Camera News

TEEN-AGER in the family proved a handy target for speed-light study. A slave unit at left of camera provided side light.

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newsfeatures

The electronic age finally caught up with me as we enter this new year of 1955. I've been taking pictures lately not only with a portable speedlight but with electronic slave unit extension.

For the benefit of those backward souls like myself up to several weeks ago this means I was shooting flash pictures without the necessity of changing bulbs after each flash.

For this education in practice, not theory, I must thank an old friend, Ray Baxter. An official with the American Speedlight Corp., he was distressed at my casual conversational remarks recently that a camera fan had to be a pack horse to lug a speed-light around and could probably be electrocuted unexpectedly.

The Ascor light unit comes in two parts, each weighing only 2 lbs. 2 oz. One is the shooting head which contains the flashtube in a reflector and the condenser.

The other is the power pack—a 510 volt dry battery in a plastic case on a shoulder strap.

The shooting head is attached to the camera by a bracket. One connection goes to the shutter which must have an X marking or a zero-delay mechanism for strobe synchronization.

The light from this unit is roughly equivalent to that of a No. 5 flashbulb. It has a guide number of 190 for fast pan film and around 400 for the latest black-and-white high speed films.

The duration of each flash is 1-1300 of a second.

Baxter demonstrated the safety features of the Ascor in a very dramatic fashion. He turned the power on then disconnected the coiled cord from the power pack. He probed the connecting ends with his fingers but it was safe—they were all covered with plastic tips. Then he put metal paper clips into the electric socket which went to the camera shutter.

Italy's Marshal Graziani Dies

ROME (AP)—Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, Italy's grizzled "Desert Lion" of World War II, died today at a Rome clinic where he was to have undergone an operation.

He was 72 and an unrepentant Fascist who had been stripped of his many honors and lived in recent years in retirement.

For a time five years ago, Graziani appeared to emerge as the active leader of the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement (MSI).

Graziani after World War I reconquered North Africa's Libyan tribesmen for Mussolini's empire and led Duce's forces in East Africa to victory in the Italian war against Ethiopia.

After King Victor Emmanuel III rendered to the Allies in 1943, Graziani accepted an appointment as war minister in the puppet Fascist republic established by Mussolini in northern Italy.

In his defense, Graziani said he had accepted the post "to make of my person a shield against the vengeful fury binding an ally turned enemy. Teutonic rage would have unleashed itself even more savagely if a government was not immediately formed to demonstrate that Italy was still allied with Germany."

Ladies, Sandstorms Will Be Named For Men, Now

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP)—Ladies who have been upset about Hurricane Alice can get back at their husbands pretty soon. There'll be Sandstorm George to talk about at the breakfast table.

The hurt feelings of women about the female names given to hurricanes is not, of course, the only reason for a momentous decision taken in this west Texas city.

Sandstorms, people feel here, have just as much personality as hurricanes. And the same right to names. Good, strong, masculine names.

So Editor Bill Collins of the Midland Reporter-Telegram today announced appointment of the world's first sandstorm advisory board.

There are three members: a woman, to make sure the sandstorms get masculine names; the Chamber of Commerce manager, who is happy about the "recognition" the sandstorms are going to get; and W. M. Perry, chief meteorologist in charge of the U.S. Weather Bureau here.

Perry's job: to size things up and decide whether a wind has enough in it to be called an honest-to-goodness sandstorm.

Mrs. Barbara Culver, Midland attorney and member of the state board of the American Assn. of University Women, is the woman member. She's happy about the chance "to protect the good names of our women."

Proclaims End Of Martial Law

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Gov. Gordon Persons has issued a proclamation to end limited martial law in Phenix City, Jan. 11 after six months of law enforcement by the National Guard.

During a cleanup campaign in the onetime vice center, more than 150 defendants were indicted and nearly 100 subsequently fined or sent to prison on vice charges.

Three men were also indicted in the slaying last June of A. L. Patterson, anti-vice crusader and nominee for state attorney general.

Said Considering Man-Made Sea

LONDON (AP)—There are good indications that the Russians are going to use nuclear explosions on a scale unmatched in history—to blast out a Central Asian sea that may change the weather of Europe.

Western diplomats have brought back reports from Moscow that the Russians are planning to create such a sea as part of a long-term program to change the physical surface of Siberia and the wastelands to the south.

Last autumn the Soviet Council of Applied Sciences in Moscow published an outline revealing plans that an area in Siberia larger than North America would be irrigated and criss-crossed by a system of canals and dams.

This, said the Soviet experts, would change the weather in Siberia, making the winters and summers milder. The meteorologists say this probably would have a profound effect on the weather throughout Europe, also making winters milder there.

Returning diplomats also report Soviet plans to divert two of Siberia's big rivers, the Ob and the Yenisei, both of which flow north to the Arctic Sea.

They said Russian scientists have privately revealed they hope to be able to make these waterways flow southward, forming a Central Asian sea.

The diplomats said nuclear explosions, in which the Soviet armed forces could test their atomic and hydrogen weapons, would be used to blast out tremendous land areas.

Advise Firemen Stop Drinking

TOKYO (AP)—National fire prevention headquarters today warned Japanese firemen against drinking on the job.

The headquarters said 50 firemen were killed or injured over the holiday season in road accidents. The headquarters said the worst accident occurred when a drunken fireman drove a fire engine off a road bank, killing 3 and injuring 14.

Later some of the less hardy souls headed for the bathroom and the view became a little better. Still, everything had a blue appearance, as though the actors were working on a freezing stage.

Anyway, it was an interesting if chilling experience. Add another chapter to the fabulous history of Howard Hughes.

Greenville's Growth Is Striking

Greenville's continuing growth at a rapid pace is indicated by the 1954 construction figures which show the past year was the second highest year for new construction within the city's corporate limits since 1945.

It is obvious that Greenville has grown rapidly in the past nine years. It is striking to look about the city and see the new residential areas which have developed and the new commercial construction which has taken place. It is equally striking to look at the figures on paper and see what the growth has meant practically.

Last year alone building permits were issued for the construction of 120 new dwellings, 13 apartments and 19 commercial buildings. For metropolitan centers those figures would be only a drop in the bucket. For Greenville, they represent the second-highest new construction expenditure since the end of World War II, topped only the peak year of 1950.

During the nine year period since 1945, building permits have been issued for the construction of 1,073 new dwellings in Greenville, 78 apartments and 223 commercial buildings and two churches totaling an estimated $12,862,300. Those figures do not include homes which were constructed before they were incorporated in the city limits.

Emphasis is added when those construction figures from 1945 to 1954 are compared with the figures for the 10-year period from 1939 through 1949 when only 508 new residents were constructed within the corporate limits.

There is every indication from these figures that Greenville is keeping pace with the times in its growth. If the new construction is indicative of the rate of population growth in the city, it appears that Greenville, during the decade from 1950 to 1960 will equal its rate of growth in the previous decade when the city's population increased 31.8 per cent. Greenville's population growth during the current decade may even equal the 38 per cent increase in population experienced by the city between 1930 and 1940.

Redistricting Issue Is A Hot One

The redistricting of North Carolina's representation in the General Assembly will shape up as a major issue in the current session.

As it shapes up, the battle over redistricting will bring with it a number of legal and technical questions which will cloud the fundamental issue, and may cause the movement to be shelved for another six years.

The Reflector feels the 1951 General Assembly should have effected the redistricting of senatorial and representative districts of the state in compliance with the constitutional provision governing the item. We cannot help but feel the 1953 General Assembly had, and the 1955 General Assembly now has a moral obligation to correct the error of omission by the 1951 legislature.

We have come to that conclusion with the full realization that the redistricting of House and Senate representation in accordance with the 1950 census will cause Pitt County to lose one representative in the House and is likely to make the county a portion of a senatorial district rather than an entire senatorial district as is now the case. From a selfish standpoint Pitt County would have more representation in the legislature without the redistricting. Yet Pitt County should not seek to circumvent the fundamental law of the state for its personal gain.

The constitutional provision on redistricting of seats in the Senate says the senate districts "shall be so altered by the General Assembly at the first session after the return of every enumeration by order of Congress . . . and shall remain unaltered until the return of another enumeration. . . The same provision applies to the House.

Does that mean that only the legislative session immediately following the census has the authority to redistrict? Is it the responsibility of subsequent legislative sessions to affect the redistricting if the session immediately following the census does not carry out its constitutional responsibility?

Those two questions will be argued in Raleigh before the end of the current legislative session. It may be that legally and technically the current session is not responsible for carrying out a program of redistricting. Morally, we think it is responsible for carrying out such a program.

Strength for the Day

CHILDREN OF LIGHT

"While ye have the light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light" (John 12:36).

We may not have the light some day—that is, the light of free, untrammelled religion. If communism gets its way, we shall certainly not have it. Our Lord, on one occasion, is reported to have asked the question, "When the Son of man comes, shall he find faith on the earth?"

Sometimes we wonder how the Church continues to exist. Although both the United States and Canada were settled in the beginning by religious people bent on implanting their ideals and perpetuating them, nevertheless there is a strange disregard for things religious on the part of many people in both countries. In the United States ten times as much money is spent to restrain crime as to promote religion; vastly more is spent for liquor than for the Church. If most children received no more education in arithmetic than they do in religion, they would not be able to make change or count to fifty.

What are we really doing to keep the light? Do we have the idea that in some way or other it will persist, regardless? Do we think that just as we have been lucky in the past we shall be lucky in the future? There are many tragic possibilities which might leave us a barren and unbelieving people. "While ye have the light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light."

National Whirligig

Clean-Up For Southern GOP

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's plan to reorganize the Southern GOP and Carmine de Sapio's task of cleansing Tammany may seem entirely dissimilar, but the two operations have much in common. It simply means replacing local hacks, opportunists and pay-for-politicians with respectable men in leadership.

With minor exceptions, the Republican Party in Dixie has been a profiteering organization, especially on the local level. It rarely put state, county or city candidates in a contest because respectable citizens would not run on its tickets. It has been a plant of weeds and no roots.

NO GRASSROOTS SUPPORT—Lacking any soil, it has rarely produced or offered worth-while nominees for national or state, city or county offices. When it did present men for governor, senator or the state legislature, they were beaten before they started because they had no "grassroots" support—no City Hall or County Courthouse organizations.

Frequently, too, the Republican bosses, as New York Republicans did with Tammany Hall, connived with the Democrats on a fee basis. They were willing, in return for these services, to accept crumbs dropped from the victors' banquet board.

National committeemen and state chairmen just hung around in Mickeyawberish manner, waiting for the Republicans to turn up triumphant in a Presidential election. Then, they rewarded their cronies with Federal jobs on a sordid bargaining basis—U. S. Marshals, District Attorneys, Tax Collectors. Their poor performance in office, when they dignified to work at all, only alienated the populace against the carpetbaggers.

In short, most Republican politicians in the South have been a trashy lot.

BOUGHT AND SOLD—Prominent and respectable GOP-ers at Washington, including former Presidents and Presidential candidates, recognized but tolerated and even profited from this mess. They never tried seriously to clean it up.

Southern delegates to national conventions were bought and traded by the so-called leaders like any commodity in the market. Sometimes, as in 1928, they refused to keep their contract with the original purchasers. In that year at Kansas City, a certain group of colored delegates had been pledged to Herbert Hoover.

When they tried to vote for another candidate's camp, because of a better offer, Mabel Walker Willebrandt, then Assistant Attorney General in Charge of Prohibition Enforcement, ordered her U.S. Marshals to round them up, ride herd on them, march them to convention hall and see that they "voted right."

HOPE TO BETTER CONDITIONS—Eisenhower and National Chairman Leonard W. Hall believe that they can change these conditions. They have refused to recognize as patronage distributors several of the old-fashioned types of bosses. It is the first step toward rehabilitation at the local level.

The two think that there are enough young businessmen, civic leaders and merchants to provide clean, decent, new leadership, free of the ancient taints. The industrialization of the South, in their opinion, has removed many of the social and economic issues which have kept Dixie so solidly Democratic.

When Ike carried four Southern states in 1952 and lost others by narrow margins, his "candidate had the backing of what is known as the "bitter element" in many communities, Democrats and Republicans. What he needs to do now is to re-organize the Republicans on the local level, of the caliber of the Byrds, Russells, Georges—respectable and respected men.

TAMMANY BOSS'S SUCCESS—Boss de Sapio feels that he has purified Tammany by nominating and electing Averell Harriman as Governor of New York and Robert F. Wagner as Mayor of the metropolis. Symbolic of his ambitions, he has accepted the post of Secretary of State.

His next aim is to land the multimillionaire railroad magnate in the White House. Although he once declared for Adlai E. Stevenson for 1952, the Governor now seems willing to try for the great prize. The late Charles F. Murphy, famous Tammany podesta, succeeded in the task that Ike and Sapio now essay. The corrupt and contented organization rarely elected a governor or President until he raised to leadership such socially minded men as Alfred E. Smith and the late Senator Robert F. Wagner. They, in turn, introduced Franklin D. Roosevelt to state and national politics.

What Ike needs in the South are Republicans who regard politics as a social science and a vehicle of progress, not as a selfish business for personal plunder!

Somebody Told Me

One More Day To Make Slam

Originally I had planned to print the solution to the bridge hand that appeared in Friday's paper today, but last night I discovered that some are still working on it. Therefore, I'll hold the solution until tomorrow.

Remember that the hand will make seven spades against any defense. And the proper defense for East is to give equal protection to his hearts and diamonds. When he starts to pull a card for trick number six, he has an equal amount of hearts and diamonds.

Last night at the Lion's Club meeting (I was a guest) Withers Harvey was presented a special Lion's pin for 15 years perfect attendance! The local Lion's Club was started in 1939 and soon afterwards Withers joined. Having been a Jaycee for almost five years, I can say that perfect attendance is difficult to attain.

Dr. John Bennett, Director of Religious Education at East Carolina, gave an interesting address on religious education.

On the way back from the Lion's Club I stopped by the Varsity Service Station to pick up a quart of milk and two college girls were there stocking up on cookies.

Since the last date I had with a college girl was almost ten years ago, I wondered how the regulations had changed.

The girls can now ride in a car after the first three months of school provided their average is a three or above.

Back in my courting days at the college things were much stricter. As I remember, the freshman couldn't ride at all. Any violators had to depend on getting tipped off when the Student Council was going to check.

When the council would check they would station students on the gates to see who was riding. Shame on me for what I did one evening! With a Greenville girl, not even a student at the college, I rode by the gate and asked her to duck just before getting there. The council members were hacked to say the least.

The girls, one from Beaufort and the other from Red Oak, seemed unimpressed when I told them how lucky they are to have the odds of one-to-one, boys to girls. When I was a student there it was a matter of 10 girls for every boy.

"That's not what matters," the Red Oak girl said. "That doesn't help us pass." She was having trouble with math and short hand.

The Beaufort girl didn't even talk like a high tider. When I told her that she was appreciative, although I think she should hang on to her home-town lingo for a mark of distinction.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

$5 MILLION PAYROLL

(Henderson Dispatch)

Another electric plant comes to North Carolina. It will be located in the Hickory-Newton-Conover area, will cost $20 million, employ eleven hundred persons and have an annual payroll of $5 million. What a sweet morsel that is for Catawba county, or would be for any community in North Carolina.

Will the new year hold any such good fortune as that for Henderson?

General Electric has purchased 130 acres of land as a site for this vast development, with operations to begin by mid-1956. This, too, is an expansion by the company and not a shift of location from elsewhere.

An official of GE threw some light on the venture. "We decided to locate here because this section came closer to meeting our requirements than any other we saw," said he adding: "And the people have been most cooperative in helping us locate here. We feel the southeast section of our nation offers the greatest opportunities for the future."

There seemed to be emphasis on the cooperation of the people in locating the plant in the Hickory section. "We plan to be good citizens of North Carolina," the spokesman said, "and carry our full share of the load."

It might be in order to examine into our own situation as to how much real cooperation is given prospective newcomers. Do all persons concerned help out to the fullest extent within reason? Apparently corporations do have a soul, and, like people, appreciate good will extended to them. If there hasn't been enough of that in our midst, can there be improvement?

Many things, we are convinced, go into helping an outsider make up his mind in selecting a location for an industrial site. All such factors should be present in the Henderson area.

How much initiative was necessary on the part of the Catawba people in landing this behemoth of a plant is not made clear. GE not long ago announced location of a multi-million dollar installation at Hendersonville. Others of other big concerns have set themselves down in Piedmont and Eastern North Carolina.

Our responsibility is to use every ounce of energy we possess to present Henderson's claims in this field. The trend is to the South. But they are hopping, skipping andumping clear over our head here. Will 1955 see a halt in this habit of passing us by?

Mail Order Review

By ELMER ROESSNER

A number of large stores are taking a fresh look at their mail-order operations. In some cases this may lead to placing mail-order sales on a new footing.

Almost every large store willing or not, as in the mail-order business to some extent. Customers who for various reasons cannot get to the stores use media to reach persons living beyond the normal trading areas. Others cultivate mail orders within their own locality, especially when bad weather may keep regular shoppers at home. Coupons in advertisements and order blanks in direct mail are useful tools.

Outside the big catalogue houses only a few stores have sustained year-round mail-order programs. But rises in voluntary orders in the Christmas selling season have prompted several merchandisers to study further potentials.

There are a number of reasons why a large store may find them attractive. Among them: The store could extend its selling area far as it wishes; it has buying power far exceeding small mail-order operators (though not the giants); it has creative advertising facilities and know-how; it has packaging, wrapping, mailing, accounting, and other departments. Goods that moved slowly in the store could be special offers to customers who buy by mail; items that didn't click in mail-order offerings could be moved through store sales. The mail operation could test new items before being stocked in quantity in the store, and it would provide names and addresses for further sales and as leads for charge accounts. It might bring back to the store some of the volume lost in the last few years to catalogue houses and thousands of small new mail-order firms.

MAKING PRIVATE BRANDS OF DISCONTINUED MODELS
Discontinued models as every manufacturer and dealer with inventories of 1954 appliances knows—are hard to sell.

The chief reason is that they are competing with the same models. A 1954 Fissionaire toaster might be able to sell against any other toaster on the market except the 1955 Fissionaire.

So why don't manufacturers provide new brand names for discontinued models? It might involve sending dealers new name-plates and new advertising materials. But it would help the older models to sell and, if deep price cuts were necessary, the price structure of the 1955 lines would not be thereby affected.

It would not involve any dishonesty. Dealers could tell prospects: "This Atomaid toaster is identical with the 1954 Fissionaire toaster—in fact, it IS a 1954 Fissionaire. But we couldn't sell it at this price under the Fissionaire name."

COLORFUL CEREAL CLICKS AND MAY GO NATIONAL
Rainbow breakfast foods may be on the way.

A colored cereal with a mixed flavor of oranges, lemons and raspberries has been undergoing tests (by General Mills). The public must have reacted favorably, because the manufacturer is now reported to be planning national distribution. And if one manufacturer succeeds with colored cereals, it's a sure bet that others will bring out other cereals in other shades.

PLASTIC PRODUCTION UP 475 TIMES IN 23 YEARS

The plastics industry will produce more raw materials this year than ever before, according to estimates of the Society of the Plastics Industry. Last year's production was estimated at 2,714,000,000 pounds, 3 per cent below production in 1953. The estimate for the present year is 2,849,000,000 pounds. Production in 1922 was 5,944,133 pounds.

So Many Are Interesting People

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—You meet so many interesting people in a gambling house, and not all of them come from the same crowd.

The most fascinating, I think, are the shills, those delightful Barrymores of dice, roulette, blackjack or whatever game happens to be dragging and needs a shill in the arm.

When you know shills are the genial fakers who are paid to drum up trade by playing with the house's money, to appear to be having the time of their lives in the hope that their thrills will prove contagious.

On a recent trip to Puerto Rico where gambling is legal, I studied the shills. You understand, of course that the only reason I went to the casinos was to gather material for a column. Shills are easy to recognize. They open and close the joint. When they run out of chips, they retire to the men's room, smoke a cigarette, and somehow always return with another (or maybe the same) $20 bill for fresh chips.

When they win, their eyes flash with triumph and their chips are piled up prominently in front of them. When they lose, their eyes darken but never into the blackness of real despair because, after all, real despair is contagious too.

The kindly old banker always wore an understanding expression. As you paid for chips his eyes seemed to wish you luck. When you lost he looked sad but, still, encouraging. Always encouraging. When you won he beamed. He couldn't have been more delighted that you were taking his dough.

Among the players, I noticed several types.

There was the young couple just off the cruise ship. She seemed taunt and breathless. He tried his best to be casual, but his hand shook. She stood close to him. He rolled the dice, made two or three passes and you could see her jiggling mentally at his elbow. But his sense of man-of-the-worldliness wouldn't let him leave. Not until he lost.

Then there was the middle-aged drinker, who appeared to be drunker than he was. When the dice came his way, he turned to a woman he didn't know and with great flourish invited her to shoot for him.

This I guess, was supposed to indicate he didn't care what happened to his money. Anyway, the sight of a fresh woman rolling with somebody else's dough seemed to give the other player's new hope. Many bet on her.

She won at first, and then lost. And as she lost, the drinker became less drunk, less flamboyant, less cavalier.

Then there was the timid, guilt-ridden amateur. When he won, he looked apologetic as if he were begging for the money. When he won a real pile, he looked apprehensive, as though three Chicago gunmen were waiting outside for him when he lost, he seemed to be looking over his shoulder, as though he were playing with his boss' money.

There was the tight-lipped, belligerent skeptic. Every time his turn came, he growled for fresh dice. I doubt he would know loaded dice from kipped herring. Anyway, fresh dice didn't seem to help, either.

Finally there was the student. For one entire night, he stood by without playing. Just made notes. This was the system player, bubbling with conspiracy. He played the next night. The advantage of a system, as I observed during considerable research, is that with a system it may take you longer to lose, but you lose.

More Determination To Face Issues in Legislature

By LYNN NISBET

FACING ISSUES—While not very much was accomplished during the first half week of the legislative session, the members showed more than usual determination to face the issues squarely. At the same time, there was no evidence of purpose to "railroad" important legislation.

It had been agreed in advance that the big question would be money, and that segregation and the secrecy law would demand serious consideration.

The money issue was met head-on the second day when the advisory budget commission report and money bills were introduced, and the Governor delivered his budget message at 11:30 a. m. in previous session. Within fifteen minutes after the Governor completed his address, the appropriations and revenue bills were sent up by members of the advisory budget commission who are serving in the House and Senate.

The House almost immediately resolved itself into a committee of the whole and "started to school," with Dave Coltrane, assistant director of the budget, as the teacher to study the appropriations bill. Speaker Larry Moore stated he expected the members to stay in school about seven hours a day until the detailed exposition of the bill, accompanied by graphs and charts shown on a screen, was completed. That is expected to require all of this week. Meantime, brief formal sessions are held daily for introduction of bills and it is proposed to hold one or two night sessions to act on emergency legislation.

The Senate will begin Tuesday morning comparable briefing sessions on the revenue bill, with Commissioner Eugene Shaw and members of his staff doing the teaching.

TIME SAVER?—The leaders think this plan will save time when the bills come up for formal action in the committees, by reason of every member having some knowledge of both the appropriations and the tax schedules proposed. Others are just as certain it is a waste of time, since the whole business will have to be repeated in committees and affected parties given opportunity for a hearing.

REAPPORTIONMENT—Bills were introduced in both the House and Senate calling for reapportionment of House membership as required by the constitution. The net effect of these bills would be to take one representative each from Cabarrus and Pitt and award them to Alamance and Rockingham, since population trends call for that adjustment.

Sensors Jack Blythe of Mecklenburg and Arthur Kirkman of Guilford put in a proposal for a senatorial commission of nine members to study the situation and prepare bills effectuating the constitutional requirement for reapportioning Senate membership. The net effect of such action would be to give Guilford and Mecklenburg two senators each, thus requiring complete rearrangements of districts to allow the remaining 48 members to the other 98 counties.

House reapportionment will affect or "four" counties. Senatorial redistricting will affect practically every county in the State, and is expected to arouse vigorous opposition from small counties which will lose representation.

SEGREGATION—Although conceding that effective action cannot be taken on the segregation problem until the Supreme Court promulgates implementing decrees, Governor Hodges asked the Legislature to adopt recommendations of the special study commission on the subject. Within a matter of minutes after his request, bills were introduced in both branches designed to give local school boards full authority and control over the enrollment and assignment of pupils, thus paving the way for local handling of segregation problems when they arise—instead of the appropriations committees, and feared in numerous campaigns last spring came to the front the first day.

SECRECY—The question of legislative secrecy, arising out of the hastily passed act late in the 1953 session providing for tightly closed sessions of the appropriations committees, and feared in numerous campaigns last spring came to the front the first day.

Rep. B. I. Satterfield introduced a house bill for straight out repeal of the 1953 act, and Sen. Lumsford Crew asked the Senate to appoint a committee to work out a compromise. Then on Friday Senator Adam Whitley of Johnston sent up a bill, also a straight out repeal, which carried also the names of Senators David J. Rose of Wayne, William Medford of Haywood, Pat Cooke of Gaston, Settle Bunn of Nash, Ralph Scott of Alamance, Mitchell Britt of Duplin, Robert Morgan of Harnett, Arthur Williamson of Columbus, Guitler Moore of Robeson, Ray Wulter of Brunswick, Posey Jones of Surry and Arthur Kirkman of Guilford.

HAWK WATCH

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

I picked up the phone and asked for a low and a name. It took a while to get him. When he answered, it sounded as if he'd already hit the sack.

"Hello, Red," I said. "This is Gratt. Will you meet me tomorrow, early, at the crossroads? I need some help up on Spine Rocks."

"You still think something happened up there Saturday?"

"Yes—and the same thing nearly happened again today."

"I believe you heard me." "Anything to do with that eagle?" His voice was hungry.

"Yes. Just about sundown tonight it was flown at me."

I heard him whistle, and then he got it.

"You say flown at you?" he demanded, his voice rising.

"I'll tell you about it when I see you. Can you make it about daylight?"

"If the eagle came at you that late today he'll be perched near there now," he said. "We'll have to get there before daylight or he'll move out on us when it gets light."

"Say that again," I said. "If the eagle didn't miss a kill—and I take it he didn't," he laughed flatly—"he'd hang around there all night. In other words, being as near evening as that, I wouldn't expect him to go back to wherever he came from until daylight tomorrow." He paused. "Are you still there, Gratt?"

"Yes. I'm just thinking," I said. "That changes things. When could you meet me if you left Romney right now?"

"Now?" he asked incredulously. "In the middle of the night?"

"Yes."

"Well, taking time to dress and grab a bite to eat, I could get there about two-thirty." He sounded puzzled.

"Good!" I said. "I'll eat, too, and I'll meet you at the crossroads at two-thirty. And Red, bring a gun if you have one."

"What kind of gun?"

"Something that would kill an eagle or a dog. And one more thing, Red," I said—"bring something we can dig with."

"That's the way it happened," I said. We were sitting in my Jaguar with Red's jeep parked behind us in the dark. "I wanted to fill you in before we went on the mountain. I imagined the eagle would have gone back to him till you said you didn't think so. That gave me hope."

"Yes," Red said, down in his throat. "I think we stand a chance of getting it." His hands knotted into big fists on his knees.

"The important thing," I said, "is to keep the eagle alive."

"What?" He was staring at me. "I think Anson Metcalf would have killed it last night if it had come back to him. This way, we just might be able to stop him."

From the sound Red made, I could tell he wasn't happy. "I don't follow you about keeping it alive," he said.

"He has that eagle trained to fly at white objects—white rabbits, white chickens, that white furred don't know but he's a falconer and there must be ways. I'm certain there was something white on Harrison Purcell."

I heard him sigh restlessly beside me.

"Yes," I said. "It was just bad luck that Charrm was white."

"But why?" He made a hopeless gesture and gave up.

"I don't think he ever meant to kill Charrm," I said. "It just happened the eagle was being flown then—or it got loose, or something. My point is if Anson gets his hands on that bird and destroys it there's much less chance of pinning all this on him. I can't understand why he didn't dispose of it after he used it to kill Harrison Purcell."

"How do you think you can tie it to Purcell?" he asked. "We didn't find anything up there."

"We looked on the wrong side," I said. "The eagle came from the east, the way it did at me. If it knocked him off he went down over the west side."

"What you plan, then is to go to their house?"

"After we look below these rocks? You brought a digging tool?"

"Yes. But in this darkness?"

"I think with your jeep lights we'll manage," I said. "There's an old road we can drive back on. And I think we'd better get going."

"You want to leave your roadster here?" he asked.

"I'll take it up to the gap," I said. "We might need both."

The gap on top of Sleep Creek mountain looked the same as when I'd left it. I drew the Jaguar off the road and pulled the brake. Then I walked back and climbed into the jeep with Red.

I steadied the shotgun leaning against the seat between us. "This loaded?"

"I never put a loaded gun in a car," he said.

"I know," I agreed, "but this is different. I think it wouldn't hurt to have it ready."

He dug into his jacket pocket and handed me two shells. I loaded it and laid it across my knees, with the muzzle sticking out through the door. "Follow that old road," I said. "It's grown up but it's not too bad."

He swung the jeep off the highway, its lights boring deep into the opening, and we bounced along the irregular surface of the road. "There's been a car in here tonight," Red said. "See those weeds flattened there?"

I could see a double track showing lighter in the glare from our head lamps. We soon came to where it ended.

"That's as far as he went," Red said. "He's backed out."

"Suppose we could identify tire tracks?" I asked.

"Not in this grass. Maybe back at the road if there was any soft mud. How far do you want me to go?"

"Keep on till I tell you."

The jeep pushed ahead forcing through the briars and small growth in the road like a tank mowing down brush.

"What about the girl?" Red asked.

"She's out of it," I said. "Harrison Purcell was her father."

"That's what you said," Red said. "But I wondered."

"How do you think this Anson knew Purcell would be here at just this time?"

"I think he intercepted Purcell's letters to Dana."

"I mean up on these rocks," Red said.

"He did that himself. The telephone operator at Fairfax Springs heard the message. A man telling Purcell to come here."

"She heard that Anson tell him that?" Red asked.

"Not just that way. She heard someone—she thought a colored man—say he was a hired hand. He gave the message. I didn't go into the part about Dana's name. Red was still quiet and I said, 'There isn't any hired man up there. Anson was away from the house at the time the call was made. There's no doubt in my mind that he drove to a phone and impersonated a colored man. Nearly anyone could do it on a telephone.' I held up my hand. 'We're just about under the cliff where I was this afternoon. Head it in toward the base of the rocks and leave your lights on.'"

He did so, and turned the engine off and immense quiet seemed to press in on us.

Harris Again Is Big Score-Maker

Bucs Edge High Point By 80-77

HIGH POINT—East Carolina won its seventh game in eight basketball starts by edging High Point 80-77 here last night, helped by a 21 point performance by Don Harris.

During the early moments of the game, the lead changed hands six times. East Carolina finally took a sustained lead with eight minutes remaining in the half, 32-21. The Pirates built that margin up to 42-35 at halftime.

High Point fought back to tie the game at 69-69 with 5:44 left. Roy Dixon fouled Nichols and the freshman forward dropped one for 70-69 but Harris fouled Davidson and the little guard dropped them both for 72-69. Harris added a free throw and Heath added one for a 74-71 lead. Heath fouled Davidson again and he narrowed the score to 74-73. Huegele fouled Thomas and J. C. made one and Mendenhall tipped in the second for 77-73. Harris added another free throw and Heath did likewise for ECO's 80 points. Stanton dropped a free throw and Harold Crump snuck in a bucket for the final reading 80-77.

Harris was the show in the first half, collecting seven points after intermission with both teams missing badly. Nick Nichols had half of his 20 points at halftime and Cecil Heath had six.

Ken Fraiser, Bobby Dunbar, Bill Huegele and Phillip Crockett of High Point kept the home team within range with six, eight, eight and six points each in the first half. J. C. Bledsoe was the second half leader as he bombed for 13 points.

The Pirates' scoring was the most evenly divided of any games to date. Nichols, besting scoring 20 points, did a fine job on the point. Paul Akins, who was held to 10 points. He had been averaging in the 20's. Heath also turned in good defensive work along with Thomas. Waverly Akins and Fred James were the only substitution made by East Carolina.

The Pirates play Belmont Abbey here tomorrow night in a non-conference scrap.

J. C. Bledsoe was best point maker with 13 for High Point, which now has a 500 record, 6-6 overall and 2-2 in the league. His teammate Bill Huegele was next with 12 points.

Harridge Urges Action On Suit

CHICAGO—William Harridge, president of the American League, yesterday called for "a prompt dismissal or a prompt trial" of a 12-million-dollar antitrust suit filed against 13 major league baseball teams.

The suit was filed three years ago by the now bankrupt Liberty Broadcasting System of Dallas and named all major league teams except Brooklyn, Cincinnati and the Chicago White Sox.

It charged violation of the Sherman Act and Clayton antitrust laws and a "continuing conspiracy to monopolize and restrain competition in broadcasting and re-creating play-by-play accounts of professional ball games."

Harridge said that an application has been filed in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Dallas by William J. Rochelle Jr., trustee in bankruptcy of Liberty, for authority to dismiss the suit upon $200,000 settlement.

Harridge said both sides have accepted the proposal subject to approval of the Bankruptcy Court. In Dallas, Gordon McLendon, who brought suit as head of Liberty, called the compromise offer "a victory" but added, "I am against the amount of the compromise. . . . Whether we accept it is up to the U.S. District Judge Julius J. Hoffman, in a pretrial conference, suggested the settlement "to save the court and the parties the time and expense of a protracted jury trial."

Harridge, who estimated a trial would last three months, said "winning the case will cost us more than the proposed settlement."

Kentucky's Defeat Failed Unseat Team In Sports Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A one-point setback, the first defeat in 33 games, failed to dislodge Kentucky's Wildcats from first place in the weekly Associated Press basketball poll.

The Wildcats with a record of seven victories and a 59-58 defeat by Georgia Tech through last Saturday's games, didn't dominate the voting today as they have in recent weeks.

But they still finished on top with 895 points, a margin of 15 over North Carolina State. A week ago they had a lead of 221 over runner-up Duquesne, which also came a cropper against little St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., Saturday. Duquesne slipped to third place this week.

The 104 sports writers and sportscasters participating in the poll gave Kentucky 52 first-place votes. North Carolina State, which moved up from third to second, received 22 votes for the top spot.

LaSalle and San Francisco retained their holds on fourth and fifth places, respectively, with Missouri, Illinois George Washington, Utah and UCLA completing the first 10.

Jackets Invading G-Men's Court

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Elizabeth City's Yellow Jackets come into Greenville tonight with the unenviable task of facing a high-scoring Greenville High School basketball club that over the past two seasons has proved to be almost unbeatable in their home town.

In the last two seasons the G-men have racked up 14 consecutive victories in Greenville, including the conference tournament at ECC last year. The last time the Green Phantoms lost a home contest was December 18, 1953 when the Rocky Mount Blackbirds dumped them 55-47 in the Greenville High School gymnasium.

Since then Coach Bo Farley's sharp shooters have romped over eight conference regular season foes, three conference teams in the loop tournament, and three non-conference teams at the beginning of this year.

EC Whipped Pack

The Yellow Jackets and the Green Phantoms have one mutual foe so far this season. The Jackets slipped by the Washington Pam-Pac 43-41 while the Greenies swamped the same team 82-32.

Comparative scores mean very little, however, in comparing teams. On the basis of their play so far this year, the Greenies would have to be established as the favorite for the ball game.

Elizabeth City employs a free-shooting type offense without many set patterns. Although they have some crack shots on their team, the Elizabeth City squad is short on height. In that department the G-men are not too prolific but they have two of the best rebounders in the league in Bob Howell and Harold Edwards. These two get the rebounds that start the Greenie fast break rolling. That fast break is the big wheel in the Greenville offensive.

The Greenies will be ready to go tonight with all their players in

Bouts Deflated 2 Ring Hopfuls

NEW YORK—Rudy Garcia's trouble straightened out and is ready to go all the way. Bob Howell, Edgar Moore, and Harold Edwards are just as fit as ever. Ike Riddick and Clark Noble have seen plenty of hard action in practice and are ready to step in for any of the top five at any time tonight.

The Greenies are taking their tremendous average into the conference fray with them in hopes of making it even more impressive. So far the Phantoms have hit the nets at a rate of 71.6 points per game in all competition. Their opponents have averaged 52 points per game.

In conference games only the G-men score at the rate of 78 while holding their opponents to an average 40.5.

Game time for the varsity clash is 8 o'clock with a 6:30 preliminary jayvee game on tap also. The jayvees, who are improving rapidly, will be shooting for their first win of the season.

Says Cleveland Is Team To Beat

CHICAGO—Marty Marion, new manager of the Chicago White Sox, is bubbling over with pennant hopes and tabs Cleveland as the big team to beat.

"Although the Yankees got Bob Turley, Don Larsen and Bill Hunter," said Marion, former St. Louis Cardinal shortstop star, St. Louis Browns manager and White Sox coach, "I see Cleveland as our chief rival."

"The Yankees are going to miss Gene Woodling. Turley is a fine pitcher but the fact he lost 15 games for Baltimore last year proves he cap lose."

"But as a whole, the entire American League is going to be a lot stronger. Detroit and Boston look good with their young players jelling."

Marion, who succeeded Paul Richards when he went to Baltimore, believes the White Sox have improved so much through added strength that a pennant is not out of reach.

"For three straight years, the Sox have been third," he said. "It's time to move up. In many talks with Richards last year, we agreed that the club as it then was made up had reached its peak."

"Since you can't get stand-out players without giving up some of your own, the building of a good bench is the best thing."

Marion thinks that first baseman Walt Dropo and outfielder Bob Nieman, both obtained from Detroit in the Ferris Fain deal, will give the Sox much-needed power.

Rules Committee To Review Shift

NEW YORK—The NCAA Football Rules Committee was scheduled to discuss a proposal from the coaches on the position of linemen on shifts today as the committee went into the second day of its three-day meeting.

The coaches at their meeting last week called for strict enforcement of the rule banning the "sucker shift." Until now, the NCAA has not taken action on outlawing the shift. Instead it has maintained that the rule branding the sucker shift "unsportsmanlike" was sufficient.

Grimesland's Ferguson and Nichols led the winning boys' attack. The former was high with 15 and Nichols had 12. Elks added nine. For the reluctant losers, Cox with 15 led the scoring. Cooper contributed 10.

Grimesland built up an eight point lead in the first eight minutes and was ahead at halftime 31-19. Chicod made its strongest move in the final quarter but it was too late to catch up.

Presents Duplicate Little League Bat

Carl Stotz, founder of Little League baseball, is shown above (left) as he presents a baseball bat on which is printed the names of all team members of the 1953 Little League national champions to Warren Carroll, local recreation director. The 1953 champions, Birmingham, Alabama, won the Region 5 playoffs here in Greenville and then went on to win the national championship.

Carl Stotz, commissioner of Little League and founder of the national organization, yesterday presented a bat to Warren Carroll, local Recreation director.

The bat contained all the names of the Little League players from Birmingham, Alabama who won the 1953 regional tournament in Greenville and went on to win the national championship.

Stotz said he was presenting one of the bats to the local recreation director because of the fact that the Region 5 tournament was staged in Greenville. The Little League regional tournament has been played in Greenville for the past two years. A similar bat is presented to each member of the Little League team which wins in the national playoffs each year.

Names are printed on the dark colored bat in gold lettering. The founder of Little League said he was "happy to have the chance to stop in Greenville" and see Carroll.

"In 14 when I first met him he was the first man to start Little League ball in the state," Stotz declared.

He said that Carroll started the first Little League team in Raleigh in 1949 and from that start the organization has grown to approximately 60 teams in the state-wide set-up today.

He pointed out that there are 3349 Little League teams in the United States today.

Stotz described Elm Street park where the Little League baseball diamond is located, as "impressive."

"This is one of the finest fields I've seen anywhere," he declared. "As a matter of fact the entire recreation area out there is very impressive."

He said he had "the highest commendation for all who have worked in this program for the boys."

A Great Discovery Is About to Be Made!

The hand you see here is about to turn the ignition key in a new 1955 Cadillac.

It is the hand of a man who has never driven a Cadillac before—but who finally decided to see for himself if all the wonderful things he's heard about the car are true.

Well, he's about to make an important discovery! He's about to learn that, in 1955, Cadillac actually surpasses its own great reputation!

He'll sense it the instant he makes the turn of the key—and hears the deep, rich, eager answer of that 250-horsepower Cadillac engine.

He'll sense it again when he touches his foot to the accelerator—and brings that dynamic engine into action. It will set him instantly in motion—and will carry him forward with a surge of power that is a revelation all in itself.

And then—out on the open road—the full proof of Cadillac's greatness will begin to unfold itself! He'll discover it's incredible ease of steering and handling—so marvelous that the car seems almost to read his mind.

He'll discover its amazing smoothness and levelness of ride—so great that even the road's roughest spots are difficult to perceive.

And he'll discover its marvelous balance on the curves and corners—its incredible quietness of operation—its extraordinary agility in the traffic lanes—and the reassuring action of its big, powerful brakes.

Yes, the evidence will be abundant—and the verdict without question: This is the greatest motor car performance of all time!

If you haven't as yet taken a drive in a 1955 Cadillac, you ought to do so soon.

It's really an education in all the things a motor car should be and do—and we think you owe it to yourself to get the report firsthand.

Stop in soon, won't you? We'll be most happy to give you the keys—any time!

Vernon J. Ambach, who took over as president after Baare's death, received 51 per cent of the 5,499 shares of stock. He was reared by the childless couple who befriended him when he was 12.

Other stock went to Charles James Jr., vice president; Otto F. N. Groose, vice president; and Robert Renkel, secretary, all 13 per cent; and George Hoch, treasurer, 10 per cent. The firm makes wire and sheet metal parts.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market stumbled into some light profit-taking that halted its recovery drive in the early afternoon today.

For the past two days the market has been driving ahead in a rally that wiped out the major portion of the sharp losses suffered in the two-day break last week triggered by tighter rules for speculating on credit.

Today at the opening, the drive ahead continued but within the first hour profit-taking appeared in the railroads and spread rapidly to all sections of the market. Prices were down between 1 and 2 points frequently. Plenty of resistance to the fall was in evidence, and there were several stocks showing gains to a point or more. Montgomery Ward was a buying favorite with a gain of about 2 points.

Trading was heavy with the tape late in reporting actual dealings in the initial rally and later in the sell-off.

New York Central, which has topped the most active list at high prices for the past four sessions, ran into selling today that clipped it off around 2 points at the close. During the morning the directors declared a first quarter dividend of 50 cents. Last year a total of $1 was paid.

Among other losers were Standard Oil (N.J.), Southern Railway, American Telephone, U.S. Steel, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda Copper, and Kaiser Aluminum.

Higher were Bethlehem Steel, Goodyear, 20th Century-Fox, Phillips, Kennecott, Allied Chemical, American Woolen, and Barber Oil.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog markets were steady to 25 lower today. Tops of 17.75 at Rich Square; 17.25 at Jacksonville, Plymouth, Tarboro, Hamilton, Enfield, Beulaville, Micro, Freeman, Siler City, Elizabethtown, Goldsboro, Fayetteville, Clinton, Washington; 17.00 at Wilson, Keno, Dunn, Whiteville, Charlotte, New-Grove, Warsaw, Fair Bluff, Clarkton, Bailey, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Rocky Mount, Lumberton, Smithfield and Woodland.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Central North Carolina live poultry market today: fryers and broilers steady to firm, farm price 24, f.o.b. plant one lot 26; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 39 to 41, Asheville fryers and broilers steady, farm price 24, f.o.b. plant 25 1/2; Asheville eggs steady A large 36.

Newly-Formed Ayden Jaycees Receive Charter

AYDEN—State Junior Chamber of Commerce President Bill Henderson last night presented to the Ayden Jaycee Club its charters from the national and state offices.

In presenting the charters to the newly-organized club, the state president paid tribute to the Greenville Jaycee Club which sponsored the new group.

The club's first slate of officers were installed during the Charter Night activities by Edgar J. Gurganus, National Jaycee Director from Williamston. Last night was also Ladies' Night for the club.

Reverend I. J. Blackwelder gave the invocation preceding the dinner meeting.

After the dinner Club President Van Dyke Hatch introduced toastmaster Jake West Jr., vice president of the ninth Jaycee district.

A welcome was extended to the visitors by Ayden Mayor Corey Stokes. Remarks were made by Dr. G. G. Dixon and Dan Sateed, international director from Greenville, introduced the visitors.

It was then that Henderson presented the club charter and the officers were inducted by Gurganus. President Hatch responded and the meeting was concluded with the Jaycee Creed.

Officers of the Ayden Club are: Van Dyke Hatch, president; William Jenkins, first vice-president; Clyde W. Cannon, second vice-president; Caille L. Stocks, secretary; R. A. Gaskins, treasurer; Tom V. Wheelless, state director.

Directors are Clifton B. Davenport, James D. Dennis, William McLawhorn, Stephen Sudor.

Other members of the club include: Lawrence Alexander, W. W. Allen, John T. Burns, Tillman G. Chauncey, Guy H. Corbett, Charlie Davenport, Elbert Davidson, Lindsey Dudley, James R. Farmer, J. D. Haddock, Marland Harper, Glenn Gaylor, R. G. Jackson Jr., Thurman D. Jackson, Elwood G. Nobles, John Clark Noble, L. Louis Pippin, Ralph El-Ramey, Stuart Smith, Chester Stox, Nathan Thomas, Robert Lee Tripp, Stuart Tripp, William C. Tripp, Horace Wainwright, Scott Winders, Joe Whitaker.

Social Security Change Described For Ruritan

"The recent changes in the social security law has more influence in the eastern part of the state than anywhere else in North Carolina and perhaps in the nation."

That statement was made last night by Gerald B. Johnston of the Rocky Mount social security office as he addressed the Pactorius Ruritan club. He referred to the social security change which brings farmers and farm workers under the provisions of social security.

The speaker explained the new provision will double the number of people in this area under social security, and he said the number of social security claims filed with the Rocky Mount office doubled during the first week of 1955. Johnston explained briefly how social security works and how it will affect farmers and farm workers who are coming into the program for the first time.

Johnston said from his observations, he is of the opinion most self-employed farmers will not have to keep additional records to have available the information they will need to make social security reports. The major problem anticipated, he said, is determining whether a tenant is an employee of the land owner or a self-employed individual. He said it now appears that where a tenant works the land and does no management on the farm, he will be classed as an employee. Where he works the land and also does some management he will be classed as self-employed.

Following his talk, Johnston answered a number of questions asked by members of the club.

During the business meeting the club voted to provide the drinks which will be sold by the Home Demonstration Club program to raise funds for the March of Dimes. The club also voted to erect a flagpole in front of the Pactorius school.

President Roy W. Tripp who presided at the meeting announced the committee appointments for the year. Dave Whichard was welcomed as a new member of the club.

Endorses Nixon For GOP Ticket

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Nixon, a target for much Democratic criticism was backed by Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) today for second place on the Republican ticket in 1956.

Smith, who recently told a New Jersey rally he is dedicating the next two years toward getting President Eisenhower renominated, said in an interview he thinks Nixon deserves another term.

"I think Nixon is a fine, upstanding young man who has done a good job for the country," he said.

While Nixon himself declined comment on recent Democratic attacks on him, GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said in a statement last night there is under way "a highly organized campaign to besmirch the Vice President of the United States."

"The technique is to smear him by falsely accusing him of smearing others," Hall said. "This is one of the lowest tricks in politics and in this instance destructive only to its perpetrators."

Former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York told White House newsmen yesterday he hopes the 1956 GOP ticket will be Eisenhower and Nixon.

Youth Held For Grand Jury; No Bond Allowed

A 17-year-old Camp Lejeune Marine is being held in jail without bond after a preliminary hearing in which "probable cause" was found on a warrant charging rape of a local 14-year-old girl.

The preliminary hearing was held in Recorder's Court yesterday before Judge Charles Wiedbee. The Marine Private Lemuel Francis Campbell, is being held pending grand jury action in Pitt Superior Court probably on January 24.

Immediately following the hearing, the young girl went over to the defendant and talked to him in private for several minutes.

The alleged assault occurred shortly after midnight on Sunday morning on a dirt road in a wooded section near Stokes, according to the girl's testimony at the hearing.

When asked at the hearing whether she had resisted the assault, she responded "yes" and added that she had "screamed" and attempted to leave the car. "I scratched him," she continued, "and I bit him."

At this point, she said, the Marine twisted her arm and threatened to break it if she continued to resist. She further testified that she told him to "go ahead and break it," and that he had finally forced her "to lay down in the seat of the car."

Campbell did not appear as a witness in the hearing, and made no statement to the court. He was represented at the hearing by a Marine Lieutenant from Camp Lejeune.

The girl began her testimony by saying she was working as a waitress at a local drive-in on Saturday night, that the Marine had asked her if there was a dance in Greenville, and she had told him about one at the armory. He ordered something to eat, she said, and asked her for a date on Sunday night, to which she agreed. She also agreed to allow him to drive her home that night after she got off work.

The girl said she got in the Marine's car at about midnight, and that he agreed to drive her directly home. Instead, she continued, he drove her out of town and up the dirt road and parked.

Says Education Needs Element Of Religion

"We can't have a separation of instruction and religion and still have educated people," was the assertion of Dr. John R. Bennett, Director of Religious Education at East Carolina College, as he spoke to a member of the Greenville Lions Club last night.

"We find religious symbolism is present in all culture... art... music... architecture... etc., and to try to completely separate the church and state would be futile in our present system," stated Dr. Bennett.

In discussing the problems relating to the Church and the State Dr. Bennett cited incidents which have arisen in recent years in this country, but said the problems of State-Church relations are not serious at present.

"Our most immediate problem is that of religion in the public schools," Dr. Bennett said. "We have no definite answer yet, but in my opinion we should continue to study the problem seeking a constructive solution."

In a brief business session Lion Withers Harvey was presented an award for 15 years of perfect attendance at club meetings.

President Bill Speight appointed Cliff Taff and Paul Scott, Jr. as the Lion Club's representatives to the steering committee for the New-comers' Party.

Guests at last night's meeting were: Norm Pierce, Dr. Ed Carter and Jack Edwards, Jr.
