Mrs. Roy Jackson presided in the absence of the president. The devotional was led by Mrs. Cecil Cobb which followed the singing by the group of "Silent Night." The theme used was "The Prince of Peace." The program of the evening was presented by Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. H. L. Wethington and Mrs. Claude Hart. A very effective altar arrangement was appropriate for the program "The Christmas Story." In connection with this talks were given on the subject of children and peace. Mrs. F. L. Cox sang "Away in a Manger." Mrs. R. C. Mooney closed the program with prayer.

At the social hour the members assembled in the R. A. Nelson Room where Mrs. J. C. Hooten led in recreation. The room was beautifully decorated with greenery, red berries and tall red candles. A silvered tree with multi-colored lights was on the gift table.

Lime ice punch, individual cakes and salted nuts were served from the central table which was covered with a dark green cloth and a wrought iron candelabra with tall candles was placed in the center. After refreshments gifts were exchanged.

There were four tables of guests who enjoyed ham, Harvard beets, creamed asparagus, candied yams, hors d'oeuvres, hot rolls and cake. This has been one of the most enjoyable parties of the season.

The couples club met on Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Mizelle. Guests were invited for 7:00 o'clock for dinner.

The home was very lovely with decorations of pine cones, magnolia leaves and holiday ornaments. The dining room table covered with a green linen table cloth was centered with an attractive arrangement flanked by burning red tapers.

Choral Clubs Render Program At PTA Meet

GRIFTON — The Grifton PTA met for their regular meeting on Tuesday night at 7:30 in the school auditorium. The music department under the direction of Mrs. Dolly Mae Carson presented a program "Unto Us A Son Is Given". This impressive Christmas story was in song by the Glee Club and choral readers under the direction of Mrs. Sasser. The scenery and lighting was most effective. The seventh and eighth graders were responsible for the scenery and Mrs. Buck had charge of the pantomime.

Pat Stokes was accompanist and solo parts were taken by Bette McCotter, Lowell Speight, Bill Burroughs and Wayne Erwin.

Included in the music were "I Heard The Bells On Christmas Day", "Angels We Have Heard On High", "O Holy Night", "Come All Ye Faithful", "Silent Night", "We Three Kings", "Joy To The World."

A brief business session followed the program, Mr. Jack Calvert presiding. He thanked Mrs. Carson and the other faculty members for their part in the program and commented on the progress being made by the band. In connection with this Mrs. James Hudson announced the formation of a "Band Booster Club" the first meeting to be on January 4th at 4 p.m. in the band room at school, all interested persons are invited to join.

Mr. Bright, principal of the school, announced the holidays will be from Dec. 17th to Jan. 3rd. He thanked the parents and teachers for their cooperation in the work done so far in the school term. Especially those parents who have given their time in the elementary school library. Cakes on a percentage basis were won by Miss Bert Johnson's fourth and Mrs. John Bunch's twelfth grade.

Mr. Calvert called attention to the group present the importance of S-D Day and asked all to fill in cards with regards to questions to school matters to be discussed at the January meeting.

The Rev. R. C. Mooney said the benediction.

Party Is Held For Bride-Elect

Mrs. Reuben Watson entertained for Miss Margaret Windham, bride-elect of December 18, at a Coca-Cola party at her home near Falkland Tuesday at 4:30 p.m.

Mrs. Watson, the bride-elect, Mrs. W. M. Windham, and Mrs. Lee Roy Hardee greeted the guests at the door. They were directed into the living room, which was artistically decorated for the occasion with Christmas greenery, red candles and a beautiful Christmas tree, where they enjoyed a social hour. They were then led to the dining room by the hostess for delightful party refreshments and Coca-Colas.

Mrs. Watson presented to the bride-elect a crystal salad bowl on a wrought iron stand with matching salad spoon and fork.

Y. W. A. Meets

BETHEL — Miss Irene White was hostess to the Y.W.A. at the church on Monday night.

The meeting opened with Shirley Wilson reading the scripture and Miss Joanna Abeyounis, counselor, then gave a most interesting and inspiring program. The discussion told why people should contribute to the foreign mission work and how it is used. The Lottie Moon offering was then collected from the members.

Regular routine business was discussed with Lois Griffin presiding. All of the members, ten in number, were present.

A Christmas party was then enjoyed by the group after which gifts were exchanged. Light refreshments were served during the social hour.

More Than 300 Persons Visit 'Holiday House'

The large living room mantel of Holiday House, open to the public yesterday, was decorated in colors of gold and shades of pink. Suspended on the mirror above the mantel was a large shimmering sunburst. On the mantel itself were arranged Christmas balls on Chinese fir and glittered dried leaves, with pink Scotch broom sweeping up in gentle curves at each end. Ruby lustres placed at each end of the mantel completed the arrangements. (Reflector Photos by Edwina Haynes).

More than 300 persons visited Holiday House, the home of Dr. and Mrs. John D. Messick, yesterday afternoon and last night to enjoy the Christmas arrangements placed throughout the home by the local Garden Club, and to get new ideas for their own home Christmas decorations.

Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, Garden Club president, termed the project the "most successful as far as attendance is concerned" that the club has undertaken. She added the members "are thrilled so many people came, as we really did it for the pleasure of others."

Mrs. Owen Marshburn served as chairman of the decorations, which carried out the Christmas theme throughout the entire lower floor of the home.

As guests arrived, they were greeted by a lighted "Noel" over the entrance. Underneath hung a shining star, with decorations of green foliage and red berries interspersed with gleaming Christmas lights arranged on the front exterior of the home.

On entering, a massive decorated Christmas tree, 18 feet tall, appeared at the rear of the large entrance hall. Flanking it on either side were choirboys garbed in red and white against a background of evergreens. Choirboys and evergreens were also placed along the bannisters of the two staircases on either side of the hall.

Unique arrangements featuring the new and old, the traditional and modernistic in Christmas decorations were displayed in every room, even in the kitchen where a variety of dainty Christmas foods were on exhibit.

In the dining room tea was served from a table covered with a linen cut work cloth over red, centered with an arrangement of red carnations in a silver container and flanked by red tapers in silver holders.

Mrs. J. L. Winstead served as chairman of the hostess committee.

No admission was charged for visiting the home, but a silver offering to help defray the Garden Club's expenses was collected.

State Cigarette Tax Is No Idle Talk

It is apparent the proposals for a special North Carolina tax on cigarettes and tobacco products is not idle talk. It is apparent also that tobacco growers had better not sit by idly until the General Assembly meets if they are going to stem the tide which could convert the tax proposal into a reality.

The Reflector is opposed to the State of North Carolina levying a special tax on tobacco products. If the state which produces the vast majority of flue-cured tobacco changes its long-standing policy and levies a special tobacco tax, it will encourage the federal government and state, and local governments which already tax tobacco products to increase those taxes. The result would be less consumption of tobacco products, and thus less demand for the most important agricultural product in North Carolina. Reduced tobacco product consumption likewise would seriously affect the tobacco manufacturing industry in North Carolina which is a major segment of the state's industry.

A three-cent state tax on each pack of cigarettes sold, plus the eight-cent per pack federal tax which already exists, would mean a total tax of 11 cents per pack on cigarettes. That is approximately three and one-third times as much as the farmer receives for the tobacco he produces to go into a pack of cigarettes. Surely no stretch of the imagination can justify such a levy as a "reasonable" tax.

We realize that North Carolina is going to be hard put to find new sources of revenue during the coming biennium. Nevertheless it would be foolhardy and shortsighted for the state to levy a cigarette tax which could do incalculable harm to the state's economy as a whole.

Obviously such a tax would not be in the best interest of the eastern part of the state which leans heavily upon tobacco production for its livelihood, or the piedmont section which is sprinkled with tobacco manufacturing plants that employ thousands of people. We are convinced a special state cigarette tax would do North Carolina much more harm than good.

Handsome Dividends From S-D Day

Was Safe Driving Day a success in Pitt County?

Well, the answer you give will certainly depend upon how you view the results of yesterday's safety effort.

Pitt County didn't get by without an accident. As a matter of fact a number of accidents were reported in various sections of the county. We had more accidents on S-D Day than we had on a number of other days during the year on which no special emphasis was placed on safe driving. The accident record for S-D Day in Pitt probably will not, in the final analysis, be as good as the average daily safety record of

Strength for the Day

THE ONLY CURE

A man was said to have received a letter some time ago which ran as follows: "Dear Sir: I stole your wallet which contained $50.00. I have a bad conscience over it so I am sending $25.00 back to you. If my conscience hurts me worse, I'll send you more."

There are consciences just like this. "You are a very bad man," whispers the conscience. And the reply he gets is, "I am that, all right. I'll brace up and be a little better."

All of which of course is folly. You can't half wash a dish or half wash a garment. It's all or nothing. So you can't half cleanse your conscience. If there is something that is burdening you, out with it. If you have done somebody wrong, go to the injured person and straighten it out. And straighten it out you can, almost always. If the person refuses reconciliation, then the burden is no longer on you but on him. The only thing we can do with a bad conscience is to disavow it, repent, make restitution, and thereafter walk the straight and narrow.

Life is what the Bible calls "a day of grace." We have only so many years in which to make good, and the thing on which we are making good is God's offer of eternal fellowship with Him. The day will come when the season of grace will be at an end.

That will be a solemn day. But until that day arrives, disavowal of evil, repentance, restitution, and right living can still cure any evil.

National Whirligig

Reluctant To Follow Strategy

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Many prominent Democrats disagree sharply with the Butler-Stevenson-Rayburn strategy of attacking President Eisenhower personally and politically in an attempt to strip him of public esteem, should he run for re-election in 1956. They fear that smearing of the President will react as adversely as did Senator "Joe" McCarthy's recent vituperative outburst.

With the exception of Speaker-designate Rayburn of Texas, and he now denies that he agreed with National Chairman Paul Butler's questioning of Ike's leadership qualifications, it is significant that no influential Southern Senator or Governor chimed in with these blasts against the man in the White House. They seem to admire him, even when they disagree with him, and they believe that their normally Democratic constituents still "like Ike."

CAUTION INDICATED—More astute Democratic politicians—and, after all, Chairman Butler is still an amateur—might be more willing to jump on the President, if it had not been for the demonstration of his popularity in the 1952 and 1954 elections. In the 1952 campaign, Eisenhower ran far ahead of every GOP candidate, as that Party's narrow control of Congress indicated.

This year, the Republicans would have suffered an even more serious reversal had it not been for the President's last-minute intervention. Both Adlai E. Stevenson and Butler's predecessor, Stephen A. Mitchell, have publicly conceded the effectiveness of Eisenhower's political efforts.

THE BID FOR INDEPENDENT VOTES—Ironically, President Eisenhower is now making a bid for the independent vote which, he assumes, will not respond to the sort of partisan exhibitions envisaged by the Butler-Stevenson-Rayburn leadership. He has defined his politico-economic position as that of a "progressive-moderate." He has said that he will avoid war until such a posture means national dishonor.

In short, every day in every way he is casting himself in the role of a nonpartisan rather than a Republican President. Not since the early days of the Republic has a Chief Executive tried so hard to eschew petty politics. His behavior baffles both his friends the countw for the year.

If you look at the situation on that basis, the only conclusion one could draw is that S-D Day was not a roaring success in Pitt.

Look at the other side of the ledger for a minute. There are approximately 19,000 motor vehicles registered in Pitt County. Less than 10 of them were involved in highway accidents during the 24-hour period which composed the marking period for S-D Day. That means that only five one-hundredths of one per cent of the vehicles registered in Pitt were involved in accidents on S-D Day. It can be assumed from those statistics that 99.95 per cent of the drivers in Pitt drove carefully enough to avoid an accident on S-D Day. That's mighty good for any all-out effort.

It is apparent that S-D Day efforts saved many lives throughout the nation yesterday. Comparative figures with yesterday and December 1 on which an accident study was run showed that while highway deaths occurred at a rate of two or three per hour on December 1, the rate was less than one per hour during the first half of S-D Day.

While S-D Day was in itself important, it is even more important drivers remain safety conscious during the approaching holiday season when heavy traffic will jam highways all over the nation.

Although Pitt County did not get through S-D Day without an accident as it was hoped, it is evident the effort put forth by officials and by drivers throughout the country paid handsome dividends.

and enemies.

PRESS POLLS—Democratic dynamiters might do well to consult the polls which numerous newspapers have conducted since the November 2 election, which support the general belief that Ike enjoys a popularity bypassing and surpassing partisan boundaries. Perhaps the most significant is that made by publisher Clifford H. Russell of the Mankato Free Press in and around Mankato, Minnesota, in late November.

Minnesota is key political territory. Although it went for Eisenhower in 1952, it re-elected Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, a Senate radical, by a tremendous majority last month. It also elected as Governor, Orville L. Freeman, on a Democrat-Farmer-Labor ticket. The voters sent an unusually large number of Democrats to the State House at St. Paul.

STILL PRO-EISENHOWER—Moreover, Minnesota farmers have suffered from the fall in wheat and dairy prices. There has been considerable unemployment in the Twin Cities. In view of the Democratic trend on November 2, a post-election survey might be expected to show Minnesota to be anti-Eisenhower.

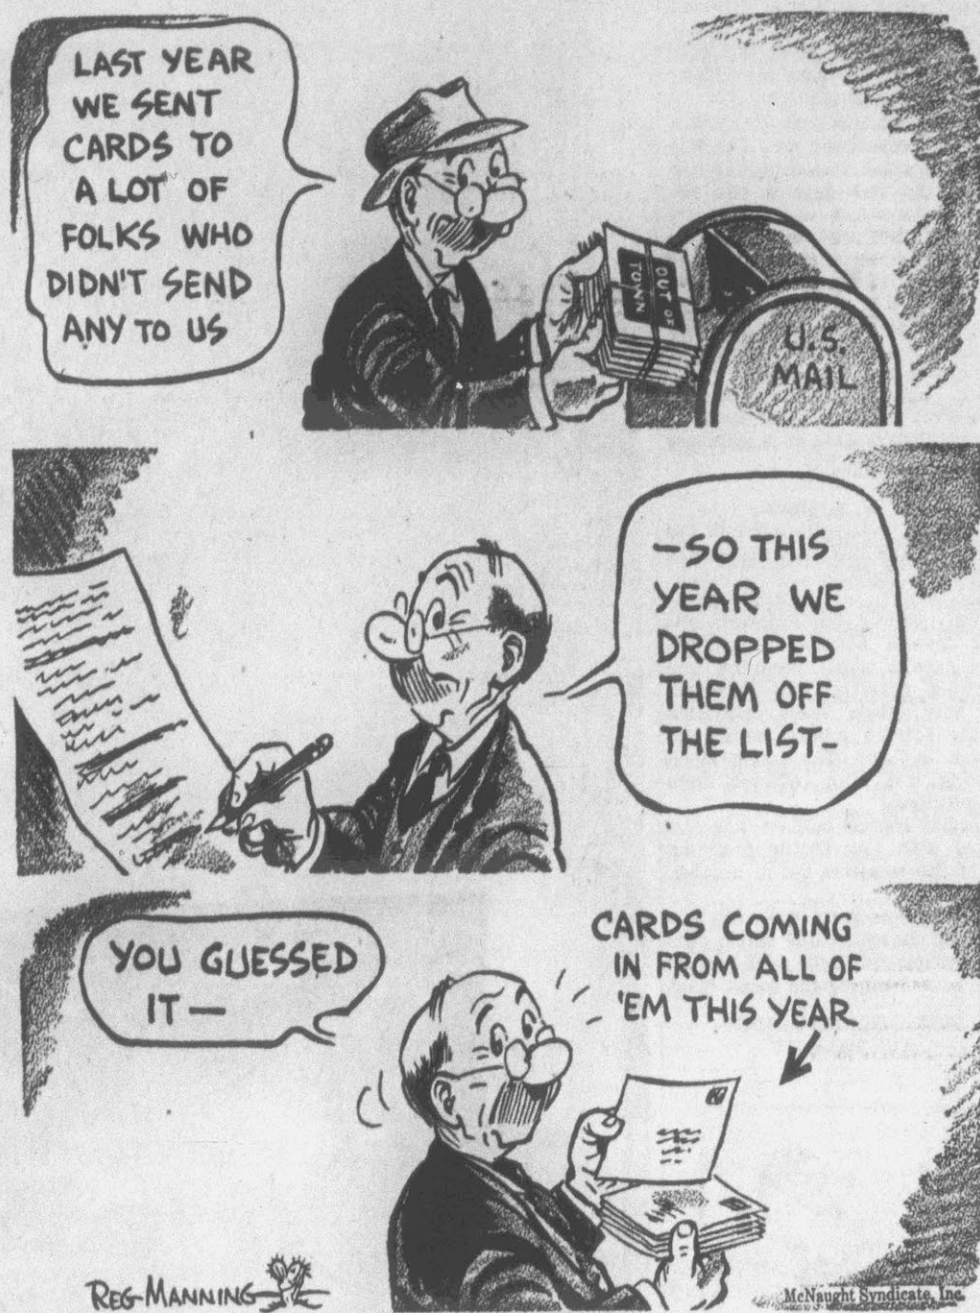

But the Mankato Press canvass in the southern section of the State showed that 37 per cent of the people who voted for Humphrey, a severe critic of Eisenhower policies, would have cast their ballot for the President, if he had been a candidate for re-election last month. In other words, despite the off-year Democratic trend, Ike could carry Minnesota today.

PRESIDENT HOLDS FAVOR—"The results," writes publisher Russell, "bear out the story of the poll last summer and of sentiment hereabouts generally—namely, that the people are still for Ike, regardless of their vote for the Democrat-Farmer-Labor candidate for Senator or for State offices."

"The problem seems to be how to sell the diaphanous in the GOP fold on the fact that they have their strongest and most popular leader in a generation. The opposition seems to appreciate that fact more than the Republicans do."

Publisher Russell, of course, made this acute analysis before the Butler-Stevenson-Rayburn combination decided at New Orleans to lambast Ike.

Christmas Cards

Somebody Told Me

Santa Claus Had Competition

Last night Santa Claus had competition from Cactus Jim. The Junior Chamber of Commerce Christmas party, portion one, featured a visit to Jaycee children by Santa, who had gifts for all. When TV Star Cactus Jim walked in Santa lost some of his thunder. The children swarmed from Santa to Cactus.

After the children were bedded down Jaycees came back for portion two of the Christmas Party, which included dancing and a floor show. Here again, Cactus starred. He already has over 3000 children in his fan club, but after last night will no doubt add some adults.

Virginia Taylor on the piano, the dancing of Mary Dunn Besty and Al Smith, and Bill Norwood and his accordion gave top-flight performances. Cactus served as master of ceremonies and revealed his talent for the pantomime.

As Frank Sinatra he did "Don't Worry About Me," as Johnny Ray "Tell The Lady I Said Goodbye," and as Jimmy Durante "It's My Nose's Birthday, Not Mine."

If Cactus could step out of character long enough before the TV camera, it would be a treat for televisioners to see his pantomimes.

Operation Christmas Tree is complete, except for the star on top. And Mrs. Martin Swartz has volunteered a star. May I repeat the names of the boys who helped with the project? John Adams, Dallas Clark, Billy Goodwin, Steve Redd, Tommy Webb, George White and Burney Warren III. Come by 955 Shady Lane and take a look.

The word mix-up of a four-year-old: Daughter Nancy noticed that the cheese she was eating had an unusual taste. Wife Rachel explained that it was sharp. A few days later Nancy asked for some more of that "pointed" cheese.

Greenville observation: Betty Lou (Mrs. Charles) Howard was in the Greenville Post Office selling Christmas Seals. "New York. Everybody who comes in is in the biggest possible hurry. It's amazing to sit back and watch."

Everybody agrees that we rush too much, but it seems that nobody has time to slow down. And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

(THINK, PINK Birmingham News)

A fellow used to buy his suits in browns, blues, grays or black, which was variety enough, and if he was the conventional type always stuck to white shirts; the more daring who sought sartorial uniqueness indulged in blue shirts, sometimes in grays or tans. Today, it is pink.

We want it clearly understood we are not fighting this trend. Long have we held that men have restrained themselves, in their dressing, far more than they needed to, fearful lest their associates (males) raise a pointing, scornful finger and give issue to a tongue cluck which could bring the buy's chin down on his collar bone. Today, it's pink.

We used to know a fellow who had little taste as to clothing. He would put on a black suit and a pair of tan shoes and other fellows would snicker and say the guy didn't have brains enough to wear black shoes with black, gray or blue suits, tan only with browns. Today, you mix black and tan and you're the itest—which is a lot of "it." That and pink. We can't get away from pink.

Time was when pink was a dainty shade fetchingly clothing young belles. Or, the hue of a newborn babe's delicate and lovingly-wrought garments—if the baby was a girl. Not so today. Pop can stride out the front door on the way to the office unblushingly adorned in a quite noticeable pink shirt.

Well, we have nothing further to say about all this. But we are reminded, oddly enough, of the fellow who recently set a new altitude record. From some point way up there in the sky, he said, you could really see the curvature of the earth. He could tell, in brief, that the world really is round. News?

So, if black goes with tan now, and shirts are nearly rainbow-hued, don't blink. Think Pink.

Around Capitol Square

Tar Heels Are Told Unpleasant Aspect Of Government

By LYNN NISBET

RESPONSIBILITY — Governor Hodges expressed the opinion at two news conferences that the people share responsibility with the Governor, the Advisory Budget Commission and the General Assembly for solving the State's financial problems. In order to discharge that responsibility it is necessary that the people know as much as possible about the situation. He says they have a right to know, and it is the duty of the Governor to tell them as much as he can.

To that end he called a mass news conference for small daily and non-daily newspapers, radio and television stations which are not ordinarily represented at the regular semi-weekly conferences in his office. Pursuant to that call approximately 50 editors and reporters assembled in the Hall of the House Monday afternoon. Major part of the regular conference news morning was devoted to additional emphasis on the money items discussed at the large meeting.

UNPLEASANT — It is not a pleasant picture. "When the people see the rather terrific increases in revenue which must come from new sources that will be recommended by the advisory budget commission, they will wonder why so much money is needed," he said. He added that if they have some knowledge of conditions in advance, they may be able to help the Legislature. At the same time, he declined to name specific amounts or proposed sources in advance of release of the budget report, because he thinks to do so would subject legislators to heavy pressure from affected groups.

He approached the matter by pointing out that during the present biennium, 1953-1955, the State will spend out of its general fund about $30 million more than it collects during that same period. That means that during the next two years there must be found $30 million just to continue exactly the same services on the same scale as at present.

IMPOSSIBLE — Obviously it will be impossible to maintain exactly the same amount of services. It is estimated that there will be 31,000 more children in the public schools next year, and another 31,000 the following term. These extra children will require 1,000 teachers a year, plus physical facilities—class rooms, textbooks, transportation, etc. It is estimated that the public school system alone, without increase in salary and without reduction of teacher-pupil load will require $18.7 million more for the next two years than for the past two.

Increasing enrollments at colleges impose similar problems. Also the new buildings which have been completed with the past few months and those under contract will require substantial increases in allocations for janitorial services and upkeep.

So without any more buildings, without provision for a single additional mental or tubercular patient or polio or cerebral palsy victim, without a dime increase in salary schedules for teachers and other State employees, with no "new business" at all except to provide for the first graders in the public schools, the State will need from $50 to $75 million more from July 1, 1955, to June 30, 1957, than it collected during the present biennium.

The reason there wasn't serious embarrassment during the current period was the carry-over from previous administrations. Money could not be spent during the war years, but it came in more freely than ever before. Governor Cherry found a substantial surplus and by his second legislature it had grown to well above $100 million. Receipts for the last half of his administration continued ahead of spending and he left for Governor Scott a surplus of around $125 million. Collections were still good and despite the spending of current funds, in addition to $23.5 million in bonds, Scott left a balance of around $30 million at beginning of the Umstead administration. Receipts began to decline and the two years of the Umstead administration spent that $30 million, and also issued $86.5 million bonds, less than half of which has been actually spent although it is all earmarked for specific purposes.

SUMMARY — Summarized the situation is roughly this: The Cherry administration inherited a huge surplus and had continuing high current receipts; the Scott administration inherited more than $100 million, borrowed $23.5 million and also had continuing high collections. The Umstead regime inherited around $30 million, borrowed $86.5 million and faced declining revenues. Coming the middle of the term for which Governor Umstead was elected, Governor Hodges' administration faces a virtually empty treasury, with continuing decline in revenues, plus the greater demands occasioned by the Cherry-Scott-Umstead expansion programs on top of the normal increases due to growing school, college and hospital populations.

SPECIFIC — Governor Hodges made it clear he was not critical of his predecessors in pointing out these facts. He emphasized the same idea with respect to the highway fund. He was emphatic in his statements that the previous spending for most part represented good investment. But, he also insists that the people ought to know, that it costs

Idea For Promoting

By ELMER ROESSNER
Time for another roundup of new and profitable business ideas.

For retailers: A Washington, D.C., store window has a large sign inviting autoists to step inside for change for parking meters. A surprising number linger to buy.

For hardware dealers: Keep an eye on jelled paints, with a jelly-like consistency and ready to use when the can is opened. Do-it-yourselfers like it. Twenty companies now produce it and it may get strong advertising pushes next year.

For manufacturers: A majority of buyers prefer insecticides, room deodorants and hair lacquers in push-button aerosol cans, according to results of a survey of 1,983 stores. For a 32-page report on the survey, write F.R. Zumbro, Public Relations, duPont, 6529 Nemours Bldg., Wilmington 98, Delaware.

For houseware dealers: Research shows housewives need at least six basic cutlery utensils and that the average kitchen has only two, says Louis D. Bement, secretary, American Cutlery Manufacturers Association. That looks like an opportunity for more sales.

For retail associations: Merchants in Centralia, Ill., arranged to have a line of old clothes strung across Main Street and to have police take them down amid general excitement. A few days later—the line reappeared, with signs announcing "Ridiculous Days," the merchants' cooperative sale. The hoopla helped swell store traffic.

For department stores: If writing out sales checks is taking too much of salespersons' time, investigate a new machine that writes the checks and records the data for inventory control. (It's by Telecomputing Corp., Los Angeles.)

For manufacturers: Arner Co., Buffalo, builds good will by giving a boys' club its in-plant posters after use.

For department and specialty stores: After three years' work, the National Retail Dry Goods Association has produced an "Expense Center Accounting Manual," which is said to spell out operating improvements and lower costs for retailers. For details, ask the NRDA, 100 W. 31st St., New York 1.

For appliance dealers: If a competitor is injuring your sales by pretending to be a wholesaler, let the Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D. C. know. It is cracking down on such unfair competition.

GOVERNMENT DEBT COSTS EACH CITIZEN $42.18 A YEAR The total of Federal, state and local debts is $300 billion according to Facts and Figures in Government Finance, a reference book on government finance published today by the Tax Foundation.

This debt will cost $6.8 billion in interest next fiscal year, the book says. That comes down to $42.18 per person, 96 per cent more than the 1954 fiscal year. 11 MOSQUITO REPELLENTS MAY HEAD TOWARD MARKET

Government scientists have discovered 11 new mosquito-repelling chemicals, the Department of Agriculture reports. Each is said to be superior to previous repellents against one or more species.

Eventually, the formulas will be made available to manufacturers.

If You Must Brood, Do It Right

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Are you a last-minute brooder?

Do you wait until 1955 actually begins before you start brooding about all the wrong things you did in 1954?

Well, why keep putting it off? Why not be an early brooder? There are still 15 good brooding days left before the first of January. Why not do your brooding now, and avoid the late season rush?

It is this habit of postponing his brooding that ruins the post-holiday period for many an average man.

He wakes up on New Year's morning, feeling the effects of too much partying the night before takes a look at himself in the mirror, then crawls back into bed, muttering to himself:

"Hoy what a louse I've been all year."

His 12-month collection of conscience pangs strikes him all at once, and he writhes in mental self-torment. His mind is crowded with the memories of all the ways he has let down himself, his boss, his wife, his kids—and Norman Vincent Peale—during the preceding 365 days.

Overwhelmed by a vast sense of guilt, the tortured wretch takes no job in the bright prospects of the year ahead, because he feels he has wasted all the splendid opportunity in the year just ended.

In a blue funk he makes wild, hopeless resolves to do better—good resolutions that would test the mettle of an angel, resolutions he knows he can't possibly keep, and thus plants the seeds of future conscience pangs.

Reduced to a kind of moral jelly by this titanic attack of mass brooding, the guy really doesn't manage to lift himself out of his depression until he sees his first robin.

Meanwhile he is pretty grim company for other members of the house and the kids keep asking: "Mamma, what's the matter with Daddy? Did somebody give him a new ulcer for Christmas?"

The way to avoid this situation is to start your year-end brooding right now. But don't do it all at once. Space it out.

You can begin gradually. Just brood 5 to 10 minutes a day until you feel you are getting the hang of it. Too much sudden brooding, like too much sudden exercise, is bad for anybody, and particularly bad for people over 40.

One easy way to get into the swing of it is to start off brooding over the wrongs people have inflicted on you during 1954. This can be really enjoyable. In fact the danger here is that you will find this so pleasant you won't bother to get around to brooding over all the wrong things you did yourself.

But, of course, to do a thorough, all-around job of brooding you can't treat it like a one-way street. If you don't brood back over your own mistakes, you're only doing half the job, and you're missing the real scientific value of brooding.

The main thing is to buckle down to the task right now. Then, when the new year arrives, you'll be all brooded out, and eager to face the challenges ahead. And that brings up a final suggestion. Timing is very important in constructive brooding. Don't wait until next June to get your 1955 brooding under way. Get in a little spring practice during April.

Then, if you are really getting the knack of profitable brooding, you'll take time to brood about what lies ahead as well as what is already past.

The guy who is most likely to stay out of trouble in this world is the guy who does a little constructive brooding in advance—for if he doesn't like the price tag on what he sees he won't have to buy the penalty.

money to maintain good investments. If the State is to protect these investments and continue the level of service already established, more money has got to come from somewhere—and that somewhere is new tax sources.

He assured reporters at his news conferences, and asked them to pass on to the public, that he does not propose to recommend any more or less than the advisory budget commission. Both his immediate predecessors went far beyond budget figures in their recommendations for spending.

Governor Hodges gave further assurance that both the budget report and his budget message to the General Assembly would be specific as to services for which tax money should be spent and sources from which it should be derived. Governors Scott and Umstead recommended more spending than the budget group, but implied it was the province of the Legislature to find the money. What the specific recommendations will be the Governor said he would not reveal until the budget report is released early in January.

Quick Turnover In Lt. Governors

DENVER (AP)—Colorado is going to have four lieutenant governors before the new year is two weeks old.

Lt. Gov. Gordon Allott, a U. S. senator-elect, resigned yesterday, effective at midnight Jan. 2, so he can be sworn into his new job when congress convenes Jan. 3.

This makes Don C. Collins, as president pro tempore of the Senate, and his term will expire as soon as his successor is sworn Jan. 5.

One of the first acts of the State Senate will be to elect a new president pro tempore and the Republican majority already has decided it will name Sen. Frank L. Gill.

Since there then will be no elected lieutenant governor, because of Allott's resignation, Gill automatically will be lieutenant governor until Lt. Gov.-elect Stephen L. R. McNichols, a Democrat, is inaugurated Jan. 11.

Knowland Fears New Expansion

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) predicted last night that under certain circumstances the Soviets in 1955 or 1956 might move into parts of the world they do not now occupy.

He said this could come about if there is "a power vacuum or an indication of weakness," and it might be the Soviets themselves or action through Red China.

He added in a talk sponsored by the American Bureau for Medical Aid for Free China that he expected "great pressure" in 1955 to get Red China into the United Nations. This, he said, would only give prestige to Russia in the eyes of the world and then "all of Asia will go down."

Preparing For End Of World, Dec. 21

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Dr. Charles A. Laughhead, who college officials say believes the world will end Dec. 21, yesterday resigned his position as a staff member of the Michigan State College hospital.

The State Board of Agriculture, the college governing board, accepted his resignation routinely but asked for an explanation.

MSC President Dr. John A. Hannah reported to the board that Dr. Laughhead, a staff physician since 1948, was resigning because of his belief the world will end Dec. 21.

"I first heard about this business when a group of students came to me," Dr. Hannah said. "They told me Dr. Laughhead had been holding meetings at his home and preaching the beliefs of some peculiar religious sect."

Dr. Hannah said Dean of Students Tom King and Dr. C. J. Menzies, head of the college hospital, investigated and that Dr. Laughhead admitted and talked freely about his beliefs.

Dr. Hannah said the group believes that the world will end Dec. 21 and that flying saucers from Venus or Mars—the MSC president

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A pretty young woman applying for a passport offered a new idea here for those passport pictures which nobody has ever mistaken for a Rembrandt portrait.

"Can I smile?" she asked Mrs. Vernice Hall in the United States court clerk's office.

Mrs. Hall knew of no government regulation against it.

Rating Bureau Head Is Killed

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—C. E. Hooper, nationally known radio executive who founded the Hooper system of rating radio and television programs, was killed yesterday when he fell into the whirling blades of an air boat propeller while duck hunting on Great Salt Lake. He was 56.

He died a few minutes after he was brought to a Salt Lake City hospital, his body almost cut in two by the propeller.

Frank McClatchy, of Salt Lake City, one of two men with Hooper in the boat, said the radio executive jumped out of the craft when it lodged on a sand bar. He attempted to push it loose, slipped and fell into the spinning blades. An air boat has an airplane-like propeller mounted on the rear for use in shallow water.

Hooper was president of C. E. Hooper, Inc., New York City, which specializes in studies of radio audience measurement.

His home was in South Norwalk, Conn. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

Desperate Man May Get A Job

He quit his windswept post after a rubber company executive told him to report for an interview tomorrow about getting a job and an advance to pay his debts.

irates Defeat Erskine, 82 - 65, For Fourth Straight

arris Again Has Big Scoring Night

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

The East Carolina Pirates ignored the reputation of Erskine College's Flying Fleet and race-horsed to an easy 82-65 win here last night in an inter-state battle.

The win was the fourth in a row for Coach Howard Porter's Bucs, who now have wins over Guilford, Oatwabe, Lenoir Rhyne and Erskine. Again it was Don Harris, heir apparent to North State Conference all-time greatness, who produced the scoring punch. He dropped in 22 points to share top tallying honors with freshman Guy Mendenhall. The smooth-as-cream sophomore from Laurinburg recorded 10 points in the first half and came back with a even dozen after intermission. All his points came on field goals, most of them from a good yard out.

Mendenhall and Nick Nichols completely monopolized both backboards in the last half. Besides collecting 22 points, Mendenhall hauled in numerous rebounds and did a fine defensive job on Jim Jordan, Erskine's 6-10 center who was held to four points. Nichols contributed 20 points to the cause and pulled down rebounds with marked consistency.

The first 20 minutes of the tilt were very slow-moving with neither team hitting with any degree of accuracy. At the end of the first 10 minutes, the Pirates stood a half step in front 16-15. Harris, Nichols and Mendenhall gathered 15 points between them and Cecil Heath, Bucs' captain, added a gift toss. Dale Storms, busy little guard, kept the Pirates in the contest with his fine all-round play. Jordan got four points in the first 10 minutes and went basket-less the rest of the way.

The half ended with the Pirates leading narrowly 36-30. After the intermission lull, the Bucs caught afire and scorched their way to 46 points and a final 17-point margin over their tired South Carolina visitors.

Harris kept dunking baskets like donuts in coffee, never losing his repose or slackening on defense. In the first ten minutes of the second half, he canned three long one-landers consecutively. While Nichols and Mendenhall were hogging the backboards, guards Heath and C. Thomas were setting up the break and snowbirds at the pace of more than a point-a-minute. Dale Storms, Erskine captain, and Ralph Moore, one of the nation's leading rebounders last season, continued to pace the Fleet in a losing cause. Storms tallied eight points in the final eight minutes to offset some of the Bucs' scoring. Moore played steady throughout the game and scored 11 points.

Coach Porter cleared his bench in the fading minutes after victory was ascertained. In their abbreviated appearances, William, McArthur, Jerry Bosquet, Marion Hales, Waverly Atkins, Fred James and Wadell Solomon looked promising.

East Carolina winds up its pre-holiday games this Friday night when they play host to Appalachian's Mountaineers in a North State Conference tilt.

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas, sent the United States into a 2-0 lead over Sweden today in the interzone final for the right to challenge Australia for the coveted Davis Cup — symbol of world tennis supremacy.

Fordham Again Drops Football

NEW YORK (AP)—For the fifth time in its 71-year history—speckled with great teams and brilliant players—Fordham University has decided to drop football, this time perhaps for good.

On the four other occasions it discontinued the sport various reasons were at hand. This time it's the "continued financial loss" the university has suffered through recent years, with no hope of improvement in the future.

The Rev. Laurence J. McGinley, president of the university, nailed the cause in a letter to alumni which was released with the announcement of the end of football at Fordham yesterday.

Green Phantoms Play Host To Wilson Cyclones

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

With four consecutive wins over Eastern AAA competition the Greenville Phantoms close out their pre-Christmas play tonight in the Greenville gym when they play host to the Wilson Cyclones.

The Cycs fell before the G-men in their second game of the year by the score of 65-55. In that game the Greenies outscored the Wilson squad 16-5 in the second quarter and held them on even terms the rest of the way out. Pat Sawyer had his big night that night with 19 points, a total he duplicated Tuesday night against Goldsboro.

The G-men round out their pre-Christmas play tonight but they still have one more game with a AAA school before their conference schedule starts. Rocky Mount will be played in the new Rocky Mount gym on December 31.

Bob Howell has taken over the team scoring lead after his 29 point effort Tuesday. Howell has hit for 58 points in four games for a 14.5

average. Harold Edwards and Sawyer each have 49 points and 12.2 averages. Tommie Saleed has 44 points and an 11 point average. Edgar Moore, the fifth starter, has a 7.5 mark.

Wilson features a fast offense centered around center Paul Blake and forward Freddie Deans. Guard Jimmy Hodge is a terrific outside set shot and keeps the defense from ganging up on Blake.

In the other meeting between the two schools this year Wilson tried to press the Phantoms when Coach Farley's gang went ahead by 12 points. The G-men quickly ran up a 19 point margin. It is doubtful that the Cycs will make that mistake again.

If the G-men are hitting anywhere like the figure they banded out Tuesday night, they should win the game easily. It would be highly unlikely for a team to be that hot on two successive games.

Wilson probably is the best of the three AAA schools the G-men have played this year. The game should be a real interesting contest.

The undefeated Greenville "B" team plays Wilson in the first game at 8:30. The varsity contest, comes off at 8 o'clock.

The probable starters for both teams are:

Paul Blake C
Jimmy Hodge G

Business Takes Its Cue On Next Year's Prospects

NEW YORK (AP)—Businessmen are getting their cue today on what to expect of Washington next year. If Congress goes along, the prospect is for continued high taxes, more money earmarked for defense, the start of spending on a huge road-building program, a continued federal deficit, extension of the President's powers to lower tariffs.

And the Federal Reserve Board is hinting that, just as it manipulated money and credit to put a brake on the recession, so it plans to do the same to halt any boom threatening to get out of hand.

Most businessmen are fairly well reconciled to the prospects that the corporate income tax rate and the excise taxes won't be allowed to drop next April as was promised last spring.

Spokesmen for Commerce Secretary Weeks' Business Advisory Council say they believe businessmen won't kick too much when the matter comes up in Congress.

If taxes are to stay high to help hold down the Treasury deficit, businessmen have other points in the program to evaluate.

Notice that Defense Secretary Wilson will ask Congress to appropriate five billion dollars more for defense in the coming year would seem to put a firm floor under arms spending.

Cuts in this form of government spending were a leading factor in starting the recession of a year ago. With defense spending leveling off at around $5 billion dollars a year, and with a chance of even increasing a little in the months ahead, the economy won't have to withstand any more shocks from that direction.

Spending on highways, moreover, will be a spur to many industries that supply the construction industry.

Treasury Secretary Humphrey's estimate that the fiscal year starting next July 1 will see a federal deficit of 4 1/2 billion dollars has a mildly inflationary prospect, since it means pumping more "new money" into the economy that is taken out of it by taxes.

But the Federal Reserve Board, the other arm in that operation, is hinting strongly that it is watching the present upsurge in business and has no intention of letting inflation get started again. It intends to keep credit easy and money fairly cheap.

Britons Enjoying A Plentiful Yule

LONDON (AP)—This will be Britain's first ration-free Christmas in 14 years, and the British housewife will have everything she needs — except possibly money.

Never since the war has there been so much food in the shops. Even raisins, once as precious as jewels are piled up in heaps.

Costs are another matter. The massive annual influx of turkeys into Britain's chief cities got started this week, and shoppers were unhappy over a price of 7 shillings 3 pence (about $1.02) a pound for the best Norfolk birds.

Overseas turkeys, chiefly from Northern Ireland, Hungary and the Argentine, will balance the situation. Dealers predicted there will be enough to go around at prices around 70-84 cents a pound.

There are geese to spare and one dealer foresees more beef and pork than the market can absorb conveniently.

'Towel' Proved Expensive Item

SUFFOLK, Va. (AP)—Tilton Henry Hobbs told Judge W.W. Jones that he tore up State Trooper P.B. Marlowe's accident investigation book "to wipe my hands."

The ripping occurred when Marlowe who had arrested Hobbs earlier, left his car for a few minutes. Judge Jones fined Hobbs $50 for using a towel the record book, which contained reports for two months.

Didn't Check On Check's Source

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two deputy marshals were surprised when the prisoner they were taking to Federal court stopped, reached into his pocket and pulled out a check for $25,000.

"Take this and get me the best lawyer in town — and keep the change."

Then they discovered the prisoner was being taken to court to face a charge of interstate transportation of falsely made checks.

Alaska Hopes To See Oil Rush

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A string of oil lease filings in recent months has raised Alaskans' hopes that wells may bring a boom to rival the rush once caused by gold.

An oil company applying for leases on 90,520 acres of the Kenai Peninsula was the eighth major petroleum firm to indicate interest in Alaska exploration.

Pitt Native Slated To Be Sales Supervisor At Winston-Salem

WINSTON-SALEM — The Winston-Salem Tobacco Board of Trade was slated to appoint Arthur (Tab) Williams Jr., assistant farm agent, as sales supervisor of the tobacco market this afternoon.

Mr. Williams, 26-year-old native of Pitt County, received the recommendation of a committee of warehousemen two weeks ago. Confirmation of the recommendation was put before the Board of Trade at a special meeting this afternoon.

Williams would succeed Joe R. Williams (no kin) who has held the job of sales supervisor for the past eight years. A few weeks ago he accepted the position of Deputy Director of the Tobacco Division of the United States Department of Agriculture, specializing in the flue-cured tobacco program for the Southeastern states.

Williams had also served as secretary to the Board of Trade and also to the Virginia-Carolina Warehousemen's Association.

The younger Mr. Williams' name was one of several presented to the committee for consideration during the past few weeks. Following the committee's action he has been understanding Joe Williams on market sales.

His home is located near Winterville, in the heart of the state's largest tobacco growing country. He was raised on his father's farm and helped produce in later years 25 acres of tobacco.

He attended high school in Ayden, later going to State College where he majored in agriculture. He graduated in 1930 after specializing in the production of tobacco. During the summer prior to his senior year he worked as a farm agent trainee in Pitt County under Farm Agent Sam Winchester.

He came to work in the Forsyth County agents' office in July 1950.

ARTHUR WILLIAMS, JR.

the first agent here who specialized in tobacco. In October of that year he was called into the Army and served two years, returning here in October 1952.

Since that time he has worked under Farm Agent Sam Mitchner, conducting variety tests, staging demonstrations in the field for better production, and supplying latest information from all sources for the Forsyth tobacco farmer's benefit.

While at State College Mr. Williams was active in student government, was a member of the Agricultural and Agronomy Clubs and during his senior year staged the latter's exhibit at the State Fair. He was also a member of Alpha Gamma Rho, social fraternity for agricultural students.

In Winston-Salem he is a member of the Jaycees, the State College Wolfpack Club and Centenary Methodist Church. He lives in Cloverdale Apartments.

OPEN SESAME PIE Submitted by Mrs. Bernard A. Koten, Washington, D.C. Adapted by Ann Pillsbury. Bake at 450 degrees F. for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 9-inch pie.

Toast 2 to 4 tablespoons sesame seeds in 9-inch piepan at 325 degrees F. for 8 to 10 minutes until light golden brown. Remove seeds, then turn over to 450 degrees F.

Sift together 1 cup sifted Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour and 1-2 teaspoon salt into mixing bowl. Add the toasted sesame seeds.

Cut in 1-3 cup shortening until particles are the size of small peas.

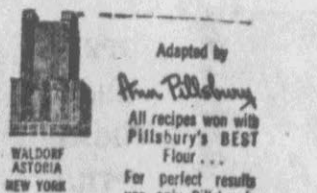

Sprinkle 3 to 4 tablespoons cold water over mixture, a little at a time, while tossing and stirring lightly with fork. Add water to moisten particles, pushing lumps to side, until dough is just moist enough to hold together.

Form into a ball. Flatten to about 1-2 inch thickness. Smooth dough at edges.

Roll out on floured pastry cloth or board to a circle 1 1/2 inches larger than inverted 9-inch piepan.

Fit loosely into piepan. Gently pat out air pockets. Fold edge to form a standing rim. Flute. Prick generously with fork.

HAWK WATCH

Ace lensman, Charles Gratton, is assigned by a big pix magazine to photograph a hawk-migration in West Virginia. "Red," a friendly local forest ranger and his little white dog Charm, accompanying Gratton to a lonely watch tower far out on the mountain. Through his binoculars, Gratton discovers someone, also using glasses, watching him from an opposite slope. Suddenly a golden eagle swoops into view, hovering awhile, then returning as though by signal, to the person on the opposite peak. During the night, it occurs to Gratton that the person who'd been watching him, might have been attacked by the bird, so next morning he and Red, still accompanied by Charm, do some scouting.

CHAPTER FOUR

The road was almost as narrow and just as winding as the fire tower road but it was hard-topped. At the gap on the summit the fog was still hanging low but squirming a little now and we could see the usual sediment of beer cans and paper plates that indicate people consider a place a beauty spot. There were tracks where cars had pulled off the road to enjoy the view of one sort or another. There was a path disappearing into the mist. There wasn't any car.

We let Charm out to snoop around and we lit cigarettes and settled down to wait for the fog to clear. The setter puppy came back every few minutes, just long enough to make sure her beloved Red was still there, and then limped off again—a little white long-eared phantom shutting in and out of the fog.

Just before eight the fog began to move off, or more nearly, clear pockets moved in as the breeze picked up. I took my binocs, though it seemed useless in the fog, and Red led the way up the path that climbed the shoulder of the mountain with Charm making scouting expeditions on either side.

We had gone about fifty or sixty yards when the path got steeper and I could feel the jagged surface of the rocks under my heavy walking shoes. Wind was carrying the mists away in great gobs now.

Further on I found some dirty white fur and bones down in one of the crevices, probably carried there by some animal, and a few feathers that could have been from a farmer's flock of Leghorns, but nothing human.

"Red, I'm satisfied there's no one lying up here. If there was, we'd see him."

"I think you're right."

"I'm beginning to get the rather unpleasant idea we're looking in the wrong place. If a man had been knocked off his feet by that eagle or lost his balance trying to dodge it he wouldn't be here on top."

Red looked down over the side and got a tight expression about the mouth. I kept my eyes carefully on the point of rock I was holding to.

I couldn't say where he'd been standing, even if he'd still been here when the eagle made his dive. We decided to start with the base of the rocks on the east slope, partly because it seemed to be a little more exposed, partly because when I saw the eagle diving it seemed to be headed for that side, and we had to start with something. That meant going back along the path till we found a place to climb down near the southern end of the formation. By this time the fog was rising high above the narrow valley in puffs of cumulus that seemed to float in the sunshine.

When we got to the base of the cliff Charm began nosing around with her usual enthusiasm while Red and I tried to visualize where a man would land if he'd fallen.

The big rocks strewn along the base of the cliff made it difficult to cover the ground efficiently. Some of them had mature trees growing on them with long tendrils reaching down for nourishment. Charm was enjoying herself more than I was but I tried to keep up with Red as we moved along.

It happened without any warning, not even a shadow. Just Charm's frightened bark like a twenty-gauge, and then her screams.

Red got around the corner of the boulder ahead of me. The big eagle had her down, smothering her with enormous half-folded wings, the long flat head scowling and extended like an obscene snake.

There was a golden sheen on top and down the hackles on the neck, and the dark horn-colored beak kept opening and closing on thin air. Its feathered legs were spread wide in an awkward angle, one yellow foot the size of a man's hand completely covered Charm's face, the other clamped her over the hip joint and seemed to be trying to stretch her into something longer. I don't think Red broke his stride. He was into the bird, kicking it—trying to keep the wings out if his face. I got my hands on a piece of branch and was doing my best to beat it over the head without hitting Red. He had kicked it loose but it seemed more intent on getting back at Charm than attacking us. After one more hovering, flapping lunge at what lay on the ground the eagle became air-borne and veered off. When I turned I could see why Charm had stopped screaming.

I tried to tell Red she never knew what hit her that it had been over so suddenly she hadn't suffered. Both of us knew better. It seemed to me the wind still carried the echo of her cries.

I did my best to get Red away from her but he insisted on gathering up what was left, wrapping it tenderly in his jacket. I led the way back to my roadster, trying not to see his eyes.

As I watched, the bird soared toward the side of the high point on Third Hill, counting in the south then as if it had received a radar impulse it turned, locked to the target and bored in. I decided it was another slaughter, more raw meat for that huge crop. But as I followed it in, the big wings beat-back like a duck settling onto water and then I saw it alight on the outstretched arm of a slender figure. It was too far away even with these glasses to be certain but again there was that feeling it might not be a man. It was in pants or jodhpurs and this time there was something about the shape and the way it moved—almost too graceful. It did something to the eagle's head, stroked it, maybe even fed the thing—I couldn't tell. It was sickening to see the big bird perched there as quiescent as a stuffed owl after what I had seen it, or another one just like it, do. While I watched, the figure walked away into the woods still carrying the thing as if it were a baby.

I turned to tell Red but when I saw him just sitting there in the car waiting with his bundle in his lap I couldn't hurt him any more. He didn't seem to be aware of it when I got in beside him or when we started the trip back down the mountain.

When we came in sight of his jeep at the crossroads he spoke for the first time:

"If you don't mind—I'm a little sick of hawks. I hate to spoil your trip."

"Forget it. I'm driving you home."

"No, I'd rather be alone. Our last ride."

"All right, Red. If you prefer. As long as I'm here I may as well try to get enough pictures for a story though God knows I don't care much about it now. Let me have the key to the tower. I'll mail it to you before I shove off for New York."

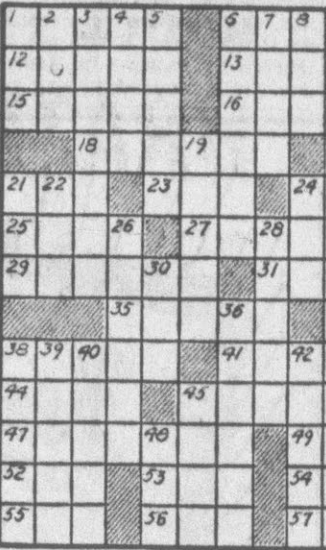

He handed it to me without speaking.

"And, Red thanks for your help. I wouldn't have had this happen for anything."

His big grip squeezed the rocky road to the fire tower was a deal I hadn't accounted for. At the worst of the turns I had to back and take them in two stages. By the time I pulled into the clearing at the base of the metal framework the radiator was boiling and I was convinced that losing sports cars belong on paved highways. I got out my Leica and assorted junk, put the package of sandwiches they'd fixed for me at the inn in the saddle pocket of my bush jacket and climbed the seven flights to the top. If wind meant hawks I was going to see plenty, for it nearly tore my hat off while I unlocked the trap door to the tower cubicle.

Inside, it was pleasantly warm and cozy with the wind shut out. Several shapes moving out of the north took my attention. Even I could tell they were hawks. I tried to keep a record like the one Red kept yesterday but I soon got confused. I could count them, but aside from the butterfly sort of flap-and-sail, flap-and-sail action that Red said was a sharp-shin, I had to guess at most species. In a couple of hours my record showed 214 sharp-shins and 4 ospreys. There were three or four hundred others, all of which were lost on me except one I was sure was a red-tail from the color of his fan. I gave up on my counting but I shot yards of film—deciding to let some of my birdy friends identify them for me after I got back to New York.

Toward noon it quieted down as if the hawks were knocking off for lunch. I'd found myself looking over at the clearing on Third Hill all morning when I wasn't busy with the hawks. It suited me fine that it was empty. I munched my sandwiches and thought of all the possible kinds the inn could have packed for me instead of ham and cheese and I wondered what it would be like here later on with the trees bare and the woods full of trigger-happy deer hunters. I stopped munching and looked at

Early Action Seen To Clear Chinese Students

WASHINGTON (U-P)—The United States may act before Christmas to clear 35 Chinese students for return to their Communist-ruled homeland.

That would torpedo Red China's claim, made in a broadcast Monday, that the 35 are being held as hostages for 11 U.S. airmen imprisoned by Peiping as "spies."

It would also set the stage for United Nations efforts projected for the week after Christmas, to have the flyers freed. U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold has offered to go to Peiping then to discuss the case. Peiping has yet to reply.

The State Department yesterday ruled out any deal in which the students would be swapped for the airmen. However, Department Press Officer Lincoln White would not say the 35 students would be refused exit permits.

A check showed screening of the cases has been completed and all that remains to be done is for the State and Justice departments to make a joint analysis and decision. Allies who are actively trying to help the United States with freedom for the flyers — countries like Britain and Canada — are reported to have urged a decision to let the students go.

The argument for such a decision goes like this: The United States already is in a strong moral position to demand before the world that Red China release the flyers, so why permit Peiping to belaud the issue with accusations that the 35 students are being held as hostages?

Battle Of The Bulge Recalled By German Soldier

Editor's Note — The following anniversary story on the Battle of the Bulge, as seen from the German side, was written by Willy M. Horbach, a member of the Associated Press staff in Bonn who served three years in the German army.

By WILLY M. HORBACH

BONN, Germany (U)—On a freezing December morning 10 years ago Adolf Hitler made his last desperate gamble to defeat the Allied armies in the West.

He sacrificed virtually all the mobile strategic reserves Germany still possessed in a bid to snatch the victory he had promised his war-weary people.

At dawn on Dec. 16, 1944 two German Panzer armies moved through misty woods to attack the thinly manned positions of the American 1st Army in the Ardennes Mountains along the German-Belgian border.

It was the start of what the Germans called operation "Wacht am Rhein" (watch on the Rhine)—soon dubbed by the Allies "the Battle of the Bulge."

Within hours the German assault battalions had broken through the American lines and were headed for the River Meuse.

In Germany, people were seized by a mixture of hope and fear. Some hoped the offensive would bring victory. Others feared the agony of war would only be prolonged.

In hindsight, the Ardennes offensive clearly stands out to military historians here as one of the most reckless adventures ever undertaken.

The object was to separate the British and American armies by attacking across Belgium and seizing the important harbor of Antwerp. That would cut the British off from their supply base and force a second "Dunkirk," Hitler believed.

Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, German commander in chief in the West, was shocked by Hitler's plan, he told Allied interrogators after the war.

"We had neither the men nor the supplies for such an ambitious plan," he said.

But the Fuehrer had his way and the offensive was hastily prepared. The tanks of Sepp Dietrich's 6th Panzer Army were brought across the Rhine. The 5th Panzer Army under Gen. Hasso von Manteuffel, rumbled into an assembly area in the wooded Eifel Mountains between Bitburg and Kronenburg.

The people there still have vivid memories of that time.

"I have never seen much a lot of tanks and soldiers," says Hans Bosch, a farmer in the Pruem area who lost two sons in the war.

"When I saw all those soldiers that morning I asked them what they were doing. A young officer told me: 'We attack again.'"

"I only felt sorry for them. They were so young, as young as my sons were when the army took them."

Many Germans were horrified when word of the offensive reached them. They were the people who had stayed behind in Aachen, Munschauf and other border towns when the Americans marched in. They had defied a Nazi order to evacuate their home towns. Because they had been branded traitors and saboteurs by the Nazi, they had ample cause to fear German recapture of their towns.

The Germans hurled 14 infantry and seven armored divisions—with 800 tanks—at the weakest section of the long Allied front. "Storm battalions" attacked under covering fire of 2,000 guns.

The American division were outnumbered 4 to 1. But deep snow, steep hills and bad roads slowed down the Germans from the start. Manteuffel—now a member of the West German Parliament—drove his tanks through the night. But the attackers did not gain as much ground as they expected.

In the North the S.S. Panzer army met determined American resistance around Monschau, on the Belgian border. For days Dietrich was stalled there, giving the Allies time to rush reinforcements to the Meuse—Dietrich's objective.

Manteuffel took over from Dietrich the main punch. His tanks headed for Dinant and Namur while Dietrich was still heavily involved around Monschau, Butgenbach and Malmédy.

It was the unshakable American defense of Bastogne—where Brig. Gen. (now Lt. Gen.) Anthony C. McAuliffe said "nuts" to a German demand he surrender—that finally stopped Manteuffel.

Falling to capture the city immediately, he bypassed the defenders—the 101st Airborne Division. But then Bastogne menaced the German rear. It held out until relieved by Patton's 3rd Army on Dec. 26. It was the turning point of the Battle of the Bulge. Manteuffel had to retreat when his tanks were only a few miles from Dinant.

Hitler's Christmas present for the hard-pressed Germans was a flop. He had pulled all his tricks, including sending 40 jeep-loads of English-speaking Germans in American uniforms behind the Allied line to spread confusion and sabotage.

The skeletons of burned farmhouses still loom against the skyline today on the scene of what Von Rundstedt called Germany's "Stalingrad No. 2."

New Or Old Art For Christmas Found In Scores Of Fine Books

By W.G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—All the ages of art, from cave painting to stables and mobiles, from here around the world and back, have been splendidly packaged in a score of books in time for Christmas. From Skira, from Phaidon, British Book Centre, Knopf, Pantheon, Oxford, Harper, Macmillan, Harry N. Abrams, Museum of Modern Art, and from Harcourt, Brace, among other houses, there have come this fall some of the best art books ever published by regular trade houses. With top price of $35, and the bottom down in the bargain basement at $2.95, there is something here for all your gift problems.

The bindings are generally very fine. The pages are large, the margins wide, the type clear and legible. The illustrations, whether in color or black and white, are excellently reproduced. The texts range from dependable up.

The scope of the offerings is indicated in the title of one of them, "Fifty Centuries of Art," selected and edited by Francis Henry Taylor, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

This full-color history of art has 342 illustrations plus text. From the same museum staff comes "Aspects of Chinese Painting," by Alan Priest, curator of Far Eastern art. And while we're on museums, there is "Treasures of the Great National Galleries," with text by Hans Tietze, containing more than 300 illustrations of the work of 143 painters. "Masters of Modern Art," Alfred H. Barr Jr., editor, is a feature of the Museum of Modern Art's 25th anniversary.

One book is in effect a museum in itself, the suite of 180 Picasso drawings assembled under the title "Picasso and the Human Comedy." There are also, besides a couple of the bargain-size Skiras, additions to the Skira series: "The Great Centuries of Paintings," by Arpag Mekhitarian, and "Gothic Painting," text by Jacques Dupont and Cesare Gnudi.

"Art Treasures of the Prado," with text by Harry B. Wehle, contains 167 reproductions. An appropriate seasonal selection is "Signs and Symbols in Christian Art," by George Ferguson.

Among books devoted to individual artists there are "Drawings," by Goya, text by Robert Th. Stoll; "Drawings and Watercolours," by Daumier, text by Anna Maria Cello; "Roses," by Pierre-Joseph Redoute, text by Eva Mannering; "The Alphabet of Creation," a legend from the Zohar, with drawings by Ben Shahn; "The Passport," by Saul Steinberg, a very circus of a book, comical and philosophical, false and true, lines thick and thin, straight, bent, wiggly, firm and dot-and-dash; and a "Rembrandt," with text by Ludwig Munz.

The modern period is superbly represented by two other books. "Modern Prints and Drawings" is by Paul J. Sachs and Harvard and the Fog, and has a preface by Alfred H. Barr Jr. "Eight European Artists" is the story in photograph and text by Felix H. Man, plus autobiographical holograph pieces by the artists: Braque, Chagall, Leger, Le-Corbusier, Matisse, Moore, Picasso and Sutherland.

Both new and old is "The Eagle, the Jaguar, and the Serpent: Indian Art of the Americas," by Miguel Covarrubias. It covers the ground from Mexico north—the United States, Canada and Alaska,

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, Real Estate Editor

The house of the future is taking on more reality than dream talk.

Within 25 years new homes may be equipped with gas burners the size of a nickel, refrigerators that aren't cold, wireless electric lamps and heat supplied by atomic furnaces. These wonders have been worked out experimentally, although they are not ready for mass production.

H.F. Kooper of the University of Minnesota School of Architecture, described them for home builders recently in the American Builder, trade publication of the light construction industry. He observed that the house of the future will be more a matter of "what the public will ask for, rather than what science will provide, although the latter would be more startling."

The reason for that conclusion, he said, is that we always are conservative about housing.

Evidence indicates that when radical changes do occur in American homes, they'll probably come first in the West. This has been demonstrated by features of what is now called "contemporary" architecture. Many of these features were on the drawing boards of Frank Lloyd Wright and a few other bold pioneers around the turn of the century. Although it took about 50 years for them to be widely accepted in the West, they still are outlawed by code in many Eastern communities.

The contrast between the East and the West was especially noticeable in this year's National Home Week competition conducted by the American Builder. Edward G. Gavin, veteran editor of that magazine, was the man who started that annual week. So Gavin's office makes awards each year to the cities which make the most impressive observance of that week.

One of the points considered by the judges was "general over all design of houses displayed." The West won hands down. Seattle was first among the big cities. Dallas was a close runner-up. Wichita took first prize in the next group of cities, with Salt Lake City second. There were other considerations, but this writer, examining all of the contest entries in Chicago, and it was particularly Covarrubias' job to do.

was especially struck by the regional difference in design. There was very little "old hat" in any town, but obviously it is not enough to blame mortgage lenders entirely for conservatism in house architecture.

What about those previously mentioned wonders for the house of the future? You can't see them in the West, yet, but here's how they work:

The nickel-size gas burner can control heat from a low simmer to speed cooking as effectively as a plate-size burner.

The refrigerator that isn't cold will be a food box filled with gamma radiations instead of cold air, killing all bacteria and thus preserving the food.

Wireless electric lamps will be lit by high-frequency waves. A built-in radio wave generator would fill your house with unseen, unfelt, high-frequency radiations that would light the phosphors in fluorescent tubes.

And with atomic power plants now under way, heat will be as much of a by-product as the steam from electric plants that heats hundreds of New York skyscrapers today.

Maybe you're not ready for sterile food or a room charged with radiations? Then it's no wonder we're conservative and cling to good old days.

The scripture, taken from Luke, was read by Mrs. Garrenton. Mrs. Moody then told about the origin of the carols which was very interesting and given in a pleasing manner.

Three of the carols were then sung by Mrs. Tom Andrews Jr., Mrs. Linwood Gurganus, Miss Caroline Wright and Mrs. Harold Staton, accompanied by Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst at the piano. The carols which the quartet sang were "Silent Night," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," and "O Little Town of Bethlehem." Mrs. Andrews then sang "O Holy Night."

What home-town institution has just set an all-time high in savings?

In 1954 Americans of all kinds—people just like those you see above—put more of their money into savings accounts than in any other year since the war.

This may surprise you: They put over 3.9 billion of these hard-earned savings account dollars into insured Savings and Loan Associations... more than in any previous year... and more than they put anywhere else. Why? Why did millions of Americans elect to save in their home-town, insured Savings and Loan Associations?

There are several very simple reasons:

One—When you put your money into an insured Savings and Loan Association, you know it's safe. Your savings are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation—an agency of the U. S. Government.

Two—Insured Savings and Loan Associations are local, home-town organizations, managed by friendly, trustworthy people of your own community.

Three—Insured Savings and Loan Associations give excellent returns on your savings. That's because they can invest most of their funds in sound, monthly-paying home mortgages.

Four—The officers of insured Savings and Loan Associations really know their communities. The proof is that people come to them for one third of all home mortgage loans. Last year they were the nation's largest single source of mortgage loans for home building, buying and alterations! Savings and Loan Associations originated the "pay-like-rent" home mortgage.

Whether you're interested in savings or home loans, drop in at an insured Savings and Loan Association. You'll find it's a mighty good place to do business.

Bill Cullen On The Air 7 Times Weekly

By WAYNE OLIVER
NEW YORK (AP)—One way to test your radio or television set is to tune through all the stations and channels and see if you get Bill Cullen. If you can't, better call the repairman.

The slender, mischievous master of ceremonies is on the air seven times a week over a total of five networks — two TV and three radio. During most of the past several months he has been flying twice across the country each week between his shows here and his emcee job on Place the Face out of Hollywood on NBC-TV.

Two questions naturally arise about Cullen's heavy pace: 1. Why does he do it? 2. How can he stand up to it?

He answers to the first question, "Two reasons: money and exposure." To the second: "It's no strain. . . . Shows of the type I do can't require a lot of rehearsal and preparation."

Explaining about the "exposure," Cullen figures the more times he is seen and heard the more he impresses himself on the public as a TV-radio personality. Up to a point, he thinks it's good for his career.

But, he says, once he's achieved that purpose "I don't think it would be wise to continue to overexpose myself."

"My own ideal is to be on the air a couple of times a week," he adds.

Cullen's present schedule includes: Tuesday, Stop the Music, CBS radio; Wednesday, Walk a Mile on NBC radio and I've Got a Secret on CBS-TV; Thursday, Name That Tune on CBS-TV and a flight to Los Angeles to prepare for Place the Face on NBC-TV Saturday night. Late Saturday night he flies back. However, the cross-country flights for Place the Face will end, at least temporarily, when the show is dropped from its present spot on the NBC schedule.

Cullen also has The Road Show on NBC radio that is recorded in advance between other shows. He and Arlene Francis also are heard on Mutual radio in recorded programs. And he is seen in some cities in 15-minute filmed programs, Professor Yes 'n' No.

Rare Exhibition Of Cigar Bands

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (AP)—Thousands of dollars worth of bands were displayed in the first international cigar band exhibition just opened here. More than 30,000 bands were shown from collectors in Cuba, Spain, the United States, France, Germany and Belgium.

Collectors say history, art, science, sports and many other activities can be followed through cigar band collection. Many of the exhibitors do not smoke.

PALES PEGGED
STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)—The New Haven Railroad plans eventually to adjust commuters fares to rises and falls in the cost of living index, its president Patrick B. McGinnis has announced.

News From Ballards

By MRS. G. & NICHOLS

Using as a Bible reading five verses from Isa., 40th chapter, and as a text Matthew, 2nd chapter, 2nd verse, saying, "Where is he that is born King of the Jews for we have seen his star in the east and are come to worship him." Rev. J. A. Evans of Wilson preached a very inspirational Christmas sermon on the birth of Christ at the Piney Grove Baptist Church last Sunday morning. A special vocal selection, "Silent Night," was sung by the choir with E. T. Clark singing part of it as a solo.

There were 184 present for Sunday School and the church was beautifully decorated for the Christmas season and the flowers and decorations were given by the Junior Ladies Auxiliary.

The Christmas program will be presented at the church on Wednesday evening, Dec. 22, at 7:30 o'clock. The Senior Ladies Auxiliary will meet on Friday evening at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Mildred Humbles, RFD Greenville. This is the Christmas meeting and all members are urged to attend. Mrs. Myrtle Ruth Tyson will present the program on "God's Love."

The Youth Crusade for Christ group was glad to welcome Evangelist and Mrs. Paul Black at the regular meeting on last Saturday evening at the Ballards community center. Evangelist Black organized this group in December 1953 and it has grown even beyond the expectations of the leaders. The attendance averages from 40 to 50 young people at nearly every meeting, besides the older ones who attend. On each Sunday afternoon a radio program is presented over WGTG, Greenville, by this group from 1:00 to 1:30 with different ones taking part.

The Youth for Christ group will present their Christmas program, "Carol Finds Christmas," on Saturday evening, Dec. 25, at the Ballards community center to which everyone is invited to attend.

The Youth Crusade for Christ is an international organization and is interdenominational where young people are taught the truths of the Bible, Christian living and Christian leadership.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Forrest, who have been making their home in this community for the past 20 years, have moved into a community near Morehead City.

Mr. and Mrs. John Flanagan and Mrs. Annie Flanagan were recent visitors of Mrs. Lydia Roberson in Nashville, N. C.

Miss Peggy Ross of Willow Greene was a weekend visitor of Miss Ethel

May Dunn.
L. P. Batts and Joe Bailey were Winston-Salem visitors Monday.
Friends of Leon Crawford will be sorry to learn that he is critically ill in Pitt Memorial Hospital, having suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.
Mr. and Mrs. James Moore and family, enroute to New Hanover, Pa. to make their home, were weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Harrel.

Suburban Areas Grow Too Fast

DETROIT (AP)—Suburban Roseville and St. Clair Shores have banned new home construction while they work out a plan to curb "growing pains."

Both are considering adding $150 to $300 to the cost of building permits, saying rapid expansion has outdistanced ability to provide sufficient schools or adequate water and sewer facilities without additional revenue. Roseville's ban includes new commercial as well as home construction.

At Least Some Results Shown

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—A burglar suspect told police he hid a wallet in Plaster Creek, which meanders along one of the city's municipal golf course.

A search didn't turn up the wallet, but police came back with about a dozen golf balls.

Although goose quills were most often used for pens, the quills of hawks, swans, crows, eagles, owls, peacocks and turkeys also were used.
