THE DAILY REFLECTOR
June 28, 1925

A belated story of an exciting bear chase resulting in the death of the bear in the Stokes section of the county a week ago last Saturday reached us today. "Brer Bear" put in his appearance at the lower end of J. A. Whichard's field. His presence was discovered by Mrs. Andrew Whichard and one of her children who quickly spread the alarm. Mr. R. V. Keel jumped into his car and rushed for Mr. Freeman Tetterton's to procure dogs while others rounded up the neighborhood for a chase. The race continued for more than an hour and ended only when a bullet from the rifle of Mr. Henry Gurganus brought the bear to a halt near the portion of the branch known as Bull Ridge water hole. The quarry proved to be a black bear weighing 84 pounds.

America May Have Dior Counterpart

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

If America has a counterpart of Christian Dior, it probably is a mercurial young man named Charley James, who runs a plush 57th Street dressmaking salon with icy hauteur and whose favorite pastime is insulting dowagers who do not on his $1,000 ball gowns.

This is not to infer that the suave Dior has either manners or temperament like James. The likeness between the two lies only in their genius for anticipating how women are going to want to look next year. Dior has reshaped the female form at least twice in the last half dozen years and so, in a modest way, has James.

The slight, dark James looks with cold contempt on most of his competitors in the American garment industry, but considers Dior one of the great geniuses of his time. This distinction he also claims for himself.

During his explosive career as an American couturier, Charley has made frequent forays into the wholesale dress market, while continuing his exclusive and expensive custom business for private clients.

But the James temperament is not conducive to harmonious partnerships, and most of his tieups with wholesale manufacturers have ended in explosions.

Now, however, James is entering the wholesale business under his own name.

His announced intention is to present clothes completely different from those of any other designer—loose where others are fitted, narrow where others are wide. He is showing a series of fashions which undoubtedly have a new look—high wide armholes, narrow shoulders, flat backs and full fronts.

James says these clothes can be worn by almost anybody and claims they are designed to flatter and camouflage the imperfections of the average female figure. His theory is that women don't get fat all over, but mostly in front, and that his new silhouette gives fullness where it is needed.

Short Course Ends At College

A three-weeks short course in Principles of Health Education, which has just been completed at East Carolina College, brought to the campus for lectures and consultations with students a large group of authorities on subjects of public interest, including sanitation, control of disease, and mental hygiene.

The course, presented at the college on the graduate level, linked public health with public education. The three weeks of intensive study included a detailed analysis of public health work today with problems and practices. Dr. Charles G. DeShaw of the East Carolina health and physical education department was coordinator of the program.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt County Health Officer, gave the keynote talk of the course as he discussed "Changing Concepts of Public Health."

Problems of health education in relationship to cancer, poliomyelitis, heart ailments, and tuberculosis were analyzed by Barbara Blackwell of the North Carolina Cancer Division, and Dr. G. Earl Trevathan Jr. of Greenville; Mrs. C. G. Brenneke of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; Joseph H. Hill, health education consultant of the North Carolina Heart Association; and Norman E. Gaskill, field consultant of the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association.

Julia B. Fisher, supervising nurse of the Pitt County Health Department, discussed "Nursing Service in Public Health."

Analyses of various problems of sanitation were presented by Walter Lackey, sanitarian for the North Eastern District of the North Carolina State Department of Health; W. M. Pate, of the Pitt County Health Department; and L. P. Bloxam of the Greenville Utilities Commission.

Others who appeared on the program were Dr. Walter Cameron of the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, who discussed accident prevention; and James Mallory of the East Carolina faculty, who talked on mental hygiene.

Industrial Arts In Exhibition

Students of industrial arts at East Carolina College will stage an exhibition of their work in handicrafts at the college Thursday, July 7, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 125 of the Flanagan building.

The showing of projects carried out by students has been planned largely for teachers and prospective teachers. Exhibits, however, will be of interest to hobbyists and others interested in hand work in various media. Those who wish to attend are invited to be present.

Students of elementary industrial arts will display examples of work, both ornamental and utilitarian, in wood, tin plate, galvanized iron, copper, leather, and plastics. Scrapbooks, prepared by students and containing suggestions for vitalizing instruction in industrial arts, will be included in the exhibition.

Accompanying this group of projects will be a collection of text books on industrial arts and of simple tools used in making the objects on display.

Students in a college class in metal work will be represented by a selection of work which they have done in the industrial arts department.

The exhibition has been arranged under the direction of Dr. Kenneth L. Bing, director of the East Carolina Industrial Arts department. Students will act as guides and will be present to explain the projects and to conduct visitors through the shops in the department.

Seeking Fliers Lost In Pacific

TOKYO (AP)—A vast air and sea search spread over 20,000 square miles of the foggy western Pacific today for two Marine jet fliers missing since Sunday night.

They are believed alive and drifting in tiny rubber rafts, from one of which faint radio signals can be heard.

By grim coincidence, the wife of one arrived today from Minneapolis with her 5-year-old son. She is Mrs. David Winton Bell. Her husband, a second lieutenant, is the son of Charles H. Bell, president of General Mills, Inc. The Navy notified Bell yesterday that his son was missing.

The two drifting fliers were hidden by fog from more than 50 planes and nine ships combing the sea around the volcanic islands south of Tokyo.

"It's frustrating... maddening" a Navy officer said as he reported feeble, sporadic radio code signals were received from a little emergency radio set aboard one of the rafts.

Yesterday one raft was reported seen by a search plane that made five passes over it—only to lose it again before a ship could reach the spot.

The fliers apparently bailed out or ditched when their F3D Sky Knight twin jet ran out of fuel.

Auto Followed Into Post Office

ASHTON, Idaho (AP)—Walter Bergman parked his car with the engine running, got out and walked into the post office.

The auto slipped into gear, nosed through the post office window and followed him right into the lobby.

Royal Air Force Claims Jet Mark

LONDON (AP)—The Royal Air Force claimed the first jet record for the 3,330 miles between Ottawa and London today. Jets had made the flight before, but never under conditions meeting international record requirements.

The British bid was made by the Royal Air Force twin-engine Canberra bomber which last week hopped over the arctic from Norway to Alaska in a test of long-range navigational techniques under polar conditions.

It arrived early this morning at West Malling Airport, 20 miles east of London, 6 hours and 48 minutes after its takeoff yesterday from Ottawa.

The Air Ministry said it would submit to international aviation authorities a time of 6 hours 42 minutes 12 seconds—from the center of Ottawa to the center of London. A ministry spokesman said the plane averaged 496.8 m.p.h.

Psychiatrist Is Not Responsible

NEW YORK, N.Y. (AP)—A young New York City psychiatrist has been cleared of burglary charges in connection with the looting of an unoccupied home near here.

A Rockland County grand jury recommended yesterday, however, that Dr. Price A. Kirkpatrick be prosecuted for petty larceny, an offense not punishable by prison.

Kirkpatrick, 33, mental health director for New York City's Domestic Relations Court, was accused of taking a number of antiques valued at $1,000 from the Piermont, N.Y., home of chemist Charles Sparhawk May 30. He was arrested when he returned to pick up an expensive camera he had left in the place.

The grand jury said, however, that the objects were not worth more than $100.

Kirkpatrick reportedly wanted to use the antiques to help furnish his New York office before his marriage to a New Jersey music teacher, Patricia Lets, 27, of Hackensack. She was with Kirkpatrick on the night of the alleged theft but was not accused. They have since married.

Kirkpatrick was suspended from his court job after the arrest but his offer to resign was refused.

Finds A Diamond Just As She Said

PROVO, Utah (AP)—Mrs. George A. King sent her living room sofa to an upholsterer for repair with the joking remark, "If you find any diamonds be sure and let me know."

A short time later, the upholsterer called her. "Lady, we have found a diamond in your sofa."

It proved to be a set from her engagement ring, which she had lost 12 years ago.

Joint Engineering Department?

An engineering department to do work for the city of Greenville and its utilities organization should be thoroughly investigated by members of both the City Council and the Utilities Commission.

The city of Greenville has long needed an engineering department to do the engineering work on the many street, drainage, planning and other projects which are a part of the every-day activities of operating a municipality. Naturally it is a necessity for a utilities operation such as that owned by the city of Greenville to have an engineering department. And Greenville Utilities does have an engineering staff.

It seems to us a joint engineering department for the city and the utilities would prove not only practical but mutually beneficial for the two segments of Greenville's municipal operations. Would it not be practical for engineering on water and sewer lines, power lines and other items peculiar to the utilities operations to be done in the same engineering department with similar work on streets, drainage and other projects peculiar to the city's operation? Engineering for utilities projects and engineering for city projects are closely tied together. There is a real need for close coordination between the two. In addition to other advantages, this coordination could be greatly improved if all the city's engineering, both for utilities and for public works projects, were handled out of the same office or department.

Although the majority of the members of the City Council apparently have turned thumbs down on the establishment of a city engineer's office this year within the framework of the municipal operation, the need for such service demands efforts be made to bring about a joint engineering department.

The Reflector feels that the City Council and the Utilities Commission could work out a satisfactory arrangement on a joint engineering department which would be beneficial to the utilities operations, city operations, and likewise to the citizens of the city.

Wise Judgment In Utilities Appointment

In the appointment of Sam O. Worthington to his old post on the State Utilities Commission, we feel Governor Hodges used wise judgment.

While on the commission, prior to resigning to return to the legislature, Worthington served the people of the state well in that his actions and decisions revealed a fairness to the corporations and at the same time a determination to protect the rights of the citizens of the state.

In our opinion Sam Worthington made a good commissioner then, and we are confident he will continue to serve to state well as a member of the Utilities Commission.

CALL FOR MORE YOUNG REBELS
The death of Albert Einstein caused the world to ponder the immense resources of the human intellect. Here was a man who before he was thirty decided that he would go back and check up on certain principles in physics which had been accepted generations before and assumed by everyone to be correct. He found that some of these principles were not correct, and by so doing awoke the world to the possibility of things completely and absolutely new. His theory of relativity and his equation concerning mass and energy produced not a new era but a new age.

All of this arose from the fact that a young man dared to question the contemporary pattern of thought. It may sound absurd to say that the trouble with youth today is that it is lacking in a spirit of rebellion. Youth today considers itself utterly rebellious and often appears to be so, but the flouting of restraint and the casting off of parental authority is usually willfulness, not rebellion. A rebel is a person who insists, in the face of prevailing ignorance and evil, that right must be done and truth must be followed. Jesus was a rebel because he insisted on returning the truth which his contemporaries had rejected. Galileo was a rebel, and so was Christopher Columbus, and so were the Pilgrim Fathers.

The world cries out for more rebels—which means today people who will challenge a lot of the empty-headed, pseudo-psychological, collectivistic nonsense that has the nerve to march along under the banner of progress.

Old Slogans Are Back Again

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—"Happy days are here again!"—the Roosevelt campaign song in 1936, when F.D.R. carried every state except Maine and Vermont. "Don't let 'em take it away!"—the Truman ballad in 1948, when he achieved his upset victory over Tom Dewey. "We approach the era when every American can have two chickens in every pot, two cars in every garage!"—the Republican slogan in 1928, when Hoover swamped Al Smith. "Vote for the full dinner pail!"—the Hanna-McKinley battle cry in 1900 when a sweeping Republican triumph introduced the Roosevelt clan into national politics. ADMINISTRATIONS' MAIN TASK—Politicians generally agree that these will be the hit political slogans in next year's Presidential contest, but with the Republicans outshouting the Democratic choristers. The Administration's principal task is to hold the economic line firm through November, 1956, in the conviction that current prosperity, or the semblance thereof, will assure a return to power.

GOP strategists' only concern is that a recession, even a mild disorder, might set in before the polling booths open 16 months hence. They are defending a maintaining their present position with every resource at the command of a Party in control of money and credit, private and public. From this standpoint, Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, not Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, is the most influential politician in the land. It is for this reason that Administration spokesmen denounce Senator J. William Fulbright's investigation of the stock market. The same consideration led them to help kill Representative Wright Patman's proposed inquiry into the Federal Reserve's open market operations.

"EISENHOWER PROSPERITY" DEFIES ATTACK—The Democrats obviously cannot attack their opponents' theme of "Eisenhower prosperity." Neither the Fulbright nor the Patman sallies had the full

Medical Study Is No Cause For Alarm

The fact that the Grifton area has been singled out by Duke scientists for a study in an attempt to determine how the North American Blastomycosis spreads certainly is no cause for alarm among the Grifton residents or other Pitt citizens.

Indeed, it should be gratifying to the people of the Grifton area and other parts of the county to know that the area where the rare disease appeared several months ago will be under the watchful eye of medical scientists for a while.

Between October 1953 and March 1954 11 cases of the disease appeared in a four mile radius of Grifton. It was considered an epidemic because only 14 cases of the disease had been reported in Pitt and seven nearby counties during the past 16 years.

The purpose of the study in the Grifton area, as we understand it, is to keep a watchful eye to see if new cases appear during the corresponding period late this year and early in 1956. If more cases do appear, the medical scientists hope to be able to gather information which may enable them to determine how the disease spreads. At the same time they will employ the latest methods available in combating the disease.

The fact that the area will be under close medical surveillance for possible recurrence of the disease should be comforting rather than alarming to the people of Grifton and Pitt County.

RIGHTS OF WAY — The cost of acquisition of rights of way for public roads has become a major item in the total cost. Broad express ways through towns and cities call for purchase and removal of high priced buildings. Four-lane super-dupers on the interstate system take up many acres of farm lands. Often the value placed upon property by its owners is excessive, and in many cases benefits more than offset the loss of land. In other cases the value is sentimental or indirect, and the highway folks appear ruthless in applying engineering rules to the exclusion of other factors.

Wide publicity has been given to the necessity (?) of destroying fine trees and encroaching upon ancient well-kept yards to widen Providence Road in Charlotte, and to destruction of trees and parks for the Dawson street extension in Raleigh. Less publicized to date, but likely to get headlines later is the hassle with Hugh Morton, owner of Grandfather Mountain, about proposed change in the established course of the Blue Ridge Parkway.

The only uncompleted section of the Parkway between the Virginia line and Asheville is around Blowing Rock—about five miles west of Deep Gap and some 15 miles from Blowing Rock, through the Cone and Price estates, to Beacon Heights at the foot of Grandfather Mountain. Back in 1939 the State bought from the Linville Company 1,000 feet wide right of way along the route of the old Yonahlossee Trail, presently US-221, for the Parkway. Assuming the Parkway would follow that route, Hugh Morton, who succeeded to ownership of

Grandfather Mountain and its environs, spent many thousands of dollars developing and promoting its attractions. Meantime the Park Service had acquired the Moses Cone and Julian Price estates near Blowing Rock and integrated them into the Blue Ridge Parkway administration. PROBLEM—Addition of these properties convinced park service administrators and N.C. Right of way officials that the Parkway route should be changed. The desired new route will follow the same as those existing hundreds of times in locating new roads through farms and towns. Because of the national publicity which has been given to the Blue Ridge Parkway and to Grandfather Mountain this particular instance assumes unique importance. If very probably will take high level court action to settle the controversy. SOUTHERN — Statistics sometimes lead to unexpected conclusions. Such as that a large part of the tourist business of the North Carolina mountains comes from the deep South—Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina. A good deal comes from central and eastern North Carolina, and a lot from the Ohio Valley and Midwest. The backlog is from the southeast, and with good reason. North Carolina's beaches are as good as, but no better than, those up and down the Atlantic coast, and man-made facilities unfortunately are not comparable to those in other States from Maine to Florida. In many instances travel distances are about the same. Our mountains, also with inadequate facilities, must compete with the Adirondacks and West Virginia for patronage from the Middle Atlantic States. We share with Tennessee the advantages of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, and Tennessee beats us in accommodations offered. But—our mountains get first

Good Meal Ready For Public

Be sure to treat yourself to a good supper tomorrow night at Guy Smith Stadium. For $1 you'll get a fried chicken supper, and at the same time help pay off the $1,600 deficit of the Pony League. Improvements have been made in the park and debts incurred must be paid. You don't have to wait for the food. All you have to do is go by and pick up the box if you like.

From Earl Wilson: Do you know you were born on a mountain top in Tennessee? If you don't, please tell me where you are so I can go there.

Saturday night debate: Does it hurt or help a businessman to let his profits be known by sporting an expensive automobile? There will be some who say, "That man doesn't need my business. Just look at him! Driving around in an expensive car, living in a big home. Why, I'm going to trade with someone who needs it."

Then there will be others who say, "Boy, that's where I want to do business. That man must be giving people good service. He's making money, so other people must be trading with him. If so many people find his business dealings satisfactory, I probably would too."

For the sake of the argument, let's insert an important point. Let's assume that the businessman in question has taken care of all his obligations before putting four or five thousand in an automobile. Let's also assume that the car is paid for.

How much of a factor is jealousy? I'd say that it would affect less than five per cent of the people.

The person on the other end of the argument Saturday night contends that it doesn't make any difference what kind of car the man drives. If he's a successful businessman, giving good service, he's going to get the business no matter what kind of car he drives.

My contention is that it depends on the man. If he gets the high hat or gives any slight impression that he's big time with his money it's going to hurt him.

Most important, he should have the means before he splurges. If he's close to being able, but not quite, it's going to hurt him. If he owes past-due bills he's really going to be on the spot.

It's an interesting debate. Try it yourself. And thank you. JACK EDWARDS

VICIOUS CIRCLE? (New Bern Sun-Journal)
The North Carolina Public School Bulletin finds a strong suggestion of the existence of a vicious circle in facts relative to the state's per capita income, school support, a lack of schooling, the state's per capita retail sales and the relation of school children to wage-earning adults. Says the School Bulletin:

North Carolina according to the 1952 per capita income, ranked forty-fifth among the states, the amount being $1,049. Only Alabama, Arkansas and Mississippi have a lower average.

North Carolina during 1950-51 spent $143 per pupil in average daily attendance for public education from state and local sources. In this respect this state ranked forty-first among the forty-eight states. North Carolina's population 25 years and older with less than five years in school in 1950 was 21.1 per cent. This state ranked forty-third in this respect.

North Carolina's per capita retail sales in 1953 was $717, ranking forty-fifth in this respect with only Alabama, South Carolina and Mississippi having lower per capita retail sales.

North Carolina had in 1950 some 870 school-age children for 1,000 wage-earning adults. The state ranked forty-fourth in this category.

These are all low ranks, and no doubt the low rank in one factor materially affects or helps determine the low rank in other factors. In order to raise these ranks with respect to education, there are two things we must do: First, raise the per capita income. Second, increase the number of wage-earning adults or decrease the number of school-age children. By making these two changes, there would be more money to spend and thus the retail sales would be increased.

An increase in retail sales would give more money to spend for education, and so on, thus reversing the vicious circle we seem to be in. The $94 question, however, is to get these affecting factors—larger income and increased sales—operating. Ostensibly, one way is to improve our standing in public education, for it is a well-known fact that an educated citizen-ship earns and spends more money.

Grandfather Mountain and its environs, spent many thousands of dollars developing and promoting its attractions. Meantime the Park Service had acquired the Moses Cone and Julian Price estates near Blowing Rock and integrated them into the Blue Ridge Parkway administration.

PROBLEM—Addition of these properties convinced park service administrators and N.C. Right of way officials that the Parkway route should be changed. ## Business Today

Wrong Word Hurts

By ELMER ROESSNER
A wrong word, even a little one, uttered by a salesman can lose the order, according to Charles L. Lapp, professor of marketing Washington University. Out of a long study of semantics in selling, Dr. Lapp offers these suggestions:

Avoid profanity and other objectionable words. While few buyers are prudish, a salesman can never be certain that the man he is talking to won't be offended. Use correct grammar. While no buyer will worry about a split infinitive, a salesman will never lose a sale by speaking correctly.

Avoid "ah's," "er's," and little grunts, which are often merely a bad habit, and avoid overuse of such expressions as "Say!" "Listen!" "See!" "You bet!" and other overworked exclamations.

Use specific adjectives. "Swell," "the finest," "terrific," "greatest" and similar words are overworked but words that detail advantages, such as "custom-made," "precut," and "self-adjusting" work hard for the salesman.

Select a number of action phrases, such as "Feel it!" "Watch this move!" and "See the texture!" to hold the buyer's interest. But don't overwork them.

Remember words used by a buyer even if you have to jot them down to recall. "Make reference to his words and thoughts on some later call," Dr. Lapp advises. "Some buyers will be elated that you placed enough importance on his viewpoint to recall his words."

Don't always believe the words of the buyer. When he says "No," he may be really asking for more information; when he says "Yes," he simply may be using the word as a brushoff, his intention being to cancel later. When a salesman recognizes these variances, he should keep on selling.

Discard the cliches of pressure selling, such as "I am certainly glad you brought that up." "A person as intelligent as you will no doubt recognize," and the like.

Dr. Lapp adds that a salesman who says "I just wanted to—" belittles his interview, and one who says "I'm going to tell you the truth," casts aspersions on his previous statements and on all salesmanship.

RETAILERS TO TAKE DIP OUT OF SUMMER
The merchants of America are out to level off summer slumps. The Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association reports that more than 80 per cent of the retailers surveyed in 41 representative markets expect to sell from 5 to 10 per cent more goods by maintaining their advertising pressure this summer. Another 15 per cent said they expect to equal last summer's marks.

A majority of the merchants surveyed said they will retain a full markup longer into summer months this year; 61 per cent reported they will stock more heavily and maintain stocks longer, and 71 per cent said they would sustain promotions longer.

MEAT MARKET PROFITS DOWN OVER FIVE YEARS
The typical retail meat marketer realizes a gross margin of 20.7 per cent on annual net sales of $93,600, according to a new Dun & Bradstreet survey. In 1949, a comparable survey showed butchers were averaging 17.7 per cent on annual sales of $98,700.

In that time, net profit before taxes declined from 1.8 per cent to 1.4 per cent, before Federal and state taxes.

WASHINGTON LEADS IN WINE PURCHASES
The District of Columbia, which usually leads the nation in the per capita sale of liquor, has another bibulous distinction. In 1954 it led all other areas in the sale of wine for the seventh consecutive year. There were 2,387 gallons of wine sold for each man, woman and child in 1954, according to the Wine Institute. California was second with 1,989 gallons.

There is, of course, a large amount of entertaining always going on in Washington. But the natives are more sober than the statistics indicate. Taxes on alcoholic beverages are low in the capital, making the prices low. Six-year-old bonded bourbon can be purchased for as little as $2.89 a fifth. So people come from miles round to stock up.

PRESENTATION SHOWS HOW TO ROUT OUT SLUMS
A 20-minute 35 mm film-slide presentation showing how local governments can tackle the problem of slum clearance and neighborhood improvement has been prepared by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, 1737 K St., N.W., Washington, D.C. It is available on a loan or purchase basis to realtors and local real estate boards.

How little we know, after these centuries, and they have been many suffering centuries.

No real scientist today can tell even what sleep is. Or how, although he knows the area to enter and push with a small courage into a roaring dark.

Who are you? Where can you go? What can you learn? What can you really do for people? What can the human race become?

More than it is. For all that we know, we remain as a folk a child, curious, but a-tiptoe, loving the light behind us, and afraid of carrying a candle forward into the blackness ahead.

Understanding Is Often Hard

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK, (AP)—The poor man's advertiser:
My child, my child!
This world lies before you, the great unknown.

So many boundaries unexplored. The mighty Greeks, and they did many things, said "Know thyself."

The Romans, boisterous prisoners of the Greek mind, after robust centuries said the same thing.

The torch of inquiry, handed down by every wandering tribe who held the sword of conquest since then, remains both a question and a commandment.

We work by the back door. We try to understand nature while refusing to try to admit even that this is only a window glimpse into ourselves.

But the magnificent power that can now be massed and take a magnificent look at the human race—the poor things we are after all these centuries, the great things that by a power above us had endowed us with the ability to do—must not merely bleed into death.

Here is our time. Here are our weapons.

The weapons by the grace of God—if that is the word—have always lain like dust in the world. The main tool is the mind of man, if man is destined to survive on this crowded earth and raise the hard victory of the mind against the pull of easy ignorance.

How little we know, after these centuries, and they have been many suffering centuries.

No real scientist today can tell even what sleep is. Or how, although he knows the area to enter and push with a small courage into a roaring dark.

Low-Cut Gowns 'Shake Him Up'

BURLEY, England (AP)—The Rev. Leslie Aitken complained today that he sees far too much of some of the girls who get married in his church.

The trouble, the 37-year-old Anglican pastor explained in a letter to his parishioners, is the low cut of many bridal gowns. Many of them are backless and some are practically frontless too.

"Really," the clergyman wrote, "it's a miracle how they stay up. To the congregation behind it must look as though some brides have nothing on above the waist. During the ceremony the girls stand two steps below me . . . It's all terribly embarrassing."

The Rev. Mr. Aitken suggested that if a bride must wear a revealing dress, she should cover up with a shawl for the ceremony. The pastor himself has been married for 17 years.

Americans Who Went To China May Still Stay

SEOUL (AP)—Three American soldiers who refused repatriation after the Korean War but now want to go home will be given one last chance to turn back if they appear at Panmunjom.

"They will be informed they will be subject to the laws of the United States and responsible for any acts they might have committed," a U.S. Embassy spokesman said today.

He made the statement at a press briefing on procedure to be followed if the trio are released in Korea.

They are Lewis W. Riggs, Jacksonville, Tex.; Otho G. Bell, Olympia, Wash.; and William A. Cowart, Dalton, Ga.

Red China's Peiping radio has stated arrangements are being made for their return.

The spokesman said if the five are freed in Korea it most likely will take place at a meeting of the Military Armistice Commission.

Willard O. Brown, first secretary of the embassy here, would fly to the commission's joint security area, inform them of their rights, have them examined by a doctor if necessary and then fly them back to Seoul if they still want to come, the spokesman said.

Here, once final identification has been made, they would be offered passports to the United States and help in getting there.

"They are civilians (all three have been dishonorably discharged), they are free as the air and can see anyone they desire," the spokesman said.

"There will be no red carpet for these fellows. We are not prejudging them, but . . ."

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

The Methodist Church in the U. S. A., the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Lutherans of Sweden, and other denominations that annually debate the question of whether or not to "fully ordain" women to the Christian ministry, are having attention called to what has happened in the Church of Denmark (Lutheran) which has ordained women for the past 40 years. Since 1916, when the "first female graduate" of a Danish theological school became a candidate for ministerial service, that status has been acquired by only 24 women; and only three are active in the Church's ministry today. Only one of the three is now actually serving in a parish. One serves as prison chaplain, and the other is general spiritual community adviser on the island of Falster. Six of the other ordained women are now wives of parish pastors, one serves as professor of theology, one as religion teacher in a secondary school, six are active in other fields of school teaching, two serve as YWCA secretaries, one is head nurse in a mental hospital, one directs a Deaconess home, one has become a farmer, one a well-known free-lance writer, and one is the Minister of Church Affairs of Denmark. "The statistics does not indicate any overly great interest for female ministers," says a Church of Denmark spokesman.

India's Parliament has adopted legislation introducing modern concepts of marriage and divorce into ancient Hindu society. Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told the Parliament that the legislation represented the Government's "first good attempt at breaking the rigidity that had crept into social life among Hindus." The bill provides for registration of Hindu marriages, permits divorce, recognizes intercaste marriages and prohibits bigamy.

Says the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church: "One in five Americans moved in 1952-53. Half of all persons who moved were under 25.1 years of age. In new growing industrial cities, such as Corpus Christi, Tex., over one-half of the population is made up of women. In a sampling study 31 out of 42 employed women moving to new communities sought out the church themselves." The Society urged "the older residents" to welcome the new into church and community.

MacArthur Pitches Perfect Game

No Batters Get To First Off To First Off Lion LL Hurler

Action In CPL Slowed By Rain

Allan MacArthur, speedy young righthander for the Little League Jays, set down the Jays without a hit yesterday afternoon and did not allow a single runner to get on base in pitching a perfect game.

MacArthur went through the Jays line-up in one-two-three order for the full six innings without anyone reaching first base safely. His teammates supported him perfectly as he struck out five and walked none.

MacArthur's fancy pitching gave his Lions teammates a 5-0 win over the Jays. The perfect game was the first one ever pitched in Greenville Little League play. There have been several no-hitters pitched in the city leagues before, but this was the first perfect game.

Billy Stocks of the Jays pitched a creditable five hit, but five errors by his teammates kept him from getting out of trouble. Stocks walked three batters and struck out three.

The Lions scored two runs in the third inning to wrap the game up behind the perfect slants of MacArthur. Leo Starling singled and scored on three passed balls. MacArthur walked, went to second on a passed ball, and scored on Brock's single. Three more runs in the fourth inning sewed up the game. The first two runs were all that MacArthur needed on yesterday's performance.

MacArthur did not overpower the batters with a blazing fast ball. He kept the pitches mixed up well. He struck out only five, but had the Jays popping up or hitting into the ground. Not a single ball was hit out of the infield. Nine batters grounded out to the infielders, four popped up to the infielders, and five batters struck out.

Leo Starling had two hits in three trips to the plate to lead the hitting for the game.

Also on the Softball diamond will be a game between the Carolina Dairy and the all-star team of the best players in the league. The Dairy won the first half of play in the Softball League and will play an aggregate team of the other five teams.

Track Stars Open Olympic Tryouts

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Five world record holders, eight Olympic champions and other stars begin competition today in the National AAU track and field championships—an event rated as the "semi-finals" for selection of the 1956 U. S. Olympic team.

Collegiate stars and even high school seniors will challenge veteran AAUers for titles that will virtually assure each winner a trip to the Olympics in Australia next year.

There are 321 athletes competing in the two-day event, with nine finals today and 12 tomorrow. Featuring today's program will be finals in the 100-yard dash, mile run, high jump and shot put.

when loose play a field cost one run and once in the fourth when Millard Webb leveled a long home run over the rightfield wall.

The Bears managed singleton runs in the first, sixth and seventh frames to clinch the win and push New Bern further out in front of the pack.

Fred Pittman had two hits for Farmville and Gene Morad had two for New Bern. Vince Jones was the losing pitcher and Finney the winner.

Rocky Mount Winner

Farmville lost another game on Friday night to Rocky Mount by a 5 to 4 count. Norman Gay and Ralph Adams collaborated to pitch the Leafs to victory, allowing seven scattered hits.

Rocky Mount collected nine bingles off the slants of Fred Pittman. Cliff Rose and Al Densen had two of these respectively. Barry Jones and Pete Stuart had two hits each for the losers.

Falkland received its 16th setback against seven wins at the hands of Williamston, who has done little better with a 10-15 record. Van Sexton threw the win for the Braves and Ron Ritchie was the loser.

Other Greenville games this week will be in New Bern Saturday night and the Bears here Sunday afternoon.

Harry Agganis Dies In Boston Hospital

BOSTON (AP)—The sports world was shocked and saddened today by the unexpected death of Harry Agganis, the "Golden Greek" who passed up tempting pro football offers for a baseball career with the Boston Red Sox.

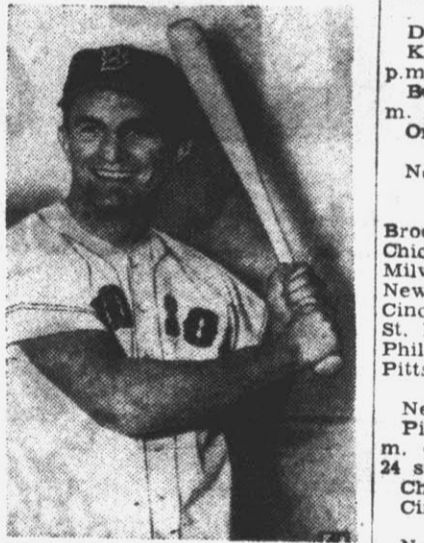

The brilliant athletic career of the 25-year-old Red Sox first baseman and former Boston University football great was closed abruptly yesterday as he succumbed to a lung ailment at Sancta Maria Hospital in nearby Cambridge.

All of us in the American League office are sad and shocked by Harry's passing," Assistant President Will Harridge said. "Personally, I spent some time with him in Sarasota (Fla.) this spring and he impressed me as a fine young man, possessing great ability and one who was a credit to the game on and off the field."

Agganis' coach at Boston University, Buff Donelli, said Harry would have been "a success in any field" and "he unquestionably was the greatest player I've ever coached in both college and professional football."

The "Golden Greek," so-called for his glittering performances in baseball, football and basketball while a student, was hospitalized for 10 days in May, but returned to the lineup and played in two games at Chicago June 1 and 2. He was stricken again while in Kansas City June 5 and flew home to enter the hospital.

Doctors said in a statement they believed his death was due to "a massive pulmonary embolism." A loose definition would be death caused by a clot or obstruction in the flow of blood in the lung.

Tommy Henderson, 12 year old Greenville boy, won an outdoor motor for his second place finish in the Eastern Carolina Soap Box Derby at Kinston. Here Henderson is presented with his prize by Mr. T. H. West of Kinston.

Durocher Won't Admit It But Giants Are Through

STANDINGS

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Giants had just won a pregame homer-hitting contest from the Yankees when a Giant player muttered half under his breath, "That's about the only thing this club can win."

It is an opinion shared by many Giants who, individually, are trying as hard as ever but collectively have given up and conceded the 1955 flag to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The opinion was confirmed when the Yankees went on to win the exhibition game with the Giants 4-1.

The Giants may not be dead but they are through. The players know it and so does Manger Leo Durocher. The worst part of it is, the players have become resigned to it. They can't wait for the season to come to a merciful end.

Durocher stubbornly refused to admit it before last night's game. For the record, he pointed out that the season had not even reached the halfway mark but he shook his head sadly when asked whether the team was capable of pulling off another miracle such as that of 1951.

"The club is at its lowest ebb right now," he said. "Everything is going wrong for us. Nothing we do turns out right. When the players don't foul it up, I do."

"Right now I'd have to say we're as bad as in our worst days in 1953 (when the Giants finished in the second division). Nobody is hitting. Our defense is terrible and our pitching, except for Sal

Kinston and Tarboro kept hold of their first place lead in the Tobacco Belt League this weekend as the two continue to run away from the other teams. Third place Pinetops held on to its pace with double wins also.

Pinetops turned back Grimesland twice with Millford Walters and Fred Tolson pitching the two wins. Walters was the leading hitter Saturday with 3 for 4. Tolson led Sunday's hitting with another 3 for 4. Pete Tripp had 3 for 4 for Grimesland and played a brilliant game in the field.

Tarboro gained two wins behind the snappy pitching of Ray Bottoms and Nick Johnson. Bottoms gave up seven hits Saturday and Johnson pitched a six-hitter in Sunday's game. Jack Russell was the leading hitter in both games for Tarboro, getting three for four, including a home run Saturday, and two for four Sunday. Bobby Conroy and Dave Dickinson led Belvoir with two hits each.

Kinston and Falkland had only one game, with the Eagles winning that in the eleventh inning by 9-6. Johnny Rice came on to relieve Ronald Hardee in the eighth inning and pitched hitless ball for the rest of the distance. George McCollough pitched a snappy game for Falkland, giving up five hits in the eleven innings. Johnny Smith had two for four for Kinston and Frank Corbett had three for six for Falkland.

EAST CAROLINA COLLEGE PIRATES CLUB ACTIVATED

In the winter of 1952 a group of sports minded businessmen of Greenville met with a number of the East Carolina College faculty and administration members and set up machinery for the formation and incorporation, under North Carolina state law, of the East Carolina College Pirates Club.

This endeavor was a milestone in East Carolina athletics. From it has developed a program that stands alongside of the best athletic alumnae groups of a college its size in the state.

Since its beginning three years ago, membership in the Club has mounted above the one thousand mark. Much of the credit for the Club's growth can be attributed to N. M. Jorgenson, physical education director, and Jack Boone, head football coach and physical education faculty member. Through their tireless efforts and the outstanding services of local citizens, East Carolina is finally getting sound support for its athletics.

When the Club was first organized, E. E. Rawl, a staunch supporter of the athletic program, was elected president with Herbert Waldrop, treasurer and James Butler, of the College, secretary. In addition, a Board of Directors was appointed to give support to the movement.

Where most colleges were charging a flat ten or fifteen dollar membership fee and then giving the member the opportunity to purchase reserved seats at home games, East Carolina's booster club went out of its way to provide real bargains.

PIRATES CLUB HERE TREATS YOU RIGHT

The philosophy of the local club is that a customer should be given something for his money; that a membership fee should be geared to suit the income of the average person. Thus, the Pirates Club gives, without further charge, season tickets to all home football games.

Now is the time when new Pirate Club memberships are available to the public. Membership is open to everyone, both alumnae and non-alumnae; male and female. When you become a member of this organization, whose purpose is to induce patronage and support—moral and financial—to the athletic program of the College, you can feel you've got a part in the rapid growth of one of the finest education-athletic setups in North Carolina.

For the $12.50-a-year membership fee, you get the following: (1) a reserved season football ticket to all home games; (2) a membership card; (3) a display plaque; (4) a decal or sticker; (5) priority in the purchase of seats for basketball games.

Dr. Jorgenson and Coach Boone are contacting individuals as fast as they can, but all persons can't be reached personally. They're counting on you obtaining memberships from the Athletic Office or the Alumnae Office at the College.

With one of the best prospective football seasons coming up this fall, local supporters won't want to miss out on being a part of the Purple and Gold. Here's as good a way as any to be insured of a good seat at all the home games and get behind the athletic program with a little something extra.

SPORTS SHOTS FROM HERE AND THERE

The Baltimore Orioles have had the largest turnover of players this year. Of the 40 on their roster of Dec. 1, 1954, only 14 players are with the team now. There are 16 bonus players in the American League with five of them on Detroit's young team. Cleveland has no bonus players.

Freddie Reese of the Dodgers, Richie Ashburn of the Phillies and Del Grandall of the Braves are the only National Leaguers wearing No. 1 on their uniforms.

After sitting on the bench for two years, bonus pitcher Tom Quatters has been optioned by the Phillies to Reidsville in the Class B Carolina League. . . . When Archie Moore flattened Bob Olsen at Madison Square Garden the public address system went on the blink. Announcer Johnny Addie sang "The Star Spangled Banner" to bridge the lapse. . . . Dates for the 1956 Olympic games in Melbourne are Nov. 22 through Dec. 8.

Add John Easton to the list of baseball players who went from the campus to the majors. The 1955 Princeton captain went to the Phillies this spring after graduation. . . . The Monmouth Oaks, set for Monmouth Park on Saturday, Aug. 6, will have an added value of $50,000. It's for 3-year-old fillies at one mile and an eighth.

Olds Whip Fords In PONY League

A big four run fourth inning saved the day for the 88 Oldsmobiles last night in their game with the Fords, as they moved into second place in the PONY League play with a 7-6 win.

Three Olds pitchers were brought into the battle before they could ever stop the flow of Ford runs. In all the Fords got seven hits against four for the Olds, but eight Ford errors hurt them tremendously.

Ronnie Finch went all the way on the mound for the Fords and pitched creditable ball, excepting his teammates bungle in the field. All of the runs in the fourth inning by the Olds were unearned. Four runs scored on two hits and three errors. In the sixth inning two consecutive errors gave the Olds their seventh and deciding run.

No Olds player was able to touch Finch for more than one hit. Merrill Bynum got two singles in two official times at bat to lead the hitting for both teams.

Tonight at 7:45 the Redmen play the National Guard in a regularly scheduled PONY League game.

Score by innings:

Olds	110	401	0-7	4	2
Fords	022	110	0-6	7	8

Bryan, Edwards, Riggs, and Riggs; Edwards; Finch and Bynum.

Maglie, is bad. What mystifies me the most, however, is our total futility at the plate. The only guys who are doing any hitting at all are Whitey Lockman and Don Mueller. If it weren't for them, I'd be damned if we'd made more than three hits a game."

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

A light was burning in the Dawson cabin, and a low buzz of voices drifted out through the open window. Rob turned sharply on the girl. "Who else is there?"

"Pap, I reckon."

Old Corby wasn't likely to give him any trouble, but Rob's hand reached for the gun on his hip. He wasn't taking half a chance on Lita's word. "You go in first."

He stayed close behind her in the darkness as she pushed open the door.

"Lita!" Corby broke into an shrill babble of words as he caught sight of his daughter. "What kind o' tricks you up to now? What's Wayne goin' to say?"

His voice dripped off into silence as Rob, Colt in hand, stepped into the light.

The injured man's hand shot out from under the blankets. Rob's gun-muzzle swung to cover him. "Hold it!" The menace of death was in his low voice and Calder's hand dropped.

He strode across the room and scooped up the girl, lay on a chair at the head of the bed. Corby crouched in his seat like a heap of old clothes.

"I suppose you're Mallory," Calder spoke with a poker-faced coolness. "I take it Lita's been spinning you a yarn. You look like a man with too much sense to listen to the ravings of a jealous woman."

Rob sized the man up swiftly. A cool customer—on the surface, anyway—but there was no real toughness in those thin, chiseled features.

"I've seen you before," Rob spoke deliberately. "—in the jail last night. For man your stripes, you keep odd company."

"I was in the saloon," the twisted mouth took on a deprecating smile. "I'd had a long ride—was thirsty. Guess I wet my whistle a little too thoroughly. Liquor can make a sensible man do mighty foolish things, especially when he's in the company of fools. I'm sorry for it—I've got good reason to be."

He indicated his bandaged shoulder. "Rusty's a better shot than I took him for."

The betraying venom in the last words settled any doubts Rob might have had. He leaned closer. "Even after he killed a man in Dodge City?"

He suggested softly. "Only he didn't, did he? You did—"

"You're crazy!" Calder's laugh was convincing, but he couldn't conceal the flicker of fear in his eyes.

"Not half as crazy as you and your friend Cameron, when you tried to run your schemes on me. A cheap crook and a tin-horn gambler," he laughed harshly, "thinking they could smash Rob Mallory!"

Suddenly his voice was the lash that had cowed the mob. "Talk, feller! Your luck's run out. You might as well make it easier for yourself."

"You can't bluff me the way you did those nesters. You haven't got a thing on me except the word of a cheap little tramp no jury would believe!"

There was almost as much hate as fear in the green eyes as they slid past Rob to rest for an instant on Lita. "You'll need more than talk, Mallory!"

"I guess I will," Rob's face was an emotionless mask covering his bitter distaste for the next move. Whatever he'd done, Calder was a wounded man weaponless and helpless—but his sealed lips held the words that would free Kerry of a murder charge.

Steeling himself, Rob clubbed the gun in his hand. Calder saw what was coming, and tried to lunge, but the barrel raked his cheek, laying it open from eye to chin. A cry like a trapped animal's filled the cabin.

"Better talk tin-horn," Rob grated. "If you don't want the left side of your face looking as bad as the other one." He raised the Colt again. Calder's hands went up to shield his face, and his voice came from behind them in sobbing gasps.

"All right—I'll talk—don't hit me again, Mallory!—I'll talk!"

The gambler was broken completely. The words poured out of him, filling in details Lita had left out or not known. It was a wild, incoherent story as he told it, but Rob's brain put it together into a shape that made a grim sense.

"All right," he said, when he saw there was nothing more to be learned. "You're coming to Broken Spur with me. Tomorrow we'll go to town and talk to Lacey Parran you too," he added his look including Lita and Corby.

He got the injured man up on his horse, watched Corby mount his old nag, and then, mouth tight, lifted Lita onto his own saddle and swung up behind her. They rode to Broken Spur in bleak silence.

Rob's first notion had been to take his witnesses to the sheriff, see that they told their stories, and let Lacey do the rest, but leaving things to others had never been his way. He had a fever on him to see this matter settled. Before he crossed his own threshold, he'd made up his mind to bring in Wayne Cameron himself.

First, though, with a grim sort of pity he washed the gash on Calder's cheek, gave him a drink of whisky and made him comfortable on the couch.

"I'm riding out again," he told Lita briefly. "I'll be back in a couple of hours. You'll get your thousand when we've seen Parran—not sooner. That way I'll be sure you'll stay around."

She moved up to him, laid both hands on his arm. "I'd stay any way, if you wanted me to—Rob."

Her uplifted eyes, her mouth, every curve of her body spoke a fragrant invitation. Rob's deliberate gaze took the full measure of it before he put her aside.

"I've never been fussy about women's morals, Lita—but there's one or two things even I can't stomach."

When the door had closed behind Rob, Calder roused himself enough to lay his tongue on Lita in a savage cursing. She swung over to the couch and slapped the wounded man viciously across the mouth. "Shut up!"

His words didn't really bother her—she'd been called too many names. He was simply something on which to vent a little of the hell that was boiling up inside her.

If Mallory had sworn at her, struck her, knocked her down, it wouldn't have been half so insulting as the indifferent distaste with which he'd shaken her off. Even her anger at Cameron paled beside her need to drag Rob Mallory off his high-and-mighty perch, to hurt him in some way that would pay him back with interest.

"Sis!" she looked up impatiently at the sound of Corby's querulous whine. "Let's us git outa here."

"Don't be a fool!" she snapped. "You heard what he said. You think I'm gonna walk out on a thousand dollars?"

"An' you think I'm gonna stick aroun' 't' g'at my neck stretched?" her father demanded. "A thousand's a lotta money, but 'twouldn't buy much fer a dead man. You reckon if Wayne gits 'rested he won't tell who 'twas shot Joe Larrabee? You c'n stay 't' you wanta—me, I'm goin'."

"Suit yourself," Lita answered indifferently. "Say Sis, what you gonna do when you git all that money?"

"I d' know yet. I'll send you word somehow."

"Here," she said, "you'll need these."

"That's my gal," Corby wheezed. "Knew y' wouldn't ferget your ol' man. I'm kinda handy 't' have 'roun' sometimes, ain't I? Y' never fin' anybody else'll do anything 't' tell 'em to like me. Ain't that right, honey?"

"I reckon," she repeated dully. She snatched up a bottle of whiskey and a handful of matches from the table and handed them to the eager old man.

"Here," she said, "you'll need these."

Then walking to the door with him, she raised her face as if to kiss him. But she did not kiss him. Instead she whispered in his ear, whispered something that left

Corny white and shaken as he went out into the night.

Heavy Schedule Ahead For Jane Wyman In Movies, TV

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's lucky that Jane Wyman likes work, because she's going to be up to her pretty eyes in acting assignments for the next three years.

This week she was laboring on "Miracle in The Rain" with Van Johnson. She finishes July 12, then starts July 15 on a grueling TV schedule that will consume the rest of the year.

Jane recently announced a deal to take over the longtime TV favorite, Fireside Theater. The Tuesday at 9 spot will be called Jane Wyman's Fireside Theater and she'll preside as both hostess and star.

She explained the project in her Warner Brothers dressing room. "This is what I have been after for five years," she explained. "I in one of those dream deals. I'll do 20 of the shows myself and introduce 16 others. We made our first in the series last week. It stars Victor McLaglen and Wallace Ford, and I believe it's the first time they've been together since "The Informer."

Jane dipped her toe into TV a year ago, when she made a half-hour show which appeared on G.E. Theater this season. It was the type of story line that might have developed into a series—the story of a woman doctor. But she abandoned that idea in favor of an anthology type of series.

Jane said she wasn't just a passive member of the enterprise. It's her company and she has her finger in all phases of production. She ought to know how to juggle the movie making angles; in 18

Senate Approves Airport Money

WASHINGTON (AP)—Each of 10 states would stand to receive more than a million dollars annually in federal matching funds for airport construction under a bill which has been approved by the Senate.

Top ranking state would be Texas with $3,093,777 a year for four years. Others would be California $2,734,099, New York $2,606,233, Illinois $1,721,651, Michigan $1,654,594, Minnesota $1,072,185, Missouri $1,096,682, Montana $1,157,301, Ohio $1,511,101 and Pennsylvania $1,902,130.

The legislation must yet be approved by the House and signed by President Eisenhower. It would authorize contributions to states of $3 million annually for four years.

States would be authorized to make contracts for projects in a manner similar to that which they now do under the highway program even though federal funds might not be immediately available.

Outside the top 10 states, these annual allocations would be available:

Georgia, $942,419; North Carolina, $989,458; South Carolina, $542,723; Virginia, $803,025.

Taxes Causing Drop In Weeds

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP)—The sharp drop in cigarette consumption in the last two years is due to "ever increasing taxes" rather than fear of a link between smoking and cancer, representatives of the tobacco industry were told here yesterday.

F. M. Parkinson, of Richmond, Va., director of the Tobacco Council, said the council had "ample statistical data" to support such a claim. He called for a halt in the imposition of additional taxes by states or municipalities.

Federal taxes on cigarettes average about 8 cents per pack. Taxes imposed by states and municipalities vary widely.

Parkinson spoke at a convention of bright belt warehousemen.

Spiked Snowballs Increase Trade

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Business snowballing at the snowball stand Mrs. Paul Spurlock's children set up outside her house.

Several male customers were wading into the icy confection and several more were clamoring for service.

Mrs. Spurlock went to investigate. She found the children had disdained the conventional fruit syrups and were spiking the snowballs with two bottles of her best liqueurs.

The snowball business melted away after she rescued the remaining half bottle.

Tiny Deer Dies In Accident

JAMESVILLE N. C. (AP)—There won't be any legal battle over Rudolph, a fawn rescued from a forest fire, who captured the hearts in this Martin County community. The fawn broke its neck against a fence yesterday after being frightened by a power mower.

The legal battle shaping up before Rudolph's death was to be between Wilbur Garganus, a garage mechanic, who rescued the fawn, and the state.

The state said he'd have to turn the animal over because he had found it in closed season.

Residents raised $100 toward legal expenses. But the state, in the form of a game warden, got the fawn anyway.

The warden disposed of the body.

Bag Of Tomcats Opened By Moreell

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Ben Moreell has opened a bag of tom cats. He is a retired admiral and chairman of the Hoover Commission's task force on water resources and public power. His 26-man group did the ground-work investigation for the 12-man commission headed by former President Hoover. The task force, set up in November 1953, handed an 1,800-page report to the commission on March 31, 1955.

Now the commission, free to accept or reject the task force findings, will make a recommendation to the President and Congress on water resources and public power. The task force and commission recommendations are due out in about a week.

But in a speech at St. Louis June 15 Moreell, who is chairman of the board of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., indicated:

1. His group recommended to the commission that the federal government sell its power plants and get out of the business of selling electric power—to private utilities or, if that can't be done, states or local communities.

2. The Hoover Commission itself will not, in its recommendations to the President and Congress, go along with everything the task force proposed. But Moreell did not hint what exactly the commission will say.

He did, however, say its recommendations will be a compromise between political and economic considerations. This seemed an oblique suggestion his task force was motivated strictly by economics.

3. He will "do all in my power to mobilize public support" for those parts of the commission's recommendations with which he agrees.

This promise points to perhaps an even more intensive fight, lasting for years inside and outside Congress, on the old dispute over public versus private power or, to put it briefly: Should the government sell electric power in competition with private enterprise?

Moreell did not say outright in his St. Louis speech what his task force's recommendations would be. Nevertheless, here are some of the conclusions he said he arrived at:

1. No new federal power projects should be built. There is no present or prospective need for federal power activities.

2. It is unfair to say federal power plants are a yardstick for the electric rates private utilities should charge since the government plans pay no taxes and have been financed at lower interest rates.

Pulling together some pieces in Moreell's speech, this seems to be his philosophy: the nation's taxpayers in general shouldn't have to bear the costs for the benefits received by local consumers in some particular area of the country.

Besides, he said, the government has used water resources and power development for social and political ends. The government, he said, does not owe a responsibility to supply any community, section or region with its power requirements.

Back at his home his world was two small rooms. He was carried from one to the other. He was never taken outside because the sunshine seemed to make him turn blue.

The years passed. England emerged victorious from two world wars. Duntford knew nothing about the wars and countless other events that deeply touched the lives of the people around him.

Want Boy To Be Tried As Adult

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—Juvenile Court will be asked to waive jurisdiction over Phillip Caldwell, 16, so that he may be tried as an adult in the slaying of David Keckler, 71.

Police said the seventh-grade pupil admitted yesterday striking the man over the head with a pop bottle in a $3 robbery June 12. Keckler, a cripple, operated a fish bait stand.

WHEATLAND, Wyo. (AP)—Men can breathe a little easier now. Wheatland's compulsory work law has been repealed.

"It's A Miracle," Brother Says After Return Of Sight

READING, England (AP)—Charles Duntford—speechless, nearly blind and paralyzed for over 39 years—has begun to live the life of a normal human being again.

Now 50, Duntford caught the measles when he was 11. Unlike other boys, he didn't recover. One complication led to another. Finally the doctors said he was suffering from spinal paralysis.

Duntford's farm worker father took him from one hospital to another. He was given shock treatment. He slowly began to lose sight and speech. Doctors gave him up as a hopeless case.

Back at his home his world was two small rooms. He was carried from one to the other. He was never taken outside because the sunshine seemed to make him turn blue.

The years passed. England emerged victorious from two world wars. Duntford knew nothing about the wars and countless other events that deeply touched the lives of the people around him.

Five years ago his father died, and two years ago the mother who'd nursed him so long, also died. Then a doctor had an idea. Duntford was taken to a hospital.

For three years, eye doctors, speech therapists, physical therapists and specialists of many kinds concentrated their devotion and knowledge on Charles.

They massaged his eyes until they began to open, worked on his legs until they started to move and coaxed back his lost voice.

"It's a miracle," said his brother Frederick.

"For all those years," said his sister, Queenie, "Charles was unable to talk to us. Sometimes he would nod his head slightly. Now he's beginning to talk normally and walk about with sticks. It's just too good."

They said he remembers nothing of the past—not even his parents.

"But," said his brother, "he does not seem to be amazed by such things as trains and airplanes."

An employe of the hospital said "Charles is making splendid progress."

Ike Has Good, Bad Words For NAACP

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—President Eisenhower both lauded and censured yesterday before the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon told the organization that "the greatest progress since 1865" in the fulfillment of NAACP objectives has been made under the Eisenhower administration.

But Roy Wilkins NAACP executive secretary, deplored the President's criticism of an anti-segregation rider tacked on the armed forces reserve bill, and accused the Republican party of playing "footsie with Southern Democrats on civil rights."

Both spoke at the concluding session of the NAACP's six-day annual convention.

Nixon told the 700 delegates that "completion of the integration of the public school systems" should be among the most important objectives of the future.

Other objectives, he said, should be equal opportunity in employment; "better housing with the emphasis on homes rather than just housing; and removal of the 'last vestiges' of discriminatory practices in the District of Columbia.

In extending greetings from the President, Nixon said:

"During the past 2 1/2 years, we have seen thousands of new job opportunities in industry and government opened up for Negroes, the end of segregation in the District of Columbia, and the legal groundwork laid toward accomplishing what in the long run is the most important objective of all—the integration of the public school systems."

Discussing the military reserves bill, Wilkins said:

"On June 8 the President in his press conference lashed out at those who seek anti-segregation amendments to pending legislation including the military reserves bill."

"We who seek such amendments were accused of placing our special desires above the security of the nation. We want to say here plainly and unmistakably that it is not we who seek our own way at the expense of the country. It is the Southern Democratic bloc which openly threatened to kill the military reserves bill unless it contained their provision for segregation."

"The President has every right to demand the legislation he deems necessary for the welfare of the nation, but in all fairness the blame for the delay on that legislation should be placed at the doorstep of those who are guilty."

Kangaroo Runs, Officers Chase

BALTIMORE (AP)—A mother kangaroo broke loose from its handlers after a television appearance and went bounding about the city for a full hour last night.

Once she cleared the hood of an automobile with a beautiful leap. Everywhere she went traffic was disrupted. Children leaned goggle-eyed out of car windows. Women screamed.

Three attendants from the zoo, well past the age for sprinting, were in valiant pursuit. They were joined by six policemen.

From the television station through the busy Maiden Avenue traffic went the chase. It was a zig zag course through the Sunday traffic to Druid Park Drive, into a gully, down a street, through the woods, across the park, uphill, downhill, hop hop. . . .

After five miles of this, the mother kangaroo from down under was finally cornered in a piece of undeveloped real estate.

Arthur Moore of the Baltimore Zoo was kicked in the stomach and his colleague, Ben Geary was bitten on the arm.

Finally she was subdued. The kangaroo was appearing on Station WJAM's "This Is Your Zoo" show. She recently kicked her baby out of the pouch and abandoned it to the care of humans.

Firemen put out the blaze after being summoned by F. H. Costenbader, who heard the horn blowing.

ADRIAN Mich. (AP)—Arthur Kapnick's family suggested a shotgun remedy for the nuisance of a woodpecker that appeared each dawn and drummed away on a maple tree in the yard. Kapnick said "live and let live," but now he thinks maybe the family had the right idea.

Kapnick parked his new car under the maple. Down came a big dead limb, eight feet long and eight inches in diameter which did heavy damage to the car, and the spot where the limb broke was circled with hundreds of holes—the kind made by a woodpecker's beak.

One Thing Men Agree Upon!

It is in the nature of things for men to hold opinions and to argue and dispute.

Football, baseball, politics—guns, golf clubs, breeds in dogs . . . name a best, and you have an argument.

And so it goes through boats and trains—and horses and tennis and makes of planes.

But when the discussion turns to motor cars, you'll seldom get an argument if you name CADILLAC as the car of cars.

That's about as close as men come to universal agreement. And with good reason.

Who could look about him at the various styles in motor cars—and not give the nod to Cadillac for its great dignified silhouette?

Who could take the wheel of this dynamic performer—and not crown it the king of the highway?

Who could relax in its luxurious comfort for a mile or five hundred—and fail to recognize it as the finest riding car on the world's highways?

And who could look back over its illustrious past—or look about him at the people who own it and drive it today—and not acclaim it as the most distinguished car in the whole automotive world?

We feel assured that you, yourself, are aware that Cadillac is the car of cars. But that is but part of the wonderful Cadillac story.

There are economy—and value—and dependability. And there are all the other sound, practical reasons for owning a Cadillac.

Come in and see us. Thirty minutes at the wheel . . . and you'll understand why there's no argument about a Cadillac!

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—There was a general decline in the stock market today.

Losses of around a point were posted in early afternoon by some recent market leaders, but the majority of declines were not large. Brokers said they were encouraged by the light volume.

Mostly lower were the steels, motors, rubbers, mail orders, farm equipments, coppers and rails. The chemicals, radio - televisions and oils were mixed.

A period of consolidation had been forecast by market analysts following the light volume. A sustained advance inevitably runs into profit-taking.

Traders watched closely for developments in the steel wage picture. Analysts said the general feeling in Wall Street was that a strike would be averted.

Stocks declining included Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Goodyear, Radio Corp., Anaconda, Olin Mathieson, Baltimore & Ohio, Standard Oil (N.J.) and General Electric.

A few shares were strong. Evans Products went up a couple of points on top of a six - point rise yesterday. White Sewing Machine was active and higher. Missouri-Kansas - Texas Common was ahead nearly 2 at one time.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—Hog markets were steady today. Tops of 19.75 at Siler City, Rich Square; 19.50 at Castle Hayne, Tabor City, Shallotte, Beulaville, Dunn, New-Town Grove, Nahunta, Clarkton, Warsaw, Bailey, Micro, Elizabethton, Smithfield, Fayetteville, Clinton, Lumberton; 19.25 at Tarboro, Enfield, Hamilton, Kenly, Wilson, Jacksonville, Plymouth, Scotland Neck, Farmville, Kinston, New Bern, Rocky Mount and Washington.

One hundred twenty-five youngsters have joined the Vacation Reading Club at Sheppard Memorial Library, Miss Anne McFullan, assistant librarian, announced today.

Construction Co. Damaged By Fire Here Last Night

Fire last night burned out the interior of the Hughes Construction Co. office on Evans St.

Firemen said this morning that the origin of the blaze is unknown.

The small office building is located in the rear of a lot from which the local construction company operates. Furniture, office equipment and records were burned or badly damaged by the fire.

Firefighters used high pressure hose lines in extinguishing the blaze which had gained considerable headway when they arrived.

They were forced to break out windows of the building in order to gain entrance.

Polio Reported After New Shot

RALEIGH (AP)—The first case of poliomyelitis has been reported among nearly 200,000 North Carolina school children who received Salk vaccine, the State Board of Health said today.

Dr. Jacob Koomen Jr., acting chief of the board's communicable disease control section, said the patient developed a slight paralysis of the right leg 44 days after receiving the first dose of vaccine.

This indicated the disease did not result from the vaccine, he said. The interval between the vaccination and the onset of the disease "ordinarily would be considered quite a bit out of range" to show any connection, Dr. Koomen said.

Dr. Koomen declined to identify the case until more data has been received. He said the case is still under investigation.

A total of 197,841 children received the first shots in the program for first and second graders, and 26,100 have received the second shots.

Three polio cases were reported in the state for the week which ended June 25, the board said. One case each was reported from Cleveland, Davidson and Union counties. Only one case was reported the previous week.

Cases reported this year now total 35 compared with 43 for the corresponding period during 1954.

Eisenhower Gives Advice On Safety

In a statement issued with his proclamation of the 12th National Farm Safety Week for July 24-30, 1955 President Eisenhower said he was glad to learn that the United States Department of Agriculture and the National Safety Council are again cosponsoring National Farm Safety Week.

"A death toll of 14,000 farm residents each year is a tragic loss to the nation," the President said. "Your safety is in your hands."

It was suggested as the theme for National Farm Safety Week by the President, who added a suggestion that each farmer "make a safety inventory of his home his machinery, his equipment, his actions, and his attitudes."

The theme set by the President—Your Safety is in Your Hands—was praised by Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council.

"Special surveys in farm areas," said Mr. Dearborn, "indicate that about three out of every four accidents to farm residents are the result of one or more unsafe acts."

"Regardless of national and group safety activities, the ultimate responsibility for each farm resident's safety is himself. This individual responsibility is summed up in the life line given by the President—Your Safety is in Your Hands."

"The purpose of National Farm Safety Week continues to be to focus nationwide attention on the seriousness of farm accidents," said Maynard H. Coe, director of the Farm Division of the National Safety Council. "We hope to inspire greater year-round safety activity by each resident—and to make the individual farm life a safer, happier, and more prosperous life."

Mr. Coe said all 48 states are expected to take part in the observance of the week, with 34 states having active Farm Safety Committees and 13 having state farm safety specialists, who will help guide the observance.

Forty & Eight May Break From Legion

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Members of the Forty & Eight, funmaking organization of the American Legion, today had the recommendation of their Executive Committee that they break away from the Legion organization.

"We renounce our association with the American Legion and declare it dissolved," the executive officers said in asking organization-wide support of the secession move.

The declaration which appeared yesterday in the Forty & Eight, society publication, accused the Legion of letting itself be dominated by kingmakers who disregard the wishes of the membership.

The statement urging members to ratify the breakoff at the organization's national convention in Miami this October, was signed by J. Earl Simpson, Tulsa, Okla., chief de chemin de fer and the four other members of the Forty & Eight Executive Committee.

"It is the considered opinion of this Executive Committee . . . that relations between the American Legion and La Societe have become so strained that their continuation is impossible," the top officers said.

"They argued that the Legion "for the last seven years has been under the dominance and control of a small group of men," the statement said.

"It is common knowledge that these men have made use of the funds, assets and prestige of the American Legion to gain and maintain domination and control," the statement said.

"The men who have gained control of the Legion have singled us out for sustained harassment, abuse and vilification," it said.

"We do not know why."

Other grievances cited by the article were these:

1. Refusal by Legion's National Executive Committee to allow a separate Forty & Eight parade—a practice of "more than 30 years"—at the October convention in Miami.
2. Failure by the Legion to give proper credit for the "more than $850,000" the Forty & Eight has raised for the children's welfare fund.
3. Repeated efforts by the Legion to control Forty & Eight funds and membership.

While no "kingmakers" were named by the article, the Indianapolis Star reported it had learned the men referred to were James P. Ringley, Chicago, a member of the Legion Convention Committee; Maurice Stember, New York City, a state department adjutant; and Thomas W. Miller, Reno, Nev., National Executive Committee member.

Ringley reached in Chicago ridiculed the "king maker" label and called reports of a secession "idiotic."

"I'll lay 100-to-1 odds that the Forty & Eight won't secede in October," he said.

Scott Has Doubts About Senator Taft Monument

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Scott (D-NC) and several other senators today questioned whether erection of a 100-foot monument to the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) on the Capitol grounds would establish a healthy precedent.

"I'm not wedded to his idea," Scott said. "We must be most careful not to clutter up the Capitol grounds. After all there are 48 states and they all have two political parties."

Approval by Congress of the proposed Taft memorial, a marble shaft topped by a bell tower, would undoubtedly lead to similar requests from other states, Scott said in an interview, and he added:

"This idea must have the most careful consideration. After all, we hope our nation will last many hundreds of years more. Sen. Taft was a very able man, but we hope there will be many more of his caliber."

Sen. Green (D-RI), chairman of the Rules Committee to which the Taft memorial proposal has been referred, said his group would take a "most careful look" at the matter of precedent and the type of memorial proposed, adding "I have no position at the present time."

Sen. Aiken (R-VI), in a separate interview, said, "The greatest memorial to Sen. Bob Taft was the work he did for his country." But he said he favors a physical recognition of the Ohio Republican who died two years ago.

"I'm in favor of recognizing his statesmanship," Aiken said, "through the erection of a suitable memorial but I'm not the one to say it should be on the Capitol grounds. That will be up to the Rules Committee and the Congress. If any one does merit such an honor Taft is the man."

Officials said the only memorial to an individual now on the 131-acre grounds is a statue of Chief Justice John Marshall. It is of conventional size.

The Taft memorial would be financed by the Robert A. Taft Memorial Foundation, Inc., through contributions. A subcommittee on the monument unanimously approved the proposal to build a carillon on the Capitol grounds. Its 100-foot height would be little more than a third that of the Capitol itself. A statue atop the dome rises to 287 1/2 feet.

President Eisenhower has expressed hope Congress will approve the proposal.

N. O. VanNortwick Jr. was installed as president of the Greenville Rotary Club along with other new officers who will direct the club's activities during the next 12 months.

Other officers of the club are Bancroft F. Moseley, vice president; Wendell W. Smiley, secretary-treasurer; L. A. Stroud, sergeant-at-arms; and directors J. Roy Martin, F. Harding Sugg, Robert F. Thompson, David J. Whichard, Dr. Ernest W. Larkin, Carl L. Adams, Robert Lee Boone, Robert E. Wilkoff and past president Charles B. Bissette.

Dr. Howard McGinnis, past president of the club and past district governor of Rotary was in charge of the induction ceremony. McGinnis traced briefly the progress made by the local Rotary Club since it was organized in 1919 with 22 charter members, five of whom are still active.

He challenged the new officers to excel in the accomplishments of the club in past years; to maintain the good name and good standing of Rotary in the community and to keep its good standing in Rotary International.

Retiring president Charles B. Bissette could not be present for the meeting last night, but delivered his address to the club by tape recording. Bissette termed the past year's activities by the club "most rewarding." Bissette outlined briefly the activities of the club during the past year asserting "every committee has taken part and every member has done his job."

The retiring president also praised members of the club for the application of Rotary objectives in their daily lives.

Valuable Item

DETROIT (AP)—Household baking soda is a valuable adjunct for motoring security, auto maintenance men report. It is especially helpful in removing insects from windshield or from the car finish. Half a pound of baking soda to a gallon of water makes an ideal solution. Spunged on liberally it will float bugs off with no effort. It should be rinsed off with clear water. A saturated solution also is good to keep battery terminals free of corrosion.
