Most Of Construction On New School Is Completed

This aerial photo shows the new white elementary school in Elmhurst, on which the bulk of construction has already been completed. Since there are only a few weeks remaining in the present school year, however, City School Superintendent J. H. Rose has reported no plans are being made to move into the building before the next term in the fall.

Measure Calls For Over $9 Million Tax Boost

Revenue Bill Sent To House

RALEIGH (AP)—A revenue bill calling for tax increases of $9,751,000 per year for the next two fiscal years was placed before the House today.

Rep. W. B. Rodman of Beaufort, chairman of the House Finance Committee sent forward the measure which was approved by the committee yesterday. He urged House members to study the tax bill "so that we may act on it tomorrow."

While the House Finance Committee completed work yesterday on the $9,751,000 tax measure, the Senate Finance Committee tentatively drafted a finance bill calling for a total of $9,815,000 in new taxes.

There was one major difference in the bills. The House bill contains a proposal to increase by 25 per cent all privilege license taxes, while the Senate committee rejected the proposal. The levy would bring in $1,450,000 per year. As a substitute, the Senate committee proposed an additional tax of 2 cents per bottle of beer. This would bring in $1,760,000 annually. The present tax on beer is 2 1/2 cents per bottle. The House committee went down the line in approving the recommendations of its subcommittee. The House group defeated several attempts to amend the bill. Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan offered an amendment which would have increased the state sales tax from 3 to 3 1/2 per cent. The amendment would have removed from the tax bill the 25 per cent increase in privilege license taxes, repeal of the $15 single article limitation under the sales tax, and the 3 per cent sales tax on building materials, hotels and motels, and newspaper circulation.

Gov. Hodges said between 9 1/2 and 10 million dollars per year in new taxes are needed to balance the $40 million budget for the next biennium.

Major items on which the House and Senate committees agreed were: A 3 per cent sales tax on building materials, to yield three million; 3 per cent tax on hotel and motel receipts of domestic insurance companies, with an $80 limit, 1 million; repeal of the $15 sales tax limitation, one million; increase the liquor tax from 8 1/2 to 10 per cent, $900,000; increase the tax on gross premium receipts of domestic insurance companies, $450,000; eliminate the fleet owners exemption from the sales tax, $400,000; increase the tax on fortified wines from 40 to 70 cents per gallon, $500,000; tax on all coal, except that used for industry, at 3 per cent, $250,000; increase insurance agents license fees, $130,000; redefine what kerosene is subject to the sales tax, $110,000; and levy a franchise tax on certain cooperatives, $100,000.

The Senate committee rejected a proposed 3 per cent tax on newspaper circulation. The proposal is contained in the House bill. Both committees agreed that farm machinery sales should be exempt from the sales tax. This would cost the state one million in taxes. The committees also agreed to reduce the franchise tax on tractors, which would cost the state's general fund $152,000. This item also would cost the highway fund an additional $350,000.

Committee To Work On Water, Sewer Extension

Subdivision Gets Sympathy

Lakewood Pines representatives got more sympathy last night—and a committee to work with them on their request for water and sewer line extensions to the community just south of the city limits.

Greenville Utilities Commission Chairman J. Roy Martin told the group that he would appoint a committee to consider the problem with the Lakewood Pines residents. The subdivision representatives have shuttled back and forth between the Utilities Commission and the Planning Board in their fight to enter the city limits. They have told the Planning Board that their main purpose in asking to enter the city was to obtain utilities for the area. The Planning Board at their last meeting recommended that the area be annexed into the city when it complies with the subdivision ordinance.

To make the city limits continuous the city planners would annex a strip extending 150 feet on each side of Evans Street to the Lakewood Pines area. There, the developed area would be taken into the city. Planning Board members suggested that method to avoid taking in undeveloped area between the present city limits and Lakewood Pines. Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam told the group last night that cost of installing water lines alone in the area would be $18,799.32. To extend water lines from present mains at the city limits would cost an additional $14,999.33.

If the area were not taken into the city the cost would have to be paid outright by the property owners. If the area is taken in, property owners would put up the money and it would be refunded to them as tap-ons are made. Superintendent Bloxam reported to the commission that work on the Jarvis Street water tank has been completed. Workmen have been scaling and repainting the tank recently. He also reported that installation of utilities in the Coghill subdivision has been completed and a breaker which blew out at an electric substation recently plunging the city into darkness was back in service at a cost of approximately $2,000.

Statehood For Alaska, Hawaii Is Dealt Setback

WASHINGTON (AP)—Alaska and Hawaii — their statehood dream blasted, ironically, by 48 votes — grasped for the bottom rung of the ladder again today.

In the wake of the 218-170 vote tally by which the House yesterday sent the joint Alaska-Hawaii bill back to committee, supporters were uncertain of their future course.

Chairman Engle (D-Calif) of the House Insular Affairs Committee said the margin of defeat made problematical consideration of separate legislation for either or both territories.

"I'm not going to fight a windmill," he said. Both Engle and Rep. Saylor (R-Pa), another leading statehood backer, attributed defeat to opposition by the leadership in both parties. Saylor said he would recommend the committee come back with separate bills for each territory, but he conceded there might be difficulty determining priority.

On this score, Delegate Bartlett (D-Alaska) said Hawaii should be considered first "put the administration to the test."

Bartlett was referring to President Eisenhower's repeated recommendations that statehood be conferred on Hawaii. Eisenhower has made no such recommendation for Alaska.

Delegate Farrington (R-Hawaii) said she was "encouraged" by the outcome, adding that Hawaii's best chance for statehood rests in eventual passage of a separate bill.

Work on water and sewer lines for the new bridge and bypass is 50 per cent complete. Bloxam reported, and moving of electric poles is 40 per cent complete. Concrete tops for clear wells in the water plant have been completed, he said.

Bloxam also asked the commission's permission to negotiate contracts with developers of South Village Grove concerning the installation of utilities and it was granted.

Dr. Karl Pace was appointed to replace W. H. Wollard on a committee to study the water and sewer situation in Colonial Heights.

PLANT DESTROYED HIGH POINT, N.C. — Damage was estimated by manager C. F. Ingraham at about $250,000 in the fire that destroyed the Southern Plywood Co. near here last night.

Father And Uncle Of Greenville Man Drown As Boat Overturns

The father and an uncle of a Greenville man drowned in Bath Creek yesterday afternoon when their boat apparently overturned.

Dead are: George Henry Cutler, Sr., 59, father of George Henry Cutler, Jr., of Greenville and John Albert Cutler, 63, uncle of the local man.

Both the drowning victims lived on Pine Town Route 1 in the Hunterston community. Beaufort County Coroner Bonner Paul said the pair had been crabbing in Bath Creek near Bath and were returning up the creek to their home when the boat apparently sank. Paul said the pair seemingly made an effort to swim to shore and were overcome before they made it to the shore line.

The boat used by the two men was found floating in the creek and citizens in the area organized a search party and began dragging the creek. John Albert's body was recovered about 7:30 last night and George Henry's about 6:30 this morning. The Beaufort County Coroner said. Present when the bodies were recovered were Coroner Paul and members of the Beaufort County sheriff's department. The pair were last seen yesterday afternoon leaving Bath around 3:30. They left by boat supposedly to return home, Paul said.

No one witnessed the fatal accident. Both men were loggers and crab fishermen by trade. Surviving George Henry Cutler, Sr., are his son, George Henry Jr., of Greenville; a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Conner of New Bern, and five grandchildren. Surviving John Albert are the niece and nephew.

Still Destroyed By ABC Raiders A 50-gallon drum still operated by oil fired burners fell victim to Pitt County ABC officers yesterday near Parmele Lake at the Pitt-Martin County line. In addition, officers found 50 gallons of mesh at the site but the operators were not apprehended. The still was dynamited. Evidence found at the still however, indicated that a run of illegal spirits had been made recently, probably the night before.

Postpone Final Atomic Blast LAS VEGAS, Nev. — The final atomic blast of the 1955 nuclear test series in Nevada, scheduled for today, was postponed shortly before the scheduled detonation time of 5:05 a.m. The Atomic Energy Commission said "unacceptable wind patterns" had developed.

Word From Moscow Indicates Bulganin Ready For Meeting

U.S. Expects Soviet Acceptance

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials anticipate an early Soviet acceptance of the Western invitation for a top-level Big Four meeting this summer.

President Eisenhower joined with British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden and Premier Edgar Faure of France in dispatching the invitation late yesterday. Made public last night, it proposes an early meeting with Russian Premier Nikolai Bulganin.

The time and place may be settled when Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay meet Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov in Vienna at week's end to conclude an Austrian state treaty. He apparently does not favor Geneva because of its association with last year's Asian conference where the French made a settlement giving part of Indochina to the Communists. Stockholm and Vienna have been mentioned as possibilities.

Word from Moscow indicated acceptance of the invitation. Bulganin has repeatedly expressed his desire for a Big Four meeting. The United States has previously insisted on preconditions including conclusion of an alliance between the Western nations and West Germany, completed at Paris this week, and some evidence of Soviet good intentions, which American officials found in Russia's evident willingness to wind up an Austrian treaty.

The note sent by the Western Powers said they believe "the time has now come for a new effort to resolve the great problems which confront us." They suggested, subject to Moscow's approval, a two-stage approach to the "sources of conflict." No specific topics were mentioned, but American officials contemplated the Western Powers would be concerned primarily with (1) German unification, (2) freedom for the peoples of the satellite states, and (3) removing world fears of hydrogen warfare through steps toward disarmament.

A session of only a few days' duration seemed likely. In the first stage Eisenhower, Bulganin, Eden and Faure would meet to give "a new impetus" to peace efforts "by establishing the basis for the detailed work which will be required."

In the second stage the detailed work of developing solutions would be carried out "by such methods, organs and participants as it appears will be most fruitful according to the nature of the issues."

That apparently means that there would be follow-up foreign ministers' meetings and also the use of other agencies such as the United Nations which might be appropriate for special problems. "The important thing," the Western governments told Russia, "is to begin the process promptly and to pursue it with patience and determination."

Officials said the American view is that the Big Four heads of state should deal with procedural questions—how to go about solving outstanding problems—and leave details for later negotiations.

They added a belief the session should not attempt to make final decisions on the rights or privileges of nations not present. On the German question, for example, some general approach should be agreed upon, but any final settlement would await other talks at which the Germans were represented.

The Western note was so written as to emphasize to the world that no spectacular miracle solutions of East-West difficulties were to be expected.

Most Papers Caution Against Undue Optimism

West Europe Hails Proposed Meeting

LONDON (AP)—West European press today welcomed the proposed top-level Big Four talks but cautioned against undue hopes of an East-West settlement soon.

News of the Western Allies' invitation to Russian Premier Bulganin to participate in a heads of state conference was given page one prominence in most Western capitals. There was general agreement the Kremlin would accept. London's Conservative newspapers hailed the move as enhancing prospects of victory for Prime Minister Eden's forces in the May 26 general elections.

In West Germany — whose future is bound up with Big Four decisions — the Frankfurter Allgemeine said editorially "It seems impossible that a compromise (on neutral tensions) can be reached among the four powers." It added that the main aim of the conference is "to show the world that no agreement is possible (with Russia) and that Germany must rearm as fast as possible."

Hamburg's Die Welt, however, said that the West "must now work out concrete plans for solution of the German problem—plans which have a chance of being accepted by the Russians."

One of the few Communist comments, in East Berlin's Neues Deutschland, said the Paris treaties rearming West Germany would have to be annulled before negotiations on German reunification. "It is evident that Dulles, Eden and Adenauer do not have that in mind," added the paper, which is the organ of the East German Communist party.

London's Red Daily Worker sounded the same note, warning "there can be no successful four-power conference of heads of governments if the decision to create a huge West German army is adhered to."

The French Communist party's mouthpiece, L'Humanite, indicated Soviet acceptance of the Western invitation. "One can be sure that the U.S.S.R. will take into consideration all the elements of the situation to elaborate an answer susceptible of favoring an easing of international tensions," it declared.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian summed up British press reaction with: "The meeting will be welcomed by nearly everyone in Western countries, and for that matter, probably throughout the world. It brings with it the hope that tension will be relaxed and the threat of war reduced. What better hope could there be?" All shades of British political opinion have urged top-level Big Four talks.

In Paris, the independent Le Figaro reminded the West of the "lessons of a recent past," and said, "the Soviet diplomacy does not give something for nothing." Le Parisien Libre, independent, said it did not think the heads of government could arrive at firm decisions. The independent L'Aurore observed that, while the meeting may be a difficult one, "the only means of avoiding war still is to discuss the conditions of coexistence. One should not have too many illusions on the chances of success."

In Italy, the Big Four news was squeezed off most front pages by today's inauguration of President Giovanni Gronchi and internal politics. Il Messaggero, independent, headlined the conference as "a decisive step toward easing East-West tension."

London's Conservative Daily Telegraph crowed that "most prime ministers have to wait for history to fulfill their election promises, headlined the conference as the summit has already borne fruit."

Not One Bullet Hit U. S. Jets

TOKYO (AP)—In a rare response to a Peiping radio claim, the U. S. Air Force declared today not a single bullet hit eight American Sabre Jets in their dog fight with eight to 12 Red Chinese MIGs yesterday over the Yellow Sea.

Peiping radio last night said the MIGs shot down one Sabre and damaged two. Earlier the U. S. Air Force said two MIGs were shot down and a third probably destroyed, with all Sabres returning safely to their South Korean base.

The Red Chinese charged the Sabres with "grave military provocation—intrusion over Manchurian islands 40 miles southwest of the Red's Antung air base on the Yalu River.

There was no American comment on the Peiping charge of "provocation." But the original battle report said the MIGs attacked first over international waters of the Yellow Sea.

Includes Call For Arms Cut, Atomic Curbs

Soviet Offers Peace Plan

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union unveiled a world peace plan today calling for the immediate withdrawal of most foreign troops from both East and West Germany big power arms cuts and a controlled ban on atomic weapons.

The plan was made public a few hours before top Soviet officials gathered in Warsaw with leaders of their seven East European allied nations to establish a unified NATO-type alliance under a Russian commander.

The announcement also came shortly after the delivery of Western invitations for Soviet Premier Bulganin to meet with President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Faure for an informal discussion of world problems. There was no immediate Soviet reaction to the invitation, but it was believed here that Bulganin would accept.

The peace plan was circulated by the Soviet's Tass news agency, which said the proposals were contained in two declarations submitted as a resolution to the U.N. subcommittee on disarmament now holding closed sessions in London. Many of its provisions were similar to previous Soviet proposals.

The bid for the evacuation of foreign troops from Germany was contained in the first declaration, an eight-point general peace plan. It called on the U.N. Assembly to declare that "a weakening of international tension can be achieved by the immediate evacuation of troops of the Big Four powers from German territory, leaving limited contingents and police forces."

The Russians said these remaining contingents should be allowed to stay "pending the conclusion of an agreement on their full withdrawal."

The second declaration, containing specific disarmament proposals, listed the following three points as necessary to "free humanity from the threat of a new destructive war":

- 1. Full prohibition of the use and production of nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction and the diversion of this potential energy to peaceful uses.
- 2. Substantial reduction of all armed forces and conventional arms.
- 3. Setting up of a control organ with right and authority guaranteeing effective observation by all countries of this prohibition and reduction.

RALEIGH (AP)—Atty. Gen. Harry McMillan told the House Education Committee today—in effect—he believes provisions of the State Constitution requiring segregated schools would be declared unconstitutional if tested in the courts.

After hearing the attorney general's opinion read, the committee killed by postponing indefinitely a measure by Rep. B. I. Satterfield of Person which would have ordered the withholding of state school funds from any school district that attempted to operate mixed schools.

In an opinion which had been requested by Satterfield, McMillan said the decision of the Supreme Court that school segregation is unconstitutional overruled former decisions which permitted segregated schools on a separate but equal basis. He added:

"The decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States interpreting the Federal Constitution, being the supreme law of the land, would necessarily result, when tested in the courts in invalidating the provisions of our Constitution providing for separate schools for the races."

"For the reasons stated, it is quite likely in my opinion, that the courts would hold that the withdrawal of appropriations from public schools when operated on a non-segregated basis would be a violation of the 14th Amendment to the Federal Constitution, since the appropriations will have been made and the act (Satterfield's bill) provides for the withdrawal of these appropriations in case of the operation of non-segregated schools."

Headquarters for the sale was at the Woman's Club House and several members of the club served doughnuts and Pepsis during and after the sale.

Young Tenor In Recital Sunday

Irving Emmis of Goldsboro, senior at East Carolina College, will appear at the college Sunday afternoon, May 15, in his graduating song recital. The program is scheduled for 4 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium and will be open to the public.

The young tenor will be presented by the East Carolina department of music as one of a small group of senior students selected to give public programs prior to completing their work in music. Joan McKenzie of Wilmington, student pianist, will be accompanist.

Mr. Emmis, a pupil of Paul A. Hickfang of the college faculty, has chosen for the afternoon's program a dozen songs ranging from the classic to the modern in composition. Included will be Handel's "Where'er You Walk," "Ah, si, ben mio" from Verdi's "Il Trovatore," selections by Brahms and Hugo Wolf, and three songs from Shakespeare's plays in arrangements by Quilter.

Mr. Emmis has appeared as soloist in the annual presentation of "The Messiah" at the college and has had leading roles in "The Student Prince" and "Blossom Time," musicals presented by the East Carolina Student Government Association. He is a member of the College Choir, the Varsity Glee Club, and the College Singers.

Drying Flowers Subject of Talk For Lakewood Pines Club

On Tuesday morning the Lakewood Pines Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. J. T. Barnhill. On arrival the members were served coffee and assorted rolls and donuts.

The president, Mrs. R. W. Lowe, welcomed new members Mrs. R. L. Powell and Mrs. A. T. Bilbro. Congratulations were extended to Mrs. R. P. Heller and her committee for the excellent job they did on the flower cart for the Sidewalk Art Show. Mrs. C. S. McCandlish distributed yearbooks for the coming year.

Mrs. Bilbro introduced the guest speaker of the day, Mrs. W. J. Stell of Greenville, who spoke on her hobby of drying flowers. She told about gathering materials at this time of year from gardens and roadside, how to go about drying them, and then showed several lovely arrangements containing these things.

Malvina Crawford-Mr. Stoddard Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

Miss Malvina M. Crawford became the bride of Francis Eugene Stoddard on April 16 in a ceremony solemnized in the Calvary Methodist Church, Washington, D. C.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray H. Crawford of Greenville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. La Verne Stoddard of De Pere, Wisconsin.

The church was decorated with baskets of white spring flowers. Rev. Donald C. Woods performed the double-ring ceremony. Mr. Louis Potter of Washington, D. C. organist, and Isolda Sehn of Washington, D. C. soloist, presented a program of nuptial music.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. John Dills, Washington, D. C., a friend of the bride. She wore an imported lace over satin ankle length dress. Her headdress was a fingertip veil attached to a coronet of seeded pearls. She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid.

Mrs. James Earl Gatlin was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Phyllis Nevitt of Bedford, Pa., Miss Katherine Miller of Rome, Ga., and Miss Margie Cullipher of Williamston. The attendants wore ankle length evening dresses of pastel colors and carried bouquets of spring flowers.

Mr. James Earl Gatlin, brother-in-law of the bride, attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Mr. David Harp, Ronald West and Mr. Alex Alexandra, all of Washington, D. C.

For a cross country trip to Madison, Wis., the bride wore a powder blue linen suit with navy blue accessories. Upon their return they will make their home in Madison. After graduating from high school the bride attended Louisiana College, Louisiana, N. C.

Genius Of da Vinci Was Shown In Recent Film

By GEORGE E. PERRY

The monumental genius of Leonardo da Vinci was convincingly shown in the movie on his life and work which was given several screenings here in Greenville as one of the highlights of the Fine Arts Festival. This motion picture, which was presented through the sponsorship of the local book clubs, came close to being several college courses condensed into a highly concentrated 68 minutes.

Bethel P.T.A. Elects Officers

BETHEL—The last meeting of the school year of the Bethel Parent-Teachers Association was held in the high school on Thursday night.

The meeting began by Miss Marion Burton reading Matthew 25:14-29 verses. She read an impressive article from the "Upper Room" and closed with a short prayer.

The business meeting was then held and the Rev. Tom N. Cooper presided due to the absence of the president. The new officers for next year are as follows: president, Win-fred Thippen; vice-president, Rev. Cooper; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Willard Whitehurst. Mr. W. C. Latham reported that the tennis court was completed and located on the east side of the school.

The program for the night was a visit to the agricultural building, the science department, the history department and the English department.

The vocational building was explained by a group of the scouts. The first room entered was the classroom and then the workshop. Book shelves, tables, cedar chests and many other articles were on exhibit. The group thoroughly enjoyed this tour and the teacher is Mr. Sam D. Dewar.

The teacher of the science department, Mr. Dan Nicholson, and the student teacher greeted the members in the science room. Several of the scouts gave interesting experiments and notebooks were observed.

The English and history departments were visited and notebooks, short stories and maps were viewed, which were very informative. The teacher for the English department is Miss Janice Albritton and the social studies teacher is Mrs. W. C. Latham.

Firstly, da Vinci was an artist, and so he naturally known most widely for his creations in this medium, especially for the Mona Lisa and the Last Supper. But art, as a separate item, was only one of the many other aspects of his genius.

Usually forgotten is that he was also mathematician, inventor, scientist, astronomer, philosopher, architect, military engineer, musician, physicist, medic, and writer, and as each, da Vinci was centuries ahead of his time. One of his astounding characteristics was his astounding integration of all of his abilities; each art and science into which he delved formed for da Vinci a chain of correlated knowledge, each phase therein as important as the next. This, plus his prophetic vision allowing him to bring advancement into all his fields of endeavor, were two facts widely emphasized in the film.

The da Vinci scrapbooks must be veritable storehouses of knowledge, and in the picture the audience was given many glimpses into them, both in his drawings which were vibrantly alive with motion, and his magnificent use of language. Several of his statements are almost literary gems. "Geometric figures constitute the key to the mysteries of the world." "The Eye is the window of the soul through which the beauty of the world is reflected." "He never loses his way who is led by a star." "Motion is the cause of all life." These four statements gave a glimpse into da Vinci's marvelous philosophy.

The film is a photographic masterpiece in a combination of gorgeous natural color, sepia, and black and white. The camera technique was excellent, with plenty of close-up shots enabling one to see the intricate details of da Vinci's paintings, sketches and working drawings. The music, while not outstanding, made a nice background for the aural and visual aspects of the picture.

It is easy to see why this picture was the 1952 winner of the Venetian Film Award, for it is an artistic achievement of the highest calibre. Aside from this, it never lagged, which is unusual for a film of this kind. It was like a conducted tour through the most famous galleries of the world, with exciting and different things to see with each step of the foot.

Mrs. Manning Hostess To Bridge Club

BETHEL—Mrs. X. E. Manning was the gracious hostess on Tuesday afternoon when she entertained members of her bridge club and invited guests at her home. The living room was very lovely with vases of roses.

Between the progressions, Mrs. Manning served a delectable salad plate with Coca-Colas to her guests.

When the scores were added, high score prize was awarded to Mrs. Walter C. Whitehurst.

Others who played were Mesdames Joe Butterworth, R. J. Whitehurst, Clayton Carson, William Andrews, Ralph Carson, R. P. Michaels Jr. and the hostess.

Driver Unhurt As Car Hit Tree

William Frank Haddock, 43, of 113 E. 12th Street, escaped injury early last night when the car he was driving went out of control and crashed into a tree on West Third Street.

Haddock told investigating officer Kenneth Warren that headlights from an oncoming car blinded him and caused him to lose control of the vehicle. Damage to Haddock's car was estimated at $550. No charges were placed.

Shopping Trip Can Deter Critics

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

The best way to keep your husband from making cracks about your new hat is to take him along when you buy it, says Sally Victor, who has been designing feminine headgear for more than 2 years.

"When a man has a chance to help his wife choose a hat, chances are he'll get more enthusiastic than she is," says Sally. "Sometimes he will urge her to select more than one."

"I'm always delighted when a customer brings her husband along. That means she won't be sending the hat back next day, saying 'My husband wouldn't let me keep it.'"

"Besides, men are good hat critics. They are interested only in what makes a woman look pretty—not in what is the current fad. If you want a really honest opinion on a new hat, go to a man every time."

Sally can back up her statements with impressive examples. President Eisenhower is one of the most ardent admirers of his wife's pretty hats, all of which are made by Mrs. Victor. Several times a year Sally appears at the White House, complete with hat boxes, and there is a long, happy and typically feminine session between designer and First Lady, while Mamie selects her hats for the coming season.

"I agree with the men," says Sally, "that the only sensible reason for wearing a hat is because it makes you look pretty. No woman really wears a hat to keep her head warm, or to keep off the rain. But no really smart woman feels properly dressed for the street without a hat."

Though she likes for women customers to bring their husbands along shopping, Sally has other ideas about men who come in to select hats to surprise their wives.

"This is a practice which should be firmly discouraged," she says. "How can a man buy a hat for his wife, unless he sees it on her?"

Belhaven Student To Be Club President

Frank Keaton of Belhaven will head the Canterbury Club of Episcopal students at East Carolina College during the 1955-1956 school year. Working under the direction of the Rev. Edward C. Sharp, curate of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Greenville, the organization carries out a program of religious and social activities during the school year.

Other officers chosen to serve with President Keaton include Edith Rogers of Raleigh, vice president; Sally Ottaway of Wilmington, secretary; and Vivian Hewett of Wilmington, treasurer.

To Give Recital

Joan Melton of Albemarle, talented young pianist, will appear in recital at East Carolina College Thursday afternoon of this week, May 12, at 4 p.m. in the Austin auditorium. The program, sponsored by the college department of music, will be open to the public.

As a pianist Miss Melton has received state, regional, and national honors and has four times appeared as soloist with the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra. Next fall she will enroll at East Carolina and will study piano with Dr. Robert Carter of the faculty.

Girl Injured In Fall From Car

A teenage Lawrence Street girl suffered lacerations of the knees and arms yesterday when she apparently fell from the running board of a car as it was stopping to let her off at her home.

Mary Kathryn Johnson, 16, of 905 Lawrence Street, was treated at Pitt Hospital for injuries believed not serious following the accident. Driver of the vehicle was listed by police as James Ficklen Arthur, 17, of 404 E. 14th Street. No arrests were made by Patrolman J. E. Gurganus.

Raleigh Distributor Is Speaker At Appliance Dealers Ass'n Meeting

C. R. Philpott of Raleigh was guest speaker at a meeting of the Greenville Appliance Dealers Association last night.

Speaking as an appliance distributor, Philpott explained that his plan of operation "is to sell to legitimate merchants so they in turn can give good prices." He emphasized advertising and giving to customers quality, terms and service.

"Don't try to meet prices," Philpott said. "Sell the merits of your merchandise, service it, and you will sell your products."

Association Chairman Ed Tipton introduced the speaker.

Robert Elks reported on a meeting of the newly organized Rocky Mount Appliance Dealers Association which he attended Monday night. Elks explained to the Rocky Mount group the operation plan of the local organization, stating that its main purpose is "credits."

The Greenville Association voted to cooperate with the voluntary auto inspection to be sponsored by the North Carolina Highway Patrol and the Junior Chamber of Commerce May 23-27.

The group decided to discontinue its regular meetings during the summer, giving the chairman authority to call a special meeting in the event a matter that needs attention arises.

A Record Year In The Making

Maybe we shouldn't get over optimistic so early in the year but there are strong indications 1955 will be far and away the biggest building year in the history of Greenville.

Casual observers are aware a great deal of new construction work has been going on in the city since the first of the year. For many casual observers, it is difficult to compare from one year to the next the amount of construction simply by riding around town and seeing new houses and buildings go up.

It may sound phenomenal, but during the first four months of this year building permits issued by the city amounted to $1,164,200—more than the total value of permits issued in either 1946 or 1949. It was the first time in history that building permits issued in Greenville reached the million dollar mark during the first four months of the year.

Equally significant is the fact that permits for construction of residential units during the first one-third of 1955 amounted to $1,111,300, more than 95 per cent of the total value of the permits. From January through April of this year permits were issued for 91 dwellings and 10 duplex apartments. During the corresponding period last year permits were issued for only 24 dwellings and nine duplex apartments. During the entire year of 1953 permits were issued in Greenville for the construction of only 90 dwellings.

Although Greenville this year may not reach the peak figure of 299 dwellings for which construction permits were issued in the record year of 1950, it appears the total value of construction permits this year will go beyond the 1950 record of $1,984,200.

They Can't Be Too Careful

The halt called on the anti-polio vaccination program by the U. S. Surgeon General gives no cause of alarm for youngsters who already have received the vaccination.

Public health officials on both the state and national levels as well as on the local level have reiterated time and again their confidence in the Salk vaccine with which some nine million first and second graders have been inoculated. The halt called in the giving of the shots is for the purpose of making another thorough check to ascertain whether any of the vaccine which is being made is defective. In an undertaking of this proportion, health officials cannot be too careful. They are expected to and, as evidenced by this latest action, do take every possible precaution to insure the safety of the public.

Certainly public confidence in the Salk vaccine should not be shaken by this latest development in the anti-polio inoculation program.

Strength for the Day

Life has in it all the possibilities of good and evil. We read the newspapers every day and listen to the radio broadcasts, and we wonder if national and international problems will ever get settled. The answer of course is that they never will. Life is a constant turmoil attempting to find balance. It is like the tightrope walker over a chasm, swaying from side to side and only by dint of the greatest effort keeping himself from disaster. Every situation in life has in it possibilities that may lead us to unhappiness and ruin, and every situation, no matter how sorrowful it appears, has in it the possibilities of glory and great joy. If we allow Him to do so, God makes all things work together for good.

Among South American Indians, the yuca was long used in making bread. Yet this yuca is so poisonous that only a few drops of its juice would, in a few minutes, kill a condemned prisoner. But the mealy substance of yuca provides flour for the people. Poison and food! Used the one way, yuca is bread; used another way it is a devastating poison. So it is with life and the things of life. They may be bread or poison, according to the way we use them and the motives by which we are swayed. To change the figure—life consists in walking a tightrope and keeping our balance. Or, as we reminded ourselves yesterday, crisis is both danger and opportunity.

Eisenhower's Demo Helpers

WASHINGTON—Two distinguished Southern Democratic Senators are engineering President Eisenhower's legislative program through Congress, and thereby making it almost impossible for their Party to attack Ike on Capitol Hill or in the 1956 campaign. It is such a confusing situation that it is comical. Ike's loyal lieutenants are Senator Walter F. George of Georgia and Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, the sons of Sherman's belated march and Lee's sorrowful surrender, respectively. Their eminence in Democratic history and councils is reflected in the fact that George heads Senate Foreign Relations, while Byrd is chairman of Senate Finance. With respect to foreign and domestic legislation, these are the two most influential committees on the Senate side of the Capitol.

PRESTIGE OF TWO SOUTHERN SENATORS—Their most important contribution to Ike's legislative success, however, has not been the mere enactment of individual measures. So great is their prestige that their co-operation with the White House prevents the Democrats from harassing Ike in the grand manner. To do so would be to repudiate these two veteran spokesmen of the Party.

It was Senator George, for instance, who guided to Congressional approval the resolution which gave Eisenhower a blank check with regard to defense of Formosa, the Pescadore and "related regions," meaning Quemoy and Matsu. George endorsed this grant of authority in the face of a critical memorandum circulated secretly by the Democratic National Committee.

This document questioned the wisdom of such a broad commitment, and it was designed to furnish the opposition with an issue on the Far East question, especially if war should develop. George brushed it aside disdainfully. MADE DECISION STICK—Senators George and Byrd collaborated to spike House Democrats' efforts to propound a million of small taxayers. Led by Speaker Sam Rayburn and House Majority Leader John W. McCormack, the opposition in the lower chamber fathered a proposal for an across-the-board $20 tax cut, as well as increased exemptions. Leading advocates of orderly finances, the two

An Undeserved Place Of Honor For The Ramp

People numbering in the thousands gather every spring to honor the ramp... probably one of the least-deserving edible weeds produced by Mother Earth.

Matter of fact, the ramp hardly qualifies as being edible; being given a passing grade (we assume) on the basis of its non-poisonous status.

This is demonstrably recognized by folk who pay it homage. They hide their target of non-culinary affection (or affliction) under hundreds of pounds of cured ham, barbecue, cornpone, cole slaw and tanks of coffee. The number of honest-to-goodness ramp eaters is non-existent; and only a few venture to sample the rampant weed as a matter of courage and to maintain tradition.

It is possible that a man, woman, child or grazing animal lost in the wilds might conceivably resort to eating ramp as an alternative to starvation; but we haven't heard of any such folly in recent times.

All eulogies notwithstanding, the ramp has contributed nothing to the kitchen, nothing to the treasury and nothing to the health of society. And to this latter thought we might add that rather than making the eater strong and healthy, he must be those things before indulging in ramp-eating.

No, the only honest asset left to the ramp is one bestowed by benevolent people who need an excuse for social gatherings in the wide-open spaces. For this purpose they have chosen the wild onion-like growth whose fragrance can come between eaters and non-eaters, splintering friendships and potential friendships.

Mankind's folly reaches new heights in the bestowal of honor where it is not deserved, come ramp-eating time.

Somebody Told Me

How Do We Feel About ECC?

A student at East Carolina College asked me this startling question: "What do Greenville people think of the college?"

On the other hand, it's amazing how far removed from a college town the student can be. So perhaps the question isn't so startling after all. When I was at Carolina I didn't have any idea what was going on in the town of Chapel Hill. In fact, I didn't even bother to read the Chapel Hill Weekly.

So it's not too surprising that a college student doesn't realize that we consider ECC one of our biggest assets. Of course the backside of Greenville. It's hard to compare the market with any other asset. Also, it's hard to compare the college. No doubt the average student at ECC doesn't realize the support given to the college by Greenville. Granted, we could do better. But Greenville people have put $20,000 in the scholarship fund. And of the $60,000 the football stadium cost, half was supplied by Greenville people.

The Pirates Club is a big factor, too. Fans not only from Greenville, but from surrounding towns, buy memberships that help support the athletic program. Of course this is not an outright contribution, for the purchaser receives tickets to the athletic events.

The student might wonder why more Greenville people do not attend college functions. That's a good question, because for the most part it's only the athletic events that pull good Greenville crowds. One factor is that Greenville people do not seem to keep up with the many interesting events in progress at the college. We have baby sitter problems; sometimes work so hard we don't feel like getting out at night.

This is where Greenville is missing the boat in not getting the maximum benefit from one of the city's greatest assets. I have always thought that students should be invited into our homes. Maybe if we just had one year for a meal it would help the relationship a great deal.

May I make this suggestion? In your association with college students, always let them know how great we think ECC is. And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE

(Wilson Times) With each passing day it looks more and more favorable for the Democratic nod to go to Adlai Stevenson again in 1956 if he wants it. Mr. Stevenson has not said yet whether he will be a candidate or whether he will accept the nomination should it come his way again. In 1952 many Democrats went to the national convention not knowing just how Mr. Stevenson would react to a draft. It was not until the final hours before the selection of a nominee that it was felt definitely that he would accept.

He did agree to run, and he polled more votes than any defeated candidate in history. Since 1952 there has been talk rampant that he would run again. But again he has not let his thoughts be known to the public. He did agree to run, and he polled more votes than any defeated candidate in history. Around Capitol Square

Oldest Assembly Members; Pioneering In Tax Policy

BY LYNN NISBET

SENIORITY—Almost every day around the capitol the question comes up about who of the 1955 members has served longest in the General Assembly. The record shows that of incumbents Bruce Etheridge of Dare had the earliest service, having been here in 1903, and his total regular terms in House and Senate add up to nine. Rep. Ed Johnson of Currituck has served more times than any other member, but with several breaks in his membership which began in 1909 and has run up a record of 13 regular sessions and two or three specials. Next in total service is Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan, who first came in 1931 and has been back except in 1933 and 1949 for a total of eleven regular sessions.

Speaker Larry I. Moore Jr. of Wilson and Rep. Sam Worthington of Pitt came first in 1941 and have been back every session for a total of nine consecutive terms each. They share the record for unbroken tenure in the House. John W. Umstead of Orange is doing his tenth legislature stint, having served in the Senate in 1931 and 1939 and the House continuously ever since. His House record of eight consecutive terms is matched by Rep. Alonzo Edwards of Greene.

Seniority honors must be awarded on different bases. For earlies, legislative service the award goes to Bruce Etheridge of Dare, and two years ago his colleagues presented him a gold watch for 50 years of public service. In age and for number of terms served honors go to 87-year-old Ed Johnson of Currituck for 13 terms. For consecutive service in the House honors are even between Larry Moore of Wilson and Sam Worthington of Pitt with nine terms each, and if the 1939 Senate term is counted John Umstead of Orange matches them.

TAX POLICY—D.L. (Libby) Ward of New Bern has some ideas about North Carolina tax policy. Although still a relatively young man his experience of five terms in the House of Representatives (including speakership in 1939) and three in the Senate, during which he served on money and other important committees and the advisory budget commission, to some degree at least qualifies him to speak with authority as an elder statesman. In an informal street corner conversation with several friends the other day Ward advanced the idea that the time has come for North Carolina to do some more pioneering. He recalls that North Carolina was the first State to assume full responsibility for the construction and maintenance of public roads without tax on property, and to take over operation of the public schools on the same basis.

When property was relieved of road and school burdens a number of other taxes were imposed or increased, with sales taxes taking most of the load. The highway bill was paid mainly by a fixed gallonage tax on gasoline and other motor fuel, and the general three percent sales tax levied primarily to support the schools. There have been minor adjustments up and down, exemptions authorized and revoked, then the Democrats will have a man available around which the plan rally now. But if the delegates must go to the convention not knowing what to expect, then the party could find itself in the same predicament it did in 1952.

There are other Democratic hopefuls, it is true. But not one of the would-be candidates has anything like the political personality of Mr. Stevenson. Governor Harriman of New York, Senator Kefauver of Tennessee, Governor Leader of Pennsylvania, Governor Meyner of New Jersey and Senator Russell of Georgia have all been mentioned at one time or another. But not one of them right now can take over the party like Mr. Stevenson can.

It might be good politics in most cases to be coy, but Mr. Stevenson is now in a position where he doesn't have to play it that way. He can have the nomination if he wants it. And if he will accept it, he should come out and say so.

Monopolies Due TV

By ELMER ROESSNER

Television may tend to create monopolies in the production of consumer goods, according to Victor Lebow, New York marketing consultant. It constitutes a threat to many national and private brands of merchandise.

Mr. Lebow made this point in writing on "Price Competition in 1955" in the spring issue of New York University's Journal of Retailing. Quoting him only slightly out of context: "To the producer, competition is an irritant and a source of insecurity. Therefore, his drive is toward monopoly. Since every producer wants to remove the obstacle to the most profitable sale of the largest practical volume of goods, his instinctive drive is to limit competition. The fact is that the essence of marketing strategy is to establish as many monopoly positions as possible. These may involve patents, trade marks, style leadership, exclusive arrangements of all kinds, the size or dominance of advertising and selling efforts, the extent to which the consumer's emotional attitudes toward his consumption can become the captive of the producer."

"Probably the most powerful weapon of the dominant producers lies in their use of television. To a greater degree than ever before a relative handful of products will share a monopoly of most of the leisure time of the American family. We will have over 30,000,000 television households next year. And television achieves three results to an extent no other advertising medium has ever approached. First, it creates a captive audience. Second, it submits that audience to the most intensive indoctrination. Third, it operates on the entire family."

The limited number of sponsors and the high cost of television, he added, combine to produce a growing threat to 25,000 nationally advertised brands and 300,000 or more private, store or regional brands which can't find time on TV.

"What the retailer should see is that, all of this pressure upon the consumer not only gives him innumerable choices, but actually strengthens his ability to reject the overwhelming proportion of those items proffered by our competitive economy."

Mr. Lebow is not alone in suspecting monopolistic influences in connection with television. The House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee is looking into the question of whether the two largest networks maintain monopolies of outlets and talent. BANKS LOOK AROUND FROM ECONOMIC PEAK

Lawmaking Britons Poorly Paid

By STANLEY GODFREY

(For Hal Boyle) LONDON (AP)—Capt. Robert Ryder, story book hero of World War II, is quitting the House of Commons. He cannot afford to be a member.

Ryder is one of many British MPs who, for financial reasons, could not run again for the May 26 general election. "I just can't live on the salary," he said in announcing he would not try to succeed himself.

Instead, the 47-year-old hero he commanded naval forces in the 1942 commando raid on St. Nazaire—plans to go into private business, where employers are more generous.

Ryder, who won the Victoria Cross, Britain's highest military award, is a Conservative, but money worries niggle at members from all parties. Tom Driberg, a popular Socialist broadcaster and freelance journalist also confessed openly that financial considerations kept him from running again.

Britain's MPs earn 1,000 pounds ($2,800) a year, with an expenses allowance of 2 pounds ($5.60) for each day they attend the House of Commons. This works out to roughly 24 pounds a week for full time attendance.

Out of that, an MP has to keep himself in London when the House is in session, hire secretarial help, entertain the constituents who "look in" at the House—and generally live up to being a member of Her Majesty's Parliament.

Most look longingly towards the United States, where members of Congress increased their pay to $22,500 a year under a bill passed in the current session. After income tax, social security deductions and expenses are paid, legislators here have less to keep a family on than the average bank clerk or the shorthand writers taking down their speeches in the House of Commons. Altogether, 40 legislators will not be running again for reelection. Some claim ill health, pressure of business or purely domestic reasons, but underlying the resignations, party leaders from both sides admit is a lot of financial worry.

Even Cabinet members and junior ministers have to watch the pennies. A parliamentary undersecretary who answers run of the mill questions in the House of Commons for his minister, draws a total of 2,000 pounds a year.

Cabinet minister earns 5,000 pounds and pays back an average of 2,000 in taxes. Last year, an all-party committee recommended a 500 pound raise for MPs. But Prime Minister Churchill said the government "did not feel justified" in raising MPs' pay while urging the nation's trade unions not to press for increases. Instead, he handed out the expenses allowances.

Several members combine their Westminster duties with other jobs. Laborite George Strauss inherited a big fortune and still manages to keep a watchful eye on the family metal broking business.

On the Conservative side, Sir Beverley Baxter drama critic, broadcaster and lecturer, makes a lucrative living by his pen. Foreign Minister Harold Macmillan heads the family publishing business.

But it's only men with non-fixed outside jobs who are able to combine earning and ruling. Its virtually impossible for any MP to carry out an ordinary job and still attend the House.

Because of the acute financial loss entailed, many men prominent in their own communities refuse to run for Parliament.

Rapid Transit Between Towns

PARIS, Ky. (AP) — "Walkin' Bob" Waugh's Pushcart Express is back in business between Paris and Carlisle. Citizens donated $15.85 to buy Bob a new two-wheeled rubber-tired pushcart after the old wheelbarrow he'd used for years collapsed. Bob often travels the 18 miles between the communities in five hours. He delivers orders of almost anything for individuals, frequently scattering handbills for merchants as he goes along. He has been known to turn down rides offered by passing motorists, saying "No thanks, I'm in a hurry."

Share Love For Marine Corps

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A 26-year-old Oklahoma City couple was on a second honeymoon today because of mutual love for the U.S. Marine Corps.

The complicated domestic affairs of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse V. Brashears were smoothed out last night in a second marriage at the Free Will Baptist Church.

They were first married Dec. 9. The following day Brashear, an aircraft mechanic, received notice to report to his draft board.

He had already decided he wanted to join the Marines and his wife was heartily in favor and, in fact, said she'd have him in no other service. The Marines were agreeable—except for one thing. They couldn't accept a married man.

The Brashears decided on a "friendly divorce." It was obtained Dec. 21 and the next day Brashears was off to San Diego for Marine training.

For 17 weeks the Leathernecks had a model trainee but some 1,500 miles away in Seminole, Okla., wife Jeannie was having a hard time keeping the separation a secret from the home folks.

The Brashears divulged their legal maneuver when they began to make plans for their marriage ceremony last night.

And will a new Marine assignment cause another separation? Not on a bet, says Jeannie. She's going right along with her husband to El Toro, Calif., after the one-week honeymoon.

AUDITORS' OPINION

We have examined the books of account and records of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Inc., Greenville, N. C., and present herewith our report showing the financial position of the Hospital at December 31, 1954, and the results of operations for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances, with the exception that we did not confirm the patients' accounts with the recorded debtors, nor were we present at the taking of the physical inventory.

Deacons Are Outhit, But Edge East Carolina By 11-10

Two Eighth Inning Runs Decided Issue

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Editor

KINSTON—Although outhit 18-8, Wake Forest capitalized on timely knocks and bases on balls to down East Carolina a second time, 11-10, here last night in one of the most exciting baseball games played this season.

Some 600 spectators turned out to see the two aspirant conference leaders and the show was a dilly. The game had everything, from power hitting to sparkling field play.

Wake Forest had to come from behind in the eighth inning to win. Trailing, 9-10, the Demon Deacons scored twice for the final margin. Fourth Pirates pitcher Bobby Fyfe loaded the bases up and walked across scores.

East Carolina had just previously caught the Deacons at 8-all and gone ahead 10-8 in the fifth frame by scoring six runs. The Pirates collected five hits in the rash, two of them extra-base blows.

After Ray Pennington fled out to the third baseman, Bucky Reep punched out a single and pitcher Herb Corey drew a walk. Jerry Stewart came through with a timely single, scoring Reep. Cecil Heath was safe on a fielder's choice that caught Stewart at second. Leftfielder Gaither Cline rapped out his third straight hit, scoring Corey. Heath stroled home a moment later as the Deacon catcher threw wild trying to catch Cline at second.

Bill Cline was up next and walked. First baseman Nick Smothers then flexed his muscles and banged a 400-foot double against the center field wall, scoring both Clines. Smothers rode home on Gene Turner's duplicate 400-foot two-bagger against the left-centerfield fence. Pennington, who opened the inning, closed it by grounding out to the pitcher.

East Carolina did not score again. Wake Forest, on the other hand, picked up a tally in the sixth besides their two in the eighth and earlier inning scores.

The Pirates had a new hitting star in Nick Smothers. The blonde star sacker with the Goliath build had a perfect five-for-five four singles and a double. He drove in four runs and played errorless ball in the field.

Gaither Cline had four hits in six official times at bat. His first four times up he hit safely. Bucky Reep was the other Pirate to collect more than one hit. He batted

Heavy Hitters In Greenville's Lineup

Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets smashed out 23 hits yesterday afternoon as they routed the Greenville Phantoms 21-5 at Guy Smith Stadium in a Northeastern Conference game.

The Roanoke team got its scoring win of the season against the Greenies in the game and showed Coach Bo Farley's boys right out of the first division in the league play.

Greenville now has won four conference games and has lost five games. Friday afternoon the local baseballers get a chance to even their state when they play host to Jacksonville.

Miller Belted Out
Righthander Hudson Miller started on the mound for the Greenies, but was belted out of the box in the second inning on a six run outburst. Ike Riddick, who had not pitched all year, came on to relieve and ratted the side but was met by an onslaught in the next frame. Charles Rumley finished up on the mound in the game that was stopped after five innings.

Charles Smith, sophomore outfielder, was the only Greenville player that got more than one hit during the game. Smith singled, doubled, and walked for a perfect day at the plate. In all the Phantoms could get only six hits.

With two more games on the schedule the Phantoms must win both to even the season over the 500 mark. After the Jacksonville contest Friday, the G-men meet Kinston on the 17th. Two wins would give the Greenies a season mark of 6-5 in conference play.

WASHED OFF BOAT
BODEGA BAY, Calif. (AP)—A huge ground swell washed seven men off a chartered fishing boat yesterday. Pete Mancuso, Alvarano; Curt Rich, Boyes Springs; and Chelo Pedrechillo, Sonoma, were drowned. Another fishing boat rescued the four others including Capt. Roy K. Faught, owner of the chartered craft.

Soap Box Derby Set In Kinston June 26

KINSTON—The winner of Eastern Carolina's only Soap Box Derby here June 26 will be awarded an all expense paid trip to Soap Box Derby Finals at Akron, Ohio for a shot at a $5,000 scholarship.

The plans for holding the annual classic are well underway now with Co-Chairmen Bob Graham and Graham Knott expecting at least 100 entrants.

The lucky lad who cops first place will get the coveted T.H. Keating award, various prizes from local merchants and county-wide honor. The derby, sponsored by The Free Press, Junior Chamber of Commerce and Harvey Motor

Ayden Tops Robersonville To Clinch Conference Title

AYDEN—On Friday Ayden defeated Robersonville 7 to 1 to win the Coastal Conference title. Lindy Dunn pitched a one-hitter for the Tornados. Ben Stevenson pitched for the Robersonville Rams.

This was a team victory as the fellows have hustled all season for this big one. Ayden finished the season with a record of 8-1. The only team to defeat the Tornados was Contentnea.

Behind the successful pitching arms of Lindy "Leo" Dunn and Tommy Edwards the Tornados had their most successful season since 1951. The Tornados were led by outfielders Melvin and Milton Worthington, infielders Sydney Britt, Bobby Barfield, and Tommy Edwards. Other members of the team are Thurman Worthington, Ikey Baldrac, Bobby Harris, and Lathan Dennis.

The Tornados got their runs against Robersonville in two in-

Judicial Note Of Batting Slump

BOSTON (AP)—Judicial notice of the Boston Red Sox hitting slump was taken Tuesday by Suffolk Superior Court Judge Thomas H. Dowd.

Mary Sullivan of Holyoke had brought a $250,000 suit against the Boston American League Baseball Co. for injuries she said she suffered when struck by a foul ball.

"What date was this?" Judge Dowd asked.

"July 16, 1951," he was told. Judge Dowd directed a verdict in favor of the club, ruling there was no liability on its part.

Then he observed: "The lady could go up there today and hit perfectly safe. They can't even hit a foul ball."

Claude King (above) of East Carolina College won his second straight North State Conference individual golf title in Greensboro yesterday with a 36-hole score of 146, four over par.

King, regular fullback for ECC's 1954 football team, fired a par 71 yesterday to finish six strokes ahead of his nearest competitor.

Bill Greene of Appalachian was second with 152 followed by John Brodyhill of Appalachian and Bobby Loy of Elon, both with 154.

An aggregate of 644 strokes gave ECC the team championship. Appalachian was second with 651.

Cockell Trainers Voice Concern Over Drug Use

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It might not be common knowledge in this country, but there has been a serious "nobboling" fight for the past several days in the training camp of Don Cockell, the British challenger for Rocky Marciano's heavyweight title.

We might not have heard of it either, and so would have missed one of the really significant pre-fight incidents, had we not been fortunate enough to browse through London's weekend sports pages.

"Nobbler Guard for Don Cockell," shouts the headline in the London Herald. "Dope Scare Alerts Cockell Camp," says the News Chronicle. "Cockell Camp Fights Ban on Food Gifts After Drug Scare," cries the Daily Express in black type. That gives an idea.

As the reader may have gathered by this time, to "nobb" a man—or a horse—in Cockell's homeland means, roughly, to slip him a mick. The alarm in the challenger's camp near San Francisco arose from the suspicion that Harold Johnson, one of our best

Kell Had Homer On Hit-Run Play

BOSTON (AP)—George Kell, Chicago White Sox third baseman, said his game-winning two-run homer yesterday against Boston came on a hit and run play.

Kell, a righthanded batter, slamed a Tom Brewer pitch down the rightfield line into the pavilion in the eighth inning to give Chicago a 4-2 win.

"It was the first time I ever hit a home run on a hit-and-run play," Kell said afterward. "I was trying to knock the ball down the line to move Mino (outfielder Minnie Minoso who had walked) around."

Manager Simpson told the Express' representative:

"This ban may look sensational to the folks back home, but if this can happen in a fight with nothing at stake we cannot be too careful with the world title as the prize." To which the Express expert added the opinion that "Simpson's decision is sensible and necessary—there is fantastic gambling on this fight."

Japanese Ferry Boat Crash Takes Heavy Toll Of Lives

By GENE KRAMER
TAKAMATSU, Japan—Two big ferry boats crashed together in thick fog today, throwing 779 passengers—half of them schoolchildren—into the cold waters of Japan's inland sea.

With a gaping hole in its side, the Shium Maru sank in only five minutes. There was panic and chaos in the mad scramble for life.

A total of 143 were listed as dead or unaccounted for.

Sixty-five bodies have been recovered.

Six hundred ninety-two were saved, including 51 injured.

It was Japan's worst sea disaster since last September's typhoon drowned 1,600 off Hokkaido in five sinkings. The capsizing of the huge ocean ferry Toya Maru cost 1,200 lives.

Today the 1,500-ton Shium Maru apparently swerved in heavy fog to avoid a small fishing craft—right into the steel bows of the 1,200-ton rail car ferry Udaka Maru. The car ferry ripped a great gash in the Shium Maru's steel plates.

The Shium Maru's passengers—300 of them schoolchildren—clawed frantically for life jackets on the reeling decks.

"I suspect about 50 of them went down with the ship, or were pulled down with it," said Maj. Robert R. Dobson, Charlotte, N.C., commanding an American Army mercy mission.

Dobson led three Army ambulance helicopters and two liaison planes to help evacuate the injured and search for the missing.

The search found no bodies, Dobson said.

Japanese planes and a swarm of small boats also searched.

The ferries collided between Takamatsu on Shikoku Island and the port of Okayama on the main island, Honshu. The Shium Maru was 20 minutes out of Takamatsu and the Udaka Maru was coming from Uno across an 11-mile arm of the island-studded inland sea.

Both ships were using radar, said Japan National Railway officials.

Capt. Minoru Miyake, master of the Udaka Maru, said he had been tracking the Shium Maru for two miles.

Capt. Masao Nakamura, the Shium Maru's skipper went down with his ship, JNR said.

Yoshitaka Ishimoto, Hiroshima teacher, said 20 girls in his grade school class, "went with the ship" because they didn't want to leave behind their trip souvenirs. Despite his shouts to "Leave your things—Jump," the girls ran back to the cabins.

Tetsuo Hanawa 51, of Takamatsu, saved his life by jumping from the Shium Maru to the other ferry. "She star... to roll," he said, "and I just jumped to the deck of the Udaka Maru."

The Shium Maru, an underwater tomb, lay on its side, barely submerged and clearly visible from the air.

Survivors said the ship heeled suddenly on its side before its final plunge.

Teen-age Turnout

By MARY WILL LONG and FRANCES ADAMS

Members of the two upper classes of G.H.S. attended the long anticipated Junior-Senior banquet and dance Friday night. The evening began with the banquet at the East Carolina College dining hall. The delicious menu consisted of a fruit juice appetizer, barbecued chicken, candied yams, lima beans, salad, rolls, iced tea, and strawberry shortcake. Various toasts were offered during the meal by Harold Edwards, president of the junior class; Betty Collins, president of the senior class; John Brooks, vice-president of the junior class; Larry Powell, vice-president of the junior class; Ronita Respass, secretary of the junior class; Tommy Key Norris, treasurer of the junior class; Mrs. Elizabeth Mims, a senior adviser, and Superintendent of schools, Mr. J. H. Rose.

The theme, "Arabian Nights," was carried out at the banquet. As entertainment Patsy "Zenobia" Madry sang "Stamboul." Lib Rogers and Patsy James, two harem girls, performed an Arabian dance. The A.B.C. trio sang "You Belong to Me." The big hit of the night was "All and Baba" Billy Johnson and Thomas Whitaker who entertained as comedians.

Proud Tradition Of City Govm't

STAUNTON, Va. (AP)—This city which claims to have given birth to the city manager form of government, is also proud of its mayor, William A. Grubert.

Mayor Grubert, now 85, has been mayor since 1943, a member of the city council since 1932 and the only living man who had a hand in the formation of the city manager form. He was president of the Board of Aldermen from 1906 to 1908 and it was on January 13, 1908, that the city manager program was adopted.

Japanese planes and a swarm of small boats also searched.

The ferries collided between Takamatsu on Shikoku Island and the port of Okayama on the main island, Honshu. The Shium Maru was 20 minutes out of Takamatsu and the Udaka Maru was coming from Uno across an 11-mile arm of the island-studded inland sea.

Found It Cheaper To Burn Building

BREVARD, N.C. (AP)—After taking bids on the razing of an outmoded house on the campus, Brevard College took a cheaper way out and had the building burned.

Cooperating was the fire department, which used the flaming structure for a fire-fighting demonstration.

Boys Entertain at Open House
 Flick Arthur, Steve Wilkerson and Donald Conley invited members of the junior and senior classes and members of the faculty to open house at Fick's between the banquet and the dance. Guests who enjoyed delicious refreshments swarmed over the yard and house.

"Collegians" Play
 The dance began at 8:30 with music furnished by the "Collegians." The gymnasium of the high school was very attractively decorated. The decorations including life-size harem girls, Arabians on horsebacks, an oasis, etc.

The floor show was in the form of entertainment for an Arabian sheik. Two small acrobats "wowed" the audience with their acrobatic dance. All and Baba again returned on the scene to entertain with their impersonations and jokes Grayson Waldrop, Betty Sugg, and Nancy Harris, then sang "My Desert Is Calling." Joanna Rooke did a very exotic dance. As a finale the sheik's harem girls including Jean Moye, Camilla Henderson, Ann Norris, Cynthia Cranford, and Ginger Ross.

Parties After Dance
 The merry-makers headed for various parties after the dance. Things were really "jumping" at Respass-James' Those who attended "whooped" it up to the music of the "Midnighters." Some "gone" boppers were James Hudson, Ann Hamric, Kathryn Johnson, Bob Shackelford, Dornning Jenkins, Jay Robbins, and Ricky Humbert. The party was planned by a group of boys among which were Pat Sawyer and Tommy Saled. By the way, all the fun wasn't free. Tickets were sold for $1.25 a couple.

Sara Ewell invited a few of her friends to her house for refreshments and "socializing." As dawn was breaking, a number of weary party-goers drove out to Lois Simmons' home near Pactolus for breakfast.

Gourmet Meal For Seniors Only

WILLIAMSTOWN Mass. (AP)—Each of 100 seniors who eat at the Williams College dining hall has one gourmet meal during the year. Sydney M. Chisholm director of dining halls started the program with the cooperation of chef Ugo Schiappa and baker William Pratt.

Each Wednesday there is a special table for eight. Such things as baba au rhum, oysters on the half shell, frog legs Provencal, baked boneless squab stuffed with wild rice, bisque tortonia and crepe suzettes are some of the items that have been served.

Chisholm says studies and appetites fall off during the year and the special meals are a stimulant for students. No extra charge is made and the idea has proved popular.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN.

The local radio station was to broadcast the convocation. Landon tuned it in. The ritual of the ceremony its beginnings lost in academic history. Maggie would close her eyes and see it all. . . . The procession across the campus; members of the college board of governors, faculty heads of affiliated and constituent colleges, representatives of student government, the candidates for the honorary degree. The placing of the silver mace, the prayer of invocation, the benediction. . . . All of heightened significance today, on this 100th anniversary of Windermere's founding and of particular interest to Maggie because of the part Eric would play. . . . Landon turned the volume low. A faculty reception would follow convocation, and if Eric missed that, after weeks of anticipation, he would be bitterly disappointed. Landon called the Kennedy's.

No answer. But, of course, they were at the university. She drew back the drapes and stood by the window, watching for Eric's car, was standing there when Bill Kennedy telephoned.

"I haven't seen Eric around," Bill said. "Is he—"

"Bill," she interrupted. "Bill I tried to call you. He isn't here. Eric is not here."

"On his way over, is he?"

"No. No, he hasn't come back from Creighton."

"What on earth is he doing in Creighton?"

"Around noon he phoned. He said he was driving Kay Ireland to the airport?"

Bill chuckled. "I bet she's off to Japan."

Japan she thought, vaguely, only just hearing it. She said, "He has had time to get to the airport and back Bill."

"Rule out an accident, if that is worrying you," Bill advised. "Eric is a safe and sensible driver. If anything, that worn-out old jalopy of his has broken down. Ten to one he is in some service station, jacked up, and chewing his fingernails."

"His book," she said. "He worked so hard to get it done for today."

"It is there, is it?"

"Yes, it's here."

"I'll have over for it."

"Oh Bill, would you?"

"I'll think up an 'on behalf of the author' speech on the way over."

"Thank you, Bill."

She hung up.

Five minutes later the telephone rang, and she sprang for it. "Yes?"

she said breathlessly. It was Eric. "Landon?" he said. "Oh, Eric! Where are you?"

"Hospital."

"You're hurt!" She felt alarm ice her veins. "Eric—"

"Now, youngster," he said soothingly. "I'm all right. I have a taped up nose and a peach of a black-eye that's all—not counting sundry bruises."

"Whatever hap—?"

"A bug flew into my eye," he said.

"A what?"

"Blinded me temporarily. Some sort of insect. It felt like a foot-ball. Lucky I was only going 30 when I slid off the road—into a parked truck. I was out like a light. I came to here, at the Creighton hospital."

"I'll come. I'll come right away."

"No need. I'll be here overnight, for the X-ray results, will you?"

"No use upsetting her."

"She will be tuned to the broadcast. When you aren't there."

"That's right," he said. "I'll call her, then." She heard his chuckle. "D'you suppose when she sees my banged-up nose and black eye she'll believe I ran into a five-ton truck?"

"His irrelevant highness, after all her worrying!" she said, rebukingly. "Bill is coming for your book."

"Well, fine." He sounded matter-of-fact almost indifferent, as if his deepest attentions were already engaged somewhere else.

"No," she said. "Landon stood a moment, her hand on the receiver. Her immense relief over Eric's safety was fading with marvellous quickness. An edge of bitterness was creeping in. Kay Ireland was responsible for everything gone wrong with the day; for Eric's accident which only by chance was not serious, for Eric missing the ceremony, for worrying Maggie and she certainly would worry. What possible right had Kay Ireland to impose on Eric's time to make demands on him? Balanced on a sub-point of logic the question answered itself: As much right as I have to be angry and jealous."

The next morning Landon spent outside, working peat moss into the clay so that, when the risk of a late frost was over, she could plant salvias. Shortly before noon, she heard the bleat of a horn, saw Eric's car turn into the driveway. She wiped her grubby hands on her dungarees and walked toward him, feeling her heart beginning to pound.

"You are all right," she said. "Unknowingly, her eyes betrayed her into the eloquence of truth, searching his with all the love of her heart. She said again, softly, "You're all right."

Eric stood back from her; something of eyes, a cautious, questioning look.

Landon felt color rushing up from her throat. She pushed back her hair with impatient hands, flung up her head. Her voice rang clearly, too loud. "It's all Kay's fault! Why did she have to have you drive her to the airport yesterday? Wasn't there someone else?" She stopped. The whipped-out words were a betrayal.

Eric looked down into her face. "Haven't you heard the news?"

"News?"

"Jarvis Ireland is alive. He is being flown to Japan. Kay is going there to be with him."

"Oh." Suddenly she threw out her hands her body straightened. "But why you? Why did you have to drive her to the airport?"

He stepped back from her. She saw his eyes following the waves of meaning across her face; she knew the exact instant of awareness, of awareness finally in him. She saw his eyes change. He was not seeing her, now, or even thinking of her. He was seeing and thinking of someone else. Maggie. . . .

She caught feverishly at his hands, and her eyes begged him to understand, to forgive her. And then she saw his eyes move back to her, felt his hands gently disengaging hers. "I am ashamed," he said. "Hospital breakfasts are very inadequate. I'm ready for a walloping big lunch."

So it was to be like that, a screen gliding smoothly down over her pertly. She said heavily, "I'll fix you something."

"No," he turned in the doorway. "I'll fry a dozen or so eggs myself."

No not a screen. It was a wall between them; its density, its concreteness was absolute.

Landon dropped to her knees, fumbling blindly for the trowel and began digging in peat moss as if her whole life depended in conditioning the soil of the border. With a sad tightening of her heart she knew that everything easy and relaxed and familiar between herself and Eric was gone forever. Eric would go on being fond of her and, in a way kind. But his very kindness would be cruel, flicking at innumerable sensitive nerves. He would be the one on guard now, always feeling a shade of discomfort, faintly embarrassed with her and trying not to show it. For he knew everything about her now. He had been near her, had seen her heart exposed, and he had been shocked, and then pitying. She had lost something. Something she would miss all her life and nothing could ever replace it.

Somehow she got through the remainder of the day, but tomorrow, all the tomorrows stretched ahead endlessly. At dinner she had a sample of Eric's beautiful courtesy; it almost broke her control. It was not easy for Eric, either.

Halfway through his desert he rose abruptly, and announced curtly that he was going out to Brock. Rowena arched her brows. "What's the matter with him?"

"He looks like indigestion I think," said Merry-o.

Landon lifted a drawn face to her grandmother. "He—k n o w s," she said too low, she thought, for Merry-o to hear.

"Knows what?" demanded Merry-o. "Gran, aren't you going to finish your desert, either?"

Finally Landon was alone in the living room. Silence settled about her. Somewhere, far off, there was the whistle of a train. Plaintive and lonely, the sound lingered, like smoke. . . . and suddenly Landon's hands were gripping the chair arms. I'm getting out of here. Now tonight.

She called the railway station and was told a train left for New York in an hour and a half. She dragged out her bags and piled clothes into them. She called Dora Hendrix.

"Yes," said the Boss. "I'll come."

"Now? Right away? I—I have to go out and I can't leave Gran."

"Right away," said the Boss. "Hurry as if by hurrying she could escape herself. Quietly, so as not to waken her grandmother. Mechanically, with no blank spaces for thought. When her bags were stowed on the porch in the shadows, their importance as a symbol manifested itself. The ignominy of flight. The cowardice. The futility. For an instant she hesitated, temporized—and then the Boss was coming up the porch steps, and a taxi was pulling up at the curb. "Thank you for coming, Dora," Landon said. "Good-bye."

It was a strange good-bye to everything; funny, and pathetic. Copyright, 1954 by Frances Sarah Moore. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Campaigning For 4-H Club Camp

Pitt County Negro Farm Agent James M. Goode and Home Agent Amelia S. Capehart today called attention to the statewide campaign to raise funds to construct a Negro 4-H Club camp by public subscription.

The 4-H Club Foundation of North Carolina, Inc., a nonprofit and education corporation composed of individuals interested in aiding and promoting 4-H Club work among Negroes of the state, is sponsoring the project.

May 26 will be known in North Carolina as "4-H Camp Day." The Negro 4-H Camp is being constructed at Hammocks Beach, in Onslow county, and it will cost $68,000. Already $31,000 has been subscribed and the promoters are now at work trying to raise the remaining $37,000 by May 25.

Public-spirited men and women willing to contribute to the project may make their checks payable to the 4-H Club Foundation.

Teachers, community leaders, business and professional men and women and others are expected to use their influence to help raise the balance of the camp money. Checks should be mailed to county representatives or to the Secretary of the 4-H Club Foundation, Inc., A. and T. College, Box 67, Greensboro, N. C.

Full information about the camp may be obtained from the Pitt county farm agent or County Home Agent Amelia S. Capehart in Greenville.

Friends, Cats To Share Estate

DETROIT (AP) — Miss Dora H. Pitts a retired school teacher who died at 85, split her estate among her friends and four cats.

Her will filed for probate yesterday left $100 to each of her cats. The rest of the estate, valued at nearly $200,000, was divided among 83 friends. She had no close kin.

A rattlesnake gets a new rattles on its tail every time it sheds its skin which may be several times a year, but the snakes often shake off some of the old rattles.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U) — Aircrafts ran into some selling pressure and sold lower today in a generally declining stock market.

Leading aircrafts were down 1 and 2 points at the most. Gains extended up to a point in key sections.

Trading was moderate in the neighborhood of 2 1/2 million shares for the day. Yesterday's total in a falling market was 2,150,000 shares.

The market developed its lower trend with the opening bell and continued on down without uncovering any real weakness.

Most major divisions were lower, but there was a certain amount of steadiness in the rubbers, distillers, motion pictures, airlines, and utilities.

The steels, rails, motors, oils, and coppers all were down. The chemicals strong yesterday, were mixed today in a narrow range.

Continental motors was down around a point after directors declared a dividend of 15 cents as compared with 20 cents previous paid quarterly.

Celanese did well on its improved first quarter earnings.

Place Emphasis On Scholastics

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (U) — Yale has a new plan by which it hopes to direct its students' minds more toward the books and less toward extracurricular activities.

The university calls it a major change in its study program for undergraduates. Drawn up by a faculty committee headed by President A. Whitney Griswold, it is the first change since 1946.

The announcement said the change was "aimed at reviving the interest of students in academic work and modifying their attention to extra curricular activities."

Any Yale undergraduate knows what that means.

Fewer parties. Fewer visits to Vassar. Less emphasis on sports. The program consists of two plans, both to go into effect in September 1956.

Plan A: All sophomores must continue the work they started in their freshman year (no switching to so-called snap courses). Organize the curriculum into the three basic areas of natural sciences and mathematics, history and social sciences, and the arts, instead of only the traditional departmental lines.

Plan B: Eliminate standard courses. Substitute them with seminars organized on the basis of extensive reading lists.

Workman Found Buried In Rubble

NEW YORK (AP) — Searchers uncovered the body of a missing worker in wreckage of New York's projected Coliseum early today, then knelt as a priest administered last rites.

Tears streamed from the eyes of some workmen, close friends of the victim, Joseph Lombardi, 55, a cement worker. Four relatives, including a son-in-law, stood by sobbing.

Dulles And French Premier Near Accord On Indochina

PARIS (U) — U.S. Secretary of State Dulles and French Premier Edgar Faure today were reported approaching agreement on a joint policy toward South Vietnamese Premier Ngo Dinh Diem.

Reliable sources indicated the two Western allies would work out an understanding that both their governments would support Diem, but that the United States would pressure the tough little nationalist to modify what Faure has called his "anti-French" attitude.

Diem grabbed the initiative yesterday from the Paris conferees, who have been meeting simultaneously with the NATO Council of Ministers. He named a new 14-member government of strongly nationalist complexion.

In a public message, Diem warned the leaders in Paris to "guard against all solutions which do not take into account our nationalism, our desire for democracy and our wish for social progress."

Dulles and Faure conferred for 2 1/2 hours last night without reaching final agreement. They scheduled another session tonight. Informants described their talk as extraordinarily frank and said some progress was made.

President Eisenhower's government so far has maintained its support of Diem, contending he is the likeliest prospect to unite South Viet Nam against the threat of a Communist takeover. The French in recent months have grown increasingly hostile to Diem. They contend he is inefficient and dictatorial, and is dividing his country rather than uniting it.

In his talk with Faure last night, Dulles reportedly recommended that Vietnamese chief of state Bao Dai take a "passive role" in the future government of his country and that he eventually be pensioned off.

Reliable sources said Faure offered to withdraw France's approximately 45,000 troops from Viet Nam and leave the field to the United States. These sources said Dulles countered with an American offer to get out and let the French see what they could do alone.

Apparently neither offer was taken up.

The main lines of the impending French-American agreement appeared to be:

1. Pressure would be put on Diem to enlarge his government to include some elements more friendly to the French.
2. Such a government would get both French and American support despite French misgivings and American acknowledgment that Diem has serious faults.
3. Diem would be encouraged to hold elections. The Vietnamese Premier said yesterday that would be his new government's primary mission.
