

Worthington Is Doubtful As To Need For Repeal Of 'Secrecy' Bill

Unable To See Any Harm, Says Pitt Lawmaker; Believes State Can Find Revenue

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. House member in the State Legislature, S. O. Worthington says that he has been unable to see any harm in the secrecy legislation enacted by the 1953 Legislature just before it adjourned.

The veteran Pitt County representative in the General Assembly declared that he would have to hear something more before voting for repeal of the measure. Worthington is serving his ninth term as one of the county's two House members. He recently resigned his position on the State Utilities to return to the legislature for the 1955 session.

"So far I have been unable to see any harm in the measure often referred to as the 'secrecy bill,'" Worthington asserted. "I would have to hear something more than what I have heard to vote to repeal it. I think the bill ought to be presented and discussed to give everyone a chance to be heard."

The bill was passed in the closing days of the legislature in 1953. It gave the appropriations committee the right to go into executive sessions when discussing money matters. The bill has come in for much criticism from the press of the state during the past two years. One of the first measures introduced in the new legislature when it convened was a bill to repeal the controversial law.

"I think if the press will always be fair with the committee that the press will always find the committee fair with it," Worthington declared. School Segregation. The representative endorsed plans to take steps designed to maintain segregation in the state's public schools.

"I think the 1955 legislature should leave nothing undone that can be done to assure segregation in our public schools even to the extent of taking steps to repeal the provisions in the constitution pertaining to education and leaving to the legislature the full authority to make provisions for education in North Carolina.

In his "State of the State" message yesterday the governor called for the legislature to take action at this session to deal with the Supreme Court decision that public school segregation should be abolished. Worthington indicated that he believes the General Assembly will be able to cope with the problem of falling revenue which has plagued budget makers for the past few months although he said economy should be practiced in the state government.

Local Red Cross To Study Joining United Fund Group

GE To Build A $20 Million Plant In N. Carolina

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) - General Electric Co. announced today that it will build a 20 million dollar distribution transformer plant in the Hickory-Newton-Conover area. Eventually it will employ 1,100 workers. It will be highly mechanized and will contain 400,000 square feet of floor space. Included will be a single story factory building and a completely air-conditioned office building. Construction will start soon. Completion is expected late next year.

"We have selected the Southeast section of the country (as the factory site) since it is in this area that great future growth is forecast," said Raymond W. Smith, general manager of G-E's distribution transformer department in Pittsfield, Mass. "Together with our Pittsfield, Oakland, Calif., and Holyoke, Mass., plants, the new facility will assure our customers of excellent service and an unexcelled product."

Smith added that the plant represents an investment in the belief that home owners will more than double their electric power usage in a few years. He said that large quantities of distribution transformers will be needed by utilities to furnish more electric power to homes. Smith said that employees will be hired from the local plant area except for about 100 technicians and specialists who will be transferred from Pittsfield.

The plant site will be a 100-acre tract four miles east of Hickory between Highways 70 and 70A. A quarter-mile spur track will connect the plant with the Southern Railway's Salisbury-Asheville division.

Farmville Firm's Safe Is Robbed. FARMVILLE - A safe was broken into here late last night at the Eason Motors Company building, local police report. An estimated $400 is reportedly missing from the safe. Entrance to the building was made by forcing the front door, probably with a crow-bar. It has not yet been ascertained by what means the safe was broken open.

Local Red Cross To Study Joining United Fund Group

Directors of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday referred to its executive committee for study a proposal that the local Red Cross chapter join an United Fund organization contemplated for Pitt County. Chapter Chairman James S. Ficklen, Jr. read to the directors a letter from E. E. Rawl, Sr. of Greenville asking whether the local Red Cross would join such an organization. After considerable discussion the directors referred the matter to the executive committee for study and recommendation.

Ficklen announced the appointment of Leonard Bloxam, superintendent of Greenville Utilities, as fund campaign chairman for Greenville, and the appointment of Robert D. Rouse, Jr. of Farmville and Mrs. Blair C. Wheelock of Farmville as co-chairmen of the county for the Red Cross campaign which will be held in March. A special guest at the meeting was W. W. Jefferson of Atlanta, Ga., vice president of National Red Cross and manager of the Southeastern area for the organization. Jefferson discussed briefly the activities of Red Cross during Hurricane Hazel and told the local directors one Red Cross team is still helping to rehabilitate families stricken by the disaster in the Wilmington area. He said the budget of National Red Cross is $85 million this year, and that the national budget is down somewhat from last year and local chapter budgets are slightly above last year.

Jefferson also urged the local chapter to give careful consideration to the matter of joining a United Fund-raising campaign before committing itself to such an effort. He outlined briefly the policies of National Red Cross toward such campaigns. A special honor award was presented to Dr. K. B. Pace, recently chosen general practitioner of the year by the American Medical Association. E. Hoover Taft, on behalf of the local chapter in which Dr. Pace has been active for a number of years, made the presentation, on behalf of the chapter.

Chairman Ficklen recognized three new directors, Mrs. W. S. Bost, Mrs. L. T. Shotwell and A. Hartwell Campbell; chapter vice chairmen Dr. Leo W. Jenkins and H. F. Steinbeck, and members of the executive committee. Higher Minimum Wage Proposal Well Received. WASHINGTON (AP) - President Eisenhower's proposal to raise the nationwide minimum wage from 75 to 90 cents an hour had a generally good reception in Congress today but some senators were chary about a companion recommendation.

Eisenhower's renewed request for changes in the Taft-Hartley law to advance its "basic objectives" did not appear to have much more practical chance of achievement than last year, when Congress rejected his revision bill. Sen. Clements (D-Ky.), the assistant Democratic floor leader, said the new Democratic Congress "will raise the minimum wage." He declined to forecast how much.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), outgoing chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, which will handle the legislation, included the 90-cent figure in a bill he introduced, and said he would fight to have it enacted. That would be a 20 per cent boost over the present minimum, fixed in 1949. Sen. Hill (D-Ala.), prospective new chairman of the committee, indicated a lower figure might be more acceptable, although a number of other Democrats have called for $1 or more. Hill said he would have no objection to a boost equal to the rise in the cost of living since 1949—about 13 per cent.

The 15 cent hourly increase recommended by Eisenhower would give an automatic wage boost to an estimated 1,300,000 workers, most of them in the South. Some Southerners appeared unfriendly to the whole idea of an increase, partly on the ground it would indirectly affect farm labor costs. Outside the South, what criticism there was centered on the fact the President didn't request an even higher minimum. AFL President George Meany called the 90-cent figure "puny." CIO officials also termed it inadequate. Now exempted from the minimum are all retail trade and service workers, farmers, salesmen and others. And no jobs not directly affecting interstate commerce are "covered."

Leaders Say Eisenhower Address Put Them On Defensive Demos Prepare Opposition

By JACK BELL. WASHINGTON (AP) - Democrats pondered today how to cope politically with their leaders' call for a "New Dealish" domestic program laid before Congress yesterday by President Eisenhower. The President appeared to have put the opposition party on the defensive with a 33-minute State of the Union message in which he either asked action or laid the groundwork for future requests on 33 foreign and domestic problems. The first reaction to the President's call for "unhesitating cooperation" between the Democratic-controlled Congress and the Republican executive branch was one of outwardly warm acceptance. But while there was ready agreement among lawmakers of both parties with Eisenhower's plea to "let the general good be our yardstick on every great issue of our time," signs of disagreement were not long in appearing. Key Democrats criticized the President's plea for continuance of flexible farm price supports, called his report on economic conditions

"too optimistic," attacked his local-federal "partnership" program of national resource development, turned thumbs down informally on proposed revision of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, urged a larger boost in the statutory minimum wage than he suggested and disagreed with his indication that he does not believe Alaska is ready for statehood. There was enthusiastic bipartisan backing for Eisenhower's foreign policy objective of attaining a "durable peace," but what was perhaps an ominous silence from Democratic ranks greeted his explanation of how he hopes to achieve military manpower reduction while maintaining the armed forces in balance. The first of the Democrats' probing operations evidently would be with this military program, when it is laid down in detail. Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), incoming chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he was "seriously considering" setting up a preparedness subcommittee to help with the job.

In what amounted to a chorus of agreement, Democratic leaders said Eisenhower was stealing past Democratic thunder in his proposals for extending health services, adjusting the formula for old age pensions, a promised new school aid program, extension of the Small Business Act and a proposed huge highway building program. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, said the President used a "Democratic premise" in his message, adding that Congress will consider his program "in that spirit." Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, House Democratic leader, said that on domestic matters the President's message "might well be termed New Dealish."

Sen. Clements (D-Ky.), assistant leader, was "glad to see the President joining the Democrats on so many fronts." He said proposals for reciprocal trade extension with tariff-cutting powers, the school construction program and the high minimum wage all were part of "Democratic programs." Echoing the same note, Chairman Paul Butler of the Democratic National Committee found Eisenhower "going over to the Democratic program." On the Republican side, Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) edged nearer agreement with Eisenhower on foreign policy by observing that the message carried "no appearance of policy of waiting for the dust to settle." He said the administration advocates a "peace with honor based on strength to meet any further Communist adventures or aggressions." In the past, Knowland has advocated more vigorous moves against the communists than Eisenhower has been willing to undertake. Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore), who was highly critical of some of Eisenhower's domestic proposals, tacked a "statesmanlike" label to the President's proposals in the foreign and military fields. Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) said he was "extremely disappointed" that Eisenhower proposed no "positive action" toward freeing Americans held behind the Iron Curtain. But McCarthy was apparently alone in his criticism on that point.

Presidential Stand Results In 'Show Me' Attitude Military Manpower Cuts Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) - General applause for the military sections of President Eisenhower's State of the Union message did not mean still voices in Congress questioning the wisdom of military manpower cutbacks. Many Democrats and some Republicans said they will await further details before making up their minds about the proposal to trim strength from the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. And Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), who will head the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he may reestablish a special preparedness subcommittee with broad powers to inquire into defense policies and operations.

Most lawmakers agreed with the President that this country and other free nations must continue to spend many billions on defense for years to come. And none appeared to disagree with his proposal for "balance and flexibility" in the armed services with emphasis upon air power and "new weapons, especially those of rapid and destructive power." The former general said it was "a matter of personal direction" that the military policies were formulated, and he added: "In my judgment they will give our nation a defense accurately adjusted to the national need."

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.), who has been critic of the planned Army reduction, said there appears to be "conflicting opinions" at the Pentagon on this. "We had an atomic monopoly on massive retaliation but that did not stop the Korean War and we were unprepared to fight it," Jackson said. "There is a definite need" for a thorough congressional inquiry into this and related subjects. Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.), an Armed Services committee member, said he could "go along" with all of the Eisenhower defense proposals except possibly the cutback in ground forces. "They will have to show me how we can safely defend Europe with atomic cannons or other new weapons, especially those of rapid power," Flanders said. Sen. Long (D-La.), on the other hand, said he would support a reduction in the military forces.

"I've always been convinced we could have more fighting capacity with less men and money," he said. Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) said the Eisenhower proposal "sounded good but he did not give us details we must have." Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.), who will head the House Armed Services Committee, said "I find myself in general agreement with the president's message concerning our national defense. Obviously, we will want to examine closer the details involved in his program." The President promised to spell out details for defense plans in two messages he will send Congress next Thursday. One will ask extension of the draft, due to expire June 30, plus a new version of military training intended to expand and strengthen the reserves. The other will offer selective pay boosts plus fringe benefits. The Pentagon has already announced Eisenhower will ask that up to 100,000 draft-age youths be allowed to volunteer for six months of training, after which they would be obligated in a reserve unit for nine years. This would free them from the draft.

Bill To Change Income Tax Filing Date Included Legislative Flood Is Begun

RALEIGH (AP) - A change in the time for paying income taxes, repeal of the legislative "secrecy" law and a study of the problem of reallocating Senate seats in line with population changes were proposed in legislation introduced in the State Senate today. Sen. Claude Currie of Durham, a member of the state's Advisory Budget Commission, sent forward the bill to change the deadline for filing of individual income tax returns from March 15 to April 15. The measure presumably has the support of Gov. Hodges who has expressed the opinion North Carolina should make its income tax deadline conform to a recent change made by Congress in the date for filing federal income tax returns.

Sen. Blythe of Mecklenburg introduced a resolution calling for Senate President Luther Barnhardt to appoint a commission to study a reallocation of Senate seats through a redrawing of senatorial district lines. The resolution states that changing senatorial district lines "is a serious and important matter affecting the representation of the people of the state in the Senate." It points out that no change in Senate representation has been made since the 1950 federal census. The resolution would authorize Barnhardt to name a commission composed of nine senators. The commission would be instructed to make a report within 45 days after adoption of the resolution. Barnhardt referred the measure to the Senate Committee on Elections-Senatorial Districts. Sen. Adam J. Whitley of Johnston was joined by 12 other senators in sponsoring the measure to repeal the "secrecy" law. The bill would repeal an act of the 1953 Legislature which gives legislative Appropriations Committees the right to hold closed meetings while considering the state's budget.

Reps. George Long of Alamance and Radford Powell of Rockingham in the House and Sen. Clarence Stone of Rockingham in the Senate sent forward bills to reassign seats in the House of Representatives in line with the 1950 census. The effort would be to give Alamance and Rockingham two seats each instead of one, and to reduce P. and Cabarrus counties from two seats each to one.

All Rescued In Coastal Mishap

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) - A seven-hour sea and air search for the crews of five Marine amphibious craft in trouble in rough water off the coast here ended this morning with all hands safe. The navy reported at 2 a.m. that a head count showed all men accounted for and unharmed. Nine ducks—small craft which travel on land and water—set out from the Morehead City terminal for the LSD San Marcos, one of some 15 transports anchored about three miles offshore to carry Marines from nearby Camp Lejeune and elsewhere to Puerto Rico maneuvers. Four ducks got off safely through turbulent Beaufort Inlet. One capsized and its four-man crew was quickly rescued from the fairly warm water. Mechanical trouble sent two more plunging onto a sandbar. The Coast Guard found them and took four men off at 8:30 p.m. They were rescued at 11:20. The other two ducks and their 10 men still missing. Wind, rain and darkness plagued searchers. Planes dropped flares to light a wide area. There was talk of calling off the hunt until morning. But about 1:30 a.m., the last two men were sighted on a sandbar. By 2 a.m., all were safe. The 24 Marines were brought ashore, fed hot soup and sent to bed.

Dr. Aycock New Chief Of Staff At Pitt Hospital

Dr. E. B. Aycock has been appointed chief of staff at Pitt Memorial Hospital for 1955, according to an announcement from C. D. Ward, hospital administrator. Dr. C. F. Irons will serve as assistant chief of staff, and Dr. Allen Taylor as secretary-treasurer. These officers, with Dr. F. P. Brooks, Dr. F. B. Haar and Dr. M. P. Hoot as staff members, will comprise the executive committee of the hospital medical staff. The officers were nominated and elected by the medical staff of the hospital in regular session December 28, and were then approved by the Board of Trustees. Ward said all regular committee and service appointments for the year have been made.

Talked Way Out, Then Rearrested

BOSTON (AP) - Carl G. Smith, 32, of Gary, Ind., a convict arguing his own case, was freed from an 8 to 10 year prison sentence yesterday. The Massachusetts Supreme Court upheld his petition, which he prepared himself, claiming he was not properly represented by counsel when convicted of a Worcester County burglary in 1949. But as he left the court, a state detective arrested him and charged him with stealing automobile registration plates from the state prison, where the plates are manufactured. He was locked up for lack of $2,500 bail pending a Jan. 14 hearing.

Boy Injured Crossing Highway, Hit By Auto

GRIMESLAND - A 12-year-old boy received a broken right leg and head injuries when he was struck by a car just inside the city limits here yesterday afternoon. The youngster, Harvey Craft, was said to have been hit by a car operated by Earl F. Windley of 1703 Treemont Drive, Greenville as the child was crossing the highway after alighting from a pick-up truck. Windley is a teacher in the Greenville city schools. Investigating Patrolman James W. Boykin said Windley was headed east on U.S. 264 and the Craft child had just gotten off a pick-up truck operated by B. D. Minton of Grimesland. The boy ran behind the truck and started across the road to his home running directly into the path of the car driven by Windley. Boykin stated that the impact of the collision knocked the child 25 feet. The hood of the 1950 model car was bent considerably from the impact. Minton told the officer that he had taken the boy to a store to pay him for some work and had just brought him back home. Young Craft was taken to a Washington hospital by ambulance. The accident occurred about 5:30 yesterday afternoon. Boykin said his investigation of the matter is incomplete.

Councilman Collins Willing To Serve One More Term

City Councilman J. A. Collins has announced that he will seek one more term as a council member "if the citizens of Greenville want me." Collins said several persons have approached him about running for another two-year term in office. The election is set for Tuesday after the first Monday in May. That would fall May 3 this year. Collins served four terms on the old Board of Aldermen which was the city's governing body until the city manager form of government was voted into being by the people. He served first from July 30, 1930 to July 30, 1932. The councilman went back on the board in 1939 and served three consecutive terms. The councilman supported the Plan D type of city government when the election was held in 1953. When the five-member city council came into being he ran for office and was elected to the city's first council. The local businessman has lived in Pitt County all his life and came

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
January 7, 1925

The Round Table met in its first session of the New Year with Mrs. J. W. Higgs. Seventeen members were present. A letter from Oteen expressed appreciation and thanks for the Christmas stockings sent to the soldiers. In her absence from the city, Mrs. Milton White sent her New Year greetings and wishes to her club members. The program for the afternoon, "Literary Genus," was studied in the life of H. G. Wells. Mrs. Winslow discussed in a very interesting manner the life and works of Wells.

A delicious sweet course was served by the hostess and her daughters, Miss Helene and Mrs. H. H. Duncan, and thus ended the first interesting meeting of the year.

Dessert Bridge Party Is Given For Miss Greene

A dessert bridge in honor of Miss Frances Estelle Greene was given last night by Mrs. Allan Stokes at her home on Harding Street. The three tables for bridge were laid with linen outwork cloths and centered with brass candlesticks and white tapers tied with frosted bells. The bride-elect's table was centered with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums. A design of white smudgapons on the console completed the decorations.

The honoree's place was designated by a tally tied with a miniature engagement and wedding rings. Other tallies were tied with bells. The hostess served a frozen salad course, ham biscuits, potato chips, pickles, and coffee. During the progressions Coca-Colas and nuts were passed.

High score for bridge was won by Mrs. Bob T. Smith and low was received by Miss Mary Warren Collier.

Miss Greene was presented a corsage of shasta beauty chrysanthemums and the honor gift was a silver bowl.

Guests invited in for dessert were Mrs. Burt Greene, Mrs. F. F. Hendrix, Miss Estelle Greene, and Mrs. John Barnhill.

Atheneum Club Continues Study Of Bible In New Year

The Atheneum Book Club held its first meeting of the New Year at noon Tuesday with Mrs. J. Knott Proctor on East Fifth Street. Club members and guests, Mrs. Joan D. Messick and Mrs. Travis of Trenton; Tenn., mother of Mrs. J. B. Cummings, were welcomed by the hostess.

After the exchange of New Year greetings the guests were served a delectable two course luncheon by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. Knott Proctor Jr. The dining room table was centered with a lovely arrangement of gladioli, corresponding with the peach luncheon cloth and the same color scheme was used in the living room where auxiliary tables were placed.

A short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Owen Marshall. At this time a report was heard from the committee who provided Christmas cheer for a needy family by the club members.

After the luncheon Mrs. Proctor introduced her guest speaker, Miss Louise Morris, educational director of the Christian Church. Continuing the study of the Bible this year the speaker talked on the "Life of Paul." Although he was the son of devout parents of the Jewish tribe of Benjamin, the speaker pictured Paul as a ruthless Roman persecutor of Christians. She related his miraculous conversion on the road to Damascus, following which he became the greatest Christian minister of his era. This interesting and informative study of the great apostle was greatly enjoyed by those present.

Religious Director Guest Speaker At San Souci Club

Mrs. J. B. Kittrell was hostess to the San Souci Book Club at her home on East Fifth Street Tuesday. Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale welcomed the visitors and members absent during the fall months and extended warm and sincere New Year wishes to the club. A short business session followed.

Mrs. B. B. Sugg was in charge of the program and presented the guest speaker, Dr. John Bennett, who recently came from Mount Union College, and joined the faculty of East Carolina College, where he is teacher of Biblical literature and director of religious activities. Dr. Bennett gave the first program of 1955 and directed the club to higher thinking along many lines.

He reviewed the confusions of the old year in the field of politics and economics, and the dubious standards of taste in literature and aesthetics. He concluded the program on a strong note of faith in eternal values, the love of God and our fellow man, as given in the Ten Commandments and the teachings of Jesus. The club conveyed its thanks to Dr. Bennett for the very selective and stimulating thought he presented.

At the conclusion of the program, the club enjoyed a social hour in the lovely drawing room, its particular beauty enhanced with arrangements of pink glads and white chrysanthemums. The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. J. Knott Proctor Jr., served a delicious salad plate and coffee, with surprise ice cream balls frosted in cocoanut passed by "Charlotte."

Annual Budget To Be Offered Pitt HD Council

A budget for the coming year will be presented for adoption at a meeting of the Pitt Home Demonstration County Council Tuesday in the local home demonstration laboratory.

Home agent Lillie Little has announced the executive board of the council will meet at 1:30 p. m. with the regular council meeting scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

Also on the agenda, in addition to the presentation of the budget, will be short talk on the county reading program by Sheppard Memorial Librarian Elizabeth Copeland. Reports from various committee chairmen will also be heard, Mrs. Little said.

The County Council, which meets four times a year, is composed of all county home demonstration club officers and project leaders. These are all urged by the Home Agent to attend Tuesday's meeting.

Hinduism And Buddhism Program For Chatham Club

The members of the Chatham Book Club were graciously welcomed by Mrs. C. A. Bowen Tuesday afternoon for the first meeting of the New Year.

Mrs. Bowen served a delicious salad plate with nuts and coffee and presided over a short business session. In presenting her subject for the afternoon "Hinduism and Buddhism" she showed a map of India and called to the club's attention the book "Under Three Flags" by Stephen Neill.

In India, a land of four hundred and forty-five million people 97 per cent are non-Christians. Hinduism is a totalitarian system controlling the way a man thinks and the way he speaks, his relations with his family and with his neighbors. They believe man needs super-human help from some God or a kind of Deity and they believe in a kind of experience that follows that belief. In India religion has an important place in life. Two-thirds of the people are very poor and their religious experience is a part of their living.

They believe God is everywhere. All life is sacred. Their goal is to know the God of all, to be freed from self and to become conscious of divine self. To work is to worship. In India about 1500 B. C. there arose a series of sacred writings, these expressed a belief in an all-embracing spirit. The Brahmins or priestly caste was one of the four social castes that gained political as well as religious influence—and established the religion called Brahmanism. This religion of personal gods, of which Brahma was the god "Preserver of Life" and the god "Destroyer" of life.

While Hinduism is confined to the land of India, Buddhism has spread to other countries. There are today over a hundred and fifty million Buddhist in the world—so this belief still ranks as one of the great historic religions of mankind. More than 500 years before Christ was born a Hindu priest was called the "Buddha" or "The Enlightened One". At the age of 29 he gave up his wealth, power, wife and young son and turned from the pleasures of life and fled from home. He sought to free himself from evil and attain unto holiness. He cut off his hair and for forty years taught that the three great sins are self-indulgence, ill will and ignorance and that by freeing oneself from all desire one could attain a blissful state of giving up self. Buddhism preaches kindness to all living things. There is no God in Buddhism, no Creator. The Buddhist stands for man's confidence in himself.

Mrs. Bowen gave club members the ingredients for a Happy New Year. Smile, Love, Joy, and Service. Miss Janet Livingstone was guest for the afternoon.

Student Drama Club To Present Play By Shaw

The East Carolina Players student dramatic club at East Carolina College will present Bernard Shaw's melodrama, "The Devil's Disciple" as its major production for the winter quarter. Performances are set for Wednesday and Thursday January 19 and 20, at 8:15 in the College Theater.

The play deals with a situation during the American Revolution and is written in the witty and trenchant style characteristic of Shaw's works.

James L. Thompson of Durham and Jeanne K. Dupree of Angier are student directors of the play. Billy Ray Sells of Tarawa Terrace is technical director. The production will be supervised by Dr. Joseph A. Withey of the department of English, director of dramatic arts at the college.

Special attention is being given to costumes and scenery for the play. Settings will be designed and worked by members of the playhouse, working with Dr. Paul Running, director of the college department of art. Costumes of the Revolutionary period, including the colorful uniforms of British soldiers, will be from Eaves in New York City.

Alyis B. Carr, Jr., of Rocky Mount, in the role of Richard Dudgeon, "The Devil's Disciple," heads a cast of forty people who are now rehearsing the drama. C. Merle Kelly of Raleigh, play by members of the British General John Burgoyne, whose defeat at Saratoga is imminent as the play closes.

Others who have leading parts include James Corum of Reidsville, Nancy Cooke of Dunn, Anna Avant of Whiteville, Jack Cherry of Washington, Marion Evans of New Bern and William C. Dixon, Jr., of Kinston.

'Books and Stuff'

By Dr. Ed Hirschberg

We're all nostalgic this week, because "Books and Stuff" is just about a year old. It seems only yesterday—to coin a phrase—that our Boss, your Editor, told us to go ahead and write some stuff each week about books, and here we are, still hanging on. . . . Last year at this time we were worrying about a name for this column—Books and Stuff seemed so undignified—but it's still with us. . . . A rose by any other name would smell as sweet would apply to us too, we suppose. . . .

The New Year always makes you want to look forward, not back—after all, we know what the old year brought—and the publishers have sent up plenty of crystal balls to gaze into. . . . Soon now, here's what you'll be reading, if you keep up with the newest books as they come out—anyway, you'll be reading reviews of them, or condensations, depending on what you like best. . . .

New Novels are coming out by many authors whom you've read before as well as some new ones. . . . Harvey Swados contributes "Our Went the Candle," which the publishers—Viking—say is going to be "one of the controversial fiction items of the year. . . ." And from Italy will come a new novel by Alberto Moravia, "A Ghost at Noon." . . . France's Simone de Beauvoir sends us "All Men Are Mortal." Mme. de Beauvoir, if you remember, won the Goncourt Prize for the best European novel last year, with "The Mandarins." She's an Existentialist, by the way. . . . If that means anything to you. . . . For February, the Literary Guild will give you "The Four Winds," by John Beecroft, about airline pilots and hostesses and their problems—sounds fascinating, as long as we don't have to do any flying ourselves. . . . And in March the Guild will offer a new novel by John Marquand, called "Sincerely, Willis Wade," about a successful business man and his troubles. . . .

The author of "The Cain Mutiny," Herman Wouk, also is coming out with a new one, "Marjorie Morningstar," promised for March. . . . And Eudora Welty, who gave us "The Ponder Heart" last year, will soon have another book out, "The Bride of Innisfallen." . . . These are only the novels—there will be plenty more besides, of criticism, biography, and what-all. . . . For example, new biographies of such widely diversified people as Casanova, Chang Kai-Shek and President Eisenhower, to say nothing of Booth, Tarkington and Greta Garbo. . . . Have you had enough for awhile? Anyway, you won't have to worry about reading material for another year or so. . . .

Speaking of coming events, here are some of importance on the local scene: "The Devil's Disciple," satirical comedy at its best, by George Bernard Shaw, no less, will be the winter presentation of the E.C.C. College Theatre. Performances will be at 8:30 on the evenings of January 19 and 20, in the College Playhouse, and general admission tickets are available at a dollar apiece—cheap at half the price, for something by G.B.S., we think. You can get them through the mail, from The East Carolina Playhouse, E.C.C. . . .

And next Wednesday, January 12, at the date of the third Forum on Controversial Issues, being held in the Sheppard Memorial Library Hall and starting at 7:30 P.M. The topic to be discussed is "U.N. Charter Revision and World Government," and Dr. W.E. Marshall of the College will lead it. Serving as commentators will be Rev. Hane of the First Christian Church and Mr. Sam Underwood, Mr. Michael Luskin, President of the Greenville Unitarian Fellowship, sponsoring organization, will preside, and Dr. George Pasti will be the moderator. . . . Go and join the discussion—it's good for the soul. . . .

Today's reviewer is Dr. Kelly Crockett of the E.C.C. Department of English, who reviews the December selection of the Literary Guild. . . . And speaking of reviews, the verdict on "Carnival in Flanders," first presentation of the East Carolina Film Club last Wednesday evening, varied from "stupendous" to "terrific"—we hope the next three will be as good. . . .

MR. MAUGHAM HIMSELF. By W. Somerset Maugham, New York: Doubleday & Co., 1954. I must confess that I approached the reading of this recent selection of the Literary Guild with a measure of skepticism, feeling that it was a not too clever dodge of the author and publisher to realize fresh capital out of old compositions. The vowed purpose—to issue a sort of "literary" biography of Somerset Maugham by presenting the reader with a collection of his writings more self-revelatory than others, rang rather hollow in my ears. . . .

I cannot say that my reading changed my opinions completely, but it did dispose me to feel more kindly toward the enterprise. . . .

OF HUMAN BONDAGE, is included in full in the book. Though it is his most popular novel, it is not, in my belief, his most artistic. Nor is it as autobiographical as most readers assume. It was published in the wake of Samuel Butler's THE WAY OF ALL FLESH and James Joyce's PORTRAIT OF THE ARTIST AS A YOUNG MAN, and repeats their themes of a young man carried through childhood, schooling, emotional and spiritual struggles, to attain goals of satisfactory adjustment of life and ambition. Similarities between THE WAY OF ALL FLESH and OF HUMAN BONDAGE, I feel, are too striking to be accidental. Mr. Maugham's novel, nevertheless, compares favorably with these two significant works, and for sustained interest is superior to them. Nor can there be any question that the personal element is a major factor in both its popular success and literary distinction. . . .

The two short stories in this collection are even better indications of the artistic powers of Maugham. In these he makes full use of the dramatic techniques mastered in—writing successful plays. He is one of the few really good short story writers of our time. His brilliant essay on "El Grecco" reveals his considerable powers as a critic. In "Some Novelists I have Known," THE SUMMING UP, and the extract from A WRITER'S NOTEBOOK we are afforded an insight in a major writer's attitude toward his contemporaries, life in general (very general), and his profession. One is particularly struck in these with the sanity and sense of most of his observations. . . .

I have concluded finally that one should not hesitate to acquire MR. MAUGHAM HIMSELF for value and enjoyment. However, the "real" Mr. Maugham as distinguished from the professional man remains as tantalizingly hidden as before, unless other readers have greater perception than I. He has, in fact, set before us views of himself which he wants us to see, and no more. . . .

General Statute May Better Fit The Need

We can see no harm in placing Greenville under the general statute of the state which provides for municipal spending for recreational purposes. On the contrary, there are some aspects of the move which should prove advantageous for the city.

It appears to us that steps to include Greenville under the uniform legislation which governs recreational spending for other municipalities of the state is preferable to raising the maximum amount for recreation local legislation now in effect, or keeping the present local legislation on the books.

We see little reason for the city officials to question the validity of spending municipal non-tax funds for recreation, so far as they do not go beyond the authority given in the legislation. There are other aspects to be considered, however.

The Recreation Commission doubtlessly has asked that the limit on recreation expenditures be removed to pave the way for requesting higher recreation appropriations in the coming years. While Greenville can not afford to have its expenses top-heavy with spending for recreation, it is obvious the city must keep its recreation program abreast of the needs of its increasing population.

Whether the maximum amount which can be spent for recreation in Greenville is specifically limited by statute as in the existing local legislation, or is left without a specified maximum as in the general legislation, the City Council still determines how much the city will spend for its recreation program. If local recreation expenditures are regulated under the general statute, the City Council may fluctuate its recreation appropriations as the needs and times require and permit without being hampered by a specified figure arbitrarily set in a local legislation bill.

Certainly the City Council can decide how much the city can afford to spend for recreation with or without a maximum figure set by legislation. It is our feeling the City Council can approach the matter more objectively by having the general statute as its guide than by having local legislation governing maximum expenditures.

An Intimate Look Into Functions Of Government

The vast amount of research and labor, soul-searching conclusions and recommendations involved in yesterday's address by President Eisenhower and Governor Hodges comprise one of the wonders of the age.

North Carolinians received on one day the generalized proposals for guiding the future of the State and Nation. As food for thought, the two heads of government proffered a rich and varied diet.

Present and future problems, present and future needs, present and future policies and suggested policies were outlined in considerable detail; yet there was so wide a scope of activity to be covered that the public is still left with the enjoyable aftermath of much conjecture and speculation as to what actual policies and results are in store.

In effect, we yesterday saw two men (and their advisors) plotting future history . . . the story of mankind, insofar as their positions made it possible.

Education, taxation, trade, conservation, national defense, health, and even the fate of all free peoples were touched upon by the speakers. Their words dealt not only with the everyday facets of living, but with matters of life and death, of healthy growth or subtle regression.

Both spokesmen voiced findings of their ablest assistants, most trusted advisors and from the depths of their own experience and conscience. In short, we were given an intimate look into the workings of state and national government as it operates today.

The problems are so great and the field so varied that we will hear more detailed elaborations in the future from the President; and it is more than probable Gov. Hodges will similarly feel it necessary to elucidate to some degree on North Carolina's problems and his recommendations.

Selected Shorts

A short time ago Dorothy Thompson wrote: "Private enterprise, we note, is always called an 'interest' while State capitalist ventures are presented as disinterested instruments of the 'people.' This is baldly dash. Government, what it feeds on, every Government agency and its functionaries are hungry for more appropriations; and more power; they, too, are 'interests.'"

Young men and women starting out in business today have a better chance to succeed than yesterday's heroes the famed Horatio Alger books, according to President Clem D. Johnston of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Mr. Johnston pointed out that the heroes of the Alger books, for all their diligence, honesty and thrift, usually owed a part of their eventual success to a boost from a guardian-angel type of benefactor.

"The 19th century," Mr. Johnston said, "was still an era of congenial social classes. The Alger hero didn't succeed without a benefactor, because in those days few persons did—regardless of initiative and effort."

The 20th century, Mr. Johnston said, has brought a new kind of society in which youth does not have to depend so heavily upon luck or a benefactor. All youth needs today is ambition, courage and proper schooling. The prospects offered by the approaching atomic age dwarf the imagination.

ORDER—Despite the surface evidence of confusion around legislative halls, especially at the opening session, there is a definite order of procedure and protocol which must be followed. The first item of business in the Senate after President Barnhart had been sworn in was adopted of rules. The situation of a Senator being elected president of the body for the first time in eight years required a slight change in rules of previous sessions before they could be made applicable for even temporary use. There was one place in the rule book that referred to the "Lieutenant Governor as President of the Senate." Since there is now no Lieutenant Governor reference to that office had to be deleted before the newly elected President could function under the rules.

DECORUM—The words "order" and "decorum" are frequently interchanged, but they are not at all the same. The opening sessions of the two branches of the General Assembly this week. Order in the sense of following prescribed course of action was strictly observed, although there was slight change in procedure in the two branches. In the Senate the opening prayer was made before the roll call and administration of the oaths of office to the members. In the House of Representatives the prayer followed the swearing in of the members, but before they performed any of the immediate duties of electing officers.

CONSTITUENTS VS. DEFENSE—"One can only suppose that the Senators and Congressmen are more concerned with what they think their constituents would like than with national defense. And what of the long American advocacy of twenty-four months' military service for all the European Allies? That was based on the argument that fifteen and eighteen months was not enough for both training and service. "Has six months suddenly become more acceptable? The main groups of American draftees, of course, will continue to do twenty-four months. The six-month period is only for a limited reserve. But why bother with it? It is a waste of time and money."

IKE'S GOLF CLUB DILAPIDATED—President Eisenhower's favorite golf club, Burning Tree, is regarded as one of the most excellent and exclusive in the vicinity of Washington. It cannot handle all the applicants who have sought membership since he chose it as a recreation spot. But it has become so dilapidated that the second-floor ballroom can no longer be used for dancing. A famous and annual New Year's Eve party had to do its mamboning on the ground floor and locker-room corridor.

This Hand Is Worth 7 Spades

It must have been almost two years ago when I printed a bridge hand in this column. Several Greenville bridge experts undertook to solve the hand and did. As I remember, I had to reprint the hand twice to get it correct. This one is correct the first time.

R. L. Powell, one of the solvers of the previous hand, has submitted this one to me:

What Other Editors Are Thinking

LUNCHEONS VS. PRESS CONFERENCES
Charlotte (N.C.) News
Charlotte's luncheon clubs, most of them hoping always to increase attendance, ought to sit up and take notice of what is going on in the city. Herbert Brownell is doing. That fellow follows a formula which certainly increases the turnout. And—let politicians take note—it's a formula which will assure him many invitations to say which meal and a large audience at the same time.

Spades are trumps. West leads the eight of clubs and South makes all 13 tricks against any defense.
The idea that an average bridge player cannot make a hand with all 13 cards in front of him might seem foolish. But just try it. Bob has told me that he has the solution to this hand and if no one can make seven spades I will prevail on Bob to give it to me for print.
The last time I printed a puzzle hand it wasn't as difficult as this one. I remember that Bob solved it, along with George Wilkerson and some others I cannot recall right now.

call a press conference. But not Mr. Brownell. He shuns press conferences, picks up his hat and goes to lunch. Then he makes his important pronouncements, before an audience not so impolite as to ask questions, as newsmen frequently do.
It was at an Executives Club luncheon in Chicago that Mr. Brownell created a sensation by charging that Harry Dexter White was repeatedly promoted to high office during the Democratic administrations even though responsible officials knew he was a "Russian spy."
Recently Mr. Brownell made an announcement which, while not so sensational, is certainly

If you solve the hand please call me at 3440 daytime or 4830 at night.
The problem makes me wonder if any member of our Wednesday night club can solve it. Our club is rare in that the husbands play with their wives and there are no arguments.
Quite often the bridge table is where husband and wife cease to be partners. In our case, we remain together as teams and it works OK.
And to me of all card games bridge is the most fascinating, with the possible exception of poker which I have never learned how to play because of the pay-as-you-learn method.
And I thank you.

Just had the thought that, while maybe we're rarely hard to please, it would be nice if officials like Brownell who have big news made themselves available to the press more frequently, and if some of the people who try to manufacture big news via the press conference would go to lunch or some place.

Business Today

Financing Business

By ELMER ROESSNER
Financing smaller businesses has always been a problem. Owners and trustees of large funds naturally want to put them to work in larger chunks than small firms need. And, since small businesses are frequently speculative those with smaller funds to invest are cautious.

The government has long recognized this problem. There has been a succession of government agencies created to help finance smaller companies and even when Congress abolished the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it preserved its powers handed them over to the Small Business Administration.

That agency has now come up with a new solution for small business financing problems: sell stock.

It has worked out a program with the Securities and Exchange Commission whereby the SEC will furnish the SBA with current information on the issuance of securities. Many SEC regulations give special concessions to small corporations.

Under arrangements agreed upon by Wendell B. Barnes, SBA administrator, and Ralph H. Demmler, SEC chairman, the SEC will also participate in conferences, educational courses and the preparation of publications to assist smaller firms in financing plans.

Issuing stock may not be an automatic solution for many companies. Many investors hesitate to place money into securities for which there is no established market, and stock of small firms is rarely eligible for listing on the exchanges. However, the new Congress will consider proposals to set up investing companies for companies for financing in small corporations. These would be under the Federal Reserve System. And from time to time banks and other lenders have talked about establishing joint companies for investment in small businesses. While small enterprise may be speculative, spreading the risk among many firms will tend to minimize it.

Meanwhile when his banker turns chilly and his relatives decline opportunities for further investment, an operator of a small business in need of added financing may do well to visit the nearest field office of the SBA and talk about possibilities of (a) a loan or (b) advice on other methods of financing.

THE VALUE OF ALL goods and services produced in Puerto Rico has risen from $27,000,000 in 1949 to $1,194,000,000 last year—a gain of 327 per cent, according to a resume by the Commonwealth.

In that same period, net income rose 322 per cent, agricultural income rose 140 per cent, manufacturing income rose 442 per cent and total wages went up 440 per cent.

His Problem: An Expensive Car

By SAUL PETT
NEW YORK (AP)—A friend of mine has a problem which is relatively rare but quite human. His problem involves an expensive automobile—not how to pay for it but how to live with it.

You see, my friend Don lives in a small, middle-class suburb, which means nobody is really loaded or really hungry. There are very few $5,000 cars in his town.

Don runs his own business, which provides a comfortable income. Still, it's not a big-time income. But Don's wife's uncle has such an income, and the cars to match. He's so proud of his four-wheel drive Buick he'd be extremely pleased if his favorite niece's husband owned one.

And so it came to pass that Don's old car was dying with the shakes and shudders. To replace it with a new model of the same brand would cost almost $3,000. So his wife's uncle said, "You can have my '54 car for $3,000," which is every body on a scooter knows, is a bargain. Without taking it, Don said, "Sure, he'd take it as soon as he could sell his old car."

Since then he hasn't been sleeping well. He and his wife have had some heated discussions. But she insists he can't back out of the deal now because it would "hurt uncle's feelings."

Besides, their younger children have tried the push-button windows and the gadget for raising and lowering the radio antenna. And the glamo that squirts water on the windshield and they won't hear of any other car.
But Helen, their eldest child, insists, "I positively will not be dirty, forgetting that her husband's feelings."

Don has measured and remeasured his garage. While the car is shorter than the Queen Mary, it positively won't fit his garage even with the bikes and power mower removed. He could lengthen the garage. Yes, but will the local building code allow him to build out in front of the house line? Or will he have to get a new house?

Don has other misgivings and has tried to prepare the neighborhood by apologizing in advance. "But you see, it was such a good buy, I couldn't pass it up. After all, it's a great car, easy on gas for a big job, smooth-riding double the horsepower of my old heap."

While he believes this, Don is still uncomfortable. Just what will the neighbors think. Will they make jokes about the trunk being big enough for a kids' playroom? Will there be cracks about certain ostentatious people? Will they think he cleaned up?

Will he be silly still collecting half buck from his car pool riders—a man who could afford such a car? Will his church group expect his contribution to be doubled? Will the Boy Scouts forget their good manners if he makes his usual donation?

And what of his business associates? Don travels a great deal. Will the motel raise their prices when the super car rolls up? Will his clients say, "That boy is too expensive for us; anyway, he certainly doesn't need our trade." Or will they, on the contrary, say, "Must have a solid business there."

And most important, will Don's wife try to live up to the car? Will she insist on a mink stole and forgetting that her husband earns, perhaps, a Persian lamb-type income but certainly not mink.

Even Don has found himself looking at his own overcoat and wondering how the threadbare collar will look in the super deluxe job.
But all things considered—especially his wife and her feelings about her uncle's feelings—Don has decided to accept the car and make the best of it.
Could you be that brave?

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GUMPTION
A theological professor once addressed a group of new students as follows: "Gentlemen, you need three things if you are to be successful—gifts, God's grace, and gumption. We can do nothing to help you as to the first; I believe God has given you gifts. We can by training and prayer help you to gain grace. But if you do not have gumption, neither God nor man can help you, and I advise you not to continue your studies."

"Gumption" means common sense, shrewdness, enterprise. The word signifies the innate sense some people have of taking the right road and doing the right thing without being able precisely to say just why. Here is a highly educated person who appears to fall in everything. Here also is a person who never finished grade school, but he goes on to popularity and huge success. It would be hard to define why one has failed and the other succeeded, but the word "gumption" is probably as good an explanation as any.

We would disagree, however, with the theological professor that gumption cannot be developed. Life would be hopeless if such were true. Some people have gumption as a gift. Others acquire it—it can be acquired. A few have it forced upon them after the circumstances of life have kicked them all over the place.

But gumption can be secured and cultivated like any other quality.

Army Reductions Alarms Allies

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's proposed reduction of our military establishment, especially ground troops, has had the expected effect of alarming and discouraging our overseas allies. It has provoked Anglo-French fears that they cannot rely on us for protection, and it has led to renewed demands for a peace conference with the Malenkov regime. Neither 10 Downing Street nor the Quai d'Orsay has protested publicly against the program, but their military missions here have voiced their concern to General Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff. He opposed the cut in infantry strength, but he was outvoted by his colleagues, Admiral Arthur W. Radford, General Nathan F. Twining, Air Chief, and Admiral Robert B. Carney, Chief of Naval Operations.

In the proposed revision, which Congress may question when it passes upon appropriations for national defense, the Air Force and the Navy gain at the expense of the Army. Although a former member of the latter service, President Eisenhower sided with his rivals. He was, of course, thinking principally of how to reduce the drain on the Treasury.
FOREIGN PRESS CRITICISM—Although foreign diplomats and military experts have maintained a discreet silence on this problem, British and French newspapers show no restraint in criticizing the new training and draft system, as well as our plan to withdraw one division from Korea to Japan. And newspapers abroad frequently broadcast views which their governments hold but dare not express.
In noting that the Eisenhower plan calls for only six months training of reservists, the British and French refer to official American protests at the time when they cut their training periods from 24 to 15 and 18 months. They hint that President Eisenhower himself, then head of SHAPE, questioned the wisdom of those reductions in the face of the Russian menace.
BRITISH NEWSPAPER'S EDITORIAL—The Manchester Guardian, an influential newspaper generally friendly to Ike, ran an especially caustic editorial on the subject. It said in a recent issue: "It is astonishing that anyone with President Eisenhower's military acumen should have supported the new plan for giving young Americans six months' military training. The plan is almost worthless. What kind of a reserve can be formed from men with only their basic training and no service behind them?"

"The additional 100,000 reservists annually would be a wretched replacement for the intended reduction of active forces. It is astonishing not only that President Eisenhower has accepted the plan, but also that there have apparently been so few voices raised against it in the United States since it was announced."
CONSTITUENTS VS. DEFENSE—"One can only suppose that the Senators and Congressmen are more concerned with what they think their constituents would like than with national defense. And what of the long American advocacy of twenty-four months' military service for all the European Allies? That was based on the argument that fifteen and eighteen months was not enough for both training and service. "Has six months suddenly become more acceptable? The main groups of American draftees, of course, will continue to do twenty-four months. The six-month period is only for a limited reserve. But why bother with it? It is a waste of time and money."

THE PRESENCE OF MORE visitors a more news reporters, the flashing of camera bulbs and the space-consuming radio control gadgets, the glaring lights in procedure in the two branches. In the Senate the opening prayer was made before the roll call and administration of the oaths of office to the members. In the House of Representatives the prayer followed the swearing in of the members, but before they performed any of the immediate duties of electing officers.

East Carolina Tops Presbyterian

Blue Hose Given 81-70 Setback By Pirate Team

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

The East Carolina Pirates disregarded the press notices of Presbyterian and went out and gave the South Carolina visitors a sound thrashing 81-70 last night before a full house in Memorial Gym.

The Blue Hose, one of the better known teams for the fast break, was given a lesson in the art of touch-and-go. Coach Howard Porter's Blue Hose, the only unbeaten college unit in the state, out-ran and out-shot Presbyterian at every turn. Interest in the contest diminished some by the Pirates' halftime lead, 39-28—an 11-point spread as was the final margin.

No. 6

The win was number six for East Carolina against no losses. Coach Norman Sloan's charges now have seven wins in nine tries.

The Pirates' top man, point-wise, was, according to Hoyle, Don Harris. The sophomore sparked poured in 27 points on eight field goals and 11 free throws. The second man along the line was J. C. Thomas, junior guard. The speedy back-lineman scored 23 points on nine field goals and five gift tosses. Most of his points came on one-handers from the outside. He was responsible for ECC's six points, dumping long arching setshots.

Ragan Hot For PC

Presbyterian's hottest pistol was Ron Ragan, a red-faced redhead Indiana product, who flipped in 27 points on nine field goals and nine free tosses. His shooting in the second half was the only thing that kept PC in challenging distance. Eddie Well was the visitors' number 2 man in scoring. He tallied 18, all from the outside.

Akins Rebounding Good

Waverly Akins, 6-4 senior forward-center, collected only five points but snatched 14 rebounds to steal the thunder of PC's Bill Lipp (6-8) and Ragan (6-6) in that department. The Pirates were bumping along, finding it hard to stay up with the Blue Hose until Akins entered the lineup after 10 minutes had elapsed. Right off the bat, he took control of the rebounding and East Carolina forged ahead.

Harris and Thomas did the most damage in the first half. Harris had 11 points at intermission and Thomas had 10. Cecil Heath, Buc captain, played well throughout the game and contributed 12 points to the cause.

Thomas Good Job

Presbyterian's shooting was very poor and they looked ragged at times. Their shot would drop and Akins and Nichols and Harris were getting the board bounces. Thomas did a good job on Well, the Blue Hose pepperhot. The little freshman was held to his lowest percentage of the season. Against High Point he shot 27 and had been averaging 20-plus for the first eight games.

Harris' 27 points moved his average up to 24.7. He now has scored 148 points in six games. Thomas' average moved to 13 per contest with 78 points.

The Pirates play Elon tomorrow night in Burlington and travel to High Point Monday night for a busy weekend of North State Conference basketball.

Phantoms Host To Pam Pack Tonight

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville's sharp shooting basketballers move into their second conference battle tonight on the local court against the Washington Pam-Pack in quest of their second straight loop win. The varsity game starts at eight o'clock with a juyve contest on tap at 6:30 between the two schools.

The Green Phantoms, who soundly trounced New Bern Tuesday night to the tune of 74-49, will be facing one of their chief rivals in the Pack tonight. In years past the rivalry between the two schools has shown that the favorite rating before the game means very little. Each team is usually up for its best game against the other.

Tonight the Farleyman will be cast in the favorites rating. The G-men have looked terrific and terrible on certain occasions this year but the general consensus is that the G-men can beat almost any team in the state on a hot night. The G-men hit their height of shooting ability in the pre-Christmas games when they racked up an 103-69 win and a 98-71 win in two consecutive games against Eastern A.C. teams. Since then the Green Phantoms have not been such prolific scorers but they have maintained an average of 70.2 points per game.

The Greenville sharp shooters may be handicapped to some extent tonight. Guard Pat Sawyer, the floor leader and third ranking scorer on the team, has been bothered of late by a bad shoulder. It is feared that Sawyer's shoulder is dislocated and that it will be some time before he is in top form again. Sawyer will play in tonight's game although he will not be up to par.

Other starters in the Greenville lineup will probably be Tommie Saleed at the other guard, Harold Edwards at center, Edgar Moore and Bob Howell at the forwards. Ike Riddick, Greenville's reluctant shooter, will be the sixth man in the line-up. Riddick usually plays more than some of the starters. Clark Noble, the 6-5 hook shot expert, also will receive plenty of action.

The Pam-Pack lost most of their players from last year that finished third in the conference tourney. Back from last season's squad are Mickey Cochran and Winkie Young as the two main scorers.

The preliminary game between the two schools will get underway at 6:30 with the Baby Phants aiming for their first win of the young campaign against the Junior Pam-Pack.

Showdown Seen On Football TV

By MURRAY ROSE
NEW YORK (AP)—The rebelling Big Ten may force an all-or-nothing showdown today in the NCAA convention over the dynamic-laden football television problem—a showdown that possibly could wreck the 49-year-old organization.

H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, University of Michigan athletic director, yesterday demanded more liberal television along national-regional lines, or else the Big Ten might go ahead on its own. The Big Ten called for nine regional and four national telecasts.

And another Big Ten figure said he planned to ask the NCAA membership to vote today on a resolution for regional TV.

"If the convention turns it down, my school will go ahead and arrange to televise its games on its own," said the representative, who asked anonymously.

Such unilateral action normally would result in expulsion from the NCAA and force the national organization to order its members not to compete with the insurgent. Thus, the school would not have anyone to play with let alone telecast a game. But the Big Ten apparently wants to get the explosive issue settled now instead of two or three months later if normal procedure were followed.

Crisler in making his dramatic pronouncement in a 25-minute talk, said his powerful and influential conference would stick by any member forced to break ranks by state legislative pressure.

In such an event, national controls on TV would be finished and the gates to unrestricted television would be wide open. This is what Notre Dame and a number of other schools have been advocating for several years.

Crisler made his statement in a round-table discussion of six possible plans for telecasting this fall. After the oratory, the members voted in a secret straw ballot. The results of the poll were not to be disclosed and were to be used for the guidance only of the 1955 NCAA TV committee to be chosen today.

This committee, normally, would digest the information, delve into every angle of the situation and then offer a television program to be voted on by the members via the mails.

But Father Edward P. Joyce, vice president of Notre Dame, said he will ask that the vote be disclosed today so that the sentiment of the membership will be known.

Even with all of the bitterness engendered yesterday, one source said he believed that a compromise TV plan still had a chance of being put through.

Crisler, a member of the 1954 TV Committee which mapped out last year's national "Game of the Week" program, startled the convention by saying:

"If any plan like last year's were adopted, we (the Big Ten) would be forced to reject it... would abstain from participating in it and then probably would be forced, by legislative pressures to televise within the conference."

He said the Big Ten had swung around to the regional side over a period of years after various bills were submitted in state legislatures to force state institutions to televise all of their games. Nine of the Big Ten schools are state supported.

"We have doubt as to how much longer they can resist," Crisler said. "If one such bill passed in our conference, I think no doubt the other nine institutions would stand by the college affected and accept the consequences from the NCAA. We feel the situation is serious. We're in trouble on television and if we are in trouble, everybody else is."

Isn't Necessary To Be Tall For Scoring

NEW YORK (AP)—Ohio State's Robin Freeman stands only 5 feet 10 inches but he is showing the nation's college basketball players that it isn't necessary to be tall to be the leader in scoring.

The little guard has an average of 34.6 points a game on 242 points in seven games through last Saturday to set the pace for the fourth straight week, according to figures released today by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. Service Bureau.

But for Freeman, the South would dominate the scoring race among major college players. The next five—the only others who've averaged more than 29 pct's a game—all represent either the Southern or the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Darrell Floyd, successor to 1953-54 champion Frank Selvy at Furman, is closest to Freeman for the third straight week. His 32.3-point race is followed by Bill Yarborough's 30.5 for Clemson, Buzz Wilkinson's 30.0 for Virginia, John Mahoney's 29.9 for William and Mary and Dickie Hemric's 29.4 for Wake Forest.

Hemric and Wilkinson are the first to reach 300 in total points. The Wake Forest ace has counted 323 times in 11 games while Wil-

Los Angeles (AP)—Almost everybody had something complimentary to say about the weather which was provided for the start of the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament—everybody, that is, except first-round leader Bo Winger.

It was windy, cold and rainy, but the 32-year-old Oklahoma City professional, who shot a 33-35—68 to lead by a stroke after 18 holes yesterday, commented:

"Whenever you shoot well you can look at the best part of things."

Par was supposed to take a terrific beating on the short 6,808-yard, par 36-35, Inglewood Country Club course until the weatherman stepped in. Only nine of the 131 players in the $32,500 tournament came in under par.

Grouped at 70 were Jay Hebert, Long Island, N.Y.; Johnny Buia, who alternates between Phoenix, Ariz., and Pittsburgh, Pa.; Jimmy Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif.; Milan Marusic, Los Angeles; Johnny Palmer, Charlotte, N.C.; and Gardner Dickinson, Panama City, Fla.

Walczak sank his first 28 free throws before missing and has an average of 96.5 per cent. Scott is second with 93.2. Slack has recovered 25.8 rebounds a game to Quimby's 25.2.

NEW REGIME

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—President Carlos Ibanez has announced formation of a new government made up largely of his own Agrarian Laborite party members and army officers. It ends an eight-day cabinet crisis precipitated Dec. 29 after the government yielded to Congress' demand that it lift a state of limited martial law imposed to cope with labor unrest in the nation.

Eight Schools Of Pitt Conference Playing Tonight

Tonight sees eight of the nine members of the Pitt County Basketball Conference in action:

Ayden at Contentnea
Belvoir at Winterville
Grimesland at Chocod
Farmville at Bethel
Robersonville at Stokes

Ayden's clubs entertain non-conference Contentnea in what promises to be an exciting meet. Contentnea battered the county teams in football and in the cage game. Ayden's teams have improved with seasoning and stand a good chance of taking the visitors.

The Belvoir-Winterville conference class should provide fireworks. Winterville boys are the only unbeaten team in league play with a 5-0 mark and Belvoir will have more to show than just an ordinary win. The girls' is rated pretty much of a toss-up.

Chocod and Grimesland also hook up in a loop encounter. Chocod's teams are experiencing pretty porous seasons but hope to get on the winning line tonight. On the other hand, Grimesland's teams have been doing well and are threats in the conference.

Farmville plays Bethel's powerful teams in what is expected to be the best game on tap. Both schools have winning teams and stand near the top of the league. The game is expected to draw a huge crowd into the Bethel gym.

Outsider Robersonville, who's having much success with Pitt County's unexpected Stokes-Facilius. The home teams on a given night can give any team around a good game. They are one of the favorites in the local loop. Robersonville has most of their championship personnel of last year back and boasts a fine win-loss record.

GIVE PORTER CREDIT WHERE CREDIT'S DUE

Last winter, while other colleges were cutting each others throats to get at the ballyhooed boys of the bigger high schools in the state Coach Howard Porter of East Carolina was busily seeking out the man in the back ground.

The sports scribes of the state say he's done it again—scooped the hungry Atlantic Coast and Southern Conference coaches in the ever-moving search for basketball talent. In Carvel (Nick) Nichols of Tri-City and Guy Mendenhall of Cary, sports authorities say Porter has the best first-year duo in the state. The rest of his freshman repository stands also high in quality and promise.

Acutely aware of the tremendous rebuilding task due to graduation of Bobby Hodges and Charlie Huffman, Porter snuck Nichols from Tri-City. Although greatly instrumental in his team's championship drive, Nichols took a backseat in scoring to Charlie Adams, now at Carolina. The highly-publicized Adams is a freshman starter at Chapel Hill but his exploits have been anything but outstanding.

Nichols on the other hand, broke into the Pirates' starting lineup before the season opened and it appears after six standout performances that his forward job will remain intact. He is currently the team's second highest scorer and number 1 rebounder.

At the Class A tourney last year, the talent hounds did flips over the hardwood property of Roy Seracy, 6-4 forward. The high-scoring Seracy was the darling of the sports writers and drew praise from coaches all around. Porter went behind Seracy and got Mendenhall. The lean blond has already established a wider reputation than Seracy, who is also at Carolina.

Mendenhall's job at East Carolina was more voluminous than most people understood. He was stepping into the shoes of Bobby Hodges conference player. Although a slow starter, Mendenhall has apparently taken the big jump from high school to college in stride. His rebounding of late has improved and he's averaging 10 points a contest.

Porter picked up Waddell Solomon, peppery little guard from Greensboro. The big shot on the Whites was Tommy McDonald who initially enrolled at Carolina and now has moved over to Elon and sitting out a year's eligibility. Fred Crockett was also given a big publicity play at Greensboro. He is playing guard for High Point of the NS loop. Neither has added much prestige during the early part of the season. Solomon shows promise and could develop along the lines of Cecil Heath, Buc captain.

From Haw River, Porter lured Jerry Bosquet. The big center has a fine hook shot and only needs seasoning. The most talked about stars on the Haw River outfit, though, were Sonny Clayton and Pete Stout, both now at Catawba. The Indians are knocking along in the league cellar. Fred James of Churchland, Va. was one exception. He was probably the most heralded prep star in the state. His record of 83 points in one game will most likely remain unmolested for a long time.

This wasn't the first time that Porter had out-grabbed the big satchmen. Remember back when Sonny Russell was interested in throwing in with State's Wolfpack? Porter got him interested in a school close to home and that was the turning point in East Carolina's basketball fortunes. Hodges also was interested in another school, Carolina, namely, but was induced to don the Purple and Gold.

Already Porter and Coach Earl Smith are planning traps for this year's outstanding players, locally and outer-state. The tenacles of the Pirate recruiting service have grown immensely in recent years. The credit goes to the man in the red vest.

BASEBALL SHOTS FROM HERE AND THERE

Paced by fabulous Dusty Rhodes, the New York Giants set an all-time record for pinch-hit home runs in 1954. The Giants connected for 10 pinch circuits to break the previous record of seven, held jointly by the 1932 Dodgers and 1953 Yankees. . . The South Atlantic League lost a good man when Hoke Vandgriff, owner of the Montgomery club was killed in a private plane crash returning from the Gator Bowl. . . The Milwaukee Braves posted an identical team batting average in 1953 and 1954. . . If this weather keeps up, many will start dragging out that old mitt and baseball again!

Sugar Ray Signs Tiger Jones Bout For Jan. 19 In Comeback Campaign

CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, in a comeback he hopes will lead to a middleweight title fight with champion Bobo Olson in June, has been booked to meet rugged Ralph (Tiger) Jones in Chicago Stadium Jan. 19.

The bout will give a national television audience its first look at the slick 34-year-old former welterweight and middleweight champion since he retired 30 months ago to become a song-and-dance man.

Robinson, who announced he was through with the ring after exhausting himself in the heat against Joey Maxim in a light heavyweight title scrap, started back up the ladder Wednesday with a six-round TKO knockout of Joe Rindone in a nontelevised Detroit fight.

Truman Gibson, International Boxing Club secretary, said yesterday that Robinson's new manager Joe Glaser has objected to Jones as "a little too tough for Robinson at this point."

However, Gibson was emphatic, saying that "if Robinson wants to box in Chicago, it'll have to be Jan. 19 with Jones or nobody."

The Baseball Writer's Assn. of America was founded in 1908 at Detroit.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 1:1; Exodus 3; Psalm 103:1-13; Isaiah 40:25-29; Matthew 6:9; John 4:23-24; 10:30; Acts 17:22-31.

"Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number; He calleth them all by names by the greatness of His might, for that He is strong in power."—Isaiah 40:26.

Jesus went up into a mountain and His disciples came to Him. They asked Him how they should pray, and He answered, "After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy name."—John 6:9.

Sitting by a well in Samaria, Jesus talked to a woman of the country. She asked Him when he should worship, and He answered, "God is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth."

Paul stood on Mars hill, in Athens, and preached to the people about "the Unknown God" to whom they had raised an altar. He told them of God and His Son, Jesus Christ, our Saviour. MEMORY VERSE—John 4:24.

The Living God

THE LORD IS ALL-POWERFUL, ALL-WISE AND MERCIFUL.

Scripture—Genesis 1:1; Exodus 3; Psalm 103:1-13; Isaiah 40:25-29; Matthew 6:9; John 4:23-24; 10:30; Acts 17:22-31.

By NEWMAN CAMPEL

AFTER CAREFUL reading of all the references given us in today's lesson, we must confine ourselves to those chosen to be printed, or our space will be more than filled.

We begin with Psalm 103:8, where the Psalmist writes: "The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy."

"He will not always chide; neither will He keep His anger forever. He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities."

"For as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is His mercy toward them that fear Him. "As far as the east is from the west, so far hath He removed our transgressions from us."

"Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him."

How do we know that there is a God? I like Dr. Smith's illustration of this point, especially to the younger classes. He says if we visited a desert island where it was thought no one lived, but we came upon a house in the forest, with walls, mats of reeds, maybe a crude table, we would know at the city of Samaria. She was not a good woman, and He revealed that He knew her history, but He talked with her, and in the course of the talk she asked Him where men should worship. Her fathers worshipped in Samaria, she said, but the Jews said Jerusalem was the holy city. Where did He say men should worship?

Jesus answered her: "God is a spirit; and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth."

God is everywhere. We go to church and join in the service of worship, and we feel very near to Him. However, everywhere we are, if we worship Him in spirit and truth, He is with us, "For the Father seeketh such to worship Him."

Athens, famous Greek city, was considered the intellectual center of the world in Paul's day. There he went to preach the gospel of Christ, and on Mars Hill, in the midst of those who discussed and argued all the questions of the religions, he stood and preached one of the finest sermons of all time. He began:

"Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious. For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an once that people—or a person—had been there and built the house.

We look upon the world about us, at the heavens, the sun, and we know at once that only God could have created it—"the all-powerful architect." He is all-wise, as well as powerful. He is a loving God and He is our loving Father.

We may sin and repent of our sins, and know that He, being a merciful Father, will forgive us and help us to do better. He will comfort us in our sorrows and give us strength in our weakness.

"Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number; He calleth them all by names by the greatness of His might, for that He is strong in power; not one faileth."

Jesus felt His closeness to His Father while He was on earth. He was among men—many of them unbelieving and seeking to destroy Him. "I and My Father are one," He said. He taught His disciples how to pray to God, their Father and His. When they asked Him how they should pray, He answered, "After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name."

John tells us of Jesus' meeting with the Samaritan woman while He was resting beside a well near

Thrilled Seeing Tot Climb Stair

BOSTON (AP)—Bright-eyed Constance de Staal, who is not quite 3, thrilled several onlookers yesterday merely by climbing a flight of stairs. She is a triple amputee. Her left leg, right foot and right hand were amputated when she was 13 months old because of a rare blood circulation condition. She smilingly demonstrated the artificial limbs developed for her by Joseph Aveni, head of the amputee department of the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. Aveni said she behaved as a normal child as soon as the limbs were fitted to her: "She ran, jumped, climbed—and sometimes fell down."

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

I climbed out into the cold wind and pulled the parka hood over my head. As I reached for my gloves I remembered they'd been in my bush jacket.

The old log road I'd noticed yesterday led back along the west side of the ridge in the right direction so I took it. I pushed on until I came to the base of the cliff. It was very much like the east side—desolate, wild, maybe a few more rock fragments piled around, more laurel clinging to the sides. I started searching among the trees and back in the crevices when I could reach them.

I soon saw I wasn't getting any place. It would take two or three men a day to cover this. I took out Cricket's note and read it again. It definitely said Go Up On Spiny Rocks.

I looked above me. Something falling from the top might have lodged in one of those shelves or in a crevice. Getting it out of there could be a problem, which might be why it hadn't been accomplished before this. If I was going to do much searching while it was light I'd have to hurry.

I turned and retraced my steps along the log road.

Back at the gap the Jaguar and the paved highway were incongruous touches in this lonely place but in my state of mind they looked good. So good I wished I didn't have to walk away from them.

This time I took the path that climbed the shoulder. I noticed my pulse was hitting it a little fast. It wasn't altogether the steep pull. Once up on the rocks, they seemed narrower than I remembered. I pushed the furry parka hood back from my face and started out. It's one of those things you do and tell yourself it's all right.

I worked my way out of the rocks, making an effort to keep my mind off where I was and trying to be methodical. By using both hands I could peer down the west face into the fissures. Several large clumps of mountain laurel clung to the brink and somehow managed to grow in tangle, down among the huge splits, making it difficult to penetrate the depths. That dark mass of stuff could have hidden the contents of a good sized cemetery.

I squinted my eyes against the wind and wished I was out of here. Somewhere, very far away,

I heard the droning hum of a plane. I straightened and shoved the fur hood away from my ears and the sound was less hypnotic.

I wished I was in that plane going some place. Any place, where there were people.

One of the bad parts of being up here was the wind—the way it came at you, pushing you off-balance, then letting up, which was nearly as treacherous. Now there was also the sound of it as it seemed suddenly to rise in pitch with a hissing whistle. Instinctively I braced myself against it but it wasn't there. The reflex threw me off-balance and I went onto all fours, clawing at the rocks to hang on. Air fanned my face as a huge shadow skimmed over my head from behind like a dive bomber with landing gear extended.

Winds and tall flared and pulled out of the dive with a sickening, fluttering sound of wind through feathers. I've never seen anything look so large as those outstretched wings against the sky. As the eagle rolled off in a bank, the feathered legs drew slowly up out of sight with two slender thighs trailing out behind.

Raw fear had me frozen like a rabbit facing death, crouching there with jelly instead of muscles.

The eagle had wheeled out of view and I lay feeling my legs try to move the way you do in a nightmare and only twitch. After repeated efforts, I wobbled to my feet and with nothing in mind but to get away from there scrambled over the rocks my feet trying to dig into the rough surface. I heard the whining wings again and jerked down. Something hard and sharp struck my neck and raked the back of my scalp. It knocked me face-down and I felt hot sweat running over my neck and forehead past my ears. I tried to wipe it out of my eyes but I was looking through a film of red blurring the big bird zooming up again. There was no pain, YET—just insane, animal rage at being battered and deliberately ripped into strips like a piece of bait. I was on my hands and knees now, yelling. The eagle banked, and it actually turned its head to watch me.

I started crawling—my hands and feet on the rocks, praying for time. Several feet from the bush I knew I hadn't made it. I sensed it coming, more with the small of my back than with my ears. I made the plunge from my knees and caught at branches of laurel, feeling it give with my weight. The spring of it let me down over the west side, gasping and choking for breath—my feet scraping sharp rock for a hold, then swinging free. For a moment I thought the laurel was coming loose but it held. I pulled myself up from underneath into the tangle of branches, wedging as far into the center as I could.

The eagle was on the rocks now, about level with my shoulders and coming at the laurel clump in a clumsy hopping gait. I could see the frowning head, flattened and long the razor-sharp black-prowed beak running back under the eyes like thin lips into a mirthless yellow smile—the expression of a professional killer who feels his duty to look mean. The huge thing waddled around the edge of the laurel clump on stiff legs feathered to the claws. The whole look of it, the large-scale feathers, the deadly intensity, more than that—the fact that it moved, that it was doing this to me, was some-

College Notes 114 Seniors Teaching In Winter Term

East Carolina College has begun its program of student teaching for the winter quarter, and 114 seniors are gaining practical experience in the classroom as they prepare themselves for careers in education.

Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of the Bureau of Student Teaching and Placement at the college, has just issued a report which indicates that 66 women and 52 men are now conducting classes in public schools in Eastern North Carolina. In addition to the Wash-Coates Laboratory School on the campus, the Greenville High School, and other city schools here, the seniors are located in 14 other public schools of this area.

Thirty-four of the total number of seniors are teaching classes on the primary and the grammar-grade levels. Others are engaged in work in grades nine through 12 of secondary schools. Four students of music are teaching both elementary and high-school classes so as to gain a well-rounded experience in public school music instruction. One senior majoring in art is teaching this subject in the elementary grades of the Greenville public school system.

Subjects being taught by the East Carolina seniors include art, business education, English, home economics, industrial arts, mathematics, music, health and physical education, science, foreign languages, and the social studies.

Centers where East Carolina seniors are now teaching include, in addition to the campus laboratory school, Greenville, Washington, Tarboro, Robersonville, the School for the Blind in Raleigh, Kinston, Williamston, Bethel, Winterville, Ayden, Stokes, Farmville, Grimesland, Chocoma, and Belvoir.

Buggy making is still a business in the United States.

thing I wasn't supposed to believe. When I saw it couldn't reach me, it took off the edge of the cliff and started circling low around the bush, screaming like a lunatic. Suddenly it bored in, its golden head extended with the assassin look in its eyes. Twigs snapped and huge pinions beat the foliage as it came with feet thrown forward, trying to drive the talons deep enough to reach me. As I kept turning, hoping to keep my face covered with my arms, it made repeated efforts to strike me from behind. I thought it might be the blood on my neck that attracted it and I tried to cover it up with the fur-lined parka hood.

As my fingers touched the fur, nice—long—white—fur, I suddenly got it. I told myself it wasn't possible but I knew as I did it that I'd never been so wrong.

In a numbed daze I unfastened the zipper and fought my way out of the parka sleeves, struggling among the branches to dodge those lunging claws. I got it off and shoved it through the limbs, pushing it with my foot till it was almost free of the bush.

into the white fur. As it balanced there on the brink of the cliff it couldn't seem to believe there was no flesh underneath for it kept tearing off chunks of fur that rolled along the rocks like milkweed down. There was a bad moment when I thought it was going to remember me but, instead, it spread its wings and went out over the edge, dragging the parka with it. When the heavy garment cleared the rocks it slipped from the eagle's grasp and dropped. The eagle followed it down, striking it once, and then again, knocking out tufts of fur that floated in the wind.

MAGNETIC CURE

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dr. J. A. Muffy of Lewisburg, Pa., is demonstrating at the 55th annual conference of Pennsylvania veterinarians a gadget to cure a cow's stomach ache. It's a magnet on the end of a plastic tube which can be slithered into the animal's stomach to remove any metal objects that have been swallowed.

Will Urge Asian Economic Union

MANILA (AP)—Vice President Carlos P. Garcia said last night the Philippines would urge Manila Pact nations to establish an Asian economic cooperation union to promote regional trade.

"It would also strengthen the results of a meeting of member nations against Communist aggression," said Garcia, who also is foreign secretary.

He said the plan would include a currency system, similar to the European Payments Union, which would clear trade barriers arising from currency differences.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied strongly today after its severe decline of the past two days.

A surge of buying sent prices up sharply at the opening. In mid-morning there was a spate of profit-taking. In the early afternoon, however, the market was progressing strongly only a bit under its best prices.

Gains extended out to around 4 points at the very best in key sections. There were many gains of 1 to around 2 points. Losses were scarce. They were as great as 3 points in a few instances.

Trading was heavy with the tape dropping behind as much as three minutes during most of the first hour in reporting actual floor transactions. The pace thereafter was active.

Yesterday's volume soared to 8,300,000 shares, greatest since the outbreak of war in Europe in 1939. The rally today spread through all sections of the market with the aircrafts and steels in great demand.

Higher were Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Jones & Laughlin Steel U.S. Steel, Mack Truck, Lee Rubber, Western Union, Atlantic Coast Line, Sunray Oil, Amerasia Petroleum, Climax Molybdenum, and Union Carbide.

New York Central, the day's most active issue of the past two sessions, with a net gain of 1 1/2, started today on a block of 15,000 shares up 1/2 at 35, a new high for 1954-55. Allegheny Corp., which controls Central and has large Central holdings, opened up 1/2 at 3 1/2 on a block of 11,300 shares.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog prices 25 to 1.00 lower. Tops of 16.25 at Castle Hayne; 17.75 at Jacksonville, Plymouth Weldon, Scotland Neck, Rich Square and Washington; 17.50 at Tarboro, Ed-land and Goldsboro; 17.25 at Woodville, Micro, Freeman Siler City, Elizabethtown, Whiteville, Shalotte, Tabor City, Rocky Mount, Clinton and Lumberton; 17.00 at Fair Bluff, Clarkton, Bailey, Kenly, Kinston New Bern, Benson, Smithfield.

Highway District Had 25 Deaths

There were 25 traffic fatalities in 1954 in District 5, comprising Pitt, Lenoir, and Greene Counties, according to the annual report of the State Highway Patrol.

Seven of the 25 fatalities were in Pitt County. This compares with 34 fatalities in 1953, 15 of which were in Pitt County. In all there were 188 traffic injuries in the three counties in 1954.

Property damage in the three counties for last year was an estimated $225,000, compared with $232,330 for 1953. Property damage for Pitt County last year was $84,075, and $138,175 for 1953.

The district highway patrol made 8,764 arrests in 1954, 3,404 of which were in Pitt County.

The patrol investigated 213 traffic accidents in Pitt County last year, and 511 in the district. This compares with 306 in Pitt County the year before, and 627 in the district.

The 1954 annual report for the district was submitted by Sergeant John Laws, of the State Highway Patrol in Kinston.

Tax Listing Is Continuing Slow

County Auditor Reginald Gray announced this morning that 900 Greenville property owners have listed their taxes in the Court House through Thursday.

The latest figures show a total of 6,428 Greenville property owners who will list their property before the end of the month.

The county auditor again urges local citizens to list their taxes early to avoid possible long lines at the end of the month.

Worthington ...

to raise the money through a bond issue. "However, I'll have to be thoroughly convinced of the expediency in undertaking a program that will require a bond issue now."

Governor Hodges, who yesterday presented the subject message to the General Assembly, had announced earlier that he would stand behind the Budget Commission in its recommendations for the biennial budget.

"I would be willing to go along with the governor in his recommendations about the budget as long as I can do so in good conscience and when I am assured that he is right," Worthington declared.

"I certainly think every member of the legislature has a duty to himself and to his people to give some thought of his own to what he is doing and what he votes for."

The legislator said he is in favor of separating the prisons from the highway system.

"However, we are faced at the present time with a shortage in revenue. It may not be expedient from a financial standpoint at this time to undertake to carry out this idea, as I will entail the expenditure of quite a sum of money."

Worthington took no definite stand on the question of reapportionment of representation during the current session, a step which should have been taken by the 1951 legislature under provisions of the constitution.

"I hate to see our county lose a representative under the reapportionment," he asserted. "However, the constitution requires reapportionment. At this date I do not know whether the legislature will follow along the same course it did in the 1951 and 1953 sessions or not."

Pitt County's senior representative "heartily endorsed" permanent improvements at East Carolina College. The college has requested, among other things, two dormitories to take care of the swelling student body.

"I am heartily in favor of additional permanent improvements at the local college," he emphasized. "I only hope we will be able to find the money to do this."

Against Truant Officers
However, he turned thumbs down on a proposal to provide truant officers to enforce public school laws. "I see no need of funds to provide truant officers," he stated.

Nor would he favor annual sessions of the State Legislature as have been proposed in the past.

"I cannot see the propriety of annual sessions of the legislature," Worthington said.

Worthington indicated that he would favor changes in the coroner system.

"I think the coroner system can be improved on," he stated in recommending a study of the system. Worthington yesterday was named chairman of the Calendar Committee in the House. The veteran state lawmaker has served in every legislature since 1939.

Early Return Of Ballots Asked In Board Election

Members of the Greenville Merchants Association are urged to return their ballots for the election of the new Board of Directors of the organization as soon as possible, tallying committee chairman I. J. Edwards, Jr., said today.

All ballots must be returned by January 12, Edwards revealed, when the tallying committee will meet to count the votes. Response from the merchants thus far has been "very good," he said.

Every member of the Association has been mailed a ballot, containing the name of each member of the organization. From the membership 15 directors will be elected to the Board.

The newly elected directors will meet January 14 to choose officers for the coming year.

Perkins Resigns As ABC Officer

Glenn Perkins recently resigned as one of the county's three ABC officers.

Perkins served in the job for nine months, from last March through December.

His resignation now leaves two ABC officers in the county, J. M. Ward and H. B. Lilly.

BURNING CAR

Local firemen were called to a burning car at the West End Tea Room last night.

The car belonged to H. J. Hudson. Firemen said the car was uninsured.

NOTICE OF Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of the

First Federal Savings & Loan Association Of Greenville
Greenville, North Carolina
December 30, 1954

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the regular meeting of the Shareholders of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Greenville, will be held at the Principal Office of the Association at 324 Evans Street, City of Greenville, State of North Carolina, on Thursday, the 20th day of January, 1955, at eight o'clock P.M. (Wednesday the 19th a legal holiday, being Lee's Birthday) for the purpose of election of Directors for the coming year, and for receiving, and, if approved, confirming the reports of the officers for the preceding year, and of considering and if approved, ratifying and confirming all the accounts and proceedings of the Board of Directors of the Association done and taken during the preceding year, and for the transaction of such further and other business as may properly come before the meeting.

All holders of share accounts of the Association and all borrowers therefrom shall be deemed and held to be members thereof. If the consideration of all questions requiring action by the members, each holder of share account shall be permitted to cast one vote for each $100, or fraction thereof of the participation value of his share account. Executive Vice President

Committee Favors Raising Prices For Cemetery Lots

Prices of cemetery lots would be increased from $100 to $125 for four-grave lots and from $200 to $250 for eight-grave lots if recommendations of a committee appointed to study the lot costs are followed.

In a report to the city council at its monthly meeting the committee recommended that the present policy of charging double for lot purchasers who live out of town be continued.

That would increase the cost of a four-grave lot from $200 to $250 for out-of-towners and bring the cost of an eight-grave lot from $400 to $500.

The committee, composed of Councilmen J. A. Collins and Wesley Harvey and City Manager James S. Hughes, also recommended that no more money be placed in the Cemetery Savings Fund and the ordinance be amended to eliminate the requirement that 40 percent of the money derived from sale of lots go into the savings fund.

They reported that the Cemetery Savings Fund now has $46,555 credited to it and of this amount $4,000 will be needed to pay the city's share of the property purchased from the Williams' estate for future cemetery use, leaving a total of approximately $40,000 in the fund. It was recommended that that amount be left in the Cemetery Savings Fund to be used for purchasing additional land for the cemetery as the need arises. Under the plan the fund will be maintained at $25,000.

"When it becomes necessary to build the fund to $25,000, this would be done by figuring the life of the property acquired and placing money in the fund from the sale of cemetery lots at a small percentage, sufficient to reach the $25,000 at the time the money will be needed for purchase of new land," the report stated.

The committee recommended that all proceeds from sale of the lots be turned over to the general fund in lieu of being placed in the Cemetery Savings Fund.

Need for an increase in the selling price of the lots was based on estimates by the committee of an average of $15,000 per year in revenue from the sale of lots over the next 25 years at present prices. However, the committee estimated that expenditures on the cemetery will average $17,500 per year during the 25-year period. That would leave an annual deficit of $2,500, according to the committee report.

Estimates were based on average income for the past five years. Under the committee plans all future funds from the sale of lots will be applied to the operations of the cemetery through the General Fund rather than through the Cemetery Savings Fund. The committee had been making a study of the lot costs for some time and made their recommendations to the council Wednesday night.

No action was taken on the matter in order that council members might have more time to study the plan. A motion to defer action on the matter until the February City Council meeting was passed.

Pitt ABC Men Assist In Raid

Pitt County ABC officers joined with federal agents and Beaufort County officers to raid a 250 gallon submarine type still yesterday morning in Beaufort County.

Officer J. M. Ward reported that 1800 gallons of mash were found at the scene. He said James Ore, Negro, was arrested at the site of the still. Ore was given a preliminary hearing before U. S. Commissioner Buck Taylor in Washington yesterday afternoon and released under $300 bond for trial at the spring term of Federal Court in Washington.

Ore attempted to run from the still site and was caught by Beaufort County ABC officer Clyde Stubbs.

Ward reported that 150 gallons of freshly made spirits were destroyed at the still site. The unit was in operation when officers came upon it. A gas pump was used to pump water into the still. It was located in the Tranter's Creek Church section.

Making the raid were Beaufort County ABC officers Stubbs and Leslie Hawkins; Charles H. Smith, Alcohol Tax Agent from New Bern and Pitt County officers Ward and H. B. Lilly.

Hearing Waived

Johnny Wilson, through his attorney, waived a preliminary hearing on a manslaughter charge before Magistrate Frank Brooks, Wednesday evening.

Wilson has posted $1000 bond pending action by a grand jury in Pitt Superior Court term beginning January 24th.

Wilson is charged with manslaughter on a warrant signed by Marshall Jordan, a member of Eugene Jordan's family. A coroner's jury had previously absolved Wilson of any blame in the death.

Tried 203 Cases During December

Municipal Recorder's Court Clerk E. J. Dee's report for December, 1954, shows that 203 cases were tried, and there were 169 convictions or guilty pleas. There were 11 acquittals, four cases were combined or not prosed, 13 cases were sent to Superior Court, and the defendants in six cases were called and failed to answer to their names.

The report shows that 12 defendants were given time to pay fines and costs totaling $187.

Eight defendants who had been allowed time in which to pay fines and costs paid in full $226.40.

Disbursements in December were as follows: Paid to City Clerk H. H. Duncan, $1,791.60 (court costs); paid to Pitt County auditor, $833.60 (court fines); paid to State Treasurer, $308; paid to Pitt County Peace Officers' Association, $154. Cash bond refund in case No. 9670 was $15. Total—$3,162.20.
