Speaker Gives Talk On Trip Abroad At Booklovers Meeting

ROBERSONVILLE—Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mrs. David Grimes Sr. entertained the members of the Book Lovers' Club and the following guests: Mrs. Effie Rogers, Mrs. Mamie Taylor and Miss Addie Meadow of Williamston; Mrs. Ralph Sadler of Whiteville; Mrs. Jimmy Langston of Camp Lejeune; Mrs. Clara Wallace, Mrs. Oscar Smith, Mrs. Thomas L. House and Miss Beth Grimes of Robersonville. The business session was shortened to give Mrs. Sadler ample time for the program. She made a very interesting talk on her recent trip abroad which she illustrated with colored slides. Mrs. James Langston operated the machine for her aunt. A sweet course was served in the large living room brightened with a beautiful vase of red carnations with a filler and an attractive hat arrangement of carnations and statice. The next meeting will be Tuesday afternoon, February 1, at the home of Mrs. N. C. Everett.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR January 25, 1955

Last Friday night was Ladies Night of the Greenville Kiwanis Club. The program was a mixture of seriousness and fun and ranged, as Victor Davis claimed, from the sublime to the ridiculous; the music being furnished by the local Kiwanis Club being sublime. Burt James was master of ceremonies. The banquet was served in the basement of the Methodist Church. Miss Mary Bertollet was the musical artist of the evening. The officers of the Kiwanis Club for the coming year are: Charles Laughinghouse, president; Lee Sadler, vice president.

Scandinavian Is Topic For Program At Aries Club Meet

Mrs. J. Howard Mays was hostess to the Aries Book Club at the home of Mrs. P. K. Anderson on Thursday evening, January 20th. The home was lovely with its arrangements of dried flowers, leaves, snapdragons and Dutch iris. Mrs. Anderson entertained the members with an account of the history, traditions and customs of Scandinavian countries. She had on display handwork, figures of royal porcelain, furniture and needlepoint from Denmark. Practically everything in the room was wrought from Scandinavia. "Dances use lots of fruits and flowers in their homes," said Mrs. Anderson. "Flowers are abundant and beautiful and many make their living as gardeners. A bouquet is always taken on a first visit to a home and taken or sent to any hostess. There is a Danish custom that flowers and a jewel be presented by the husband to his wife on the birth of a first son, which jewel the son passes on when his first son is born, and on down the line. "The first Viking king dates back to 900 A.D. and Vikings ruled England for 50 years. In 1360 all Denmark was united under one ruler. Denmark has the oldest flag still in use. Every family has a flag and proudly raises it on appropriate occasions. There are beautiful churches of unusual architecture. The Church of Our Lady displays life size statues of disciples in marble, which is worth a trip to Europe to see." Mrs. Anderson pointed out the lack of social classes. The servants attend the same night clubs, visit the same resorts, etc. The members were invited into the dining room for refreshments. Mrs. Stephen Bartlett and Mrs. Marshall Starkey assisted the hostess in serving individual pecan pies topped with cream and coffee. The centerpiece for the table was especially pretty with an arrangement of yellow snapdragons and Dutch iris in a crystal bowl holding three burning yellow tapers. Books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Insurance payments for damage in 1954 hurricanes Carol and Edna were about 138 million dollars, not including auto and marine losses.

Mrs. Langston Is Hostess At Coffee Hour

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. Jimmy Langston of Camp Lejeune was hostess at a coffee hour Wednesday afternoon from 3:30 to 4:30 at the spacious home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vance Roberson. This social event honored Mrs. Bobby Britton, a recent bride and Miss Mary Anne Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brayton Eugene Anderson, whose marriage to Mr. Gene Wayland Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Warren Taylor Sr., will be solemnized at the home February 12. For this occasion the house was decorated with white gladioli and mums. The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Langston and invited into the large living room. The dining table was very attractive, covered with an ecru grass linen cloth, a gift from the hostess to her mother when the former Miss Patsy Roberson returned two years ago from a six weeks trip abroad with classmates from Salem College. The table was centered by a lovely arrangement of white flowers flanked by candelabra holding lighted tapers. Mrs. Anderson, mother of the bride-elect poured the coffee while Mrs. Oscar Smith, Mrs. Britton's parent, served the chicken salad in patty shells. The guests helped themselves to open-faced sandwiches, cheese trays, cranfords, ribbon sandwiches, rolls, cookies, stuffed dates, salted nuts and mints. The honorees were presented with cream glabella corsages. Mrs. Britton wore an aqua brocade silk and Miss Anderson's dress of pink silk was designed with princess lines. Each received crystal in her chosen pattern.

Garden Club Plans To Take Part In Kinston Flower Show

GRIFTON—The Grifton Garden Club met for their January meeting at the home of Mrs. M. E. Hodges on McRae Street on Wednesday night. The co-hostess was Mrs. Clifton Jackson. For the evening Mrs. Hodges had arranged berries and croton leaves which she brought from a recent trip to Florida. The business session was conducted by Mrs. Thurman Williams. Plans were begun to take part in the coming flower show which will be a part of the Kinston Garden Club's spring undertaking. Mrs. Robert Mewborn reported that 100 dogwood trees, an award made at the annual N. C. Garden Club meeting in May for the "Beautification Award," which was a part of the past year's project headed by the retiring president, Mrs. Charlie Gardner, had been set out in various parts of the city. The hostesses served light refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown Hodges had as guests on Friday night members of their contract club. In the entrance hall an arrangement of pink gladioli against a mirror made a striking decorative note.

A delectable buffet supper was served from the dining room where the table was laid with a pale green cloth. Ivy combined with pink gladioli flowerets in silver compotes and tall green candles composed the table decorations. On the buffet was a five branched silver candelabra with green candles and ivy. During the games Mrs. W. I. Bissette and L. L. Meyborn were high scorers. Other players were Mrs. Meyborn, Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cobb and the host.

heart that "he might rule with justice. To this day the story of his wisdom in deciding a dispute between two women who claimed the same child is known to every man and woman. He said, "Divide the living child in two, and give half to one and half to the other", knowing that the true parents would prefer giving the baby up to having it killed. This year the club is studying characters of the Old Testament.

Loveland Gets Ready For Rush

LOVELAND, Colo. (U)—The Loveland post office is getting ready for its annual valentine rush—as busy as a Christmas season for postal workers here.

Already the post office has received more than 150 valentines for remailing with Loveland's valentine cachet, a cowboy cupid.

The cachet includes the message: "From romantic Loveland the kid with the dart sends valentine greetings to the young at heart."

Now It's The Senate's Turn

It is to be hoped that the North Carolina Senate will omit altogether any reference to secret committee sessions when it adopts its rules this week.

It will not be surprising if the Senate makes some sort of secrecy provision in its new rules.

There are strong indications from Raleigh however that the Senate—if it does adopt a secrecy rule—will adopt a rule which is much less sweeping than the rule adopted by the House.

The division between pro-secrecy ranks and anti-secrecy ranks in the Senate appear much closer than in the House. Perhaps that accounts in part for the delay of the Senate Rules subcommittee in making its report to the full committee. It is our guess that the pro-secrecy group, in an effort to have some reference to closed committee meetings in the Senate rules, is seeking to work out a compromise.

As we read between the lines of reports from Raleigh, it is our guess the Senate will follow one of two alternatives in the adoption of its rules:

1. It will adopt rules which make no reference to closed committee sessions.
2. It will adopt a "compromise" rule which will require the approval of the entire Rules Committee before any Senate committee or subcommittee can go into executive session.

The latter, while it would provide a method of secret committee sessions, would not be as far reaching as the House rule which leaves it to each individual committee to determine whether it will hold an executive session.

It is our hope that the members of the Senate who are dedicated to preserving in North Carolina the right of the people to full information about what goes on in their government prevails, and the Senate will adopt no rule which will permit committee meetings behind closed doors.

Comic Book Law Is Not The Final Answer

If North Carolina's General Assembly adopts a resolution sponsored by the Greenville Ministerial Association banning the sale of reprinted comic books, it will not be the whole answer to keeping away from children the unhealthy influences of sex, assault, mayhem and crime.

It may be a step in the right direction, but it will not be an answer in itself. If parents who support the resolution and the Ministerial Association which presented it do not recognize that fact, the adoption of the resolution by the General Assembly will, in itself, mean little.

There are indications that tastes in literature are moving toward a low ebb. The horror comics at which the resolution is pointed is one example. The millions of volumes of Spillane's stories and other sex and crime novels purchased annually by adults is another. There is a parallel between the two.

The individual adult responsibility to provide a wholesome influence over the reading habits of youngsters will not be consummated in the passage of a state law banning the sale of certain comic books.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
ANGELS

What does the Bible teach about angels? Well, it teaches first of all that there are angels. The Greek word "angelos" means messenger. Angels, therefore, are God's messengers. Jacob at Bethel saw angels ascending and descending a ladder. The Bible speaks of angels and archangels. If there were angels in ancient days, there must still be angels. If they had a ministry then, they have a ministry now.

Is it true that every person has a guardian angel? So the Bible seems to teach. For Jesus said of little children that their angels were always before the face of the Father who is in heaven. And if little children require guardian angels, what right have we to believe that when we grow up we have no need of them? The Bible seems unmistakably to teach that angels exist and carry on their beneficent ministry now as they always did.

Strange as it may sound to modern ears, the revealed Word of God assures us that everyone has his guardian angel. We know not how many calamities may have been prevented by his intervention. We only know that the universe round about us is full of living beings, that these living beings are God's messengers, and that one of these messengers is our divine and particular guardian.

Modern man thinks little about angels, but they exist none the less.

Bid For All-Powerful Position

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Representative Clarence Cannon, the Missouri Democrat known as "the meanest man on Capitol Hill," has launched a one-man attack on President Eisenhower's broad legislative program by recognizing the House Appropriations Committee to that he will control every penny of expenditures.

As chairman of this all-powerful group, Cannon will operate on the proven theory that he who controls the power of the Congressional purse can dictate or modify basic policy in both the domestic and foreign field. To achieve this purpose, he has ruthlessly and arbitrarily abolished certain traditional subcommittees, and set up new bodies on what his colleagues describe as a chaotic basis.

CANNON'S STRATEGY—Besides placing himself on two important subcommittees in addition to his chairmanship of the full committee, Cannon has named personal and political pals to key posts. He has disregarded seniority rights in order to advance freshman legislators sympathetic with his extreme New Deal views.

The revision of the organization has been so revolutionary, so contrary to past procedure, that endless delays in providing funds for the functioning of routine government agencies is predicted. It will make it almost impossible for House Appropriations Subcommittees to work in harmony with their Senate opposites, for the upper chamber has retained the historic system.

OPPOSITION TO EISENHOWER PROGRAM—An ardent advocate of TVA and similar public power agencies, Cannon has assumed charge of the Public Works Subcommittee, and vested in that body complete control of power projects over which it never before had jurisdiction. Moreover, he has packed it with nine liberal Democrats avowedly committed against Eisenhower's idea of "partnership development."

Cannon and his associates in the moneyman's seat aim to gird the nation with Federal power plants and transmission lines in accord with the F. D. R.-Truman-likes theories. But first he must kill Ike's proposed private enterprise program.

It is at once obvious to anyone who has followed the course of United States foreign policy that this country's leaders are again taking a "calculated risk" in the Formosa area.

Actually, the risk is incalculable; insofar as predicting a militant reaction by the Red Chinese regime. They are full of enthusiasm from the strong drink of past successes, and their confidence and rash words might easily precipitate rasher deeds.

For the present it is plain that the U. S. is committed to the defense of Formosa on the grounds of a pledge to an old ally as well as a conviction that Red possession of the island would be a threat to our security. So much is clear. But from that point on it becomes less so.

For instance, having apparently ruled out the Tachen Islands as vital to the successful defense of Formosa, we are now prepared to expose major Naval units to move Chiang Kai-Shek's troops to more defensible positions. If attacked while so doing, there would be an indignant demand to retaliate . . . and so to war?

More than that, the President has made it plain he wants Congress to declare "our readiness to fight" to keep Formosa out of Red hands and "to engage in whatever operations may be required to carry out this purpose."

We think it most proper that the President, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, put these contingencies before Congress as a measure of democratic principal and as a world-wide warning we will not sit still in the face of aggressive intent.

It is a situation wherein the administration could avoid the risk of war or deliberately take that risk, and leave the choice of war to others.

Somebody Told Me

Cousin Ernie Of Bent Fork

When it comes to televising I spend less time than the average in front of the set. But now and then I get interested in the performers and recently I wrote NBC for information about Tennessee Ernie Ford.

In my opinion Ernie has the best daytime show on the air. When it was scheduled I figured it would be all hillbilly. But if you tune in from 12:30 to 1:30 you'll see that Ernie is good at singing hillbilly, straight love songs, or even religious songs. His normal conversation still shows slight trace of the hillbilly accent, but it's a far cry from his in-character lingo.

Ernie was born and raised in Tennessee. He got his start in radio as an announcer at a Bristol station for $10.00 a week. He must have had help from home, because at the same time he took private singing lessons and later went on to study voice at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. From 1939 to 1941, Ernie announced for stations in Atlanta and Knoxville. When World War II came he enlisted in the Air Corps.

When discharged from the service in 1946, Ernie and his wife, Betty, headed West and it was as a disc jockey for KXLA, Pasadena, that he got his first break. Here he met Cliff Stone, a veteran of western music, who soon signed Ernie up as a regular on his Saturday night show.

Ernie has gone up fast from that first show. He signed for a TV show, night club dates, a Capitol recording contract, radio shows and was called on to make many guest appearances on television. One of his best known records is "Shotgun Boogie," a top seller and favorite of Queen Elizabeth. Ernie was the first western-type entertainer to play the London Palladium where his success has brought repeated offers for a return engagement.

Ernie has made guest appearances on The Red Skelton Show, Ed Sullivan's Show and has appeared as recently as last night on I Love Lucy. When the TONI Company decided to revive Kay Kyser's famous College of Musical Knowledge on NBC-TV last summer, Ernie was selected with no hesitation to be the star.

The Fords have two children, ages three and four, and live in a ranch style home in Whittier, California, just east of Los Angeles.

And I thank NBC for the scoop.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

GRIFTON'S PROGRESSIVE
SPIRIT IS REAL GAIN
(Kinston Free Press)

Every resident of Grifton and its friends in Lenoir, Pitt and other counties are currently wondering if that community can possibly capture for itself the straight time the first award of $1,000 for community betterment in the 1954 Finer Carolina Contest. The answer will be forthcoming from the Carolina Power and Light Company's corps of judges on or about February 1.

After a good review of the achievements of 1954, despite the interruptions caused by Hurricane Hazel last October, we are confident that Grifton has a good chance to finish at or near the top for the third straight year. The record is outstanding by any yardstick.

The town has grown to some 2,000 residents and it is still bursting at the seams. It has paved over 8,000 lineal feet of its street, improved its railroad station, beautified its school and parks and achieved many other worthwhile project goals during the past 12 months.

The athletic field has been lighted, with aid of the Lions Club, many public square dances and other projects. A new deep well has been dug. Spotlights have been installed and a community-wide safety program inaugurated. Street markers and house numbers were installed with many hours of donated labor by the citizens. The churches have expended physically and in spiritual growth during the past year. An expanded health program has been achieved and the business district has taken on an attractive new look as business and professional men have joined in the effort to improve the general appearance of the community.

But the greatest gain stems from the cooperative community spirit which has been developed in the town. There is more concern about getting the job done than in passing around credit for definite achievements, and that is as it should be. No resident of Grifton has failed to contribute something in the overall effort—even if it be only community pride and all can share in the achievement.

If the Finer Carolina Contest, now entering its fourth year, were called off today, the town of Grifton, like Mayville, Jacksonville, Pink Hill and many others across the Carolinas, would be perennially ahead. They have the spirit of building for the future, which outranks the importance of cash awards.

We confidently expect Grifton to win for 1954 on its exceptional record, but win lose or draw, it is a community where progress has come to stay.

A Re-Dedication Of The Press To Serving The People

By LYNN NISBET

DEDICATED — The keynote spirit of the North Carolina Press Association manifested at the mid-winter institute held at Chapel Hill and Duke was re-dedication to the principle that newspapers exist for service to the people.

There was caustic criticism of the General Assembly for its secrecy rules; open objection to the practice of numerous public boards and commissions holding official sessions behind closed doors, and other evidences of official disregard of the people's rights. Major emphasis, however, was upon the obligations of the press and other news media to serve more effectively as eyes and ears of the public.

This thought was paramount in Senator Sam Ervin's speech at the opening session, which he labeled "Liberty to Know." It was embodied in the address of Dr. Kenneth Goodson at the Duke dinner, when he charged the press to preserve and guard the dignity of its own profession, the heritage of the American way of life, and the opportunities afforded by a democratic society. He based these admonitions on Paul's charge to Timothy, "That good thing which was committed unto thee, keep."

The idea was formally and officially expressed in the "Statement of principle," adopted without dissenting vote at the final business session. This is a 400-word document setting out the obligations of the press as trustee for the right of the people to know, its duty to provide constructive leadership, and the importance of accuracy in reporting. These major principles are pretty well summed up in a few key sentences taken from the text of the Statement.

SUMMATION — "The right of the people to know cannot be denied or diminished without endangering democracy itself. . . . The good editor often takes sides, but without arrogance or intolerance. He champions boldly the rights of the people, sometimes against government itself. . . . To be true, a story together with its headlines must be honest. To be honest, it must be fair. To be fair, it must be accurate and complete."

It is further set out to the degree the newspapers fail to meet these requirements, to that extent they fall in the discharge of their stewardship.

VOLUNTARY — There is no authority or machinery for enforcing these rules of conduct and each newspaper must be its own judge as to the extent of adherence to the principles. The enthusiastic vote by which the statement was approved, and numerous off-side comments, indicate general purpose of North Carolina newspapers to be governed by its precepts.

The final text was the product of a small subcommittee of a group of fourteen authorized by the N.C. Press Association last January, at the instance of then President Weimar Jones. The full committee had a meeting at which general content was discussed and a subcommittee named to whip the suggestions into shape. Then another full-committee session went over that text and asked another subcommittee for further reduced the number of words. Result is that in the final 400 words came out of more than 1,000 in original suggestions by committee members.

It was voted to have copies of the Statement printed and distributed to all members of the N.C. Press Association for posting in news and editorial rooms and for frequent publication so that the public might better understand the function of a free press in a democratic society.

INFORMATIVE — Many of those attending the press institute considered the Friday morning panel discussions the most informative and constructive part of the program. Other features were entertaining and ideological, but the fellows on the Friday morning program got down to practical issues.

Col. Ed Scheidt, commissioner of motor vehicles, with the Sgt. Maj. Charles Speed, director of the safety division, and Sgt. Pike of Michigan, gave an instructive program on highway safety—including a "magic show" and sound movies channeled for grammar school levels.

Col. W.F. Bailey, director of State prisons, explained the dual objectives of the prison department—custody of criminals for the protection of the public alike. In the question-answer period that part of the program Col. Bailey got off a good wise-crack. "Someone" asked what he thought about separation of prison administration from highway administration. He quipped: "I've read some mighty good editorials about separation, but if you fellows would talk more about

Downtown Shopping

By ELMER ROESSNER
Downtown stores around the country are not surrendering to suburban shopping centers. Many have established branches. But managements of both those with branches and without are joining in the battle to maintain prosperous volumes of downtown sales.

Under the leadership of its new president, Philip M. Talbott, Washington merchant, the National Retail Dry Goods Association has invited real estate and other business associations to join the fight to keep downtown shopping flourishing. Mr. Talbott pointed out that real estate would appreciate unless it is David L. Yonick, New Jersey retailer, led a recent meeting of the Association that the retail movement to the suburbs should slow down in the near future. As suburban areas grow more crowded stores there will face the same problems as those downtown.

David L. Rike, veteran Dayton merchant, expressed even more optimistic views recently when he was given the annual Tobe Award as the "Retailer of the Year." "Downtown areas of the United States can experience their greatest period of growth in the next twenty-five years if business and civic leaders unite in a realistic program designed not only to facilitate private and public transportation but also to establish self-supporting off-street parking, he said.

The N.R.D.G.A. has been studying the problem of downtown shopping for many years and is now working on a master plan for improving the city phase of its studies has been into parking and traffic problems. It has assembled case histories showing how retailers in many cities have united for successful attacks on those difficulties.

Municipal or co-operative parking lots in fringe areas with bus transportation from lots to stores, condemnation of run-down property for municipal parking lots, increasing numbers of metered parking spaces, and roof-top parking are some of the frequently used to make downtown shopping more attractive. In some cities, campaigns to eliminate slums and to drive out honky-tonk businesses have been launched.

Downtown stores still have powerful advantages over suburban centers. A downtown store, together with its competitors, often offers shoppers much wider choices in colors, sizes and variety of goods. It shares the attraction of hotels, theaters, conventions etc. Sales to tourists and conventioners in New York, Washington, Chicago and many other cities make the difference between profit and loss in many stores.

And the "big store" still has a lot of glamor of its own. GIVES DEODORANT SO PARIS CAN SAVE PERFUME

An opportunist is J.A. Breton, president of Worrell Consolidated Laboratories, St. Louis. When press dispatches from Paris told of the failure to sweeten the air of subway stations with perfume—it seems that the old familiar subway smells just blanketed the $10 million Mr. Breton rushed a supply of air deodorant to Paris with his compliments.

"Perfume," he added, "is much more effective when used for other purposes." We have no idea of what he means.

WORKERS' PUNCTUALITY WILL WIN BONUSES

A New York specialty shop has signed a contract with a union under which employees will get a bonus for punctuality and perfect attendance. An employee who is always on time and doesn't miss a day's work for a year can get as much as $105.

The idea may have great possibilities for some companies and, of course, it can be put into effect without dickering with union.

TAXES STIMULATE BOOM IN CONVENTIONS

The recent wave of purchases of hotels singly and in chains has puzzled many observers. In most cities it is easier to get rooms than it was a few years ago. What makes hotels so desirable then?

For one thing, the rate of hotel building has been much less than the rate of population growth, so competition is limited. For another, rates have gone up. For a third, frequently used to make downtown shopping more attractive. In some cities, campaigns to eliminate slums and to drive out honky-tonk businesses have been launched.

And conventions are being boomed by the tax laws

The New Land Of Millionaires

By HAL BOYLE

CARACAS, Venezuela—Leaves from a cruising notebook: Venezuela today is the Texas of South America.

So much money is being made here that visiting Texans actually get an inferiority complex, and the U.S. dollar feels like 50 cents.

Just to be sure he wouldn't be mistaken for an ordinary bum, one new millionaire from the interior of the country came to town with calling cards that bore this message printed after his name: "Capital: six million bolivars." That's nearly two million dollars.

There is so much wealth flowing around that even tourists get a break. If you kick a diamond out of a rock here, the government lets you keep it tax free unless it's worth more than $1,700. You can also go pear diving and keep any pearls you find.

The visitor has a dazed sensation he is caught in a mid-Century Klondike gold rush. The atmosphere of quick money is everywhere and tales of riches made overnight are a bolivar a dozen.

Venezuela is bigger than Texas and Oklahoma combined and larger than any European country except Germany. Its chief income is from oil—no land except the United States produces more—but it also has iron ore deposits rivaling the famed Minnesota Mesabi range. It also has cowboys and Indians, 16,000-foot tall mountains, jungles, beach resorts, and the world's highest waterfalls.

Although the nation has a population of only 5 1/2 million, the government spent half a billion dollars in 1954 on still public works projects and still ended up with $1 million dollars left in the till. Its huge modernization program calls for the future expenditure of 800 million dollars alone for a new 2,640-mile railway network to open inland mineral and agricultural areas for further development.

Foreign investors from the United States and Europe are pouring untold more millions into the industrialization of the country. It has taken in more than 100,000 immigrants from Europe the last 10 years.

Caracas, the 388-year-old capital, is now one of the world's greatest boom cities. Fifty years ago milkmen herded cows through its ancient streets. Today they are jammed by thousands of new high-priced motor cars.

You reach the city from the nearby port along recently completed 11-mile highway that cost 71 million dollars, which Caracacenos proudly boast is, mile for mile, the most expensive ever built.

Nearly a million people live in the metropolitan area, and so many new buildings are going up construction workers have no time even to take Sundays off to go to the bull fight. Dominating the heart of the city is Centro Bolivar, Venezuela's "Rockefeller Center," which will cost 300 million dollars. Its twin 300-foot towers, housing government offices, have four traffic levels beneath them.

Doctor at the CROSSROADS

ELIZABETH SEIFERT

Dr. Fred Beier had come from St. Louis to the little town of Jennings, Missouri, where he served as a general practitioner. He was happy in his work here, happy with Katie, his wife. But, now, at the end of three years, Katie sensed danger to their marriage. Sensed it in the person of Linda Kyle, a gracious young matron whose genuine kindness to people in distress, had won her a place in the doctor's affections. The people of Jennings realized that young Beier was a good doctor, and he was grateful to them for their support.

CHAPTER EIGHT

Willie cleared his throat. "Keep it clean," admonished his wife. "Why?" asked Willie in such obvious innocence that everyone roared. "Now there's a question," said Mirandy. "Shut up, and let me talk, will you?" demanded Willie. "Let's see, now. Well—our doctor died during the war." "Right after," corrected Jessie. "It was before I came back." "Yes, but just before." "O.K. then. And anyway, this Valley was left with nothing but the drugstore to give first aid and tell us what to take for a cold. And what with winter snows, and a doctor—we knew we had to get in a doctor. We tried—but everyone that came to look us over would drive along the three blocks of Main street; he'd spy Mirandy, and he'd keep right on going." "I love you, too, darling," drawled Mirandy. He grinned at her. "That kept up," he went on with his narrative, "and things began getting serious for want of care. And we decided to do something about it. We talked to the nearest medical association, and they suggested ways to attract a doctor, so we got busy. "It meant money, and a fundraising committee was formed." "Headed by Willie," Fred put in. "Well, I was in the bank, and somebody had to do it. And by golly we did it. We raised 35,000 dollars!" Paul Gentry whistled. "How'd you do that?" "Oh—by outright donations—and various means. Auctioned off a fine horse, had box suppers, dances. Terrell donated the horse. Askw's company auctioned a year's supply of electricity. We raised our 35,000 dollars. And with the money we bought an old house and turned it into a hospital. The one we have now. Fourteen beds. We bought the equipment we could afford, got it cheap as war surplus. We hired two nurses—Miss Sur-

"But she did tell me I had to stay in town long enough to see that she walked straight. And I did. And she did. But it took a little time—she had a nasty compound fracture. So here I am, still around."

"De Maupassant did it much better," said Mirandy yawning. "Of course he did," agreed Fred. "He was a writer. I am a doctor. But his girl was left crippled, mine was not."

Fred heard Katie's sharp in-drawn breath and looked up in time to catch the glow of pride in her face and the light in her eyes. He smiled at her and would have spoken, but at just that minute the telephone rang, and everyone was still while Willie answered—so that they could listen. In this small, compact community, few secrets were possible. Or even desirable. With a few exceptions, good will marked the intimacy. Fred rose at once, and took the receiver from Willie's hand. "I'll come right along," the group heard him say.

"Something is wrong at Kyles'," he told them. "Katie . . . ?"

"We'll get Katie home," said Ralph Terrell. "Something happened, Doc?"

"I suppose Linda called you?" said Mirandy pointedly.

Willie glared at her. "It was their houseman!" he rasped. Confound Mirandy! Why did they tolerate this woman?

By this time Fred was out of the house, and they heard his station wagon roar down the drive. Katie stood at the window watching the red eye of its signal light flash upon the gate posts. In her mind, she followed him clear to Kyles'.

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese chemists have perfected a method of extracting grape sugar from lumber as a by-product in the manufacture of pulp.

The announcement is contained in a report of chemists attached to the Asahigawa Forestry Guidance Station on the northern island of Hokkaido. They say they now have a pilot plant in operation.

The grape sugar is not as sweet as ordinary sugar, but is in demand as a medicinal nutrient.

Cadillac

Only 35—But He Has Earned It!

Used to be you didn't see a young man at the wheel of a Cadillac very often.

Most of the proud and happy people driving Cadillacs showed at least a little gray at the temples.

But things are changing. In fact, it isn't at all unusual any more for a man in his thirties to move up to the "car of cars."

There are two basic reasons for this.

In the first place, success is coming earlier now to a great group of young men than in years gone by. Men are going into business and the professions with fine technical training which starts them off at levels they used to be years in attaining.

And, secondly, the news of Cadillac's remarkable economy is spreading far and wide.

Actually, once a man feels justified in making the initial investment, he is economically on sound ground when he selects a Cadillac.

First of all, he can keep it and drive it with pride for almost any period of years he may elect—for its endurance is beyond all practical measurement.

Upkeep is remarkably low—and few cars of any size or price will run further on a gallon of gasoline.

And even when it comes to the purchase price, there is much to be said for the "car of cars." There are twelve models of other makes which actually cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac.

Thus, it is small wonder that more and more people in a younger age bracket are making the move to Cadillac. It has become a logical and practical thing for them to do.

So, if you are ready for a Cadillac—remember that achievement—and not age—is the criterion.

In Just One Month Baby Changes A Lot

By DOOTHY V. WHIFFLE, M.D.
AP Newfeatures

Your baby has changed a lot in a month's time. He has gained weight, probably between one and two pounds. He is eating a little more regularly now. A few babies will be on a pretty regular schedule by a month of age, but lots of others can't hold on every time for four hours between feedings.

Don't be too rigid about your schedule, but at the same time make some effort to feed him at the same hour each day. Begin the day, if you can, at the same time each day, say 8 a.m. This way, the days fall more easily into a pattern.

When the next feeding time rolls around and your baby is still sound asleep, wake him up and feed him. You know he'll wake up soon anyway. If he wants to eat before feeding time, pick him up, rock him a bit and hold him over to nearer the scheduled time.

Do what you can gently to urge him into a schedule. Don't make him yell an hour just because he's hungry off schedule. On the other hand if he's been fussy and just gone off to sleep at what should be the next feeding, let him sleep.

By a month of age many babies will have given up the 2 a.m. feeding. Never wake a baby for this middle of the night feed. But as long as he wants to give it to him, when he grows up enough he'll want to sleep the night through just as much as you want him to. We don't teach this to a baby, he just grows up to it. And before he has grown up to it, it's much easier on everyone to give him the food.

The navel should be completely healed now. Sometimes the navel protrudes a little especially when the baby cries. This means the muscles of the abdomen haven't grown together as they should. The doctor will probably put an adhesive strap over the navel to help the muscles come together.

The month-old baby will still jump in his whole body at a sudden loud noise. But he will respond more to soft pleasant sounds. He may even stop crying as you talk to him.

Your baby's eyes are better coordinated now. Most of the time his eyes will move together, and he will follow a light with his eyes. His vision however, is still poor and indistinct. He may like to look at something bright.

He hasn't begun to play yet. His arms and legs fly around in a purposeless way.

The month-old baby has usually learned one thing he can do on purpose—and that is to smile.

Bureaucracy Is Very Evident In Naturalizations

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newfeatures Writer

Citizenship of the United States is a precious birthright for millions of lucky Americans. For other millions, it is a precious gift, sought anxiously and, once obtained, cherished.

This I know—and each day's headlines remind me anew of my good fortune to be an American. Helping somebody else to become a citizen can be a most difficult experience—unnecessarily so, it seems to me.

A foreign-born friend, seeking naturalization, asked me to be one of her two witnesses, an invitation I considered an honor and a duty. In fact, I felt extremely patriotic about the whole business.

As it turned out, it was a frustrating chore rather than a privilege and if my friend comes through the experience feeling more like a can of beans at the end of a production line than a free, independent citizen of the United States, I don't blame her one bit.

We were herded about like sheep in a stockyard. We lost our identity in favor of a number. The actual business of being examined, interrogated and interviewed (which was done skillfully, carefully and sympathetically) consumed something like 15 or 20 minutes. But for the rest of the long hours we squirmed on wooden benches in a large impersonal room while one stenographer processed the papers from three or more examinees as more and more men and women cooled their heels and watched the clock.

None of this would have been too annoying if there had not been plenty of clerical workers floating aimlessly about the office, smoking, stopping for gay conversations but never seeming to do much work. And all utterly ignoring, stopping for gay conversation. At first I occupied myself by thinking bitterly of myself as a taxpayer supporting this lackadaisical establishment. Then I debated how long a private business run in this casual way would stay in existence. After that I wondered how applicants for citizenship ever managed to find sponsoring witnesses who could leave their work for large portions of the day and still have jobs when they got back.

But finally I became most annoyed when I thought of the effect this impersonal, careless treatment must have on the men and women who want to become citizens of this country. Dampening, at best, I concluded, and cynicism-making as well.

I'm sure that it is difficult for people dealing with naturalization

Warned Against Upset Of Our Economic Applectart

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK AP

President Eisenhower foresees a steady gain in prosperity in the years ahead—if we don't upset the applectart by trying to shove it along too fast.

His economic report opens up a number of hot disputes in the business world:

1. Whether the business cycle has been, or can be, broken.

2. Whether pump priming by government doesn't do as much harm to business, in the long run, as it seems to do good at the start.

3. Whether attempts to curb speculation (as in the stock market) or easy-money exuberance (as in home building) are justified or workable.

The President's counsel of moderation will win lip service from many sides. But the American spirit in the past has usually been to go breakneck as long as you can.

American just naturally enjoy a boom—as much as they fear a bust. Inflation tends to be popular with the public at first—until it gets out of hand.

But a new spirit of caution has grown up since the big depression, and it is particularly noticeable in business management thinking.

Since the end of World War II they have been watching out for a postwar downturn in the business cycle, possibly a deep one. The proceedings not to become inured to the nervous, eager people who come to them. But I think that if they were reminded frequently of their responsibilities, those with whom they deal would come away from the experience better citizens and more aware of their blessings. Many recollections of a naturalization proceeding is just one of bureaucracy at its indifferent worst.

OVERDUE BOOKS

two that have shown up so far—in 1949 and again late in 1953—proved to be mild and short.

That has fostered a belief in some quarters that the old business cycle of boom-and-bust has been broken. They cite the built-in cushions: unemployment insurance, bank deposit insurance, tax credit carry-backs for corporate losses, ways of making money cheap and credit easy.

Pessimists think we can still build up to a postwar bust—that the old cycle is far from outdated, even if some of its valleys have been ironed out.

If the pessimists prove wrong this time, one of the biggest credits will go to the new spirit of levelheaded caution among many business managers. Most of them have kept from extending themselves so far, and if they did over to go breakneck as long as you can.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Commissioners of Pamlico County, Bayboro, North Carolina, in the Court Room, Pamlico County Court House, Bayboro, North Carolina, until 2:00 o'clock p.m., EST, February 11, 1955 and immediately thereafter publicly opened and read for the furnishing of labor, materials, and equipment entering into the construction of the Pamlico County Health Center, including walks, equipment and appurtenances thereto. Bids received after the hour named will not be considered.

Separate bids will be received for General Contract, Electrical, Plumbing and Heating.

Complete plans, specifications and contract documents will be open for inspection in the County Health Department, Bayboro, North Carolina, A.G.C. Offices, Dodge Plan Rooms, and in the office of Wm. Moore Weber, A.I.A., Architect, 1818 Hillsboro Street, Raleigh, North Carolina. Prime Contractors (General Plumbing, Heating and Electrical) may obtain plans, specifications, and other contract documents upon deposit of $35.00 in cash or check. The full deposit will be returned to those submitting a bona fide proposal, provided plans and specifications are returned to the Architect in good condition, within five days after the date set for receiving bids. Sub-contractors and material dealers may purchase plans and specifications from the Architect for $20.00 a set. Prime contractors may obtain additional plans and specifications for $20.00 a set, prior to bid opening. All contractors are hereby notified that they must have proper license under the State Laws governing their respective trades.

Each proposal shall be accompanied by Bid guarantee of 5% of the bid. Bid guarantees may be in cash or certified check drawn on and certified by some bank or trust company insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. In lieu of making the cash deposit as above provided, such bidder may file a bid bond executed by a corporate surety licensed under the laws of North Carolina to execute such bond, conditioned that the surety will upon demand forthwith make payment to the obligee upon said bond if the bidder fails to execute the contract in accordance with the bid bond and upon failure to forthwith make payment the surety shall pay to the obligee an amount equal to double the amount of said bid bond. This deposit shall be retained if the successful bidder fails to execute the contract within ten days after the award or fails to give satisfactory surety as required herein.

Performance bond will be required in amount of one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price.

Payment bond will be required in amount of fifty percent (50%) of the contract price.

Payment will be made on the basis of ninety percent (90%) of monthly estimates and final payment made upon completion and acceptance of the work.

No bid may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids for a period of thirty days.

The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive informality.

Fabulous Tales Of Winston Churchill Told By A Guard

By W.G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—You've never seen a better picture of Sir Winston Churchill than the one just drawn by a visiting English couple.

Roly-poly statesman, a huffer, puff and snuffer, weeping and then chuckling in private as he composes a speech, stomping through a manorial hall without his teeth, working his aides and secretaries to a frazzle, hating whistling, hating cigarettes, hanging onto the end of a cross-cut saw, blasting at a bodyguard and being blasted back, loyal to his staff and inspiring in them a loyalty which never slackens one iota.

It's the bodyguard who in a book, "Assignment: Churchill" (Farrar, Straus & Young) provides most of this sharp, intimate and vastly revealing picture. He is Walter Henry Thompson, Scotland Yard inspector who has served at Churchill's elbow for 20 of the last 30 years.

But it's one of the secretaries, Thompson's wife, with Sir Winston for several years as World War II was developing, who in the course of an interview adds some colorful details. They have been here while the inspector made a coast-to-coast lecture tour.

It was in this country, too, according to Thompson, a spare, inspector-like looking fellow with a stern glance but a pleasant manner, that Sir Winston had his narrowest escape from an assassination attempt. It was in Chicago, in 1931. As Secretary for Colonies, he had aroused implacable Indian ire when it was an Indian whom Thompson intercepted after a Churchill lecture. Thompson spotted him, drew his gun and captured him. He says the man had an accomplice, that he was dangerously near, and that he meant business.

Now retired, in his mid-sixties but looking a smart 45, Thompson has seen the Prime Minister through some tight spots. He has slugged it out with a mob yelling for Churchill blood in Egypt. He has slugged it out with friendly but no less threatening demonstrators at London elections. He has been riding with the Prime Minister when a buzz-bomb nearly turned their speeding car topsyturvy in wartime Britain's capital.

Churchill thrives on risk Thompson says—he calls him Winston, Winnie, Father or Old Man. The wartime leader and author sleeps with a pistol handy, and is a good shot. But after one close shave he reminded Thompson:

"There is someone besides you looking after me. I have a mission to perform."

There was a lighter side, though, and Mrs. Thompson suggested: "Tell about his strip-tease."

It seems Sir Winston always napped at five in the afternoon. Thompson explained: "He would walk along one side of his bedroom around the bed, then get in. In the course of the walk he undressed, dropping his clothes wherever he took them off. By the time I'd walked after him picking them up, and drawn the curtain, he was sound asleep."

Then there was the day he cut down a tree at Chartwell: "He hated to lose a tree, and he was sad. The gardener brought us a cross-cut saw. Winston got on one end and I on the other. He has no more idea how to use a cross-cut saw. Fast, he'd go, too fast. So very soon he told the gardener to take his end. The gardener was fresh, and before long I was tired. I looked at Winston, leaning against another tree, watching us, smoking a cigar, so satisfied, and I thought, well

"Here, you take it," I said to him.

"He waved me a no. Puffing on that cigar, he said, 'You keep right on, Thompson, you're doing fine.'"

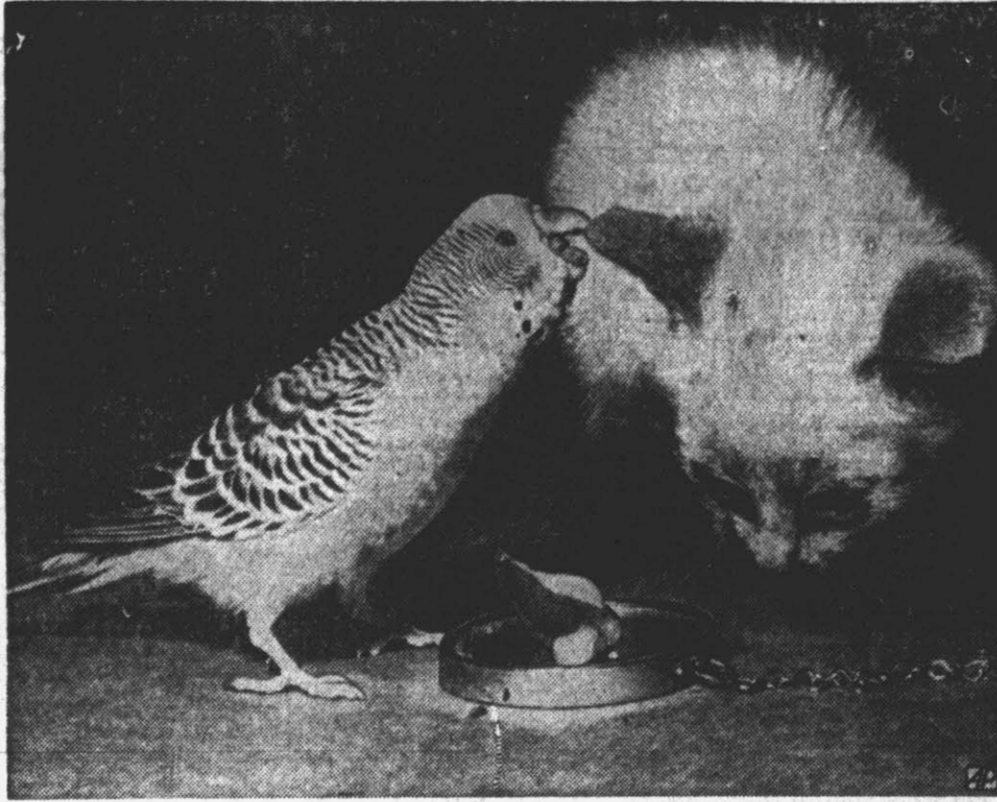

Mrs. Thompson remembered how economical he was with words.

He'd interrupt his dictation and cry, "Gimme" which meant 'she had to tear the sheet out of the typewriter and show it to him. Or he'd stick out his hand and "Klop" She had to ask him what that meant: it was his word for punch.

Scientists have found evidence that the January thaw regularly predicted in old time almanacs is a reality that takes place in most years, says the National Geographic Society.

Advertising Had Ultimate Reward

LIBERTY, Ky. (AP)—Mrs. Lottie Combest lost her lawnmower and a fireplace grate. She put an ad in the Casey County News describing the loss and got no response. She decided to try the ad columns again however, to sell a pile of lumber behind her house. When the lumber had been removed, the lawnmower and grate were found — at the bottom of the pile.

SO THIS IS WINTER! HILLSBORO, N. H. (AP)—Local residents don't need a calendar to know it is winter. From the time Frank D. Gay, 89, was a boy of 15 he has worn rubber boots through the cold months. He has them on today.

TRAFFIC TEAM STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)—Two state policemen investigated an automobile accident on the Merritt Parkway. One was Austin Ford; the other, Arthur Benz.

Bottle Floated Over To England

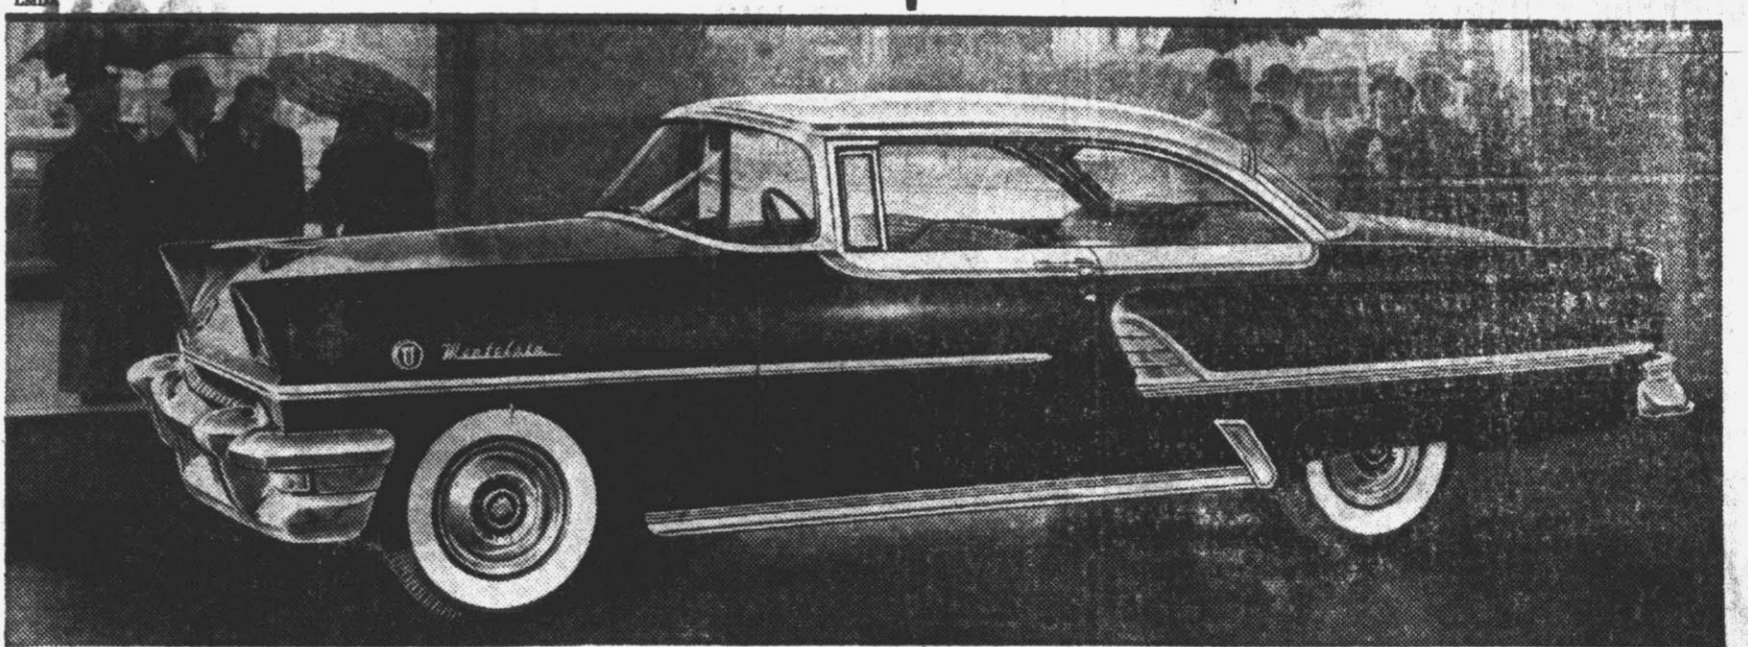

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP)—On Aug. 2, 1953, Donald G. Kaylor dropped a bottle containing a note off the coast of Palm Beach, Fla.

The Hagerstown school teacher has the note back. He said it was returned to him four months later by a school girl from Lands End, England, Grace Strongman. Kaylor figures his bottle, set afloat as an

Listen! They're talking about the new 1955 Mercury—

1. "Sure is big this year. And what a beautiful color."
2. "That new Montclair is certainly low and racy looking."
3. "I hear it's only 58 1/2 inches high."
4. "198 horsepower! And dual exhausts!"
5. "Look at those hooded head lamps."
6. "I've never seen a better-looking wrap-around windshield."
7. "Lots more models this year. And 3 series."
8. "188 horsepower even in the lowest-cost Custom."
9. "Let's go in and get a closer look."

Here's the most talked-about Mercury in history. And with good reason. It's the most advanced car ever offered at anywhere near the price.

The 1955 Mercury is totally new in styling, size, and power. Longer, lower, bigger. Roomier inside. And with up to 198 horsepower under the hood.

You have your choice of 10 models in 3 series including the entirely new Mercury Montclair

All 1955 Mercurys are powered by new super-compression SUPER-TORQUE V-8 engines—198 horsepower in the Montclair; 188 horsepower in the Monterey and Custom. And both the Montclair and Monterey have dual-exhaust systems—the only cars in their price class that offer this super power and economy feature at no extra cost. All models have new Full-Scope windshields and the latest in ball-joint suspension.

We invite you to stop in and see the 1955 Mercurys firsthand. And be sure to go for a road test. We want you to feel Mercury's new super pickup at every speed—particularly in the normal ranges where you do most of your driving.

It's the biggest performance news in 1955. Just try a new Mercury. You'll be talking too.

THE ROUTE OF THE THRU-LINERS

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARRETT, Staff Editor

What's the matter with most plans for new houses? Follow people around as they inspect a builder's house and listen to their comments. Talk to others who have lived in similar houses long enough for the first thrill to wear off. You'll find out:

1. The rooms are too small.
2. The plan has no relation to the way the family wants to live.
"I think the public is very confused about what they want in a house and what they like," observed a member of a recent round table conference staged by House and Home, trade magazines for the building industry. "They want you'd almost imagine they'd been living in trees. One of our biggest jobs is to help them know what to look for."

It may be hard for you to believe that, especially if you can't find a house with a kitchen big enough to prepare a family reunion dinner, or with a living room big enough to seat more than five or six persons.

"Space is the biggest luxury," an eminent architect told that conference. He added that contemporary design—open planning, with partitions reserved mainly for the privacy of sleeping quarters—is the most efficient and economical way to provide space.

"Women don't realize," a big builder responded, "how much easier and pleasanter it is to get the meals in an open kitchen and how much nicer it is not to be shut away from the family in a closed kitchen."

Maybe you'll agree. If the builder provides a kitchen powerful enough to keep the fumes of boiling turkeys from settling on the piano.

"The kitchen has to be opened up and be an intelligent and attractive part of the house," the architect said. "We have not only gotten away from having maids, we've gotten to the point where we've stopped pretending we've got a maid."

Other pleasantries culled from the House & Home report of that conference tie in very significantly with problems we all encounter in trying to find a house plan that fits our family living needs. For instance:

"When TV first came out, many designers asked: 'Should we have a room for TV? That hasn't been settled, but we have definitely concluded we need a room to get away from TV.'"

The speaker, John Highland of the American Institute of Architects, thereupon decided that "Any home that doesn't have a family room as well as a living room is incomplete and thereby obsolete."

"...a family room," he explained, "should have a slate floor or a vinyl or tile floor, or something like that, so if the youngsters drop anything on it, it won't stain, and when we are entertaining, the floor should be Martini-proof so we don't have to run around behind the guests with little coasters all the time."

You may wonder what is to become of the living room or "company room," as it seems to be.

Not many years ago, it was predicted that the dining room was on its way out—that it cost too much to build for the amount of time it was used. The dining rooms staged a comeback.

If the living room now goes the way of great-grandmother's front parlor, Mrs. S. will just revive the old-fashioned "sitting room" with some comfortable rockers.

It all depends on how you want to live.

Man-Made Thaws Try To Melt Old Prejudice

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
CHICAGO (AP)—They're using man-made "January thaws" in Oak Park in a move to melt prejudice.

A series of eight gatherings—called "thaws"—is being held this month in homes in the suburb known as the nation's largest village.

During the weekend a newsman attended one of the parties. Two dozen men and women—15 Protestants, 5 Jews, 4 Catholics—sat in an oval of chairs in the spacious living room of a physician's house.

"Oak Park once was almost 100 per cent Protestant," a Jewish engineer said. "Now it's about 55 per cent Protestant, 40 per cent Catholic and 5 per cent Jewish. Change creates problems we want to discuss."

A Protestant said he knew of some bias against two Catholics who had sought minor political three weeks by members of the Sheriff's office when he was first reported missing by his family.

Mrs. Hardy said her husband was in poor health and had not been able to do any work before his disappearance. She also said that he had frequently shown a tendency to "wander off" and sometimes "could not find his way home."

The dead man, Coroner Rouse said, is believed to have wandered into the woods and was unable to find his way back home.

Comedown For A Multimillionaire

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Oilmen are laughing about one of their number who spent a pretty penny on a present for his wife.

"It's not true that my wife married a millionaire she made me one," said the oilman with a trace of bitterness.

"That so?" said a surprised friend. "What were you before your marriage?"
"A multimillionaire!"

Four Potential Rhee Successors

By MURRAY FROMSON

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—News that 79-year-old President Syngman Rhee had an operation has South Korea pondering the fateful question: Who will succeed him?

Rhee is reported getting along fine. His general health is said to be good. But the surgery served to remind the nation that this pioneer fighter for Korean independence is not indestructible.

Four men stand out in South Korea's brief, chaotic history as the most likely to emerge as the new leader:

P. H. Shinicky, leader of the anti-Rhee Democratic Nationalist party; Lee Bum Suk, South Korea's first prime minister, a former strong man; John M. Chang former ambassador to the United States, once prime minister, a leading Catholic layman; Cho Bong Am, former agriculture minister who polled 700,000 votes in the 1952 campaign against Rhee.

Shinicky and Lee are often considered the two strongest candidates. Both are seasoned politicians and have followings.

Shinicky, an extreme conservative, has been the leader of the anti-Rhee forces in the National Assembly. Lee is considered "Fascist" by many Koreans. Lee once appeared to be Rhee's choice as his apparent, but they split and Lee was kicked out of Rhee's Liberal party in 1953. It is reported Lee still commands a large following among army officers and military officials.

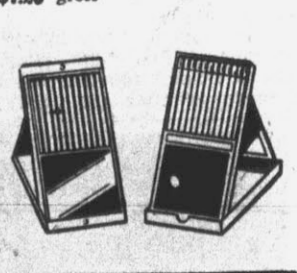

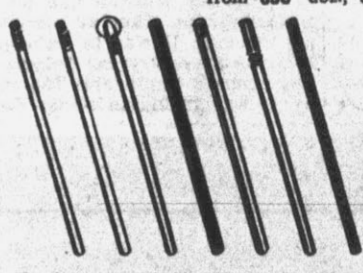

Chang opposed Rhee in 1952 and went into hiding. For the past year he has been publishing a daily newspaper strongly critical of the government. Cho is a World War II Communist leader who broke with the Communists.

Exposure Ruled Cause Of Death Two Years Ago

A 63-year-old Negro man, Ernest Hardy, reportedly missing from his Clemmon's Crossroads home for two years, whose skeleton was found by a hunter in a swamp on Saturday afternoon, apparently died due to "exposure" to the elements, Coroner Griffin Rouse said yesterday.

No inquest will be held in the case, Coroner Rouse stated. The skeleton was identified by Mrs. Ernest Hardy, the man's wife, and Miss Lenore Hardy, his daughter. They recognized the shoes on the skeleton, a buckle on the overalls, along with the tattered remains of a hat, as belonging to Hardy.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U) — Most share prices declined in the stock market today and some losses ran to around 2 to 3 points. Analysts blamed uneasiness over the tense Formosan situation.

The market was mixed at the start, with the aircrafts the only firm feature. Then selling mounted and prices dropped. Steels, oils, motors and coppers were among the major losers, and most of the aircrafts turned down, too.

By early afternoon, however, prices had steadied and many issues were selling above their lows of the day.

There were scattered bright spots: Southern Railway rose on an increase in the dividend. Graco Co., strong yesterday, extended its advance. In the aircrafts, General Dynamics and United Aircraft were active and higher.

Down a point or more were Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, General Motors, Radio Corp. Union Carbide, Santa Fe New York Central and Du Pont. Sunray Oil and Mid-Continent Petroleum fell following announcement of details of their merger agreement. At one time, Mid-Continent was off more than 3.

RALEIGH (U) — (NCDA) — Hog markets were steady to 25 cents lower today; top, 15.25 at Hillsboro; 15.00 at Castle Hayne, Rich Square; 17.75 at Beaufortville, Jacksonville, Plymouth; 17.50 at New Bern, Tarboro, Hamilton, Enfield, Kenly, Wilson, Miro, Freeman, Siler City, Elizabethtown, Goldsboro, Whiteville, Tabor City, Shallotte, Dunn, Newton Grove, Warsaw Fair Bluff, Clarkton, Bailey, Kinston, Benson Rocky Mount, Smithfield, Fayetteville, Clinton, Lumberton, Waynesville; Woodland was unreported.

Mock Trial For Rotary Meeting

A brief sample of court procedure was presented to the Greenville Rotary Club in a mock trial under the direction of Rotarian Sam B. Underwood Jr.

Club Secretary Wendell Smiley acted as judge, Guy C. Evans as prosecutor, Ercell S. Webb as counsel for the defense. Jurors were Dr. K. B. Pace, Dr. Fred C. Irons, J. E. Winslow, Ernest Willard, and Carl Adams.

The program was in conjunction with the attendance record of the club. Harold Thomas, attendance chairman of the club, was the defendant at the mock trial.

Iwo Jima Hero Dies Of Exposure

SACATON, Ariz. (AP)—An American Indian hero of modern war is dead—a bewildered and disillusioned victim of peacetime.

Ira Hayes one of the Marine flag raisers on Iwo Jima at the climax of World War II, was found dead yesterday on the Sacaton Indian reservation. He was 32.

The doctor's verdict: overexposure to freezing weather—too much alcohol.

Hayes' moment of glory atop Mt. Surabachi in the far Pacific was the beginning of his downfall.

Back home in 1945 Arizona's Indians looked up to him as a warrior who carried on the tradition of their ancestors. But far the chubby, friendly Pima Indian, things didn't go so well.

"We hit the beach at Iwo with 250 men in my company," Hayes once recalled, "and left with 27 a month and half later."

"I still think of those things all the time."

Driver Training Course Film Shown To Ayden Rotary At Friday Meeting

Driver Charged In Car Collision With School Bus

Sam Carney, 39-year-old Negro of 415 Moore Street was charged with careless and reckless driving this morning after the vehicle which he was driving collided with a school bus in North Greenville.

The bus was being operated by Arthur R. Coward of 302 Tyson Street.

Investigating Patrolman James W. Boykin said the bus made a left turn into Randolph Street while the car operated by Carney was passing. The car run into the side of the bus.

Boykin estimated the damage to the bus at $100 and to the car at $250.

No injuries in the accident which took place at 8:10 this morning.

Death Ruled To Natural Cause

FARMVILLE — Marcellus May, 49-year-old Negro, died last night in Farmville after suffering a heart attack and falling from a truck parked near the office of Dr. Mewborn.

May was taken to the doctor's office but died before an examination was made.

Coroner Griffin Rouse has ruled that the man died from natural causes.

Looking Ahead

Temperatures averaging four to five degrees below normal are predicted in a five-day weather forecast for North Carolina as compiled by the Associated Press. Little day-to-day change is anticipated.

Precipitation will average about one-half inch, occurring Thursday and Saturday.

Church Group To Consider Plans

Employment of a director of religious education will be one of the topics of discussion when the Commission on Education of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church meets tomorrow night at 8:30 in the Lydia Wooten classroom.

The group will also plan for the cooperative teacher-training school to be conducted by the city churches next month.

Chairman J. H. Rose urges all members to be present.

Joseph G. Sumrell, new owner of the Roy L. Turnage store in Ayden, was inducted as a new member.

President Turnage read a letter with Christmas greetings from Nancy Lee Smith of Washington, N.C., who now is a Rotary exchange student in Europe.

Wayland McGlohon won the "on time" prize; Joe Fort, the "fellowship" prize. Warren Kinlaw led the singing of Rotary songs; Wilbur Ormond was accompanist.

Roy S. Roberson Funeral Wednesday

Mr. Roy S. Roberson, 53, died suddenly at his home in Beaufort County near Wharton's Station early Monday morning after suffering a heart attack.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock in the Snowd Branch Church of God in Beaufort County by the pastor, the Rev. T. M. West. Burial will be in the Wynn family cemetery near Beargrass. The body will be taken to the church at 1:30 o'clock.

Mr. Roberson was born and reared in Beaufort County and had lived in both Martin and Beaufort Counties. He was first married to Mary Moore, who died in 1942.

Surviving are three sons: James and John Roberson of near Snowd Branch and Elbert Roberson of Newport News, Va.; two sisters: Mrs. Addie Caraway of Leggett's Crossroads, and Mrs. Thad Moyer of Washington; two brothers: Don Roberson of Leggett's Crossroads and Marshall Roberson of Robersonville; 4 grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

'Don Pasquale' Had Remarkable Quality

By EDGAR HIRSHBERG

To this untutored observer, the production of Donizetti's "Don Pasquale" put on last night by the Grass Roots Opera Company at the College Theatre was as close to terrific as it could get, short of the Metropolitan itself.

"Don Pasquale" is what you might call high comedy—light, easy, frivolous, more like Gilbert and Sullivan than Grand Opera. Also, it's easy to understand—there's nothing complicated about it, and since everybody sang in English the people in the audience knew what was going on all the time, which is an unusual state of affairs for many opera-goers.

Donizetti wrote "Don Pasquale" to show off the voices of the singers, and he would have been happy about the singers in last night's performance. Heroine of the evening and the show was Peggyann Alderman, who sang the part of Norina, the only feminine role. Miss Alderman not only has a lovely coloratura soprano voice, but she also can act. Norina is supposed to be alternately shy and forward, an innocent country girl and a sophisticated shrew, and Miss Alderman did her up to perfection, changing her personality with ease and grace. In addition to her acting and singing abilities, Miss Alderman is a remarkably handsome creature—certainly no handicap in an opera singer. She hails from Winston-Salem incidentally, and is a graduate of Salem College. We hope she goes far.

Norina's two lovers were Don Pasquale, a rich bachelor, and Ernesto, his nephew. Don Pasquale was played by William Beck, who was the ancient, lascivious old fool right down to the tips of his scraggly grey wig. After his exhibition of age, senility and feebleness, we were amazed to discover that Mr. Beck is a personable young man, not the least bit feeble, a native of Westboro, and a graduate of Duke and Julliard School of Music.

Ernesto, who won Norina's hand at the end—and we certainly were glad of that—was played by Jeff Morris, who came to the Grass Roots Opera from Lima, Ohio, and who has sung with the Berkshire Festival Company. His native of Westboro, Keetoowah informed us is a Bel canto tenor voice with a fine edge. We're not sure what Bel canto means, but Mr. Morris certainly can sing, edge or no edge, and it was a pleasure to listen to him. We feel the same way about Thomas Gallagher, also a native of Ohio, who was Dr. Malatesta in last night's performance.

What pleased us most about the Grass Roots "Don Pasquale," in addition to the wonderful singing, was the smoothness and simplicity of the production and the professional verve of the acting of all the principals. There were no weak spots, the timing was brisk and precise, and the whole affair was excellent theatre throughout. The sets were obviously portable, but perfectly adequate, and the costumes were luxurious, appropriate and in good taste.

And in the absence of an orchestra, Aileen Lynn, who accompanied at the piano, did as much to hold the production together and keep it going as anyone could—a difficult and exacting job. To her and to the director, Robert Bird—who also played the part of the Notary and was very amusing in it—our felicitations. And our thanks also, for her purely decorative talents, to Mary Jennings, who was almost Miss America in 1951, who played Don Pasquale's Maid—we wondered why he didn't settle for her instead of Norina.

For bringing the Grass Roots Opera back to Greenville, we think the Greenville Music Club deserves our heartfelt thanks. And in addition to the success of "Don Pasquale" in the evening, the club people tell us that "Hansel and Gretel" went over tremendously with the small fry in the matinee performance at Wright Auditorium—attended by nearly 1000 future opera enthusiasts.

All of us who had a chance to be at the opera again are grateful to all those who helped bring it here, and especially to the hard-working Opera Committee, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Charles White, Mrs. James Rodgers, Miss Ona Schindler and Dr. James White. And orchids also to Miss Beatrice Chauncey, who coached the local children who were the gingerbread men in "Hansel and Gretel," and almost stole the show.

The Grass Roots have come and gone—and we hope they come again, next year, to give us some more good, real live opera.

Calls No Inquest In Poison Death

Coroner Griffin Rouse said this morning that no inquest will be held in the death of Joseph C. Lamm, 44-year-old Winterville man, who died yesterday after taking a dose of "rat and mouse" poison.

Lamm had been scheduled to appear yesterday in Superior Court for trial on the charge of drunken driving. His wife was quoted as saying that Lamm had threatened suicide rather than face trial in the case.

Lamm and his wife had been separated for the past two weeks. Lamm sent word to his wife early yesterday morning that he had taken a dose of arsenic poisoning. An ambulance was called and Lamm was rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he died shortly after noon.

Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews and Coroner Rouse investigated the case. They said that Lamm was living alone in a house on the May farm near Winterville.

When Lamm's wife arrived at the house she said she was told by her husband that he had purchased the bottle of rat poisoning, and had later taken a dose of it.

Funeral services are scheduled to be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Yelverton Funeral Home in Fremont. Burial will be in the family cemetery near Lucama.

Arrest Woman On Liquor Charge

Officers Saturday night arrested Eliza Underwood, Negro, who lives on South Pitt Street, and charged her with possession of non-tax-paid liquor.

The officers said they found the liquor in the kitchen of the woman's home and she poured it out as they entered. She was placed under $200 bond.

Making the arrest were ABC officer H. B. Lilly and Deputies J. L. Mills and Jack Russell.
