'Books and Stuff'

By Dr. Ed Hirschberg

This week Culture—with a capital C—dominates the scene in Greenville, we're happy and proud to relate. Chief and most important event, of course, is the one-day stand of the North Carolina Grass Roots Opera Company at the College Theatre, on this coming Monday, Jan. 24. As you've no doubt heard countless times over both Radio and TV—we hope—there will be two performances, a children's matinee at 2 o'clock for the school kiddies, and a grownup one at eight—a big day for the opera singers—they'll be tired right down to their Grass Roots, by the time it's all over.

We know they'll be good, and we hope huge crowds turn out for both shows. Last year they sang "Carmen" and those who went were delighted, including us. As you probably have read also, the Grass Roots Company is strictly a North Carolina outfit, with headquarters in Raleigh but with professional connections all over. The performers hail from everywhere, and are the best that can be obtained among the young singers who haven't made the top yet, and many of them will, we trust, so you can't tell what great future star you will see and hear at Monday's programs.

"Hansel and Gretel" will be given for the small fry in the afternoon. "Don Pasquale" will be the main event for the evening, and for opera it's light entertainment—a comedy by Gaetano Donizetti, one of the great Italian composers, creator also of "Lucia di Lammermoor." Both "Lucia" and "Don Pasquale" are well known selections on the radio, and the Metropolitan, and we'll be interested to see how the Grass Rooters handle the high comedy of "Don Pasquale," who is an old bachelor who marries a young widow named Norina and lives to regret it, with lots of comedy and singing thrown in. We hope you go see it—Monday night, 8 o'clock, College Theatre, tickets $1.25 apiece—and cheap at half the price—available from any member of the Greenville Music Club, or at the door on the night of the performance.

Next on our Culture List—in the past not the future—George Bernard Shaw, no less, whose "Devil's Disciple" was done last Wednesday and Thursday evenings by the East Carolina Players, and very well done, too. Acting, sets, costumes—everything was wonderful—except, on Wednesday, when we saw it—the night of the Big 1-inch Snow—the crowd, which was pitifully thin, because we hope, of the weather. We throw our compliments particularly to the lead actors: Nancy Cooke, who was restrained but convincing as the preacher's wife; Alvis Carr, who played the rough and ready part of the disillusioned Richard Dudgeon—the Devil's Disciple himself, as if he had been born to it; Jim Corum, a gentle but noble Reverend Anderson suddenly turned soldier; and Merle Kelly, who was really fine as the urbane and sophisticated General Burgoyne, caught in an embarrassing situation among the uncivilized American colonials. "The Devil's Disciple" is not Shaw at his best, but it certainly presents the British view of the American Revolution—as an uncouth skirmish that was not won by the bravery and courage of George Washington and his intrepid army, but was lost by the stupidity of the British War Office, which insisted on sending over the wrong soldiers, the wrong generals and the wrong orders—so that the American couldn't possibly lose.

Anyway, we hope you saw the show—and if you didn't, our condolences, and we hope you don't miss the next one—after all, it isn't every city that has a college theatre, with real live actors, scenery and the rest.

Belatedly—but surely—we get to the Books. And how better could we open our observations than by talking about Books in Our Own Greenville? From Miss Elizabeth Cope, our energetic new Head Librarian at the Sheppard Memorial, we've received some heartening statistics about how much people are still reading hereabouts, despite the inroads of TV and other distractions. The figures, actually, for an area that is not thickly populated and is mostly rural, are astounding.

During 1954, circulation of books from the Sheppard Library totaled 61,956—which means that an average of more than 5000 books a month were borrowed from the library in a town of less than 20,000 population—another way of saying that one out of every four people in Greenville read—or at least took out—a book every month. Quite extraordinary, in comparison with the national average—according to a survey we looked at some time ago, something like 1 out of every 30 people asked had read even one book during the previous year.

Other figures about the Sheppard Library and its running mate, the Bookmobile: During 1954 again, 1203 new borrowers added themselves to the rolls of the Library, and 4159 new books were bought, making a grand total of over 44,000 books now on the shelves. Also added to the library were new stacks for the Children's Room, a 50th Anniversary Celebration, a Bulletin Board of Events Around Town, and—last but not least—we emphasize, least, two brand new librarians, both of them young and pretty: Miss Elizabeth Cope and Miss Ann McMullan. A big year—a really big year—for the Sheppard Memorial, and we tender felicitations and good wishes for an even bigger one next year, except that we hope the new librarians will stick around for while.

One more item, about the Bookmobile, which we here in town don't see much of but which apparently is a very busy little automobile indeed:

Circulation during the last year totaled 143,961 books—again, a truly remarkable number. . . . Here our space is almost taken and we haven't mentioned Religious Emphasis Week at the College yet, which begins officially on Monday, the 24th, when religious leaders from various parts of the State will converge on the East Carolina Campus for religious thinking, counseling and guidance with the students. . . . Several events are open to the public, and we hope you'll come if you can. . . . And we close on a religious note: two new books on religious subjects have just come out. . . . A photographic account of Albert Schweitzer's life in French Equatorial Africa, compiled by Erica Anderson and called "The World of Albert Schweitzer," published in honor of his 80th birthday last week. . . . And a new book about missionaries, "In and Out of the Andes," by Sister Maria del Rey of Maryknoll—a significant contribution to religious literature. . . . No review today. . . . to much stuff. . . . See you at the Opera—Monday night at eight. . . .

The start of a new year is a fine time to begin—and carry through—a few good photo habits. Maintain an orderly arrangement of negatives, prints, slides and movies and you multiply your pleasures from photography. It's easy to start now with each individual batch of pictures you take. It becomes a hopeless chore only when it piles up.

The first step is dating and identifying negatives, then filing them. Settle on some uniform system, then stick to it. Use standard size envelopes and keep them all together in one box or set of boxes.

Some people file negatives by date, as the events happen. Others prefer a numerical system. Personally speaking, I believe these two systems are better suited to professional or commercial photography. I favor filing by subject matter in alphabetical order. Then when you want another print of little Phyllis or Grandma Gertrude or that beautiful scenic at Colonial Williamsburg, you look it up, directly.

You'll save time and space by throwing out all bad pictures and grouping together negatives of the same subject matter in one envelope if they were taken on the same occasion. In filing, keep asking yourself this question: "Under what head would I look for this if I wanted it again?"

also gain, speaking personally, we have a family album but we also have separate albums for each of the children a vacation album and a hobby album. This means making duplicate prints of some photos and a lot more work in keeping up-to-date. But it makes it a lot easier to find a specific picture when we want to refer to it.

A colorful touch can be added to albums by mounting prints on sheets of colored art paper. Then these are trimmed to leave a colorful border before being pasted in the album.

Personal albums can be dramatic, too, by combining them with news of world events. This is done by dating pictures as they are taken with newspaper headlines of that period. It makes an interesting combination, years later, to see family photos in relation to what was going on in the world at the same time.

Camera fans should also have a handy file for articles, information and interesting pictures gathered from newspapers and magazines for ready reference.

You can make attractive negative, print and photo file boxes by pasting enlargements of your best pictures on cardboard cartons so that they cover the top and sides almost to the edge. Then add a colorful border trim of cloth-backed tape which will help keep the edges of the print down at the same time.

When finished, these decorative photo files can serve their useful life in plain view instead of hiding in dark corners.

Believe me, this is all good advice. I know, because if I followed it consistently, I wouldn't be looking in so many dark corners now for some negatives that I took a couple of years ago.

ALBUM MAKES NEWS — Photos of the old days, combined with front page news of that period, makes the photo album a source of interest and pleasure years later.

What's new? The "1955 Universal Photo Almanac" edited by Edna Bennett (Folk Publishing Co., N.Y.) is a paper covered, spiral bound, three-way photo guide. One section has about a dozen articles on various aspects of photography such as shooting stereo, movies, color slides and glamor pictures. There's a general formula and data section. Lastly it contains a photo market guide, bibliography and list of photo dealers and distributors.

The neatest and most orderly arrangement for prints is to get them into an album immediately where they can be dated and identified. Such an album is likely to be an all-purpose reference record. 1. Babies

This year the stork really worked overtime! He delivered babies at the rate of 10,990 a day. That's enough new people to make a city the size of Akron, Ohio, every single month. What better proof that America is healthy and growing fast!

3. Homes

Throughout the country in 1954 home owners outnumbered tenants by the widest margin of all time. Almost 6 out of every 10 families now own their own homes. Where do they get the mortgage money? A great many went to their insured Savings and Loan Associations! Right now these associations make one third of all home mortgage loans. Last year they were the nation's largest single source of mortgage loans for home building, buying and alterations.

2. Savings

This year Americans put more of their money into savings accounts than in any other year since the war. And where did they save? They put more of these hard-earned savings account dollars into insured Savings and Loan Associations than anywhere else. People know insured Savings and Loan Associations give excellent returns on their money. They know these friendly, home-town organizations are safe.

THE FACT IS—the insured Savings and Loan Associations in your community are mighty good places for you to know about. Your savings are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation—an agency of the U. S. Government. And these associations offer complete and really expert home mortgage services. Stop in soon at an insured Savings and Loan Association. You'll find it's a very pleasant and profitable place to do business.

Two Points That Linger In Mind

Two points still linger in our minds when looking back on the President's budget message of last Monday:

- (1) It was based on assumptions of a growing rise in individuals' prosperity, and
- (2) Military expenditures were placed in the general category of "Protect Against Possible War".

There were many other points in Mr. Eisenhower's message (such as the billion-dollar reduction from last year's budget or the narrowing gap of deficit spending) which are worthy of comment; but of them all, this confidence in the future and the descriptive wording of arms outlays offer special food for rumination.

Take that confidence in future prosperity.

It wasn't just the President's own prediction, but the calculated opinion of his top advisors. Their own confidence is such that they are basing all estimates of future income and subsequent spending programs on increases of personal income and corporate profits.

Needless to say, in government there is as little gambling on the future as possible; so we think their opinions bode well for each wage-earner, businessman and industry. On those grounds too we think the budget message offered a sound "assist" to business by underwriting the confidence voiced by individual business leaders.

As to that second point, it was a matter of using the right words in the right place and at the right time.

Outlays for the armed services could have been lumped under any one of a dozen titles, because everyone knows the money was designated for ships, planes, guns, bullets, bombs etc. But the budget message correctly labeled such sums as designated to "Protect Against Possible War".

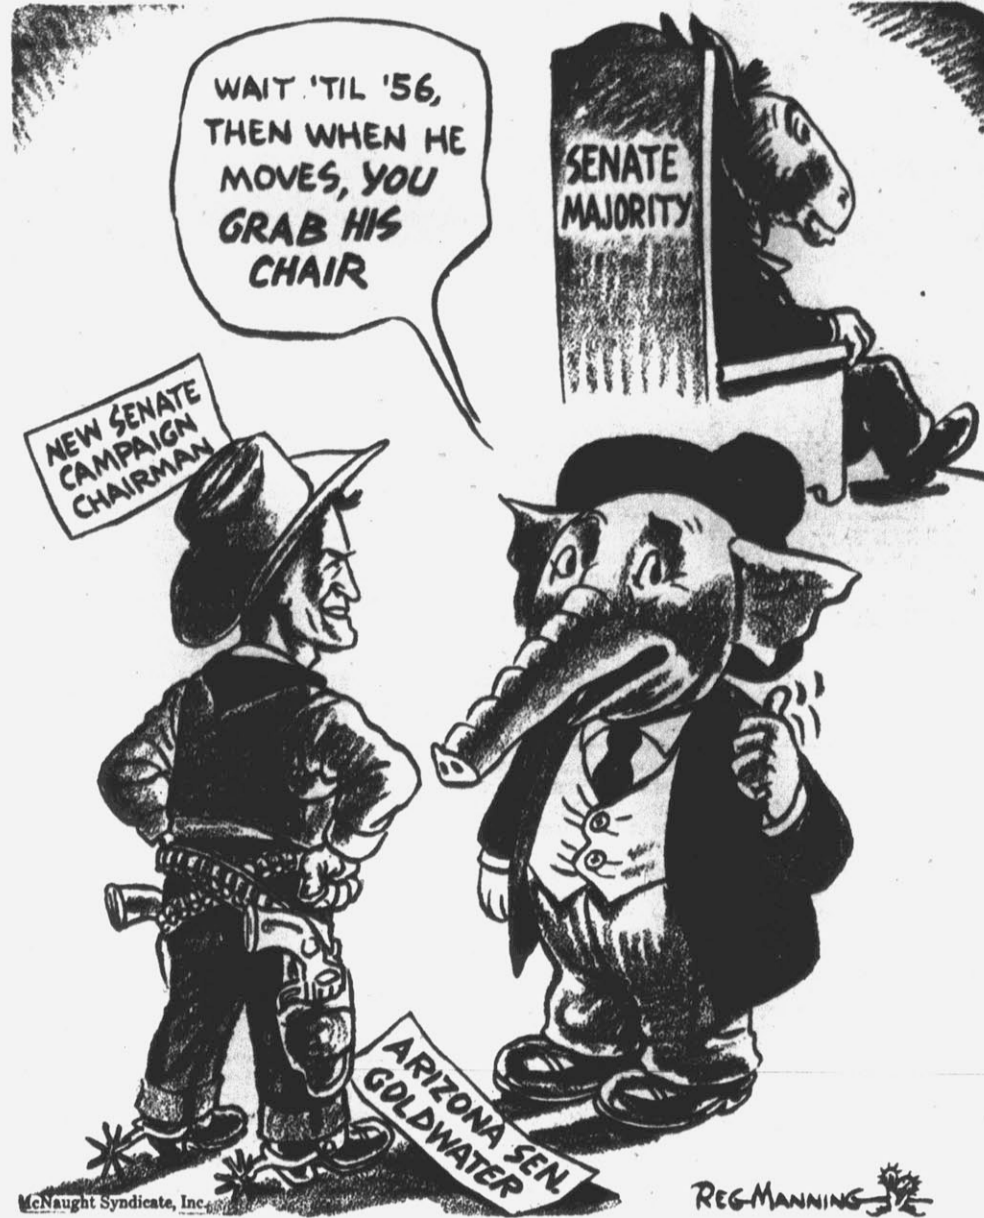

Those four words keynote the whole policy of today's military planning as linked to the over-all picture of foreign affairs.

Mere national defense or national survival does not fully describe the role of military strength any more.

Their reason for being kept at an expensive level of preparedness is directly tied to the concept of policy designed to keep peace.

Again we say . . . it was the right words in the right place and at the right time.

Business Today

Factor Of Automation

By ELMER ROESSNER
If anyone has any doubts about the necessity of creating a million jobs a year, noted here yesterday, all he need do is to look down any residential street any afternoon. Babies in carriages and bawling youngsters darting into the street are impressive evidence of the need for constantly more jobs and production.

In the past, as populations grew, jobs increased. If there was tillable land or navigable water, the increased members of the labor force became farmers or sailors. If there wasn't, the increased number became fighters and won more territory in battle. If they didn't win, the amount of land they needed was sharply diminished.

Today we have another factor: automation. It's an old factor, really, disguised in modern semantics. It is just another phase of the industrial revolution, more substitution of power looms for spinning wheels.

Many hold automation creates more jobs than it eliminates. The industrial revolution in England puts bones in their arguments. There are more jobs today than there were in the days of the spinning wheel and if a few people starved in the change-over, that's too bad.

There are other arguments. The National Manpower Council recently stated that the push-button factory will require more technicians and more skilled workers than the number of unskilled men it displaces. John Diebold, editor of Automatic Control, the National Association of Manufacturers, says: "There are atomic plants at Oak Ridge that are run by 20 to 30 girls, but these plants require the services of hundreds of servicemen." The idea that automatic production needs more men than nonautomatic production is getting a nice trial run elsewhere these days. But it can only place. The incentive for automation is more production with less manpower. Leave no one kid nobody.

The nation's factories, with 6 per cent fewer employees, turned out as much production in November, 1954 as they did in November, 1953. Worry that! America not only needs a million-plus more jobs a year, but this gain must be made despite automation.

Automation will create some new jobs; it will cut man-hours required for present tasks. But there's still need for keeping more young men busy at satisfying work at wages large enough to provide the buying power to keep other young men busy. Or else.

ODD TIES SHOW UP ON BARGAIN COUNTERS
A New York store is holding a sale of silk ties marked down to $1. Included are a number of ties with the initials "NBC" and a microphone design. These would make nice gifts for anybody named Nils Blalock Cushman or Nathan Bogardus Clancy, especially if Nils or Nathan is in radio.

WHAT! NO PINK AND CHARCOAL GRAY?
More and more color is getting into kitchens. One large maker of major appliances (Kelvinator) has brought out its new line of refrigerators and stoves in spring green, fern green, lagoon blue, dawn gray, sand beige, harvest yellow, buttercup yellow and Bermuda pink. There is also white for those who want it.

Maintains Rule At Gunpoint

By HAL BOYLE
CIUDAD TRUJILLO (AP) — Leaves from a cruising notebook:

The Dominican Republic, called by Christopher Columbus "the fairest land under heaven," is today one of the most peaceful countries in the world.

Peace is maintained at pistol point. Here a man can worship any God he pleases. He is also completely free to say anything he wants to say as long as he doesn't want to say anything against Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina, or the things Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina stands for. If he does want to, his freedom of speech becomes a figure of speech.

For this is a one-man republic of 2,800,000 people and the one man is Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina, called by his exiled enemies a ruthless tyrant but known officially as "The Benefactor of the Fatherland."

A visitor here has the feeling of being watched, and the feeling is no illusion. All police states keep an eye on the movement of strangers.

Before leaving a cruise ship in the harbor, the tourist is handed an identity slip, a carbon copy of which has already been delivered to Dominican police.

"Don't lose this slip," he is warned. "The ship can't leave until all the slips have been turned back in."

Dominican citizens all carry an identity card, too.

"Already I feel about as free as a handcuffed mummy," mumbled one tourist.

As you come ashore the first sight you see is an old fort. Atop it is mounted a gun able to fire either at ground targets or raiding airplanes. The fort is patrolled by armed guards.

Armed national police also walk the street. They are on guard at most national buildings, including the capitol, and the palatial residence of the generalissimo himself.

As one drives about the countryside the license number of his car is noted by police at numerous road check points. If you ask why this is done, you are likely to be told it is to cut down car thefts. Perhaps!

There is no doubt that tough-minded Trujillo has brought stability to a revolutionary country which in a single century of its history had 92 changes of government. In a quarter of a century he has taken a sleepy, diseaseridden, chaotic land and gunned it well up the road to modernity and prosperity.

Seeing the visible evidence of the tremendous changes Trujillo has wrought, one tourist in our party remarked:

"You know maybe with a backward people like this, a dictator is needed to straighten them out and get them going. You can see he's done a lot of good."

"I can remember when they used to say the same thing about Mussolini," replied another.

But Trujillo hasn't made the big mistake Mussolini did. He hasn't led his people into any wars of conquest.

Outside criticism doesn't bother him overly — and he knows how to deal with criticism within the country. It is silenced.

The generalissimo is acutely aware of the fate met by many Latin American dictators — assassination. He isn't altogether dependent on his bodyguard. He is a crack shot himself, and is reported to keep a weapon handy.

"A man in my position must have no fear," he once was quoted as saying. "The man who takes a potshot at me had better be sure of his aim; otherwise he'll be a dead man."

Crime Is Still So Rare As To Be News

A thought from somewhere:

All those crimes, accidents and tragedies that wind up on a newspaper's pages mirror the trend of the times. . . say some.

Do they?

It all depends on how one reads that "mirror".

News, as defined by the press is a compilation of events that are out of the ordinary. Being out of the ordinary makes news NEWS.

On that basis, looking at contemporary newspapers we'd judge society to be on a relatively high plane of civilization.

Crimes of any description are still so relatively rare as to be newsworthy in the public's esteem.

Will Bypass Project Be Let Next Month?

Will the new bypass and bridge project so urgently needed for the movement of north-south traffic around Greenville be ready for letting in February?

The answer to that question, of course, remains in the hands of the State Highway and Public Works Commission which is in the process of compiling the data necessary before the project can be submitted to contractors.

Officials of the Second Highway Division are keenly aware of the pressing need of the bypass and bridge. In the past they have given full cooperation to local officials in every way to expedite the project. The Reflector is confident they will continue to push the project.

Now that the governing boards of Greenville and Pitt County have released to the Highway Commission the necessary right-of-way across the airport, the matter lies in the hands of the Highway Commission. The local authorities can only wait until the highway officials complete their part of the work to ready the project for letting. It is expected that the Bureau of Public Roads will give approval to the minor change in the route of the bypass just as that agency readily approved the original route for the project.

Realizing the urgent need for utilization of the proposed facility at the earliest possible moment, The Reflector hopes the highway officials will exercise every means at their command to have the local project let during the coming month.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THESE AND OTHER DAYS

Just before Washington and his soldiers crossed the Delaware, the great Commander-in-Chief distributed to all his soldiers a pamphlet written by Tom Paine. It began with the words: "These are days that try men's souls."

How often during our national history have these words been repeated. And there has probably never been a day in these 177 years when these words have not been cogent and true. For life is a trial—it always has been and it always will be. Our earthly existence is a period of probation. We are put here amid a welter of baffling circumstances in order that we may prove whether we are worthy of eternal life or of eternal death. Our souls are constantly being tried. The life of our nation is constantly being tried. If we read history word by word, we are in despair; and little better if we read it page by page. It is only when we read it chapter by chapter that we see progress being made.

Communism, corruption, juvenile delinquency, crime, inordinate ambition—these in their present form will pass but will come back in different forms to try our descendants. God's sole intention seems to be that we and they will learn from these trials.

In ancient times, now, and as far as we can see into the future—"These are days that try men's souls."

An Exchange Of Key Weapons

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The musical chairs Speakers of the House of Representatives, Representatives Sam Rayburn of Texas and Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, swapped more than gavels and other paraphernalia when the Democrats assumed control of the 84th Congress. They exchanged the most politically dangerous weapon at Washington—namely, the power of unchecked investigation of the Executive Branch of the government.

"Joe" may now regret his witty remark after the Republicans won a majority on Capitol Hill in the 1946 elections. He said then that "We will begin each session with a prayer and conclude it with an investigation."

"Mister Sam" and his Democratic pals now echo that statement with the exception that they may forget to say their prayers in the attempt to discredit the Eisenhower Administration and to reinstate their Party in the White House in 1956.

DEMOCRATS CAREFUL PLAN—The Democrats' program of investigation has been worked out with mathematical precision. It will not be the haphazard, hit-or-miss methods which the GOP employed when they merely toyed with this blunderbuss. The areas of Eisenhower operations have been mapped out carefully and tactically in off-the-record planning.

In their inquiries into Ike's first two years, the opposition has two main purposes. It seeks to repudiate for all time the McCarthy charge that the Democrats were the "Party of Treason," and the recorded Nixon indictment that F.D.R. and Harry S. Truman were "soft, vacillating and inconsistent" in their attitude toward Communists at home and abroad.

Pursuing historic policy, the Democrats will seek to recreate the impression that President Eisenhower and his "millionaire Cabinet," as well as his wealthy friends and associates, have been unduly friendly toward "Big Business," and neglectful of Henry A. Wallace's "common man" and Truman's "little fellows."

UNFOUNDED CHARGE—Democratic hammering

Somebody Told Me

Once - In - A - Million Category

Mrs. Howard Porter, wife of the East Carolina basketball coach, called me last week with a bridge hand that came in the category of being one in several million:

Spades: A, K, Q, J
Hearts: A, K, Q, J, 10
Diamonds: A, K, Q
Clubs: A

If you have played bridge much you have no doubt seen hands like this that were stacked. I have done it myself to play a joke on someone. But this one was completely legitimate. The cards had been shuffled in the conventional manner.

Other players at the table were Helen Sermons and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jackson. Mrs. Porter opened with a bid of seven no trumps. There were no doubles. There's no doubt that many million hands would have to be dealt before hitting that combination.

P. Badger Johnson, president of the Greenville Merchants Association, has a new approach to the parking situation. A survey showing the number of off-street parking places in Greenville would no doubt be astounding.

A quick glance shows the lots, city sponsored, where the swimming pool was and on the corner of Second and Evans. Colonial Stores had contributed greatly on the corner of East Fourth and Colaniche, plus the A&P and Colonial space on Dickinson Avenue. There are two private lots on Colaniche.

Closer observation would reveal an amazing number of off-street places. While the smaller towns close by are emphasizing our parking problem, as Johnson points out, we are missing the boat by not crowding about the spaces we have.

The two-year-old son, Don, was so chippy this morning and full of bright remarks at the breakfast table that I was determined to take him to work with me. How did this idea go over with my boss? Great, since the boss is Don's Granddaddy.

This is our most decisive year in the fight against polio. Please give and give generously! And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

Ever Heard of Thrift Week?

(Henderson Dispatch)

This week, in case you didn't know, is National Thrift Week. It is another one of those numerous weeks that are designated nearly every seven days in the year for some sort of notation or observance. Only this one has the ring of logic. Or does it?

With many people the idea of thrift is archaic and no longer means a great deal. So little is heard about frugality these days that only casual thought is given the idea. Where in former times it was considered a virtue to save a little every payday, the theme song has come to be now to spend it about as fast as you get it. In deed, there is so much installment buying that much of the intake is absorbed in meeting maturities.

James J. Hill, one of the great pioneers in railroad building in this country in the last century, is quoted as having said once that the young man who cannot save a little out of his income, no matter how small, had as well drop out of line, that he will never be a worker of another era. In other words, there was Benjamin Franklin, one of the founding fathers and sage and philosopher of colonial days, who said "a man may, if he knows not how to save as he gets, keep his nose to the grindstone."

If these wise men and hard workers of another era knew their facts, there must be a lot of people dropping out of the procession these days and many who keep their noses on the grindstone. A lot of grindstones would be needed to accommodate all those noses.

Government has might this. In encouraging citizens generally to ignore the wisdom of thrift and frugality. It has done so by its own lavish spending and by leading the people to believe they need not worry, that it will see them through.

National Thrift Week no longer carries much more significance than any other of the numerous weeks that are observed for one cause or another. Saving isn't exactly a lost art but it lacks a great deal of having the emphasis now that it once received, and for that we are no better off.

Smooth - Working Machine Bulldozed Rule To Adoption

AROUND CAPITOL SQUARE
By LYNN NISBET

SECURITY — The rules for the 1955 House of Representatives, adopted Wednesday morning by a vote of 74 to 21, contain provisions for committee sessions from which everybody except members of the committee may be excluded. The effect of the new rule is to apply considerably more secrecy than was authorized by the much publicized secrecy act of 1953.

The 1953 act was applicable only to the joint appropriations committee or subcommittees thereof when considering the biennial budget appropriations bills. The 1955 rule applies to every standing committee and subcommittee thereof at all times. It places in the committee chair-man much larger powers than have ever before been contemplated. In that respect it follows closely the practice of the National House of Representatives.

The permanent rules, including the amendments, were adopted on motion of Rep. Brantly Womble, chairman of the rules committee, over protest of Rep. John Umstead of Orange.

Bird Satterfield of Person, Roger Kiser of Scotland George Long of Alamance, all of whom asked for 24 hours time to study the language and see just how far they would go in granting almost dictatorial powers to committee chairmen. Reps. Kemp Doughton of Alleghany and William Rodman of Beaufort spoke in support of immediate action.

The advocates of delay in order to study ran smack into a smooth-working machine of which Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan was the engineer. Uzzell was presiding in absence of Speaker Larry Moore, and he stated that Moore wanted the rule adopted that day. On points of order

Uzzell ruled promptly and with exact technical accuracy, although it was obvious that Kiser meant to ask for a record vote on the adoption of the rules, which technically he had asked for the eyes and nose on the call for the previous question—which means to stop debate.

SPEED — Opponents of immediate action argued that since the House had gone for two full weeks without adopting new rules, another few hours would have made little difference. In later conversation with newsmen they recalled that the news services resented more two years ago passage of the "secrecy law" under suspension of rules in face of request for a public hearing, than they did the passage of the act itself. The speedy action Wednesday is reminiscent of that slap at the N.C. Press Association in 1953, and also is in striking contrast to the dilatory activities of legislative session so far this year.

Bills are pending in both branches of the Legislature for repeal of the 1953 act, and a number of members made repeal an issue in their campaigns for nomination last spring. Several of those who pledged to vote for the repeal also voted for the rule which carries the secrecy possibilities a great deal farther than the statute, and in opinion of some observers, a good deal farther than the legislators intended.

HAIRY — The argument was placed upon the question whether a legislative committee has an inherent right to hold an executive session. There is a wide difference of opinion on that point, although better than three to one majority of the House members voted that there is such inherent right. On that issue there is no great change in practice, because without specific rule—and often in face of the statutory mandate for open sessions of the appropriations committee—most committees have it every legislature held closed meetings.

The danger point involved in the new rule is the extreme power conferred upon the committee chairman to eject from the committee any individual or individuals whose presence is regarded by the chairman as "hindering" orderly legislative process. That is something new in North Carolina practice, and opens the way for McCarthyism at its worst.

DANGEROUS — What some of the advocates of further study wanted to determine was whether the language of the new rule actually gives to the committee chairman, without consent or even over protest of committee members, the right to eject from the room any person who opposes the chairman's views on pending bills. They fear that one interpretation of the phrase "hindering" orderly legislative process" might well give him that power, since he is the sole judge of the issue.

Two or three representatives suggested that under one interpretation the committee chairman, as Senator McCarthy often did and expel any person who did not answer questions like the chairman wanted them answered. That is an extreme case, but might be possible under the rules adopted.

Another matter that ought to have more study, contend the advocates of 24-hour delay in adoption, is the provision that a majority of any committee or sub-committee may require an executive session. Does that mean a majority of the whole committee or a majority of those present and voting? House Rule 69, which was not changed, reads: "The chairman and five other members of any com-

BUGS AT POINT OF NO RETURN IN NS LOOP

Having past the halfway mark of their 22-game schedule, Coach Howard Porter's ECO Pirates find themselves pressed hard to remain in first division in the North State Conference.

Their conference record of 6-2 is only third best in the standings and hardly better than the mark of the fourth ranked club, Atlantic Christian, naturally takes precedence with an unblemished 7-0 season. The second place club, Elon, has a 5-1 league mark having lost only to the front-running Bulldogs, 68-68.

Lenoir Rhyne is pushing the Pirates. Their 96-79 win in Lincolnton Saturday night boosted their record, conference-wise, to 4-2. Also, High Point's 3-3 record keeps them in contention for one of the first four spots.

In overall games, East Carolina stacks up pretty formidably. They have won nine and lost three. ACC has won 10 and lost three. Lenoir Rhyne's record is 5-4 and Elon's 10-5.

Of the 10 games remaining on their card, the Bucs have seven loop meets. Guilford is here Saturday night and WCC here the following Saturday. The much anticipated ECC-ACC collision is scheduled for February 3 in Memorial Gym.

If the Bucs hope to come anywhere close to finishing where they did in 1953-54, they've got to accelerate now. ACC still has to play Lenoir Rhyne in Hickory and Elon in Burlington. These two are mighty tough at home and either is capable of knocking the wind out of the Bulldogs' sails. In all, ACC has nine more conference tilts and Elon has 12. Seven of ACC's games are on the road, where they're more vulnerable. Also Elon plays seven more games away from home.

Even at this stage, though, the Pirates have been surprisingly impressive. Coach Porter's pre-season statement contained: "We'll be satisfied if we win 12 games this season." With seven freshmen on his traveling squad of 12, the man in the red vest has done wonders with the Purple and Gold.

ECC IS BETTER THAN KENTUCKY. SAYS SO RIGHT HERE

When Georgia Tech broke out all over the nation's number 1 basketball power, Kentucky, a few days back it meant more than the destruction of the nation's longest winning streak. Their 59-58 win over the Wildcats set in motion the wheels of our great (?) thinkers and all sorts of conclusions ensued.

When Tech meets the Purple Paladins in Furman, East Carolina came into the picture. Furman trounced Tech 111-95, making the Pirates 29 points better than Kentucky.

It works this way: Georgia Tech beat Kentucky by one point; Furman beat Kentucky by 16, Presbyterian defeated Furman by one, 83-82; and East Carolina took Presbyterian by 11, 81-70.

But many will say figures don't mean a thing unless its those of Marilyn Monroe.

SPORTS SHOTS FROM HERE AND THERE

The Brooklyn Dodgers are ahead in the registration of players; 21 have signed already. Only two regulars, Gil Hodges and Carl Furillo, have not yet come to terms. . . . Frank Selvy, former Furman gunner, is averaging 20.6 with 783 points on 261 field and 281 free throws in 38 games. . . . State's powerful swimming team met and defeated their biggest obstacle to the ACC swimming title Tuesday. They whipped UNC 49-35. It marked the third consecutive time the Wolfpack has beaten the Tar Heel tankmen.

West Virginia Tech, a small college of 600 students in southern West Virginia, is making a bid for national basketball scoring honors by averaging a phenomenal 113.5 points per game. . . . There will be fewer exhibition games by major league teams this spring, schedules have been cut in most cases by five or six games. There are two reasons: (1) A conviction that spring training has developed along unwise lines, with far too many exhibitions and (2) the shortening of the exhibition season, with games prohibited before March 1.

Ralph Kiner, who is 32, figures that a home run hitter is not necessarily through at his age. Babe Ruth was 32 when he hit his record 60 home runs and kept going strong for seven more years. When Jimmy Fox was 32 he hit 36 homers and batted in 119 runs. At 34 Johnny Mize rapped 51 homers and batted in 138 runs. When Lou Gehrig was 32 he hammered 49 homers and batted in 152 runs. Maybe Kiner has something there.

Santee Believes Record To Fall At Indoor Meet

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Wes Santee takes to the boards for the first time this season in the 1955 Philadelphia Inquirer Games at Convention Hall tonight and the world's ranking active miler thinks he'll do all right.

"I think the winner of the race (although he didn't say he'd win) will run pretty close to the world (indoor) record and probably will top it if conditions are right," he said.

"This is my first time on the boards this season and I've never run on the boards here before," he continued. "But I'll see what happens."

Pitt Conference Sees Five Games Slated Tonight

All members of the Pitt County Basketball Conference are active tonight as the derby moves into the second half of its schedules. Four of the following games are league engagements:

Ayden at Robersonville
Grimesland at Belvoir
Chicod at Bethel
Winterville at Farmville
Stokes-Pactolus at Grifton

The survival of the fittest has taken hold and the strong clubs in the loop are out in front of the pack. Winterville's male representatives are giving the rest of the members a hard time in their division. Their 9-0 conference mark puts them way ahead of runner-up Bethel. The latter boys are possessors of a 6-2 loop record and are about the only serious threats to the classy Winterville team.

Winterville's lassies are also leading their bracket and hope to make the conference a two-way race. Their 8-1 record has them ahead of Bethel who has won seven and lost two. The outcome of tonight's game with Chicod, though, can possibly mean a change in the standings. Chicod's girls are tough, having won 6 and lost two for third place.

Winterville's boys lay their unblemished mark on the line against Coach Charles Tucker's Farmville charges. Farmville is playing better than 500 ball and could upset the Winterville appellation.

The Grimesland-Belvoir encounter pits two second division clubs hoping to improve their won-loss marks and advance in the standings. Both are possible for one of the teams with Belvoir just one notch ahead of Grimesland's boys. Belvoir's girls boasts the better team, won-loss-wise, but both teams are experiencing mediocre seasons.

Grimesland is in the cellar and Belvoir holds down the number five spot. Stokes-Pactolus hits the road to play Grifton tonight with no apparent gain at stake but the game itself. The Stokes girls are bidding to get even in games won and lost and Grifton is trying hard to stay out of the league cellar. The host boys are a little better off than their contemporaries with a fifth place standing. Grifton's boys are a couple notches down in the sixth hole.

Ayden moves outside the league to battle strong Robersonville here. The Ayden boys are one of the league's strong points. They've won five and lost three in conference play. The Ayden girls haven't fared so well. They presently are embedded in the loop's cellar with Grimesland.

As the race passes the midpoint and starts into the home stretch, pretty close diagnoses of the tournament pairings can be ensued. As it looks now, Pitt County is in line for new champions.

G-Men And Number Three Team In Loop Play Tonight

Two high-scoring members of the Northeastern Conference square away tonight in Jacksonville meet the Greenville Phantoms meet the number three team in the loop in a regularly scheduled conference clash.

The Phantoms, undefeated in three conference attempts, will run into a hot and cold team that is capable of pulling the upset on a hot night. The Cardinals have run hot and cold like a faucet all year but have shown possibilities when they were hot.

Upset Streak Is In Turn 'Upset'

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

The upset streak finally has been upset in college basketball. George Washington's ninth-ranked Coloma who earlier this week had a hand in one of the numerous form reversals, took charge of Virginia Tech in fine style 95-60 last night. That closed out a string of upsets among the nation's top 10 teams that had knocked off four kingspins in three nights this week.

Illinois, No. 7 in this week's Associated Press poll, was joined by Iowa Monday; second-ranked North Carolina State and sixth-ranked Maryland were dropped by North Carolina and George Washington respectively, Tuesday, and Kansas State surprised eighth-ranked Missouri Wednesday.

George Washington was the only high-ranking team on the job last night. Even among the unranked teams things went as expected.

Colgate defeated Cornell for the second time this season 63-57. Tulsa scored a 48-42 victory over Oklahoma City U. Wichita spilled Seattle 74-71 and Texas A&M beat Louisiana State 58-47.

George Washington smothered Virginia Tech with a field goal charge that bettered 50 per cent. Joe Holup and Corky Devlin hold-over from the Colonials' 1953-54 Southern Conference champs, each scored 26 points.

Colgate had to scramble against Cornell's Ivy League leaders, who led 16-0 at the start and 35-22 at the half. Colgate perked up in the second half and took the lead with 2½ minutes left.

Tulsa Coach Clarence Iba, who favors the possession style of his brother Hank at Oklahoma A&M, played it close to the vest against Oklahoma City in a game that marked up 37 fouls. Bob Patterson, Tulsa's scoring leader, was fouled up by a two and three-man defense and got only eight points.

Wichita had a 40-36 halftime lead then had to shake off Seattle with 11 minutes in the final two minutes.

several other senior members of the squad compose a high scoring quintet. The big loss from the squad of last year was Bob Burkhardt, the senior forward who averaged close to 17 points per game. Burkhardt was one of the conference's best players last season and has been sorely missed by his mates so far this year.

The G-men have one possible handicap for tonight's game. Edgar Moore, the stellar senior forward, has caught the flu bug that has been flying around and has been in bed for two days. Moore is making the trip tonight but it is not certain yet if he will be able to dress for the game. If he does dress, he certainly will not be at top form. If Moore is unable to start Coach Farley probably will insert his clutch man, Ike Riddick into the starting five. Riddick will play a guard with either Pat Sawyer or Tommie Saled moving into Moore's forward position. Sawyer probably would move to forward since he plays some of every game at that position.

Coach Farley may go with the height and stick Clark Noble, the 6-5 center, into the starting line-up with the team's leading scorer, Harold Edwards, moving over to the forward post.

At any rate, the big, new Jacksonville gym will give the Phantoms plenty room to run if they want to rack up some points. Coach Farley's gang usually ends up a ball game with 75 points or thereabouts. That pace would, in all probability, be too fast for the Cardinals and the G-men more than likely will want to run with them.

The game in Jacksonville will be the fourth conference clash for the G-men. Their next home game will be with Kingston in the Greenville gym on January 25.

Midget And Mite Play Underway

The Midget and Mite basketball action has gotten underway this week with four games played so far. In the Midget basketball—the All-Stars whipped the Wolfpack 21-7 and the Tar Heels beat the Warhawks 35-32 in an overtime period. The Phantoms and Pirates won in Mite games during the week.

Billy Cox poured in 14 points in leading his All-Star mates to a 21-7 win over the Wolfpack. Louis Arthur was the whole offensive show with five points for the Wolfpack.

The Tar Heel win was a thriller, going into one overtime period before the Tar Heels finally got the winning margin. Charles Staton fired in 16 points and Joe Moyer 11 points to lead the scoring for the Tar Heels. Robert Taft had 13 points and Sammie Pollard had 12 to pace the Warhawks.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Arriving as live bait, a little Mexican cousin of the man-eating piranha fish of South America has invaded Mississippi waters.

Wade Creekmore, director of the game and fish commission, said the three-inch long tetra does not harm humans but can and does gang up and devour large game fish.

Biologists thought the little fish wouldn't survive the relatively cold weather but apparently they are thriving and have been reported in Louisiana as well as Mississippi.

DOBY DUPLICATES
CLEVELAND (AP)—Larry Doby, slugging outfielder for the Cleveland Indians, has led the American League in home runs twice. Each time he has hit the same number of round trippers—32. The big years for Larry were 1952 and 1954.

Major Operation by Pap'

Lou Boudreau has always had a realistic approach to the game of baseball. So it is unlikely that he accepted the post of managing Kansas City's new major league entry, the old Philadelphia Athletics, with his eyes closed. He had ample opportunity to see the Philadelphia players in action when he was with the Boston Red Sox and has a pretty good line on the potentiality of most of the players on the roster. He couldn't possibly have any illusions about the tremendous task ahead if he is to give Kansas City a winning ball club.

Owner Arnold Johnson's announcement that a sum of $1,000,000 has been earmarked for the purchase of new players is encouraging, but not too promising. Few good ball players are available for cash these days and the Athletics have very little material to offer in trade. This being the case, Boudreau will have to depend on the development of players and that takes a lot of time. His contract with Kansas City is for two years and, in that time, Lou will have to work a small miracle to develop a contender.

The Athletics may not be as hopeless as their 103 defeats and last place finish in 1954 indicates. The club started the 1954 season well but bogged down when Bobby Shantz injured his arm and other key players were side-lined by injuries. The state of confusion in the front office and complete lack of fan interest caused the team to collapse completely. It is possible that the change of scenery, plus Boudreau's capable leadership may give the players a new lease on life. If, in addition, Boudreau can strengthen some of the weaker spots, the club might give the Kansas City fans some interesting baseball.

Beau Jack Apparently On Comback, But Not Sharp

COLUMBIA (AP)—Beau Jack, the one-time champion scrapper from Augusta, Ga., apparently was back on the comeback trail today following a dull 10-round victory over Eddie Green here last night.

Jack showed little of his form that carried him to the lightweight championship of the world in 1943. He gave away weight, 159 pounds to 147, and age, 33 to 27, in shuffling through what was called the first fight in a comeback attempt.

Fighting flat footed most of the way, Beau piled up enough points in every round to win a unanimous decision. Referee Ray Moore saw it 97-95, Judge Ben Harper, 99-95 and Judge Dom Fusci scored it 98-93.

Neither man was in trouble although in the latter rounds Beau landed several stinging left hooks. The former Negro shoeshine boy and caddy showed traces of his old style while infighting, but Green, fighting out of Kannapolis, N.C., tied him up before Jack could do any real damage.

Green, a one-time protege of Jack's, was no longer reach to loss in some long lefts. Neither man was knocked down, but Green ended the fight with a slight cut under his right eye.

Jack's last fight in the big time was in May, 1951, when Gil Turner stopped him. Beau has had trouble with his left knee. He favored it some against Green, but otherwise appeared in good shape.

The victory was Jack's 81st in 129 fights, while it was Green's 13th defeat in 61 outings.

Beau became world lightweight champion when Sammy Angott announced his retirement as champion in 1952. The New York State Athletic Commission recognized Beau and continued to recognize him as champion after Angott returned to the ring while the National Boxing Assn. recognized Angott.

Relief Chore For Vic Raschi

DANVILLE, N. Y. (AP)—Pitcher Vic Raschi of the St. Louis Cardinals is doing a relief stint in the teaching league here. Vic is serving on the faculty of Danville High while Athletic Director Russell Stead is recovering from an operation.

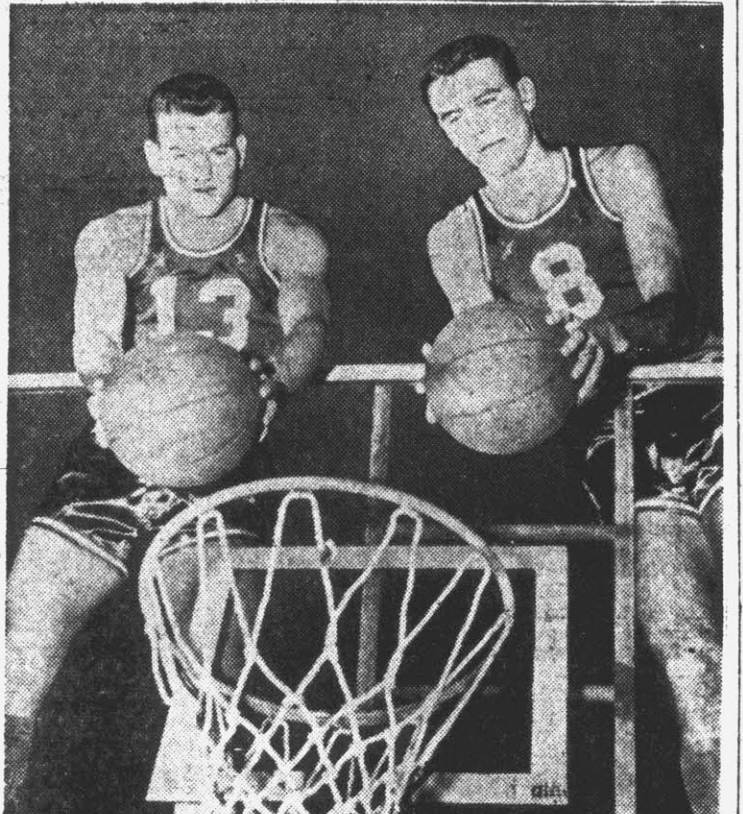

Raschi holds a degree in physical education from William & Mary. In addition to teaching classes Vic also is coaching the junior varsity basketball team.

Age No Barrier In Horse Racing

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Race horse training is one profession that appeals to all ages.

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons is going strong at 80 years. Max Hirsch is 74 and Ben Jones 72.

On the other extreme are Lloyd Gentry, who recently took over Cain Hoy's powerful string at 29; Mike Freeman, at 26 one of New England's leading trainers, and Tony Catali, at 26 a trainer for Mrs. Tillyou Christopher and Dr. G. E. Wolhard.

The Power of the Holy Spirit

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—John 14:25-26; 16:7-15; Acts 2:1-4; 3:1-4; 3:1-4; Romans 8:26-27; I Corinthians 2:9-16; Galatians 5:22-23.

Jesus told His disciples that He must leave them; that it would be better for them that He go, for if He stayed the Comforter would not come to them; but if He went He would send the Comforter to them.

The disciples were gathered together in a house, when suddenly there was a sound as of a mighty wind, and there appeared "tongues parting asunder like a fire and set upon each one of them. It was the Holy Ghost, the Comforter.

After healing a man lame from birth, Peter and John were imprisoned overnight. On the morrow they were brought before the rulers of the temple and asked by what power they performed the miracle. Peter said by Jesus Christ.

The rulers were amazed by the boldness of Peter and John, especially as they saw they were unlearned and ignorant men. They set them free, telling them that they were to preach no more. MEMORY VERSE—Joshua 1:9.

quently did he speak that 3,000 souls were converted at one time. Shortly thereafter Peter and John went to the synagogue, encountering a man who had been helpless from birth, who was begging at the door of the temple.

For this the two disciples were imprisoned overnight, then healed before the Sanhedrin, and asked by what power or by what name they had performed the miracle?

Then Peter, "filled with the Holy Ghost," told them it was by the power of Jesus Christ, the same whom they—the priests, captain of the temple and the Sadducees—had crucified, and whom God had raised from the dead.

After conferring together the members of the Sanhedrin, noticing that Peter and John were unlearned and ignorant men, marvelled at their boldness and power. They decided to allow them to go free, but warned them that they

Conservation And Development Board Will Hear Good Reports

By LYNN NISBET
RALEIGH — The Board of Conservation and Development at its regular semi-annual meeting in Raleigh next week will hear reports of substantial accomplishments on part of the departments working divisions for the past six months.

Perhaps more important will be discussion of plans for expanded activity, particularly in the direct and related areas of industrial development, for the near future.

The Board will be convened Monday morning by Governor Luther Hodges, ex-officio chairman. After a brief appearance the Governor will take himself to other duties, leaving Vice-chairman Miles J. Smith to preside during the three day session.

No public hearings are scheduled, although time is allotted on the official program for Monday morning. Indications are that the full board actions will be wholly routine, with major part of the work handled by committees.

Among the committee meetings an off-the-record session Sunday afternoon of the Commerce and Industry group, of which Robert M. Hanes is chairman, may be most significant.

The C&I committee will discuss and recommend to specific recommendations a recent conference with industrial leaders on the business tax schedules levied and proposed by the State of North Carolina.

In most instances the comparison is favorable; in some cases adjustments seem advisable if this State is to attract additional industry. The semi-annual reports of division heads indicate the department has been very active.

The fact is the tourist business has become a major industry for North Carolina, and the State advertising budget is divided between industrial and tourist-travel advertising. More is spent for newspaper and magazine tourist-travel attractions, more for industry by direct mail and personal contact. In addition to publicity about the State directed to attract outsiders, a great deal of attention has been given to research and tabulation of residents and newcomers alike, and the department has operated a public information office for the purpose of "selling North Carolina to North Carolinians."

The division reports and observations on part of those not contacted that all activities are more closely co-ordinated and integrated than ever before, with appropriate emphasis on the two major objectives implied in the name—conservation of all resources—economic, human and natural—physical—as basis for further development along lines that will best serve the most people in North Carolina.

Many Businessmen Have Eye On Big Road Program

NEW YORK (AP)—Many businessmen have an eye on that 101 billion dollar that may be handed out over the next 10 years for roads.

The program would provide a good steady market for many products—cement, steel, earth moving machinery. And new road-building processes and products are being developed.

Improved highways will spur automobile sales. Steel mills will be busily turning out material for bridges, ramps, guard rails, signs, miles of steel fence and reinforcing materials.

More than 1 1/2 million tons of steel went into highway projects in 1954, when federal, state and local agencies spent about four billion dollars on roads. This year spending is expected to go up by almost one billion more, and steel consumption to approach two million tons.

If the big spending plan is adopted, the American Road Builders' Assn. estimates highway construction will soar to around 11 billion dollars in 1958, where it would stay until 1965. This would require about 5 1/4 million tons of steel yearly.

New wrinkles in the use of steel in highway construction are stressed by engineers of the Trussco Steel Division of Republic Steel.

Expansion cracks — Those tar-filled ridges over which your car click-clicks at high speed—can be eliminated by a process of continuous reinforcement, engineers say. This increases the quantity of steel bars used for reinforcement, but cuts down on the thickness of concrete needed.

King-sized corrugated tubes are also finding an increased market to seven times the strength of uncorrugated tubes, engineers say, and the big tubes don't crack under heavy loads as the old stone and concrete culverts sometimes do.

Doctor at the CROSSROADS

ELIZABETH SEIFERT

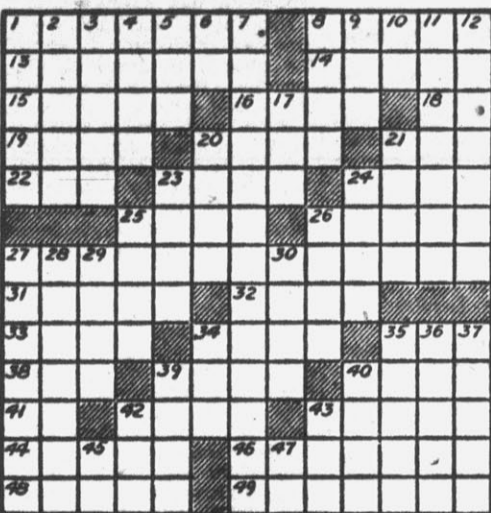

Dr. Fred Heier had come from St. Louis to the rural community of Jennings, Missouri, where he hoped to find peace in the quiet countryside. And he had found it and contentment, too, serving as the little town's only physician. He was happy in an old-fashioned house with Katie, his wife, an unpretentious young matron, who knew very well that many a woman cast a covetous eye upon her Fred. Women, for instance, like wealthy, glamorous Mrs. L. I. d. a Kyle, who had interested the doctor in her varied charity causes. Now, Linda's immediate concern is the Nienaber family, kindly German refugees who seemed lost and frightened in their new found land. So to humor Linda, Fred calls at the Nienaber home far out in the Valley, where he finds the wife and mother, Clara Nienaber, a victim of tuberculosis. Despite her bewildered and protesting husband's objections, the doctor manages to get the stricken woman to a sanitarium.

CHAPTER FIVE
Linda settled happily into the seat; she made a very good listener; it was one of her many charms.
"I don't see my profession," Fred told her "as a matter of caring for illnesses alone. I didn't come here to this Valley, you know to take care of Dolores Beckwith's bad tonsils, and the like. I came here because the community as a whole needed me. People as far apart as Arthur Bay and Catherine Peake . . ."
"Theo Kyle and Frau Nienaber," murmured Linda.
"Yes!" he said crisply. "That is why I came! That is why I stay. I like a place where I can be bossy and save people like the Nienabers from themselves. What is more, I mean to do those things!"
Linda laughed happily. "I've always known that you had German blood, Fred, but—"

"I am German," he said firmly. She looked at him. "Must you be grim about it?"
"I don't know. For years I was ashamed of it. It did no good. The fact persisted. I was still German. Teutonic."
"Sweet and gentle folk, good cooking, sentimental songs, fairy tales . . ."
"I hope I have those things. But in me there are the other Teutonic qualities, as well, Linda. For instance, I have, and very strongly, the Herr-novok complex. We Germanic folk, you know believe firmly that we, and we alone, were set on earth to rule, to guide, to direct less fortunate mortals. That conviction within me; when I have an opinion, it is right. All others are wrong. You know?"
She laughed, doubtfully. "But mostly you are right, Fred."
He smiled quizzically. "I'd be just as emphatic if I were wrong. And then it would seem that I was tyrannical. I know this trait in me, Linda."
"Yes, I suppose you do. I suppose that's what Mirandy meant when she said, 'Fred has the making of a domineering beast.'"
He leaned his head back and laughed aloud. It was a warm, hearty sound in the clear crisp air. Swiftly her gloved fingers touched his hand upon the wheel. "Oh, Fred, we do like you here in the Valley."
"I'm glad," he said warmly. "But Mirandy is quite right, for once. Though don't tell her. She makes so much of praise. You know?"
Linda nodded. "I know."
"As for that beast-business—time, a good mother and a stern one—and various other things have turned my tyrannical impulses to harmless, no, to beneficial things! So it is not all bad, eh?"
"You're safe in asking me for an opinion," she told him saucily. "But, Fred—aren't you saying that another sort of man, given your

ing. But still, you all watched me. And if I had not been an honest man you would have quickly detected the fact. I might still be here, but I'd certainly not enjoy the trust and respect which people have given me. So I am here, and happy to be here. And the Valley—not unhappy I think?"
She smiled at him. "Not too unhappy," she teased.
The car had come to a stop before her handsome home. "I could immediately produce people of good judgment, Linda, who would condemn my autocratic plans for the Nienabers. Those wise ones would say that our d.p.'s should not be allowed to breed, that one should make no plan to protect their puny child. That my very purpose in protecting it is suspect."
She pressed her hand against the door latch. "But you still plan to protect it, don't you? Thank you, Fred, for going out with me. I've ruined your morning."
He smiled and shook his head. "Only made me a little late for breakfast."
She looked swiftly at her watch. "And just a little early for lunch," she said contritely. "Katie will scold me."
"She knows me. It is my scalp she will have. Good by, Linda." His eyes followed her to the door.
Entering his old-fashioned house, he sighed with pleasure in this familiar sense of homecoming, of security.
Katie longed for a modern house, one with wide windows and lots of closet space and cleaned-lined furniture. What she would do with his mother's chair ties he could only guess. But one day Katie should have her smart, new house! That he promised himself!
"Fred, is that you down there?" Katie's voice floated down the stairs.
"No, it is the ice man," he said, walking toward the front of the hall to meet Katie, to lift her into his arms for a warm kiss.
"I want coffee. And food. Perhaps we could make it breakfast and lunch, no?"
His arm tightened about her shoulders. She laughed and shook her head. She was a slender girl, his Katie, nine years younger than Fred, and he loved her very dearly.

He sat at the kitchen table and watched her move about. Her light brown hair was smooth, her cotton dress, fitted her well and Katie had a knack of tying an apron about her slender waist, with the bow always crisp and perkily erect.
He drank the orange juice which she set before him. "That is very good!" he sighed.
"Are you tired so early Fred?" she asked gently.
He reached for the newspaper. "Has Miss Huzzel . . . ?"
"Yes, she has!" said Katie, pouring coffee into his big cup. "I told her I was only your wife and so would have no idea where you might be."
"And was she also disappointed?"
Katie giggled. "And how!"
"I must do something about the women in my life."
"You'd better. Have you been so busy, Fred?"
"Just busy enough. Slice it thick, Katie. You know I like my toast soft in the middle. Soggy, in fact."
He ate with evident satisfaction, then leaned back in his chair and patted his belt buckle. "If I didn't have to go to work, I would be a happy man," he said richly. "Good food, a home I love, a wife—" His eyes darted toward her.
She waited.
"Whom I love also," he concluded softly, and Katie's cheeks flared pink with pleasure. "Oh, Fred!" she breathed.
"There is no doubt," he said briskly "that I am a great lover."
He reached for the newspaper, his eyes scanning the headlines. He scarcely ever had time to do more.
She moved deftly about the big kitchen clearing the meal away.
"Do you like it here in the Valley, Fred?" she asked him.
He frowned as if he needed to repeat her question to himself. "Why have you been meaning to ask me that, Katie?"
"Well, you've been here for three years now. That's time enough to know if you like it."
"I see. No particular reason just now to ask me such a thing?"
"No, Fred. But I do wonder—"
He scanned her face for some hidden motive. But it was his Katie's face, open and sweetly calm. "I am a doctor, my Katie," he said slowly. "I am a man—the kind of man—who wants to be his own man. As a doctor, I want to live in a place where I can see my life-work spread itself out before me. The opportunities, the performance and the results. I want to plan that work, and carry out my plans, not pushed by competition, my motives not clouded by a striving for recognition of my ability. That is what I want in life. What I have always wanted of it." He stood up. "Yes," he said firmly. "I do like it here in the Valley and here, God willing I hope to stay."

Philanthropist Adds Another To Police Puzzles

CHICAGO — Chicago's phantom philanthropist has brought new puzzlement to police and the Secret Service.

Masco Stone 26-year-old carpenter, told police a stranger approached him yesterday while he repaired a front door transom on the West Side, and commented: "It must take a lot of money to keep these old buildings in shape."

"I guess so," Stone replied.

"Here, then," Stone quoted the stranger, who he said handed him five crisp new $20 bills and drove off in a car. Stone went to a policeman to report the windfall and have police check whether the money was counterfeit. Secret Service agents later said it was genuine.

Police kept the $100 given Stone for a further check.

Attorney Suing For $100,000

NEW YORK — Joseph Sax, a Boston attorney, is suing Barbara (Bobo) Rockefeller and her ex-husband Winthrop for $100,000 which he claims was due him for legal services during their stormy marital career.

Sax, in State Supreme Court yesterday, contended he negotiated a settlement of the Rockefellers' differences in November 1952, and had been promised up to $500,000.

Sax said that Bobo "had a justifiable cause for separation" from Rockefeller, whom he accused of "consorting adulterously with divers women other than his wife" and being "excessively addicted to intoxicating liquors."

Sax also hurled personal charges against Bobo. In November 1952, he said, the wife "with the intent to deprive me of my fee did intentionally render impossible the consummation of the agreed settlement by deliberate and malicious, insulting and scandalous conduct and vile language toward and in the presence of myself, Winthrop Rockefeller and his attorney, by physically assaulting me, her husband and the latter's attorney."

Mrs. Rockefeller said, "The personal charges against me are untrue," and added:

"At Mr. Sax's solicitation, I retained him upon his representation that he could effect a reconciliation with Winthrop Rockefeller in November of 1952, which he was unable to accomplish. He was dismissed upon his failure.

"A check was sent to him in the full amount previously agreed upon for his services. This check was returned without comment by Mr. Sax."

The amount of the check was not disclosed.

Bobo and Winthrop were divorced in Reno last August with Mrs. Rockefeller receiving a reported six-million-dollar settlement and custody of their son Winthrop Jr., now.

Colored News

Climaxing a series of panels on "Know Your School," the High School faculty of Robinson Union School brought to an appreciative audience information relative to what the school was doing toward: 1. Citizenship development; 2. Learning experiences; 3. Health safeguards; 4. Frustrated child; 5. Necessities involved in operating a school; 6. Sex education.

Finally the commission recommended that portions of Forest Hill, Elmhurst Extension, Englewood, Coghil numbers 1 and 2, and College Courts, which have not yet been zoned, be zoned as residential areas.

The commission recommended an amendment to the ordinance concerning the power of the Board of Zoning Adjustments in granting variances.

The 1954 law struck from the statutes most of the penalties for violations in narcotics traffic. These penalties had been used mainly to halt illegal drug traffic. The new law restores mandatory penalties for violating the tax sections.

Plan Dollar Day At Committee Meeting

Greenville's traditional Dollar Day was the first event planned by the Merchants Association's Trade Promotion Committee when it met yesterday to work out a program for the coming year.

Date for the event is yet to be announced.

In addition to mailing circulars, postcards, and advertising by radio and newspaper in the city and nearby towns all home telephone subscribers will be called on the Tuesday afternoon and all day Wednesday prior to Dollar Day. Every tenth person who answers, "Thursday is Dollar Day" will be given a prize donated by a local merchant.

Trade Promotion Committee chairman Daniel Saled pointed out that all the Association's promotions during the year are financed by a special fund made up of voluntary contributions from local merchants and business firms. He said no dues are placed in this fund.

The chairman said letters will be sent out soliciting donations for the fund, and the number and size of the promotions for the year will be determined by the amount received.

"Some firms may not see a direct return when Greenville has a trade promotion event," Saled declared, "but when people shop in the city it reflects in every type of business."

Present for yesterday's meeting in addition to the chairman were committee members J. L. Harris Jr., George Lataures, H. F. Steinbeck, Brooks Beddingfield, Jack Whitford, B. B. Drum, B. D. Johnston and R. W. Davenport.

Outstanding Student Teachers At East Carolina College Are Selected

James Ray Kirby of Warsaw and Patsy Pappendick of Elizabeth City, seniors at East Carolina College, have been named "Mr. and Miss Representative Student Teachers" of 1955 at the college.

With other students selected for similar honors in various teacher-training institutions in the state, they will attend the spring convention of the North Carolina Education Association in Asheville as honor guests and will be presented to delegates at a general assembly.

Alternates chosen to represent East Carolina are Mrs. Joyce McNeely Croom of Rocky Mount and Robert T. Sears of Norfolk, Va., seniors. Sears is specializing in art at East Carolina; and Mrs. Croom, in foreign languages.

Miss Pappendick and Mr. Kirby were chosen as this year's outstanding student teachers by a committee of students and faculty members headed by Dr. Hazel Taylor of the department of psychology. Bases of selection included superior scholarship, competency in teaching, and services to the college.

Sponsors of the project to name representative student teachers in colleges of the state are the North Carolina Education Association and the state department of the Future Teachers of America. Each year since the idea originated in 1949 teacher-training institutions in North Carolina have cooperated in naming their representatives.

Mr. Kirby, who is specializing in chemistry and mathematics at East Carolina, is a graduate of the high school at Pikeville. During the four years which he has spent at East Carolina, he has served as president of the Science Club and vice president of the Mathematics Club. Among organizations to which he belongs is Chi Beta Phi, national honorary science fraternity.

After his graduation from East Carolina next May, he will continue the study of physical chemistry in a graduate school. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Kirby of Warsaw.

Miss Pappendick, a graduate of the Elizabeth City High School, is majoring in primary education. She will complete her work at the college in February and has accepted a position for next fall as a first-grade teacher in Elizabeth City.

At the college she is now president of the Association for Childhood Education. During the past four years she has acted as president of the College Choir, secretary of the Legislature of the Student Government Association, and student dormitory counselor for freshman women. A talented singer, she has had leading roles in a number of campus music productions.

Both students have been chosen to represent East Carolina in the national yearbook "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges." Mr. Kirby in the 1954 volume and Miss Pappendick in this year's volume.

Church Census Crews To Meet Tuesday Night

More than 200 census workers who will participate in the city-wide religious census on January 30 will meet for supper at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church at 6:30 p.m. next Tuesday to receive detailed instructions and material for the census.

All census workers now being enlisted in the churches and the pastors of the churches will be guests of the Greenville Ministerial Association for the supper.

It is hoped by the Association that each church will reach its full quota of workers, and will see that they are present for this "preparation supper" at which time information will be given concerning the territory that will be assigned to the various churches and their workers.

The territory assignments will be made by the Census Committee, in cooperation with the pastors, and all census workers will work from one central base of operations, where cards will be returned.

The Memorial Baptist Church has been selected as this base of operations, and all census workers will meet there for their territory assignments January 30.

Each worker will be furnished a package containing a block sheet, which will define the exact territory to be covered by that worker, plus the necessary census cards, instructions and tally sheets.

Further details concerning the census plans will be forthcoming at a later date.
