Week Expected To See Flood Of New Legislation Before Assembly

Accord On Appropriations Bills Seen In April; Hearings Resume

RALEIGH (AP)—Hearings on budget requests of the state's public schools and a proposal to tax tobacco products headed the agenda for this week as the Legislature prepared today to begin its seventh week.

The house and Senate will meet tonight at 8 o'clock. Before the week is out a flood of new legislation is expected to be introduced, including a bill to control the use of the state's water resources.

Much attention will continue to be given to the Legislature's two major issues—appropriations and finances. Tomorrow the Joint Appropriations Committee will hear officials of the State Board of Education, which administers the operation of the public schools, outline budget requests for the next two fiscal years. The state's biggest appropriation goes to the schools.

At hearings last fall, the Board of Education asked the Advisory Budget Commission for appropriations of $125,129,586 the first year of the biennium and $129,658,452 the second year. The commission recommended appropriations of $123,065,044 and $127,424,449.

The Appropriations Committee will wind up its budget hearing Thursday when the Highway Commission will present its spending requests.

Thursday through Thursday has been set aside by the Joint Finance Committee for hearings on the controversial proposal to levy a tax on cigarettes, cigars and smoking tobacco. Gov. Hodges and the Budget Commission proposed a levy of 2 cents per pack on cigarettes, 1 cent on each cigar, and 1 cent on each 10 cents worth of smoking tobacco. This would bring the state an additional revenue of approximately $8,945,000 a year.

Hearings on the proposed tax to be expected to attract a big delegation of tobacco farmers and representatives of agricultural agencies and tobacco manufacturing companies.

House Speaker Larry Moore said yesterday he believes it will be April 1 or later before the Legislature reaches agreement on appropriations and finance bills.

Moore stated, "A lot of different things have to be agreed upon and there's a lot of different ideas on tax proposals."

The Legislature "will do good if it winds up its work by May," Moore said. He added, "I don't have no axe to grind on any tax proposals but we've got to get new taxes from some source. I don't see how we can curtail state services."

Gov. Hodges and the Budget Commission have recommended tax increases of 52 million dollars for the biennium to balance a proposed state budget of 637 million dollars.

Tomorrow the Senate and House Committees on Courts and Judicial Districts will consider a Senate resolution requesting study of the constitutional mandate that calls for redistricting after each federal census. The 1951 and 1953 sessions of the General Assembly best down attempts at redistricting.

A hearing will be held Wednesday by the Joint Agriculture Committees on a bill authorizing the State Milk Commission to set minimum retail and wholesale milk prices.

Belvoir-Falkland School District Votes Tax Hike

By EDWINA HAYMES Reflector Staff Writer

FALKLAND—Citizens of the Belvoir-Falkland School District voted by a narrow margin of 17 Saturday to raise taxes in that school district.

Of the 178 eligible registered voters, 111 voted in the election, 64 for the measure and 47 against.

The election was held to determine whether or not taxes should be raised ten cents on each $100 property valuation. Purpose of such a tax, according to the petition submitted by the Belvoir-Falkland School District committee, is to enable the schools to be operated "at a higher standard than that provided by State support," by employing a public school music teacher or additional vocational teachers, or both.

With the measure approved, the school tax in that district may now be increased to 32 cents per $100 property valuation.

The school district committee is now authorized to put this tax into effect during this fiscal year if they so desire, with the request being made to the Pitt County Board of Education when the budget is presented in May.

Following approval by the Board of Education, the request must then be submitted to the County Board of Commissioners for its approval. It is this body who will levy and collect the tax.

The measure is also subject to the approval of the North Carolina State Board of Education.

Request for the additional amount of tax must be made each year with the presentation of the school district's budget.

Dawson was founder of the morning New Bernian. He later bought the afternoon Sun-Journal and published both papers for several years. During his career he also published the Babyboro Sentinel in his native Pamlico county and a short-lived daily at Kinston. He was active in the affairs of the North Carolina Press Assn. and the Associated Press.

Dawson is survived by two sons, James B. Dawson Jr. of Washington, D.C., and William Dawson of Bremerton, Wash. Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Centenary Methodist Church.

Nehru Agrees That Chiang Should Be In Formosa Parley

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

LONDON (AP)—Indian Prime Minister Nehru came out today for Nationalist China's participation in an international conference on the Formosa issue. Britain, holding a similar view urged a quick cease-fire as the prelude to such a parley.

Nehru lined up with Britain and the United States in criticism of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's proposal for a 10-power conference that would exclude Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalists. A Foreign Ministry spokesman in Paris said "it is not possible that this proposition could produce any concrete results."

Nehru made his position clear as he headed home from a two-week visit in London. He told reporters at the airport a Formosa conference is still under consideration. It "obviously cannot exclude any party concerned," he said.

A few hours later, a British Foreign Office spokesman told newsmen: "Her majesty's government believes that it would be an advantage to work for an end to the fighting in advance of a conference should there be an agreement to hold a conference. An end to the fighting would improve the

County Included In Family Survey

Pitt County has been chosen one of the 54 small city and rural areas to be included in a national survey on the changing size of the American family.

One purpose of the study is to learn whether the large increase in births in the last 10 years is resulting from more marriages or "open country" segments of the county. Pitt is one of three counties in North Carolina being used as a "sample point" in the national survey.

The survey in Pitt County began today and will include information from approximately 90 families chosen at random in Greenville, Farmville, Bell Arthur and two "open country" segments of the county. Pitt is one of three counties in North Carolina being used as a "sample point" in the national survey.

Taking the survey in Pitt will be Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell and Mrs. James S. Jenkins. This "Study of the Growth of American Families" is sponsored jointly by the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan and the Scripps Foundation of Miami University. Approximately 3,000 women will be interviewed in the spot-check survey.

A spokesman for the survey stated: "If the interviewer knocks at your door it is because, in the highly scientific method of 'random sampling' which the Survey Research Center has developed, your 'number' was selected. The households visited are the random selections from a master list of every family in the area and every family had an equal chance to be chosen. Since this sample represents a true cross-section of the area, and of the nation, your household, if selected, must be interviewed."

It was pointed out that no names are used at any point in the study and all interviews are held in the strictest confidence. The information given goes into a statistical analysis of population trends and family growth among different groups of people throughout the nation.

Fireball Flashes Over East Texas

TYLER, Tex. (AP)—A fireball, its weird green light casting a fiery glow over three men in an airport control tower, flashed like a "huge electric arc" across the east Texas piney woods last night.

It was apparently a meteorite. There were unconfirmed reports it exploded or hit the ground but no evidence of it had been found. Information indicated it was first seen here and disappeared some 60 miles south, near Lufkin. But the Weather Bureau at Dallas got reports of people seeing its glow as far as Jackson Miss., to the east, and Mineral Wells in west Texas.

The most vivid account came from J. N. Aber, a control tower operator at Pounds Field here. Here's his story: "Around midnight this light seemed to pop out of the sky directly above us. It looked like a huge electric arc. It was greenish, like the tip of a welder's torch."

"It was going due south. There were three of us in the tower. We saw the light and the lights in the room lit up brilliantly. It was a blinding light, the brightest I ever saw. We all turned and watched it disappear to the south, about 30 degrees above the horizon. It looked like a football with a short tail. It lasted just a second."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic election convention to open in Chicago unless some states change their laws meantime to permit a later opening date. National Chairman Paul M. Butler announced that a study of that election statutes showed it would be impractical to hold the convention until Aug. 13, as tentatively planned earlier. Some states, he explained, require certification of the presidential candidates anywhere from 70 to 90 days before election day.

The national committee said states which would have to change their laws to make an Aug. 13 convention date practical include Massachusetts, South Dakota and Connecticut.

Butler said reaction to the idea of a late convention date and a shorter campaign had been favorable and that he was suggesting to Democratic leaders that they study the possibility of changes in state laws which stand as a barrier to a short tail.

He expressed hope Republican leaders would join with the Democrats in a move to make later conventions possible. Butler also announced that members of the Democratic National Committee in a mail poll had formally approved Chicago as the site of the 1956 convention. A site committee had recommended Chicago.

Declares Matusow Not Author

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Walter (D-Pa.) says a book detailing allegedly false testimony Harvey Matusow gave against persons accused of Red connections was written by someone other than Matusow.

"He didn't write it. I know who did," Walter told an NBC television audience yesterday.

But Walter, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, declined to identify the author to newsmen who asked him about it later.

"It will all be developed and everybody will know all about it shortly," he said.

Matusow, who testified against a number of people as a former Communist, has since signed affidavits that he lied in his testimony, both in court trials and before congressional committees. A book about his testimony is scheduled for publication this spring under his name.

Publishers of the book in New York could not be reached for comment.

Among those against whom Matusow said he testified falsely was Clinton Jencks, an official of the Independent Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union who was convicted of falsely swearing to a non-Communist oath.

Walter had expressed belief last week that the smelters union may have had a hand in preparing the book.

At least said he is certain that at least some of Matusow's testimony before the House committee was true, but he said he plans to "inquire very carefully into the matters that he testified to and again ask the people whose names were mentioned... if they desire to make a statement."

Israel Purchases Ancient Scrolls

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP)—After a seven-year quest, Israel has bought from the Syrians for a reported $200,000 four "Dead Sea scrolls" described as the oldest known Bible manuscripts.

Prime Minister Moshe Sharett announced yesterday purchase of the scrolls discovered in a cave near Jericho in 1947, had finally been negotiated by Maj. Gen. Yigal Yadin former Israeli army chief of staff and son of the late Prof. E. L. Sukenik of the Hebrew University.

Sukenik was the first research student to identify the scrolls as dating from about 70 A.D. or before.

The scrolls are manuscript A of the Book of Isaiah, the Commentary of Habakkuk, a book of regulations of a monastic sect called Essenes, and the Book of Lemach, an apocryphal work whose existence is referred to in ancient texts.

They have been held since their discovery by the Syrian metropolitan at St. Mark's University, in the Arab-held city of Jerusalem. The Book of Lemach is still unopened, but it has been identified by detached fragments.

The scrolls are part of seven ancient manuscripts found by a bedouin eight years ago in tall cylindrical jars in a cave of the Arab-held city of the northwest part of the Dead Sea.

Sharett read a letter from William F. Albright, professor of Semitic languages at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., in which he stressed importance of the hitherto undeciphered Book of Lemach. Albright dated the book between 150 B.C. and the beginning of the Christian era and said it is expected to throw new light on the history of post-Biblical literature.

Albright said in Baltimore last night that the fragments "seem to describe the miraculous birth of Noah, son of Lemach." He said he had examined the scrolls shortly after they were found.

accused Olson of writing a surrender leaflet, making statements derogatory to the United States, making pro-Communist recordings for broadcast, and informing enemy officials "against fellow POWs Sgt. Charles Dickerson, Chester Mathis, Charles Harrison and Albert Roberts of the U. S. Marine Corps."

Conviction on any one count could bring a maximum penalty of death.

Olson, who lives near Lumberton, N. C., has been in Walter Reed Army Hospital at Washington, D. C., undergoing psychiatric observation.

Olson was scheduled for discharge and retirement Jan. 3, but a perjury count held him in service. The Army charged he swore falsely that he had not collaborated with the enemy.

Expects U.S. Aid If Off-Shore Posts Attacked

Chiang To Fight For Isles

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek expressed his determination today to hold the rest of the Chinese Nationalists' offshore islands and made it plain he expects United States to help him fight for them if Chinese Communist attack.

"In no case," he asserted, would the strategic islands Quemoy and Matsu be abandoned.

Chiang met newsmen at Nationalist headquarters here after the Reds' Peiping radio triumphantly announced "liberation" of the Tachen Islands, evacuated by the Nationalists last week with the aid of the U. S. 7th Fleet. Peiping boasted it placed Red soldiers "on vantage ground for liberating Taiwan (Formosa) and other islands off the China coast."

Chiang smiled contentedly as he faced the largest news conference held here since Nationalists fled the mainland in 1949.

"You newsmen fear the islands will not be jointly defended," he said softly. "But I think the matter is very clear."

Chiang referred to Quemoy and Matsu specifically in written replies to seven questions submitted by newsmen. He added informally:

Chiang met newsmen at Nationalist headquarters here after the Reds' Peiping radio triumphantly announced "liberation" of the Tachen Islands, evacuated by the Nationalists last week with the aid of the U. S. 7th Fleet. Peiping boasted it placed Red soldiers "on vantage ground for liberating Taiwan (Formosa) and other islands off the China coast."

The windup of the operation was punctuated by three hours of Communist shelling of Quemoy, 120 miles across the Strait of Formosa, Sunday morning. The Nationalist military information service said it was the largest artillery exchange at Quemoy since the Tachen withdrawal began, with the Reds pouring over 50 shells from Army port and receiving "a heavy retaliation barrage" in return.

Observers were inclined to discount continued reports however, of Communist junk concentrations near Matsu Island, 100 miles northwest of here and blocking the entrance to Poochow a Red port.

Immediately after his written replies to questions were ready—and his few interpolated remarks completed—the generalissimo abruptly left the conference room.

Newsmen were unable to ask him about the statement credited to Foreign Minister George Yeh that the United States to the effect that United States was pledged to the defense of Quemoy and Matsu. Yeh later said he had been misquoted.

Chiang had sought, in negotiations leading up to the evacuation of the Tachen, to obtain a public American commitment to help defend Quemoy and Matsu, a commitment Washington refused to make.

Chiang today denounced United Nations and other efforts to obtain a ceasefire with the Communists in the Formosa Strait area.

The U.N., he said, ought to be declaring sanctions against Communist China.

The U. S. Navy today said its ships were returning to patrol stations after moving 27,600 people from the Tachen area.

"As a matter of fact, whether Kinmen (Quemoy) and Matsu will be defended is very clear to us, and to the Communists very clear."

His written reply had said: "With regard to the question of the joint defense of the offshore islands, the statements made by the governments of the Republic of China and the United States have been clear enough and need no more elucidation. That the defense of Kinmen and Matsu is essential to the defense of Taiwan and Penghu (The Pescadore) should have become an opinion generally accepted by qualified military experts."

Chiang's news conference followed by only 24 hours return of the great fleet which evacuated the Tachens.

Fear For 29 In Belgian Plane; U.S. Airmen Missing

Airliner, Stratojet 'Lost'

ROME (AP)—Ground, sea and air searchers combed a fog-shrouded area north and west of Rome today, seeking the wreckage of an Africa-bound Belgian airliner feared to have crashed with 29 persons aboard.

The 21 passengers included four Americans, three Belgian children and Marcella Mariani, Italy's 19-year-old beauty queen of 1953, who was making her first flight.

The four-engine DC6 of Sabena Airlines vanished early last night after reporting it was over Viterbo, 40 miles north of Rome. The pilot said he expected to land at the capital's Ciampino Airport in 30 minutes, but radio contact was broken in the middle of a transmission from the plane four minutes later.

Sabena's Rome manager Alfred Blum and a high police official said they believed the plane had crashed into the Tyrrhenian Sea off the old Roman port of Civitavecchia 30 miles northwest of the capital, or in one of the many small lakes in the area.

"I fear there are no survivors," Blum said.

The aircraft had fuel to keep it in the air for only three hours after its last report. It was en route from Brussels to the Belgian Congo.

Farmers south of Viterbo reported seeing a flash and then a blaze in a sparsely populated district of rugged hills but searching police and volunteers who worked throughout the night found no trace of wreckage or of fire.

The airline identified the four Americans aboard as Paul Leroy, Lake Hiawatha, N. J., a geologist for the Bear Creek Mining Co.; Robert Singer, Brooklyn, an engineer for the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co.; E. J. Suter, 48, who lives near the town of Viterbo; and a secretary, 27, of Rome Miss Mariani's.

The governor said he thought the description "Gestapo methods" was "an extreme way to state it." He pointed out that the state's traffic fatalities were reduced more than 100 last year. He added that to save lives "we must use almost extreme methods."

In answer to other questions, the governor said he favors passage of a 55-cent hourly minimum wage law and is very hopeful the Legislature will approve it. He reiterated his favor retention of the so-called "right to work" law which bans closed shop and union shop contracts between management and labor unions.

He answered another question by saying that "considered from the standpoint of long tradition and practice" segregation in the schools is "morally justified."

The governor was asked for comment on an article in the January issue of the N.C. Medical Journal which said that North Carolina's high taxes keep industry from coming to the state and are driving away existing industry.

Hodges said he thought the Journal had "rendered a disservice" in that it hasn't given all the facts. He said that when all taxes, state, county and municipal are considered, North Carolina's taxes are among the lowest in the nation.

The governor reiterated support of a motor vehicles inspection law and indicated he favors private garages doing the inspecting. He said he considers toll turnpikes a coming thing in the nation and they should be built in North Carolina where they are justified by traffic.

County Area Chairmen Map Red Cross Drive

An organizational meeting for county area chairmen in the coming Red Cross fund drive was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy T. Cox in Winterville.

Eleven area chairmen were present, along with Robert D. Rouse and Mrs. Blair Cox Wheeler, county co-chairmen. Mrs. Walter Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Red Cross Chapter, and Miss Sarah Barrett, General Fund Field Director from the Southeastern Area office in Atlanta, Ga., were also present.

Winnipeg, Man. (AP)—U.S. and Canadian planes, scanned the frozen wastes of northern Saskatchewan today for two crewmen of a U.S. Stratojet bomber which crashed Sunday after exploding 35,000 feet up. Two others had been rescued.

The two survivors, Lt. Col. Kenneth G. McGrew, Yakima, Wash., and Capt. Lester E. Epton Preakness, both 33, said they were hurled unconscious from the plane and came to while plummeting earthward. McGrew's parachute was opening as he revived and Epton pulled his ripcord at about 15,000 feet.

They were brought last night to the Canadian air force hospital here, where both were reported in "good condition" despite their ordeal in subzero temperature. Air force officials said Epton, who was marooned in the snow more than 30 hours, suffered frostbitten feet and severely bloodshot eyes.

Points Up Patrol's Reduction Of Traffic Deaths

Hodges OKs Whammy Use

DURHAM (AP)—Gov. Hodges defended Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt and methods used by the State Highway Patrol to catch speeders in a televised interview here yesterday.

A newsman told the governor he had noticed some sentiment among legislators that the patrol's use of electronic speed detection equipment smacked of "Gestapo methods." The governor was asked for his opinion.

The governor said he thought the description "Gestapo methods" was "an extreme way to state it." He pointed out that the state's traffic fatalities were reduced more than 100 last year. He added that to save lives "we must use almost extreme methods."

In answer to other questions, the governor said he favors passage of a 55-cent hourly minimum wage law and is very hopeful the Legislature will approve it. Mrs. Walter Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Red Cross Chapter, and Miss Sarah Barrett, General Fund Field Director from the Southeastern Area office in Atlanta, Ga., were also present.

With the thought: "Our service rendered is the rent we pay for the space we occupy while on this earth."

Following the business session, a coffee hour was enjoyed. Mrs. Wheeler invited the guests into the dining room, where Mrs. Taylor poured coffee from a beautifully appointed table.

Chairmen attending the meeting a number of them with their wives, were Robert Little, Mr. and Mrs. H. Forrest, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Psychiatrist Says Accused Collaborator Displayed Symptoms

By RICHARD GORRELL

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—An Army psychiatrist testified today that M. Sgt. Willie H. Olson is not capable of "cooperating in his own defense" and was not "invariably able to adhere to right" when he allegedly collaborated with the enemy in Korea.

Capt. Lester I. Abend, chief of the Ft. Bragg Hospital inpatient psychiatric and neurology section, testified in support of a defense motion to dismiss the collaboration charge against Olson.

Olson, a veteran of 20 years Army service, went on trial before an eight-officer general court-martial here today.

The Army has accused the 40-year-old sergeant of eight specific acts of collaboration while he was a captive in Korea.

type of psychosis characterized by loss of contact with environment and by disintegration of the personality which "in full bloom would be paranoid (affected by delusions) in type."

Abend, typing his answers to questions because he was suffering from laryngitis, said Olson showed these symptoms while under his care.

Disturbances of organized thinking, ignoring reality, severe anxiety, auditory hallucinations, and suicidal drive.

The witness said, however that Olson's condition was never severe, and the sergeant "is not grossly psychotic."

The psychiatrist said that Olson, a native of Youngsville, Pa. was unable to stick to one subject for any length of time. He added that Olson's "oddities of thinking" were out of keeping with his high grade of intelligence.

During Abend's testimony, Olson was excused from the hearing room at the request of the defense. Before that, the sergeant seemed calm, and willingly posed for photographers and TV cameramen. The pictures were taken at a five-minute trial session. No pictures are allowed during the trial.

Abend said that Olson frequently strayed from the point during interviews. He said that, for example, he asked Olson about his suicidal drive and the sergeant answered: "People are people. You can't kill them all. You might as well try to get along."

A pink and white color note was observed in the decorations.

Upon arrival the honored guests were presented camellia corsages. From the centerpiece extended pink satin streamers with love birds.

Mrs. Howard King, mother of the brides, and Mrs. Sarah Byers, their grandmother, poured coffee. They were assisted in serving party food and bridal cakes by Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr., Mrs. Lee Hannah and Mrs. W. M. Scales Jr.

Sees Approval Of 3 Proposals

HOUSTON (AP)—Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. (R-Mass.), House minority leader, predicts congressional approval of three major proposals submitted by President Eisenhower: the once-defeated health reinsurance bill; a three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act; and federal loans for school construction.

Martin made his remarks during a press conference yesterday at the mansion of oilman-philanthropist Hugh Roy Cullen.

The term "iconoclast" originally was applied to people who wished to eliminate the use of images in churches, but has come to apply to those who attack cherished beliefs or customs.

District Governor Will Visit Altrusa Club In April

Mesdames Cecil Bilbro and T. H. Boykin were gracious hostesses to the members of the Altrusa Club February 11 at the home of the former. The Bilbro home was beautifully decorated throughout with arrangements of red and white carnations, white snapdragons and magnolia leaves, and big red Valentines. The Valentine decorations made a lovely setting for a most enjoyable program.

Dr. Kathleen Stokes, teacher of Political Science at East Carolina College, who is also Altrusa Club International Relations Committee chairman, in her charming manner spoke on "Foreign Policy." Dr. Stokes' challenging and stirring talk held the attention of her listening audience to such a degree that an informative discussion was enjoyed by all on her questions, such as "Why is the United States defending Formosa?" "What Does the United States hope to gain from this position?" etc.

Following the reading of the minutes, the room call was conducted by Mrs. Beaman and Mrs. Bass, with Mrs. Batchelor's fifth grade winning. The treasurer, Mrs. L. P. Thomas reported a balance of $1,260.38 and read the budget for the year.

Life Of Rickenbacker Is Topic For Lector Book Club Paper

On Tuesday, Feb. 7, Mrs. A. H. Van Dyke was hostess to the Lector Book Club. The home was attractively decorated with colorful flower arrangements. After a brief business session, Mrs. E. S. Flanagan, President, turned the meeting over to Mrs. Kenneth Phillips, who was in charge of the program. Mrs. Phillips' topic was the life of Captain (Col.) Eddie Rickenbacker.

"To me, Eddie Rickenbacker is one of the greatest inspirations of life I've ever known. I've gained more perspective and outlook from him than any other source of contact," Mrs. Phillips stated.

When Eddie was twelve years old, his father was killed in an accident. The next day Eddie went out and found a job in a glass factory to help support his mother and six brothers and sisters. He later took a garage job. He loved mechanical things, especially all types of engines, and made up his mind to become an automobile racing driver. After taking a correspondence course in engineering and drafting, he joined the staff of an automobile company in Columbus.

He then developed his interest in racing, and drove his first race in 1908, to become one of America's most spectacular racing drivers for the next eight years.

When World War I was declared, he went to France as a staff driver (army), for General Pershing. He learned to fly on his own. One day he came upon the stalled car of Sen. William Mitchell, chief of the Army Air Corps after tinkering with the car and getting it started. Gen. Mitchell rewarded Eddie with a transfer to the Air Corps.

At the end of World War I, Eddie was acclaimed American Ace of Aces, bringing home more merited honors and credit to America than any other man. Demon Runyon once said of Eddie, "he's that rarity among mortals—the romantic and romanticized daredevil who managed the evolution into the solid man of affairs—something few rarely ever do."

He came home with the Congressional Medal of Honor, Legion of Honor Medal, Croix de Guerre with four palms, and the Distinguished Service Cross with nine oak leaves.

There were ticker-tape parades and speeches across the country in his honor, among which the state of New York presented him with a replica of the emblem "Hat On The Ring" pin made of diamonds, rubies and sapphires; and the city of San Francisco rode him along the avenues in an airplane made of roses, and presented him a diamond airplane pin.

He then started his own auto company bearing his name. In 1927, he bought the Indianapolis Speedway, the one on which he had ridden to fame on several years before.

He became vice-president and sales manager of La Salle Division of Cadillac Motors Inc. He was appointed General Manager of Eastern Air Lines in 1934, and became President in 1938.

Capt. Eddie, (he always preferred that to the title of Col.) had a very close escape from death when an Eastern Airline plane, on which he was a passenger, crashed ten miles outside of Atlanta, Ga. in Feb. 27, 1941. When lying on the operating table with all his ribs broken, crushed hip, injured spine and multiple injuries, Eddie Rickenbacker murmured, "My body may be broken and bruised, but not my spirit." The Rev. Louis D. Newton of Atlanta based his text on this the following Sunday. It so happened that at the time of this crash, Mrs. Rickenbacker was the guest of Mrs. Phillips parents at their home in Charlotte, N. C. After many months in the hospital, Eddie recovered.

A little more than a year later, Oct. 21, 1942, came the Pacific crash. Eddie was on a secret mission for Gen. Arnold when the Army Air Corps plane on which he and an Army Air Crew of seven crashed into the Pacific. For twenty-one days and nights they drifted dimly on two rafts with nothing to eat except an orange. After one of their prayer meetings, a sea gull lit on Eddie's head. They ate it, and used the insides for fish bait. They caught two fish and ate them raw. On the twenty-first day they were picked up by Navy planes, then the trip home.

Eddie Rickenbacker has always called himself the "darling of Lady Luck." After the brilliant, colorful life he has led, and his many narrow escapes, I feel that Eddie really does lead a "charmed" life.

After the program, Mrs. Van Dyke served a delicious dessert course with coffee.

Just One Hitch To Talk Of Locating A Husband

By RICHARD EHRMAN

ROME (AP)—Green-eyed Gianna Maria Canale says she would like to give up film stardom for marriage. Only there's a hitch.

"I don't want to marry an American, nor for that matter—an Italian, Frenchman, German or Scandinavian," the 26-year-old veteran of two dozen films explained in an interview.

What's wrong with Americans? "They have too many muscles, always thinking of sports and not enough about their women. Besides, they drink too much."

Gianna Maria has been in the United States several times—including a stint in Hollywood—and had dates with American men.

Well, how about her Italian countrymen? "Italian men are exactly the opposite of Americans. They think only of women, but not in a nice way. They have a one-track mind."

As for South Americans, they are out of the running because "they resemble Italians."

Englishmen? "Really too cold to be good."

A German husband, she said, "would want to order me around as though he were a commanding officer." And a French husband would "lose himself in too many compliments. Frenchmen talk too much. They're boring."

Gianna Maria considered a moment to decide what she did not like about Scandinavians — "too blond."

Any prospective husband—to get to the more positive aspect—must be dark-haired 35 to 45, widely traveled, a cosmopolitan with "just a pluck of the defects and merits of all nationalities."

"Above all, he must be very, very rich."

While waiting for this paragon to come up over her horizon Miss Canale intends to continue working on pictures and buying valuable paintings, rugs and antique furniture for her 14-room villa overlooking Rome.

Childress-Johnson Vows Spoken In Home Wedding At Enfield

Miss Osce Mac Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Mac Johnson of Enfield, became the bride of William Newton Childress, son of Mr. R. N. Childress of Raleigh and the late Mrs. Childress on Saturday, February 12, at 7:00 p.m. in the bride's home.

The Rev. Mr. Felix Arnold officiated at the ceremony, assisted by the groom's father, Rev. R. N. Childress.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Eugene Wood, pianist, and Mr. Sam Arrington Dunn sang "Oh Promise Me."

An altar of greenery and white flowers with Valentine red and white in floral designs were used throughout the house.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of ivory chantilly lace over tulle and taffeta with a scoop neckline outlined with seed pearls. The bouffant skirt extended into a slight circular train. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of lace and seed pearls. She carried a heart-shaped design of white hydrangeas and centered with a white orchid.

The bride was attended by her sister, Dr. Ellen Johnson Preston, as matron of honor. She wore a red lace ballerina length dress with matching Valentine red shoes. She carried a bouquet of white hydrangeas and red carnations in heart-shaped design.

Dr. H. Edward Kennedy of Chapel Hill attended his brother-in-law as best man. Ushers were Mr. Watson N. Sherrod Jr. of Enfield and Mr. Jozeg Askew of Burlington.

The bride's mother wore a gown of turquoise tulle, scattered with rhinestones. Her corsage was of fuschia orchids. The bridegroom's stepmother wore a navy blue gown of illusion and a corsage of red roses.

For a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., Mrs. Childress wore a matted black wool suit trimmed in pink and black accessories. Upon their return, the couple will make their home in Greenville.

The bride received an A.B. degree from Meredith College in Raleigh and an M.A. degree in Social Work at U.N.C. Mrs. Childress worked for three years at the State Hospital in Raleigh in the Department of Occupational Therapy. She has also worked at hospitals in Staunton, Va. and Durham, N. C.

The bridegroom received his A.B. degree from the U. N. C. and has served three years in the U. S. Navy.

Season Affects Even Bachelors And Spinsters

By JOY MILLER
NEW YORK (AP)—In this gay mad time of hearts and flowers, it is uplifting to reaffirm a highly regarded axiom:

Men prefer women, and women like men better than anybody.

This applies even to bachelors and bachelor girls. Or maybe, especially to bachelors and bachelor girls.

One of television's prime exponents of single blessedness—and the artful ad lib—was Robert Q. Lewis. A debonair 34-year-old quizmaster, Lewis admits he's a bachelor.

"But you can't call me a confirmed bachelor. Hate women? I love 'em."

So why isn't he married? "I'm looking for a girl who is intelligent, doesn't smoke or drink, isn't free with her kisses and doesn't like night clubs. Why I'm looking for her I'll never know."

Pause for laughter. He looks pensive.

"Actually I've been expecting to get married for 10 years, but I'm one of those unfortunate individuals who is too wrapped up in his work. If I ever marry, and I probably won't, it would be to a career woman who can understand why I would have to break bridge dates and why I would have to be alone sometimes."

"I like girls who have interests in life outside of just the home as a career."

"I don't particularly believe in the sentimental aspects of romance. I don't care for St. Valentine's Day at all. But if I don't send flowers and such, I get in dutch. You don't love me anymore is the priceless response. So I send 'em. To two girls. Don't ask me their names."

"A right."

One of the prettiest anomalies ever to be a spinster and at the same time gain TV popularity playing a bride is Audrey Meadows.

Audrey, the blonde wife in Jackie Gleason's honeymooner sketches, is well bred and ladylike as becomes a missionary's daughter brought up in China. But on the subject of men she is explicit. She says:

"I love men. I feel much more at ease with them. I can be closer friends with them. I have been engaged twice. If I married in either case I would have been divorced by now. You have to take time to know people and work out your problems before going to the altar. I take my time."

She looks mischievous.

"You'd better get this printed quick, though. I just might stop being a bachelor girl one of these days."

Moving Nearer To Biblical Span

NEW YORK, N.Y. — According to the mortality in 1954, the average length of life of America's wage-earners and their families climbed to within a tenth of a year of the Biblical three score years and ten, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company report.

This record is derived from the experience among the Metropolitan's industrial policyholders. The average length of life (expectation of life at birth) of these insured persons is now 69.9 years, the statisticians said.

The current figure is one year greater than that for 1953, and five and one-half years above that of a decade ago. Improvement has been more rapid for industrial policyholders than for the general population of the United States, the statisticians noted. In 1911-1912 the average length of life among these insured was only 46.6 years, or about six and one-half years below that for the population as a whole; at present the two are on a par.

More than 36,750,000 babies have been born in the United States in the last 10 years.

Big Appetite Is Escapee's Trap

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A mental patient who escaped from Central State Hospital in Norman took a cab driver for a ride but was trapped when the driver decided his appetite was too large.

The cabbie told police he picked up the escapee in a Norman tavern and drove him the 20 miles to Oklahoma City. The bill came to $8. The patient said he wanted to stop at a restaurant. He ordered six eggs. With that, the cab driver called police. The hospital was notified when the man told officers, "I'm crazy and don't have any money."

BIG HEART SCENE PREVIEWED

Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, National Co-Chairmen of Heart Fund Volunteers, stage a preview of a scene which will become a familiar one throughout the country on Heart Sunday, February 20, Lucille, wearing a Heart Fund Volunteer's badge, hands a Heart Sunday collection envelope to husband Desi. The nation-wide house-to-house Heart Sunday collection will be a highlight of the Heart Fund drive, which is to be conducted throughout February.

In accepting the appointment, Lucille and Desi said:

"We are proud and happy to have a part in this national crusade against diseases of the heart and circulation. As parents we are keenly aware of the fact that more than a half million children are affected by the heart diseases in this country, and as Americans we want to do our part toward helping to solve the nation's leading health problem."

"We sincerely wish that many hundreds of thousands of others will join us in volunteering their services for the 1955 Heart Fund, and that the Heart Sunday campaign will meet with the fullest measure of success. "Most of all we hope that the efforts of Heart Fund volunteers will be appreciated by the millions of Americans who will be asked to support the Heart Fund and that everyone will remember this appeal: 'Welcome your Heart Fund Volunteer on Heart Sunday, February 20.'"

Scientist Calls For Big Powers To End Threat

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—Otto Hahn, German Nobel Prize winner and the first scientist to split uranium, urged the big powers last night to seek peaceful coexistence lest mankind "extinguish itself."

"Mankind is able today or will be able in the near future to extinguish itself," the atomic expert warned, declaring the big powers "must negotiate even if their ideologies are basically different."

Hahn spoke as one of a series of scientist-lecturers broadcasting over stations in West Germany, Denmark, Norway and Austria.

Describing the horrors of future war, Hahn said the explosion of 10 cobalt-coated hydrogen bombs could endanger continuation of human life, "no matter where they are dropped."

"A single hydrogen bomb, like those possessed by the United States and the Soviet Union, could destroy cities like London, New York or Berlin with a single blow," he asserted.

Plan Big Probe Of Ransom Case

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Globe-Democrat reported today that a dozen or more witnesses are expected to be called in a "full-fledged" federal grand jury investigation into the missing $300,000 Greenlease ransom money.

The newspaper, which did not give the source of its information nor disclose names of the witnesses, said the inquiry is scheduled to begin today.

A federal grand jury at Kansas City investigated the kidnap-slaying case more than a year ago and indicted Louis Shoulters and Elmer Dolan, former St. Louis police officers who broke the case, for perjury.

Both Shoulters and Dolan were convicted on charges they lied to the Kansas City jury about the way they handled autopsies found to contain about half the $600,000 ransom after Carl Austin Hall's arrest in a St. Louis hotel in October 1953. The rest of the money is still missing.

Hall and his accomplice, Mrs. Bonnie Heady, later were executed for the kidnap-killing of Bobby Greenlease, 6-year-old son of a wealthy Kansas City auto dealer.

Locked In Safe For 20 Minutes

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Water Department computer Willard Spence was in the safe at his office when the heavy door swung shut, slammed by a painter.

The secretary who was supposed to have the combination, couldn't find it. She called a former employe who knew the combination. But he wasn't home. After more fumbling and fuming—20 minutes of it in all—the combination was found and the airtight safe opened.

"It was not in there," said Spence as he walked out red faced.

Crime Prevention: Everybody's Business

Crime prevention is everybody's business. It is not a field of activity reserved solely for law enforcement agencies and officers. It is a responsibility whose broad base reached every citizen of each community.

During this week, National Crime Prevention Week, communities throughout the nation will focus their attention on the causes of crime in their own locales and methods which may be used to remove the festers which breed crime and criminals.

The Exchange clubs which are actively sponsoring the week's activities throughout the state are seeking to prod the public conscience into taking a more forceful stand against crime in the individual communities.

An Explanation Would Be Helpful

Recurring reports from former government witnesses that they were "coerced" by government representatives into falsely linking individuals with communist activities causes us appreciable concern.

There is, of course, the possibility that a few government representatives, overzealous in a Red-hunting frenzy, applied too much pressure on witnesses, or perhaps extracted from them testimony which was not altogether accurate.

We rather think, however, that these recent developments may be caused by one of two things:

1. a subversive attempt to discredit the entire program by which communists have been ferreted out and their activities pinpointed; or
2. isolated cases where witnesses may have had some other ulterior motive in giving false testimony against individuals they linked with communist activities in this country.

A thorough investigation of the matters should be made by proper government authorities and a full report made to the people.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
BUT AFTER DEFEAT—VICTORY
Think of the defeats that stand out as great turning points in the history of nations. Bunker Hill was a defeat and was for a long time looked upon with chagrin and disappointment, yet that defeat had more glorious results and a more wide-reaching influence in the history of our country than almost any of our military victories. The famous Battle of Thermopylae was a defeat, but it has thrilled the ages because it was a moral victory. Some months ago we considered the anniversary of Pearl Harbor. Our proud nation was prostrated as the result of that catastrophe, yet out of it came preparation and determination which eventually won the war.

And so it is with life every day. In our moments of wishful thinking, we often imagine how happy we would be if we could just go on from one victory to another, each mounting above the other in magnitude and significance. Yet if we look back over our lives, we find that perhaps our greatest lessons have been learned from our defeats. There come times in the lives of every one of us when there must be readjustment, reappraisal, and very often the re-routing of our lives along different highways.

We can never develop courage unless we have an opportunity to be defeated. We must be made to understand unless we are compelled to hope and believe in the possibility of something the reality of which is beyond our sight.

Haunted By Coffee Price Cut

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—The prospect of premium vacuum-packed coffee at this pound may delight American housewives and their families, the accompanying loss of revenue to 10 shaly South and Central American countries creates grave concern at the State Department. A cheaper breakfast drink here may mean Communist gains there.
The price break, which will not be reflected at retail stores for a month or more, results from a combination of economic factors. The major contribution was the unsuccessful attempt of coffee-growing countries and politicians, especially in Brazil, to violate the supply-and-demand laws through government manipulation, reminiscent of certain New Deal theories.
Another factor was American resentment and boycott of excessive prices, which led to greater consumption of tea, milk and less stimulating beverages.
STATE DEPARTMENT CONCERNED—Still a third cause was the condemnation of the so-called "coffee squeeze" by Congressional committees and the Federal Trade Commission. The headline-seeking Gillette Committee blamed South American exporters and American importers. The FTC cited the New York Coffee Exchange for alleged anti-trust violations, although its delay in holding hearings indicates that the case will be disposed of through compromise.
State's current concern derives from renewed Communist charges that "American imperialists" forced down the price for selfish reasons. Coffee revenues contribute from 30 to 70 per cent of those countries' total national revenue. Guatemala, where we had to intervene militarily against a Red coup, provides 3 per cent of the world's coffee supply.
Brazil, our friendliest neighbor in this distraught area, may go bankrupt as a result of the fall in prices. In short, cheaper coffee in the United States may be a political poison for us below the Rio Grande.
TAX INCREASE POSSIBLE—Ironically, our sav-unities. Their theory that "crime prevention begins in the high chair, not in the electric chair" aptly sets forth the problem which confronts any group which strives to get at the very root of crime.

Were crime prevention left entirely to law enforcement agencies, we would see the crime rate of the nation soar to much greater heights than is now the case. It is the responsibility of parents, teachers, workers, businessmen and even children. It is a fundamental principle of good citizenship to uphold the laws in one's own activities and likewise to use one's influence to encourage others to uphold the laws. Each individual must accept a portion of the responsibility for the prevention of crime in his own community.

The community whose citizens take an active interest in crime prevention day in and day out is the community whose record of crime remains at a minimum. The community whose citizens "leave it to the law" to do the whole job of crime prevention soon finds it is breeding young criminals at a rapid rate.

Uncle Sam Must Gradually Share Nuclear Monopoly

Private industry must be given a wider scope of operations in the field of nuclear development if the United States is to reach its optimum in the adaptation of this relatively new source of energy to peace-time uses.

The announcement of the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York that it plans to build the first privately financed nuclear power plant is a most significant step for this nation. Now that one company has broken the ice by financing a project independent of the government, it is likely that others will follow in rapid succession.

Private industry, of course, in working with the government and through government financing, has done a great deal of the research in nuclear energy in the United States. Under this plan great strides have been made in a relatively few years. We are rapidly moving to the day when nuclear energy will be adapted for use in many domestic fields.

While the government must see that nuclear secrets are carefully guarded, it can not afford to prevent private industry from developing useful applications of this new-found energy to wide variety of uses. Government officials, of course are aware of this fact and are moving federal policies in that direction. Just as private industry has applied electricity to thousands of new uses since that great power was harnessed, private industry must accept the responsibility of applying nuclear energy to widespread constructive uses.

If the United States is to realize the full potential of nuclear energy for peace-time as well as war-time uses, the government must gradually share its virtual monopoly on nuclear developments with private industry.

ings from cheaper coffee may be taken away from us in the form of higher taxes. If resulting economic distress produces Communist advances near the Panama Canal and domestic revolts, the United States will have to increase its currently small contributions to these countries.
The cost will not figure in the coffee bill at the grocers', but it will show up in the income tax report. It will be, in effect, a coffee subsidy.
The interplay of economic and political forces these days extends from American kitchens to South and Central American coffee plantations, and from the State Department to the Kremlin.
POLITICOS ALERT—The experience of Brazil provides certain clinching comments on government interference with private trade and enterprise. It should be studied by Capitol Hill advocates of 90 or 100 per cent support of farm prices.
The great postwar appetite for coffee led Rio de Janeiro politicians to try to cash in on their major product, which provides 70 per cent of their national revenue. They raised the export duty to 90 cents a pound, which meant $1.30 and $1.40 at American retail.
DROP IN EXPORTS—Exports dropped from 15,000,000 bags in 1953 to 10,000,000 in 1954. Brazilian warehouses, like our own, bulged with unsaleable coffee. Competing countries lowered their export charges, grabbing Brazil's overseas market.
Rio cut its export tariff to 87 cents, then to 65 cents, and within the last week has reduced it to 57 cents. It is this abandonment of government manipulation which, in a month or so, should bring the retail price of coffee to 80 or 90 cents for the best grades, and to 75 or 70 cents for lower quality.
Meanwhile, farm surpluses owned by the U. S. amount to almost $7 billion because, as was true of Brazil's coffee, nobody can afford to buy them at or near the price which Uncle Sam has paid for them.

Business Today

Time Helps Sharpies

By ELMER ROESSNER
The Federal Trade Commission, postal inspectors, the U. S. Attorney General, Better Business Bureau and state and local prosecutors are all arrayed against the sharp business practitioners.

But he has one ally besides people's gullibility. That's time. The FTC has cracked (if that's the word) down on cigarette, soap and other companies for deceptive or misleading claims. But time after time, it turns out that the alleged misfeasance concerned advertising campaigns that have run their course. The accused firms readily consent to cease and desist orders because they have already ceased, and desist means the same thing. The FTC has another victory for its annual report to Congress and the offender has a good chuckle.

A week ago the FTC brought charges of misleading advertising against a food manufacturer. The manufacturer pointed out that he had dropped the campaign in November, 1953. So the FTC has scheduled a hearing for March 22.

About the same time the St. Louis Better Business Bureau denounced a "count the diamonds" contest and the Brooklyn Federal Grand Jury indicted two promoters. It charged that first, second and third prize winners were selected by drawing and all other entrants entitled to a tiny stone if they paid an excessive mounting fee. But by this time the contest has been staged all over the country.

Another New York grand jury is investigating some of those television commercials, it seems that sewing machines, storm windows and other articles were offered at very low prices, but when somebody bit, a salesman called and said the article ordered is junk and proceeded to sell something costing many times the advertised price. These commercials have been going on for more than two years. The FTC and other organizations are not entirely to blame for the time lag. The suckers and honest businessmen must share it. If every gyped customer is quick to stand up on his hind feet and complain—and if every merchant cheated of sales hollers—these regulatory agencies would move faster and, perhaps, more effectively.

TAXES UP? DOWN? NOBODY BOTHERS
Prof. Robert Ferber, of the University of Illinois, last May asked 166 residents of Urbana, Champaign County, Ill., questions about excise taxes, which had just been revised. His findings, just published in the National Tax Journal, show:
Two of three were unaware that the tax had been reduced on luggage. Only one in four knew the tax was down in theater admissions. Only one in six knew the tax on refrigerators was lower. From 10 to 14 per cent thought the taxes on autos and shoes were lower, whereas they had not been changed. Only one of the 116 were correct on all five items. This little study leads to several conjectures:
People are completely confused about taxes.
GOT THE TROUBLE? STAY DOWNSTAIRS
While the government is more liberal in permitting the deduction of medical expenses in calculating income taxes, it has drawn some lines. The Tax Court has held that the cost of constructing an elevator in the home of a person suffering from a heart ailment is not deductible as a medical expense. This is tough on (1) people with weak hearts and, according to companies that install home-size elevators.

The Bible Can Play Important Role In Far East Affairs

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK Mass. — Four hundred years ago, my ancestor, the Rev. John Rogers, was burned at the stake in London, England, on February 4, 1555. To commemorate him and to do some current comments, is my desire today.

BIBLES WERE SMUGGLED INTO ENGLAND
The Rev. John Rogers was martyred for his work of translating the Bible into the English language and circulating this complete Bible in England. Tyndale, with the help of Coverdale, translated the New Testament and a portion of the Old Testament, as far as II Chronicles, when he was martyred therefor. Then John Rogers—under the assumed name of "Mathews"—completed the Bible in its entirety for readers in England. This was in 1537 and he did most of the work in Holland.
From Holland, the English imported flour, cheeses, and other foods. My ancestor arranged with the packers of the barrels and crates containing these food products to hide a Bible among the contents and thereby smuggled these Bibles into England. When he returned to England, about ten years later, he was arrested and imprisoned in the Tower of London. Finally he was martyred at "Smithfield," where I have seen a bronze marker telling this story of his martyrdom.

IMPORTANCE OF SACRIFICE
There are many lessons for us from the above experience. First, is the consecration of the priests and preachers of that day and their willingness to make any sacrifice, including their lives. Our unwillingness to sacrifice for our Church and Faith is a basic difficulty of the U. S. today. It is good to see church membership and attendance increase, but these figures mean little unless accompanied by a willingness to sacrifice.
Jesus never quoted statistics—

He demanded that His followers be judged by their works of righteousness. I would go even further and say that the greatness of every powerful nation has been made possible by the people's sacrifice. When the willingness to sacrifice declined, the nation's economic strength declined along with its spiritual strength. In fact, the best U. S. barometer of our spiritual strength is the value of our dollar. It increases or decreases according to our willingness to sacrifice for what is right.

WE MUST AGAIN TEACH BIBLE TO OUR CHILDREN
The second lesson applies to the great need of more Bible reading today. When I was a boy, most New England families were Bible-reading families with daily family prayers. We were all taught to obey Bible Teachings and to memorize them. I believe that we must again install the Bible as a family guide and as

Senate Ahead, House Behind, Last Assembly's Mark

By LYNN NISBET
RECORD — Rep. William B. Rodman Jr. of Beaufort holds the record for bill introductions to date in the Legislature. His name appears on 27 bills and resolutions. Runners up are Reps. Thomas Turner of Guilford and David Clark of Lincoln. Rodman, Turner and Clark were members of the government reorganization commission and a number of the bills bearing their signatures are to effectuate recommendations of the commission. Rodman got the edge in number of introductions by reason of being chairman of the finance committee and also a member of the advisory budget commission, making it necessary for him to sponsor budget-approved changes in the tax laws.
Sen. Arthur Kirkman of Guilford is the champion introducer on that side of the capitol. He edged ahead of Sen. W.D. James Jr. of Richmond at Friday's session. Up to then Kirkman had been tied at 15 each. Kirkman put in his sixteenth to win the title.

At close of business Saturday, the 4th day of the session and end of the fifth full week, there had been introduced a total of 132 bills and resolutions in the Senate, twelve ahead of last session to comparable date, and 218 in the House, an even fifty behind the 1953 record.
Of the 350 measures introduced only sixty have been ratified, fifty laws and ten resolutions. This is just about half the number of ratifications to comparable date in 1953.
Despite the poor comparative showing with respect to bill introductions and ratifications, and in face of frequent complaints about legislative business lagging, the leaders insist they are not "behind" and are pretty well satisfied with the progress being made. It isn't the number of bills but the type of legislation proposed in them that should be the criterion, they say.

Why Career Girls Get Ulcers

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone comment by a Payment Plan: Are the strains of modern life beginning to affect even women? It would seem they are, particularly with career girls. The iron nerves of housewives are still being honed, perhaps because they dress more sensibly and can lie down and relax in between the times they are prodding their husbands up the ladder of success.
But the career girl—Horatio Alger's mythical granddaughter, Hortense—often finds her life in the business world keeps her in endless tension.
Some signs that this is true: Women used to marry ulcers. Now they're getting more and more ulcers themselves.
Bartenders report that more and more secretaries and stenographers are having cocktails at lunch to bolster them up for a long hard afternoon of trying to make the boss look like he knows his job.
If you stand on a mid-Manhattan street corner and watch the glamour girls of business go by, you will notice that about one out of every ten of these trim beauties is nervously gnawing her lip twisting her lovely face all out of shape over some inner worry.
Why?
My theory is that career girls are caught between a man's world and a woman's world. They are doing a man's work all day while dressed up as if they were a movie star on her way to launch a battleship. They are bawled out by their employers instead of trying to fix a drain-pipe while clad in a straitjacket.
No wonder they sometimes are cranky and moody, get easily upset over trifles, or miss out on a promotion because they can't put it on with one hand tied behind you—this I'd like to see—and buy shoes at least one size, and preferably two, larger than the ones you're wearing."

REORGANIZATION — It is true that while there have been a lot of local and minor bills, the list contains nearly all the important state wide measures which had been recommended by the advisory budget commission and the several study groups.
The commission on reorganization of State government filed eight reports in which at least ten changes in organizational structure and departmental functions were proposed. Bills designed to effectuate seven of these proposals have been put in the mill, and the others are expected within a few days. There remains a few minor changes in other departments and several in the activities of the Governor's office.
HB-167 introduced last Monday night by Turner, Rodman and Clark, would place almost absolute control of the prison department in the hands of the director, leaving the highway commission with little more than advisory authority and responsibility for paying the bills.
HB-188 introduced Wednesday by the same trio would combine the State Library, the Library Commission and other related activities under one new board of Library-Trustees.

HB-189, same date and sponsorship, would place control of local mental health clinics under the State Board of Health.
HB-196, again the same trio of introducers, removes the Industrial Commission from any connection with the Department of Labor and transfers to the Labor Department responsibility for enforcing all industrial safety laws.
HB-213, 214 and 215, also by Rodman, Turner and Clark, put into the statutes the recommendations for transfer of certain functions and powers among the offices of the State Auditor, State Treasurer, Revenue Commissioner and Assistant Director of the Budget.
OTHERS — Meantime HB-201, sent up by Rep. Oscar Barker of Durham and others, would put into law the recommendations of the study commission of higher education. Its main provision is to set up a State Board of Higher Education with power to coordinate activities, including budgets, of all tax supported colleges and universities. The separate institutional boards of trustees would retain major control over administration.
SB-9 and HB-12, companion bills introduced the second day of the session by Senator Paul Jones of Pitt and Rep. George Uzell of Rowan, would transfer from the State Board of Education to local county and city boards complete control over the enrollment, allocation and transportation of public school pupils. That is in line with recommendations of the special Governor's Advisory Commission on Education, and is designed to soften the impact of the Supreme Court anti-segregation decision.

SB-112, introduced by Sen. Carl Hicks of Greene, contains the proposed revisions and codifications in the public school laws as recommended by the special commission head by Fred Folger of Mount Airy, which spent months on the job of weeding out surplus language and duplicate provisions in the school statutes.
These several pending bills are expected to occupy a lot of time in the committees to which they have been referred, and occasion prolonged debate when they get into the regular sessions of the Senate and House. They will be vigorously opposed by the agencies and departments which are adversely affected and it is doubted that all of the changes proposed will be made at this Legislature.
Meanwhile consideration of appropriations and finance budget bills are moving slowly, but with the kind of movement which suggests that a spurt of speed at the wind-up might make possible a relatively early adjournment.

At close of business Saturday, the 4th day of the session and end of the fifth full week, there had been introduced a total of 132 bills and resolutions in the Senate, twelve ahead of last session to comparable date, and 218 in the House, an even fifty behind the 1953 record.

STAMPS AT CUT PRICES
STIR STORE'S COMPETITORS
A Philadelphia store got its competitors just cr-r-r-ry.
It advertised 100 one-cent postage stamps for 75 cents. This called attention to even bigger cuts, proportionately, on appliances. Long lines formed before the store on the day of the sale.
Competitors breathlessly complained to postal authorities in vain. It's legal to sell stamps at cut prices—or to give them away.

Pirates Crush Elon Hopes With 92 - 80 Win Saturday

Tiger Jones And Charley Norkus Get Big Chance

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Ralph (Tiger) Jones and Charley Norkus get the "once in a lifetime" chance this week to muscle into the big money in boxing.

Jones, an upset winner over Sugar Ray Robinson after losing five in a row, gets a non-title shot at middleweight champion Carl (Bobo) Olson Wednesday at Cincinatti in the same ring where he whipped Sugar Ray. If Jones should win, or even make it close in an exciting bout, he might get a crack at the crown next summer.

Olson probably will box Joey Maxim, the former light-heavyweight king, in another over-the-weight match at San Francisco in March before he makes another defense.

Robinson, incidentally, will probably continue his comeback against the advice of many boxing men, by meeting Johnny Lombardo at Cincinnati March 15.

Norkus' big chance comes Friday at Madison Square Garden against Eszard Charles, the former heavyweight champion. On the strength of a knockout over Charley Powell highly touted former football star, and a decision over Roland LaStarza Norkus is No. 9 among the contenders. Charles, making his first start since his two losing fights with Rocky Marciano last year, is No. 1 among the challengers.

Gene Fullmer, one of the bright new stars in the middleweight division with 27 straight victories, bumps up against clever Paul Pender, of Boston, in an interesting match tonight at Eastern Parkway Arena in Brooklyn. Fullmer whipped Jackie LaBusa, Peter Mueller and Marcel Assire to impress local critics. Pender showed flashes of his pre-Marine form when he outpointed Ted Olla Dec. 20. He has won three since his discharge from the Marines.

ABC will telecast Jackie Blais, Dallas veteran of 111 fights, visits New York for the second time of his career to box Kenny Lane, of Muskegon, Mich., at St. Nicholas Arena tonight. DuMont will telecast.

Farley men Aim For 11th Consecutive Conference Win In Jacksonville Game

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

With ten consecutive wins for the 1955 conference season, Coach Bo Farley's century scoring basketball team from Greenville High School aim for win number 11 in loop play tomorrow night in the Greenville gym against Jacksonville.

In an earlier meeting between the two schools in Jacksonville the G-men looked terrible for over two periods of play, then snapped out of the temporary slump to romp over the Cardinals 74-39.

Cards Number Three

The Cardinals are the number three team in the league now. They have a record of six wins and four losses. The Jacksonville team caused plenty of raised eyebrows around the league last Tuesday when they stalled the ball around and held Kingston to an almost standstill. The Red Devils eked out a slim 44-40 win over the Cards.

The Green Phantoms will pit their high scoring offense against the possible stalling attack of the Cards. Since the Jacksonville squad enjoyed such high success with it against the Red Devils, it will not be a surprise if they use it against Coach Farley's boys.

G-men Hit 100 Four Times

The high scoring Greenies have hit 100 points four times this season on their way to one of the highest scoring averages ever recorded by a high school team in this state. Over the entire 16 games the Phantoms have played this season they have averaged 79.6 points per game. In all games their opponents have averaged 49.1 points per game. In conference competition only the G-men are averaging 85.7 while their foes are averaging 48.8.

A good fast break has been the key to the Phantoms' high scoring success so far this season. The fast break has been the big weapon for the Greenies all year with Harold Edwards and Bob Howell grabbing the rebounds that start it.

Edwards and Howell will lead the G-men scoring into the Jacksonville game. Edwards, the league's leading scorer, will start at center with his average of over 18 points per game. Howell, a starting forward, is averaging over 16 points per game. Edgar Moore will be at one forward opposite Howell. The guards will probably be Pat Sawyer and Ike Riddick. Tommie Saleed may start at a guard, but the senior sharpshooter still is not at top strength after a spell of flu.

Clark Noble will be the main sub and will probably get to play a lot. Noble looked impressive in the Roanoke Rapids game Friday night with a 21 point effort, 19 in the last half.

The varsity game starts at eight o'clock tomorrow night with a seven o'clock tap at 6:30.

All ECC Starters Hit Double Figures

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's Bucs raced to a 58-point first half against Elon's Christians here Saturday night and held on to trip Coach Doc Mathis' gritty command 92-80 in a North State Conference game.

The defeat ended Elon's hope of winding up either first or second in conference activity, and pushed them behind Lenoir Rhyne, East Carolina and Atlantic Christian in the standings.

The victory kept Coach Howard Porter's Pirates in pace with ACC for second place and increased their chances for a possible first-place deadlock with Lenoir Rhyne. ECC's league record is 11-3 and the front-running Bears have a 11-2 mark. ACC has a 11-3 mark, having defeated Guilford in their last outing.

With Cravel (Nick) Nichols turning in the greatest effort of his career, the Purple and Gold rolled to its 35th successive homecourt triumph. Nichols was the man of the hour with 31 points and 12 rebounds. He drilled 11 field goals and nine free throws for his total, the highest he ever recorded. He hit 23 markers at halftime in a spurt that left the Christians breathless.

East Carolina held a 20-point advantage at halftime, 58-38. After intermission, though, the Fighting Christians, living up to their name, came roaring back to seriously challenge the hometown in the next 20 minutes.

It was the phenomenal basket-busting of big Ed Juratic that pulled the Christians within catching distance. The rough-going Juratic forced in 20 points, 10 in a row in one thrust, winding up with 22 for the evening. He pulled down an even dozen rebounds and did a fine defensive job on Nichols in the second half.

East Carolina had all five starters scoring in the double figures. Don Harris topped his 20-point average with a 25 count, good enough for runner-up honors. J. C. Thomas pumped in 14 points, 10 of which came in the second half when they were needed the most. Captain Cecil Heath collected 13 points and set up many easy shots for his teammates with fine ball-handling. Guy Mendenhall, freshman center, got 11 and did a fine defensive job on Frank Derris, the Christians' tall center, who could muster only nine points.

Ray Whitley, a fast-moving guard, bucketed 16 points for runner-up laurels for Elon. Dave Maddox, a bespectacled sharpshooter, tallied 15.

Bucs Cool Off

After a sizzling first half, the Bucs cooled off considerably in the second. They could collect only six points in the first eight minutes whereas the Christians were bagging 13.

The four-minute mile indoors is a long way off.

If Santee runs himself out with a 1:59 half, as he did in the Baxter Mile of the New York A.C. Games Saturday night, there isn't much hope. A miler has to come close to two minutes for the half if he is going to cross the finish in four minutes.

Dwyer himself put his finger on the crux of the situation when he observed that 1:59 is too fast for a half indoors.

Dwyer passed the fading Santee and Nielsen just before the three-quarter mark and won by a cool 65 yards in 4:06.2. Nielsen's second place time was 4:18.5 and Santee, three yards behind Gunnar, was caught in 4:17.

Nielsen had an excuse of sorts if he wanted to use it having suffered an attack of the grippie during the week. But he said it didn't hurt him.

Inter-Squad Grid Game To Climax Winter Practice

Seven weeks of winter football drills will culminate in the annual Purple and Gold inter-squad game, Saturday afternoon, Head Coach Jack Boone announced today.

The game will get underway at 2 p.m. sharp and will pit some 44 players from whom the 1955 Pirate grid machine will come.

Boone said that seniors will be selected to coach the teams so that entire program will be handled by students. These coaches will be announced shortly as will the rosters for the respective teams.

This afternoon, according to Boone, the players will be assigned to teams and numbers issued.

The tilt will afford viewers a preview of things to come on the gridiron. The squad has looked impressive in workouts and seem to have retained the drive and spirit that carried them to the first North State Conference crown in 1953.

Dick Cherry, Little-All-America candidate, is back in the saddle and looking better than ever. His presence may be the tonic the Pirates need.

Next season's team will be made up of young boys with a lot of determination. Of course, old reliables like Cherry, Lou Hallow, J. D. Bradford, and Emo Boado will be back. But for this year's freshmen and sophomores you'll want to watch.

The coaching staff of Boone, Jim Mallory and Earl Smith may have the makings of another championship outfit. The prospects of this can be observed Saturday afternoon.

Admission for the game will be $1. Pirate Club members will be admitted on their memberships.

ACC Cage Race Has Three Crucial Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The tight fight for the leadership of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race could either get tighter or break wide open as a result of at least three games this week.

Currently North Carolina State and Maryland are tied for first with 9-2 records, followed closely by Duke, 8-2. North Carolina, which was in the middle of things last week, almost is out of contention now as a result of defeats by Virginia and Maryland, Friday and Saturday respectively.

Maryland has two games set this week, against Clemson tomorrow and Saturday night engagement at Raleigh against State. Clemson, which has won only one game in 15 starts this season and dropped 10 straight ACC contests, isn't expected to bother the Terps much. But the Maryland-State game could be the crucial one of the regular season.

State also is faced with a man-sized job when the high-flying Blue Devils invade Raleigh tomorrow. Duke could step into first with a victory, if Maryland should get beat, otherwise, the Blue Devils would have to be content with second.

The Blue Devils have won nine of their past 12 games, winning their past four outings. The latest victory came over Navy Saturday, 76-56, with forward Ronnie Mayer scoring 25 points before he fouled out.

The Wolfpack has won nine of its past 12 games and the last five straight. State scored 646 points in its past six games, averaging almost 108 points per game. State's last win came Saturday over South Carolina, 92-71.

Maryland has fared as well, winning eight of 10 games since the Terps captured the All-American Tournament at Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 30. The two defeats came from George Washington. The Terps knocked off North Carolina Saturday, 68-61, when Bob Kessler scored with two seconds remaining.

Seven of this week's 11 games are conference tilts. The action starts tonight when Clemson invades Virginia.

The standings, conference records first, then overall marks: N. C. State, 9-2, 21-4; Maryland, 9-2, 15-4; Duke, 8-2, 15-5; North Carolina, 7-4, 9-8; Wake Forest, 5-4, 13-7; Virginia, 4-8, 11-10; South Carolina 1-11, 9-11; Clemson, 0-10,

Dwyer Points Up Inescapable Fact On Indoor Mile

NEW YORK (AP)—Out of all the furor accompanying Fred Dwyer's mile victory over the two "invincibles"—Wes Santee and Gunnar Nielsen—came an inescapable conclusion today:

The four-minute mile indoors is a long way off.

If Santee runs himself out with a 1:59 half, as he did in the Baxter Mile of the New York A.C. Games Saturday night, there isn't much hope. A miler has to come close to two minutes for the half if he is going to cross the finish in four minutes.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

Fred sighed and went on with his story of how Jimmie and Annie finally decided to be married. "Yes, I was feeling pretty good about it, too. Annie blossomed like a rose—"

"It's surely too bad that the girl was killed."

"It's too bad! May's dead but, Murphy—the others—Annie and Jimmy. They've got their lives ahead."

"You mean Annie will blame him?"

"No. She'll blame herself. I can just hear her arguments. Every body's going to forget that May was flighty to the point of being foolish. Jimmie's going to crawl in self-reproach. And Annie will sternly return to what she knew all along was her duty—Oh, I can just hear her!"

"She'll get over it."

"This is her wedding night. Unless I can talk her into going on with Jimmy tonight, Murph—that honeymoon will never be. She'll grow more bitter with each day. On top of that she'll condemn any amorous move her father might make. He's forty, and lusty. Her little brothers and sisters need a mother, too. You see, Murph, why I had to come out here tonight?"

"I see what you think you see, Fritz. But I still don't know what you can do."

"Neither do I. But you can bet I'll do what I can."

"Do you care if I watch your opportunities arise?"

"Why the devil do you suppose I brought you along?"

It was a story which Murphy was to tell many times. He made a humorous thing of its telling but somehow that evening Murphy found no occasion to smile. Telling his story, Murphy always began:

"It could be called taking over the functions of Fate, if not God, but no one seemed to think it presumption on Fritz's part. Why, I couldn't believe my eyes and ears, the way he—"

The long ranch house was ablaze with lights when the station wagon nosed through the gates. In the doorway, Stetson-hatted men turned grave faces to greet the doctor, and spoke soberly to him. Fred went up the steps to the porch, and into the big room with its Indian rugs and its scuffed furniture. He spoke to the women seated there. Tom Martin came forward at once, his ruddy face worn with the long day and its events.

"This is a bad thing, Tom," said Fred gently. "I'm sorry I was out of town."

Tom looked beyond Fred's shoulder. "Dr. Hudson was good to us."

"I know. But I'm sorry I wasn't here, as a friend."

"There weren't nuthin' anybody could do. Doc! Even you couldn't help a poor May. You're not to blame yourself for bein' gone."

Murphy watched the bereaved father lighten his own load by his effort to comfort and reassure Fred. This was repeated over and over through the evening. Fred would express his regret; the one to whom he talked would comfort him, and so find relief.

Fred took his time; he talked to each one, heard the story over and over; he said the same things in reply. Murphy took up a position near the door and watched. More neighbors came in and again Fred must listen to their words, agree with the general opinion that this was a bad thing, a sad one. Stories were exchanged of other weddings turned into disaster. From there the talk went to practical things, to the crops, and the weather.

Hours went by. It was almost midnight when Fred went over to Jimmie, who sat unhappy in a chair; he rose at the doctor's approach. Fred looked about for Annie, who came to him.

"I'm going to have to go back to town," he said. "I hope folks'll clear out and let the family get some rest. You've all had a hard day with a couple more to come. Jimmie, if I were you, I'd take Annie down home now, see that she gets a good night's sleep—she'll be more able to handle things in the morning." He looked away from Annie, who seemed ready to say something. "Mrs. Dowling," he said clearly to a woman across the room. "Can you stay here tonight?"

"I'll be glad to, Doc."

With the whole room full watching, listening Annie could do nothing but let Jimmie put his arm around her shoulder, lead her out to his car.

Fred led an exodus of the visitors. Mrs. Dowling, with Tom Martin at her side, watched the cars depart. He said, "I take it," said Murphy, groaning as he stretched his legs in the car "that the woman in pink is Martin's widow?"

"Yes," said Fred.

"And that she's the kind to make an ell out of an inch?"

"She's a good woman, Murph." He turned the car toward town. "Annie and Jim—the accident will be a shadow, but it won't have ruined things."

"Thanks to you. Though I doubt if you get an ell out of an inch."

Fred glanced at him. "I doubt if I want any. In the first place, I suspect that I was the only one to see what might have developed."

"I think Jimmie had a faint notion."

"He's a nice boy."

"You think he can take over now? Or will you have to go on playing God?"

Fred grinned.

"Want me to drive, Fritz? You must be tired."

"I am tired, but I'll sleep. I'm afraid I haven't done much to entertain you Murph."

"I've been entertained. Don't fret about that."

"You and Mamma . . ."

"I know how to protect myself there. I stay clean away from Mamma."

Fred chuckled. "She'll leave at the end of the week."

"I'll have to go then, myself."

"Kyle's much better."

"He's conscious, if that's better. Been really better if he'd died, wouldn't it?"

"Why?"

"Let me ask why. Why don't you play a little God there?"

"I don't agree that I play God at all. In some circumstances, perhaps I have the ability or the imagination to look ahead, and then endeavor to clear the path of the future where and how I can. Any man of understanding and foresight could do the same thing."

"Looks to me as if you have enough to do without that sort of defying. And it's none of your business, really, whether Annie Martin is wife, or maid."

"But I think it is my business! Annie has done what she can for her brothers and sisters. Anything further would be—much and not good for anyone concerned. Now she should be having her own family; she'll have a good one,

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, Real Estate Editor

Why give advice? There's an old saying that a man who is smart enough to take advice, never needs any. But so many homeowners have been swindled lately—and still are being swindled—by so-called "suede-shoe salesmen" and "dynamite dealers" in cut-rate home modernization that conscience begins to push us toward dishing out some ad—well at least a few suggestions.

The only trouble is that ever since we got out of the Army we have hated to be told "Don't". So perhaps you recall we wrote some detailed instructions on "How to Break Your Neck at Home" and "How to Burn Your House Down"; because this modern "How-to" idea seems to be much more popular than "Don't".

Now we suspect that most householders are ready for a little lesson in "How To Be Swindled."

Oh, no? The judge will be sympathetic, of course, and since a legal contract is a legal contract in court, when the judge is compelled by the law to hand down judgment against you, he might even make some sympathetic remark. A New York judge recently was quoted as saying:

"Only successful defense to a suit such as this, is the defense that the plaintiff is guilty of fraud in obtaining the signature on the contract. In the absence of such proof and the presence of a signed contract, the judge must decide in favor of the plaintiff."

Your lawyer at this time may be sympathetic, too, and say something about it having been too bad that you didn't let him read that contract before you signed it.

But brother, you won't be lone-some if you are swindled in this way. You will have plenty of company.

"Several hundred cases have been referred to the FBI for investigation," says Norman F. Mason, commissioner of the F.H.A. (He doesn't mean cases of homeowner victims. He means "dynamiters.")

Since Mason took office in April, 1954, "precautionary measures" have been taken against 983 fly-by-night home improvement dealers and salesmen. Another 89 such persons have been indicted for frauds.

Of course, if you want to spoil this game and not get swindled, you'll go to that old reliable contractor in your community, to your own bank or other lending institution, and talk to your own lawyer.

You'll find even more company by doing things in the conventional way, because a lot of people are asking good use of F.H.A. home improvement loans. In 10 months after Mason took over, 1,355,600 such loans had been insured by the F.H.A.—pretty close to the 1,550,000 listed for the corresponding period of the previous year.

So everybody doesn't go in for getting swindled.

"Lending institutions and Better Business Bureaus have most helpful to the F.H.A.," Mason says, "in our efforts to protect homeowners against unscrupulous salesmen and dealers who would exploit the Title I program. (Title I is the home improvement loan, up to $2,500 with three years to repay in monthly installments.)

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures
The television screen brings world events and famous personalities within shooting range of our cameras in our own homes. Using the newest, fastest black-and-white films now available, almost any type of camera can produce a satisfactory image from present day TV screens.

The essential point is that all the light for the picture taking comes from the television screen itself. All other light is immaterial and may be harmful in creating reflections on the glass surface of the screen. It still is a surprise to many camera men that you must never use a flash as it would only blank out the entire image on the screen.

Experts say that 1-30 of a second is the perfect speed at which to shoot a television screen image. This is why the television picture, like motion pictures, is made up of many individual images. Each image is formed on every screen by 525 horizontal scanning lines activated by an electron beam. Each image is the result of two operations:

1. The electron beam starts at the top and skips every other line till it reaches the bottom. This takes 1-60 of a second but only half the picture is there.

2. It starts up from the bottom and fills in the alternate lines. This takes another 1-60 of a second. When it is finished, the image is complete due to the persistence of vision and the total time is 1-30 of a second.

The normal snapshot setting for most cameras, 1-25 of a second, is the recommended shooting speed, since few cameras are calibrated for 1-30 second. However, many photographers have experimented and gotten satisfactory results at 1-60th and 1-100th of a second. The subject matter would have to be unusually bright, however. If the subject matter is dark or if a slower film were used, the longer exposures are necessary—1-10th, 1-10th or even 1/2 a second. In these cases, it would be even more necessary to select a point of inaction or a peak of action to avoid subject movement.

The availability of the newest, fast films is a great help in this type of shooting. With the speed at 1-25 you can set the lens at f5.6 or f6.3 for a normal exposure and regular development. Inexpensive cameras, whose lenses are slower, can still shoot at 1-25 but the fast films would then be developed up to 100 per cent longer to get satisfactory pictures.

It is important that the camera is level with, and squarely facing, the TV screen to prevent undue distortion, which is likely to be present anyway. A tripod is a helpful accessory at this point, but a table or chair or other sturdy object at the right height can be used to keep the camera in position after focusing.

Reflex cameras, or those with a groundglass, are easiest to handle to get the sharp focus necessary and the largest image size possible. This introduces the problem of parallax in a reflex camera because the viewing lens is above the taking lens. Some small adjustment may be necessary.

The No. 1 or No. 2 accessory portrait lenses are helpful in making bigger images for many cameras. When adjusted, distances have to be carefully measured with a ruler from lens to screen. Then the camera distance scale has to be set properly in accordance to directions which come with the accessory lens.

A groundglass for inexpensive cameras can be improvised by do-it-yourself fans. Use kitchen wax paper, rough-surface acetate or a developed piece of blank negative. Cut it to a size slightly larger than your film size. Open the back of your camera and tape the translucent film so it remains flat across the film plane. Set your camera on Time exposure and open the lens wide. You now have an improvised groundglass and can see exactly how close you can get to your TV screen and where to center the image. However, the camera must not be moved from exact placement while you remove the groundglass substitute, put your film in place and adjust the speed and the lens for shooting.

The television picture has to be adjusted somewhat differently from normal viewing in order to make a better target for your camera. The brightness control should be brighter than normal while the contrast control should be softer or a little grayer than normal. This combination is aimed to get all the detail and pick up contrast to make a better looking photograph.

Women In The Church

A resolution authorizing the President to proclaim Sunday, April 3, 1955, a special day of prayer for the "Men and Women in White" was introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Antoni N. Sedlak of Connecticut. Mr. Sedlak said the idea of a special tribute to doctors and nurses originated with "Mom" Basinet, a youth worker of Hartford, Conn. Mrs. Basinet conceived the plan during a stay in the hospital. She suggested the date because April is the birth-month of Dr. Joseph Lister, founder of antiseptic medicine.

A music teacher who studied in the United States in the 1923-53 school year under the Crusade Scholarship program of the Methodist Church, is back at work among Methodists in her native Argentina. Miss Lydia Rodriguez, daughter of an Argentine Methodist minister, not only is teaching music at Colegio Americano, Rosario, but is director of Christian education and counselor of high school girls on the campus and is in charge of an overall music program for nine Methodist churches in the Rosario area. A Crusade Scholarship enabled Miss Rodriguez to study at Scarritt College, and George Peabody Teachers College, Nashville.

The wife of an Indiana farmer has won Protestantism's highest award to a layman. The 1955 Russell Colgate Distinguished Service Citation, given annually for outstanding achievement in Christian education, was presented on Feb. 8 to Mrs. Doris Clore (Mrs. Herald) Demaree of Route 2, Franklin, Indiana. She was elected by vote of an electoral college of 1,400 churchmen named by Protestant denominations or councils of churches for this purpose. The presentation was made in Cincinnati at the annual meeting of the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches. The 1955 Christian "lay person of the year" has lived on a farm all her life. A grandmother, she has raised three children, a son now in the army, a son in the Indiana conservation department, and a daughter who has a family of her own on a nearby farm. Mrs. Demaree began teaching a Sunday school class in 1919. Since then her fame as children's work counselor, educator and author has become nationwide.

Bandit Ignored Boy, Cap Pistol

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—An armed robber, who ignored the command of a 5-year-old boy "to step back or get killed," escaped with $300 from a grocery store last night.

The robber fled under a barrage of "bullets" fired from the cap pistol of Kenny Linn, grandson of the store owner, H. Ted Linn. A clerk told the youngster not to interfere but the boy disregarded the plea and shouted to the robber, "You asked for it," firing point-blank at the gunman. He was still shooting as the robber ran out of the door.

EASY TO PLEASE
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A thief broke into a used car sales office and took ignition keys to 14 cars, then drove off in a 1942 model worth $50. The owner said it was the "worst car on the lot."

RECALL AIR RAID
BERLIN (AP)—An "anti-imperialist" rally was held in Dresden yesterday to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the giant World War II air raid on that city. East German Premier Otto Grotewohl, the chief speaker, said the raid had no military purpose but was staged to put a roadblock in the path of the Soviet army.

Manchester England claims it has the longest single railroad station platform in the world—2,795 feet—although many stations have more than that length platform, broken into several sections.

Consider Action Against Hotel For Evicting Group

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Officers of the Dade County GOP Executive Committee meet today to consider whether legal action will be taken against a Miami hotel owner who refused to permit Negroes in the hotel dining room for a Lincoln Day dinner.

The meeting was called after 24 Negroes, most of them members of the county Republican organization, were asked to leave the Urney dining room Saturday night by Hotel President E. M. Cloughton.

Mark Casper, attorney for the county GOP committee, said he would ask for a damage suit of "between $250,000 and $500,000," charging the hotel owner with "a partial breach of contract which the GOP committee had with the hotel restaurant."

The attorney said he was also checking to see "if action might be brought for violation of the civil rights of the Negroes."

The Negroes were invited to the meeting by Wesley Garrison, Republican state committeeman and a co-chairman of the Lincoln Day dinner. When they left the dining room at Cloughton's request, Garrison and some 150 of the 425 white guests followed them.

A scuffle ensued between several banquet officials and hotel officials. Casper said he was also considering filing a personal assault and battery charge against Cloughton, his son E. N. Cloughton Jr. and A. W. Corbett, secretary of the hotel.

Cloughton told reporters later, "It was unfortunate that the Negroes should have to be subjected to the incident. I had told the dinner officials last Wednesday that they could not be served and I was surprised to see them there."

Cloughton told reporters later, "It was unfortunate that the Negroes should have to be subjected to the incident. I had told the dinner officials last Wednesday that they could not be served and I was surprised to see them there."

The new wonder drugs have been found to be without any effect on the common cold although they sometimes control secondary infections.
