Commission Says Attacking Planes From 'Foreign Source'

Costa Rican War Near Standstill

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—With fighting in Costa Rica's four-day-old war at a virtual standstill, an inter-American investigating commission reported today that the planes which bombed and machine-gunned Costa Rican towns had come from "foreign soil." The finding was announced as former Costa Rican President Teodoro Picado admitted in an interview in Managua, Nicaragua, that his 27-year-old son was commanding the rebel forces. The younger Picado is a graduate of West Point and is married to a Los Angeles woman. The commission also reported it had found "serious indications that arms and munitions have been supplied from a foreign source to rebel elements in Costa Rican territory." The commission did not identify the "foreign soil" or the "foreign source."

Portions Of Eisenhower Military Proposals In Doubt

Skirmishes Face Manpower Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has won quick bipartisan support in Congress for extending the draft and raising military pay, but he faces sharp skirmishes over some other parts of a broad new military manpower program. The President called yesterday for a four-year extension of the draft, more money and benefits for career servicemen and a reorganized and strengthened pool of reserve strength. The reserve program included a plan for six months basic training for limited numbers of 17 and 18-year-olds and a requirement that both these youths and regular draftees serve additional time in active organized reserve units. The President told Congress in two special messages that these steps are necessary to give the nation its first peacetime "proper military posture" and to provide the capacity of dealing with an "aggressor so criminally unwise as to attempt an atomic attack."

Hammarskjold Says No Conditions Laid Down Hopeful Over Peiping Talk

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold said today that Red China's Chou En-lai raised a number of questions, including a U.N. seat, during their Peiping talks—but that he definitely had laid down no conditions for release of the eleven American fliers held there. He stressed, however, that Chou had made no proposals or laid down any terms.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Chief U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., expressing a measure of optimism, went to Washington for high level talks today on the problem of releasing 11 American fliers imprisoned by Red China. After receiving a full report from J.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold on his mission to Peiping, Lodge said he was confident progress had been made and "that our fliers will be free."

Lodge said he would consult with Secretary of State Dulles on Hammarskjold's report as soon as possible. "There is naturally disappointment that the immediate release of our fliers was not effectuated," he said, "but I am confident that progress has been made and that our fliers will be free."

Hammarskjold returned here last night from a globe-circling flight in Red China seeking the release of the American airmen and other U. N. personnel held there. He indicated he considered his talks with Chou En-lai, Red China's premier-foreign minister, constituted only the first stage of his efforts. The next move is up to the United States after it considers Hammarskjold's report.

Hammarskjold reviewed the Peiping talks in a private meeting with Lodge shortly after the secretary general landed at Idlewild Airport in a U. S. Army Super Constellation. Hammarskjold also called a news conference for this morning at which he was expected to reveal at least part of what went on during his Peiping talks. All details have been withheld from the public Hammarskjold and his aides made the following points clear, however, in a series of statements: 1. Hammarskjold considered the discussions with Chou useful. 2. He felt he had made some progress toward release of the fliers. 3. The primary value of the trip was that it established contacts through which more progress might be made. 4. He felt negotiations can be kept open if all sides show a proper restraint. Here is the way the secretary general summed it up last night upon his return: "My visit to Peiping was a first stage in my efforts to release the 11 American fliers and the other United Nations Command personnel still detained. I feel that my talks with Mr. Chou En-lai continue our contacts. The door that has been opened can be kept open given restraint on all sides."

Proposes National Toll-Road System

WASHINGTON (AP)—A national toll highway network was proposed today as a substitute for a presidential commission's recommendation that the federal government build strategic roads. H. E. Bailey, recently resigned as general manager of the Oklahoma Turnpike Authority, said the government financing plan would be used by "forces of reaction" to pass the buck to the federal government for responsibility for all classes of highways. In an address prepared for a national road conference sponsored by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, he said that a 1939 report of the Bureau of Public Roads opposing toll financing had "delayed the development of a national trunk highway system for 15 years."

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, chairman of President Eisenhower's commission, told the conference at its opening session yesterday that "toll roads are here to stay" but that he didn't think very much of toll financing. Robert T. Jones Jr., president of the Houston Chronicle, said the Clay committee plan would end any need for further toll roads. The Clay commission called for a total federal-state highway program of 101 billion dollars over the next 10 years. It suggested that the federal government pay 23 billion of the cost of a proposed 27-billion-dollar network of 40,000 miles of interstate highways through revenue bonds floated by a new highway corporation. Clay said gasoline tax revenues over the next 30 years would be more than enough to pay for this program. Bailey, instead, called for repeal of the 2-cent-a-gallon federal gasoline tax. He suggested "that source of revenue be left entirely to the states."

He asked that the federal government set up a national turnpike authority and provide $1,416,000,000 a year for highway work from excise taxes on autos, trucks, oils, tires and parts. Under Bailey's program, the entire 40,000-mile interstate network would be made up of toll roads financed by joint funds from state and federal turnpike authorities. In sparsely populated areas the federal government would pay the entire construction cost. A toll fee of 1 to 1 1/2 cents a mile would be charged to automobiles and 2 to 4 cents a mile to trucks. Proceeds would be used for maintenance and the retirement of bonds issued by the states to finance their part of the system.

Convict's Cat Is Back In Custody

BOSTON (AP)—A convict's cat, paroled with his master yesterday, was back in custody today. The 18-month-old Sir Walter Raleigh was presented the regulation prison discharge papers at state prison, where he was born. He was fitted out in a neat wooden traveling case. Soon after their release, his owner Frank Peraski was picked up for New Jersey authorities. He was taken to Suffolk County Jail. Since the law does not allow cats in the jail, Sir Walter was placed in custody of Atty. Arthur Brogna of the Back Bay. At the Brogna home, the black and white Sir Walter promptly bolted into a dark closet and refused to come out.

Funds Drive For Rescue Truck Goes Over Top; Preparing Order

A drive to raise funds for an emergency rescue truck is over the top, Frank Dall, Junior Chamber of Commerce President, announced at the annual Bosses' Night meeting of the local club. The Jaycees had taken as a project the raising of $4,500 to match funds offered by Civil Defense for the purchase of a completely-equipped rescue truck. A committee raised $3,600 by contacting various governmental units and asking that they donate sums to the drive. The county donated $1,500; Greenville, $1,000; Farmville and Ayden $250 each and Winterville, Fountain, Bethel, Falkland, Grimesland and Grifton $100 each. Dall paid tribute to W. M. Scates for personally raising the final $1,000 needed to complete the drive. Scales contacted individuals locally who made personal contributions which pushed the fund-raising drive over the top. The Jaycee president said this morning that plans are now being made to order the truck. He expressed appreciation to all governmental units and individuals who donated. The president also thanked Scates, co-chairman of the drive, Dave Whitchard and Ben Rouse and other committee members who worked to raise the necessary funds. "We feel like it's one of the best investments that could be made," Dall declared. "The Jaycees are proud to have been the sponsors of such a project." Delivery of the unit is expected to take several months. It will be housed in a Greenville fire station and manned by local firemen. However, the truck will be available for use all over the entire county. The emergency vehicle will be titled to the city of Greenville. It will be operated in conjunction with the emergency ambulance now in use at the local fire department. That unit was bought with donations made by local citizens several years ago and has been used since for calls to wrecks and other emergencies. The ambulance is not equipped with tools for adequate rescue operations, however, and firemen have been hampered by lack of necessary equipment on occasions in the past. The new truck is to cost a total of $9,000 with Civil Defense matching the $4,500 raised in the county.

More Paratroops 'Hit Silk' As Plane In Trouble

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—A planeload of 33 Operation Snowbird paratroopers were forced to hit the silk over Ladd Air Force Base, Tenn., Monday in the 3,000-foot jump of two engines failed. All landed safely despite darkness and zero weather. The plane was brought undamaged to the ground by its six-man crew. The jump was the third in the giant Army-Air Force exercise since the more than 100 planes started from the Sewart Air Force Base, Tenn., Monday in the 3,000-foot exercise. Thirty-eight men dropped safely from one of the C119 Flying Boxcars Tuesday near Sewart but two members of the plane crew were killed in a subsequent crash. Thirty-three more jumped safely at Miles City, Mont., the same day. The plane was landed successfully. Mrs. Berry Bostic underwent a tonsil operation on Wednesday. Her friends will be glad to learn that she is getting along nicely and wish for her a successful recovery.

A lot of people seem to be worried these days about the future of the Democratic Party. Such worry is useless and needless. Now and then the so-called leaders veer in the wrong direction and the great old party goes on the rocks and some people say she is a total wreck, but she always comes out seaworthy and ready for the next voyage. She has survived worse treatment than she received in 1924 and she will survive that.

Cavendish Is Guest Instructor On Wills At CWB Club Meeting

Greenville's Credit Women's Breakfast Club completed the legal study course on Securities, Investments and Wills on January 9th, at the regular 7:30 a. m. meeting at the Old Towne Inn. This was part two of the State Project.

President Earline Coghil presided and opened the meeting with the Club Song and invocation. Second Vice President Callie Rue Williams introduced Attorney Cavendish, guest instructor of the lesson on Wills. Mr. Cavendish gave a thorough delineation on the legal requirements necessary in the drawing of Wills, with special emphasis relating to women, married or single. He explained the types of Wills, the status and number of witnesses required; North Carolina Statute permitting married women to dispose of real and personal property by Will; importance of date in subsequent Wills revoking prior Wills, and many other important angles in the revoking, contesting and probating of Wills. A period of open forum questions and answers followed.

At the first meeting in December on the study of Investments and Securities, Mr. Joe Mays, Securities and Investment Trust Officer of the Guaranty Bank & Trust Company of Greenville, was instructor.

The Credit Women's Breakfast Club went on record expressing their thanks and gratitude to Mr. Mays and Mr. Cavendish for their generous contribution to the Club in the able and effective preparation and instruction of these studies.

Educational Chairman, Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, will begin the study of the Eighth Credit Educational Course at the first regular meeting in February, which will be Saturday morning, Feb. 12, at 7:30 a. m. at the Old Towne Inn. The winning of the International Achievement Award for 1955 will depend on the attendance and examination percentages earned by this Credit Study, and Mrs. Copeland plans to enlist the aid of all employers of the Credit Women and their sponsors in the teaching of the Eighth Credit Course, with special emphasis toward winning the 1955 International Achievement Award for the second time. In 1952 the Greenville Credit Club won this Award, and was the first club in the South to be inscribed on the Plaque. Clubs Will Solicit Polio Funds

Two local clubs will help solicit support for the March of Dimes Blue Crutch campaign Saturday, county campaign director Evelyn Beasley has announced.

In accordance with Mayor W. L. Wiedbe's proclamation setting aside Saturday as Blue Crutch tag day, members of the local Business and Professional Women's Club and members of the North Carolina Catholic Layman's Association will be stationed at prominent locations throughout the city to solicit the support of local citizens in their purchase of the miniature crutches to help the county's March of Dimes drive.

All funds collected in this sale will be added to the total collections for Pitt in the drive for a $15,000 goal, approximately $1,000 more than was collected last year.

This larger goal is in accordance with the increased $64 million goal set by the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation, $8 million more than the 1954 receipts, Miss Beasley explained.

She pointed out that in order to meet this increased goal, every community in the nation is being asked for an expansion of their contributions.

On this point, the director said she would like to explain particularly to the Farmville community which through its Community Chest program "always includes a generous appropriation for the county's annual March of Dimes," that additional appeals through the mails were made to the Farmville residents so that those who wished to do so might contribute their "extra" donation for 1955.

Executive Board Church Women Plan For World Day Of Prayer

Plans for World Day of Prayer were formulated at the Executive Board meeting of the Greenville Council of Church Women which met on Thursday morning. Miss Venetia Cox, president of the local council, announced that World Day of Prayer will be observed in Greenville on February 25 at 11 o'clock in Jarvis Memorial Church. The theme of the program for 1955 is "Abide In Me." Mr. Percy Upchurch, pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, will be the speaker.

Mrs. E. E. Rawl stressed the urgent need for clothing for overseas shipment. The Church World Service maintains a collection center in Greenville for used clothing. Clothing collected here is carried by truck to Delaware where it is processed and packed for shipment. The board members designated the month of February as a time for all Greenville organizations to collect used clothing and take it to the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church where the collection center is located.

It was suggested that the Greenville Council of Church Women go on record as favoring the resolution presented by the Greenville Ministerial Association to the General Assembly requesting legislation to abolish the sale of undesirable comic books in North Carolina. The secretary of the council was instructed to write to the proper state legislators stating the feeling of the Greenville church women in this matter.

Items on the agenda included presenting the idea of sponsoring organizations for the annual tea and annual cookie sale, the matter of a new station wagon, annual reports, and the TV program.

Most important item of business presented by Mrs. White was the idea of sponsoring organizations for the troops which has been under consideration for some time. The council went on record as approving this suggestion, and work will be started immediately to obtain sponsor for each troop.

Christ, Son of the Living God

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 16:13-17; John 1:1-4; 5:17-18; 14:8-14; 17:1-5; Philippians 2:5-11; Colossians 1:15-20; Hebrews 1:1-4.

When Jesus came to the coasts of Caesarea with his disciples, He asked them whom men were saying that He was? Some said John the Baptist, some Elijah, or one of the other prophets.

Jesus asked the disciples, "But whom say ye that I am?" Peter said: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Jesus answered Peter: "Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona."

Philip said to Jesus, "Lord, show us the Father." Jesus said: "Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known Me? He that hath seen Me, hath seen the Father."

"How sayest thou, Shew us the Father? Believe Me that I am in the Father, and the Father in Me; or else believe Me for the works' sake." MEMORY VERSE—Matthew 16:16.

Christ, Son of the Living God

SIMON PETER DECLARES JESUS' DIVINE SONSHIP

Scripture—Matthew 16:13-17; John 1:1-4; 5:17-18; 14:8-14; 17:1-5; Philippians 2:5-11; Colossians 1:15-20; Hebrews 1:1-4.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL THE PARTICULAR portion of the Gospel story which is the beginning of today's lesson portrays probably the most important period of Christ's life between His baptism by John the Baptist to His death on the Cross.

Christ's first statement of the church soon to be born is followed by the prediction of His death and Resurrection, and that is followed soon after by the Transfiguration.

Jesus was the most talked about Man of His day. The things He said, the miracles He performed, His way of life, made Him outstanding.

What did men say about Him? That was the question Christ asked of His disciples when they came into the coasts of Caesarea, Philip, a beautiful region "just over the frontier at the foot of the spurs of Mount Hermon." The disciples answered Him that some said He was John the Baptist—now deceased—others thought He was the Prophet Elijah come back, or Jeremiah or another of the old Prophets.

Then the Lord turned to His own friends and constant companions, and asked, "But whom "Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known Me, Philip? he that hath seen Me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father. Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in Me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of Myself; but the Father that dwelleth in Me, He doeth the works.

"Believe Me that I am in the Father, and the Father in Me." "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto My Father."

After Jesus' death and Resurrection, the things that He did were exhibited by the disciples themselves. They were given the inner strength of character and the power to do His work on earth, to perform miracles, to organize and carry on the church that Jesus spoke of after Peter's declaration of faith in Him. These things they did in spite of persecution.

In concluding this lesson, let us see what Paul, that apostle who was educated as a teacher—an say ye that I am?" Peter answered Him—Peter, the warm-hearted but sometimes unreliable disciple: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," he said.

Jesus blessed him for that answer which He said that flesh and blood had not revealed to him, "but My Father which is in Heaven. And I also say unto thee, That Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Alfred Plummer says that it almost seems as if Jesus had asked the question with some anxiety, and when Peter gave his answer, the Lord was overjoyed, for it is the only place in the Gospel where Jesus called an individual blessed.

How did Peter come by his decision? By listening to Jesus, by following Him, by His ministry and works. He could come to no other conclusion, for "Never man spake as this Man," never then nor since, did any man do what this Man did over and over.

Philip seems not to have fully appreciated the teachings of Christ concerning the Father. He had heard the Master's words, and he was convinced that He, and He alone, could reveal God the Father to them, so he said: "Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us."

educated and conservative man, said: "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: Who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: But made Himself of no reputation, and took upon Him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men:

"And being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." And this was a shameful and terribly cruel death.

"Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name which is above every name: That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth:

"And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." The eternal glory of the Son of God is revealed in Jesus' words, John 17, when Christ lifted up His eyes to heaven and said, "Father, the hour is come; glorify Thy Son, that Thy Son also may glorify Thee. I have glorified Thee on the earth; I have finished the work which Thou gavest Me to do. And now, O Father, glorify Thou Me with Thine own self with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was."

'Books and Stuff'

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG We doubt if this item reaches the front pages—but today is the 80th birthday of one of the greatest men now living, Dr. Albert Schweitzer, philosopher, theologian, organist, and presently medical missionary in the wilds of French Equatorial Africa. . . . We quote one of the fundamental tenets of his philosophy, from this week's Times Magazine: "Ethics is nothing else than reverence for life. Reverence for life affords me my fundamental principle of morality, namely that good consists in maintaining, assisting and enhancing life, and that to destroy, to harm or hinder life is evil."

Also now going on 'Big Brother Week, to fight against juvenile delinquency—at the same time that "1984 George Orwell's grim novel about what's going to happen to the world after the Communists take over, is being made into a movie. . . . It will also be about Big Brother, but a different kind of brother from the one who's helping this week to combat delinquency."

And January is the month during which two great men were born, both interesting to Southerners. . . . On the 19th, in 1807, General Robert E. Lee. . . . And on the 30th, in 1882, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

We were glad to read that a great radio and TV artist has lately been engaged in urging people to do all things—read books. . . . Mr. Bing Crosby, no less, recently said over the radio: "Youngsters nowadays are missing out on life's real rich experiences—reading good books, reading them, and telling others about them."

Coming from Bing, it really sounds convincing—we only hope you were listening to the radio that night. . . . We haven't been particularly impressed with the crop of novels that's come out lately, but there have been some excellent biographies. A new one by that seasoned and skillful biographer, F. Keith Pearson—we remember his "Dickens" and "Oscar Wilde" with particular pleasure—on the most famous and first historical novelist, Sir Walter Scott. . . .

And the biographers of George Eliot, the Bronie sisters, and the Carlyles, now come out with a new life of Paul Gauguin, the artist. . . . By Lawrence and Elizabeth Hanson, its called "Noble Savage," and is a thorough and scholarly treatment of a very romantic figure in art—whose life forms the basis of a novel written some years back by Somerset Maugham, if you remember, called "Moon and Sixpence." Now you have some facts to compare with the fiction. . . .

For those interested in the history of Palestine, biographies of two famous Israelis, have just been published: "For Zion's Sake," a life of Judah L. Magnes, first president of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, and "Ben-Gurion of Israel," about Palestine's first Prime Minister. . . .

And theatre lovers will be interested in "Gertrude Lawrence as Mrs. A.," subtitled "An Intimate Biography of a Great Star, by Miss Lawrence's husband, Richard Stoddard Aldrich, who married her a dozen years before her sudden death in 1952. . . . It's about a marriage which, to everyone's surprise, stuck—always an interesting story. . . .

Theatre lovers also might enjoy what is called America's only theatrical book club, The Fireside Theatre, which offers you your choice of a Broadway hit per month at the modest price of $1.89 each—plus shipping charges, of course—they never forget that. . . . Newest offer is an illustrated history of the theatre, called "World Theatre in Pictures," plus your choice of one of six recent plays, all for a dollar, just to get you started—how can you lose? . . .

Also for theatre-goers: "The Devil's Disciple," the comedy by George Bernard Shaw about American Puritans, opens for two nights only at the E.C.C. College Theatre, on Wednesday and Thursday nights, January 19 and 20. . . . Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and tickets at a dollar apiece can be obtained at the box office. . . . It's going to be good, we hear, so come on out to see it.

Our reviewer—again—is Mrs. Madge Allen, art supervisor of the Greenville colored school, who writes about a recent book concerning the South. . . . But they can't all be good. . . .

THE COTTON ROAD, By Frank Faulkner Wm. Morrow & Co., N. Y.—1954. $3.50.

In his 22nd year Judge Frank Faulkner told to his grandson the story of cotton running through Texas during the Civil War. There is little in the records about the "Road," but the terminus was Brownsville, Texas and the port was Bagdad, Mexico. The port was no more after 1874, having been destroyed during a hurricane.

Beyond the facts, the story reads like a dime novel. It carries all the feelings of the times. Fires, murders, gambling run rampant. The most unusual people are brought together. There is Timmy O'Shea who follows Jeremiah Cheyney half way across the country and kills him for murder.

His sister, Timmy was fifteen when the story opened. Lance Godfrey comes from England to help get cotton. He is the blockade running leader. Sally Skull walks, talks, and rides like a man. She mothers, then all, Eugene, the sweet and helpless, but brave heroine finally gets her man.

Blood runs everywhere. Indians raid the wagon caravan in true Western style. Many "bite the dust." There is even a thundering herd of wild buffaloes. Thirst stalks their journey. It finally comes to an end. The good are rewarded. The bad are punished by death.

"THE COTTON ROAD" is told vigorously enough. But — many stories of the old South, and of the old West have been much better told. It will appeal to some. For those seeking a meaty thought provoking tale, this is not it. Mrs. Madge Allen.

During World War II an RAF sergeant jumped from a plane 18,000 feet in the air without a parachute and landed unhurt when his fall was broken by trees and deep snow.

It's Been Getting "Left-Overs" Too Long

East Carolina College has been getting the "left-overs" from the state's table for too many years. It's time it was given its rightful place at the table with the other larger state institutions.

The comparison of per student cost of education at Woman's College in Greensboro and the per student cost at East Carolina College should open the eyes of a good many people throughout the state. It costs the state twice as much to educate a student at W.C. as it does at East Carolina.

Pitt Representatives S. O. Worthington and Walter Jones asked a school budget analyst for an explanation of the discrepancy. His answer adds support to the long standing contention of The Reflector and other Eastern Carolinians that East Carolina College has not received in past years the financial support it deserves on the basis of the job it is doing for the young people of the state.

Among the things pointed out by the analyst were:

1. Sixty-eight per cent of the teachers turned out by W.C. go into high school education and it costs more in equipment and supplies to prepare students as high school teachers. At East Carolina, he said, 69 per cent of the teacher trainees are prepared for elementary teaching.
2. Ninety per cent of the students at W. C. live in dormitories on campus while at East Carolina only 67 per cent of the students live on campus.
3. The teacher load at W.C. is one teacher to 15 students while at East Carolina there are 25 students for each teacher.
4. Average salaries of faculty members at W. C. are about $500 more per year than at East Carolina.

It is certainly no discredit to East Carolina that it doesn't spend as much money per student as W. C. does, but it does bring up the question whether East Carolina is receiving the recognition it deserves when the legislators begin passing out state dollars for education.

PROBLEM OF SUFFERING
"Why has God sent this dreadful thing upon me?" It is with this interrogation of despair that nine people out of ten meet their troubles; and there is a reason why this should be so. It does seem when trouble comes upon us that these things are taking place because of some evil we have committed. We have so long accustomed ourselves to believe that trouble is punishment for sin that we have failed to believe that trouble is punishment for sin that we have failed to hear that great assurance of the Word of God that just as often as not trouble comes not only upon the wicked but upon the righteous also. God does not send trouble upon human beings. He made a perfect world, and man by his sin has made it a hideous place of pain. God is not responsible for this distortion of his purpose. He does not create trouble or send it upon human hearts to try them, but He takes the trouble which men themselves have made and utilizes it to a great end. Instead of engulfing us in our follies, His loving hand comes down and supports both the guilty and the innocent that they may survive and triumph through the deep water. We are never promised security in this world as a reward for our goodness. What we are promised, if we obey God, is not security but support. No matter what happens to us, we can be confident that powers vastly beyond our own are being extended to us every minute of our lives.

Second Only To Keeping Peace

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—The physical repair and rebuilding of the nation's domestic plant—highways, schools, hospitals, homes, health centers and insurance aid plans—is regarded by President Eisenhower as a task second only to achievement of conditions that will stave off World War III more or less permanently. That is the essence of the program which he will unfold to Congress during the current session. It explains why he has presented no new or radical reforms to the legislators in his recent messages. He believes that the country needs a period of orderly and basic reconstruction after the 20 years of neglect enforced by the great depression, the struggle for economic recovery, World War II and the current conflict with Russia. SHOCK TO CONGRESS—Congress has been shocked at White House suggestions of a $100 billion highway program. But nothing less will meet the peacetime and wartime needs of a nation on wheels, in the opinion of Federal and private engineering advisers. Estimates for new hospitals, new schools, new homes and new health centers are only tentative. But it is probable that the total cost, which must be borne by the Federal Government, states, cities and private interests, will amount to at least $500 billion over a five- or ten-year period. Where Washington does not finance these projects, it will underwrite them in co-operation with other governmental units and private groups. This startling program also has its politico-economic aspect. As Roosevelt's New Deal spending, World War II, the Marshall Plan and other foreign aid schemes produced prosperity of a sort, so the proposed outlay of so much money at home should maintain a high level of industrial activity, employment and general good times. PRESSING NEEDS—President Eisenhower has discussed this program feelingly with engineers, educators, physicians and businessmen generally, and has found general agreement among them. He notes in these talks at his White House stag dinners that his scheme has a vast humanitarian aspect. In his opinion, however, these are practical and pressing demands. He believes that the grave shortages imperil the American people's welfare and security. For instance, there are not enough hospitals, physicians or nurses for proper care of the sick at reasonable costs. There are not enough classrooms for decent education from elementary grades to the highest institutions of learning. Slums and unlivable hovels still darken rural and urban landscapes. TRAFFIC CONDITIONS—The breakdown of the highway system, perhaps, symbolizes the nation's state of disrepair most spectacularly. It has been deeply disappointed at the lack of response to his crusade for safe driving. This year threatens to register a new record of automobile injuries and fatalities. Traffic congestion may yet transform the centers of many great cities into ghost areas, with tremendous economic loss. Travel to and from work requires several hours each day, taking its human and economic toll. In many vital defense and industrial sections, the roads cannot carry even peacetime loads efficiently and rapidly. This condition would prove dangerous in war. Ike's friends refer to these seemingly grandiose ideas as the "Eisenhower New Deal." But they add the comment that it is a down-to-earth and constructive program without any ideological twists of the Roosevelt-Truman kind.

IS HE SUPERSTITIOUS?—Senator W. Kerr Scott of North Carolina insists that he is not superstitious, being a hard-headed farmer, but the Senate Sergeant-at-Arms has his doubts. For many years, Senators from North Carolina have occupied Suite 345 in the Senate Office Building. Permanent occupancy of the same office makes it convenient for visiting constituents. Senator Scott, however, noted that every North Carolina Senator for almost 30 years died in office or was defeated in the primary while occupying this suite. He demanded and obtained a transfer to Suite 452, turning the former quarters over to Senator Alan Bible of Nevada.

Whether he meant to or not, the budget analyst who placed those figures before the House this week presented one of the most forceful arguments we have heard for a larger share of state funds for East Carolina College.

Recreation Statute Should Be Repealed

Greenville's City Council should seek repeal of the local legislation which governs the expenditure of municipal funds for recreation and sets a limit on the amount which can be spent for recreation in one fiscal year.

The interests of the city would best be served if the recreational expenditures by the city were subject to the general provisions of the state-wide law rather than the local legislation passed several years ago.

The attorney general's office has informed local officials that it "sees no particular advantage in retaining your local statute."

In our opinion the local statute with its $30,000 limit on expenditures for recreation is more a handicap to the city than an asset. It seems to us an unnecessary bother to have to send to the General Assembly every few sessions an amendment to the local statute which raises the maximum which can be spent for recreation. It appears unnecessary to have a maximum established by legislation when the City Council has the power from year to year to determine what amount the city can afford for recreation in keeping with the needs of the city.

If the local legislation is altered this year to raise the maximum expenditure, the city probably will have to go through the same thing again a few years from now. If local expenditures for recreation are placed under the general statute, no further legislation should be necessary at any time in the future.

Somebody Told Me

Selection For Jaycee Award

One of the highlights of every civic year in Greenville is the presentation of the Distinguished Service Award by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Last night at the Country Club it was Ben Rouse who was honored. The multitude of Ben's activities are listed elsewhere in the Reflector; they will bear evidence that he deserves recognition. He was president of the Jaycees last year and will probably be Lion's president next year. As always, there was a great deal of speculation about who would be chosen the outstanding young man of the year. Judges and count ballots from all of Greenville's civic clubs and decide from the top three. It was generally agreed this year that the award would go to either Ben or Patrolman Jim Boykin. No doubt Ben has been a contender for several years, but Jim set the woods on fire in 1954 despite the fact that he is a relative newcomer to the club. He took his vacation time for heading up the Little League regional tournament, pioneered the procurement of a rescue truck (but Ben and Dave Whichard were co-chairmen of the committee), headed up the most successful Christmas party the Jaycees have had in years, brought the year's best speaker to the Jaycees, and participated in many other community activities. No doubt the judges considered Jim's age; he's only 27 and will have many more years to be recognized. Carl MacKinney and I were discussing the matter and Carl commented that Jim was praised even by a man whom he arrested. It should be mentioned that the Young Man of the Year does not necessarily have to be a Jaycee, although he has been during the five years I have been watching the awards. The only requirement is that he be 35 or under. Bill Henderson of Reidsville, president of the N. C. Junior Chamber of Commerce, displayed his ability as a speaker in the address of the evening. Like most Jaycee leaders he realized the importance of putting a little humor into the speech, although he always connected the stories with the point of the speech: Keeping the road open for progress. One of the stories was about his brother, who was reading the paper and quite pre-occupied when his young son asked him how much a million dollars is. Next day the boy came home from school and said, "Daddy, you got me in trouble in school today." "I'm sorry, son. How did I do that?" "A million dollars is not a helluva lot." And I thank you. What Other Editors Are Thinking

PASSING THE BUCK (Henderson Dispatch)
While segregation problems probably can be handled to greater satisfaction at city and county level than by the State at large, as suggested by Governor Hodges in his message, the State should be recommended after a lengthy study of conditions, at the same time the local units may wish to have some standard set by the legislature for their guidance. If the General Assembly follows proposals given it, responsibility largely will be transferred to boards in cities and counties over the State. That procedure has much to commend it, but at the same time it appears to be a matter of passing the buck. Return of such authority to local boards is in a sense a reversal of policy that has been followed by the State for years. That policy has been one of arrogating more and more power to Raleigh for control of schools. This observation has been made here before but can be again, namely, that even down to the smallest detail in some brackets school authorities at the home level have to obtain approval from some commission or board in Raleigh before they can proceed in managing their affairs. While the State is tossing a hot potato into the hands of the city and county people, it would be more becoming if it would at the same time restore some other prerogatives it long ago seized for itself. Not a contract can be let for construction, nor even a bus route laid out over county roads, without permission from the department in Raleigh. That is not only silly, but it is inherently undemocratic. It is as if to say that only State officials are capable of making decisions and that such matters cannot be left to local authorities. This condition prevails not only in school affairs but in other activities as well. The State has to approve all roads for maintenance and even dictates to municipalities how they shall spend their share of gasoline tax money collected by the State and remitted to them. The custom carries over also into health, welfare and perhaps other activities. Local self-government is rapidly vanishing from cities and counties. It is quite well enough to allow segregation headaches to be settled back home, but "back home" should also be allowed greater autonomy in shaping policy and in administering numerous other activities the State has horned in on in recent years.

Plans For Withholding North Carolina Income Taxes

By LYNN NISBET
WITHHOLDING—Senator David Hall of Jackson is having prepared a bill providing for the withholding of State income taxes at the source very similar to the Federal withholding plan. The original bill will not attempt to set up machinery for enforcing the law, but would leave that mainly to the administrative functions of the Department of Revenue. Eugene Shaw, commissioner of revenue, told newsmen sometime ago that some study had been made of the feasibility of retaining a percentage of the amount withheld for the Federal government, rather than attempting to set up an entirely different schedule to take care of difference in exemptions. This idea contemplates deducting perhaps 10 per cent of the Federal amount from each pay check. Then at the end of the year the taxpayer would file returns as at present, and would be billed for any remainder due the State or refunded any excess payments. Senator Hall said his bill does not go into such details, but primarily authorizes the plan of collecting income taxes. He thinks that after the first year the plan would assure a steady flow of money into the treasury instead of two-thirds of the entire general fund receipts coming during March and April. This would alleviate the problem of investing idle cash and also eliminate necessity for short term borrowing during the lean months from October to March. The proposal is expected to encounter strong opposition, though Senator Hall says he has found much more support than was given the idea when it was proposed by Governor Scott six years ago. It is thought the percentage method might overcome former objections on part of employers about the increased amount of bookkeeping required. FIRE TAX—The first of many expected bills dealing with the problem of rural fire protection went into the mill Wednesday. Senator Wills Hancock would authorize the Granville county commissioners to levy a special tax to aid rural communities in providing fire fighting organizations and equipment. Since a number of other local bills of similar purport are expected, it has been suggested that they might be consolidated into one statewide enabling act, authorizing any county, within discretion of the commissioners, to levy a tax for the purpose leaving the details for local authorities to work out. LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR—Rep. Roger Kiser of Scotland, always alert to save money, "kicks a bit too far too fast" in proposing that the item of $3,100 a year for the Lieutenant Governor's salary be deleted from the appropriation bill. He reminded his colleagues that the office is vacant and therefore the appropriation is not needed. The office, however, will be occupied during the last six months of the biennium, since a Lieutenant Governor will be elected next year and will take office January 1, 1957. The current appropriation period runs to June 30, 1957.

There are numerous items in every appropriation act which are not used for various reasons. The Lieutenant Governor's salary will not be paid out of the 1955-56 appropriation after November 9, 1954, nor out of the 1955-57 appropriation prior to January 1, 1957. But it must be left in the bill, or certainly $1500 of it, so that it will be available when the new officer takes over two years hence. It is recalled that when the salaries of members of the Council of State were upped from $7,500 to $9,000 several of the officials were embarrassed to disclose they had not requested appropriation for the increase which was applicable to the last six months of the biennium. SECTIONAL—It is axiomatic that nobody likes taxes, and everybody likes services to be rendered by government. There is less agreement on which should be the controlling factor—whether to provide the services and levy the necessary taxes, or to ascertain an acceptable tax table and cut the service pattern to match it. Far from complete but rather comprehensive survey of sentiment among members of the General Assembly discloses that budget proposals for new taxes now pending in the Legislature: much more general support in the Piedmont and western areas than in the east. Easterners are vocative in dislike of the proposed taxes on cigarettes and other tobacco products. Middle and western folks are disposed to accept that levy

Business Today

Helping 'Small Fry'

By ELMER ROESSNER
There is a strong likelihood that the new Congress will take some important steps to improve the fortunes of small business. The political situation, of course, is an important reason for thinking so. Creation of a warmed climate for small enterprises has long been a favorite plank of the Democrats. Some of the most avid fighters for small businessmen have been Democrats.

And while it is certain that the Democrats will try to prove that they are the little fellows' best friends, the Republican minority will attempt to establish exactly the same point. Election year coming up. However, it is probable that some strenuous efforts would be made along these lines even if the Democrats had not control. The current wave of mergers—usually involving the disappearance of smaller companies and the swelling of the larger corporations—is causing considerable uneasiness among businessmen, labor, economists and common folk. Americans have traditionally been apprehensive about trusts and cartels. Part of the reputation of the first Roosevelt was built on the trust-busting legend. It is probable that the Republicans, if they had control, would take some vigorous steps to curb bigness and help smallness in business.

There are other reasons for expecting Congressional action this term—in fact, fairly soon. One is the fact that the Small Business Administration's funds available for loans to small enterprises are almost exhausted. Linked to this is the fact that Senator John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.) is the new chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee. The SBA is certain to get an attentive hearing when it asks for additional funds and, as reported, for power to make larger loans and in more fields. The SBA in fact might grow up into a minor league Federal Reconstruction Corporation.

Another reason for expecting action is that the House Select Committee on Small Business, in its final report to the 83rd Congress, declared that small business, is getting a diminishing share of defense subcontracts. Prime contractors, it said, are doing more of the work they used to subcontract to smaller firms. The committee said, is that the Defense Department has been lending prime contractors the machines on which to do some of this work.

DEPARTMENT STORES' PROFITS UP IN THIRD QUARTER
The nation's departmentalized stores did better in the three months ended October 31, than earlier in the year, according to a survey of 237 stores by the National Retail Dry Goods Association. However, profits were not up to the same period a year earlier.

Net profits from merchandising operations for the first three months of the fiscal year starting February 1 amounted to 1.5 per cent of sales, compared with 2.1 per cent in the corresponding 1953 period. Including other income, the profits for the first nine months amounted to 2.8 per cent of sales. The NRDA survey did not forecast profits for the fourth quarter of the fiscal year but fourth-quarter profits are usually the best of the year.

MORE THAN HALF MILLION TRADEMARKS REGISTERED
If you frequent a trademark once in a while, don't feel stupid. There are now more than a half a million of them in the United States.

In the year ended December 31, the Patent Office granted 15,836 trademarks, bringing the total up to 544,992, according to Association.

Research In The Public Interest

By SAUL PETT
NEW YORK (AP)—As a public service, we will now dispose of some of the burning questions of our time:
Q. Why do bald men or semi-bald men have to pay full price for a haircut?
A. (From my barber) Because there's less cutting but more research; the hairs are harder to find. Also, with a full head of hair, a barber can hide his mistakes. With a bald man, he must be more careful; each hair is doubly important.
Q. Why do we have to pay more for a haircut?
A. (From my barber) Because there's less cutting but more research; the hairs are harder to find. Also, with a full head of hair, a barber can hide his mistakes. With a bald man, he must be more careful; each hair is doubly important.

using the same size even as the baby grows. Also, it's good for burping, as a semi-covering sheet.
Besides, it covers more of the strategic areas and is equally usable for either sex. Instead of being pinned only up the front, it's pinned on both sides. That means less chafing, fewer rashes.
Q. Why does a short belt cost as much as a long belt?
A. (From a belt manufacturer) It costs as much to support a short girl as a tall girl, doesn't it?
If we charged strictly according to size, the man who wears, say, a size 48 would have to pay twice as much as he does now, and the size 24, half as much. We charge on the basis of what it costs to make a 36, which is the average size. Besides, you'd go crazy trying to figure a different price for each size. (I think this guy was talking to my barber.)
Q. Why are some oil trucks marked "Inflammable" and others "flammable," when both words mean the same thing?
A. (From lawyers at the American Petroleum Institute) "Inflammable" was the original choice to indicate a cargo capable of bursting into flames. That was and is correct. But then the modern technical mind went to work and assumed that some people might be confused by the "in" to indicate a negative or not flammable. So some companies use the second which is also correct.

Q. Why is it fair to deduce from the pseudoscalar meson theory relating quantitatively to meson-nucleon scattering that nuclear forces depend on spin and deduce that there is a quadrupole moment of the Deuteron?
A. Sorry, I got to catch a train.

HAWK WATCH

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

I found Dana in a small dark box stall looking completely limp. There were two perches in the room—one a large crossbar padded with cloth, the other an arrangement similar to the perching block I had seen the first day above the house. Bulcher Boy was sitting on the latter without his hood but still wearing his bells and jesses and with his leash attached to a metal ring. His yellow claws were clinking the block nervously and he was making small squeaky sounds, dipping over with his tail up and his head toward Dana. When he saw me he stopped and glared at me out of baleful eyes above drooping mustachios. The big perch beside him was empty. Dana was standing with one hand caressing the empty perch, crying like a little girl.

"Tell me, Dana," I put an arm around her shoulders. "What is it?"

"Don't you see?" She pointed to the crossbar. "Her perch is empty. He's killed Tundra."

"Tundra is his eagle, isn't it?" "Tundra was mine," she flared. "I trained her. I loved her. She'd do anything for me." She was pressing her knuckles against her lips. "He tricked me."

"How?"

"Yesterday," she rubbed the back of her hand across her eyes. "Yesterday he found where I had her hidden."

"Why did you hide her?"

"Because he tried to kill her Sunday morning I heard her cry and I came out here to her perch. She was gone and when I went to the clearing brother had a knife. When I ran up and yelled she bated off his arm and flew free. I'd never seen him look like that. He wouldn't talk. He just walked away and went to the house."

"What time Sunday morning was that?" I asked.

"About this time just after day-light. He'd been away all night. I don't know where. I'd stayed up waiting for him. It was dawn when I heard Tundra and ran out."

"When did you hide her?"

"When I got her back in, after the fog had lifted Sunday morning. She'd made a flight—Dana stopped suddenly, moving away from my arm. Her voice was lower and the words came more slowly. 'I wasn't to tell anyone we had her. Brother made me promise because it's illegal to keep an eagle—but now it doesn't matter. I got her to come in Sunday and took her away back along the ridge and tied her. Don't you understand?'—she made a pathetic motion with her hand—"I had to keep brother from finding her after he'd tried to kill her. He kept at me to take him to her. He said the conservation men were coming and we'd have to destroy her. I wouldn't take him. He tried to follow me each time I went to feed her but I managed to slip away and get to her once a day."

"When did you bring her back?"

"I didn't. Brother tricked me yesterday. He pretended to be walking out the lane and I took that chance to go to Tundra. She'd been without food for nearly twenty hours. He must have circled and then followed me. I didn't know he'd located her. When I went back to the house you were there." She hesitated and I was afraid she was going to remember not to trust me but she went on. "Brother came in while we were talking—remember, he was upstairs? Soon after you left, I realized he had disappeared. When I got out to where Tundra was hidden, she was gone."

"Yesterday, about sundown?" I asked.

She nodded. "When I got back—"

I interrupted. "I can't understand why he didn't kill her when he'd located her yesterday afternoon. He had the chance—after you left. Why did he come back to the house first?"

"Sunday he had tried a knife. I know why—" Dana was watching me—"so I wouldn't hear a shot. But it didn't work. I knew the next time it would be a gun."

"All right, but why didn't he use it yesterday after you left her? Before he came back to the house?"

"Because I'd taken the cartridges out of his automatic."

"But he could reload the gun when he got to the house—I didn't have to go on from there. 'Do you know anything about a note that Cricket wrote to me?'"

She frowned. "Cricket can't write. She can't even write her name."

"Skip it," I said. "What happened after you found Tundra gone?"

"When I got back it was dark and brother was in the library. He acted strange but he said it was the only thing we could do. I threatened to tell the conservation men all about it and we had a row. Brother took me up to the attic and locked me in. While I was up there I wondered if he might be lying about Tundra. Just now, when I saw him leave the house I thought he must have her here in the woods. Then I saw you. I hoped you'd get me out in time to save her but we're too late."

"I'm not sure it's too late," I said.

"What?" Her eyes were searching mine.

"This clearing you speak of—where is it?"

"Back through the woods."

"Let's get out there." I started toward the door. "There's a chance he hasn't got her yet."

Dana was few yards ahead of me running along the narrow path. It took all I had to catch up with her. "Hold it," I said, fighting for air. "How close are we?"

"Just ahead."

"Take it easy if he's there," I said. "If he gets flustered it's hard to tell what he'll do."

I probed off and gazed blindly toward the eagle. "Tundra."

"Stand back, Dana," Anson's voice was still correct and just about right now I got a good look at him out in the light. He wasn't any taller than she was, but a lot older—a lightweight, hatchested, narrow-shouldered esthete, with a bony face and a too-large aquiline nose above a small mouth drawn in tight. The jutting chin went well with the thin arched eyebrows and black, oily-looking hair and the beard stubble and dark areas under his eyes gave him a feverish look.

Three ways to tell 1954 was a great year for America

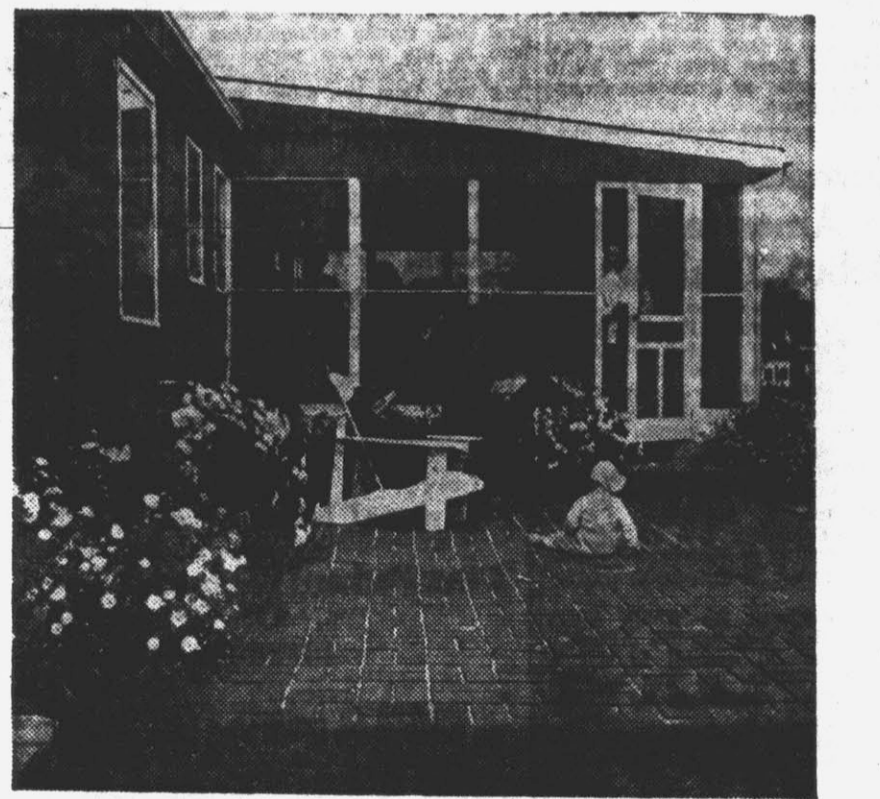

2. Savings This year Americans put more of their money into savings accounts than in any other year since the war. And where did they save? They put more of these hard-earned savings account dollars into insured Savings and Loan Associations than anywhere else. People know insured Savings and Loan Associations give excellent returns on their money. They know these friendly, home-town organizations are safe.

THE FACT IS—the insured Savings and Loan Associations in your community are mighty good places for you to know about. Your savings are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation—an agency of the U. S. Government. And these associations offer complete and really expert home mortgage services. Stop in soon at an insured Savings and Loan Association. You'll find it's a very pleasant and profitable place to do business.

1. Babies This year the stork really worked overtime! He delivered babies at the rate of 10,990 a day. That's enough new people to make a city the size of Akron, Ohio, every single month. What better proof that America is healthy and growing fast!

3. Homes Throughout the country in 1954 home owners outnumbered tenants by the widest margin of all time. Almost 6 out of every 10 families now own their own homes. Where do they get the mortgage money? A great many went to their insured Savings and Loan Associations! Right now these associations make one third of all home mortgage loans. Last year they were the nation's largest single source of mortgage loans for home building, buying and alterations.

Pirates Starting Today On 3-Game Roadtrip

West Carolina, Lenoir Rhyne, Abbey On Slate

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina Pirates begin a three-game trek into the Piedmont and mountainous section of North Carolina this afternoon.

On tap in the crucial series of games are Lenoir Rhyne's Bears, Western Carolina's Catamount and Belmont Abbey's Crusaders. The trip can afford the Bucs an opportunity to improve their conference won-loss mark or it can prove disastrous.

East Carolina will make the trip without Cecil Heath, captain. The little playmaker is in the infirmary suffering from a kidney disorder. He missed the Belmont Abbey game and there's no telling how long he will be on the shelf. The Pirates especially need the services of their leader on this sojourn and probably will be weaker as a unit.

Lack To Win One
"We'll be lucky to win one of the three," Coach Porter emphasized this morning. "Lenoir Rhyne is extra strong at home and we only beat them here by two points in an overtime." The Bears have giants Raeford Wells, who is averaging 22 points a game. The 6-8 center is rough under the boards and will have a three-inch height advantage over anybody the Pirates can put up. Bob Ortmyer, 6-7 forward, gives the Bears a tremendous one-rebounding combination.

The Lenoir Rhyne game is to be played at Lincoln instead of Hickory. The site was changed due to a conflict in the use of the Army there.

Outlook Jinx
At Oulouwee, the Bucs meet the team and location that spelled initial downfall last season. Coach Porter's charges were unbeaten in 15 games when they embarked upon the high altitude. Coach Jim Crudger's bunch broke the Buc winning skid for East Carolina's only loss during the regular season.

This year though the Catamounts have been experiencing bad luck in great chunks. First, they lost Bob Ray and Randall Shields to the Army then Jim Jordan, great center, flunked out and Dwayne Simpson left school. All regulars last season, their absences have nearly annihilated Western Carolina chances for first division.

"Belmont Abbey may have re-organized by the time we get there Tuesday," Coach Porter pointed out. They have a better ball club than exhibited here Thursday night. The Crusaders almost whipped East Carolina up there last season. The psychology of playing at home and the advantage of a small gym might be just what the Bucs need.

ECC Starters
The Pirates' personnel will remain intact with exception of Heath. Freddie James of Churchland, Va. will move into the Buc captain's spot. James started Wednesday night for Heath and performed impressively. The remainder of the lineup consists of Don Harris and Carvel (Nick) Nichols at the forwards, Guy Mendelhall at center, and J. C. Thomas, guard and acting captain.

Should the Pirates get past these three games, their chances of ending strong in the North State Conference appear bright. Their strongest rival, Atlantic Christian, has not yet tasted defeat within the loop and East Carolina cannot afford to drop any more conference titles. But if they could, the final game becomes a little. The North State tourney at Lexington decides the champion.

European Titlist In American Ring Debut Tonight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Dulio Loi, European lightweight champion in pursuit of Jimmy Carter's world title, makes his American ring debut tonight and is a 2-1 favorite to defeat rough, aggressive Glen Plangan. St. Paul, N.C. will televise at 10 p.m. EST. The handsome Loi, rated as No. 3 lightweight contender behind Paddy DeMarco, has an impressive record of 59 victories, 3 draws and 1 defeat in European competition.

He predicted he would finish Plangan in five rounds. Although the 24-year-old Italian is not a knockout hitter, he has stopped some of his opponents by cutting them up.

The unrated Plangan was confident too, declaring, "I'll be the guy out of the ring" before the sixth round.

Although he has won 17 of his last 18 fights, Plangan hasn't met many dangerous lightweights lately. Carter gave him a sound beating last August in Chicago.

GHS Cagers Will Play ECC Frosh

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville's once defeated Phantoms get a real test of strength tonight when they meet the freshman team from East Carolina College in Memorial Gymnasium at eight o'clock in a March of Dimes benefit game.

The Greens, who are currently riding a three game winning streak, will be up against their roughest competition of the year. The ECC freshman team looked impressive in two early season games with Wilmington and Atlantic Christian.

Coach Bob Farley's crew will not be entirely new to the freshmen. In pre-season practice the G-men and Pirates met in a regulation scrimmage game with the Phantoms holding their own for a while.

One of the Greens' biggest worries is the size of the East Carolina court. The Green Phantoms have been used to playing on their little matchbox gymnasium floor, which is about 20 feet shorter than the college court. With the fast breaking offense that both teams employ, the G-men may find the going a little difficult. They are much more apt to get tired than the ECC boys who are used to the court.

Coach Earl Smith of the Pirates announced his starting line-up with only two North Carolina natives in the five. They are Tommy Jenkins of Greensboro and Jerry Stewart of Sanford. The other starters are Bob Adlyette of Craddock, Virginia, Morris Snead of South Boston, Virginia, and Sal Cruz of Boston, Massachusetts.

Coach Farley plans to use his usual starting five in all probability. They will have Bob Howell and Edgar Moore at forwards, Harold Edwards at center, Pat Sawyer and Tommie Staked at guards, Ike Riddick, Clark Noble, Billy Johnson, and Tommy Norris will be the reserves most likely to see action in the game.

The G-men enter the game with a highly respectable average of 75.2 points per game in the nine games they have played. The scoring figure is one of the best ever recorded by a high school team in the state. Game time for the benefit affair is eight o'clock. Tickets will be sold at the gym.

Millikan Excited Over Terps' Defeating State

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—

"Maryland ought to be 1-2-3... maybe," a beaming Bug Millikan said today after his Terrapins had confounded the national basketball ratings by upsetting the No. 2 team in North Carolina State.

Maryland, Johnny-come-lately to top rating in basketball, rallied from a seven-point deficit in the final five minutes to beat State 68-64 last night and enter a bid for the national title. Maryland is rated No. 1.

Millikan, a 34-year-old product of the ball control school at Oklahoma A&M, seemed excited enough about his team's victory but said, "I'll get excited about our rating when the season is over."

Asked about N.C. State's No. 2 ranking, Millikan said: "They're a mighty good ball club. They ought to be right up there 1-2-3 in the country."

Millikan and State Coach Everett Case heaped high praise on a pair of Maryland players, Bob Kessler, 6-foot-4 junior from Alexandria, Va., and Bob O'Brien, 6-foot-3 junior from McMechen, W. Va.

"O'Brien and Kessler did extremely fine jobs, especially when we were seven points behind," Millikan said.

Between them, the two players dropped in nine points in a row to put Maryland ahead to stay, 61-59.

Both Case and Millikan agreed also that State suffered a severe blow when 6-foot-9 Ron Shavlik fouled out after 16½ minutes of the first half. Case called that the turning point of the game.

The biggest basketball show in the Washington area in many years may come next Tuesday when Maryland takes on eighth-ranked George Washington.

Bill Reinhart, the GW coach, calls Maryland the second-best team he has seen all year, second only to San Francisco which defeated GW in the finals of the Oklahoma City Basketball Tournament last month.

Elon provided the surprise, downing Guilford, 105-86, a new Christian record.

High man of the night was Guilford's Bill Atkins with 29 points. Frank Derita bagged 23 points for Elon.

Lenoir Rhyne won its sixth straight, a close 73-69 decision over Catawba. Center Raeford Wells scored 29 points to lead the victory. He dropped in a field goal and a free throw with 2½ minutes remaining to send the Bears out in front.

Point came from behind in the second half to drop Wofford, 94-84. Bill Heugule was high with 20 points for the Panthers. He scored 16 in the second period.

Robert Kessler, Maryland's 6-4 hot-shot forward, did the major damage to the Wolfpack. Kessler was high scorer for the night with 28 points and teamed with Bob O'Brien on a nine-point effort in the last five minutes of the game to put Maryland ahead.

Maryland led during the entire first half, finally relinquishing its lead in the second period when the game became nip-and-tuck action. The Bears led 17-16 at the first one then the other jumping ahead. It was when State led 59-52 with five minutes remaining that Kessler and O'Brien got hot.

Only one ACC game is on tap for North Carolina teams tonight. North Carolina will invade South Carolina. In a previous meeting this season, the Tar Heels won, 88-67.

Davidson invades VPI at Blacksburg, Va., in a Southern Conference tilt and Erskine is at Belmont Abbey in the other action.

North State Conference teams were involved in three games last night, two of them league tilts.

Legislature Gets TV Control Bill

ANSING (AP)—A resolution calling for establishment of a six-man commission to control televising of home athletic events at the University of Michigan and Michigan State College was before the Michigan Legislature today.

Rep. John P. Fitzpatrick, Detroit Democrat, sponsored the resolution. The commission would be empowered to accept bids for televising home games at both institutions.

Under the proposal, the commission would not be under NCAA control. "We think the resolution has a good chance of passing if H. O. (Fritz) Crisler (Michigan athletic director) is in favor of it," Fitzpatrick said. "We understand he would be ready to support the idea now."

Fitzpatrick said similar proposals had been introduced previously but were defeated largely because of opposition from Crisler. He said it was intended as a means of sidestepping NCAA control of home games at the two colleges.

Crisler was a leader in the recent Big Ten threat to bolt the NCAA if the conference was not given more power to pick its own television schedule. He was out of the state today, however, and unavailable for comment.

Louise Suggs In Favorite's Role

SEA ISLAND, Ga. (AP)—Depending Champion Louise Suggs of Atlanta will again be the favorite when the $3,500 Sea Island Open Golf Tournament begins tomorrow.

Babe Zaharias notified tournament officials that she won't be able to participate. She is the only major touring woman pro not in the lineup.

Red-haired Patty Berg, the proven veteran, and 19-year-old Mickey Wright of San Diego, Calif., are considered good bets to pull through ahead of Miss Suggs.

The 36-hole tournament over the Sea Island course is sponsored by the Ladies Professional Golfers Assn.

AAU Checking Richards' Status

By ED CORRIGAN
NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Richards, one of the United States' sure-fire winners in the 1956 Olympic games, was under investigation by the Amateur Athletic Union today.

Richards, the country's No. 1 pole vaulter, got in difficulty after the "Is Your Life Television" program Wednesday night. At the end of the program, he was given several gifts, including a dummy set of keys to an automobile.

AAU officials immediately became alarmed, and Dan Ferris, the secretary-treasurer of the organization, said he wanted Larry Houston, chairman of the Rules Committee of the Southern Pacific AAU.

"Attention has been called to a TV program in which Bobby Richards received an automobile. Assure you are looking into it."

The surprised Richards, pastor of the Church of the Brethren in Long Beach, Calif., was caught right in the middle.

"Whatever the AAU says I'll be happy to comply," he said. "I certainly want to compete in the 1956 Olympic Games."

Richards, when he appeared at the program, did not know it would be the story of his life. At the end, the first question he asked was: "Would his gifts endanger his amateur standing?"

He was assured that his appearance had been okayed by an official of the Southern Pacific AAU. Apparently this was a misunderstanding. The AAU said he could appear on the program but made no mention of accepting gifts, and at the end of the show, Ralph Edwards, who made the presentation, observed that if the AAU ruled that Richards could not accept the car, perhaps it could be donated to his church.

"However," said Ferris, "if Richards received the award because of his prominence as an athlete and not because of his preaching, he'll have to return the car."

Football Coach Bobby Dodd has been at George Tech since 1931 when he was backfield coach under Bill Alexander.

Arkansas Senate Considers Wyatt

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—It is difficult to find fault with the resolution offered in the Arkansas Senate that takes a swipe at Bowden Wyatt, the football coach who arrived in a pickup truck two years ago and now has gone winging off to Tennessee in a chrome-trimmed job, a gift from the fans of the Razorback State.

The resolution which was sent to the Resolutions Committee accuses the fast-moving mentor of "willfully and deliberately" breaking a contract which still had three years to run. It also says that Wyatt "destroyed the faith of thousands of Arkansas citizens for good qualities as loyalty and good sportsmanship on the part of athletic coaches."

At the time he decided to leave Arkansas, Wyatt said it was "a rough decision for me, but I'm going to a job I've always wanted. I just decided that if I ever was going back (to Tennessee) now was the right time to go. I talked to the president of the university (Arkansas) and to the athletic director. They were fine about it and told me whatever I did would be perfectly all right."

While sympathizing to a limited extent with Wyatt's desire to return to his old school at Knoxville where he gained fame as a player, we cannot but feel that the resolution states the facts pretty accurately. The University of Arkansas can get itself another football coach without much trouble, but the bad taste left by Wyatt's act will linger on and do the game no good in that segment of the Southwest Conference.

Midway in the past season, when it became obvious that the Razorbacks were a better football team than they had been in perhaps 25 years and the fans of the state were beginning to get goose pimples, Wyatt's contract calling for $12,000 per year was torn up and he was guaranteed an extra $3,000 for each of the remaining three years called for by the document.

Then as the Forkers continued to mow 'em down, the fans really got steamed up and raised an "appreciation fund" of $20,000 for their wonder coach. To Wyatt's credit, he insisted that the fund be distributed among members of the athletic staff, clear down to the groundskeepers, and kept for himself only the gilded gas buggy.

Olson Planning Full Schedule This Year

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Olson

knows he won the Edward J. Nell award as "Fighter of the Year" for 1954 because he was a busy champion so he plans a full schedule for '55.

Olson, who admits frankly he fights only for money, said last night at the boxing writers' dinner he planned to keep busy this year. Three successful defenses of his middleweight title won him recognition from the writers.

Joey Giardello, the Philadelphia battler who bounces from suspensions to reinstatements every other week, probably will be the next opponent if Joey shows to advantage against Al Andrews in Norfolk, Jan. 26.

Charles Humez of France is another possibility as is Rocky Cattellani, whose victory over Holly Mims Wednesday night at Cleveland, supposedly assured him of another crack at the title. "It's all set within 90 days," said Al Naiman, Rocky's manager. "Maybe," said Olson's boss, Sid Flaherty.

Then there is the proposed Olson-Archie Moore match for the light heavyweight title that Promoter Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club hopes to stage at New York City park in June.

In the distance there always is the chance of another fight with Sugar Ray Robinson who is trying to fight his way back. If Robinson wins two or three important bouts, a match with Olson probably could be big money since Sugar Ray twice beat Olson in the old days.

The Nell award, accepted by Olson, is named in memory of the former Associated Press boxing writer who was killed while covering the war in Spain in 1938.

James J. Braddock, former heavyweight champ, received the James J. Walker memorial plaque for "long and meritorious service" and Frankie Ryan, unbeaten 22-year-old New York lightweight, was honored as "Rookie of the Year" by Nat Fleischer, president of the writers' association; James Farley, former postmaster general and former chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, and Murray Rose, Associated Press boxing writer, made the presentations.

Good Weather For Crosby Open

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The Monterey Peninsula's spectacular golf courses revealed in almost perfect weather today as pro and amateur contestants started shooing for fun and cash in the 14th playing of Bing Crosby's famed charity show.

A lot of the players took advantage of the fine weather to turn up in final practice rounds yesterday while followers of the $15,000 event speculated on this year's likely favorite. The name of G. L. Littler, 24-year-old Palm Springs, Calif., star who took the big Los Angeles Open only last week, was prominent. But nobody was overlooking the possibility that E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Arkansas veteran who walked off with first place money last year, might repeat.

They are only two in a field of pros which includes all but a very few of the leading money winners. Jimmy Demaret, second last year as winner the year before, Jack Burke Jr.; Ed Furgol, National Open champion and the winner here in 1947; Ted Kroll, generally right up with the leaders; Peter Thomson, the British Open champion from Australia; and Lloyd Mangrum were among the name stars frequently mentioned.

With the fine pro field was a coterie of famed names from the screen and sports world plus other notables including retired Gen. Omar Bradley and Edgar Eisenhower, Tacoma a t t o r n e y and brother of another well-known golfer, Hoagy Carmichael, Phil Harris, Frankie Albert, Red Sanders and Peter DePaola were among the prominent amateurs.

Crosby's golf shows, attracting fans by the thousands, already have netted more than $200,000 for boys' clubs, old folks' homes, hospitals and the like.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—In the quietest trading of the week, the stock market today pursued a narrowly mixed course.

There were a few changes either way going past a point, but most gains and losses were small. Business progressed at a steady rate, but the pace was well under yesterday's 3,350,000 shares.

Steels held higher as a group, and coppers and distillers moved ahead. Most aircrafts and motion pictures were lower. Other major divisions were mixed. Some oils were active and higher.

Beech Aircraft moved up on a higher dividend, and also higher were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, national Distillers, Anaconda Copper, American Telephone Westinghouse Air Brake, and Sunray Oil, which had a mid-day flurry of activity.

Lower were General Motors, Allied Chemicals, Montgomery Ward, Caterpillar Tractor, United Aircraft, Commonwealth Edison, General Electric, Baltimore & Ohio, Standard Oil (NJ), and Paramount Pictures.

Winter Bulletin Of ECC Alumni Ass'n Published

The East Carolina College Alumni Association is now distributing its winter bulletin, the first issue of the quarterly publication to appear in the 1954-1955 term. James W. Butler, alumni secretary at the college, is editor.

The present number features an article on the Joyner Library at the college and begins a project to build the book collection there through gifts from alumni. This project has already begun. A score or more of volumes presented by Alumni President James L. Whitfield of Raleigh, and his wife, who is an alumnae of East Carolina, forms the nucleus for further contributions from graduates of the college.

James Blake of Durham was recently named to serve as chairman of the Friends of the East Carolina Library in that area, the bulletin announces. Other alumni organizations are expected to participate in the project.

jects included: Marshall Tatum, manager of the Jaycee-sponsored Little League baseball team; Frank Strawn, chairman of the King Brothers Circus project; James W. Boykin, chairman of the Little League Region Five tournament; Harry Douglas, chairman of the Christmas activities committee; Dan Sauced, chairman of a committee to organize the Ayden Jaycee Club; Charles Hudson, chairman of the club Newsletter; Ben Rouse and David Whitchard, co-chairmen of the emergency truck drive; Ed Harris, Horse Show chairman.

Henderson speaker for the evening was Bill Henderson, State President of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Henderson said the road of opportunity is open to young men and it is "up to us to make sure that it stays open."

"To all bosses here tonight, I am sure that you found the road open," he declared.

Henderson asserted that he was reminded of a slogan used by a photographic firm some time ago which read: "That picture you want tomorrow you must take today."

He said the phrase could be made to read: "That picture you are going to have tomorrow of yourself, you are painting today."

"It is much easier to paint the first time than it is to start over again," he said and asked: "What kind of picture did you paint today?"

Henderson said, however, that the "business of getting ahead is like a two-edge sword."

He urged young men "to be humble in getting ahead and not let the next step up the ladder puff us up unbelievably."

"May I offer a word for us, as Jaycees," he continued. "We have an obligation to keep this road open in America." Let's be thankful for the opportunity we have and let's defend it at every turn.

Other prominent Jaycees attending the Awards Night included: Jake West, vice-president of the Ninth Jaycee District and Red Gurganus, National Director.

Members of the city council were introduced by J. B. Kittrell, Jr. who served as chairman of the committee which made arrangements for the "Distinguished Service Award."

Past "Distinguished Service Award" winners who were present for last night's meeting included: Tom Wilson, Lester Turnage, Louis Gaylord, Larry Averette, Van Fleming, David Whitchard, Godfrey Oakley and J. B. Kittrell, Jr.

See Progress In Census Project

"Our churches are making good progress toward the enlistment of their census workers," reported the Rev. Robert McKenzie, Secretary of the Census Committee, yesterday after making a preliminary check of several leading churches.

The census of the city will be made on Sunday afternoon, January 30, and each worker will be asked to contact about 12 homes, which will take about two hours. The suggested quota of workers to be enlisted from each church is as follows: First Presbyterian, 25; Meadowbrook Presbyterian, 7; West Greenville Presbyterian, 3; Memorial Baptist, 27; Emmanuel Baptist, 25; Greenville Free Will Baptist, 22; Grace Free Will Baptist, 6; Eighth Street Christian, 35; Jarvis Memorial Methodist, 65; St. James Methodist, 12; St. Paul's Episcopal, 15; Salvation Army, 2; Church of God, 5; and First Pentecostal Holiness, 6. However, it is hoped that some of the churches will exceed their quotas.

The Negro churches also are participating in the city-wide religious census, and the Rev. J. A. Nimmo, President of the Ministerial Alliance held its second census meeting on January 11, with five churches represented. All churches are urged to send a large delegation to our next meeting Monday night, January 17, at the York Memorial Zion Church, at 8:00 p.m., at which time the literature will be placed in the hands of the workers.

It is hoped by the Census Committee that this will be the most complete religious census possible.

Ayden Scouts To Compete With Lions In Drive

AYDEN—The Explorer Scouts of Ayden have challenged the Ayden Lions Club to a contest for the benefit of the March of Dimes.

On Saturday the Explorers will take one side of Lee Street and the Lions the other. Each donation for the March of Dimes they receive will be placed on a piece of tape. The object is to see which group can make the longest chain of money.

The contest lasts from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and the winner is to be given a dinner by the losing group. The Scouts will have to work very hard, as they are outnumbered 4 to 1 in manpower.

Frigid weather continues to prevail in the Greenville area and the highest temperature recorded by the local U. S. Weather Station yesterday was 46 degrees.

The mercury dropped to 25 degrees last night and at 8 a.m. today it was 26. Heavy frost last night and much ice in lowgrounds.

A report on the case of an under-age girl, said to have been working for a local drive-in when she was alleged to have been picked up by a marine and raped, will probably not be forthcoming until Monday, Guy Watson, supervising inspector with the North Carolina Department of Labor said today.

Watson arrived in Greenville yesterday afternoon to check on reports that the 14-year-old girl was working in a local drive-in without a work permit. He and Mrs. Emily Hadley, labor regulations inspector for the 10-county area in which Pitt is included, this morning began their inspection of Lummie's Drive-In on North Greene Street where the young girl was said to have been employed.

The girl had testified that she was working at the drive-in on Saturday night because they were short of help. She said she had worked there on a previous occasion for a period of "several weeks."

Superintendent of Public Welfare K. T. Futrelle, who is charged with the responsibility of issuing the work permits, has said the girl had not obtained such a permit and he would not have issued her one if she had applied.

Watson said this morning that he was not able to say if any charges would be made in the case and could not make a statement concerning charges, if any.

"I don't know what I'm in a position to make one yet," he stated. "I'm merely making an investigation to find out if there has been any violations of the child labor laws."

He said he arrived in Greenville yesterday and he and Mrs. Hadley began their investigation at the local drive-in this morning.

The Raleigh official asserted that he had not gone far enough in his investigation to find out about ages of employees at the drive-in nor had his investigation proceeded to the point where he could determine what violations might have occurred.

"We hope to finish it up today and get our report out to the commissioner by Monday," he continued.

He said his investigation is concerned mainly with this particular case although the labor department checks on all such cases.

Watson pointed out that all such businesses are inspected at least once a year by Labor Department inspectors and at places where violations are found inspections are made more often.

The supervising inspector noted that in cases where under-age youth are employed, the employer usually bears the legal responsibility.

Mrs. Hadley stated that she had had no reports or complaints that the girl involved in the case had been working.

Nor has she had any complaints concerning Lummie's Place, Mrs. Hadley stated. The drive-in is operated by Lummie Cottle who leased it on November 19. Prior to that time the restaurant was operated by S. E. Mills who operated it under the name of the "Sandwich King."

The "Sandwich King" sign still hangs in front of the restaurant. Mrs. Hadley noted that her last inspection of the restaurant was made on October 12 when it was operated by Mills. At that time, she said, no North Carolina labor law violations were found.
