Councilmen Hold Eventful Session

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. Owners of a service station located at the corner of Fifth and Harding Sts. will be able to rebuild as the result of City Council action last night which makes the corner commercial property. Final approval of the Standard Oil Company's plans for reconstruction of the station brought to an end more than a year's fight to obtain approval for the plans. Company officials told the council last night that they intend to construct a new, modern station on the same site where the present building, constructed in 1929, now stands. Aprons around the station will be asphalt. Councilmen stipulated in approving the plans that a ten foot grass strip must be placed on the north and east side of the station to separate it from surrounding residences. Under the plans presented to the council only a four foot strip had been planned on those two sides. Representatives of the company said they could widen the strip to as much as ten feet without cramping the station's operations. Until now the company had been unable to reconstruct the ancient station because it was located in a section which had been zoned residential. The Council's action last night makes only that one corner a commercial area. The remainder of the section continues to be a residential area. Objections Last Year. When the Esso group first proposed the plan for rebuilding the station last year a petition was circulated among property owners in the area objecting to the plan. Included on the petition were officials from East Carolina College. Company representatives last night read a letter from the college withdrawing their objection to the plan. None of the property owners who originally signed the petition appeared at the public hearing on the matter last night to object to the proposals. The city fathers deferred action on a recommendation by County Health Officer Walter C. Humbert that the city purchase a fogging machine for mosquito control. Dr. Humbert told the group that the machine could be used in heavily wooded areas and on the city streets. The device would kill other type insects as well as mosquitoes and is not considered harmful to humans, animals or birds, he said. He stated that he had checked with other cities in the state which are making use of the device and they reported that it is satisfactory. Purchase of the machine will be considered when the new budget is made up this month. Action was deferred on a request by the city's taxi operators that they be allowed to charge 75 cents for trips to certain areas of the city. Taxicab now charge 50 cents for any trip in town. City Manager James S. Hughes reported that Klinton and Wilson taxicab charges 50 cents for all runs, New Bern has a 75 cent rate similar to that proposed locally, and Washington has a 35 and 50 cent rate. Confirm Appointments. The city fathers confirmed the

Shortages Close 20 GM Plants

60,000 Workers Are Idled; Wildcat Strikes Are Blamed; Talks Go On

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors Corp. today closed 20 car assembly and body plants idling 60,000 workers because of strike-caused parts shortages. National contract bargaining between GM and the CIO United Auto Workers continued, meanwhile, with every indication that the nation's largest auto firm intended to make its bid during the day to stave off a threatened strike at midnight Sunday. It was learned that GM had made no offer to the union as yet on whether it will go along with the same contract deal that the UAW negotiated last Monday with the Ford Motor Co. This called for a modified form of the guaranteed wage, plus pay, vacation holiday and other benefits estimated by the UAW to be worth more than 20 cents an hour per worker. UAW President Walter Reuther said GM's 325,000 UAW workers were ready to strike Sunday night unless GM matched these demands. GM said the shutdowns were caused by earlier wildcat strikes in apparent protest against slowness of the national bargaining negotiations, with the walkouts shutting off parts pouring into various GM plants across the country. This lack of parts, GM said, compelled the company to close down GM Chevrolet assembly and body plants in Detroit, Flint, Bay City, and Saginaw, Mich., and in Buffalo and Tonawanda, N. Y., Indianapolis and Muncie, Ind., Toledo, Ohio, and Baltimore, Md. John W. Livingston, UAW vice president and director of the union's GM department, said the union did not consider the shutdowns a retaliatory action on the part of the company. He said, "we realize the parts shortage gave them (GM) no other choice." GM said all the walkouts violated its expiring contract with the UAW and added, with apparent hope of a contract settlement being achieved before the Sunday night strike deadline, that all workers would be recalled Monday. Other companies supplying parts to GM plants closed today also were notified to stop shipping parts and material into the factories. The contract negotiations were recessed last night just before midnight until this afternoon. It was believed that GM then would make its contract offer bid to match, or improve upon, the Ford settlement to give the UAW time to assess it in advance of the Sunday night time limit. The UAW claimed it had solved all the GM wildcat walkout situations except one—at the Southgate plant, near Los Angeles, involving several thousand workers, and sent special union emissaries there to get strikers back to their jobs.

Postal Pay Hike Signed Into Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today signed into law the bill raising salaries of the 500,000 postal workers an average 8 1/2 per cent—an increase of about 164 million dollars a year. He called it the "greatest forward step for our postal employees in more than a century." The bill was the third postal pay hike measure sent to the President in 10 months. He vetoed the other two. The measure which he approved today, however, meets the main requirement which he and Postmaster General Summerfield laid down. It contains broad authority to reshuffle postal jobs with a view to removing inequities and promoting efficiency. The bill gives all postal employees a 6 per cent increase retroactive to March 1. This will mean distribution of a 40-million-dollar pay raise as soon as the department can arrange the payments. The additional 2 1/2 per cent increase comes about through the reclassification features of the measure. These will take effect six months from today. The reclassification will mean much bigger increases than 8 per cent for some supervisory employees. The department contends these have been slighted in salary raises since World War II. The President approved the compromise legislation just before entering a morning Cabinet meeting. Both houses completed action on the measure last Tuesday. The Senate by a voice vote, and the House by 407-1. An effort to override the veto of this year's original measure was made in the Senate, but it failed by eight votes to get the required two-thirds majority. That bill, carrying a 7 per cent minimum increase, provided for an average boost of 8.6 per cent with fringe benefits raising the over-all payroll effect to 8.8 per cent. The President vetoed a 5 per cent postal pay raise in the last Congress because raises were not accompanied by corresponding increases in postal rates. He vetoed last month's bill on the ground that it cost too much and left inequities in pay grades. The compromise went further than the original to meet the administration proposal on reclassification of jobs and bigger raises for more responsible posts. The annual increases will range from $160 to $4,400, with the average in the neighborhood of $320. For the first time, under the new law, postmasters will get the six-month pay step-ups which other employees of the department have enjoyed. The measure also switches all the workers to a bi-weekly pay basis, instead of semi-monthly as in the past.

W. J. (Dick) Bundy, prominent Greenville attorney and solicitor of the fifth judicial district for six years, today was named resident judge of the new third judicial district by Governor Hodges. Announcement of Bundy's appointment was made by the governor along with the appointment of four other resident judges, completing the task of increasing the state's roster of regular judges from 21 to 32. The appointment of Bundy to the judge's post climaxed a vigorous campaign for the Pitt County seat to receive a place on the Superior Court bench. Bundy had been endorsed for the post by members of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, members of the county board of commissioners, the Pitt Bar Association, officials of Pamlico County, Jones County officials and the Greene County Bar. He also received individual endorsement for the post of judge of the third judicial district from Carteret and Craven Counties, both of which had candidates for the post to which Bundy was appointed today. In the Democratic primary in 1954, Bundy was a candidate for judge of the Fifth Judicial District, but was defeated for the nomination by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill by less than 500 votes. Even in losing the nomination to the veteran jurist from Greene, Bundy carried the four counties which compose the new third district by approximately 1,200 votes.

Carved from the old fifth district, the new third judicial district will be composed of Pitt, Pamlico, Craven and Carteret Counties. Bundy, 55, was appointed solicitor of the fifth judicial district in 1948 to fill the unexpired term of the late D. M. Clark of Greenville. He served as solicitor of the district until the end of 1954, and did not seek re-election to the post because of his candidacy for the judgeship. Bundy is a native of Farmville, attended Farmville High School and received his A. B. degree at Duke University in 1922. He attended law school at Cumberland University at Lebanon, Tenn., and Wake Forest College. He received his law license in 1925. Bundy began his law practice in 1926 at Bethel, and remained a resident of Bethel until 1930 although he moved his law offices to Greenville in 1927. He served as mayor of Bethel from 1927 to 1929, and was appointed to fill an unexpired term as solicitor of Pitt County Recorder's Court in 1932. He is a past president of the Pitt County and Fifth District Bar Association, past commander of American Legion Post 29, past president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club, and past lieutenant governor of the seventh Kiwanis district. He is also a past elected ruler of the Greenville Elks Lodge. Bundy served as grand master of Masons of North Carolina in 1946, and is a past Potentate of Sudan Temple of A. A. O. N. M. S. Shrine, and an active member of the Grand Council of the Order of Demolay for North Carolina. The other appointees are: Hamilton Hobgood of Lenoir, Ninth District, Franklin Granville, Person, Warren and Vance counties. Raymond Mallard of Tabor City, 13th District, Bladen, Brunswick and Columbus. L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro, 18th District, Guilford County. F. C. Fromberger of Gastonia, 7th District, Cleveland, Gaston and Lincoln counties.

Adenauer Hopeful Over Four-Power Parley

Says Signs Justify Optimism

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today was quoted as saying that "the signs of relaxation in world tensions justify a certain optimism." That view was attributed to him by the bulletin of the government press office in a preview of his visit to the United States and Britain next week. He added that Adenauer "believes the forthcoming four-power conference has a good chance of bringing results." The chancellor no longer considers it as hopeless to bridge the gap between East and West as it used to seem," the bulletin said. This followed yesterday's declaration from a government spokesman that Adenauer is willing to meet with top Russian leaders after preliminary exchanges to determine the "appropriate circumstances." The bulletin said Adenauer will present these "fundamentals" to the Western statesmen next week: 1. West Germany "is equally opposed to neutralizing Germany and to the idea of a reunified Germany without any alliances." 2. "The West must be strong and united if further success is to follow on the good results already achieved." The bulletin added: "Meanwhile, perhaps, the desire for genuine disarmament has become stronger in the East, too." Chance of negotiating an end to the atom arms race "are better than they have been for many a decade," the review continued, adding: "The realist Adenauer makes a strong bid for disarmament and collective security." The 70-year-old chancellor flies in a special Lufthansa airliner from Bonn Sunday night, arriving in Washington Monday morning. He will meet President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Minister Harold Macmillan and possibly French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay while in the United States. The following Sunday he stops off in Britain on his way back to lunch with Prime Minister Eden.

Council Approves 5 Paving Projects

Hillsdale, Chestnut St. from Skinner to Memorial Drive, Glen Arthur Ave. from 13th to 14th, Sycamore from 4th to 5th and Laurel from 4th to 5th will be paved under the first portion of the city's 1955 paving program as approved by the City Council last night. Those five projects will cost a total of $35,050 of which the city must pay $19,519. For Hillsdale the paving will be the completion of a street improvement project started last year. Drainage has been installed in that subdivision and the streets curbed and gutted. The Chestnut St. project will connect present paving, which stops at the fire department substation, with Memorial Drive. The other three projects were added for immediate paving because of the high percentage of property holders who have signed paving petitions. Property owners on Laurel and Sycamore Sts. have signed up for the paving program 100 per cent and over 88 per cent of owners on the Glen Arthur section have signed.

Hodges Endorses Localized Studies

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges today said he "moves sense" to him for local school boards to appoint committees to study the school segregation problem. At his news conference he was asked if he feels local school authorities should wait until a special seven-member segregation study committee makes recommendations. "Not necessarily," he answered. "I think it makes sense for them to appoint their own committees." He commented that "situations are so different" in various sections of the state. He told newsmen he hopes to name the study group, which was authorized by the Legislature, the week after next and expects it to hold its first meeting immediately. The governor was asked to comment on a plan proposed in Virginia aimed at preserving school segregation by classifying public school pupils as to scholastic attainment, health and welfare considerations. "I'd say Virginia has a little different problem," said North Carolina, he replied. He pointed out Virginia is one of the state's directly involved in school segregation cases on which the U. S. Supreme Court has ruled. The court ordered a prompt start on desegregation under the direction of federal district judges and said the judges could consider local conditions in their decrees. Hodges pointed out that North Carolina had moved to decentralize its school system and commented, "I think it is going to be easier for us to handle on the local level."

Guaranteed Wage Plan Negotiated By Textile Union

BOSTON (AP)—What the CIO describes as the first guaranteed wage plan in the textile industry has been negotiated with the American Velvet Co. of Stonington, Conn. Victor J. Canzano, cotton-rayon director for the CIO Textile Workers Union, said that under the plan negotiated yesterday laid-off workers with at least 10 years service will be assured $40 weekly for a year. He said that under the plan the company will contribute $10 a week to the workers' $30 a week Connecticut jobless benefits for 26 weeks. After that period, if the lay-off continues, the company will provide $40 a week for another 26 weeks. The plan is based on company contributions of 27 per cent of its annual profits before taxes—two-thirds of this amount going into the unemployment fund and one-third into a pension fund. The administration concluded the contract in place of asking Congress for money to build the Dixon-Yates plant, which Congress has turned down several times. The contract provides for the Dixon-Yates group to pipe its power to the middle of the Mississippi River, with a proposed TVA transmission line taking it from there into the TVA system. In diverting the $1 million from the Dixon-Yates project to the proposed new Fulton plant, the committee said there is no indication that litigation involving the Dixon-Yates contract will be settled soon. "For two years," it said in a report written by Chairman Cannon (D-MO), "the administration has failed to recommend any new starts in generating capacity for TVA although the load is growing rapidly in this area and installations vital to defense are located there. TVA must be assured of generating capacity." The committee's action on the Dixon-Yates project overshadowed the fact that it imposed a 28 per cent cut—a record for this year—on the over-all money requests of President Eisenhower for agencies dealing with big power projects. The President requested a total of $1,789,165,000 for the TVA, the AEC, the Southeastern Power Administration, the Southwestern Power Administration, the Bonneville Power Administration, the Reclamation Bureau and the civil functions of the Army Engineers. A large part of the cut, however, was of the so-called "paper" variety, involving the transfer of unobligated balances from previous funds instead of putting up new cash. The AEC was given $618,000,000 of the $1,045,000,000 it sought, but was allowed to retain $259,447,000

Brownell Favors Photos in Court

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—U. S. Atty. Gen. Brownell has urged that press photographers be given "their day in court" to demonstrate the ease and discretion with which courtroom pictures can be taken. "I know you can do it," he told the annual convention of the National Press Photographers' Assn. here last night. "In fact, I am recommending to the chairman of the American Bar Assn. committee that a model courtroom be set up at its forthcoming meeting in Philadelphia so that press photographers can show their stuff; to show that this kind of press photography can be done and protect the interests of justice for all concerned." Brownell frequently referred to a rule of the ABA, Canon 35, which forbids the taking of photographs in the courtroom during proceedings. Several states have adopted the rule. The attorney general said courts are "constantly faced with the perplexing problem of how to reconcile freedom of the press with the need for maintaining the impartial administration of justice. He is more important than the other."

Southern Railway Slated Finish Arguments Today

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—The Southern Railway was expected to end its case here today at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on a Southern proposal to acquire the Atlantic & East Carolina Railroad. Southern officials indicated they would call three or four additional witnesses before winding up their case before ICG Examiner J. Herman Blond. Opponents of the proposal, including the Atlantic Coast Line and the Norfolk & Southern railroads, they will present testimony. Under its proposal, Southern would take over operation of the 98-mile, state-owned A&EC which operates between Morehead City and Goldsboro. It also would lease from the Navy Department the huge Camp Lejeune and Cherry Point Marine Corps bases. Southern has said it must acquire the entire trackage of A&EC, together with a lease on the Navy's railroad, and must operate the two together in order for the venture to be economically sound. To boost its case, Southern officials testified yesterday that its operation of the A&EC would stimulate industrial development in the eastern Carolina area, now primarily agricultural. A number of business and industrial leaders backed up Southern in testimony late yesterday. One of these leaders, Raymond Bryan of Goldsboro, president of the huge T. A. Loving Construction Co., predicted that prospective industries would have more confidence in the area if they knew Southern "is behind the A&EC." Another witness, Fred Linton, executive vice president of the Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce, said he believed the transfer would help western Carolina areas in developing industry. If Southern is allowed to take over the A&EC, it would give the larger railroad trackage all the way from Morehead City to Asheville and on into the near Midwest. Linton's view also was expressed by Gerald Cowan Sr., Asheville banker and vice president of the Industrial Development Council there. FIVE-DAY WEATHER FORECAST FOR N. C. Temperatures will average 5 degrees below normal, with little day to day change until somewhat warmer Tuesday. Precipitation moderate to heavy, averaging one-half to one inch, occurring tonight through Sunday night.

Law Enforcers Still At Loss To Explain Abandoned Car Mystery

Law enforcement officers were still at a loss early today to explain the mysterious past of a yellow, 1950 Mercury convertible found abandoned and bloodstained just outside the city limits on US 264 Wednesday afternoon. State Highway Patrolman D.L. Minshew forwarded to Virginia authorities the number found on an inspection sticker pasted to the windshield but had not received a reply yesterday. The car, in which strands of hair were also found, had apparently been abandoned for several days. It had been given a crude paint job the license plates had been removed and the battery was dead.

MYSTERY CAR—Found abandoned on US 264 just west of the city late Wednesday afternoon was this 1950 Mercury convertible with blood stains and what apparently were strands of hair in the front seat. A hurried coat of yellow paint (see smears on left front wheel) had been applied and the license plates removed. Anyone knowing how or why the car came to be abandoned can contact city police, the sheriff's department or the State Highway Patrol. (Reflector Photo by Bob Hilliard.)

House Appropriations Group Tees Off Dixon-Yates Struggle

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee drew clear lines today for a major congressional fight over the controversial Dixon-Yates power project. It struck a double blow at the project as it sent to the House floor for debate next Wednesday a bill appropriating $1,282,216,242 to finance government power agencies for the fiscal year starting July 1. By a split vote, the committee turned down an administration request for 6 1/2 million dollars to build a power line linking the Dixon-Yates plant at West Memphis, Ark. with the Tennessee Valley Authority power system. Then it earmarked the money to start construction of a new TVA steam plant at Fulton Tenn. The effect of the action, if sustained by Congress, could be to leave the Dixon-Yates project without an outlet for its current and to build a new TVA plant to generate power in an area the Dixon-Yates group plans to serve. House leaders conceded that the action would stir up a hot floor fight that would have repercussions in the 1956 political campaign. Democrats predicted that the committee recommendation would be upheld by a partisan vote. Ground already has been broken for the 107-million-dollar West Memphis plant to be financed by the Middle South Utilities Co. headed by Edgar H. Dixon and the Southern Co. headed by Eugene Yates. The Dixon-Yates group has signed a 25-year contract with the Atomic Energy Commission to supply the TVA with power as replacement for plants.

The administration concluded the contract in place of asking Congress for money to build the Dixon-Yates plant, which Congress has turned down several times. The contract provides for the Dixon-Yates group to pipe its power to the middle of the Mississippi River, with a proposed TVA transmission line taking it from there into the TVA system. In diverting the $1 million from the Dixon-Yates project to the proposed new Fulton plant, the committee said there is no indication that litigation involving the Dixon-Yates contract will be settled soon. "For two years," it said in a report written by Chairman Cannon (D-MO), "the administration has failed to recommend any new starts in generating capacity for TVA although the load is growing rapidly in this area and installations vital to defense are located there. TVA must be assured of generating capacity." The committee's action on the Dixon-Yates project overshadowed the fact that it imposed a 28 per cent cut—a record for this year—on the over-all money requests of President Eisenhower for agencies dealing with big power projects. A large part of the cut, however, was of the so-called "paper" variety, involving the transfer of unobligated balances from previous funds instead of putting up new cash. The AEC was given $618,000,000 of the $1,045,000,000 it sought, but was allowed to retain $259,447,000 of its unobligated balances and to transfer $481,400,000 from its plant and equipment balances to the general operating account. The effect of this transaction is to give the AEC a total obligation authority of $1,358,847,000 instead of $1,525,251,000. The committee did not challenge any of the justifications submitted for the AEC general program but noted "evidence that economies can be effected." The TVA money request was pared from $27,550,000 to $26,214,000. The Southeastern was given the entire $1,160,000 it requested, while the Southwestern got $5,550,000 more than the $1,134,000 requested. The Bonneville was trimmed from $22,000,000 to $21,000,000. The Reclamation Bureau from $179,610,000 to $145,000,442, and the rivers and harbors flood control program from $512,702,000 to $469,307,800.

BETHEL—The regular monthly meeting of the Sarah Whitehurst Circle of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church met on Monday afternoon with Mrs. J. S. Moore and Mrs. M. T. Whitehurst as co-hostesses. Mrs. R. N. Simmons, chairman, presided at the meeting. Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst, spiritual life leader, chose for her meditation the topic "Making Melody." She used the fifth chapter of Ephesians for her scripture reading. She pointed out how the "C" scale could be used to make melody for the Lord as follows: C for church, D for devotion, E for enthusiasm, F for friendliness, G for generous giving, A for attitude and B for bifocal vision of Christ and our work. In the closing prayer she asked the Divine Leader to direct in carrying out this scale. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the roll called by the secretary, Mrs. D. C. Carson. It was moved and seconded that the circle would cooperate with plans of the church kitchen. Mrs. M. T. Whitehurst expressed deep appreciation for support to each member to her while she was chairman. Various committees were appointed. Mrs. C. G. Garrenton offered to make a booklet of the circle activities and committees for the coming year. Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst gave a very interesting and informative program by summarizing the accomplishments of the United Nations for the past ten years. She closed with the question, Are we a decade closer to peace? The hostesses served ice cream, cookies and nuts to seventeen members.

The Gladys Keith Circle of the Bethel Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. J. E. Hammond Monday at 3:30 o'clock. The meeting was opened by the group singing "Blest Be the Tie," followed with prayer by the leader, Mrs. C. E. Brown. Mrs. W. W. Taylor gave the devotional with remarks and prayer on missions, scripture found in Matthew 28:18-20 and Acts 1:8. The program was given in a very interesting manner by Mrs. J. P. Harris. Her talk was concerning the Heck-Jones Memorial Fund. She explained that this fund was used for several different phases of the Baptist Mission work in the state. 'Books and Stuff'

By DR. ED HIRSBERG

All the musical activity that will be going on here during July, what with the E.C.C. Summer Music Camp and allied events, made us think about other places in North Carolina where music will be featured.

Brevard, for example, will see the opening of the Brevard Music Centre on June 23 and the tenth annual Brevard Festival will be held there during the last three weekends in August.

We also enjoyed reading a story in last Sunday's Times about the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, which has just completed ten years of successful musical activity, covering 68,000 miles throughout the State and giving 600 concerts before adults as well as children.

The account made us wonder why we haven't heard the North Carolina Symphony play one of its concerts here in Greenville. Haven't we invited them, don't we like good music, or what? To us, it seems that the existence of the orchestra is a privilege and a challenge—a privilege to the citizens of our State, which helps support it with our taxes, and a challenge to every community to have at least one successful concert every year.

We, and a lot of other people we know, certainly would like to see the N.C. Symphony Orchestra come to Greenville in the near future.

Schweitzer's World

We've been looking through the Sheppard Memorial Library copy of "The World of Albert Schweitzer," a book of photographs by Erica Anderson that has recently been issued about the great composer-doctor-missionary-organist. We were tremendously impressed by the pictures of Schweitzer's varied activities both in the jungles of Africa, where he supervises a hospital in the village of Lambaré, and in Gunesbach, Germany, where he makes his home when he takes a holiday from his arduous work as a doctor for the natives.

One of the quotations from his writing that is used to illustrate his philosophy was this one, which we think might intrigue you: "To the question whether I am a pessimist or an optimist, I answer that my knowledge is pessimistic, but my will and hope are optimistic."

Summer Features

Coming soon as the August selection of the Literary Guild: "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," by Sloan Wilson. It's a novel about a city slicker who gets into trouble because of his past life.

The Guild has picked for September the newest Robert Penn Warren opus, to be called "Band of Angels," a novel set in the South of Civil War days.

And Evelyn Waugh will present to the reading market a new novel soon, called "Officers and Gentlemen," a sequel to "Men at Arms."

Herman Wouk, author of "The Caine Mutiny," has written a new book that will be the September Book-of-the-Month, "Marjorie Morningstar."

And for poetry lovers, Robert Tristram Coffin's "Selected Poems" has just been issued—his last, for Mr. Coffin died last January at the age of 62.

reading.

SARA DANE. By Catherine Gaskin. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott Co., 195. $4.95.

It was the late 1700's, and Sara Dane was being transported to Botany Bay, Australia, on a trumped-up charge of theft. She was a woman of fierce pride, shrewd business sense, and yet gentle with her children and those she loved.

Hawkesbury, New South Wales, never let her forget that she had been a convict Beautiful Sara, married in the colony to Andrew Macclay, loved in England by Richard Barwell, worshipped by Jeremy Hogan, and then adored by Louis de Bourget, a wealthy Frenchman. She lived to become the greatest landowner in New South Wales, with ships, a store, and finally a grudging acceptance by the gentry of the country side.

Rebellion, convict outbreaks, and giant floods stalked her empire. She lost Andrew to a convict armed rebellion, and her small son Sebastian to the floods. Finally her marriage to Louis came to an end when he lost his balance riding in a hunt and broke his neck.

Sara took her children to England after she had been away 20 years. Her whole life is a portrayal of the life and times. While it is the story of Sara Dane, it is also the struggle of a new land where people were too far away from the homeland to be too greatly affected by conditions at home.

Miss Gaskin, who is quite young, has done a very interesting account. She has lived in Australia, but is now living in London. The story makes good reading. While violent, as such stories must be, it is not revolting.

We Can Finance Our Own Program

Word that the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will not be able to furnish the third free shot of Salk anti-polio vaccine to first and second graders has again shaken public confidence in the polio vaccine program.

It is our reaction that here again is evidence of poor planning in connection with the polio vaccine. If there were a possibility that the National Foundation could not supply the series of three shots of a designated group of youngsters, top officials of that group should not have gone out on a limb to say it would.

This latest development is not the fault of local health officials or officials of local chapters of the National foundation. Here again the big wigs on the national level

The Entire Citizenry Stands To Benefit

Most North Carolinians will welcome the move by the State Department of Revenue through which a closer check will be made on income tax payments, particularly of self-employed people.

Many taxpayers have misgivings when the time rolls around for sending their annual income tax returns to Raleigh. But if there is one thing that burns a citizen more than paying his taxes, it is the thought of other citizens who slip by without paying their share of the tax money necessary to operate government.

By and large the people of North Carolina seek to pay their state and federal income taxes and make honest returns. There are some who intentionally or through honest errors fail to bear their proportionate part of the tax burden. The new program which is being launched by the state government will bring to light a number of cases in both categories. Some individuals may be hurt by the tighter program; but from the overall standpoint, the people of the state will benefit.

North Carolina is investing an additional $300,000 annually in this program which is estimated to bring an additional one and one-half million dollars in state revenue each year. It is a worthy program which will create a more equal distribution of the tax burden among all the people in North Carolina.

Strength for the Day

HEROISM AT THE RUSH HOUR
A few months ago a woman rushing for a subway train slipped and fell, and her leg became wedged between the edge of the platform and the car. A hero appeared at that moment, not on a white charger or with any of the dramatic accompaniments of a great rescuer, but in the form of a sensible middle-aged chap who knew what to do in a time of crisis and how to get people to co-operate.

As if he had thought it all out in advance, he held open the door so the train would not start and told half the people to stay in the car and throw all their weight on the side opposite that on which the woman was pinned. He then used as many people as could get their hands on the side of the car to shove it away from the platform. They were able to move it only a fraction of an inch, but this was enough to free the woman.

Here were 50 to 100 people almost entirely unacquainted with one another who got together heroically in a time of crisis. Here was a prosaic individual who used keen observation and the sense God gave him to perform a rescue worthy of a decoration. Poetry stalks our streets, heroism rubs elbows with us every day, greatness abides in little people.

Military Eyes Are On Asia

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's reshuffling of the Pentagon's high command—the Joint Chiefs of Staff and leaders in the field—represents more than an attempt to rebuild a sagging military morale, although that was an important factor in the shift of personnel. The overhauling shows that Ike and his military advisers regard the Far East, not Europe, as the world's next danger spot and powder barrel.

Eisenhower has replaced retired executives with relatively young, aggressive and extremely vocal officers. Admiral Arthur W. Radford, who will continue as Chairman of the Joint Staff, and Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, who jumped 92 superiors to become Chief of Naval Operations headed the Navy's revolt against efforts to cut down their service's air power.

Radford was the propaganda brains and director behind the revolt. Burke was his active agent in slipping inside clandestine and anti-Air Force stuff to newspaper, magazine and radio correspondents. For this kind of insubordination, F.D.R. and Harry S. Truman used to demote or retire the offenders.

SALUTARY CHANGE—Ike promotes them, indicating that he welcomes and appreciates a bold and independent viewpoint among the "high brass." Ike remembers, perhaps, that the great contributors to our military supremacy were the iconoclasts—Mahan, Sims, Mitchell. It is a salutary innovation.

must assume the responsibility just as with the federal government bungling of the program.

Be that as it may, The Reflector feels that the third shot in the series will be made available free of charge to first and second graders before next February or March when it will be time for the third shot in Pitt County.

There are several possibilities. It is quite likely that the federal government will appropriate funds either directly by an act of Congress to supply polio vaccine free of charge. We may logically expect the polio vaccine soon to join the category with typhoid, smallpox and other vaccines which are now administered without charge through local health departments. Perhaps such action will come before time for the third shot in Pitt County.

If the vaccine is not made available through a federal or state agency, Pitt County can always raise the necessary funds through voluntary subscriptions to carry out the program which already has been started. Although the exact cost of the vaccine is not known, it is estimated that Pitt County could secure for $4,000 to $5,000 a sufficient amount of serum to give a third shot to 3,300 first and second graders who have received the first shot and will receive the second shot through the National Foundation program.

Certainly the people of Pitt County should stand ready to finance this last leg of the initial program through local funds if funds are not available from other sources.

Suitable Action Should Follow City Study

In studying plans for correcting the offset at Boyd and Dickinson Avenue, Greenville's City Council has tackled one of the most hazardous traffic spots in the whole city.

It is imperative that some measures be taken to correct the bad situation which has existed there for many years in order to reduce the number of traffic accidents at that particular intersection. Both Dickinson Avenue and Boyd Avenue are heavily traveled streets. The intersection of the two streets has been the scene of as many traffic accidents in the past few years as any other intersection in the city. Indeed the accident rate at Boyd and Dickinson has been considerably higher than at other intersections in the city with a comparable traffic count.

If the alteration in the intersection can be made it will not only alleviate one of the worst traffic hazards in the city, but it will likewise make possible the re-routing of highway 43 through Greenville. This latter factor in itself would be sufficient justification for the city's taking steps to correct the situation which exists at Boyd and Dickinson. The two achievements which would be recorded with the correction at the intersection certainly justifies suitable action by the city administration.

in Europe is impressive. OUTSPOKEN MILITARY MEN—Radford also believed that the United States could have blocked Ho Chi Minh's conquest of North Indo-China, if he had intervened in time with naval and air strikes. He did not initiate this strategy, but that was the answer he gave when he was asked for his advice by the White House.

Admirals Radford and Burke, as well as General Nathan Twining, head of the expanding Air Force, have several qualities in common, which account for their retention or elevation by Eisenhower. They did their major fighting during World War II against the Japanese in the Pacific. They believe that the greatest threat to the United States will arise in that area, not in NATO-strengthened Europe.

Moreover unlike so many of their predecessors, they do not fear or shudder at a military showdown with the Russian or Chinese Reds, separately or in alliance. Their belief that both the Moscow and Peking armies and navies and air units are phony Potemkin backdrops, is beginning to prevail at Washington.

IMPORTANT SIGNIFICANCE—Eisenhower's reliance on this kind of military team has political and diplomatic significance. Radford, and Burke, a Virginia Democrat, have both the confidence of the Congressional Armed Services Committees. In appearance and testimony they are unusually forceful and convincing, which will be a help in obtaining appropriations.

Somebody Told Me

In His Shoes, It Is Different

Overheard downtown yesterday: "Shor: summer we had, wasn't it?" Saw a farmer who had on two pairs of socks, two shirts and two pairs of pants. Of course they were all summer clothes.

Socially we stay in about the same age groups and therefore hear about problems that resemble our own. That especially applies to children. In our case it's the problems that range from baby age to six that we hear about.

That's why I was particularly interested in a discussion I had yesterday with a salesman who calls on us regularly. It concerned his 20-year-old daughter.

It was about two years ago when I started keeping up with Barbara's progress. That's when the salesman asked me about East Carolina as a possible college for her. My effort to sell him on send ing her to Greenville failed, it's too far from home. So she enrolled at Guilford.

If I can trust a father's eye-view, Barbara is a knock-out and when it comes to scholastics, she's tops. After completing two years at Guilford, she has yet to make a B; all straight A's.

Then comes her love life. She's very much in love with this average student at Guilford. This is of very much concern to her parents. "Here's what I tell her," her father says, "if you marry that guy it'll be just like teaming up a mule and a race horse."

Barbara replies, "You and mother just want me to be an old maid!" Upon closer examination it seems that Barbara had to pull her lover through college by helping him with outside work. And he's just getting by with her help.

He just doesn't seem to have the zip that Barbara's parents want to see.

So the question arises: Has there ever been a daughter-in-law or son-in-law that was worthy of the hand of a son or daughter in the eyes of their parents? I doubt it. There have been marriages that were encouraged by parents because of social or financial gain of a particular family. But when it came to the individual I doubt if even he was worthy — just his prestige or money.

Personally, I imagine that Barbara and the "mule" would get along fine in marriage. Actually, he's probably a good catch. Would I think so in the salesman's shoes? That's an unfair question.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

IT IS COSTLY TO OUR STATE (Washington Daily News)
With thousands of boys and girls graduating right now from high schools and colleges in North Carolina it is only natural that we think in terms of the future for these young people.

We hear a lot of talk about the fact that so many of them will go elsewhere to work and make their marks. We are losing far too many of them to those "greener pastures" which are over yonder.

The sad truth is that the people of North Carolina are paying out so much money to educate these boys and girls only to lose them at the very time in life when they could do us the most good.

Such a situation is costly to the people of our state. No one does it cost us money to educate them, but of far greater cost is the knowledge we are losing to other localities.

That loss is costing us much. There is no substitute for knowledge. However, we realize that the boy or the girl is only doing what he or she thinks is best in leaving. If the opportunities are not available here in North Carolina, then no one can blame them for going elsewhere.

It does look hard for us to have to spend money to educate them so that they can go other places to display their knowledge and their leadership. It is a fault of the system—a system which in too many cases have denied them the opportunities they seek.

If they have ambitions, and many of them do, then they want to go where they can look upon the future with real hope. If we haven't provided that type of future or given that big of hope here at home, then we, as adults, have a real challenge to meet also.

We need these boys and girls here at home badly. We need their knowledge, their leadership, and their enthusiasm. If we will provide the opportunities, we can keep them here. If we fail them, we have not merely failed them, but we have failed our own selves also.

Youth is our most precious possession and our most valuable asset. If we lose the vigor and courage of youth, we have lost the very life blood of our future greatness here.

The picture is not altogether a dark one. With more industry and greater development and stronger progress being made in our state, the day may not be too far distant when we can look at the challenge and feel that we are meeting it squarely.

Coupons In Bigtime

By ELMER ROESSNER
A billion coupons good for allowances of a total of $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 off on grocery-store items, are distributed each year.

Customers and most retailers like them, Paul E. Willis, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, said after the association completed a study of couponing.

However, the study disclosed that grocers object to the trouble of handling coupons, and it offered a series of suggestions to ease the work. They included:

1. Using uniform size coupons, no larger than a dollar bill, on paper stock heavy enough to be handled readily.
2. Minimizing the use of printing on coupons, avoiding coupons with rough edges, such as those torn from magazines and newspapers, and avoiding coupons that have to be torn from packages or that require either customers' or grocers' signatures.
3. Establishing, where possible, face values of coupons in multiples of 5 cents.

4. Using, where practical a family resemblance and all coupons of each issuing company. Grocers, the survey found, strongly favor simplification of methods by which they must count, sort and report on coupons. And they would like redemption cash or credit a little more promptly.

The study found that reactions to coupons varied, all the way from a retailer who used full-color, four-page newspaper advertisements to urge readers to bring their coupons to him, to another retailer who was opposed to all coupon promotions, in fact, to all brand promotions.

While Mr. Willis' report did not name the latter retailer, it may have referred to Safeway, which recently completed its own study of couponing. Safeway found its stores handle 40,000,000 coupons a year and that they are becoming "more and more of a headache." It said they "represent price cuts by brand promoters who use the coupons as a dodge to lower the actual price, while at the same time they attempt to maintain a published but fictitious price."

COINS RETURNING, STRENGTHENING SILVER
An explanation of the rise in the price of silver is offered by Pick's World Currency Report. It is because a large number of European nations are planning to mint silver coins to replace worn-out bank notes and to add intrinsic value to their currencies.

Saudi Arabia and Germany have purchased large amounts of silver for this purpose. Pick's reports, and Austria, Belgium, France, Italy and some of the Scandinavian countries are planning mintings of silver.

NEW SYSTEM SPEEDS CREDIT REPORTS
Automatic devices are being used to speed credit reporting. Credit Exchange, Inc., has disclosed. These devices will permit the reporting service to handle up to 25,000 credit inquiries a month in its New York office.

When a client has a large number of inquiries—and at the height of the apparel shopping season a single subscriber may have as many as 300 inquiries at a time—he is switched to an automatic recording machine that can take down inquiries as fast as the client can talk. With the use of a conveyor belt, information can be obtained from the files at a rate of 12 seconds per inquiry. When the data are assembled, it is telephoned to the client.

The Old West Had A Delinquent

By HAL BOYLE
LINCOLN, N.M. (AP)—The Old West had its juvenile delinquents, too.

The most famous was William H. Bonney, better known as Billy the Kid.

Historians still argue over the real character and actual criminal record of this buck-toothed frontier lad.

Legend has it that in his brief 21 years he killed 11 men, "not counting Indians and Mexicans." But that is only legend.

Was Billy, a Brooklyn tenement product, fatherless at three, a born mobster with murder in his heart? Or was he just a victim of his wild environment, a "crazy mixed-up kid?"

Unfortunately, Billy didn't live to an age in which he could lie down on a psychiatrist's couch and give his own version. But nearly 75 years after his death the souvenirs of his controversial career have made him one of New Mexico's greatest tourist draws. Not up to the Carlsbad Caverns, of course, but still a major attraction.

Nobody had heard much about Billy until the opening of the celebrated "Lincoln County War," which has since inspired countless Hollywood horse operas.

The war was a struggle for economic and political power between two rival factions of frontier rangers, general storekeepers and politicians.

It began Feb. 18 1878, when a posse, deputized to serve legal papers on John Tunstall, an English-born rancher, met him on a road and, instead of the papers, served him two bullets. The second one went through his head.

Billy, who had been befriended by Tunstall, joined the slain rancher's other hired hands in seeking revenge.

Before the war ended battles between the two factions left 14 men dead in this small town alone.

Only one man besides Billy ever stood trial, and he was acquitted. Billy, who had been promised a full pardon by Territorial Gov. Lew Wallace, did surrender. But he became suspicious of the situation and rode away unhindered.

Later, brought to trial for a subsequent slaying and sentenced to hang, the Kid recalled the earlier bargain with Gov. Wallace and complained he was being given a raw deal. When Wallace pointed out that his promise had been given at a different time for a different crime, Billy killed his two guards in the courthouse jail and galloped off.

Exactly 77 days later at midnight on July 14, 1881, Sheriff Pat Garrett, who had taken the deaths of his two deputies as a personal insult caught up with Billy.

Sitting in a blackened room, the sheriff ambushed Billy. He shot him above the heart the Kid, half dressed and shoeless, stood uncertainly at the doorway and called in Spanish, "Who is it? Who is it?"

They buried Billy in a borrowed white shirt too big for his thin small frame, and an Indian girl put a wooden cross above his grave inscribed "Sleep well, beloved."

There were some hard feelings against Sheriff Garrett. Some held he could have taken the Kid alive. Billy had his friends as well as critics. The Democrats, perhaps annoyed at losing a potential voter so young, denied Garrett renomination, and he moved on to other parts.

Some students of frontier culture hold Billy's reputation as a bad man was blown up by Garrett himself in his memoirs to justify the way he killed the Kid. They say only three killings can be pinned on him with absolute certainty two of them in his jailbreak to escape the noose.

through the cooperative program by which milk tests can be made to discover incidence of brucellosis. These milk test are followed up, when positive reaction is found, by individual blood tests of every cow in the herd. When the blood test shows a diseased cow it is taken out of the milking herd and butchered for beef. The owner is partly reimbursed from State-Federal funds for the difference in value of a milk cow and a beef carcass.

Dr. H.J. Rollins, State veterinarian, said he was pleasantly surprised at the very small number of positive reactions discovered by the tests. In one "sitting" of the mobile laboratory 117 different herds, ranging from five to 100 cows each, were tested and only one positive reaction for beef. The owner is partly reimbursed from State-Federal funds for the difference in value of a milk cow and a beef carcass.

Indications Are That Labor And Industry Are Maturing

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Eighteen years ago newspapers carried pictures of Walter Reuther, his face bloodied, after a beating by company tough guys for trying to organize auto workers into a union.

This week newspapers carried pictures of the same Reuther, all smiles, sitting beside smiling John S. Bugas, a Ford Motor Co. vice president, after their agreement on an historic contract.

Those bloody days of 1937 may seem primitive now. In the intervening years the United Auto Workers has become the largest union in the CIO, it has organized all the auto makers' plants and the industry has learned to live with it.

An historian, looking back on this week 200 years from now, may think the way UAW President Reuther and Bugas worked out the contract was as sensational as the principle they agreed on: a guaranteed annual wage.

Both sides negotiated as businessmen. Neither made swaggering threats beforehand, thus making compromise possible. Both compromised. The company yielded more than it originally offered; Reuther accepted less than he demanded.

That historian, looking back with the hindsight of history and the evidence of events which haven't occurred yet, may decide the maturity both sides showed in this case was the coming of age of American labor and management.

Perhaps that is true for the UAW and the auto industry and they will henceforth live peacefully. But it won't be true with other unions and other industries and it may not be true for the UAW and the auto makers.

This week's Ford-UAW settlement, friendly as it was, was a cold-blooded business. If Ford defied the union and the workers struck, the company might have lost disastrously in the fierce competition with General Motors.

If GM now doesn't grant the UAW what Ford did, and there's a strike, the giant of the industry may suffer terrible damage. But in any auto strike that lasted long the workers would suffer terribly, too.

It is nice to think labor and management in the auto industry have become mature. But if they are mature now, their coming of age had its roots in a factor both sides recognized in each other; both hold enormous power to hurt each other.

But it will be a long time before all unions and industries will work out their problems as peacefully as student.

the auto industry and the UAW. This may be particularly true in the South, where the merged AFL-CIO plans big organizing drives. In some areas of the South the growing pains haven't started yet.

The National Education Assn. says adequate classrooms provide 30 square feet of floor space for each elementary school pupil and 25 square feet for each high school student.

Members of the Greenville Cell of the 3015th Reception Center are shown as they receive instructions in the operation of 30 and 50 cal. machine guns prior to their departure for summer encampment at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. While at camp, the Unit, in addition to training with the reception center, will also take part in field exercises. (Photo by Roy Hardee, Greenville.)

Grad Figured Ike Should Be Told

DAYTON, Ohio — Dale Mote, 18, thought his graduation from Brookville High School was important enough to tell President Eisenhower.

So Dale sent Ike an announcement. Yesterday he received a letter from the White House in which the Eisenhowers offered their congratulations. "It was the best graduation gift of all," said Dale, who starts working for the United States next Monday—in naval boot training.

three probably infected cows, but subsequent individual blood tests were negative. The present campaign will continue until most of the dairy herds have been checked and all infected animals removed.

Even then there can be no guarantee that infected cows may not be brought in from other areas and the check-up will be continued. This is one of the relatively little publicized instances of the activities of State and Federal agencies for the protection of citizens.

OLD DIZZ KNEW SIGN BEFORE BATTER

Paul Richards, manager of the Baltimore Orioles, has penciled a new book entitled "Modern Baseball Strategy" and some of the most interesting pieces deal with signs skippers flash to their players.

No matter what precautions, managers can't hide their signs long from the old plagiarists. Some of the signs the pilots give are complicated indeed, but veteran players soon get to know them and much signal-stealing goes on.

Richards told the story about the day Phil Weintraub, who has just joined the Giants, was batting and Dean was pitching. In the eighth, a runner reached third. Phil looked toward the third base coach for a sign, saw nothing apparently and stepped out of the batter's box.

Dean was burning by that time and as Phil stepped out of the box for the fourth time, Dizzy threw a lick and gofer.

Sauer is most expensive bench warmer in National League. Hank Sauer of the Chicago Cubs, Hank hit 41 home runs last year but couldn't get started hitting this season and rookie Bob Speake was put in his spot.

When Yngar Bend Mizell finally rejoins the St. Louis Cardinals he should be in great shape. He's been pitching twice a week for Art McPherson and doing well. Last week he fanned 17 men in a game.

Winnipeg of the Northern League has the fans confused. The club has a catcher named Emery Phillips and a pitcher named Phillips Emery. The Northern incidentally, is the circuit ECC's Tommy Pruitt was slated for.

SOME DAYS GOLFER CAN'T HIT EITHER. There are days when batters can't buy a base hit, pitchers can't throw a lick and gofer.

Elston Howard, the Yankees' Negro outfielder who was forced to seek private accommodations in the Bombers' first two visits to Chicago and Kansas City, stayed with his teammates in those cities during their second western swing.

ACCS PERCISE SIGNS WITH GIANTS. Former Goldsboro Quak star Ronnie Percise, recently voted co-winner of the top athlete award at Atlantic Christian College, has been signed by the New York Giants and assigned to the Salem, Va. Rebels of the Class D Appalachian League.

The Red Sox fell two short of the major league record for runners left on base in a game when they stranded 16 men in losing to the Senators, 5 to 3, last week. The record of 18 stranded runners is shared by 11 teams.

Next Three Days May Tell If Tribe Has Dropppd Dead

By Ed Wilks
The Associated Press

Are the New York Yankees being conned into a false sense of security, or is that really a bunch of dead injuns back there in third place in the American League?

The next three days may tell. The Yanks move into Cleveland tonight for a four-game series.

Having disposed of a two-game losing string and Detroit 7-3 yesterday, the Bombers barge into Municipal Stadium with a fat 5-game lead over the second place Chicago White Sox and a 5½-game spread over the Cleveland, who lost their third straight to Boston 4-2.

That's the best Yank margin yet. A week ago, when they were three games up, it looked like New York would be lucky to reach Cleveland still in the lead.

The Yankees had eight games to play against Chicago and Detroit, both first division clubs while the Indians were entertaining Washington and Boston for seven games.

But the Yanks split the two series, playing 500 ball, while the Indians won just once. Washington hadn't won in Cleveland since Aug. 25, 1953, losing 14 straight. And the Red Sox had beaten the pennant-winning Indians only twice all last season.

Manager Casey Stengel goes into Cleveland playing the percentages. He needed a victory yesterday so he called on Whitey Ford (7-1), presumably passing him over for the Indians' series, while naming Ed Lopat (3-4) to face the Tribe tonight. Lopat, only 14-20 lifetime vs Detroit, is 40-13 against Cleveland.

Ford didn't go all the way, Jim Konstanty won it in relief, but Stengel got the victory he wanted, gaining a half game on the White Sox who were rained out of a doubleheader with Baltimore.

The other AL game was won by

Cardinals' Choice by Pap

Owner August Busch was merely following a custom practiced by all former owners of the St. Louis Cardinals when he dropped Eddie Stanky as manager of the Red Sox.

Stanky was replaced by Harry Walker. In the last thirty years, Branch Rickey, Bob O'Farrell, Bill McKechnie, Billy Southworth, Gabby Street, Frankie Frisch, Ray Blades, Eddie Dyer, Marty Marion and now, Eddie Stanky, have been fired from the post of piloting the Cardinals.

Walker returns to the Cardinals with whom he starred as an outfielder after successfully serving as manager of their Rochester farm club. He appears to have been able to get the most out of his players, especially the younger ones on their way up.

Harry is in physical make-up. A drawing Southerner, Walker is easy to meet, personable and, as a player, happy-go-lucky. He's been known to wreck a bit of clubhouse furniture after an unusually galling defeat but for the most part he isn't the explosive loser — like Stanky was.

Few of the Cardinals players are strangers to Walker. Stan Musial, Red Schoendienst and Del Rice were with the Cardinals when Harry played in St. Louis. Solly Hemus, Harvey Haddix and Bill Barni were his teammates in the minors. And Walker sent up Rip Ripulski, Wally Moon, Bill Virdon, Larry Jackson and Luis Arroyo from Rochester. Stanky did hand over to Walker a team of great potential. A team that is something of a puzzle this season but one that could pick up all the marbles in a season or two, Stanky went so far as to say he would manage the 1956 Cardinals for no thing.

COASTAL PLAIN LEAGUE

Greenville 7 Rocky Mount 4
Farmville 4 New Bern 1
Williamston 6 Falkland 0

Greenville strengthened its lead to a full game and Williamston's revamped club moved out of the cellar in yesterday's activity in the Coastal Plain League.

The Williamston Braves made it four victories in a row to establish themselves the hottest new in the circuit at the moment. Their 6 to 0 win over faltering Falkland moved their win-loss mark to seven wins and 12 losses. Just two weeks ago their record was 3-12.

Surgung Farmville dropped second place New Bern 4 to 1 but failed to move in the standings. New Bern's 11-8 record is still second best in the loop. Bill Kennedy's Farmville club has won 11 and lost nine, a half game behind in third place.

Manager Pete Carraway's Greenies have established themselves the team to beat for the flag. Their 7 to 4 win over Rocky Mount Wednesday night puts them two games ahead with a 13-7 mark.

Young Bobby Flye hurled six hit ball and smacked a long home run for Greenville. The roundtripper came in the fifth in which Greenville pushed across three big runs. Blaney Moye and Brownie Tripp collaborated with Flye in the victory. Moye had four hits in five at bats and first baseman Tripp had three for five, including a long triple.

Sam Davis, Rocky Mount leftfielder, was the big show for the Leafs. He hammered a double and home run in four official trips to the plate. Norman Gay hilled for the losers, allowing 13 base hits. Hugh Lautheridge had a two-run homer for Rocky Mount in the eighth. The Leafs record now is all even, 10 wins and 10 losses.

Fred Pittman pitched a neat six-hitter for Farmville against second place New Bern to hand the Bears their third setback in a row. The fastballing righthander struck out 11 New Bern swingers.

Farmville clinched the victory with a single run after two men were out in the fourth inning. A single, sacrifice bunt and a long fly by Pete Stewart accounted for the tally. Both teams scored one run apiece in the first frame.

At Williamston, pitcher Van Sexton and outfielder Simon Hardison were the big guns in the winning cause. Sexton pitched his finest game of the season in holding Falkland to three hits. He retired 13 Falklanders on strikeouts. Hardison clinaxed a five-run seventh inning for the Williamston Braves by smashing a tremendous three-run home run.

No Falkland man got more than one hit. Collecting singles were Scott McPhail, Skeeter Webb and Bob Simpson. Bob Lilley, ace righthander, was hit freely by Williamston. Altogether, the winners collected nine safeties.

All clubs will be active tomorrow night. The schedule is as follows:
Falkland at Farmville
New Bern at Rocky Mount
Williamston at Greenville

The standings:
Greenville 13 W 7 L
New Bern 11 8 9
Farmville 11 10 9
Rocky Mount 10 10 10
Williamston 7 12 12

Brooklyn Ships Out Joe Black

BROOKLYN (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers, leading an 8½-game lead in the National League and convinced they have all the pitching they need, sent one-time hero Joe Black to Cincinnati yesterday for an estimated $25,000 and a minor league player to be named later.

It was Black, now 31, who wrapped up the 1952 pennant for the Dodgers. Moving up from the obscurity of the Negro leagues in the winter of 1950, he joined the Brooks in the spring of '52 and set off on a brilliant relief record.

Appearing in 84 games—a Dodger record at the time—the righthander posted a 15-4 record. He saved 15 other games and had a 2.15 earned run average.

Off that performance, Black was given a starting role in the World Series and beat the New York Yankees 4-2.

The following year, Black slumped, winning only six of nine while his earned run average went to 5.30. He opened the '54 season with the Dodgers, but was shipped to the minors, where his 12-10 record at Montreal earned him another chance in the big time.

He had a fine spring in the exhibitions this season, but with Brooklyn regulars working well and rookie Ed Roebuck leading the relievers, he had little chance to show his wares.

Black was 1-0 with the Dodgers, getting the decision in one of six brief relief appearances.

Two straight losses in PONY League play dropped the National Guard from club of the Florida State League into fourth place, a half game behind the third place Fordomatics.

In Wednesday night's replay of a rained out game the 88 Olds capitalized on shoddy National Guard fielding to take a 12-5 victory. Lucian Bryan was the winning pitcher, relieving Boyce Cox in the second inning. Bryan went all the way from there and gave up only three hits.

Bill Clapp started for the Guard but nine errors in two innings by his teammates proved his downfall. Clapp gave up only one hit and walked three, but his mates were booting easy plays. Carl Bested took over on the mound and received better support from there out.

Burton Jenkins and Bested go two hits each for the Guard while Joe Moye and Bobby Edwards were getting two each for the Olds.

In last night's thriller the Fordomatics came back in the top half of the last inning to score four runs and upset the National Guard 6-5. Walker Allen went all the way on the mound for the Fords and pitched superb ball. Costly errors by his teammates were the cause of most of the five runs off him.

Burton Jenkins went the distance on the mound for the Guard and pitched magnificently for five innings. Through the first five frames Jenkins had a two hit shutout going.

In the sixth two doubles and a walk scored two runs. Then in the top of the seventh the Fords exploded for their four runs on just two hits. James Henderson and Cecil Cherry walked and each advanced on catcher Don Speight's throwing error. After one out Walker Allen singled to deep short driving in one run and putting runners on first and third. Allen stole second and both runners scored on Buster Daniels' line single to right to tie the score. Daniels advanced to second on a balk, went to third on a wild pitch, and scored on a ground out to the first baseman.

In the last of the seventh Allen held the Guard down without a score to dump them into last place. For the Fords it was the first time they have been out of the cellar in two years, but they have shown promise this year of being one of the leading teams.

Allen fanned twelve and walked three in pitching his first win. His terrific curve ball had Guard batters almost breaking their backs. Merrill Bynum did a bang-up job behind the plate catching Allen's slants. It was Bynum's first catching job of the year and he proved a valuable performer.

College Baseball 'Series' Begins

OMAHA (AP)—The annual NCAA College Baseball World Series was set to get under way here today with a late morning game pitting Colgate against Wake Forest, one of the top bracket favorites.

They were to be followed by Southern California and Colorado State in the afternoon game on the Omaha Municipal Stadium diamond.

Eight games were to see the two top favorites—Arizona and Oklahoma A&M, both blessed with pitching depth and free swinging hitters, in action.

Arizona was slated to go against Western Michigan and the Oklahoma Aggies against Springfield (Mass.).

The journey is a double elimination affair. It was a tournament that found the coaches shying away from the "favorite" brand. They just didn't want their boys mentioned in that role — probably because the journey has always been rough on favorites.

But Arizona, the Aggies, Southern California and Wake Forest couldn't escape that tag.

The reason for most fans' declining on Arizona and the Aggies as the teams with the best chance was not only their pitching and hitting but also the fact both clubs are loaded with veterans who performed in the series a year ago.

The weather prediction was for cloudy skies and possible showers.

Olds' Appear Team To Beat In PONY Race

(This is the last in a series of articles concerning the 1955 PONY League teams.)
Coach Bill Kittrell's 1955 PONY League team, the new 88 Oldsmobiles, has taken over the top spot in the league after three weeks of play and show definite signs of being the team to beat in the league for the rest of the year.

In winning three of four games, Coach Kittrell's squad has shown good hitting power plus two dependable pitchers. Bobby Edwards and Lucian Bryan rank with the best pitchers in the league at the present.

Bryan, the control artist, has two wins and no defeats. He downed the National Guard 3-2 on three hits, and relieved against the Guard in the second inning Wednesday night for his second win. Edwards, who has excellent control to go with a blazing fast ball and sharp curve, whipped the Fords 8-2 on three hits. The Redmen edged out Edwards 2-1 for his loss. In that one he gave up six hits. In fourteen innings Edwards has struck out 26 batters and has walked none.

Edwards also is the leading hitter in the league. In four games he has batted out a .562 average. The Olds have had two games rained out after they had been started. In those contests Bobby had three for four when the game was called off.

Through the line-up the Olds are well-balanced. Ronald Riggs, a second year man for Coach Kittrell, is one of the most dependable catchers in the league. He hits for a good average. Joe Moye, an all-star first baseman for the Elks last year, has been "slow coming around" at the plate but now is hitting with his usual persistence. Harry Forbes is one of the best fielders in the league, and hits right at the 300 mark. He

Fans Begin Vote For Players In All-Star Classic

CHICAGO (AP)—America's baseball fans start voting today to name starting National and American League lineups for the 22nd interleague all-star scrap to be played in Milwaukee County Stadium July 12.

The Chicago Tribune, which originated the poll and the all-star game in 1933, again will be the clearing house for the nationwide voting which ends at midnight July 1. For this year's polling the Tribune will have 761 newspaper, radio and TV outlets taking part in the 22 days of voting.

The fans will pick eight American League players and eight in the National, one for each position except pitcher. The 16 elected players will start the all-star game and play for at least three innings. The vote will be counted in the positions occupied by the players in today's games. The pitchers will be named by the managers, Al Lopez of Cleveland and Leo Durocher of the New York Giants.

The Aussies held a 4-stroke lead in contention to break par the low team score and Australia's Peter Thomson had a 3-stroke edge over Chick Harbert of the United States for the individual title after 18 holes of the 72-hole tournament.

Thomson was the only player among the 26 nations in contention to break par on the 6,510-yard Columbia Country Club Course yesterday.

The Australian, who with Ken Nagle is defending the team championship, turned in a 67.

Harbert was in a four-way tie for second with an even par 70. In that tie with Harbert were Roberto De Vicenzo of Argentina, Flory Van Donck of Belgium and Celestine Tugot of the Philippines.

Harbert's partner on the U.S. team, Open Champion Ed Furgol, scrambled to a 73 for a team score of 143, good for second place four strokes behind the Australian duo.

DeMarco Bucking Jinx In First Title Defense

By MURRAY ROSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Welterweight Champion Tony DeMarco bucks the "one-defense" jinx that has plagued 10 other modern 147-pound kings when he faces favored Carmen Basilio, the home town pride, at the War Memorial Auditorium tonight in a 15-round title bout.

The chunky, 23-year-old Bostonian is familiar with the hex. He knocked the crown off Johnny Saxton's brow by stopping the Brooklyn defender in the 14th round in the Boston Garden April 1. That was the first time Saxton had risked the title he had won from Kid Gavilan.

Jimmy McLarnin and Barney Ross, two greats of the division, were among the 10 to lose their titles in the first crack.

Although he did a thorough job of demolishing Saxton, who never had been stopped before, tough Tony is a 17-10 underdog to the more experienced 28-year-old ex-champ.

That Tony Cobb, were he playing today, could steal between 60 and 90 bases a season or make a practice of circling the sacks on a common single. We'd still have to see it.

That any golfer, with the National Open title at stake, ever stepped up to a four foot putt on the 72nd hole and "calmly" rammed it into the cup. You just can't see him shake.

That the so-called scientists who claim that it is impossible to make a baseball game ever sat through a big league game.

Or, finally, that the great national pastime actually sprang full fledged into being at Cooperstown instead of having evolved from the good old British game of rounders.

Young King Josiah

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—II Chronicles 34; Nahum.

Josiah was eight years old when he began to reign. While he was still young he turned to God. Under his direction the altars of Baalim and the other heathen images were broken down and utterly destroyed.

Next Josiah ordered the temple restored. He sent three men to the high priest Hilkiah with money to get workmen and building materials. The carpenters and builders took the money, bought materials and did the work faithfully.

While the temple was being restored, a priest—probably Hilkiah—found an old book of the Law. Hilkiah gave it to Shaphan who had brought the money for the work, and he took it to the king, and read it to him.

When Josiah heard the book read, he rent his clothes. He then called his people together, read the book to them, and commanded them to keep God's statutes with all their hearts.

MEMORY VERSE—Isaiah 1:16, 17.

Young King Josiah

HE TURNED HIS PEOPLE BACK TO GOD

Scripture—II Chronicles 34; Nahum.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

AFTER MANASSEH, who reigned in Judah for 50 years, Amon reigned for only a little over a year, when he was killed by his own servants. This was one of the longest periods of spiritual and moral disintegration that Judah had ever known.

Amon's son, Josiah, a boy of eight, succeeded him, and, strange to relate, his thoughts turned to God while he was still a child. Whether he had a good God-fearing mother who had brought him up to revere Jehovah we do not know. Certain it is that he "walked in the way of the Lord," as had his ancestor, David.

The first thing he did was to have all the heathen idols and their high places torn down and utterly destroyed. He even burned the bones of the heathen priests upon their altars, thus "cleansing Judah and Jerusalem." He then did the same in the cities of Ephraim, Manasseh and Simeon, even unto Naphtali.

And when he had broken down the altars and the groves, and had beaten the graven images into powder, and cut down all the idols throughout all the land of Israel, he returned to Jerusalem.

faithful these ancient workmen were in their task.

Now comes the most dramatic moment in all Judah history. In overhauling the building, going through rooms that probably had not been looked into for years, a priest—it may have been Hilkiah—found an ancient "book of the law of the Lord given by Moses."

Hilkiah, the priest, told Shaphan, the scribe, and gave the book to him, and he carried it to the king.

When Josiah heard it read, he rent his clothes. What was in the book of the law to make the king so desperate? There are indications, writes a Biblical authority, that the book contained dire threats against Judah, "which made Josiah tremble, even in spite of his own readiness to walk in the way of the Lord." It is called, "the book of the covenant."

Josiah was overcome by his sense of the holiness of God, and his own sinfulness. He had consulted Huldah, a prophetess, who had foreseen the evil which eventually overcame Judah after Josiah's righteous reign, but she had also prophesied that since Josiah's heart was tender and he had humbled himself before the Lord, these things would not happen during his lifetime. "Then the king sent and gathered all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. And the king went up into the house of the Lord, and all the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the priests, and the Levites, and all the people, great and small; and he read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant that was found in the house of the Lord.

And the king stood in his place, and made a covenant before the Lord, to walk after the Lord, and to keep His testimonies, and His statutes, with all his heart, and with all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant which are written in this book.

And all his days Josiah and his people departed not from following the Lord, the God of their fathers. The prophecies of Nahum, which are also included in our lesson, are terrible indeed. The theme is the punishment of the enemies of Judah, especially the city of Nineveh. We have no space here to include more of it in this lesson.

"Cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment."—Isaiah 1:16, 17

MEMORY VERSE "Cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment."—Isaiah 1:16, 17.

We can imagine that many of the younger Sunday school pupils and also older ones, would have been happy to help King Josiah in this work if they had lived in those old days, and been inspired by his righteous indignation.

In the 18th year of his reign, Josiah had purged the land and the house, so he sent for Shaphan Maseiah, the governor of the city; and Joah, the son of Josiah the recorder, to repair the house of the Lord.

The three went to Hilkiah, the high priest, and gave him the money "that was brought into the house of God, which the Levites that kept the doors had gathered of the hand of Manasseh and Ephraim, and all the remnant of Israel, and of all Judah and Benjamin."

They put the money into the hands of the workmen that had oversight of the repairs, the overseers or superintendents, we may suppose, to buy the necessary materials.

"And the men did work faithfully," we are told. Today when we find some of the work done by modern workers is not done as "faithfully" as one could wish, it is good to know how loyal and

Lord, these things would not happen during his lifetime. "Then the king sent and gathered all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. And the king went up into the house of the Lord, and all the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the priests, and the Levites, and all the people, great and small; and he read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant that was found in the house of the Lord.

And the king stood in his place, and made a covenant before the Lord, to walk after the Lord, and to keep His testimonies, and His statutes, with all his heart, and with all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant which are written in this book.

And all his days Josiah and his people departed not from following the Lord, the God of their fathers. The prophecies of Nahum, which are also included in our lesson, are terrible indeed. The theme is the punishment of the enemies of Judah, especially the city of Nineveh. We have no space here to include more of it in this lesson.

WORST DUSTER ROLLS IN—Dust, cascading before the wind, rolls into San Antonio, Tex., bringing the worst dust storm old timers could remember. This picture was taken in the middle of the afternoon just as the dust-heavy winds reached the edge of the city for a half hour it was as black as midnight. The winds, whipping the city at 70 miles an hour, smashed windows and roofs and left behind a heavy covering of silt. (AP Wirephoto)

N. C. VFW Considers Call For VA Hospital Inquiry

DURHAM — North Carolina Veterans of Foreign Wars today considered a proposal calling for a congressional investigation into the management of Veterans Administration hospitals. Debate on the proposal topped a full agenda for the second session of the VFW's annual convention being held here. The convention will close tomorrow with the election of officers. The proposal to seek an investigation of VA hospital management apparently had the full backing of Jack F. Dusenbury of Hendersonville, department commander. Dusenbury said last night, "We feel that the Veterans Administration does not control its hospitals anymore." He added in a speech to the opening session of the convention: "They've (the VA) turned the hospitals over to individuals to let them run them like they want to, and we're pretty burned up about it."

Woman To Head Woman's Prison

RALEIGH — Mrs. Elizabeth McCubbin, executive director of the Family and Children's Service Agency in Charlotte since 1951, will become superintendent of Woman's Prison here July 15. In announcing her appointment yesterday, State Prison Director William F. Bailey said several other changes in prison personnel will become effective the same date.

I. D. Hinton, who has been superintendent of Woman's Prison since 1953, will go back to his old job as superintendent of Caledonia Prison Farm.

Henry M. King, who is now head of Caledonia, will be superintendent of the Nash County Prison Camp.

J. D. Meadows, present superintendent at Nash, will become head of the new maximum security prison camp at Ivy Bluff in Caswell County.

Bailey said Mrs. McCubbin is experienced in social and welfare work "and is a recognized administrator and leader in her field."

He added that he and Highway Chairman A. H. Graham had considered for some time the employment of a woman as head of the prison. Before Hinton was named superintendent of Woman's Prison, Miss Ronnie Sheffield held the post. She is now in Germany as an officer of the American Friends Service Committee.

Bailey said Mrs. McCubbin's salary will be $5,800 a year. He said the move back to Caledonia for Hinton is not a demotion, but his salary will be about $600 a year less.

Bailey emphasized that Mrs. McCubbin will have full authority to operate the prison and to hire and fire.

Hinton has had 20 years of experience at Caledonia. Bailey said plans are under way to enlarge the Caledonia farm from 250 prisoners to 2450.

Mrs. McCubbin grew up in Wilmington, Del. She received degrees from the University of Delaware, Cornell and the Pennsylvania School of Social Welfare. She has worked with the Charlotte Traveler's Aid Society, the American Red Cross in Philadelphia, the Old Age Welfare Commission in Wilmington, Del., and the Public Assistance Division and the Federal Transient Bureau in Washington.

Bailey was asked if the change at Woman's Prison resulted in any way from the Eleanor Rush death. He replied it did not. Eleanor Rush, a Negro prisoner of Albemarle, died in an isolation cell at the prison last Aug. 10 after being gagged and bound for misconduct.

Hinton and five other prison employees were absolved by a coroner's jury of culpable negligence in the death.

Travel figures for the month reflected that 43,379 persons aboard 13,128 vehicles crossed the automatic control on the highway entrance to the recreational area.

LITTLE MO AS A BRIDE—Tennis Queen Maureen Connolly, 20, poses in San Diego, Calif., in her bridal gown. She will marry Norman Brinker, 24, June 11. She says she is definitely renouncing tennis except as a pastime. The gown, designed by Teddy Tinling of London, is of white satin and chiffon. It is lined with the bride's traditional flower, lily of the valley. (AP Wirephoto)

Flight Test Will Have Festive Air

EMPORIA Va. — A festive air hung over this little southeastern Virginia town today as Charlie Pritchard prepared for the first flight test of his radical wingless airship.

A majority of the town's 1,100 residents, as well as folks from the surrounding countryside converged on the Emporia Airport.

Pritchard, a 46-year-old railroad worker, was optimistic his strange craft would get off the ground.

"I believe it will fly," he said. "I have no fear of the test."

Pritchard, a bachelor, explained to newsmen he was well satisfied with the performance of a small model of his airship, which he experimented with before he began building the real thing.

The airship resembles conventional aircraft in that its tail surfaces are similar, it has a front-mounted metal propeller tricycle landing gear and conventional flight instruments.

There the similarity stops. The airship has no wings. Pritchard felt six fins, or baffles, several inches high, which extend almost the entire length of the 21-foot long octagonal fuselage will keep the air "flowing in the proper channels over the hull of the ship from nose to stern, creating lift on the entire surface of the ship."

The U.S. Marine Corps was first authorized by an act of the Continental Congress passed Nov. 10, 1775.

Recent Graduate, 94, Is Stricken

PROVIDENCE, R. I. — Mrs. Mabel Bemis Ranger, 94, who was graduated from St. Johnsbury, Vt., Academy last January, died yesterday.

As a teen-age girl, Mrs. Ranger had nearly completed her four year course at the academy when her family took her to Boston to study music.

Remembering that she had not received her diploma, academy officials decided her musical career more than made up for lack of an outmoded conception of high school studies and she was awarded her diploma.

Private commencement exercises were held at the nursing home where Mrs. Ranger lived. She was the widow of Walter E. Ranger, former Rhode Island commissioner of education.

Secret Testimony Heard Today In Government Contract Probe

WASHINGTON — The Senate Investigations Subcommittee called on two unnamed witnesses for secret testimony today a half hour before resuming public hearings on military uniform contracts. Subcommittee aides declined in advance of the closed door hearings to identify the two witnesses, or to say how their testimony might tie in with that of Harry Lev.

Lev, a Chicago hat maker, returns for his fourth day of questioning on the means by which he amassed a fortune in the manufacture of caps for the armed forces.

In a sometimes stormy and sometimes hilarious hearing yesterday, Lev conceded that patents he owns on essential parts of uniform caps for the Army and Marine Corps give him "an advantage" over business rivals.

But he swore the patents cover inventions of his own, and disputed suggestions that the caps for them were fed to him by military procurement and research officials on whom he allegedly lavished favors.

Lev says he became a millionaire, mostly on military cap profits, since he fled in 1921 from Pinsk, in Poland, with three pounds sterling (then about $15) and a sewing machine. Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.), the subcommittee chairman, said he wants to know why the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps required that all their men's visored uniform caps be equipped with grommets on which Lev holds patents. The grommets are rubber rings that fit into the crown of the caps to hold them in shape.

McClellan said it is usual in writing specifications for government contracts which could require use of a patented part, to allow a substitute of equal worth. He said the three forces' specifications on caps allow no substitutes.

McClellan said it seemed to him that the committee was finding either "gross inefficiency" by people in the procurement services, or "finagling against the government."

Lev assured the senator he would never "finagle."

Lev insisted that McClellan read aloud from the translation of a Yiddish love note Lev said had passed between him and Mrs. Melia Hort, a former government procurement worker, in May 1953. That would be about the time an- other witness, Leon M. Levy, has charged Mrs. Hort was trying to "blackmail" Lev for $15,000 to keep concealed some grounds for possible refund claims against him. She has denied she ever tried to blackmail anybody.

Lev said he never received any money request directly from Mrs. Hort, and didn't know whether she had anything to do with the claims.

Lev said he did hear from Marvin Rubin, one of his aides, about a year ago that Mrs. Hort "wanted" $15,000 from him. He said he instructed Rubin to tell her to "go plump to hell" without ever learning why she wanted it.

The translated Yiddish note said, "to bad that you are there and that I sit here and that we can not hold hands." Lev said Mrs. Hort wrote that. He identified as his own a reply that "we will change the seat later. Your husband will talk to the colonel."

He said this might have been at a dinner table, apparently in her husband's presence.

He had testified earlier about "embarrassing" relations with Mrs. Hort in 1953, when she was helping to police his contracts.

Subcommittee counsel Robert F. Kennedy told Lev staff investigators figure the claims filed at Lev by the procurement people at about that time run somewhere "between $28,000 and $42,000."

Lev swore that one of them—for about $26,000—is groundless. It is based on the government's claim that he violated specifications by packing blue service caps two in a box, instead of separately, and pocketed the $26,000 saving.

Lev swore that Col. Louis H. Shirley, who was the top contract officer in New York when the two contracts were negotiated in 1951, had told him he could bid on the basis of a two-in-a-pack. Through error, he said, the one-in-a-box requirement went into the later contract, but he was not held to it.

THE BOSS OF BROKEN SPUR

By Nick Sumner

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE
"Well, Rusty, you're on Broken Spur now."

"Mighty big country. Man could almost settle down here without feelin' boxed in."

Kerry looked around him, seeing on every side something that brought back happy memories.

His thoughts ate up the miles till he found himself in sight of the main house. His heart plunged down as he wondered what sort of reception he could expect.

"No need to wake the dead! Come in!"

Rob was working over the ranch books and didn't bother looking up at first. Kerry stood in the doorway, watching the handsome, hawk-like profile with his throat tight and his heart beating hard.

"Hello, kid." Quietly, almost casually, Rob shut the big account book and got to his feet.

"I met Sandy in Dodge. And a cowboy we ran into in Twin Forks told us about Larrabee getting shot and the fool way Tim was taking it.

him and that Bible-spouting old fire-eater, Nate Cullen. I doubt if any of the rest of them have nerve enough to do more than talk, but you never can tell. You staying?"

"Don't talk like a fool, son. This is your home, isn't it?"

"Rusty wants a job," Kerry volunteered. "He's a top hand. Good with horses. He—"

"I need a job all right," Rusty confirmed. "And I can earn my keep. Only thing is, Mr. Malory—"

"All right, Rob. Thing is, I oughta tell you before you hire me, I'm wanted for a killin' back in Dodge—only I didn't do it."

"That's all right," Rob moved his shoulders impatiently. "I may be wanted for a couple of killings myself before this business is over. You understand you might be buying into trouble?"

"You ask Kerry, Mr.—Rob, he'll tell you trouble's sorta what you might call my natural element. Reckon it's no use a man tryin' to dodge what he's born to."

Kerry listened to the quick, clean lap-top of Christie's heels coming down the stairs, his heart beating in the same tempo.

"Glad you're back son. You been needed." He looked from one to the other of their faces.

stood like that; then she spoke his name, and her voice told him all he needed to know.

"Oh, Kerry, Kerry, you crazy fool! Why do I love you like I do?"

"Just so you do I'll let you figure out why. I've missed you."

"I'll bet you have—not one letter all this time."

"I reckon I was. I've been pretty mad this whole time you were away—mainly because you weren't around where I could have the satisfaction of telling you how mad I was!"

"Christie!" he urged. "Marry me—right now!"

"Doc, Haller says a few weeks—maybe not that long."

"Glad you're back son. You been needed." He looked from one to the other of their faces.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market turned higher today after a lower opening.

In the early afternoon, prices were up 1 to 3 points at the outside. Losses usually were small.

Trading was brisk at the opening, and then it tapered off to a pace well below yesterday's 2,900,000 shares traded when the market was falling.

Railroads and steels had the biggest hand today in pushing prices upward after the faltering beginning. Northern Pacific was especially active and strong with a gain that ran to between 3 and 4 points.

There were no definitely backward sections of the market in evidence. Most, however, displayed some minus signs.

Yesterday's stock market was lower all around with the Associated Press average of 60 stocks down $1.00 to $1.68. In the three previous sessions the market advanced to new record high marks daily.

The reaction was a profit-taking affair. The recent strong stocks were in the forefront of the fall. Kicking the thing along were rumors that margin requirements would be increased from the present rate that you must put up 75 per cent of your own money in buying stocks on credit.

Two Get Prison Terms For New Bern Murder

NEW BERN—Claude "Shine" Godette and Andrew "Runt" Cummings, both negro, drew long prison terms in Craven county superior court after a jury of 12 men returned verdicts of guilty to second degree murder as to both men Wednesday afternoon.

Thursday morning Judge Walter J. Bone sentenced Godette to not less than five years nor more than seven years in the state prison.

Both men were charged in the fatal shooting of Cornelius Vanderbilt Phillips, negro, who was shot to death March 13 on North Street. Both Cummings and Godette denied shooting the single-barrel shotgun that resulted in Phillip's death and each pointed the finger of guilt at the other.

Whitchard was charged following the collision with no operator's license and failure to yield the right of way. The other driver was listed by police as William T. Coghill, 31, of Route 3. No injuries were reported.

Uniform Style For Council Members

Subdivisions Officially Become A Part Of City

Colonial Heights and Woodcrest officially became a part of the city last night when the City Council ruled that they had complied with the city's subdivision ordinance.

City fathers last month voted to take the sections in when they had complied with ordinance governing the annexation of new subdivisions.

Last night representatives reported that they had worked out details of insatiation of water and sewer lines for the area with the Utilities Commission. They also presented a paving petition containing the names of over 90 percent of the property owners along unpaved streets. A portion of the streets in the area have been paved.

Attorney Richard Powell representing residents of South Meadowbrook reported that between 95 and 98 percent of the property owners in the area have signed petitions for utilities.

Councilmen voted last month to take that area in also provided they comply with the subdivision ordinance.

No action was taken on South Meadowbrook pending the circulation of a paving petition in the section.

The group called for a public hearing on July 14 concerning the proposed Highsmith subdivision on the southeast corner of Colonial Heights. Final plans for the subdivisions have been approved by the Planning Board.

Officers Elected By Underwriters

W. M. Scales, Jr., general agent for Security Life and Trust Company, was elected president of the Pitt County Life Underwriters yesterday at the meeting of the association.

Scales succeeds Lloyd Nixon who has been president of the group for the past year.

W. C. Smith of Durham Life Insurance company was elected vice president; W. R. Nichols of Southern Life was elected secretary-treasurer; and Larry Moringo of World Insurance company was elected national committeeman.

Marshall Barney, representative in charge of the Eastern Carolina district social security office in Rocky Mount, addressed the group at its monthly meeting explaining changes which have been made in the social security laws and the coverage of social security insurance during the past five years.

Signs Of Black Shank Found In Wayne County

GOLDSBORO—Some signs of black shank have been found in tobacco fields in Wayne county planted with the new Coker 139 variety according to County Agent Mark Goforth.

Goforth advises the farmers that there is no need for alarm as the variety is highly resistant to black shank. He says that the disease organism sometimes enters the plant through holes in the stalk made by cut worms. Black shank also enters the stalk through leaves which are covered with dirt in which the black shank exists.

The county agent added that scald is usually seen on a leaf which has become infested with black shank. Once the disease organism enters the plant it works its way into the stalk causing the plant to die. However, Goforth says that no large scale damage is expected to plants of the 139 variety.

WILLIAMSTON—While the official survey is less than one-fourth complete, it appears that many Martin county farmers have planted in excess of their allotted acreage for peanuts, corn and tobacco. An official said that it is not known now whether farmers will accept the penalties or destroy excess plantings. The penalty on tobacco is 40 cents a pound. The penalty for excess peanut plantings will be announced in July. Last year it was six cents a pound. While there is no penalty on excess corn plantings, farmers who exceed their allotments will not be allowed to participate in the support price.

WASHINGTON—The Woman's Club is naming a city-wide life saving project to be conducted here June 29 and 30. The movement is in line with President Eisenhower's Committee for Traffic Safety. GREENSBORO (AP)—Three persons implicated in a $77,270 embezzlement from the Bank of Greensboro yesterday received long prison sentences from Judge Wilson Warlick in U.S. District Court here.

Clyde McElvain, 37, was sentenced to six years in prison; his wife, Ruth Roberts McElvain, 38, a former teller at the bank, received four years; and Leonard C. Sykes Jr. was sentenced to five years.

The McElvains pleaded guilty. Sykes was convicted by a jury of helping Mrs. McElvain convert bank funds to her own use and of hindering her apprehension by withholding information.

Testimony had indicated that Mrs. McElvain had first taken bank funds to pay a gambling debt of her husband. The couple later left Greensboro and were arrested in California where they had bought a house.

Judge Warlick said he was denying Sykes bond pending any appeal he might make.

Ercell Webb To Head Dairy Month Activities For Six-County Area

Ercell S. Webb of Carolina Dairies has been named area chairman for June Dairy Month activities in a six-county area in this section of the state.

Harry Lee Stokes, also of Carolina Dairies, has been named Dairy Month chairman for Dare, Hyde, Washington, Tyrrell, Beaufort and Martin counties. Webb has appointed a county chairman in each of the six counties.

In launching Dairy Month activities in North Carolina, Wayne A. Corporation, state chairman asserted, "Dairying has grown rapidly in recent years and now it means more than $100,000,000 of gross farm income annually in our state. In addition our June Dairy Month program will focus attention on the importance of milk and milk products to our people's health."

Webb pointed out yesterday that dairy herds in Pitt County have reached the point now where they can supply local demand for milk and also ship milk into neighboring counties which do not produce a sufficient quantity to meet their own demands.
