Some Cities Starting Big Task Next Week

Polio Vaccinations Pushed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Doctors and health officials in communities across the nation, cheered by success of the Salk vaccine, today turned to the huge task of inoculating millions of children against polio.

estimates indicated that only rarely would more than a week be required to administer each shot in the series. There was no nationwide figure on the exact number of children who will receive the protective shots this year but the final count will be in the tens of millions.

by a booster seven months later, produced a mixed reaction among local health officials. Medical meetings were called to consider the new shot schedule and its effects on the program.

N. C. Spokesman Warns Of Blow To Schools Gives Court Gloomy View

WASHINGTON (AP)—If the U. S. Supreme Court should order "forthwith" integration of white and Negro school children, "the probability is that it would be a death blow" to North Carolina's public school system, the court was told yesterday.

the children of the white and Negro races in the schools," Lake said. The attitude arises from the knowledge that the issue is "grave" and "nothing should be done to upset a school system which is working so well."

children today than any other state "and she is educating them well." This policy rather than being "an eleven-hour attempt to avert the decision of last May," is the result "of over a century of devotion to public education" and reliance on the court's previous doctrine of "separate but equal" facilities, Lake said.

Big Snow Cuts Off New Mexico Town

CLAYTON, N. M. (AP)—Snow carried on brisk winds was piled on highways up to eight feet deep here today, isolating the town and stranding hundreds of motorists.

drifts for about 10 miles. Snow in the Clayton-Raton area was piled to 10 inches deep with drifts closing all highways up to 7 and 8 feet, the Clayton police dispatcher, Wayne Curry, said.

During the current fiscal year, the committee said, approximately 65,000 bankruptcy cases will be filed, with an increase to 70,000 expected next year.

U. S. Success Has Spurred Others In Combatting Polio

LONDON (AP)—Spurred by American success with the Salk vaccine, governments from Africa's southern tip to Canada's arctic reaches made plans today to shift their antipolio campaign into high gear.

regarding inoculation." Danish health authorities planned to begin free vaccination before May 1 of all children between the ages of 7 and 12 whose parents give permission. The Danish government has set aside almost $300,000 for the project, which will use a vaccine developed by scientists who studied the Salk method in the United States.

Record Number Of Bankruptcies Are Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee said today the coming fiscal year may see the "highest number of bankruptcies recorded in the history of the country."

Dixie Governors May Talk Strike

ATLANTA (AP)—The Southern Bell Telephone Co. has dismissed its strikers in the wake of more incidents of violence and a proposal for a conference of Southern governors to seek a solution to the 31-day walkout is receiving further attention.

erson, a private photographer, were hit by egg-throwing from an angry crowd of about 65 persons. The episode came when Robertson attempted to take pictures of the crowd which assembled outside the phone company building at a change of shifts.

It made the observation, without elaboration, in sending to the House a $450,398,227 appropriations bill to finance the State Department, the Justice Department, the federal judiciary and the U. S. Information Agency for the book-keeping year starting July 1.

Telephone exchanges at Jellico, La Fayette and Maryville in Tennessee were reported still closed as Southern Bell's Tennessee manager, L. E. Sheffey, announced that the strikers had been discharged because of misconduct and violence.

Atheneum Club Holds Spring Meet In Wilson

The Atheneum Book Club met in Wilson April 12 with Mrs. Foster Young at her beautiful colonial home on Nash Street.

At one o'clock, club members and guests were served a delicious two course luncheon. Beautiful arrangements of flowers suggestive of the Easter season were used throughout the home.

Mrs. Young introduced her speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. Russell Thompson Jr., who presented "The Books of First, Second, and Third John and Jude," this being further study of the New Testament this year. Mrs. Thompson proved a charming and interesting speaker with natural delivery. This club feels deeply grateful for having the opportunity to hear a young vivacious student of the Bible.

After the program a business meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Owen Marshburn, who asked for reports of various committees she had appointed at an earlier date. Mrs. Julian White, chairman of the Nominating Committee, presented a slate of officers for next year, consisting of Mrs. Reid Perkins, president; Mrs. E. M. Crisp, vice-president; Mrs. C. H. Edwards, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. K. B. Pace, librarian.

A motion was made and carried to contribute five dollars for the showing of a film in color during Fine Arts Festival Week. The club also voted to donate five dollars to the annual Cancer Fund Drive.

There being no further business books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned with each guest present reluctant to leave this happy and joyous occasion of being entertained in this hospitable Southern home on beautiful Nash Street in Wilson.

Mrs. Young had as guests from Wilson Mrs. Russell Thompson Jr., Mrs. James T. McCrow, Mrs. Joe Davis, Mrs. Robert Bradshaw, Mrs. Cecil Dixon and Mrs. Hayward Edmundson.

Funeral Thursday For Mrs. Charlie Little

Mrs. Maggie Little, 88, wife of Charlie G. Little, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville Wednesday morning at 3:15 o'clock after seven weeks of illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by her pastor, the Rev. J. B. Narron. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Little, daughter of the late John A. and Margaret Nobles Moore, spent all her life in the Stokes community. She was a member of Sweet Gum Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Stokes. She was an honorary member of the Sweet Gum Grove Ladies Auxiliary, and the Maggie Little Circle of the Auxiliary was named in her honor. She was first married to John Everett of Martin County and he died in 1892. On April 19, 1896, she was married to Mr. Little, who survives.

Also surviving are a daughter by her first marriage, Mrs. B. C. Savage of Greenville; three daughters by her second marriage, Mrs. Howard Barnhill of Greenville, and Mrs. Roy Worthington and Mrs. L. S. Brown of Stokes; 12 grandchildren; and 22 great grandchildren.

Junior Woman's Club Makes Plans For Annual Bread Sale

The Junior Woman's Club held its business meeting on April 6 at the Woman's Club House. The president, Mrs. T. E. Jones, presided.

Plans were made for the convention to be held in Greensboro April 26, 27 and 28. Those planning to attend are Mrs. James Davenport, Mrs. Tom Vicars and Mrs. R. D. Harrington Jr.

The club discussed further plans for sending a Girl Scout to camp. It was voted not only to finance camp fees but also to add $10.00 for help on a camp wardrobe for the Scout.

Mrs. Jones announced that Mrs. Mac Stocks has accepted the nomination of 2nd vice president for the coming year.

Mrs. R. D. Harrington Jr. briefly outlined plans for the annual bread sale. It will be held during the first part of May and proceeds will go to the Watson Memorial Fund.

The club voted to buy a silver tea pot to give to the Senior Club. This will complete the silver service started some years ago by the Junior Woman's Club.

The corresponding secretary reported she had written a letter to our Representative, as requested by the club asking for support of the bill to increase the minimum wage law.

The club asked her to write a letter supporting House Bill 132 to regulate the handling, sale and distribution of barbiturates and drugs.

Mrs. Tom Vicars has completed arrangements for a road sign with the Junior Woman's Club name and date of meeting. The club asked her to place it in agreement with the city on the Kinston Highway entering Greenville.

After the meeting was adjourned, Mrs. Bill Williams served refreshments using the Easter motif.

Ex-King Farouk Has No Luck In Finding A Job

ROME (AP)—Ex-King Farouk of Egypt needs a job and is having no luck finding one, the Italian magazine Tempo reports.

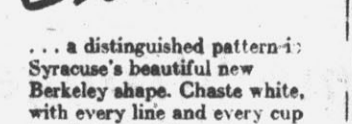

In an interview with the deposed monarch, who has been living lavishly in exile, the magazine's current issue quotes him as saying: "I was never personally rich. The men of the revolution confiscated all my private property."

"My situation is critical. I must go to work to live."

Farouk's first try at getting employment, interviewer Lello Bersani wrote, was with a big industrialist who turned him down.

The ex-king's only sign of re-entrenchment so far has been to give up his suburban villa and move into an apartment in Rome. He still travels the night club circuit in kingly style.

About 47 per cent of U.S. fruits and vegetables move to market by truck.

Belvoir Club To Enter Contest

BELVOIR — Local Home Demonstration club members voted to enter the Pitt County Progress program contest to be sponsored by Greenville Farmer's Day, Inc. and directed through the county Home Demonstration clubs.

This decision was made when the April club meeting was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. C. D. Clark. Sixteen members and one visitor were present.

Mrs. D.M. Hollowell presided over the meeting, and Mrs. R.F. Clark gave the devotional.

A report on home dairying was given by Mrs. Pete Brown, who offered several recipes for using dairy products.

Club clothing leader, Mrs. J.T. Dupree, urged the members to make a garment to model at the annual Home Demonstration fashion show to be presented May 5. In connection with the fashion show an international relations program will be held during which the Belvoir club will give a three-minute skit on New Zealand.

Club members were also asked to attend the district federation meeting in Saratoga tomorrow.

Demonstration for the month was given by Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, assistant Home agent, on roadside development. To illustrate her talk, Mrs. Johnson showed colored slides.

At the conclusion of the business session, a social hour was enjoyed, and the hostesses, Mrs. C.D. Clark and Mrs. R.V. Jones served refreshments.

Panicked, Put Corpse In Lake

NORWICH, Conn. (AP)—A Superior Court judge has fined a woman who dragged the body of a man over seven miles of road on the end of her car and threw it into a lake.

Mrs. Annie Sudd, 50, of Willimantic, said she did it in a state of panic after the man dropped dead in her summer home Feb. 17.

Judge Samuel J. Mellitt fined her $1,000 and imposed a three-month suspended sentence yesterday. She pleaded guilty to charges of failure to notify the medical examiner of a sudden death and unlawful removal of a dead body.

Mrs. Sudd told the court Harry Strosberg, 59-year-old building contractor whom she backed in several business transactions, died of a heart attack in her East Lyme summer home.

She panicked when she saw him dead, she said, and dragged the body out of the house. She tied it to the rear bumper of her car and towed it over seven miles of lonely roads to a small lake.

The body was found the next day at the end of a bloody trail that led to the lake.

Mrs. Sudd's lawyer said she was "a very highly respected citizen of Willimantic" and that she disposed of the body "because she had become panic stricken."

Actor Barry Sullivan Is Keeping Busy Schedule

HOLLYWOOD — It's lucky that Barry Sullivan isn't allergic to work. Because he's getting more than his share these days. Sullivan spends his days at Columbia Studios in "Queen Bee." His nights are devoted to acting in "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" at the Huntington Hartford Theater in Hollywood. When does he find time to sleep? That's a good question. The actor, looking none the worse for his grueling schedule, describes his current life during a brief rest on the movie set. "The day starts at 6:30 in the morning," he related. "I have to be at the studio early because they must apply a scar to my face for this role. I work all day, then at 6 o'clock grab a steak at the Brown Derby. I live in Beverly Hills, but I can't spare the half hour it takes to drive home and back to Hollywood. Especially with the traffic at that hour. "The show's over at 11:15, but I can't just rush home. People come backstage to chat. I though that would be all over after opening night. But every night is like opening night. For instance, the other night there were Fred MacMurray, Bob Stack, Lenore Coffee, the writer, and several others. I thought everyone from Hollywood had seen the show in New York." What with changing from his costume and greeting the well-wishers, Barry is lucky to get home by midnight. Then he must arise at 6:30 again. "I've been thinking of taking a hotel room in Hollywood," he said. "That would save a half hour of traveling time. But I gave the idea up." His contract with Columbia is unusual. It provides that he must be free from film duties on Wednesday and Saturday, when he plays matinee at the Hartford. John Hodiak, who enacts the lead, a mutineer in the play, has a similar deal with MGM, where he is making "Trial." These are the only instances within memory when stars have done movies and plays here simultaneously.

Pactolus Ruritan Hears Pastor

PACTOLUS — At the Pactolus Ruritan Club's supper meeting last Monday night, Rev. W. M. Howard, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, was the speaker. He discussed the progress of rural churches during the last century and their influence on home life. Chicod Ruritan Club's Jimmy Edwards announced the county-wide "ladies night" banquet to be held at Chicod High School on May 6. Ruritan Lester Simmons reported to the club that a committee had contacted the N. C. State Utilities Commission concerning running of a telephone line from the Greenville telephone exchange to Pactolus. Ruritan D. R. House Jr. reported that the Bobby Williams Show was a success. Proceeds will be allotted to a scholarship fund for a Pactolus boy or girl at East Carolina College. The Silent Flame Jamboree will appear in concert at Pactolus School April 29.

President Roy Tripp, who presided, announced that the Pactolus Ruritan Club members will attend Parker's Chapel Church in a body on April 23. Rev. Bob MacKenzie and Jimmy Edwards of the Chicod Ruritan Club were guests. The safety pin was patented in the United States in 1849. QUICKLY CAUGHT PRINCETON, Ind. (U-P)—A young man robbed the Haubstadt State Bank of $10,361. During the holdup an employe slipped out and initiated an alert at the telephone exchange next door. Armed citizens gathered quickly and captured the robber. Identified as Marshall Nolan, Nevada, Mo., three blocks from the bank.

Ayden Rotarians Hear Scouter Discuss Program

AYDEN — At the Ayden Rotary Club's supper meeting last Friday, Assistant Scoutmaster Ed Gagnon talked about Boy Scout work and plans for the Summer Camporee at Washington April 21-24. Troop 34 now has 33 members in four patrols. Gagnon thanked Harry Stillman for allowing the Boy Scouts use of many acres of woodland on Contentnea Creek, near Camp Contentment. Rotarian Wilbur Ormond won the "on time" prize; Grady Dixon and Corey Stokes, the "fellowship" prize. The club elected Harry Stillman a delegate to the Rotary International convention in Chicago. Assistant Scoutmaster Ed Gagnon invited the Rotarians and others to attend the "Parents' Night" program to be held around an open campfire near the Ayden cannery next Saturday night at 7:30. McKay Johnson and Sam McKnight were guests of the club.

Home Rule Has Rough Sledding

By LYNN NISBET RALEIGH — The House of Representatives gave a good demonstration Monday night of why it is so difficult to get enacted into law the "home rule" bills to relieve the General Assembly of the burden of so much local legislation. Under discussion was the bill to permit county commissioners to buy casualty insurance on buildings and vehicles owned and operated by the county, so that persons suffering injury or property damage could recover for at least part of the loss. In such cases the county would waive its immunity from liability only to the extent of the insurance coverage. Reps. Messrs. Hairston of Davie and Roger Kiser of Scotland asked to have their counties exempted from the act. It was explained that it is only permissive, and does not require the commissioners to carry the insurance. "That's just the point," exclaimed Kiser of Scotland. "I don't want my county commissioners to have a chance to do anything about it." Of the 90-odd representatives present about 25 voted for the amendments exempting the two counties, and about 10 voted against. The other 60 or so did not vote. The bill as amended passed its third reading in the House and went to the Senate for final action. If it is passed there as it left the House, the commissioners of 98 counties can protect their citizens against loss incurred by reason of unsafe buildings or vehicles. Legislative courtesy, although with evident reluctance, permitted Messrs. Hairston and Kiser to prevent chance of recovery by Davie and Scotland residents on the same basis as those of the other counties. On the theory of governmental sovereignty and "the sovereign can do no wrong" damage suits cannot be brought against government units without their consent. And legislative courtesy permits one representative to outvote three or five commissioners elected by the same people.

Bid-Letting To Include Bridge

A new Tar River bridge in Pitt County will be among 22 projects let by the State Highway Commission on April 26. The bridge will be a link in a county road running between N.C. 43 and Bell's Cross Roads. Also to be let on April 26 will be a project calling for the re-surfacing of Dickinson Avenue in Greenville from Greene Street to the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad crossing. In Ayden N.C. 11 will be re-surfaced from the intersection of Power Street to the end of existing curb and gutter on the highway. Some 3.9 miles of county road will be paved from a point southwest of Winterville north to the intersection of U.S. 264.

UNAWARE OF FIRE

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (U-P)—Two fliers saw the roof of a house ablaze near the airfield here and landed to turn in the alarm. They found the owner of the house, Thomas Cobby, sitting placidly in the living room unaware the house was burning. The fliers, Clevie Costley and Francis Einarson, aided firemen and Cobby in putting out the fire, which did $600 damage. Death Blow To The Death-Dealer

A great medical and scientific milestone has been reached. Death-dealing polio has itself been dealt its fatal blow after years of research and experimentation by a group of devoted men.

The people of the United States should give thanks for the perfection of the new and potent Salk vaccine which in a few years will reduce the devastating disease to a rank comparable with that of typhoid, diphtheria and smallpox. Once great killers, they have been forced far down the list of fatal diseases by advances of medical science.

Citizens of the United States who have seen the killing and crippling polio ravage its youngsters and adults for the past several decades gave a huge sigh of relief as the announcement was made Tuesday that the new Salk vaccine proved 80 to 90 per cent effective in widespread tests last year.

What does it mean?

It means the virtual elimination of the dreaded infantile paralysis as acripper and a killer. But that will take time. Polio will continue to cripple victims for years to come. It will continue to be fatal in some cases—but not nearly as many as we have seen in recent years. It means the scourge of polio eventually will be wiped out.

Locally, it means some 3,600 Pitt County first and second graders this year will receive without charge the new vaccine. In years to come, as more of the vaccine becomes available, practically every child and adult will be immunized from the disease.

The new vaccine, which gradually will be improved, will mean millions upon millions of dollars which have gone to pay for treatment of polio victims in time can be converted to other uses. Millions will still be required for research in fighting polio, but the more progress we make in the battle against this disease, the less money will be required for the program.

Polio has been licked! For that we should be thankful.

An Interesting Split On A Pitt Bill

Mounting opposition makes it extremely unlikely that Pitt County will be included under the general statute which requires the name of the person who prepares a legal document be written on the outside sheet of the document before it can be recorded in the office of the Clerk of Court.

The Reflector already has voiced its opposition to this bill introduced by Rep. S. O. Worthington. The County Commissioners have adopted a resolution opposing the measure, the Greenville Chamber of Commerce has protested its passage, and other opposition has been registered with Pitt's members of the General Assembly.

In spite of the fact that Rep. Worthington introduced the bill, Rep. Walter Jones, Pitt's other member of the House, has asserted he will vote against it in accordance with the opposition he has heard. It is likewise our guess that Sen. Paul Jones of Pitt will oppose the measure if it gets to the Senate.

Based on our assumption that Pitt's two members of the House will be on opposite sides when the local bill comes to a vote, and also our assumption that Pitt's Senator will oppose the measure if it gets to the Senate, The Reflector sees little chance for the bill to be enacted.

Strength for the Day

SHOULD WE GIVE CONSCIENCE A VACATION?
A young man who had been a participant in World War II and who is now doing a useful piece of work in his community, especially among young people, recently made the observation in a public address that the 24-hour-pass prevalent in military circles during the war, has carried over into peacetime life and is exercising a bad influence. In the military, men got into the habit of that 24 hours of relaxation in which all discipline was cast aside. Now it has become a habit with many of them to look forward to such periods of relaxation and letdown. The speaker declared that a great many moral situations we complain about in present-day life are the hang-over of the 24-hour pass psychology and its operation in peacetime social life.

No one can deny the necessity for physical and mental relaxation. Without such relaxation we would soon break down. The heart is a good example of this need. It rests between beats, and the result is that it keeps up its work unceasingly through the whole of one's life.

But although the heart rests, it does not suspend its function. If it stopped for a moment behaving as a heart, we would die. Should we therefore relax our moral standards once in a while to give ourselves a rest from tension?

Relaxation is necessary, and particularly in the fields of the physical and the mental, but relaxation is neither necessary nor desirable in the moral realm. Here we have to stand pat all the time, whether we want to or not. The conscience cannot afford to take a vacation, even for a split second.

The Santee-Cooper Blow-Up

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—A major New Deal experiment in cheap public power and rural electrification has exploded in the faces of unannoyed Eisenhower Administrators. It is a problem based on faulty promises, economics and politics, and it does not stand alone. The dilemma confronting consistent Anchor Nelson, Rural Electrification Administrator, involves the Santee-Cooper waterpower project in South Carolina and the 350 miles of lines that carry its electricity to 80,000 farmers.

It results from the fact that the Central Electric Power Co-operative, which built these lines with a $13,600,000 loan from REA, cannot meet its payments to Uncle Sam without a raise in rates which the farmer cannot pay.

SOLUTION PERPLEXING—The practical and businesslike solution for private business and industry would be for the two public agencies involved to base their rate schedules on prices which would enable them to return a profit and to remain solvent. But that would repudiate Roosevelt-Truman pledges that their public power program would light up the countryside at bargain prices.

It would wreck an honest investment in equipment which rural consumers have made in good faith. Finally, farmers are voters—80,000 of them in this instance. He does not feel that he can let them down, even though he is not responsible for their current difficulties.

The Santee-Cooper hydroelectric project was one of Harold L. Ickes' favorite schemes, for he wanted to disprove charges that only the Far West was benefiting from his public power theories. He advanced FWA funds to finance the undertaking, which harnesses the waters of the Santee and Cooper Rivers above Charleston.

COMPLICATED FINANCES—South Carolina created a State Authority to operate the plant, and will eventually own it, although it still owes about $29,000,000 to the Federal government and $15,000,000 to Wall Street bankers. In a complicated arrangement, the Authority leases the Central Co-op's lines for transmission of power. The Authority's payments to the Co-op are supposed to enable the latter body to pay off its borrowings from REA.

When the Authority recently encountered financial difficulties, which are now being investigated by a South Carolina Legislative committee, it notified the Co-op that it would have to charge 7.2 mills instead of 6 mills per kilowatt hour. Since this would be a grave hardship to the Co-op's members, with many unable to pay the increase, the Co-op turned to Administrator Nelson.

After prolonged negotiations which still are not concluded, the Co-op has asked Nelson if he would grant a three-year moratorium on repayment of its loans to REA. If granted this moratorium, the Authority and the Co-op believe that they can keep the cost of electricity to the farmers at 6 1/2 instead of 7.2 mills, an increase of only four-tenths of a mill.

DESIGN OR ACCIDENT?—Administrator Nelson will—must, he feels—reluctantly consent, although he insists on terms that will protect his $13,600,000 in loans to the Co-op.

Whether the revision will enable the Authority to pay off its obligations to the government is not his affair. Another Federal agency—General Services Administration—has the responsibility for collecting the $29,000,000 owed to Uncle Sam by the State Authority.

By design or accident, New Deal sponsors of this project arranged that the repayment crisis would fall on non-Truman time. Although the REA loan is dated January 1, 1950, it was stipulated that the Co-op's first $209,000 payment should not fall due until January 1, 1955. The three-year deferral begins with this payment.

It is interesting to note that in all these instances, with possible exception of the Scott-Coltrane episode, the Governor and the Budget Bureau copped all the honors of victory—as they are almost certain to do now. The Scott-Coltrane issue was entirely within the budgetary set-up and can be written off as a dog-fall, although the assistant director came out ahead because of

Somebody Told Me

Who's Back From Germany?

Who is the Greenville serviceman who recently returned here for a 30-day leave with his German bride? If I knew, I possibly could contact them with Germany via short wave radio. Recently I have talked to Germany almost every day during the lunch hour.

That also applies to any Greenville parents who might have sons in Germany. Call me at 3440 day-time or 4859 during the evening and give me the name and address. The telephone number is important if you can get it.

The obstacle is simply this: Ninety per cent of the time the people at one end or the other cannot be reached by phone. Many times radio conditions change before they can be located, so timing is important. It's still fun to try, so give me the information.

Quite often the radio and television executives get at each other's throats. Recently CBS-TV has taken the U. S. Steel Hour away from ABC and in turn ABC has taken the Wednesday night fights. So what does that mean to us as viewers? Normally, nothing.

But to extend the fight further, the two shows have been scheduled for the same hour, in competition with each other. Which will WNCN choose? That's a good question, for which I do not have the answer.

Like everybody else, I get tired of the same old, same old. But the announcement in last night's Reflector to the effect that the polio vaccine is effective makes them all worthwhile.

Now the cancer drive is underway. With one out of seven of us devoted to have cancer, this is another disease that we must lick through research. And of course research takes money. When you are solicited, be selfish. Consider that it might be you who's hit by this disease and then give generously.

Yesterday morning Greenville phones were particularly busy. People were calling each other up, disguising their voices and ordering each other to appear for hearings relative to chain letters. Joking? That's what they were intended to be doing. But who knows how far the Government will go with the chain letter probe?

And I thank you.

CHOKE, GURGLE AND SOB
(The Choke Note)

The word is out and it's official: Singing is passe in U.S. show business. You just can't make a living off your larynx with a simple do-re-mi approach any more.

A wiggle, a dimple or a plunging neckline isn't enough either. "To be a singer," says a New York music publishing house, "you need to have a new sound."

The firm promptly documents this artistic advice with a quote from Phil Moore, noted vocal coach who has groomed many a canary for a glided cage. Says he: "Bend a note, hold it too long fall off it, slur it, grind your teeth, sob smart, plead, whisper—do anything—but don't be perfect!"

Flick on the television set or your radio and note how fast the Moore method is catching on. It's frightening. Take the youngster on a leading video variety show the other night, who was bawling out "You'll Never Walk Alone" at the top of his lungs. In the last few bars he all but strangled. "Never" came out, with compelling urgency, "oh-be-he-heh!"

Of course, he was only accomplishing what Mr. Moore advocates—"the new sound." The choke.

In fact, the choke fits nicely into Mr. Moore's category of "PERSONALITIES." The contestant specifies a good many things the Governor can do and cannot do, but most of his duties are assigned by statute. Certainly that is true with respect to peculiar language in the state. And in every case the Governor gained political prestige out of the controversy.

CONSTITUTION—The Governor and the Auditor are both constitutional officers, elected by all the people of North Carolina, at the same time and for the same tenure in office. The constitution specifies a good many things the Governor can do and cannot do, but most of his duties are assigned by statute. Certainly that is true with respect to the current squabble arises out of legislative proposal to transfer to the Director of the Budget some activities heretofore assigned to the State Auditor. The Auditor protests such a transfer is infringement upon his constitutional prerogatives. Since the functions at issue are wholly statutory and not constitutional, many legislators cannot understand why transfer from one constitutional officer to another violates inherent rights of either.

There is pending a bill to establish a new statutory office of Comptroller, to which would be delegated many of the duties now performed by the Budget Bureau. The plan has good chance of adoption, despite Governor Hodges' luke warm attitude, because one of the main reasons that some legislators object to the transfer of duties from the Auditor's office is the fear that one man, with combined constitutional powers as Governor and statutory authority as Director of the Budget might become a dictator. North Carolinians very definitely do not want that.

At the same time, it becomes

The hiccup, too, has taken a proud place among the new sounds. A sister team, by artificially inducing a spasmodic inspiration of air through closure of the glottis, has made "No More" come out something like "Nuh-oh Muh-oh." A disconcerting effect, if we've ever heard one.

This is virtually no great thing, to what can be accomplished. Dozens of "new sounds" are just itching to be discovered. Take the snort, for instance. And the snore—just the thing for Brahms' "Lullaby." And the squeak and the growl, and the grunt and the groan. Even the burp.

One of these days, some alert and enterprising young fellow will purposely step on a pin cushion and transcribe his oral reaction into song.

He'll make a fortune.

Fears Over Housing

By ELMER ROESSNER
There has been considerable uneasiness here and in Washington over the continuation of the housing boom. New housing units are being slapped together—oops! constructed—at a rate of well over a million a year, while formation of new family units has slipped to around 600,000 annually.

That, to anyone who can count his own toes, seems to add up to trouble. Ten new homes or apartments for every five new families looks like a lot of vacancies and no sales. Bankers are talking about "greater selectivity of risks" and officers of the United States Savings and Loan Association are urging "a re-examination of the Federal government's housing policies to prevent possible overbuilding and a decline in real estate values."

Home J. Livingston, president of the National Housing Association, thundered that "it does not seem reasonable that we can forever continue building housing units annually at a rate of 800,000 in excess of the number of new households formed."

It would be serious if it weren't for some extraneous factors. Such as:
The destruction of between 40,000 and 70,000 dwelling units a year by fires, floods and other catastrophes.

The demolition of an uncounted number of homes for highways, slum clearances parking lots, condemnations under housing laws and factories.

The stork. The beatific buzzard keeps affecting housing. The marriage rate may be dropping but the birth rate isn't. People with two-bedroom houses keep finding themselves—for reasons not entirely related with three, four, five and more youngsters of various ages. So they need more housing.

There are other factors. People move from farms to cities, from relatives' attics to bungalows at Siltsonswamps and from Portland, Me. to Portland, Ore. And a vacancy in the former city is no darned good to a family in the latter.

Sure, someday new housing will catch up with demand. But it may not happen as suddenly as some experts fear.

HOTEL OCCUPANCY DOWN, BUT NOT PROFITS
Hotel occupancy was off last year. A survey of 100 hotels by Horwath and Horwath, accountants, showed that occupancy averaged 74 per cent, with three, with 77 per cent in 1953. However, the average rate per occupied room rose from $6.28 in 1953 to $6.39 in 1954 and that, plus lower taxes, made net incomes about the same as in 1953.

BANK CHECKS, ALSO, CAN BE BEAUTIFUL
The world's first six-color bank checks are now being used by United States National of San Diego, Calif. The checks, designed by John Wenrich and produced by Todd Co. depict the discovery of San Diego by Juan Cabrillo in 1542 in shades of red, gray, gold, green, mauve and blue.

So far, no creditors have framed the checks instead of cashing them.

Egyptian Turning To New Ways

By HAL BOYLE
CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Egypt is in transition, proud of its mighty past but anxious to cure its old poverty by turning to new ways.

Abraham Noman is as good a human symbol as any of the slow changes that are bringing fresh hope of better times for this ancient land.

Abraham is a 6-foot, 195-pound, 29-year-old bedouin, whose fierce ancestors once roamed the desert.

Some bedouins, a proud and independent people, still roam the desert and live in tents. Others have compromised with civilization and come to town to live. Abraham is a town bedouin.

"My great grandfather was the last in the family to live in a tent," he said. "The desert bedouins have no education. They are ignorant."

Abraham Noman's family has done pretty well, all things considered, since coming to town. Abraham himself is a servant in famous Mena House, an old-fashioned sprawling hotel near the pyramids at Giza.

Most of those whose needs Abraham tends are tourists and many of them have been famous. They often laugh and make jokes when they first see Abraham. He does look odd to them, like a figure out of the Arabian Nights.

Abraham patiently smiles through their laughter. He probably thinks tourists look odd, too, but he is too polite and gentle to show it. He likes tourists because he can learn from them.

"I had but nine years of schooling," he said, "and whenever I hear a new word I like to find out what it means."

Abraham waited on a number of us who came here on a preview flight by Trans World Airlines of its new Super Constellation. He turned out to be about our best friend in Egypt. Sometimes you can learn as much about real life in a strange country from the guy who presses your pants as you can from one of its politicians.

All of us who jested among ourselves at Abraham on sight, came to admire him for his kindness, his dependability in doing his duty, his intelligence, and his complete sense of personal dignity.

Abraham Noman doesn't know where his last name comes from, but thinks it probably was facetiously given to one of his ancestors a few generations back by a British officer. In any case, he now likes it.

Here is Abraham's self-portrait in his own words:
"My father and I lived the same. But my father lives better than his father did."
"There are nine of us in my family—my father and mother, my wife and myself, my one brother, our three children and a servant. The servant is a boy of 12 who does the marketing. He is a poor boy with out a family. We took him with us because he had no one to play with. We pay him a small amount each month."
"My father was a dragoman, an interpreter. I earn 120 pounds a year (about $344)."
"But we have bought a house with nine rooms. My father and mother come first in my life. They will until my last day. "Without them I would never know life."
"In some homes the man does first what his wife says, before his father and his mother. I think that is bad."
"Yes I am happy living in Egypt. It is my luck to be a servant. I cannot turn it back. I do not get angry with other others. When I feel sorry, I pray to the gods."
"But I want my children to be better than me."
"My children are all right. They are good. I hope they go to school for a long time and grow up to be judges or army officers. I would prefer them to be officers—but only if there are no more wars."
Abraham Noman said he thought life in Egypt was getting better for people in his position. When I asked him if he had a grudge against this world, he spread his big palms wide, smiled, and said:
"I am content in myself. What now may I do for you?"

Represent Pitt At TB Meet In Durham Thursday

Among the 200 Tar Heels expected to gather in Durham tomorrow for the two-day 49th annual meeting of the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association and the eighth annual meeting of the North Carolina Truicide Society will be Dr. G. G. Dixon of Ayden and Miss Tabitha De Visconti of Fairville, both of whom represent Pitt County on the NCTA Board of Directors.

This announcement was made today by Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Executive Secretary of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association.

A native North Carolinian will return to deliver the keynote address Wednesday, Mrs. Spilman said. J. Ervin Nichols, originally of Rocky Mount and now Executive Secretary of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association in a speech, "Is Your Public Relations Showing?" will emphasize the importance of keeping the public informed of the activities of the TB Association.

Twins Preparing For Fat Stock Show

S. F. Peterson, agriculture teacher at Ayden High School, is shown as he gives final instructions to Melvin and Milton Worthington, in preparation for entrance of their steers in the Greenville Fat Stock Show and Sale April 28. The Worthington boys, who are 17-year-old twins are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur L. Worthington, of Peaceful Acres, Ayden. (James W. Everett Photo).

Two 17-year-old Ayden twins, seniors at Ayden High School, are showing in Greenville and for grain and other products at the Pitt County Fair. Last year they won the Reserved Champion title at the Stock Show with their Angus.

Both boys declare that they have enjoyed their agriculture courses and their joint project work. "We have learned many practical things that will help us make farming a successful profession," the twins declared.

Their goal now is to earn enough money to go to college and, after fulfilling military duty, to invest in a good farm and continue to work together.

Both are active in athletics club work and the church. They have recently been chosen Citizens of the Year at Ayden High School for their outstanding citizenship at school at home and in the community.

Sec. Wilson Sets New Curbs On Secret Data

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson says "we must stop giving our potential enemies so much information" about new weapons.

This, Wilson explained yesterday, is why he issued a sharp new order setting limits on the giving out of military information and speeches by defense personnel.

In a Pentagon news conference, he stoutly denied that censorship or any attempt at avoiding adverse criticism was intended.

He said he would "be a party to trying to cover up something that ought to be exposed for the good of the Defense Department."

What then did Wilson's March 27 directive mean when it said information released by the military should "constitute a constructive contribution to the primary mission of the Department of Defense"? At what does the order aim?

Wilson thought that one over and said: "It is a little hard to define real quickly. Propriety and policy are involved, as well as what might be called the technical side of it."

Here Wilson touched on another issue raised by his order—the refusal to take into consideration the factor of prior publication when deciding whether information should be released. Interpretation of the Wilson order seems to mean that information on a weapon must not be released even though the same information had been published before and presumably was read by the Russians.

Wilson's idea on this point, as expressed at his news conference, was this: It is possible for someone in the Defense Department to put together a number of things that may have been told before in piecemeal fashion.

"But putting them all together in a logical story gives an entirely different piece of information and, depending on who puts it out, puts the stamp of authenticity on it—when before it was maybe just a rumor."

Wilson said "We are making it just a little too easy to catch up with everything we do."

The defense chief said he regarded as "a very doubtful practice" the holding of off-the-record meetings with reporters. Asked if Defense Department officials were not sometimes to blame for "leaks," Wilson said information gets out in many ways—like when "someone wants to impress someone after having a few drinks" and talks too much.

Car Is Wrecked By Strange Shot

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—There was reason enough for Alexander Moses Warden's car to go out of control and plunge into a deep water-filled ditch. Hospital physicians later found a bullet lodged deep in his head. It had penetrated through the left ear passage without leaving a visible sign.

Warden, 53, a retired minister, was pulled unconscious from the ditch by another motorist. At the hospital he regained consciousness and said he couldn't imagine where the shot came from.

Selective Service Records Files Of World War II To Be Destroyed

RALEIGH—Colonel Thomas H. Upton, State Director of Selective Service, said today that he has received notice from the Director of Selective Service to proceed with the disposal of the individual files of registrants of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended.

He pointed out that any World War II registrant needing information from his World War II selective service file should request it now before the loss of such information by destruction of the records. The information must be requested either in person or by letter signed by the registrant.

Colonel Upton also stated that the Director of Selective Service advises that the great majority of the World War II files have served all discriminate administrative purposes in the operation of the Universal Military Training and Service Act, as amended, and that the Joint Committee of Congress on the Disposition of Executive Papers has approved the disposal of individual files of registrants of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940. The only World War II files to be retained are those of registrants classified at any time in Class IV-C (Alien), which have been requested by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Files obtained under the current draft act will continue to be maintained by each registrant's local board.

Appreciation Is 90 Years Late

CLINIC Friday at Falkland School

FAULKLAND—Friday is pre-school clinic day for those children who begin school next fall at Falkland. Principal Ed Warren is urging that at least one parent attend with the child.

A conference for parents will begin at 8:45 a.m. At this time Miss Annie Lee Jones, county supervisor, and Miss Janie Johnson, county nurse, will present some facts that parents need to know concerning the child who will enter school.

Appreciation Is 90 Years Late

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A phone call caught Mayor Thomas Bryan munching a late bed-time snack.

"Claggett Ontario, calling Mayor Bryan," said the long distance operator.

"This the governor of Virginia?" the caller asked. "No? Oh, the mayor of Richmond. You'll do just fine. I've just been reading about a man you have down there—Stonewall Jackson. I certainly admire the way he marched his men and fought. You're doing a good job down there."

Bryan never did find the identity of his Canadian caller. He agreed, though, that Stonewall Jackson was a fine Confederate general 90 years ago.

LITTLE LEAGUE PROGRAM PAYING OFF

The effects of the Little League baseball program are paying off in Greenville High School now, as is shown by a quick look at the Greenville box scores.

When Coach Farley started the season in Rocky Mount, his starting nine showed five veterans of the League baseball with a bench full of freshman Little League graduates.

Eleven of the nineteen players on the current Greenville team have gained their experience through the Little League ranks.

In the next few years GHS will have their entire team filled with Little League grads and the teams will pick up. The city of Greenville has one of the finest Little League operations in the South.

It is a shame, however, that all of the emphasis is going on baseball and that the basketball and football sports are given very little emphasis in this program.

If Greenville could get a Midget organization to compete with other towns this oversight could be corrected.

Kinston showed during the past year how their organization was paying off in basketball. They had thirty to forty boys out for junior varsity basketball, boys that knew the game through and through.

NEW SPORTS STARS SHINING AT ECC

The many spring athletics have produced new sports figures on the East Carolina scene.

For instance, Maurice Everette and James Blake have taken up on themselves the load of leadership on the Pirates tennis team.

Johnny Rainey, freshman from Salisbury, was counted on to help East Carolina's golf team some but not to the extent he did in the Pirates' matches with Elon last week.

heard from very little in 1954, shot two good rounds to defeat his opponent with ease.

Jim Henderson can be classified as a "found" star although he has firmly established himself as a grinder.

Both the tennis and golf teams have others who, with experience, could develop into outstanding stars.

Major League Opening Day Could Be Establishing Precedent For Season

Could be that the opening day of major league baseball set what may be the pattern this season.

The preseason popularity polls had Milwaukee's Braves copping the National League flag with the world champion Giants and Brooks somewhere in between.

Milwaukee and Cleveland made hay yesterday while the other three pennant contenders were stopped by rain.

The Chicago Cubs won their second 1955 decision, beating the St. Louis Cardinals 14-4 in the only other National League game played. In the American, the Kansas City Athletics broke into their new surroundings with a 6-2 victory over Detroit.

Tanner, a 23-year-old prospect up from Atlanta, carried on the Braves' rookie-a-spring program.

That tied the score, and after Bruto singled Aaron clipped Gerry Staley's next pitch for a triple and the lead run.

The game at Cleveland hauled in 50,230 fans—tops for the day as the majors drew 190,951.

Like Spahn, Cleveland's Bob Lemon got off toward another 20-victory season, handling the White Sox on four singles and a double.

The A's got nine hits including a single, double and home run by Bill Wilson.

Bobby's Back by Pap

Bobby Thomson missed the greater part of last season because of an ankle broken in spring training and when he did get into action for the Milwaukee Braves, it was mostly in the role of pinch-hitter.

Don Cockell Arrives For Title Bout, Lauds Rocky

NEW YORK (AP)—He's no super-man. He's got two arms and two legs just like I have. I hope to win the title, otherwise I never would have come here.

That's the way England's Don Cockell sized up his coming title fight with heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano in San Francisco May 16.

The pudgy, 217-pound British heavyweight boss arrived early yesterday morning from England on the Queen Mary, was the guest of honor at press party at a downtown restaurant and then departed last night for San Francisco.

"Marciano is a great champion and he behaves like a champion," said the hog farmer from Horam, Sussex. "If I should win, I only hope I can conduct myself like he does."

"Many people seem to have the idea that Marciano is crude and rough but I don't see it. He is a scientific fighter. He never throws two punches in the same place.

ECC Baseballers Go Back Into Action This Afternoon

East Carolina's league-leading Pirates got back into action here this afternoon after the spring holiday lull with a doubleheader scheduled with Montclair State Teachers.

The first game was to get under way at 2 p. m., in College Park. Montclair, always one of the top small college powers in baseball, played here last season so they were not totally unfamiliar to local fans.

Coaches Jim Malory and Earl Smith called their troupes back early yesterday to get in practice licks for their highly-regarded visitors.

The Pirates, winners over High Point twice, Springfield twice, and losers to Wake Forest and Michigan, were to go with the same lineup that was being started.

Eisenhower Is Hopeful Of Playing Middlecoff

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower looked forward to a practice round of golf today to tune up for a possible weekend match with Cary Middlecoff, the 1955 Masters Tournament champion.

Middlecoff, who won the Masters here Sunday, had left town by the time the President arrived yesterday for an eight-day work-and-play vacation.

But White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told news- men there was a possibility Middlecoff might return to Augusta about Saturday to take on the chief executive.

Eisenhower got in 18 holes yesterday afternoon at the Augusta National Club, site of the Masters, even though he was bothered "quite a bit" as Hagerty put it—by burstitis in his right shoulder.

For the past six weeks or so the President has been going to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington for treatment of his burstitis. The 15-minute stints at the hospital have helped, but Eisenhower got a setback Monday in tossing out the first baseball at the sea- side on Saturday in Washington and Baltimore.

The pitch, Hagerty said, wrenched his arm painfully. That was the reason Eisenhower used only his left hand in waving greetings yesterday to crowds in Augusta and Charleston, S.C.

On the plane trip from Washington, the President stopped in Charleston for a visit to the Citadel military college, which presented him with an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Beside more golf, Eisenhower planned some work today on the foreign aid message he will send to Congress next week.

Hagerty said there had been no decision yet whether the message will go to the Capitol while the President still is in Georgia—through next Wednesday—or after he returns to Washington.

Pirate Baseball Player Injured In Auto Wreck

Tommy Jenkins of Greensboro, freshman basketball star and baseball player at East Carolina College, is in serious condition in Chapel Hill Memorial Hospital today as the results of an auto accident Friday.

He was driving home Friday afternoon accompanied by several other college students when he complained of being tired and asked to be relieved at the wheel.

He was taken directly to the hospital and it was learned this morning that he has only a 50-50 chance to live.

Claimant Ready If Bobo Vacates

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, who meets Ted Olla of Milwaukee tomorrow night in his fourth comeback bout, says he will reclaim the middleweight title if champion Bobo Olson vacates it.

"Olson obviously is interested in the light heavyweight title," Robinson said. "He meets Joey Maxim tonight and if he wins he'll fight Archie Moore for the title. If he beats Moore, Olson will surrender the middleweight crown.

Now 45 Entries For Speedway

INDIANAPOLIS, April 13 (AP)—The Indianapolis Motor Speedway today announced four more entries for the 500-mile race May 30, increasing to 45 the number of cars now entered.

The deadline for filing is midnight Friday, and 12 or 15 more entries are expected. Only the fastest 33 will start in the Memorial Day race.

Drivers for the latest entries are two speedway veterans, Roger Ward of Los Angeles and Travis "Spider" Webb of Dayton, Ohio, and two rookies from the sprint car circuit, Elmer George of Dayton, Ohio, and Johnny Kay of New Britain, Conn.

Ward will drive the Casale and Greenman Special, entered by E. R. Casale of Whittier, Calif., and Webb will be at the wheel of the Roy McKay Special, entered by Roy McKay of Youngstown, Ohio.

George will drive the Walmart Special, entered by George Walker Jr. of Dayton, and Kay the Lettenberger Special, entered by F. L. Lettenberger of Johnstown, Pa.

Take My PLACE

Landon McCrae is on her way from her job in New York to the town in Windermere in Canada, where her happily married sister, Maggie Scarffe, is ill. A "spot" on Maggie's lung will send her home for protracted treatment and in her absence, Landon will take over the household, comprising Maggie's husband, Eric, a teacher, her small daughter Merry-o and "Gran." Scott Wylie, bachelor and old beau of Landon, is delighted at the prospect of her return to Windermere.

CHAPTER THREE

Maggie's house, to Landon, was now home. But this was going to be altogether different from a gay holiday visit. Landon lay awake considering the months ahead of her. In taking Maggie's place she would be answerable for the health and welfare of a six-year-old child, a lonely man and an aging woman. Being responsible for the happiness of her grandmother to whom, until now, she had taken all her own problems was a new and disturbing prospect. The confidence with which she'd made her hasty homecoming plans suddenly seemed braced and immature. Yet surely Maggie wouldn't have sent for her, wouldn't entrust her with everything she held dear in the world without believing she'd manage all right?

Standing on the steps of the sleeper as the train stopped in the morning, she saw Maggie almost at once, and with a small gasp of surprise she realized that she had been unconsciously expecting some drastic change in her sister's appearance. But there were no visible signs of illness in the vibrant sunbrowned face. The blue eyes were bright with humor—too bright!—and the flash of Maggie's smile as glad as a radiance as ever. Her hair was cut off short, giving her a gamine young look that belied her 37 years, and the full skirt of her cotton dress swung forward gently across her lovely legs. Landon ran forward, arms outstretched, they clung, holding each other close.

"You nut!" Maggie whispered. "You didn't have to catch a train the minute you got my letter!" She reached out her hand for Eric. "Darling, doesn't she look terribly smart and Fifth Avenue-ish and successful?"

"That she does," agreed Eric, admiring-eyed. He gave Landon a brotherly kiss on the cheek. "Hi," he said. The road from the station veered off from the business section, by-passed the factories and edged along the park. Beyond was Windermere college, where Eric was an English instructor. A few out-sized mansions faced the campus, former show places with sweeping circular driveways and porticos and turrets—veering on a dividing line now and mostly converted into apartments. About the only big old house that wasn't converted was the Irelands' on the other side of town.

swerve northward brought them to the lakefront. Through a fringe of poplars the water was bright blue and alive with mid-July's flotilla of canoes, outboard motors and little launches. Landon suddenly remembered the swim suit she had bought for Maggie's birthday. Then Maggie's letter had come, and Maggie wouldn't be wearing a swim suit this summer.

An ache closed Landon's throat. She said to Maggie, "How long before—before you have to go to the sanatorium?" Maggie kept her eyes straight ahead. "Tomorrow."

"Oh, no! So soon? And it's your birthday," Landon whispered. "It's not fair. Tears burned her eyelids, but she mustn't cry—not in front of Maggie. They drew up at the house. Eric got out of the car and collected her bags. "I'll take these in, and then drive over to the church and pick up Gram and Merry-o."

On the way out to the kitchen, Maggie said, "It's nearly lunch-time. We'll carry trays out to the patio. Eric likes eating outside. We do it every fine day."

"I'd forgotten that the men in Windermere come home for lunch," Landon said. "What can I do to help?"

"We're having cold cuts and a big bowl of greens. You can shake up some French dressing if you like." Maggie took some things out of the refrigerator. "My letter must have been pretty upsetting, wasn't it?"

Landon nodded. She had stared at the words as if they were written in a foreign language. She had stared at them until she felt herself drifting into a sort of hypnosis, like that induced after mile upon mile of high-speed driving. It was Maggie's "Can you come?" that had swerved her back to reality. Maggie said, "We thought of a housekeeper, or a boarding school for Merry-o—but we are buying this house and Eric's insurance program is heavy, and—well, you know the sort of salaries the colleges pay their young instructors! Gran, bless her, offered to pitch in and help. But she had already done enough for us—modernizing the house, helping us with the down payment, Merry-o would run her ragged. . . I waited days before I sent you an S.O.S. It didn't seem fair to take advantage of you just because we have always been rather special to each other."

Landon fought against a lump, stifling in her throat. "Do you think—once I knew—that anything could have kept me away?"

"I'm so glad Eric will have you, Landon! He'll need you. He looks so big and strong—but when it comes to standing up under loneliness, I'm stronger. I really am. All women are, or they'd never be able to bear being alone all the times their men were away at war or at sea. . . Don't let him worry too much about me will you?"

"I'll try," Landon said doubtfully. "Merry-o, now. . . Oh, Landon, is it fair to push all my responsibilities on you like this?"

"Don't be goofy."

"Merry-o is tough," Maggie said. "She hasn't been a baby since she outgrew her snugly-bunny suits. She is remarkably healthy. She is even quite intelligent. Only don't let her get the upper hand of you. She'd delight in bullying you!"

Thinking how adept Maggie was at reducing the complex amusingly to the simple, Landon said ruefully, "You make it sound so easy!" But watching Maggie hack away at the tomatoes, she thought: She has to make light of it, or go to pieces.

"Children are funny," Maggie said. "You think they don't understand, and then suddenly you discover that they understand everything."

This time, though, Maggie's smile faded. Her mouth just couldn't make it. Her face crumpled and broke up. "Oh, Landon," she whispered. She dropped to the floor, plunged her face into Landon's lap. And suddenly she was crying with a strange abandonment, wildly.

"Maggie. . . Maggie."

Landon felt as if she were being slowly torn apart. She stroked back the springy short hair, shocked at Maggie's body being so thin under the full dirndl and puffy sleeves. "I'll do everything I can," she whispered. "I promise."

Age May Be 113, But Looks Ahead

AUBURNDALE, Fla. (AP)—Charlie Smith, fruit picker who may be 113 years old, is beginning to make plans for his future.

Smith, a Negro, look out a social security card recently and started working toward a pension. He was told he could apply for benefits after working 18 months under social security.

The African-born Smith says he is 108 years old but Mrs. Hicksa Willis, Auburndale city clerk has in her files an affidavit that would make him 113.

He was brought to this country in a slave ship as a boy.

UNHARMED BY LIGHT—This is the picture showing John Wolbarst, right, and Irving Desfor, made from a Polaroid negative which had been exposed to room light for several minutes.

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newsfeatures
A revolutionary advance in photography will shortly be available to the public. To the magic of picture-in-a-minute photography, a new miracle will be possible: the ability to produce a permanent film negative along with the print. It will be made possible when a new, fast, fine-quality panchromatic film, whose negative emulsion is coated on an acetate film base, is introduced in the very near future.

Credit for the research and development of the new film goes to the Polaroid Corp. Instinctively we visualize anonymous scientists in an impressive laboratory working meticulously for years. But the immediate discoverer of a simple technique whereby, for the first time, a permanent negative can be produced along with a quick print, was an individual photo enthusiast, John Wolbarst, managing editor of Modern Photography magazine, in testing the new Polaroid Professional Pan film, had a logical brainstorm. What would happen if he tried to fix the new negative after he had taken a picture? He experimented. He didn't want it to be spoiled by light, which is the usual procedure, so he worked in a completely dark room. The film had a paper edge, so it had to be removed carefully. The film had a coating of developing jelly so he removed it by immersing in a pan of water and swabbing it off gently, with his fingers. Then he put it in fresh fixer. When he put on the light after 20 seconds, the film was reacting like normal film. In a couple of minutes it was completely clear. Two more minutes for complete fixation, then 20 minutes of careful washing, a dunk in Photo-Flo and the film was hung to dry.

That film turned out to be a normal negative, capable of producing prints and enlargements in the usual manner. It wasn't a happy, single accident because Wolbarst tried it again and again with the same successful results. It was an important discovery which became the basis for a ten page review and report on the past, present and new frontiers of the Polaroid camera. It will appear in the May issue of Modern Photography, with a prediction by Wolbarst that technicians will soon devise a handier method of securing the permanent negative than the one he stumbled on.

"At that," he told me, "I think I surprised the Polaroid people when I sent my story for Dr. Land, the inventor of the camera, to check the facts. They may have had some similar process up their sleeves. I don't know. However, the curtain is now open on a new world in photography with further improvements and new adaptations certain to follow."

For the present, Polaroid is about to put on the market new panchromatic high speed films with marked improvement in quality. One will have a daylight exposure rating of ASA 200 while another is ASA 400. Both these films are for general amateur use and the negative emulsion is coated on a paper base, the same as the film now in use.

These will be followed by the remarkable film which can produce permanent negatives. It also has an ASA rating of 200 but its negative emulsion is coated on an acetate film base.

This film produces its positive print in only 45 seconds. If it is overdeveloped, an unusual effect is noticed: all the dark areas form a golden, mirrorlike image. When used deliberately, novel and intriguing results can be produced. For straight results, critical exposure and exact development are essential.

I watched Wolbarst demonstrate his technique with this Polaroid Professional Pan film. It is a method any average camera fan can undertake successfully when the new film becomes available. Its disadvantage is that in order to make a permanent negative, the photographer must improvise or work in a darkroom after each exposure. This may be all right when taking pictures in a home or professional studio but it's an extreme handicap when shooting a batch of pictures outdoors.

To help solve this problem, perhaps we stumbled on something further. I saw one of the discarded negatives, which we had decided not to save, in the waste basket. It had been exposed to the ordinary room light for some moments. What would happen if we fixed it at this stage? Wolbarst said, "Let's try it."

We went through the same process under an amber safelight from then on. And do you know that, under those conditions which would have turned a normal negative completely black, we salvaged the negative and were able to make a passable enlargement.

Take it from there, fans. You too, can be an experimenter and a discoverer, and it's fun besides.

Publisher Faces Federal Charge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Herman M. (Hank) Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun, faces trial today on a federal charge of mailing copies of his newspaper containing an article allegedly tending to incite the murder of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Greenspun, pleading innocent, has suggested the indictment was politically inspired. His chief attorney Edward P. Morgan, of Washington, D.C., says the constitutional rights of freedom of the press and speech are involved.

"This is the first time in history," Morgan contended, "that a newspaper publisher has been indicted for a simple expression of opinion."

Greenspun's article said "the chances are that McCarthy will eventually be laid to rest in the hands of some poor innocent slob" who would "get a gun and blast Joe to Hades." The indictment says 874 copies of the paper in which it appeared were mailed Jan. 8, 1954.

Greenspun said the column also expressed the hope this fate would not befall McCarthy. "I've said a lot worse things about him," he said.

The publisher and the senator have long been political opponents, although Greenspun says he is a registered Republican. The publisher has a one-million-dollar damage suit pending against McCarthy in the Nevada state court, contending the senator falsely accused him of being an ex-Communist.

If convicted, Greenspun is liable to $5,000 fine or five years imprisonment, or both.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures

A BROAD low-pitched roof, extending over the car port, gives this house a distinctive appearance as well as adding height to the living room. Vertical siding at the front door offsets any tendency toward a squat look. Planned without a basement, the house has an abundance of closets and storage spaces, including two in the car port for garden accessories. An extra lavatory opens off the side hall at the rear of the kitchen. Heater and hot water supply are located in an adequate closet adjoining the fireplace chimney. This is plan H-384AP by the Homograf Co. 11711 East Eight Mile Rd., East Detroit, Mich. The house covers 1,281 square feet and contains 13,447 cubic feet, convenient figures for estimating local construction costs. A liberal use of brick or stone veneer is suggested.

Newsmen, Photographer To Test Contempt Ruling

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Six newspapermen and a free-lance photographer who were convicted of contempt yesterday for defying a ban on taking pictures in a courthouse will test the ban through an appeal to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Attorneys for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and the Greensburg Tribune Review said yesterday that they would file without delay an appeal from the contempt finding by the Westmoreland County Court judges.

The two newspapers took picture in the Westmoreland County Courthouse corridors of John Wesley Wable after he was convicted there last Dec. 28 of two slayings on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

An order of the court issued on the eve of Wable's trial forbade taking pictures of prisoners anywhere in the courthouse or the adjoining jail.

The newspapers claimed the ban violated the Pennsylvania and U.S. Constitutions, pertaining to freedom of the press.

Convicted yesterday were William Block, publisher of the Post-Gazette; David W. Mack, publisher of the Tribune Review; Andrew Bernhard, Post-Gazette editor; Vince Johnson, Post-Gazette reporter; James Kingensmith and Don Bindyke, Post-Gazette photographers; and Robert Purdy, a freelance photographer hired by the Tribune Review.

Block, Bernhard and Mack were each fined $500 and sentenced to five days in the county jail. The others were fined $100 each and also received five-day jail terms. The sentences were stayed pending the appeal.

Men, Money And Angry Parents Did The Trick In Defeat Of Dread Polio

By ALTON L. BLAKEMORE
AP Science Reporter
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Men, money and angry parents delivered the technical knockout to polio through the Salk vaccine.

The men — many scientists making discoveries step by step paving the way to a vaccine.

The money — 10 million dollars or more in March of Dimes funds from the public to support this research. To this extent the vaccine is something the American people created.

The parents — angry at the stealthy invisible killer and despoiler of children, determined to extinguish its nerve-consuming fire.

Today the victory is within grasp with a successful vaccine, developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk, of Pittsburgh, a dedicated scientist with incisive mind.

Today the first batches of an improved Salk vaccine are moving from pharmaceutical houses to public health officials and doctors' offices to begin inoculations of some 30 million children or more this spring and summer.

Within hours after the official verdict that the vaccine is up to 90 per cent effective in preventing paralysis, it was licensed by the National Institutes of Health for public use.

Dimes contributed to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will pay for enough vaccine for free inoculations of nine million children in all first and second grades and some in third grades. The rest will be administered by doctors to patients, with high priority urged for children and pregnant women.

At last polio is on the way to defeat, control, eradication.

The victory did not come easily. As with most great achievements of medical science it built from the minds of many men.

In 1908 Dr. Karl Landsteiner discovered polio was due to a virus, an infinitesimal disease agent far smaller than bacteria.

Now the case was known, but no control.

A few years later, polio spread like a conflagration through New York City, striking hard with death and paralysis. Parents fled the cities with their children.

Polio had made its panic known. It came mysteriously and still to-day science does not know exactly how.

Again and again it flared here and there. It felled adults as well as children. It felled a man destined to become a United States president, Franklin D. Roosevelt. He, like so many others, rose above his handicap, and inspired the March of Dimes. Now money was poured into the search for knowledge.

Little and big facts and new techniques came from many men, by no means all engaged in polio research. They set the stage for four vital findings coming in a rush between 1949 and 1952.

Dr. John F. Enders and associates of Harvard learned how to grow and harvest polio virus from monkey kidney tissue. A large team of researchers learned that only three types of polio virus cause human paralysis.

Dr. Dorothy Horstmann of Yale and Dr. David Bodian of Johns Hopkins found that virus invades the blood stream before it hits the nerves. Dr. William McD. Hammon of the University of Pittsburgh showed that small amounts of antibodies if present in the blood could disarm the virus.

At Pittsburgh too, Dr. Salk six years ago began working for a polio vaccine. He built on what had gone before, contributed his own deductions, experiments, solutions, perseverance to create a safe vaccine against all types of paralyzing virus.

People Of Greece Doubtful As To Trusting Young Repatriates

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst
SALONIKA, Greece (AP) — "Why did they not send us back our children when we asked for them — six or seven years ago?" the Greek official said. "Why are they so anxious now?"

"Perhaps it is because now many of the children are grown up and ready. Perhaps, from the Communist way of thinking, the time has arrived."

any agitators among them, that any among them ever expressed the wish to go back to the Communist lands. But even these people do not want to work in the villages or on the farm any more. They want to head to the cities.

These people represent the first trickle, some 3,700 repatriates. Many of them have now been resettled in villages. They are not the people who cause the Greek authorities the greatest concern. The authorities are wondering about those to come — the youngsters grown to maturity under Communist teaching and isolation.

Northern Greece is a hard, stony land. For young men given special treatment abroad, the return is a shock. The Communists seem to have tried to make sure that the contrast would be felt keenly.

Here in Macedonia, close to the borders of communism, there is concern about the possibility of a future guerrilla nucleus in Greece, usable by the Communists in time of emergency.

At the end of the civil war some 15,000 Red Greek guerrillas fled across the borders to Communist countries. To these, say Macedonian officials, add a fair number of young men trained through their boyhood in communism and wholly under Red influence.

Foresters, game wardens and security forces have been alerted in northern Greece to be on the lookout for Communist agents infiltrating across the Bulgarian and Albanian borders. Several Red leaders who had crossed secretly into Greece with instructions to reorganize the shattered underground party apparatus have already been arrested.

Brooklyn Eagle On Auction Block

NEW YORK (AP)—The Brooklyn Eagle, shut down by a strike, has been put on sale by Publisher Frank D. Schroth.

Schroth has set May 3 as a deadline for selling the 114-year-old newspaper as a complete unit.

He named O. Rundle Gilbert, an industrial sale and auction specialist, to take charge of "both the complete unit, sale and the public auction of remaining assets which will be held on May 11, 12 and 13, if the Eagle is not sold as a unit."

In announcing the sale plans yesterday, Schroth said: "I sincerely hope that some one or some group alert to the welfare of the borough will want to keep the Eagle alive. This is my first concern in disposing of the paper."

A spokesman for the CIO American Newspaper Guild, whose strike has closed the Eagle since Jan. 26, said the union would be "very happy" if the paper were sold as a unit. He said the principal aim of the Guild is "to get publication going with a Guild contract."

Several prospective purchasers already are in the field, the spokesman said. The Guild, representing 215 editorial and commercial department employees, struck in a pay dispute. Members of craft unions refused to cross Guild picket lines, forcing the Eagle to suspend publication. Schroth announced March 16 that he would never publish the paper again.

Priest Returns Stolen Money

DENVER (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest refused today to disclose the name of a repentant bank robber who confessed to him the hold-up of the Colorado State Bank here.

Yesterday, the priest returned to authorities $6,850 in bills he said was part of $7,780 taken in the daylight robbery of the Colorado State Bank Feb. 17. He said the robber gave him the money.

U.S. Atty Donald E. Kelley quoted the priest as saying: "My lips are sealed. I have a sacred obligation by which I must abide even if it means my life."

Kelley said the priest "asked that he not be named and I respect that confidence."

Kelley said the priest promised to relay a message that partial return of the money would not absolve the robber of "criminal responsibility."

"I hope now that he will decide to clear his conscience entirely, by coming to the proper authorities," said Kelley.

Big Headache

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—John Cox's headache turned out to be one for his whole fire station here.

Cox, a tillerman on a hook and ladder rig, obtained permission from his captain to step across the street to get some aspirin.

While he was in the drugstore, an alarm rang. Away went the hook and ladder truck—without a tillerman.

At the first corner, the wildly swinging ladder trailer crashed into an automobile, smashed the car, part of the fire equipment and was itself disabled. It had to be towed back to the station.

Fire Chief James Burke ordered an investigation to determine why no one noticed there was no tillerman when the truck took off.

It was a false alarm.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced today in its second straight move into new high ground.

Coppers were lower however, in a reflection of selling growing out of the British government plan to sell metal from its stockpile.

Copper stocks were down around 3 points at the most. Elsewhere in the list, losses were around a point at the outside. Gains ran to 2 points. Most major divisions were higher.

Business was at a good pace right around yesterday's 2,770,000 shares.

Steels and motors were the best performing divisions. Chrysler stood out in its section. Also higher were the aircrafts, chemicals, electrical equipment, railroads and utilities.

The drug companies participating in Salk Vaccine production were steady. They were mixed yesterday at the close after showing early strength.

American Tobacco was higher after announcing price increases on two brands. Reynolds tobacco "B" followed up a little later.

Estate Goes To March Of Dimes
SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—The $35,000 estate of Theodore Neshkoff, who died Sunday, goes to the March of Dimes "for the use of children crippled by infantile paralysis," Neshkoff, a 73-year-old retired laborer, said in his will he had "no relatives and no intimate friends."

The will was offered for probate yesterday—the day the Salk polio vaccine was pronounced a success.

Bill Would Raise Tuition Fees Of Non-Residents

RALEIGH (AP)—Tuition fees for non-resident students would be increased at all state-supported colleges under a proposal approved yesterday by the joint appropriations subcommittee.

The group also voted to increase the tuition for resident students at some of the smaller colleges.

The tuition increase was recommended by a smaller subcommittee headed by Rep. William W. Taylor Jr. of Warren. This proposal would bring in additional revenue of $1,359,570 during the next biennium.

The proposed increases would go into effect at the beginning of the next fiscal year July 1. Some 3,921 students would be affected by the non-resident tuition raises. The increases would be as follows: $50 at Winston-Salem, Elizabeth City and Fayetteville State Teachers Colleges, $180 at Pembroke State Teachers College, $171 at Appalachian State Teachers College, $140 at the three units of the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

The following schools would be affected by the resident tuition boosts: $33 at North Carolina College, $22.50 at Appalachian and $20 at Winston-Salem, Elizabeth City, Fayetteville and Pembroke State Teachers Colleges.

The non-resident increase would bring in $2,077,742, while the resident hike would produce $218,428 for the biennium.

The subcommittee also recommended increases in registration fees as follows: $21 at Pembroke, $20 at North Carolina College, $18 at Elizabeth City, $12 at Fayetteville, and $6 at Winston-Salem. These increases would total $113,400 for the biennium.

No Private Trial

CLEVELAND (AP)—No Ohio judge can order all spectators and reporters from a courtroom during a trial—even at the written request of the defendants, an Appellate Court ruled here yesterday.

"A defendant has no right, constitutionally or otherwise, to a private trial—that is, one hidden from the public view," the court said.

The decision came in a case brought by Cleveland's three daily newspapers—the Plain Dealer, News and Press. They objected to a ruling by Common Pleas Judge Parker Fulton barring spectators from a pandering trial while a witness talked about "lurid details."

Judge Fulton acted after the three defendants signed written waivers of their right to public trial.

Football Star Featured In Billy Graham Movie

Donn Moomaw, All-American football star of the University of California at Los Angeles, is also a star in the newest Billy Graham movie, "Souls In Conflict," being presented here by the Greenville Ministerial Association Thursday and Friday nights at 7:30 in Austin Auditorium.

Converted under the ministry of Dr. Graham, Moomaw has turned his back on lucrative offers to play professional football, and is now a student in the Princeton Theological Seminary preparing to enter the ministry. Don was a member of the Billy Graham team during the 1954 London Crusade, speaking and giving his own testimony throughout England.

Dr. Graham, a native of Charlotte, N. C., is now back in Britain leading Scotland in a great united evangelistic crusade, with headquarters in Glasgow's Kelvin Hall. Footballer Moomaw will in all probability join Graham in some of this summer's meetings in Britain and on the European continent.

Greenville showings of "Souls In Conflict" will begin at 7:30 and all of the 900 seats in Austin Auditorium are free. An offering will be received to pay for expenses connected with the showings and to help finance "The Hour of Decision." Dr. Graham's weekly radio program heard currently over 900 stations of the Mutual and ABC radio networks (WGTC, Sundays at 10 p.m.). A brief song service will precede both the Thursday and Friday showings, led by local pastors. "Souls In Conflict" is a full length, color film.

Dr. Sheppard Once Thought Of Suicide

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Samuel Sheppard wrote his mother from a jail cell that he "would like to join" his dead wife but added "she would be totally disappointed if I should give up."

The letter, made public by the osteopath's family last night, was written Aug. 5, a month after pretty Marilyn Sheppard was murdered. It came at a time when detectives were questioning Dr. Sheppard who later was convicted of second-degree murder.

His mother, Mrs. Ethel Sheppard, committed suicide Jan. 8. His father, Dr. Richard A. Sheppard died Jan. 18.

Dr. Sheppard, now 31, is in the Cuyahoga County Jail awaiting an appeal of the conviction.

Speaking of detectives, the letter said, "These men have their minds made up and did before they even talked to me. They are trying to obtain a false confession."

"The last question period was yesterday morning. All the detectives without exception have said there is absolutely no evidence of premeditation in this case. The ones yesterday denied their wish to get a false confession, but for me to have faith in God if innocent. After all their statements, a man almost wished he could answer their questions."

"They attempted to mold the suspect to their impression of him. According to them, I would be better off legally and treated much better by them if I were guilty and could explain their questions."

"It would be impossible for a guilty man to go through this going over without confessing, in my opinion."

He also told his mother: "Don't wish to go over and over the things and subject you to all this, but I think I'll be better off to express these feelings in writing than to keep them inside."
