PRISON REVOLT ENDS: 2 WOUNDED

By BOB HILDRUP Reflector Staff Writer Five convicted felons ended a 12-hour holdout at Prison Camp 210 near here today, but only after two of them had been shot and State Prisons Director William F. Bailey had been called in from Raleigh. The two wounded men, both suffering from flesh wounds in the hip region, were shot by camp superintendent Paul Crawford this morning while they were beating and threatening to kill another prisoner, Willie Brantley, an epileptic. Five Long-Termers Those shot were Lester Jenkins, 34 sentenced to five years from Willington for a crime against nature, and Timothy J. Noonan, of Northampton, Mass., sentenced from Carteret County for breaking and entering and larceny. The other three who took part in the rebellion were listed as Edward Earl Stepps, 22, sentenced from Greene County to 10 years for highway robbery, Russell Taylor, 21, from Dever, Tenn., seven to 10 years for armed robbery, and William T. Hunter, 21, from Benson, serving 10 years for breaking and entering and larceny. Trouble Last Night First difficulty apparently arose about 9:30 last night when Hunter declared he wanted to change his bed in the south wing of the prison. Superintendent Crawford refused permission and Hunter became unruly. When highway patrolman James Boykin and Deputy Sheriff Arthur Andrews attempted to persuade Hunter to follow Crawford's orders, Hunter drew a knife and threatened to kill them. Other highway patrolmen, members of the sheriff's department, prison guards and city policemen were called to the scene, but when the other four joined in with Hunter, officers decided to let the matter rest until morning. Locked Officers Out Today, at 6 a. m., when officers once more attempted to enter the cell block, they found that the prisoners had locked the door with an additional lock and armed themselves with knives, apparently used by them in making leather wallets. An acetylene torch was brought to the scene but when an attempt was made to burn the new lock away the prisoners began to throw glass bottles at the officers. Several received slight cuts from flying glass. Shot Two Prisoners Shortly after, as Crawford attempted once more to reason with the offenders, Noonan began to beat the hostage, Brantley, about the head with a piece of pipe. Crawford fired twice, hitting Noonan and Jenkins, who was holding a knife at the hostage's throat. Officers then withdrew from the cellblock and put in a call to prisons director Bailey. Bailey arrived on the scene about 10:30, joining a crowd of police cars plus two fire engines from Greenville already at the prison. Bailey, in the company of State Highway Patrol Capt. S. H. Mitchell, went immediately to the cell block where he told the prisoners he would concede nothing but would guarantee that they would be treated fairly. The prisons superintendent also told the felons that he would hear any grievances they had and asked them to come out. A brief discussion followed and the prisoners filed meekly out. Their wounds were treated, they were fed and were transferred to state prison in Raleigh. Some 45 other prisoners were in the same cell block with the five holdouts, but were unable to leave because of threats by Hunter and his companions to kill any that made an attempt. A similar number of prisoners watched quietly throughout the proceedings from the opposite wing. All except the five cooperated with officers. All five have had previous records as troublemakers in other camps and had been transferred here within the past two years. A host of law enforcement officers answered the call last night and even more turned out today. Police cars, fire trucks and other vehicles crowded the narrow roadway in front of the prison. Five Buildings In Business District Destroyed $150,000 Blaze Strikes Washington

WASHINGTON, N. C. (AP) — Five buildings went up in flames in Washington's business district last night in a fire that for a time threatened all of the downtown area. Some of the burned out area still smoldered today. Fire Chief Fred Potts estimated damage at $150,000. The fire was discovered in a garage and quickly spread to the Godley & Taylor Co., where a series of explosions blew the roof off, peppering a 200-yard area with balls of fire. A dwelling and a machine shop on either side of the Godley & Taylor Co. burned down with the larger building which housed farm equipment. Flames leaped across the street to the Whitaker stables, which also were destroyed. Seven mules housed in the building were saved. Flames from the stable blaze burned out wiring and transformers of the Washington Daily News Building, backed against the Whitaker Building, and for a while even threatened the fire department adjoining the Daily News Building. Several firemen suffered minor burns, but there were no serious injuries among the 105 firemen and volunteers who fought the blaze. The fire chief reported that his own shoes were burned off. Chief Potts set damage to the Godley & Taylor building at $75,000, with 14 combines, seven tractors and small pieces of farm equipment destroyed. An investigation was under way today to determine the cause of the explosions. Potts said they might have come from several gas tanks and containers of crop spray in the farm equipment building. The fire chief said he counted a total of eight explosions. Every piece of Washington fire fighting equipment was called out. The Greenville Fire Department sent standby equipment. A 15-mile-an-hour wind was blowing when the fire was discovered. Potts said, but it died down when fire fighting operations got underway. Potts credited this with possibly saving the business district of this city of 10,000.

Every piece of Washington equipment was pressed into service and one truck from Greenville stood by to answer other calls. Total damage was estimated at $150,000. (Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Surgeon General Expects Polio Vaccine Release 'Momentarily'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Surgeon General Leonard Scheele said today he expects to release polio vaccine made by Parke-Davis Co. of Detroit "almost momentarily." Scheele told the House Banking Committee a thorough on-the-spot inspection of manufacture of Salk vaccine by Parke-Davis has been completed. "It is likely that word is now at my office regarding findings of the group of scientists which visited Detroit and we will be able to announce the release of Parke-Davis materials as soon or shortly after I return," Scheele said. Release of Parke-Davis serum will permit limited resumption of the nationwide program for vaccinating first and second grade school children. Completion of the Parke-Davis check will shift the scientific inspection team to the Eli Lilly Co., Indianapolis. Scheele called for a shutdown in that program last Sunday to permit a recheck at each of five manufacturing plants. Later inspectors will go to Wyeth Laboratories, Marietta, Pa.; Pitman-Moore, Zionsville, Ind.; and Sharpe and Dohme, Glens Falls, N. Y. Scheele told the committee that as of this morning 67 cases of polio had been reported among children who received the Salk serum. He said approximately 5 1/2 million children have been vaccinated. Of the 67 polio cases, he added, 55 received vaccine manufactured by Cutter Laboratories, Berkeley, Calif. All Cutter vaccine has been withheld from distribution since April 27 pending a complete scientific investigation. There have been ten cases of polio in children who received the Eli Lilly vaccine, and two who received Wyeth vaccine. Except for the Cutter vaccine cases, Scheele said, the incidence of polio among those vaccinated has been about what could be normally expected, or even less. In a 12-page review of the entire vaccine program, Scheele told the committee of his continued strong confidence that the vaccine is safe and effective and that it will be a blessing to mankind.

Increased Taxi Fares For Longer Trips Are Sought

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Under a new Connecticut law, not only is daylight saving time extended to the last Sunday in October, but the governor is empowered to further extend it by proclamation if he thinks it necessary. Those who travel by taxi will soon pay 75 cents for certain destinations in the city if the City Council approves plans presented by a representative of the local taxi companies last night. J. W. H. Roberts, representing the companies, asked that the present flat rate of 50 cents for a taxi ride to any part of town be increased by 25 cents for certain areas. Under the plan, taxi patrons would pay 75 cents if their trip took them beyond an area bounded by Memorial Drive on the west, Tucker Circle and the city limits on the south, Elm Street on the east and the river on the north. However, the taxi operators would cross the river to Moore Street for the usual 50 cents. Roberts said the increase was necessary for the long trips in town. "They can't possibly make it on the 50 cent rate for a number of their calls," Roberts declared. Councilmen took the plan under consideration but deferred action until a later date.

General Taylor Nominated New Chief Of Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today nominated Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor to be the new chief of staff of the Army. He will succeed Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway on June 30. Taylor commanded the 8th Army in some of the bitterest fighting of the Korean War. He is now serving as commander in chief, Far East command and commander in chief, United Nations command. His appointment as chief of staff is for a term of two years. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer will take over Taylor's two commands in the Far East. Lemnitzer is now commanding general of the Army forces in the Far East and the 8th Army. Ridgway's two-year term as chief of staff would have expired next August. He reached the mandatory Army retirement age of 60 last March 31, but the Army retained him on active duty with approval of President Eisenhower. Ridgway will retire on leaving as chief of staff. Ridgway has not seen eye to eye with the Eisenhower administration's decision to cut back Army manpower. Ridgway has contended repeatedly that atomic and other new weapons would require more, not fewer, ground forces because of a necessity for dispersal. Eisenhower, at a news conference, once referred to a "parochial" view about retention of ground forces at current levels. Eisenhower used the term "parochial" as meaning special or limited. Taylor, 54, came out of World War II with a reputation as a man of daring-do. Eisenhower wrote in his book "Crusade in Europe," in reference to Taylor: "The risks he ran were greater than I asked any other agent or emissary to undertake during the war."

GREENVILLE (AP)—Two reported break-ins on East 14th Street, near Evans Boyd's Barber Shop, 103 East 14th Street reported that the glass was broken on the front door to gain entrance. A few pennies were missing from the cash register. Norris Sea Food Market, 117 East 14th Street reported that the store was entered last night and that about 50 pennies were missing from the cash drawer. Chief S. G. Gibbs stated today that the police are continuing their investigation.

Thumbs Down

RALEIGH (AP) — A Senate committee today turned thumbs down on the idea of having legislative sessions every year. Senate Judiciary 2 Committee voted unanimously to kill a bill, already passed by the House, to amend the state constitution so the legislature would meet every year instead of every other year. At the same time the committee voted unanimously to give a favorable report to another amendment proposed by Sen. Lunsford Crew of Halifax. Under this amendment the Legislature would still meet every other year but would begin its sessions in February instead of January.

Conditional OK For Area's Entry In City Limits Appeals Favorably Heard

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor Two areas which had petitioned to enter the city limits were approved by the City Council last night "provided they meet the subdivision ordinance requirements." The sections are Colonial Heights and Woodcrest subdivisions in East Greenville and S. Meadowbrook north of the river. Both areas had presented petitions at the last council meeting and the public hearings were set for last night. Meeting the subdivision ordinance for the two areas will require them to install water and sewer lines and to pave the streets. Representatives were referred to Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam concerning the installation of utilities. For the Colonial Heights and Woodcrest area, councilmen were told by City Manager James S. Hughes that annual tax take from the area would amount to approximately $3,776. Providing city services for the section based on a per house cost estimate, would run $4,966 each year, Hughes told the councilmen. The city manager painted a much darker picture for the S. Meadowbrook Negro area. Total taxes received from that section each would amount to only $645, while maintenance would cost the city $3,663 annually. Utilities Superintendent Bloxam asked representatives of each area to circulate petitions asking householders if they would tap on to water and sewer lines if available. Invitation Councilmen received an invitation from City School Superintendent June H. Rose to attend graduation exercises for both Greenville

High School and Eppes School. Rose also asked the Council to meet with the school board next week. The meeting was set for Tuesday afternoon at 4 p. m. The school superintendent, in addition, proposed to the Council that they purchase two movable houses to be obtained from Portsmouth, Va. The houses would be used for an activity building at South Greenville Park. City Manager Hughes was instructed to check on the houses. The councilmen approved a new type city license tag which will be used on the front of autos in place of the front state tag which has been discontinued. The new plate will show a map of the state with the city's name in the center. Numbers are to be in the lower left hand corner. Cost of the tags is 27 1/2 cents each as compared to the 18 cents which present plates cost the city. Approval Fire Insurance City fathers approved fire insurance coverage on city buildings under a blanket policy but were informed that the Pitt County Insurance Exchange did not wish to handle the policy as an organization. The city manager was instructed to prepare a list of agents who handle the city's insurance at present. Councilmen are attempting to work out a plan for procuring the insurance among local agents. Hughes was authorized to contact property owners along the alley between Third and Fourth Streets concerning the paving of the alley. The matter was brought up when it was proposed that storm sewer and a catch basin be installed on Fourth Street at the alley entrance and store operators required to pipe water from an air conditioning plants to the drain. However, it was pointed out that the alley could be paved and the catch basin installed in the alley itself. Hughes was given power to act in the matter. The city ordinance governing the

Singapore Swept By Mass Rioting

SINGAPORE (AP) — The British Gurkha and Malayan troops into emergency positions today as a continuing wave of rioting swept the island colony. The violence already had claimed the lives of two British soldiers and a Singaporean. The rioting was reported to have broken out in the city of Singapore, the colony's first elected Cabinet. Chief Minister David Marshall charged Communist influence was apparent in the disorders. Symonds, United Press manager for Southeast Asia, died in hospital here this morning, 15 hours after he suffered head injuries in the start of the disturbances. Hospital officials said the 29-year-old correspondent never regained consciousness. The government early today ordered Singapore's own military force to report for emergency duty. British army authorities said their troops, standing ready on Singapore Island, could go into action immediately. The colony's worried new Council of Ministers met in emergency session at Government House to discuss the worsening situation. As they gathered, fresh violence threatened in the wake of the rioting by 300 striking busmen and several thousand of their supporters which raged throughout yesterday and last night. Trade union officials, protesting police action yesterday against the mob, called out workers of the big British-owned Singapore Traction Co. They also promised to pull out more unions in the next few days. The British army and air force put reinforced guards on their establishments here to ward off attacks. Armies manned roadblocks leading to bases and carried out mobile patrols in the surrounding areas. The army also announced that it had closed all schools for military families because the rioters yesterday stoned British children being driven home in army trucks.

Sec. Dulles In Vienna To Sign Long-Awaited Treaty

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State Dulles arrived in jubilant Vienna today to sign the Austrian treaty of independence. It was a gratifying moment for the American diplomat, who had insisted the ambassadors of the Big Four powers reach agreement on treaty terms before the foreign ministers meet for the actual signing. Late yesterday, the Russians accepted a compromise solution offered by the West on a key issue of economic concessions, and the way was cleared for the signing on Sunday of a treaty by giving Austria's seven million people full freedom after 17 years of military occupation. In an airport statement, Dulles said: "I have traveled to many capitals on many missions. Never have I felt more satisfaction than

I now feel in coming to Vienna to sign the treaty which at long last will make Austria free and independent. "It has been a central goal of United States policy. Its achievement will be hailed by the American people who have only admiration for the courage and steadfastness of the freedom loving people of Austria. Among Dulles' well-wishers were U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr., one of the four ambassadors at the nine-day negotiations, and Austrian Foreign Minister Leopold Figl, who also attended. "It has been particularly due to American help that we are now in a position to sign the treaty for which Austria has been waiting for 10 years," Figl said in greeting Dulles. "Austria will now be free and independent."

Girl In Window Is Real 'Whistle Bait'

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP)—Few, if any, girls draw as many whistles as "the girl in the window."

Most Boston & Maine trains passing the home of crippled Lorraine Tatro sound their whistles as a salute to the girl who has been an invalid since birth.

Her days are brightened by waving to train crews to whom she has become known as "the girl in the window."

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Mrs. Pluma Lamphier, one of the few women painting and paperhanging contractors in the country, still manages to give her job the feminine touch.

Mrs. Lamphier, who took over the business when her husband died, supports two daughters.

There were 2,072,333 bathtubs sold in the United States in 1954.

The next registration will be held next September.

Miss Warren Honoree At Bridge Last Night

Miss Adelaide Warren, bride-elect, was complimented last evening when Mrs. Craven Hughes and Mrs. M. W. Aldridge entertained at a dessert bridge at the Aldridge home on Library Street.

A beautiful arrangement of white glads in a low green bowl was featured on the mantel in the living room. The floral arrangement was flanked by white candles. Vases of red roses and larkspur were used on console tables.

In the dining room a Lazy Susan was centered with pink roses and tall pink candles in brass candlesticks.

During the refreshment hour, at which time a sweet course was served, the tables were spread with white cloths and centered with white tapers in crystal holders tied with tulle, fern and orange blossoms. Bridal tulle was used.

Miss Warren's place was marked with a corsage of daisies.

During progressions the hostesses served iced drinks and salted nuts. Mrs. John Howard received the high score award and Miss Margaret Johnston, second high. The floating prize fell to Mrs. Charles Hudson. The bride-elect was presented china as an honor gift. Six tables were in play.

The King's Daughters Complete Series Of Bible Studies

On Tuesday night, May 10, the Patient Circle of The King's Daughters met at the home of Miss Martha Lee Cowell on Summit Street with Mrs. R. C. Henry, Mrs. H. W. Winstead, Miss Ellen Proctor, Miss Kathleen Venters, Miss Bess Lowe, and Miss Jane Hancock as assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, president, presided, opening the meeting with the prayer of the order. She then conducted a brief business meeting, calling on the various committee chairmen for reports. Mrs. R. C. Henry made an outstanding report for the emergency committee, which had answered calls of the needy, visited the sick and sent flowers and cards to the shut-ins. When the need of the Indian Department had been given by Mrs. Charles Blanchard, the circle voted to send $10.00 to the state chairman of this department for work among the Indians. A nominating committee was appointed and asked to submit a slate of officers for the first meeting of the fall on September 13.

Mrs. Shackell at this time presented to the group Miss Mamie Chandler, one of the circle's members, who gave the fourth and last of the series of Bible studies. Continuing the subject, the "Sermon on the Mount," Miss Chandler read from the revised version of the Bible the seventh chapter of St. Matthew's gospel. She commented upon such passages as: "Judge not that ye be not judged," "First cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye." "The way we really live," said Miss Chandler, "is another significant passage discussed was the Golden Rule, "Whatever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." In closing Miss Chandler urged each King's Daughter to take the Sermon on the Mount as the guide of her life.

A social hour was enjoyed with the hostesses serving punch, wafers, and salted nuts.

English Club Installs New Officers, Honor Miss Lois Grigsby

Members of the East Carolina College English Club, holding their last meeting for the school year Tuesday night, heard talks by two student members of the group, installed their new officers for 1955-1956, and expressed appreciation for the work of Lois Grigsby of this faculty, who has served as their faculty adviser for the past eight years.

Bertha Mae Woodcock of Atkinson assumed her duties as president of the departmental organization for the coming school year. Other new officers are Evelyn Taylor of Kinston, vice-president; Carol Lucas of West End, treasurer; and Dorothy Barnes of Coats, secretary.

In recognition of Miss Grigsby's assistance in club activities, members presented her with a gift of flat silver. Dr. James D. Allison received a welcome as new faculty adviser of the organization.

Red Oaks HD Names Chairman

RED OAK — Mrs. Rena Manning was appointed chairman of the Pitt County Progress program for the Red Oak Home Demonstration Club when it met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Amos Evans on Hooker Road. Mrs. H.R. Allen was co-hostess.

Mrs. Manning in turn appointed chairmen for all projects the club will undertake in the progress program. Demonstration for the afternoon was given by Mrs. Lillie Little, Home agent, on "Milk in Main Dishes that Satisfy." She baked cheese straws and meat loaf, which were served to the group. During the business session, it was noted that all paper products had been sold by the club. Funds from this sale will be used toward financing the construction of a home demonstration house on the campus of State College in Raleigh. Devotional for the meeting was given by Mrs. L.E. Dickerson. Mrs. Thurston Wynn gave the treasurer's report, and Mrs. Jarvis Tripp, Sr. presided over the session. There were 14 members present.

Sophisticated Air For Young Moderns

ALL-YEAR ROUND ROOM... Gay at any time of the year is a room for two girls when bedspread is bagpipe brown, beige and yellow against yellow walls.

By VIVIAN BROWN

If you're planning a room for your young modern, better put some sophistication into it, says Patricia Harvey, member of the American Institute of Decorators. She explains:

"Young people have gone modern. They love unfussy furniture and sophisticated fabrics. Just hand them a bunch of swatches and you'll be amazed at the good taste they display."

Miss Harvey's most recent decorative venture with young moderns was a couple of rooms planned for sisters aged 16 and 17, using this scheme selected by the girls:

... Grass cloth walls of off-ivory shade, matching draperies with black, chrome yellow and cinnamon in a free form design. Two couches of cinnamon tweed with throw pillows of black and chrome yellow felt in round, square and triangular shapes. Celadon green rug. Mahogany desk with black stain-proof mica top.

Book shelves line one wall over a cupboard unit planned to hold bedclothes and linens. Give young people pretty linens—solid or print and they'll adore tending their bed clothes, she says.

Younger girls like pink, Miss Harvey says. She did a room in pink, cherry red and white for two under-15s. The floor of vinyl pink and white was topped with a cherry red area rug. Simple modern furniture designed by Paul McCobb was washed down to its original birch and painted pink and white.

A pink cotton bed throw had a cherry red dust ruffle of glosheen cotton, a pillow sham had a cherry red ruffle. The red headboard was upholstered in white plastic and its wooden frame painted pink. Draperies were of inexpensive but unusual woven ribbon fabric. She framed a picture in white burlap and painted the scroll wire around it pink. An ice cream chair was painted cherry red and a pillow of pink iridescent cotton tulle inserted in the heart back of the chair.

Ready-made ensemble may be found to make the decorating job easier if you prefer.

Plaid is popular with the younger set and one combination that may be tried out with a color scheme of yellow walls is to use the brown-beige-yellow combination of bedspread and draperies in the bagpipe collection.

Rumor Mongers Belabored By Movie Couple

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The trials of maintaining a happy marriage in Hollywood are described today by Lex Barker, who is wedded to a girl named Lana Turner.

Critics and commentators decried the rate of marital mishaps in Hollywood, yet they themselves can share the blame for some of the breakups. Witness the current engagement of Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher. The gossips are doing their best to break that one up.

Barker is perplexed by the rumor mongers. Recently he was absent from Lana for five weeks, mostly on location in the Virgin Islands and partly to visit his stricken father in the East.

While he was gone one columnist reported Lana was hobnobbing with a bullfighter in Tijuana. Another declared her ex, Steve Crane, would be her next "after she divorces Lex Barker in the Virgin Islands."

Lex set the record straight: "Lana likes bullfights. I don't. So while I was gone, it looked like a good time to see them in Tijuana. She went down with some friends of mine, and a bullfighter happened to be in the party."

"As for the other rumor, Steve Crane happens to be the father of my stepdaughter. He is entitled to visit his daughter. I was the one in the Virgin Islands, not Lana."

All of which shows how the tongue waggers can make something out of nothing. Lana's union to Lex has so far been the most tranquil of her marriages. They lead fairly quiet lives and give the gossips little grounds for talk.

"But they find something," Barker said. "It amazes me. First of all, they were yelling for us to get married. Nearly every columnist said it was shocking that we were in Europe together, even though we were both working there."

"Then after we got married, they seem eager to have us split up. You can't win."

Leather Gloves That Take Suds

AP Newsfeatures

Leather gloves in all colors, which can be tossed into the washing machine, are the big news of the year in glove land.

The gloves come in nine colors and a number of styles, and will be available in stores throughout the country as soon as the manufacturers can turn them out in sufficient quantity—probably in mid-summer.

Although washable leather gloves have been on the market for years, they usually required great care in washing—and gloves in colors such as red, navy and the pastels usually had to be dry-cleaned.

Now, after years of research, tanners have developed a process which makes leather in high colors as washable as dungarees. After being put through the washing machine with a regular washday detergent, they come out as soft and bright as new requiring no special care.

This also means that men's leather gloves can be washed in the future—a great boon to the housewife who treads when she sees the males in her family wearing their best gloves for such chores as changing a tire or tinkering with the car.

TV LAP BOARDS

Lap boards, curved to fit the waist, and long used for writing, sewing and breakfast in bed, are staging a big comeback because of television. When favorite programs occur at mealtime, such as Sunday night suppers, it can be fun to eat from a try on your lap. A temporary table is provided by a lap board of plywood or hardboard sanded smooth and shellacked.

'Books and Stuff'

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

This week's crop of popular magazines has unearthed two very interesting articles about something of great interest to us all—Eastern North Carolina, no less. Sports Illustrated for May 9 carries a story by Paul Gallico called "Manteo's Red Warriors" about fishing for channel bass off our own coast, around Roanoke Island and the rest of the area, familiar to so many of us. It's a fine story, full of wonderful descriptions of the landscape and the fishing, and ever telling you who the best Manteo guides are. Listed as "oldest, best and most experienced guide for channel bass off Manteo" is Lee Dough. Others are Ken Ward, Fred Basnight and Wayland Baum. Do you know any of them?

Also about our exclusive little section of America is "Our National Seashore" by Robert M. Yoder, in the May issue of Woman's Day Magazine. It tells you all about the 70 miles of "clean, unpolluted beach" on the North Carolina Outer Banks, almost untouched by time or tourists, and most of what it says we know about already—but we like to hear other people talk about it, especially the way Yoder does.

In the same issue of Woman's Day, incidentally, is a piece by John McNulty called "The Little League with the Big Heart," about the Little League in general and the nice outfit they have in Wakefield, Rhode Island. Some rather startling statistics about the Little League around the nation are quoted. In 1955, 500,000 boys participated in Little League play in 4,000 separate little leagues on 18,000 different baseball teams in 47 states and Canada, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Alaska and Canal Zone—which is quite a lot of baseball for an awful lot of kids, all in one year.

And I guess we will be going to the Elm Street Park again soon, to watch our boys do their stuff—really a sign that Spring has come.

New Books and Old

We noted last week that "A Man Called Peter" by Catharine Marsh had hit the best seller lists for the 134th time. This week it's 135, and it's climbed up to 5th place in the national ranking. Could the movie be boosting the circulation? It's coming here this week, by the way.

"Bonjour Tristesse" by a young French schoolgirl who flunked out of the Sorbonne in Paris and wrote a book because she had nothing better to do, is now in second place on the fiction lists nationally.

Anthoese Françoise Sagan is now taking a trip around the U.S., having bought herself a large, high-powered American car for the purpose. We hope she keeps out of harem's way, and doesn't drive too fast.

Just out is a new novel by Elizabeth Grey Vining, former tutor to Crown Prince Akihito of Japan and writer of a recent national best-seller, "Windows for the Crown Prince." Her new one is for grown-ups, called "The Virginia Exiles," about a band of Pennsylvanians, most of them Quakers, who were exiled during the American Revolution for refusing to sign a loyalty oath and compelled to live in seclusion in the Virginia mountains—which doesn't sound so bad to us people here.

Family Fanfare

Item clipped from the Richmond Times-Dispatch of May 7 — and through the courtesy of our good friend and colleague, Dr. George Knipp of the E.C.C. English Department: "Jim Piersall, Boston Red Sox outfielder, Friday inaugurated a national campaign to fight mental illness in a ceremony before the Sox game with the New York Yankees. The item goes on to say that Piersall was opening Mental Health Week, and that his recent book, "Fear Strikes Out," tells the story of his own heroic fight against mental illness. Co-author of the book was Al Hirschberg, incidentally, who cheerfully informs us that the first printing of 7000 copies of "Fear Strikes Out" already has been

It is available at local book stores and also our inveterate Sheppard Memorial Librarian, Miss Elizabeth Copeland, tells us, at your own library.

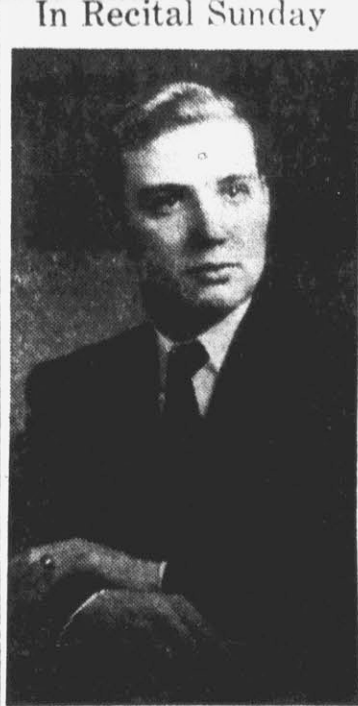

Futures

The Literary Guild choice for June will be "The Last Temptation," a first novel by John Viertel, about adventure, romance and what-all in war-torn Europe. We'll carry a review in these columns soon.

Later in May will be issued an interesting looking book about problem children — "1,000,000 Delinquents," by Benjamin Fine, Education Editor of the New York Times. The title is taken from a statement made last year by Attorney General Brownell that one million boys and girls under 21 will, in the coming year, commit crimes serious enough to cause them to be picked up by the police. Discouraging, yes? Maybe Fine has the answer—anyway, you can read his book.

And if you haven't found out who Harvey is, come tonight to the E.C.C. Faculty play at McGinnis Auditorium at 8:15—a few tickets will be available at the boxoffice, and "Harvey" is terrific.

In Recital Sunday

Irving Emmis of Goldsboro, senior at East Carolina College, will appear at the McGinnis Auditorium Sunday afternoon at 4:00 p.m. in his graduating song recital. The young tenor will be presented by the East Carolina department of music as one of a small number of senior students selected to give public programs prior to completing their work in music.

Cake Topping Trick Pays Off

OCALA Fla. (AP)—A brother and sister are making an idea for packaged cake decorations pay off.

Mrs. Louise Crawford and her brother Bobby Jones, who had been in the bakery business, developed the idea and she took it to New York.

"Within 24 hours it was sold to one of the nation's largest variety store chains—but the trouble was we were suddenly in business with an order for 150 dozen packages of something we didn't have, weren't set up to produce and actually had no idea how to start making."

Things were pretty frantic for a while but they finally worked out in production and a year later moved out of the kitchen into a plant downtown.

Production now is around 600 dozen packages a week. Each petal and leaf is handmade and attached to a piece of cardboard. It is easily removable for transfer to a cake.

CAME THROUGH

PERTH AMBOY, N.J. (AP)—When cafe proprietor Melvin Cutler lost a bag containing $745 in business receipts, he didn't even bother to notify police, thinking there wasn't a chance in a million of getting it back. Wesley Moody, a crane operator, found the bag and turned it over yesterday to police, who traced it to Cutler. Cutler said he'd give Moody "a suitable reward."

The service opened at 11 o'clock with a special musical program by the Youth for Christ musicians. The message for the morning was brought by Walter Sutton Jr., director of the Youth for Christ. At the noon hour a picnic lunch was served on the grounds with barbecue, slaw and bread supplemented by other good things to eat.

At 2 o'clock every one assembled back in the building for a song and musical festival. On the program were the Youth for Christ musicians and visiting musicians from Goldsboro, Saratoga, Farmville, and Grimesly's Church.

During the afternoon service, the oldest mother present, the youngest mother present and the mother with the most children were recognized and presented gifts. A short message from a visiting speaker from Saratoga closed the program. Attendance was good and it really was an enjoyable day of Christian fellowship together.

Every one is extended a cordial invitation to all the Youth for Christ services on Saturday evening at the Community Center and to prayer service on Wednesday evening.

Another Step In Industrial Development

The idea of a planned industrial area for Greenville is a worthy Chamber of Commerce undertaking which deserves the support of the people of the city.

Greenville and Pitt County need to push their industrial development in order to give the local economy a broader footing and raise the per capita income of the county. The easier Greenville can make it for industries and businesses to find suitable sites and locations here, the more likely we are to secure new industries.

Under this new plan, a Chamber of Commerce committee will make a survey to determine the prospective industrial sites available in and around the city; and prepare complete descriptions of the sites, together with prices, to show industrial prospects.

Obviously efforts of the Chamber of Commerce in this undertaking will be of little value without the cooperation of property owners in and around Greenville. Most people look to the Chamber of Commerce as the organization which has the responsibility for promoting the business and industrial growth of any community. If a community is to enjoy the growth it desires, its people must likewise realize their responsibility to cooperate in every possible way with the Chamber of Commerce in bringing about the desired results.

During the past year Greenville has stepped up its industrial development program. It has been able to do so because of an increased interest on the part of local citizens in developing more jobs in our locality. Cooperation with this latest move to compile complete information on possible industrial sites in another way Greenville people can help with the city's industrial program.

No Miracles Are Expected

Virtual assurance of Soviet acceptance of the invitation for a meeting between the heads of government of the Big Four holds out prospects toward easing the tension in international affairs.

With such prospects now at their height since the beginning of the cold war, it is difficult for the West not to be over optimistic. We must not expect miracles to come out of the Big Four meeting, however.

The knotty problems between East and West which have developed in the past decade cannot be resolved in one sweeping move at a meeting of the heads of state of the United States, Britain, France and Russia. Nevertheless, the very fact that Eisenhower, Eden, Faure and Bulganin are going to meet face to face is indicative that tension between the major camps of freedom and communism already has eased somewhat.

From such a meeting we may hope that groundwork will be laid for future conferences at lower levels in which world tension may be further eased. Our experience in the past in dealing with Soviet officials in East-West conferences must not be forgotten as the West prepares again to meet with the East to resolve the "sources of conflict" between the two.

Telephone Companies Can Help Too

It's highly doubtful that anyone will ever go to prison under the terms of the new law against party-line hogs passed by the legislature; but the new law at least focuses attention on the need for greater consideration on the part of party-line users.

The new law makes it a crime not to relinquish a party-line to another person who has an emergency call to make. Actually the law should be unnecessary. Individuals on party lines should have sufficient consideration for each other to relinquish use of the telephone circuit under such circumstances. Nevertheless we now have the law, and perhaps less emergency calls will be delayed by party-line hogs.

While we are on the subject of party-lines and party-line hogs, it should be pointed out that the telephone companies can render a considerable service to the state in this connection. If more telephone lines were extended into areas—particularly rural areas—which now depend primarily upon multi-party lines for their telephone service, the inconvenience caused other telephone subscribers by habitual line-hogs would be decreased appreciably.

Selected Shorts

PINE BLUFF, ARK. COMMERCIAL: "It is a spiritually broadening and soul-strengthening habit to go occasionally to the church of another faith than yours. Were this practiced more widely a greater understanding of our fellow men would be engendered."

INDIO, CALIF. NEWS: "There is no good way for the Government to control the day-to-day affairs of a free people. Attempts to do so inevitably create greater and more menacing problems."

National Whirligig

Republicans Wondering Who

WASHINGTON—Republican leaders who lingered in Washington for several days of conferences after the spring Gridiron dinner on May 7 faced with dismay the prospect of entering the 1956 campaign without President Eisenhower at the top of the ticket. They envisaged possible defeat with a less popular figure as the nominee.

Although they still hope that Ike will run again they recognized that they must consider the realities and prepare for emergencies. With the 1956 Presidential primaries only eleven months off, they felt that they had to discuss possible understandings. And they see only one strong and nationally appealing figure in the supporting cast.

He is Earl Warren of California, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. With Ike's blessing, it was generally agreed that the handsome and liberally minded jurist could carry the Party to another triumph.

WARREN OUT AS 1956 NOMINEE: The question then arose as to whether Chief Justice Warren's recent renunciation of political activity "under any circumstances" had made him unavailable for the nomination. Sorrowfully, the strategists reached the conclusion that it had removed him from the race irrevocably.

Earl Warren listened to the practical politicians, he would have remained silent, as Charles Evans Hughes did in 1916. Then he would have been subject to a draft movement that might have been irresistible, especially if Eisenhower underwrote the demand. Now, any reversal of his publicized position would inspire the charge and suspicion that he had "played politics" while presiding over the nation's highest tribunal.

Moreover, if he were to be a candidate, he would have to enter his name in primaries starting as early as next March. He would have to step down from the court, and engage in personal and political controversies. He would become a tarnished and a possibly discredited figure. Warren is out!

NO SENTIMENT FOR NIXON AND KNOWLAND—This who-oides-Eisenhower canvass discovered almost no sentiment or support for the two other Californians who are understood to be willing to "make the sacrifice"—namely, Vice-President Richard M. Nixon and Senate Majority Leader William F. Knowland.

Although a capable White House operator on Capitol Hill, Nixon has not made an especially favorable impression on Party politicians or the people generally. There is still a hangover prejudice against him because of the special fund which certain interests raised to finance his career as a mere Senator. Finally, he is regarded as too inexperienced, or so the practicing politicians believe.

CONTROVERSIAL FIGURE—Senator Knowland is considered to be too controversial a figure because of his views on the Far East problem. According to all signs, there is general opposition to his demand that the United States chance a global war by a defense of the Quemoy and Matsu Islands.

While Eisenhower has reached no decision on this question it is generally believed that he will negotiate the idea. Britain and France have signified that they will not fight for the offshore islands. Nor could the opposition command a majority in the House or Senate.

Incidentally, the fourth Californian in the Pacific Coast cast, Governor Goodwin J. Knight, indicated during his visit to the Capitol that he favors the renomination of President Eisenhower, thereby keeping out of the Nixon-Knowland controversy and rivalry.

GOP WONDERING WHO—Without Ike, the GOP is at a loss because they do not possess any of the important Governorships, with the exception of Illinois. But the Chief Executive of that State, William G. Stratton is looked upon as such a parochial figure that has name is never mentioned in national circles. The same observation applies to Governor Knight.

Somebody Told Me

Viewing Color TV At WNCT

Last night Gene Hodges of WNCT called to let me know that "Shower of Stars" was being viewed at the station in color! At the time I was in a three-way conversation on the air with Ray Martin and Layton Clark, so the three of us took off for WNCT. If you know Layton or Ray ask them for a first-hand impression of color television. Here's mine: It's out of this world! The quality of the color is equally as good as technicolor in the movies! Bear in mind that WNCT has no color transmitting equipment. However, the micro-wave signal that comes in on the network brings the color signals in as well as the black and white. So WNCT has purchased a color TV set and hooked on to the network line for viewing color.

The set is a 15-inch job with a cabinet much larger than the present 21-inch consoles. Retail price $495. Brand: RCA.

Chief Engineer Hank Tribley last night said that the station hopes to set up a plan so that people in this area may see color TV in order to stimulate interest. WNCT is cramped for space but has recently added on to the building. Perhaps the staff will be able to shift some of the equipment so that audiences of 15 or 20 may come in for viewing a TV show in color.

The amazing thing to me about color is the clear definition that comes in on the screen, coupled with the many, many colors that appear in perfect contrast. Frankly, I expected a blur. Instead, the picture is just as sharp as black and white.

The technical eyes of members of the WNCT staff noticed that when cameras changed color varied slightly. My eye was not sharp enough to detect the change. But that's the only flaw they could catch!

Color TV is still a long way off, but not as far as I thought. The expense to be born by the station is terrific, plus the fact that many of us will not be able to trade for color receivers.

However, with more production of color equipment it's safe to assume that prices will come down some. It will probably be within reach before we know it.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

WHERE THE EMPHASIS BELONGS
(Wall Street Journal)
Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey is reported to have told a weekend meeting of business leaders that both a balanced budget and tax cuts are the possible next year. Unfortunately Mr. Humphrey's optimism appears to be based more on expectations of greater tax revenues from greater prosperity than on anything else.

We say "unfortunately" because this is a dubious approach to the problem of balancing the budget at a lower level of taxation. It is perfectly true that the Government's revenues increase as individuals and corporations make more money. To the extent that revenues might exceed spending reductions in tax rates would become justifiable.

One trouble with this approach, however, is precisely its optimism. If the optimism proves exaggerated, then this particular basis for balancing the budget—cutting taxes—disappears. By all rights, balancing the Government's books should not be allowed to depend on the economic outlook.

A further difficulty with the theory is that it tends to soften any determination to cut Government spending to the point where the budget can be balanced at a lower tax level. If the Government can hope to cover, or more than cover, anticipated spending from the higher income yielded by better business, then its incentive to cut spending is diminished.

The Eisenhower Administration has, of course, cut spending substantially below the actual and proposed disbursements of its predecessor. But for the last year or so there have been indications that the Administration feels a kind of plateau has been reached—that any large additional savings in the near future are likely to prove impossible.

This just isn't so. The Hoover Commission has already pointed to billions in waste, not to mention the desirability of curtailing or eliminating some costly and questionable Government programs. The Administration is said to have nearly $9 billion in unspent foreign aid funds; yet it keeps asking for more year after year. Certainly here is a field for dramatic new savings.

The business outlook theory of budget and tax policy puts the emphasis in the wrong place. The point, after all, is that there is no valid reason for running deficits in these times. There is no inescapable necessity for holding tax rates close to their wartime peaks. Unless the emphasis is put back where it belongs—on greatly reduced spending—there will be little occasion to cheer Mr. Humphrey's hopes.

amount. Comes now the suggestion that the plan ought to be applied in reverse to the revenue bill, with provision that certain taxes be not levied during the second year if receipts of the first year indicate the money will not be needed to meet fixed appropriations. What's sauce for the goose ought to be sauce for the gander, say the advocates of this policy.

UNIFORMS—Chances are that highway patrol cars as well as the patrolmen will be in uniform after July 1. The House roads committee has approved and the House is almost certain to pass the Senate bill requiring all cars used in patrol work to present about one third of the patrol fleet consists of cars painted in ordinary civilian colors, mostly plain black.

The idea of recognizable uniforms for all State-owned cars has substantial support and the plan may be extended beyond the highway patrol. The law now requires, and has for some years, that all State-owned cars with a few exceptions for officials and undercover law enforcement officers be clearly marked with identification of the department to which they belong and the words "For official use only."

TRAFFIC—Bills already enacted, pending and anticipated provide for extensive traffic control on inland streams and lakes. North Carolina has long had some control over highway traffic, accelerated with establishment of the State highway patrol in 1927. Only within the past four or five years has it been necessary to give attention to traffic on the water. SOCKED AGAIN—Counties and municipalities complain that they are being socked both front and back by the current Legislature. Bills have been enacted turning back to local units larger share of the cost of operating schools and certain features of the welfare program. At the same time the House committee revenue bill proposes to further invade the field of Schedule B privilege license taxes by increasing them 50 per cent for State general fund benefit while denying local units the right to increase their levies. For many years the Association of County Commissioners and the League of Municipalities have insisted that the State should retire from the privilege tax field and leave that for exclusive local use.

The State of North Carolina is doing for its counties and cities just about what the Federal Government is doing to the States. That is sending down an increased share of the financial obligation, but not releasing any tax sources or to any considerable extent decreasing the centralized control over standards and procedure.

Pending bills would relieve certain types of property temporarily stored in this State for shipment to other points from paying ad valorem taxes. County commissioners generally oppose that idea, because it cuts into their local tax revenue but does not affect State taxes.

It is not unusual for appropriations to be made contingent upon the money being available. They usually read that such and such may be spent the second year of the biennium, provided the receipts for the first year reach a specified

Distribution Changes

By ELMER ROESSNER
In the last quarter century America has experienced one of the greatest revolutions in marketing and distribution.

It has seen self-service stores grow from a few timid operations into gigantic chains of supermarkets. It has witnessed the development of the suburban shopping center. It has watched the role of the big downtown department store change. It has seen highways, once dotted with an occasional farmer's stand, become lined with furniture, clothing and food stores with elaborate eating places and motels that compete with the finest hotels.

In this period the country has experienced a great crossing over of traditional lines. Drug stores have gone in for lunches, eating places have taken on lines of retail foods, food stores have added soft goods and drugs, to complete that circle. Meanwhile, furniture and jewelry stores have taken on appliances and appliances stores have taken on every durable they can sell, plus a little interior decorating now and then. Discount houses, which died during the war, have been reborn and are bigger than ever. And there have been great increases in sales, run by companies for their employees, shops run by unions for members, and retail operations run by the government for the Armed Forces.

The enormous frozen food industry has sprung up from an idea. Varieties of food that have been in existence for a long time, in 1930 it was impossible to buy broccoli in Los Angeles, tomatoes in New York or pizzas in almost any city, except from street peddlers. The multiplicity of products has increased advertising investment and give-away radio shows and television have stirred things up. The important thing to remember, however, is that the revolution is not over.

The same forces that created it are becoming more powerful all the time. They are the great rise in American productivity, the enormous increase in personal income—it was at an annual rate of $294.2 billion in March another new high—and the great growth of population. People are moving further into the suburbs, they are taking longer vacations, and the whole country is motorized.

What a continuation of these pressures will bring is anybody's guess. But anyone who expects to be in business in 1980—or even in 1960—had better be constantly alert to new and even more wonderful changes to come.

BUSINESS DOING WHAT KING COULDN'T
Business is doing more for the English language than the college professors. J. Harold Janis, professor of English told the American Business Writing Association at Albany N.Y.

Because business executives are demanding employees who can spell and know grammar, word use and punctuation, teachers are putting new stress on these subjects, he said. Students are getting the idea that a poor knowledge of English will cost them money.

A Man Needs Ten Lives Today

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—"Man, there are so many things to do. I'd like to live 10 lives," said Big Burl Ives, contentedly unrolling a battleship signal flag.

The red and white flag was as tall as Ives, the folk singer who became a dramatic star as "Big Daddy" in the Pulitzer prize play, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." Burl, who doesn't own a bow, a rowboat, or a complete set of em battleship flags at a sale of government surplus supplies. Wrapping one of the flags around his 280-pound bulk, he said cheerfully:

"I've always wanted a set of ship signal flags, although I really don't need 'em. Battleship size. Now I got 40 of 'em. Do you think maybe I could get a seamstress to turn some of 'em into sport shirts?"

The huge old-fashioned apartment in which Burl and his wife, Helen, live with his 5-year-old son, Alexander, is crowded with souvenirs of his travels.

"Isn't this a wonderful thing to split a head open with?" inquired Burl, holding up a Maori war club from New Zealand. "And how do you like these parade drums I picked up for 12 bucks apiece? Gonna make 'em into lamps. Got 'em at another government surplus sale. You can't beat those surplus sales for bargains. Never can tell what you'll be able to pick up."

Burl walked over and patted on the head two drowsy looking wooden ship figurheads.

"This one is Vasco da Gama, and the other is Pocahontas," he said. "Seen a lot of salt water, these babies. Got 'em both in England during my last concert tour."

"I bring junk home from all over the world. Helen complains about it, but after it's here a while she gets so she likes it as much as I do."

Burl settled back comfortably in a big overstuffed couch. The phone rang.

"Let it ring," he said. "I don't like to talk on the phone." The phone bell died into silence. "I like sailing," Burl said. "If I didn't have to earn a living I'd spend the rest of my life riding around on a boat."

"That's the trouble with this world. Life is too short. You're lucky if you can get on thing done, let alone all the things you want to do."

"I've got all kinds of hobbies," he went on. "I like to write books, and I've always wanted to own a dude ranch. I was going to buy me a Western ghost town some years back, but there turned out to be too many on the market. Couldn't make up my mind."

"I'd also like to own a goat cheese farm. I had 28 goats once in California. They call 'em eating goats there, and they use 'em to clear the land. They'll eat practically anything that grows."

"I got so interested in those goats I even wrote a novel about them. You know most animals can be disciplined through fear."

"But the buck goat is an exception. He'll fight you until he affections for you."

"I could sit among those goats for hours doing nothing but watching them."

"But the Indian is the only man civilized enough to find happiness just sitting and watching goats. I'd like to get some Indian herders and some goats and really go into the goat cheese business. I'd get me some electric milking equipment and put it on a jeep, and milk the goats from the jeep."

Burl is a happy fat man who says he has no fears, few worries, and keeps so placidly busy he rarely finds life ever boring. "People are the only thing that can ever bore you if you keep your mind busy," he said.

Ives says he has only two major theatrical goals left now. He'd like to play Falstaff sometime, and he'd like to make a world tour with a cameraman and soundman and record all all kinds of national folk music and dances.

"But right now I'm learning to ride a new Italian motor scooter. It's more fun than a Rolls-Royce."

There may be somebody on Broadway who gets more zest out of living than Burl Ives. If there is—he's keeping it to himself.

Local Governments 'Socked' Again By Legislature was all for it. Rep. Jim Vogler of Mecklenburg viewed it as an insidious effort to get the county and municipal ABC profit revenue into the State general fund. Rep. Jim Speight of Bertie thought if the bill were passed it ought to be amended to spell out more definitely a study of the effects of bootlegging and moonshining on the communities where such practices thrive without adequate control.

Rep. J.Y. Jordan of Buncombe said no good could come from such a study, that the report would not contain any information not already available, and he felt the money could better be spent by putting it in the public school budget to finance courses in temperance and the evils of excessive use of alcoholic beverages.

Sentiment expressed by majority of the committee indicates the bill has little chance of getting by, but action was deferred until the introducer could be heard.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Local Army Reserve Unit Directed Initiate 'Crash Action' Recruiting

A directive from Headquarters of the Military District of North Carolina has been received by Greenville's Active Reserve Unit to initiate a "crash action" recruiting drive.

Major James P. Davenport, Operations and Training Officer of the 3015th Reception Station, said today the move is being taken to build up the Reserve unit to its full strength in anticipation of the early enactment into law of the Reserve program before Congress requiring mandatory participation in the Reserve Defense Forces by all young men.

Captain Gordon B. Berry, Commander of the 3015th Reception Station, Cell 1, Greenville, noted that, "On April 27, the House Armed Services Committee approved the first use of limited compulsory in United States history to require Reserve training. Reservists who refuse to maintain minimum training of 48 drills and summer camps could be recalled to active duty for a maximum period of up to two years. The Pentagon proposed subjecting negligent Reservists to a discharge other than honorable, but committee members called this too harsh."

Major Davenport in conclusion stated, "At 8:00 p.m. on Monday, a meeting of all interested persons will be held at the Reserve Training Center, 106 Picklen Street, next to the Morton Tobacco Warehouse.

Present at this meeting will be the local Senior Unit Advisor and a team of regular Army people to show the latest Department of the Army films about the obligated Reservist and conduct a conference on this vital subject. All reservists and interested persons are cordially invited to be present."

1st Lt. Jimmy H. Moore, Captain Berry's Recruiting Officer, brought out these facts concerning enlistment of obligated reservists and eligible young men facing the draft. "Under the present law, the international situation must be very serious to call a Ready Reserve Unit to active duty in the event of a national emergency, whereas an individual not active can be recalled immediately by the President. So be smart and join an active unit."

"It pays to be a Reservist. Our unit meets once a week for a two hour period, for which our people are paid a full day's pay. We are paid once every three months. For example, a Private First Class with four year's service that attends all twelve drills receives $53.04, a Corporal $64.56, right up to a Master Sergeant's pay of $92.04. In many cases this is found money that can pay for luxuries such as TV sets, cameras, or that longed for power tool set, or an outdoor motor. Full pay for the fifteen day summer camp.

"Promotions are wide open. It depends on each man's ability as to how fast he can climb the promotion ladder to Master Sergeant or higher. Young men of draft age can join prior to being drafted and can quickly (in months) rise to Fit or better, then when they are informed of their pending draft status, they can volunteer and go on active duty in their present Reserve grade. This means that all through their basic training phase they will be a 'wheel' and would probably be an acting non-com, thus avoiding the initial stigma of 'Buck Private' or 'Yard Bird' which is the status of the recruit during his basic training."

About 20 million Americans are under 20 years old.

Vaccine Black Market Target Of Legislation

RALEIGH (AP)—The House received legislation yesterday aimed at preventing a black market in vaccines for the prevention of disease.

Rep. Arthur Goodman of Mecklenburg, who introduced the bill, said he had heard reports of black marketing of Salk polio vaccine in the western part of North Carolina. Under Goodman's bill, it would be illegal for the vaccines to be sold except through proper channels—physicians, pharmacists, the State Board of Health and wholesale drug distributors.

Anyone convicted of black-marketing the vaccines would be liable to a $500 fine and a term of four months to 10 years in prison.

Meanwhile, the House and Senate, driving toward adjournment, late next week, made plans to hold sessions Saturday in an effort to clear away some of the enacted.

The Senate and House enacted into law a bill giving Gov. Hodges the authority to appoint up to four special judges of Superior Court.

Among other legislative actions:

1. The House amended a Senate-passed measure which would require State Highway Patrol cars to be painted silver and black after July 1. Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan offered an amendment to require that all state-owned passenger vehicles be painted that color except for the cars of the governor, the state highway chairman, the heads of state-supported colleges, the motor vehicles commissioner and patrol cars used in making special investigations. Another amendment adopted, by Rep. Tom White of Lenoir, would require that the patrol use silver and black cars in operating its "whammy" speed detection equipment. The bill goes back to the Senate for concurrence in the amendments.

2. Six more counties were exempted from the "weak beer" bill which the Legislature enacted recently. The Senate approved a House-passed bill to exempt Anson, Ashe, Bladen, Pender, Sampson and Scotland. The measure was returned to the House for concurrence in a Senate amendment to add Rockingham to the exemption list. The new law authorizes municipalities in counties where sale of regular beer is illegal to vote on legalizing 3.2 beer. Some 42 counties were exempted from the original bill.

3. The Senate enacted into law several bills designed to reduce the state's printing bill. It eliminates the necessity for some agencies to make biennial reports. Other agencies are relieved of having their reports printed.

4. The Senate approved a bill to increase from $10,000 to $15,000 a year the pay of the state superintendent of public instruction, effective Jan. 1, 1957.

5. The House passed a bill requiring the Motor Vehicles Department to allow hearings before suspending or revoking a driving license when requested by a motorist within 20 days. The bill goes into effect Jan. 1, 1957.

6. The Senate Finance Committee approved a bill to tax illegal liquor sales, but Asst. Revenue Commissioner Ben Eaton told the committee collecting the levy would pose a problem for the department. Eaton said he thought "the objectives of the bill are excellent" but that he doesn't know how to enforce it. Under the bill by Sen. David Hall of Jackson, the state's 8 1/2 per cent tax would apply to illegal liquor sales. In addition it would put an extra 10 per cent tax on the illegal sales.

Eaton was instructed to find out how other states which tax illegal liquor go about collecting the tax so the measure could be amended if this was necessary.

7. The House passed a bill to amend the state constitution to allow the governor to appoint up to four special judges of Superior Court.

Ghost Town Has Begun Comeback

RICO, Colo. (AP)—This town, whose gold and silver mining history began in 1869 and faded in the early 1900s, is staging a comeback. Sulphuric acid, an important ingredient in processing uranium ore, soon will be produced at the rate of 150 tons a day in a plant being constructed here.

Uranium mills within a 100-mile radius of Rico now depend on supplies from Utah. Most of the workers in the town's 400 population help mine iron pyrite from which the sulphuric acid is made.

Buccaneers Split Twin Bill With ACC

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Editor

WILSON—East Carolina bounced back to win the second game 3 to 0 here last night but its old nemesis, Atlantic Christian, knocked the Pirates out of undisputed first place in the Eastern Division of the North State Conference by capturing the first game of a doubleheader, 4-3.

The league loss was the Pirates' third of the season and forces them into a playoff with Elon, defending champion. The one-game playoff will probably be held Monday on a neutral diamond.

Atlantic Christian scored its winning tally in the eighth inning of a regularly scheduled seven inning game. The Pirates had fought back to tie the game up 3-3 in the top half of the seventh frame but couldn't score in the top of the eighth.

Ronald Percise, brilliant little ACC shortstop, singled sharply off Bill Loving, who had replaced starter Charlie Russell. He stole second and came home on Jerry Williams' hit.

In the seventh when the Pirates tied the game up, a sparkling play by the Bulldogs' catcher Raeford Fulghum saved ACC scoring another run. With pinch-hitter Bob Penley on third as the results of a walk and Jerry Stewart's long double, Cecil Heath attempted to squeeze in the run. He bunted but the ball looped in the air and Fulghum made a diving bare-handed catch and doubled Penley off third.

Ray Pennington, Buc rightfielder, had just scored on Stewart's timely two-bagger. Pennington walked to get on base.

Atlantic Christian, fired-up and Bohunkus-seeking, scored twice in the first inning and held the lead until the fourth when East Carolina tied it up. Percise and Williams, ACC's big two, scored both on error by catcher Bill Cline. The Pirate backstop threw over the first baseman's head on third-baseman James Gray's bounce in front of the plate.

Dick Rogers and Norm Catlett chunked for the Bulldogs, with Catlett getting credit for the win. Rogers pitched seven and one-third innings and allowed five hits. Catlett, who relieved Rogers in the seventh, gave up one hit.

Charlie Russell started for East Carolina and worked six innings, allowing three hits and three runs, all unearned. Loving gave up two hits in an inning and was the losing pitcher.

Stewart was the hitting leader for East Carolina. The blond shortstop had two hits, including a long double, in four trips to the plate. Percise led the winners' hitting with two hits in four tries.

In the nightcap, the Bucs broke for three runs in the fifth inning and coasted behind the two-hit pitching of sensational Tommy Pruitt to win.

Gene Turner, Buc centerfielder, singled to open the fifth and was sacrificed to second by Ray Pennington. Bucky Reep walked to set it up so Pruitt could win his own ball game. Both runners moved up one on a wild pitch and Pruitt blasted a long triple to deep centerfield, scoring Turner and Reep.

Pruitt then came home on a fielding error by Billy Williams at second.

Pruitt, in notching his seventh win against two losses, was outstanding. He struck out seven men and walked only one. Rooster Davis and Jerry Williams managed hits, both infield affairs.

Ken Fulghum went six innings on the mound for Atlantic Christian. He pitched well, allowing only five ECC bingles. He struck out one and walked one. Roland Baker took over in the last inning and held the Pirates to one hit, a double by Stewart.

The ECC hits were evenly divided among five players. Stewart, Nick Smothers, Bucky Reep, Gene Turner and Pruitt collected safeties.

East Carolina plays Wake Forest tonight in Rocky Mount to conclude their regular schedule.

IT WAS TEAM SPIRIT
DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Rip Collins, first baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals during the "Gas House Gang" era of the early thirties, recalled, "We used to fight all the time on the gang. Fight other teams, fight among ourselves. They call that dissension now, but it was team spirit then."

Cast-Off Hurler Sam Jones Tosses No-Hitter To Assist Chicago Cause

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

It's getting so that only some-time guys castoffs and sore arms pitch no-hitters in the major leagues any more. The big name pitchers just come close.

Toothpick-chewin' Sam Jones, a 6-4 right-hander whom Cleveland gave up on because of a sore arm, added to the trend by hand-cutting Pittsburgh's Pirates without a hit in a 4-0 victory for the Chicago Cubs yesterday.

It was the first no-hitter since last June 12, when Jim Wilson stopped Philadelphia cold 2-0 for the Milwaukee Braves. Wilson had been around since 1945, getting trials with the Boston Red Sox, St. Louis Browns and the Philadelphia A's before joining the Braves in Boston in '51. Now he's with Baltimore.

The most recent no-hit success before Wilson's was the 6-0 job a lad named Bobo Holloman hung on the Athletics for the Browns in 1953. He did it in his first start for St. Louis, but won only two more that season while losing seven. From there he trailed off to the minors.

You have to go back to 1952 before you find names like Virgil Trucks and Carl Erskine in the no-hitter list. Since then, the big guys in the majors have just missed.

Jones 29 made it tough on himself at Wrigley Field yesterday by walking the bases full with none out in the ninth.

Then he dug deep and threw just one more pitch outside the strike zone while fanning Dick Groat, Robert Clemente and Frank Thomas to become the first Cub to hurl a no-hitter in 46 years and the first Negro ever to do it in the majors.

Jones, part of the winter deal that sent Ralph Kiner to Cleveland, walked seven and fanned six. The Cubs backed him up nicely in the field and tagged loser Nelson King and Vern Law for 15 hits, one Ted Twppe's homer.

The lone other National League game also was spectacular. Del Crandall broke it up in the 12th with a home run off Ed Roebuck—his first hit in 24 at bats—that gave Milwaukee a 2-1 victory over Brooklyn. The Dodgers now have lost two straight, after winning 22 of 24.

Rain postponed Philadelphia at Cincinnati and New York at St. Louis.

In the American, Maury McDermott and Washington broke Cleveland's winning streak at six games by a 3-0 count, beating rookie Herb Score despite only two hits off the lefty in six innings. Chicago beat Baltimore 6-2 with four runs in the ninth and Boston whacked Kansas City 12-7. Detroit and New York were idle.

At Milwaukee, Gene Conley went all the way for the Braves, hooking up in a duel with Carl Erskine for 11 innings. Erskine was lifted for a pinch hitter and Roebuck came on in the 12th. Crandall smacked his second pitch.

Conley now 4-1, gave six hits to Erskine's nine. Hank Aaron's second-inning homer and Sandy Amoros' blast in the fourth took care of the only other scoring.

Danny O'Connell's terrific stop of Duke Snider's smash helped check Brooklyn in a rocky 11th for Conley, who got Jackie Robinson on a pop up to end it with the bases loaded.

Cleveland couldn't do much of anything against McDermott, who granted just four hits in his best performance since joining the Senators in a 1953 winter deal with Boston.

Score fanned seven, tying the Yankees' Bob Turley for the major league lead with 67 but walks got him in trouble. Mickey Vernon singled home the first run after a walk and a wild pitch. A walk, stolen base, Ed Fitz Gerald's infield single and an error scored another in the fourth. The third run came off Art Houtteman, who replaced Score after the sixth.

The leading active major league consecutive-game streak came to an end in the game as Eddie Yost, Washington third baseman with a string of 838 straight games, was sidelined by tonsillitis.

The White Sox moved to within two games of the first-place Tribe on a walk, three singles and Jim Rivera's two-run double in the big ninth inning. Harry Drieh was the winner.

Boston kicked up its first real storm in a long while, smacking 15 hits off three A's pitchers, Vic Raschi, attempting a comeback, was jarred for seven runs in the first two innings. Gene Stephens and Jackie Jensen homered for four of Boston's five runs in the second. Gus Zernial's ninth and 10th homers and Bill Renna's fourth accounted for the A's runs as Ike Delock won it with help from Tom Hurd.

TRAINING TRAIL NEARS END—Don Cockell, right, spars with Grant Butcher, San Francisco heavyweight, at San Rafael, Calif., as he enters the final week of training for his title fight with Rocky Marciano. Rocky, Cockell In Rules Discussion

By BOB MYERS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The managers of heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano and his English challenger Don Cockell appear today before the California Athletic Commission to debate the issues of rules, the weight of the gloves and the size of the ring for the 15-round title fight Monday night.

No one looked for any blood-letting. But there was every reason to anticipate enough oratory to fill the Congressional Record.

Briefly presented, as the fighters themselves remained in their respective camps to train for actual combat, the issues involved:

The use of eight-ounce gloves, as California law requires for all divisions over 147 pounds, instead of the six-ounce gloves common in other states for title matches.

Marciano's manager Al Weill roared disapproval of the eight-ouncers. John Simpson for Cockell, expressed displeasure, although he was not as vociferous as Weill. After all, Marciano is noted as a knockout puncher.

The state law was expected to prevail by unanimous decision.

Then there was the size of the ring. California law says it can be anywhere between 16 and 24 feet wide.

Promoter Jimmy Murray has already installed a 16-foot ring in Kezar Stadium. It is, he says, more adaptable, especially for the many news cameramen who will photograph the fight.

The 16-footer is quite all right for Marciano. If Cockell has any plan of running, there will be less room to run.

Simpson said he wanted to compromise.

"We feel that a 24-foot ring would be to the advantage of Cockell and a 16-foot ring favorable to Marciano. So we propose a compromise of 20 feet."

Both fighters apparently would wound up their severe sparring drills and little or no heavy action is in prospect.

Pepsi Cola's team officially opened the Little League season Wednesday by trouncing defending champion Elks by an 8 to 0 margin.

J. Whitley, Pepsi Cola ace pitcher, spun a brilliant two-hitter. Only Elks managing hits off him were centerfielder Corbett and shortstop Briley, both singles.

Pitchers Hardee and Sauve held the Pepsi Cola team to seven hits, but five errors by their teammates proved costly.

The leading hitters for the winners were second baseman Gidlay and rightfielder Buck, with two hits apiece.

Pepsis Trounce Former Champs

Breaststroker Applies Science To Gain Speed

MINNEAPOLIS—An impish college swimmer from Minnesota's northwoods is heading straight for the Olympics with slide rule notions that would horrify his Indian forbears.

Chubby Bob Gawboy already has broken one world's record and is one of America's most promising breast stroke swimmers with a style right out of a laboratory.

Instead of sticking with modern swimming formulas, the 22-year-old Gawboy uses radical ideas based on the principles of force and dynamics. He talks about the "angle of resistance" and the "line of progress."

No one, he says, can persuade him that he swam the 220-yard breast stroke in a world record 2:38 on April 1 on talent alone.

"I've boosted my speed a lot by applying laws of physics," Gawboy says with boyish excitement.

He talks about things like "cutting down water turbulence," with no apparent thought of sounding like a scholar which he laughingly admits he is not. He is an average student at Minnesota. He transferred from Purdue.

He majors in mechanical engineering and the temptation to try some textbook theory in the swimming pool was too much to resist.

His high school coach at Ely, Minn., Leonard Klun, says "I think if they took swimming away from Bob he'd die."

Gawboy says most breast-strokers tilt their bodies at a slight upward angle to get a "surfboard" effect. Gawboy believes that the greater the angle the greater the resistance. Result: Gawboy swims with his body flat in the water when he isn't lunging in the breaststroke.

Most breaststrokers fling their legs sharply to get greater power. For Gawboy, only 5 feet 7, the arm stroke is the thing. "I cut down on the leg kick to save energy," he says.

Gawboy also makes certain that he keeps his arms straight out when possible, "to keep them perpendicular with my line of progress."

His father is a descendant of Chippewa tribesmen, his mother Finnish. At the age of four he lost the sight of his left eye in an accident. He has a venous condition which causes his legs to swell at times.

Lause Favored To Whip 'Tiger' Jones

NEW YORK (AP)—Eduardo Lause, the Argentine knockout artist, is a 2-1 favorite to score his 28th straight victory tonight when he faces strong-jawed Ralph ("Tiger") Jones in Madison Square Garden.

The swarthy 27-year-old middleweight contender has a .740 kayo percentage for 65 pro fights but he hasn't been hitting in the Jones' league. The Tiger has fought the best 160-pounders around and none have been able to drop him for the count. The only one to stop him was Henry Burroughs more than four years ago.

In compiling his 27 consecutive wins, including 25 by kayos, Lause hasn't met a real "name" fighter. His last loss was a 10-round decision to Kid Gavilan in Buenos Aires 32 months ago.

Ranked as the No. 7 contender now, Lause is pointing for a title shot at middleweight champion Carl (Bobo) Olson.

Jones, a stocky, 27-year-old from Yonkers, N.Y., has a 34-13-3 record with eight kayos. A strong body puncher with a straight, forward moving style, Jones puts on a good show, win or lose.

He whacked out a decisive 10-round decision over Sugar Ray Robinson in Chicago Jan. 19. That earned him a nontitle fight with Olson. Outweighing Jones, 168 to 161, Bobo won decisively in Chicago Feb. 16. Jones rebounded to belt out George Johnson in five rounds April 8.

NBC will broadcast and telecast at 9 p.m. EST.

Uzziah's Strength and Failure

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—II Chronicles 25-26.

After the death of Joash, his son Amaziah reigned in his place, and Uzziah succeeded him. Uzziah was only 16 years old when he was made king.

Uzziah built towers in Jerusalem at the corner gate, and at the valley gate, and at the turning of the wall, and fortified them.

Uzziah grew strong, and then he transgressed against the Lord his God. He went into the temple of the Lord to burn incense upon the altar.

Azariah and other priests came and rebuked him. He was stricken with leprosy and driven from the temple. MEMORY VERSE—Proverbs 3:5.

Uzziah's Strength and Failure

HOW A PRESUMPTUOUS ACT BROUGHT HIM TO RUIN

Scripture—II Chronicles 25-26.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

AFTER the tragic death of King Joash, his son, Amaziah reigned for 29 years. Like Joash he began his reign doing right in the Lord's sight. The description of his reign deals almost entirely with his military aspects.

Amaziah strengthened the military forces of Judah and defeated the Edomites. He obtained the services of a large number of soldiers from Israel. A prophet of God whose name we do not know warned him that God did not approve of this maneuver, so he sent them back home but worried about the money he had paid for these forces.

This victory over the Amorites did Amaziah no good, for he brought back to Judah the gods of the conquered nation and set them up as his gods. The anger of the Lord was kindled against him for this, and he was warned of God's displeasure. He formed an alliance with King Joash of Israel which resulted in the defeat of his army.

The Israelite king broke down the wall of Jerusalem and seized wine dressers, for he was fond of farming. The king mobilized a great army and armed them with shields, spears, helmets and habergeons (suits of mail) and bows and slings.

Also he had built engines that hurled stones against an enemy and others that shot forth darts and javelins. He was successful in all his undertakings and so waxed strong, and proud. So he did a most foolish and presumptuous thing. He went into the temple to burn incense upon the altar, which only a priest was allowed to do.

Zechariah the priest saw him and followed him into the temple, and other priests joined him. They said to him, "It pertaineth not unto thee, Uzziah, to burn incense unto the Lord, but to the priests, sons of Aaron, that are consecrated to burn incense; go out of the sanctuary; neither shall it be for thee honor from the Lord God."

This rebuke made the king furious. He had a censor in his hand, and as his anger mounted,

MEMORY VERSE

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding."—Proverbs 3:5.

all the gold and silver, and all the vessels in the house of the Lord and the treasures of the king's house. After the death of the king of Israel, Joash, Amaziah turned away from the Lord still more, which caused a conspiracy against him and he fled. He was pursued and slain.

The king's son, Uzziah, succeeded him to the throne although he was only 16 years old. He reigned more years than any other king of Judah—52 years. He began his reign as his father and grandfather did before him, in the fear of the Lord, but, as we shall see, he too fell from grace.

Uzziah's punishment was so severe that he might have said with Cain, slayer of his brother Abel, "My punishment is greater than I can bear." Uzziah had a guide and counselor, both in religious and political matters, in the Prophet Zechariah.

Uzziah built towers at the gates of Jerusalem to resist any possible attack. He also built towers in the desert and dug many wells or cisterns to catch the rain water for he had many cattle in the low country and in the plains; and he had tillers of the soil and the first mark of that dread disease, leprosy, showed on his forehead. The priests were horrified and drove him out of the temple.

And Uzziah the king was a leper unto the day of his death and dwelt in a separate house, cut off from the house of the Lord. Jotham his son was put over the king's house to judge the people. Even when he died Uzziah was not buried in the tomb with his fathers because he was a leper.

So died the third successive king of Judah alone and in tragic circumstances. We are not told whether he repented of his sin during the years of his long illness.

These lessons may be somewhat difficult for the younger classes, but young and older may heed the lesson that you are never too rich and powerful to take a fall if you grow proud and allow yourself to think that you can disobey the laws of righteousness.

Little children and older ones too, find it difficult to "be good," but they can try and keep on trying to please God in all humbleness.

Christian Science Man's true selfhood as a spiritual child of God—possessing dominion over sin, sickness, and mortality—will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon "Mortals and Immortals."

Among the passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be the following: "Immortal man was and is God's image or idea, even the infinite expression of infinite Mind, and immortal man is coexistent and coeternal with that Mind. . . . Immortal man is not and never was material, but always spiritual and eternal." (338:9-12, 16)

Scriptural selections will include the following from Psalms (1:1, 6): "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. . . . For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the ungodly shall perish."

Evidence That Can't Be Beat

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Charles Jones, charged with speeding 39 miles an hour, told Traffic Judge Beverly Boushe his old truck just wouldn't go that fast.

Boushe took Jones' truck out for a trial run and finally managed to get it to equal the city's 30-mile speed limit — going down hill.

Case dismissed.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

Scott said quietly, "Eric is my friend. Understand this, Landon. I am not trying to undermine the quality of Eric. But this I do know. No man is perfect. And Eric is no exception. You love him for what he is. You might try thinking of him in terms of what he is not. Take a look at him. Take a good look. Detachedly." He paused to light two cigarettes. He gave her one. "A handsome guy, isn't he? Muscles. Hair. In 10 years he'd be bald. I know. I knew him 10 years ago when he had twice as much hair. And poring over books won't do much for muscle tone. Ten years—flabby. Tell yourself that when you look at him. See him bald, and soft."

She laughed. Laughed again. "That is the most childish—!" She choked. "I have never heard anything so utterly silly."

"All right," he was grim. "Look your dreamed-up image of a demigod in your heart."

She was silent.

"Look, Landon. Eric has written a book. For all I know it is a good book. But off-campus who will read it? What I am getting at is this. The campus is Eric's world. There is no reason to believe he will ever be anything but contented there. . . . but can't you see what it will do to him? More and more academic and professional, less and less a man . . ."

Her face was flaming.

He held her eyes a moment longer, and then he smiled at her. "We'll talk about it on the way back. Poor Eric. We'll take him apart, layer by layer, flay by flay."

"I am not going back, Scott."

"Who is going to take care of your grandmother and Merry-o?"

"Eric can hire a housekeeper."

"On buttons? Nothing has a s'changing since Maggie's S O S."

"You are wrong," she said. "Everything has changed."

"Financially, I mean."

She bit her lip at the truth, undeniable.

"And how is Eric to explain your abrupt departure to Maggie?" Scott continued.

"He will think of something."

"Such as, 'Landon fell in love with me and ran away.' Sounds fine, doesn't it? Loving and sisterly and loyal."

"He wouldn't," she whispered. "He wouldn't say a thing like that to Maggie."

"There is something else," said Scott. "Young Adam has been picked as the WLT play to compete in the regional drama festival next week."

"Someone else can play my role."

"It means extra work for Eric, more rehearsals. I am trying to say, Landon, that you are walking out on a lot of obligations. My parents will be troubled and all at sea. What will they think? And all your friends. And I if you will pardon the expression. I've been jilted."

"Oh, Scott," her heart felt shattered. "I didn't want all this to happen. And I should think that you more than anyone else, would wish that I were not to go back."

He said, "I had a talk with Trace Fellowes yesterday. Did you know that Maggie is to have an operation, almost at once? A thoracoplasty. It is called. It means the removal of the ribs on one side to collapse the lung, permanently."

"No, she won't die of it," he said. "But it won't be a picnic for her. And with worrying about you and if your grandmother and Merry-o are being well enough looked after by a housekeeper, and debts piling up—"

She stopped him with a half-angry gesture. "You win, Scott—as you knew you would."

He drew a long breath. "We will go together," he said. His eyes were lovingly on her, dark and steady. "We'll go home together, Landon." His hand reached over and closed lightly on hers.

She looked at his hand, strong and capable, and something stirred in her heart, an easement, a hope, a kind of courage. It was not going to be easy; Scott knew that, too. But there was no other way. Perhaps, this time, she would be all right, with Scott beside her. And his ring on her finger, if he would give it back to her. But of course he would! She straightened her shoulders a little. The time to begin what she had to do was now.

"His clothes do sag on him," she said. "He hangs his jackets on hooks and they hike up in a funny lump."

be Scott."

"Our exit cue?" Jarvis winked at Kay. "Let's join the others outside."

They were lounging in a group in the sun. Bill Kennedy was playing checkers at a card table with Laurie Nicholls. Rowena was in a low chair under the tulip tree, noting each leaf that fell and listening for the sound of an automobile's horn. Steve Nicholls had his sketchbook out and was lazily drawing with a superbly trained stub of a pencil. Judith Kennedy was trying to explain to Merry-o why all shadows were black.

"But it was a cardinal that just flew over," insisted Merry-o patiently. "I saw it. Red as red. Why wasn't the shadow on the grass red?"

The questions they ask! Judith thought helplessly. We will have to buy an encyclopedia. I hope our baby is a boy, for Bill, though a girl would be fine. Anyway, there is not much we can do now about being selective.

Judith looked up. "Oh, Kay, hello—and Jarvis. Do either of you know why a red bird casts a black shadow?"

"Certainly," said Jarvis. "A shadow is an obscuring within an illuminated area, caused by the interception of light by an opaque object. The rays of light are bent around the object by dispersion, refraction and—"

He broke off in mid-air, suspiciously. "Who wants to know?"

"Merry-o," said Judith sweetly. "And brother," she gave him her chair. "What a spot you are in!"

She went over to stand by Bill's chair. "Who is winning?"

"I am," said Laurie and Bill together.

Bill grinned up at Judith. Swell, he thought, to be able to meet her eyes squarely, to have the satisfying knowledge that he had stopped being a jealous fool before Jarvis came home. Sure she liked Jarvis. Everyone did. Maybe, even, she had once been a little in love with him. . . . with a boy whose dominant character, youth, money and a fascinating arrogance, figured the basis of his popularity. . . . But to assume that those were the qualities Judith would continue to love was an insult to her intelligence. Jarvis wasn't the only one who, through a war that had cost him a leg, had gained maturity. I have grown up too, Bill thought. So has Judith. All our impulses run deeper, stronger than they did when we were kids at college. And they run together. That's marriage. He moved a round wooden disc from one square to another, and Laurie pounced triumphantly. "You're a g'novel! What's on your mind—your new job?"

"Maybe."

Laurie said, "We all know some imminent physicist would recognize your research ability and snap you up—didn't we Judith? It is a fine opportunity—even if it means you will have to leave Windermere. Dr. Munro is a top man, isn't he?" Judith answered it. "Yes." Softly. "The top man."

Laurie glanced sideways at Kay Ireland, who was sitting a little apart, alone. I'll go over presently and sit beside her, she thought. We have been stand-offish with her far too long. It's time we let her into our intimate circle. It was a curious thing, though. Kay no longer looked like a stranger. Her beauty was illumined. She looked as if she had come home.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced today and retraced a part of the sharp losses of the past two days in the early afternoon.

Gains of 1 to 3 points were found in several divisions. Losses were small.

The rise put a damper on trading activity, and the pace was less than yesterday's 2,830,000 shares.

Montgomery Ward was up fractionally at the time the results of the proxy fight were announced in Chicago indicated the forces of Louis E. Wolfson would be able to place three men on the board. It started to decline almost immediately.

Aircraft, which have been under selling fire recently, did well today in the advance. Also higher were the steels, motors, radio-televisions, railroads, most chemicals, oils, airlines, and utilities.

Allied Chemical was up around 3 points while DuPont lost as much.

Monsanto Chemical gained between 1 and 2 points on news that the directors proposed a three-for-one split.

Despite the fact that the situation installation of water closets and sinks was amended to make it mandatory to install the facilities in each family unit of dwellings.

Councilmen voted to notify property owners on North Jarvis Street that they looked with favor on a project to install piping in an open ditch in the area and would consider it in next year's budget.

Property owners in the section had offered to furnish the pipe for the job of installing it. The cost was estimated at $1,540.

City fathers discussed widening of Dickinson Avenue from Greece Street to the Norfolk Southern station at length. The state has recently let contracts for resurfacing the section. The councilmen voted to ask the State Highway Commission to hold up on the project until the June Council meeting.

Cost for widening both sides of the street was estimated at $6,380.

They also agreed to widen Pitt Street from Fifth Street to Dickinson Avenue. The council had voted some time ago to widen the thoroughfare from Fourth to Dickinson Avenue.

The council relieved Tom Webb as chairman of the Board of Adjustments at his request. Webb will continue to serve on the board, however. Mayor W. L. Whedbee called for the board to submit their recommendation for a new chairman.

James W. Butler was appointed to the Board of Adjustments for a three-year term to succeed E. Eugene West whose term has expired.

Call for Bids
Councilmen also called for bids for timber on a tract of city-owned land. Hughes told the group that the city had been offered a good price for the timber on the property. However, to sell it legally the city must take bids.

Councilman J. A. Collins commended the police department on the use of speed clocks in the city recently.

The city fathers also instructed the city manager to begin spraying open areas for mosquito control.

Approval was granted for taxi permits for Alex Bryan Hill and Willie Roosevelt Edwards and the councilmen gave the go ahead for advertisement of 1954 taxes.

Also granted was the relief from city license for a dance recital to be presented by the Exchange Club.

Iron Hand Of Red Rulers Clamped On Vietnamese

By LARRY ALLEN

HAIPHONG, North Indochina (AP)—The iron hand of communism clamped down on the lives of 12 million Vietnamese in North Indochina today.

Vietminh troops took over control of the seaport of Haiphong from the French — their last, big territorial gain under the Geneva peace settlement — and a new code of existence immediately went into effect.

Sound trucks broadcast an order that all who had helped and supported the French and Vietnamese must report at once to the nearest police station.

The chill order, an abrupt change in an apparently lenient Vietminh attitude before the march into Haiphong, started hundreds of Vietnamese in hurried flight to the docks.

Other stern Vietminh orders followed quickly over blaring sound truck speakers.

Haiphong's people were instructed to stay in their homes until 8 p.m.

They were told when they could walk on which streets.

They were instructed to go to banks and change their Vietnamese piastres into Vietminh dong, at 40 dong for one piastre.

They were ordered to appear Saturday for the "victory parade" and instructed to cheer.

They were told of taxes they must pay.

They were told French colonialism was dead forever and that the people's great enemy now was "American imperialism."

The sound trucks, moving ahead of grim soldiers shouldering rifles with fixed bayonets, blared the first chilling order:

"Every person who collaborated with the French and Vietnamese forces must report immediately to the nearest police station."

There will be an important meeting of the Coastal Life League Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Teen Age Center at C. M. Eppes High School on West Fifth Street. President J. W. Grimes will preside.

The 20th Century Club will meet Sunday at the home of Mr. J. C. Gorham, Contentnea St., at 5:30 p.m.

Rev. H. H. Hammond, choir, and members of Sycamore Chapel Church will render service at St. Mary's Baptist Church for the choir Sunday, May 15, at 2:30 p.m.

Soviet Union And Red Satellites Approve Pact

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—The Soviet Union and seven other European Communist nations approved today the draft of a security pact which is to place their military forces under a unified command.

A Soviet spokesman told a news conference the treaty and other documents will be signed at 10 a.m. tomorrow and published after the signing.

The premiers, foreign ministers and defense ministers of the bloc nations approved the treaty and the unified command decision at a 30-minute session this morning.

The treaty draft, designed to counter West Germany's rearmament as NATO's 15th member, provides for mutual economic aid and cultural exchanges as well as mutual security of the Red bloc.

There has been speculation that Marshal Ivan S. Konev, Soviet deputy defense minister will become supreme commander.

But the Soviet spokesman said he cannot yet disclose details of the command decision or say which of the eight nation's generals would get the top spot. Some consider the job may go to Marshal Konstantin Rokossovski, the Russian war hero who now heads Poland's armed forces.

Soviet Premier Bulganin told the opening session of the Warsaw conference Wednesday the pact will be open to any other European nation wishing to join and that the alliance will automatically dissolve itself if any all-European security system can be devised.

It was not ascertained immediately whether the decision to establish a unified command is to be embodied in the main treaty or in a separate document.

The signing will be held in Poland's Parliament building, the spokesman said. Premier Bulganin and other leaders of conference delegations are due to speak at a mass open air meeting in the afternoon.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov is expected to leave Warsaw tomorrow to attend a Vienna meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers expected to culminate in the signing of the Austrian independence treaty. The Soviet spokesman said he could not give details of Molotov's travel arrangements.

UN Command Accuses Peiping

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The U.N. command charged today that Communist MIGs made an "unprovoked" attack on American Sabres Tuesday "over international waters" of the Yellow Sea.

Peiping radio declared the Sabres had "intruded over northeast China."

Peiping's broadcast a few hours after the U.N. command's protest to the Military Armistice Commission quoted the Reds' official People's Daily as declaring "Tuesday's incident was a premeditated act of aggression."

The U.N. protest and Peiping radio also disputed on losses in the eight-minute air battle.

The U.N. protest said the Sabres, attacked "some 55 miles southwest of Sinuiju," were obliged to defend themselves and in so doing destroyed two or more MIG aircraft while sustaining no losses.

People's Daily said one Sabre jet was shot down and two were damaged. It called the U.S. report of two MIGs downed and two probably destroyed "brazen wilful perversion of the truth."

It said, "Chinese fighters rose to intercept them (the Sabres) and shot down one and damaged two. These are the facts."

Elbe Veterans On Their Way Home

MOSCOW (AP)—Nine visiting American veterans of the 1945 U.S.-Soviet linkup at the Elbe left for home by plane today. They were laden with souvenirs and loud in their praise of Soviet hospitality.

The nine, who are stopping off in Paris en route to the United States, carried photograph albums recording their four-day visit to Moscow as guests of the Soviet government.

Marshal Vasily D. Sokolovsky, the Soviet chief of staff played host to the visitors last night at a three-hour farewell banquet in the central house of the Soviet army. During the evening he toasted the friendship and mutual understanding "of the American and Russian peoples."

About 15 Russian and foreign guests, including military attaches from Western embassies, attended the lavish affair. A friendly atmosphere prevailed.

Joseph Polowsky of Chicago, leader of the visiting veterans, took the occasion to invite Russian veterans of the Elbe River linkup to visit Washington "where we assure you you'll receive the same warm welcome we received here."

The nine expect to reach the United States Sunday.

Chain Buys Sir Walter Hotel

RALEIGH (AP)—The Meyer Hotels Corp. has purchased the Sir Walter Hotel here for $2,285,000.

The sales agreement was signed yesterday by John E. Meyer, president of the company which has leased the Sir Walter since 1934.

He said the company plans to spend $500,000 during the next three years in renovating the hotel.

The U.N. command's protest to the Military Armistice Commission quoted the Reds' official People's Daily as declaring "Tuesday's incident was a premeditated act of aggression."

East Park Drive officially received a new name last night as City Councilmen followed the suggestion of Attorney Harry Brown.

Brown told the city fathers that he considered Brownlea Drive a good name for the street. Brown said it is an old family name and is an Anglo-Saxon name meaning meadow.

The attorney had objected to the name change at the last Council meeting when the Planning Board recommended that the street name be changed to Cypress Street because East Park Drive is similar to another street name in the city.

Brown said at the time that the name sounded like something a six-year-old child might think up.

Councilmen made quick work of approving the new name. The vote was unanimous.

Bill Offered In Assembly To Allow ECC Trustees To Elect Chairman

A bill has been introduced in the State Senate to allow trustees of East Carolina College to elect their chairman.

The bill was introduced yesterday by Senator Paul Jones of Farmville.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction serves presently as chairman of the ECC trustees. According to the provisions of the bill the superintendent would continue as an ex officio member of the board, but the trustees would elect their chairman from their membership. They would also elect a secretary from among the trustees.

Board membership would continue as 12, appointed by the Governor, plus the Superintendent of Public Instruction. The bill would make it unnecessary for the State Senate to confirm the Governor's appointments to the board.

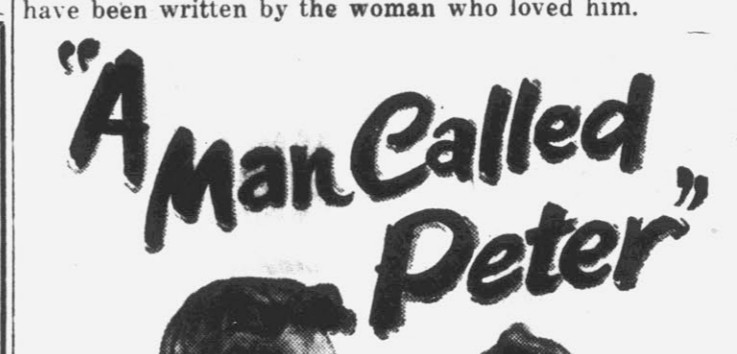

Here is the story of Peter Marshall who came to America as a young man . . . and who was destined to become an inspiration to millions upon millions the world over!

This, too, is the story of a girl named Catherine who fell in love with him. Together, no matter where they went—from the small towns of Georgia to the windswept beaches of Cape Cod . . . from the great cities of Atlanta, Birmingham and Annapolis to the nation's capital, theirs was a romance that touched eternity.

When you see "A MAN CALLED PETER" you will know why this wonderful and profoundly human motion picture has been described as one of the most deeply personal experiences of a lifetime.

You will understand why the book which topped the nation's best-seller lists for over 128 weeks could only have been written by the woman who loved him.
