Fire Damages Structure Housing Store, Apartments

Fire heavily damaged a frame building housing a store and two apartments early this morning. A back downstairs apartment in the two-story building located on Bonner's Lane was completely gutted by the blaze while an upstairs apartment received smoke and fire damage.

The thick smoke to reach the heart of the blaze. To reach the upstairs apartment of the high building the fire fighters were forced to drag hose lines up a steep outdoor stairway leading up the side of the building. Kitchen furnishings and appliances in the upstairs apartment received some damage from the blaze which burned up the back wall from downstairs into the kitchen located in the back of the upstairs apartment.

No further damage resulted to that building however. The flames burned up into the rafters supporting the roof of the back apartment, thus creating a hazard for fire fighters who stood on the roof of the one-story back section to fight the blaze in the second story of the front section. However, the tin roof never collapsed.

A program of nuptial music was presented by John Farmer Cole, organist, and Miss Justyn Carter, vocalist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Graham Caddell of Darlington, S. C., wore a white length dress of white nylon tulle and imported Chantilly lace. The dress was designed with a full skirt and a molded strapless bodice featuring a short tight fitting lace jacket with long sleeves and a small round collar. The shoulder length veil of silk illusion was attached to a pearl trimmed half hat of the same material. She carried a prayer book topped with three small Easter lilies.

Mrs. Graham Caddell, her sister's matron of honor, wore a ballerina length gown of perverche blue crystal and fashioned with a portrait neckline. She had a matching brooch and carried pink spring flowers.

Mrs. Durwood R. Everett Jr. of Raleigh, a sister of the bride, wore a dress of the same color, identical material and exact model of the honor attendant's. Her bouquet was pink.

The flower girl, Amy Everett of Raleigh, the bride's niece, was lovely in a white eyelet embroidered organza over light blue taffeta. A blue half-hat matched the bride's headress. She carried a basket of sweetheart roses.

David Henry of Ogdensburg, N. Y., acted as the best man. The ushers were Jack Pierce of Greenville, Tenn., brother-in-law of the groom; D. R. Everett Jr., brother-in-law of the bride; Richard Middleton, Cape Cod, Mass.; and William G. Edwards of Raleigh.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Graham Caddell and Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Everett Jr. entertained at a reception at the home of the latter at 2333 Hathaway Road.

Testimony Is Expected In Scales Trial Today

GREENSBORO (AP) — Testimony about Julius Scales' alleged intent, as a Communist, to overthrow the government was expected in U.S. District Court today.

Except for possible motions by attorneys, all that remained before appearance of the first witness was selection of one or more alternate jurors.

Scales, 35, is charged with belonging to the Communist party, knowing that its goal was violent overthrow of the government and intending to help the party carry out that purpose.

The court stayed in session until 1 p.m. yesterday to select 12 jurors from 36 questioned. One factor helping to hurry things along was the government's agreement to use only one of the six challenges it was allowed. With 23 prospective jurors accepted by the court, the defense exercised its 10 challenges

Bad 'Dream'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Russell L. Brand's sad story: from dream house to county jail.

Brand said the dream house—a $60,000 home, built for a motion picture and awarded to him in a 1948 contest — started all his troubles.

His attorney said Brand had to mortgage the house for $15,000 to pay the taxes on it. After he moved into the mansion pressure mounted, the attorney said. Business losses put Brand deeper in debt.

Finally Brand was arrested on grand theft charges for allegedly bilking people in used car dealings. Three charges against him were dismissed yesterday in Superior Court, but he got six months for a fourth.

Brand said he wouldn't be moving back into the dream house after he finishes his jail sentence. He said he had to sell it — to satisfy his creditors.

Fifteen Missing In Airliner Crash

SINGAPORE (AP)—The British navy reported that three Indian crewmen of a crashing airliner were rescued by a coastal ship today in the South China Sea.

Fifteen persons were still missing, including eight Communist Chinese officials, a North Vietnamese and two Polish journalists — all bound for the African-Asian conference in Indonesia.

The survivors were reported suffering slight injuries.

The four-engine Indian Constellation disappeared Monday night after sending three distress signals. British Royal Air Force fighters sighted the wreckage and empty lifejackets off the Great Natuna Islands, some 200 miles north-east of Singapore, earlier today.

The Constellation Kashmir Princess was one of two Air India International planes the Peiping government had chartered to fly its delegation to the meeting opening in Indonesia next week.

The second, a four-engine Sky-master, will carry Premier Chou En-lai and other top delegates from Kuming, China, over the Himalayas to Rangoon, Burma, tomorrow.

Graham's Voice Is Carried By Telephone Relay

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Billy Graham's voice was carried throughout Scotland last night by a telephone relay to an audience of between 75,000 and 100,000.

Next week his audience will be even greater when the telephone hookup is extended to cities in England, Wales and Ireland.

Kelvin Hall, where the American evangelist is conducting services in his all-Scotland crusade, was packed last night with 17,540, the largest congregation there since he began his campaign March 21.

Loud-speakers were set up in 31 town halls and churches over the country to bring his sermon simultaneously to the scattered congregations.

When he completes the crusade in Scotland in mid-May, Graham will conduct a week of services in London.

In the Ait Haddidu tribe in the Atlas mountains of Morocco, a woman can legally divorce her husband for 15 cents and some of the women have had as many as 80 husbands, says the National Geographic Society.

Hotels Use Foam To Clean Carpets

Good hotels, whose carpets get far more wear than yours, know foam cleaner is the answer.

Hotel managers say foam cleaner such as Pina Foam does the job quicker and better than any other kind. Foam is easier to use, leaves nap fluffy and brings the colors back like new.

With the new Pina Foam, you clean your wall-to-wall carpeting standing up, easily with a long handle brush and it's ready for use in a few hours. It's economical, too. A gallon of concentrate for $2.25 makes three gallons of solution, enough for three 9x12 rugs.

Objectors Quit Jobs; To Prison

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two conscientious objectors who were given jobs in state hospitals in lieu of being drafted were given two-year prison sentences yesterday because they quit the two-year jobs.

Both members of Jehovah's Witnesses said they left their jobs because they objected to being ordered to work.

Judge W. Calvin Chesnut sentenced 23-year-old Ernest W. Dykes, of Salisbury, and Charles W. Smith III, 21, of Annapolis, after a hearing in U.S. District Court.

Hold-Up Suspect Found In Prison

NEW YORK (AP)—Police have scratched Edward Schirmer off the list of persons they want to question about a $300,000 bank robbery in Queens last Wednesday.

They were seeking the ex-convict in connection with the holdup at the Woodside branch of the Chase Manhattan Bank the biggest bank cash take on record.

With some embarrassment yesterday they disclosed Schirmer was in Sing Sing Prison, having been returned there for parole violation about a year ago.

ACCURATE FIGURE

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—Salesman R. E. Ray got some accurate figuring done this time without his automatic money counting machine.

Returning to his truck after a snack, he found that someone had stolen the instrument. The cost, automatically set without benefit of the machine: $300.

Tax Notices Are Not Cashable

DENVER (AP)—You just can't cash those tax due notices like checks, a government official told Coloradans yesterday.

In plaintive tones George H. Allan, state director for the Internal Revenue Service, conceded the statements of what a taxpayer still owes may look a little like refund checks. The latest to reach his desk, a dun for $15.37, was cashed by supermarket here but payment was refused at a bank.

Mad Gunman Slain In Attempting 'Revenge'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Three hours of horror for a mother and her children and a 20-year-old grudge ended in death yesterday for a mad gunman.

Shearer, who had flown to Louisville from his office at Frankfort, listened as Redfern, flushed with anger, reminded him of an arrest 20 years ago when Shearer was a probation officer.

"I want compensation for what you've done," Redfern cried. He reached for a gun in his belt.

The last outbreak of yellow fever in the United States was in New cables weigh a ton a mile.

Mad Gunman Slain In Attempting 'Revenge'

Heustis lunged across a desk and felled Redfern with a flying tackle. Dr. Ackerly grabbed the man's gun hand by the wrist and forced it floorward.

Spots rang out in Shearer's fashionable East Louisville home and Redfern went limp with a bullet through the heart.

Shearer had fired a pistol obtained from a state trooper as he entered his home.

Police with heavy arms and tear gas surrounded the place after Shearer got word from Redfern by telephone that his family was being held hostage to await his arrival.

Up-Hill Fight On Tobacco Tax

The rising and falling tide of the proposed tobacco tax for North Carolina leaves only one alternative for tobacco farmers at present: do everything possible to defeat the proposal.

During the early weeks of the General Assembly it appeared the tobacco tax was sure to pass. Then a couple of weeks ago the proposal to tax tobacco products appeared dormant if not dead. Now it has become apparent there are some members of the General Assembly—even among the eastern delegation in Raleigh—who are determined the bulk of the needed state revenue will be raised from tobacco products.

Was The Matter Ever In Question?

We've heard of a lot of government surveys for one thing and another, but this one takes the cake. A group of government experts are going to make a survey to determine whether the husband or the wife wins most family arguments.

Any husband could give them the answer without going to the trouble (and we might add, expense) of making a government survey. The lady of the house may try to protect hubby's ego with her answer.

Maybe the politicians want confirmation of the fact that their own home situation is typical so they'll be sure to pitch the 1956 political campaign at those who rule the roost at home. After all, it's taxpayers' money they're spending.

Strength for the Day

Macaulay tells of a poor apprentice who made a cathedral window entirely out of pieces of glass that his master had condemned and thrown away. When it was completed, the window won the admiration of all.

There is a legend that when the temple of Solomon was being built, there was a stone for which the builders could find no place. As they went on with the building, however, they gradually awoke to the realization that it was this stone which would hold all the other stones together. This was the stone without which the building they were erecting would not be a temple at all. This was the stone which the builders had rejected, but, as the psalmist says, it had become the head of the corner.

So often rejected things and persons have later had a glorious place in the human pageant. Rejected stones have a way of becoming the heads of corners. Think of the legends that have grown up about rejected children who became geniuses and great servants of their fellows.

Everyone at times has a feeling of rejection and is sorry for himself. Yet it is not rejection which is hard to endure; rather it is the lack of faith in one's self, or in the divine ordering of human events which leads to fear that this rejection will be permanent. Have faith in yourself! Best of all, have faith in a God of love and justice, who sees to it that all things work together for good for them that love Him.

National Whirligig

Crisis That Is Misunderstood

WASHINGTON—Authentic spokesmen for the South have warned the White House and the Supreme Court directly and indirectly that any attempt to enforce school desegregation will be resisted to the stubborn and bitter end. From all evidence available, even a slow and evolutionary process will sharpen rather than solve racial conflicts, possibly resulting in sporadic violence.

Despite these friendly warnings, the Eisenhower Administration approaches the final phases of this critical problem as if it were a routine matter. The Supreme Court, a Roosevelt-Truman body that originally decreed against segregation, thinks that it can implement its decision by gentle, legal means. So, perhaps, its predecessors felt about the fateful Dred Scott decision.

SERIOUS DOMESTIC PROBLEM—Unfortunately, public opinion outside the South has been lulled into a similar complacency, although it is entirely erroneous. Where more immediate and international crises have not forced newspapers and magazines to neglect or play down the controversy, some have given an erroneous impression of the South's reaction.

A national weekly of vast circulation is largely responsible for this failure to recognize the seriousness of this domestic crisis. It recently published an article which said that the South would not resist or resist this revolution in its social and education system. Excerpts were reprinted and distributed widely.

It now develops that the author, although a white woman, is a member of the National Association for the Protection of the Colored People. Southern members of Congress insist that she misrepresented the majority viewpoint by the Magnolia and Dixie line. A score of southern editors and writers, according to the M. C.'s, have offered to write a rebuttal article, but the magazine editors reply that they do not "engage in controversy."

AWAIT ACTION—For various reasons, leading southerners on Capitol Hill have refrained bluntly from discussing the matter. They prefer to wait upon are, to overlook the serious repercussions the tobacco tax could have on the entire economy of the state.

Pitt County's representatives in the General Assembly this week-end made it quite clear that tobacco has not yet cleared the possibility of a state tax being imposed. Sen. Paul Jones averred the Senate Finance Committee's two-to-one straw vote favoring tobacco did not "indicate the feeling of the Senate," and suggested that opponents of the tobacco tax might have a small majority in the Senate. Both Representatives S. O. Worthington and Walter Jones urged people of the county to make sure the legislature this week hears their opposition to the tobacco tax.

The tobacco tax may still be defeated in the legislature, but if it is to be defeated, it is apparent there must be an aggressive up-hill fight by opponents of the tax within the next several days.

What About Local Taxes In Pitt

When local government officials get down to the budget-making chores in the next few weeks, they should keep one thing uppermost in their minds. The taxpayers do not mind paying taxes, but they do expect to receive a full dollar's value for every tax dollar paid to local governments.

The beginning of the next fiscal year is almost three months away, but a good bit of work on county and municipal budgets must be done prior to that time. The county government as well as the several municipal governments within Pitt County have a number of improvements in mind for the coming year. A good many of these proposed improvements in operations and services will be beneficial to the people which the individual governments serve. But before additional local tax funds are raised and spent, the burden is on the officials to make sure the benefits which will be received justify the expenditure of tax money.

Government budgets which are adopted by the county government and municipal governments by July 1 will represent several million dollars to be paid by local residents during the 12-month period.

Federal taxes already are high, state taxes apparently are going higher than before. A question on the minds of many Pitt County people is what are local taxes going to be for next year?

The overall increase in property valuations in Pitt for the current fiscal year gave both the county and local governments the equivalent of a tax increase of several cents although the tax rates were not raised. Is it going to be necessary for the package tax rate to go up again this year?

It is the responsibility of local officials not only to see that local government provides adequate services to meet the needs of the people; but likewise to see that these services are provided as efficiently as possible and at the lowest possible cost.

whatever method the White House, Supreme Court and Department of Justice adopt for actual execution of the school desegregation order. They also wait upon their respective states' action.

Thus the South has no national or recognized spokesman to publicize the grave dangers confronting the country. But almost every newspaper in that section declares flatly and repeatedly that there may be peril, including violence, over the proposed overturn of their educational institutions. As in every section, there are hotspots in Dixie.

The silence and misunderstanding over what may lie ahead are ominous, in the opinion of southern leaders, whose voices are like those crying in the wilderness insofar as the rest of the country is concerned.

HARMFUL TO NEGROES—Like so many reforms, it is predicted that this will harm rather than help the colored people in their search for equal educational advantages. The tremendous strides they have achieved during the Roosevelt-Truman regime, which changed them from Republicans to Democrats, may be slowed down for years.

Under the "separate but equal" Supreme Court decision of years ago, the South has spent hundreds of millions on new schools for Negroes. In South Carolina, site of Fort Sumter, ex-Governor James F. Byrnes inaugurated a $100,000,000 building program. In some areas, schools for Negroes have more modern architecture and equipment than older structures reserved for white children.

Different states, of course, will resort to different tactics in the final stages. Several Legislatures have enacted legislation which will virtually transform the present public school system into a private affair, thus permitting prohibition of race mingling.

For the courts to overthrow this substitute setup will require years of litigation more bitter and divisive than this country has seen or suffered from in modern times. The Supreme Court's words fell on deaf and angry ears in Dixie!

Somebody Told Me

Gene Born To Be A Telecaster

Yesterday I buttonholed Gene Hodges of WNCT for an inside story what it's like to be a television newscaster. Gene does a dozen newscasts a week, including two with a special slant he invented: Persons, Places and Things and Look and Listen.

For Look and Listen Gene wrote to the publishers of Look, Life, Time, Newsweek, and U.S. News and World Report for special permission to use their copy. He takes the choice excerpts from those publications for his Sunday afternoon show. For Persons, Places and Things his copy comes from the U.P. wire.

It seems that Gene was born to be a telecaster. He's only 19 now and at the age of 12 he started on radio with a kiddie show over his home station, WRRF, Washington. Recently I recognized Gene's voice on a station identification which showed a scene from Washington. Frankly, I believe he was ad-libbing when he said,

"This is WNCT, Channel 9, serving the original Washington and over a million Eastern Carolina citizens."

A freshman at East Carolina, he is an average student, majoring in English. He's very fond of Greenville, WNCT and East Carolina and very enthused about his job.

"Problems? Just like the rest of us have in our work. Gene has a problem in newscasting. Since he edits his own copy from the UP wire, he always has to ask him this question: 'Did I give the viewers the news they wanted to hear?'"

Of course he reads the current news magazines to keep abreast to what's important. But with the means of copy that a news magazine pumps out, it's tough to decide what to use. As far as the viewer is concerned, Gene is always making a special effort to have him understand what he's saying with minimum effort on the viewer's part. Gene is perfectly relaxed and wants the viewer to be also.

To prepare a newscast, he spends an hour. That includes editing and rehearsing. Timing is no problem, because he knows exactly how much copy he can cover in a set time.

His father raises cattle and grain near Washington and until the age of 10 Gene lived on a farm. From 1948 until March of last year when he joined the WNCT staff, he worked with the Washington radio stations.

Of all the newscasters, he most admires Edward R. Murrow of CBS, who is a native of Greensboro.

With his present talent and the age advantage of being only 19, it's certain that Gene Hodges has a bright future.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

AT THE TOP IN HIS FIELD

(Henderson Dispatch)
Robert W. Madry, known to thousands of newspaper men and students and alumni of the University of North Carolina as just plain "Bob," stood at the top in his field as director of the University News Bureau. No one thought of the News Bureau without thinking of Bob. They were almost one and the same. And every one who knew him held a sincere affection for him.

Madry headed the bureau at Chapel Hill for thirty years. In that period of time he came to be known and respected by newspaper people throughout this and in other States. Everywhere he was recognized as efficient, qualified and capable and as doing the best job certainly in any similar position in any North Carolina educational institution. He knew every in and out at the University and had his finger always on the pulse beats of what was going on.

His news releases were voluminous, always readable, accurate and informative. They had wide play in the press of the State. Bob Madry's talents were recognized in other fields as well. He served several terms as a member of the town council at Chapel Hill and for two terms was mayor of the town. Moreover, his interest in civic affairs carried him to the heights of Rotary as governor of the Carolina district some years ago. He was a hard worker and expected as much from his associates. Work in his department was an education in itself for those interested in a journalistic career and afforded valuable background for newspaper duty.

Thousands of friends will mourn his passing. His death came as a shock to those who did not know the seriousness of his illness, and especially after the recovery he had made from lengthy hospitalization earlier in the year. The University News Bureau will carry on upon the foundation laid by Bob Madry. But it won't be the same indeed for him not to be at the helm and directing its activities.

Hodges Concerned About Long Range Financial Policy

By LYNN NISBET

LONG RANGE — Governor Hodges made it clear to reporters at his latest news conference that he is more concerned about the long range tax and appropriation policies than about immediate effects of any particular bill. He expressed the hope that the General Assembly will hold spending down to a minimum, but that any cuts will not be deep enough to endanger essential phases of the State's educational and development programs. He does not think there can be very much cut off the budget recommended $425 million for general fund purposes during the next biennium, but he has no quarrel with minor adjustments and transfers of some items, so long as the items contribute to the objectives of continued growth.

He called for thorough study leading to simplification and modernization of the State tax structure. "Nobody can be proud of the existing situation," he said. "North Carolina has acquired an undeserved 'bad reputation' because it has done a poor job of publicizing the impact of combined State and local tax burden in comparison with other States," he continued. When the whole picture is presented North Carolina compares very favorably.

Component parts of the overall picture which have not been adequately portrayed include State support of schools and highways — burdens which fall heavily upon local units most places. Another important item is that North Carolina has already provided many of the permanent facilities which other States must yet pay for, justifying the conclusion that our tax schedules are less likely to be upped in the near future. After all the kind things are said, and all the best features of the combined State-local tax burden explained, the fact remains that in many respects our tax structure is "out-dated and cumbersome."

MODERNIZATION—The Governor is pleased with the attitude of the Legislature on this point. Several bills are pending, which may be consolidated into one, providing for a permanent tax study commission to work with the Departments of Tax Research and Revenue in much the same way the Advisory Budget Commission works with the Budget Bureau.

Bills are in preparation to rewrite the entire sales tax article to eliminate confusion, and to incorporate in the statutes many of the processes and provisions which have been handled by administrative rulings. Also in the legislative mill are proposals to revise procedure in the Revenue Department, provide larger auditing and inspection staffs, to facilitate collection of legally owed taxes. Enactment of the essential features of these bills is practically certain. They will afford substantial improvement over current practices.

The Governor's idea, shared by many legislators and tax officials, is that these measures will alleviate pain and reduce temperature, but will not touch the causes of the sickness. No material change has been made in the basic tax structure since 1933. Several legislators have suggested that the present proposals are comparable to treating sufferers from tuberculosis or typhoid fever only with remedies used twenty years ago. Typhoid is very rare in North Carolina now, and tuberculosis is fast on the way out as a health menace, because emphasis was diverted from temporary relief to elimination of the causes. That is what needs to be done with the tax structure, say the tax doctors. They further agree that it cannot be done in one year or two, or done once and forgotten; but there must be continuing study to keep abreast, if not ahead, of changing economic conditions and practices in other States.

PRECEDENT — Precedent is not as important or controlling for the legislative branch of government as for the judiciary. Recent decisions of the North Carolina and United States Supreme Courts raise the question whether judicial precedent is as controlling as it used to be. Legislature do have to watch closely the potential "precedent" effect of certain bills, admittedly good for the immediate purpose but having implications which might later rise to plague them in less desirable but somewhat comparable situations.

Take, for example, the bill to allow highway patrolmen to collect cash pay for vacation time which they could not take because of calls to duty. Looks good on its face, until someone remembered that many other State

Vacation Travel Up

By ELMER ROESSNER

If this department ever made predictions, it certainly would predict that vacation auto travel will set a new high this year.

The number of automobiles in use is at an all-time high and is rising. And a lot of families with new two-toners are eager to romp around, showing them off to relatives, friends and the country in general.

Personal income—an important prerequisite to motor jaunting—is at a record high. It was at an annual rate of $32.4 billion in February, a gain of $1 billion over the January rate and more than $7 billion higher than the rate for February, 1954.

Highways are more inviting than ever before. There are, of course, lots of repairs, improvements, extensions and new roads needed. But freeway, through-way and parkway mileage extends every month. The Federal Reserve Board estimates that spending on new roads will exceed $4 billion this year. That's a fifth more than last year and double five years ago. There has been a great increase in motel construction and some gains in hotel building. Considerable work is being done in improving and increasing private vacation resorts and even the government, at long last, is doing something about the run-down condition of accommodations in the national parks.

This year Cuba is bidding for a share of the spending by American motorists. An auto ferry has opened between Key West and Cardenas and the operators, promised financing by the Cuban government, are adding a second and larger ferry. While Cuban roads aren't very good, travel in the interior is inexpensive and there are many places where American motorists are still a curiosity to the natives.

As vacation motoring increases, so do the opportunities to sell goods and services to the rambling millions, and to the innkeepers, caterers and others who profit from travel business.

Note: If you are going on a vacation this summer, better nail down your reservations right away.

Well, Napoleon Didn't Climb It

By HAL BOYLE

CAIRO (AP) — Leaves from a tourist's notebook:
At last I've done something Napoleon Bonaparte didn't do. I've climbed the great pyramid at Giza, one of the seven wonders of the world.

It's the quickest way I know for a fat man to take an inch off his waistline in 40 minutes. But your legs cry "ouch" for four days afterward.

The great pyramid, one of three at Giza now a suburb of Cairo, is the largest of Egypt's 80 pyramids. It was the tomb of Cheops some 4,500 years ago. Legend has it that it took a hundred thousand men 20 years to build it.

The pyramid weighs about five million tons, contains more than two million huge stones, covers 13 acres at its base. It originally towered 481 feet, but the top 31 feet now are missing.

My ambition to scale the monument arose after reading that Napoleon, a plump man himself, had refused an invitation to do so during his campaigns here.

While some of the officers made the ascent, the bored commander got busy with pencil and paper. When they returned, he told them he had figured there was enough stone in the three pyramids to build a wall ten feet high and one foot thick entirely round France.

Presumably this was Napoleon's way of showing his boys that, while they are working up sweat performing a juvenile feat he had kept his brain busy doing something useful.

When I told a Cairo acquaintance I wanted to climb the great pyramid, he remarked cheerfully: "You know a number of soldiers were killed during the last war climbing around on these pyramids. They say getting up isn't as bad as getting down. Some one estimated that if you fell from the top of one pyramid, you would bounce only four times before landing in the sand at the bottom."

This cooled me off for two days. Then I decided to go ahead anyway. After all, thousands of tourists have made the trip up and down safely through the centuries. My insurance was paid up, and there was this wish to get an edge on Napoleon.

To cut down the burial rate of tourists, the government now insists you have to make the climb with a guide. This was something of a problem in my case. A couple of natives took a look at my stomach and turned me down.

I could read their minds. They knew their ancestors had had enough trouble raising the heavy stones in place centuries ago.

Why should they have to bother with rigging up a block and tackle to get down a fat man like me, in case I collapsed like a tired balloon during the trip?

Finally, after I crossed the palm of veteran guide Ahmad Gann with enough plasters to send his family to Mecca, he consented against his better judgment to meet the gambler.

We started up at 8 a.m.—early enough to miss the hot sun, but late enough so the morning dew had dried from the rocks and left the footing less slippery.

Ahmad, who has a small gray beard, began loping up the stones like a goat in a nightmare. I followed him slowly and painfully hugging each stone as if it were a rich old aunt who might leave me money in her will.

The guide wanted to go faster. I kept halting him to ask questions, discuss the beauty of nature—anything that would give me time to surreptitiously catch my breath.

At last we reached the summit. Hundreds of climbers had scratched their names on the peak, including dear old Kilroy.

"For heaven's sake, hold the heart with a tremendous pulse of exhilaration. It was worth it to be standing there atop the most gigantic monument ever built by man, gazing across the endless desert miles, feeling a cool desert wind on the face, and the thrill of history here that has no equal elsewhere."

But the thrill was damped by the thought of the climb down. I asked Ahmad who is 59 and first made the ascent at 17 how many times he had climbed the great pyramid.

"More than one thousand times," he replied.

"Ever lose a tourist?" I asked him. Not that I cared, of course. Just to make conversation.

"No."

"I felt better. Still I kept thinking of what would happen if I slipped. Only four bounces in a 450-foot fall. I slid most of the journey down on the seat of my pants, a stone at a time, my eyes closed most of the way. Every time I sit down for the next week I'll remember the great pyramid."

On reaching the bottom, knees wobbling with weakness, I thanked Ahmad and remarked, after looking at my watch, that the trip had been pretty fast. Only 40 minutes.

"Yes, very good," he observed politely, then added that a young native guide during a race had climbed up and down in seven minutes.

Seven minutes? Oh, well, he'd probably done it with his eyes open. Anyway at least I have something on Napoleon. But it may not be common sense.

Tucker-Jones Vows Exchanged In Double Ring Ceremony

ALBANY, Tex.—In the candle-lighted sanctuary of the First Christian Church Friday evening, April 8th, Jeanie Jones became the bride of William Edward Tucker.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Jones of Albany and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. C. E. Tucker of Greenville, N. C.

Rev. Wilber J. Mindel, minister of the First Christian Church at Odessa, performed the double ring ceremony before a background of greenery centered by a cross covered with white carnations. The white satin prayer bench was flanked by white catelabra holding foliage, green tapers and white baskets of white gladioli and Easter lilies. White satin bows and wedding bells marked the pews.

Mary Porter, lifelong friend of the bride, was organist. She played the traditional wedding music and accompanied Jon Rex Jones, brother of the bride, who sang "Because" (D'Hardelot) and "O Perfect Love" (Barney) and Roy Hathaway who sang "The Lord's Prayer" by Mat-lotte.

Before and during the ceremony Miss Porter played "Bridal Chorus" (Wagner), "Night Song" (Larson),

"Barcarolle" (Offenbach), "Dream" (Bartlett), "Prayer" (Hansel and Grete by Humperdinck), "Liebestraum" (Liszt), "Serenade" (Schubert), "Romance" (Rubinstein), "Traumer" (Schumann), "Meditation" (Sergisen), "If I Could Tell You" and "Oh Promise Me" (De-Koven).

Bride's attendants were Pattie Andrews, maid of honor; Mrs. A. V. Jones Jr., sister-in-law of the bride; matron of honor; Mary Gail Pate of Albany and Betty Harlan, roommate of the bride, of Los Angeles, Calif. bridesmaids.

The attendants all wore identical dresses of green antique taffeta, styled with fitted off the shoulder bodices and bouffant skirts. They wore caplets of the same material embroidered with seed pearls and veils showered with rhinestones. They each carried a cascade bouquet of Easter lilies, and wore short white kid gloves.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown which was an original model of imported white chantilly lace and 3/4 inch pink tulle over bluish pink taffeta. The elongated bodice of lace had a scalloped portrait neckline draped with folds of tulle. The lace of the bodice extended over the bouffant tulle skirt in a scalloped overskirt that cascaded to the back in a deep point.

The three-tiered imported veil of illusion fell from a scalloped caplet of imported rose point lace encrusted with seed pearls and iridescent paillettes. She wore elbow length mitts of white chantilly lace and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid.

For the traditional something old she carried a hand-made handkerchief that her mother and grandmother carried in their weddings. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom's mother wore a blue lace dress and matching hat and short white gloves. The bride's mother wore a gray lace dress and small rose hat trimmed with pearls and a veil. Both wore pink orchids.

Danny Hensley of Miami, Okla. served as best man. Groomsmen were Glenn Brigham, Columbia, S. C., Rumley Warde Allen Jr., Pantego, N. C., and A. V. Jones Jr., Albany. Ushers were Jimmy Curtis Johnson, Odessa and Edgar William Hennig of Tyler who were also "handlighters."

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Guests were received by the bride's mother, the bridegroom's mother, the bridegroom, the bride, the matron of honor, maid of honor and the bridesmaids.

The bride's table, laid with white cutwork linen over green satin, was centered with the bridal attendants' bouquets and lighted with white tapers in silver candelabra.

The tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Pattie Andrews served the cake and Betty Harlan and Mary Gail Pate alternated at the punch bowl. Ann Carlisle presided at the bride's book. Others in the house party were Mrs. Roy Matthews, Mrs. Will Hatcher, Mrs. Baker Matthews, Mrs. G. B. King, and Mrs. John F. Sedwick.

When the couple left on a short wedding trip after the reception the bride traveled in a costume suit with black skirt, white linen fitted blouse and red wool box jacket. She wore white hat and gloves and her pumps and bag were black patent. She wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Albany High School and is a junior in Texas Christian University. She is a member of D. S. F., United Religious Council sect, Cappus "Y."

The bridegroom is a graduate of Greenville High School and attended East Carolina College two years and Atlantic Christian College two years where he was a member of Phi Kappa Alpha fraternity and received numerous honors, including President of the Student Council. He is now a second year student in Brite Seminary at T. C. U.

The couple will live at 3020 Waits, Fort Worth, Texas.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. C. E. Tucker, Greenville, N. C., Bill Paulsall, Seaside, N. Y., Miss Nan Mattox, Wendell, N. C., Mrs. Warden Allen, Pantego, N. C., Miss Hap Lyda, Vampa, Idaho, Miss Ann McArron, Breckenridge, Mrs. R. B. Jones, Okemah, Okla., Mrs. Dick Jones, Oklahoma City, Okla., and Mrs. Russ Ford and daughter of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Mrs. James McMahan, Okemah, Okla.

At Any Price

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles says Communist leaders are scheming to build up "a popular demand for peace at any price."

If such a mood became prevalent, he said, the Communists could "easily conquer the world."

Addressing the fifth annual All-Jesuit Alumni Dinner, Dulles said last night the Communists could "confront the free peoples with successive choices between peace and surrender; and if peace is the absolute goal, then surrenders become inevitable."

In such circumstances, he said "peace can be a cover whereby evil men can perpetrate diabolical wrongs."

"Craven purchase of peace at the expense of principle" could destroy man's "capacity for moral and intellectual judgment," he said and give world leadership to "those who believe that men are in fact nothing more than animated bits of matter."

Reply From Town Of 'None Such'

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The mayor of the little town of Ashland, Va., once known as "Slash Cottage," invited the mayor of Richmond to the town's 100th anniversary as Ashland.

The acceptance came from the mayor of "None Such." Legend has it that this name was given to Richmond by Capt. John Smith in early colonial times, when the doughty captain discounted the reports brought to him about the proposed site for a town.

Complaint Board Puts Fees First

The Montana Medical Assn. set up a grievance committee to hear patients' complaints. Dr. Harold W. # Ford Motor Co. Joins Dramatic Contract Parley

By NORMAN WALKER
DETROIT (AP)—The Ford Motor Co. today joins the dramatic, high-stakes poker game being played in the booming auto industry over the union demand for guaranteed year-around employment.

Representatives of the CIO United Auto Workers start new contract bargaining talks with Ford similar to those begun last week with General Motors Corp. Walter Reuther, president of the UAW and the CIO, has said he expects to put over the guaranteed annual wage idea with the big automobile producers, then spread it through the UAW's claimed 1 1/2 million membership and eventually throughout American industry.

Both Ford and GM, while avoiding taking any public stand on the year-around pay plan, have stressed in pronouncements this week that they have done a good job in regularizing pay and employment.

Ernest R. Breech, Ford board chairman, said in a speech to New York financial writers last night that Ford is doing "everything in our power to maintain stable employment in an industry that has usually been subject to wide swings in consumer demand."

Ford workers have been averaging better than 40 hours a week of work for some time and enjoyed an average $107 weekly pay in March, Breech said. He said his company is paying out a lot of money in premium overtime pay instead of hiring temporary workers who would only have to be laid off.

In 1927, he said when Ford shifted from the Model T to Model A cars, the company was shut down completely for 4 1/2 months and it was a full year later before full production was attained.

By contrast, he said less than a quarter of Ford's 136,000 production force was laid off as long as two weeks in the change-over to 1955 models.

At Belleair, Fla., NAM President Henry G. Ritter III said yesterday that guaranteed annual wage talk is meaningless until someone learns how to guarantee annual sales volume and income to industry.

Air Force Trims Its Waistlines

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP)—Operation Fatty is trimming waistlines for bulgy members of the 17th U.S. Air Force at nearby Wheelus Field.

Lt. Col. Claud M. Mears, 42, of Helena, Mont., commanding officer at the base hospital, said he lost 14 pounds as the result of a slimming diet he drafted in conjunction with U.S. Air Force dietitians.

The diet provides 1,000 calories a day—and admonitions to eat nothing between meals and cut out both alcoholic and soft drinks.

Each member of the Air Force is weighed weekly. Bulgies are directed to the base hospital for trimming down action.

A typical menu:
Breakfast—Two small grapefruit, two poached eggs, one slice of toast, one pat butter.

Lunch—Average serving roast beef, half cup green beans, tossed salad with lemon or vinegar dressing, two peach halves.
Supper—Large broiled steak, half cup peas, pears with grated cheese salad, two small tangerines.

Coffee is served with all meals but minus cream or sugar.

Take my PLACE

Landon McCrae is on her way from her job in New York to the town of Windemere in Canada, where her happily married sister, Maggie Scarffe, is ill. A "spot" on Maggie's lung will send her home for protracted treatment and in her absence, Landon will take over the household, comprising Maggie's husband, Eric, a teacher, her small daughter Merry-o and "Gran."

CHAPTER TWO
Landon was 14 when Scott saw her again, this time through Eric Scarffe, his closest friend at college. Scott's course of study was directed toward a career as an industrial psychology consultant; Eric was in honor English, which he intended, eventually, to teach.

One spring evening of their senior year, Eric looked at his watch and said, "I have a date. Want to come along? My girl's got a grandmother who makes the best shortbread you ever ate."

So Scott went along with Eric and Maggie's sister, lengthening out promisingly from chubbiness, talked his car off on the porch of the old buff frame house, ate so much shortbread that Scott fully expected her flawless skin to pop out in acne any minute, and told him how much she loved her sister Maggie.

concerned—less hamperingly tight, more compatible.

Maggie woke from a dream of being in a sanatorium. It was moonlight. She got out of bed and went over to the window. Omar, the big tiger-striped cat, was moon-watching on the sill. "I'll miss you," she whispered.

Across the golf course, the club house glittered with lights. Over there her friends would be gathering in small, appalled groups, talking about what had happened to her. Probably they were making plans to visit her at the sanatorium. Once a week. But soon they'd get tired of that and come less often.

Maggie looked down and met the drowsy dignity of Omar's sea-green gaze. Yes, you telepathist, she agreed wryly. I am being mentally gloomy and disloyal!

Music drifted over from the club house—a burst of laughter, a song in a girl's voice giddy with youth. Maggie felt a sudden nostalgia for everything that seemed to be slipping away from her. I should have held on one night longer, she thought. We should have gone to the dance, after all.

She saw her face reflected in the window, with all the easy gaiety everyone associated with Maggie Scarffe gone.

Eric's bed creaked behind her. His shadow emerged from the gloom, his arms closed about her. "What're you doing out of bed?" he asked her.

She nodded to him, her face lit with a sudden deep smile. "Feeling sorry for myself, I guess."

"You? No, no."

"Eric, do you remember the first time you dived off a high springboard?"

"Yes. I was scared. But when I look off it was only water."

"I feel as if I am about to dive into the unknown."

"Every tomorrow is an unknown, darling."

"I know." She barely breathed it.

PAR TIME 16 MIN. AP Newsfeatures 4-12

Lights were dancing again before her eyes, like stars. That was weakness, the doctors said. Physical weakness not like this other that was desperate and discreditable. She lifted her face. "Don't feel you have to visit me, darling. Too often, anyway. I don't want you to feel tied to a sick wife."

"I am going to be with you every minute I can."

She smiled wistfully. "After tomorrow, I'll have to go into a routine of rest hours and rules. I'll be just a body to be bathed and fed and treated, with no Maggie Scarffe personality at all—until I walk out cured, ready to be your wife again."

He drew her down with him on the window seat and pressed her face into his shoulder. "I'll be true as turnips, Maggie." He kissed the inside of her hand. "I'll be true as taxes."

She curved closer to him and drew a tremendous breath. The strong beat of her heart was in her ears, a queer thundering sound. It was wonderful, after seven years of marriage, to feel like this. Not just matter-of-factly married, but close in heart and spirit sharing every thought and intimacy; still finding joy in a handclasp.

She said softly, "Darling, let's go to bed. The tomorrow's are only water after all."

He drew her to him and kissed her. "You hurry up and get well and come home."

"Yes. Oh, yes I'll hurry."

Before they slept, he asked her drowsily, "What train is Landon coming on tomorrow?"

"The 11:25."

"Can she cook, I hope?"

"She makes lovely fudge."

"Ye gods, I'll have to teach the other McCrae girl how to try an egg!"

She laughed softly.

His hands slid down her shoulder and arm. "You're as thin as a rail."

"I'll fatten up in bed."

He held her closer, and she heard his voice shudder and roughen with the hard nervousness of his heartbeats. "Thin or fat, what's the difference? You are my beautiful darling. You are my love."

The only sleeping-car accommodation available on short notice was an airless upper berth. Landon McCrae, lying awake that Saturday night, turned her hot pillow over. Trying to sleep was as futile as trying to stop thinking.

Landon and Maggie had grown up in Windemere with their had entirely faded, thanks to their grandmother's love and her sensible methods of raising a "second family."

Rowena Hatch was wise enough not to use the tragedy as an excuse either for self pity or for over-pampering her granddaughters. She had loved them and spanked them, and along with their prayers taught them her own tested and proven precepts for living.

After Maggie's marriage and Landon's departure for New York, the old house was too big for one small old lady and, when what Rowena grumpily called the "final indignity" of having to walk with a cane overtook her, Eric and Maggie persuaded her to move in with them. The arrangement was singularly without friction. Love, intelligence and mutual respect minimized the often prickly relationships of three generations under one roof.

Actress Joan Crawford Helps Film Star - To - Be

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lucy Marlow, a brown-haired beauty who wants to be a movie star, has the best possible teacher—Joan Crawford.

As a matter of fact, Lucy started out her film career as a "make-believe" movie star. She was the gushy actress who appeared at a premiere in early scenes of "A Star Is Born." Her brief performance made such an impression that she landed a contract at Columbia.

Now she is playing her biggest role thus far in "Queen Bee." She portrays a young girl who idolizes a Southern matron (Crawford). The picture shows Lucy's disillusionment as she discovers her idol is really a wicked woman.

Crawford, who has lasted longer than any star in Hollywood history, is naturally a starlet's ideal. When "Queen Bee" started, Lucy said to the star: "I'm new at this, and you know so much. I wish you would criticize me."

So Joan took Lucy under her wing. It's been quite an education.

"I've learned all kinds of things," the young actress remarked. "She knows everything about lighting. Miss Crawford—she says to call her Joan, but I still can't get used to it—can stand in a whole bunch of lights and know which one of them is not focused correctly."

"I'm amazed at how she makes every minute count. Whenever she isn't busy on the picture, she's handling some business or answering fan mail. She answers every letter herself."

"I've learned a world of things about wardrobe. She went with me to a fitting and showed me things I should know. Like having a low collar in back so the full line of the neck would show. And avoid—"

More Unmasked Advice For President On Asian Crisis

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai Stevenson is the latest to give President Eisenhower unmasked advice on defending the Matsuo and Quemoy islands in the Red Chinese attack.

So far as is publicly known Eisenhower hasn't made up his mind.

But Stevenson, making a 4,000-word broadcast last night, never quite got around to saying flatly the islands should or shouldn't be defended. Matsuo and Quemoy, unlike Formosa 100 miles offshore, are close to the Red China coast.

Stevenson expressed gloom at the thought of getting into war with Red China over Matsuo and Quemoy. But he never directly touched this No. 1 question:

What should the United States do about stopping attack on the islands if it came tomorrow or next week or any time before this country could carry out some of Stevenson's suggestions for making defense of the islands unnecessary?

Stevenson, who won fame as a wit when he ran against Eisenhower for the presidency in 1952, had no light touches in last night's talk, no lively phrasing, no memorable figures of speech.

This country is pledged to defend Formosa, where Chiang Kai-shek has his main Nationalist forces, but not to defend the tiny islands of Quemoy and Matsuo.

Eisenhower's position, as his administration explains it, is to decide if the time comes whether a Red attack on Matsuo and Quemoy would endanger Formosa and therefore require American intervention and war with China.

This lack of decision may puzzle the Reds and make them wary of a move that might end in war with the United States. But it has also puzzled Americans and caused the broadest kind of argument.

Some of Eisenhower's own Republicans, particularly Sen. Knowland of California, want the islands defended. Some of Stevenson's own Democrats don't.

So Eisenhower, before he makes up his mind, is enabled to learn what support he can expect at home and abroad on any decision he makes. This may be the real reason he hasn't made up his mind at least publicly.

What was Stevenson's solution for the Formosa problem? One that might take a long time in doing, too long, perhaps, if the Reds attack in these next few months. He proposed:

This country should try to get its allies and uncommitted nations to declare open opposition to war in the Formosa Strait and "stand with us in defense of Formosa against aggression," pending some final settlement.

Named To Settle 'Cumberland Bill'

RALEIGH (AP)—A 3-member House conference committee has been given the task of settling differences with the Senate on a bill to strip the Cumberland County sheriff of his powers to enforce the criminal laws.

The committee was named last night after the House refused to concur in one of the Senate amendments to the bill. House Speaker Larry Moore named Reps. Wilson Yarborough and I. H. O'Hanlon of Cumberland, who introduced the bill, and Clifton Blue of Moore.

Under the bill, eight deputies would be appointed in Cumberland. Two would serve as court officers and the other six as civil process servers.

Yarborough and O'Hanlon asked the House not to concur in an amendment by Sen. Ray Walton of Brunswick, which would require that the county commissioners pay deputy sheriffs the same salaries as the rural policemen who would take over their criminal enforcement duties.

The House, on motion of Yarborough, approved an amendment by Sen. Arthur Williamson of Columbus to lower the sheriff's bond from $15,000 to $7,500.

A Senate conference committee was expected to be named today to meet with the House committee. Meanwhile, other legislative actions last night included:

1. Rep. J. A. Speight of Bertie, who is opposed to a tobacco tax, came up with another alternative to a tobacco levy last night. He offered a bill which would require that a $5 "privilege tax" be placed on every driving license and chauffeur's license issued for two years, 1956 and 1957. The proposal would bring in an estimated $1/2 million dollars each year. A tobacco tax would yield nearly nine million annually.

2. The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill requiring the Highway Commission to place markers at the beginning and end of speed zones on highways.

3. Another bill passed by the House and sent to the Senate would allow counties to take out liability insurance and to waive to the extent of insurance coverage their governmental immunity from suit for the negligent acts of county employees.

4. After amending it, the House gave approval to a bill stemming from Hurricane Hazel. Fire insurance companies would be required to print restrictive clauses in policies in type no smaller than eight point. This is the same size type as used by many newspapers to print their papers.

Phony Figures Rapped By Mamie Van Doren

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The "perfect 36" is a false and phony way of describing a good figure, says blonde Mamie Van Doren.

Mamie, who measures 37 inches in the bustline and can afford to be unprejudiced, commented yesterday in an interview:

"It's the most dishonest measurement I ever saw. How can a bustline be tabulated that way when more than 60 per cent of the measuring has nothing to do with it?"

She has a point there as the current method of measuring bust lines gives a break to big-boned girls with broad backs. Tiny girls who mistakenly stuff with cotton because they think nature has forgotten would get a break from Mamie (Honest Count) Van Doren.

"With all the talk about bustlines caused by Christian Dior, I shout that now is the time for a change," expounded Mamie.

She objects to the "perfect 36" including the inches of horizontal areas occupied by the sides, shoulder blades and back.

"Marjorie (Ma Kettle) Main has a 42-inch bust and Barbara Rush is a size 34," said Mamie. "That ought to give you an idea about how false these measurements have gotten."

Mamie believes that a more honest measurement would be had if the tape measured flesh area from the serratus anterior across the pectoralis major to the mesosternum. Multiply that answer by two and you have an honest count.

In layman's language, she refers to a tape starter just below the armpit across the bosom to the breastbone, multiplied by two.

Communists Taught Abducted Greek Children For Possible Future 'Use'

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst
KASTORIA, Greece, April 12 (AP)—"Perhaps we would like some caramels," said the Romanian Communist teacher.

The Greek children, sitting on a blanket in the courtyard of a school in Bucharest, chorused eager assent.

"All right," said the teacher. "Why don't you try praying to God for your caramels?"

Under her direction, the children prayed to God. Nothing happened.

"Now," said the teacher, "we shall pray to Lenin for caramels."

The children did as they were told. As if by magic caramels showered on them from the windows of the school.

That was the beginning of Communist indoctrination for this group of children, newly abducted from their homeland during the Greek civil war of 1946.

They were driven or fled voluntarily across the borders in the civil war. Of these, about 28,000 by official Greek estimate were children. In virtually all cases, children were separated from parents and placed in special schools for training.

Some were chosen for specialized indoctrination. Others got harsh treatment.

Athena Koranis, now 17, was one who did not get the special treatment. She arrived back in her native Greece last December and still lives in one of two abandoned schoolhouses in Kastoria.

As many as 15 or 20 repatriates may be housed in a single schoolroom, sleeping in shifts.

Her eyes blazing, Athena said she was taken first to Albania, then to Romania, where the Communists placed her in a school set aside for certain of the Greek children.

"I remember when Stalin died," she recalled bitterly. "All the children in my class were lined up and ordered to cry."

"Did they teach the children to watch one another and report on one another?" I asked through an interpreter.

The girl jumped up excitedly. "Oh, yes they did they did they did!"

She went on pouring out the story of how children were taught to ridicule any of their number who sulked or believed in God.

The children were told America was a place of slaves, where the workers were beaten and tortured. They were told if they went back to Greece they would be beaten and tortured by the "Monarcho-Fascists in the pay of the Americans."

But harsh treatment was the exception rather than the rule. As the children learned to use modern tools and work at modern jobs, they were subjected to endless "political enlightenment" tied in with the idea that only in a Communist country could they hope to achieve a full life.

In many cases, this indoctrination was effective. Infused gradually back into the Greek body politic, even a small number of indoctrinated and convinced repatriates could represent an internal threat.

Many Greek officials are seriously concerned. Steps are already being taken to counteract the Red propaganda among the young. The Queen's Schools, operated under auspices of the Queen's Fund, are available for the task.

But of the 1,300 children thus far returned, only 280 are enrolled. They cannot be forced into the schools, because of a condition that the repatriates must be returned to the areas of their origin.

Thus far, houses have been built for 330 repatriated families. Plans are under way to build homes for 550 more, in Epirus and the Kastoria area, the regions hardest hit by the civil war exodus.

Credits are to be extended these families to buy agricultural materials and implements.

But there are big personal problems involved. Many of those repatriated to date are alone, without their families. Some families are only partly reunited.

Many have had a long taste of city life abroad and resent being sent back to live in villages.

Greeks are still pondering the Communist crime and its implications. Why were the Greek children kidnaped in the first place?

Two explanations are offered: The Communists may have wanted hostages for blackmail purposes in the future. Or they may have been thinking in terms of preparing a future guerrilla fifth column.

Greeks recall the words of the Old Bolsheviks of Russia: "Give us a child of 10 and we will make of him such a Communist that nothing on earth will change."

It should dry in three to four hours, although it may take a couple of weeks or so to set perfectly hard."

"An alkyd paint, made with a synthetic resin instead of linseed oil, is no better than a good oil-base finish but is certainly superior to a poorly formulated flat oil finish. It dries in about two hours and sets to a hard finish in a week or two."

"Both types dry fast in hot weather, slow on cold or damp days. Rubber-base finishes have a slight advantage in that they flow on the wall more easily than other paints and can be thinned with water. Brushes and equipment can be cleaned with water instead of turpentine or other solvents. Although rubber-base paints dry in about 20 minutes, they take 30 days to cure completely and it is not advisable to wash them or hit them with furniture before that time."

Preparation of surfaces is the same for any paint. Cracks and other damages should be repaired. Roughness should be sanded smooth. Dirt or soot should be thoroughly wiped off with a clean rag or dry mop and any grease must be washed off with a good detergent.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Prison Bureau said today 82 civilian criminals were executed last year—20 more than in 1953. Ten were teen-agers.

Although the 1954 total was much higher than the previous year, the report continued to reflect a much smaller use of the death penalty than was the case a few years ago.

Prison Director James V. Bennett noted that in each of the last five years, there were fewer executions than in any year between 1930 and 1949; that "during these recent five years an average of 83 persons per year were executed, whereas during the previous 20 years the number per year averaged 147."

Five states accounted for 45 of the 82 executions: Georgia with 12, California and Texas with 9 each, New York with 8, and Florida with 7. North Carolina went through its first year without an execution in a quarter-century.

PASADENA (AP)—It came as no surprise, but the offer of Ted Smith, a Pasadena civil defense director, to become a guinea pig for an atomic bomb shelter test, has been turned down.

Smith, a former police lieutenant, had offered to test a civil defense bomb shelter for the April 26 atomic blast at the Nevada Proving Grounds.

"We are unable to accept your offer because it came too late," wrote Stanley Pierson, state civil defense director. Sources close to the Atomic Energy Commission said that organization frowned on any human testing of the radiation effects of the blast.

More Executed In U.S. Last Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Prison Bureau said today 82 civilian criminals were executed last year—20 more than in 1953. Ten were teen-agers.

ON THE HOUSE

Do-it-yourself handymen — and women—use so much paint in today's race for keeping homes up-to-date that it is hard for some people to believe that amateurs buy three-fourths of all the paint being manufactured.

In spite of all the paint used by industry, such as automobiles and furniture and toys, and in spite of all the new homes that are built each year and painted by professionals, the do-it-yourself man is still customer No. 1 for the paint makers.

One of the biggest reasons for this may be the number of special paints that have been invented. You can get paints capable of standing high temperatures on stoves and radiators, hard wearing deck enamels for floors, dampness defying cement paints for basement walls, paints that flow on without showing brush marks and odorless paints of almost all kinds.

Recently a new liquid porcelain enamel for washing machines, dryers, refrigerators and other home appliances was announced in 16 colors, making it easy for the handy housewife to dress up drab and worn fixtures of that type and make them match her decorating scheme.

The right paint for the right surface has suddenly become very important. Where is it best to use an oil-base, and alkyd or a rubber-base paint? All three of those types in flat paint for walls will dry to approximately the same finish, but there are various individual differences to consider when you make a selection.

You'd think that most people would say "Paint's paint; let's go," and wouldn't care to master such technicalities as oil vs alkyd vs rubber. We thought so until we asked an authority, Douglas C. Arnold. He differed with us.

"Everybody respects rules," he said. "There are rules for baseball, for bridge, for painting. Tell anybody the right way and they'll play the game for their good. As head of one of the oldest paint making organizations (Keystone Paint & Varnish), he ought to know paint rules."

Nothing dreamier at any price
