Municipal Parking Lot Is Completed

Pictured above is a view of the recently-completed municipal parking lot located at the corner of Fifth and Washington Sts. The lot, containing 55 parking spaces, brings to three the number of parking lots operated by the city. It will be dedicated in ceremonies beginning at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Third Municipal Lot Will Handle 55 Cars Parking Lot Opens Monday

Greenville's newest municipally-operated parking lot will be formally opened with brief ceremonies at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. The long-awaited lot, located at the corner of Fifth and Washington Sts., was completed this week. Opening of the paved and meter parking area will bring to three the number of parking lots which the city owns and operates. One of the two other lots was constructed on the old swimming pool property and the second is located at the corner of Second and Evans St. Both the present parking areas are unpaved and parking is free.

Thus the latest addition to the city's parking facilities will mark a change in the operation of public parking lots in that a charge will be made for the first time. Automatic meters have been installed in the attractive new area. The meters will take five cents for each hour desired up to ten hours or a quarter for ten hours or all-day parking. To obtain ten hours for 25 cents, a quarter must be used rather than five nickels. Only one additional hour will be given by the meters for each nickel inserted. Therefore, five nickels would give only five hours.

March, however. Two houses standing on the property were removed by the owners and city work crews moved in immediately thereafter to grade and make other preparations for paving. Owners of the property had until June 30 to turn it over to the city. Thus the opening of the municipal parking lot is well ahead of schedule. City Manager James S. Hughes has said a change making machine has been ordered and will be placed on the property at a later date. "We hope that people will use the lot," Hughes said, "and particularly those people who feel like they need more than an hour or two hours to do their shopping."

City fathers balked at that and the negotiators later agreed on a rental of $25 per month for five years, but the owners reserved the right to take back 25 per cent of the area after three years, if they desire, with a corresponding reduction in rent. The city agreed to those terms but demanded that the property owners take financial risk for rent paid if the State Supreme Court should ever hold that spending of public funds for off-street parking is illegal. That stipulation brought another lapse in negotiations. The owners finally agreed to the terms in

William J. Bundy of Greenville said today he is "profoundly grateful" to Gov. Hodges for the appointment as resident judge of the new third judicial district. Bundy's appointment to the Superior Court bench came yesterday along with the appointment of four other district judges which completed Gov. Hodges' task of naming 11 new judges.

his friends. I feel mighty humble and proud. I need now, and humbly ask, your continued help and prayers." Commenting on his new duties as judge, Bundy said, "I approach the duties of this office humbly and prayerfully. To sit in judgment on the rights of fellowmen, to pass on the rights of individuals, is a great responsibility, calling for the best that is in a man. To properly express my appreciation to my many friends, and to Governor Hodges, I shall work hard to be the best judge I can. Realizing the greatness of the responsibility, and my own limitations, like Solomon of old, I pray God for wisdom, and I shall need it, and above all an understanding heart."

Final acquisition of the property for the parking lot came last March 28 and climaxed many months of negotiations between owners of the property and city officials. Originally the lot owners had proposed leasing of the property for five years with the city to pay $250 per year.

When Bundy takes the oath of office in Raleigh on July 1, he will become the first Pitt County man in 30 years to be seated as a Superior Court judge. It was in 1925 when a Pitt County man was last named to the Superior Court bench by a state chief executive. Judge Albion Dunn of Greenville was appointed resident judge of the fifth judicial district by Gov. McLean in 1925 to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Lloyd Horton of Farmville. Judge Dunn served for one year, then retired.

The late Judge Harry W. Whedbee, also of Greenville, preceded Horton as resident judge of the fifth judicial district. Realization of An Ambition In his statement today Bundy said, "It has long been my great desire to serve my state and district as a Judge of Superior Court; this is the realization of that ambition. I wish to thank my many good friends in Pitt County, in the third district and throughout the state for their recommendations and endorsements, their help and above all their friendship. Gordon Gray Accepts Govm't Position

RALEIGH (AP) — Gordon Gray, a Tar Heel frequently chosen by presidents for important tasks, yesterday agreed to accept a new assignment with the national administration. In Washington, President Eisenhower announced he has nominated the head of the Consolidated University of North Carolina to be assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs. At a special meeting in Gov. Hodges' office here, the executive committee of the university's board of trustees freed Gray for the job by granting an indefinite leave of absence. Hodges said the leave would begin about July 15 and would not run as long as two years. The committee declined to accept the resignation which President Gray offered in order to take the federal assignment. In Gray's absence, the executive committee placed with University

Provost J. Harris Purks the "full powers of the president, with authority to act as president." Gray issued a statement in which he said "the insistent request of the national administration" that he take the job "confronted me with a most serious problem, involving, of course, conflicting obligations." He said he decided to return to federal service "only after the severest deliberation." "I can only express the hope that in a small way I may now be able to make a contribution to security and peace in the world," he said. Gray, a Democrat, will succeed E. Siruve Hensel, whose resignation is effective June 30. The White House said Gray's nomination would be sent to the Senate next week. In the job, Gray said, he will direct the military phases of the program now carried out by the Foreign Operations Administration which goes out of existence July 1. It will be a return to the Defense Department for Gray. He resigned as army secretary in early 1950 to become president of the consolidated university. Gray, 46, was born in Baltimore, Md., but was reared in Winston-Salem. He is heir to a cigarette fortune through his father, the late Bowman Gray Sr., who was chairman of the board of the big R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. He gathered honors as a student at the University of North Carolina and Yale Law School. A driving worker, he has answered calls to national service from both Presidents Truman and Eisenhower. His most recent assignment was as chairman of a three-member board which reviewed the security case of atomic scientists Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer. In a 2-1 decision, the board found Oppenheimer a loyal citizen but withheld his security clearance. Gov. Hodges said Defense Secretary Wilson and other high Washington officials have been urging Gray for several weeks to accept the post. "We are very sorry to see Mr. Gray take a leave of absence and we appreciate the honor which has come to the state, the university, and Mr. Gray," the governor said. While the announcement of the leave of absence was being made, Hodges relayed the news to DeWitt C. Wilson by telephone. The governor said he had received calls from both Wilson and Secretary of State Dulles, "importuning" Gray's release for the job. Dr. Purks will become acting president of the university's three branches—the University at Chapel Hill, North Carolina State College in Raleigh, and the Woman's College at Greensboro—on July 1.

Large-Scale Aid In Atomic Programs Proposed By Ike

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower proposed today that the United States provide nuclear materials money and "know how" to help other free nations obtain atomic power and research reactors. Outlining two new atom-for-peace programs in a major address at Pennsylvania State University's centennial commencement exercises, the President suggested that this country pay half the cost of the research reactors. He also sounded a new appeal to Russia to join in creation of an international atomic pool for peaceful purposes—a program he first set forth in 1953 and so far cold-shouldered by the Soviet Union. This time he seemed to be making the appeal to the Russian people rather than to what he called "their Communist overlords." As for the two new programs, Eisenhower said: "Our purpose is to spark the creative and inventive skills latent in the free world to put them to work for the betterment of conditions under which men must live." The skies were murky and a misty rain fell on the crowd of about 20,000 persons in 30,000-seat Beaver Stadium as the President spoke. Eisenhower himself was protected from the weather by a canopy over the flag-draped speakers stand. Umbrellas of various colors mushroomed all over the stadium. There was no cover, however, for the 1,828 graduates—most in traditional black academic caps and gowns like the one the President wore. Others were in royal blue. On the platform with the chief executive was his youngest brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, Penn State president. Just before he spoke the President received an honorary doctor of laws degree from his brother, who then introduced the President as "a recent alumnus of this university." Eisenhower got a big ovation then and at the end of his speech. The crowd was particularly quiet and intent as he outlined his new two-point program. After the speech, the university's alumni association gave the President a bronze Nihtany lion symbol of Penn State. It was presented by John Ryan of Pittsburgh, the association president. The President announced he will submit his two new programs to Congress for approval "in the conviction that the welfare of the world and intent of law and of the American people." He outlined the plans this way: "First: We propose to offer research reactors to the people of the free nations who can use them effectively for the acquisition of skills and understanding essential to peaceful atomic progress. "The United States, in the spirit of the partnership that moves us, will contribute half the cost. He will also furnish the acquiring nation the nuclear material needed to fuel the reactor. "Second: Within prudent security considerations, we propose to make available to the peoples of such friendly nations as are prepared to invest their own funds in power reactors, accoutrements and training in the technological processes of construction and operation for peaceful purposes." The President gave no estimate of the cost of the program, but he said it will be "small indeed when measured against the certain return to the nations which will be received in the form of increased production of goods and services." In advance of his address, which was carried nationwide on radio (NBC ABC) Eisenhower inspected Penn State's new $12,000,000 atomic reactor plant expected to be in operation by the end of the year. He also received an honorary doctor of laws degree presented to him by his youngest brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of the university. In his address the President recalled that on Dec. 8, 1953 he proposed to the U. N. the creation of an international atomic energy pool for peaceful purposes. Eisenhower noted that the U. N. a year later endorsed the plan, but he said Soviet Russia still has "indicated no willingness to share any part of its nuclear stockpile" with such an international agency. "Our offer still stands," the President said. "But we cannot wait on Soviet decisions." Without waiting, Eisenhower said, the United States, already has entered into atom-for-peace agreements with Turkey, Lebanon, Israel, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, Denmark, Colombia, Brazil and Argentina—and is negotiating additional pacts. "Now we move in further action," the President declared. Then he set forth the two new programs. They are directed specifically to "free nations" of the world, but the President at one point seemed to be appealing to the Russian people over the heads of the Kremlin dictators. "Surely those of the Russian people—who, despite their Communist overlords, still think for themselves and who still retain respect for human dignity—are moved by the same feelings as we," Eisenhower said. "I still hope earnestly that the Soviet Union may join in an international effort to harness the atom for man's good. But I have such unlimited confidence in the creativeness of free minds and in the capacity of free men that I know we will, with or without the Soviets, achieve a more abundant life for those who join together in this historic venture."

Opposes Link-Up Of Defense Bills

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said today he will oppose any effort in the Senate to tie the administration's controversial national reserve plan to extension of the Draft Act. And if the Senate should take such action, which now appears unlikely, Russell said in an interview that he "will move for reconsideration in order to conduct thorough hearings." As chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Russell late yesterday completed speedy public hearings on bills for a four-year extension of the regular draft of young men 18 to 26 years and a two-year extension of the separate doctor draft law. Pentagon officials suggested during the hearing that the reserve plan be considered at the same time, but Russell rejected the idea. "I'm for an expanded and strong national reserve," Russell said. "I'm even for universal military training but it would be futile for the Senate to take action until House passage is assured." Russell noted that the Senate twice has voted for compulsory military training only to have the bills die in the House. President Eisenhower suggested this week the Senate might rescue the reserve manpower program until the House finds a way out of its present deadlock on the measure. An anti-segregation rider and other amendments were attached by the House and floor managers of the reserve bill shelved it. Eisenhower urged that the segregation rider be eliminated. Draft Director Lewis B. Hershhey told senators yesterday he doubts there is enough young manpower available for both the present regular and the proposed new reserve program. "I'm not trying to undercut the program," Hershhey said of the plan to let thousands of young men under 19 volunteer for six months' active training and then serve out another 7 1/2 years in National Guard or active reserve units. Hershhey said a backlog of more than 1,700,000 draft-age youths might provide far less manpower than some Pentagon leaders believe. Hershhey said he knows "of no way in which the armed forces of this country can be raised and maintained in sufficient numbers to insure the security of the nation" without the draft or other compulsory measures. The same thing is true of the authority to draft physicians, dentists and other medical specialists, he added. Of 637,300 men entering the military services in the last 12 months, Hershhey said 277,000 were drafted. And many of the recruits volunteered only to avoid being drafted, he said.

Russian Claims Atomic Power Stations Soon

MOSCOW (AP)—Former Premier Georgi Malenkov says the Soviet Union expects to have large atomic power stations—with outputs of 50,000 and 100,000 kilowatts each—in operation within a few years. Malenkov, now minister of power stations, disclosed this aim yesterday in talks with reporters at an Indian embassy garden party honoring India's visiting Prime Minister Nehru. (The United States, Britain, Canada and other Western countries are now building atomic power plants. Work is underway on a commercial atomic power installation at Shippingport, Pa., where the Atomic Energy Commission and the Duquesne Light Co. hope to produce 60,000 kilowatts—enough for a city of 100,000 to 120,000—by 1957.) Malenkov, who stepped down as premier last February in favor of Nikolai A. Bulganin, appeared completely at ease as he laughed and joked with reporters. Asked what he thought of exchanging delegations with other countries to study power problems as recently took place with Sweden Malenkov replied: "The more we exchange delegations the more cooperation we shall get, even in the field of atomic energy. But, that seems to be more difficult." Malenkov added he would personally join a delegation to the United States "if they'll let me in." Then he smilingly said it probably would be necessary for him to be fingerprinted first. "I'm only joking," he added. Malenkov said he would personally go to the U. S. "because he is greatly interested in this question." When a reporter asked if Western newsmen might visit the plant, Malenkov replied:

Steel Wage Demands In Hands Of All Producers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The "Big Six" of the basic steel industry know today what the CIO Union Steelworkers want as a "sizeable" pay hike for 600,000 workers. And David J. McDonald, union president, was quoted as saying it isn't "nickels and dimes." McDonald concluded a round of separate talks with the six firms yesterday, and the discussions were recessed indefinitely. McDonald took personal charge of the union's arguments for a big pay raise. He opened the talks Tuesday with U. S. Steel Corp., the top producer, and met in succession with representatives of Bethlehem Steel Corp., Republic Steel Corp., Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., and Inland Steel Corp. The firms employ 400,000 of the 600,000 members in the basic steel industry. Pittsburgh Post-Gazette quoted McDonald as saying he expected the companies to resume bargaining "probably June 20" with an offer of about 7 1/2 cents an hour. The newspaper quoted the union leader: "If they offer anything in the neighborhood of 7 1/2 cents an hour, we will say this is not a substantial wage increase and we will refuse the offer." Basic steelworkers now average $2.33 an hour. Some observers believe the union will settle for 12 to 15 cents an hour. The union is free to strike June 30 if no agreement is reached, but most observers don't foresee any such action.

Back In Hospital Minutes Later

DENVER (AP)—Released from Mercy Hospital after a dental operation, Mrs. Ann Corey, 38, of Limon, Colo., was driving home with her husband when their car collided with another in a dust storm. Mrs. Corey was returned here for treatment of a broken foot, then was transferred to Mercy Hospital where they had only one vacant room—that she had left only a few hours before.

Only Scratched In Bad Accident

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—An automobile driven by G. E. Alderson, 38, bounced off a concrete bridge railing yesterday, dropped 20 feet and landed upside down in a pond. The furniture salesman was trapped in the partially submerged vehicle five minutes before three unidentified men pulled him out. A wrecker crew worked two hours to get the automobile out of the pond. Alderson's face was scratched.

Child Injured In Street Accident

A two year old boy was treated and released at Pitt Memorial Hospital early last night after being struck by a car near the bus station on W. Fifth Street. James Wesley Langley, Jr., who lives at 311 W. Fifth Street was hit shortly after 6 p. m. by a car operated by Mrs. Minnie R. Beacham, 48, of Route 1 Stokes. The child was rushed to the hospital by the Fire Department Rescue Truck where he was treated. No charges were placed by investigating officers.

Aura Of Mystery In GM Negotiation

DETROIT (AP)—The auto labor situation developed into a Grade A mystery story today as General Motors Corp. delayed making its bid for a contract settlement before a fast-approaching tomorrow midnight strike deadline. GM's game apparently was to wait almost to the 11th hour, filing an offer at Walter Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers Union, and give the union little time to argue, only to make a yes or no answer. The big corporation considers itself in a strategic bargaining position, knowing that the union would be reluctant to call a strike of its 350,000 members at GM. Such a strike would cut off nearly one-third of the UAW's dues income and even low level benefits would wipe out a few weeks of the 25-million-dollar strike fund the union is building. Lack of any protest over the delay from Reuther or UAW Vice President John Livingston, head of the union's GM department, led to belief they had some assurance from GM negotiators that the eventual offer would contain the basic principle of the guaranteed wage.

Reuther already has won a modified guaranteed wage plan from the Ford Motor Co., providing for a system of company-financed payments for laid-off workers sufficient to state unemployment compensation payments, plus pay boosts and pension, holiday and vacation improvements. If GM negotiators Harry W. Anderson and Louis G. Seaton have given Reuther advance assurance they will make a guaranteed wage offer patterned after the Ford plan, there was guessing GM might do so in a manner that would embarrass Reuther and even endanger his guaranteed wage idea completely. It was speculated that GM might make two offers, one like the Ford plan and another proposing much larger cash pay boosts for GM workers, with the suggestion the UAW let the workers choose between the two plans. In the Ford negotiations Reuther had proposed just such a popular vote among the workers. He called for a worker choice between a Ford plan to let workers buy company stock at half price and the UAW's guaranteed wage plan. Ford never took up the vote offer, but instead ultimately negotiated a guaranteed wage.

Medical Clinic At Ayden Opens Monday Morning

A new medical clinic, built at a cost of from 40-50 thousand dollars, will open for business Monday in Ayden. Included in the brick-air-conditioned structure located at the corner of Pitt and Power Streets, will be a reception room, physicians' offices, examination rooms, surgical dressing room and other utility rooms. Two Ayden doctors, Clifton Davernport and Lawrence Alexander, will be in charge. The structure, begun last August, will replace the current clinic, located in the old Christian Church parsonage. The new clinic was financed partly by a corporation of local individuals and partly by the First Federal Savings and Loan Ass'n.

Draft Office To Close 3 Days

Pitt County Selective Service office will be closed Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The office will be closed so that local draft board clerks, Mrs. Selma Rogers and Mrs. Josie Evans, may attend a conference of draft board officials in Raleigh.

Challenges Some Jurists' View That Public Trial Can Be Evaded

CINCINNATI (AP)—Managing Editor J. R. Wiggins of the Washington Post and Times Herald today challenged the arguments of some jurists that accused persons forego a public trial just as they can waive trial by jury. In an address prepared for a meeting of the American Bar Assn., Wiggins said that the right to a public trial belongs to "the people as a whole" as well as to defendants in court proceedings. "It seems to me unreasonable and illogical," he said, "to suppose that any single citizen, in consequence of his being accused of a crime, should thereby acquire the right to close a court and thus deprive citizens, not accused of any wrongdoing, of their rights." He said that "public administration of justice not only protects the private rights of accused persons but, in addition, secures the community as a whole against the dangers of judicial maladministration." Wiggins is chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of the American Society of News-Paper Editors. He cited, as another point disputed by the press and the legal profession, various restraints on the use of cameras in court rooms. He said these restraints "smell of the flash powder" used by photographers when the bans were adopted. "Though urging that more courts open their doors to cameras and other recording devices, Wiggins said the press would 'proceed with patience while lawyers and judges, one by one, become persuaded of the rightness of this view.'" Wiggins said judges "must be the ones to decide whether a given piece of recording equipment is or is not so obtrusive, noisy or distracting as to interfere with the business of the court or the rights of litigants." Wiggins said, too, that the right of the citizen to know how his government is being conducted by the legislative and executive branches is more seriously challenged today than ever before in history. He emphasized that almost every private enterprise is touched by federal power but he said federal secrecy is increasing and citizens know "less and less of the more and more operations of government." "The people are going to have to look to press and bar, more and more, in the years ahead, to stop the number of Ford work stoppages and worker protests that Reuther bought the guaranteed wage principle at a price of foregoing healthy wage increases from the profit-swollen auto industry." Since the Ford guaranteed wage plan was announced Monday, there have been a number of Ford work stoppages and worker protests that Reuther bought the guaranteed wage principle at a price of foregoing healthy wage increases from the profit-swollen auto industry. Included on the program also were lectures, visual aids, conferences, excursions to kindergarten facilities in the area, and an historical tour to Bath, oldest town in North Carolina.

Among visiting speakers were Patsy Montague and Homer Lassiter, supervisors of elementary education, State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh.

At a meeting held during the workshop, the North Carolina Kindergarten Teachers Association elected Mrs. W. Don Howell of Gastonia as president for 1955-1956.

Other officers chosen by association members are Mrs. Charlotte Barnes, Raleigh, first vice president; Mrs. Byrd Cox, Burlington, second vice president; Ruth Torrence, Gastonia, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. # New Type Of Growth Shown In City's Building Boom

The above pictured group of dwellings are only a portion of the many new houses which have been constructed in the Cornmill subdivision within a matter of months. Greenville boasts many new developments in which not a single house is more than two or three years old. (Reflector Photos by Alvin Taylor.)

New subdivisions call for community shopping centers and city planners took that in consideration by designation of certain areas as commercial when the city was zoned. Above is pictured one of the new shopping centers recently opened across from Colonial Heights. Although this section is not in the city limits Colonial Heights itself was taken in only this week.

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

Whether Greenville is experiencing an unusual population growth will be determined only when census taking time rolls around again in 1960, but if the rate of local building is any indication more and more people are moving into the city limits.

Already during the first five months of this year alone permits for 97 dwellings and 10 apartment houses have been issued by Building Inspector George Gardner. The total worth of the housing units authorized by the city this year is now $1,179,800.

Added to that is $78,000 for eight commercial units to make a total of $1,257,800 in new construction authorized so far this year. Measured in terms of dollars that is more construction than was carried on during the entire years of 1946 and 1949 and approaches the total worth of new construction for 1948 and 1949.

Furthermore, the above statistics do not present a true picture of the building being carried on in the Greenville area. Much of the new house construction and a small amount of the commercial growth is taking place in areas adjacent to the city limits. While these areas will eventually be included in the city, houses built in those sections are not included in the building reports.

New Type Growth

With the prolonged building boom in which the city finds itself has come a new type growth of the residential areas.

In pre World War II days the trend was to checkerboard type blocks with city streets being extended block-by-block and sewer, water and other utilities being added as the city could afford it. Streets were paved and curbed and guttered, installed as funds were available.

The city's growth since World War II has seen a change in that pattern with entire subdivisions opened. Corn fields become residential areas within a few months time and countless areas of Greenville can boast that not a single house in the developments is more than two or three years old.

With the coming of subdivisions city fathers found that new concepts of city planning were needed to cope with a rapidly growing city.

When World War II ended subdividers simply acquired a tract of land adjacent to the city limits, scraped out the streets and divided the section into lots. Soon the areas would fill up with houses and the residents, seeing the need of such city services as utilities and police and fire protection would petition to enter the city limits.

Once the areas were included city fathers found that they simply did not have the funds to bring the subdivisions up to city standards.

Ordinance Set Up

Thus municipal planners put their heads together and came up with a subdivision ordinance which required strict standards for the mushrooming developments before they would be considered for entrance into the city.

Standards for street widths were set up under the ordinance; subdividers were required to bear the cost of installing water and sewer lines and to grade and pave the streets in the areas.

Cost of such work had to be added to the lot cost to a great extent but both subdividers and lot purchasers have apparently found that the added cost is worthwhile.

The purchasers save the cost of installing water pumps and septic tanks which in older subdivisions have to be discarded eventually when city services are available. Paved streets do not have to be torn up after the area has built up for the installation of the needed sewer and water pipes.

And more important, the city is not saddled with the cost of installing the utilities. City fathers even now shake their heads in dismay when they remember the work which faced them in such subdivisions as Brookgreen, Elmhurst and Hillsdale, which were admitted before the subdivision ordinances were passed.

Thousands of dollars were spent in Hillsdale alone for installation of drainage and for curb and guttering plus other work. And still the work on that area is not complete. Even now streets must be paved. Property owners, of course, bear two-thirds of the cost of curb and gutter and paving, but even then the job amounts to considerable expense for the city.

In Elmhurst the Utilities Commission was forced to rip up entire streets to install sewer lines and that necessitated complete repaving of a large portion of the streets in the area.

Brookgreen required considerable patching and some resurfacing of streets after utilities were installed.

In the subdivision ordinance city fathers hoped they had found the answer to this problem of a growing city.

The annexation of the first new area under the ordinance proved its worth.

When lot buyers moved into Forest Hills, first to be constructed under the ordinance, they found their sewer and water lines available. Streets were of ample width and drainage was adequate.

And best of all when the area was taken into the city limits it required no additional improvements.

Now subdividers take their plans before the Planning Board for approval before they construct a new development. When that board approves the plans are submitted to the City Council for final approval and, with the housing boom, Planning Board members are not dismayed if they are faced with as many as four subdivision plans for their approval at one meeting.

New Record Loans

Building this year bids to set a new record in dollars and cents value if new construction holds at its present rate.

Top year so far for this city was 1950 when 229 dwellings and 23 commercial buildings were constructed having a total value of $1,984,200.

Signs of slackening in the heavy rate of construction were seen last month when new construction authorized was valued at only $92,700. In May of the preceding year new construction totalled $310,800.

However, new construction through May of 1955 was still far ahead of the same period last year—$1,257,800 to $812,800.

For the last nine years total cost of new construction are as follows: 1946—$818,550; 1947—$1,464,850; 1948—$1,373,600; 1949—$618,800; 1950—$1,984,200; 1951—$1,509,000; 1952—$1,638,000; 1953—$1,543,200; 1954—$1,914,200.

Above is pictured one of the newly-opened subdivisions on the outskirts of Greenville. The curving streets cut through silent woodland at present, but soon houses will line paved streets as another residential section joins the growing number which have entered the city limits in recent years.

CASPER, Wyo.—"Climb on the top of Devil's Tower."

That's the final examination for a Casper Junior college class in mountain climbing.

Devil's Tower thrusts 1,280 feet upward from the Belle Fourche river bed in northeastern Wyoming. Only a few mountaineers have climbed the nearly perpendicular walls.

More than 20 male students signed up for the class when A.W. Bailey organized it this spring. Full academic credit is offered students who complete the course. No co-eds registered this spring, but Bailey says several girls have indicated they want a place on the climbing ropes next school year.

The course includes preliminary training from books, color slides and movies; plus plenty of weekend cliff work.

of holds on the rugged mountain sides.

Ideal practice cliffs are located on nearby Casper mountain in a variety of granite limestone and sandstone formations. The shorter cliffs ranging from 10 to 100 feet in height, provide the best classroom, Bailey said. They permit the climber several chances to correct his errors.

The class has taken several weekend excursions to other rock formations in central Wyoming and the great Flatiron mountains near Boulder, Colo., for homework.

But the Devil's Tower outing is strictly for the honor students.

Ford Contract May Bring New Inflation

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

THE Ford Motor Co. agreed this week to continue partial wage payments to workers during periods of layoffs, and a shudder went through large sections of American industry.

It wasn't the guaranteed annual wage which Walter Reuther's United Automobile Workers Union is demanding for the long run, but Reuther hailed it as a first and important step in that direction, and nobody denied it.

The possible impact on other industries and on the general economy stemmed from two directions. Many companies feared they would just have to go out of business, or else resort to wholesale firings in the face of any business slump, if the principles involved in the Ford case came to be applied generally.

Roberts

Business as a whole feared the inflationary impact of new contracts in the automobile business which, if they followed the Ford pattern, would represent an increase of 10 per cent in labor costs and passed on to consumers, might produce new price spirals which were brought under control less than two years ago.

Greater Battle Expected
The precedents established by the Ford agreement were so great that the UAW, moving directly to negotiations with General Motors, voluntarily gave the great combine a five-day contract extension in order to regain its breath.

Observers had expected more of a battle at Ford. The company had met the expected guaranteed wage demand with a compromise package of its own including an offer to let employees buy stock, none of which has been held outside the Ford family and the foundations established by them since the company's earliest days. But statisticians on both sides had done their homework, and the compromise between the company's job security plan and the union's guaranteed wage demands came in less than a week.

Shivering on the outskirts of the battlefield were Chrysler and other independent automobile manufacturers. Chrysler, big enough to be called one of the Big Three, but just emerging from serious difficulties and in no condition to compete with increased expenditures, wondered if Reuther would consider its economic position or would try to drive the corporation into meeting the Ford terms.

Steel Industry Next
Also strongly affected were the big steel companies, which began negotiations with their powerful unions this week. They had to consider only wages this year, but in facing demands for increases they were well aware that whatever they do now will be the basic price when they start meeting demands for compound interest next year.

The cries raised over the Ford capitulation sounded very much like those heard in 1914, when Ford announced its $5-a-day policy. Henry Ford was called a "traitor to his class" and his policy "economic suicide." It was better than a 100 per cent increase. And it turned out to be one of the anchors of American industrial dynamism, within which workers earn more and more for producing more and more in less time with the aid of constantly improved machines, and so can buy more and more of each other's products. The effect of payment for non-production is, however, something different.

Unemployment Down

All the negotiations this year are taking place against a background of record-breaking prosperity. The Ford negotiations hardly were over when the government announced that more workers had reached greater peaks of production in May than in any other month in history. Unemployment was 1.3 per cent less than the year before, and the average worker had been on the job a half hour longer each week. Sixty thousand more people worked in May than in April, the largest May increase in five years. The government also reported inflation, which hampered previous upswings, was being held firmly in check.

There was no question that business was feeling its juices. But it was labor which was riding hell-for-leather toward goals about which it hardly even dreamed just a few years ago.

Secretary of State Dulles, in cautioning Americans about the conference with Russia, the Western foreign ministers hope to hold July 18 at Geneva: "We shall need for some time yet to live as a nation that is in peril. That is the only prudent course to follow."

Sidelights

● The Brooklyn, Maine, High School Class of '55 won't have any trouble down through the years staging reunions. The sole graduating senior was Betty A. Perverer, 17, the only member of her class at the tiny school for four years. At full-scale commencement exercises, she delivered the class oration, introduced the commencement speaker, and was guest of honor at the graduation ball.

● Playing manager Val Anderson proudly obliged when a small boy asked for his autograph before the Grafton, N. D., baseball team started a game. After going down swinging twice, the boy intercepted him on his way back to the dugout. "Got an eraser?" he asked.

● Librarian Theodore Epstein thought he had a good way to get back a few books for the Rider College Library at Trenton, N. J. He announced a contest to find the book longest overdue. The "winner" would receive money equal to the amount of fine normally due. Happily flooded by books long charged off as losses, Epstein awarded $3.00—the original cost—to a fraternity house which returned a book taken out 12 years ago.

Friendly Farewell Handshake . . . and Target No. 2

NEHRU is now being given extraordinary reception during tour of Russia.

Wooing of Nehru Is the First Step

By TOM WHITNEY

Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer

MUCH of the commentary in the West has depicted the results of the Soviet-Yugoslav talks as a Yugoslav victory over the Russians.

This overlooks some of its probable implications and results.

The Soviet delegation went to Belgrade with both maximum and minimum goals. Its maximum aim, as was clear, was to woo Tito back into the Soviet bloc immediately. In this, Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet Communist party boss, failed.

Tito kept his independence and made mighty clear he plans to keep it in the future as well. Any illusions the Russian leadership may have had on this were probably dispelled.

But the Soviet minimum goal is something else again. By going to Belgrade the Kremlin chiefs planned: (1) to establish a framework for eventual rapprochement between the Soviet bloc and Yugoslavia, and (2) to create an atmosphere favorable to further steps in wooing Europe's socialists and neutrals into this general category falls the Kremlin's invitation to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to visit Moscow. That the U.S. State Department is fully cognizant that the Kremlin might still have tricks up its sleeve can be seen in Secretary of State Dulles' comment that Russia may now be willing to loosen the reins somewhat on its eastern European satellites.

Whitney

The plan is to attempt to achieve alliances with all socialists everywhere. That is the way things look. Democratic Socialists are the most important political force in Western Europe and they are important also in Asia.

But the concept goes even further than this. The Russians are also going to woo non-Socialists: the Greeks, the Turks, the Afghans, the Arabs, etc. Belgrade served the purpose in this scheme of being a show of Kremlin friendliness and good will even for those who a short time ago were its worst enemies.

Subtle Victory
To depict Belgrade as a "defeat" for Khrushchev is to miss these points entirely. But even concerning the first goal of achieving a closer relationship with Yugoslavia the Soviet-Yugoslav talks accomplished more than seems to be generally realized in the West.

A careful reading of the communiqué issued at the conferences ended indicates the conferees laid a foundation for broad cooperation between the two Communist countries on more than the foreign affairs front.

It looks very much as if reintegration of Yugoslavia into the general political and economic framework of Eastern Europe is going to proceed rapidly. Yugoslav authorities during the Belgrade talks have managed to keep uppermost the idea that Yugoslavia is retaining her independence. There is no need to doubt this. But it is well worth noting that the Russians have now put the Yugoslavs in a position in which there will be rather rare cause for any assertion of that independence.

Nehru in Russia
This week Indian Prime Minister Nehru arrived in Moscow for a visit. The Russians had carefully prepared for his journey. They had even gone to the length of translating and publishing one of Nehru's books with a foreword by the Indian leader himself.

The Kremlin was wooing Nehru and India. Nehru is a Socialist. Though he is not a Soviet-type Socialist or Communist, his belief in Socialist ideas gives him a good deal of grounds for a natural sympathy to many aspects of the Soviet system.

Nehru is a neutralist. He believes in keeping India out of the big power blocs. This means that he declines to join in American-sponsored arrangements aimed at establishing a joint defense for the non-Communist world against the threat of Communist aggression. Nehru has repeatedly shown suspicion of the United States. This also furnishes grounds for some sympathy with the Russians.

Nehru in addition is a leader of Asians. All these things make Nehru one of the most important targets.

Showdown Avoided
Is the use of "secret informers" to police the ranks of federal employees contrary to the Constitution?

The Supreme Court had a chance to go into the question this week, but the majority of justices elected to postpone a showdown.

The case before the high court concerned the firing of Dr. John P. Peters, senior professor of medicine at Yale University, as an occasional consultant to the U.S. Public Health Service in May of 1953. The firing was carried out under the old Truman administration loyalty program. During various loyalty board hearings, Dr. Peters swore he had never been a Communist. He was twice cleared by lower boards but lost after the Loyalty Review Board reopened the case on its own initiative.

The 7-2 decision in favor of Dr. Peters held that the review board exceeded its authority in reopening the Peters case. It thereby wiped out a finding of "reasonable doubt" as to his loyalty.

Justices Black and Douglas voted with the majority but said in separate opinions that they favored passing upon the constitutional question. Douglas spoke bitterly against using "faceless informers" in security cases, contending this violates the Constitution.

Justices Reed and Burton, in a dissent, upheld the Peters' dismissal.

Chief Justice Warren noted that the court long has "declined to anticipate a question of constitutional law in advance of the necessity of deciding it."

SMOKING: More Evidence It's Harmful

Second Chapter

The American Cancer Society added another chapter this week to its research on the relation between cigarette smoking and lung cancer.

It was the cancer society's first report a year ago which opened the floodgates on an intense national debate on cigarette smoking, a controversy which 12 months later has quieted down to mere whispers.

Survey Continuing
Last year's report was the first on results of a continuing survey which includes nearly 190,000 men, all interviewed on their smoking habits three years ago. Nearly 5,000 deaths had occurred in the group at the time of the 1954 report and it was the comparison of their smoking habits and cause of death which furnished the basis for the original findings.

Drs. R. Cuyler Hammond and Daniel Horn, guiding lights of the cancer society's statistical research, reported that this year their base has been expanded to more than 8,000 deaths. The additional information, said the investigators, has confirmed last year's indication that cigarettes are damaging to health.

The Scorecard
Highlights of additional conclusions:

Lung cancer is rare among men who have never smoked.

The death rate from lung cancer increases with the amount of cigarettes smoked. The rate is appreciable even among men who smoke less than 10 cigarettes daily.

Regardless of whether men live in big city or rural areas, the rate is high among smokers and low among non-smokers.

Pipe smoking "appears to be associated with lung cancer" but far less than cigarettes.

The lung cancer death rate among a group of ex-smokers was only half that of smokers.

Quitting Helps
For ex-smokers—those who at the start of the study three years ago said they had quit smoking—the death rate from lung cancer was 14 times as high as among non-smokers. But this was only half the rate among men who had kept on smoking even less than a pack a day.

Criticizing the statistics, Timothy V. Hartnett, chairman of the Tobacco Industry Research Committee, said the ACS study "does not establish any cause and effect relationship." "Statistical experts point out," he asserted, "that this study ignores important environmental, geographical, occupational, physical and emotional factors that affect disease and longevity."

Medical Missionaries

Medicine is a brother-in-arms of Christian missions around the world.

In the overseas service of every major church is a far-flung company of trained physicians. They run a heart-touching practice, tending the bodily needs of peoples who often never visited a doctor before.

This weekend, and continuing through Monday, about 75 of these missionary doctors and nurses are meeting in Atlantic City, N. J.

Home on furlough from their mission posts aboard, they're exchanging ideas on ways of improving and extending their work.

These medical specialists, who work side-by-side with the ministers to spiritual needs, represent 50 American Protestant mission boards and church groups.

These groups maintain 800 hospitals, 2,000 dispensaries, four medical training schools, 15 tuberculosis sanitariums and 150 schools of nursing in foreign missions fields.

Besides this, many medical missionaries serve at lonely outposts, or one-man clinics set up in isolated or primitive regions.

Commented one doctor serving in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan: "My patients arrived before I had a place to treat them, so I set up my first clinic under a huge tamarind tree and have been busy ever since."

Most work for small salaries, a fraction of what a medical practice at home would bring them. Some volunteer a year of service—without compensation. The conference is being sponsored by the National Council of Churches.

BUSINESS: Income Climbs

Record Rate

Government figures show that you've been earning money at a record rate this spring—if your income is in line with the national pattern.

The U.S. Commerce Department says "personal income" during April was at its highest level in history. This is the income Americans received from wages, salaries, business partnerships, stock dividends, rentals and the like. In April it reached a record annual rate of $295,600,000,000.

That's one billion more than the annual rate for March. It's 11 billion dollars, or 4 per cent, higher than in April 1954, when business was at the bottom of a mild recession.

Personal income declined throughout the 1953-54 slump, began climbing again last November. It's been rising ever since. Higher factory payrolls have accounted for most of the increase. Wages and salaries paid by private industry during April were at an annual rate of $202,200,000,000—up $7,900,000,000 from a year ago.

Income from rentals, partnerships and proprietorships averaged 50 million dollars a year during April against $48,200,

"One of the Boys"

A distinguished member of the Class of '15 returned to the campus of the United States Military Academy this week.

During three action-packed days, President Eisenhower watched spit-and-polish cadet parades, relaxed with fellow alumni, and delivered the commencement address as West Point graduated the 1955 class of 469 cadets.

At a luncheon early in the presidential visit, Eisenhower turned down a place at the head table to sit with Gen. Omar N. Bradley and other members of his class of 40 years ago. He was introduced—and got a big ovation—as the man who wanted to be "just one of the boys."

In his commencement speech, the President counseled that the free world should look upon the approaching Big Four meeting as "only a beginning" of a peace effort that may take a generation to come to fruition.

He warned against "fatuous expectations" that a world sick with ignorance, fears and hates "can be miraculously cured by a single meeting."

Eisenhower stood almost an hour handing out diplomas to the new second lieutenants. As each saluted he smilingly handed over the diploma and often accompanied it with a pat on the back.

The cadets appeared before the President in the order in which they ranked scholastically. First was First Cadet Capt. Le Donne Olvey of Hinesville, Ga., one of the few men in cadet history to be both honor man and cadet commander. Gen. Douglas MacArthur was one of the others.

Plenty Of Off-Street Parking In City

Opening of Greenville's newest municipal parking lot Monday should mark the beginning of a new era for the city . . . the era of adequate off-street parking facilities to take care of the constantly increased traffic flow in the business district.

As of Monday when the new lot is opened at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets, there will be a total of 401 off-street parking places in parking lots in and adjacent to the city's business district. That's 21 more off-street parking places than there are metered on-street parking places now in the business district.

Another 100 or so off-street parking places in the business district can be accounted in the small off-street areas where one or two cars park, and the service sta-

Special Study Group Would Be Profitable

The Reflector agrees with Governor Hodges that it "makes sense" for local school boards throughout the state to make individual studies of their school situation relative to the Supreme Court anti-segregation ruling.

Although all school boards of the state will look to Raleigh for guidance in working out the multiplicity of problems which will result from the desegregation ruling, each unit will have specific problems unique to itself. Guidance in these particular problems may be available from state sources, but these outside sources must rely heavily upon the local evaluation of the problem at hand.

In Pitt County, perhaps the local school boards will prefer to act as their own study groups. On the other hand, the Pitt County Board of Education and the Board of Trustees of Greenville City Schools may be able to profit from the views of a group appointed specifically to study the situation in the various sections of the county.

The Reflector feels the members of the Board of Education, who must shoulder a tremendous responsibility in the trying days ahead, and the county as a whole can profit greatly from the appointment of such a special study group.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
AMONG THE TOMBS

Everyone knows the New Testament story of the man possessed by a legion of demons, who was healed by Jesus. Before his cure, this man was described as "dwelling among the tombs."

Among the tombs—not a very comfortable residence, and yet still crowded. For in the modern sense, we have a great many dwellers among the tombs—those whose lives are bound up in the dead past, and not in the living present or future.

One familiar graveyard-haunter is the man who made a big success early in his career and has gone downhill ever since. Because he cannot repeat his first triumph, he has given up trying, and sits at the local bar talking about the good old days.

Another tomb-dweller is there because illness, personal calamities and deaths of loved ones have put him in the shadow of a headstone. He refuses to believe that there is sunlight on the other side, if he would be man enough to look for it.

Another is haunted by the guilt of a past mistake. Repentance, confession, perhaps restitution, and redemption would take him out of the cemetery of the past into a new future, if only he would take the first step.

We shall all be resting among the tombs soon enough—meanwhile, there is work to be done, life to be lived, and joy to be found in the living.

Foreign Aid Costs Tabulated

By RAY TUCKER

Every Saturday Mr. Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent to him at 7008 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"Now that Congress appears certain to pass the new foreign aid bill," inquires G.F. of Richmond, Va., "just how much money have we poured out during and since World War II for nations overseas?"

Answer: The current foreign aid measure, which provides about $3.5 billion, brings our total contribution above $100 billion for the first time. From July 1, 1949 through December 31, 1954, it was about $98.2 billion. This amount includes all sums for military, economic and technical assistance.

FIGURES FROM LIBRARY OF CONGRESS—The figures were prepared for Representative Lawrence H. Smith of Wisconsin by the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress, which is Capitol Hill's special research bureau, and they are authentic.

Of that total, the sum of $49.2 billions was expended between July 1, 1949, and June 30, 1945, and it will be about $52.2 billion for the period from July 1, 1945 through the next fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1955.

These figures do not take into account this country's capital investment of $2.7 billion in the International Monetary Fund, or of $635,000,000 in the International Bank Loans from these agencies, which are supposed to be repaid, contributed to the foreign kitty.

VAST SUM NOT YET SPENT—In addition, credits totaling about $16 billion were extended, and the sum of $6 billion has been repaid, including interest. What is not generally realized is that, counting the current bill, almost $16 billion of this vast sum has not yet been spent, although most of it is committed in orders placed but not yet delivered.

"I read that many Members of Congress showed great interest and liking for Great Britain's kind of quiet and inexpensive elections," writes T. H. of Concord, N. H. "If so, why don't they do something to spare us all the time and emotion and money that we spend on these affairs?"

Answer: The answer is simple. The American people are not so staid and conservative as their British cousins. They want and expect a circus at election time, or the politicians seem to think that way. However, the use of television in recent campaigns has cut down excitement and crowds and it may yet result in a more civilized performance.

ELECTIONS IN U. S.—It must also be kept in mind that the great distances in this country, as well as the population total in states and districts, require more motion, expenditure, advertising, etc. A candidate for Parliament can cover his whole constituency in a day or two. He can get his message over, if any, by word of mouth, for the British are great gossipers.

Perhaps every member of Congress would prefer the British system but none dares to inaugurate the reform.

"Is it true," asks C. V. of Springfield, Mass., "that Senator Leverett Saltonstall of my state is being mentioned as a possible Vice-Presidential nominee, or as a successor to Minority Leader Knowland?"

Answer: Several well-informed correspondents from Massachusetts newspapers have written that President Eisenhower would welcome Senator Saltonstall's selection as Senate Republican boss, if the Californian quits. I doubt if he will receive much consideration for the V-P nomination. I think that Ike will favor "Dick" Nixon.

In "Sally's" favor, it can be said that he is one of the Administration's most loyal supporters in the Upper Chamber, especially on foreign affairs.

At the same time, we must not lead ourselves to believe we now have sufficient off-street parking to last us for years to come. We haven't. As the number of vehicles increase—and they are increasing constantly—Greenville is going to need more off-street parking.

City officials should be encouraged to follow through with their program of providing additional municipal parking lots on a systematic basis in the next few years to keep pace with the demand for parking area.

After 30 Years Pitt Gets A District Judge

The appointment of W. J. (Dick) Bundy as resident judge of the new third judicial district brings a district judgeship back to Pitt County for the first time in almost 30 years.

Judge Bundy has been greatly honored with the appointment announced yesterday by Governor Hodges, and Pitt County reflects in that honor which has been accorded one of her native sons.

In almost 30 years before the bar as a practicing attorney, a young county solicitor and more recently solicitor of the fifth judicial district for six years has gained broad knowledge of both civil and criminal law. This background of experience should stand him in good stead as he assumes the more exacting and more weighty responsibility on the Superior Court bench.

Had it not been for the strength of the candidate Pitt had to offer for this new judicial post, and the degree of unanimity reached by county leaders in their support of the candidate, Pitt could again have been passed over in the selection of a Superior Court judge.

The Reflector offers its congratulations to Judge Bundy on his appointment, to Governor Hodges on his selection, and to Bundy's supporters who came forward with a commendable effort to see that Pitt County again has the honor of counting a resident district judge among its citizenry.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

Moderation is the need (Henderson Dispatch)

Now, even as a year ago, the keynote to the segregation issue is that of moderation. The implementation decree of the Supreme Court is not a license for excesses in verbal thrusts or otherwise, although in some quarters it is being seized upon to that purpose. These may only aggravate the situation. That should be realized on every hand but apparently it is not.

Spokesmen for the National Association for Advancement of Colored People are breathing threats, and almost even dares, in defiance of cooler heads who are trying as best they may to feel their way along the rough road, which was not smoothed too much by the latest court decision.

That is more than the NAACP spokesmen are doing. They want what they want and want it immediately, and are not showing a willingness to allow time for

Tar Heels Today More Constitution-Minded

By LYNN NISBET

Racial segregation requirements are more positive and emphatic and changes necessary to comply with the new Federal interpretation must be much more far-reaching and significant. Or else there must be open rebellion on part of North Carolina against compliance with Federal provisions. The immediate question is how these necessary changes can be effected—that is, the simple mechanics of effectuating the changes.

AMENDMENTS — Our State constitution sets out the procedure for amending or altering its provisions. Article III, Sec. 2, reads: "No part of the Constitution of the State shall be altered unless a bill to alter the same shall have been agreed to by three-fifths of each house of the General Assembly. And the amendment or amendments so agreed to shall be submitted at the next general election to the qualified voters of the whole State, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. And in the event of their adoption by a majority of the voters cast, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of the Constitution of this State."

"GENERAL" — There is some controversy among lawyers about the real meaning of the term "general election" as used in the foregoing section. Constitutional provisions with respect to election of the Governor and other State elective officers, clerks of court and sheriffs, are that they shall be elected "at the same time and places and in the same manner as members of the General Assembly are elected."

The selection dealing with gradual processes which might come about with a minimum of ill will or something worse. In their haste for action without preparation or without waiting for calmer judgment to be exercised they are doing their cause harm, but seem deliberate.

Reckless defiance is not what the Supreme Court appeared to have intended. That tribunal cautioned moderation, and moderation is the greatest need at the moment. It will operate to greater advantage than other methods of procedure. If the NAACP has had to wait for three-quarters of a century for the law to move over to its side, surely nothing is to be lost by allowing a few more months for greater consideration and planning.

In the long run that will turn out to be for the best interests of every one.

In their investigations, the Roman Catholic students at John Carroll found that most adults were concerned over sale of obscene literature, but didn't know what to do about it. Their campaign began, they have received the support and cooperation of every other high school in the area, the parent-teacher organizations, churches of all denominations, civic clubs and other groups.

Martha Bogan, pretty 17-year-old student at John Carroll, offers this explanation of how now in her group felt:

"When my date took me to the corner drug store for a soda, there was no place we could sit without having to look at the display of half-nude women."

The students have put the finger on only a few magazines. Under the guidance of Father Brunson they have moved cautiously. They do not want any group or individual to take the task from them. And above all, they do not want government censorship.

The youths emphasized time again before various adult church and civic groups where they carried their campaign that they did not want official censorship.

"The publishers must do the job," they declared. "What they want is a seal of approval on all magazines, similar to Judge Charles F. Murphy's comics code seal."

Communication Lack

By ELMER ROESSNER

Lack of communication between executives and salesgirls was the major problem discovered in a six-months study of 20 salesgirls in a large eastern department store. The study is described by George F.F. Lombard, professor of Human Relations at the Harvard Business School, in "Behavior in a Selling Group," a 358 page book published today by the school (at $4).

The study was chiefly concerned with changes in behavior of three women selling infants' wear, nine girls selling sports clothes, three selling expensive dresses, two selling little boys' clothes and three medium price dresses. It also took sidelong glances at Saturday extras, two new girls, flying squad girls, service specialists, regular girls from other departments service managers and buyers.

The girls appear to be a cross-section of those in almost any department store. Some were friendly; some were "grabbers" who took customers where they were expected to behave.

Dr. Lombard writes: "But this communication was limited to the existing patterns of behavior. The members of the department did not improve their evaluations of themselves or of customers. We described these deficiencies as occurring at every level of the department."

The older salesgirls were worried that the store might not let them work until they died; the executives were concerned about what would happen if they did work this long. Most of the dress girls had personal worries that they were not free to discuss. The executives did not understand why the salesgirls' volumes were so nearly alike or why some girls who had high volume when they first came in later sold less. It's safe to say that 99 per cent of the merchants will go along with the man who calls him up, tells him he's in a temporary bind, but will pay him as soon as possible. With the proper understanding, I believe the merchant will protect the man's credit record although he has been delinquent.

Seek Clean Up Magazine Racks

In their investigations, the Roman Catholic students at John Carroll found that most adults were concerned over sale of obscene literature, but didn't know what to do about it. Their campaign began, they have received the support and cooperation of every other high school in the area, the parent-teacher organizations, churches of all denominations, civic clubs and other groups.

Martha Bogan, pretty 17-year-old student at John Carroll, offers this explanation of how now in her group felt:

"When my date took me to the corner drug store for a soda, there was no place we could sit without having to look at the display of half-nude women."

The students have put the finger on only a few magazines. Under the guidance of Father Brunson they have moved cautiously. They do not want any group or individual to take the task from them. And above all, they do not want government censorship.

The youths emphasized time again before various adult church and civic groups where they carried their campaign that they did not want official censorship.

Communication Lack

By ELMER ROESSNER

Lack of communication between executives and salesgirls was the major problem discovered in a six-months study of 20 salesgirls in a large eastern department store. The study is described by George F.F. Lombard, professor of Human Relations at the Harvard Business School, in "Behavior in a Selling Group," a 358 page book published today by the school (at $4).

The study was chiefly concerned with changes in behavior of three women selling infants' wear, nine girls selling sports clothes, three selling expensive dresses, two selling little boys' clothes and three medium price dresses. It also took sidelong glances at Saturday extras, two new girls, flying squad girls, service specialists, regular girls from other departments service managers and buyers.

The girls appear to be a cross-section of those in almost any department store. Some were friendly; some were "grabbers" who took customers where they were expected to behave.

Dr. Lombard writes: "But this communication was limited to the existing patterns of behavior. The members of the department did not improve their evaluations of themselves or of customers. We described these deficiencies as occurring at every level of the department."

The older salesgirls were worried that the store might not let them work until they died; the executives were concerned about what would happen if they did work this long. Most of the dress girls had personal worries that they were not free to discuss. The executives did not understand why the salesgirls' volumes were so nearly alike or why some girls who had high volume when they first came in later sold less. Most of the executives concluded that there was not much they could do about the behavior of salesgirls.

The remedy Dr. Lombard thinks, lies in a training program for executives in skillful administration, followed by better

Application Of New Know-How Boosts Grain Profits

More storage facilities have meant more dollars for Tar Heel grain growers. Metal storage bins, like this one under construction in Jones County, enables farmers to store their grain under government loan rather than being forced to sell at low prices at harvest.

By HAROLD PARKER
A coordinated approach aimed at solving North Carolina's grain production and marketing problems has given the industry a brighter outlook and put extra dollars in farmers' pockets, according to John Curtis, extension grain specialist at State College and chairman of the Grain Production and Marketing Committee.

The grain committee was formed in 1951, Curtis explained, to provide an educational program that would improve efficiency in the production and marketing of grain in the state. During the past four years the program has been presented to farmers, agricultural workers and grain handlers and processors in a number of schools, field days, and exhibits.

The entire program is based on economic factors—practices that use the latest "know-how" and that pay off for the farmer, he said. What are some of the results of this work?

Farmers have added more than 2 1/4 million bushels of metal bin storage on farms. This means they can take advantage of government loans on their grain, rather than being forced to sell at harvest when the market is usually glutted. A 1954 survey showed that farmers storing grain under the loan program received a handsome return on their efforts. They averaged about 37 cents more per bushel on wheat, 16 cents more on corn, 25 cents more on oats, and 50 cents more per 100 pounds on milo than would have been possible by selling at harvest. This figure was the amount after costs of fumigating, repairs, spraying, rodent control and loan costs.

at different times with the costs involved. Then decide whether to sell at harvest, or to store and sell later, with or without a CCG loan. Commercial storage facilities have increased 83 per cent since 1950 to almost 14 million bushels capacity, he said.

Many farmers are now marketing higher quality grain that brings more per bushel as a result of the committee's leadership, Curtis added. Demonstrations of proper storage methods and pest control have shown farmers how to handle and care for grain to maintain top quality.

"If studies now under way by the USDA in reviewing grain grading standards result in lower tolerance of foreign matter, the progress we have made in grain sanitation will be even more important," Curtis emphasized. The committee's unified program has also led many of the state's 350 commercial plants that handle or process grain to buy on a grade basis. Thus all concerned are insured of a fair deal.

Curtis pointed out that progress made in improving efficiency in the grain industry in North Carolina reflects efforts of the entire grain committee in all phases of production and marketing.

Other committee members include: E.S. Coates, extension agricultural engineer; George Jones, extension entomologist; F.C. Hall, chief, price support section, ASC;

O.W. Faison, Division of Markets, State Department of Agriculture, and A.D. Stuart extension agronomy specialist.

Representatives of the Crop Reporting Service, N.C. Corn Millers Association, N.C. Grain Handlers Association, Farm Bureau and the Grange have also joined in planning and promoting the program.

The committee plans to continue to work with farmers in developing a stable grain program in North Carolina. "Although we have made a lot of progress," Curtis said, "we still have a long way to go in helping Tar Heel farmers get the most from their 100 million bushel grain crop."

Wasps Considered Possible Answer To Tobacco Hornworm Infestation

RALEIGH — Ever think about using wasps to keep hornworms out of your tobacco? Scientists at N.C. State College, while they aren't recommending it yet, are thinking about the possibility.

Farm families who attend Farm and Home Week at State College, June 20-23, will learn of research conducted with the Polistes wasp by the entomology faculty and USDA scientists.

The program is part of an overall Farm and Home Week program, "Things to Come in Agriculture," that will be presented by the Division of Biological Sciences of which the entomology faculty is a part; the agricultural engineering department; and the agronomy department.

Dr. Clyde F. Smith, entomology head, said that his group will report on progress in research with the Polistes wasp, a colorful and angry enemy of the hornworm. The entomologists are looking into the possibility of designing houses that will attract the wasps to tobacco fields.

This, and other experimental research to be reported to the public at Farm and Home Week, are not recommendations, according to Smith. The projects will be presented to show the research and teaching work conducted by the School of Agriculture. Many of the projects are explorations to prove or disprove an idea or the feasibility of a method; whichever the result, the research has made a contribution to agriculture.

Other projects that the Division of Biological Sciences will explain involve residues left by chemicals, black shank and why some of the resistant varieties fail to hold up; and fish culture, including explorations in selective breeding.

Couldn't Enjoy His Fishing Pond

RALEIGH — It's something when a fellow can't even fish in his own pond in peace and comfort. But Cary Robertson of Knightdale says it got so there was so much moss, parrot feather, and other growth on his pond that he couldn't enjoy fishing.

Assistant County Agent H. Lester Creech says that Robertson finally decided to do something about the situation and pulled himself up off the bank long enough to spray the pond with Atlas A to control the growth.

Value Of Crop Rotation Shown

CLINTON — Sometimes the need for crop rotation isn't obvious enough to cause a good system to be set up. But that certainly wasn't the case with H.L. Royal, Clinton, Route 1, truck crop farmer.

Sampson County Assistant Agent Jack Barnes says that this year Royal planted a three-quarter acre field in turnips. Half had been in turnips last year and the other had been a temporary hog pasture. Where turnips followed turnips, the plants were badly infected with downy mildew and turnip leaf spot; the rest, healthy and green.

Finishes Twenty Years Of Driving Without Wreck

CHICAGO (AP)—William C. Hatten, a truck driver who has won many prizes for safe driving, today completed 1 1/2 million miles of driving in 20 years without a serious accident.

"I always drive as if everyone else on the road is going to do the unexpected," Hatten said. "You just can't let down for a minute when you have a wheel in your hands. But even so, there have been some close ones. I guess the lord has been with me on a lot of trips."

Leonard A. Meisner, safety director of the Midwest Transfer Co., Chicago, where Hatten has been employed for 18 years, said Hatten had scored "an unbelievable record." He said a formal ceremony honoring Hatten will be held later.

Hatten, 37, lives with his wife, Ruth; daughter, Judy, 15, and son, William C., Jr., 11, in South Bend, Ind.

Ford Labor Pact May Open Stock To Public Buyers

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Ford's labor pact should have cleared the way for an early offering of Ford stock to the public.

Terms have been withheld while Ford management bargains with labor. Even when Ford offered to let its workers buy Ford stock at half price, it was careful not to say what that price would be.

The union turned down that offer and held out for a supplemental unemployment benefit plan.

The Ford stock offering was held up by the labor bargaining because before a public issuing of stock can be made Ford must furnish the Securities and Exchange Commission with its financial figures. Ford has never made these public and certainly couldn't have been expected to while it was bargaining with its employees over how much it could afford to pay them.

With a three-year labor pact bought by its promise to set up a $5-million-dollar fund out of which to give laid-off workers part of their customary pay, Ford is now in a position to go ahead with sale of its stock to the public. Actually, the stock to be sold is that held by the Ford Foundation. The nonvoting shares are carried on the foundation's books at $135 each. But Wall Street figures that Ford's assets are just under two billion dollars, and that, therefore, the foundation's shares have an asset value in excess of $500 each.

Since $500 a share stock isn't popular with the general investing public, the expectation is that Ford will split the stock at least 10 for 1, and perhaps more, before making the public offering.

Union leaders made it plain that they rejected Ford's offer to let employees buy stock at half price primarily because it was put forward as a substitute for unemployment compensation. They say the union would be glad to consider the stock offer as a separate proposition.

Six Penguins In A Biting Mood

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Six disgruntled penguins, shipped from Lima, Peru, arrived yesterday for the local zoo and promptly started biting hands.

Apparently miffed at a delay that kept them in Mexico City three weeks while congressional intervenors persuaded an air line to bring them to Fort Worth without escort, the birds were in a surly mood.

Among those pecked were a zoo curator, park board official, airline hostess and Ed Willems, Chicago, representative of Kaiser Aluminum, the firm which donated the birds to the zoo.

There are 14 acres of floor space in the U.S. capitol.

Good Strawberry Is No Accident

RALEIGH — Those plump, beautiful and tasteful strawberries available to housewives (except when there's a freeze) didn't just happen to be that way accidentally.

All of the good features in some of the best present-day varieties, such as the Albritton, were developed only after pains-taking research.

Just how a strawberry variety is developed will be one of the things shown at Farm and Home Week by the horticulture department.

M.E. Gardner, head of the department and professor of horticulture at State College, says that visitors to Farm and Home Week, June 20-23, will get a "behind-the-scenes" look at what goes on in selecting a variety.

Farmers will be interested to learn that much research is being done in an effort to eliminate internal cork in sweet potatoes. They'll get a chance to see what's being done to help overcome this important problem, too. Also they'll be shown that selection of a potato variety is based on such things as color of skin, cork resistance to fusarium and other wilts, and many other qualities.

Dislike the idea of spitting out watermelon seeds? It's possible to produce a seedless watermelon. Gardner says this will be shown, at "Things to Come in Agriculture."

How temperature variation affects the potato chips you buy will also be demonstrated.

Indiana adds about 60,000 a year to her population.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW By FAGALY and SHORTEN

There's Money In Onion Acres

RALEIGH — Don't mention onions in a disparaging way to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Craig, Farm and Home Development family of Dudley, Route 1, in Wayne County. Assistant Negro County Agent C. R. Greene says that two acres of onions really paid off for Mr. and Mrs. Craig.

The Craig's record book shows that from February 18 through May 7, they had sold a total of $1,414.81 worth of spring onions. Since the expenses for growing and gathering the crop amounted to only $251.45, this left the Craigs a total net profit of well over a thousand dollars.

"The aroma in handling onions is not too pleasing, but the money really comes in handy to help pay bills and make new purchases," Mrs. Craig asserts.

Greene says the Craigs don't depend just on onions for their vegetable money. During the past winter they marketed collards, carrots, turnips, turnip greens, and radishes. And now they are ready to market squash, collards, beets, white potatoes, and other vegetables.

Round-Up Time Recently Relived

NEWTON — The days of the wild west, complete with cow ponies, were relived recently on the Carroll M. Barringer farm in the Blackburn section of Catawba County.

Assistant County Agent Frank A. Harris says trained cow ponies were used to round-up over 100 head of Hereford cattle and 100 head of sheep on the 750-acre farm. J.B. Rogers manager, demonstrated the effective use of the trained pony in a cattle operation. And to top things off, a chuck wagon dinner was served.

Not More Cows, But Production

DOBSON — R.E. Snow of Elkin, Route 1 isn't interested in more cows. He just wants more milk from the ones he has. Surry County Assistant Agent Carl W. Sofley says that Snow is gradually accomplishing his purpose, too, by participating in the artificial breeding program 100 per cent.

About 42 per cent of Brazil's population is under 15 years old.

Disney's Vast Park Will Be Open Soon

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Walt Disney, who has already proven that TV can be used to promote his other enterprises, will use the medium to its fullest extent when he previews his Disneyland Park.

Plans are now shaping up for a giant ABC network telecast from the Anaheim, Calif., pleasureland on Sunday, July 17.

It will be the first time a Disney TV offering will be seen on a live basis. Walt will conduct his millions of fans on a tour of his dream project.

It will be a 90-minute attraction in the late California sunshine. Host Disney is expected to be aided by Irene Dunne and such ABC starlets as Don McNeill, Danny Thomas and Ray Bolger. Art Linkletter is prospective emcee.

ABC has lined up three sponsors for the show and announces that 22 cameras will roam the 160 acres of the onetime orange grove.

Five thousand guests are invited, including 1,000 press and numerous film stars. It's reported that the 48 governors will be asked to raise the flags of their states on the Disneyland grounds.

The Disney people do things thoroughly. There will even be a preview of the preview. The regular Disneyland show on July 13 will feature a half hour report on the final preparations for the park. This will be the only new segment of the current season of reruns.

Disney has said that he won't stint on showing the TV audience the wonders of his park. He plans extensive tours of his four realms—Tomorrowland, Frontierland, Adventureland and Fantasyland.

Most other showmen would resist showing too much to the home viewers, for fear it would lessen the box office take. Disney doesn't hold to this. He has exposed large parts of his theatrical films on TV and still set records in the theaters.

Whether his theory still holds will be tested starting July 18, when the doors of Disneyland swing open to the paying visitors.

Buffet Given To Honor Bridal Couple Elect Of June

Dr. and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins were hosts at a buffet supper on Thursday night to honor Miss Rose Messick and Mr. Lyman Melvin who will be married the latter part of the month.

Varied arrangements of gladioli and other summer flowers were used as decorative touches on tables in the living room and sun room. The mantel was lovely, centered with a low green pottery bowl artistically arranged with scarlet gladioli encircled with gardenias.

The buffet table was covered with an imported linen cut work cloth edged in lace. A bric-a-brac arrangement of white gladioli and greenery in a crystal compote flanked by three-branched silver candle holders with white tapers was used as a centerpiece.

Guests served themselves from silver platters of chicken salad, ham, salads of macaroni, carrots and many other buffet accompaniments. Mrs. Wendell Smiley assisted the hostess by serving a congealed salad.

The Jenkins' children served the guests the dessert course.

Miss Messick was presented a shoulderette upon her arrival, and after coffee she was given a clock-radio as a gift from the host and hostess.

Twenty guests enjoyed the affair.

Small tables were grouped around the buffet table. Each table was decorated with dainty nosegays of fever few and delphinium with the exception of the bride's table which was decorated with a magnolia blossom tied with satin ribbon. The buffet table was decorated with greenery and candles.

Mrs. McGowan, assisted by Mrs. Lee, presided over the buffet table from which fried chicken, candied yams, buttered peas, tossed salad, pickled peaches and hot party rolls were served. Mrs. James L. Evans assisted in serving the lemon chiffon dessert, and iced tea.

Elks To Observe Flag Day Tuesday

Greenville Elks Lodge No. 1645 will observe National Flag Day on the lawn of the Elks Home, near Pitt Memorial Hospital, next Tuesday afternoon at 5:30. Exalted Ruler Stuart Page will preside. The public is invited.

June 14 marks the 178th anniversary of the adoption by the Continental Congress of the Stars and Stripes as the flag of this country. It was not until June 14, 1777—nearly a year after the signing of the Declaration of Independence—that the Stars and Stripes was adopted by the Continental Congress.

The Elks official said history records that Samuel Chester Reid, an American naval officer, is credited with creating the design for the present American flag. Historians point out that it was Reid who suggested retention of the original 13 stripes and the addition of a star for each new state entering the Union. Previously, a stripe as well as a star was added with the entry of each new state.

Off-Street Parking In City Is Easing Strain

Opening of the new municipal parking lot at the corner of Fifth and Washington Sts. will bring to 401 the number of off-street parking spaces, both public and private, which are provided in the city.

That is more than the number of metered spaces which are provided on the city's streets. Greenville has only 380 metered on-street parking spaces.

Of the 401 off-street spaces available locally, 124 are in municipal lots. The old swimming pool lot on Fifth St. provides 51 unmetered parking spaces; the Second and Evans lots contains 18 unmetered spaces and the new lot provides 55 metered parking spaces.

Doing much to alleviate the parking problem locally are the growing number of areas provided by private business. The major private lots total a total of 277 spaces and in addition to those there are numbers of small areas which will accommodate five to ten cars.

All such areas take parkers off the streets and free the one- and two-hour meters in the downtown area for other parkers.

One hour meters are located on Evans Street from Second to Fifth; on Third, Fourth and Fifth from Washington to Cotanche; and in front of the library. All other on-street meters will give two hours parking for two nickels.

Capitol Square

discover there is no sentiment for changing the general election date; but there is considerable sentiment for amending the constitution in effort to preserve the public school and the traditional policy of segregation. The point is, there is nothing sacrosanct about the November election day. It is well known that the State of Maine has its general election in September, and a number of States, including Virginia, elect Governors and other State officers in odd-numbered years instead of even numbered years when members of the Congress are elected and when most other States elect Governors and members of the General Assemblies.
