Mrs. Hughes Speaker For Inter Se Club

Mrs. T. H. Henderson was hostess to the Inter Se Book Club at her home on Harding Street Tuesday, March 1.

The vice president, Mrs. Edgar Willford, presided over the business session after which she turned the meeting over to Mrs. Henderson, who presented the guest speaker for the afternoon.

In a most interesting manner, Mrs. James Hughes gave a character study of Walt Disney. She discussed the life of this man in four phases—Disney, the boy and young business man; Disney, the employer; Disney, the husband and father; and Disney, the artist.

Disney is the typical self-educated man. His first cartoon took eight people one month to make. Today in his studios, over 700 employees work on his pictures. At the close of her talk, Mrs. Hughes showed pictures of Disneyland, which will open in July. She described the various kinds of entertainment which will be provided for "children of all ages."

Following the program a salad course was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. R. F. Thompson and Mrs. Tyson Bilibro.

Mrs. Doris Leggett Speaks For Adult Homemaking Meet

WINTERVILLE — Mrs. Doris Leggett, home economist with Virginia Electric and Power Company, was guest speaker at an adult homemaking meeting held recently in the local home economics cottage.

Mrs. Leggett discussed the wiring of modern homes to sufficiently meet the requirements of the homemakers daily needs. Each guest was given a floor plan, and with directions from the leader, the proper symbols for wiring were put on each plan.

Present for this meeting were Mrs. R. E. Carroll, Mrs. W. B. Dillingham, Mrs. B. F. Faulkner, Miss Letha Belle Harrington, Mrs. Milton May, Mrs. J. D. McArthur, Mrs. Graham Olive and Mrs. Lloyd Worthington.

Student hostesses who served refreshments were Barbara Manning, Rachel Stox and Faye Walston.

Dr. Turner Honored By Education Society

Dr. Lucile Turner, director of the department of English at East Carolina College, was honored by the Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma at the recent March meeting of the organization held in Greenville.

Members of the chapter of the national honor society for women in education voted unanimously to purchase a $100 share in the new DKO building now under construction in Dallas, Texas, and to designate this fund as a contribution in honor of Dr. Turner.

As one of the founders of the North Carolina Eta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, Dr. Turner is well known to members of the society throughout the state. She was also instrumental in establishing the Delta Chapter, which includes members from several counties of Eastern North Carolina. She has served as president of the local and of the state chapters of the organization.

Engagement Announced

Miss Mary Elizabeth Coor, daughter of Mrs. Charles Edmund Coor, of Goldsboro, and the late Mr. Coor, whose engagement to Eugene Morris, son of Mrs. Raymond Morris of Greenville and the late Mr. Morris, is announced by her mother. The wedding will take place March 25.

Spring Concert Of College Choir Pleases Audience Last Evening

The East Carolina College Choir, under the direction of Dr. Elwood Keister, presented its annual Spring Concert last night in Austin Auditorium. The audience of seven hundred persons braved inclement weather to attend the concert, but was well rewarded by a performance of high artistic and technical worth.

The high point of the evening was the performance of the "Requiem" by Gabriel Faure, a French composer who died in 1924 at the age of 79. Conductor, choir, soloists, and organist showed a mastery of both technical and stylistic elements. The blend between various sections of the choir was excellent, and the blend between chorus and organ left nothing to be desired.

Of particular merit and effectiveness were the pianissimo unison passages performed by the sopranos and by the altos and tenors. At these moments, the audience received an impression of almost complete simplicity and relaxation, further attesting to the technical and artistic excellence of conductor and ensemble, for to achieve such an effect is professionalism at its best.

After the intermission the audience was entertained with music of a lighter vein. Your reviewer was most impressed with "The Carol of the Birds" and an arrangement of the Negro spiritual, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I See." The hit of the evening was an arrangement of "Dry Bones," featuring string bass and a kitchen Philharmonic.

The entire personnel of the chorus has every reason to be proud of this performance. The City of Greenville should be proud to have such a superior musical organization in its midst.

Goldsboro Drama Group In Festival

Program features of the annual Eastern Regional Drama Festival, to be held this year at East Carolina College March 25-26, will be highlighted by a production of "Stalag 17" by the Goldmasquers of the Goldsboro High School, talks by experts in the field of school dramatics, and the presentation of a series of short plays by school, church, and community theatre groups in Eastern North Carolina.

The Goldmasquers will present the popular comedy-melodrama under the direction of Clifton Britton of the Goldsboro school faculty. His work in the drama as a student director at East Carolina College, as director of drama in the Goldsboro High School, and as director of the "Lost Colony" at Manteo has won him recognition both in and out of this state.

Dr. Joseph A. Withey, director of dramatic arts in the East Carolina department of English and chairman of the committee planning the festival, has announced speakers for the two-day session.

Michael Casey, director of drama at Western's College, Greensboro, will discuss "The Theatre as a Moral Builder" at 7 p.m. March 25 in the College Theatre. Arnold Colbath, associate director of the Blue Masquers of Catawba College will talk on "Producing the Classics" at a luncheon at noon March 26.

A series of short plays presented by visiting drama organizations will be given in the College Theatre on both days of the festival. These will be evaluated by competent critics of the drama or rated for possible performance at the State Drama Festival at the University of North Carolina on April 13-16.

Other events of the program will include a guided tour of TV station WNCN of Greenville and meetings for informal discussion of problems of drama organizations.

Pupils Win Honors In Singing Contest

Students from Greenville and Ayden high schools received certification of "superior" and "excellent" at the state vocal solo and ensemble contests held Saturday at Duke University.

Kitty Collins, Greenville, and Barbara Griffin and Bonny Rutledge, Ayden, sopranos, were among the soloists who were rated superior in the contest.

Also rated superior was the Greenville High School senior girls trio composed of Rachael Steinbeck, Joanna Hardee and Kitty Collins.

Mrs. Hoot Reviews Play For Aries Club

The Aries Book Club met at the home of Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr. on the evening of March 3rd.

The president called the meeting to order and welcomed the guests. Mesdames M. P. Hoot, George Laurens, Hugh Winslow, Joe Tart, Joe Gaston and C. H. Edwards Jr.

Mrs. David Hardee, reporting for the nominating committee, presented the following slate of officers for the coming year: president, Mrs. Marshall Starkey; vice president, Mrs. Phil Coleman; secretary, Mrs. John Reynolds; reporter, Mrs. Dallas Clark; treasurer, Mrs. W. C. Goodwin; and librarian, Mrs. Astor Richardson.

Mrs. Harry Fortes introduced Mrs. M. P. Hoot, who in her charming manner reviewed the book "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker," a Broadway play.

The time of the play is 1890, and the scene is at the home of the parents, grandparents and eight children. The father is away in Philadelphia for a month, supposedly on business. Horace Pennypacker III appears claiming his father head of the business in Philadelphia. The plot develops around the father, who, as it turns out, has a wife and eight children in Wilmington and a family of nine children in Philadelphia. The mother of these children has been dead for eight years. The children in Wilmington agree their father is wrong but want him to stay in spite of what they think.

The entire play is highly humorous and entertaining. Following this delightful program delicious refreshments were served, books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Farmville Rotary Holds Annual Ladies Night

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Rotary Club observed its 33rd anniversary and the golden anniversary of Rotary International at its annual "ladies night" banquet last Tuesday night. President L. C. Verren presided. Past Rotary District Governor Maynard O. Fletcher of Washington recited some events in Rotary's history and stressed Rotary's slogan, "Service Before Self." Irvin Morgan, Jr., introduced the speaker. Rev. Edwin S. Coates said the invocation and Farmville School Supt. John B. Lewis welcomed the guests. Sam D. Bundy responded. Members introduced their wives preceding the supper. Dr. Paul E. Jones, first president of Farmville Rotary Club, presented the names of widows of three well known Rotarians, Mrs. T. E. Joyner, Sr., Mrs. John T. Thorne and Mrs. W. M. Willis. Rotarian Robert Rouse gave a brief outline of Rotary's history since 1905. Rotary, he said, now has 400,000 members in 8,900 clubs all over the world. Referring to Farmville, he mentioned the names of some members who helped to make history. They are Dr. Paul E. Jones, G. A. Rouse, W. J. Raspberry and R. A. Joyner. Guests included Kiwanis President S. H. Aycock and wife, Jaycee

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER
Four hundred deaconesses of the Methodist Church—teachers, social workers, parish workers, religious educators, and nurses—will gather in Nashville, Tenn., on the campus of Scarritt College, for the second quadrennial convocation of these commissioned representatives of the denomination's Board of Missions. According to Miss Mary Lou Barnwell, executive secretary for Methodist deaconess activities, there is greater call for trained young women in case work and group activities in Methodist homes for children than are now being recruited.

Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, as secretary of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church, has issued the following statement in connection with the observance of the 43rd birthday of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., March 12: "One of the agencies making highly significant spiritual contribution to the life of American girlhood is the Girl Scouts. The nation is aware of its patriotic spirit, of the sound pedagogical principles upon which its educational program is based, of its splendid contribution to the social life of American girls. We must become increasingly aware of its spiritual significance. Girl Scouts understand and practice the high duty of service to country, but are equally obligated to do their duty to God. The Church has been proud to cooperate with the Girl Scouts of the United States of America through the years, and is pledged to continuing cooperation."

Miss Glora M. Wysner, authority on the Near East and a secretary of the International Missionary Council (New York and London), is on the first leg of a six-months globe-girdling trip to study "the resurgence of Buddhism, Hinduism, and Islam," and to counsel Christian missionary agencies as to

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARUTHER, Real Estate Editor

The split-level house seems to be going to seed. Not only is it spreading faster everywhere, but in many places it has grown into a complicated contraption with little family resemblance to the original designs that solved hillside building problems.

First called the tri-level house throughout the Middle West, the plan moved East and got fancy until now you can find five and six-level houses with so many little flights of stairs that one woman complained "No matter where I am in this house, I wish I were someplace else."

If you have been thinking about a new house you undoubtedly have wondered about the split-level idea—or already have decided you want it. It's the type of plan that can give you more house for your money than you can get in a one-story rambler, although not quite as much as you'd get in a conventional two-story house.

Arguments both pro and con are summarized in the current issue of a professional publication—House & Home—which restricts its circulation to the home building industry. Since this study is not available to householders in general, we'd like to give you some of its highlights.

Here are the gripes about the split-level house collected door-to-door:

- "1. It's so ugly! Chopped rooflines and awkward elevations mark the streetscape."
- "2. We have trouble with water and drainage. Water stands in the yard, runs into garage, seeps into basement. Planting and cutting grass are difficult on mounds surrounding the house."
- "3. The floor of our recreation room is so cold the children don't want to play there."
- "4. The bedroom over the garage is cold."
- "5. The stairs are too steep. Too many levels in the house."
- "6. Our heating system isn't well balanced. The recreation room is chilly, the bedrooms fiercely hot (except over garage)."
- "7. The kitchen is too far from the recreation room and patio for easy serving of food to either the sunken living room or dangerous and cause accidents."
- "8. The one or two steps into the sunken living room are dangerous and cause accidents."

Why do people like split-levels?

Here are five reasons:
"1. The house is so spacious. (The second living room and more open planning appeal to former apartment dwellers as well as to former ranch house owners.)"
"2. Our bedrooms are wonderfully private. The half-level-higher bedrooms seem to be much more remote from the noise of traffic in the rest of the house."
"3. The short stair runs are much easier than stairs in a two-story house."
"4. The house looks larger outside. (Owners feel this more substantial appearance over the ranch house has greater prestige value)."
"5. It's nice to have something new."

The architectural critics observe that "split-levels sell when they are ugly (as most of them are). They sell when they are handsome (as they sometimes can be). They sell when they make sense. They sell almost as well when they make no sense at all."

Summing up, the editors offer this tip to builders—a tip for all of us to remember: "The split is a difficult, costly and often ugly way to build a small house, but it is a good way to build a house that is just too big on one level to work well on a small lot."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A little woo that forgot to whoa is doing just fine today.

Eugene Woo, 25, was rushing his wife, Pui Chon Woo, 23, to the hospital yesterday for the birth of their second child when his car struck a parked auto. Amid the confusion the baby, a 6-pound, 18-ounce daughter, arrived. Doctors from a nearby emergency hospital treated Mrs. Woo for a head cut and reported both mother father and daughter in good condition.

North Carolina's Position Is Clear

There is no doubt that North Carolina will vigorously oppose integration of white and Negro students in its public schools should the Supreme Court follow up its decision with decrees ordering abolition of the longstanding segregation in the Southern States.

The agreement reached between Governor Hodges and Rep. Sam O. Worthington on their respective approaches to the immediate problem will prove a wise move for the state. Worthington has agreed not to press in this session for passage of his bill which calls for a constitutional amendment allowing the state to spend public money for support of private schools. Governor Hodges, in turn, has asserted he will call a special session of the General Assembly to deal with the segregation issue should the Supreme Court issue implementation decrees which are "extreme or abrupt".

As The Reflector has stated previously, the bill proposed by the Governor appears to us adequate to take care of the situation for the present at least. It will give local and district school boards the authority to assign students to schools under their jurisdiction. Even in the event of "extreme or abrupt" decrees by the Supreme Court, that authority in the hands of local boards would be sufficient to stave off integration while more forceful action is taken in a special legislative session. It is inconceivable that any local school board in the state would adopt a policy of integration even in the face of a racial Supreme Court decree.

North Carolina's position on segregated public schools has been made quite clear to the Supreme Court and to the federal government. The brief filed by the state before the Supreme Court presented North Carolina's stand quite clearly. The administration-sponsored bill now pending before the General Assembly adds emphasis to the position of the state as outlined in the brief. If there were any room for doubt as to the state's position, the announcement by the governor that he will call a special session of the legislature if necessary to consider Worthington's proposal and similar measures should have dispelled it.

The next move is up to the High Court. If it seeks to force the issue, North Carolina can effectively counter with its own moves. The state can make its counter moves more effective with full knowledge of the Supreme Court's decrees than it can by trying to anticipate what those decrees will contain.

New Milestone In The Atomic Age

A new milestone in the atomic age will be reached this summer when the first supply of electricity made from an atomic reactor will be ready for commercial consumption.

Although the supply available will be relatively small—sufficient for the needs of a city of approximately 20,000—it will mark the beginning of production of electric power on a commercial basis from atomic energy.

Heretofore the people of the world has seen atomic power in action only in instruments of destruction. By late summer we should see atomic power harnessed for constructive purposes in this new electric power generator.

Once the ice is broken and nuclear power is turned to constructive purposes, the United States will realize new strides of progress as this great new source of energy is used for commercial and industrial purposes. Just as atomic energy has revolutionized warfare in the past decade with the weapons of destruction which have been developed from it, the coming decade may bring an equally startling revolution in industry and commerce as this power is turned to uses in those fields.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GILT OR GUILT

"The gift of sin." Yes, that was the amusing mistake I encountered some time ago in correcting galley proof. But it started a train of thought. For, unless my experience over the decades has been misleading, I think the reason why people so often fall the victim of sin is because they see the evils of life painted and tinted with gilt.

Ungenerous man sees sin as gilt. God sees sin as guilt. The sinner cries cheerfully, "Eat, drink, and be merry for tomorrow we have to go back to work." The warning out of the Word of God is, "Whosoever soweth into the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption, but whosoever soweth unto the spirit shall of the spirit reap eternal life."

The devil is the worst and fiercest that ever lived. He has been selling humanity a bill of goods since the days of the Garden of Eden. Sin, he says, is freedom, emancipation, creativeness, tolerance, "hrrill," and happiness. He is always equipped with a bucket of gilt and a wide brush. And he appears to be fooling as many people today as he was in the past.

But the Bible is serious and unwavering in its contention that sin and guilt go together. "The wages of sin is death," says the Word, "but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Has TVA Been Major Factor?

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—On a recent visit to the Tennessee Valley Authority, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt rhapsodized over her late husband's first experiment in Federal development of water-power on a large and regional basis. She wrote:

"This area, since the establishment of TVA, seems to me to have prospered enormously. I recently read that a Republican Congressman called the whole TVA project socialistic and communistic. If this be so then it has certainly done marvels for private enterprise in this area.

"The record of the increase in private industry and business, and the use of power on the farms—even throughout the mountain areas—is astonishing to someone who has not been here for several years. Almost all of this power is distributed through cooperative and municipally owned plants."

ACCURATE STATISTICS—Unfortunately for the accuracy of Mrs. Roosevelt's economic report, she had not checked on the official statistics about conditions in Tennessee before and after construction of TVA. According to figures submitted to the House by Representative Ralph W. Ginn (R-N.Y.), TVA's home state has lagged behind progress in 10 other southern areas which rely chiefly on privately developed power.

Before TVA, Tennessee ranked fourth in population, and it still ranks fourth. In total farm receipts, it has fallen from fifth to eight, possibly due to the flooding out of agricultural land. In retail sales payroll, it has dropped from third to fifth.

In total of retail sales, it has slumped from second to fifth. In the value added to products by manufacture, the decline has been from third to fourth. In gross postal receipts, Tennessee slid from third to fourth.

Finally, as Ginn has noted, conditions would have been worse, if it had not been for the $108,000,000 spent on labor, materials, transportation etc., not for industry in general, but for TVA's own requirements.

Ocracoke On Threshold Of A New Life

Ocracoke is finally going to be linked by highway with the rest of North Carolina.

It has taken a long time and a lot of work by the people of the island community to convince the state government that Ocracoke should end its decades of isolation by being provided with a highway which will join it to the rest of the state. The new connecting link between Ocracoke Village and the highway which now ends at Hatteras will still leave Ocracoke an inaccessible place by modern transportation standards, but it will afford the people of the island for the first time with sure automotive travel between their home and the rest of the state.

The new highway is bound to bring many changes to the remote island. Tourists will flock to Ocracoke in unprecedented numbers. The economy of the island will be boosted by the influx of tourist dollars which will supplement the traditional fishing incomes of the people.

In spite of the fact that many people throughout North Carolina are reluctant to see quaint Ocracoke succumb to commercialization, the completion of the new highway will mark a new day in the life of the people of the island.

PAST TROUBLE WITH MME. CHIANG KAI-SHEK—"Flatwheel" Harry Carr, who recently retired after 30 years as the Pennsylvania Railroad's division passenger agent at Washington, says that his life has been shortened by at least five years as a result of his harrowing experiences in the transportation of Madame Chiang Kai-shek around the United States. On orders from F.D.R. Harry put together a seven-car train in 1943, with the line's finest equipment, personnel, food and schedule. Madame Kai-shek kept the train in turmoil from the start. She complained about the food, the waiters, the Secret Service, the failure to provide her with first editions at every remote station the way the train stopped.

After a few weeks, the Pullman porters struck. They told Harry that they could not stand the nagging of the Chinese, and were quitting the train, even if it meant their jobs. He persuaded them to stay on the basis of friendship to him.

OF WITH THEIR HEADS—Miss Jeannette Kung, Madame Kai-shek's niece, acted as intermediary between the wife of the Generalissimo and Harry. Miss Kung threatened to shift to another train, if Madame were not made more comfortable. Then she added:

"If you were in China, you would have your heads cut off."

PRESIDENTS NC BOTHER—None of the six Presidents he traveled with, including Harry, ever caused him so much trouble as the lady from democratic China. With a chuckle, he recalls that F.D.R. always used the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad instead of the Pennsylvania because W. W. Atterbury, then head of the Pennsylvania, was such a prominent figure in the Republican Party.

Mr. Roosevelt apparently did not confide this political prejudice to his family or the White House staff. The train that bore F.D.R.'s body from Washington to Hyde Park in 1945 was a Pennsylvania Railroad special, with Harry in charge.

Investment Pile-Up

By ELMER ROESSNER

An enormous pile up of funds, all requiring investment, is one of the developing phenomena of the economy.

Private pension funds have accumulated $20 billion and they are growing at the rate of $2 billion a year. The rate of growth is increasing and by 1960 the annual increase may be $6 billion.

Insurance funds are growing even faster. Last year life insurance companies added $6 billion to their funds, bringing the total to $84,052,000,000.

Accumulations in commercial and savings banks and savings and loan associations increased $9.7 billion last year, bringing the total to $100.5 billion.

There are other large accumulations: college endowment funds, foundation funds, union welfare funds other than pensions, etc. All together the aggregate of private funds may be around $250 billion. There are also accumulations in Social Security government bonds and postal savings banks, but what we are examining today are private funds requiring investment.

And that 200-plus billion dollars simply has to be put to work, or those responsible will be held accountable.

The accumulations are one of our richest sources of fresh capital. Funds have been investing in bonds, stocks and other securities almost frantically. Life insurance companies have bought heavily of bonds and mortgages and, of recent years, have been buying stocks and real estate. Savings companies, which were not permitted to buy real estate before the middle 1940's, now own $2,275,000,000 worth, according to the Institute of Life Insurance. And they own $2,336,000,000 worth of common stock. These accumulations put their piles in bonds and mortgages and in the case of commercial banks, in business loans.

The great housing boom, now still in its first year, has been made possible by these fundholders' desire to buy is not enough and unless these sums were available—or government mortgage money was greater—the boom couldn't have rolled on. The funds also make possible much of the highway expansion, tertiary growth and other economic development of the nation.

The question of whether there is danger in these concentrations of wealth will be constantly raised. As money is amassed, will not a few bankers, insurance executives and union leaders control the nation? We have already seen union funds used to block or bring about mergers, and insurance companies decide where the future development of cities will take place. May not some day these funds be controlled through the weight of capital advanced through the expansion of certain industries and certain others, or aid the growth of some regions at the expense of others? Since much of the present strength of the stock market is derived from the demand of insurance and other funds for investments, may not these institutions also reverse the process?

Probably not. But it may be a good idea for legislators and the public to maintain continuous vigilance.

Coffee at 50 cents a pound, bacon at 29 cents a pound and soap powder at 19 cents a box lured 3,000 customers into an East Akron, Ohio, furniture store. Furniture, too, was sold at cut prices.

The store advertised it as a "Zany sale." The general manager is William Zane.

Influence Of Force In Foreign Affairs; Today's Question

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, F.A. — In view of the latest news from Russia, businessmen and investors are much excited regarding the new book published by Van Nostrand Co., Inc., New York City, entitled INFLUENCE OF FORCE IN FOREIGN RELATIONS. As the author, Captain W.D. Puleston, is a neighbor of mine and recently gave a most dynamic address at the Webster College Winter Conference, I must comment thereon and advise everyone to read it.

Eighteen "Fatal Mistakes" Captain Puleston told me last spring of these "mistakes." Shortly thereafter, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the late President's wife, was visiting my home in Wellesley Hills, Massachusetts. I asked her what she thought of these "mistakes" for which the Democratic Administrations were reported responsible. "Well, notwithstanding Captain Puleston's so-called 'mistakes,' we won two wars, didn't we, Mr. Babson?"

Favorable Reaction To Governor Hodges Talk To State

By LYN NNISBET

REACTION — Letters, telegrams and telephone calls coming in to the Governor's office and to members of the General Assembly indicate very favorable reaction to Governor Luther Hodges' first radio-television "report to the people" last Wednesday night.

The messages were not all complimentary. There was a definite undertone idea that he did not "put on enough steam" in behalf of the budget tax proposals; that he was too much middle-of-the-road in his approach to these matters.

Implied, if not stated, in some of these messages was the idea that the budget is to be balanced without levying a tax on table foods in the homes some body in position of recognized leadership must go all out in support of alternative taxes. That somebody, by more or less common consent, is the present Governor or the next Governor—and he could be both.

LEADERSHIP — That brings up the question of what North Carolinians want or expect in their recognized "leaders." Just a little bit too much moderation, lack of exerting authority, occasional wonder if the fellow has what it takes to be a real leader. Just a little too much exercise of authority or command causes resentment against assumed dictatorship. It appears from analysis of comment and correspondence that Governor Hodges has pretty nearly approached the desired middle position, with perhaps a little hesitancy and not quite enough of the attitude "here is the way I am going, come along if you want to be on the winning side."

To phrase it another way, it appears that most North Carolinians will resent orders to go this way or that, but at the same time they want somebody to chart a positive course and call for them to come along.

SLOW-DOWN — There is wide difference of opinion among members and observers of the Legislature as to the rate of progress being made. No meeting of the major money committees—joint appropriations and joint finance—were held Thursday because the members voted to go to a basketball game. None will be held Tuesday on account of the visit to East Carolina College at Greenville.

On the surface these omissions indicate slow progress, because both committees have a whole lot of a lot to do. Opinion of many experienced people, however, is that the interlude may accelerate rather than delay legislative accomplishment.

There is still considerable uncertainty as to whether the appropriations committee ought to act first and let the finance boys how much money they must have, or whether the finance committee should act and determine how much money is available and tell the appropriations group in effect, "this is all you can spend."

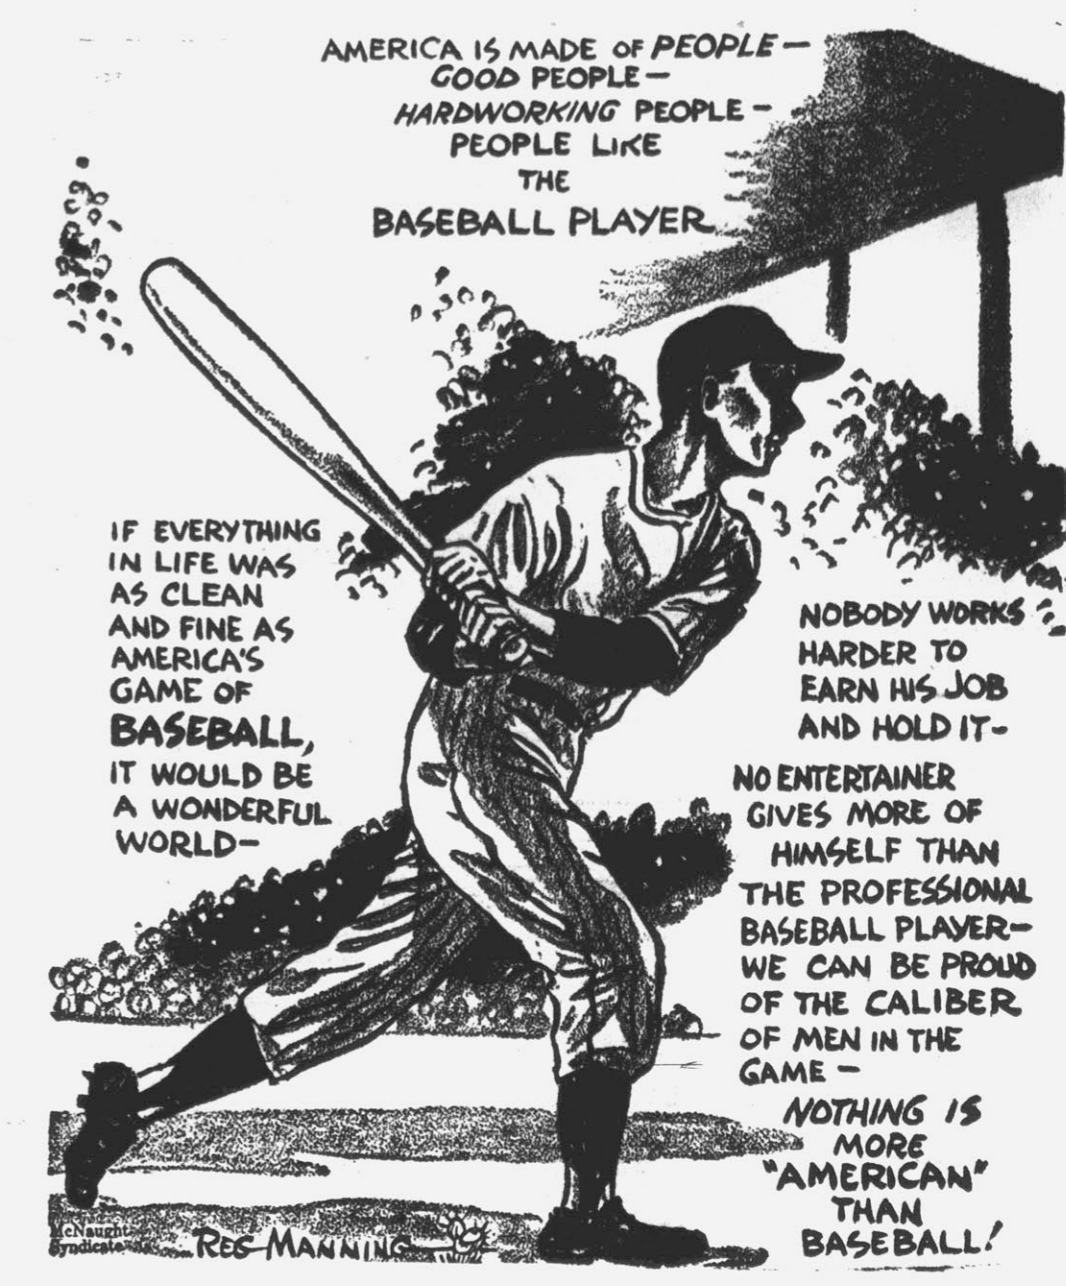

That gets back to the basic difference between a purely business operation and governmental activities. The primary purpose of business being to

Perhaps someone should now write a book on the EIGHTEEN MASTER-STROKES which won these two wars.

Personally I believe that, although a fearless critic, Captain Puleston is not fair in his judgments. He emphasizes mistakes made by Republican statesmen such as Root, Hughes, Kellogg, Stimson, and President Hoover equally with those made by Presidents Wilson and Roosevelt. He points to Wilson's statesman-like, but unheeded, appeal to European leaders in 1916 to seek a "peace without victory." Similarly, Puleston has pointed to mistakes made by military as well as diplomatic leaders. He carefully cites proof showing the undue subordination of the trained military to untrained civilians. Politics, between 1909 and 1941, by weakening our armed forces, caused first Germany and then Russia to attack us on the incorrect assumption that they could defeat us before we could prepare to fight.

WHAT SHOULD U.S. DO NOW? Americans have been led to believe that their Government is committed to awaiting an enemy attack with nuclear bombs. Puleston points to an honorable and long-accepted middle course, namely, if an enemy nation, possessing the ability to destroy us, disposes its foreign position to do so, we should immediately mobilize and station our forces in position to strike the enemy and defend the United States. When in all respects we are ready, inform the hostile government that if within 48 hours it does not demobilize its forces, we will take any or all measures to protect our country. If the potential attack should be immediately delivered, as mobilized, we would get an even break: if the enemy then demobilizes we can prevent war. If, in spite of our warning, it continues to hold its forces ready to spring surprise attacks, we then should strike first Under International Law, having given the foe fair warning, we would be fully justified, claims the Captain.

STRIKE FIRST?

Businessmen and investors want to know what Captain Puleston thinks we should do now. This is it:— Increase the nation's defenses, particularly the strategic industrial areas, against air attack; devise more efficient methods to prevent delivery of bombs, or retention of any such bombs now held in the country by enemy agents; keep a large proportion of our land, sea, and air forces, particularly fighting planes, always on the alert; prohibit the entry of untrained planes into certain important areas; finally, and most important, decide now that we will never again await an "overt enemy attack."

Americans have been led to believe that their Government is committed to awaiting an enemy attack with nuclear bombs. Puleston points to an honorable and long-accepted middle course, namely, if an enemy nation, possessing the ability to destroy us, disposes its foreign position to do so, we should immediately mobilize and station our forces in position to strike the enemy and defend the United States. When in all respects we are ready, inform the hostile government that if within 48 hours it does not demobilize its forces, we will take any or all measures to protect our country. If the potential attack should be immediately delivered, as mobilized, we would get an even break: if the enemy then demobilizes we can prevent war. If, in spite of our warning, it continues to hold its forces ready to spring surprise attacks, we then should strike first Under International Law, having given the foe fair warning, we would be fully justified, claims the Captain.

Politics May Be A Factor

In case we are in World War III or "sitting on a keg of uranium" in November 1956, it seems as if President Eisenhower would be certain of re-election. I cannot imagine a better-trained man for the Presidency under such a condition. Whether or not the Republican strategists have this in mind, I leave to you readers to decide. The Presidential election coming next year certainly complicates the situation. Certainly, the character and location of each industry should be most carefully considered. Also read "The Natural Cycle of Government," an important mimeographed brochure, written and published by Edison E. Shrum of Forneft, Missouri.

Readers should study the history of Formosa before deciding what attitude the United Nations will take. The fact is that Formosa was a part of China for centuries until 1945, when China was forced to "give" it to the Japanese. The Japanese developed Formosa and made it what it is today. At the close of World War II, the Japanese were compelled to give up Formosa and return it to China. Strictly speaking, there are two Chinas today—the Mainland under Communist Administration—and Formosa unmake a profit, naturally the amount of capital for investment or operation must first be determined. The primary purpose of government being to render service, the minimum needs must first be determined and the money to finance them must be found somewhere. Those are the obvious conclusions, but the situation facing the Legislature is not quite so simple. Neither part of the problem can be accepted as fully controlling, without consideration of the other.

I seems apparent that Governor Hodges recognized that fact in his middle-road approach, and the legislators recognize it in the policy of taking time out for rest and recreation and thinking.

STABILITY — Some of the most effective arguments against extending the sales tax to basic foods and other presently exempt items, stress the point that such changes made now—and maybe reversed in two years—will destroy the stability of the North Carolina tax structure. This idea of stability and certainty with respect to anticipated taxes has been paramount in most of the arguments used to induce out of state investors to locate in North Carolina.

Our tax structure has not materially changed in more than fifteen years. During all that time the existing schedules have produced enough money to finance State government activities. This year for the first time since the middle 30's these schedules apparently do not provide enough revenue to carry on the program of progress by the State.

Major objections to all the newly proposed levies imply, where it is not specifically stated, that any changes made now should be considered as permanent. It is recalled and after stated that the general sales tax which was inaugurated in 1933 as a temporary device to get us out of an emergency situation, has become the accepted source of a large segment of general fund revenue. At least two statewide political campaigns have been waged on the issue of temporary or permanent nature of this tax. The advocates of permanence won, but now do not want repetition of those campaigns.

So it is that most folks agree that if a tax on tobacco and soft drinks is needed to make up the deficiency in revenue produced by established tax policies or extension of the sales tax to basic foods and feeds, they ought to be considered not as temporary stop-gaps but as integral parts of the permanent tax structure. Once written into the law they will be hard to get out.

Changes In N. C. Racial Legislation Proposed

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A North Carolina Negro leader has written Gov. Hodges asking him to back immediate repeal of "discriminatory racial legislation."

Kelly Alexander of Charlotte, president of the North Carolina Conference of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), said he has proposed legislation seeking to change 27 bills.

Alexander said no bill pertaining to public schools is included, since, he declared, any statute perpetuating segregation of the races in schools has already been declared unconstitutional.

Alexander said the bills seek repeal of all current public laws which maintain segregated practices in the matters of: Marriage; street railway, bus and railroad accommodations; jails and prisons; cemeteries; fraternal organizations; state-operated hospitals; and public toilets and waiting rooms.

In his letter to the Governor, Alexander wrote: "We hope that when this legislation is offered, you will join with us in urging all representatives and senators to support. Meanwhile, we hope to have an expression of support from you in this democratic cause."

"We believe that all forces of enlightenment cry out at this time for the removal of the stain of racial segregation from the fabric of state life."

HAROLD STYERS

Underwriters To Meet Thursday

Harold Styers, director of sales promotion for Home Security Life Insurance Company of Durham, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Life Underwriters Association this week.

The meeting will be held Thursday at 12:30 p.m. at the Silo Restaurant.

Styers began in insurance work in 1936 with Selavision Company, a company devoted to preparation of insurance sales and training material. Later he worked on a consultant basis with most of North Carolina, Virginia and South Carolina companies, preparing sales, training and promotion material.

In 1946 he became vice president in charge of sales for Selavision Company, and in 1949 he was named director of sales promotion for Jones Home Security. He was promoted to vice president and director of sales promotion for this organization this year. Styers has won numerous national awards for his sales promotion work.

Last year he traveled 25,000 miles filling speaking engagements, and he recently M.C'd the Augusta Debate Seminar.

Short Docket Here Friday In City Police Court

In Police Court Friday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of four cases, only one of them involving motor vehicle law violation.

John L. Hazelton, Winterville, not guilty of improper brakes.

Charlie Pittman, Shelmerdine, drunk, 30 days in jail or pay $10. He paid.

Theron C. Nelson, 313 West Fifth Street, worthless check, called and he failed to answer. An instant capias was issued for him.

John T. Worthington, 1307 Factory Street, assault with a deadly weapon (knife) on Jesse Daniels, 30 days in jail or pay $25, costs deducted. The judgment provides that he is to remain away from Paradise Cafe and not harm the prosecuting witness.

See Danger In No Breakfast

HOLLYWOOD Fla. (AP)—Neglect of breakfast by teen-age girls was called the "single most dangerous spot" in the American nutritional picture today by public opinion analyst Elmo Roper.

A recent poll, Roper said, showed that only 56 per cent of the teen-age girls reported they had a good breakfast. Seventy per cent of men and boys polled reported they had a good morning meal.

Roper, speaking at the National Food Conference which closes here today, said, however, that the entire picture of the nation's eating habits "is encouraging."

He said women, who are most influential in deciding what their families eat, almost unanimously think selection of proper food is important to health.

Mothers generally "start off well-imbedded with the idea that children and men need to have a good breakfast," he said.

"Then as their children get older and develop their own ideas mothers don't insist on their proper eating."

The food conference, which began Thursday, is sponsored by Swift & Co. in celebration of its centennial.

Robert J. Egger, marketing research manager for Ford Motor Co. said home-makers in the future will be even more free of the kitchen than they are now.

"Built-in maid services" will continue to expand, he said, although a supper from packaged and frozen dishes costs about a third more than one cooked in the old-fashioned way.

"But it takes about four times longer to get supper ready doing it the old-fashioned way," he said.

Object To River As Racing Track

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles River is just rolling along today—without hot rods.

Police rounded up about 150 youngsters who were racing souped up jalopies on the dry, paved river bottom yesterday. About 30 other cars left the police waiting on the levee and escaped up the San Fernando Road ramp.

Police made no arrests but explained to the youngsters that a river even without water is a river and not a race track.

Three District Meet In Farmville For Young People

Young people from three districts, from Goldsboro to Wilmington, attended the Christian World Fellowship Youth meeting at the Farmville Christian Church Friday and Saturday. FARMVILLE — Approximately 20 young people from three districts attended the Christian World Fellowship Youth meeting at Farmville Christian Church Friday and Saturday.

The meeting for young people in southeastern North Carolina, included Hookerton, Southeastern and Pamlico Districts.

Missionary service was stressed during the event, with the foreign missions study theme, "India, Pakistan, and Ceylon," and the home missions study theme, "The City."

Featured speaker for the session was Joseph B. Hunter, retired missionary from Lynchburg, Va. The Rev. Franklin Beach of Ayden led the Saturday morning service, while discussion leaders of various interest groups included Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Haney of Greenville, the Rev. John Scudder of Kinston; Mrs. R. O. Woodward, Jacksonville; Mrs. J. W. Funk, Morehead City; Mrs. Zeph N. Deshields, Arapahoe; and Pete Warren, Kinston.

All Farmville Chi Rhos and members of the Christian Youth Fellowship had active parts in the two-day program, climaxed on Saturday by a dedication service of state youth service project gifts. This portion of the program was conducted by the Wheat Swamp CYF. The program closed with a consecration service and Christian World Friendship Fund offering led by the Wilmington CYF.

The youth meeting was under the supervision of the Rev. George Downey of Wilson, state director of religious education. The Rev. Ivan Adams of Walstonburg was in charge of the program.

Gobel And Walt Disney Are Tonight's Favorites

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—George Gobel and Walt Disney stacked up as favorites to win television Emmies tonight as the nation, via NBC-TV, watches the seventh annual awards of the Television Academy.

The TV counterpart of the movies, big Oscar show goes on national television for the first time (11:30 p.m., to 1 a.m., EST). It will start at 11:30 p.m. and continue to 1 a.m., EST.

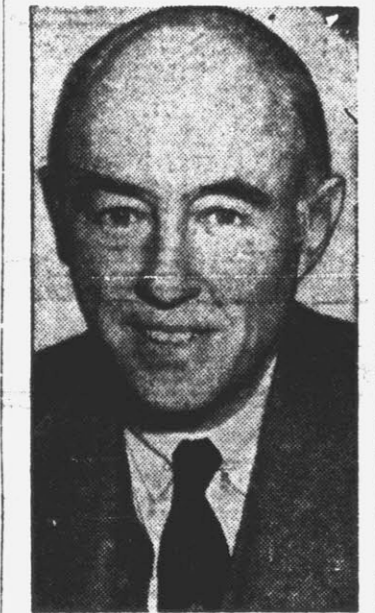

If Disney wins an Emmy in his first year of telecasting, the trip to the podium will be old stuff for him. He has won 24 movie Oscars, more than any other producer.

Top TV shows and performers in 21 categories will be honored at a black tie dinner show originating at the Moulin Rouge here and at Nino's LaRue in New York. Steve Allen is flying in from New York to emcee the Hollywood part of the show while Dave Garroway will handle the chores in New York.

Unlike some of the movie award presentations, the television show will have the great bulk of its nominees on hand to accept awards if called.

One bulky nominee, Jackie Gleason, even postponed his vacation two days in order to be present. Some of the Moulin Rouge's top production numbers featuring shapely chorus girls, will be seen on the telecast.

NEW ENVOY—James Bonbright, former Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs, was sworn in as U.S. Ambassador to Portugal at a ceremony in Washington.

East Carolina College tennis hopes for the coming campaign rest upon the shoulders of three returning lettermen and a highly-regarded freshman.

Back for another season and with three years of college experience are racketeers Frazier Bruton and Dallas Fosque of Kinston and J. W. Browning of Enfield.

This threesome along with newcomer Maurice Everette of Robersonville will form the nucleus of the team which is expected to be somewhat weaker than the club of last year.

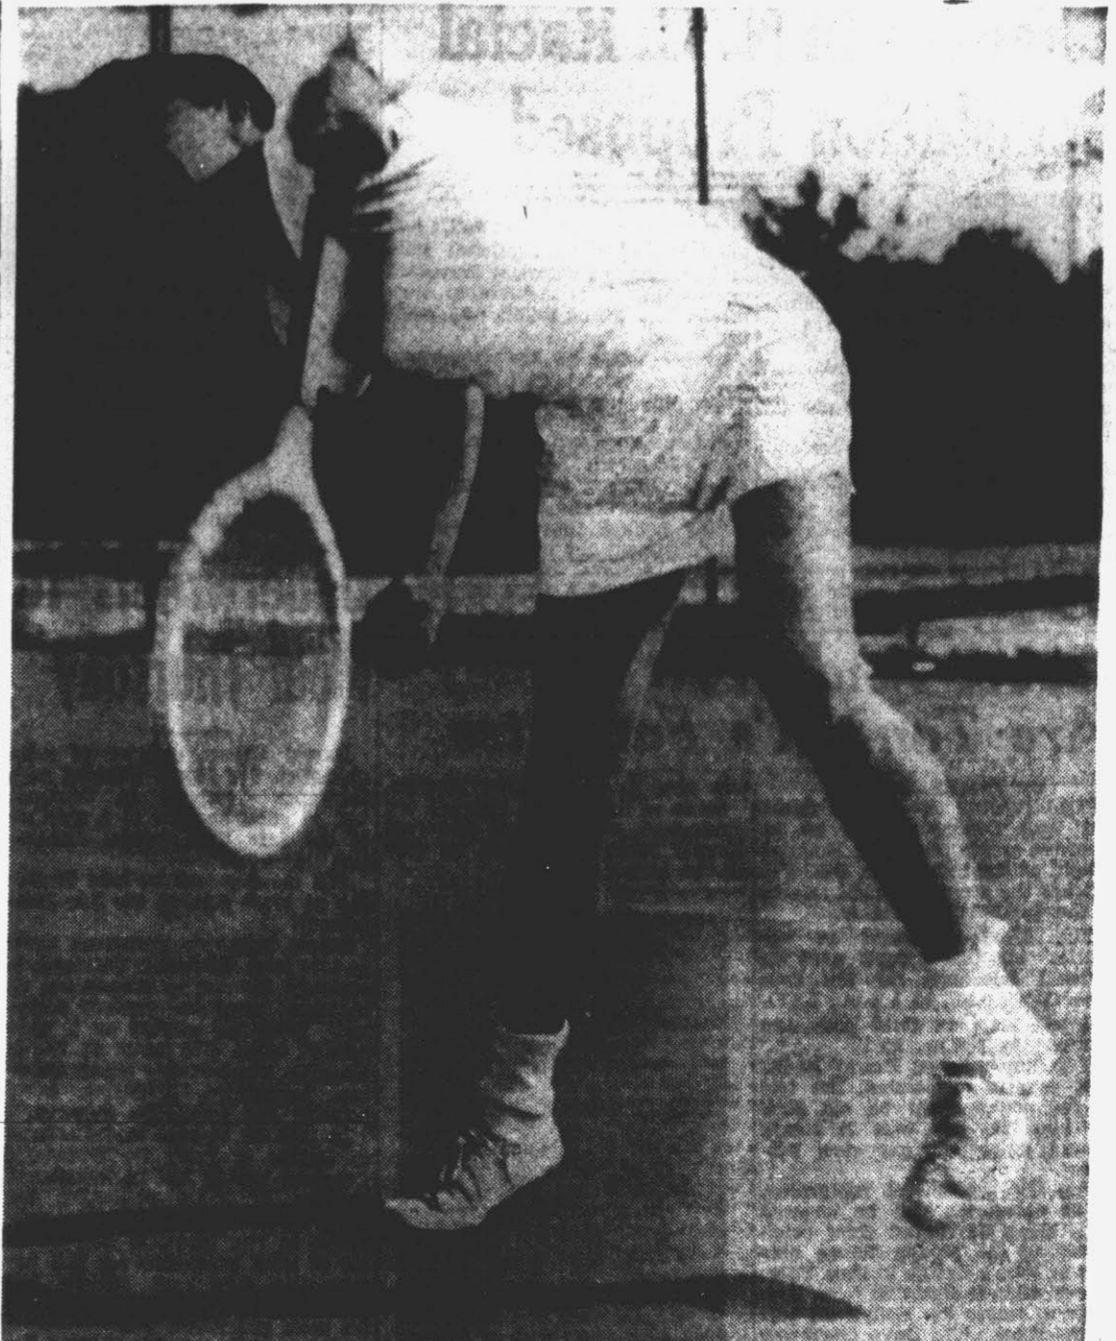

Missing when East Carolina opens its 1955 tennis schedule against North Carolina State College here on April 1 will be Paul Cameron, No. 1 player last year; Bob Williams, No. 2 man; and Craig Kester, No. 3 performer. Cameron and Williams left via graduation and Kester transferred to High Point. The former duo captured the North State Conference doubles championship last year at the annual tournament in Greensboro.

tennis form and possesses a powerful service.

Browning and Fosque are also seasoned courtmen. Both are seniors and played on the team last year. The former played No. 3 and Fosque played No. 4. Browning is a careful player and capitalizes on his opponents' errors. His game emphasizes defense. On the other hand, Fosque is a power player. His property of a scorching service and smashing overhead shot enables him to be on the aggressive most of the time.

From freshman ranks will come the remainder of the lineup, with the possibility of some of the rookies overtaking the veterans. Gill Underwood of Clayton is a well-coordinated netter who is making a strong bid. His southpaw strokes have been making the field sit up and take notice. He is just out of the Army and has had both high school and service tennis experience.

Eddie Dennis of Durham and George Bruton of Rocky Mount are also contenders for positions. Both appear to be in the game and could upheave one of the favorites. As it now stands all six of the players will be pretty equally matched. No one player appears more than one set better than the next. With this kind of balance, the Pirates should pick up a lot of points on the strength of their third, fourth and fifth positions.

Champion Wolfpack Looks To Tournament In Denver

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina State's Atlantic Coast Conference basketball champions looked ahead today to the AAU tournament in Denver later this month while runner-up Duke prepared to play Villanova tomorrow in the NCAA tournament at New York.

Coach Everett Case's tall, fast-breaking State team added another trophy to its growing collection by coming from behind with a second-half spurt to defeat Duke, 87-77, for the tournament crown Saturday night.

Duke, although runner-up, will represent the conference in the NCAA playoffs. State, serving a one-year probation for violating the NCAA basketball tryout rule, is ineligible to compete in the NCAA tournament.

Backed Out

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts Boxing Commission will meet today to discuss Boston's latest fisty wrangle—Sugar Ray Robinson's last-minute pullout from last Saturday night's scheduled 10-rounder with Georgie Small of Brooklyn.

Meanwhile in Cincinnati, promoter Art Wirth insisted that Robinson—one-time middleweight and welterweight champion at—tempting a comeback—would fight Johnny Lombardo in Cincinnati March 15 as scheduled.

Robinson withdrew from his scheduled Boston match after complaining that he had a sore throat and virus symptoms which he said made him too weak to appear.

Kiwanis Classic To Open Friday

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Twenty-four picked high school basketball players will come here tomorrow to begin practice for the second annual Carolinas Kiwanis Classic Friday.

The 12-man teams representing North Carolina and South Carolina feature height. Only one man on the South Carolina squad is under six feet while only two members of the Tar Heel team are less than six feet.

GW And Richmond Head Up Southern All-Tourney Five

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—West Virginia won the championship but George Washington and Richmond dominated the 1955 all-tournament basketball team of the Southern Conference, announced here today.

GW a 58-48 lower to West Virginia in the tourney finals Saturday night, landed both halves of its one-two scoring punch, Corky Devlin and Joe Holup, on the honor squad chosen by press and radio reporters at the tournament. Richmond also claimed two spots on the team, one going to set shot specialist, Walt Lysaght and the other to the Spiders' ball-hawking guard, Warren Mills.

West Virginia's high-scoring court comedian, Rod Hundley, capped the fifth place on the all-tournament quintet.

Cleveland Gloats Over Pitching Material

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

Since pitching usually is the predominant factor in the success of a pennant winner, the Cleveland Indians had good reason today to gloat.

The Indians seem to abound in pitching potential for the 1955 campaign.

Wynn and Ebb Lemon were the mainstays last season, winning 23 apiece, while Mike Garcia accounted for 19 victories and Art Houtteman contributed 15. That adds up to 80 of Cleveland's 111 triumphs.

"FOLLOW THE LEADER" is the type of photo suitable for a beginner's try at photo oil coloring. It has large areas of simple colors without need for minute details. It's by Walter Chandoa, well known animal photographer.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures
Photo oil coloring of pictures is one aspect of photography that can stand a great deal of improvement. Most personal attempts at coloring photos result in washed-out, tinted prints. Even so-called professional jobs by the photo studios often detract, rather than enhance, photographs. Yet good hand coloring is not too difficult, is inexpensive and can give fun and satisfaction.

1028 Connecticut Ave., Washington, D.C.

It isn't necessary to be an artist in this work, for the photo itself supplies modeling, perspective and anatomy. Transparent photo all colors are easily changed if a mistake is made or a change in color is still wet, it can be rubbed off with cotton; if dry, it can be cleaned off without damaging the print.

Work can be done only on matte or semi-matte paper; it won't take successfully on a glossy or ferrotyped surface. The rougher the paper surface, adds Mrs. Marshall, the more artistic the effect. Either black-and-white or sepia toned prints may be used and if the subject is a blonde or if yellow dominates the composition, then results are better with sepia.

In all cases, a good color job is possible only with a good print, one in which the highlights are almost white, the middle tones not too dark and the shadows luminous. So don't waste your time on dark, muddy prints. If a print is cracked, don't work on it either. The oil will soak into the paper and leave a dark streak instead of spreading evenly over the gelatin surface.

Some paper surfaces take photos oil colors directly. Others require some preparation to make the colors spread more evenly. This consists merely of wiping medium solution, which comes with color sets, over the print surface. Some paper surfaces don't take to color in sufficient strength and even application of medium solution does not help or may make matters worse. Avoid that type of paper.

You must maintain the relationship of dark and light values in photos when adding color or the result will look bungled. In other words, don't leave dark colors on highlights or middle tones, or light colors on dark tones.

Colors are usually applied more heavily than required, then rubbed down to the desired shade. Go over a large area with the color required then clean out any small object in that area which doesn't take that color. This method is easier

Horseman Saves Two Swimmers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A patrolman used a horse and lariat to save Robert E. Malone from drowning off Ocean Beach yesterday after Malone had plunged to the aid of another distressed swimmer.

Carrying the rope, Patrolman Arthur Hagstrom, 28, swam out to Malone, nearly unconscious in the surf from fighting an ebb tide undertow.

Hagstrom pulled Malone, 39, Daly City accountant, toward shore until he was nearly exhausted. Nick Papazian rode his horse out to Hagstrom, who looped the lariat to Papazian's saddle.

The horse then pulled Malone to shore with Hagstrom holding his head out of water. Hagstrom is a former lifeguard.

Bruce McFarland, 28, whose wave for help Malone had answered, came safely to shore by himself. The ebb current's pull stopped, explained McFarland, "or I wouldn't be here."

Snakehandler Is Victim Of Cobra

BALTIMORE (AP)—Mrs. Frieda Hoxter, 25-year-old German girl who came to the United States as the wife of a GI, died last night from the bite of one of the two cobras she used in her snake act.

The 25-year-old woman, who performed as "Princess Naja," was bitten on the left arm Friday night during a night club performance. Mrs. Hoxter was separated from her husband, a corporal stationed at Ft. Meade Md.

She had been bitten three times in less than three months, and had spent brief periods in St. Joseph's Hospital, the same institution in which she died.

Police Capt. Elmer Bowen ordered Mrs. Hoxter's two cobras and a python she used in her act taken from the club to the zoo, labeling them a "public menace."

Four Perish In Burning Cottage

WILMINGTON, Mass. (AP)—A woman and three men perished yesterday in a blaze which destroyed a converted six-room summer cottage near Silver Lake.

The victims were John Mead, 30; his wife Ruby, 35; John R. Stephens, 26, a boarder; and James R. Frotton, 50, a merchant seaman who visited the cottage Saturday night and decided to stay overnight.

When attempting to avoid that small object by coloring all around it. But lesson number one, according to Mrs. Marshall, is how to manipulate wads of cotton and wrap skewers and toothpicks with cotton. It is with these that photo oil colors are applied and a little practice in wrapping and handling these tools of the trade will permit the work to proceed smoothly later.

Sales Of European Titles Have Slowed

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
CHICAGO (AP)—The American market for European titles seems to be slow these days.

The case of Lina von Lamezan, who has offered to sell the title of baroness.

She ran a series of notices, the first one nine days ago, in the personal column of a newspaper. There has been no sale thus far.

But she has received an armload of letters, a copy of a religious poem, a bouquet and a song dedicated to her and entitled "The Baroness Waltz."

Mrs. Von Lamezan, a childless widow, is 81 and lives in a time-weathered, stove-heated cottage on Chicago's northwest side.

She told a newsman yesterday that most of the letter writers were people who had some interest but only modest means.

"Some look good," she said. "I'll have to write to them."

Mrs. Von Lamezan explains that she does not have a simple sale in mind. In return for an unspecified sum of money, she says, she will adopt a suitable person who wants to share the title now and inherit it after her death.

She also says she came by the title through marriage in 1926 in Chicago to Baron Franz von Lamezan, who died about five years ago at his family's home in Freiburg, Germany.

One of the letters was from a 10-year-old girl who likes to read fairy tales. She wanted to be a princess.

The flowers—yellow jonquills—were brought by a Chicago woman.

100 MPH Pursuit Ends With Death Of Driver

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—With police pursuing, a young motorist drove for 42 miles down the wrong side of the busy Pennsylvania Turnpike last night at speeds up to 100 m.p.h.

The chase finally ended when the speeding car crashed into a tractor trailer set up as a roadblock. The driver, Kenneth Shelly, 27, of nearby Littleton, Pa., died in a hospital two hours later without giving any reason for his flight. Police said he hit the roadblock at 90 m.p.h., making no apparent effort to stop.

As his car roared along, sometimes without headlights, dozens of terrified motorists were forced off the highway. One car went down an embankment but no one was injured.

Lt. Walter E. Price of the state police said Shelly's car hit the trailer so hard it pushed under it and continued on for at least 10 feet. Price told this story of the chase:

"Shelly entered the turnpike at the Lebanon-Lancaster interchange at a speed estimated at 60 m.p.h. without stopping to pick up a toll ticket. He headed westbound in the proper lane for eight miles and then pulled into a service station.

"An officer asked him for his driver's license and he handed it over. Then he roared off, traveling east in the westbound lane.

"Two patrol cars took up the chase in the eastbound lane, traveling at speeds up to 100 m.p.h.

When he turned off his lights, the patrol cars picked him up with their spotlights, one traveling ahead of him and one behind. That probably saved many lives.

"He ran through one hastily erected blockade before we finally got the tractor trailer across the road. The truck was well lighted with flares but he made no effort to stop."

One of the most difficult jobs of housekeeping is to keep linoleum and asphalt tile floors waxed and gleaming. Now, thanks to Glaxo, it is no longer necessary to wax and scrub. All you do is apply Glaxo with a brush about twice a year. It maintains a high lustre, non slip coating that seals out dirt. Glaxo dries in one hour and is water clear. It's cheaper than wax in the long run, besides saving a terrific amount of work, plus truly a beautiful floor. Glaxo is available at Beik-Tyler's on the third floor.

Are Evidence of Social as well as Material Progress

Consider these facts:

3.2% beer or higher is sold legally in every State in the United States. Not one state is "dry" for beer.

All the principal cities of North Carolina have State ABC stores and Legal Sale of beer.

"Legal Control" counties have more nearly met their school needs than non-control counties, and there is ample evidence that "legal control" counties maintain a higher level of social services.

"Legal Control" sales have brought in over 60 million dollars in excise taxes to our State, Counties, Cities and Towns.

Wholesalers and retailers of legal beer in North Carolina represent a multi-million dollar industry which pays salaries, taxes, insurance; buys trucks, tires, store equipment, gasoline, electricity, gas, telephones and serves our economy in scores of ways.

As North Carolina maintains its leadership, the economic value of the beer industry cannot be overlooked. Its enormous contribution to our tax structure and economic value to local communities are important factors in North Carolina's progress.

Program Set For World Affairs Institute Here

Contemporary problems, particularly as they affect the United States, Europe, and South America, will receive attention from speakers of international reputation at the Second Annual World Affairs Institute at East Carolina College Thursday, March 10. Emphasis will be placed on the threat of Communism to world peace.

Dr. George Pasti of the college social studies department, chairman of the event, has announced a series of meetings which will be open to the public. A large number of people in this section of the state are expected to attend.

Speakers announced for the Institute are Boyd France, foreign affairs expert for "Business Week"; Jorge Hazera, counselor of the Costa Rican Embassy in Washington; and Per Mosen, Norwegian author and journalist. John C. Metcalfe, Washington editor of Worldwide Press Service, who was present on the campus last spring for the first institute at the college, will again act as moderator.

The program for the day will open with an assembly at 10 a.m. in the Wright auditorium. "Meeting the Threat of Communism" will be discussed by Mr. Mosen, speaking on the situation in Europe; Mr. Hazera, who will analyze conditions in South America; and Mr. France, an authority on foreign economic policy, who will deal with problems in this country.

A World Affairs Forum at 7:30 p.m. in the College Theatre will include short talks by the visiting authorities. A question-and-answer period which will provide opportunity for the audience to participate in the discussion will follow.

For the afternoon, two informal meetings have been scheduled, both for 3 o'clock. At this time Mr. Metcalfe and Mr. Hazera will act as discussion leaders at the Mamie E. Jenkins Faculty-Alumni House; and Mr. France and Mr. Mosen, in the Y Hut.

In addition to these events, to which the public is invited, a luncheon honoring the guest-speakers will be held at 12:30 p.m. in the North Dining Room.

Police Checking Tale Of Break-In By Sleepwalker

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP)—Police today were investigating the possibility Bradford P. Borden, 22, of Greenwich, Conn., was sleepwalking when he broke into a home.

Francis A. Downey, investigating a noise in his home early yesterday, found Borden sitting in a dazed condition in a living room chair.

Borden claimed he was driving home from Northampton when he became sleepy and pulled over to the side of the road for a nap. The next thing he knew he woke up in Downey's living room police quoted him as saying.

Police said it is possible Borden walked in his sleep from the car, opened a window in the Downey house and climbed in.

Borden was charged with breaking and entering in the nighttime while police continued their investigation.

Sweden Plans Lift Liquor Restrictions

By KAI KYRING
STOCKHOLM (AP)—Next Oct. 1 Swedes can walk into liquor stores and buy whatever they want and even afford—without restrictions of any kind.

They haven't been able to do that for 35 years. Authorities have discovered, however that making it legally difficult to drink does not necessarily curb drinking.

Sweden has never tried prohibition, but the rationing system of the past 35 years has been next to it. This complex system controlled by the government sets a theoretical limit to the quantity of liquor a Swede may drink and when.

Two-thirds of an ounce go with a restaurant meal. But the meal must be hot and cost at least 45 cents. Women get only half the men's liquor ration.

The liquor stores are state-owned. To buy in them, a man over 26 must fill in a long questionnaire, obtain a certificate from the police and apply for a government permit allowing a maximum of three quarts a month. Married women get nothing at all while single women over 30 get a maximum of one quart a month.

The idea behind this system was that the rigorous control and the jungle of red tape should discourage buyers. But a six-year official investigation revealed that the restrictions have not curtailed drinking. The restriction to three quarts a month caused people to buy and consume that amount if only to prove they could.

The investigation shows, moreover, that 1 Swede in 10 has been in conflict with the authorities for abusing the liquor legislation, and that drunkenness among teen-agers has trebled in 20 years despite the fact that men under 25 and women under 30 cannot buy liquor legally. Circumventing the liquor law has become something of a sport. The numerous loopholes in the law make it easy for anybody to get hold of any amount of liquor—at a price.

Illegal distilleries in country cabins and city cellars and attics provide a substantial amount of cheap liquor (moonshine) on the side.

Despite all this alcohol consumption per capita in Sweden has dropped by more than 50 per cent in the last 100 years. Today there is little alcoholism in the country-side.

Reports Rise In Dental Repairs

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Maj. Gen. Oscar P. Snyder, chief of the Army Dental Corps, says the percentage of young men entering the Army in need of a repair job on their teeth is the highest he can remember.

Snyder, here to speak today to the alumni of the University of Kansas City School of Dentistry, blames the bad teeth on World War II.

During the war, he said in an interview, a lot of dentists were in the armed forces. Father of young children were also in military service and many mothers held jobs. The result, he added, is fewer children received dental checkups.

Rescuing Craft Got In Trouble

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A Coast Guard crash unit and a police patrol boat went to aid pleasure craft on Lake Pontchartrain yesterday when a 20-degree temperature drop brought high winds and rough seas.

The Coast Guard boat wound up high and dry on a jetty. The police boat bent its propeller, began to leak and had to be towed to a New Orleans boat yard by a passing pleasure craft.

Except for these two casualties, all other small craft were reported out of danger with no rescue operations necessary.

West Face Choice Of Dangers Over Germany

WASHINGTON (AP)—In deciding to rearm Germany, the West had to choose between the potential danger of revived German militarism and the more immediate danger of an aggressive Russia.

The potential danger remains although, starting out, German rearmament will be under some controls: an armed force of 500,000 men tied in with Germany's Western neighbors and NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The United States more than five years ago proposed German rearmament and has fought for the idea since. It is coming closer to being a reality. France, remembering three German invasions, has been cool.

In Germany itself there is much pacifism and opposition to rearmament. Under the pressure of changing events this pacifist mood may evaporate and become again one of militarism.

The German military leadership has been a consistently dominant, antidemocratic force, contemptuous of civil authority. Gordon A. Craig, Princeton professor and specialist on German militarism, in a recent lecture considered the danger of rearming Germany by asking: Who will be the new German military leaders?

Reports from Germany have said only those officers who had no connection with the Nazis will be commissioned. But Nazism was only one short chapter in German history. A longer chapter has been that of the military leadership, anxious for conquest to justify its existence.

It is possible the new leadership, even though non-Nazi, will continue the old story by reverting to type. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, friend of the West, has pushed Germany into rearmament. He is 79 and will not be around long. What happens after he leaves the scene is a guess. The West had to gamble on it.

Will the present democracy continue, with strong civil controls on the military, or degenerate after Adenauer into a power struggle, chaos, revolution and the return of a dictatorship of some kind? Rearmed Germany may remain a loyal ally. Or she may burst through Allied controls and plunge into huge rearmament aimed at regaining her lost territories.

The West Germans intensely dearm themselves with East Germany, where the Russians have built an armed force with the help of German generals captured in the war. It is even possible the new military leadership, if it gains enough power, may take Germany out of the Western alliance and shift to Russia.

Craig recalled that under the first German republic in the 1920s, when Germany's army was limited to 100,000 men, the generals schemed secretly with the Russian Communists to get arms.

Perhaps the only happy prospect in the picture of German rearmament, besides the immediate strength it gives the Allies, is that the Russians seem far more worried about it than the West.

Girl Scout Week Being Observed By Local Units

Local Girl Scouts are celebrating March 6-12 as National Girl Scout Week.

Yesterday was proclaimed throughout the nation as Girl Scout Sunday, with the various troops attending the churches of their choice.

Other days during the week have also been especially designated. Today was observed as Home-making Day; tomorrow will be Citizenship Day; Wednesday, Health and Safety Day; Thursday, International Friendship Day; and Friday, Arts and Crafts Day.

Activities of the week will be climaxed Saturday, which will be observed as the forty-third birthday of Girl Scouting in the nation.

During the week each individual Scout and Brownie troop will celebrate this birthday within its own group.

Last Week For Rabies Clinics

This is the last week rabies control clinics will be held in the county, and all dog owners who have not done so are urged to have their animals vaccinated at one of these clinics.

Fee is $1 per dog, with the vaccination required by state law. The local clinics are being sponsored by the Pitt County Health Department and the Pitt County Veterinary Association.

The week's schedule is: Monday: 1-2 p.m., Carlton Young's Store; 2:15-3:15 p.m., R. L. Fulford's Store.

Tuesday: 1-2:30 p.m., M. D. Mobbey's Store; 3-4 p.m., Roy Simmon's Store.

Wednesday: 1-3:45 p.m., Farmers Warehouse (Greenville); 4-5 p.m., Brookgreen School (Greenville). Saturday: 9 a.m. until 12 noon, New Enterprise Warehouse.

Firm Believer In Drum-Beating

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Roy Harte may not blow his own horn but he certainly believes in beating his own drum.

Harte, a 30-year-old radio and TV bandman, put down his sticks at midnight Saturday after drumming for 57 consecutive hours.

During the marathon Roy was given haircuts and shaves, was fed steaks and orange juice without missing a beat. He even boarded a truck, and still playing rode to a night club where he sat in with Gene Krupa's band.

Roy had "a real fast 12 hours sleep" yesterday and doesn't think he'd like to do it again.

Tell Her It's MURDER

CHAPTER ONE

They were to have been married at 11 o'clock on the morning of May 20. The discovery that called the wedding was made at 7 a. m. by two of the caterer's women coming to get the reception off to an early start.

Going over the small body lying half on and half off the driveway, the medical examiner said death had taken place hours before. Later the autopsy pinpointed the time as between 1 and 3 with a margin for error of not more than a half hour either way. The victim was Roger Pelham, aged eight, the prospective bride's only son by a first marriage. It was a vehicular homicide. Rain had fallen the evening before and the record was there in the tire marks on the driveway in the condition of the boy's body. Entering the Pelham grounds through the upper gates, the car had run the boy down at the curve. The wheels had passed over the body. The jolt must have been considerable but the car hadn't stopped. It had gone on past the house and out through the gates below.

No one who heard it ever forgot Regina Pelham's cry when they told her. The child had been ill but was almost well again. A nurse was there, and Regina's stepister Susan Dwight, who was to have been her maid of honor, and David Redgate, Regina's doctor and friend. Regina was in bed asleep when they went in. She sat up at their entrance, looked from one to the other. Their faces were enough. They wouldn't have looked like that for anything but death. A strangled wail distantly. It was the ambulance.

Jim Andrus was the man Regina

Pelham was marrying. "It's—Jim," she whispered. "—might have known... Jim's dead?"

There was no way of sparing her. The child's body was being carried into the house. Dr. Redgate said "No, Regina—not Andrus."

"Then—it's Roger." Tears were pouring down the nurse's cheeks, down Susan Dwight's. The doctor inclined his head. He couldn't speak.

Regina Pelham's lips parted and that cry came through then, high and thin and unearthly. On that mercifully she ceased. The rest of the horror was reserved for later on.

The only luck in the whole dreadful business was the prompt identification of the death car by means of the tires, the smashed headlamp—and certain other things. There was blood on the front left fender, and a few fair hairs. The car was the property of James Field Andrus, the prospective bridegroom. They found Andrus getting dressed for his wedding in his room at the Wolf Hill Inn, half a mile away. His best man was with him. Andrus was dazed, couldn't get the charge through his head. He was in the throes of a bad hangover. "I killed—you're crazy!"

But there was no room for the slightest possible doubt. A bachelor dinner had been held for Andrus at the inn the night before. At around 11 o'clock he had passed out cold and had been carried to his room by several of the guests. His shoes and coat had been removed and a blanket thrown over him. No one had thought of his car or dreamed he would stir before morning. But he had got up and gone out.

His prints and his alone were on the wheel of his car.

Another guest at the inn, a Mrs. Sommers, had seen him stumble across the grass toward the green convertible at shortly before midnight and get into the car and drive off. He was still in the car at 9 a. m. that morning. Another guest returning late from a party had seen him slumped over the wheel in a stupor, his head on his arms. In the course of his wandering, some impulse in a disordered brain had sent him over to the Pelham house. Andrus remembered nothing. He was placed under immediate arrest.

The question then rose of what Roger Pelham had been doing outside in the darkness of the May night, clad only in pajamas. The answer was that the boy walked in his sleep. The nurse Mrs. Caspersly and sent to prison for two and a half years. The Pelham house on Wolf Hill was shut up. Regina Pelham was in a rest home for a while and after that she went to the city. The case was closed. For 18 months. Then, abruptly, it was reopened.

Jim Andrus was released from jail on the 2nd of November of the following year, after having served a year and a half of his sentence. His train got into Grand Central station at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

He went out on Lexington Ave., got a taxi and gave the driver the address of his apartment on Sutton place on which the lease still had a year to run.

His own clothes had been given to him that morning, and he had enough money for a while anyhow. The doorman at the apartment hotel smiled welcomingly. "Glad to see you, Mr. Andrus," he said. "What was the man's name? Ben Andrus said, "Thanks, Ben. How's your wife?" Mrs. Ben had been going to have a child when he left. "She's fine," the doorman said. "We got twin girls."

From across the street eyes that were narrow and burningly bright watched Andrus enter the apartment hotel, go to the desk and then recede into the depth of the lobby. The watcher waited a moment and hurried off.

In a room under the stairs Andrus opened his locker with a key on a ring took out a pigskin bag and went up in the self-service elevator to the 17th floor. Unlocking the front door, he went through the foyer and into the long living-room, put down the bag and switched on the lights. Standing looking around, he felt as though he had come an immense distance from nowhere to nowhere.

There was dust on everything, a slight film of it. Thinking back a conscientious effort. He made himself think. This was where he was to have come back to with Regina Pelham while they waited two days for the ship for the Bahamas. Regina had said, "I love the river, and the boats going up and down and the bridges, and the city lights." There had been a lovely childishness in the gravely beautiful woman of 32 who was to have been his wife. He had guessed that her first marriage had not been happy. She never spoke of it, or of her former husband.

Andrus picked up the bag, carried it into the bedroom, put it on the bed and got out his keys. It was the only bag he had taken to Wolf Hill. The rest of his stuff had remained here. He opened the bag and started through the contents, tossing them on the bed, taking out a robe and shoes and a dark blue suit and ties and linen and socks. He stopped at two small square white boxes, and stared. Oh, yes the two rings, the wedding ring and the engagement ring. Regina had sent the engagement ring back to him while he was in

What happened to all these tax dollars? Many of them never got very far from home. In fact, over a MILLION ($1,374,267) was paid to the State Treasury and to the Local and County treasuries in the 41 counties served by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company.

These dollars went to work for your community — helping to pay for schools, police, fire protection, highways and streets, and many other vital public services. Federal taxes, of course, went for national defense and other federal expenses.

It is also important to you that your telephone company is a locally owned, non-government subsidized industry that pays its own way.

HOW DO YOU FEEL ABOUT NUISANCE TAXES?

A proposal has been made to the North Carolina Legislature to place a special tax of more than 15 per cent on soft drinks. This kind of levy has long been referred to as a "nuisance tax," because it is unpopular with the people, expensive to collect, disappointing in revenue and harmful to business.

North Carolina's wise and beloved Governor O. Max Gardner was vigorously opposed to proposals to put a special high-rate tax on soft drinks. He said: "It seems to me a narrow comprehension of the subject to designate such articles (soft drinks) as luxuries . . . Their use is as common among the poorest as among the wealthiest classes . . . it is contrary to my conception of a fair tax in that it is a perversion of the doctrine of ability to pay . . ."

The soft drink bottlers of North Carolina are paying for this ad to bring you the facts about the proposed soft drink tax. Naturally, we don't like it. But remember, the tax wouldn't be on us it would be on you!

We are opposed to this nuisance tax on soft drinks because we think it is unfair and un-American. It singles out one legitimate industry for a special, high-rate 15 per cent tax. Our business is to supply the people with one of the few wholesome pleasures that any child or working man can easily afford to buy. We don't think our business should be penalized with a discriminating tax; and we don't think you want to pay it.

If the Legislature needs additional funds to carry on State services, we believe that it is not unfair to ask that the money come from all business equally. We want our businesses to keep on being prosperous so we can continue to pay our fair share of taxes, as we are now doing.

We ask no special favors and we seek no exemptions. No business has the right to escape fair taxation—but every business has the right to expect that it alone will not be singled out for a special tax not applying to other products on the merchants' shelves.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED IN OTHER STATES?

Many other states have tried a nuisance tax on soft drinks. The Federal government even tried it once—and repealed it as being unfair and unsatisfactory as a revenue source. In only two states has the tax been retained: South Carolina and West Virginia. And even now the independent mountaineers of West Virginia are up in arms against the tax. Just recently—on Feb. 3—a bill to levy a penny tax on the sale of each soft drink was withdrawn from the Tennessee Legislature by its sponsor, Senator Thrasher, after it had run into stout opposition.

In 1951, Governor Chandler of Kentucky had this to say about the soft drink tax repealed in his State: "The tax was unpopular, and as Governor I asked the Legislature to repeal it. The tax did not bring in as much revenue as we thought it would. It was difficult to collect and highly unpopular with our people."

In South Carolina, about half of the bottlers were forced out of business by the tax. Many officials estimate that the income from the soft drink tax has been more than offset by the loss of regular tax money from bankrupt bottlers.

WHO PAYS THE TAX?

You do. Your children do. The working man does. In every case, most of the money from soft drink taxes has come from lower-income groups. Why? Because most soft drinks are bought by children and working people.

WILL A NUISANCE TAX RAISE THE NEEDED FUNDS?

Nuisance taxes have always failed to produce the revenue expected of them. This is because sales of the taxed product always fall off—and revenue is based on sales. When the businesses producing the taxed commodity fall on evil days because of the discriminatory levy, they naturally return less money through regular tax channels.

A major trouble with the soft drink tax is that it singles out one industry for an abnormal and repressive burden. It is unfair and unsound for our State to embrace the "Eenie, Meenie, Minie, Moe" theory of taxation. In this case, "Moe" happens to be the bottling industry that has been singled out for a new kind of discrimination. What business will be the next "Moe" tapped for special high-rate taxes? It could be yours—anybody's!

Skid Results In Damage To Three Cars Yesterday

Three cars were damaged late Sunday morning when a vehicle skidded on a dirt road in the Bell Arthur section.

Driver of the vehicle was Robert Earl Connor, 16-year-old Negro of Ayden Route 1, who was driving with a learner's permit.

Investigating Patrolman D. E. Perry said the accident happened as Connor came up behind a tractor operated by Walter Grant. The driver of the car apparently lost control when he applied brakes. The vehicle skidded into Walter Grant's yard and hit a parked car belonging to Roy Lee Grant of Kinston. It then hit a mail box and finally struck a second parked car belonging to Lee Parker Grant. Damage to all three cars was estimated at $350. Connor was charged with speeding faster than reasonable and prudent.

Saturday night a pickup truck operated by Elbert Pollard of Greenville overturned on a curve when the driver apparently lost control. The vehicle was traveling north on a rural paved road near Pactolus when the accident occurred.

Investigating Patrolman James W. Boykin said Pollard suffered hand and arm injuries in the mishap. The truck was completely demolished. Boykin said his investigation is incomplete.

der the conservative Chiang Kai-shek. Both claim sole representation in the United Nations. Thus far only Formosa, ruled by Chiang Kai-shek, is a member of the United Nations.

What Of The Future?

My forecast.

Although we should hold Formosa for the present, I forecast that Formosa will sometime again be an integral part of China which will have a compromise government such as General Marshall recommended. Before then both Chinas will be members of the United Nations. I further forecast that World War III will be avoided for this year at least. Even though Captain Puleston seems logical in saying that only by "striking first," after fair warning, can we avoid being destroyed, I doubt if the American people would support "striking first" based only on Formosa. Yet, the recent vote of Congress indicates that we might, certainly, we are in a very critical situation.

Pair Arrested In Liquor Search

ABC officers and local police arrested Maggie Strickland and Curtis Rogers at 218 B Center Street at 2 a.m. Sunday morning and charged them with illegal possession of non-tax paid liquor.

Officers said they found two gallons of illegal liquor locked in a trunk. The trunk was chained and padlocked, officers declared.

The pair was placed under $200 bond.

Steer Will Be In Show

Bobby Manning, a member of the Belvoir-Falkland F.F.A. Club, will enter the young steer shown above in the Fifth Annual Pitt County Fat Stock Show and Sale to be held in the Farmer's Warehouse April 28. All farmers who want to enter hogs in the annual Show and Sale are requested to attend a meeting in the local Courthouse Monday night, March 7, at 7:30 o'clock. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Polio Vaccine Requested To Inoculate 3,600 Children

A letter was sent today by the local Health Department to state Health Officer J. W. R. Norton requesting that polio vaccine be made available to Pitt County to vaccinate without cost 3,600 first and second grade children.

Whether or not this vaccine is made available at all depends upon the report of a study committee of eminent doctors as to the effectiveness of the vaccination against polio. If the vaccine is authorized by the National Institute of Health, Washington, D. C., it will be released for use in local communities in April.

Pitt County Health Director Walter C. Humbert said reports have been received from the parental request sheets, which are necessary before any child may be vaccinated.

He noted there have been 3,400 requests for the vaccination and 372 refusals, while there was no response to 253 of the sheets.

Approximately 4,200 white and colored children in the two primary grades of the county are eligible to receive the vaccine.

Humbert declared the affirmative response is greater than was anticipated, and he expects there will be about 200 delayed requests for the vaccine. He attributes this delay to the fact that when the release sheets were distributed last week there were a number of upper respiratory infections, such as colds, in the county.

The health director also reported he had received a notice today from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis stating that headquarters had shipped to the local office information material giving facts about the vaccine, the routine to be used and vaccination records to keep on each child taking the vaccination here.

As soon as this material arrives, which may be from two to three weeks, according to Humbert, it will be sent to the schools to be distributed to parents.

Guest Speakers For Adult Class

BELVOIR—Robert Tunnel and James L. Harris Jr. were guest speakers at the third informal discussion for adults held at the Belvoir-Falkland High School this year.

Tunnel spoke on rug cleaning, while Harris discussed care of floors. A question and answer period was also held, during which individual problems were discussed.

Mrs. Dorothy R. Gurganus, home economics teacher, announced there will be three more classes held. The next meeting will be March 8 when Mrs. Doris Leggett, home economist with Virginia Electric and Power Company, will give a demonstration on "Time-Saving Techniques."

On March 16 Mrs. Gurganus, with the aid of home economics students, will demonstrate and discuss pointers for easier and better sewing.

Tunnel will return March 18 for a discussion on picture hanging and selection.

The public is invited to these meetings.

Those attending last week were Mesdames Carl Scott, J. T. Cobb, J. O. Teel, J. D. Harrington, W. A. Ross, Marshall Joyner, Allen Garrix, Peter Brown, C. B. Spain, H. O. Hathaway, L. J. Jones, Wiley Clark, Ozzie Wilson and Gene Tucker.

Rains Help Curb Woods Fire In County Sunday

Fire on about 50 acres of Bates Lumber Company woodland in the Black Jack community of Pitt County Saturday night kept Chief Forest Ranger N. S. (Kid) Tyson and his crew busy until nearly daylight Sunday morning.

The forest rangers used their heavy equipment to plow a "fire lane" around the scattered fire and brought it under control. The blaze flared up Sunday during high wind, but was brought under control.

Heavy rain Sunday afternoon finally quenched scattered burning embers, the Forest Fire Control Tower near the television station reported.

Half-Inch Rain Over Weekend

Thunderstorms in the Greenville area Saturday night and Sunday afternoon were accompanied by over half an inch of rain and strong wind.

The highest temperature here Sunday was 79. Lowest last night 37, a drop of 42 degrees, and at 8 a.m. today it was 44.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 46. Lowest that night 22, and that was 10 degrees below freezing. At 8 a.m. next day it was 35. Heavy frost that night, the local U. S. Weather Station reported.

SCIENTIST ROBBED

LONDON (AP)—Burglars stole jewelry and furs valued at 1,000 pounds ($2,800) from the home of Sir Alexander Fleming, 73-year-old discoverer of penicillin. They also carried away his safe on a wheelbarrow but abandoned it when it fell off in the street and roused sleeping neighbors.

Man Charged In Stabbing Case

Arthur Manning, 33-year-old Greenville man, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon after he was alleged to have stabbed Walter Thomas White Saturday night.

White, an East Carolina College student, received a wound in the chest about 8:30 Saturday night. The stabbing took place at the "Jolly Roger," a night spot on the Washington Highway.

The stabbed man was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital following the incident where he was treated and remained there the weekend.

The sheriff's department, which investigated, said that Manning's case has been set for County Court tomorrow morning.

Girl Scouts On Radio Wednesday

Girl Scout Troop No. 12 will conduct a radio program over station WGTC Wednesday afternoon from 4:45 until 5 o'clock.

The program is being given as part of activities observing National Girl Scout Week this week. Participating on the 15-minute show will be Sandra Phillips, Betty Derrick and Jane Blue. Leader of the scout troop is Miss Jan Mitchell of East Carolina College.

Youth Drowns In Fishing Pond

TARBORO—Harold Carlisle Holt, 1-year-old son of Anderson B. Holt of Richmond, Va., fell from a boat while fishing on the "wildlife pond" at Old Sparrow and was drowned Saturday afternoon.

He was a Boy Scout and a member of the Safety Patrol at the elementary school here. He lived here with an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Harris, 1125 Albemarle avenue. His mother was the late Mrs. Audrey Carter Holt. Surviving are his father; one sister, Carol Holt, and one brother, Anderson Holt, of the home here.

Funeral services were held at Pentecost Holiness Church Monday at 4 o'clock. Rev. Harvey Morris officiated. Burial was in Greenwood Cemetery.
