Cold Snap Hits California Citrus Belt

Richard Martin lights the smudge pots in an orange grove at Covina, Calif., as citrus growers began a night of firing against predicted below-freezing temperatures.

Dr. Sheppard Asks For Another Trial

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Samuel Sheppard, pale, sleepy but almost jaunty in his bearing, returned to the courtroom of Judge Edward Blythin today as his attorneys launched a fight for a new trial. The Bay Village osteopath, handcuffed to a deputy sheriff, blinked his eyes sleepily as he was led into the courtroom. He appeared confident and poised while the judge started hearing arguments on the motion for a new trial.

Air Force Probing Crash Fatal To Nine

NEW HOPE, Ala. (AP)—Air Force investigators today sought to determine the cause of a C119 Flying Boxcar crash which killed nine airmen yesterday. The big plane, on a flight from Sewart Air Force Base near Smyrna, Tenn., to Brookley Air Force Base, Mobile, plunged into a ridge southeast of New Hope. The aircraft carried a crew of four and seven passengers. These dead were identified by authorities at Stewart Air Force Base: Capt. Leslie D. Ferguson, Andover, Tenn., pilot. 2nd Lt. William T. Troy Jr., Stamford, Conn. 2nd Lt. Charles Hawkins, Nashville, Tenn. Airman 1. C. Lawrence J. Foley, Bronx, N. Y. Airman 2. C. Richard W. Miller, Murfreesboro, Tenn. 2nd Lt. Gerry M. Hall, 32nd Air Rescue Service, March AFB, Calif. 1st Lt. J. B. Border, 3510 Combat Crew Training Squadron, Randolph AFB, Texas. Airman 2. C. Leon M. McKay, 9th Radio Relay Squadron, Donaldson AFB, S.C. Airman 3. C. Robert A. Shoemaker, 9th Radio Relay Squadron, Donaldson AFB, S.C. Only survivors were Airman Robert Johnson, Cumberland City, Tenn., and Airman 3. C. Michael P. Kinnane, Seekonk, Mass. They said that they are alive because they fell from the plane when two large clamshell doors blew open at the rear of the craft.

Arctic Cold Wave Fanned By Winds Is Spreading Fast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A blast of arctic air, fanned by brisk winds spread across storm-swept sections of the Midwest and snow-covered areas of the Rockies today. The coldest weather of the winter season appeared in prospect for most of the area. It was below zero in parts of Montana and the Dakotas. Stormy and cold weather also was the outlook for many other parts of the nation. Sleet, rain and snow pelted Northeastern sections. Colder air dipped along the East Coast to northern Florida and into the lower Mississippi Valley. Freezing temperatures continued to plague southern California, threatening citrus orchards. The intense storm center which yesterday dumped snow, sleet and freezing rain over wide areas of the mid-continent paralyzing travel in many areas, was centered in southeastern Lower Michigan today. The death toll from the icy, wet weather in the mid-continent mounted to at least 19. Fresh falls of snow blanketed much of the central Mississippi Valley and the central Great Lakes region. New snow measured nearly a foot in some areas. But as the frigid air from Montana moved into the Midwest, snow ended in the hard-hit Southwest region. However, the job of digging out of the season's biggest snowstorm continued in parts of Kansas, Texas, Missouri and Oklahoma. Snowfalls in the Southwest, a boon to wheat farmers who called the falls a "million-dollar snow," ranged from 26 inches in Fort Scott, Kan. to 9 inches in northern Texas. The storm was blamed for at least seven deaths in Oklahoma. Four deaths attributed to the snow and sleet were reported in Michigan and four in Illinois while one death was reported in Kansas, Texas, Indiana and Iowa. Early today sleet and freezing rain hit in a belt around 150 miles wide through northeastern New York and central New England. Light snow fell in northern areas. The colder Canadian air moved eastward to the south of the storm center in Michigan. The leading edge extended southward from northern Ohio and southwestern Pennsylvania through western North Carolina and northwest Florida.

'Junk Mail' Will Be Discontinued

WASHINGTON (AP)—Postmaster General Summerfield announced today that city and town deliveries of "junk mail" will be discontinued after March 31, 1955. Such deliveries of what the Post Office Department calls "simplified address mail" were established on an experimental basis 15 months ago. The system allowed distributing on selected routes of advertising material addressed simply to "householder," "patron," or "boxholder," without specific street address. The experiment, which had been tried previously by the Democratic administration, resulted in numerous protests that the result clogged the postal system. Rep. Murray (D-Tenn.), who is slated to become chairman of the House Post Office Committee in the new Congress assembling next week, said recently he had told Summerfield that unless "junk mail" deliveries were stopped, his committee would take steps to outlaw it. Sen. Carlson (R-Kan.), retiring chairman of the Senate Post Office Committee, only a few days ago issued a public statement calling for discontinuance. The dropping of the simplified addressed mail, which is handled at a third-class rate of 1 1/2 cents per piece, applies only to city and village delivery routes. Such mail will still be handled on rural routes and to boxholders at post offices where no city or village delivery service is available. This type of patron has had the service since October 1934. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berg, of the Bronx, told police the note arrived yesterday in an envelope bearing a Shanks Village, N.Y., postmark. It read in part: "Of the whereabouts of Jacqueline Berg, would advise whoever cares about this girl that they cooperate with the sender of this letter. She is safe now, but not for long..." The note asked that $25,000 be sent to "Mr. Frank MacDonnell, care of General Post Office, Shanks Village, N.Y." in Rockland County. "If you value her life you'll do as you're told and do it promptly. As soon as I receive the ransom money I'll release her." The girl, described by the parents as "conservative and quiet," disappeared after leaving a neighborhood boy and wanted to live with him. Police said the boy was Daniel Bracciolotta, of the Bronx, 17-year-old apprentice printer. He disappeared on the same day. Asked by newsmen if she intended to comply with the ransom note, Mrs. Berg replied, "Where would we get $25,000? Her husband is a $90-a-week tailor, and she is a part-time clerk in a mailing house, she said. The girl's parents asked that newspapers and radio stations transmit the following message to Jacqueline: "Jacqueline, please come home. There is no reason to run away. Everything is forgiven. Dad is ill and wants you terribly."

Map Training Of Pretender's Son

MADRID, Spain (AP)—A government communique last night said the education of Juan Carlos, eldest son of the pretender to the Spanish throne, has been arranged "in attention to the place he occupies in the dynasty." But it gave no hint of any plans to restore the royal family. The communique was issued after eight hours of talks yesterday between Generalissimo Francisco Franco and Don Juan of Bourbon, Juan Carlos's father and a son of Spain's last king. It said the two agreed that Juan Carlos, 17, should complete his education in Spain "for the best service to the nation." Spain was officially declared a monarchy without a king in 1947 after a popular referendum gave an overwhelming majority for a return of the royal family. The Franco regime has opposed the succession of Don Juan, urging that he abdicate his claims on the throne in favor of his son. The Franco-Don Juan talks were held at the country estate of the Count of Ruisenada, a leading monarchist, about 150 miles southwest of Madrid. Informants said they believed Don Juan agreed to a request from Franco that he return to Spain from time to time. Don Juan lives in exile in Portugal. The pretender maintains that he is the titular head of the Bourbons, Spain's ruling house from 1638 to 1931, since the abdication of his father, the late King Alfonso XIII, and his elder brother Don Jaime.

Planning Board To Hear Report On Street Plan

The Planning Board tonight is scheduled to hear a report from Mayor W. L. Whedbee on talks with the State Highway Commission concerning a major street plan for the city. The board will also hear a report from the North Carolina Fire Insurance Rating Bureau on the proposed site for a fire sub-station at the corner of Fifth and Elm Streets. The agenda for tonight's meet, which is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock, calls for the election of a vice-chairman of the board, hearing of recommendations from the city manager and the director of recreation for recreation facility requirements in sub-divisions, a report of the city council action on city limits extensions and study of setback lines for city streets.

Not Only Hungry But Destructive

Smashed a dozen chocolate, pineapple and cream pies over the floor, threw office records into the mess and stole a $70 adding machine.

Narrow Margin Of Approval In Nat'l Assembly Showdown France OK's German Arms

PARIS (AP)—The French National Assembly tonight reluctantly and narrowly approved the West German rearmament. The vote was 287-260. It ratified the treaty establishing a Western European Union as the coalition in which 12 West German divisions will join British, French, Belgian, Dutch, Luxembourg and Italian troops in defense of Europe. This was the key point of the recent London-Paris accords. Deputies already had approved other portions of the accord. Tonight's vote also kept Premier Pierre Mendes-France in office. He had made adoption of WEU a matter of confidence in his Cabinet. The vote completed action in the lower House on the various treaties signed here last October. In effect, it was a vote on the whole network of treaties. Under a "single package" proviso, if WEU had been rejected none of the other accords would have been considered ratified. Tonight's vote reversed an Assembly decision the day before Christmas against WEU, 280-269 when it was not a confidence issue. All the treaties now go to the Council of the Republic, or Senate, where debate is tentatively scheduled for February. Under a new constitutional amendment, the Senate can delay final French ratification simply by making slight changes in the various bills and sending them back to the Assembly. This could bring final passage close to the mid-May date which Mendes-France has suggested for a Big Four meeting with Soviet Russia on the German issue. Today in the Assembly the Communists made a last minute attempt to drag out the issue. The Assembly went almost immediately into the vote on the operating clause of the recent London-Paris accords when Assembly President Andre Le Troquer called the matter up shortly after 5 p.m. (11 a.m. EST).

There were no deputies listed to speak when Le Troquer proposed proceeding to the vote at once, Jacques Ducloux, floor leader of the Communist bloc, said he wanted to speak. Le Troquer cut him off by saying there had already been enough speaking. Premier Pierre Mendes-France who has made passage of this Western European Union treaty an issue of confidence in his government, said he did not want to prevent anyone from speaking. But Le Troquer said the regulations permitted an immediate vote without debate. Once again the Premier called for a vote of confidence, requiring his government's resignation if the Assembly rejected the treaty. In the Assembly's previous week of wrangling over the treaties, Mendes-France survived two such votes. The Assembly already has ratified the three other major sections of the London-Paris accords. Early today the weary deputies reaffirmed 287-256 France's acceptance of West Germany as a partner in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. On Monday the deputies approved the two separate articles of the NATO measure 289-251; today the margin was cut by seven votes. The other agreements, ending the Allied occupation of West Germany and putting the disputed Saar Valley under international control, were ratified quickly last Friday after the Assembly first voted down the German rearmament pact. Because he had not made the latter pact a confidence issue, Mendes-France was able to call again for its ratification in a new bill. A showdown had been expected in last night's Assembly session. Intricacies of French parliamentary procedure, manipulated by the Assembly's Communist bloc, forced the postponement.

Missing Girl's Parents Receive Ransom Demand

NEW YORK—The parents of a 16-year-old schoolgirl who disappeared last Oct. 4 claiming she was eloping have reported receiving a note asking $25,000 in return for the girl's life. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berg, of the Bronx, told police the note arrived yesterday in an envelope bearing a Shanks Village, N.Y., postmark. It read in part: "Of the whereabouts of Jacqueline Berg, would advise whoever cares about this girl that they cooperate with the sender of this letter. She is safe now, but not for long..." The note asked that $25,000 be sent to "Mr. Frank MacDonnell, care of General Post Office, Shanks Village, N.Y." in Rockland County. "If you value her life you'll do as you're told and do it promptly. As soon as I receive the ransom money I'll release her." The girl, described by the parents as "conservative and quiet," disappeared after leaving a neighborhood boy and wanted to live with him. Police said the boy was Daniel Bracciolotta, of the Bronx, 17-year-old apprentice printer. He disappeared on the same day. Asked by newsmen if she intended to comply with the ransom note, Mrs. Berg replied, "Where would we get $25,000? Her husband is a $90-a-week tailor, and she is a part-time clerk in a mailing house, she said. The girl's parents asked that newspapers and radio stations transmit the following message to Jacqueline: "Jacqueline, please come home. There is no reason to run away. Everything is forgiven. Dad is ill and wants you terribly."

Asks Listing For Pitt Taxes Early

County Auditor Reginald Gray this morning urged Pitt County residents to list their taxes early in order to avoid the rush at the end of the month. Tax listing begins on January 3 and lasts through the month. In previous years, with the exception of last year, those who listed their taxes in the court house in Greenville were confronted with long lines if they waited until the last week of the month to do their listing. Gray said the lines were not too long last year because property owners did their listing earlier in the month. Gray also urged farmers to bring in complete information to expedite the annual farm census, including the number of acres planted, and the amount of fertilizer used, etc. MORE BABIES LOS ANGELES (AP)—City Health Officer George M. Uhl says the 1954 total of babies born in Los Angeles will be approximately 47,000, topping last year's record of 45,386.

Hold Greenville Trio For Robbery

KINSTON—Three young men—two from Greenville and one from Kinston—were arrested here early this morning and returned to Scotland Neck where they will face charges of robbing a telephone company safe. Arrested were Jimmy Skinner and Robert C. Ward of Greenville and Howard W. Allen of Kinston. A fourth youth, James Collins Lilly of Greenville, was caught in Scotland Neck at the scene of the robbery. He named the other three and an alarm was spread by radio. Subsequently, Greenville police identified the car carrying the three unarmed youths heading toward Kinston, and notified local police. The trio offered no resistance to arresting officers.

May Ask $3 Billion Foreign Aid Outlay

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration was said today to be nearly ready with a request to Congress for at least three billion dollars to continue economic and military aid to friendly nations abroad. Such an amount would be slightly more than the $2,780,000,000 Congress provided this year for grants, loans and arms shipments to more than 40 friendly governments. President Eisenhower probably will unveil the new program in his budget message Jan. 17. Informed officials reported government agencies have decided Congress should be asked to appropriate between 3 and 3 1/2 billion dollars. The State, Treasury and Defense departments and the Foreign Operations Administration are expected to agree within the next week on a firm figure and also decide on where the money should be allocated by regions. Any request for three billion dollars or more would certainly face critical scrutiny in Congress. Foreign aid programs have been trimmed considerably in recent years, and several key Congress members have said they will oppose any new funds for strictly economic aid. Officials helping to draft the new program said it would seek to channel most of the U.S. dollars to the Far East but that it does not contemplate any massive assistance similar to the postwar Marshall Plan for Western Europe. A modest increase in Asian economic aid, however, will be sought, officials said, on the theory that it is urgent to improve living standards if the peoples there are to resist communism. Some $1,478,000,000 worth of foreign aid was allocated to the Far East and Pacific nations last year but less than one third of this went for economic and technical aid. The rest was spent for military assistance to Formosa, Indochina, Korea and other nations. Foreign aid to Western Europe, which dropped to about 25 per cent

Confer Today On Airport Problem

Local officials are meeting with Serv-Air officials and air force representatives this afternoon to discuss a solution to the problem of obtaining right-of-ways across airport property for a new by-pass and bridge around Greenville. Representatives of the Highway Commission, City Council and County Commissioners and other local individuals met the Serv-Air and air force representatives at 2:30 this afternoon for the discussion. The group is attempting to reach a favorable solution that will enable the Highway Commission to obtain right-of-way for the by-pass on the eastern portion of the airport property. Serv-Air has already pledged its cooperation with the local officials concerning the problem. REPAYMENT PARIS (AP)—Some $2 million dollars loaned to France by the United States and Canada since World War II will be repaid at the end of the year, the Finance Ministry announced.

Five Asian Premiers Prepare Asiatic - African Talks In April

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Five Asian prime ministers stood with Indonesian President Ahmed Soekarno in a pouring rain today to tell 300,000 wildly cheering Indonesians that Africa and Asia must cooperate. The premiers of the Colombo Pact countries—India, Burma, Ceylon, Pakistan and Indonesia—appeared at the huge rally in a Jakarta sports stadium after conclusion yesterday of their two-day conference at nearby Bogor. At their talks they agreed to invite the government chiefs of 25 other African and Asian nations to meet with them in April in Bandung, south of Jakarta, to discuss problems of mutual interest. Though the communique at the close of the Bogor talks did not say so, the April conference apparently is intended to form an Asian-African bloc to serve as a buffer between Soviet Russia and the West. The premiers attending the Bogor talks were Jawaharlal Nehru of India, Sir John Kotelawala of Ceylon, U Nu of Burma, Mohammed Ali of Pakistan and Ali Sastroamidjojo of Indonesia. They agreed to invite Japan and Communist China to the later conference, but extended no bids to the Nationalist Chinese regime on Formosa or to North and South Korea. Reportedly Kotelawala and Mohammed Ali objected at first to Red China's inclusion while the other three premiers wanted Japan excluded on the ground it was tied too closely to the West. Asked about the omission of Nationalist China, Kotelawala told newsmen today: "As far as we are concerned, there is only one China." He parried questions about the two Koreas. The premiers agreed, however, to invite both South Viet Nam and Communist North Viet Nam. Indonesian sources said the Koreans were considered "too hot." Other nations to be invited to the talks included Afghanistan, Cambodia, the Central African Federation (Southern and Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland), Egypt, Ethiopia, the Gold Coast, Iran, Iraq, Jordan, Laos, Lebanon, Liberia, Libya, Nepal, the Philippines, Saudi Arabia, the Sudan, Syria, Thailand, Turkey, and Yemen. Feared Anti-Communist Writings Masked Real Red Agent

DES MOINES (AP)—The Des Moines Register said today that a former Army intelligence officer, who believes a long record of anti-Communist writings might be a front for a Red agent, made the official recommendation to label Woj Ladajnsky a "security risk." John G. Cassidy, Department of Agriculture security chief, made the recommendation to Secretary of Agriculture Benson, the newspaper said in a story from its Washington correspondent Clark Mollenhoff. Benson recently refused to let Ladajnsky a Russian-born land reclamation specialist, continue as an agricultural attaché in Japan. The Register said Cassidy stated there was no evidence that Ladajnsky is disloyal or that he has violated security. "We've just taken the position that with his background he might be a security risk," Cassidy was quoted as saying. "I feel that we've made a right decision," he added. In Washington, Cassidy could not be reached immediately for comment. Benson on Dec. 16 fired Ladajnsky from the agricultural attaché job he had held for four years. Last spring, the State Department cleared Ladajnsky in a security check of its own. The Agriculture Department last week put out a statement listing various grounds for its action in the Ladajnsky case. It mentioned, among other things, that Ladajnsky visited Russia in 1939 despite his having previously written strong anti-Communist articles. The statement also referred to Ladajnsky's three sisters it said still are in Russia and it spoke of his having worked in 1930-31 for Amtorg a Soviet trading company. Furthermore, it alleged that Ladajnsky had belonged to two Communist-front groups. Outside of the security realm, the department said Ladajnsky does not meet its technical standards for agricultural attaché. Replying to the security allegations, Ladajnsky said he visited

Russia with the Agriculture Department's approval, that he had not corresponded with relatives in Russia for seven years, that he had served Amtorg only as an interpreter and that it was "not true" he had belonged to Red fronts. Last Friday, Benson noted in a statement that Ladajnsky formerly was head of the Far Eastern Division of the Agriculture Department's Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations. Benson said Ladajnsky "under the law has the privilege of returning to that position," but that he first would have to submit to a formal hearing before a security board. The story said Cassidy believes that because a man has relatives in an Iron Curtain country that alone is enough to cause fear that the man may be coerced into giving up U.S. secrets. The 35-year-old security chief, a 1941 graduate of the University of Utah, was further quoted by the newspaper: "I keep thinking of the way the Russians were getting the German plans right out of the General Staff of the German army by blackmail (in World War II). "If you had my background in Army intelligence, and studied the history of what has happened, I'm sure that you would agree that we can't take any chances with our security."

Rest Home Opened In Greenville

A long-felt need in the community has been that of a rest home for those who have recently recovered from a serious illness or are approaching a collapse from strain or fatigue. This need can be taken care of by Miss Elizabeth Baker, who has opened such a home in this city.

As a practical nurse in St. Agnes' Hospital in Baltimore, Md., and as an assistant in the diet kitchens of Dr. Alice Chase in her rest home in Spring Valley, New York, Miss Baker has had a wide experience in dealing with diet in the restoration of health.

The former home of Rev. O. C. Haas, 214 Greene Street, has been attractively furnished for the purpose, and is ready for the immediate reception of guests.

Mr. Paul L. Jewett will be master of ceremonies.

Moose To Hold New Year's Party

A New Year's party for Moose members and their ladies will be held Friday night at the new Moose Temple on the Farmville Highway, J. D. Smith, secretary of the local lodge, said today.

Doors are scheduled to open for the dance and buffet supper at 8:30 and the dance to the music of Buddy Klein and his orchestra will begin at 9:00.

Price of admission to the New Year's eve party will be $2.50 per person, according to Smith.

The buffet supper is to be served shortly after midnight.

The lodge secretary pointed out that reservations may be made at the temple offices prior to the Friday night party. However, he said, space will probably be available for those who wish to attend without reservations on Friday night.

January Bride-Elect Is Complimented

Mrs. R. D. Harrington was hostess on Wednesday at her home on East Fourth Street when she complimented Miss Frances Estelle Greene, bride-elect of January, at a delightful luncheon.

Lavender glads, in attractive arrangements, were used about the living room. The mantel featured a winter scene using snow covered branches and white reindeer.

Luncheon was served in two courses from auxiliary tables placed in the room. Mrs. Billy Harrington assisted in serving.

Mrs. Harrington remembered the honor guest with flat silver in her chosen pattern and a corsage of carnations.

Following luncheon Miss Greene was surprised with a shower of miscellaneous gifts from her friends present at the party.

First Anniversary Of WNCT Celebrated At Christmas Party

On Wednesday evening, Dec. 22, WNCT held its first Christmas party. It was also in celebration of the first anniversary the station has been on the air. The party was attended by all staff members, their wives, husbands, and other guests and was termed a huge success.

Warren Carroll, Greenville recreational director, was in charge of entertainment and soon had everyone in a happy and festive mood. No one present seemed to enjoy himself more than WNCT's likable General Manager, Mr. A. Hartwell Campbell, and a poem written and read by him was enjoyed by all.

Later in the evening Santa Claus presented gifts and then came the refreshments. There was plenty of punch, sandwiches, nuts, olives, cream cheese, potato chips, etc.

At the closing, with Mr. Campbell at the piano, all of those present sang happy birthday to WNCT and this was carried on the air.

Youth For Christ Present Play

On Saturday evening, Dec. 25, the Youth for Christ group at the Ballards Community Center presented their Christmas program which was a play, "Carol Finds Christmas." Each character did his part well, and the play brought out the true meaning of Christmas in a Christian home contrasted with Christmas in a well-to-do home that was not so Christian.

Just before the presentation of the play a lovely musical program was given by the young people and immediately following the close of the program everyone present was presented a gift from a lovely decorated tree. Approximately 100 people were present for this occasion.

The play was coached by Mrs. Walter Sutton Jr., assistant director of the Youth for Christ.

This group helped furnish Christmas cheer to two families. They also give a radio broadcast every Sunday afternoon over WGTC, Greenville. Beginning Sunday, Jan. 2, the broadcast will be from 1:30 until 2 o'clock.

Shower Honors Recent Bride

Complimenting Mrs. Edward Horne, a recent bride, on Saturday evening, Dec. 11, Mrs. Pearl Tyson and Mrs. Annie Flanagan entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Owen Tyson.

The house was beautifully decorated in keeping with the Christmas season except in the living room where the traditional wedding colors of white and green were used.

Mrs. Tyson greeted the guests at the door and upon the arrival of everyone Miss Thelma Flanagan and Mrs. Earl Denton directed several contests and some interesting games. The honoree was then presented the gifts which were under a lovely decorated Christmas tree and after she opened them everyone was invited into the dining room where refreshments were served from a beautifully appointed table with Mrs. Horne, mother of the groom, serving punch and Mrs. Tyson, mother of the bride, serving bridal cake. The guests served themselves mints and nuts. There were 35 present. Mrs. Horne received many lovely and useful gifts.

Don't lose your right to drive!

Over 9,000 North Carolina drivers have lost their drivers' licenses since January 1, 1954—simply because they did not meet the requirements of the North Carolina Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act. And the sad part is that many of them thought they had adequate auto insurance protection.

How about you? One auto accident might cost you your right to drive, your life savings and property. Don't take a chance! Consult your fully-qualified, state-licensed Allstate Agent. He'll be happy to explain the law and give you the sound, sincere advice on the protection you need.

Ask about new lower rates, easy payment plan and fast, fair claim settlements that make Allstate your best buy in auto insurance. It's the better value you'd expect from the company founded by Sears. See your Allstate Agent today!

There Is A Degree Of Inconsistency

Has the off-street parking plan proposed by Greenville's City Council bogged down until the State Supreme Court decides whether it is legal for municipal governments to provide public parking facilities? It appears to us it has.

At best it will be a number of months before the high court finally rules on the question which the City Council pointed to this week as its reason for again delaying its decision on leasing a lot at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets for public parking.

Does the City Council expect to sit back for months and wait for the court decision before pursuing further a remedy for the parking problem in the city's business district?

With all due respect to the Council, its decision to delay again action on a proposed lease for the parking lot at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets is, in principle at least, inconsistent with previous actions of the body.

As we understand the position of the Council members, they are of the opinion they will be personally responsible for any financial obligation made by the city for public parking lots should the Supreme Court rule a municipality can not expend funds for such a purpose. The degree of the financial responsibility of the councilmen in such a case would be appreciably affected should the city lease the proposed parking lot. However, the council already has leased one lot for public parking at a price of $30 per month for one year, and has authorized a city expenditure of $900 to $1,000 in converting the old swimming pool property into a parking lot. Would not those parking facilities come under the same category as other leased property for parking should the high court decision be adverse to expanding public funds for parking facilities?

Government officials, of course, are not expected by citizens to take personal financial risks in providing for the public need. Yet it must be realized that the longer Greenville delays in providing it-

BRACE UP

Life retains its relish just so long as we have something to look forward to. If there is one thing that lifts life up and makes it worth the living, it is just that—having something to look forward to.

One reason why old people are often so unhappy is because they believe they have nothing to look forward to. Young people very frequently, after their first series of reverses, throw up their hands in despair and say that because they have been disappointed in love, or flunked out of college, or fallen ill with tuberculosis, or lost their savings on a horse race, they have nothing in life to look forward to.

But of course we all have something to look forward to. Youth has a whole life to look forward to. It is utterly ridiculous for any young person to give up in despair and declare himself a failure. He hasn't lived long enough either to succeed or fail. Even old people are dead wrong when they say that they have nothing to look forward to. They usually have quiet hours or reflection, and they coveted such a few decades ago. Many have children and grandchildren.

But old and young alike, we have this to look forward to. Life here on earth is only a little segment of an eternal destiny. There is adventure and triumph ahead for those who will have it so.

Don't say you have nothing to look forward to. You are a child of the Most High God, who will never let you down and who opens to you the thrilling adventure of eternal life.

Basic Issues Are Fading Away

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The political highlight of the closing year and at the midpoint of President Eisenhower's four years of elected service is the virtual disappearance of the basic issues—social, economic and foreign—which once supplied the fuel for bitter partisan fires and feuds.

Now it may be recorded that the two major parties are almost indistinguishable. Never before, perhaps, was it so true that the so-called "two-party system" is a bewhiskered joke!

Perhaps the most emotionally divisive questions to fade from the political scene are those involving racialism and Communism, which both the Democrats and Republicans have used to ballot-box advantage in recent years. The Democrats wooed and won the Negro vote and other racial groups with Roosevelt-Truman policies of designed favoritism.

VOTERS' DECISION—The Republicans corralled millions of votes in 1952 by charging that American interests had been betrayed to the Russians at Yalta and Potsdam. Vice-President Nixon tried to repeat the stunt in November, but he failed.

The voters had too much sense to believe that the Democrats, including their top military leaders—Generals Dwight D. Eisenhower and George C. Marshall—had been a "party of treason."

NEGRO QUESTION—The Negro problem was eliminated from practical politics when the Supreme Court, on the urging of Attorney General Herbert G. Brownell Jr., decided that racial segregation in the public schools was unconstitutional.

It is true that several Southern states seek to nullify this ruling by abolishing their public school system. But a taxpayer's suit against use of public funds to pay tuition to the so-called "private" institutions will undoubtedly be brought, and Supreme Court upholding of that action is almost a certainty.

Regardless of this controversy, the racial issue will gradually become, like prohibition, a local instead of a national question. Colored voters will cast their

Somebody Told Me

Looking Back On Events Of '54

With 1954 about gone, it's interesting to look back over the year as far as Greenville is concerned.

There might be some who disagree, but it appears that 1954 hasn't ruined us after all. It's been a big Christmas in Greenville; the day before Christmas Eve the crowd on the streets looked like a New York mob.

This year will always be memorable because of Hazel. While it hurt our pocketbooks, we were fortunate to have little or no bodily injury.

And the parking situation has improved in Greenville. Although the city lot plan hasn't been unkninked, look around town. The swimming pool was filled up and converted into a lot. Colonial Stores has almost completed a lot on the corner of East Fourth and Gotanche that will take a terrific load of cars off the streets.

The corner of West Second and Evans is temporarily a lot, although I think a building will go up there.

The coming of Highway 13 has been a big factor in the news during this year and will be a big help to Greenville in the future.

Like parking, the plans are not completely unkninked. It amused me when the Air Force thought they might object to a portion of the airport being unusable because of the new highway. But when Greenville officials threatened to cancel the lease the Air Force suddenly became more cooperative.

In my opinion Highway 13 is the ideal route to New York and points north from here. With its continuation down further south, it will be even more desirable. The traffic that will be brought through Greenville will be a big help, businesswise.

As usual, East Carolina College made great strides forward during 1954. "Give me the dormitories and I'll give you the students" is the statement of President John Messick. And the dorms are going up.

One of the biggest honors ever to come to Greenville was the choice of Dr. K. B. Pace as the Nation's Family Doctor of the Year. Since this honor came to him Dr. Pace has been flooded with mail from people all over the country, asking his advice on their particular ailments. One woman wrote and asked his assistance in finding a husband.

The funniest speech of the year that I heard was by Senator Sam Ervin in the combined meeting of the Greenville civic clubs.

Highway Patrolman Jim Boykin won the Exchange Club's special recognition award and justly so. He took his vacation time to head up the little league baseball tournament, and pioneered the move to get a rescue truck for Pitt County, in addition to many other civic accomplishments.

And I thank you.

CORONER LEGISLATION

(Kinston Free Press)

A bill sponsored by the State Citizens Committee has been drafted and will be presented to the 1955 General Assembly for re-vamping the State's outmoded coroner system. It calls for the appointment in each county of a medical director who would aid the coroner and probe the cause of death in all cases where persons died without a physician being present.

The measure is similar to those already in effect in Maryland and Virginia and calls for the appointment of physicians already residing in the various counties. A nominal fee, comparable to those given doctors for home calls plus some consideration for mileage, would be allowed, according to the committee.

This would enable the authorities to probe the 4,000 deaths now occurring throughout the State each year at which a physician is not present when death comes. Authorities contend that many of these deaths result from foul play, but it can never be established because of the coroner system which does not allow maximum discretion—without possible financial loss to the coroner—for autopsies.

The proposed measure would not infringe upon any of the traditional authority of the coroner, but it would provide him with valuable counsel and medical ability to ascertain whether further probes would be necessary in any given death. The average coroner would be far more eager to call for an autopsy and a full investigation if he had the competent advice of a medical adviser than he would if he had to rely on his own judgment. This is especially true in cases where elected coroners are not regular physicians.

The measure seems to have a great deal of merit and we hope its support among coroners, medical authorities and the general public will gain momentum before the crucial vote comes up in the General Assembly early next year.

PREVIEW—Previously there has been presented here a brief review of the approximate two months of the administration of Governor Luther Hodges, who succeeded to the Governorship upon the death of Governor William Umstead in early November.

The previous story dealt mainly with statements made by the new Governor as to his objectives and some attempt to correlate his actions and appointments with those statements of purpose. The existing situation is without precedent in North Carolina history. This is the first time since North Carolinians have elected their chief executive by popular vote that a man who had not been elected as Governor was confronted with a regular session of the General Assembly within a few weeks after his elevation to the highest office by constitutional succession.

It follows in natural sequence that there is far more popular interest in what the new Governor may do during the next two (or six) years than in what he has done in the past two months. It is inevitable that the experiences of the past two months should be used as a sort of intangible platform from which to view and forecast probable developments.

It is common knowledge that Luther Hodges moved into the arena of practical politics in North Carolina "cold" two and a half years ago when he announced his candidacy for Lieutenant Governor. In a show of strength that surprised nearly all of the professional politicians he won the nomination and through the exigencies of death and constitutional provisions became Governor of North Carolina in less than three years after he was recognized as a state wide political figure.

APPRAISAL—That unique situation makes it difficult to appraise the two months of his current administration, and even more difficult to predict future developments. It was generally conceded long before the death of Governor William Umstead that Luther Hodges would be a candidate for Governor in the 1956 Democratic primary.

That was in face of the fact that since the nominating primary was legalized in North Carolina five other Lieutenant Governors had sought and failed to get the nomination for Governor. They were E. L. Daughtridge in 1916, Max Gardner in 1920, Dick Fountain in 1932, Sandy Graham in 1936 and Wilkins Horton in 1940.

Max Gardner was nominated and elected Governor in 1928, but the last time prior to this year that a Lieutenant Governor moved up to the highest office was in 1861 when Thomas M. Holt took over upon the death of Governor Daniel G. Fowle. Holt had not been considered a lively candidate for Governor, and the analogy with the present situation is not entirely accurate.

Governor Hodges not only took over the highest office in mid-term of an elected Governor, but he took over at a time when more serious problems confronted the State than at any time in its history. There have been before as many serious political issues, perhaps more perplexing economic problems and just as far reaching social elements—ago that their conduct was being more closely watched than that of any of their predecessors he was perhaps unconsciously stating the situation in which he himself is placed.

Out of all the confusing and bemusing elements involved there emerges this obvious conclusion: Governor Hodges has made a fine record during his first two months. He is on the spot to greater degree than any public man in recent history has been for the next six months. His own political future, and to considerable extent the destiny of North Carolina, depends upon how he gets along with the members of the General Assembly and the public between now and April.

By that time it is likely to be apparent that there will be no need for anybody to run against him for Governor in 1956, or there will be no justification for his entering that contest.

Better Wiring Drive

A campaign that will get a lot of support during the coming year is the drive for more adequate wiring.

Most of the 34,000,000 homes built before 1940 have insufficient wiring for more than a few appliances. The majority of them have wiring for 4,000 to 6,000 watts. A laundry dryer, a dishwasher and a toaster, operating at the same time, would require a greater wattage than that—even if all lights and the radio were turned off.

Blown fuses, flickering television pictures and unsatisfactory performance of other electric devices are recurring results of insufficient wattage.

The drive for better wiring has two objectives: To get home-owners to rewire existing residences; To persuade builders to provide for heavier power loads in new homes.

Those who will benefit from successful results include: Manufacturers of appliances, freezers, air conditioners and other household devices requiring electric power.

Retailers of these products. (They, like manufacturers are losing sales because so many families now have as many electric devices as their wiring will operate. And many retailers are losing money on excessive numbers of service calls because customers blame the device instead of their own wiring.)

The electric utilities. The nation as a whole, because increases in sales of electric goods, and of electric power, will tend to increase employment, profits and other factors that lift the level of the economy.

And the householders themselves will derive special benefits since, with better wiring, they can get more enjoyment and comfort out of life.

SILENCE IS SOMETIMES ACQUIESCENCE APPLAUSE Businessmen often announce new projects, disclose new plans or take other steps they are sure will make an impression on the community.

Sometimes nothing happens. Nobody slips them on the back, nobody writes an article for the newspaper and almost nobody sends a letter of congratulation. And it's even worse when nobody complains!

Now they can take comfort from the Reader's Digest. The magazine announced it would take advertising in the month following, of its 10,000,000 subscribers and 20,000,000 or more readers, only 261 wrote to the magazine.

AVERAGE SPORTING GOODS RETAILER GETS $6,932 A YEAR The average sporting goods retailer made a net profit of only 2 per cent of sales in 1953, according to a study just completed by Dun & Bradstreet.

In addition, the owners' compensation was 9.3 per cent of sales. Average net sales, the survey showed, was $61,345, which means the average proprietor made $6,932 for the year—or half of that if it was an even-Stephen partnership.

Other figures, in percentage of total sales: cost of goods sold, 71.4; employees' wages, 5.4; occupancy expense, 5.1; advertising, 1.7; buying expenses, 0.3; depreciation, fixtures, 0.9; all other expenses, 3.9. Bad debt losses with less than 0.1 per cent. The average gross margin was 28.6 per cent. Inventory turnover averaged two and a half times a year.

Sure Signs Of New Maturity

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Sidewalk reflections of a Pavement Plato: How can you tell whether you have become an adult or still remain a child?

Well, there are some signposts along the way. You show definite indications of being grownup when:

You see wrinkles above your eyelids as well as circles beneath them.

You start pondering whom you'd like to leave your money to—if you had any to leave.

The kids who used to call you "Musclehead" have sons, who address you as "Mister."

You really start planning to see your dentist once a year your doctor twice a year.

You've acquired old friends "Dear John" letters from girls friends who've fallen for other guys.

You learn that the surest sign of a woman's interest in a man is her willingness to lend him money.

You can meet an old flame and feel never a twinge of the old heartburn. In fact she honestly looks crummy to you.

You go to your monthly lodge meeting and somebody nominates you for the office of historian.

The laughter of strangers disturbs you, young lovers seem like fools, and children make you feel unreasonably cranky.

You no longer dare ask a pretty office secretary to lunch for fear of what the rest of the staff will think.

You start breaking into a laugh even before the boss finishes telling a joke.

You find yourself arguing that no horse could be greater than Man O'War, and no fighter ever lived who could whip Jack Dempsey in his prime.

You read the diets on the woman's page, then the obituary notices, before turning to the sports pages. It no longer seems odd to you that undertakers print ads giving funeral prices, and you muse over which is really the biggest bargain.

You carry your pay check home without even thinking of opening it yourself to see what's inside.

Instead of being awakened at night by "growing up" pains, you find you no longer can doze at work by day because of "growing down" pains.

A hatcheck girl smiles engagingly at you, and you don't smile back. You merely frown and wonder what's so funny.

Somebody mentions McCarthy, and you think first of Charlie and then of Joe.

You begin to put foot powder into your shoes each morning, and carry cough drops in your pocket regularly.

The wife finally decides you're old enough to have a night out each week to play poker with the boys—and all you want to do is play poker with the boys.

Other people's children seem as pretty and smart as your own—and certainly better-mannered.

You go to the beach for a swim, but merely lie on the sand in the sun and never go near the water.

Your wife starts campaigning for "a man fur coat." Nothing gets a man fur coat. The realization that one fur coat won't last a woman a lifetime.

The family mail holds no more surprises. You can look at every envelope and guess who sent it.

A Boy Scout abandons an old lady in mid-street to rush over and help YOU reach the sidewalk safely.

You'd rather brag about what you used to do than what you're going to be.

You read and place a piece like this in a newspaper and think, "The guy's got a point alright, though naturally most of what he says sure don't apply to me—yet."

N. C. State Wins 5th Dixie Classic Title, Downing Minnesota By 85-84

By REESE HART
RALEIGH (AP)—Tournament-wise North Carolina State won the Dixie Classic basketball crown today for the fifth time following its 85-84 victory over Minnesota last night in Reynolds Coliseum.

John Maglio, a sophomore reserve guard of Haverford, Pa., snatched the Wolfpack from the brink of defeat by hooking in a goal with nine seconds left. It kept State's unbeaten record intact at 12 straight.

Maglio's shot came after Minnesota forward Dick Garmaker had sunk a goal with 17 seconds left, putting the Gophers ahead 84-83.

The loss was tough for a battling Minnesota team that had come from behind after trailing by 8 points at the half. The work of Garmaker, guard Charles Mence and Bill Simonovich, 275-pound center, was outstanding for the Gophers.

The long shots of Garmaker and Mence kept State from widening the score.

In the classic's six-year history, State has won every tournament but one.

North Carolina's Tar Heels captured third place by handing Duke, defending champion a 65-52 lacing for the first win over their neighborhood rivals since 1951. Wake Forest, with Dickie Hemric getting 30 points, defeated Southern California, 92-85, for the consolation prize and West Virginia disposed of Cornell, 79-71, for seventh place.

Hemric's 30 points gave him high-scoring honors for the three-day tournament with a total of 86. West Virginia's Rod Hundley and Cornell's John Sheehy tied for runner-up scoring honors, with 77 for the three.

A new attendance record of 65,900 surpassed last year's peak by 1,000.

Hemric also became the second highest scorer in college history. He now has tallied 2,164 points in 86 games in four years, breaking the old mark of 2,144 held by Jim Lacy of Loyola of Baltimore. However, Hemric's record doesn't measure up to the 3-year total of 5,335 set by Furman's Frank Selvy.

The Demon Deacons had a brilliant 55.4 shooting percentage in defeating Southern California. They attempted 56 shots from the floor and hit for 31. Close behind was Southern California with 52.4 making 34 of 65 attempts.

Ronnie Shavlik, 6-8 forward of Denver, Colo., was a big star in the State win. He scored 33 points, coming through with nine in a row in the first half to pull State to a 53-45 halftime lead. His great hook shooting in the second half was a big factor in the victory.

After the game the State team hoisted Coach Everett Case on its shoulders and he cut down the nets.

Duke, winner of last year's tournament, was bumped by Minnesota to the second round, 85-78.

State had beaten Cornell, 84-85, and North Carolina, 47-44, in advancing to the finals. North Carolina trailed for 19 minutes before uncorking the offensive punch that floored Duke. The Tar Heels were great at the free throw line, hitting on 31 of 39. Lennie Rosenbluth, sophomore forward, set a Dixie Classic free throw record by making 17. The old mark of 15 was set last year by Oregon State's Wade Halbrook.

Big Bowl Games Losing Their Appeal; No Cure Is Evidenced

By ED CORRIGAN
NEW YORK (AP)—The big bowl games in recent years have lost a great deal of their national interest and the situation shows no signs of improving in the immediate future.

This year's lineup of the four major bowls is a case in point. The Rose Bowl, once the big attraction on New Year's Day, sends Southern California an also-ran behind UCLA in the Pacific Coast Conference, against Ohio State, Big Ten winner.

The Sugar Bowl pits Navy, probably the best of the weak Eastern sear, against Mississippi, Southeastern Conference victor and a club that has been accused of playing a weak schedule.

In the Orange Bowl, it's Nebraska, second best in the Big Seven, against Duke, the class of the Atlantic Coast Conference. And in the Cotton Bowl, Arkansas, which won

The Southwest Conference title in a squeak plays Georgia Tech, a strong finisher in the Southeastern loop.

Now this is a singularly unimposing setup. It isn't the fault of the promoters, who want the best, although in their efforts to get the cream of the top, some of them may have outwitted themselves by signing up with conferences.

The Rose Bowl has a contract for the winners of the Pacific Coast and Big Ten. That's fine, except that neither conference permits a team to play two years in a row, which is why Ohio State finds itself in the unenviable position of having everything to lose and nothing to gain.

The Orange Bowl is committed to the winners of the Big Seven and Atlantic Coast conferences. But there's a joker here also. The Big Seven has the same rule as the Big Ten and PCC. A team can't

NCAA Has Strict Rules For Dividing Bowl Receipts

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Ever wonder about what becomes of the receipts taken in at a major New Year's football bowl game?

The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. has a set of rules on how the money is divided and how the tickets are distributed if the bowl game involves a member college.

So let's take the expected figures for Saturday's Sugar Bowl game here, in which Navy and Mississippi will compete, as an example.

The total cash receipts, which includes money from ticket sales, programs, hot dogs, radio and TV rights, will approach the half-million mark.

First come the taxes. Uncle Sam gets 51 cents for every $6 sent, the city of New Orleans 26 cents and the state of Louisiana 15 cents. Their aggregate will be about $41,000 to the United States, $21,000 to the city and $12,000 to the state.

Of the remainder, the NCAA rules permit the sponsoring organizations to keep 25 per cent. That will be roughly $126,000 and out of this the Sugar Bowl fathers make a voluntary gift of $25,000 to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The rest goes for operating expenses.

If the sponsoring group is not

The Midshipmen will be facing no soft touch when Navy meets the University of Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day. Ole Miss has the over all speed to match any team in the country, including Navy. In addition, the Rebels have not one, but two, extremely strong lines.

Mississippi's head coach, Johnny Vaught was a great lineman at Texas Christian and strong lines have been the rule at Ole Miss ever since he took over in 1947. Coach Vaught's line coach is Bruiser Kinard, rated Mississippi's greatest athlete of all-time and its first All-American player. For nine years he was an outstanding tackle in the pro ranks. Bruiser was followed by George and Henry Kinard at Mississippi, two outstanding guards and Billy, the youngest brother who is a junior halfback on the Rebel squad this year.

Coach Vaught appears to have unlimited speed to throw against Navy. Allen Murrehead and Earl Blair are extremely fast, but both have to run at full speed to head back. Terry Barber, a third-string back is probably the fastest of the lot. Billy Kinard, Jimmy Patton and Paige Coltrane are fast and elusive backs too. And working behind two fine lines of equal strength, these speed merchants are certain to give the Midshipmen an interesting and exciting afternoon in the Sugar Bowl.

Joe Louis Says Paul Andrews Isn't Ready

By BEN FUNK
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cold, methodical Paul Andrews, earned a light heavyweight title fight with a spectacular sixth-round technical knockout of Boardwalk Billy Smith last night, but his new trainer Joe Louis says he isn't ready for it.

"He's got to learn up here," the former heavyweight champion said, pointing to his head. "Paul needs a lot more work experience before he'll be ready for a champion like Archie Moore."

It was a new Andrews who broke Smith's eight-fight winning streak with a smashing victory in 2:49 of the sixth round. The 24-year-old Buffalo, N. Y. fighter flattened Smith three times before Referee Eddie Coscanian halted the slaughter.

The open season for hunting doves in North Carolina ended December 29, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service reminds.

The season for hunting bear, deer, and squirrels ends January 1. The raccoon and opossum season ends February 15.

The season for hunting rabbits, quail and wild turkeys closes January 30.

Red and gray foxes may be taken with guns when the season is open for any other game bird or animal, except that where county fox laws regulate the season, the local law shall prevail, according to the North Carolina Wildlife Commission.

The season for trapping mink, muskrats, opossum, otter, and raccoon ends February 15.

Bowl Teams Due Arrive In Dallas

DALLAS (AP)—The Cotton Bowl teams arrive today with the odds due to narrow on Georgia Tech's flu and injury racked Yellow Jackets.

Coming from Fayetteville, Ark., by train were 34 Arkansas Razorbacks in the peak of condition and with every incentive to beat bowl-veteran Tech in a test of strength between the Southwest and Southeastern conferences.

Flying in several hours later from Atlanta will be 39 Georgia Tech gridders with Coach Bobby Dodd gloomy over their condition. First-string ends Henry Hair and Bill Sennett haven't been working out while No. 2 quarterback Bill Brigrman, center Jimmy Morris and tackle Frank Christy may not be able to play. Brigrman has an ankle injury. Morris a knee hurt and Christy is recovering from glandular fever.

The two teams practice this afternoon here and a better view of the Georgia Tech situation can be obtained at that time.

Meanwhile the experts were trying to establish a favorite in Saturday's game and having a tough time doing it. With similar records, both light and fast and quick-striking and tough as nails on defense, the teams are considered as evenly matched as any in the history of the bowl.

GRAHAM OUGHT TO QUIT WHILE ON TOP
 The Cleveland Browns' Otto Graham certainly wrote a fitting finale to a spectacular football career Sunday in leading the Browns to the world championship in professional football.

Otto, well known in these parts since he played on the Navy Pre-Flight team at Chapel Hill, coached the North Carolina backfield one spring and has spoken in many Carolina cities, has announced before that he's calling it quits. But he says he means it this time, for sure.

"That's the way to quit—go out on top," said Graham after Sunday's game. The master quarterback, cited by many the greatest signal-caller in the history of the game, said he would be around for the Pro Bowl game and the college All-Stars game, but would wind up his playing days then. Graham came to Coach Paul Brown after a standout performance at Northwestern University. During his career since 1946, when the Browns were organized, Graham has completed 1,375 of 2,417 passes for 21,874 yards and 162 touchdowns. His nine-year totals are second only to Sammy Baugh of Washington, and Baugh played 16 years.

His coach wants him back next season. No wonder! The passing hotshot flipped three TD throws and galloped across three against the bewildered Detroit Lions Sunday. Brown admitted his hopes were based on the reaction of fall weather and the sound of the bouncing football on a veteran player. Graham says "mental pressure" prompted his decision to retire. "I hate that pre-game feeling," he said, "and it gets worse and worse each year."

If Graham follows suit of recent major sports figures he'll keep coming back until football fans will witness a fallible athlete trying to live up to an old reputation. Graham is right—he should quit on top and let the fans remember him as he played Sunday. But, as Brown remarked after the game: "Why should a guy who can do what Otto did today retire?" He's got something there!

DEMAND LOUDEST IN HISTORY OF GAME
 Arkansas' season and statistical records may be mediocre and the team is a definite underdog to Georgia Tech's versatile Yellow Jackets, but that isn't stopping the greatest pilgrimage from one state to the Cotton Bowl in its 19 years.

An estimated 25,000 Arkansas fans will flood Dallas Saturday to see their favorite sons—the fabulous "33 Little Pigs"—battle bowl-wise Georgia Tech. It's fanatical the way the people from the Ozarks back a team that has proven the most pleasant surprise in the long and oftendown Arkansas football history. They'd probably buy 15,000 more tickets to the big game if they were available.

NEW YEAR'S DAY BOWL ROUND-UP, MIDDIES WILL BE PUSHED
 In the Sugar Bowl it will be interesting to see if Navy can retain the zest and fire the Midshipmen displayed in upsetting Army, 27-20 in meeting Mississippi, the Middles will be up against the Southwestern champions, whose only loss was a 6-0 setback to Arkansas. Ole Miss will seek to make amends for its only other New Orleans post-season appearance, a 24-7 loss to Georgia Tech two years ago. Navy has not gone to a bowl since the 14-14 tie with Washington in the Rose Bowl in 1924.

Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl off the results of games in which they met two common rivals on successive weekends. Tech conquered both Southern Methodist and Texas Christian while the Razorbacks lost to both these teams. Tech's last Cotton Bowl appearance was a 14-7 loss to Texas in 1943. Arkansas' only visit was in 1947, playing a scoreless tie with Louisiana State.

Duke is the choice in the Orange Bowl in view of better record against tougher competition. Still, Coach Bill Murray thinks Nebraska is going to be plenty tough. The Cornhuskers are big and have some explosive backs. The Nebraska line will outweigh Duke's forward wall by several pounds per man and the Blue Devils must bank on a host of fleet ball-carriers to carry them to victory. The outcome should be interesting in each instance.

Negro HD Clubs Point To Achievements In '54

By AMELIA S. CAPEHART (Pitt County Negro Home Demonstration Agent)

Included in this story are some of the accomplishments in the family life program carried on during 1954.

During December, Negro Home Demonstration Club members had lessons on "Understanding Teen-Agers in the Home," and more than 250 persons attended the classes.

It was shown that adults frequently forget that they once were young. If parents would take a look backward to understand the teen-agers in the family, so many difficult problems would not arise. There is a saying, that "It is not easy to be a good parent, nor is it easy to be a teen-ager."

Six major steps to happy relationships with teen-agers were given in the lessons.

1. Teen-agers need to feel that parents trust them and have confidence in them.
2. Teen-agers need someone to talk to, and parents need to take time to listen to them and discuss various topics.
3. Teen-agers need to feel that they are important, that they count for something. Parents can help to satisfy their desire to feel important.
4. Teen-agers need parents who are sympathetic with their desire for friends and fun.
5. Teen-agers need to feel that parents respect their desire for privacy in the home.
6. Parents should be proud of each other; they should cooperate, stand up for each other and express appreciation for what each other has done for the other.

Other accomplishments in "happy family living program for 1954" are briefly summarized:

Fifteen meetings and demonstrations were held by agents and leaders on family team work, with 701 attending. Six community picnics were held with 700 attending.

Home Demonstration and 4-H Club members expressed appreciation for assistance given by their local leaders, school principals and the Superintendent of Pitt county schools by entertaining them with a banquet carrying out the St. Patrick's Day motif.

Home Demonstration club members beautified churches with flowers during "National Home Demonstration Week" and cleaned up churches and grounds.

Sharing with others in different communities has played important part, for instance, the donation of clothes, foods, personal services, buying of Christmas Seals, contributing to the March of Dimes campaign, family celebrations, "husband's nights" and Christmas dinners and parties.

The County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs presented flowers to the 23 health queens at their Health Coronation Pageant and assisted with the costumes. Family leaders gave valuable assistance in helping to carry on the program.

As we set up our goals for 1955 for better family living, let us think in terms of better farm and home planning, record keeping, good nutrition, housing, clothing and better use of time and labor-saving appliances.

We should not let the Christmas season pass without expressing sincere appreciation to all home demonstration club members and persons interested in the work for all that they did during the past year. They met the challenge in a gratifying way.

Our rural families are better and happier because of the way home demonstration club members and leaders have worked and given assistance.

May the spirit of Christmas come to you in its fullest meaning and abide with you throughout the year.

One Major Change, Some Minor Tax Law Revisions, To Benefit Farmer

By FRANK O'BRIEN

WASHINGTON, D. C. — One major change and many minor revisions in the federal personal income tax law will benefit the American farmer.

And, like the rest of us, he will be helped by 14 major changes—all of them in favor of the taxpayer—which were written into the law by the 83rd Congress.

But deadlines come earlier for farm income, and at least one decision must be made by Jan. 15.

Every citizen, or resident, of the United States who in 1954 had $600 total income ($1,200 in the case of those 65 years or older) must file an income tax return. That applies to children as well as adults.

The one major change which applies particularly to the farmer is a provision under which soil and water conservation expenses can be deducted from the farmer's taxable income. Under the old code, the farmer could get tax benefit for such expenditures only when he sold his improved land.

The farmer's income tax report can get pretty complicated. During tax payment time, the revenue service spots as many of its per-sons about the country as it can as free tax counselors. They can be located through your local bank, post office or county agent.

The revenue service has mailed everyone who filed a 1953 farmer's income tax report the special forms for farmers for 1954. With the forms comes an instruction booklet. In addition the revenue service has on sale, for 25 cents at post offices and banks, a plain-English booklet called "Your Federal Income Tax." This has a special 10-page section for farmers.

The farmer may use only Form 1040, either as a short form or long form.

Here is how dates for filing work under the new law:

1. The farmer who has not estimated his 1954 tax, and has not made quarterly payments, or the farmer who wishes to skip the Jan. 15, 1955, payments on his estimated 1954 tax, must file the final 1954 tax return, Form 1040, and pay up in full by Jan. 31, 1955.
2. The farmer who has followed the estimating procedure, and makes the Jan. 15, 1955, quarterly payment of his estimated tax liability, has until April 15 to file his final return, and make any further payment required by his actual income.

The farmer who decides to file a declaration of estimated tax for 1954 and pay his estimated tax in four installments must get his declaration into the director's office by April 15, 1955. The first quarterly payment is also due no later than April 15. The other three payments on the estimated tax (all must be equal quarters) will be due June 5 and Sept. 15, 1955, and Jan. 15, 1956.

The farmer's exemptions are the same as for other taxpayers, and he benefits like others from new exemption provisions. One new exemption provision for students in on-farm training helps the farmer particularly.

There are three classes of exemptions—(1) for man and wife; (2) for children of the taxpayer; and (3) for dependents other than children. The instruction booklet goes exhaustively into all three classes. Each exemption sets aside $600 of your income from taxation.

The new exemption provisions are:

1. Previously a child could be claimed as an exemption only if he earned less than $600 during the tax year. The new law allows the child to be an exemption regardless of how much income he has if: (A) the child is under 19 years of age; or (B) is a student (regardless of age) at a recognized education institution or is taking on-farm training supervised by accredited schools, or on-farm training of a state of a political subdivision (a county, for instance); and (C) the taxpayer provides over half the child's support.

2. The second exemption change adds two new dependents who may be claimed if they meet two other tests (receive over half their support from the taxpayer and receive less than $600 income during the year). One is for any person supported by the taxpayer, even if not related, who has his principal place of residence with the taxpayer's household (this excludes hired help). The other is for the cousin of a taxpayer when the cousin is getting institutional care for physical or mental disability and was previously a member of the taxpayer's household.

The farmer is a businessman. All his "ordinary and necessary" business expenses may be deducted from his income, like those of any other businessman. This may be done in one of two ways — by the cash or the accrual method. Under the cash method, the farmer itemizes his actual expenditures and deducts them from his actual income during the year. Under the accrual method the farmer keeps inventory accounts and deducts his expenses incurred during the year (whether actually paid during the year, or not) from income earned or accrued during the year (whether or not actually received in the year).

This is one of the points where the farmer's income report can get very complex and may require expert counsel.

The big new business deduction for the farmer is for expenses of soil or water conservation, or prevention of erosion, during the year beginning on or after Jan. 1, 1954, provided they are for the treatment or moving of earth and that the earth treated or moved is earth used in farming by the taxpayer or his tenant, at the time the expense occurred, or before it.

Such expenses may be deducted from the farmer's income up to an amount equal to 25 per cent of his gross income from farming. Any excess can be carried over, against the gross income of succeeding years, until the full expenses have been deducted.

The 25 per cent rule applies only to income from farming. Other income may not be counted in, in making this deduction.

There are also new provisions regarding tax return treatment of gains or losses to farmer's from growing and selling timber.

Some changes have been made in rules affecting personal deductions. They are explained in the book of instructions.

There are also new provisions allowing taxpayers to claim special credits against their tax for income from dividends and retirement benefits. These too are covered in the book of instructions.

Not Bathtub Gin, Just Plain Milk

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) It wasn't bathtub gin, it was plain milk, but there were 10 gallons of it.

A passerby noticed two men taking two 5-gallon cans of milk from a truck. Police were summoned and found the two men had taken the cans to their eighth-floor hotel room and dumped the milk in the bathtub. They happily were putting in ice when officers arrived. The two men were released after the milk company declined to prosecute.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. SAMPNER, Real Estate Editor

The women are winning all the polls on who does the work on most do-it-yourself home care and repair jobs. Apparently the hand that rocks the cradle now runs a lot of power tools.

According to one recent survey 79 percent of the do-it-yourself projects are initiated by women, while the men of the house are credited with thinking up only 21 per cent of such activities.

Women also are shown to be doing 41 per cent of the work; men 37 per cent, while 22 per cent of these household projects are cooperative family ventures with even the kids pitching in.

In fact, a man might say that those figures seem to be a pretty good tribute to the little woman's executive ability, too—if she investigates 79 per cent of these jobs and does only 41 per cent of the work!

You might expect women to make a big showing when it comes to interior decorating and painting and indulging in other more or less lightweight tasks. But the girls don't stop there. They take on almost any job. The survey which turned up these percentages was conducted by a plywood manufacturer to find out who was sawing, nailing and otherwise manhandling his output. He found that women's activities include installing wall panels, shingling roofs, insulating houses, cementing down floor tiles painting houses, and so on.

Fairly comfortable families were queried—families living in homes valued from $10,000 to $25,000. More than two-thirds of them were found to be engaged in do-it-yourself home improvements.

The highest score for this activity was 72 per cent among families living in $10,000 to $20,000 homes. Next came families in $21,000 to $25,000 houses with 67 per cent busy with do-it-yourself projects. Third were owners of $10,000 to $15,000 homes, where 63 per cent listed such work.

The role of the women prompted Owen R. Chestnut, president of the Georgia-Pacific Plywood Co., sponsor of the study, to observe that "today's homemakers do not suffer by comparison with their great, great grandmothers who worked side by side with their pioneer men."

Now a national do-it-yourself contest for "women only" has been announced jointly by Woman's Home Companion and the National Retail Hardware Assn. Guy Henle, workshop editor of the magazine says women today "are no longer mystified by such terms as tongue and groove, two-by-fours, levels and planes." So some $5,000 in prizes in the form of bonds and power tools and building materials will be divided among 40 women who have completed the most interesting do-it-yourself projects, either alone or together with their families.

Family teamwork apparently is quite a factor in the do-it-yourself movement. One project that figured prominently in each of the three classes of that plywood survey was enlarging the home—adding more family living space. And a new survey turned up the other day crediting the home fix-up craze with being responsible for the trend toward larger families!

Well, a nice thing about woman's leadership in the fix-it realm is that a man can now find some justification for being an arm-chair handyman.

American use of prescription-type drugs has increased from 20 million pounds in 1949 to 66 million pounds today.

New Year's resolution that pays off in thrills...

"I'm going to drive that 1955 BUICK!"

WE'VE seen some high peaks of interest in our new cars over the years — but never anything like this.

Since the day we unveiled these glamorous new Buicks, people have been coming in—not only to see and study and sit in these great cars—but, very definitely, to drive them.

They want, it seems, a firsthand taste of the thrills that Buick engineers have conjured up for this new year.

And who can blame them? For the word's around that Buick has what no other car has—a new kind of performance from a new kind of transmission.

It's called Variable Pitch Dynaflo Drive.* It uses the principle of the modern airplane's variable pitch propeller. And it does in oil what that aeronautical marvel does in air.

At one pitch of the blades inside the Dynaflo unit, you get more fuel efficiency in normal cruising and driving—which means better gas mileage, pure and simple.

But push the gas pedal beyond the full throttle position and you switch the pitch. Instantly, you get electrifying response—a sudden safety-surge of accelerating power to get you quickly out of a tight spot—and with the absolute smoothness that is constant in Dynaflo Drive.

Maybe you, too, have made a mental resolution to drive a '55 Buick—but why wait?

We're ready, willing and eager to let you try one—feel the spectacular new power that gives life to this bounteous beauty—and see for yourself that here is a performance thrill too exciting to miss. Drop in on us this week, won't you?

*Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Thrill of the year is Buick

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

The Reverend Gairdner took a deep pull on his pipe but it was dead. "Picture, if you can, this bitter boy. The one thing he had ever loved—his mother—gone. First, taken from him by this tall stranger and now irrevocably lost. I feared he would resent the infant, feeling she had been the cause of Belle's death but he didn't. As soon as it was possible, he and Cricket brought the little thing back home to raise and—would you believe it—Anson seemed to transfer his affections to the child, partly I suppose because she was all he had left of his mother. There Dana was raised up on that wild mountain by her half brother Anson and old Cricket, who some unsympathetic people say is still kept in ignorance of the Emancipation Proclamation. Actually, she is a well-meaning old soul dedicated to all Metcalfs, past and present, and I think she'd lay down her life for Young Anson."

"So the girl's name is Dana Harrison," I said.

"No," he said stretching. "Harrison is her father's first name. She is Dana Purcell."

It almost jolted me off my chair. My mind was chewing at something. Dana Purcell? Harrison? "Harrison Dana Purcell?" I said. "Is that it? The NATO deputy?"

He nodded. "Made a career of the diplomatic service," he said. "He was here to see me last spring—about Dana. After Belle's death he tried to keep in touch with the baby—money, birthday presents, that sort of thing. You may ask why he hadn't raised the child. Remember, there he was, alone stunned by the loss of his wife. Rather than put the baby with strangers I seemed logical that she should be raised on the Metcalf place—you know family servants, the half brother. Or so Harrison thought. He didn't know his stepson, Harrison was on a tour of foreign duty and during the war lost touch. He had remarried but it wound up in divorce. All this swept him further from his daughter."

His chair creaked as he tilted back.

"I hadn't seen him since the day I read Belle's funeral service. When he turned up here last spring the years had left their mark on him. Not that he still wasn't straight as a ramrod, just as suave, but now his hair was snowy white." He ran his hand over his own smooth pate. "Harrison had always been a bit vain, I thought. It is one of those personal opinions you have and keep to yourself, like your own idea of Bach. Be that as it may, he had received this letter from his daughter that stirred up old emotions. Dana had come across his picture in a magazine and from the middle and last names realized it must be her father. Anson always vehemently refused to discuss her father with her but being the age when a young girl feels the need of family stability and finding the prospect of having such a colorful father as Harrison Dana Purcell romantic, she wrote him through the State department. Her letter delighted him and as soon as he got back to the States he looked her up."

"That must have been a rather touching thing," I said.

"Unfortunately it was less than happy." He knocked his dead pipe into his coffee dregs. "Harrison came directly here from the Metcalf place. He had been shocked, after his chic diplomatic set to find his daughter an untamed barbarian as he put it. With his deep feeling of the right thing to do, he was consumed with a tardy sense of parental responsibility for this girl. There is so much Yoke," he said, "I can and must do for her. Cultural advantages as she has missed. I'll show her the world and, above all, get her out of that mouldering place back there in the woods." He had insisted that she leave with him at once. For the girl it was confusing—she wanted to be with her newly-found father and at the same time couldn't face giving up the life she loved, the place that meant home. Harrison wouldn't admit it, but naturally Dana has a certain affection for Anson, queer as he is. As for Anson—there'd been a scene. He ordered Harrison off the place under threat of turning loose that black beast he keeps up there like a dragon. Harrison left, stating that he would be back for Dana in October. He left Anson seething, Dana in tears and he was quite upset himself when he arrived here. I advised him to proceed cautiously but he was determined. He had to be in Europe this summer but will return this fall. He is coming for her and threatens to resort to law if necessary.

"The courts would back him up," I said.

"Yes, but don't see sight of the human factor. Harrison made me promise to talk to Dana and Anson. I told him I hadn't seen her since I persuaded Anson to send Dana to St. Hilda's hall. She'd stuck it out for three semesters but she'd been miserably unhappy. The head mistress of the hall had kept me posted. I had tried to see her when she came home but Anson made it clear I was not welcome. After Harrison had gone I tried to fulfill my promise. It was no good. Young Anson refused to see me or let me talk to Dana. He's savagely jealous of her. I suppose it follows that, having lost his mother to Harrison, he feels the world is again about to take the only thing he loves. During the summer I've exchanged a letter or two with Harrison at which time he said he had written to Dana telling her when to expect him but had had no replies. He suspects that Anson intercepts his letters to her." He sighed. "I want to help him but I may as well confess there was a time I didn't."

"What do you mean?"

He glanced at the kitchen door. "I was in love with Belle before Harrison came along. She never knew it."

I stood up from the table. "A man named Purcell registered at the inn last Saturday."

His head came around and the eyebrows lifted. "Harrison?"

"I don't know."

"Tall, high forehead with abundant hair? A bit dramatic looking, no hat—probably good tweeds?"

"I can't say I've seen him. In fact no one seems to have—since shortly after he checked in."

"If it's Harrison he'd almost certainly have come to see—" Both his hands came around and hit the table with a crash. "What did you say?"

"The state police found his car in the Potomac river yesterday. Up to the time I left the inn, they hadn't found him."

When I got back they still hadn't. I asked my pal behind the desk to let me see Purcell's registration card. The initials were definitely H.D.

Up in my room after lunch, the next move seemed too easy. Get in touch with the colored hired man and verify the message he'd been given. I wouldn't admit it to myself, but all along it had been a grating note. Not that it had to be anything off-color, arranging to meet an older man in a secluded place, but she was a naive young thing and now I knew he was her father, I felt better—up to a certain part. That part I didn't like.

I picked up my phone and asked for the post office.

When they answered I asked if mail went out of their office for the Metcalfs up on Third Hill. The man didn't know the name but he said the RFD in that area came from an office on the other side of the ridge.

I decided the idea was no good anyway. A hired man wouldn't necessarily live on the place. While I had the phone in my hands I tried something else.

"Information? Does Anson Metcalf have a phone?"

"There was a pause, then: "No sir. There is no phone listed under that name."

"You're sure? That's not in town. It's on Third Hill mountain?"

"I've heard of him, sir, but there is no telephone listed." I put the phone in its cradle.

Heavy Spending Spree Is Over; Savings 'Next'

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The year's big spending spree behind them, most citizens are full of good resolutions today about saving money.

If you're serious about it, you might take a tip from corporations. They strike a trial balance sheet when they want to find out where they stand. And they keep up a watchful search for the best plan to make assets and funds work for them for maximum saving.

Some individuals think they have been saving money when actually they're worse off now than when the year started. Others say they haven't been able to save a cent when actually they have added to their net worth by increasing their equity in insurance or homes.

The man with a small income has more variations on ways of saving than he used to — and is using more outlets for the Research Institute of America points out today. He is buying stocks on mutual funds, using investment plans especially packaged by banks.

The standard outlets for saving, of course, continue to be banks and other saving accounts, insurance, savings bonds, corporate securities, real estate.

For its 50,000 members the institute has drawn up a savings policy memo for 1955 which shows them how to find out if they're really saving or not, and to determine which is the best way for them to save.

Here are the principal points: First strike a personal balance sheet, like a corporation's, to find out your net worth.

On one side list what you own: cash in bank, cash surrender value of life insurance and annuities, market value of real estate, resale value of furniture and furnishings, trade in value of cars, money lent to others, government and corporate bonds, and market value of other securities. Add them up to get the total of your assets.

To find out what you owe, list: all bills due, personal loans payable, amount of mortgage still due, unpaid taxes, balance due on installment purchases. Add them up to get your total liabilities.

Compare your asset value and your liabilities and find your net worth — or (let's hope not) how far you're behind the game.

Repeat a year from now and see if you've been making progress at saving — or slipped further into debt.

Some of the rules the institute works out for getting the most out of saving are: funds for an emergency belong only in a bank. Put only funds earmarked for a long-range goal into savings bonds — interest drops if you cash them in before maturity.

Close insurance policies that most closely meet your particular needs, and change policies when the needs change.

Don't play the stock market — but buy shares carefully for long-term investment — if saving is your goal.

Brothers Wed Three Sisters

DETROIT (AP)—The Browns just love the Morrisseys.

Nine years ago, Charles Brown, now 33, married Anna Mae Morrissey now 30.

A year later, George Brown, now 32, married Betty Jean Morrissey, now 28.

Yesterday, Lawrence Brown 23, took out a license to marry Patricia Morrissey, 20.

The Browns are brothers. The Morrissey girls are sisters. The two families lived next door to each other for nine years.

Plantation Goes Back To Cattle

ALLENDALE S.C. (AP)—Pre-Revolutionary Belfast plantation near here is back in the cattle business. In Tarlton Brown's memoirs of the 1700s, he recalls the place as excellent range for cattle and said it "was no uncommon thing to see 200 in a herd."

Harry M. Lightsey of Columbia recently bought the old place and is reviving the cattle raising business on it, has rebuilt the plantation house.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market turned lower in the early afternoon today after a favorable start.

Aircrafts were in demand at higher prices, however, and there were many individual stocks holding higher.

Losses were not extensive and went to around a point at the outside. Gains usually were small but extended up to around 4 points in some instances.

Today's slip in prices followed two days of strong advance that carried the market to new peaks since the highest levels of 1953.

The volume of business was moderate when compared with yesterday's huge 4,350,000 shares, greatest in four years.

Strength in the aircrafts today coincided with the vote of the French Chamber of Deputies in favor of West German rearmament. Uncertainties over the outcome of the vote was considered one factor in the decline of last Monday's market.

Minus signs today were sprinkled liberally in the steels, motors, railroads, coppers, airlines, and chemicals.

There were a few notable blocks on the tape. Loew's, yesterday's most active issue up 1 1/2 opened today on 10,000 shares up 1/2 at 21. A block of 10,000 shares of National Department Stores traded at 18 1/2, and 11,000 shares of Chicago North Western Preferred traded at 33 3/4 up 3/8.

Commission Set Price On Shares

RALEIGH (AP)—The Utilities Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Commission has authorized the Co. to sell 66,640 shares of its common stock — but at not less than $125 per share.

The commission order yesterday was the second in a year in which it placed a minimum price on the stock.

The company wanted to give its stockholders the right to buy the new stock at its par value, or $100 per share. Stockholders would have been allowed to buy two shares of new stock for each five they owned.

Since the present market value of C.T.&T.'s stock is about $146.50 per share, it could have given stockholders a tidy profit.

A year ago the company asked permission to issue 33,320 shares at par. The Utilities Commission set the minimum rate at $115 a share and the company appealed to the State Supreme Court.

The court sent the case back to the commission, telling it to make "specific findings of fact" why it was fixing a minimum price.

The commission's order yesterday was 4-1 with Commissioner Edward McMahon dissenting. The majority opinion was written by Commissioner Sam O. Worthington of Pitt County. Worthington is resigning from the commission tomorrow in preparation for taking his seat as a state representative in the upcoming General Assembly.

Pair Charged With Larceny And Forgery

Police yesterday arrested two Negro men and charged them with larceny and forgery of a government check.

The check was stolen from 302 Reade Street and made out to Wade Jenkins, police report.

According to a police report, Willie Jenkins, one of the arrested men, has admitted stealing the check, and Ollie Gray, of 208 Reade Street, has admitted "forging Wade Jenkins' name . . . and cashing same."

Det. Detective N. H. Byrd was the investigating officer and made the arrests.

Police yesterday also arrested C. H. Faircloth of Fayetteville on a warrant issued November 24 charging him with giving a worthless check.

J. Frank Whichard Funeral On Friday

Mr. J. Frank Whichard, 68, of 307 Manhattan Avenue, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville at eight o'clock Thursday morning following several months of illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon by his pastor, the Rev. J. B. Narron, pastor of Sweet Gum Grove Free Will Baptist Church, assisted by the Rev. J. A. Neilson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Whichard, son of the late Gregory Thomas and Sarah Moore Whichard, lived in the Stokes community all his life until three years ago when he moved to Greenville. He was a farmer and a charter member of Sweet Gum Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife, the former Effie Bullock of Pitt County, to whom he was married in 1906; three daughters, Mrs. Bert Whitehurst of Carrigan of Greenville; three sons, Thomas Whichard of Norfolk, Va., Julius F. Whichard of Greenville, and W. Harvey Whichard of Stokes; 17 grandchildren; one great grandchild; five sisters, Mrs. Fronie Hawkins, Mrs. J. E. Whichard and Mrs. J. P. Moss Sr., all of Greenville, and Mrs. J. L. Barnhill and Miss Clara Whichard, both of Stokes.

NOT ENOUGH SNOW

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The Utah mountain village of Mammoth, population 150, is in trouble because it hasn't had enough snow. State Sanitary Engineer L. M. Thatcher said that due to lack of snow coverage the ground has frozen down past the 17-mile pipeline that supplies the village with water, also freezing the line.

TEAR-UP PARTY

OMAHA (AP)—A woman came to ask Omaha Fire Commissioner Simon what she should do about a shed on her property that had been condemned. Said Simon: "Why don't you have a party and invite all your friends over with hammers to help you tear down the building?"

Three Damage Suits Seek $12,000 In Auto Wreck

Three separate damage suits totaling $12,000 were filed in the Superior Court Clerk's office yesterday charging a minor and his father with gross negligence leading to a highway collision, and resulting in serious injuries to the plaintiffs.

The collision occurred "on or about October 10, 1954" in front of the Orange Clemmons Farm in Stokes Township, involving cars driven by Frank Spell and William Person, Jr. Person is a minor, and was driving a car owned by his father, William Person, Sr.

Spell has filed a suit seeking $5,000 in damages for medical expenses and loss of income due to the collision. He states in his suit that his car was "totally demolished," and he sustained numerous cuts and bruises and suffered from severe shock.

Funeral Set Friday For James T. Bundy

FARMVILLE—James T. Bundy, 80, husband of the former Huldah Gay, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville Thursday at 3:05 a.m. He had been in declining health about five years.
