Local Citizens Urged Give Parking Lot Views Public Hearing Tomorrow

Local citizens were urged today to voice their opinions on the parking lot situation at a public hearing to be held tomorrow night at 7:30 in the council room at City Hall.

The public will have a chance to let the city council know how they feel about off-street parking in general and a proposed lot directly across from City Hall in particular at the public hearing.

either for off-street parking lots or against off-street parking lots. Mayor Pro-tem Eugene West also urged attendance at the meeting by local citizens and, he said, the council would like to hear from individuals representing both sides of the question.

Fateful Decision On Policy Toward West Germany Awaited French Assembly Vote Set

By HARVEY HUDSON PARIS (AP)—The French National Assembly convened shortly after 3 p.m. today for a decision fateful for the government of Premier Pierre Mendes-France and the defense of the Western world.

Hundreds of police stood on guard at strategic points around the Assembly building, the Bourne Palace, to maintain order. Shortly before the session opened, most of the political groups were holding last minute caucuses and the odds appeared to favor the Premier by a slim margin.

He is asking a vote of confidence today on two points—West Germany's entrance into NATO, and endorsement of the government's position on three amendments to the ratification bill.

It appeared that at best Mendes-France could hope only for approval of rearmament by a small margin and with many Assembly members abstaining from the ballot.

Red China's Premier Renews Threat To Formosa Will 'Never' Give Up Claims

TOKYO (AP)—Red China's Premier Chou En-lai, in one of his most startling statements to date, says "the Chinese people will never halt" until the Red flag flies over Formosa, island holdout of Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalists.

He called the recently signed mutual defense treaty under which the United States promises to defend Formosa "a great menace to peace in the Far East and Asia."

added that of late Britain "has been vigorously following the dangerous policy of the United States aggressive bloc on certain major issues." He mentioned Formosa as being one of these "issues."

Caution But No Gloom In Appraising Next Year Cabinet Not Pessimistic

WASHINGTON (AP)—Members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet, including in the year-end custom of taking a look ahead, see 1955 as a year of peace but continuing tensions and of a stable and prosperous economy.

Secretary of Defense Wilson wrote: "We are determined to use our atomic leadership to serve the uses of peace, but we will take full account of our large and growing arsenal of nuclear weapons and the most effective means of using them against an aggressor who are needed to preserve our freedom."

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said the nation's economy must provide the weapons of defense and "an ever higher standard of living as well as the social services which our people want and need."

It's Now A Showdown Fight

It has come to a showdown between local officials who are determined Pitt County shall have the new bridge and bypass at Greenville and outside interests which are seeking for their own selfish reasons to block the project.

Local officials have rolled up their sleeves to fight to the last ditch for the project which is so sorely needed not only for Pitt County but by the entire Second Highway Division. They need and deserve the full support of all the citizens of Pitt County in their efforts to see that the project is not killed by outsiders who oppose it.

The U. S. Air Force is being used as the "front man" for the opposition to the project. It is our guess the Air Force would not oppose CAA approval of the necessary right-of-way across the Pitt-Greenville Airport unless Serv-Air Corp., Inc. of Kinston, which leases the airport and has a contract with the Air Force, likewise opposes CAA approval of the proposed project.

In our opinion also, there has been considerable behind-the-scenes activity on the part of some people to block the three-quarter million highway and bridge project in Pitt County. There is no use shutting our eyes to reality about this thing. If the Air Force files a protest with the CAA, the matter of right-of-way approval will have to go into hearings before the CAA. At best such hearings will take months. If the protest is filed, it will mean the local project will be taken off the list of those to be let January 25 by the State Highway Commission. If the local project is indefinitely delayed by legal wrangling before the CAA, there is little doubt the Highway Commission will divert funds which have been provided for this project and apply them to other highway projects.

When that happens, we'll be kissing the local bypass and new bridge good-bye for a long time. We'll have to start again from scratch.

There are probably several other localities in the state which would like to have the money ear-marked for the Pitt County diverted to highway projects of their own.

The action of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission in voting not to renew the Serv-Air lease on the airport if the Air Force files a protest with CAA shows the determination of local officials to fight with every means at their command for the highway facility which is so sorely needed here. They are to be commended for their attitude.

Business Today

Sales Record Seen

By ELMER ROESSNER
There is a slim chance that this year's Christmas shopping season, will bring the year's total retail sales to a new high mark.

The record year was 1953, when a total of $170,703,000,000 changed hands at retail. The total for the first 11 months of this year is $152,711,000,000. December sales will therefore have to be more than $17,992,000,000 to set a new record for the year.

If they pass that mark, they will set a new record for a single month as well as for the year. The biggest month ever before was in December, 1952, when they reached $16,910,000,000.

And if sales do reach the vicinity of 18 billion this month, it won't be entirely because of Christmas buying. The sharp rise in sales of autos as a consequence of dashing new designs, will be a notable asset.

Department stores also appear to be in shooting distance of their 1953 mark. At the beginning of December sales were only 1 per cent behind the same period last year, according to Federal Reserve figures. Unofficial reports since then indicate that sales are running well ahead of last year, possibly enough to overcome that 1 per cent lag.

In some cities and metropolitan areas department stores are certain to better 1953 records. And since other retail sales generally rise and fall with department store sales, new highs may be reached in other fields.

Suburban Boston began the Christmas shopping season with department store sales 7 per cent ahead, and healthy gains have been registered since then. Other areas in which the department store sales at the start of the shopping season, were above corresponding periods last year include Oklahoma City, up 6 per cent; Rochester, N.Y., up 3 per cent; Jacksonville, Miami, Atlanta and New Orleans, up 2 per cent; Springfield, Mass., Wilmington, Washington, Little Rock, Minneapolis and Denver, up 1 per cent.

The biggest lags were in Trenton, Wilkes-Barre, Hazelton, Akron and San Diego, each down 8 per cent.

AMERICA BUYING MORE BUBBLE WATER
Coming Christmas and New Year festivities may set another record: the largest amount of French champagne consumed.

Americans have been increasing their purchases of champagne. Last year, according to the Comité Interprofessionnel des Vins de Champagne, America became the biggest buyer of champagne for the first time in history, taking the lead away from the British. Sales to the U.S. were 2,335,000 bottles, enough for champagne baths for every starlet in Hollywood for every Saturday night of the year. And shipments so far this year have been running ahead of last year.

APPAREL EXECUTIVES SEE SALES RISING IN '55
An increase in sales is expected by 61 per cent of 27 executives of apparel manufacturing, wholesaling and retailing companies who were polled by Dun & Bradstreet. While 31 per cent foresee no change next year, only 8 per cent expect a decrease.

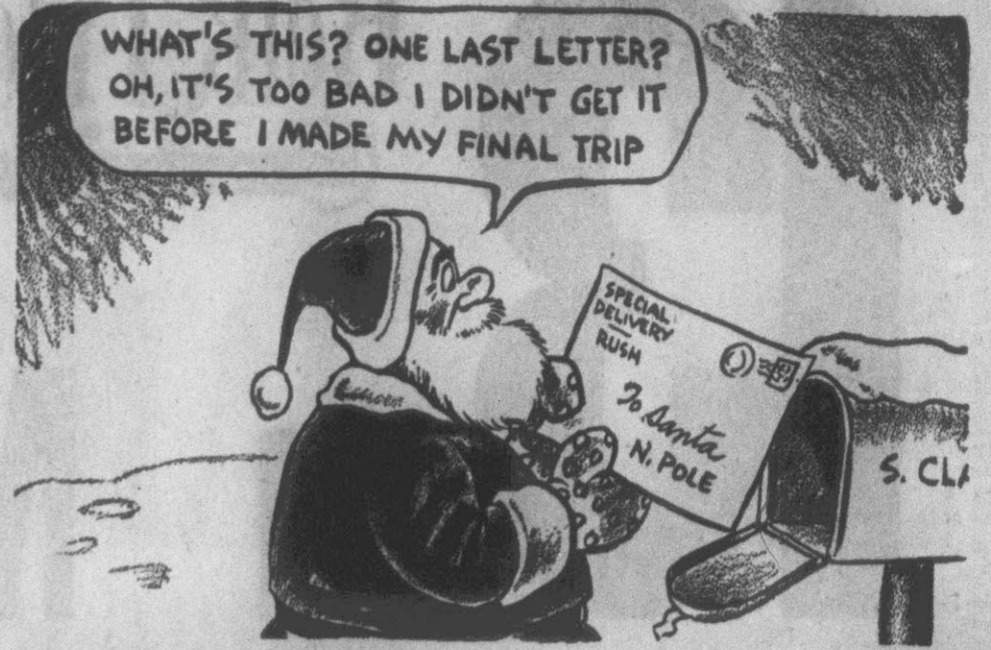

On net profits, 42 per cent expect an increase, 11 per cent a decrease and 47 per cent no change.

Only 4 per cent expect an increase in selling prices, and these were largely manufacturers. Eleven per cent expect a decrease and 85 per cent expect no change.

On inventories, 16 per cent expect increases 54 per cent no change, and 30 per cent decreases.

When Santa Got Home

WHAT'S THIS? ONE LAST LETTER? OH, IT'S TOO BAD I DIDN'T GET IT BEFORE I MADE MY FINAL TRIP

Startling Comparison Of Income, Taxes

There is a striking contrast which legislators should carefully consider before they begin increasing state taxes for the coming biennium.

North Carolina ranks 44th among the 48 states in per capita income. North Carolina ranks 26th among the 48 states in per capita state tax collections.

Even with holding state spending to a minimum during the coming biennium and squeezing unnecessary spending out of the budget, most officials appear resigned to the fact that more taxes will have to be levied to provide sufficient revenue for state operations. Where to raise taxes and how much are matters for the coming

General Assembly to work out.

For the fiscal year 1954, tax collections for North Carolina amounted to $70.30 for every man, woman and child in the state. National statistics show that the average per capita state tax collections in the 48 states was $70.31 or just one cent above North Carolina's per capita collections.

The collection of state taxes must be based on the ability of the people of the state to pay taxes if taxation is to be economically sound. Therefore the comparison between per capita income and per capita tax collection is important for any state which is contemplating new sources of revenue.

While North Carolina's per capita income is considerably lower than the average of the 48 states, its per capita tax collections miss the average of the 48 states by only one cent. While there are only four of the 48 states which have lower per capita incomes than North Carolina, there are 22 states which have lower per capita state tax collections than North Carolina.

The collection of state taxes is tied directly to the economic conditions within the state. When economic conditions are on the upgrade, state revenues go up. When economic conditions are on the downgrade, the situation is reversed. It is economically unsound for a government to overtax its people. It follows therefore, that the raising of existing state tax levies or the levying of new taxes do not comprise the sole answer to North Carolina's financial problem.

Dollar Aid Program In Europe Won U. S. Few Friends

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Three specialists, just back from Europe, discussed the effect of our dollar-aid program abroad. Since this was a small, closed meeting, I shall not identify these men. What they said was that the millions of dollars spent in Europe have not, as had been hoped, won very many of our European neighbors to our way of thinking.

WHY AID EUROPEANS?

The thinking behind our multi-billion-dollar aid program was that we could raise the living standards of Europeans by increasing their productivity. This means by showing them how to develop mass markets for their manufactures. We hoped to win converts with refrigerators, shoes, radios, and many other items.

What we seem to have overlooked is the fundamental European desire for security. The American economy is dynamic.

Competitiveness is inbred; risk-taking and venture capital are common denominators of our success. The European economy, on the other hand, is a static, protected economy. Production is stabilized; prices are controlled; the worker is protected; competition is discouraged; the common denominator is security. People are interested in working harder for security, but not in selling more units at less profit per unit.

A CYNIC'S REACTION

One cynic in the group said, "All right, then why do we try to force the American ways on Europe? These Europeans are happy; why should we unload a dose of American ulcers on them?" A comment from another went something like this, "Austria's productive capacity has been sharply increased since World War II. We were not concerned about them before the war; why should we be concerned now?" A reputable economist in the group raised another issue: "Europe knew it had a threat from the East, an enemy in Communist Russia. Might not Europeans now believe that they have two enemies seeking to infiltrate or absorb them—Russia and America?"

My own belief is that we must fight poor economics with good economics. We cannot hope to sell democracy to people who are economically enslaved by their institutions. If we do not act constructively, we shall lose Europe to Communism by default.

OUR SPIRITUAL VALUE BELOW PAR

I have a pet notion which I know will shock some of you, but think about it a while. Our dollar bill is a good measure of our spiritual values. A paper dollar isn't worth anything of itself; but, as a medium of exchange, it is a measure of values. It reflects such spiritual values as honesty, wisdom, courage, and integrity. From 1939 to 1953, the value of our dollar declined from 100 cents to about 55 cents. Does this decline in dollar value mirror our decline in character?

Dollar depreciation is largely a result of war. But why? Instead of paying as we went, we were taught to borrow against the future. This could be perfectly O.K., because we owed nobody ourselves. But it gave us the illusion of prosperity. It sidestepped self-sacrifice while increasing our national debt five-fold during these war years.

IMPORTANCE OF SACRIFICE

We have given young Americans the notion that they can charge their present happiness against some future date of accounting. We have developed the materialistic belief that money will buy everything, including the way Europeans think. The present value of the dollar reflects this belief. Perhaps it will take defeat in Europe to bring us to the realization that freedom cannot be bought with dollars without sacrifice. We should have learned that lesson 175 years ago.

The practical cure for Communism is not material. It is spiritual. It is not the amount of dollars you pour into a situation; it is the ideals. It is not security and pensions and comfort; it is ideals and ethics and character. It is those principles that make our dollar worth something. Right now our dollar is below par; I have faith, however, that as more Americans come to realize this great truth, we will put our own house in order. Then maybe what we have to say will make more sense to Europeans. We must practice and teach sacrifice.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SIDE STREETS
A modern religious writer tells the story of a minister lying on his deathbed and with almost his last breath sending this message to his congregation: "Never move your church off the main highway. The church always makes a mistake when it locates on a side street."

With what profit might the modern church and its leaders ponder these words? The minister often hears the admonition, "Clobber, stick to your last." So many religious books today deal with Christianity and the social crisis, the application of Christian truth to labor-management relationships, Christ and war. Quite a few seminary students take internships in insane asylums and are given a brief course in how the minister can employ psychiatry in his ministry. In fact there are some ministers for whom the gospel has actually changed into psychology. It is amazing the extent to which the minds of younger ministers are overwhelmed by the teachings of psychology and the confidence many of them have that they are called to be ordained psychiatrists, no longer ringing doorbells and calling upon their parishioners but "counseling" them by appointment—practically the same as the psychiatrist, except the couch.

But the business of the Church remains that of preaching and ministering. Don't move the church off the main street. The church always makes a mistake when it locates on a side street.

National Whirligig

Military Men In Government

By RAY TUCKER
Mr. Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent to him at 7008 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"Is it the general opinion at Washington," inquires Mrs. R. F. of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., "that too many military men have been given responsible, civilian positions in the government?"

Answer: The draft of so many Admirals and Generals for policy-making posts in the Executive realm has been a subject of frequent criticism in Congress, in the press and in officialdom.

It is based on the belief that they have been so long insulated against everyday problems and everyday living that they are short on understanding, unsympathetic, arbitrary and, in short, too tough.

MILITARY DISLIKES THEM—Although I dislike anything resembling a military government, I do not agree with this assessment of "the brass," a term which most of them detest. With a few exceptions, I have found them to be as wise and patient and tolerant as their civilian opposites or superiors, and this, of course, includes President Eisenhower.

What many lack, however, because of their preoccupation with professional duties and responsibilities, is a broad and deep knowledge of and experience with the ordinary mortal's problems. As President, Ike acts as if he had never worn a uniform.

From the day they enter West Point or Annapolis until they retire, their economic future is secure and safe.

It is true that they do not get large salaries in the lower ranks. But, barring misbehavior, they know where their next meal is coming from, and that they will have a roof over their heads.

Will their wives, and perhaps justly, pan me for that observation? Military life can be tough on the "gals."

"How have the South American nations stood as regards Russia's attitude toward the United States?" asks Mrs. A. M. H. of Sioux City, Iowa. "We seldom hear anything about our neighbors in South America."

Answer: On major questions involving our cold war with Russia, the South American members of the United Nations, and I assume that the reader refers to this test of their attitude, have lined up with us. This has been especially true in recent months, for the threat of a pro-Communist regime gave a scare to the Latin-American Republics.

LATIN-AMERICAN PROS AND CONS—However, as erstwhile victims of American "dollar diplomacy," they frequently vote against us when questions involving so-called "colonialism" and "imperialism" arise in the U.N. Generally, they opposed us on the demands of Cyprus Greeks, France's North African protectorates and the Netherlands' Indonesians for a break with the great powers—namely, Britain, France and Holland.

In a showdown, however, they will stand with us. They must, to be frank.

THE UNION JACK—"You recently answered the question of whether Canada, India and Australia are under British domination," writes J.E.G. of Springfield, Mass. "Now, will you tell us why these countries fly the British flag instead of their own?"

Answer: All these dominions have their own flags which is sometimes flown along with the Union Jack. Save for India, however, there is a great sentimental attachment to England, whence many of the original settlers of Canada and Australia came. Therefore, they still like to see the British flag occasionally.

"Are there any veterans of the Spanish-American War still serving in Congress?" asks W.S.B. of New York City, N. Y.

Answer: There are three—Senators Guy Gillette of Iowa, Carl Hayden of Arizona and Edward Martin of Pennsylvania. But Gillette was defeated last month, and Martin does not intend to run again in 1958. Hayden, if still a Senator, will then be the lone survivor of Teddy Roosevelt's private war.

BAY SHORE, N. Y., SUFFOLK-EVERY-WEEK: "People always grouse about paying taxes. They seldom exert pressure to make their wishes felt. Certainly, they do little to lay their case before the elected officials who are in charge of the pursestrings. They become the victims of their own apathy."

Romance Of Railroad Handed Another Major Blow

By LYNN NISBET

RAILROADING—The inventors, economists and general progress are combining to take all the romance out of railroading. The latest blow is an announcement that rubber cushions under steel rails and at joints will permit trains to move noiselessly at high speed. No more steady roaring punctuated by clackety-clack as the wheels passed over the joints between the rails. This is the latest, but it is feared not the last, step of the efficiency boys against the picturesque in railroad operation.

It is accepted as inevitable in the name of progress—but not without nostalgic recollections. Oldtimers remember the wood-burning locomotives with the big pot-bellied smoke stacks, from which black smoke and red sparks came in spurts as more pine wood was thrown on the fire. Those were the days when long stacks of cordwood were placed beside the tracks every few miles, and train crews had to stop and load up the engine tender. There were water tanks every few miles, too, usually near a stream and not always at the same stop as the woodpile.

Then came the use of coal instead of wood, and bigger tenders with less frequent stops. There remained some romance in the coal shuttles and the water tanks. Then oil replaced coal as the principal fuel. The coal shuttles disappeared because the fuel oil was pumped from underground containers, and the overhead water tanks were abandoned for underground sources.

Meanwhile the pot-bellied smoke-stacks were replaced with streamlined smaller devices. Exhaust steam was channeled through the smokestack, so that instead of one big glob of black smoke and another white steam cloud coming from different places on the locomotive, the black and white were all mixed up and sometimes came out of funnel white and then turned black as the steam cloud was dispelled.

MONKEY-ACTION—The wood-burning, coal-burning and oil-burning locomotives went through varied stages of development, but without changing the basic principle of power derived from a drive shaft propelled by steam injected first on one side then the other side of a cylinder, and the locomotives driving wheels activated by knee-action driving rods.

Some smart engineer conceived the idea that two sets of knee-action driving rods, one to push and one to pull, could develop twice as much power. That brought into use the mogul engine with "monkey-action" drivers, four driving wheels on each side instead of two, smaller in size but with doubled power for each wheel—which meant eight times as much as the two-wheelers.

The first "monkey-action" engine to come to rough Waxhaw was the occasion for tun-out of nearly the entire village population to see it. Recollection is faulty and records have not been checked, but as your reporter remembers the incident it was somewhere around 1907 or 1908.

Worth Noting

SEPTEMBER SALES MATCH 1953 MARKS

Total retail sales in September were 2 per cent above August and even with September, 1953, according to Commerce Department's figures.

There were some wide swings from year-ago marks. Furs and fur shops did 10 per cent more business; floorcovering stores, 12 per cent; paint, glass and wallpaper stores, 10 per cent; book stores, 8 per cent, and came a stores, 8 per cent.

In the other direction, family clothing stores sales were off 11 per cent; confectionary stores, off 2 per cent; heating and plumbing equipment dealers, off 14 per cent and florists, off 9 per cent.

Food, apparel, drug and furniture types did better, on the whole, than a year ago but the automotive group was down.

That was about the same time that passenger trains were classified as "short dogs"—two to four cars with steps entering an open platform at the end and which made local stops every few miles; and "the vestibule"—a big train of sometimes as many as ten coaches with coach doors opening directly into the car, and which stopped at wayside stations only for the purpose of taking on or discharging long distance passengers.

Whether "short dog" or "vestibule" and whether hauled by single-action or monkey-action engines, the puffing and snorting of locomotives on the off-take, the mass volume of white and black and gray smoke, the clanging of the brass bell and the tooting of the steam whistle, the roar and the clackety-clack as the coaches moved into high speed, made the arrival and departure of a passenger train an event of importance in the daily routine of peaceful village living.

PROGRESS—Development of the internal combustion engine as a source of motive power destroyed much of this old system. Automobiles carrying passengers and freight over public highways replaced the local passenger and internal combustion diesel motors now pull the hundred and fifty freight cars and twenty or more passenger cars with greater efficiency and at higher speed, but with much less romantic picturesque appeal than the old steam-wheelers with three to ten cars.

The 1954 train has just as much romantic appeal as a worm—which is exactly what it looks like. No puffing and snorting, no visible driving wheels, no globes of black smoke or clouds of steam vapor, no clanging of brass bells and a sorry substitute of compressed air for the old steam-whistle.

Sure, it is more efficient, and it is certainly quieter—even without this latest blob of rubber cushions to eliminate the clackety-clack. The 1954 train can stop and start more quickly—but nobody goes to the "depot" to see it stop and start.

At the same time—and this may have some significance—the stores which promote the sale of toy trains report that kids of 1954 are more interested in steam-propelled knee-action and monkey-action die wheels than in diesel or electric jobs. That is the personal observation of your reporter as to Raleigh, and friends have reported the same attitude in Atlanta, Richmond, and Washington.

In other words, the nostalgia of oldtimers for the side-wheeler drivers and steam locomotives is shared by the yearning of the old time railroading practices. That leads to the conclusion that maybe the engineers and scientists have outrun popular sentiment in bringing about too rapid changes in methods of transportation.

HAWK WATCH

While photographing a hawk migration in the mountains of West Virginia, ace professional lensman, Charles Gratton, learns that some one is flying an eagle, a grave infraction of local game laws. He explores the ledge where he has seen an eagle in flight and comes upon a decadent mansion now occupied by one Anson Metcalf and his sister, Dana, both expert falconers. As Gratton approaches the residence, he is greeted by lovely young Dana who manages to keep at bay a vicious dog guarding the place. She ignores the intruder's reference to eagles, diverting him by exhibiting her pet hawk, "Butcherboy," a wicked looking fellow who meekly obeys the girl's commands. Dana speaks of her father who long ago had left this house, and of her hope of one day leaving here to join him. Returning to the village, Gratton finds a demolished car which had been towed in from a canyon. Search had failed to produce a driver or a body. And in the quaint village barber shop he is briefed on Metcalf's past and present, loyalty to her "odd" brother, Anson, a recluse in the rotting house.

bringing me the picture. "Took back in nineteen hundred when this shop was opened."

In the faded brown photograph I could see the same center pedestal, the six chairs with six gleaming, white-coated barbers, standing at attention beside a properly bibbed customer in each one.

"I started at number six chair, there." A knobby brown finger reached over and pointed out a ivory grin. "Now I'm all that's left."

The old voice choked off and he occupied himself with his razor and lather. It had been a long trip up to chair number one.

"Yessuh, I'm like those old mugs over there on the wall." He replaced the lather that had dried on my neck. "Each year one or two more gets set aside. Most of their families ask me to keep them on here in the shop where they've been so many years. I've lived to give most of them their last shave, one way or another. Like old Mr. Anson Metcalf. Left word he wanted it that way." He laid the razor against the back of my neck with a shaking hand. "One snowy day in nineteen twenty-six they sent for me and had me driven up, just as soon as it happened. I did him for the last time, with this very razor."

The cold blade slid down my neck like the blade of time.

The courthouse was a rather small building sitting back in some elm trees behind an iron fence. It was that old kind of red brick with an orange tinge and it looked as if there ought to be Civil War militia bivouacked on the lawn. Maybe it was the cannon anchored there.

The conservation officer's headquarters was in the basement only he wasn't there. I sat down and smoked a cigaret over a little magazine called West Virginia Conservation. After two cigarets and two issues I divided my time between the square windows up near the ceiling and a poster of a bear named Smokey. About quarter after three the door opened and broke the monotony.

He was a leathery man with a stiff neck that went straight down from the ears and his eyes were like slits with deep wrinkles at the outer corners. I thought he was grinning till he smiled and then it looked too empty—a smile that showed no teeth. He wore a hard-visor cap and olive green shirt and breeches. His cartridge belt made the breeches sag below his belly like a child with its diaper at half-mast.

"What can I do for you?" He moved over to his desk and leaned on it and yawned.

I introduced myself. I didn't feel it registered but I went on. "Do you know some people named Metcalf up on Third Hill mountain?"

"Yes, Anson." He kept his lips pinched tight as if he'd just taken a spoonful of mineral oil.

"What sort of person is he?"

"High and mighty." He settled back against the edge of the desk. "One of those dicky bird people who thinks you shouldn't kill a hawk even if you catch it with its claws in game."

"Have you known him long?"

"Since he was a kid. Kindof a mother's boy."

"What does he do for a living?"

"He don't hafta do nothing. His old man left him well-heeled. He never done nothing as far as I know but fly hawks from the time he was a kid."

"Any law against flying falcons?"

"In some states they'd get him for hunting with an illegal device. Then there's having a protected species of hawk in your possession."

"Ever arrest him for those offenses?"

"That's pretty hard to do." He was the kind who could bech and look you straight in the eye. "Closest I came to getting the two of them was for flying them hawks at game outa season. They're always at it."

"By them, you mean Anson and the girl?" I asked.

"Both of 'em. She's as bad as he is."

"Did you get a conviction?"

"Without another witness, it's their word against mine. You take a Metcalf into court and you have to have it on him cold. They ain't well liked but you might say they're well thought of."

"So—you didn't make the arrest."

"I hate to shoot a man's dog on his own property and it about amounts to that, goin' up there with that black dog of his."

"You haven't been to the house?"

"I been there but I stayed in my car." He waited for me to make something of it. When I didn't, he went on. "They've got a poor old colored woman up there's been with the family for generations. They tell it around here the Metcalfs never let her know the slaves were freed. She just goes on thinkin' she belongs to 'em."

"The reason—"

"They say he raises rabbits for his hawks to kill. I couldn't say, but one day I seen him on Sleepy Creek mountain with a big White Rock Rooster—probably tyin' it out for his hawks to slaughter."

"The reason I ask about those hawks—did you ever see any sign of an eagle near their place?"

He shrugged and got off the desk. "We see eagles every now and then. Specially at this time of year."

"I saw an eagle from the Sleepy Creek fire tower Saturday," I said. "It landed near the Metcalf place."

He squinted at me a little harder. "What did you say your name was?"

"Charles Gratton."

"You the fellow Red had up in the tower?"

I said I was.

"Someone called and asked me who you were and I couldn't remember what your name was." He was grinning his empty grin again.

"Who was it asked you?" I almost didn't recognize my voice.

"I don't know. I could hardly hear him on the telephone. Must of been a bad connection."

"When did he call?" I asked.

"Saturday afternoon. But he wanted to know about who was up there Saturday."

"You said you didn't know?"

"That's right. I couldn't think of your name. I told him all I knew was you were somebody down here from New York takin' pictures. A guy with a camera. He said that would help."

I walked through the courthouse gate and moved along the sidewalk, aware only of leaves loosened by the wind coming down around me. No, he hadn't said who I was. That would help.

Which of the calls had been made first? Probably the one to me in the tower. That had drawn a blank. Then this one got him the news I was a photographer from New York. The next call got him my name and Yale club address. What would the next move get? I noticed I was passing the bus station. I turned in.

In the phone booth I lifted the receiver.

"Operator, were you on duty yesterday afternoon?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know the operator who was?" I asked.

"Yes sir. She'll come on this evening."

"What time?"

"Six o'clock."

"Where is the exchange?"

"The Telephone building is on Washington street, sir."

I thanked her and she giggled. I think she thought I was trying to make a date.

I returned to the inn and went to my room.

With luck I'd get more about those calls this evening.

CHAPTER TWELVE

There was a framed photograph on the marble shelf at the next chair. I rolled my eyes toward it. "That looks like a photograph of this shop," I said.

"It is." He stopped his work with the razor and shuffled over,

bringing me the picture. "Took back in nineteen hundred when this shop was opened."

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

A Lutheran Refugee Service area director has been named to the Governor's State Advisory Refugee Committee for Missouri. She is Mrs. Leonard C. Wuerffel, wife of the dean of Concordia Theological Seminary here. The chief duties of state advisory refugee committees is to interpret the U. S. Refugee Relief Act under which Lutheran Refugee Service has started a new resettlement program sponsored jointly by the National Lutheran Council and the Missouri Synod.

An appeal to church women to exercise their vote and influence for the betterment of life in America and across the world is being made by Mrs. Cora Rodman Ratliff, of Sherard, Mississippi, a national leader of the Methodist Church's Women's Society of Christian Service. Says Mrs. Ratliff: "The potential voting strength of women in the United States is 52 per cent of the total voting power. What a challenge this is to us. Recently, a newspaper called attention to this fact, saying that women must assume the responsibility for conditions in government, whether they wished to or not. And certainly, the solution to many problems is in our hands. Women need to examine their own practices. Through habit or custom or tradition, women will vote for a man in preference to a woman for places of responsibility in church or state, even when the qualifications are equal or where the woman may have more training and experience. Women hesitate, also, to seek places of responsibility in church or state. Women realize the handicap which is theirs, and are willing to continue under this handicap."

Claims Deportation Due U. S. 'Pressure'

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—An American divorcee ordered out of Britain sought temporary haven here today and blamed American "pressure" for her plight. U.S. officials denied any part in the case.

The woman, 32-year-old Mrs. Jean Butler, flew here yesterday with her British fiance, Clive Jenkins, a British trade union official. She plans to marry him here when her divorce becomes final in February, then return with him to England as a British citizen.

Mrs. Butler has been in Britain for the past five years, employed recently as a curator at a London museum. The British Home Office had refused to extend her residence permit and warned that she must leave the country by Dec. 28 or be deported.

The Home Office declined to discuss the case but said "such action is made when it is conducive to the public good."

Mrs. Butler was divorced Dec. 22 from J. Jordan Butler, an American archaeologist living in Britain. She said previously "there is certainly no question of security involved, and there never before has been any question about extending my permit to stay in Britain."

Mrs. Butler has said she did not want to return to the United States because of former trade union affiliations. She said that 10 years ago she had been an organizer with the CIO (Congress of Industrial Organizations) "and had Negroes and whites in the same union in the South."

"Also at my state university

(Missouri) I ran a campaign to allow Negroes to be admitted to the university," she added.

The woman claimed that "someone in the United States has brought pressure on the British authorities to make me leave and return to America."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in London said "America has nothing to do with the deportation order."

University of Missouri records show Mrs. Butler graduated from a New York City High School as Jean Lynn Rogovin and entered Missouri in 1944 as Mrs. Jean Lynn Vier. She and her husband took the name Butler in 1947.

Highway Sleep Results In Death

LEVELLAND, Tex. (AP)—Highway Patrolman Henry Crump gave this account of a car wreck yesterday:

Army Pfc. Carl Preston Peek, 20, of Midland, Tex., pulled off the road near here, evidently to sleep. A car driven by Lonnie Cole, 26, of O'Donnell, Tex., hit Peek's car head-on.

The patrolman quoted Cole as saying he went to sleep at the wheel.

Peek was killed, Cole and five passengers injured.

Young Teacher

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—When her family moved into a new neighborhood two years ago, Delores Schneider had a problem.

How does an 8-year-old debutante go about making friends and playing with the other children?

With a child's directness, Delores found the answer by teaching all the youngsters sign language.

Now there's hardly a child of her age in the neighborhood who can't hold his own in two-handed conversation.

Incoming Congress Appears Set To Accept Ike's Farm Program

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—The incoming Democratic-controlled Congress shows signs of a willingness at the moment to ride along with the Eisenhower administration's flexible farm price support program.

showed that, among those taking a clear-cut position sentiment is nearly 3-2 for retaining flexible props and almost as strongly against restoring rigid supports.

The question is whether Democratic leaders in the 84th Congress could whip enough party adherents into line, on another showdown, to reverse this trend with the help of some farm state Republicans.

Industry Profit Reports Helped By Late Activity

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK—Better business in the closing months of the year is brightening the profit reports of American industry—as well as inspiring the bulls in Wall Street.

Early returns on earnings show about one half of the industrial firms doing as well as or better than in prosperous 1953, when sales were higher—but so were taxes.

Utility companies so far this year have outpaced 1953 earnings by around 10 per cent.

Railroads, early in the year, were trailing their 1953 income figures by almost 50 per cent. But increased freight haulage in recent weeks has pulled earnings up-grade.

The first 64 industrial and utilities to report for 12-month periods ending before the calendar year expires show 33 of the utilities and 12 of the industrial with higher net profit after taxes than a year ago.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, Real Estate Editor

Soon you can take virtually all of our household problems to one local clinic. You'll get prescriptions and the right medicine for every structural ailment. Beauty treatments and youth-restoring injections will be available to make your house easier to live in, more fun to live with and — worth more.

The idea is being worked out on a grand scale by local lumber yards and building supply firms. They are about to make their biggest pitch toward helping homeowners, home builders and even apartment dwellers solve every problem from driving a nail straight to setting the dining room table.

It all was demonstrated at the Modern Living Exposition staged in New York by the National Retail Lumber Dealers Assn. Four acres of exhibits, all on one floor in the huge Kingsbridge Army, were needed to show what this program will mean in every city and town.

Among some 300 exhibits were three full-sized houses, one finished and furnished and the others put together and taken apart daily to show how local lumber yards can tackle preconstruction to speed home building through the use of panel units.

And erected separately were 18 full-sized rooms, each planned, built, decorated and furnished by different national home magazines. Architects, builders, color stylists and various technicians explained to visiting householders all the hows and whys of the products and methods used.

Of course, the lumber industry put its best foot forward in this show with myriad wood products, such as fancy hardwood plywoods, ponderosa pine millwork, windows and doors prominently featured. But there was no sign of the brakes being applied to other essentials — even competitors with wood.

For example, there was a display of aluminum carpenter's do-it-yourselfer can erect as simply as playing with Junior's erector set. In fact, the upright posts of this carpenter look something like erector set pieces, which makes them decorative as well as readily adjustable. The roof is enameled plain or striped to suit. Makes a fine canopy for a porch as well.

Decorative hardware and locks also were shown in their latest designs. Grooved nails to end the annoyance of nails popping out of wall board under vibration, aluminum nails made tougher to eliminate bending under the hammer blows, screw-threaded nails for flooring to stop the music of floor squeaks were among other exhibits.

Although the industry's latest attitude has been to stress the "how-to-do-it" angle more than the "do-it-yourself" in order to save innocents from going beyond their depths, there still are plenty of fool-proof do-it-yourself items of interest. One of these is a new synthetic facing stone to help you change the front of your house, your fireplace or any wall to a random-width masonry finish.

You can put one of these stone faces on your house for 59 cents per square foot. Colors vary from blue-gray through greens and reds to buff. Mixtures are attractive. Regular Portland cement mortar is used to apply this material to metal lath or directly to any material which provides a sufficient bond.

The emphasis on glamour that prevailed throughout the show, especially in the magazine-sponsored rooms, prompted hopes that local lumber dealers will be prepared to give more realistic and down-to-earth help to their customers when the localized program really gets rolling.

The portrait of Superintendent J. H. Rose above was formally presented to Greenville High School Friday as a gift from the senior class of 1953. The portrait has just been completed by Mrs. Georgia P. Hearne. Pictured above with the portrait, which will be hung in the high school library, are left to right, Ann Brewer, 1953 class secretary; Rose; Kenneth McArthur, class treasurer; Tom Smoot, class vice president; Mrs. Hearne; Ray Evans, class president; and Joseph M. Taft, vice chairman of the city school board who accepted the gift in the name of the city schools. (Reflector Photo by Edwina Haymes)

Greenville High School's class of '53 formally presented to the school Friday a portrait of Superintendent J. H. Rose which will be hung in the high school library, with instructions to hang it in the library of the new high school when that shall be completed.

The portrait, painted by Mrs. Georgia P. Hearne, is last year's senior class gift to the school. An announcement as to the nature of the gift was made when the class graduated. Mrs. Hearne has just completed the portrait.

On hand for the presentation, made by '53 class president Ray Evans, were members of Rose's family, members of the city school faculty, Mrs. Hearne, Mayor W. L. Whedbee, city councilmen, all '53 class officers and the superintendent's intimate friends.

In presenting the portrait, Evans said it was given to the school "as an everlasting memorial of the work he (Rose) has done for the betterment of our schools. No other man has contributed more to the advancement of education than he, and we will be ever grateful for his accomplishments."

Vice chairman of the city school board Joseph M. Taft accepted the gift in the name of the city schools. Prior to the presentation the invocation was given by the Rev. W. M. Howard, Jr.

Rose expressed his appreciation of the tribute paid him by the class of '53 declaring, "What you have done, I take it was done for better education in Greenville. I am grateful for your pausing to think about this as a class, grateful in the name of the youth of Greenville and the future growth of Greenville."

He asserted, "If we always keep our ideals high we can never go too far astray, and in dealing with young people like this class we can never lose sight of our ideals."

Last year's senior class officers include Evans, president; Tom Smoot, vice president; Ann Brewer, secretary; and Kenneth McArthur, treasurer.

Class advisors are Miss Estelle Greene, Ward James and Mrs. Howard Mims, who was in charge of the portrait gift.

Protection Is Real Basis Of Social Security

(This is another in a series of articles prepared by Gerald B. Johnston, Social Insurance Representative, of the Rocky Mount, North Carolina district office of the Social Security Administration.)

We recently received a letter from one of our readers, who asked, "What is social security?" This question would normally require some explanation of the technical provisions of the law, but for the purpose of answering the inquirer's question, Old-Age and Survivors Insurance is protection for you and your family based on your earnings in work covered by the Federal social security law.

If you work in employment or self-employment covered by the law, you will make social security tax contributions during your working years to provide an income for yourself and your family in case your earnings are cut off by old age, and for your family in case of your death. If you are employed, you and your employer share the tax; if you are self-employed, the rate of your tax is three-fourths as much as the total tax of employer and employee on the same amount of earnings. The amount of your benefit payment depends on the amount of your average earnings.

Other members of your family may be entitled to payments based on your social security account while you are receiving benefits and after your death. Payments to them — to your wife, or to children under 18, for example — are figured from the amount of your old-age insurance benefit.

The amount of monthly payments to your family, therefore, depends on three things: your earnings, the number of your dependents, and the age of each member of your family.

For Specialists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asst. Secretary of Defense Fred Seaton says administration proposals for military pay raises would not affect the ordinary private but would aim at keeping skilled technicians in uniform.

Seaton said Congress will be asked to approve pay hikes on "a selective basis" for men who — particularly in the Air Force — require considerable training or have special skills.

In an NBC-TV-radio interview, Seaton listed proposals to improve overseas housing and medical aid for dependents, and a rotation system for returning men from overseas, as more important than pay raises.

Insecticide Used At Planting Time

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—Many crop insects now can be controlled by insecticides applied to soil at planting time. This fact is confirmed by a second year of experiments conducted by Dr. Harlow B. Mills, chief of the Illinois Natural History Survey of the University of Illinois.

The materials used in the experiments were dieldrin, aldrin, lindane and heptachlor.

Insects affected by soil treatments in cornfields included corn seed beetle, corn seed maggot, grape colapsis, wireworms and white grubs. The study showed that treated areas had larger yields than untreated areas in about four-fifths of the experimental cornfields.

Reductions of insects in garden crops were evident in onion and cabbage plots treated with aldrin. Turnip plots were successfully treated with heptachlor. Damage by bacterial scab, a gladiolus disease, was reduced by treating the soil for white grubs which are suspected of spreading it.

Released, Then Back In Hospital

STAMBAUGH, Mich. (AP)—Vernon Carlson was released from the hospital after five weeks treatment of acid burns suffered in an accident at an iron mine. To celebrate he decided to go hunting. While he was loading his gun his dog jumped on him. The gun discharged and shattered a bone in his leg. He was returned to the hospital the same day he was released.

Uranium And Oil Result In Maps

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Uranium and oil have combined to bring about publication by the U.S. Geological Survey of the most detailed maps ever made of the western portions of the great Navajo Indian reservation.

The maps, 28 sheets on a scale of two inches to the mile, have recently been released to the public. They were made in response to requests of uranium and oil hunters.

Forecast Big Traffic Toll Over New Year's

NEW YORK — Speed, number one killer on American highways, and alcohol, which runs a close second, will be responsible during this New Year's weekend for at least 161 auto crash fatalities, according to a prediction by the accident prevention department of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies.

The Association's grim forecast, released today, indicates that speeding accidents will claim 97 victims, while overindulgence in alcohol on the parts of both drivers and pedestrians will cost another 64 lives.

Before the end of the weekend, which starts officially at 6 p.m. next Thursday and closes at midnight January 2, there also will be 29 deaths in accidents caused by failure to keep to the right of a centerline, 21 more for failure to yield the right-of-way and another 18 in crashes caused by over-fatigued drivers or drivers actually asleep at the wheel.

In releasing the prediction, Thomas N. Boate, manager of the Association's accident prevention department, pointed to overzealous holiday celebrants as principal offenders in the accident picture. "on a not of tragedy in far too

"This year will end and the new one will begin," Mr. Boate said, many homes. Far too many New Year's parties, originally devoted to celebration of the happy days to come, will turn out to be merely starting places for a motor trip to the graveyard. Any driver who drinks, even though he may not be

Talent Holds Up Despite Forecast

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the early predictions about television was that it would use up talent so fast nobody would be able to last very long, but it isn't turning out that way.

Five of the top 10 shows of December 1948 still are around and going strong and the star of a sixth will be back next month.

The C. E. Hooper rating service, which no longer issues national ratings, had Milton Berle in first place six years ago and he's in third in the latest Nielsen ratings and seventh in Trendex.

In second place in the December 1948 Hooper ratings was Arthur Godfrey and his Talent Scouts, which isn't in either the latest Nielsen or Trendex but does appear frequently in their top 10.

Fourth in the Hooper of six years ago was Ed Sullivan's Toast of the Town, fifth in both the new Trendex and Nielsen surveys. Seventh in the ratings of six years ago was Friday night boxing, on NBC, which isn't in either of the latest top 10s but is one of the currently popular and high-ranking shows. The Sunday night Television Playhouse was 10th in 1948 and while missing from the top 10 now, it regularly pushes close to the charmed circle.

In sixth place in the Hooper top 10 of six years ago was a show starring Phil Silvers, no longer on the air. But Silvers will be back, on CBS television, in a new filmed show on Tuesday nights next month.

Called Queen Of Cougar Hunters

AP Newsfeatures... VICTORIA—A clear-eyed, middle-aged farmwife is called the queen of the cougar hunters on Vancouver Island.

She is Mrs. Joan Millward Yates, who has been shooting the big cats for 17 years and her bag now numbers 23.

Shooting is her hobby but she also is protecting her mountain-side farm from marauders. They prey upon livestock and have taken heavy toll in many clearings.

Sometimes called mountain lions, the cougars seldom attack humans but can be dangerous when wounded. It takes an accurate shot to bring the big cats from the trees where they seek refuge after being cornered by dogs.

Mrs. Yates hunts with dogs. She has been hunting since a child, progressing from grouse and duck to deer and cougar.

She has had many guns, such as shotguns, a .22 calibre rifle and a 65-year-old twin-barrel big game rifle.

Mr. Yates leaves the hunting to his wife and says:

"She has such a passion for cougar killing that she will get up in the night and start out with a flashlight. She'll have nothing on but her pajamas."

Browns Crush Detroit Lions For Nat'l League Grid Crown

By JERRY LISKA
CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns today owned a rare second National Football League title after an astounding 56-10 demoralizing of the Detroit Lions which proved:

1. Cleveland's "retiring" quarterback, Otto Graham, showed enough voltage at 33—three touchdown passes and three scoring smashes—to warrant doubt he will quit pro ball as he says.
2. That you can't believe what you see on the TV screen (the game-turning play favored the Browns after what appeared a neutralizing double-infraction on TV).
3. That the same two teams playing in the same city on successive Sundays won't kill your crowd.
4. That statistics are little white lies (the Browns had only a slight edge over the two-time league champion Lions).

There was much of the fantastic about Paul Brown's tremendous crushing of a Detroit jinx in yesterday's game, played under perfect (for Dec. 26) weather conditions. It ended a Lion quest for an unprecedented third straight NFL title.

The Browns won their first triumphs in nine starts against a Buddy Parker-coached Lion team, but the runaway didn't develop until after a first quarter tide-changing which puzzled TV viewers.

This game, with Detroit ahead 3-0 on Donk Walker's field goal.

Cleveland's punter was roughed on the same play in which Detroit's receiver apparently signaled for a fair catch then was clobbered deep in Lion territory.

The Brown punter, Horace Gilom, was racked up by Lion guard Harley Sewell, just after lofting a fourth-down punt to Detroit's Jug Girard. After signaling a fair catch, Girard moved three strides to his right and did not have control of the ball when he was smacked down.

What the TV audience never learned was that officials ruled Girard, "muffing the ball," never had enough control to warrant infraction of the fair-catch ruling. That left the roughing-the-punter violation standing alone, instead of being wiped out in a double penalty.

So Cleveland got a first down on Detroit's 35 and two plays later, Graham hurled a 37-yard touchdown pass to speedy Ray Renfro. That was the game's turning point. The Browns took a 7-3 lead and steadily enlarged it.

Detroit's Bobby Layne for the first time in the Lion-Brown rivalry compared poorly with Graham. Layne had six passes intercepted, and every break went against him.

Statistically, the Browns out-pushed Detroit by a scant 140 to 136 yards, and in passing the Lions were ahead, 195 to 163. But what the figures didn't tell was how Graham outwitted and outmaneuvered the Lions.

Passing twice to Renfro and once to end Pete Brewster for touchdowns, and in smashing over from the 5-yard line and 2 and 1-foot lines Graham set three playoff marks.

Graham's three touchdowns set title-game scoring marks with 18 points, most six-pointers and most touchdowns by running.

After the six touchdowns Graham either passed or carried, the Browns produced a 12-yard touchdown run by Curly Morrison and a 10-yard scoring scamper by Chet Hanulak.

G-Men Play Rocky Mount Quintet In Re-Match Friday

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville's Phantoms, fully rested through the holidays, put their undefeated string on the line in Rocky Mount Friday night in what could prove to be their toughest game to date.

In an earlier meeting between the two schools the Phantoms pushed out a 46-35 win in a ragged and dull ball game. Since then the Blackbirds seemed to have found their stride and looked good in two close ball games with Kinston. The Phantoms also hit their stride and romped to wins over Goldsboro and Wilson by 103-69 and 98-71. If the Phantoms can keep firing the ball through the hoops at that rate they should get win number six.

The Phantoms represent the highest scoring team in Greenville history. The G-men so far are the highest scoring team in the state with their average of 71.8 points per game.

Coach Bo Farley's gang has four players hitting in the double figures on scoring and two players who average grabbing over ten rebounds a game.

Bob Howell is the most prolific scorer with his 16 point average. Harold Edwards ranks second with 14.8 points per game. Edwards has averaged 15.4 rebounds per contest and Howell has averaged 11.8 rebounds.

Other G-men in the double figures scoring column are Tommie Saleed and Pat Sawyer, each with 11.5 averages per game. The other member of the starting five, Edgar Moore, is averaging eight points per game and is the third ranking rebounder averaging five a game.

In their first ball game with the Blackbirds from Rocky Mount, the Green Phantoms had a bad night from the floor as they hit only 32 per cent of their shots. For the whole season the team has averaged 46 per cent of their field goal attempts.

On return games the Phantoms have been thriving so far this season. In their first game with Goldsboro they edged out a one point win, in the second they won by 34 points. Wilson lost to the Phantoms by ten in the first game and lost in the second by 27. Rocky Mount lost by 11 in the first game so the G-men should really pour it on in the next one according to that time table. The game Friday night will be played in Rocky Mount, however, and that will have a lot of bearing on the final outcome.

So far the Blackbirds have not shown to be a really high scoring team. Fifty and 55 points seem to be their usual quota for a game. When the G-men run into their slowed down offense it could throw their running game off.

This sixth game of the year is a highly important one. Right after Friday's game the G-men get ready for the regular season conference schedule. The holidays and lack of the usual amount of practice may have taken more than just the fine edge off the Phantoms. After Friday night Coach Farley will find out if his team is still as red hot as it was before Christmas. The Phantoms will have to be at their best when they run into the heated rivalry of their own conference.

'Two Down, Three To Go' In America's Bid For Davis Cup

By WILL GRIMSLEY
SYDNEY Australia (AP)—America seized a firm, almost unbreakable grip on the Davis Cup today when two long-frustrated veterans, Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas, fought their way to almost identical four-set victories over young Australian foes in opening singles matches of the challenge round.

Trabert, tight-lipped and determined, cut down powerful Lewis Hoad in the first match, 6-4, 2-6, 12-10, 6-8. Seixas, scrapping 31-year-old United States champion, evened a long and embarrassing flix by trouncing little Ken Rosewall 8-6, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3.

"Two down and three to go," exultantly said Bill Talbert, non-playing captain of the Americans as he congratulated his victorious athletes in the dressing room.

"We'll clinch the cup tomorrow in the doubles. And then Wednesday's final singles matches will be just a formality."

Only one other time in the history of this storied international tennis competition dating back to 1900 has a team lost the opening two singles and come back to victory.

In tomorrow's doubles, with the United States leading 2-0, America will send out Trabert and Seixas again against Australia's Hoad and Rosewall. The Americans, who have established themselves as the best in the world, will be overwhelmingly favored.

Harry Hopman, a disappointed Aussie captain, has the choice between Rosewall and Hoad or Rex Hartwig and Mervyn Rose, who have a brilliant doubles record.

But both Hartwig, just up from mumps, and Rose a lefthander of shifting temperament, have been mediocre in practice this week and appear certain to watch the doubles from the sidelines.

"I was very proud of both Tony and Vic," said Talbert whose ridiculed prediction of a 5-0 sweep now looks like a good bet. "Both of them followed our battle plans almost to the letter and they showed great fighting qualities."

A crowd of 25,578, largest crowd ever to see a tennis match anywhere, sat in the big wood and steel saucer for the day's program and most of them took a lingering look at the gleaming Davis Cup as they left the arena.

This is the fourth year Seixas and Trabert have come to Australia in an effort to wrest back the trophy taken to the bottom of the world in 1950 but every previous mission has been in vain.

Trabert, his teeth clinched with determination, started shakily against Hoad, who has been in a terrible slump. But he held on grimly to gain the decision.

In the 22-game third set, which lasted more than an hour, Tony fought off one set point in the 17th game, twice came back from 15-40 on his own service and won the set with a powerful serve-volley exhibition in the 22nd game.

It was a real tonic for ex-salior Trabert of Cincinnati, who had forehand 4-1 and 4-2 leads in the set only to have Hoad rally to tie it up.

Hoad who had explained his year-long slump recently by saying he was "fed up" with tennis, served eight double faults and most of them were costly.

Seixas, who had lost to Rosewall eight of the nine times they had met and the last six times in a row, made good his boast he would win.

He followed Captain Talbert's forehand and move to the net swiftly; also to attack Rosewall's second service and, if possible, the first with a shot to the forehand.

"Vic followed our campaign strategy to the letter," Talbert said. "I was very proud of him."

Rosewall had two set points in the first set against Seixas, holding a 40-15 lead in the ninth game but Seixas pulled out with a strong volley to the backline and then a forcing shot at Rosewall's feet which was fluffed into the net.

Hopman said he had nominated Hoad and Rosewall for the doubles but reserved the right to make a change an hour before the match.

Six Boxers Died In '54 From Injuries In Ring

NEW YORK (AP)—Six boxers died in 1954 from ring injuries—a sharp drop from the record 22 in 1953—Ring Magazine disclosed today in a copyrighted article in its February issue.

Editor Nat Fleischer of the monthly boxing publication called the decline in fatalities from the year before one of the few bright spots in an otherwise drab year for the sport.

Fleischer and his worldwide staff selected heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano as "Fighter of the Year" and singled out Argentine's Pascual Perez, world flyweight champion, for its "progress of the year" award.

In 1953, 12 pros and 10 amateurs, died following ring injuries. Eight of the fatalities occurred in the United States and 14 in foreign countries.

In 1954, three amateurs and three pros succumbed, four here and two abroad.

There wasn't a pro death until Nov. 30 when British welterweight Bobby Callaghan died in London

Rebel Streak Is Finally Broken

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—The North threw a couple of Missouri quarterbacks at the South here Saturday to snap a 5-game Rebel winning streak and give the Yanks a 14-7 victory in the Blue-Gray football game.

Vic Eaton and Tony Scardino, both of Missouri provided the Yanks with their scoring punch.

Eaton fired an aerial to Fred Baer of Michigan on the second play of the fourth quarter for the winning tally at the end of an 86-yard drive.

Scardino passed 37 yards to end Charles Fairbanks of Michigan State to set up the other North touchdown in the first period. Oklahoma's Bob Herndon dived over for the score to climax a 60-yard march.

Dick Shipley, Maryland tackle, kicked both North extra points.

The South missed a good scoring chance in the first period when Alabama's Corky Sharp fumbled on fourth down at the North one.

It was midway in the fourth quarter before the South got its scoring drive going. Jerry Johnson of Texas Tech started the move by returning a punt 28 yards to the Gray 39.

Then, with Louisiana State's Al Doggett doing the quarterbacking, the Rebels moved for a touchdown in 10 plays. A 29-yard pass from Doggett to VPI back Howie Wright was the scoring play. Doggett kicked the extra point.

A crowd of 18,000 attended the nationally televised game.

4-Tackle Line In Shrine Game

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The South used a favorite defensive maneuver of professional football teams in beating the North 20-17 in the Shrine's College All-Star game Christmas night.

South Coach Andy Gustafson of Miami said he and Jim Tatum of Maryland, his assistant for the game, had four tackles in the line-up at times when the North drove into Rebel territory.

The game was played under free substitution rules, enabling Gustafson to do as the pros do—throw the big men into the line when the opposition gets in scoring range.

The North, coached by Ivy Williams of Wisconsin and Bernie Crummins of Indiana, drove inside the South's 25 on five occasions. Once the Yanks got a touchdown. The other four times the solid South defense forced field goal attempts by Minnesota's Jim Soltau. He made good on only one. The other North touchdown came on a 52-yard pass play from Indiana's Florian Helinski to Rhode Island's Pat Abbruzzi.

Maryland's Dick Bleiski handled most of the South's fullbacking chores and was voted the outstanding player of the game, winning the honor over Wisconsin All America Alan Ameche, who starred for the North.

The South packed all of its scoring into the final 16 minutes of the game. Bleiski got the first touchdown with a 14-yard burst on the last play of the third quarter, climaxing an 80-yard march. The bruising linebuster gained all but 23 of those 80 yards, however, on Soltau's field goal and a touchdown by Michigan State's Bert Zagers. And the Yanks quickly made it 17-6 on Abbruzzi's jaunt. The South merched 76 yards with the following kickoff for another touchdown, Ronnie Walker of Maryland going over from the one.

With seven minutes left in the game, Miami's Carl Garrigus intercepted a pass from Helinski and the South drove 34 yards in 10 plays, Garrigus scoring the winning touchdown from the two.

It was the South's fifth victory in seven college all star games.

A Little Tired Of Proving Point

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Paul (Bear) Bryant, Texas A & M football coach, told a Quarterback Club meeting here that a good coach has to have a capacity to take it.

But after his team lost eight of nine games, he added he was "a little tired of proving it."

Penalty Threat For Loose Talk

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Harold Mahan, a long-time high school sports official, tells this:

In a football game the chatter of the boys got off-color and he called the captains to tell them to stop or 15-yard penalties would be assessed.

One captain gathered his team around him and explained: "Fellas, you'll have to stop the cussing or the ref says he is going to step off 15 yards for illegal use of the mouth."

Johnny Vaught is the 20th football coach at the University of Mississippi. The game was first played by the school in 1893.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined moderately today in the face of tax selling and uncertainties of the French political situation.

Prices were down around 2 points at the worst. Plus signs were scattered and seldom large although some went to around 2 points.

Trading was in the neighborhood of Thursday when the total was 3,310,000 shares, in a rising market.

This is the final day that stocks can be sold for regular four-day delivery and have profits counted on the 1954 tax bill. Selling for 1954 tax losses can continue the regular way to the end of the year.

Premier Mendes-France staked the life of his cabinet on a vote of confidence over West Germany's entrance into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. There was little or no disposition in Wall Street to regard the French action as a threat to market stability, but some brokers felt a word of caution was necessary.

The market opened higher and then swung lower all around. Most were down from the start, and other major divisions soon joined them.

There were a few notable large blocks on the tape in initial dealings. Benguet Consolidated Mining, the most active issue of the three previous sessions, opened on 20,000 shares unchanged at 1 1/2.

Pennsylvania Railroad had a block of 12,000 shares up 1/4 at 24 1/2. Electric & Musical Industries 14,000 up 1/4 at 4 and Aveco Corp. 10,000 up 1/4 at 6 1/2.

Adenauer Clings To Control Hope

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany says he has hope that an effective system of controlling atomic weapons will be found and that it will in turn lead to a general easing of world tensions.

"Once the terror of the atomic weapons has been banished, then such a charge of the mental atmosphere among nations will, I think, occur that one can arrive at reasonable arrangements," Adenauer said in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U.S. News and World Report.

Asked how he views the prospects for "truly peaceful coexistence" with the Soviet world, Adenauer replied:

"In my opinion, the decisive question is whether it will be possible to reach an agreement in the matter of atomic weapons. If that were achieved I trust the decisive step will have been taken, and I have the hope, just because of the dreadfulness of those weapons that it will succeed."

"Once countries and governments become ready... to renounce it (the atomic bomb) in earnest, to renounce it under control, then, I think, that will cause such a liberation from human fears that everything, so to speak, will go ahead successfully."

"However, as long as that question is not solved, I don't think that an easing of tension will occur, and then all the special problems will remain unsolved."

Claims 'Duty To Public' In Trial

CLEVELAND (AP)—A prosecuting attorney who helped bring about the second-degree murder conviction of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard says:

"Maybe we didn't do our duty from Dr. Sheppard's point of view, but from the public point of view, we did our duty."

Assistant County Prosecutor John J. Mahon was commenting last night on a written statement by the 30-year-old osteopath convicted last Tuesday of clubbing his pregnant wife, Marilyn, to death on July 4.

Sheppard sentenced to life imprisonment, gave the statement to a brother, Dr. Richard Sheppard, who relayed it to a Cleveland newspaper.

In his statement the prisoner said:

"Total disregard of definite evidence that proved the presence of someone else in our house who must have killed Marilyn stirs and depresses me."

Sheppard, who has maintained a proffer budgeoned his wife, added:

"My understanding was that a prosecuting attorney was duty bound to produce all evidence and protect the innocent as well as prosecute the guilty. This has been far overlooked."

Mahon said no evidence in the Sheppard case was overlooked and "everything was out in the open."

Stove Explosion Damages House

A house occupied by Mamie Corey was badly damaged when an oil stove exploded on Christmas Day.

Firemen reported that the kitchen of the home located at 1310 Short Street was burned out by the fire resulting from the explosion and the rest of the house received smoke, fire and water damage.

The house was owned by P. L. Goodson Sr. and was reported to be insured.

The local firemen were also called outside the city limits at 12:20 p.m. on Christmas to a brush fire past the highway patrol station on the Washington Highway.

At 1:48 p.m. on the same day the department was called to a second grass fire at 14th and Wright Sts. A call to the home of W. Z. Morton at 415 West Fifth Street was answered by the fire fighters at 9:22 p.m. December 23. A boiler had burst in the house. Firemen said only the boiler was damaged.

More Low-Rent Public Housing Predicted Out Of New Congress

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Democratic senators said today they believe the next Congress will authorize more new low-rent public housing than they expect President Eisenhower to recommend.

The similar statements were made in separate interviews by Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.), a member of the Senate Banking subcommittee which handles housing legislation and Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.).

Each said the present law is too restrictive and that he will propose changes in it.

Albert M. Cole, federal housing administrator, has indicated Eisenhower may ask Congress to authorize the construction of 70,000 low-rent public housing units in the next two years. Eisenhower this year asked a four-year program of 140,000 units but Congress authorized 35,000 units for each of two years.

Such housing projects are designed for persons in low income brackets. The federal government pays to local housing authorities the difference between the amount of rents collected from the tenants and the cost of maintaining the properties.

Sparkman said the 35,000-unit limit is so hedged in by restrictions that it is doubtful whether more than 10,000 units a year could be built.

"These restrictions must be removed," he said, and added he expects they will be when Congress acts on proposed extension of the act.

Sparkman said he would prefer "a flexible law" which would leave it up to the President and the Budget Bureau to recommend each year how many units should be built, the final decision to rest with Congress.

Humphrey said that if the law does limit the number of units to be built, "it should be not less than 75,000 a year."

He said he will introduce proposed amendments soon after Congress convenes Jan. 5, seeking to eliminate what he termed "far too much red tape."

He said the present law requires that "for every public housing unit built you must tear down an old housing unit, and relocate the family living in the old unit." He said that involves such burdensome planning operations that many municipalities, in need of new projects and slum clearance have found it impossible to qualify within the time allowed."

Pitt County Native Is Killed In Plane Crash

A Pitt County native was killed inside. Survivors include his widow, the former Mamie Allen of Farmville; three sons, Billy, Bobby and Mitchell; his mother, Mrs. Van Little of Monroe; four brothers; Harry L. Lovic of Durham, Ralph Lovic, in the Navy and stationed in Florida, Henry O. Lovic of Plymouth, and Walter R. Lovic of Farmville; and two sisters, Mrs. H. O. Baldrée of Farmville and Mrs. Austin Rigbee of Durham.

Funeral services were held yesterday from the graveside in Forest Hills Cemetery in Farmville. The Rev. Z. B. T. Cox of the Farmville Christian Church officiated.

The victim was William Douglas Lovic, 30, an employee of Carolina Construction Company at Rocky Mount. He apparently had been "buzzing" his home when the plane crashed.

L. P. Broadfield, owner and manager of a Rocky Mount flying service, said he rented the light plane to Lovic about 10:30 a.m. for a flight to Greenville. The crash-up occurred about a half-hour later.

Lovic's neighbor, Wiley Pridden, reported he saw the plane make two passes over a field between the two houses at an altitude he estimated as about three or four feet. When the plane banked again, as though the pilot planned another low flight over the field, Pridden said it nosed into the ground and burned fiercely. Lovic was trapped

American Blood Insures Life For Japanese Infant

TOKYO (AP)—A two-day-old Japanese girl whose 14 brothers and sisters died at birth is in good condition today following a transfusion that gave her a completely new supply of blood—donated by an American GI.

Doctors at the Japanese Red Cross Center said the 5-pound, 4-ounce girl would "surely have died" except for the blood donation by Army Pfc. Johann (John) Silva, 25, of Little Rock, Ark.

Doctors said the baby's 40-year-old mother, Mrs. Yoshiko Tataka, lost 14 previous children at birth because she has a negative RH factor in her blood. The blood clashed with positive RH blood from the father.

Immediately after the baby's birth yesterday doctors drained all the child's blood and replaced it with a pint of blood donated by Silva.
