Seventh Fleet Is 'At The Ready'

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Vice Adm. Alfred M. Pride, commander of the "standing at the ready" U.S. 7th Fleet, said today President Eisenhower was consulting Congress regarding the use of the fleet in the Tachens because "it would be a very grave move."

During a news conference aboard his flagship, the cruiser Helena, Pride was asked many questions about the beleaguered Nationalist-held Tachens.

In reply to the specific question: "Why do you think that President Eisenhower has to go to Congress to order the 7th Fleet to assist in the evacuation of the Tachens?" he commented:

"It would be a very grave move and a change in national policy and I suppose that in a democracy this is the proper thing to do."

The admiral said the fleet, if called upon, could cope with any eventuality.

The Chinese Nationalist air force reported heavy losses were inflicted on Communist troops Sunday night in a raid on Yikangshan, eight miles north of the Tachens, by four-engine bombers.

Yikangshan, eight miles north of the Tachens, fell to the Reds last week. It probably would be a springboard for any assault on the Tachens.

Another communique reported Communist artillery on Tachens Island "blindly fired" on the Tachens 13 miles away but all the shells "fell harmlessly into the sea."

Vice Adm. Alfred M. Pride, commander of the 7th Fleet, which has guarded Formosa since 1950, now is slated for the possible job of protecting certain strategic Nationalist-held islands off the Red China coast and possible evacuation of others such as the Tachens.

Both steps are contingent upon orders from President Eisenhower, who is expected to ask Congress today for approval of American help in redeveloping Nationalist forces now garrisoning islands stretching for 350 miles along the Communist coast.

Likeliest candidates for evacuation are the Tachens Islands 200 miles north of Formosa, where a protective outpost island, Yikangshan, was taken by the Reds last week. A high Nationalist official said here the Reds could invade the Tachens on two hours notice.

The Nationalists agreed, apparently with reluctance, to withdraw troops from the Tachens if President Eisenhower orders the fleet to help in the operation, according to sources informed of details of Pride's conferences here with Chiang, U. S. Ambassador K. R. Rankin, and Maj. Gen. William C. Chase, chief of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group here, joined in the talks.

Other islands which might be evacuated include the Yu Shan group 35 miles northeast of the Tachens, Pishan Island 32 miles to the southwest, and other small islands off the coasts of Chekiang and Fukien provinces.

The other side of the coin is a new American commitment—subject to Washington's approval—to help defend such strategic islands as Quemoy, near the Communist city of Amoy at the south end of the Nationalist screen of outpost islands, Matsu Island dominating the 140 miles northwest of Formosa and 23 miles off the Red coast.

Previously specific American protection has covered only Formosa and the nearby Pescadores.

It is assumed that the 7th Fleet would intervene if the Reds should try to take the Tachens before they go into action in a big way if the Communists should attack an evacuation after it begins.

Asserts Chinese Redeployment Impractical Without Military Aid

Eisenhower Asks Use Of Armed Forces

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today asked Congress for authority to use "the armed forces of the United States if necessary to assure the security of Formosa and the Pescadores" against Communist attack.

In a special message, the President said that redeployment of Chinese Nationalist forces from other islands "would be impractical without the assistance of the armed forces of the United States."

He said this is "because of the air situation."

He said the United States must be ready to help the Chinese Nationalists redeploy their forces.

"In the interest of peace, the United States must remove any doubt regarding our readiness to fight, if necessary, to preserve the vital status of the Free World in a free Formosa, and to engage in whatever operations may be required to carry out that purpose."

Eisenhower said the existing and developing situation around Formosa "poses a serious danger to the security of our country and of the entire Pacific area and indeed to the peace of the world."

The chief executive then said the situation "is one for appropriate action of the United Nations under its charter, for the purpose of ending present hostilities in that area."

The President said the United States "would welcome assumption of such jurisdiction" by the U. N. in an attempt to arrange a cease fire between the Chinese Nationalists and the attacking forces of Red China.

Declaring the actions the United States must be ready to undertake "are of various kinds," Eisenhower added:

"For example, we must be ready to assist the Republic of China to redeploy and consolidate its forces if it should so desire."

"Some of these forces are scattered throughout the smaller offshore islands as a result of historical rather than military reasons directly related to defending Formosa."

"Because of the air situation in the area, withdrawals for the purpose of redeployment of Chinese Nationalist forces would be impractical without assistance of the armed forces of the United States."

"Moreover, we must be alert to any concentration or employment of Chinese forces obviously undertaken to facilitate attack upon Formosa, and be prepared to take appropriate military action."

Congress apparently was set to act quickly on the President's request. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee called a meeting for 2:30 p. m. to hear Secretary of State Dulles and consider a resolution in line with the President's proposal.

The most immediate threat to the Chinese Reds is to the Tachens Islands about 200 miles north of Formosa, which are reported to be held by 20,000 Chinese Nationalist regulars.

Eisenhower's request would open the way for use of U. S. sea and air power to remove these troops from the islands.

If Red planes attacked the U. S. forces that could lead to an immediate clash of arms with the Communists.

Even before Eisenhower's message, Vice Adm. Alfred M. Pride, commander of the 7th Fleet, told a news conference in Taipei, Formosa, that the President would ask Congress for approval to use the fleet in the Tachens.

Pride called it "a very grave move" but said the fleet was at the ready and could cope with any eventuality.

Fride's force includes four larger carriers—the Essex, Yorktown, Kearsage and Wasp—together with supporting cruisers and destroyers.

The four carriers are 37,000-ton sister ships of what the Navy calls the Essex Class. Each can carry about 100 planes.

Fride's flag is above the heavy cruiser Helena, a 13,600-ton ship packing 8-inch guns.

A Taipei dispatch reported some civilians are already being moved from the Tachens to Formosa. It said about 315 children were in the first movement and were due to arrive at Formosa tomorrow.

There was no word whether the U. S. Navy had any part in this movement.

Eisenhower noted that the 7th Fleet was directed in 1950, when the Korean fighting broke out, to move to Formosa against any Communist attack.

He said the reasons for that move are still valid, and told the Congress:

"What we are now seeking is primarily to clarify present policy and to unite in its application. We are not establishing a new policy. Consequently, my recommendations do not call for an increase in the armed forces of the United States or any acceleration in military procurement or levels of defense emergency activities requiring any change. I will communicate with the Congress. I hope, however, that the effect of an appropriate congressional resolution will be to calm the situation rather than to create further conflict."

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

"The Lady of the Lamp." Nurse Florence Nightingale, a century ago cared for wounded soldiers of the Crimean War at Selimiye Barracks, in Uskudar (formerly Scutari), Turkey. The Barracks is now a place of pilgrimage for nurses, and bears the inscription, "This tower has become the cradle of modern nursing through the undying service of Florence Nightingale in 1854-56." In nearby Gaziantep, Miss Ethel Lovatt, R.N., of Lubec, Maine, is nurse-in-charge of training of national nurses under the Congregational Christian Churches. Visiting the ancient Barracks with Turkish nurses and students recently, Miss Lovatt said, "Nurses were we all that afternoon, Turkish nurses, British nurses, American nurses, proud to belong to a profession that is respected, honored and needed. We are 'modern' nurses because Florence Nightingale had vision and courage."

Korean Church World Service, with the aid of American church funds administered mostly by missionaries, is engaged in helping rehabilitate hundreds of refugee families. The principal help given for immediate needs is through widows' workshops, day nurseries enabling refugee women to go out to work, and loans for re-establishing small businesses. Proposed new work includes help with educational and social services in a new tented town at Suwon, buildings and farm implements for a refugee farm scheme at Sinchon (near Seoul).

Under the "Bantu (native) Education Act" in South Africa, government subsidies (for teachers' salaries and maintenance) is to be withdrawn, and the government expects to run missionary and private schools according to their own philosophy of white supremacy. According to Miss Lavinia Scott, of Evanston, Ill., principal of Inanda Seminary, a school established by the Congregational Church in 1889, that school will carry on without government aid by increasing fees and obtaining more support in American churches. Says Miss Scott, "The Nationalist government believes that the Africans are innately different and that their education therefore should prepare them only for a completely separate status in society. We believe that Africans are capable of taking their place eventually in an integrated society."

Fireball Crashes Into His Bedroom

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Whatever it was, William C. Cunningham, 52, will tell you it was mighty hot. He was standing in his bedroom in suburban Darby Township yesterday when he heard a crash of glass, turned and saw a fireball about the size of a grapefruit, bounce off an oil heater to the floor. Then it exploded.

His first thought was to throw the object out the window. He said: "It was hot and heavy and as I threw it it blazed up and seemed to disintegrate. Some of it landed on the bed and exploded again."

Cunningham's right hand was burned almost to the bone. Fire Marshal Francis X. Joseph of Delaware County said it might have been a meteorite. He tested it with a 1,700-degree flame from a propane torch but the object only glowed. He got no reaction with a magnet.

However, Dr. C. P. Oliver, emeritus professor of astronomy at the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. I. M. Levitt, director of Fels Planetarium, both expressed doubt that it was a meteorite.

Dr. Oliver said: "From everything that I have been told by the firemen and the fact that the object came through the window at an angle instead of through the roof, I believe it may have been a homemade bomb."

Dr. Levitt said most meteorites burned themselves out before they hit the ground and exploded when they were about 10 to 35 miles away from earth.

Dr. Messick Speaks To N. C. Fair Association

Dr. J. D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, spoke at the annual dinner meeting of the North Carolina Fairs Association Friday evening at the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh.

Dr. Messick, whose subject was Eastern North Carolina, spoke of its potentialities as a playground, a sportsman's paradise, an agriculturalist's panacea, with a history rich in heritage which dates back to the birth of Virginia Dare, the first white child on American shores. He enumerated a number of firsts, among which are twenty-three counties in eastern North Carolina which lead in the production of eleven principal agricultural products; they are Robeson, Johnston, Pitt, Nash, Sampson, Wilson, Wayne, Wake, Columbus, Duplin, Edgecombe, Harnett, Lenoir, Halifax, Greene, Franklin, Martin, Beaufort, Northampton, Bertie, Granville, Bladen and Craven.

He said eastern counties are also first in agricultural production and produce, as Pitt, which ranks first in tobacco; Robeson, in cotton; Johnston, corn; Camden and Pasquotank, potatoes; Northampton, peanuts; Beaufort, soy beans; Columbus, sweet potatoes and cucumbers; Duplin, strawberries, snap beans and peppers; New Hanover, mixed vegetables and beets; Craven, rutabagas and turnips; and Pamlico cabbage.

Dr. Messick remarked that Willson was the leading tobacco market in the world but that Pitt with its markets of Farmville and Greenville was the leading county in the world in the sale of tobacco. He concluded by bringing greetings from the 388 campus and 744 off-campus students enrolled in East Carolina College last year.

Actors Have To Act In Today's Film Business

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Samuel Goldwyn today offered a reason for the death of new movie stars: They have to act nowadays. Theater men, fan magazine editors and casting directors have loudly complained recently that the studios have developed few stars of major importance in the past few years. (Notable exceptions: Marilyn Monroe, Marlon Brando, Martin and Lewis.) Goldwyn, one of the sagacious minds in the film industry, says the reason is the change in audiences.

"You can't make a star by publicity nowadays," the veteran (40 years) producer remarked. "The days are gone when you could take a beautiful girl, give her a glamorous buildup and make her a star. Audiences are more mature now; they demand credibility from their stars."

"Actors have to be not only attractive. They have to act as well. The fault in the lack of enough new stars is not with the studios, which have agents everywhere looking for new talent. The trouble is that there is just so much talent to go around."

Although new stars haven't been turned out in the numbers that Hollywood used to produce, there have been several promising finds. Goldwyn observed. He cited Grace Kelly, Audrey Hepburn and Jean Simmons among the actresses. All three have that rare quality of beauty and acting ability.

At 70, Goldwyn shows no sign of slowing down. As we lunched in his private dining room, he enthused about his forthcoming project, "Guys and Dolls." The film will cost a whopping five million—one million went for the story rights alone. And all of it will come out of Goldwyn's pocket. For many years, he has financed his own pictures.

"I have faith in the future of the motion picture business," he remarked. "If you have a flop—and I've had my share; I'm not that much of a genius—you can lose your shirt. But if you have a success, you can make more money than ever before."

"Guys and Dolls" will star Marlon Brando, Frank Sinatra, Jean Simmons and Vivian Blaine.

A More Practical Plan Is Needed

Some practical arrangement should be made by the Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission so that runway lights at the local airport can be turned on at night in case of emergency.

Last week local police and fire departments received a radio request to have the local runway lights turned on. A plane was "buzzing" the air, apparently looking for a place to make an emergency landing. Before arrangements could be made to turn on the runway lights, the pilot apparently gave up hope of landing in Greenville and went elsewhere in search of a place to land. Maybe he got down safely. Maybe he did not.

A Snowy Winter Will Have Its Advantages

Snow, which has been a relatively rare sight in this section for several years, apparently is going to be more in evidence this year than for a number of winters.

Pitt County already has had its heaviest snowfall in seven years. It has had a couple of light snowfalls as well.

For all the hardships it brings, we need the snow in Pitt County this year. It is putting into the ground a great deal more moisture than has been the case in the past few winters, and the result should be the raising of the water table throughout this region.

More moisture and a higher water table will be a boon to farmers who have suffered considerable losses in the past two years because of unusually dry weather, not only during a portion of the growing season, but dry winters. The higher water table should also afford at least temporary relief to cities which have found their water supplies at dangerously low levels during the dry summer months.

While this winter's snows may cause us some inconveniences, they should afford us advantages which will outweigh the inconveniences.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
A GREAT CONVERSION

Just about a hundred years ago, Charles S. Spurgeon, prince of preachers, was born in England. To the end of his life he was to preach to the English people with an eloquence and power that has seldom been equalled and never surpassed. Twice every Sunday he spoke to a congregation numbering from five to six thousand, and he did this for more than thirty years.

He was converted when he was 15 years of age. On his way to a place of worship one Sunday morning, he was compelled by a snowstorm to turn into a little primitive Methodist Chapel in which about a dozen people were worshipping. A layman was in the pulpit expounding the text, "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth."

At one place in his sermon the preacher suddenly pointed his finger at the boy sitting under the gallery and said, "Young man, you look very miserable. And you always will be miserable—miserable in life and miserable in death—if you do not obey my text. But if you obey now, this moment you will be saved." Then he shouted at the top of his voice, "Young man, look to Jesus Christ!"

In that moment something happened to young Spurgeon. He describes it by saying that the cloud was gone, the darkness rolled away, and that the sun had risen. He was converted. The power of that experience never abated during the whole of his distinguished life.

Improved Relations Evident

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Secretary John Foster Dulles professes no great concern over current disturbances in Central America for the simple reason that they result from personal political rivalries rather than from the Communist intrigue that forced emergency American intervention in Guatemala a few months ago.

Dulles, and Under Secretary Herbert Hoover Jr., who has made Central and South America his special province under State's division of diplomatic work, regard the vast area from the Texas border to Antarctica as "fully dependable," provided the United States helps these countries to solve their basic economic problems—inflation, shrinking markets for their goods, falling prices for major commodities, financing of postwar industrial developments.

IMPROVED RELATIONS—Prospective settlement of the Nicaragua-Costa Rica clash reflects the improvement in relations between Washington and our Latin-American neighbors over conditions which prevailed not so many years ago. This uprising and other less publicized difficulties have been handled on a basis of comradeship rather than "Yankee imperialism."

In Calvin Coolidge's day, for instance, United States Marines were landed whenever any local guerrilla outbreak within the vicinity of the Panama Canal seemed to threaten American interests, private or public.

Even the explosion of firecrackers on a fete day, according to the natives, would provoke our intervention on behalf of U. S. fruit, oil, shipping firms. In the eyes of the victims, it was selfish "dollar diplomacy."

TO PROCLAIM PRESIDENT'S PROGRAM—As a result of Cordell Hull's "good neighbor" policy and "resident Eisenhower's" "partnership" idea, Latin-American countries themselves are policing their problems through the Organization of American States. When Washington sends troops, planes or warships to distressed areas, it is at their request.

At Dallas, Tex., next month, Milton Eisenhower will proclaim formally his brother's program for an expanded and co-operative continental development.

There is no person on duty at the airport at night to turn on the runway lights in case of emergency. The Airport Commission would not be justified in going to the expense of having someone on duty at the airport at all times just to handle rare emergencies. It appears to us that some arrangements could be made with the police or fire department to see that runway lights are turned on quickly in an emergency. There are men on duty in these departments at night, and they probably would be the first to be contacted if an airplane over this vicinity is in trouble.

Is it not the responsibility of the Airport Commission to make the best possible arrangements for emergency use of the local airport? The Commission should take steps immediately to set up a more practical plan than now exists for emergency use of the airport at night.

Could See Future Political Fireworks

The simmering feud between Gov. Hodges and Highway Chairman Sandy Graham might develop into one of the big stories in North Carolina politics, or it might blow over and be forgotten within a few months.

There can be little doubt that Chairman Graham and other members of the State Highway Commission have been smarting under the questioning by Gov. Hodges concerning the proposed bond issue for primary improvements, and the subsequent recommendation by the governor that the General Assembly not approve any such bond issue.

Depending upon the seriousness of the dispute between the Highway Chairman and the governor over the bond issue proposal, and the chances of reconciliation between the two, there could be a number of important developments in state politics.

Subsequent developments could mean that Graham may give up his influential post as Highway Chairman, and thus reveal an open break with Hodges. That would mean the appointment of a new highway chairman by Hodges. It would be a good guess that Graham, who is an influential man in North Carolina politics and has been for many years, may throw his support to a Hodges opponent in the 1956 gubernatorial campaign.

As we said at the outset, the present conflict between Hodges and Graham may be resolved in short order. If it is not, it could produce an interesting chain of side-light events for those who are interested in watching North Carolina politics.

DULUTH, MINN. PUBLICITY—"It has been from the Bible that America has learned that the humblest man is a priceless child of God and that every man's opinion in matters relating to the common welfare has in it the bugle call of sovereignty. In the midst of a world of disappearing freedoms, America is gloriously free."

On the other hand, Senator Currie and others feel that requiring the widows to ask for the pension is an unnecessary embarrassment to them. No widow has yet actually asked for the pension.

When and if the proposed law goes into effect, upon ratification, the monthly $250 checks will start going to all the widows of men who have been Governors. These include Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Mrs. J. C. Ehringhaus, Mrs. J. McNeill Brothman and Mrs. William B. Umstead.

The proposed law does not say the widows have to accept the checks. The ladies can return them to the State if they so desire.

LEE—The Legislature didn't let the 14th anniversary of the birth of General Lee go unnoticed on Jan. 19. In the House Rep. William W. Taylor of Warren made a short talk eulogizing Lee, praising him as an inspiration to all. On Taylor's motion, the House adjourned in honor of the Confederate leader. Over in the Senate, President Luther Barnhardt called attention to the anniversary.

Barnhardt also expressed the Senate's sympathy with Senator C. Settle Bunn of Nash, who was absent because of his mother's illness, and Senator Lunsford of Halifax whose six-year-old son was accidentally shot in the eye by a youngster playing with a BB rifle. Fortunately, the shot hit the boy's eyelid, and he will not lose the sight in that eye. An eight-year-old triggered the rifle, but the gun actually belonged to a four-year-old boy. Many of Crew's friends concerned over his child's condition, expressed amazement that any parent would permit a boy four years old to own an air-rifle.

SECRECY—The House voted over three to one to adopt the so-called secrecy rule for all its committees—providing for any committee to go into executive session, with reporters excused, but requiring the committees to open the doors when a vote is taken. The bill was approved by the rules committee, headed by Rep. Brantley Womble of Wake. Just a short time before the House convened.

A reporter for a morning paper set out to find how the committee members voted, and among those he listed favoring the rule in the committee was Rep. Russell A. Swindell of Hyde.

At the next House session, Swindell rose to the first point of personal privilege in this session of the Legislature. He read a prepared statement saying he did not vote for the rule in committee, and he asked that the speaker "be advised in the House record, Swindell said he had stated he would vote to repeal the 1953 statute and intended to do so when the repealer,

Failings Of Stores

The 10 things that men—at least a group of 108 New York, New Jersey and Connecticut men—don't like about stores has been ascertained by the New York University School of Retailing. A team of graduate students polled them and found these most frequent dislikes:

1. Failure of stores to permit them freedom to browse around.
2. Lack of attentive, helpful salespeople.
3. More personalized advice, regarding color, fit, etc.
4. But less unsolicited advice.
5. Lack of sincerity in salespersons' comments.
6. Too much high-pressure salesmanship.
7. Lack of reliability of some merchandising tactics, such as displaying goods not in stock and attempting to substitute.
8. Insufficient stocks and service for men difficult to fit.
9. Unsatisfactory shopping hours, such as infrequent night openings, and lack of sufficient salespersons during lunch hours.
10. General lack of coordination between sales and credit departments, lack of single charge plates for all stores, and lack of integration between selling and stock.

Not all those filling out questionnaires were critical of store management, however. As one respondent said, "Haven't any suggestions; I believe on the whole they are doing a good job of rendering service."

However, if stores check their own practices with the 10 common complaints given, they may be able to do an even better job.

CARPETING TO CARRY CLEANABILITY SEALS

A "Seal of Cleanability" is to be issued by the National Institute of Rug Cleaning.

Manufacturers of rugs and carpeting that pass tests made by a recent ruling of the Supreme Silver Spring, Md., will be allowed to place the seal on approved products. It will not be awarded when carpeting shrinks, fades or runs when cleaned, or becomes fuzzy or matted.

It will be some time before seals appear in retail showrooms. The NIRC has not yet made arrangements with manufacturers for tests, and testing and tagging after tests will take time.

CATALOGUE AGENCY HELD NOT TO BE A "STORE"

One more precaution to take in buying a business is indicated by a recent ruling of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts.

In most sales, the seller agrees not to establish a similar business in the same trading areas within a specified term.

When a man sold his interest in a furniture business, he agreed that he would not operate a furniture store in the region in which the business was active. Thereafter, he opened an office and sold furniture from catalogues, or took customers to wholesale houses in Boston.

The buyers sued. The court ruled against them, holding that selling from a catalogue was not operating a store.

It appears that, in buying a business, it would be wise to have the seller agree not to engage in any aspect of the business, either as a retailer, jobber, agent or employee.

AVOCADO CROP BIG; ADVERTISING STEPPED UP

Advertising is being called upon to move California's largest crop of avocados in eastern markets. The Calavo Growers' largest promotion campaign to sell a crop of 5,500,000 13-pound flats, valued at $25,000,000, in previous years, production has been unable to meet demand.

CAN COLLEGE FORECASTS BE TESTED?

If you project to 1970 the number of children already born, you will have a 16 per cent increase in the youth of college age by 1960, a 46 per cent increase by 1970. And if an increasing percentage of our youth of college age go on to college, enrollments could double by 1970.

The above is based on the assumption that we shall continue to make more educational opportunities available for our youth, as we always have. Educators claim that by 1970 a good third of our young people of college age may enroll. This would be more than double student bodies, and perhaps require double the number of teachers and much more classroom space.

Believe this is like forecasting 500 for the Industrial Stock Average. I question such figures.

THE TEACHER PROBLEM

The teacher shortage will not be limited to colleges. Our elementary and secondary schools may need about 140,000 new teachers each year for the foreseeable future. Yet it is estimated by the experts that only about half the number of teachers needed for the public schools alone will be graduated from college.

But, someone will have to teach your little Johnny and Susie. If adequately trained teachers are not available, persons with substandard qualifications will have to be pressed into service. Now, why is there a teacher shortage? The answer, in part, is that teachers are underpaid.

SALARIES COMPARED

Public-school classroom teachers' salaries averaged about $3,600 for 1953-54. This is less than many business and engineering college graduates, got as a starting salary on their first jobs a year or so ago. And 1963-64 was a good year for the teachers too, for it represented an average salary rise of 4.8 per cent over the previous year.

Still, 14.1 per cent of the 1,028,899 teachers received less than $2,500, and only 14 per cent received $4,500 or more. College teachers' salaries go very little higher. The median income of physicians, on the other hand, was about $11,200; lawyers, $7,750; dentists, $7,100; but with much higher top figures attainable. How can we hope to hold good men in top educational jobs which pay $5,000-$8,500 when their counterparts in industry offer ceilings unlimited?

TAXES SHOULD NOT BE RAISED

If we want capable teachers, we shall have to pay wages competitive enough to encourage them to make the tremendous outlay of time and expense needed for their education. To hold our able teachers, we shall have to up salaries. This means higher taxes.

I forecast that our democratic society with full employment, can prosper only as we provide adequate schooling for our youth, with a moderate tax rate. This means that our educational leaders must provide far more efficient methods of learning by doubling the use of present facilities. What industry could survive in this competitive era with its factories being used only six hours per day?

COMMITTEES—Because of the illness of Speaker Larry Moore, the full list of assignments to House Committees did not come out this week as expected. Moore, ill with a stomach ailment in the hospital at Wilson, did send in his appointments to committees, which went to work Thursday with their counterparts in the Senate.

The two joint committees will resume their meetings Tuesday afternoon, with insurance firms scheduled to appear before Finance with arguments against the proposed hike of one and one-half per cent in the gross premium tax on domestic insurance companies, which now pay one per cent. It's possible the insurance companies will ask for more time to prepare their case, since the proposed tax increase, estimated to raise an additional $1,170,000 annually, caught them by surprise.

The Volcanoes Again

Prospects Of Higher Education In Serious Difficulty

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — Do you hope you will be able to send your children to college sometime between now and 1964? If you expect them to get a sound education and you to get your money's worth, much must be done. Both teachers' salaries and their efficiency (which is now comparatively low) must be increased.

COLLEGE PROBLEM IS SERIOUS

Fifty years ago, only about 4 per cent of the youth of college age were able to go to college. Two great events on our national scene boosted enrollments sharply—the depression and the G. I. Bill. Prewar, about 15 per cent of our youth of college age attended such schools. Between 1945-49 a little better than 25 per cent were enrolled. Then, the number shrank during 1950-52. Chiefly responsible for this drop was the fewer number of births in the 1930-35 depression.

But, 1952 saw a 1.5 per cent increase in college enrollments over 1951; and 1953 rose 4.8 per cent over 1952, so that again about 25 per cent of our youth of eligible age were in college. 1954 fall enrollments probably registered a 6 per cent-8 per cent increase.

CAN COLLEGE FORECASTS BE TESTED?

If you project to 1970 the number of children already born, you will have a 16 per cent increase in the youth of college age by 1960, a 46 per cent increase by 1970. And if an increasing percentage of our youth of college age go on to college, enrollments could double by 1970.

Doctor at the CROSSROADS

ELIZABETH SEIFERT

SYNOPSIS
Dr. Fred Beller had come from St. Louis to the little town of Jennings, Missouri where he served as a general practitioner. He was happy in his work here, happy with Katie, his wife. But now, at the end of three years, Katie sensed danger to their marriage. Sensed it in the person of Linda Kyle, a gracious young matron whose genuine kindness to people in distress, had won her a place in the doctor's affections.

CHAPTER SEVEN
The spring night was getting cold, and Willie mended the fire on the hearth; everyone drew close to it.
"Linda should be here," said Fred. "She backs like a cat in front of a fire like this. Or didn't you ask her, Jessie?"
"Of course," said David Peake. "She phoned about four and said they couldn't make it. I didn't ask why, Fred."

He nodded, and hugged his knees. Her tone, and the knowing look in the eyes of the others, told that Theo Kyle was giving Linda trouble; she would not leave him when he was "in a state."

Katie only half understood the situation actually, but she knew that Linda's burden was a heavy one.
"Now, there," said Fred unexpectedly, "is a man who certainly has taken no advantage of his good woman!"
"Huh?" said David Peake. "What brought that on?"
Fred smiled. "Oh, I was thinking a while ago that we men were fools not to try to please our women more than we do."

"Hear, hear!" cried Jessie. "I'm all for that!"
"Watch it, Fred!" said Willie, in alarm.
"I'll watch it. But I do think, Willie, that we might also please ourselves in the process."

"Are you telling me that Theo Kyle will like it better if and when he stops doing bullets with pink elephants?"
"And will Linda like it?" drawled Mirandy. "My guess is, she wouldn't. He's drinking himself to death, and I'd say the quicker, the better—especially for Linda. And don't look shocked, Fred. I know she wouldn't admit a thing like that. It would take a psychia-trist's cough to get that out of her. But it's the truth, just the same. And she married him, expecting him to cough off while she was still fairly young. She's in love with another man—we all know that, too! So why be pious about it? Of course, the sooner the better!"

Fred was so displeased that he would not trust himself to protest. Though the others did—everyone liked Linda too, aren't you, doctor?"

"Well," cried Mirandy, "why did she marry a man twenty years older than she was? For his money, sure. And an expectation of out-living Theo by that same twenty years. So let's not argue about it. I don't blame her. I think she was a smart cookie."

"Mirandy," said Fred, "if I thought you were as hard as you sometimes sound . . ."
"Look, Doc, I'll tell you something. I'm thirty-five years old. I wouldn't admit that but as my doctor you know it. And in those thirty-five years, I've lived a hundred. By the time I die, I expect to make it a thousand. And every minute of it shows on me. So sure I'm hard. But it's been fun, too. The rest of that thousand is going to be more fun. Stick around and watch."

"We're stuck," drawled Elizabeth. "And we'll watch."

Hastily, and all at once, three people tried to change the subject. Ralph Terrell won out with a demand to know if Paul like living in the Valley.

He said he did and then told of some amusing errors he'd made about the mountain folk and their ways. "But you and your wife are tenderfoot too, aren't you, doctor?" he asked Fred.

"We've been out here for three years. I had never lived any place but in the city—and Katie, too."

"Why did you choose to come to a place like Jennings to practice?" Gentry looked swiftly about the group. "No offense meant. It's like wondering why some men marry the women they do."

Fred sat up straight. "Yes! And the union between a general practitioner and his community is very like a marriage. I hope ours will be a good one, marked by love and durability."

"And the usual family rows," drawled Mirandy.
"Of course! I did not know Katie until I had my first fight with her. And so—"
"I can imagine the way you fight with Katie," laughed one of the men.
"You should hear her on the subject of what I do to shirts," said Fred.
Katie smiled. "You should see what he does to a shirt!" she said softly.
"But, really," Paul persisted, "how did you happen to choose this little place? I've often wondered. You're a man of culture, and excellent training . . ."
Fred scrambled to his feet, and made a low bow, his heels clicking smartly.
"I'm waiting," drawled Gentry. "You couldn't stop me from telling you! Now, let me see. Get your legs out of the way Mirandy. I want to make gestures."

"You step on me, and I'll kick you."

Fred ignored her.
"I was a poor boy," he said thoughtfully. "It was difficult for me to get a medical education. But, in the big city where I lived, in the clinics of the big hospital, I could always find people worse off than I. And so I persisted."

"When I graduated I interned for a year in a general hospital. I went into the Army—like everyone else—and served until 1946. I went back for another year of work at that same hospital. And I then took a job as assistant to a famous surgeon. I could hope that, by being capable and docile for fifteen years or so, I would inherit this man's practice and might then begin to earn a good income."

"After only two months with him I discovered that I could not breathe in a situation where I could not express my own judgment or use my own capabilities. I also suspected that I would never be any good at the politics in which big city doctors must indulge in order to achieve success. In short, I had reached a point where I must decide what I wanted to do, and figure out how I would do it."

"Although unhappy, I was tempted to specialize. A specialist makes more money, and the hours are better, while for g.p.'s accidents and bachelors occur at all times. Besides a g.p. requires much more in the way of instruments and equipment, and he keeps on requiring it."

"Now! let us turn our attention to the little town of Jennings. 'Let me do this part,' begged Willie. 'Get out of the way, Mirandy!' He nudged her prone figure with no gentle foot."

Child Labor Law Terms Outlined By K. T. Futrell

Because "Employers and the general public seem to know very little or nothing about the child labor laws of North Carolina," Superintendent of Public Welfare K. T. Futrell has issued an explanation of these laws.
The main point, Futrell reveals, is that all children under 18 years of age who enter public employment in the state are required to hold a state labor certificate. This certificate is issued by the local Welfare Department when it has been evidenced to the department's satisfaction that the minor is old enough for public employment and has his parents' consent; that he is physically able to work; and that he is not to be employed in any occupation prohibited by law or defined as hazardous by the State Department of Labor.

This information is obtained by the Welfare Department on three forms which the prospective young employee must have filled out by his parents, physician and prospective employer. These forms are obtained at the Welfare office.
When these forms have been returned, and employment for the child approved by the Welfare department, the labor certificate is issued in triplicate, one being sent to the employer one to the State Department of Labor, and one kept in the local office.

The certificate is valid for only one job, and if the minor wishes to change his employment, he must apply for another certificate.

In addition to the requirement of a labor certificate for minors up to 18 years of age, the state's child labor regulations provide:
1. No minor under 16 years of age shall be employed in any gainful occupation at any time, except that minors between 14 and 16 years of age may be employed outside school hours and during school vacations.
2. Working hours and school hours for minors under 16 years of age may not exceed 40 hours in one week, and working hours for minors between the ages of 14 and 16 must be between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m.
3. Working hours for minors between the ages of 16 and 18 may not exceed 48 hours in one week, and they are permitted to work only between the hours of 7 a.m. and 9 p.m. No midnight work for minors up to 18 years of age is allowed at all.
4. No minor under 16 years of age is permitted to work in a factory and no minor under 18 years of age is permitted to be employed in occupations which are considered hazardous by the State Department of Labor.
5. No minor under 18 years of

According to State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane it is the duty of the Department of Labor to bring charges on all violators of these laws "if such violation is found to be willful and intentional." "Likewise, any citizen or official may also instigate court action in courts of competent jurisdiction. "The only direct responsibility of

Can Testify To Jackrabbit Tale

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—City office workers could testify first hand yesterday that what Mark Twain said about a jackrabbit was true. One of the speedy animals whizzed down Main Street through the heart of the business district yesterday at the height of the homeward bound rush hour, recalling Twain's description which was something like this:

"The sound of their coming can be heard long after they're gone." The frightened bunny streaked by automobiles forced to small space by heavy snow in the streets. At one point it whisked right under a traffic cop's three-wheeled motorcycle.

Retiring After 31 Years On Job

DETROIT (AP)—Raymond Middleton, 50 stepped down from his city garbage truck for the last time yesterday. He was retiring after 31 years on the job.

There was a tear in his eye. "It's hard to give up something you love," he said. "And this job I really loved. At first I hated it, but the longer I worked the more I grew to love it."

"I got to know my customers as well as the milkman," he added. "It's surprising how much you can find out about people by inspecting their garbage cans."

GREENVILLE HIGH GOES AFTER FOURTH WIN AGAINST SEXTON-COACHED OUTFIT

It's a clinch the Northeastern AA Conference can't have two representatives in the state tournament and the winner of tomorrow night's Greenville-Kinston scrap should have the inside track.

Coach Bo Farley's Phantoms have beaten Mentor Amos Sexton's companies only twice in the last six years in regular season play. They did take the Red Devils on another occasion but that was in tournament wars.

The two powerful assailants put unblemished conference marks on the line. Kinston has won 12 straight games, five of which were league affairs, for the distinction of being the only undefeated AA school in the state. Greenville has a 4-0 loop record and a 10-1 overall mark. Both teams are deadlocked for precedence in the Northeastern race.

Kinston was runner-up to Tri-City for the Tar Heel AA crown last season. Tri-City edged them in the championship game but were pushed all the way.

Greenville met the Red Devils twice last season. The Phantoms took the contest played in Greenville with the home court advantage, but the game in Kinston went with Sexton's command.

Sexton, an East Carolina graduate, is in his seventh year at Kinston and has built an enviable reputation with fine basketball teams. The astute young man, only 34 years old, has turned out either state champions, runner-ups or conference titlists almost every year. And this season he has another blue ribbon game.

His club is not centered around one individual although he has an outstanding player in Robert Whaley. The speedy forward was averaging 20 points until last Friday night's game against New Bern when he managed only seven points. "The contest was one-sided and Whaley didn't play much," commented Sexton. "He is a very good man under the boards and has a good shoot-eye. He's sort of patterned along the lines of LaSalle's Tom Cole, although much shorter and in a high school comparison. He is also the team's leading rebounder," Sexton pointed out.

The remainder of his starting five includes Poo Rochelle, an all-around athlete, at forward; Buddy Potter at center; Darwin Williams and Marshall Harper or John Carter at the guards.

"We like to run and so does Greenville. Contact of this sort usually sets off a big spark," Sexton offered. "We definitely consider Greenville the obstacle in retaining our Northeastern title. They have height and speed and are almost impossible to beat in their gym."

Asked who he would put on the Phantom's high scoring Hal Edwards, the genial Sexton replied: "Several, friend, several!"

SUGAR RAY SHOULD HAVE KNOWN BETTER

Ray Robinson, the former middleweight and welterweight champion was merely an empty shell of a once-great fighter against Ralph (Tiger) Jones in his comeback bout Wednesday night. Jones, an unranked boxer who had lost his previous five starts, took Sugar Ray apart with apparent ease.

It was tragic to watch what had once been a great fighting machine trying feebly to combat a younger but mediocre opponent. The man who once whipped all the best welterweights and middleweights around — like Frankie Zivic, Sammy Angott, Marty Servo, Henry Armstrong, Kid Gavilan, Bobo Olson, Jake LaMotta and Rocky Graziano — could do little against an ordinary fighter like Jones.

"When I decided to make a comeback," said Robinson after the fight Wednesday night, "I didn't think I would win every fight. It takes a champion to beat a champion and I was no longer a champion. And he will be beaten again if he cannot improve over his latest showing. It's just too bad that a fighter with his name and reputation had ever attempted it. Fans who remembered him when he really had it shuddered when they saw him trying again, so sadly lacking in every maneuver at which he was once among the best."

It is too bad Robinson didn't let the public remember him as the great fighter he once was. When he started his comeback, the idea was to meet Olsen who has happened the title of the event will be "King Mephem". Use the rest of your dancing shoes Ray, not your boxing shoes.

Real 'Dogfight' Raging In ACC Basketball Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State, last week's No. 3 college basketball team in the nation, is only No. 4 in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings.

Which gives you an idea of the dogfight-raging in the ACC. North Carolina, as yet unranked nationally, is leading the conference with a 7-1 record following last week's upset of North Carolina State. Maryland, which rated sixth in the country a week ago and has beaten both North Carolina and North Carolina State, is no better than second in the conference with an 8-2 record. Duke follows with 6-2 and then comes North Carolina State with 5-2. trailing Wake Forest (2-3), Virginia (3-5), South Carolina (1-9) and Clemson (0-8).

T's standings won't be disturbed this week as the mid-year exam shutdown hits the hardwood sport. All teams will be idle until Saturday when six play against non-conference opposition, four of them facing Southern Conference clubs.

Here's the Saturday schedule: Villanova at North Carolina State; Wake Forest at Richmond; Furman at Clemson; Maryland at Navy; Virginia at Virginia Military and Virginia Tech at South Carolina.

North Carolina is idle until it meets Duke at Chapel Hill on Feb. 4. D., beaten handsily by the Tar Heels in a Dixie Classic tournament game a month ago, could push Maryland into first place by upsetting North Carolina.

Clemson's Saturday schedule: Coach Everett Case of North Carolina State has a rugged assignment this week in Villanova which beat Seton Hall in overtime last Saturday. It was Villanova that dealt State its first of three losses this year by a resounding 91-78 score in Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 1.

Two nights ago State passed one of its sternest tests of the season in taking a 76-73 battle from LaSalle, No. 4 team in the nation, at Raleigh.

After a 38-all first half State rolled up a 13-point lead early in the second half, then had to ward off a late LaSalle challenge that almost turned the tide.

Case used a zone defense and pitted Phil DiNardo, junior forward from Philadelphia, against Tom Goia, LaSalle's All-America. Goia had what for him was an off night, 14 points, on 7 hits in 17 chances.

The slower play under the zone resulted in only nine personal fouls against State. LaSalle had a 32-28 edge in baskets, but the Wolf-Pack's 20-9 margin from the foul line was the difference.

Reflecting on the victory, Case said, "We may have made a mistake in slowing down play to protect our lead with seven minutes to play. But we wanted to win so badly that we took no chances. Maybe if we had kept going we could have rolled up a much bigger score. I understand that is the first loss for Ken Loeffler at LaSalle to a zone defense."

The conference is doing well statistically. It has the nation's No. 4 scoring team in Virginia, the No. 10 defensive unit in Maryland and three of the top five scorers. Buzz Wilkinson of Virginia is third in scoring with a 32.0 average. Bill Yarborough of Clemson is fourth with 29.7 and Dick Hemric of Wake Forest fifth with 28.2. Hemric needs only 294 more points, but at least 12 games to play, to set a career varsity scoring record for his four years. Frank Selvy of Furman holds the record of 2,538 points, but he needed only three years.

Clemson matches Yarborough against the No. 1 scorer of the nation and the No. 1 scoring team when it plays Furman Saturday. Darrell Floyd of Furman boosted his average to 37.5 with a season's high of 67 Saturday as Furman lost to Morehead of Kentucky, 130-117.

Still Looking For Way To Stop Big Appalachian Ace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North State Conference basketball coaches still were looking to-day for a way to stop big John Pylecha, Appalachian's 6-5 scoring ace. But the prospects seem dim.

Pylecha, who set a new North Carolina collegiate scoring record of 50 points two weeks ago, also set a new two-game total of 92 points the same week.

No one had been able to stop him until Catawba played Appalachian Saturday. For the first half Pylecha wasn't able to score a point and the Mountaineers trailed by 12 points. Then Pylecha opened up, scoring 33 points in the second half to lead Appalachian to an 81-62 victory. Pylecha, a center, dropped in seven field goals and 19 foul shots out of 24 attempts. The win put the Apps in a seventh place tie with Guilford.

Still on top of the North State Conference is Atlantic Christian with a perfect 7-0 record. The Bulldogs played only one game last week, edging surprising Belmont Abbey in a non-conference game, 93-92. The hero in ACC's 11th season victory was Ronnie Percise, who sank a foul shot with only four seconds remaining.

East Carolina, the defending champion, apparently counted out on the basis of ACC's red-hot showing, shoving back into the picture last week with two straight league victories, moving into second with a 7-2 record. ECC and ACC haven't met this season and will play their first game Feb. 3.

Fast rising Elon also kept its conference hopes with three loop victories last week. The Christians lost in their bid for second place, dropping an important 72-66 game to Lenoir Rhyne earlier in the week.

The standings, conference records first and season records second: ACC (7-0, 11-3), East Carolina (7-2, 9-3), Elon (6-2, 12-6), Lenoir Rhyne (5-2, 9-4), High Point (3-4, 8-8), Guilford 2-5, 2-7, Appalachian (2-5, 4-9), Western Carolina (1-7, 7-10), Catawba (1-7, 3-11).

The rest of the schedule: Tuesday—Lenoir Rhyne at Guilford.

Wednesday—High Point at Elon, Catawba at McCrory, King at Appalachian.

Friday—Western Carolina at East Carolina.

Saturday, Elon at Catawba, Western Carolina at Atlantic Christian, High Point at Lenoir Rhyne, Guilford at Appalachian.

Intentional Pass May Boomerang

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO (AP) — The intentional pass may boomerang with a hit or a balk this season under a new baseball rule whacking the catcher's box from 16 feet of roaming room to only 42 inches.

That change and a "stopwatch" mandate for a pitcher to deliver within 20 seconds when the sacks are empty are the foremost of some 49 revisions this year by baseball's official Playing Rules Committee.

The changes were disclosed today by Jim Gallagher, business manager of the Chicago Cubs, who serves as chairman of the nine-man committee.

The catcher's box will be reduced to a rectangular area, 42 inches wide directly behind home plate, which is 17 inches wide. The former triangular catcher's box flared back to a 16-foot width.

A wild pitcher might thereby lose one that a long-limbed hitter like Ted Williams could smash for a hit.

If the catcher gets outside his 42-inch box before the ball leaves the pitcher's hand, a balk will be called.

The rule prodding pitchers to hurl within 20 seconds with the bases unoccupied long has been on the books, but now both the American and National leagues are being asked to enforce it by use of a stopwatch by the third base umpire.

The penalty is calling of a "balk" by the umpire. The rule is directed against "senseless and unnecessary delays."

Babe Zaharias Tires But Wins In Tampa Open

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Babe Zaharias of Tampa tired badly at the end but held on to win the Tampa Open Golf Tournament and $1,000 top money yesterday.

Mrs. Zaharias, who posted a 298 for the 72 holes, edged Louise Suggs, the Cincinnati pro, by one stroke. Miss Suggs got 3700.

Tournament trophy, a silver service which is retired by any three-time winner, was also picked up by Mrs. Zaharias. She and Miss Suggs each had won the tournament twice in previous years.

The Babe started the day one stroke up on Miss Suggs and increased her margin to four strokes after 13 holes. Then she faltered and barely held on for a 77, the same score Miss Suggs had posted a few minutes earlier.

In third place was Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., with 303.

Lew amateur at 30 was Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., who barely waited till the tourney was over to announce she is turning pro.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (AP)—Fritz Peterabend of Switzerland and his brakeman, Harry Warburton, won the two-man world bobsled championship here yesterday.

Peterabend won for the third time with a total time of 5:33.28 for four heats.

Sixth among the field of 15, was the U.S. No. 1 team, driver, Dick Severino of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., and Airman Bill Williams of Rockingham, N.C. Their time was 5:36.90.

into the charges of the undefeated Kinston Red Devils in the Greenville gym tomorrow night in the Greenies' biggest and most important clash of the year.

The Green Phantoms and the Red Devils for years have been arch rivals, even when neither team was very strong. For the past few seasons however, the G-men and the Red Devils have been battling for the conference championship to add more fervor to their clashes. Last season the G-men downed the Devils in two of three meetings but Coach Amos Sexton's group still won the conference crown and the G-men had to be content with the tournament trophy. The rule last season was that the team that won the regular season championship would be called the conference champ regardless of the outcome of the tourney. The Devils and New Bern both beat the G-men while only Greenville beat Kinston in regular season activity. The G-men walloped Kinston by 19 points in the tourney but Kinston was still champ.

Tomorrow night the Green Phantoms have a chance to even matters a little bit. Although they downed their foe twice they still were not satisfied because Kinston was recognized as champ. This year Coach Bo Farley's crackjack squad is hoping to turn the tables.

Both teams have swept through their loop games with apparent ease. Kinston has not had any trouble with conference teams so far as they have rolled up some impressive victories. The G-men also have looked rather impressive. In four conference games the Green Phantoms have fired in points at an average of 83.5 points per game. They have limited their opposition to an average of 44 points per game.

Both teams have well rounded scoring in their line-ups with no outstanding individual star. Kinston has Bob Whaley, a 6-4 forward, Poo Rochelle, a sharp shooting junior forward, and husky Buddy Potter, a 6-3 center, to do most of the scoring. The floor play is led by all-tournament performer Darwin Williams. The other starter is either Marshall Harper or Tom Becton. Whaley holding the highest average. Kinston's big three. All are averaging over ten points per game with Whaley holding the highest average. He is the steadiest performer of the three. Both Rochelle and Potter run hot and cold.

The G-men plan to match the scoring of these three with a big three of their own. Harold Edwards is the big gun in the attack with an average of 17.1. Bob Howell is hitting the nets at 15.1 points per game, and Pat Sawyer has a 12.7 figure. The Greenies have other scoring potential rather than those three, however. Tommie Saied, the outside set shot ace, is averaging 9.7 points per game. Edgar Moore, the steady forward who has been sick, is averaging 7.3. Ike Riddick topped his figure to 4.1 with a brilliant performance against Jacksonville Friday night in his first starting role. Clark Noble, the 6-5 center, is averaging 4.3 points per game and gets a lot of rebounds when he is in there.

All indications point to a rough and rugged ball game tomorrow night with points-a-plenty for both teams. Comparing the two teams against mutual foes, it would appear the game would have to be called a toss-up.

The varsity game starts at eight o'clock with a junior varsity contest beginning at 6:30.

Up For Two More Points

Bucs Now Run Second To Atlantic Christian

By BRUCE PHILLIPS

Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina's Pirates, hitting on all cylinders, crushed Guilford College here Saturday night 103-79 to move up a notch to second place in the North State Conference.

The win was the Bucs' 10 in 13 starts and abled them to move ahead of Elon to place behind front-running Atlantic Christian.

The 100-plus total was also the first time this season Coach Howard Porter's command had reached the century mark.

A run-away was implied very early in the game with East Carolina players running up a 24-8 advantage in the first nine minutes. With seven minutes remaining in the half, the home club led 31-12 and victory was insured. The halftime reading was 46-37.

Harris Leader

Sophomore Don Harris again took the individual scoring honors for the winners with 24 points. He connected on seven field goals and 10 gift shots for his total. Most of his points came in the second half of play. The individual high for both teams was Bill Atkins of the Quakers. The remarkable shooting forward dumped 10 field goals and 10 free throws for 30 points.

East Carolina had five players to hit in the double figures. All the starters collected 10 or more. Walter Atkins hit 10, Carvel (Nick) Nichols had 13, Thomas and Freddie James bucketed 14 apiece.

Hemric Impressive

The Quakers' only other player of any consistent marksmanship was Don Hemric, fast little guard. He netted 14 points and gave a good account of himself on defense.

Coach Porter substituted freely in the one-sided affair and all the reserves scored except Marion Hales and Sal Cruz. Maurice Everette of Robersonville stood out as the best front-line man. He tallied eight points and looked good defensively. Waddell Solomon hit six points and poured in the 10th point with 50 seconds remaining.

Free throws missed: Roan 1, Atkins 6, Gordon 1, Teachey 2, Harris 2, Nichols 1, Bosquet 2, Atkins 3, Solomon 1, McArthur 1.

10th Point

With 10 minutes left in the game, Coach Porter pulled his first five and inserted all freshmen. Solomon moved the score to 97-72 on a field goal from outside. Everette connected on a two-hander for 99-75. Then Solomon took aim from about 20 feet out and dropped the sphere for 101-77. Solomon added two free throws for East Carolina's final margin.

The game was a simple case of one team being out-classed. Guilford's only vein of hope rested on the right arm of Atkins and he soon tired. Any resemblance to a ball game was thrown out the door in the opening minutes when the Pirates built up an overwhelming lead.

The Bucs next home game is with Western Carolina in Memorial Gymnasium this Friday night. This will also be a North State Conference tilt.

Indians Protest Project's Delay

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (U)—Some 2,000 Navajos will dramatize the battle for the upper Colorado River water storage project with sacred war dances last performed 87 years ago when the Indians signed their treaty of peace with the United States.

From the vast stretches of their 15-million-acre reservation, the Navajos came to this tribal seat for the performance, primarily aimed at attracting national attention to the plight of the tribe, largest in America.

The Upper Colorado River Commission and the Navajo Tribal Council scheduled a meeting before the dances.

"We are fighting for what rightfully ours," said Sam Akheah, Navajo council chairman. "Some elements are trying to stop the upper Colorado River project. That is not right. They are taking our water which is our life."

"We are determined that the American people know this. This project will make our land green."
