The Christmas Dream Presented At P.T.A. Meeting In Falkland

On Wednesday night at 7:30 in the Falkland School Auditorium a special Christmas program was presented by the first, second, third and fourth grades. The president, Mrs. J. R. Peaden, welcomed the large crowd and announced that only a few items of business would be considered due to the nature of the program. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the treasurer's report given by Charlie H. Tyr. The business session was closed after announcements were made by Mr. Ed. Warren.

The original Christmas play, "The Christmas Dream," written by Mrs. Irene Mayo, gave more than 90 children the opportunity to participate.

The fourth grade presented an impressive rendition of the true meaning of Christmas by readers and carolers.

Mrs. Glenn Scott, public school music teacher, was ably assisted by the teachers in furnishing the music for the production.

The first grade won the floating banner for having highest per cent of parents present.

The average school has nearly as much area devoted to corridors, gymnasiums, auditoriums and service areas as to classrooms.

Lodge Holds Memorial Service Here Yesterday

Judge J. W. H. Roberts was orator Sunday afternoon at the Greenville Elks Lodge's memorial service for deceased members. Exalted Ruler J. Roger Collins Jr. officiated.

The annual "Lodge of Sorrow" was held at the new Elks' Home, near Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The speaker said "It is fitting that we honor the memory of our dead during the Christmas season, near the anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Peace in Bethlehem nearly 2,000 years ago." Roberts reminded that the tradition of Elksdom is: "We record the faults of our brothers in the sands of time; their virtues, in marble and stone."

The exalted ruler said "the memorial service is to remind the living that our brothers are not forgotten." He called on lodge officers "to give the symbols of tribute to deceased brothers." They offered the forget-me-not which typifies charity; the amaranth, emblem of immortality, and clinging ivy, symbol of brotherly love.

The ceremony concluded with "Unfold Ye Portals" by Dan Sutton, organist.

As Secretary P. W. Pickelsimer called the roll of the 19 deceased brothers, Lodge Esquire Harry M. Brown extinguished a candle on the lodge altar.

The ceremony was in memory of the following: A. L. (Roy) Barrett, N. O. Warren, J. M. Lane Jr., John Flanagan, I. W. (Jack) Netherland, L. B. Garris, Dail Laughinghouse Sr., C. B. Rowlette Jr., Charles F. Manning, Felix Scheller, Cecil C. Jones, C. L. Russ, Clem Garner, Bruce O. Baker, Matt R. Long, Howard Sumrell, Earl E. Forbes, Maj. Tommy Sellers, killed in action over Korea, and I. S. Fleming.

Club officials participating in the memorial service included Stuart Page, esteemed leading knight; W. J. Davenport Jr., esteemed loyal knight; Joe Dresbach, esteemed lecturing knight, and John D. Dickens, chaplain.

SUPPER MEETING
Greenville Elks Lodge No. 1645 will have a supper meeting at the new Elks' Home, near Pitt Memorial Hospital, Thursday night. Exalted Ruler Roger M. Collins will preside. Several members are to be initiated. Supper will be served at 6:30. The lodge will meet at 8 o'clock.

Man Charged In Waitress' Death

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP)—Beaufort County Sheriff Hugh Salter said today that Moody Z. Lewis, 55, of Salter Path, was being held here charged with murder in the fatal shooting of a waitress yesterday.

The sheriff said Thessa Dolzer, 33, of Morehead City, who worked as a waitress at nearby Atlantic Beach, was found dead on the beach early yesterday. She had been shot with a 12 gauge shotgun, Salter said.

The sheriff quoted Lewis as saying the woman was going to shoot him and the gun discharged as they wrestled for it.

A search was started for Lewis a few hours after the body was found, Salter said, with Lewis surrendering last night. A 12 gauge shotgun was found between two mattresses on Lewis' bed where he told officers he placed it, the sheriff declared.

Coroner L. D. Sprinkle will hold an inquest here tonight.

Rough Weekend For Motorists With Eight Accidents In City

This was a rugged weekend in Greenville and Pitt County for motorists, with 8 traffic accidents reported within the city limits for Saturday and Sunday.

In the county, with speed clocks working full time, the State Highway Patrol charged 27 vehicles with speeding on Sunday alone.

On Saturday at the intersection of Harding and Johnson Streets, a car driven by L. L. Bishop Jr., Greenville, was involved in a collision with a car operated by Alton Tucker, Negro, Greenville. Damage to both cars was approximately $310.00.

Also on Saturday at Third and Cotanche streets, two cars bumped in traffic, one driven by Frederick L. Swallow, Camp Geiger, N.C., and the other by Samuel E. Haddock, Greenville. Swallow has been charged with failure to yield the right of way. Officer W. C. Flakes was the investigating officer.

On Sunday a vehicle operated by

J. N. Wright, Negro, Route 2, Greenville, ran into a house owned by Amy Bell at 1504 W. 5th Street. Wright's car was damaged an estimated $500.00, and the house approximately $100.00.

Wright stated that he came out of a driveway and in order to avoid an unknown car driving on left side of street, stepped on the accelerator quickly, and lost control of the car. The car then ran up into the yard and hit the house.

Later in the day police charged Milton Jenkins Jr., Negro, of Greenville, with failing to yield the right of way, when his car was involved in an accident with a vehicle operated by George F. Rowe of College Place, Greenville.

A car driven by Mrs. Dan Whitely, Greenville, ran into the rear of a car operated by Jeremiah Little, Negro, of Route 2. Little has been formally charged with failure to yield the right of way. Damage to both cars was approximately $350.00.

Police also charged Nelson Ennis, Negro, of Winterville, with failure to yield right of way, when his car was involved in a collision with a car operated by C. F. McKinney, Greenville. Over $250.00 damage was done to both cars.

On Hudson and Third streets a taxi driven by John H. Corey, Negro, of Greenville, was involved in a minor collision with a car operated by William W. Moore, Negro, of Greenville. The investigation is not complete on this accident yet, police report.

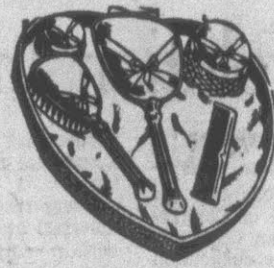

Another minor accident involved cars driven by Jessie C. Daniels, 1230 Davenport, and Thomas L. Terry, 203 Nash St. at 5th and Vance streets. An estimate $150.00 damage was done to both cars.

Air Force Has Its Monkeywrench Poised

If the Air Force tries to block the release of a highway right-of-way across the Pitt-Greenville airport property it may well kill the bypass project so vitally needed by this area. Funds for the project already have been approved, preliminary plans have been completed, and the contract for the first phase of the project is to be let next month.

Are the people of Pitt now going to sit back and let the Air Force block the much-needed project? We hope not.

Local officials who conferred in Washington last week with Air Force and CAA officials brought a disturbing but enlightening story to the people of Pitt. They learned the Air Force had planned to

A Man Who Lives Before His Time

In each generation there are men who live before their time. According to their political philosophy, their way of thinking, they more rightly belong in a succeeding generation. Some live to see at least a portion of their dreams fulfilled by other leaders. Others carry the label of "crackpot" or "radical" to their graves without seeing the fruition of their dreams.

American Socialist leader Norman Thomas is one of those who has lived before his time. He has been an image on the American political scene for many decades, but he has afforded leadership for only a small segment of the American people. His socialist philosophy has been too extreme for the American people of his day. Perhaps they will more closely resemble the popular thinking of the next generation. The recent trend in American government at least offers that suggestion.

The night the 1952 Democratic Party platform was adopted in Chicago, the aging socialist leader sat before his typewriter in the convention press headquarters. Discussing the platform with younger reporters, he shook his head and commented, "that's the same platform I wrote for the socialist party in the '20s."

A man who lives before his time must suffer many heartaches. With it all, however, he may likewise experience rare moments of gratification.

ALERTED FOR LOST CHILDREN

Some time ago a child was lost in North Dakota. When the word went out that a searching party would convene at a certain place, 2000 people showed up, coming in cars and busses some from points hundreds of miles away. Then they all joined hands and started across the plain, looking for the child.

We do not have to go to North Dakota to find lost children. They are right in the community in which you and I live—some of them on our street, perhaps some even within the circle of our family love. Two thousand years ago, Jesus said that whosoever offended against a little one, it were better for him that a millstone be cast into the sea. Yet men and women quarrel with each other and break up their homes. They induct their children into drinking habits and excuse themselves by saying that they are teaching the children to drink moderately. They give and attend parties that are bad examples to their children. They tell lies about little things, and about big things. They put money and style first.

Lost children! It does not take a line of searchers a mile long to find them. They are everywhere. What we have to do is to avoid the carelessness that allows them to get lost in the first place, and then when they do get lost, make our search for them the things of greatest importance.

National Whirligig

Ending A Traditional Policy

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles are slowly reversing and repudiating the historic policy of self-determination of small peoples pioneered by Woodrow Wilson at the Versailles Peace Conference and reiterated by Franklin D. Roosevelt in the Atlantic Charter. But neither statesman is especially happy over the necessity for the shift.

In supporting such colonial powers as Britain, France and the Netherlands against the demands of certain overseas elements for full freedom, the White House concedes that it has taken this step only in the interest of Allied unity in the face of the Russian menace. Both Eisenhower and Dulles, almost apologetically, explain their action on the basis of international expediency.

INTERNATIONAL IDEALISM—In retrospect, and despite the idealism which motivated their self-determination program, the Wilson-Roosevelt slogans have weakened the Western World's resistance to dictators of the Fascist or Communist variety. Breaking Europe into small and helpless pieces at Versailles made it much easier for Hitler to swallow them one by one, and eventually bring on World War II. Similarly, Moscow was able to absorb the Baltic, Central European and Balkan States after World War II because of the divisions that had been created on the circumference of Russia.

Still under the spell of international idealism, Roosevelt and former President Truman contributed to this debilitating movement. F.D.R. helped to win independence for India and Indonesia by exerting pressure on London and the Hague. Truman helped to create the new state of Israel, antagonizing the Arabs. He also intervened to persuade the British to withdraw from Egypt, although actual abandonment was negotiated only last July.

Thus, Washington forced Winston Churchill to swallow his statement that "I did not become the protest release of the necessary right-of-way across the airport property. They also reported it will not be known for several days yet whether the Air Force will file its protest with the CAA.

If the Air Force files its illogical protest with the CAA, it will be doing an injustice to the people of this area. If the CAA allows the Air Force protest to prevent its approval of the right-of-way release, then the CAA will likewise be doing the people of this area a grave injustice.

If the Air Force is looking for a scrap over the release of the right-of-way in question, Greenville and Pitt County should be ready to counter any steps the Air Force might take. We are sure the local government units are in the right, and we are likewise confident the local government units hold the trump cards in this issue if it comes to a showdown.

As we understand the issue, any Air Force protest of the right-of-way release must be made on the grounds that the location of the proposed bypass highway would be detrimental to the Air Force training program. We can not, in all logic and sincerity, see how the shortening of the effective use of two of the local airport runways by 1,000 feet would be detrimental to the overall Air Force training program. The Pitt-Greenville airport is used merely as an auxiliary field for a private contracting agent which trains Air Force personnel. Even in that second-hand relationship, the highway right-of-way across the airport property would not render the field unusable for the training purposes for which it is now being used.

While the matter of the right-of-way across the Pitt-Greenville airport may be a relatively unimportant thing to the CAA and the Air Force, it is of the utmost importance to the people of this area.

Unless CAA approval is forthcoming within the next two or three weeks, the bypass project, which is slated to be let on January 25, could realistically be delayed for years. Unless right-of-way approval is forthcoming before the date set for letting the project, the State Highway Commission might find it necessary to remove this bypass from the list of projects to be let. If that is done, the money which has been earmarked for the local project may be diverted to other projects, and we'd have to start all over again in an effort to get the urgently needed highway project.

As we said before, an Air Force protest to the release of the right-of-way, or refusal to release the right-of-way by the CAA would be a grave injustice to the people of this area.

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., TIMES: "Last year Postmaster General Summerfield let down the bars. He changed the regulations on third-class mail so that unaddressed, non-subscription, 100 per cent advertising circulars can be delivered to everyone served by carriers or post office boxes at third-class rates. He said it would save money for clerks who need not have to sort this mail by name and address; but it has actually resulted in a huge increase of volume in a money-losing branch of the postal service."

King's First Minister to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire!"

CONTRADICTORY ISSUES—The worldwide wave of nationalism this inspired has not yet spent itself. The most controversial issues before the General Assembly of the United Nations involve the demands of nationalities for the right to decide their own destinies.

The Greeks on the key island of Cyprus in the Eastern Mediterranean insist upon separation from Britain and union (enosis) with Athens. The French protectorates of Tunisia and Morocco in North Africa want self-government. Primitive peoples on the island of Netherlands New Guinea seek to become members of the Indonesian Republic.

The European powers maintain that these are internal questions not susceptible to United Nations action. At first, the United States, tried to take a hands-off attitude in these controversies, fearing support of London, Paris and The Hague would enable the Communists to assail us as "colonialists" and "imperialists."

STRATEGIC OUTPOST—But considerations of world defense against the Russian threat now incline us to oppose these demands for independence or a shift of allegiances. All the territory in dispute represents strategic outposts in the cold or possibly hot war.

Now that Britain has pulled out of Egypt, Cyprus provides the only strong Allied base for planes, submarines and supplies in the Eastern Mediterranean. We have studied the North African littoral with airfields that might be jeopardized, if rule were turned over to the natives. Abandonment of New Guinea would open the vast South Pacific, including Australia and New Zealand, to a Russian advance by sea and air.

Thus, and ironically, if freedom is denied to these people, they can blame it on the proletarian politicians in the Kremlin, but they will probably hold the United States largely responsible for the defeat or deferment of their nationalistic ambitions.

Top Level Attention

By ELMER ROESSNER

The make-or-buy question, as pointed out here recently, is getting a lot of top-level attention. Whether to buy from suppliers those components that can be made in the plant, or whether to make those now being purchased outside, are questions under intense study in many companies.

Most decisions naturally hinge on which procedure saves money, although labor relations continuity of supply and several other factors sometimes enter calculations.

Most decisions are based on the short-term point of view. But there are cases when long-range thinking might lead to different conclusions. This is often the case when in-plant manufacture of a component indicates an immediate per-item saving. Buying from an outside supplier might prove more beneficial over the long term.

Let's take a completely imaginary company that can buy or make its own gaskets. In fact, it can make them 10 per cent cheaper than it can buy them. The decision? Make.

That may not be wrong, but it may not be statesmanlike.

If it makes its own gaskets, that will tend to provide less work in transportation and other phases of distribution. And since almost every company prospers on what other companies spend in payrolls the decision to make may have effects on the whole economy. Not, of course, a lot. But a little.

In recent years, there has been a trend among the big auto manufacturers toward making more of their components. Many small makers of bits and pieces have been losing their share of the auto markets. And so they have been turning to the manufacture of other articles, thereby competing with other manufacturers.

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — During 1936-1938 the Moderator of the National Council of Congregational and Christian Churches made a revolutionary suggestion for raising money. He combined a religious and business appeal.

His words then fell on barren soil. The leaders of the great church denominations called his suggestions "sacrilegious." He had preceded them with two books published by the Macmillan Company entitled "ENDURING INVESTMENTS" and "RELIGION AND BUSINESS."

FEELINGS HAVE CHANGED SINCE

If you will turn to page 7 of TIME MAGAZINE for October 11, 1954, you can read a most remarkable advertisement of a Church Money-Raising Organization. I don't know anyone connected with this group. Hence, this column is not to help its business in any way. The advertisement, however, shows that a spiritual revolution is simmering.

Every reader must know of the universal habit of the members of certain churches to give one-tenth of their income to their church. The members of most churches, however, are—in plain English—stingy. They try to get by with giving as little money as possible to the Lord's work. Too many will not give until personally asked. This requires organized campaigns and personal calls. Then, when solicited they give as little as possible and still retain their social standing.

NEW APPEALS FOR MONEY RAISING

This attitude is changing in a marvelous manner. It makes me hopeful for the years ahead because, fundamentally, business prosperity is dependent on our spiritual growth. The modern church canvasser no longer begs. He now merely says: "Statistics business, and your community show that your family, your will prosper in accordance with what you and others GIVE. I am asking you to subscribe to an ENDURING INVESTMENT. The more you invest therein the more you will get out."

This new concept is not based upon "how much the church needs," but upon the fact that you and I need to give more in order to offset our sins and develop spiritual power. It links up personal prayer with a giving campaign and makes giving a form of prayer, meditation, and worship. The Catholic Church has long preached this; but most Protestant Churches are just awakening. The reaction is not "How much will I give to the deserving, but what will I give in order that I, myself, may live?" The giver is taught to understand that the more he gives in proportion to his income, the better off spiritually he himself will be.

A significant sentence in the prepared statement he handed out when he distributed the report of the Commission on Reorganization of State Government which dealt with the prison set up, number six in a series of reorganization reports, was this statement: "The Commission studying the possible separation of the prison felt that separation should not be approved until the cost studies were made. The Governor felt that separation should be approved subject to the cost studies."

The Governor said it was mainly a differences in approach. A Reporter asked if that meant separation is conceded to be inevitable and that the commission wants to delay it as long as possible while the Governor wants to consummate as quickly as possible. "It would not be fair to say the commission wanted to delay it," replied the Governor. "Let's say rather their approach is not quite so direct as that of the Governor."

Further evidence of different approach or emphasis was found in the Governor's reply to a question why cost studies had not already been made. "I simply do not know," he replied.

GRADUAL — The commission recommends, and the Governor approves, a gradual removal of prisoners from highway department control, but for the present no serious disturbance of highway financing.

Main suggestions are that the director of prisons be appointed for a four year term, to begin one year after a new Governor takes office, the appointment to be by the highway commission subject to approval of the Governor. The director could not be removed for cause after hearing.

The director would be given authority to employ, direct and discharge other personnel, and to make rules and regulations which would be subject to approval by the Highway and Public Works Commission, the Prison Advisory Council and the Governor. All official and supervisory personnel would be forbidden to engage in political activity.

One effect of this recommendation would be to write into the law some of the practices which have been followed, and to add the term appointment of the director and to give much more prestige to the Advisory Council. It has long been the practice for most of the prison administration to be handled by the director, although the highway commission has retained authority and responsibility. your teeth and around your tongue, so that it touches all your palate."

(Editor's note: Just a moment. Is this slurping?)

(Boyle's note: Boy, you sure caught on fast.)

Now your palate is dazed with the wonder of it all. The lesson continues:

"Then you bite into it, and —" said Van Munching.

"You just bite once?" I broke in. "Don't you munch on it for a while?"

"Please, I am speaking of wine—not Graham crackers," said Van Munching. "You bite the wine once, and let it roll down your throat slowly... very slowly."

Now you know the wine and the wine knows you, and you are entitled to pour a full glass and go on with the meal.

The beginner should first acquaint himself, Van Munching said with the sight, smell and taste of the four basic fine wines — Burgundy, Bordeaux, Rhone and Champagne. Then he is equipped with pocketbook and palate ready, to go exploring on his own.

Van Munching himself is partial to Champagne.

"It is a wonderful thing," he said. "It helps tone your system. You can return to it all day and never get high."

Rose Champagne is popular with the international set because of its unusual color and sweet-dry taste. The beer set is still sticking to a foamy amber.

"What do you do with leftover wine at a dinner — that is a problem to many hostesses?" I asked. Van Munching looked as hurt as if I had stabbed him in the back with a corkscrew.

"The true connoisseur is he who drinks what's left over," he said sternly. "Only the impostor saves the remainder for next time."

Maybe he's right. But anybody who goes in for much wine biting soon learns one thing. Wine isn't altogether helpless. It can bite right back.

Here's how, according to Van Munching:

"To start with, you pour out only half a glass. Then you roll it around and around gently, sniffing the aroma."

Okay you are now nose-happy. On to the next step:

"Take a sip. Let it run through

A Revolution In Money-Raising Campaigns By Churches

SAME PRINCIPLE APPLIES TO YOUR BUSINESS AND JOBS

I, however, am interested in this Revolution in Fund Raising for a far greater reason. These "New Look" Giving Campaigns are led by successful businessmen who start off with large personal gifts more than they have ever given before. They give principally for their own spiritual growth and not just to help a needy cause. But does it occur to them to apply the same principles to their own business?

I believe some physicians and other professional men have this desire to give every day of the week. Also some insurance and other salesmen pray about their work. But how many manufacturers or merchants make their business a part of their spiritual worship? How many church members, holding jobs in factories, have in mind the buyer who is to use the product they are making? I forecast that the time is coming when both employer and employee will pray for the consumers and customers. If this appeal of these modern Fund Raisers could extend to our every day jobs, think what could happen! An economic revolution would take place equal only to the great Renaissance (1400 through 1600). And based upon past history, another such may soon be due.

In fact, the Church Canvasser who calls upon us with this new message may be blazing the way for a new spiritual Renaissance. According to cycle theory, history must repeat itself—for good things as well as for evil things. Furthermore, there are many different cycles always in operation. It is the dominant one which will affect us. Perhaps that will begin with a new attitude toward giving—not only to our Church and Charities, but also to our customers and the users of what we help make. Only such can save us from Communism.

individually powerful officers in the State.

Pending further studies on administrative costs and utilization of prison labor in fields other than road work, the highway commission would continue its right to call upon all able-bodied male prisoners to work on the roads and would also remain fully responsible for paying all prison bills.

One of the principal areas of proposed study is the effect the "diversion" of highway revenue to prison support for purposes other than highways might have on Federal aid funds for road building. Also there is the age-old conflict of production by convict labor coming into competition with "free labor."

COUNCIL — Regarded as one of the most significant trends in the recommendations is the greater prestige and responsibility given to the Prison Advisory Council.

Governor Scott, who first appointed the Council, did not accord its advice very much consideration, and Governor Umstead gave even less attention. Governor Hodges stated when he announced the appointment of Linda D. Garibaldi to succeed the late Dr. Howard Odum that he felt it time for an experienced and successful business man to be called to the job. On the occasion of Garibaldi's being sworn in Thursday, the Governor suggested that he hoped the Council would accomplish a great deal. He conceded that it does not have much real authority, but recalled an incident of his early business experience. The president of his company had assigned him a rather difficult task and Hodges complained that he did not have authority to do what was needed. "Anybody can do a job if given full authority to enforce his proposals," said the president, "but if you can get it done by voluntary cooperation with your ideas, you have really accomplished something."

MONEY — In the prison problem as with most others now facing the State, money is a major item. The survey made by Dr. Austin McCormick several years ago dealt almost entirely with the rehabilitation element in prison administration. The more recent survey by Parsons, Brinkerhoff, Hall and MacDonald, dealt wholly with the relationship of prisons to highway problems. Further studies are indicated to determine the proper proportion of rehabilitation and gainful employment of prisoners, the costs of any program, and where the money will come from. Governor Hodges clearly intimated to newsmen that he thinks this phase of the overall problem should have been studied along with, maybe even ahead of, the other phases which have been surveyed.

Weapon Changed, Still No Luck Killing Wolves

PLANO, Tex. (AP)—Well, they're after those sheep-killing wolves with bows and arrows now—and still no luck.

Timber wolves have been preying on sheep around here. A week ago yesterday 275 hunters with guns staged a mass hunt and nary a wolf.

This past weekend six members of the Dallas Field and Archers Assn. tried it. They used a "hurt rabbit" call that goes "wah, wah, wah" to lure the prey but returned yesterday empty-handed.

Said I. L. Abernathy, "The high wind was probably the reason. You have to blow the call downwind, but in a high wind like last night the wolves picked up our scent. We saw a lot of eyes, but they never got close enough for us to bother shooting."

HAWK WATCH

By BRANNON BIRD

SYNOPSIS

While photographing a hawk migration in the mountains of West Virginia, ace professional lensman, Charles Gratton, learns that some one is flying an eagle, a grave infraction of local game laws.

CHAPTER SEVEN

It was a sunny day with Indian summer haze hanging between the ridges. With a little searching I found what I thought was the shelf of the mountain where the eagle landed yesterday, over a mile air line southeast from where I stood. I tried to judge where the square black mark on the topographic map had indicated a house. Then I climbed in and pulled the Jaguar onto the road.

I let it roll down the slope toward the narrow valley.

As I rounded a curve on the side of Third Hill I came to a mailbox on the right. It was at the entrance to a single-width road or lane, using the terms loosely, running south into the trees along the mountain.

I got out and walked over to the mailbox. It was rusty and there was no name on it. What I'd first thought was a tree snag smothered in honeysuckle was an old brick column or square pillar. It had two iron pintles where a gate had hung. The gate and the other brick pillar had disappeared. The lane was soft looking with leaves floating in black water in its ruts and I knew I'd hang up if I tried to take the Jag over it.

I got my right wheels off the paved road, which meant blocking the entrance to the lane. There were tracks from tires going in or out but from the looks of the place they might have been some one using it for a turn-around. I locked the ignition, decided I didn't want to show up around here with binoculars so I put them in the rear compartment and locked it. Then I started along the lane, and followed it to the house.

The house was of crumbling old brick with shutters at the lower windows that had once been painted white. The small panes of glass looked opaquely black with reflections of yellow leaves in them. There was no verandah, just stone steps and a paneled door once white like the shutters and, above it, a fanlight that seemed to glow like a graceful delicate fungus. It was damp under the trees and cold as a cave on a hot day, but because of the yellow leaves it wasn't dark. They were everywhere, above and underfoot and some had sifted down and clung to a giant, straggly boxwood that must have been as old as the house.

I was in the yard now.

I thought the place was deserted till I moved around the boxwood. In the wispy, leaf-strewn grass something straightened and peered at me, like a woodchuck that strains for a sound it can't identify. It was a tiny colored woman, gnarled and ancient as the old apple trees back in the lane and with a face as wrinkled as their fruit. There was a faded blue scarf tied around her skull and knotted in front, and one thin hand had a crooked grasp on some twigs that looked brittle like the bony fingers. The other hand kept a fixed grip on her apron gathered into a pouch that held more twigs. Under the black coat and the checked apron I could see a purple cotton dress that reached the ground.

She was standing quiet, partly bent, peering to the left of me with cloudy eyes like an old dog's. I nodded but she went on looking past me and I realized she was as blind as the windows on the house.

"How do you do?" I saw her flinch. "I was taking a walk and I came out the lane. Who lives here?"

"Who is you?"

"You wouldn't know me. I'm just out for a walk."

The black leathery face was reaching for me. "Who is you, you don't know Mr. Anson Metcalf?"

"Cricket, quit talking to your girl. She came around the corner of the house and stopped, staring as if she were looking at something she'd never seen before. She had nothing on me."

She was tall and awfully young, probably not eighteen, with dark honey hair tied back with a ribbon. She had on leather-fronted shooting pants and a tight-fitting wine colored suede vest over a yellow short sleeved shirt. The pale, hazel eyes were deep-set and lighter than the hair and the small nose looked as if a sculptor had, on second thought reworked and refined the nostrils and bridge, spreading the form with his thumbs into the planes of the wide cheek bones, leaving the nose rather turned-up and almost too sensitive for the width of face.

She had a slender waist, broad shoulders, long legs and arms that all showed structural details a little too clearly—too thin and kid-dish for a luscious shape but the kind of lanky figure with small, high breasts and angular pelvis that sporting clothes hang on nicely. Her right hand was lean as a boy's, the other I couldn't see. It was cased in a huge glove like a hockey gauntlet. On the stiff leather fist, hooded in a funny little tufted cap, sat a hawk about the size of a crow.

Seeing her under these primeval trees standing there in her leather vest, with a leather pouch hanging from a shoulder strap and holding the falcon as if it were something she did every morning about this time, I was somewhere in middle Europe around the fifteenth century.

Her lips weren't very full, which added to the boyish look but the mouth was large and the light eyes together with those cheekbones gave her a sort of feline expression. She wasn't beautiful but I had the idea her face would have a certain piquancy if she ever smiled. Right now, she wasn't doing it.

I could see it was going to be up to me to make conversation.

"Are you Mr. Metcalf's daughter?"

"He's my brother." Her voice was husky as if it hadn't been wasted on many words.

"I'm on a camera holiday." I tapped my Leica. "Your lane looked interesting so I just kept walking. Would you let me take a picture of that falcon? That's what it is isn't it?"

"It's a tercel." She said it as if I ought to know these things.

"Is that a kind of falcon?"

"It's a male peregrine. A female would be called a falcon."

I gathered it was like calling a female dog a dog—or inversely. "I'd like to get him in sunlight if we can find a spot." I said.

She reeled a little more relaxed now we were talking about the hawk and said she would put him on his block. I had no idea what that was but I walked around to the back of the house with her with the old colored woman limping after us.

"Can she get around alone?" I moved my head toward the bent form behind me.

"Cricket?" She seemed surprised and then said, "Yes."

"She is blind, isn't she?"

"She knows her way. She's been here so long."

"Do you live here with your parents?"

She gave me that odd defensive look again. "There are just brother and I. And Cricket."

The girl crossed to something in the yard.

Blocks Are Good Toy For Years To Come

By DORTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

A child will play with blocks for years and years. Blocks lend themselves to all sorts of imaginative play and therefore are about the most valuable toys you can get for your child.

A baby before he is a year old will enjoy a set of smooth light blocks to play with in his play pen. He cannot build much as yet, but he will like to pile two or three blocks on top of each other and then knock them down and chortle with glee as he does it. Later his towers will be higher.

This first set of blocks can well be small ones. They will be used by the baby in his playpen and later are very useful for quiet play at a table for times when the child needs rest when he is sick or just over-excited.

Before long, as he gets better control of his arms and legs, he'll want bigger, heavier blocks to play with on the floor. Blocks fit wonderfully into the imaginative games of childhood. A long line of them make a road to run cars and trucks along or a river for boats. Piled up blocks make a house, a castle for imaginary people to live in. Piled around in wider areas they make a house for the child himself to get into, or a boat to steam across the room, or an airplane to fly to the moon.

As the child gets still older, the construction becomes more elaborate, and he may want some special blocks added to his collection, like arches, pillars, triangles. Then he'll make buildings that may set the trend for the architecture of the future. A few wooden figures of people and animals as well as toy cars, trucks, trains, airplanes fit into his play.

You can easily start your permanent set of blocks when your youngster is 18 months to 2 years old. There are plenty of good sets of blocks on the market to buy. However it's very easy and much less costly to make your own.

Go to a lumber yard and get a piece of 2x4 lumber. Saw it up into appropriate lengths and sand the edges. Make your largest blocks 16 inches long, the next 12 inches and the smallest ones 4 inches or square. Make sure you measure accurately so that the blocks will fit together evenly. If you want a few thinner blocks get a 2x2 piece of lumber and cut it into the same lengths. The lumber yard will probably do the sawing for you if you don't want to do it yourself. The cost of such service is usually not great.

The blocks can be painted but children enjoy them just as much if they are left plain.

I have a set that I made myself during the war when it was next to impossible to buy toys. Literally hundreds of children besides my own have built almost everything you can name with those blocks.

Negro Home Burns With Five Dead

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Flames raced through a Negro home for the aged last night and burned five patients to death.

Fifteen others scrambled out of the one-story frame building, with the physically able dragging the infirm with them. Two patients were taken to Charity Hospital.

The dead were identified as George Kyle, Zeno Campbell, Louis Bailey, Frank Jackson and Edward Brown.

Cause of the fire was not determined but Sidney Chase the 14-year-old boy who discovered the smoke, said it started near the burning gas heaters in the patients' section. The boy is the cousin of the manager, Mrs. Charlene Chalk.

Christmas Jewelry Said A Girl's Best Friend

AP Newsfeatures

Wise Santas have learned that the surest way to make a woman happy at Christmas time is to give her jewelry.

No matter her age or her type, every woman is flattered by a gift of jewelry, whether it's real and valuable or frankly fake. This is the kind of a gift that's a subtle compliment to the recipient, something gay and frivolous something completely feminine.

Frilly lingerie and furs fall in the same category, as contrasted with the grimly practical kind of gift, such as a washing machine. And there never was a woman who didn't enjoy the flattery of a little frivolity now and then.

This year you can't go wrong with a gift of a long rope necklace, either of real cultured pearls or merely colorful fake jewels, to be wrapped around and around her throat or knotted in a long string. It's the vogue of the moment, and no woman can ever have too many. Matching earrings and bracelet will complete the picture.

Earrings may be discreet single pearls, correct for any occasion, tailored simple gold hoops for wear with suits and daytime clothes, or fantastic glittering danglers for evening wear.

A new trick being used effectively by fashionable women this year is combining gold and silver jewelry. A woman may wear a silver necklace with its twin in gold, one silver and one gold earring, an armload of bracelets in both metals. It looks new and smart.

In costume jewelry, the sky's the limit. Any woman would like several ropes of gay fake jewels in different colors, to wear all at once, or half-a-dozen inexpensive bracelets to make a gay splash with a black dress, or a really splashy big rhinestone pin, to wear on a lapel. It's easy to flatter a woman with jewelry, whether you spend $1 or $1,000.

PEARL ROPE—This year's height of fashion—the long rope of cultured pearls, which may be worn many ways. Pictured are matching earrings and ring. If real pearls are too rich for your budget, you can buy inexpensive fake ones almost as effective.

Fictitious Name For 59 Years

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Charlie Summers worked for one firm 59 years but it wasn't until his funeral that fellow employees found out that name was fictitious.

Thomas J. Dempsey gave himself the name on the spur of the moment when he came here from Quincy, Ill., before the turn of the century and got a job as a porter with the Luyties Pharmacal Co. He climbed to head the firm's shipping department.

Dempsey's identity leaked out at his funeral last week. Company employees who attended the rites also met his wife, whom he hadn't mentioned.

Mrs. Dempsey said yesterday "we never cared to take the trouble to straighten things out."

Seven Injured In Fall With Piano

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—Archibald Logan got eight friends to help him carry a grand piano he had bought his family for Christmas up to his third-floor apartment.

Just below the third landing the stairs collapsed. Two men jumped clear. Logan, the other six men and the 500-pound piano plunged 40 feet. Four of the seven men were trapped under the piano. Falling masonry hit the other three. All but one were in the hospital in serious condition.

Snowfall Ranges Far In Southland Railway Seeking $1750 Payment

ATLANTA (AP)—The first extensive snow storm of the season laced sections of many North Georgia highways Sunday and the State Patrol warned motorists to stay off the roads unless travel was absolutely necessary.

At least 10 highways were described as "very dangerous" by the patrol. Six of them were listed as having impassable stretches while four others were reported "icing over and very hazardous."

Mountain areas in north Georgia were the worst hit. The snow measured only a few inches in most sections, not enough to block traffic. But ice which formed on the roads slowed traffic and made driving dangerous.

Routes closed for a time by the patrol included:

U.S. 411 north of Chatsworth; U.S. 19 north of Dahlonega; U.S. 129 north of Cleveland; Georgia 75 north of Helen through the Unicoi Gap; Georgia 52 across Fort Mountain; and U.S. 41 and 27 from the Georgia-Tennessee line north in Tennessee.

Reported icing over and very dangerous were:

U.S. 23 from Gainesville northeast to Toccoa; Georgia 53 from Dawsonville to Tale; Georgia 6 from the Gilmer-Pickens county line north of Jasper to Ellijay; and Georgia 246 from Clayton to Highlands, N.C.

Snow flurries occurred in much of central Georgia, but the flakes melted as soon as they hit the ground.

Carrier Pigeons Put News On Air

BOWLING Green, Ohio (AP)—Radio station WWBG goes on the air today—with news delivered by carrier pigeon.

A dispute with the Northern Ohio Telephone Co. left Howard R. Ward, head of the newly constructed station, temporarily without lines to bring in Associated Press service. Ward's FCC construction permit says he has to be on the air by tomorrow.

So he arranged to have his AP teletype machines installed in a department store at Toledo some 20 air miles distant, and got the loan of about 50 pigeons from the American Homing and Racing Pigeon Union.

A civil complaint has been filed in the Pitt County Clerk of Court's office by the Norfolk Southern Railway Company seeking to collect $1750.96 from the Blount Fertilizer Company of Greenville.

The complaint states that between December 19, 1953, and Sept. 17, 1954, the Blount Fertilizer Company purchased a quantity of sand from the Harrison Sand Corp. of Dixiana, S.C. 60 carloads of which was delivered to Greenville by the railway company.

However, the complaint continues, the "freight collected" was less than the Interstate Commerce rates for said shipments, the same moving in closed cars instead of open cars.

The bill for $1750.96, the complaint states, represents the "undercharge" sum still due on the freight bill.

Atlantans Devise Safety Cab Plan

ALTANTA (AP)—A special safety cab plan for Atlantans who celebrate well but not wisely will go into effect Thursday and continue through the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

The plan works very simply. If you acquire a "glow" at a party, phone for a safety cab. The cab will arrive with two drivers one to take you home and the other to drive your car.

Sponsors are the Greater Atlanta Traffic and Safety Council and the Yellow Cab Co.

Rural Honor For Wilson County

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Board of Farm Organizations and Agencies has named Wilson County as the County of the Year in Rural Progress.

In winning the third annual contest, Wilson County also won the $1,000 in prize money. The county won $500 for being one of five area winners and another $500 for being the state winner.

Other area winners were Madison, Forsyth, Union and Pitt counties which won $500 each. Clarence Poe, board chairman of the Progressive Farmer magazine, has donated $500 for the county making the most progress among Negroes. The winner will be announced later.

The contest was started as an aid in North Carolina's Challenge Program for agricultural development.

Prize money was donated by the Progressive Farmer and the Farmers Cooperative Exchange $1,000 each; President Gordon Gray of the University of North Carolina and the Raleigh News and Observer, $500 each.

Colvard Honored For Farm Work

RALEIGH (AP)—The Progressive Farmer Magazine has named Dean D.W. Colvard of North Carolina State College as its Man of the Year in North Carolina.

Dean Colvard was cited for his leadership in the college's tobacco research program which the magazine said is the "most effective to the world."

Colvard's contributions to improvement in the state's livestock resources, woodlands and land rehabilitation also were praised.

In 1952 at the age of 40 Colvard was named dean of the college's School of Agriculture, one of the youngest men in the nation to ever hold such a post.

Nehru Begins Defending His Socialistic Program

By EUGENE LEVIN

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru's government today launched a defense of its economic policy—aimed at creating a socialist state. The government sought to assure those favoring more state enterprise while quieting the fears of those seeking a greater role for private investors.

As the Lower House of Parliament started to debate economic affairs, the government took two steps likely to upset private financial groups:

1. Nehru introduced a constitutional amendment designed to facilitate the government's powers to acquire, requisition, regulate and reform private, industrial, agricultural and other holdings.

2. Finance Minister C. D. Deshmukh, opening the parliamentary debate, announced that the government plans to nationalize the Imperial Bank of India in order to create banking credit facilities in rural areas.

But the proposed amendment apparently does not give the government unlimited right to determine how much compensation to pay when acquiring land for reforms and nationalization.

Further, Deshmukh emphasized the government is still anxious for private investment and has no intention of regulating the amount of profits foreign investors may take out of the country.

The proposed constitutional amendment apparently avoids setting a rate of compensation but in effect would allow the state to gain control of private industry temporarily without paying anything "in order to secure better management."

Deshmukh emphasized the government "stands by" its six-year-old economic policy reserving control of certain basic industries to the state. The chief objective he declared is to create employment—"at least two million new jobs every year."

Police Concede Little To Go On In Murder Case

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Fayetteville police admitted here today they have little to go on in the case of a tavern operator who was fatally beaten and shot in his home here early Saturday.

The victim was Frederick Solomon (Ricky) Monsour, 41, who operated Rick's Bar here.

Police said one man was being held without charge. They admitted that clues were scarce but said some evidence had been sent to Washington for examination. The nature of the evidence was not disclosed.

Police quoted Monsour's wife as saying she heard three shots the night of the slaying and rushed downstairs to see a man on top of her husband. The Monsours' two children, Ricky, 9, and Christine, 7, said they followed their mother and saw the same thing.

Coroner Joe W. Pinkston ruled that three pistol wounds in the body and three jagged head wounds caused death.

Call Off Search For Missing Jet

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP)—A three-day search covering coastal areas of four states has been called off with no trace of a missing Marine Corps jet reported.

Col. A.A. Pate, commander of the South Carolina wing of the Civil Air Patrol, said here that the search was ended Saturday night.

Second Lieutenant Harold L. Terwilliger, piloting a F3J Fury jet, was last seen Wednesday when he took off from Jacksonville, Fla., headed for his home base at Cherry Point, N.C. He had only enough fuel for a two-hour flight.

Col. Pate said 70 CAP aircraft from Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas, 25 planes of the 48th Air Rescue Squadron of Maxwell Field, Ala., and Navy planes participated in the search.

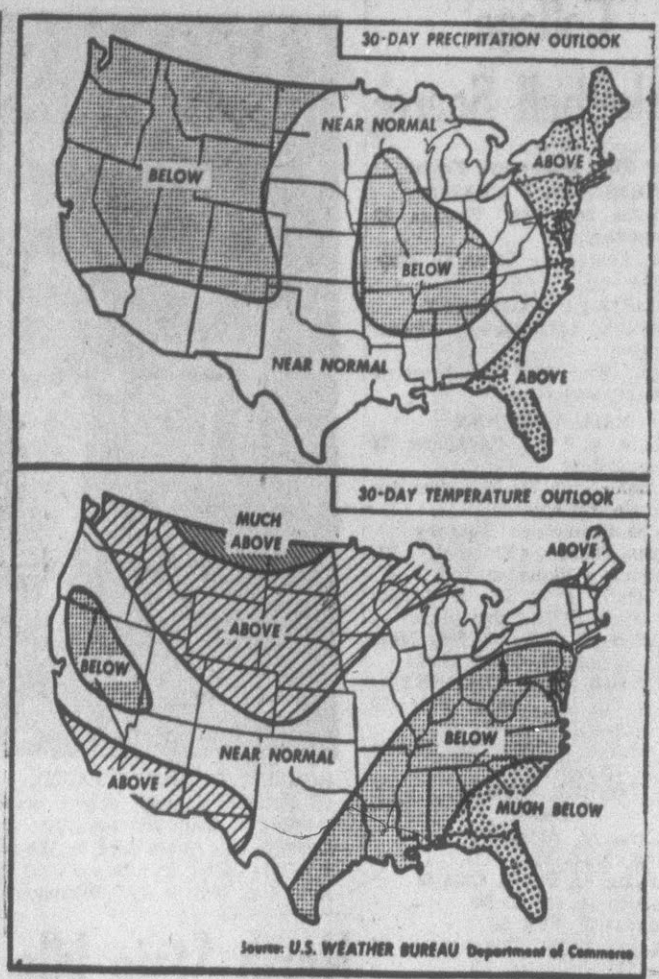

He said an area 20 miles inland from Jacksonville to Cherry Point and a parallel area 50 miles at sea was combed. The Air Force planes were stationed here during the search.

Lt. Terwilliger, member of the Marine Fighter Squadron 122, was from Madison, S. D.

Pope Preparing Brief Message

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Ailing Pope Pius XII is working on a brief Christmas message he will broadcast to the world over the Vatican radio at noon Friday.

On Christmas Day he plans to appear in the window of his study and bless a throng gathered below in St. Peter's Square.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano announced the arrangements today.

Despite the planned brevity of his Christmas message, Vatican observers took the announcement as a new evidence of the Pope's gradual improvement from the illness that threatened his life 18 days ago. It will be the pontiff's third radio message since his collapse Dec. 2.

The Vatican Press Office said the Pope passed "a fairly tranquil night."

"This morning he received in ordinary audience Msgr. Domenico Tardini, Vatican prosecretary of state," a bulletin said. "Msgr. Tardini found the pontiff somewhat better."

The Pope had a brief return of hiccupping in the night, but rested well, a reliable source reported.

PREPARATIONS for the main event on Christmas day are part of the holiday picture story. Here's daddy, a ham at home.

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newsfeatures
A home movie view of the Christmas day activities is a worthy achievement. But it makes a better picture story if some of the preliminary preparations now taking place are combined with it.

You can start off with easy-to-shoot outdoor scenes that will set the holiday theme—window displays or a billboard with a Yuletide message. Follow it with a shopping scene and the action of coming home burdened with packages. Hanging a wreath in the window or on the door and hauling home the Christmas tree are also eloquent picture sequences that need no titles.

The indoor activities that would round out a Christmas picture story could include the usual preparations of wrapping and hiding gifts; addressing and mailing Christmas cards and displaying those received; hanging up stockings and finally decorating the tree. A touch of humor in some of these sequences can be a welcome addition and should appeal to the ham actors that lurk in every family.

Suddenly, in these days just before Christmas, the youngsters become devoted to household chores and tidy up their rooms and themselves. They raid their piggy bank to buy sister or Mother a present. They practice their carol singing.

All these scenes can be shot as they actually take place or one day can be set aside to reenact the events. Following a written script would save some time later in editing and splicing. Of course the outdoor action should be shot on daylight type color film and it should finish one or more complete rolls. Don't forget to switch to Type A color film for artificial light when you shoot indoors. After shooting the preliminaries, make sure there's a sufficient supply of film left for the main event. In the final editing, the prior scenes should be snappy fast moving sequences.

The easiest method of shooting movies indoors is with a bar light accessory. The camera is centered on this bar and reflector flood bulbs are positioned on either side, moving with the camera. Bar lights never come with a long enough electric cord, so be prepared with a 15 or 20 foot extension cord for reasonable freedom in movement.

With two lights, you can shoot color movies at 16.3 when four feet from the subject; at 14 when six feet away and 13.2 when eight feet away. This is at the normal 16 frames per second or 1-30th of a second for still picture cameras.

A motion picture camera doesn't mean that the camera must be in motion. That's a good way to spoil home movies. The results, when viewed on the screen, are likely to be jumpy and a strain on the eyes. There is a correct method of turning a camera to survey a scene. You must pan slowly, steadily and on an even level.

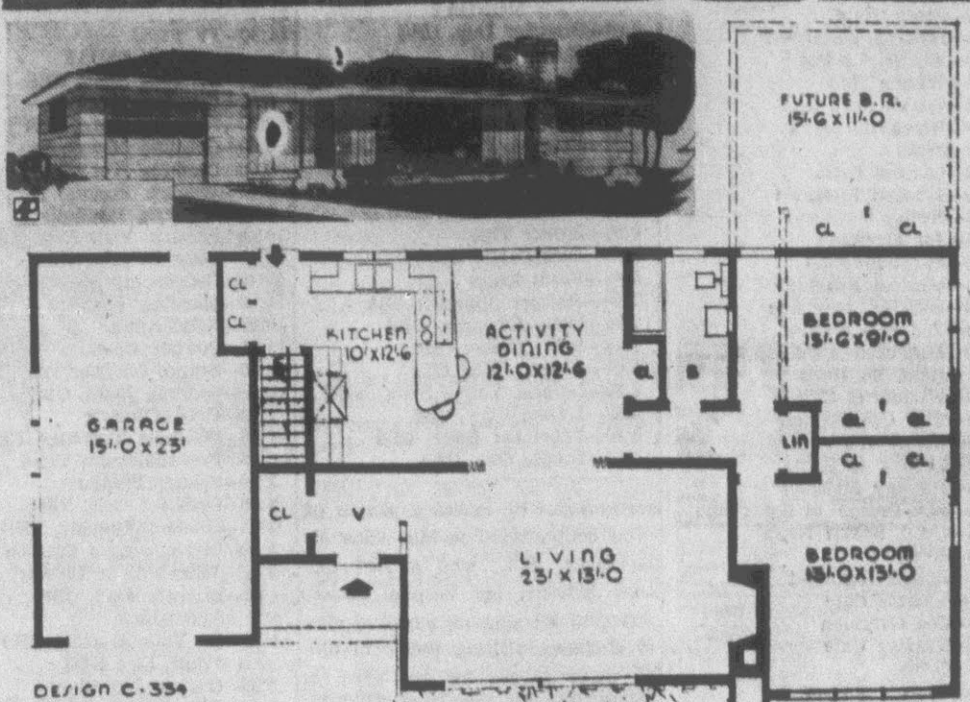

Normal scenes should run about ten seconds (count slowly to ten as you shoot) but if the action is interesting let it run longer. Come in for close-ups of faces, hands and objects and change angles of shooting to add variety to the viewing.

You can add novelty to the story by speeding up or slowing down some of the action. This is done by shooting at other than the normal 16 frames per second. Suppose you wanted to show Junior as an eager beaver, rushing around to do his chores. You'd shoot it at 8 frames per second (and close the diaphragm one stop to compensate for the extra light). When it's viewed at 16 frames, the action will be speeded up.

To show Junior dragging his feet on some chores, shoot it at 32, 48 or 64 frames per second. To compensate, there would have to be extra light or the diaphragm must be opened one stop for each advance. The effect in viewing would be slow motion action.

What's new? The zoom lens is now available for 8mm movie cameras. This is a single lens which ranges from wide angle to telephoto effects by lever control. First introduced to professional motion pictures in 1946, later adapted to television cameras, now the Zoomar 8mm lens reaches the amateur fans. Specifications: f 2.8 aperture; zoom range from 13mm to 39mm; distance range from

Some Hungarian Voters Opposed

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Complete returns from Hungary's recent election show that more than 100,000 persons took the trouble to vote "no." Some of the Communist-supported candidates were defeated, for the first time since Hungary came under Red domination in 1946.

There is no recognized opposition in Hungary, and consequently there were no opposition candidates in the elections for local councils. But a new election law gave the voter at least the possibility of not electing the sole nominee. The new law required that each individual candidate had to get at least half the votes cast in his district. This year out of a total vote of over six million, 111,296 "no" and another 21,644 "invalid" ballots were counted—2.1 per cent of the total.

The negative and invalid votes in the 1949 election came to 4.5 per cent of the total, but they barred no one from office. This time the 2.1 per cent meant a defeat for 586 of the total 104,596 candidates.

Candidates—only one for each position—were appointed before the voting at mass meetings.

LONG SEPARATION ENDS: — Four-year-old Bernd Roepnack makes a flying leap for his mother's arms as they are reunited in Savannah, Ga., after a 5-month separation. The lad, traveling from Bad Aibling, Germany, crossed the Atlantic Ocean by himself. He was met in New York by his father, Dr. Claus Roepnack, a physician on the staff at the Central of Georgia Hospital in Savannah. The boy's arrival provided a storybook ending to a plot that began in August when the parents told a newsman of their loneliness for their only child. Townsfolk, club leaders and a Congressman went to work cutting red tape to obtain a visa. Thus, this Christmas, according to the Roepnacks will be the happiest of their lives. (AP Photo).

Trying To Avoid Poor Investments

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Many an old man, tossed out on the street because he couldn't pay his rent, has spent the rest of his days reflecting mournfully on his folly with money in his early years.

Looking for dividends to keep him in his old age, he had invested his money long ago. Wisely, he thought. He learned too late his judgment was bad. He had put too much into one stock, not enough in another.

This country is still young, as nations go, with a lot of money. The Eisenhower administration, present custodian of it, is trying to avoid for the American future the fate which overtook the old man.

It is trying to economize to save money and at the same invest where it thinks there will be dividends in the long run. Both the saving and the investment are a guess and a risk.

In the 1952 presidential campaign the Republicans talked of balancing the budget. They promised economy and they've practiced it in many areas. But they still haven't been able to hit a balance.

The country is 278 billion dollars in debt now, most of it money borrowed to fight World War II and communism afterwards. Balancing the budget would not wipe out the debt. It would only mean the administration had found a way to keep the debt from getting bigger.

Some presidential advisers—particularly Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and Joseph M. Dodge, former budget director—are pictured as stern partisans for more economy and a balanced budget, and for this reason:

That if the United States is to retain its power in the long fight against communism it must be economically sound by living within its means and meeting its responsibilities within a balanced budget.

But there is another side to this tortured problem for the Eisenhower administration:

What does it profit to balance the budget if, in the end, the Communists win because this country, in its desire for economy, doesn't spend enough money in the right places in the right ways, and at the right times?

This dilemma is illustrated in the decisions the administration is trying to make on military manpower and foreign aid, particularly aid for Asia.

The administration apparently doesn't think war likely, at least soon. President Eisenhower himself talks of the cold war lasting 50 years. Throughout that time the United States must be strong enough to deter aggression.

How can it be done? The government could try to maintain a huge military force, but the budget couldn't be balanced, and if no war came the money spent would be, perhaps money wasted.

The government could economize by putting more reliance on strategic bombers which can carry atomic weapons and reducing the size of the land forces while building up the reserves in case of emergency.

That involves a risk since in an emergency this country might not be able to mobilize fast enough. It's a risk the administration seems willing to take for the sake of economy over the long pull.

In Asia the Communists have had major success. They may try further military force or internal subversion.

Meanwhile, they are using the other means at hand: propaganda, political maneuvering, infiltration, and, where they think it worth while, economic aid.

If the United States refuses to give economic help to Asia, that would leave the field to the Communists. The administration, again for the sake of economy is trying to decide how little aid it can get by with successfully.

The Communists may take over Asia anyway, no matter how much help this country provides. But if this country gives too little aid, it may be just as ineffective as no aid at all.

Growing Quality In TV Drama Shows

By WAYNE OLIVER
NEW YORK (AP)—Amid the growing profusion of giveaways and canned comedies, a refreshing development in television has been the gain in numbers and quality of hour-long live dramatic shows.

Eight regular one-hour dramatic shows a week are carried by the networks, with four on NBC and two each on ABC and CBS. In addition, the half-hour Hall of Fame on NBC occasionally expands to two hours for Shakespearean drama, and CBS has a monthly one-hour revival of past Broadway hits.

But with the perversity typical of the schedule makers, there are conflicts between two dramas on two different nights so the viewer who might like to watch all eight can see only six.

One of the conflicts, of course, is that between the Robert Montgomery Show, which starts at 9:30 p.m., EST, on NBC Monday and Studio One, which begins half an hour later on CBS. The other is between Television Theater on ABC starting at 9:30 p.m. Thursday and Video Theater on NBC half an hour later.

Fortunately for those who like the one-hour plays, there are no conflicts for Television Playhouse on NBC Monday night, Television Hour on ABC Tuesday night, Television Theater on NBC Wednesday night and Climax on CBS Thursday night.

One that has shown particular improvement is the Sunday night Television Playhouse on NBC with many examples of fine original writing, although there has been a tendency toward too steady a diet of earthy plays overweighed with social significance.

Roscoe Karns, one of the first movie actors to come into television, is losing his show Rocky King, Detective, on Du Mont Dec. 26 after five-year run. . . . Dan Dailey, 20th Century-Fox film star, has been signed for the singing and dancing role in "Burlesque" on CBS' Shower of Stars telecast Jan. 22. . . . Tennessee Ernie has been signed for a new NBC-TV daytime show starting Jan. 3.

Excess Harvest On Pitt Farms Can Be Costly

Pitt County farmers were cautioned today that they stand to lose more than they gain by harvesting an excess of any allotment crop.

The warning came from J. L. Wilson, chairman of the County ASC Committee and J. T. Meredith of the County ASC office.

They pointed out that Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has removed "cross compliance" restrictions. The Secretary also removed restrictions on the use of diverted acres for planting of commercial vegetables or potatoes.

Meredith reminds that a farmer who harvests in excess of any allotment crop will be ineligible for any federal cost share assistance under the 1955 agricultural conservation program.

Meredith also said that farmers who are approved for cost sharing under the program could be called on for a refund if it were later determined that they harvested from excess acreage on an allotment crop.

This will have great effect in Pitt County since five of the six basic crops under allotments are produced in the county.

Remains Of An Ancient Church Draws Visitors

By ERIC GOTTGETREU
JERUSALEM, Israel (AP)—The remains of a 1,800-year-old Christian church, newly discovered, is attracting visitors this Christmas season.

The church was situated near the well where, legend says, Mary and Joseph rested on their trek from Jerusalem to Bethlehem.

The mosaic floor of the church and the foundations of an adjacent monastery were unearthed in the precincts of a 3,000-year-old Judean town. The finds were made on a hill close to the Israel collective settlement, Ramat Rachel. From it one looks down on Bethlehem in the south, the Judean Desert and the Dead Sea Canyon in the east, and the towers of Jerusalem in the north.

The well is mentioned in the writings of the sixth century Father Theodosius. Recounting Christian legends of his time, he relates how Joseph and Mary quenched their thirst at that well, from then on known under the Byzantine-Greek name "Kathisma"—resting place. The name recurs later also in Arabic: Arabs in the Holy Land call the place "Bir (well) Kadi-mou."

Another tradition identifies the well with a legend that the three wise men on their way to Bethlehem stopped there to drink.

Father Theodosius says that a church and monastery near the well, also named Kathisma, were donated in honor of a certain Theokotos by a Jerusalem Christian woman named Ikalla.

The church was originally 48 feet wide and 65 feet long, fairly big for that time. Nothing is known regarding the height of the building as no complete columns or side walls have remained intact. The best preserved part is the mosaic floor of one of the aisles showing various geometrical designs of red, blue, grey and white stones. A big cross hewn in stone was found along with marble fragments which apparently formed part of the chancel screen, Byzantine ceramics and a number of oil lamps.

Outside the eastern front of the church a thick wall—probably part of a city wall—was dug out. It is built in a technique which experts say resembles the lower strata of the citadel of the old city section of Jerusalem.

The excavations are being carried out on behalf of the Antiquities Department of the Israel government and will be continued next spring, he work is being directed by Yochanan Aharoni, an archaeologist trained at Hebrew University.

Danny Thomas Is Believer In Real Postive Thinking

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—TV talk—Danny Thomas was in the motion picture center cafe at lunchtime, putting on an impromptu show. Danny whose love of entertaining is as plain as the nose on his face, was quipping with the waitress, playing the cigarette machine like an organ and organizing all the other lunchers in a large chorus, Fred Waring style.

Between all this he was downing his lunch and conducting business for his TV show, "Make Room for Daddy," which recently won a Christopher Award. The question arose of a casting for a blonde siren. Danny suggested Kim Novak.

"Oh, we can't get her," an underling replied.

Whereupon Danny lapsed into one of his philosophies. "Never say 'can't,'" he said, embodying one of the credos that made him a star. He cited as an example: "Recently I wanted to use the song 'There's No Business Like Show Business' on my show. Everyone told me that was impossible. Fox had tied up the rights to the song on film.

"Impossible, eh? I called Irving Berlin in New York. 'Hi, Danny!' he says. 'How about sharing some bacon fat with me?'

"You see in 1945, I was entertaining the troops in Italy and Irving was there with 'This is The Army.' One night we were in a miserable joint with Marlene Dietrich, of all people. And the only thing we had to eat was greasy bacon fat that we heated and poured over stale bread.

"Well I asked Irving if I could use his song. And he said, 'Danny, you don't even have to ask. Of course you can use it.'

And that's why he says "Never say 'can't.'"

The talk of the TV trade is "Disneyland" and "how can Disney do it?"

"Why he's giving away everything in the studio!" exclaimed one film executive.

And it surely looks that way. So far Walt has dispensed on his Wednesday ABC show two feature pictures—"Song Of The South" and "Alice In Wonderland," a host of Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Pluto cartoons, some true-life adventures and ample portions of two future releases—"The Lady and The Tramp" and "30,000 Leagues Under The Sea."

If sponsors had to pay for the original cost of these films, the bill would run into many millions of dollars.

But Disney doesn't view the project on the basis of profit on the TV show alone. He hopes it will hype the grosses of his new films by creating interest from TV viewers.

Hollywood will be watching the returns on the new Disney films. If Disney's plan works, you may see more movie studios adopting similar methods.

Fifth Christmas Away From Home

BOSTON (AP)—James Cahill, 24, a sailer from Winthrop, came all the way from the West Coast to spend Christmas at home for the first time in four years.

As he headed for a subway station for the last four miles to his home, he was struck by a motorist, who failed to stop after the accident.

Cahill, attached to the USS Rendova, an aircraft carrier, was taken to City Hospital with internal injuries and a fractured left leg.

Later, he was transferred to the naval hospital in Chelsea, where doctors said they didn't think he could be released to be home for Christmas.

Salvage Crews Will Try Raise Wrecked Plane Out Of Water

NEW YORK (AP) — Salvage crews planned today to raise the wreckage of an Italian airliner that crashed into Jamaica Bay at the end of a Rome-New York flight Saturday.

Twenty-six persons died. Six others survived.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, which has been checking the crash near Idlewild Airport, scheduled closed preliminary hearings today.

Wreckage of the four-engine DC6B airliner was located yesterday by Navy divers, who reported it appeared to be in three main pieces.

They said the fuselage, in which 17 bodies are believed trapped, seemed to be intact but had flipped over, with its nose pointing out into the bay.

Bodies of nine crash victims already have been recovered. The last, found yesterday, was that of 12-year-old Rosalia d'Ugo, daughter of Mrs. Natali d'Ugo, Chicago.

One of the crash survivors said Rosalia had managed to get clear of the wrecked plane and he had seen her struggling in the water.

"I swam over to her," said Frank Messina, Mount Vernon, N.Y., "and put her on two seals which had fallen out of the plane and were drifting nearby."

Messina said he went to get better floats and when he came back Rosalia was gone. "The seats were still there. She wasn't," he said.

Rosalia was going to Chicago with two other passengers from her hometown of Altaville, Sicily.

Messina, 43, was reported in poor condition at St. Joseph's Hospital Far Rockaway, Queens.

The six survivors were in the rear of the plane and got out or were thrown clear when the tail cracked off. Two young students returning from Italy were uninjured and able to go home. The

Approve By-Law Against Bikinis

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP)—Selectmen say they don't like the idea of bikini bathing suits on Nantucket streets—in the summer.

Even as the blustery winter winds blew, the selectmen yesterday approved a proposed town by-law which says everyone over 12 must be covered "to a point midway the hip and knees" if they wander from the beaches.

Selectmen said they approved the proposal at this time of the year since it must be acted on at the Feb. 15 town meeting.

others were taken to hospitals.

Investigators said the plane apparently struck the end of a 2,000-foot pier with its tail as it approached the airport. Officials said the pilot, Capt. Guglielmo Algarotti, 52, who had missed three earlier radar-guided approaches to the field, was warned he was coming too low.

A veteran transatlantic flier, he was among the victims.

In Rome, the Italian government named a commission of its own to investigate the crash and Italian Defense Minister Paolo Emilio Taviani termed the crash "a grave blow" to Italian civil aviation.

Mississippi To Vote On Plan To Retain System

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi will vote tomorrow on a proposed constitutional amendment designed to continue public school segregation and called by opponents "the most crucial issue to confront us in this century."

It would give the Legislature standby authority to abolish public schools if necessary to continue segregation.

The amendment, authored by the Legal Educational Advisory Committee and approved by the Legislature in special session, is an attempt to bypass the U.S. Supreme Court ruling banning public school segregation.

Proponents say the amendment is only a "last resort" which places in the constitution "a safeguard whereby we can insure our right to control and direct our school system."

Foes, who term it "the most crucial issue to confront us in this century," say it will give "the legislature life and death power over our public schools."

Both sides agree they want continued school segregation; they differ on methods.

The amendment is similar to those adopted by South Carolina and Georgia. It needs only a majority vote to pass.

The Mississippi version provides:

1. The state "may," instead of the mandatory "shall," provide, support and maintain public schools.
2. The legislature by a two-thirds vote could abolish schools statewide.
3. The legislature could by a majority vote set up a plan for counties or local school districts to abolish their schools.
4. Public school buildings and facilities could be rented, leased or sold to private individuals.
5. The state could provide tuition money to students in private schools.

Sparkman Feels Eisenhower Can Be Beaten, If ...

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said today Democrats can defeat President Eisenhower in 1956 if they write a "responsible record" on domestic issues in the 84th Congress.

Sparkman, the 1952 Democratic vice presidential nominee, said in an interview he expects that Democratic cooperation with the President on foreign policy and national defense will largely eliminate them as campaign issues.

"We Democrats can defeat Eisenhower or any other Republican nominee by writing a responsible record on domestic problems, by showing what a Democratic Congress can do," he declared.

"When the people vote their natural instincts, the Democrats always win. The Republicans win only when they can upset this natural inclination, as they were able to do in 1952."

"Since then, the Republicans have been destroying the confidence which the people temporarily transferred to them. They have destroyed it by not being able to carry out the promises they made in the campaign, promises which they knew they couldn't carry out."

"The Republicans promised to balance the budget and to cut spending, among other things. Instead, they are spending 2½ billion more than President Truman did in his biggest year and the budget remains out of balance."

"I don't condemn the Republicans for this spending because I think it is necessary to build up our defenses and to join in mutual security aid to other free countries, but they had no business making promises they knew they couldn't keep."

Sparkman predicted a rerun of the 1952 contest which pitted Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson against Eisenhower.

Sparkman said that so far as he personally is concerned, he isn't a candidate for second place on the ticket.

Optimistic Note Sounded Loud In Business Circles

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Good cheer flows from business leaders these days. Retailers, manufacturers, bankers, transportation executives swell the merry chorus with predictions of better days ahead for their industries. Now and then a note of caution is added but it is scarcely heard in the general pean of optimism.

Here are a few of the predictions — a cross section of American industry.

Officials of General Electric, Westinghouse and Kelvinator Division of American Motors foresee a bigger sales year for electrical appliances.

Gwilym A. Price Westinghouse prexy, expects a 10 per cent increase in orders for his company, on top of this year's record sales. He predicts that the economy as a whole will rise to new heights within the next two years.

O. B. Smith, president of American Airlines, sees "a substantial increase" in air traffic — to top its record of having doubled in the last five years.

Robert R. Young, New York Central chairman, and heads of several other railroads predict an upswing in freight revenues, and hence in rail earnings.

Retailers from coast to coast are counting early Christmas shoppers and predicting their best yuletide business.

Auto executives are unanimous in seeing a better year ahead. William J. Cronin, managing director of the Automobile Manufacturers Assn., says: "All signs indicate that the momentum of November and December will carry the industry to one of its best years."

Steelmen, who earlier were predicting their mills would operate at around 75 per cent of capacity in the first half of 1955, are raising their sights. E. T. Weir, chairman of National Steel, now foresees the average rate as around 80 per cent in the next six months. Some others predict 85 per cent.

Aluminum, ending a record year for production and sales now looks for 1955 to set still higher marks, according to Donald M. White, secretary of the Aluminum Assn.

A New York banker — Roy Relserson, vice president of Bankers Trust — looks for business activity in general next year to equal the peak set in 1953, and perhaps top it.

19-Year-Old Admits He Crushed Woman's Skull

By RAY STEPHENS
BRINKLEY, Ark. (AP)—A 19-year-old Alabama youth who has admitted he swung the club which crushed the skull of pretty Mrs. Milton Fuller is in an undisclosed Arkansas jail today, waiting to be charged with first-degree murder.

Prosecutor J. B. Reed told newsmen yesterday he would file the information against Billy Ray Willingham here today.

The youth, who left a 16-year-old wife in Alabama, said hunger drove him into the unpretentious Fuller home, and that a weird sex urge spurred him into killing the young mother.

Mrs. Fuller was found dying early Dec. 12 in her blood-spattered bedroom. She had been hit once with a four-foot stick of firewood. The blow crushed her skull. She died nearly five hours later at a hospital without regaining consciousness.

Prosecutor Reed told newsmen that Willingham Friday admitted striking Mrs. Fuller. However, he said, he and officers first suspected the man might be mentally unbalanced, rather than guilty. Willingham underwent a 12-hour psychiatric examination in Little Rock which convinced Reed he was sane.

When the youth told officers that he took two of five biscuits from the Fuller kitchen — and a hurried check revealed only three biscuits remaining — Reed said he accepted Willingham's story as true.

"Why did you kill Mrs. Fuller?" Willingham was asked by newsmen.

"I don't know why; I just hit her," he replied. "She was asleep when I hit her. I'm sorry."

He flatly denied that he attempted to rape Mrs. Fuller, mother of two little girls, but said, "I did a few things."

"Different things, just different things."

Willingham was picked up for questioning at Forrest City while loitering on the streets, and brought to Brinkley, where he said he was the killer.

Big Steel Mill Strikes When Man Is Discharged

FONTANA, Calif. (AP)—The Big Kaiser Steel Corp. mill has been idled by a dispute over the discharge of a workman.

The company fired the man identified only as an officer of CIO United Steelworkers Local 2869—for what was described as "failure to perform his work satisfactorily."

Members of the local struck Saturday in protest, and the plant, employing 5,000 persons was shut down. The company termed the walkout a wildcat strike, saying the local went out without obtaining authorization from the steelworkers' international.

Dave Mellon, local president, said the local is standing solidly behind the discharged worker.

Greenville Jaycees this afternoon began their distribution of Christmas baskets to 25 needy families in Greenville and Pitt County.

Money for the Christmas baskets came from the light bulb sale recently held by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce. Harry Douglas, chairman of the Jaycee Christmas project, said this morning, "We would again like to express the appreciation of all the Jaycees to the people of Greenville who purchased light bulbs during our sale and made possible these Christmas baskets which will help needy families of our community."

The 25 families who receive Christmas baskets from the Jaycees will find them chocked full of food. Each basket will contain a picnic ham, bags of nuts and candy, 14 cans of canned food, coffee, tea, sugar, flour, lard, meal, apples, oranges, dried beans and peas, potatoes and a number of other items of staple foods.

AYDEN — At the Ayden Rotary Club's weekly supper meeting last Friday night, Dr. Charles M. Cameron of the State Board of Health spoke about accidents — how they happen, and how to prevent them.

Accidents caused 2,465 deaths in North Carolina in 1953, and 1,196 were caused by motor vehicles, the speaker reminded, and "it's our important job to be constantly on the alert to avoid accidents," he declared.

Tom Wheelless won the "fellowship" prize, and the Boy Scout Fund received the "on time" prize.

Guests of the club were Alton Johnson, Guy Evans and Jack Boone of Greenville, Dr. L. M. Alexander and Joe Sumrell.

The Ayden Rotary Club will meet next Friday night—Christmas Eve.

At last week's Rotary meeting, Rev. Frank Reach, pastor of the Ayden Christian Church, told the story of Christmas—the origin of Santa Claus — and recited some Yuletide history.

Two Arrested On Liquor Charges During Weekend

ABC officers arrested Leroy Smith, Negro, of 623 Pamlico Avenue Saturday night and charged him with illegal possession of non-tax-paid liquor.

Officer J. M. Ward reported that about three quarts of illegal whiskey was found in a pot in the kitchen of the man's home. He was released under $200 bond.

Also arrested Saturday night was Mattie Anderson, Negro, of 405 Bonners Lane for possession of bootleg liquor. She was also released under $200 bond. Both will be tried in City Court.

Assisting in the arrests were members of the sheriff's department.

Assisting in the investigation from the sheriff's department along with Tyson were Deputies Duke Andrews and Jasper Lee Mills. Sergeant J.M. Whitehurst of the Ayden Police Department also took part in the investigation.

President Flying Thursday To His Yuletide 'Play'

WASHINGTON (U)—President Eisenhower will fly to Augusta, Ga., Thursday for a work and play vacation over the Christmas and New Year holidays, the White House announced today.

The chief executive will be accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower and her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud of Denver, Colo. They plan to return to Washington about Jan. 3.

In addition to getting in some golf at the Augusta National Club, the President will work on three messages he will send to the new Democratic-controlled Congress next month.

He will deliver the State of the Union message in person Jan. 6, the day after Congress convenes. The budget message and the annual economic report will go to the lawmakers later next month.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said there was no definite word yet as to whether the President and first lady would be joined in Augusta by their three small grandchildren.

An African elephant grows to be as much as 11 feet tall and 8 tons in weight, or six inches taller and a ton heavier than most Indian elephants.

Colored News

Friends and relatives will be glad to learn that C. R. Daniels Sr. has returned home from Pitt Memorial Hospital.

All members of the Knights of Pythias Mt. Negro Lodge No. 39 are asked to meet in the hall Wednesday night at 7:30.

Card of Thanks

To my many friends, both white and colored, I deeply appreciate the lovely cards and gifts that each of you sent me. May God bless you all and peace and happiness and prosperity throughout the years to come.

Sincerely,
William J. Anderson

Elks Pitt Lodge No. 234 will hold its last regular communication for 1954 Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.
