My Husband Is In Love With The Undertaker

Dedicated to the man who insists A "Thousand" is enough.

My husband's in love with the Undertaker: You ask, "How do I know?" Well, it's plain to be seen; in fact, I confess. He as much as told me so.

He came home one day awhile ago, His face lit up with glee; And he said, "I've bought some life insurance, For I'll die some time, you see."

And I asked him how much he had taken; "Oh, a thousand dollars," he said; "It's not very much, but when I die It's enough to bury me."

How proud he was as he talked that night; Said he, "When I meet my Maker, There's one thing for sure, I'll leave enough To pay the undertaker."

And then I thought of my poor health, And of our small children, three, And I said to him, "But listen, Jim, What will you leave for the kiddies and me?"

"Now there," he said, as he scratched his head. "I guess you don't have to fret; There'll be money, you see, to bury me, And you won't have to go in debt."

I knew that he could, so I told him he should Buy a thousand or two for his own! And I said, "It's not fair, and you ought to care For your family, if left alone."

And he wouldn't consent — he had enough He thought he had done quite well He'd insured the undertaker, And his family could go to h——

Soviet Council Claims British-French 'Violations'

To Nullify Friendship Pacts

MOSCOW (BY PHONE TO LONDON) (AP)—The Soviet Council of Ministers today called on the Parliament to annul the treaties of friendship and alliance which Russia signed with France and Britain during World War II.

A proposal for the annulment of said treaties. Under the Soviet constitution it is possible for the Presidium—a small body which exercises parliamentary authority when the Supreme Soviet is not in session—to take the annulment action itself.

A Foreign Office spokesman said Britain's attitude was firm and explained, "We presented what we thought was an unanswerable case when the threats to abrogate the treaty were first raised."

work on the 637-million-dollar 1955-57 state budget. In a busy week of day and night sessions, the appropriations committee, the public school child health program in half from $1,000,000 to $550,000 for the biennium.

A conference between legislators and Gov. Hodges resulted in the first change in the resolution. As it was originally prepared last week, it called for "mixing of the races throughout the public schools throughout the state cannot be accomplished, and if attempted would alienate public support of the schools to such an extent that they could not be operated successfully."

Both amendments, their sponsors said, were designed to make the bill more emphatic in its declaration against integration.

The measure would eliminate continuing contracts for teachers and also provide for the automatic termination of contracts with teachers whose jobs are dissolved by any subsequent court ruling, such as one to abolish separate Negro school districts. City's 6-Year Improvement Project Has Varied Goals

Elm Street (pictured above) between Fourteenth and Green Mill Run will become a four-lane drive if recommendations now being studied by the Planning Board are adopted. A pedestrian walk separating the lanes will provide safer crossing for school children attending the new high school which will be built in that area.

Two additional 750-gallon high pressure fire trucks similar to the one shown above will be purchased in the next six years under improvement plans recommended to the Planning Board. Under the proposals one of the trucks would be purchased next year and the second in the last year of the six-year period for use in the proposed new sub-station.

A third sub-fire station, similar to the West End Sub-station shown above, will be constructed in East Greenville under proposed plans. A Planning Board committee is already at work attempting to choose a suitable site for the station.

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

If the $1,093,645 improvement projects as laid before the Planning Board by City Manager James S. Hughes, are carried out it will mean a number of added services to the citizens of Greenville.

However, the proposed program is to come in for considerable study by the Planning Board and later by the Council and it is possible that many of the projects which were recommended by department heads will fall by the way-side as the city government bodies seek to determine ways of financing the improvements.

In all probability portions of the program would require bond issues to finance if they are approved. Other projects would be financed on a year-to-year basis from the city's regular budget.

The million-dollar-plus program would not be as rough financially as it looks at first glance, however, since many of the proposals included in the recommendations are already included in the yearly budgets.

For instance, under Public Works recommendations planners are calling for $25,000 per year for the annual curb and gutter and paving program with a line amount coming from property owners, making a total of $300,000 over the six-year period or almost one-third of the total amount. That money would come from the annual turnover from the state of Powell Bill monies which are earmarked for street construction. That item would be no problem when officials turn their attention to the financing of the over-all program.

New Patrol Cars
Recommended by the Police Department is the expenditure of $25,500 for automotive equipment during the next six years. Much of that money is designated for replacement of present equipment and a specified amount is already carried in the city budget for that purpose. However, one new patrol car in addition to present automotive equipment is being requested in the six-year plan.

City Manager Hughes says that the system of planning, if adopted would be continuous. That is, a new years planning would be added as each year passes. When the plans proposed for the fiscal year 1955-56 had been completed, recommendations for the fiscal year 1961-62 would be added to keep the six-year cycle in operation.

"A number of projects have piled up over a period of years and the time is coming when we will find ourselves depressing rather than progressing if we don't accomplish some of them," Hughes stated.

"In my opinion one of the most important phases of city planning is to make long range plans for city growth by these development projects," he continued. "The only way to accomplish this is to set them up in a program and find ways and means to accomplish that program."

He emphasized that the program would be flexible, however, and could be revised from year-to-year as the need for changes arose.

Public Works Department
Under the Public Works Department the projects listed and the six-year totals were: widen Evans Street from Fifth to Fourteenth, $22,000; extension of First Street from Cotanche to Woodlawn, $40,000; widen Greene Street from Dickinson Avenue to the river, $17,380; Green Mill Run drainage improvement, $31,000; widen Eighth Street from Dickinson Avenue to Evans Street, $5,800; right-of-way for N.C. 11 by-pass, $30,000; curb and gutter and paving program, $300,000; storm sewer-Cherry Hill Vance Street area, $51,750; storm sewer, Clark Street Tenth to Fourteenth Street, $19,500; Storm sewer, East Third and Fourth Streets, $4,600; widen Cotanche Street from Second to Third Streets, $4,800.

Widen Pitt Street from First to Dickinson Avenue, $22,000; Elm Street, dual Lane from Green Mill Run to by-pass, $56,600; development of Green Spring Park, $10,000; construction and maintenance equipment, $52,000; off-street parking lots, $75,000; automotive equipment, $38,900.

That gives a total of $781,330 in improvements asked for by the Public Works Department.

The dual lane drive in front of the high school property would be done in two phases according to City Manager Hughes with the first section to run from the mill run to Fourteenth Street and the second to the new by-pass.

Money for off-street parking lots would be in addition to expenditures now being made by the city.

Fire Department
The fire department asked for a sub-fire station during 1960-61 costing $16,000 and two new fire trucks costing $32,000. One of the trucks would be purchased immediately for use in the main fire station and the second would be purchased in 1960-61 for use in the new sub-station.

Recreation Department
Proposed for the Recreation Department were: six spray pools, $2,400; master plan for recreation, $3,200; activity building, South Greenville Park $15,000; lights for night activities, $1,000; lights for Elm Street tennis courts, $3,200; Elm Street Park swimming pool, $125,000; South Greenville Park swimming pool, $80,000.

Improvements asked by the Recreation Commission totaled $229,800.

In the administrative department $6,000 was asked for miscellaneous office equipment.

Police Department
The police department asked for: automotive equipment, $25,500; Office equipment, $1,400; photo and fingerprint equipment, $1,015; radio equipment, $3,600; pistol range, $1,000. Total improvements for the police department are $32,515.

Provided under police expenditures during the six years would be a new two-way transmitter for police headquarters and one additional mobile unit for the requested patrol car.

Few One-Of-A-Kind For Easter Parade

By DORTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

When America's well-dressed women step out in the Easter parade, few, if any, will be wearing one-of-a-kind costumes, whether they paid $25 or $1,500 for them.

The recent embarrassment over the almost identical dresses of Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Durries Crane at a Washington tea points up the fact that in today's world of mass-produced fashions the First Lady is no more certain than Judy O'Grady that she won't meet herself walking down the street.

The dresses worn by Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Crane were turned out by the New York wholesale firm of Parnis-Livingstone, a husband-and-wife team. Mollie Parnis has designed most of the First Lady's clothes since her return to America. But neither Mrs. Eisenhower nor Miss Parnis makes any pretenses that the dresses are exclusive. Some 90 copies of the current dress were made, to retail at about $110. Usually at least 200 dresses are cut in each style shown by a wholesale dress firm. These are sold to various stores around the country, each usually ordering a full range of sizes in each style. However, even if Mrs. Eisenhower had paid from $50 to $1,500 for a made-to-order dress, designed by one of the famous custom dress-makers of New York or Paris, she still would run the risk of meeting someone else wearing one like it.

The day of one-of-a-kind fashions, designed for and worn by one woman only, has been past for some time. Paris custom designers create a group of new fashions each season, and show the models to selected groups of private customers and commercial buyers. The commercial buyers usually pay a sizable fee for the privilege of seeing the collections, and then buy models to be copied by their own firms. Thus the $1,000 Paris suit soon is being turned out by American manufacturers in mass production to sell for $50 to $100.

Private customers who order from the collections have the garments made to order, and are assured of perfect fit, but not of exclusivity. For anyone who is invited to view a collection is privileged to order any style shown.

The eyes of many ostriches weigh more than twice as much as their brains.

The Enduring Story Of Easter

1. For I say unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves. (Luke 22: 16-17)

2. And he came out, and went, as he was wont to the mount of Olives . . . and there appeared an angel unto him from Heaven, strengthening him. And being in agony he prayed more earnestly. (Luke 22: 39-43)

With the approach of Easter, the story of Jesus' last days is being repeated in words and pictures all over the world. Through the ages, artists of many lands have told and retold it.

One of the great artists who devoted their talents to it is Paul Gustave Dore, 19th century French painter and sculptor. His vivid engravings, pictured here, tell the Easter story with great tenderness and feeling.

3. And when they had mocked him, they took off the purple from him, and put his own clothes on him, and led him out to crucify him. And they compel one Simon, a Cyrenian, who passed by, to bear his cross. (Mark 15: 20-21)

4. And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him . . . Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do. (Luke 23: 33-34)

5. Came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre . . . The angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. And the angel said, he is not here: for he has risen. (Matthew 28: 1-2-3)

Tell Her It's MURDER

CHAPTER THIRTY
 McKee went on with his story. "David Redgate admitted guilt because he was absolutely convinced that his sister was guilty. It was a tragedy of errors. Lofting and Trout were both staying at the inn. Lofting had already made up his mind that Trout had to be disposed of and he was very much on the alert. He saw Regina come and go that night saw the doctor come, and the doctor and Trout leave in the doctor's car. Lofting followed in his own. At the foot of the inn driveway Redgate turned right and ran along the cliff road to the little park near the top of the steps leading down to Yonkers. Trout got out there and Redgate drove on. Lofting pulled his own car well off the road and started after Trout. He caught up with him at the edge of the cliff, hit him with a fire iron and sent him over the edge and down the cliff. Lofting took care of the steps to finish the job. It was while this was going on that Amy Redgate arrived.

"Keep in mind," McKee said, "that it was snowing heavily, that it was night, and that visibility was very poor. There were some snow on the ground and a blizzard that night, as she said, but she had the blizzard near the inn gates. She saw her brother go past with Trout, caught a glimpse of her brother's face and was terrified. Redgate looked at her, as you know, Amy Redgate after the doctor's car on foot as far as the bend, trying to see where he was going. Lofting went past her but she didn't notice.

"What she saw when she was close to the little park was two men struggling on the cliff edge. One man went over and the other disappeared down the steps. She jumped to the conclusion that the man who had gone over the cliff was Trout and that the man who was left on the cliff was her brother. She ran to the cliff edge and loomed down. Below her she heard peering down. She heard blood poured other sounds—and stumbled off in the general direction of her car.

"At that point David Redgate came back. He had driven on only a short distance after dropping Trout when he pulled up. He didn't trust Trout, thought Trout might have pretended to leave, or that he might lose his way and return. Redgate made quickly for the steps on foot. He was coming from the south. A vague figure—Amy Redgate—was disappearing to the north. Redgate didn't recognize his sister then. He had a flashlight, switched it on. He saw tramped snow at the cliff edge. There was blood on the snow. Redgate in turn ran down the steps and found Trout's dead body—and something else. His sister's pocketbook was lying within five feet of the dead man, where it had dropped when Amy Redgate leaped over the cliff edge trying to see.

Trout was beyond help. Redgate's first intention had been to call the police. He remembered the half-seen figure hurrying away from the top of the steps, knew it was his sister, and was overwhelmed. "Amy knew about Regina's will. Regina had told her, she could know the whole story—and how much money there was. She would do anything to advance his interest, was far more ambitious for him, sometimes fiercely so, than he was for himself. He couldn't hand his sister over to the police. He picked up her purse and walked off.

"What Amy didn't see, couldn't see, was Barry Lofting, under cover near the body. The lethargic note again. Lofting is a man with the ability to stand and think a situation over. He had done it before when Andrus fell practically at his feet near the body of Mid-night Mike. He dragged Trout's body into the cave. He didn't bury him then—he's done some talking —he came back and said that point was Amy Redgate. He didn't think she had recognized him but he had to try to find out. He made for the Redgate house and arrived in time to see Amy Redgate shoot her brother through the window not to kill Redgate but to handcuff him, make him helpless, keep him tied to the house. Lofting grasped the situation at once—Amy convinced her brother was guilty, and Redgate that his sister was. This was hammered home by the affair of the pocketbook.

 "I've talked to both the Redgates. This is what happened. The moment the shot was fired Amy Redgate rushed inside. Redgate was on the floor with blood spurting. He hadn't yet lost consciousness. He waved at the bag that stood on his desk and said, 'You bag, Amy, I found it.' They looked at each other. Each one saw a murderer. Amy Redgate said vaguely, 'Oh, yes, I lost it. Thanks.' And that was all. Neither of them said another word.

"It was Lofting who had removed Mrs. Casserly's diary and put it on the cellar floor. Lofting who deposited Trout's laundry slip under the doctor's window—which deepened the brother and sister's suspicion of each other. It was Lofting who had thrown the gravel up at Regina's window last night, wearing Trout's hat and coat, Lofting who had pushed you down the cellar steps."

"He would have killed Regina?" Susan asked. At McKee's nod, coldness closed around her.
 "Lofting didn't know, still doesn't know about Regina's will—that's the joker."

McKee explained that again it was Dave Redgate who stopped Lofting in his tracks. There were detectives in the house in the room across from Regina's, more men outside. They had orders not to move prematurely. It was very dark around the back door. Just as Lofting was about to mount the back steps and enter, after disposing of Susan, Redgate came limping up. He was worried about Regina and Susan being alone in the house. Lofting faded into the deep shadow along the side wall and stayed there while Redgate mounted the back steps and went inside and up the stairs. Amy Redgate was on her brother's heels determined to stop another murder. She thought he was going to kill Regina. The detectives came out of hiding. The lights flashed on inside—and Lofting melted away.

Susan said, "And this morning? Dave had confessed. Why did Barry McKee said, "A man can stand just so much pressure. Lofting was on the very edge of being discovered a number of times. The unaccustomed activity into which he was thrust—his mental processes are slow—told on his nerves. He resented that the blackmailing game was pretty well over. You were his one remaining hope, you and a future dowry—Regina could always die later. Then you telephoned, breaking your engagement. It was the last straw."

McKee shrugged. "The gun was Andrus'. Lofting might possibly have got away with it at that, except for two things. Todhunter was on his trail all the way, and we linked up Trout's coat with the back of Lofting's car, very early this morning. There was special grease in the coat, and a particular kind of dust."

The door opened then and Todhunter and Jim Andrus came in. Susan had seen Regina briefly. She hadn't seen Jim Andrus since morning. Jim asked her how she was and she said all right. He sat down beside her and took her hand. She let it lie limply in his. She felt strange with him, awkward, shy. McKee was wanted on the phone. He went out. Todhunter lingered. Jim said to Susan, "That shot Mr. Todhunter's this morning saved our lives."

Todhunter protested. "You knoed Miss Dwight out of the way."
 "O.K.," Andrus conceded. "Then you saved my life."
 Susan took her hand out of Andrus', extended it to the little detective.
 Fink with pleasure, Todhunter shook her hand. He said, concerned, "You're cold, miss."
 "Not now," Susan smiled at him. Andrus had moved closer to her. His arm was around her shoulders. The mystery and strangeness began to go. Warmth in her sleeping back into her and comfort and a deep sensation of rest.
 Todhunter said, "I'm glad, miss," and left them.

THE GOLDEN DAY

The bell rings, and its message is a clarion call across the countryside. Beneath it, white lilies touched by the sunlight look upward toward a cloudless sky.

This is Easter... the golden day... the day of promise and joy. This is the time when God proffers the great gift of eternal life... when he shows, in the lesson of the Tomb... that there is no death.

There is no more joyous occasion in the Church than Easter. Against the setting of Spring, it touches the land with beauty, bringing a new upsurge of hope, thrilling the young, comforting the old. Easter is the time to rededicate your faith... to listen again to a wonderful promise... to receive again a glorious gift. Start attending Church regularly by beginning at Easter.

ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For the sake of his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

No Pigeon-Hole For Home Rule

Although the General Assembly now is devoting its attention to the major financial matters which confront the state, its members should not have covered with dust the constitutional amendment for home rule.
Greenville's City Council at its recent meeting voted its endorsement of the home rule amendment which has been proposed in the current session of the legislature. Although Pitt County's Board of Commissioners have not taken action concerning this particularly piece of legislation, they have indicated by opposition to other legislation they favor the home rule policy which the constitutional amendment would afford.
Each of Pitt County's three representatives in the General Assembly should lend his support to the home rule amendment.

Pitt Started The Ball Rolling

It looks like Pitt County may have started the ball rolling to get a number of standard Civil Defense rescue trucks in the eastern part of the state.
Under the auspices of the Greenville Jaycees several months ago a program was launched by which the several local government units of Pitt County contributed funds to purchase a Civil Defense rescue truck for use in Pitt. Prior to that time, as we understand, there were only a very few such trucks in North Carolina and none east of Raleigh.

In the past several days, the town of Washington has decided to purchase a similar rescue truck by providing the necessary $4,500 which is matched by Federal Civil Defense funds. Whether Pitt County's purchase of a rescue truck influenced Washington to take a similar step, we do not know. At any rate with Civil Defense rescue trucks in both Pitt and Beaufort Counties, perhaps other counties and municipalities in this area will likewise be induced to improve their emergency rescue equipment.

The greater the number of such units available in this area, the better off the area as a whole will be if any major emergency arises anywhere in this section.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
"LET THERE BE LIGHT"
"And God said, Let there be light: and there was light."
Thus did the Word of God sound out "in the beginning," when God created the heavens and the earth. Then was the earth "without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep." But what was that darkness compared with the darkness of men's souls when they put the Son of God to death on the cross? What was that void compared with the confusion of men's minds that see who could look upon the Holy One of God and see in him nothing but evil?
The first great "Let there be light" brought the earth and its creatures into being, but on that day only two thousand years ago when the hand of God reached down into the grave of Jesus of Nazareth and made Him rise from the dead, a light burst forth on that occasion, and an agonized world looked up and took hope.
Then did men know that righteousness had been vindicated, that evil and been overwhelmed, that the power of death had been broken.
"To be in Christ is the secret of our life."
"To be for Christ is the meaning of our activity."
"To be with Christ is the hope of our glory."

Cost Of War Will Go Higher
By RAY TUCKER
Every Saturday, Mr. Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent to him at 7008 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.
WASHINGTON—"In view of the recent military pay raises," writes Mrs. K. L. of Columbia, S. C., "is the cost of war going to continue to increase?"
"If so, how can we ever balance the budget, reduce the national debt and get taxes down so that the average American can pay them without having to sacrifice such things as food, clothing, a good home, education and a few luxuries? To me, a television set is still a luxury we cannot afford."
Answer: This is only one of many letters asking the same question, with the majority written by women. They apparently reflect mothers' and wives' concern for their husband's lives and future, as well as their growing difficulty to make both ends meet.
MOUNTING COST OF WAR—The answer is not comforting. War is becoming and will become ever more expensive, as we develop new scientific and complicated weapons. Many, which are now only in the minds of men at Washington, London and Moscow, will cost per unit more than it used to cost to maintain an infantry division of 18,000 soldiers. The new Nautilus submarine, although the actual outlay has not been made public, will run to about $100,000,000 and subsequent models may mean an even greater outlay.
Many of the weapons to which I refer and which will run into astronomical figures have been developed since the outbreak of the Korean conflict in June of 1950.
INCREDIBLE EXPENDITURES—Despite considerable conflict among military men over the question, it seems obvious that the Air Force will become our chief arm of offense and defense in future wars. Let me give a few examples, taken from official testimony on Capitol Hill, of the almost incredible expenditures in this field. Keep in mind, too, that they will go up instead of down.

It takes $9,000 to train and make a single radio repair expert. It requires almost the same amount to turn out an electronics technician. A jet-plane pilot cannot be equipped to fly this type of plane without preliminary training costing about $120,000. To transform a young civilian into the pilot of a B-47 bomber means that Uncle Sam pays out about $275,000.
For basic training only, the investment in an infantryman is $3,200. I have no official figures, but I imagine that the basic outlay on Private Ray Tucker in World War I was about $1,000 or less. That included $30 a month pay, equipment, food and lodging. And I never did become too hot a doughboy.

NO TIME TO THINK—"How do you explain former Senator Harry P. Cain's shift from a McCarthy enthusiast to a man who now thinks that the Government's Security or Loyalty System should be liberalized because it is too tough?" This query comes from T.R. of Wichita, Kan.
Answer: Former Senator Cain himself has given the enlightening answer I think that every Member of Congress, as well as every Government official, should paste it in his hat. That suggestion is also recommended to many executives in private business and industry. Says Cain now a member of the Subversive Activities Control Board, which sits in judgment on Communist organizations.
"I never had time to think when I was in the Senate. Service in that body exaggerates emphasis on more work of every possible kind rather than on output of thought. . . . I lost sight of certain fundamentals which have returned in focus in the last two years. I have been sitting, listening and thinking!"
Another senatorial liability Cain might have mentioned is that many politicians and officials talk too much, and without any thinking behind the talk.

It will make for better and more efficient government on the local level by leaving purely local matters in the hands of local governing boards. The amendment likewise will make for better and more efficient state government by relieving the legislature of the responsibility of determining what should be done concerning literally hundreds of purely local matters in each session.
By eliminating the necessity of local government units sending a flock of local bills to Raleigh every two years, the General Assembly could give its undivided attention to matters of state-wide importance which are becoming more complicated with each session.
By not having to get approval from Raleigh on many minor items, local government units could operate much more efficiently and much more effectively for the benefit of the people in their immediate communities.

In the interest of both the state government and local government, the home rule amendment should be given approval by the current General Assembly session and submitted to the people of the state for ratification. The home rule bill should not receive the all-to-familiar pigeon-hole treatment.

Uniform Policy Needed For City Parking Lots

Greenville's City Council has determined the fees which shall be charged for one of the city's three municipal parking lots; but at its meeting Thursday deferred a decision on the question of whether a charge should be made for parking on the other two lots.
In the interest of fairness, it seems to us that one policy should govern all municipal parking lots controlled by the city. It hardly seems fair that a shopper who used one parking lot for her convenience should have to pay for parking, while another who uses another municipal parking lot should be allowed to park without charge.

If the parking charge of five cents per hour or 25 cents a day is reasonable for the municipal lot to be constructed at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets—and we think the charge is fair—the same charge is reasonable for the municipal parking lot at the old swimming pool site and the municipal lot at the corner of Evans and Second Streets.

Each of the parking lots has been established to serve the same purpose: making more parking space available in order to alleviate the traffic problem in the business district. The scale of parking charges adopted for the parking lot at Fifth and Washington Streets should likewise apply to other municipal parking lots.

GAS — The Utilities Commission hearing room was the scene, HB-650 was the casus belli and natural gas the weapon in one of the largest skirmishes in the long drawn-out war between privately owned profit-motivated tax-paying utilities and tax-free government operated services.
The bill under discussion would establish a "municipality" composed of nine cities and towns in Burke, Caldwell and Catawba counties and to be known as the Catawba Valley Natural Gas Authority. The sole function of this proposed municipality would be to distribute natural gas for heat, light and power in the area embraced in a 15-mile radius from the corporate limits of the respective cities and towns.
It has been accepted in North Carolina through the years that one government agency could not tax another in connection with purely government services, or property devoted entirely to public service. The troublesome question has been about regulatory and taxing authority for services rendered to others than residents and in competition with

Don't Look At Me!

Somebody Told Me

From Fun To A Serious Note

This column is written for the fun of it. Granted, the Reflector pays me for it, but I still look upon it as an enjoyable hobby.
Therefore, my outlook is that of fun instead of violence. But today I'm hot under the collar and cannot ignore that fact in the column.
News Item: On Tuesday of this week the Joint Appropriations Subcommittee began its consideration of public school appropriations by cutting more than a million dollars from the budget of the State Board of Education recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission for the biennium. The cuts were as follows:
(1) Child Health Program: cut from $1,100,000 to $550,000.
(2) General instructional supervisors: cut from $2,391,020 to $2,000,000.
(3) Water, light and power: cut from $1,483,000 to $1,400,000.
(4) Telephones: cut from $177,000 to $127,000.
(5) Resource Use Education Program: cut from $20,148 to nothing.
This of course has not become a bill. But the very idea of it makes me mad. Everybody knows that meeting the educational needs is becoming more and more of a problem. Yet, they want to cut! Certainly you agree that education is the last thing that should be cut! Maybe the next to the last, behind law enforcement.
Take number one above, for example. When you were in school no doubt you remember the physical exams. Never will I forget that an examination in high school revealed a kidney ailment that I was not aware of. Fortunately, my parents could afford to have me treated, but if they could not, I would have still been taken care of.
This especially applies to teeth and eyes. School children have been supplied with glasses when they otherwise could not get them.
This is a serious situation. We owe it to our educational system to sit down and write our representatives (Walter Jones, Farmville; Sam Worthington, Greenville; Dr. Paul Jones, Farmville) and urge them to do all in their power to avoid such cuts in these appropriations.
And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

AGING EARS HEAR SPRING'S VOICE
(Dallas Morning News)
Spring was undeniably here Thursday, and every year when spring comes, we take a little walk through the woods and fields to see if the thing is ever going to happen again. It doesn't.
The thing is what always happened with spring when we were a little younger. When we were in our twenties, we used to walk by the EMU campus, before it got cluttered up with buildings, in a kind of exultation at each new showing of spring. The trembling of a new leaf was a delight. The watery new south wind hummed in the strings of the heart.
One year after we had passed thirty, the feeling suddenly and shockingly disappeared.
Each spring since we have ventured forth, expectantly ready for the thing to happen again, but it never does. What happened on our walk Thursday is what usually happens these days.
We sat down on a bench in the warm sun and went to sleep. It is commonly thought that a young man's main emotion in springtime comes from falling in love. This is not entirely true. His main emotion is a voiceless, tumultuous one of reaching out of himself for something.
At one time of our youth, it was easy for us to persuade ourselves that this feeling was the voice of Destiny calling.
We remember a night toward the end of our last year in the university when the call was especially strong. It began out of the feel of the wind and a soft moon and the smell of blossoming trees during a solitary walk; and after we had gone back to the rooming house and sat listening alone to a radio symphony, the feeling grew stronger and stronger. It was a presence in the room. It really was a voice calling.
It evidently wasn't Destiny, though, or else Destiny neglected to show up at the spot where we were supposed to meet.
We don't know what the thing is toward which the spirit reaches in spring when one is young. We have a theory that it is still down there underneath the muscles in older people but well hidden.
And it is well that maturing people grow a crust around themselves to keep it hidden. The thing that human beings reach out of themselves for is certainly beyond the horizon, beyond the stars. It is east of the sun and west of the moon. Genghis never reached it, not Beethoven nor Shelley, and it may well be beyond the reach of Captain Video.
Meanwhile, a man has to buckle down and plod toward something, and people who in spring hear voices do not fit in to the modern economy.

Natural Gas, Bone Of Contention Before Commission

privately-owned tax-paying business. That question is the heart of the problem involved in the Catawba Valley Natural Gas Authority proposal.
QUESTIONS — The same questions and the same arguments came out in the hearing on the Catawba Valley matter that were paraded in 1951 and 1953 discussions of far-flung extension of municipal electric service into areas beyond corporate limits, and the extension of water and sewer service to outsiders.
In the background is perhaps the more important question of who will provide the essential services if government agencies do not.
It developed at the Catawba Valley hearing that there is no other place in the Carolinas of comparable industrial importance that is presently without natural gas. The area wants and needs gas. There was some by-play as to why it doesn't have gas now, involving rivalry among private companies. That does not change the basic fact that gas is not presently available and it is sorely needed. If private enterprise cannot or will not, for whatever reason, provide it then the people are looking to a government agency to do the job.
The other big question is whether the government agency which moves in to fill the gap should be exempt from regulation and taxes which apply to competitive private enterprise. The point was made that since the proposed Authority would finance construction of pipe lines by issuance of revenue bonds, rather than full faith and credit bonds, it is essentially a business and not a government operation. Sponsors of the measure agreed to suggestion by Rep. W. B. Rodman for writing into the act

Unions 'Buying In'

By ELMER ROESSNER
It looks as if we will have some Mitbestimmung in the United States.
Mitbestimmung is the practice of giving employees seats on boards of directors of West German corporations.
In West Germany, it is a result of legislation. In America, the same thing may come from union's growing financial strength.
It can stem directly from the enormous growth of union treasuries and welfare funds.
These funds are under some restrictions. Some constitutions insist union funds be stored only in government bonds. Some welfare funds must be placed in insurance or restricted investments. Some funds are under joint control of unions and employers. But there are still growing millions which can be invested in the stock of corporations, often the very corporations with which the unions deal.
A significant case is the International Brotherhood of Teamsters' purchase of 13,500 shares of Montgomery Ward and its announced intention of doubling its investment. That is only a small fraction of the 6,700,000 shares outstanding, but it is highly important in the fight between Sewell Avery and Louis Wolfson for control of the company.
A few days ago Mr. Avery agreed to sign a union contract with 15,000 members of the union and Dave Beck, the teamsters' president, announced the union would vote its shares for the Avery regime.
Then Mr. Avery and Mr. Beck both solemnly said the unions' control of certain shares had nothing to do with the matter. But the fact remains, in a close contest, the union would decide who will manage the company.
Previously, another union threatened to block a merger by buying shares of one participating company. The merger, however, fell through before it got to a vote of stockholders.
Some time ago it was pointed out here that if the employees of a company with a proportionately high payroll set aside a percentage of their pay, they could buy working control in a matter of years. Control of almost any of the large steel companies could be taken over this way within a decade.
With the added investing power of growing funds under union control the time could be shortened greatly.
JOBLESS FAY RISING, RESTRICTIONS TIGHTENING
Many state legislators are raising unemployment compensation rates. New York has raised rates from $30 to $36 a week; Rhode Island and Idaho have also voted increases, and 28 other legislatures are considering similar action.
Unions, however, are not entirely delighted with this trend. In most cases, as the rates go up the legislatures tighten the conditions under which benefits may be claimed.
GIFT FOR COMING BACK LURES OLD CUSTOMERS
Bringing old customers back can be highly profitable. A Midwestern merchant has developed a successful technique. Every three months inactive customers are sent a postcard offering them a free gift with any purchase of $5 or more.
This brings back a satisfactory number of customers and the purchases usually range much above $5.
BARGAIN ON A BUN DRAWS CUSTOMERS
Another traffic builder: A Birmingham, Ala., merchant reported to the National Retail Dry Goods Association that in advertising a semiannual warehouse sale it offered ham sandwiches on a bun and a bottle of pop for a dime. The company lost money on the snacks, but felt well repaid by the number of customers they attracted.
URGES RETAILERS CONSIDER DOOR-TO-DOOR
Operators of retail stores will lose a larger share of their markets to house-to-house companies unless the retailers do more to bring sales to the customers. Earl Lifshy, vice-president of Comprehensive Fabrics, Inc., told a national Retail Dry Goods Association group.
Mr. Lifshy, who used to be a newspaperman himself, said, "I do not recommend that retail stores abandon traditional methods and plunge headlong into direct selling. Nothing could be more ridiculous or productive of disastrous results."

Star Ballerina Loves Baseball

By MILTON MARMOR
AP News Feature
LONDON—Svetlana Beriosova, the British ballerina who has caused a sensation in London, believes that all work and no play makes a dull dancer.
"I love baseball," says the 22-year-old Svetlana, who was born in Lithuania, educated in New York and a British subject.
She confides that she was a "poor field good hit" on the girl's baseball team at P.S. 59 in New York. She also enjoys movies, the theater and talking politics.
British critics are forecasting for Svetlana a role as successor to Margot Fonteyn, prima ballerina assoluta of the noted Sadler's Wells Ballet, who has been acclaimed as the foremost dancer in the western world.
Here are some recent comments: "Fonteyn is a hard act to follow, but Beriosova is her obvious successor"—Punch.
"Beriosova is destined for the highest honors as a classical dancer"—The London Sunday Observer.
"There is nothing now to stop her from reaching the topmost peaks"—Baron ballet critic and photographer who last year included Svetlana in his list of the 10 most beautiful women in Britain.
When Svetlana was but 17, the London Telegraph critic already was talking of her "queenly bearing." Two years before, she had been hailed as a "Baby Ballerina" and the "greatest hope since Beriosova."
Svetlana accepts it all with a charming, girlish manner off stage. In a strange contrast to the legal bearing with which she glides in front of the footlights.
The ballet and art magazines are filled with stories of how she thinks only of the ballet. But when one talks to her, Svetlana displays a remarkable interest in things outside the closed ballet world.
Her father, Nicholas Beriosoff, once a noted dancer, is now a ballet master of the London Festival Ballet. From childhood, Svetlana knew the ballet world. When her father toured Europe and America with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, the little girl was taken along.
In 1939, Svetlana and her mother joined her father in America. She began her study of dancing then.
In the summer of 1952 she joined the Sadler's Wells Ballet and made her debut as the Lilac Fairy in the "Sleeping Beauty."
Her rise was steady. Soon she was given the lead in full length ballets with the noted Covent Garden company.
At last with the leading role in "Swan Lake," Svetlana had arrived as a dancer who had performed every major role in the Western world's premier ballet company.
The critics say the title of prima ballerina is now but a formality. And when they speak of her stepping into Fonteyn's shoes, they have the highest ballet honor possible in their thoughts for her—prima ballerina assoluta.

Worth Noting

ONLY LIGHT PUSH FOR BARGAIN ITEMS
Merchants believe that the best potentials lie in medium-priced and high-priced merchandise—in New York at least.
A study of the reports of the Neustadt Lineage Service by The New York Times showed that in all New York newspapers in 1954, 36 per cent of the advertising was for high-priced merchandise, 38 per cent was for medium-priced, and only 26 per cent for low-priced merchandise.

Part-Time Farmers Pose A Problem For N. C. Agricultural Statisticians

RALEIGH — There's been a lot said and written about the mass migration of people from farms to cities, but until recently you have not heard much about a sizable group of North Carolinians who don't quite leave the farm — the part-time farmers.

The size of that group, according to J. B. Pugh, extension farm management specialist at State College, is becoming increasingly large. In 1954, the last year of record, 46 per cent of the net income of farm households in North Carolina was derived by persons engaged primarily in off-farm work, Pugh reports. Part-time farming has greatly increased the organization of agricultural production in terms of farm size, work methods, and the combinations of enterprise. It's also given agricultural economists some significant questions to ponder.

There is ample evidence of the increasing importance of part-time farming in the state's economy. Industry is among those that have recognized it. Up at Morganton, the county agent found a large demand for Agricultural Extension Service "how to do it" publications among industrial workers. With the approval of the management, he now maintains supplies of these bulletins at two manufacturing plants.

Part-time farming raised this question in Pugh's mind: Since farm people have responded so readily to opportunities for work in industry, why has the adjustment taken this form rather than a complete movement from farms? Pugh says part-time farmers may have several reasons for remaining on the farm. Among these are the possibility of increasing income by using labor in both farm and non-farm work; assurance of a continuing income from the farm in event of lay-offs or limited working hours in industry; presentation of a means to finance improvements in the farm business; or simply preference for a farm residence.

The desire to increase income explains the predominance of part-time farming in the more industrialized counties of the state, Pugh reasons. Employment in most industries is based on a 40-hour week for qualified persons. Any additional work on farms by industrial workers, or members of their household who have little or no earning capacity in industry, raises the income of the family.

Part-time farms generally have smaller acreages than commercial farms, according to Pugh, and offer limited income possibilities. These small-acreage farms may profitably employ household labor on a part-time basis in industry, where such opportunities are available.

In predominantly agricultural counties, employment opportunities are restricted to the farm. A study for the Northern Piedmont area of North Carolina shows that the level of net income of farm households is higher in counties where part-time farms are concentrated. Pugh attributes this to the fact that labor can be distributed among relatively high-paying uses on and off the farm in industrialized counties.

Some of North Carolina's principal industries do not have a predictable pattern of employment. The textile and furniture industries operate largely on a stock-and-order basis. These industries, which employ substantial numbers of farm people, show relatively small variations in the number of persons employed, but the number of man-hours worked per week tends to fluctuate greatly. Other industries, such as tobacco stemmeries, re-drying plants and construction have season variations in employment.

"Under these circumstances, it is conceivable that many families remain on farms to insure a continuing income when the relatively high wages from industry are restricted to a few weeks," Pugh says.

In some cases, farms may be operated on a part-time basis in order that cash may be secured for investment in additional land, buildings, or equipment. This reason for part-time farming applies when the production level of the farm can be raised by more capital.

Probably hundreds of part-time farms in North Carolina are operated because of a preference for a rural residence. In some cases this preference may be simply for the enjoyment and relaxation offered by a country home and garden. In others, the family may want to reduce cash expenditures by producing part of their needs.

Pugh points out that among those with a preference for a rural residence there are persons retiring from industrial employment and persons gradually leaving agriculture as a primary means of support.

The Department of Agricultural Economics is attempting to evaluate the effects of part-time farming on the efficiency of agricultural production and the general welfare of farm people, according to Pugh.

Spring Cleaning Is For Around The Farm, Too

RALEIGH — It's spring again and once more the land takes on a fresh, clean look. For springtime is nature's clean-up time—a time when winter's bleak landscape is displaced by the soft green of re-planting.

H. M. Ellis, head of extension agriculture engineering at State College says: "Let's help nature by cleaning up around the farm and in the farm home. Give the farm a new look and make it a safer and easier place to live and work."

Ellis gives the following tips on spring cleaning: Pick up broken glass, rusty tin cans, and loose boards with nails in them.

Get rid of the trash that's accumulated all year and clean up that old lumber piled back of the barn.

Give the farm shop a good housecleaning, too; put tools in neat order and assign a place for every tool.

Inspect broken and worn steps and stairs for repairs.

Spread a little paint to brighten up the place; and trim the shrubbery and plant some flowers.

Give everything a place and keep everything in its place.

Besppectackled, But Eyes Okay

REIDSVILLE — C. B. Barker's bespectackled pullets aren't near-sighted. They're just mean! Rockingham County Assistant Agent A. Frank Wood says that Barker, of Ruffin, has put spectacles on his 1,300 pullets to try to keep them from pecking each other. Wood says that several producers continue to have trouble with cannibalism in their poultry flocks.

Justice Ties A Gordian Knot

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP)—A Canadian has written to the Great Falls justice of the peace who performed his marriage ceremony in 1944 that he wants the justice to untie the knot. The man wrote from Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., that his wife is living with another man. Justice John A. Isaacson wrote back that he could not untie the marital knot and advised that an attorney be consulted.

Aromatic Leaf Is Fitting Into Farm Program

RALEIGH — Aromatic tobacco is beginning to fit into the farming program of many farms in the Upper Piedmont and Western counties, according to R. H. Crouse, extension tobacco specialist at State College.

As an example he points to three Alleghany farmers who are planning to produce to total of five acres of aromatic tobacco this year. They are C. E. Edwards and Bert Williams of Sparta, Route 3, who are planting two acres each; and E. W. Miller of Purches community who plans to produce an acre.

These three growers will plant as much acreage as 21 growers produced in Alleghany in 1948. This was before any of the present labor-saving methods of harvesting and curing the tobacco were developed, he said.

Self-Service In His Egg Sales

SHERWOOD, Mich. (AP)—Farmer Vere Mowry has built a machine to bring cartons of eggs up from his basement, deliver them to customers, collect the money and make change. Built out of odds and ends, the machine delivers a carton of a dozen eggs at car window height. The cash register is a tobacco can. The customer makes his own change out of a muffin tin. Then the machine's conveyor belt hoists another carton up from the basement and puts it in place for the next customer.

A sign on the machine says: "We have Confidence in Your Arithmetic and Integrity." So far, Mowry figures he's only 15 cents off.

Creep-Fed Pigs Weighed More

RALEIGH — Pigs that were creep-fed commercial starter weighed an average of 47.1 pounds each when weaned, compared to 39.4 pounds average weight for pigs not on the starter, according to results of a demonstration conducted by E. R. Barrick and Gerald Bolick of the animal industry department at N. C. State College.

The demonstration used 10 litters of creep-fed pigs and nine litters of non-creep fed pigs. Commercial pig starter pellets were provided in small creepers inside portable houses at the time the pigs were placed on pasture. The pellets were kept before the pigs until they weaned at eight weeks.

The sows were self-fed a complete mixed ration, and all pigs had access to this feed; it was the only supplemental feed available for the pigs that did not receive the starter pellets.

Sows were moved from central farrowing house to portable houses on pasture when pigs were one week to 10 days old.

Barrick and Bolick said that there was no difference in death losses between the two feeding methods after the pigs were placed on pasture.

The creep-fed pigs consumed 23.7 starter pellets per pound of body weight.

Egg-Layer Has Change Of Heart

RALEIGH — Apparently the strain of laying eggs every day got to be too much for one of Douglas Holden's hens.

Holden, of Wake Forest, Route 3, says that the hen is giving every indication that she'll soon be "cock of the walk." Her comb is developing into the comb of a rooster; her tail feathers have turned straight-up in rooster style, and her neck feathers are fast getting to the familiar ruffle stage. "She" flies up on the fence and flaps her wings, but hasn't crowed yet.

Church Young People Will Lead Services

The young people of Immanuel Baptist Church will officially start observance of "Youth Week" Sunday morning, when the keys of the church will be presented at the close of the service to Jimmy Hendrix, youth pastor, and Jack Nelson, Jr., chairman of the Board of Youth Deacons.

The young people have chosen as their theme for the week "His Will—Our Will" and they will seek to live this challenge daily in every phase of their life.

"Youth Week" is a plan for a church to use its young people in all the official positions of church life for one full week. "Youth Week" is a laboratory project in which the intermediates and young people may have full opportunity to train in Christian service by actual participation. It is annually observed throughout the Southern Baptist Convention.

Sunday night, Jimmy Hendrix will present the evening message, assisted by Jack Nelson Jr. The youth ushers are Charles Smith, Bob Bilbro, Dick Evans, Edward Buchanan and Don Wilkerson under the leadership of Wayne Eldson. The youth and intermediate choirs will sing that night.

The youth deacons Bob Bilbro, Dick Evans, Roy Hardee, Fred Sexton, Carl Denton, James Briley, and Ralph Smiley, under leadership of Jack Nelson and Larry Powell, will give their support to the youth pastor on April 10 by sitting at the front of the Sanctuary.

On Monday night at 7:30 the youth deacons will hold a meeting during which time they will draw up suggestions for improvements in the church program to be presented to the adult Board of Deacons for approval. George Shoe, Adult Chairman, is working with the youth deacons.

On Monday afternoon at 3:30, Miss Barbara Cozart and an assistant will have charge of the Sunbeams, a mission organization for young people, under supervision of Mrs. Marge Cannon.

Miss Norma Barnhill, youth vice-president of the W.M.U. will assist Mrs. Tom Henderson, W.M.U. president at the monthly meeting at 8:30 p.m. Monday, in the absence of Miss Ruth Lassiter, youth W.M.U. president. These girls will attempt to attend the associational W.M.U. meeting in Roanoke Rapids on April 14.

On Wednesday night at 7:30, a filmstrip on teaching will be shown by Mickey Sumrell, youth Sunday school superintendent. John Sanders will lead a discussion of "The Book We Teach" which was begun last Wednesday night. The youth and intermediate choirs will practice under leadership of Jeanne Pritchard and Bill Sexton. Miss Janet Watson will be organist of the week.

The climatic event of "Youth Week" will be the banquet next Thursday night at 6 o'clock when the intermediates, local young people, and the college students will don their party or evening dresses, an optional occasion to attend.

Robert Young's TV Show Saved By Enthused Fans

By BOB THOMAS
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—One of the least likely persons you'd expect to find in this fabulous fun town is Robert Young.

After all, Young is the picture of normality. A solid citizen, he is the father of four daughters in real life and three children on TV's "Father Knows Best." Although flashier stars draw the headlines, Bob has proven that being normal can pay off, even in Hollywood.

He and his for-real wife Betty (Jane Wyatt) is her TV counterpart were here for a spree before he starts a year's work on TV films. And there is one of the nicest success stories of the year.

Bob did Father Knows Best on radio for a number of years. The gentle comedy seemed a natural for TV.

"But I wasn't sure I wanted to get into it," he remarked. "I didn't know if I wanted to undertake all that work. Oddly enough it was Loretta Young (no relation) who helped convince me. She told me TV was the thing to do. And then I ended up opposite her on Sunday night."

The actor was realistic about the show's chances for success.

"I knew it was going to build slowly," he said. "It was that way on radio: people didn't call up their friends and tell them to be sure and listen to it. The show built enthusiasm slowly but when it did get fans they were intensely loyal."

This peculiar loyalty proved the saving of Father Knows Best. A couple of months ago, the cigarette sponsor announced it was dropping the show. This brought forth a flood of letters from determined fans. Even hardboiled TV editors joined in the campaign to find a sponsor for the pleasant, homey series.

Young believes that this wave of enthusiasm was a major factor in finding a new bankroller. A paper concern dropped My Little Margie for Father Knows Best. If all the options are picked up, the filmed series will run into an investment of 10 million dollars.

Last Rites Sunday For Mrs. J. L. Spain

Mrs. Sarah Spain, widow of J. L. Spain, died at the home of her son, Jimmie Spain, near Greenville on the Belvoir Highway at 6:45 o'clock Friday night. She was 85. She had been in failing health for the past year and critically ill for the past two years.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. Rashie Kennedy, pastor of the Grace Free Will Baptist Church, assisted by the Rev. Ministerial Ass'n To Undertake New Project

A Billy Graham film, "Souls In Conflict," will be shown here April 14-15 at 7:30 p.m. in Austin auditorium at East Carolina College.

Announcement of this showing was made at the regular meeting of the Greenville Ministerial Association, which is presenting the film.

At this monthly session the ministers voted to accept the proposal of Dr. John Bennett, director of religious activities at East Carolina, and an honorary member of the Association, that the organization finance a project whereby 1,500 cards will be sent to new students enrolling at the college to determine their religious status and denominational preferences. These cards will be returned by the students to Dr. Bennett before school opens next year, and Dr. Bennett will in turn distribute the cards to the various ministers, according to denomination.

Radio station WGTC notified the ministers of a change in the hour of morning devotions, from 9:40 a.m. to 9:55 a.m.

A proposal that the Association start a first grade kindergarten was referred by the ministers to the Educational Committee.

Next meeting of the Association will be held jointly with the Greenville Ministerial Alliance May 2 at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Coincidence In Tragic Disease

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Two unrelated 16-year-old Oklahoma girls with almost identical names have had their paths cross through a tragic coincidence. Living almost 100 miles apart, they never met even now they haven't seen one another.

Barbara Jo Barrett and Barbara Lou Barrett, patients at University Hospital, are on the same floor but in different rooms.

Both are tall, blue-eyed blondes and were active in high school and community activities—active until a dreaded disease struck each of them.

Barbara Lou, of Haskell, was admitted to the hospital three weeks ago with an acute case of leukemia. Her condition is described as serious. Barbara Jo, of Shawnee, was rushed to the hospital Sunday with meningitis. Now unconscious, doctors say she is undergoing a crisis.

The striking similarity in names and ages was discovered by the worried parents, Mr. and Mrs. Uriel L. Barrett, of Shawnee, and Mr. and Mrs. Sylus Barrett, of Haskell. They became curious when a flood of cards and messages came to the hospital from both cities addressed to "Barbara Barrett."

The parents met and found that their children, born less than two months apart, are alike in many ways. They compared pictures and one mother said, "Our two girls might have been twins." Each family has two other children.

WARM MAIL BOX

HAVEN, Kas. (AP)—Neighbors smiled when they saw the mail box at the Ray Tuttle farm clad in a jacket with fur collar. But it wasn't to keep the mail box warm, explained the Tuttles. They'd found the jacket lying in the road, and figured the loser might come by again and reclaim it.

Two Accidents In City Yesterday; No One Injured

Automobiles operated by an East Carolina student and an ROTC instructor collided on Fourth Street shortly after 6 p.m. yesterday, doing an estimated $250 damage to the vehicles involved.

Operators of the cars were Sammy Shirley Biggs, 21, of Williamston and David Horn, 35, of 203 N. Library Street. No personal injury resulted.

A second accident, occurring shortly before midnight, resulted in the arrest of James Jackson Andrews, 28, of 309 E. Gum Road on a charge of following too close. Andrews was involved in a wreck with a vehicle operated by Kenneth Robert Smith, 17, of Route 5, Greenville at the intersection of Greene Street and Dickinson Avenue. No personal injury was reported and damage to both vehicles was estimated at $300.

THE WORLD THIS WEEK

Argument Over Armed Forces Cuts Far From Finished

Arab-Israeli Fight Aids the Russians

By TOM WHITNEY
Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer

EVENTS of recent weeks have once more demonstrated that the Israeli-Arab dispute is one of the most dangerous international quarrels in the non-Communist world. Incidents have been continually erupting along the Egyptian-Israeli frontier on the Egyptian-occupied Gaza Strip. Much blood has been shed. Temperatures on both sides have been steadily rising as the outbreaks continued.

These are just the latest in the exchanges of bombs and bullets which have been almost continuous along the Israeli borders with neighboring Arab states ever since the conclusion of the Palestine armistice in 1949.

Behind them is a depth of bitterness which makes the Israeli frontiers one of the world's worst trouble spots and borders ill for efforts to settle the argument.

Whitney

And the chief gainer from all this, of course, is the Kremlin. The Soviet Communists always win when there is trouble anywhere in the world outside their own empire. Each international quarrel offers one more opportunity to set peoples and nationalities against each other, to stoke the fires of hate and mistrust, to apply the ancient maxim "divide and rule."

The current Israeli-Arab difficulties center on the outbreak of fighting on Feb. 28 in which 38 Egyptians and 8 Israelis were killed. On March 30 and United Nations Security Council voted by a unanimous vote to condemn Israel for its role in the disturbance.

The Feb. 28 fighting was followed by a number of other flareups, big and small.

Settlements Elsewhere
The continued festering of the quarrel is the more striking international affairs because of the fact that a number of important and seemingly insoluble international problems which troubled non-Communist nations for a long time have been settled recently.

There were times, for instance, when it seemed very unlikely any solution could be reached on the question of the British troops in the Suez Canal Zone, the problem of Trieste, the argument over the Saar or the British-Franco oil dispute. And yet these points of friction are fast disappearing.

The Arab-Israeli dispute at the present time, it is clear, has top priority among the problems the U.S. government would like to see settled.

However, it is a more difficult proposition than almost any other international problem.

Arab Nationalism
The fact of the matter is that the Israeli issue has become very closely interwoven in the fabric of Arab nationalism in general. Arab nationalism is a rapidly rising force throughout the Middle East. There are now eight Arab states in existence: Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Egypt, Libya, Jordan, and Yemen. They command half a dozen votes in the United Nations and are able to influence there the votes of their Moslem friends including Pakistan.

Among these nations Saudi Arabia and Iraq have important resources and production of oil in which American and British companies have big interests. In French North Africa Arab nationalists are waging a fight against French domination. However one looks at it the Arabs are a rising people. They are the most important nationality inhabiting that crossroads of the world, the Middle East, which borders on Europe, Asia, the Soviet Union and Africa.

Arab nationalism, like many of the newer nationalisms, tends in its more ardent disciples to take on a strong tinge of fanaticism. Among Arab nationalist fanatics there are many for whom the basic issue on Israel is not boundaries, Arab refugees from Palestine or other incidental questions, but the very existence of Israel. Naturally this sort of attitude leaves no room for any possible settlement.

However, the hope remains that there are enough men among the leadership of the Arab countries who are genuinely interested in a practical settlement of the Arab-Israeli problem.

Real and genuine solution is a long-term matter.

Immediate Problem
For the immediate future, however, the problem is going to be one of getting a permanent peace settlement between Israel and those countries which went to war against Israel in 1948. This involves very troublesome issues such as the future of the Arab refugees from Palestine, the matter of negotiation of rights on the valuable water of the Jordan River, and settlement of frontiers.

This week in the welter of news of shootings and charges in the United Nations there was one good piece of news on the Arab-Israeli problem.

The then minister of foreign affairs of Britain, since become Prime Minister, Anthony Eden, said on Monday in the House of Commons that Britain would help guarantee any settlement which might be worked out between Israel and the Arab states. He said that Britain must use its influence by every means to secure settlement of this quarrel.

In Short . . .

Elected: Richard J. Daley, a Democrat, as mayor of Chicago by a margin of more than 100,000 votes over Republican reform candidate Robert E. Merriam.

Ended: South African participation in the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, "because of its interference in South Africa's racial problems."

Snowed In: Large areas of northern Wyoming and Montana by record-breaking spring storms which caused drifts as high as 12 feet.

Appointed: Capt. Roy L. Johnson, veteran of naval air fighting in the Pacific, as skipper of the supercarrier USS Forrestal.

CHURCHILL RESIGNS; EDEN MOVES UP

AT 4:31 p.m. last Tuesday a shiny black limousine bearing Sir Winston Churchill—who has been called the greatest man the 20th century has yet produced—sped through the gates and up the broad mall to Buckingham Palace in London.

England's renowned leader alighted, entered the palace, and presented Queen Elizabeth II with his seals of office. The weight of 80 eventful years in the service of the throne had forced upon Sir Winston what dictators' armies and screaming bombs could not: surrender.

Churchill yielded up the post of power that he loved and had clung to for 8½ years, five of them during the pain—and the glory—of World War II and the remainder since he was returned to office in 1951 after the six-year tenure of the Labor government. He bowed to the pleas of his doctor, the urging of his wife, to the tactful suggestions of some Conservative party leaders who wanted a younger, more vigorous man to take up the fight in the nationwide election campaign just ahead.

Time Running Out
But he yielded mainly, friends said, to a growing awareness that for him time and strength were running out. He is an old man, capable of rising to great heights of oratory and intellect on one day but doddering, as old men will, on the next. Sometimes lately he has nodded his white-fringed head in sudden sleep during meetings of the British Cabinet. Sometimes he has momentarily forgotten the names of world famous men—men of power with whom he had often in the past dined and dined and matched wits.

Coming as it did while a strike silenced London's big newspapers, Churchill's resignation occurred in relative quiet—in strong contrast to the strife and turmoil that marked much of his 55 historic years in politics.

Groomed His Successor
The man he has spent a decade grooming as his successor—urbane, impeccably dressed Sir Anthony Eden—is the embodiment of the attributes of the ideal English diplomat.

He once was the "boy wonder" of British politics, first becoming foreign secretary in 1935 at the age of 38—the youngest man to hold the position in 84 years. His star-touched career was imperiled only three years later when he dramatically turned in his resignation, refusing to compromise his ideals in order to conciliate the German and Italian dictators at a time when his boss, Neville Chamberlain, was seeking to insure peace through appeasement. That courageous act brought him the warm respect of Churchill, who also foresaw the price of appeasement. The two became close friends and established a political partnership that has endured for 17 years.

Tall, suave and handsome ANTHONY EDEN strode forward this week to take one of the biggest jobs in the world from his mentor WINSTON CHURCHILL, who at 80 bowed to the advance of years and returned his seals of office to Queen Elizabeth II. The two men have been close political partners for nearly two decades, and Sir Winston's recommendation of Sir Anthony as his successor climaxed a friendship begun 17 years ago when Eden first captured Churchill's fancy by resigning as foreign secretary from Neville Chamberlain's Cabinet in protest to the appeasement of Hitler and Mussolini.

the Churchill Cabinet formed after war broke out, Eden was made war secretary and later foreign secretary. He also was given the parliamentary post of leader of the House of Commons—a back-breaking double role comparable in the United States to serving simultaneously as secretary of state and majority leader in the House of Representatives.

Divorced First Wife
A descendant of an aristocratic land-owning family, Eden again risked his political future in 1950 when he obtained a divorce on the grounds his wife had deserted him. In the past, the stamp of divorce in strait-laced Britain, regardless of cause, has been an insurmountable barrier to leadership in the British government.

Two years later Eden married Clarissa Churchill, orphaned niece of Sir Winston. She was 32 and he 55 at the time.

Like his famous patron, Eden's international theories revolve primarily on the idea of cooperation between England and the United States. "If our two countries stand together," he once said, "there is no problem we cannot solve. United we lead the world; divided we falter." His succession is expected to bring no major change in British diplomacy.

Churchill's Dream
On one of the biggest current problems of international politics, Churchill's retirement is expected to ease differences inside the Anglo-American alliance. Churchill—hoping to cap his brilliant career as a leader in war with a monument to peace—was in favor of holding immediately a meeting "at the summit" among the heads of state of Britain, the United States and Russia. He wanted no specific agenda prepared at earlier meetings on lower levels, willing to trust to his own ingenuity in preventing the meeting from becoming nothing more than a sounding board for Communist propaganda.

This program was not in favor at the U.S. State Department and Eden reportedly agrees with his American colleagues that a big power conference in such a form would not be wise.

CHINA: Leaders Purged wing of the Chinese Communist party and both had been missing from the news for more than a year.

Two Big Failures
Two important failures in the Red program are believed by U.S. officials to lie behind the purge:

1. Failure of the industrialization of Manchuria, presumably a responsibility of Kao. U.S. observers doubt the truth of Peiping's claim Kao committed suicide after the purge. They believe he almost certainly was liquidated.

2. The prolonged breakdown in food production and delivery by peasants in eastern China. These problems are presumed to have been the responsibility of Jao, whose job probably was to whip the peasants into line. Although apparently still alive, Jao's future is not bright.

Timing Important
State Department experts are especially interested in the timing of the Peiping announcement. They say the arrest of the two men is reported to have occurred 15 months ago in January of 1954. The significance of the timing may lie in a continued failure of the Manchurian and peasant programs and a determination on the part of the Peiping leadership to make public examples of persons responsible.

The experts say they find no evidence yet of any major split in the Chinese Communist party. They also say available information provides no evidence of a break with Russia.

● Policeman Elza Maslin knew he was out of his field when called to capture a playful raccoon in Wichita, Kan., but with the help of bread crumbs and a box he succeeded in making the arrest. On the way to headquarters, however, the prisoner broke loose and snarling and snapping—drove the policeman from his patrol car. It took representatives of the local Humane Society to pacify the belligerent coon.

Formosa Cited as Reason for Delay

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

ADMINISTRATION forces sought this week to assuage congressional fears about reductions in the armed forces with promises that no new cuts were planned, but apparently succeeded only in fanning the flames of argument.

Both military and civilian defense authorities argued before a Senate subcommittee that the present program was sufficient, and that it is carefully balanced against the nation's economic ability to maintain it over a period of crisis which might last from 5 to 50 years.

Democratic committeemen came back with sharp questions. Why reduce the ground forces just at a time when there is a possibility they will be needed on Formosa? Secretary of the Navy Thomas almost admitted they would be needed in case of attack, but then equivocated.

Why not delay the planned cuts, then, until the situation became clearer, he was asked.

The Navy and Marine Corps are ready, he said, to do whatever is necessary about Formosa. He said they were in good shape and could be built up rapidly if needed.

Reserve Essential
Secretary of Defense Wilson already had said that the Army would be all right if Congress put through the administration's plan for a ready reserve.

The commandant of the Marines said he'd finally come around on the 31,000-man cut ordered for his force. He added, however, that present combat strength of 215,000 men could have been maintained for only 40 million dollars more than the corps is getting.

All the stress on the ability to expand quickly if necessary overlooked one thing, or rather just didn't connect up with one thing that is being stressed in other channels of government. That is the possibility that some or many American bases, American industrial centers, American communications, may be knocked out by atomic bombing as a signal that war is beginning. The Navy might have no shipyards in which to refit or expand, and its forces on the water might be cut off from home. American armies in Europe and the Far East might be cut off from home. Americans might have to fight for many days, wherever they are and as they are, when trouble breaks, as they had to fight without hope or reinforcement on Bataan in those other days not so long ago.

Chinese Quiet
In other words, America might have to stand for a long time on what survives the initial assault.

One thing was noticeable, however. For the moment, at least, people in the United States were making more noise about Formosa than the Chinese Reds. The Washington administration was making a tentative estimate that Russia wouldn't want the Reds to start anything which might place a heavy burden on Russian production just when she was having so much trouble with her agricultural situation.

Adm. Carney, chief of naval operations, denied before the Senate subcommittee that he had predicted a Red attack on Quemoy and Matsu by April 15. Carney seemed to be relying on a technicality of some sort for the unanimity with which reporters present at his dinner reported what he had to say—although he was not identified as the source until later—could hardly have been the result of complete error.

Japan Postpones
One disturbing factor in the Far Eastern situation as it relates to defense economies is the fact that Japan is not doing anything like what was expected in the way of rearmament. Instead, she proposes to postpone for at least another year any increased defense expenditures while she reduces taxes and institutes a social welfare program. Indeed, Japan seems willing to sit by while South Korea fields the largest army among America's Allies in the Far Pacific.

In the meantime it is obvious that the Communist forces on the mainland have achieved an important buildup since the Korean War, else the Chinese Reds would not feel able to rely on the North Korean forces as they are doing by withdrawing six of their own divisions from that territory.

Business

Consumers Setting Records
Signs of a business upturn are popping up these days like flowers in the spring sunshine.

Automobile output and new car sales are smashing records right and left, retail sales are heading for new peaks, steel production is at its highest point since early 1953. Home building is well ahead of year-ago levels; total construction for the first three months this year reached an all-time high of $8,400,000,000.

What it all adds up to is this: consumers are spending at a record clip. And businessmen are spending more money than last year building or improving such costly facilities as shopping centers, oil refineries, factories and chemical plants.

Payrolls Rising
Behind the high rate of consumer spending are two main forces. One is the weekly factory paycheck; the other is the willingness of many people to take on installment and mortgage debt.

According to the U.S. Commerce Department, rising factory payrolls helped boost the nation's total personal income during February by an annual rate of one billion dollars. For the first two months this year personal income was at a record rate of 292 billion dollars annually, a gain of 2½ per cent from a year ago. Stepped-up factory employment, and increased overtime, were major factors.

Installment debt at latest report totaled 22½ billion dollars and mortgage indebtedness of homeowners about 76 billion. A note of caution was injected this week by the American Collectors Assn., made up of agencies which specialize in collecting bad debts. The average American family, said the association, is having more difficulty making ends meet this year; unpaid bills are accumulating. Repossessions of merchandise bought on installment are up 30 per cent since early last year.

Quote
Secretary of State Dulles, in statement on the Formosa situation: "We have made perfectly clear our desire that there shall be no war, our desire that there shall be a cease-fire. If there is any war it will be entirely due to the provocation and initiative of the Red Chinese. If, in fact, they are faithful to what they talk about—peace—then there will be no fighting in the area."

Hoover

"Horrible Examples" Found

The Commission on the Reorganization of the Government filed another of its reports this week—proposing that the government centralize its transportation services in a way which would save, the experts claimed, some 150 million dollars a year.

It would also relieve the government of business the commission said was needed by the private transportation industry. The report was the latest of a series from the commission headed by former President Herbert Hoover. It said "horrible examples of waste and carelessness" in government transportation could be "multiplied almost to infinity."

Based on a task force study directed by Perry Shoemaker, president of the Lackawanna Railroad, the report concentrated the bulk of its criticism at the Defense Department's operation of huge special sea and air transport services.

It recommended that transport management for all civilian branches of the government be placed under a central traffic bureau in the General Services Administration, the government's housekeeping agency. The Department of Defense, the report went on, should establish a director of transportation to oversee, coordinate and consolidate the military's world-ranging hauling systems.

ECC Netters Defeat Elon A Second Time In 2 Days

Coach Ray Martinez' East Carolina tennis team took two wins over Elon College in North State Conference matches Thursday and yesterday.

The Buc netters defeated the Christians 6-3 on Thursday behind the expert singles playing of Maurice Everett, Jim Blake and Frasier Bruton. Everett, playing in the No. 1 spot, tripped Elon's Ben Barr easily 6-0, 6-0. Blake whipped Russ McGhee just about as easy, 6-1, 6-1. Bruton, though, was pushed for his victory over Hugh Clitty, 6-5, 7-5.

Two other East Carolinians won singles matches. George Burton defeated Elon's Jimmy Luke, 6-1, 7-5, and Gene Webb won a struggle over Richard Cook, 8-6, 6-2.

The only ECC loss in the singles competition in the first day's matches was J. W. Browning's long 3-5, 7-5, 6-4 drop to Gordon Ward.

In the doubles matches, Elon won two of three. Clitty and Ward teamed up to whip Burton and Gill Underwood, 6-2, 6-2. Bann and Luke of Elon trounced Lilly and Ben Wolverton of ECC, 9-7, 1-6, 7-5. ECC's Burton and Burris took the final couples match, defeating McGhee and Leslie Johnson, 6-2, 7-5.

Yesterday, the Pirates ran up an even more decisive victory, 8-1.

It was the hard-hitting Everett again leading the way. He stroked his way to another easy win over Barr, 6-1, 6-1. Bruton defeated Johnson 6-3, 6-4; Browning defeated Clitty, 6-3, 7-5; Underwood whipped Ward, 6-4, 8-6; Lilly trounced Cook, 6-1, 6-0; and Burris laced Luke, 6-1, 6-0 in the singles.

Elon's only victory of the afternoon was its doubles win with Barr and Luke defeating Webb and Wolverton. East Carolina swept the other doubles play. Blake and Everett defeated Johnson and McGhee, 6-2, 6-4 and Burton and Lilly defeated Cook and Ward, 7-5, 6-0.

The double win gives Coach Martinez' bunch a 2-1 overall mark and a 2-0 record in conference activity.

Coan And Evers Playing Stellar Ball In Training

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gil Coan and Hoot Evers, a couple of veteran outfielders fighting for their major league lives, have been the surprise standouts of the Baltimore Orioles during spring training.

They've performed better than even the most rabid Baltimore fan had dared hope. And ironically, they'll probably alternate in the outfield when the season opens Monday.

Their careers have been strikingly similar. Both started playing ball in the majors in 1946, although Coan was sent back to Chattanooga the following year for seasoning.

Both have been hampered by numerous damaging injuries. And both tailed off sharply after hitting above .300 several years.

Now, under the expert and patient handling of Manager Paul Richards, they show signs of regaining their old form. The Orioles could use them.

Coan has always had the natural ability, but he has never attained the heights predicted for him. The nearest was a modest .303 batting average in 1950 and 1951. He hit .279 for Baltimore last year and his fielding lapses caused Orioles fans to shudder.

So Richards set out to correct Coan's greatest weakness and make use of his greatest asset.

In Florida, Gil shagged flies until his tongue was hanging out. Gene Woodling, the ex-New York Yankee, stood by making suggestions and pointing out mistakes. Coan, a left-handed batter, also practiced bunting by the hour. Richards thinks Gil's great speed should enable him to beat out many drag bunts.

Evers' problem was a strange weakness for chest high pitches. After swatting .314, .303 and .323 for Detroit (1948-50), the right-handed swinger went into a tailspin. His highest mark since was a .262 and last year he hit only .152 while shuttling between the Boston Red Sox, New York Giants and Detroit.

Richards thought he noticed a flaw. He had the pitcher practice the hour with a new straight-up stance, a shortened back swing and a slightly choked grip on the bat.

Here are the results so far: Coan, who has beat out several bunts and rapped balls past infielders playing close, is hitting .295. Evers, meeting the ball solidly, is clubbing .409. Both are among the club's leaders with 10 runs batted in apiece. Both have fielded well.

Richards plans to use an outfield of Coan in left, Cal Abrams in center and Woodling in right against right-handed pitchers. Against southpaws, Woodling will replace Coan in left and Evers will go to right.

GHS Trackmen Leave For Relays

Subbing Coach Bo Farley and the Greenville High School track team left town this morning headed for Durham and the eighth annual Duke-Durham high school relays.

The locals will be one of the favorites in the tests which pit 17 high schools from North Carolina. South Carolina and Virginia against each other. Greenville's top objective will be to unseat Dreher High of Columbia, S.C., the defending champion, and Ashington and Lee High of Alexandria, Va. titlist in the Alexandria Relays this year.

Durham High, a perennial Tar Heel power, will serve as hosts to the teams. Other North Carolina entries are Roanoke Rapids, Greensboro Curry, Charlotte Myers Park, Charlotte Central, Mooresville, Winston-Salem Reynolds and Hillsboro.

Other South Carolina entries are Greenville Senior and McLenaghan, of Florence.

Virginia teams to compete are Jefferson High, Roanoke; Craddock High, Portsmouth; Culpepper High; and George Mason, High, Falls Church.

Draft Call For Braves' Hurler

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Ray Crone, young Milwaukee Braves pitcher, assigned to some relief work early last season, has been ordered to report for a draft board physical.

The notice was received yesterday from his local board in Memphis, Tenn. Crone said he will attempt to have the physical transferred to Milwaukee. He was turned down, because of heart condition, when he attempted to enlist in 1951.

Henry Aaron, Braves' star rookie outfielder last year, was reclassified A several weeks ago but has heard nothing more.

Major League Managers See Indians Meeting One Of 3 Teams In Series

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—The Cleveland Indians will successfully defend their American League championship and will oppose either Milwaukee, New York or Brooklyn in the World Series.

This is the consensus of the 16 major league managers in a pre-season canvas by the Associated Press today.

Only one pilot—Al Lopez of the Indians—was bold enough to select his own team. Two others—Lou Boudreau of Kansas City and Charlie Dressen of Washington—also named the Indians. The others recognized Cleveland's strength but also showed respect for the Yankees and White Sox.

No National League manager was willing to go out on the limb but all agreed that the Braves, Giants and Dodgers ranked the top three spots. Eddie Stanky of St. Louis, Birdie Tebbetts of Cincinnati and Mayo Smith of Philadelphia each predicted that their clubs would also be in the thick of the pennant race.

Lopez pulled no punches as he predicted another Indian flag.

"I think we ought to win the pennant again this year," he said. "This is what the other managers had to say:

Casey Stengel, Yankees: "I have the best club in the league outside of pitching and should be first or second. The ones who finished behind me last year haven't improved enough to pass me."

Marty Marion, White Sox: "I look for a three-team race in the American League with the White Sox, Indians and Yankees battling it out for the pennant."

Lou Boudreau, Athletics: "I look for a two-team race between Cleveland and New York but my pick is Cleveland because of superior pitching. Boston and Chicago will be contenders. Detroit has a team of promising youngsters and could be the dark horse."

Charlie Dressen, Senators: "Whoever wins will have to beat Cleveland. They've got everything but speed. With all that power and pitching, they don't need too much speed."

Mike Higgins, Red Sox: "I am not so familiar with the rest of the league to try to evaluate where we'll finish. I'll be able to tell more when I've made a swing around the league."

Bucky Harris, Tigers: "You have to acknowledge the strength of both Cleveland and New York. Detroit should be on a par with team in the NCAA baseball tournament, got nine scattered hits off Davis who fanned seven. Rollins got one run in the first and ninth collected 11 hits, scoring four runs in the fifth inning.

Linwood Holt collected two triples for the Deacons while Frank McRae struck two singles and a double to drive in three runs.

State broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning with two runs to beat Duke and enter the finals. Duke scored one run in the ninth to throw a scare into the pack but Sam Welsh put on the fire. Bill Peed swung the big bat for State, collecting a triple and a single.

Red Sox, New York Giants and homer for Yale in the eighth inning against North Carolina to spell the difference. Yale had scored in the opening frame and the Tar Heels tied it up in the fourth when Jimmy Love doubled and Al Long drove him home.

In another tight contest, Notre Dame scored twice in the seventh to top Ohio which scored once in the ninth and loaded the bases with no avail.

North Carolina State and Duke staged a down-to-the-wire tilt before the Wolfpack won 6-5 in yesterday's other semifinal game.

The consolation bracket, made up of losers of Thursday's opening round games, yesterday saw Notre Dame stop Ohio, 3-2, and Yale defeat North Carolina 3-1. Rollins, last year's second place in the third, and the Tiger stepped up the attack in the fourth. He apparently sensed the reopened cut might prevent him from lasting the scheduled 10 rounds.

Jones shook his 24-year-old opponent with a series of body blows in the fourth. Then in the fifth he sent Johnson into the ropes with a left and then a terrific right which stunned Johnson.

The Jersey battler, his arms outstretched and his body arched against the ropes, was a wide open target and Jones rained blows against his face at will. Referee George Kessler stepped in and called a halt to the nationally televised fight.

It was the ninth knockout for the 27-year-old Tiger in 24 victories as a pro. He has had 50 pro fights and has never been knocked down.

Jones weighed 158½, 3½ pounds more than Johnson.

Each of the fighters had been given a flat guarantee of $4,000 by the television sponsors plus 25 per cent of the net receipts.

The Good Friday program drew a slim turnout of 1,625 to the big arena, which seats about 10 times that many for a fight.

Tiger Jones Gets TKO In Fifth; Wants Gavilan

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ralph (Tiger) Jones, a systematic man inside the ring and out, has modest plans for his next fight after punching his way to one of his rare knockouts.

The New York Negro exploded a pair of bombs against the head of George Johnson and then flailed away with a series of blows that left the Seminole Indian from Trenton, N.J., helpless against the ropes for a TKO with 59 seconds left in the fifth round of their middleweight bout last night.

Bob Melnick, Jones' manager, said he hoped to arrange a bout with Dick Gavilan in Cuba in about two months and had no immediate plans for a match with one of the top-ranking middleweights.

"Yes, that's the one I want," Jones said.

Jones and Johnson had swapped blows on a fairly even basis through the first four rounds. Johnson had opened an old wound over Jones' right eye with a sharp left

Re-Match For One-Time Stars

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Two former lightweight champions, now in their early thirties, meet at Municipal Auditorium here tonight for the third time in their long ring careers.

Beau Jack, 33, and Ike Williams, 32, will square off in Jack's third attempt to whip the man who held the crown from 1945-51.

Williams regained his crown with a sixth round knockout against Jack in 1948. In his other contest with the Augusta shoeshine boy, Williams took a 10-round decision.

Jack hit the comeback trail last January with a 10-round decision over Eddie Green of Kannapolis, N.C., at Columbia, S.C. In his 15-year career, Jack has won 31, lost 24 and had 4 draws.

He knocked out half his victims and lost by the same route three times.

Paul Richards, Orioles: "The experts figure New York, Cleveland and Chicago to be also-rans."

Leo Durocher, Giants: "I never predict the outcome of a pennant race and I don't intend to start now."

Charlie Grimm, Braves: "We're going to have a slam-bang affair this year with six teams fighting for the first division."

Walter Alston, Dodgers: "I look for a three-way battle between New York, Milwaukee and us although five or six clubs have a chance."

Eddie Stanky, Cardinals: "You've got to respect the Giants because they're the champions but I foresee a five-team race in a very tough league."

Birdie Tebbetts, Redlegs: "It will be a scramble this year. Naturally, the Giants, Braves and Dodgers are favored, but our club, St. Louis and Philadelphia have enough so that with some luck any one of us could make it interesting."

Fred Haney, Pirates: "You can toss three coins in a fountain and take your choice between New York, Milwaukee and Brooklyn."

Mayo Smith, Phillies: "It should be a wide open race with the Giants, Braves and Dodgers appearing to be the bit stronger."

Stan Hack, Cubs: "I'd probably have to go along with Milwaukee on the basis of pitching depth, although the Giants are the champions."

WORLD'S LARGEST HOME TREATMENT FIRM TELLS TRUTH ABOUT HAIR AND SCALP

"SOME OLDER METHODS ARE GOOD BUT OURS WILL DO WHAT WE SAY"—OCHS

This new method of home treatment for saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Greenville, N. C., Tuesday only, April 12, 1955.

The private individual demonstration will be held at the Proctor Hotel on Tuesday only, April 12, 2 p.m. till 9 p.m.

OKLAHOMA CITY — April 9 — In an interview here today R. W. Ochs, internationally famous Hair and Scalp Consultant and director of The House of Winston, said: "There are 23 common hair and scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

After starting treatment, he makes regular reports to the Winston firm in Oklahoma City, and a consultant will return to check his progress periodically.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, the Winston firm is sending specialists to various cities throughout the United States to conduct examinations and start home treatment.

NO CURE-ALL
"We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness," Ochs emphasizes. "If there is fuzz, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Ochs wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

HAIR FOR LIFETIME
"If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Ochs said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment, and offers a lifetime guarantee, it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

HOPELESS CASES DISCOURAGED
First the Winston consultants are quick to tell hopeless cases that they cannot be helped. But if a man is completely, shiny bald is he in this lost category?

If there is fuzz, no matter how light, thin, or colorless, the Winston firm can perform wonders. Everyone is given a complete, private examination to determine the condition of his scalp, and cause for his hair trouble.

Cary Middlecoff Says Course Needs Patience

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Cary Middlecoff calls the huge Augusta National a "waiting course"—and the rest of the golfers in the Masters Tournament were waiting today to see if the former molar mauler from Memphis falters in the third round or keeps a firm grip on his four-stroke lead.

That isn't exactly what Middlecoff had in mind when he used the term, but history has proved time and again that in this classic championship those who wait for the pace-setter to stumble quite often are rewarded.

After shooting his spectacular 81-34-65 yesterday for a 137 total, the 34-year-old 1949 U. S. Open champion, who registers out of Klamath Lake, N. Y., commented:

Buc Golf Squad Takes Another

Led by the par-playing of freshman Johnny Rainey, the East Carolina golfers trimmed Elon yesterday afternoon, 15-3, for their second win in as many days.

Rainey's 72 took medalists honors. Big Claude King shot a 73 to place second.

East Carolina won all individual matches except one. Harry Rainey was outscored by Elon's Jimmy Layton. Pat Hunt was the other individual winner for ECC's defending North State champs.

The Pirates' best ball teams of King and Harry Rainey, Hunt and Johnny Rainey won easy victories to dominate the match.

The summary: Claude King (ECC) 24, Bob Loy 22, Harry Rainey (ECC) 21, Jimmy Layton, 20. Best ball: King and Rainey 3, Layton and Loy 0. Pat Hunt (ECC) 3, McGriff 0. John Rainey (ECC) 3, John Holt 0. Best ball: Hunt and Rainey 3, Holt and McGriff 0.

Ashburn, Ennis Collide; Shaken

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Richie Ashburn and Del Ennis of the Philadelphia Phillies rested today after a bruising outfield collision while chasing a line drive hit by New York Yankee centerfielder Mickey Mantle.

The speedy Ashburn suffered a slight concussion and an injury to his left knee while Ennis came up with a chest bruise and a slightly pulled muscle in his left knee as the result of the crash yesterday.

Both players rested at the hotel here today while their teammates took on the Kansas City Athletics.

However, trainer Frank Wiebeck said Ennis probably will be able to start in the season's opener against the New York Giants, National League and world champions, on Tuesday at Connie Mack Stadium.

But Ashburn's status is doubtful. X-rays were taken last night and the results of the film were awaited today to show whether Richie will need a rest for a week or so or will be able to play within a few days.

The injury puts Ashburn's consecutive-game streak in the National League in jeopardy. He has played in 730 straight games and it was expected that he'd challenge the loop mark of 822 games set by Gus Suhr, the former first baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, which ended in 1937.

Large Audience Views Passion Play Showings

Approximately 1,800 persons viewed the second annual Passion Play during the three nights that it was presented locally under the sponsorship of the St. James Methodist Church.

Final performance of the presentation, depicting the final days of Christ, the Crucifixion and Resurrection, was presented last night before a crowd estimated at between 800 and 1,000.

It was the second year the Passion Play has been presented locally. Last year crowds estimated at 2,000 attended the play in Wright Auditorium.

The Rev. J. Malloy Owen, III noted that a delegation of 40 came from Hoboken to see the play as well as individuals from as far away as Sanford and Fayetteville. However, he said local attendance was "pretty weak."

"The attendance was not encouraging as far as the future is concerned," he continued. "We want to make it an annual event but the public response will determine that because it does require considerable effort on the part of a lot of people."

Rev. Owen said he was pleased

Greenville Fine Arts Festival Plans Set

The twentieth annual Community Fine Arts Festival will open on Sunday, May 1st, and continue through Saturday the 7th. Committees have been working for weeks scheduling programs and exhibits of unusual value and interest. Several new features have been added to the usual events which the sponsoring organizations believe will be received with acclaim.

The theme for the year centers on the "Fine Arts of Our State" with emphasis on Eastern North Carolina. Clisde Howell of Wilmington will have a one-man show in the Art Gallery and will be the speaker for the opening program on Sunday at 3 p.m. in the auditorium at Sheppard Memorial Library. A preview of his show and a social hour will follow. Monday evening in the C. M. Eppes High School Mrs. Madge Allen and her art class will present an original fantasy.

Tuesday at one o'clock in the College Dining Room Mr. William T. Polk of Greensboro, editor, short story writer and author, will speak on "Trends in Literature and the Arts in North Carolina." Tuesday evening the Greenville High School Band and Chorus will present a program in the McGinnis Auditorium.

Wednesday, a movie on the life and works of Leonardo da Vinci will be shown in the same auditorium. The picture is in color and runs for 68 minutes. It will be shown continuously from 1:30 until 5 p.m.

Wednesday evening, the Teacher's Playhouse of ECC, under the direction of Dr. J. A. Withey, will present a program of original one-act plays including "Lost Ideals," by J. A. Withey, and "The Spectre Bridegroom," by James D. Allison, both of the college faculty.

Thursday, for the first time a "Sidewalk Show" will be given on the sidewalk and grounds of Sheppard Memorial Library. Committees are working diligently to make this an attractive event. Several hundred paintings and crafts of various kinds will be on display.

Music, flowers, lunch and other attractions will provide entertainment throughout the day. The Sidewalk Show will get underway at 10:00 a.m. and continue until dark Thursday evening in the McGinnis Auditorium the East Carolina College Band with George Perry as featured soloist will give a program.

On Friday at 2:30 in the Woman's Club Mr. Edwin G. Thurlow of the School of Landscape Architecture of State College will make a talk on "Landscape Design for the Small Garden." Friday evening at eight o'clock in Elm Street Park the Square Dance Club will present a program of folk dances under the direction of Richard Heller.

Saturday morning in the McGinnis Auditorium from 10 to 12 movies of the life and works of the following musicians will be shown: Marian Anderson, Jascha Heifetz and Beethoven.

Exhibits of paintings by local and visiting artists will be shown all week in the store windows on Evans and Fifth Streets. The school children's art will be in Wright Auditorium. A one man show by Robert Broderick of Duke University will be shown in Joyner Library and Landscape Designs by Godwin and Bell, landscape architects of Raleigh, will be in the Woman's Club. Since the first week in May is National Music Week, and music is one of the Fine Arts, the festival committee is furnishing films on some of the great musicians and artists to all of the schools for the week. These will be used by the directors of music and art in their respective schools.

All exhibits and programs are free.

'Small' Atomic Device Exploded

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—An atomic device was exploded from a tower on the Nevada desert at 4:30 a.m. today as a preliminary to a second shot, scheduled later today, which may be one of the largest of the 1955 test series.

The first nuclear explosion of the busy test day was from the top of a 300-foot tower on Yucca Flat. In Las Vegas the blast produced a bright whiteness that faded into a rich yellow. The quick glow of the pre-dawn shot was seen as far away as San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Evidence that the first shot of the day was a comparatively small one—as atom bombs go—was seen in the fact that observers said they did not feel a shock wave from the test site about 75 miles from here. Las Vegas sometimes gets a sturdy jolt from the explosion of major atomic devices.

The Atomic Energy Commission had announced the first shot would be from a 300-foot tower, preceding the later one today scheduled for detonation from a 400-foot tower at Frenchman Flat.

Plans for the first shot were fairly simple as compared with elaborate preparations for the later, and more powerful explosion.

The AEC said the pre-dawn explosion was to test an atomic device prepared by its laboratory at Livermore, Calif. Twenty-five Air Force planes were in the area to collect effects data.

The plan also called for a flight of 25 Navy planes for indoctrination purposes. No troops participated.

Stevenson Plans Policy Discussion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional Democrats will look for possible foreign policy differences between Adlai Stevenson and President Eisenhower when Stevenson discusses the Far Eastern situation in a radio talk Monday.

Two networks will broadcast the address nationally without charge as a public service.

Chicago, Stevenson was unavailable for comment on his talk. But William McCormick Blair, his law partner and aide, said Stevenson feels party politics have no place in discussion of U. S. policy in the Far East.

For that reason, Blair said, Stevenson did not seek clearance for the broadcast from the Democratic party leadership.

Friends said Stevenson feels the public needs a clearer picture of the implications of the U. S. position in the Formosa Strait.

Stevenson was said to be particularly anxious to discuss U. S. policy regarding the Nationalist-held offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu, threatened with invasion from the Red China mainland.
