The old piano at R.H.S. has been reconditioned and is now in excellent shape for the elementary grades;

A new piano was bought for the high school;

Mrs. Everett regretted that Robersonville did not make the honor roll because the membership is insufficient. She urged those who haven't joined the P.T.A. to do so.

The treasurer, Mr. John Gray Taylor, gave the financial report. The program chairman, Mr. C. B. Martin, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Sherwood L. Roberson, who is a member of the Martin County Board of Education. His

New Floor Care Ends Waxing

One of the most difficult jobs of housekeeping is to keep linoleum and asphalt tile floors waxed and gleaming. Now, thanks to Glazo, it is no longer necessary to wax and scrub. All you do is apply Glazo with a brush about twice a year. It maintains a high lustre, non slip coating that seals out dirt. Glazo dries in one hour and is water clear. It's cheaper than wax in the long run besides saving a terrific amount of work, plus truly a beautiful floor. Glazo is available at Belk-Tyler's on the third floor.

Hostess to Contract Club

Civil Court Terms Need Attention

Could some individual or small group be made responsible for the disposition of cases on the civil court docket in somewhat the same manner in which the solicitor is responsible for seeing that cases on the criminal docket get to trial?

If it could, we feel the interest of the people of the county as a whole would better be served.

Will We Soon Fight Again In Asia?

It may not be long before American military men are again engaged in battle with Chinese Communist in an effort to protect another segment of the free world the United States has pledged to defend from communist attack.

We do not mean to be pessimistic. We are merely trying to face the facts squarely. A Chinese Communist invasion force apparently has taken tiny but strategic Yikiangshan island, a Chinese Nationalist outpost. The Chinese Communists doubtless intend to use their newly won base as a stepping stone to the Nationalist Tachens islands, and from there perhaps to the Pescadores and Formosa.

While the United States Seventh fleet is not committed to defend the Tachens, it has been pledged to the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores. Should the Chinese Communists press their invasion of the Nationalist strongholds, U. S. naval personnel and ships doubtless would be sent into action against the Reds. For the U. S. to back down from its pledge to defend the Nationalist islands would deal a crushing blow to freedom throughout Asia. It would likewise stagger faith in free nations throughout the world.

The turn of events will depend upon the Chinese Communists. It is to be hoped they will exercise better judgment than to challenge the American Seventh fleet. Otherwise we may find ourselves again plunged into a fighting war in Asia.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
HANDICAPS NEED NOT BIND
A few weeks ago a minister told his congregation of an ancestor of his who fought with the British fleet at Trafalgar. He received a wound in battle which permanently blinded him.

For most men this would have been a death sentence. There were no organizations then to help the blind and no technique for teaching them how to be useful. This man had to learn the hard way—and he did. Before he lost his eyesight he had been worldly-living and cynical; after he became blinded, his life melted into Christian love and benevolence. He began to realize that although he had lost his sight, he had much to be thankful for, and his life became conspicuous for its praise. In spite of his handicap he set himself to being useful and was soon one of the most useful persons in the circle in which he moved. He began to write poetry and even to compose music. When the end of his life came, he was everywhere spoken of as a man of the utmost distinction, as a happy man, and as one whose happiness and Christian faith had been continually contagious. Thus do the truly brave rise above their handicaps. It takes courage to do this; it takes something more—religious faith—to enable one to make handicaps the source of renewed life and power. True heroism—not in spite of their handicaps but often because of them.

Newcomer Neuberger 'Goofed'

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Not in many years has a freshman United States Senator made such an unfavorable impression and so unpropitious a start at Washington as Richard L. Neuberger, the literary legislator from Oregon. After three days of the current session, he out-prima-donnaed his colleague, Senator Wayne L. Morse, the GOP defector dubbed by the Senate Press Gallery as "The Five O'Clock Shadow."

The 42-year-old writer on conservation problems said and did everything wrong at the wrong place—the Women's National Press Club's annual welcome party to the new Congress. He spoiled or mused up their affair, and the feminine members of the Senate Press Gallery are an influential and formidable coterie.

Neuberger was requested to speak for only 10 minutes, but he lectured his peers and indulged in frequent references to himself and his wife, a member of the Oregon Legislature, for half an hour. NEUBERGER ATTACKS NIXON—Speakers at this affair are supposed to show themselves as witty, urbane, friendly, and wise, if possible. Neuberger, however, chose to denounce the guest of honor, Vice-President Nixon, for the latter's alleged "character assassination" tactics in last year's campaign. Ike, incidentally, has praised the Californian for his stumping.

Although the newcomer did not mention the V.P. by name his contrasting praise of Senate Minority Leader William F. Knowland, for his "clean" behavior identified the target of the attack. Knowland was as shocked as club members and other guests from Capitol Hill, and did not appreciate the left-handed compliment.

Neuberger violated the code which prevails on Capitol Hill and in almost every legislative and parliamentary body in the United States. Even the fiercest feudists, vocally, usually forgive and forgive hot words when they sit and smoke in cloakrooms, or when they meet socially. The two Oregonians promise to be notorious exceptions at Washington.

DISAGREES WITH SENATOR WILEY—High-really pinpointed, unless one could consider it the responsibility of the local Bar Association which sits as a committee of the whole to set the calendars for civil terms in Pitt Superior Court.

It appears to us that civil terms of Superior Court in Pitt County are not utilized to the extent they might be in the hearing of civil actions and getting them off the court docket.

Frankly we do not know the answer to the problem. Yet, we have come to the conclusion it presents a problem because of several reasons.

There are now some 286 cases on the civil docket in Pitt County supposedly for trial in Superior Court. Five of those cases date to 1940 or earlier. One carries a 1913 date. The others are scattered fairly evenly over the intervening years to the present.

Seldom does a week term of civil court last the full five or five and one-half days normally considered a work week for a term of court. More often, it seems to us, civil terms of court are adjourned after two or three days. Seldom is it that a majority of the cases placed on a civil term calendar for a particular term of court are disposed of during that term.

Perhaps the current week's civil term in Pitt Superior Court will serve as an example. When the calendar was set by the Pitt Bar Association, a total of 27 cases were scheduled for consideration during the term. When the attorneys and court officials finished revising the calendar when court opened Monday, there remained but 10 cases to be heard by the court. Four of them were divorce cases, two were on motions, one a judgment, one an inquiry, and three cases were for jury trial. The remaining 17 cases originally placed on the calendar were deferred to a later term of court for one reason or another.

A court official has estimated it costs Pitt County a minimum of $450 to $500 for a civil term of court, even if the term lasts for only a few hours and adjourns during the first day. To that cost can be added the salary paid by the state to the judge who has been assigned here for the week's term of court.

As we said at the outset, we do not know the answer to the problem, but it appears to us some measures should be taken to utilize to a greater extent the civil terms of Pitt Superior Court in view of the large backlog of cases and the high cost of conducting court terms.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., LINCOLN HEIGHTS BULLETIN-NEWS: "Free Enterprise" embodies all that brings dignity to the human race. Without this freedom there would be no profit for the individual, no satisfaction in his work, no personal liberty. . . . A Good Day To Sell Long Johns

In the words of B. D. Johnston of Berk-Tyler's: "If we don't sell the long Johns today we might as well pack 'em up and send 'em back."

Morris Brody followed: "They used to be one of the best-selling items in the store, but now so many people have central heating that they are one of the slowest." All year I've been wanting to make a snow man for the children. The trick that the weatherman has played on us even makes that impractical. If it weren't for the fact that the poor would be exposed to the elements, I would like to see about a foot of snow. If we gotta have winter, we might as well have something we can enjoy. How long has it been since you had some snow cream?"

Visiting Durante

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A visit to Jimmy Durante's modest home in Beverly Hills is an experience not unlike trying to drive to the Rose Bowl 10 minutes before game time. The crush is terrific. I've been to Durante's many times, and never have seen less than 10 people at any given time. Take the other day, just as an example.

A couple of NBC executives had called to talk over a business deal. I had dropped in for what might laughingly be called an interview. An electrician was working in the front room, oblivious to Eddie Jackson, Jules Buffano and a half dozen other members of the Durante entourage.

The network brass cornered Jimmy but not for long. He was at the piano with an apologetic nod to the executives: "I just got out of something." He played a few bars and yelled at Jackson: "Try singin' it dis way, Eddie." Jackson was into his famous strut and singing like he was the closing act at the Palace. Durante, cigar in his mouth, sang along without gestures. He stopped the music, touching to talk to people via short wave radio from all parts of the world. In Germany it seems that it's always raining, down in South America they're sitting around in shock in Newfoundland it's very warm when it gets up to 34.

Amateur radio small world department: The other day I was talking to an operator in Goose-bay, Labrador (Jim Malpass), who turned out to be from Wilson. Jim hooked me up with Otis Anderson of Greenville. At the same time, elsewhere on the dial, Roy Phelps was talking to an operator in Cuba who has lived in Raleigh for many years but was visiting in Cuba. He and Roy have many of the same amateur friends in Cuba.

The roughest thing about having two children is that it makes you want a third before you can stand it physically or financially. And I thank you.

JACK EDWARDS

Is Like Crush At Rose Bowl

said a word or two to me and rejoined the executives. But only for a minute. The doorbell rang and Jimmy answered it, in person.

It was a new milkman who didn't know he had Durante for a customer. Durante grabbed him by the arm and took him on a tour of the house. Again he apologized to the executives: "I wanted to show him de jerk so he wouldn't leave no sour milk."

"It's been ready since noon," she yelled back twice as loud. He was no 4 p.m. He sat down and beckoned me and the executives to join him.

"When Durante eats, everybody eats." The executives had coffee and left. Jimmy disclosed they wanted him to stick more to a story line in his TV format. "I told them okay. Dose writers got brains so I give 'em credit but don't forget Durante knows somethin' about laffa too. I'll stick to de story but I'm warnin', don't make it quiet."

When people see Durante, they wanna hear lots of noise." With that he sat down at the piano again and improvised some of the best barrelhouse piano I ever heard.

"How d'ya like dat? I don't even know what I'm playin'!" Then he said "here's a song I wrote." As he went into "I Can Do Without Broadway But Can Broadway Do Without Me" Eddie Jackson picked up a stray golf club instead of his cane, coughed a fadora instead of a top hat. It was show-time again and the two walked off in the famous Durante walkaway.

Two more people came in the front door. Jimmy greeted them in friendly fashion although it was obvious he couldn't remember their names. He yelled for the cook to mix some corn flakes.

"I got a million boxes of da stuff. I had a cornflakes sponsor last year. I ate da stuff for 30 years before it paid off."

Reluctantly I had to leave, immy walked me to the door. "Why don't you drop in sometime just for laffa?" he smiled. "Ya know, sometimes when you don't have to work at interviewin' me."

Around Capitol Square

Difficult To Follow In Footsteps Of Woodson, Sr.

By LYNN NISBET
GROWING UP — When Senator Nelson Woodson called the Senate Finance Committee to order for the first time, he was following, in the footsteps of his distinguished father. But chances are he will have to take longer steps and make bigger tracks than his daddy did twenty-eight years ago.

Walter H. Woodson Sr., father of the incumbent Senator from Rowan, served as chairman of the Finance Committee in the 1927 Senate. He was the first legislator in which the executive budget act was fully applicable. It was also the first that made any appropriation out of State funds for support of the public school system. It was before the State assumed any responsibility for county roads, and there had not been much attention given to public health and public welfare—although these services had been under taken State supervision for some years.

Walter Woodson's committee in 1927 was faced with necessity for raising more than $25 million dollars for the 1927-29 biennium, for general fund purposes, and including all moneys under budgetary control, he had to take part in supervising the expenditure of around $50 million. Prior to that general fund appropriations from State sources had ranged around $8-10 million a year. Nelson Woodson's committee in 1955 has got to find something like $637 million in State funds, and including Federal aid and other moneys subject to budgetary control, the advisory budget committee which he will serve will disburse around $843 million.

Thus it is that the Saga of the Woodsons to considerable degree tells the story of how North Carolina is growing up. And yet Papa Woodson can say in all sincerity that the problems facing his boy are no more serious than those facing him 28 years ago. He might adduce testimony to prove that $30 million was harder to find then than $800 million now.

1901-1955. Neither the memory nor the office records of your reporter go back to show who was chairman of the finance committees of the 1901 Legislature. That was the year that Robert B. Aycock won a permanent seat in the hall of fame by advocating and obtaining a State appropriation of one hundred thousand dollars for public schools. State appropriations were increased from year to year, but major burden of public school maintenance on the local communities.

The next big forward step toward State support came in 1927 in the second Legislature of Governor McLean's administration. That year the finance committee, headed in the Senate by Walter Woodson of Rowan and in the House by A. H. (Sandy) Graham of Orange, who later became Speaker, Lieutenant Governor and is currently highway chairman, found revenue to justify a State appropriation of three million dollars a year as an equalization fund to help the poorer counties maintain fairly average schools.

The came the depression with utter inability of counties to maintain schools even with the equalization fund aid. At the reluctant but courageous request of Governor Eringhaus the Senate and House finance committees, headed by Senator Grady Rankin of Gaston and the late Rufus A. Doughton of Alleghany inaugurated the general sales tax and provided money to justify an allocation of $16 million State funds for public schools in 1901, the three and a half million in 1927 and the sixteen million in 1933 for public schools.

The one hundred thousand dollars in 1901, the three and a half million in 1927 and the sixteen million in 1933 for public schools rocked the conservative element in North Carolina politics to their foundations. The approximate one hundred and thirty-five millions allotted for public schools this year is accepted in stride, with more criticism about it being too little than too much. The same criticism is implied if not expressed about appropriations for health and welfare services and public roads.

VALUES — The question is mainly one of evaluation. The two decades from 1890 and 1910

Business Today

Warmed Up Gravy

By ELMER ROESSNER
There's a lot of Social Security gravy being warmed up and anybody who isn't getting his private ladle is either an altruist or an old-fashioned asp.

For instance, persons not already covered can qualify for Social Security at the age of 65 by as little as a year and a half of covered work. If a husband is covered, he and his wife eventually become eligible for one and a half pensions, but if the wife is covered too they get two pensions. So if you are getting along in years and your wife never worked, or worked only in private unsecured work, such as teaching school or cooking, roust her out mornings and tell her to find a job. Even housework is covered today.

For instance wives helping their husbands in their business collect several thousands more of Social Security tax-free dollars, says the tax service.

One solution: Incorporate. But that may be expensive and create extra tax liabilities. Prentice-Hall, the tax authority, has another solution. It takes the case of Arthur and Betty, who both work in Arthur's business, which nets more than $10,000 a year. As it stands now, Arthur will get a pension when he retires at 65 and Betty will get half that amount when she reaches 65 and three-fourths if Arthur should die. But, suggests Prentice-Hall, they should form a partnership, and each draw at least $108.50 a month when they retire after 65.

"This can mean that Betty may collect several thousands more of Social Security tax-free dollars," says the tax service. "Don't be a patsy, Betty! Get the old man to take you in as a partner! For instance, cutting your wife's pay can sometimes help. Prentice-Hall cites this case: Allen, 72, and fully insured, operates a business with the help of his wife, Helen, aged 65. He draws $100 a week, his wife draws $50. So far, neither has been able to get benefits because the insured had to earn less than $100 a year under 75. Now the age is 72 and the sum $1,200. So the tax service says, "Cut Helen's pay to $100 a month. Allen can start collecting a monthly $98.50 Social Security check because, at the age of 72, her salary is under $75. Her monthly check of $49.30. This means she will collect over $4,000 in tax-free Social Security dollars she otherwise would have lost in the seven years before she reaches age 72."

Look as if anybody who isn't sure he, his wife and members of his family are fully covered, ought to sit down for a nice long talk with his tax consultant. RETAILERS NEVER HAD IT SO GOOD. IN 1954, a Couple of days before Christmas this column said, "There's a slim chance that this year's Christmas shopping season will bring the year's total retail sales to a new high mark." December sales in 1954 were $17,932,000,000 to set a new record for the year.

And while department stores didn't meet their old record, set in 1953, retailers on the whole did, according to preliminary Department of Commerce reports. They totaled $18,003,000,000. That made sales for the year $170,806,000,000, or $67,000,000 more than in 1953.

What Other People Are Saying

Dear Editor: With all due respect for the opinions you have expressed from time to time regarding the backlog of cases scheduled to come before our courts, I would, nevertheless, like very much to have opportunity to discuss the opposite side of the issue somewhat thru the columns of your publication.

If this backlog of cases to which you refer is due to undue indifference and downright slothfulness on the part of our judges, of-course something ought to be done to see that such matters are expedited at a proper rate of speed. However, I am of the opinion that this is at least not altogether the case. While we possibly do have some very slothful judges, but when we would better off without, at the same time we have some very conscientious judges who realize that if there is any insitulation on earth that should proceed with all due caution it is a court of law. But newspaper editors can do the accused who have been unjustly dragged before our courts great injustice by harrasing our judges into the frame of mind of old Shylock who just had to have his pound of flesh and just had to have it "right now," guilt or no guilt. It is a grave mistake to get the idea that speed in production is of more importance than precision in production. Our judicial system was not brought into being to see how many miles per hour it could run, but rather with a view to seeing how much wrong could be set right. And that requires much sober thought. Now, it takes time to really think and to think deeply and justly.

The accused is entitled to time to find a lawyer upon whom he can really depend, to defend him. And since most lawyers I have ever known have seemingly entered that profession with a view to getting rich quickly, the accused is entitled to the necessary time to raise the money needed for his defense. Then that lawyer is entitled to the necessary time to study his client's case and to engage in necessary legal research that he may properly assemble the points of law needed, and to really get ready to so defend his client as to give him value received for the money put up for his defense. I am frank to say that many a client is being grossly cheated in this respect. And that is possibly why some men prefer to defend themselves rather than trust their cases in the hands of lawyers that fire off half cocked before the courts with no ammunition in their guns. It is said that, "He who undertakes to defend himself has a fool for a client." But some of us know full well that we will play the part of a much bigger fool if we employ an unprepared and disinterested lawyer to defend us. He must have time to get interested and to get prepared.

Had you ever thought of how much more stress our National Constitution lays upon the obligation of the courts to safeguard the rights of the accused than it lays upon their obligation to prosecute guilty? As I read it Constitutionally speaking, the State is under greater obligation to furnish adequate Counsel for the defense of the accused than it is to furnish a prosecuting Attorney sworn to be a fool for a client. See the Sixth Amendment to our National Constitution. And why is this? It is because our founding fathers came up in a day of great tribulation when a woman could be called a witch and be drowned or burned at the stake for it. When a man could be accused of stealing a chicken and be hanged for it. When a man could be thrown in prison and left there to rot for simply owing a debt he was too poor to pay. When the rivers of human blood that had flowed from the Bloody Assize of that wicked old tyrant Judge Francis Jeffreys enraged the minds of justly thinking men and women. Our founding fathers were convinced therefore, that what this old world needed most of all was a government with courts that would protect the God-given rights of the down-trodden and the falsely accused of earth. And there is not one single one of us but that is deeply indebted to those men who went through the necessary time to raise the money needed to give us the glorious Constitution which we have. Of course the guilty must be brought to justice. But that was only a secondary matter in the minds of those mental giants who founded the greatest Nation ever to exist: the United States of America. How we ought to reverence and defend the Bill of Human Rights they left us!

Respectfully submitted, W.T.C. Briggs saw upsurge of dollar values. That was the era when the Rockefellers, the Carnegies, the Hills, the Vanderbilts and other moguls ran rough-shod over the common people and multi-million fortunes were built at the expense of sweat and blood on the lower level. Dollar values were recognized, human values were

Juvenile Delinquency Topic For AAUW Program Monday

A program on juvenile delinquency at the American Association of University Women meeting Monday night, January 17, given by members Mrs. Hugh Patterson and Mrs. George Patti and guest speaker, Mrs. David Proctor, pinpointed the present situation in the nation, the causes and usual handling, and the work being carried on in Greenville and Pitt County.

Mrs. Proctor, supervisor of local child welfare work, reported an encouraging decrease in number of juvenile delinquents locally in the past two or three years, in contrast to the rising number in the nation, and a disturbing lowering of the age of the average juvenile involved in trouble here.

She explained the local system—the juvenile court, the work of the juvenile officers, the licensed boarding homes, and the use where absolutely necessary of the state's corrective schools.

Mrs. Patti discussed the usual means of handling juveniles who get into trouble—the policeman, the juvenile court, the detention home, and the corrective training school.

Mrs. Patterson, chairman of the social studies committee, introduced the topic with a bird's-eye view of the rising tide of delinquency among the nation's children, and listed three chief causes: bad homes, bad neighborhoods, and the uncertain world.

The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. R. B. Starling. The program as a whole was introduced by the program chairman, Dr. Elizabeth Utterback.

At the business meeting, the president, Mrs. D. S. Spain Jr., took up a number of items of business.

Hooper, membership chairman. Mrs. Harry Billica introduced three guests: Mrs. Dorothy Pearce, Mrs. Joseph Waits and Mrs. Joseph Quatbaum. A delicious dessert was served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. L. Fleming Jr., Mrs. Harry Billica, Miss Nell Stallings, and Miss Torah Larsen.

Belmont Abbey Turns Tables On Pirates

Tiring Bucs Are Snowed Under In Last Two Periods

By BRUCE PHILLIPS

Belmont Abbey pulled away in the opening minutes of the quarter last night and put the game on ice as they turned the tables on a tired East Carolina team 64-55 in the final game of the three game road trip for the Pirates.

The Bucs stayed right up with the Abbey team for most of the first half but were snowed under with an avalanche of points in the beginning of the second half.

The Abbey team started off to lead but the Pirates came back to go ahead on Don Harris' bucket 14-13 with 10 minutes left in the first half. The Pirates led until Roger Marcell tied it up at 22-22 with five minutes left. The Abbey team then fought into a 32-29 advantage at halftime.

Shortly after the intermission Belmont drove into a commanding 46-36 lead and the game was sewed up. The Pirates fought back to 55-50 with five minutes to go but never could get any closer.

The game was a rough game, marred by poor shooting and passing, with all-around ragged play during the game. The loss gives the Pirates a record of 9-3 for the season.

Waverly Akins started for the first time this year and came through with another fine performance. Fred James, the freshman guard, took high scoring honors with 14 points. Harris had 13 and Nick Nichols garnered 11.

The Pirates come home for a contest in the EOC gym Saturday night against Guilford.

A well-rounded scoring attack, with four players hitting in the double figure sparked the boys win. Leo Dunn led the parade with 14 points. Nichols hit 22 for Grimesland to lead the scoring for the night.

Mills popped in 21 points to lead the Grimesland scoring in the ladies contest and Margaret Wooten of Ayden walked off with high scoring honors with 35 points.

Coaching Ranks See Shake-Up On Large Scale

By ED WILKS

The Associated Press

There should be a brisk sale in programs at college football games next fall. You won't be able to tell the coaches without one.

At least 12 new head coaches will be on the sidelines plus three who will be in new surroundings following shifts from one campus to another.

That number represents just the coaches who already have found lodgings for next season. The "coach wanted" sign still is out at seven other colleges—Dartmouth, Houston, Loras, New Mexico A&M, Norwich, Oregon State and Xavier, (Ohio).

And there could be more.

Two of the seven, Houston and New Mexico A&M, appear near the point of decision, which in turn may leave vacancies at two other colleges.

Houston and Bill Meek, now top man at Kansas State, appear quite chummy as the Cougars search for a "big name" replacement for Clyde V. Lee, who quit Dec. 6 after a 4-5 season. K-State had a 6-4 mark last fall.

New Mexico's Aggies reportedly have a list of four prospects for a successor to Jim Patton, who resigned with a 0-9 record Dec. 2.

The four are said to be Ara Parseghian, head coach at Miami (Ohio), Bill Yeoman, a Michigan State assistant; Bob Friedlund, resigned Pitt assistant; and Cecil Coleman, Phoenix high school coach. Parseghian says he's happy where he is.

Also to be considered are the head coach positions at Nebraska and Texas where Bill Glassford and Ed Price are under "unofficial" fire. Glassford weathered the same storm last year, but after getting a bid to the Orange Bowl in lieu of Big Seven champion Oklahoma, the Cornhuskers were clobbered by Duke 34-7. Price was thought to have the Southern Conference champ in preseason predictions, but his Longhorns wound up with a 4-5-1 record.

Poor seasons have been responsible for most of the coaching changes, although there have been varied "official" reasons. Some coaches resigned—with or without alumni pressure—while others retired or quit. Some were just plain fired.

Borden Wyatt of Arkansas, Jack Mitchell of Wichita and J.B. Whitworth, late of Oklahoma A&M all won more games than they lost in '54 but packed up to take similar assignments at other colleges. Wyatt went to Tennessee, Mitchell to Arkansas and Whitworth to Alabama.

Bobby Dodds is the new man at Tulsa after serving as an Army assistant. Bill Chipley left private business to head Washington & Lee's deemphasized program.

W.L. Carl Wise, incidentally, resigned after the school sat out 1954 as far as intercollegiate competition was concerned.

Court Upsets Feature ACC Play As UNC Takes Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's a good thing examination time has imposed several days of rest on most Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams after last night's fireworks. North Carolina upset N.C. State, George Washington stunned Maryland, and South Carolina vacated the cellar in favor of Clemson.

It will take sometime—there are only eight games involving ACC teams in the next 11 days—to digest last night's action which gave North Carolina first place and Clemson the cellar of the eight-team league at least until next month.

North Carolina, 7-1 in the league and 9-5 overall, played without a substitute in licking the nation's No. 2 team, 84-80, as a last-gasp Wolfpack rally failed. North Carolina had a 19-point lead midway in the second half of the game on N.C. State's home court, Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh, State, led by Ronnie Shavlik, cut the deficit to four points. But from then on the Tar Heels matched basket for basket. Shavlik scored 32 points. Lenzie Rosenbluth was high for North Carolina with 22.

N.C. State now has a 5-2 league record, and is 15-3 in all games and fourth in the ACC.

It was only the second victory in the last 23 meetings for North Carolina over State. Both victories were in the reign of coach Frank

Maryland Mentor Isn't Too Worried By Critics

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Take a charge—any charge—from an accrediting group's report of impairment in the University of Maryland's athletic program and Jim Tatum can give you an explanation.

For example, the Middle States Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools reported that athletes, who total only 8 per cent of the student body, are receiving 78 per cent of the scholarships.

Why, says Jim, "We don't have too much assistance for athletes. We should just have more for academics."

The Maryland football coach and athletic director isn't very concerned with the report. But one section affects his blood pressure.

That's the association's report that Maryland violated Atlantic Coast Conference and NCAA recruiting rules by luring a youngster away from little Allegheny College in Meadville, Pa.

I am said one of Maryland's assistant coaches spotted the boy in a high school all-star game in Pennsylvania and talked to him after the game, unaware that he was tabbed for Allegheny. The coach did not offer him a scholarship, Tatum said, but did tell him he was eligible for one.

The boy, who has an uncle living here, had hoped to attend Maryland but didn't have enough money, Tatum said. After talking to the assistant coach, he visited the Maryland campus, made application for a grant-in-aid and was accepted, he added.

"If a boy plans to go to a school that was not his first choice, then finds that altered circumstances permit him to attend his first preference," Tatum said, "then naturally, the boy is going to apply for admission there."

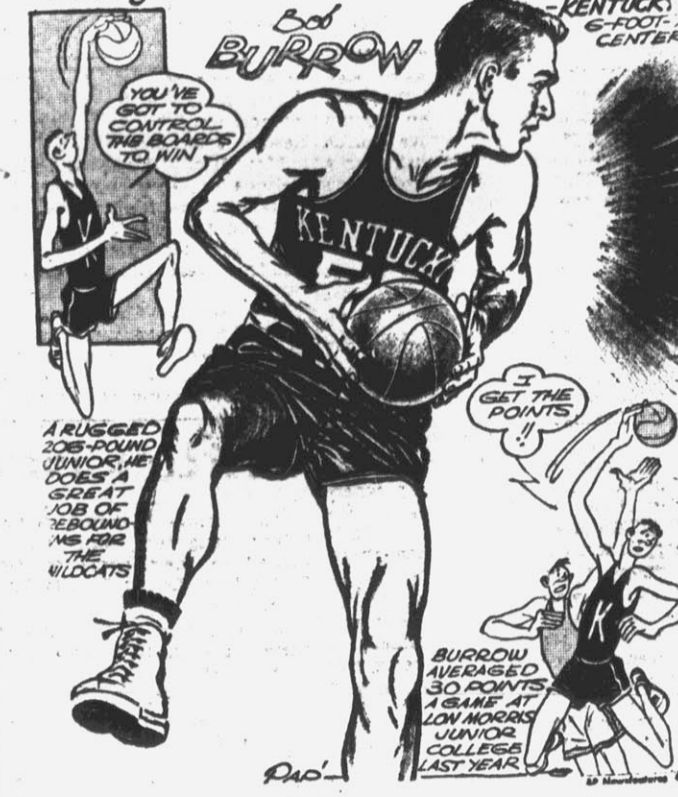

In Meadville, athletic director H. Paul Way of Allegheny said, the boy apparently was Tom Steel, a tackle from Brownsville, Pa., High School. Way said: "Steel is the only student we ever lost to Maryland, as far as I know."

He said Steel was "a very good student" and was awarded an academic scholarship at Allegheny. "We have no athletic scholarships," Way said.

"Tom paid the usual $50 enrollment fee, which is sort of an advance payment on lodging. After he enrolled with us he played in a high school all-star football game at Pittsburgh. He never came back to Allegheny and, of course, he lost his enrollment fee," Way said.

"He went to Maryland. I suppose they offered him a better scholarship. It is not unusual for students to enroll at one college then change their mind and enroll at another."

Willing Wildcat

The University of Kentucky Wildcats, rated the No. 1 college basketball team in the country, added considerable strength to that claim by winning their own invitational tournament for the second straight year. This time they beat Utah and LaSalle on successive nights. The Wildcats of this season have everything—size, speed, fine shooting and great rebounding. Still, Coach Adolph Rupp isn't ready to admit that his team could be the best in the country.

"No, I don't think you could call us the best team in the nation," insists Coach Rupp. "I will admit that we have progressed much faster than I had anticipated. I repeat what I said before the season started—we'll be a much better ball club by the middle of January after we have had a few more games under our belt. And as far as this team being better than last year's—well, they'll have to show me. The 1953-54 team won 25 games last season and no one was able to stop it. That record is going to be hard to top."

The current squad's brilliant play offers ample evidence that Coach Rupp was fully prepared for the graduation of his "Big Three" aces—Cliff Hagen, Frank Ramsey and Lou Tsioropoulos—last June. Only Bill Evans, captain of the current team, remained from the regulars

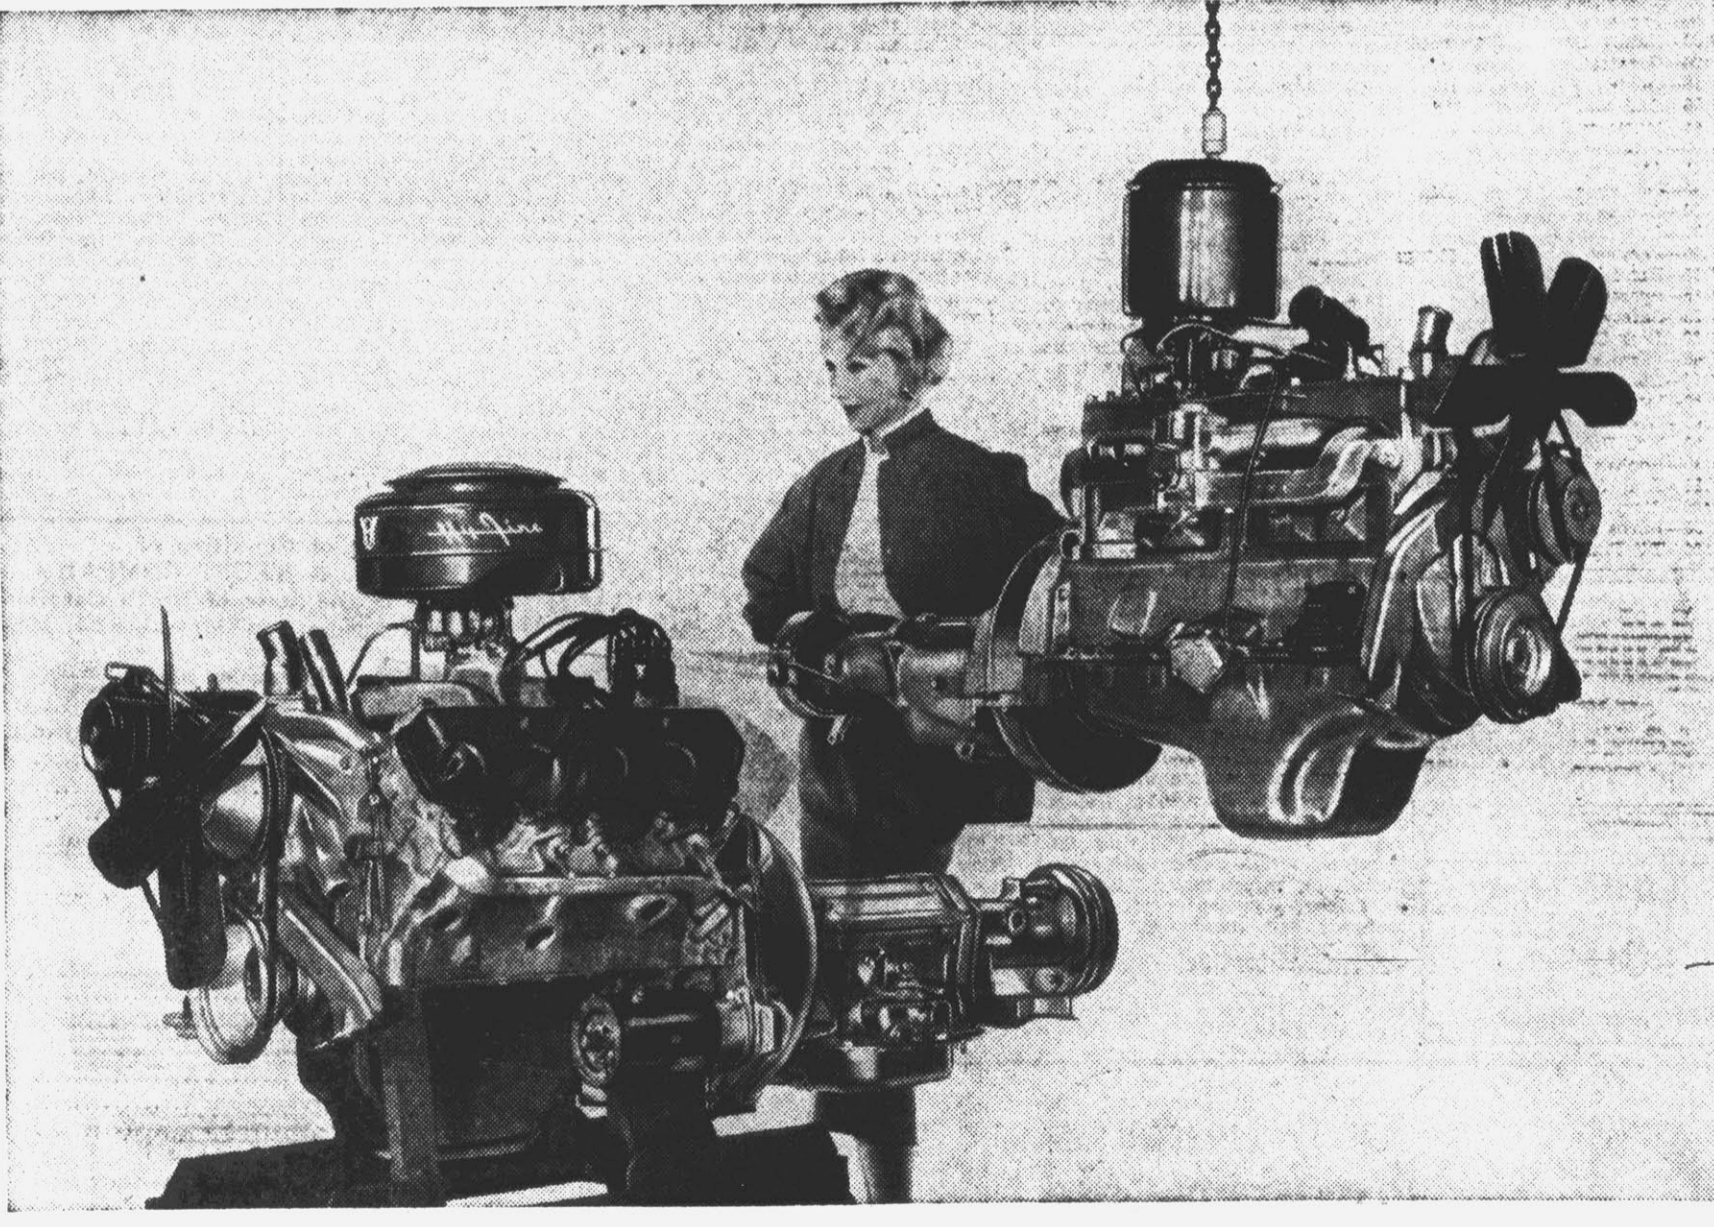

Long Freeze

STROUBSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Palmerston High School's basketball team figured out a way to break an opponent's zone defense: get the lead and freeze the ball for two periods if necessary.

Palmerston, holding a 32-26 halftime lead, won the third period tap in last night's game with Stroudsburg. Stroudsburg went into its zone and Palmerston went into the freeze, with one man holding the ball out near mid-court.

That was the motionless picture of the eight-minute third period. Palmerston did take one shot, just before the period ended. Palmerston again went into the freeze at the start of the fourth quarter. Stroudsburg, with only six minutes remaining, abandoned the zone.

Final—Palmerston 39, Stroudsburg 32.

Insurance Companies Mobilize To Fight Gross Premium Tax

By C. A. UPCHURCH JR.

RALEIGH—Insurance companies domiciled in North Carolina have banded together for an all-out fight on the proposal to hike their tax on gross premiums from the present one per cent to two-and-a-half per cent, which is the rate paid by foreign insurance firms doing business in this State.

The North Carolina firms—all 17 of them—claim they need the tax differential, which has been a matter of State policy for nearly 100 years because they are not in position to compete with the giant insurance firms of New York and New England without the tax advantage.

They also maintain that the proposed tax increase would hamper development of North Carolina industries with insurance capital, retard the growth of domestic companies and possibly cause the State to lose some of its present home offices to states that give tax advantages to domestic companies.

A hearing on the proposed tax increase will be held next Tuesday, Jan. 25, by the Joint Finance Committee. Arch T. Allen, Raleigh attorney and general counsel for State Capital Life, will lead the argument for the insurance companies.

It was not certain today whether the dozen fire and casualty insurance companies domiciled in North Carolina would join in the fight, but it is expected that some will.

The proposed new tax, which will raise an estimated $1,170,000 in extra revenue each year, was recommended to the General Assembly by the Advisory Budget Commission and Governor Hodges.

It is estimated that nearly half of that amount would fall on three North Carolina life insurance firms. The life companies together would pay probably $1,000,000 of it—the estimate is correct.

Insurance officials maintain, however, that the total tax bite will be much more than the estimated $1,170,000.

Whatever the increase, it will be passed on to purchasers of insurance from domestic companies.

As Governor Hodges told the General Assembly in his budget message, 27 states have no differential in the gross premiums tax on domestic and foreign companies.

However, seven states, including North Carolina, do have differentials favoring domestic companies.

Fourteen states levy no gross premiums tax on domestic companies. These include, significantly, South Carolina and Florida, which in recent years have developed new insurance companies and attracted others to those states. Both States are bringing in new industries at a rapid rate. Because it gave a tax concession, Florida landed the regional office of one of the biggest insurance firms in the country.

South Carolina levies a three per cent tax on premiums collected by foreign companies.

Also significant is the fact that Pennsylvania, which is building a big insurance industry, does not tax domestic firms' premiums. All of the other 14 states without the tax are in the South, Mid-West and West — areas that are striving to build up industry and develop local capital.

Seven states, including North Carolina, have a tax differential favoring domestic companies. The others are Maine, Mississippi, Nebraska, South Dakota, Texas and Washington.

Oklahoma has a four per cent gross premiums tax—the highest—on foreign companies and none on domestic firms. Connecticut, the nation's insurance capital, charges only one per cent, applicable to both types.

Insurance officials say the tax amounts to an income tax on gross receipts, since it is levied on gross premiums and has to be paid whether the company makes money or loses it. They say the tax differential favoring North Carolina companies has been a tremendous factor in their substantial growth over the past 50 years, and consequently has enabled the companies to invest more capital in North Carolina industry than it could have invested without the differential.

And the officials are hearing reports that foreign insurance companies have written letters to Governor Hodges commending the proposed tax increase on domestic firms.

Stock Market Reflects Prosperity Confidence

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK—Sensational asking why stock prices climbed so fast in November and December can find one of the answers today in the President's new budget.

President Eisenhower expects U.S. Treasury receipts to rise by one billion dollars in the next fiscal year because his advisers look for corporate profits to increase by 7 per cent and the total of individuals' incomes to climb 4 per cent.

Stock traders came to the same conclusion several months ago. They expect business to be better and profits and dividends higher for the corporations whose shares they've been buying—if not for all.

The stock market rise has been anticipated the better business prospects. Some brokers warn that it may well have discounted the gains by now for most of the favorites in the long upward surge of the market.

But new plans keep popping up for expanding the economy. The proposal to spend 101 billion dollars for new highways in the next 10 years in one. The plan to spend the 600 million dollars on bridges and expressways in the New York metropolitan area is still another. For some industries that spells good times, and profits.

That the administration hopes to carry out its plans for expanding the economy without setting off a new round of inflation is indicated by recent moves to tighten credit, which have resulted in slightly higher interest rates, and in its slight hike in stock margin requirements to 60 per cent.

The upcoming senatorial study of why the stock market shot upward is another indication of official uneasiness lest a runaway boom get rolling.

But stock traders aren't so sure that further inflation will be avoided entirely. And some doubt that the slight tightening of credit will have much effect on the market, since most of the trading has been for cash anyway.

Many realize, however, that one of the prime factors behind the bull market stock rise was the easy money policy pushed by the official money managers to halt the business slump last year.

Another prime factor has been the steady buying of stocks by the investment funds and those managing the reserves of corporate and union pension funds, of colleges and other institutions.

Actor Geo. Murphy Now Behind A Desk

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—George Murphy who has spent most of his career in front of the footlights of cameras, now finds himself behind a desk. He's happy about it too.

The genial Irishman has taken over the MGM public relations post vacated by the death of Ida Koverman. I dropped in at his office in the MGM administration building to see how he likes his new job. He breezed in from another date and sat down behind his desk, which was decorated with the Oscar he received for being the film industry's good will ambassador and a miniature elephant. He's a sturdy Republican.

"I like it fine," he said. "To me, the most important thing in the world is people. That's what my job is—dealing with people. We have experts dealing in all kinds of matters; it seems to me that there's a real need for someone to deal in human relations."

I asked about his duties, and he said that part of them are political. He is well qualified for this, having been a Republican national committeeman.

"die Mannix (studio manager) told me to take over Mrs. Koverman's work in keeping in touch with the political scene," Murphy explained. "If some legislation is coming up that affects the motion picture industry, we should know about it."

Aside from politics, Murphy will help greet the visiting firemen at the studio and act as intermediary between the actors and executives.

"I think actors will discuss their problems more freely if they're talking to another actor," Murphy suggested. He told of once going to head man Dore Schary over a problem of Keenan Wynn's. Wynn wanted to leave on a holiday entertainment tour for servicemen, but a film assignment loomed.

Murphy took Wynn to Schary's office, explained the situation, got permission for the trip and walked out. Keenan complained that he had a whole list of arguments he was able to use, but Murphy wouldn't let him open his mouth.

Southern Branch Defeats Merger Of Presbyterians

ATLANTA—Southern Presbyterians have defeated a plan to merge the three branches of the Presbyterian Church into the Presbyterian Church of the United States.

The Southerners started the present move 17 years ago after considerable debate and then finally voted against it yesterday.

Church leaders generally were disappointed but remaining firm in the conviction that union of the three branches with a membership of 3½ million was inevitable in the next few years.

Yesterday 23 Southern presbyteries (districts) voted on the suggestion to end the split which originally developed over the slavery question in 1861. The results: 14 against, 7 for, 2 still to be heard from.

Twelve negative and four positive votes had been cast in earlier balloting.

The 26 negative votes were more than enough to kill the plan. Only 22 were needed, as approval of three-fourths of the 86 presbyteries was required for acceptance. However, voting will continue into April.

Approval would have united the 757,000-member Presbyterian Church (largely Midwestern).

Top governing bodies of all three branches, called the general assembly and the voting was ratification by the regional presbyteries.

Northern presbyteries have been coming out solidly for the union, with endorsement already received from 45 of the 256 districts. Each presbytery is made up of one or more churches in the district. The elders have equal voice with pastors in the regional votes on ratification.

The pro-union Presbyterian Outlook published at Richmond, Va., said in an editorial that "it is recognized that the ministers of the church are largely in favor of union. It is also recognized that it is the elders who have caused the present postponement."

Changes Name To Please Friends

DETROIT—Calvin Watson, 40, asked and received court permission yesterday to change his name to Romeo because that was what many of his friends called him.

Asked whether his wife planned to change her name to Juliet, Watson said: "We are divorced. I'm to be a Romeo in name only."

CLEVELAND—The father of Dr. Samuel Sheppard died last night at Bay View Hospital of a respiratory ailment.

Two brothers of Dr. Sam, who was convicted of killing his pregnant wife Marilyn, said their father Dr. Richard Sheppard, 64, "lost his will to live" after the suicide of his wife 11 days ago.

Dr. Sam was kept in a special observation cell today while guards at county jail maintained close watch on him.

Just a few days ago the younger Sheppard, who is appealing his conviction for second-degree murder, had been returned to his regular 4 by 8-foot cell. He had been under observation since Jan. 7, when his mother shot herself in the head.

Jailers said Sheppard, 31, appeared to know something was wrong last night as soon as he was brought to the jail's visiting room and saw his two brothers, Dr. Richard N. and Dr. Stephen and their wives. It had been there that he had learned of his mother's death.

Placing a hand on Sheppard's shoulder, Dr. Richard said to him: "You must know why we are here."

Quietly he said: "Dad passed away tonight." Sheppard sobbed, his head in his hands.

The brothers and their wives spent 15 minutes with the prisoner. They had come to the jail directly from the Bay View Osteopathic Hospital, where the elder Sheppard was chief of staff. They had been summoned to his bedside, but did not arrive before he died.

Son of a Methodist minister, the elderly doctor was born at Piquette, Ohio. His father had a pastorate in Paris, Ill., in 1915, when he met and married Ethel Leah Niles, a schoolteacher.

After some years of practice in Fayetteville, N.C., and Upper Sandusky, Ohio, Sheppard came to Cleveland about 1923. In 1935 he founded what later became the Bay View Hospital. He was a former president of the National Osteopathic Hospital Assn. and the American College of Osteopathic Surgeons.

The elder Sheppard bore most of the burden of the hospital's surgical work during the more than nine weeks his youngest son was on trial, accused of clubbing his 31-year-old wife to death as she

Reds In Italy Bolster Power Of Togliatti

ROME—Directors of Italy's Communist party have handed their No. 3 man Pietro Secchia a drastic demotion in a move bolstering the power of party chief Palmiro Togliatti.

The directors at a meeting yesterday ousted Secchia from his jobs as one of the two party vice secretaries and membership on the seven-man party secretariat. He was named regional secretary for Lombardy, Italy's most heavily industrialized region.

The directors at a meeting yesterday ousted Secchia from his jobs as one of the two party vice secretaries and membership on the seven-man party secretariat. He was named regional secretary for Lombardy, Italy's most heavily industrialized region.

Some political observers predicted Secchia might not accept the demotion.

At the same time the directors confirmed Togliatti as the party secretary general and Luigi Longo as the only remaining vice secretary.

Secchia, 52-year-old senator and wartime partisan leader, has been considered the No. 1 challenger to Togliatti's postwar leadership.

Doctor at the CROSSROADS

ELIZABETH SEIFERT

Dr. Fred Beier had come from St. Louis to the rural community of Jennings, Missouri, where he hoped to find peace in the quiet countryside. And he had found it and contentment, too, serving as the little town's only physician. He was happy in an old-fashioned house with his wife, an unpretentious young matron, who knew very well that many a woman cast a covetous eye upon her Fred. Women, for instance, like wealthy, glamorous Mrs. Linda Kyle, who had interested the doctor in her various charity causes.

CHAPTER THREE

Linda saw Fred's glance. "I know I'm delaying you..." she said in swift apology. "It is a pleasure." Pink rose in his cheeks. "Tell me about the Nienabers," he said earnestly. "Well, one could claim that it is none of my business," she pointed out. "But you know Clarence Godfrey—heart as big as a barn, but his performance—well..." She laughed ruefully. "The Nienabers are Germans, I think. They talk German. And they were brought here under the Displaced Persons Act as farm labor. Do you know how that works?"

"Roughly, Clarence made his application to the county committee, proved he had housing for the family and would pay them the prevailing wage. He must have met their post too."

"I think he did. He was all steamed up, made a special trip west, interviewed this man and his wife then brought them back and set them down on his farm. Then sends them money regularly, Fred, out—"

"I know. They need more than money and a roof over their heads."

"Dear yes!"

"How long have they been at Godfrey's?"

"A year. They take excellent care of the place. His fruit trees, the ground—his cows and chickens look like boys in a store. You know? One of those model farms? But—well—they seem to talk no English..."

"In a year they should have learned some."

"How? No one goes there, except a few to buy fruit. The man comes into town for supplies. He points to what he wants, and has to trust the storekeepers to be honest with him.

"Aren't they?"

"I caught a boy—a clerk—being not honest. At Perkins."

Fred made a clicking sound with his tongue. "Godfrey should have stayed around. Or, at least, spoken to some of us."

"Yes, of course he should. I've been going out there—their fruit is marvelous. The woman sells canned things, too. But, well, they're like animals, Fred. They peer at you—and stand off warily. The children of the nearby ranchers make fun of them. They dress and talk just as they did in the old country, and the ranch people are suspicious of things so different."

"So, naturally, the different folk are suspicious of the ranch people!"

"Yes. But—here's where you come in, Fred. Now the woman is pregnant."

"Oh he!"

She smiled at him. "She's not well, Fred. She looks—terrible. She coughs—and her face is gray. I wrote to Clarence."

"He thanked me for my interest, and said he was starting for Italy with a picture company."

Fred shrugged. "Which is very nice for Clarence."

"Yes, isn't it! But, Fred—"

His eyebrows went up; wrinkles webbed the corners of his eyes.

"Yes!" she agreed. "I want you to go out and see those poor people. Don't say you can't go unless called. I'm calling you. Once you see them, you'll know that they need you."

Again Fred looked at his watch. "When...?"

"I'll take you out, but will you go soon, Fred? I'd like to go with you. I've come to know them pretty well. I buy so much fruit."

Fred touched her elbow. "Get in," he said. "We may as well go at once. You'll nag me—I'll get no peace."

Godfrey's ranch lay close against the first hills, its fences neat its buildings tight. The fruit trees stood in prim rows, the ground about them raked clean.

"You see what I mean?" Linda asked Fred.

"I do indeed."

The gate having been opened and closed by Fred, with Linda at the wheel, Fred now drove on to the rambling, low house of split logs.

"Drive around," said Linda. "They live in the back."

"In the house itself?"

"Well—I think Clarence planned to build them a cottage, but for now they are living in the studio and the furnace room."

Fred's eyebrows drew together above his nose. Clarence Godfrey's studio was also sometimes called the ski room. It was, really, a basement built into the downslope of the hill. Nienaber came through the door. Linda Kyle got out on her side of the car. Fred on his. "Mr. Nienaber," said Linda in the slow, loud way one uses when trying to make a foreigner understand, "this is Dr. Beier."

The door to the stairway was closed. One knew that the upper rooms, the main part of the house, went unused. "The wife, Clara, a small woman, her skirt hem uneven because of the child she carried, had risen from the couch bed and stood watching the strangers with a look of resigned apprehension. Fred stood for a minute, shaking his head, then he went over to the woman and put his hand upon her shoulder. She dropped beneath his touch, submissive and fear like a cloud upon her. But she began to cough, too, spasmodically, and Fred held his handkerchief toward her. She looked at it, but instead held the corner of her shawl against her lips. He spoke to her in German, and Linda again saw that look of gratefulness for a familiar tongue. Obediently the woman sat on the edge of the bed, still coughing. Fred looked around him. "Did Mr. Godfrey say you could use only this basement?"

"Her Godfrey said we should live in his house. Naturally, we use only such things as we need, Herr Doktor."

"But there used to be chairs and a rug down here—"

"We have chairs." He pointed to the kitchen. "Herr Godfrey's fine things we have put upstairs. We keep them clean and in order. Naturally we do not use them."

"You don't answer me! Did Mr. Godfrey specify that you live in this fashion?"

"Here we have enough, Herr Doktor. I would not risk the good Herr's displeasure. Better we use less than he meant us to use than more. If he should become displeased with us and send us from here, we have nowhere to go. The world ends here."

"No, geh!" said Fred angrily, and he strode to the kitchen, looked about at the meager array of china, the two cooking vessels, the hand-ful of table silver. The top of the stove glistened; the whole place was spotless. The yard and drive had been recently raked—but house and ranch smelled of bareness; the air was empty of warmth; the whole place was rotten with fear; it lay on one's skin like old sweat.

Car Skidded And Rolled 495 Feet; Driver Not Hurt

A car went out of control near Winterville yesterday afternoon and skidded and rolled for 495 feet. The driver was uninjured.

The accident occurred about one mile north of Winterville on a rural dirt road and the operator of the vehicle, Jack Woods Jr. of Winterville, was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Investigating Patrolman James W. Boykin said the vehicle rounded a curve on the dirt road and skidded 150 feet into a ditch. It went down the ditch on the right side of the road for 90 feet and then skidded across the road for 90 feet to the left side where it traveled for 75 feet. The vehicle then plowed into a field for 30 feet and rolled over for 51 feet before finally coming to rest.

Boykin said the car was a total loss.

Cannons HD Club Hear Reports On Life In Holland

Customs of Holland was the theme of the Cannons Home Demonstration Club meeting last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Alton Suggs in Ayden. Mrs. Lonnie Stocks served as co-hostess.

The club members heard reports on life in Holland, the country they have chosen to study this year in connection with their international relations program, and during the recreation period they played a question and answer game pertaining to that country.

The club plans to raise money for the March of Dimes by selling bulbs. This project was chosen in keeping with their study of Holland, as bulbs and bulb flowers are characteristics of that country.

A poultry report was given by Mrs. Willie B. Wilson, with the monthly demonstration on Newer Vegetable Crops given by assistant Home Agent Josephine Cusick.

A refreshments hostesses served a sweet course.

engineer of the commerce and industry division of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development, was principal speaker at the meeting.

Daily reviewed briefly the industrial progress made by the state in the past decade, asserting that more than 3,000 new industrial plants have sprung up in North Carolina during the past 10 years creating more than 200,000 new jobs. The new plants have meant greater payrolls, greater earning power for the people of the state, more taxes and better economic conditions, the speaker declared.

Pitt Health Officer At Raleigh Meeting

Pitt County Health Officer Walter C. Humbert yesterday attended a meeting in Raleigh of health officers from all over the state.

The meeting was called by state Health Officer Dr. J. W. R. Norton and related to public health matters now before the North Carolina General Assembly.

Home Industry Stressed

In addition to its efforts to attract new industry into the state, Daily said, the Department of Conservation and Development is emphasizing the development of home industry in its program. He said a list has been compiled of more than 1,000 items which industrial plants in North Carolina purchase from plants outside the state. Efforts, he said, are being made to develop plants within the state to make products to be used by industry already here, and added that early experiments in this direction have proved highly successful.

Daily asserted that industry in only a very few cases comes to communities which do not actively seek industry. He urged individual communities to intensify their industrial development programs and "sell your own town to the business world."

Daily was introduced by Charles S. Edwards, manager of the Farmville Chamber of Commerce. Harold Rouse, Jayces president, presided at the meeting.

The next two decades, roughly 1910 to 1930, saw the pendulum swinging the other way but with fairly even balance between the so-called dollar and human philosophies having dominance. Beginning around 1930 and continuing until about 1950 the swing was more marked toward dominance of human values. In fact it swung so far that labor barons replaced banking barons in control and the common folks were just about as badly off as they were before. There is now a trend back toward the balance that prevailed from 1910 to 1930.

Oil Stove Explosion Starts Fire; Home Guttled

Firemen are shown above as they poured water on a burning dwelling at 509 Sheppard Street. The fire fighters fought the blaze this morning as a light snow fell. The temperature was below freezing. Fire gutted the five-room house, leaving a family of six homeless. Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor.

Fire gutted a home occupied by six persons this morning when an oil stove in the center of the house exploded.

Occupant and owner of the house was William Johnson, Negro, of 509 Sheppard Street, father of three children.

Johnson said he, his wife, three children and his father-in-law lived in the neat white frame house. The blaze was believed to have started from an oil stove in the center of the dwelling. From there it spread to other rooms surrounding it.

Johnson stated that he was working in the store which he operates when his son ran in and told him the house was ablaze. The fire department was called to the scene.

Firemen were forced to lay heavy-duty lines to the fire in fighting the blaze. The fire fighters did their work in below-freezing weather as a light snow was falling. Fire Chief George Gardner said that there was no problem of fire fighting equipment, freezing while the firemen were fighting the blaze, however.

Practically nothing was saved from the burning building. Firemen dragged a badly burned washing machine with clothes still in it to the back porch and the oil stove from which the fire was believed to have originally started was also pulled out the back door of the building.

The blaze started at 10:37, according to fire department records. It was out at 11:00 a.m.

Johnson operates a store on Tyson Street. His house was located directly behind the business house.

British Planes, Helicopters To Drop Relief To Frozen Scotland

LONDON (AP) — Britain mobilized a fleet of some 30 helicopters and planes today to drop food and medicines in frozen northern Scotland.

More snow was predicted for the British Isles and Europe where blizzards, gales and floods have raged for more than a week.

The 13,000-ton British aircraft carrier Glory steamed toward northern Scotland to act as a floating base for helicopters engaged in rescue missions over the snow-bound counties of Caithness and Sutherland.

The Royal Air Force ordered more than 20 planes to a relief base at Kinloss.

More than 10,000 persons in Caithness and Sutherland were cut off by 20-foot snowdrifts and fallen telephone lines. Radio broadcasts advised them to make an "P" on the snow if they needed food or a "D" if a doctor was required.

Another blizzard interrupted rescue operations late yesterday.

Freezing weather early today put some check on flooding in the Mosel and Rhine rivers of Western Germany. At Bonn, the West German capital, the flood crest on the Rhine was still to come but already the basement of the Federal Parliament Building was full of water. Workers ringed the structure with 40,000 sandbags to head off the rising river.

At Mehlern, near Bonn, the U.S. High Commission was flooded out of its headquarters, where 2,000 Germans and 450 Americans are employed.

In France, the flooding Garonne neared the danger mark and there was fear that the dam at Toury, on the Eure River, would burst. More than 3,700 persons were evacuated from low-lying areas in the Rhone Valley.

Winds ranging up to 80 miles an hour lashed Italy's Ligurian coast, smashing summer cottages, uprooting trees and driving huge waves across coastal roads.

Mountainous waves continued to lash the sea, keeping the damaged Greek ship Corinthia from reaching port. The 3,879-ton vessel rammed a reef midway along the coast between Rome and Leghorn yesterday smashing a hole in her bow.

At Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church tonight at 8 o'clock, Dr. James Poindexter will speak and show a film strip about the United Nations. He will emphasize the technical assistance program.

Last Tuesday night, the film, "Productivity Key to Plenty," was shown and the audience heard two lectures.

Mrs. Eloise Beech called the group's attention to the "Status of the Negro in Pitt County," and suggested some ways in which present relations might be improved.

Thursday night, the "Social Creed of the Methodist Church" will be studied. Persons interested in social studies are invited.

Program Talked For Health Meet

A tentative program for the Eastern Carolina Rural Health Conference to be held at East Carolina College in March was outlined last night when the program committee for the event met in the local health department offices.

Present for the meeting were Dr. Walter C. Humbert, local health officer who is chairman of the committee; Dr. M. B. Massey; Dr. Paul A. Toll of the ECC department of social studies; Mrs. Edna Earle Baker of Farmville, Pitt County school supervisor; Dr. Rachael Davis of Kinston, member of the North Carolina Medical Society's committee on rural health; and Dr. Charles I. Harris of Williamston, also a member of the state rural health committee. Absent was committee member W. E. Little of Elm City.

This committee was appointed at a recent meeting here of representatives from eight counties who discussed local rural health needs and problems and advanced ideas as to what they would like for the March program.

Humbert said the committee will now contact a number of persons to see if they will accept invitations to appear on the program. "If the people we have planned to have will accept, we will have an outstanding group of eastern North Carolina citizens for the occasion," he declared.

The definite program for the conference will be announced later.

REASON FOR WORK

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — A robbery victim walked into Sheriff Billy Hodson's office, pointed to a car outside and said, "One of my tires that was stolen is on that old Ford out front." Hodson is working hard on the case because the Ford was a used car he himself had bought not long before.
