Trade Promotion Plan For Discussion Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two New York City newspapermen swore to Senate investigators today they have not been Communists for more than a decade, but they refused to say whether they once were Communists.

Both David A. Gordon, a New York Daily News reporter, and Melvin L. Barnett, a New York Times copy reader, invoked their Fifth Amendment privilege against possible self-incrimination when asked if they had belonged to a Communist unit at the now-defunct Brooklyn Eagle in the late 1930s.

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP)—The decomposed body of an apparently slain girl has been tentatively identified as that of Isabel Hussey, 16-year-old missing Moore County girl.

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges today announced the appointment of a seven-member commission to study all phases of the State Highway Commission.

Undersecretary Of Treasury Folsom To Succeed Her Sec. Hobby Resigns Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby today resigned as secretary of welfare effective Aug. 1. President Eisenhower picked Marion B. Folsom, now undersecretary of the treasury, to succeed her in the Cabinet post.

Mrs. Hobby and remarked solemnly: "Oveta, this is a very sad day." The President said his mind at the moment went back to a day in 1942 when Mrs. Hobby arrived in London to take command of the Women's Army Corps.

After the conference room ceremony, the White House made public an exchange of correspondence between Eisenhower and Mrs. Hobby.

Considered an expert in the field of social security he served on the 1933 presidential commission which put together the original social security laws.

Councilman Objects To Remark Attributed Commissioner Utilities Meet Revives Budget Issue

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. What started out to be a short, routine meeting for the Utilities Commission last night wound up as a City Councilman Wesley Harvey expressing resentment for remarks attributed to Reynolds May, a commission member.

He was referring to the mix-up concerning the special meeting which brought councilmen to city hall to meet with the Utilities Commission on Thursday night only to find at the last minute that the commission meeting had been called off.

Other business considered by the commission prior to the exchange of words was routine. Approval was granted for Utilities employees to participate in the social security election in October to determine if they want to combine their retirement program with social security.

Delinquent accounts amounting to $1,611.50 were authorized to be written off as uncollectable. Superintendent Leonard Bloxam reported to the commissioners that water and sewer lines have been completed on streets which are due to be paved in addition to reporting on the progress of other projects.

Ready To Close Bingo On Coast

RALEIGH (AP)—Is bingo about to be outlawed at all of North Carolina's coastal resorts?

Yesterday Solicitor Wiley Taylor Jr., of Carteret Recorder's Court said he would move against Atlantic Beach bingo if a citizen came to him with a complaint.

Judge Morris held in the Nags Head case that the 1949 act purporting to legalize bingo at Dare Beach resorts was void because it granted special privileges to special groups.

Submit Plan On Uniting Germany

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union last night proposed a step-by-step reunification of Germany in an all-European collective security system. The Russians said the holding of all-German elections to reunite the World War II foe was a "subordinate" problem which could wait.

The solution of the German question," the Soviets said, "is indissolubly linked with ensuring the security of Europe as a whole."

The Soviet statement was issued through the official news agency Tass and came six days before the Big Four summit conference at Geneva.

Contract Cancellation Fee May Face Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) said today an agreement by the administration to pay contract cancellation fees to the Dixon-Yates utility group would be "subject to searching inquiry" by Congress.

He said the Atomic Energy Commission could use only funds appropriated by Congress to reimburse Dixon-Yates for costs claimed under the contract President Eisenhower has ordered cancelled.

Atty. Gen. Brownell said Monday a settlement would be negotiated with Dixon-Yates. But he said he could not estimate what cancellation costs might come to. There have been estimates Dixon-Yates might seek several millions of dollars.

The SEC hearing which involved proposed Dixon-Yates bond financing was set for June 13. But the SEC met at Armstrong's direction early that morning, and told hearing examiner James G. Ewell to put off the session. It resumed June 16.

Two charges were filed against Maldona and Teen—operating a radio station without a license and sending false distress signals. Each count carries a maximum penalty of a year in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Lewis said he would seek a weekly trial for the pair and the government hopes to make an example of them to discourage any other would-be pranksters. Maldona was held in $10,000 bail and Teen in $5,000.

Only A Half Million Dollars Saved

Through its Greensboro office the Post Office Department has announced the tax payers are a half million dollars ahead as a result in savings effected through the mail transportation changes which were made last year.

The officials might have added—but didn't—that the mails in far too many instances are likewise a couple of days behind because of the transportation changes which went into effect last year.

We cannot contest the official statement that the new transportation system saved the Post Office Department a half-million dollars in North Carolina during the fiscal year which closed June 30; but from the delay in mails caused by the new transportation system, we would have guessed the savings would have been much more. In our estimation deterioration in mail service in the state—particularly in rural areas—should represent a savings of more than a half-million dollars to taxpayers.

Under the transportation system which was begun last year much mail is still going hundreds of miles out of the way to reach its destination. In many instances it is arriving a day to two days later than was the case before the new transportation system was adopted. Mail from Greenville to Pictolus (a distance of a dozen miles) still goes by way of Rocky Mount, Elizabeth City and Washington before coming back to Pictolus. Numerous similar situations could be cited.

While it is significant that the Post Office Department has at last "saved" some money in its operation costs, the deterioration in mail service during the past year should represent a much greater savings in dollars on the part of the department than the report from Greensboro indicates.

The Automobile Is Worthy Of Wonder

Comes vacation-time and the whole family becomes aware once again of the garage-size four-wheeled wonder called an automobile.

It's no "wonder"?

Well, let's think a bit.

The weather may be a searing 98 degrees on the highway, but the motorist doesn't feel all that heat. . . he's relatively comfortable, all things considered. And his car keeps steadily rolling along mile after mile as fast as the law allows without much effort. Ready to start again early the next morning, too, at only the touch of a starter button.

This trip can be for hundreds of miles, and odds are (if the car has had reasonably good care) that there will be no breakdowns en route. . . regardless of summer sun or summer showers, hills and mountains and punishing pavement.

To think a mechanism of watch-like precision can absorb such gruelling treatment and emerge ready to do it all over again, is a marvel we take pretty much for granted. Yet it was only a very few years ago that most overland travel was by foot, horseback or in a wagon.

Our horseless carriage has come a long way in just a brief span of time.

They Should Be Shown The Farmer's Viewpoint

It's most difficult at times to get Congress to see the farmers' side of an issue, particularly when the issue is not directly concerning the farm program, but nevertheless has a direct bearing on the farmer's operations.

Such is the case with the new highway bill pending in Congress. The bill provides for a 12-year highway construction program which would authorize the expenditure of $47 billion federal funds. Among other things, the bill includes a provision to increase the federal tax on gasoline from two cents to three cents per gallon.

North Carolina, of course, exempts from state tax gasoline used for farming operations. The federal government has never included such a provision in its gasoline tax law, and therefore farmers pay the existing two-cent federal tax on each gallon of gas they use for farm purposes just as they do for gas they use on the highways.

The Farm Bureau is attempting to have a provision written into this new highway law which would exempt farm-used gasoline from federal taxation just as it is now exempt from state taxation. The success of the national farm organizations in this effort will depend to a large degree upon the support their proposal receives from individual farmers in Pitt and other counties throughout the nation.

With farm operations in this section becoming more and more mechanized, every additional cent of tax added to farm-used gasoline is amounting to a constantly higher figure in the overall farming picture. If farmers set their minds to it, perhaps they can persuade members of Congress to see this situation from the farmer's viewpoint.

Complaints? Write A Letter

A statement of policy: The purpose of this column is to support worthwhile activities and to report items of human interest.

That statement is made because of the phone calls I have received of late from people with complaints which they request that I publish. From time to time all of us have been against other people or organizations. If they are well founded the Reflector welcomes your comments in the Letters to the Editor column.

The only reason that the Letters to the Editor column does not appear regularly in the Reflector is your lack of participation. This column has possibilities of being one of the most interesting departments of the paper. Personally, I appreciate very much the interest of people who call me. However, the Reflector and I agree that this column is not the place for airing complaints. A lady recently hung up on my face when I tried to explain why I didn't choose to print a story about a child throwing rock at her. The same day I had been shot with a water pistol (and well hit) by two boys riding on bicycles and merrily singing "Davy Crockett!" When she hung up I said about to suggest that we cry on each other's shoulder.

The Reflector requests that your Letters to the Editor be limited to about 300 words and that they be signed. Here's a chance for you to participate in your community newspaper and at the same time get the opportunity to read the viewpoints of others. All it takes is a few high-spirited citizens to get the ball rolling and it'll snowball!

Greenville's Merchants Association is launching a campaign from August 15 until October 15 which will have as its slogan "You'll Get More in Greenville!" Tomorrow night at eight o'clock every businessman and woman interested in boosting Greenville is invited to a meeting in the city courtroom for the purpose of developing this plan.

If you have relatives you want to contact by short-wave radio, conditions in certain localities have been good lately. Oddly enough, with my set-up USA contacts have not been good. However, Newfoundland and Labrador have been excellent, with infrequent openings into Germany and North Africa. Let me know if I can help.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

REMEMBERING RALPH M. GARRETT

(Greenville News Editor)

Death as it must to us all came this week to Ralph M. Garrett of Greenville. The work and worth of this man extended far beyond the green and shady streets of Greenville, a city he loved.

As a long-time executive of the Person-Garrett Tobacco Company he was one of the far-sighted leaders in a field which contributes so much to the economy of all Eastern North Carolina.

Goldboro saw him often over my years. He came here for conferences with his tobacco associates. He liked Goldboro and in the days when he was supervising the building of new plants at Lumberton or Fairmont he would get an early start in Greenville and have breakfast in Goldboro. Under his broad administration his firm and its laboratories had a big part to play in developing practices and quality of leaf that offer the greatest demand for cigarette tobacco. It was from him we first heard of the importance of keeping the nicotine content of the leaf at a low level. And only a few hours before his death, his firm had joined with the Extension Service and the Farm Bureau in issuing a warning against use of a certain spray which the chemists had found injurious to smokers. A bit of inquiry disclosed growers to protect their product.

Until ill health forced him to slow down a year or so ago, he had been for near a dozen years an unflagging, enthusiastic, purposeful worker for East Carolina College as a member of its board of trustees. He raised up many new and influential friends for the college, both in political and business circles. His vision of how this institution could serve Eastern Carolina was a challenge that awakened responses in many others.

We are glad that he knew his work and worth were appreciated. A building has been named at the college in his honor a few months ago.

Ralph Garrett kept going and fighting right to the end. That was one of the primary characteristics of this man. We have presented here to a formal and the distant view of a great sectional leader. But to hundreds in all walks of life who had a more intimate contact with the man he was a true and tender friend, solicitous, cordial, sympathetic.

Pending Controversy Over Parkway May Be Averted

By LYNN NISBET

COMPROMISE — A. H. Graham, chairman of the North Carolina Highway and Public Works Commission, is confident that an amicable settlement can be made of the pending controversy over location of the Blue Ridge Parkway across Grandfather mountain. He is arranging a conference of representatives of his commission with spokesmen for the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, the National Park Service and Hugh Morton, owner

Grandfather and who has spent many thousands of dollars developing and publicizing its natural scenic attractions.

Morton vigorously objects to a proposed route high in the mountain side which he insists will do great damage to his investment without compensating public service. Chairman Graham just as vigorously insists that he will not agree to using the present US-221 for the Parkway, which would necessitate closing it to commercial traffic. The State now owns a 1,000-foot right of way along the route of US-221.

Morton wants the State to transfer that right of way to the Park Service and designate a new road along the route of the old T&WC railroad from Linville to Boone as the commercial highway.

Chairman Graham hopes to find a Parkway route between the present highway and the proposed new location, which would not seriously affect the Grandfather development and would also save substantial sums in construction costs by eliminating an expensive 1800 foot tunnel, as well as keeping US-221 open all the time and enable the Parkway to be kept open later in the fall and earlier in the spring than would the higher altitude. While it is primarily an engineering problem, Graham said he recognizes the importance of protecting commercial investment and encouraging further development of the scenic resources of the area by private enterprise as a source of State income.

HEADACHES — The highway folks have no monopoly on the worries incident to obtaining rights of way. Municipal officials have as many headaches incident to annexation and corporate limit extensions. These technical matters are in addition to the numerous political and social issues arising out of suburban use of municipal water and sewer lines, fire protection and garbage collection.

On occasion of a brief call the other day at the offices of Gen. J. R. Townsend, city manager of Greensboro, and Herman Wilson, city attorney, your reporter overheard two or three telephone conversations about one of these problems. A bit of inquiry disclosed this situation is not unique at all. It is not encountered in most cases of annexation.

A suburban development, promoted by real estate operators some years ago, has several dozen homes. It also has several miles of streets and alleys. It was discovered that these are not technically streets at all, because they have never been legally "dedicated" as public thoroughfares. In original surveys they were marked as streets on the maps and have been used for years. In absence of official "dedication" however, title remains in the original owners that raises questions as to whether public tax funds, including Powell aid, can legally be spent on their maintenance. It becomes necessary to get quiet claim deed.

It was discovered since the chain of ownership is difficult to trace. Municipal lawyers say that failure to get the title and declaration straightened out may subject the town or city to later civil action for misuse of private property.

Two steps are necessary to constitute a public road or street. The land must be donated or sold by the owner and it must be accepted by the public body—the State highway commission in case of outside roads; the municipal government in case of streets. Formal action must be taken by the official body in order to close or abandon a public road or street.

CLERKS — Major part of the program of the annual conference of Clerks of Superior Court in Asheville last week was devoted to study a new legislation. The clerks have tremendous responsibility and authority in connection with civil proceedings in Superior Courts, and every Legislature makes numerous changes in the laws governing their acting new or amending old statutes, directly or indirectly affecting functions of the clerk's office. Some of these bills involved only one point, some covered several phases of activity.

Rep. W. F. Womble of Forsyth gave detailed discussion of the laws governing joint bank accounts involved in estate settlements and other civil cases, including old and new provisions.

Sen. Robert B. Morgan of Harnett, a former clerk, discussed the mechanics of getting legislation enacted. He said there was some complaint that the clerks sought to sponsor too much legislation. He did not

Ford Stock 'Fever'

By ELMER ROESSNER
A Ford-stock fever is epidemic. It broke out after it became known that Ford shares may be sold to the public for the first time soon when the Ford Foundation adjusts its portfolio.

Temperatures are rising fast. Brokers and other dealers in securities say that clients are flooding them with orders to buy Ford stock when it becomes available. Some excitable clients are asking them to get them all the shares they can at any price.

While the amount of stock that will go on the market has not been announced, brokers say that whatever the total all of it and more could be sold in an hour.

Reasons behind the excitement are the magic of the Ford name, wild stories about the company's fabulous profits, and the fact that a few thousand dollars invested in the Ford company in 1933 grew into a fortune. In addition, there is a crop of wild rumors to the effect that the stock is sure to skyrocket after it is placed on the market.

There is a danger that the excitement may push the price of the stock far above its real value, even though the real value is high. Some investment advisors have told clients that the early prices may be out of reason, and that it will be better to buy on the reaction.

There is no doubt that the stock has a high, intrinsic value. The company has a well-established reputation and sound management. Its products appear to be in line demand. The assets of the company at the end of 1953, according to its report to the Massachusetts State Tax Commission, were $1,895,134,000. By this time they are probably more than $2 billion. But paying too much for shares, just because everybody else seems to want them, may be an expensive bit of conformity. SHOE PRODUCTION SALES RISE IN FIRST HALF T's shoe business is back on—its feet.

During the first six months of this year manufacturers produced about 294,000,000 pairs, a gain of 12 per cent over the same half of 1954, the National Shoe Manufacturers Association says. Retail sales were more than 5 per cent higher, it adds.

MAN PARTICIPATING IN OLD-STOVE DRIVE
The Old-Stove Roundup in September this year will be the biggest yet, the American Gas Association says. So far 240 utility companies and seven stove manufacturers have agreed to participate. Promotions will feature Ramona Deitemeyer, Mrs. America of 1956.

FARM ANIMALS TAKEN AS DOWN PAYMENTS
A pig can be the down payment on a television set in a store at Buhl, Idaho. Because even prosperous farmers are often short of cash at this time of the year, the company decided to accept farm animals at full market value toward the purchase price of appliances and television sets. It is accepting cattle, sheep and hogs.

The offer is increasing sales and attracting attention to the store. UNITED NATIONS RULE: TOURISTS MUST TARRY

New Kind Of Hillbilly Appears

By HAL BOYLE

MARYVILLE, Tenn. AP—There is a new kind of "hillbilly."

Here in the Great Smokies — heart of old hillbillyland — the mountain people have found a new way of life that enables them to keep their old-fashioned ways while escaping the poverty of the past.

The fictional hillbilly has become part of American folklore. He is a shiftless figure in overalls who runs through the hills barefooted, a gutta slung over his shoulder, an old hog rifle in one hand, a jug of moonshine in the other.

But your real mountaineer isn't that kind of man at all. The popular idea of a hillbilly tickles his sense of humor. Sometimes he does not mind playing up to this role a bit for the tourists, but he does not relish having a "flatland furriner" call him a "hillbilly." He prefers to be known as a Southern highlander, a hillman or mountain man.

The industrialization of the Tennessee Valley has brought rapid changes into the traditional life of the area. The mountain men, marvelously quick to learn new skills, now come down into the valleys to work in the factories — but most still cling stubbornly to their homes in the hills.

Some drive up to 50 miles to their jobs. When the quitting whistle blows, they climb into their cars and drive back to the mountains and till their hillside patches. They like their hillside money, but they don't want to come down and live in the cities. They don't like city air.

Typical of these mountaineers is Robert Clark, a 43-year-old blacksmith in the Alcoa Aluminum plant here. Each day he drives 10 miles to work from his 12-acre mountain where he lives with his wife and six children.

Clark raises much of his own food. He can afford the comforts of the city man, but he wouldn't willingly move to the city if you gave him a house with five bathrooms.

"Good times are changing the mountains fast," he said. "Very few people live in log houses anymore."

"The mountain people no longer have the desire to live in town because they can now have everything in town they need. They have electric stoves, television and radio."

"We have good schools in the country now. There's a $80,000 school going up in my neighborhood. "Why should I want to live in town? You know, I've never had a haircut, a shave or a shoeshine in town for all my days? "The country's the best place. It's a better place to raise kids. They learn how to save—and they don't get into so much trouble. My children have no desire to live in town."

While revenue agents are certain there is still a great amount of bootlegging in the Tennessee hills, Clark says the growth of factory jobs has cut it down. "When I was a boy you could count seven stills from where I lived," he said. "Now there isn't one."

"The liquor now is being made deep in the mountains where there are no jobs. Many of the men who made moonshine in the old days never touched it themselves. They did it only to earn money for the family."

Clark who like most mountain men, is deeply religious neither smokes nor drinks. "I never bought a bottle of beer in life," he said, "and I'm not about to."

He feels he is pretty lucky. He has retained the rugged independence and individualism of his ancestors, he has achieved an economic security they never knew—and he can still enjoy the sunshine and shadow and free-blowing wind of the mountains. Hillbilly? Clark wouldn't trade places with any citybilly in the land. He has life made.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
STOP EVIL AT ITS SOURCE

Many years ago in a community in which I served as a young pastor, we were confronted with the horror of a typhoid fever epidemic. More than 200 people went down with the ailment in one summer and 13 died.

Then began a great movement to put in filtration plant and so eliminate the cause of the disease. It was a terrific struggle between those who wanted to keep the tax rate down and those who were determined that the community should take steps to protect itself from a preventable disease. The idea underlying the movement for pure water was that the best way to stop an evil is to stop it at its source. Better to take infection out of drinking water than to try to cure people after they are prostrated with typhoid fever.

This is almost universally accepted as medical procedure today but there is still considerable opposition to it. Alcoholism can be prevented of course, by the practice of total abstinence, but for a wide variety of reasons, a number of people do not like this method. They would rather take their chances with the disease. Likewise, we are all inclined to hold out on personal weaknesses that could easily be stopped at their source.

If we will read Matthew 5:21-27, he will perceive that Jesus commended to us the method of stopping evil by attacking it at its source. There is no other sensible way.

Texas May Have Lost Honor

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Texas may have lost the chance to win a rare honor for one of her eminent citizens as a result of the serious illness of Senator Lyndon B. Johnson.

A definite movement for nomination of the Senate Majority Leader for the Presidency had been quietly started by his friends on Capitol Hill before he was hospitalized by a severe heart attack. It had the tentative support of numerous members who would have preferred the progressively minded but nonpolitical Texas to Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois or Governor Averell Harriman of New York.

Evidence of Senator Johnson's popularity and strength was given in the Senate eulogy of him after his spar with President Eisenhower over the Democrats' legislative record.

Senator Harry P. Byrd, Virginia conservative, joined with such outstanding "liberals" as Senator Herbert H. Lehman of New York and Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota. It is about the first time that these spokesmen for the opposing factions agreed on any thing.

SUCCESSFUL PARTY STRATEGY—Johnson is the Garner-Rayburn-Jones type of Democrat, although more "liberal" in thought than the former Vice-President or the former head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He is considered to be a protégé and follower of Speaker Rayburn, who never broke with F.D.R. or Truman.

He has never been identified with the Lehman-Humphrey group, however. And yet, he has managed to harness and hold the two blocs in line on most major issues. When they disagree, it is without rancor.

Johnson almost a nominating majority at the 1952 convention. And their total strength does not include all the 382 votes which went to Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who is not especially popular with Dixie conservatives.

Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia achieved a high of 294 on the second ballot. Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky had 78, despite the open opposition of labor leaders on the grounds of his age. Senator Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma polled 66. It is estimated that at least 100 of Senator Kefauver's total would have preferred Johnson. On this basis, the possible Johnson total would have been more than 500.

JOHNSON'S STATUS—Another pro-Johnson factor is his extremely warm relationship with Senator Russell. Although the Georgian is well qualified for the Presidency, the anti-Negro feeling in his state as exemplified by the two Talmadges, father and son, bars him from preference. Moreover, Russell led the Southern forces in the fight on the Fair Employment Practices Commission. Johnson, on the other hand, has never been involved deeply in racial problems.

Johnson may recover sufficiently to re-enter the race as the South's most serious effort to capture the nomination in many years. But the experience with the ailing F.D.R. in 1944-45 will center attention on his health. As of today, however, his sidelining operates to the advantage of Stevenson and the De Saplo entry, Governor Harriman. It leaves Dixie without a candidate save Kefauver, and he has not gained prestige in the current session.

"APPLAUSE ON CAPITOL HILL"—Two House members have been hurling fruit at each other, figuratively, over the Upper Colorado Water Project. Opposing the venture, Representative Craig Hosmer of California scoffs at the plan to increase farm acreage with daily jibes which he lists in the Congressional Record as "Bananas on Pike's Peak."

Representative William Dawson of Utah, a pro-project man, regularly characterizes Hosmer's thrusts as "Applause on Capitol Hill."

Senator Lauds President's No-Asia Pledge At Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) applauded today as an "honorable position" President Eisenhower's reported assurance he will make no commitments on Asia at the Geneva conference.

Humphrey, a Senate Foreign Relations Committee member critical of some administration international policies, said in an interview:

"I don't want to see the Soviet Union built up into the position of becoming a broker for Asian countries. We should hold the Soviets accountable for the violations of the truces in Korea and Viet Nam, which they participated in making."

"But it would not be the honorable thing for the Big Four to reach any decision on Asia in the absence of the Asians."

Secretary of State Dulles, meanwhile, arranged to take off today with a party of top advisers for Paris, where he and the British and French foreign ministers will complete Western strategy for dealing with Soviet leaders in the Big Four summit talks opening Monday.

Saturday, after a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Council, Dulles expects to go on to Geneva. Eisenhower, leaving Washington Friday night after a nationwide radio and television broadcast, is scheduled to reach Geneva Saturday night.

Eisenhower conferred with congressional leaders yesterday and reportedly emphasized that he considers the Geneva meeting to be a conference on European problems and on such global matters as arms reduction which are of direct concern to the four great powers.

Some members of Congress who sat in on that briefing reported that Eisenhower said he will not make any commitments on Asia. It is generally expected here that Soviet Premier Bulganin will raise Far Eastern questions at least to the extent of trying to get agreement from the Western Powers to a later meeting with Red China.

Eisenhower and Dulles do not expect to agree to a Red China conference.

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) said he hopes there has been no decision to bypass all discussion of Asia at Geneva.

"The clear and present danger to world peace is in the Far East," he said. "It is in Asia where we have the day to day threat of conflagration. The Russians are involved there and unless these issues are discussed, there might be very little point in holding the Geneva meeting."

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) said he interprets Eisenhower's reported position as one of "not talking behind the backs of the Asian nations."

Some Congress members said Eisenhower indicated he'll bring up the issue of disarmament, but Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he does not expect any formal disarmament plan to be laid down as such. He said he expects some progress adding that "I believe there is a disposition on the part of Russia to do something."

Giving Up Titles To School Buses

RALEIGH (AP)—The state is now in the process of turning over the titles of its 7,200 school buses to county officials.

The action is in line with a law enacted by the recent General Assembly as an outgrowth of the U. S. Supreme Court decision banning public school segregation. The Assembly decided that local school authorities should have full control over school bus routes and operations. The state, however, will continue to foot the school bus transportation bill.

Farm experts say ewes should be bred as soon as possible after the lambs are sold.

Five Companies Rated 'Grade A' In Milk-Handling

Five companies have been accredited by the Pitt County Health Department to sell Grade A milk and milk products in Pitt County.

In addition 13 milk producers supplying raw milk to Carolina Dairies, Inc. in Greenville at wholesale to be pasteurized and distributed have been accredited as Grade A.

In accordance with the Pitt County Board of Health Milk Ordinance, the grades of milk are announced twice annually.

Companies selling Grade A Milk include Carolina Dairies, of Greenville and Kinston; Southern Dairies, Inc., Wilson; Gardner's Dairy Products, Rocky Mount; and Maola Milk and Ice Cream Co., New Bern.

Grade A milk producers are B. W. Baker, Greenville Rt. 5; J. T. Clark, Norman, Coward, H. B. Randolph and Spain & Coggins, all of Greenville Rt. 6; Dal Cox, Greenville Dairy, Harvey's Dairy, and E. M. Tyson, all of Greenville Rt. 1; Jerome Hardee, Ayden Rt. 2; Wallace James, Robersonville Rt. 1; Ray Mayne, Washington; and Stedman's Dairy, Pinetops.

Plenty Of Rain At 'Right Time'

RALEIGH (AP)—When it comes to growing crops it's not how much it rains, but when. Just compare the first six months of this year with the same period last year.

Latest Weather Bureau figures show that average rainfall during the first six months of this year was 2.30 inches under normal, "a fairly large shortage," according to local weather station spokesman Al Hardy.

Yet most Tar Heel farmers surveying their fields today will see healthy, rain-drenched crops.

During the first six months of last year, rainfall was only 1.44 inches under normal. But last year at this time the state was in the middle of one of its worst droughts in history.

The rain this year has been more evenly spaced and fell when needed. In addition, Hardy pointed out, this year's rain came in small amounts and frequently enough so that the water soaked into the ground rather than running off.

Another factor, he pointed out, is that mild temperatures—they averaged five degrees below normal during June—held down evaporation. July has started off with a bang. Through the start of this week the Raleigh weather station recorded 3.24 inches of rain, with showers occurring every day except the first two days of the month. Up to July 1, the station had recorded its driest year since 1911.

Burley Growers Oppose Quotas On Pound Basis

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Western North Carolina burley tobacco growers were on record today as opposing quotas on a poundage basis.

The action came at a meeting of the State Grange's burley committee here yesterday along with about 100 individual growers. The growers were divided on proposed federal legislation to reduce the percentage of allotment growers must plant to retain allotments.

The legislation would reduce from 75 to 50 per cent the amount of his allotment a grower must plant in one of three years to retain the allotment.

A production ceiling would be placed on the weight of tobacco a farmer may produce under the poundage quota system as opposed to the present system where controls are on the amount of acreage a grower may plant.

PASSENGER RECORD
FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The Air Force claimed a new passenger-carrying record today for land-based planes. The XC99 transport landed at Convair's plant here yesterday with 212 persons on a flight from San Antonio.

Musial's Homer In 12th Wins For Nationals

Cardinal Star Swats Drive As Leadoff Man In Twelfth

By JOE REICHLER
MILWAUKEE (AP)—Stan (The Man) Musial, toast of the National League for the past 14 years, is the new darling of baseball-mad Milwaukee today even if he doesn't wear a Braves uniform.

The majority of the capacity crowd of 45,314 paying customers, not to mention the countless television viewers who saw the great St. Louis Cardinal star smash a 12th-inning home run yesterday to give the National League an uphill 6-5 victory over the American in the 22nd annual All-Star game, were convinced he's the greatest.

The storybook finish was a fitting climax to a wonderful day for Milwaukeeans, who were treated to perfect weather for their first All-Star home game in their three years in the National League. Not only did they see their heroes overcome what at one time seemed an insurmountable 8-0 deficit, but a trial of the Braves had key roles in the thrilling comeback drive.

It was Johnny Logan, Milwaukee shortstop, who singled in the first National League run in the seventh. It was Henry Aaron, Milwaukee right fielder, who singled in the run that made it 4-4 in the eighth and set the stage for Al Rosen's error that permitted the tying run to cross the plate.

And it was Milwaukee pitcher Gene Conley's spectacular feat in striking out Al Kaline, Mickey Vernon and Al Rosen at the top of the 12th that preceded Musial's game-winning blow.

There were other National League heroes too. Willie Mays of the New York Giants contributed greatly with two rally-igniting singles and a leaping catch at the fence catch of a towering drive by Ted Williams that had the home run label torn off it at the last instant.

There was St. Louis' Harvey Haddix, who pitched a fine three innings after the American League sluggers had blasted into an early 4-0 lead at the expense of Robin Roberts, Philadelphia's great right-hander. There was Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati's slugging first baseman, who had a double and single and contributed a fielding gem on a sizzler by Yogi Berra that resulted in a rally-killing double play.

Last but not least was the gritty clutch pitching of young Joe Nuxhall, the Redleg southpaw, who fanned five in 3 1/3 innings of runless pitching after relieving Chicago's Sam Jones. Nuxhall struck out Whitey Ford with two out and the bases full in the eighth.

There were heroes on the losing side too. Billy Pierce was brilliant in his opening three-inning stint. The little Chicago White Sox left-hander faced only nine as he struck out three, did not give up a run and allowed only a leadoff single to Red Schoendienst.

Mickey Mantle struck the game's longest blow, a tremendous 425-foot home run over the center field fence into the distant trees with two men on base in the first inning.

Early Wynn, Cleveland right-hander, picked up where Pierce left off, holding the Nationals scoreless with two harmless hits in the middle three innings. Sullivan, the tall Boston right-hander, also did well, hurling 3 1/3 scoreless relief innings until that fatal blow by Musial.

But it was the 34-year-old Musial, the oldest National League player in the game, who received the biggest ovation and who was nearly hugged to death by his joyous teammates when he lit into Frank Sullivan's first pitch to break up the second extra-inning game in All-Star history. The first occurred in 1950 when Schoendienst, another Cardinal star, homered in the 14th to give the Nationals a 4-3 triumph.

Trabert Advances In Atlanta Tourney

ATLANTA (AP)—Barring more rain, the feature of the National Clay Courts tennis tournament will continue today — Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, the Wimbledon champion, versus Betsy Grant of Atlanta.

A late afternoon shower interrupted the match yesterday just as Trabert won the first game of the second set after taking the first set 6-2.

Trabert, fresh from his triumph in England, was playing like a champion. But he was playing a man who won the first of three National Clay Court titles the year Trabert was born.

Greyling Betsy Grant, now 45, one of the game's greatest retrievers in the prime, carried Trabert to three four-sets in eight games. In the seventh game he broke Tony's service and won without losing a point.

Trabert advanced to the third round with a bye and a 6-0, 6-0 victory over Willis Irvin of Augusta, Ga.

Bernard Bartzzen, defending champion from San Angelo, Texas, advanced to the fourth round with little trouble, together with six other seeded players.

Bartzzen faced 14-year-old Ned Neely of Atlanta in today's fourth round.

Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., seeded second behind Trabert, with a bye and a default, whipped Harry McGary of Akron, O., 6-2, 6-2. He will meet the winner of the Tim Co's - Calhoun Dickson match.

Third seeded Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N.J., got by Jimmy Shafter of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Barry Wallraven by the same 6-1, 6-2 scores. He will meet Robin Willner of Los Angeles in a fourth round match.

Jack Frost of Monterey, Calif., and Sam Giammalva of Houston, Tex., seeded fifth and sixth respectively, also advanced to the fourth round.

First and second seeded foreign entries, Alejandro Olmedo of Lima, Peru, and Johann Kustpenberger of South Africa, got past opponents into the fourth round.

Barbara Breit of North Hollywood, Calif., favorite in the battle for the women's crown, and Dorothy Head Knode of Alameda, Calif., seeded second, had easy times of it.

Seventeen-year-old Barbara, No. 6 among the present crop of women's stars, dropped June Paige of Atlanta 6-1, 6-0 in the first round. Mrs. Knode, Wimbledon quarter finalist, drew a bye for her first round, then ousted Pinky Hager of Atlanta 6-0, 6-1.

Starting Pitchers In The All-Star Game

Robin Roberts, left, of the Philadelphia Phillies, and Billy Pierce right, of the Chicago White Sox, drew the assignments as opposing pitchers to start the All-Star game in Milwaukee Tuesday. White was a surprise choice to lead off for the American League. Earlier speculation had favored Early Wynn of Cleveland to start the game. (AP Wirephotos)

Campy Ready To Get In Harness

BROOKLYN (AP)—The "slump" may be over for the Brooklyn Dodgers, who lead the National League by only 1 1/2 games. Roy Campanella says he's fit again.

Club physicians gave the free-swinging catcher the okay to play again yesterday after examining the injured knee which has kept him sidelined since June 29.

Campy, beaming after hearing the report, said he plans to be behind the plate when the Brooks resume their pennant chase tomorrow night against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The club doctors fitted Campanella with a special foam rubber insert for his shin guard to protect the injured area.

"Now I can stoop down for the first time since I got injured in St. Louis, June 19, and it doesn't hurt," said Campanella. "That's a great feeling."

Brooklyn club officials should be feeling great too. Since a spur on Campy's knee was aggravated by a foul tip, the Dodgers have had only a 9-10 record.

Other injuries contributed to the slump, but with Roy's league-leading batting average (.335) on the shelf and his home run output (19) at a standstill, Campanella's absence was a big factor.

Greenies At Home

The Greenville Greenies entertain Falkland in a Coastal Plain League doubleheader in Guy Smith Stadium here tonight.

The first game will be a replay of an earlier rainout out affair which was halted in the second inning. The game will be resumed from home standpoint. At the time, Falkland, though, was at bat with the bases loaded, no outs, and Bobby Clark at bat with the count no strikes and one ball.

Manager Pete Carraway said this morning that James Earl Pollard will be on the mound in the first game for the locals and it would be either Bobby Fife or Bobby Cogins in the nightcap. The Greenies will have all their personnel ready tonight and should go into the game at top strength. The Greenies are fourth in the Coastal Plain and Falkland is last.

The first game of the twin-bill will get underway at 7 p.m.

Yogi Complains--Stan Takes Over

By JACK HAND
MILWAUKEE (AP)—Conversation piece at home plate, county stadium, in 12th inning of yesterday's All-Star game.

Stan Musial, "Gee I'm tired," Yogi Berra, "Yeah, Ain't it tough, trying to see with all them shadows," "Yeah."

Musial's bat, "Boom"

Final score—National League 6, American League 5.

Gene Conley, winning pitcher in 1955 and losing pitcher at Cleveland in 1954, thought the fans' support had something to do with his success.

"Last year at Cleveland, I felt all those people were against me," he said after the game. "This year I knew everybody was with me."

Musial, who calls himself a "little old singles hitter" despite his 19 homers this season, hadn't hit a home run at Milwaukee this season until he blasted Frank Sullivan's pitch for the game-winning blow in the 22nd All-Star game.

"I knew I'd get hold of one sooner or later," he said in the clubhouse.

Somebody asked Luis Arroyo, the St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, if he was disappointed about being the only National League squad member to miss the game.

"Leo (Durocher) asked me about the ninth inning, if I'd ever played shortstop," he answered.

Durocher used up all his pinch hitters and all the pitchers except Arroyo. He had to let Joe Nuxhall hit for himself in the ninth inning and the Cincinnati pitcher, who had done such a fine job, almost won the game with a long drive in deep right field.

Little by little the Nationals are paring down the Americans' lead in this series. The standing now is 13-9 with the Nationals winning five of the last six games.

The flag in centerfield was at half mast in memory of the late Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune sports editor, who dreamed up the All-Star idea. The crowd of 45,314 stood for a moment of silent respect for Ward before the game.

Brock, Three Lion Mates Top North State Batting

Two eleven-year-old Lions are setting the pace ahead of the rest of the players in the North State League batting race with averages high in the fabled 400 class. Another Lion is third in the chase with a 404 mark and still another Lion performer in the fourth spot.

Ronnie Brock, 11-year-old catcher, is heading the parade with a tremendous .423 figure. Leo Starling, 11-year-old first baseman, is running Brock a close race with his 419 mark. Mac MacKenzie with 404 rounds out the 400 hitters. Allan McArthur is swatting .391.

Ten hitters are slugging over the 300 mark. Four of these are Lions, three are V.F.W. players, two are Kiwanians, and one is a Jaycee. Jimmie Rogers' 368 tops the Kiwanians, Jody Blalock's 342 tops the Veterans, and Jackie Conway's 341 heads the Jaycees.

North State Little League Batting Record Through July 9

Player	Team	Average
Ronnie Brock, Lions		.423
Leo Starling, Lions		.404
Mac MacKenzie, Lions		.404
Allan McArthur, Lions		.391
Jimmie Rogers, Kiwanis		.368
James Allen Braxton, Kiwanis		.364

No batter who is hitting less than 100 is listed.

Earl Mossi, Cleveland relief pitcher, allowed only one earned run this season in his first 27 innings covering 16 games.

Kramer-Trabert Net Tour Expected By Late Fall

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Kramer says he may come out of semi-retirement and play Tony Trabert on a professional tennis swing next fall—if the deal can be arranged.

"Frankly, I'm very much interested in signing Trabert to a pro contract, granting he has a big year," the young Los Angeles promoter one of the game's greatest players added today. "I can offer him as good a contract as I did Frank Sedgman—$75,000."

Kramer, whose tour has suffered during the last two years for need of new blood, said he had discussed the idea with various promoters around the country.

"They all insist that I would be a better drawing card against Trabert than Pancho Gonzalez," he said. "This seems to be the lineup they want and so I can't afford to be modest about it."

Kramer has been on the sidelines during the past several months while Gonzalez fattened his tennis reputation at the expense of Sedgman, Pancho Segura and others. Sedgman, who underwent an appendectomy yesterday, doesn't figure in future plans.

"Trabert's Wimbledon victory gave him a tremendous boost," big Jake said. "Now if he can win the Nationals at Forest Hills and help us keep the Davis Cup, he'll really be ripe. He can make a good pile of dough in two years."

Trabert has announced his desire to go into professional tennis when his record warrants.

Souchak Leads Golf Winners

CHICAGO (AP)—Hefty Mike Souchak still is on top in tournament golf's money winning race with swag amounting to $17,948.74, according to the PGA official financial list today.

Cary Middlecoff, who has won four tournaments to lead PGA tour-ists in this department, is second with $16,848.93. Gene Littler follows in third place with $14,792.26 and Bob Rosburg have moved from seventh to fourth with $13,002.26.

Chandler Harper gained the Vardon Trophy lead with a 70-stroke average in 27 competitive rounds. He replaced Sam Snead who dropped to second with 70.08 for 24 rounds.

Ryder Cup leaders remained unchanged with Middlecoff increasing his point total to 714 31-60. Tommy Bolt is Jerry Barber, Los Angeles, $9,180.42 and Johnny Palmer Charlotte, N.C., $9,126.00.

Mexico, Aussies In Zone Matches

CHICAGO (AP)—Non-playing captain, Harry Hopman of Australia and Rafael Fernandez of Mexico will select their players and draw for opponents tonight for the opening of the American Zone Davis Cup tennis competition.

The Aussies, if victorious over Mexico in opening their campaign to regain the Davis Cup, must hurdle Brazil, Japan and a yet to be determined European Zone champion in stride to qualify for a return engagement with the U.S. aces.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Not to give away any secrets, but the fierce competition to decide whether Australia or the man in the moon is to face our top players in the Davis Cup Challenge Round Aug. 26-28 broils into action Friday in Chicago.

The antagonists will be Australia and Mexico, and the winner of the three-day struggle will be called upon to fight it out either with Cuba or Brazil next week at Louisville. And so it will go well on into August, one titanic tussle after the other, until the issue has been decided.

Under the Davis Cup setup there is no way the preliminary slaughter can be avoided. Every country in the world, sub, is entitled to its chance at the gleaming urn, even though it might possess only three tennis players who serve overhead.

The odds are the Aussies will not lose an individual match en route to the final test at Forest Hills. If they drop even a set before they tackle the European zone winner at Philadelphia Aug. 12-14 it will be surprising. But the properties will have been observed.

The Women's Metropolitan Golf Assn. of Detroit has laid down the law that its members may not play in skimpy skirts and halters, no matter how big the mercury soars. Any who show up for a tournament so attired will be disqualified on the spot. Said an official of the association, as quoted by the Detroit Times:

"We're for cool sensible clothing, especially in this heat. But scanty costumes don't improve anyone's golf. If they did the women pros would play in Bikinis—but they don't."

"I don't say I wouldn't like to see Jacqueline Pung, the 180-pound Hawaiian; chunky Patty Berg; and several others playing golf in Bikinis, but that would be just once, for kicks, not to enjoy their golf."

Two Fined $100 Tuesday On Drunk Driving Charge

One man was found not guilty in County Court yesterday of driving drunk but two others were ordered to pay 100 dollars and costs and not drive for 12 months after conviction on similar charges.

Milton Dunn, 31, of Perkins Avenue, was found not guilty. Vernon S. Lanier, 31, of Fuquay Springs and Claude Lenn Manning, 66, of Route 5, were found guilty.

In other cases Elmer Louise Roebuck, 39, of Farmville, was charged 10-dollars and costs for allowing an unlicensed minor to operate his motor vehicle, John Vincent paid five dollars and costs on a conviction of public drunkenness.

A charge of attempt to break and enter against Wright Moore was not pressed with leave and the case of Jesse Battle, 16, of RFD, Bethel, charged with peeping Tom, was ordered sent to Superior Court for jury trial.

Conviction on a charge of possession of non-tax paid whiskey brought a 10 dollars and costs fine against William "Boss" Hawkins, Negro, of Route 9, Ruth Harper, Negro, of Grifton, gave notice of appeal to Superior Court after being fined 100 dollars, costs deducted upon being convicted of possession of non-tax paid whiskey. John James, 20, Negro, of Robersonville, paid court costs on a similar charge.

Conviction on a charge of no operator's license against Adrian Jordan Johnston, 52, of Route 5, brought a 25 dollar and costs fine. Jesse Williams, 26, Negro, also of Route 5, was fined 25 dollars and costs on the same charge.

Driving after license had expired brought a 25 dollars and costs assessment against Jack Gorham, 33, Negro, of 600 Albemarle Avenue and another Negro defendant, Eula Mae Little, 26, of Pactolus, was directed to pay one-third of the doctor's bill of the prosecuting witness. She was found guilty on a count of assault with a deadly weapon causing serious and painful injuries.

Zeno Payton, 27, Negro, of Route 5, was directed to pay 25 dollars and costs, not operate a motor vehicle for 90 days or thereafter until a license has been obtained after he was found guilty of speeding 75 miles per hour and having no operator's license.

Frank Parker was fined 10 dollars and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of public drunkenness.

Joint Meet For Ruritan Clubs

FACTOLUS — The Pactolus and Stokes Ruritan clubs held a joint fellowship meeting at the Pactolus Community Building Monday night. President Jack Edwards led a business session of the Stokes group, and President Roy Tripp the Pactolus group. Each club had 15 members present.

The Stokes Ruritan Club voted to have an outdoor family meeting night for its August meeting.

Pactolus voted to discontinue the Pactolus teen-age club meetings during the summer. A vote was taken requesting the County Board of Education to have locks installed on the doors of the gymnasium of Pactolus School. The president appointed Ruritans Burney Baker and Hubert Simmons to contact the board chairman.

Rev. C. F. Laughlin, pastor of the Pactolus Baptist Church, spoke on "Fellowship." He compared fellowship in European countries with life in the United States.

Special guests at the meeting were Eugene Morris, new principal at Pactolus School, and Ola Forrest, former principal there.

Pair Keep Silence Over Possession Of $87,000

OMAHA (AP)—Two men known for their reticence on almost any subject sat silently in jail today—one in Omaha and one in Las Vegas—while police tried again to trace the trail of $87,000, much of it in $100 bills.

Jailed were Frank Ellsworth, 36, and Ray Wilson, 33, both of whom are free on bail on robbery charges in other cities. Ellsworth is from Omaha. Wilson gives Tulsa, Okla., as his home town.

The new warrants charge murder in the strangulation death of Mrs. Lulibel Hagar Rosman in a Philadelphia hotel on the Fourth of July.

The story centers around $100 bills.

A spending spree in Las Vegas gambling establishments by Ellsworth and Wilson brought onto the gambling tables a number of $100 bills that excited the suspicions of croppers and police alike.

Ellsworth and Wilson went into the Las Vegas jail on suspicion of robbery charges.

But police from New York and other cities were unable to link up the $100 bills and the rest of the $87,000 the two had with any robbery they knew of. Ellsworth got out of the Las Vegas jail first and got the money back. He left for Omaha while Wilson was still in jail.

While this was going on, Philadelphia authorities were interesting themselves in the $100 bills.

Last night they said their investigation had shown that the Ellsworth and Wilson bills approximated the serial numbers of $100 bills found in Mrs. Rosman's safety deposit box.

That, they decided, was enough to act on. Warrants were obtained and Ellsworth and Wilson soon were both in jail.

Ellsworth was taken in an Omaha bar where he sat talking with an attorney. At the police station he refused to make a statement.

Wilson was taken in a Las Vegas bar where he had paused, Las Vegas police said, in a search for Ellsworth — and the $87,000. Police said he denied during a five-hour grilling any connection with the Philadelphia strangling.

Ellsworth had $284 on his person. Wilson had $65. Wilson had been free only an hour from the Las Vegas jail after being released on a habeas corpus action, the same as Ellsworth.

Wilson was due to have an appeal hearing in Memphis on a grand larceny conviction. Ellsworth had an appeal hearing on a robbery conviction coming up in Tulsa.

ONLY BRUISED

BANKS Idaho (AP)—Edward J. O'Toole, 34, of Nampa, drove his cement truck onto a soft shoulder of the highway near here yesterday and plunged 80 feet down a rocky gorge into the Payette River. He clambored out with only a few cuts and bruises.

Area Crops Said In Good Condition

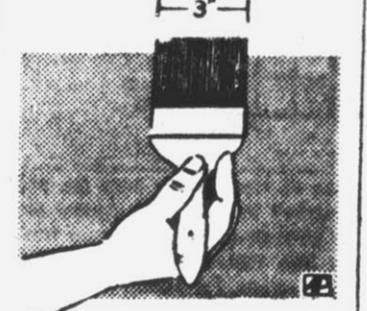

Assistant Pitt County Farm Agent Sam Weeks yesterday reported area crops in "very good" shape but added that crops, and particularly tobacco, could still be damaged by bad weather or lack of rain.

Less than 10 per cent of the tobacco has been harvested, Weeks said. He continued however, that favorable weather in the next few weeks could make the yield "above average."

Unfinished Crime

By Helen McCloy

In a tea room store on Fifth Avenue, New York, Sara Dacre had unwittingly bought the "Fire of India" ruby. To Dodge police, Moxon had ingeniously secreted this fabulous treasure on the jewelry counter there, but before he could carry out his plan to retrieve it, death claimed him. While making this purchase Sara Dacre unexpectedly met her neighbor, Gerry Hone, and had accompanied him to a cafeteria, where in the milling crowd, Hone somehow disappeared. A cat-like Oriental man tried to be friendly with Sara in the cafeteria, and as she walked home, a man with limping footsteps followed her. Moxon had served in the China-Burma-India theater of the war and afterward had turned to the jewelry business. One day he was up to visit her Aunt Caroline that evening, the dime store ruby pendant hung about her neck, Sara was approached by a strange man who courteously offered her a lift in his car. She refused it, politely.

CHAPTER NINE

In 1894, when Caroline Dacre married David Larch at the age of 18 the Dacre clan was scandalized. "Not even a wolf of Wall Street—just a jackal," said Grandfather Dacre. "Men like that may make money, but they are not to be trusted." He was right, for the man who had married her was a scoundrel. He was a handsome town house, there seemed to be only one flaw in her life—she and David were childless.

On the other hand, after 1929 Dickson Clive was forced to turn his taste for art into money by becoming a dealer. Now, many years a widower, his only son dead in the last war, he was one of a half-dozen elderly men who dropped in at Caroline Larch's for an evening of dinner and bridge—the last survivor of her maiden days.

There was a Gallic flavor about the house David built for Caroline in the nineties—chaste gray stone with a Parisian street scene by Vlamnick or Utrillo, and tall, grilled casements. Once you crossed the threshold, you stepped into a fragment of the Edwardian world, preserved as miraculously as a fly in amber.

Caroline never left the house now. Its climate, airless warm and equable as a womb, had become as necessary to her as the shell to the tortoise. She could no longer go up and down stairs. The ground floor music room had been turned into a bedroom for her and her companion, Miss Creel, slept in an adjoining dressing room.

Everyone inside the house was now. Its climate, airless warm and equable as a womb, had become as necessary to her as the shell to the tortoise. She could no longer go up and down stairs. The ground floor music room had been turned into a bedroom for her and her companion, Miss Creel, slept in an adjoining dressing room.

old. Even Stevens, who opened the door for Sara this evening, exposed a white head to the night air and shut the door carefully with hands that trembled.

For the first time Sara breathed the hot house air with a sense of homecoming and relief. She even felt grateful for the stout lock on the old-fashioned door. In this fortress of security that resisted time itself, she would be safe. She was a thousand light years removed from Automats and ten-cent stores and queer encounters on dark streets.

She left her cape in a guestroom and combed her hair by mellow lamplight that hardly reached the cloudy mirror in the carved frame. She saw a wan girl, dressed in gray with the dull shine of old silver, a brilliant blotch of crimson at her throat gathering round all the rays of muffled light and easting them back at the beholder in a flash like fire.

"Perhaps I shouldn't have worn it, after all," she thought as she went down the leisurely curve of the great staircase.

As the door she paused. Lamplight fell on a small group before a fireplace where applewood burned softly as it smoldered. Beyond, the tall room was vast and shadowy, the ceiling lost to view, insubstantial as a room in a dream.

Aunt Caroline sat in a wheel chair. Though the room was stifling, a thin, silky Bellagio blanket, striped red and blue, lay across her frail knees. One hand rested on a slender, ebony stick that David Larch had carried with evening dress. Her thin white hair was parted in the middle and drawn to a small knot on the nape of her neck—the Psyche knot of her youth. The blue eyes so famous in their day for size and brilliance, were pale and shrunken now, the flesh around them dark as a fading bruise. Her nose had sharpened to a point as her flesh wasted away and there was a bluish tinge to lips clamped together in an unnatural line over false teeth. Her dress was an icy blue, frosted with fine, white lace—an old woman's dress with flowing sleeves and a high neckline. Half lost in the misty folds of lace were the splendid Grenville sapphires, a necklace and two bracelets, David Larch's wedding present to his bride of long ago.

This extreme old age was not living at all. It was the beginning of the long, slow, cruel process called dying. Already Caroline was like a mummy, mummy decked in the funeral jewels that would pay its passage through purgatory.

And then she spoke. "Come in, Sara. Don't stand there staring at us."

The beautiful voice alone was unchanged—as deep, as clear, as rich and various in tone as ever in Caroline Larch it would be the last thing to go, only with breath itself.

On the other side of an inlaid card table sat a slender, quiet man almost as old as Caroline. His white hair was still thick. A silvery beard shaped to a neat point gave his age a kind of jaunty, Black eyes, starting under white brows, were like a bird's, so small, round and bright they seemed innocent of pity.

"You remember my old friend, Dick—Sara Dacre."

He had risen before Sara could protest. His brow was stately, his smile charming.

A little apart from the others, on a small, French sofa, sat Edna Creel, Caroline's nurse and companion. Knitting needles flashed incessantly in her busy fingers, adding stitch after stitch to a baby's sock, pausing only when she put out one hand to jerk another length of pink yarn from her ball in the knitting bag on her arm. All her movements were curt and angular; her smile capable rather than pleasant. Her face was lean and well cut, but her body had begun to thicken and there was a firmness about her waist that suggested strict corseting.

For so many years she had played the mother to elderly children of wealth that everythin, she said or did was set in a hard mould of pseudomaternally—crisply kind, reliably devoted but somehow lacking the warmth and tenderness of a more normal relation. Caroline had once summed up her companion: "Lie has beaten Edna, but she's one of those heroines who doesn't know when she's beaten." There was no quiet despair in her but rather a loud, determined cheerfulness.

"Edna, bring up another chair for my niece, Sara, we missed you at dinner. What is this unpleasant business that delayed you?"

"It's a long story," Sara saw playing cards on the table. "Don't let me interrupt your game."

"We haven't started yet," Clive spoke so suddenly. Sara turned her head sharply in his direction. "We're still waiting for Greg Sallust who is going to make up a fourth and—careful, Miss Dacre! You're about to lose your pendant!"

That sharp turn of the head had disengaged the simple book and eye clasp. Sara felt a swift, snaky sither against her skin as the fine chain slid away from her throat. She was leaning forward so the pendant fell clear of her skirt. Clive was on his feet already. He caught it before it reached the floor. His reflexes were those of a younger man.

"Whew!" He shook his head, smiled ruefully.

Sara managed to stammer, "Thank you," and held out her hand. She was glad of an excuse to drop her eyes as she bent her head to fasten the chain at the nape of the neck. Aunt Caroline's ancient cavalier had assumed the ruby was real. Every line of his face, every movement of his body had shown alert anxiety and more—the awe of a man who thinks he sees several hundred thousand dollars slipping unheeded from a lady's neck.

New Homes Cost More Than Ever

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP)—You're paying a bigger price for your new home these days but some builders claim you're getting more for your money.

Regardless of that claim, the cost of building materials, labor and land is going up. So there's pressure for price boosts although some builders may absorb higher costs to sell more homes.

The nation is in the midst of one of its greatest housing booms. Nevertheless, competition in home-building is getting keener and the builders' margin is being squeezed, according to the Housing Institute, economic advisers to business.

Builders will have to use all their production ingenuity to keep sales prices in line despite the cost boosts, says Nathan H. Rogg, economist for the National Assn. of Home Builders (NAHB).

The 1955 home buyer is much smarter than the buyer of six or seven years ago. He's choosier, has more definite ideas of what a house should be.

An interesting roundup on how big builders from coast to coast have improved their product to please this present-day buyer has just been published by the NAHB.

Homes are bigger, costlier, more livable than the houses produced by the same builders in 1948 or '49—but a number of builders say the price per square foot is either less now than it used to be or about the same.

For example, Earl W. (Flat Top) Smith, of El Cerrito, Calif., president of the AHB, who pioneered contemporary design and flat roof houses in the San Francisco Bay area, compares his 1948 house with the type he's building now.

His 1948 house cost $8,100 while the 1955 house is $10,500. They're both on a lot of 5,300 square feet but the 1948 lot was valued at only $900 compared with $2,400 for the 1955 lot.

Disregarding this hike in the price of land, Smith says the 1949 customer paid $6 per square foot for 1,200 square feet of house while the 1955 customer pays only $5.60 a square foot for 1,400.

The 1955 customer also gets four bedrooms instead of three, two baths instead of one, and improved materials, Smith reports.

Wally Cox Enjoys A Variety In His Roles

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Wally Cox was sprinkling salt on his breakfast eggs.

"Most grand drama leaves me cold," he murmured. "These tense people saying tense things to each other. I don't think these people should be talking that way. We take it for granted they're adults and then they say these immature things. How foolish..."

Since Mr. Peepers, the mid-mannered high school science teacher, faded from NBC-TV a couple of weeks ago for reasons utterly mysterious to his fans, does Cox mind being still identified as Peepers?

He looked tenderly at a bit of sausage on his fork. "I answer to the name of Peepers," he said. "I merely do not speak of the show" in the present tense any more.

"I do not deny the charge," said Cox. "If you must couch it in terms of a charge, I look forward to it. I'll do some monologues and maybe sing a little. I may even dance a bit. Night clubs are a challenge work."

He has a six-year contract with NBC which permits outside commitments such as his excellent job in "The Meanest Man in the World" last week on the U.S. Steel Hour (CBS-TV).

"I never will be interested in repeating myself," said Cox, suddenly putting down his fork and abandoning the idea of more breakfast. "I enjoy variety. I don't care to do cheating comedy where the audience is deliberately misled. I love to play people I can't really understand."

Big Four Meeting Will Find Communism At Crossroads In Gamble For Very Big Stakes

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The summit conference of the Big Four will find world communism at a crossroads.

Much has happened in the Soviet Union since President Eisenhower saw it at the end of World War II. Undoubtedly Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen has been bringing the President up to date on those changes, which loom importantly at Geneva.

The Geneva conference is a fateful gamble for high stakes. The Soviet leadership has, in a sense, ante up the future of world communism. The West may be gambling on its faith in human nature and a belief the Communist experiment to produce a machine called "the new soviet man" has failed.

Two world wars and modern technological progress have produced a new Russian common man. He seems gradually to be realizing his own strength. He is looking around his vast, rich and beautiful country, a land he loves passionately, and sees promise of a peaceful and prosperous life.

But he is afraid too. I have spoken to him in many places and found him deathly afraid of a new war. He accepts most, if not all, of his government's peace propaganda because he dreads war. The ordinary Russian is not a Communist party member—there are only six million party members in a country of 210 millions—but he is an important factor at Geneva.

A constant tug-of-war goes on inside the U.S.S.R., mirrored by its press and propaganda. It is on all levels—economic, social, political, cultural—between old and new. Bolshevism, a product of the late 19th and early 20th centuries, is dead. Now the type of dictator going by the unwarranted name of communism is fighting a back-to-the-wall battle for the

It extends down into the state-operated trade unions. In the name of patriotism, the worker is exhorted to make himself a willing part of a system of ascending norms. That means when a worker reaches a new output record, his mark becomes the new quota for the rest.

On top of all this, the re-emphasis of heavy industry has complicated Soviet problems. The Soviet press denounces anyone who suggests it, but there are definite inflationary pressures in competition for scarce consumer goods.

In a recent speech Premier Nikolai Bulganin told what was wrong with the Soviet economy, a long litany of criticism. He summed up: "Taking industry as a whole, the questions of specialization and cooperation in production at present have become particularly acute."

His remedies went back to doctrine: more "socialist competition," which means extension of the speedup system, "tightening of state discipline," rigid reduction of costs and economies in administration.

But the only sure way to solve the problem of Soviet inflationary pressure would be to cut down the huge investment in armaments, the cost of a tremendous military establishment and the all-out concentration on heavy industry. This cannot be done, however, without executing a tactical retreat in foreign policy.

Still another sign of the burgeoning bloodless revolution is the attitude of Soviet youth. Authorities constantly are concerned with a tendency of young people to rebel against the attempt to strait-jacket all of them into a single Communist pattern.

These manifestations of social change must be in the back of Soviet minds as Moscow approaches the conference table at Geneva. Tomorrow: All this and China too.

London's Blonde Killer Lost Iron Nerves Before Hanging

LONDON (AP)—Ruth Ellis, beautiful blonde mother of two children, was hanged today for the Easter Sunday murder of the lover who jilted her.

The 28-year-old divorcee, a former model and night club hostess, was the 14th woman to be hanged in Britain this century and the third since World War II. Her sentencing revived a nationwide controversy over capital punishment which continued unabated today.

A crowd of 1,000 persons—some weeping, others laughing—stood in the grimy north London street outside the ivy-covered, red-brick Holloway Prison as hangman Albert Pierrepont pulled the death trap.

Its slam resounded through the building, touching off hysterical cries from the other inmates.

Reports from inside the prison said the icy calm Mrs. Ellis had maintained during her trial in June and ever since finally broke last night. Prison sources said she sobbed herself to sleep, screaming, "I don't want to die."

The matrons let her sleep until the last minute, foregoing the usual 6:30 waking hour.

Earlier in the night she had said goodby to her mother and father, the wall.

who reported she was resigned to her fate. The woman had refused to appeal for mercy. Home Secretary Gwilym Lloyd-George, the only man who can recommend royal clemency, earlier this week turned down petitions signed by more than 25,000 persons.

Mrs. Ellis at her trial admitted tracking her lover, 25-year-old David Blakely, to a London bar and pumping four bullets into him. Claiming her jealousy had disturbed her emotions, she tried to get the murder charge reduced to manslaughter. The court threw out that defense and a jury of 10 men and two women found her guilty June 21, after only 24 minutes of deliberation.

Just before the execution Mrs. Ellis' brother Julian Arthur Neilson strode up to the gates, bent on them and handed a bunch of white carnations to a guard.

Returning to the crowd, his face ashen and his lips trembling, he said, "I just told him to tell Ruth I would never forget her and God bless her."

The crowd waited until a guard stepped through the gates and tacked the black-framed death notice and the death certificate on goodby to her mother and father, the wall.

House Committee Split On Financing Highways

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Public Works Committee was split several ways today over how to raise $7 billion dollars to pay the federal share of a proposed 12-year road-building program.

For this reason, committee members doubted they could complete action on a highway bill at a closed-door session today.

Several key members predicted approval of a subcommittee plan to raise gasoline taxes from 2 to 3 cents a gallon and to hike taxes on trucks, diesel fuel, truck tires and tubes. These increases would bring in more than 800 million dollars a year.

But others promised a last-ditch stand in the committee for President Eisenhower's plan to create a new government corporation to finance the building program through long-term bonds which would not be chargeable to the national debt.

Still others called for a compromise to pay part of the road bill through immediate tax increases and part through bonds.

Some members wanted to drop the whole program and others wanted to pass the buck on financing to the House Ways and Means Committee, which traditionally starts all tax bills in Congress.

Both Eisenhower and Democratic congressional leaders are pressing for action on the biggest federal-state highway program ever projected.

The program calls for 24 billions in federal funds and about 2½ billions in state funds to complete a 40,000-mile network of interstate superhighways, selected largely for their importance to national defense.

And it would continue, for the first year, the present program under which the federal government and the states together put up almost 1½ billion a year for primary, secondary and urban roads on a 50-50 matching basis.

Whooping Crane Population Up

OTTAWA (AP)—The world's whooping crane population again is on the upswing with the known number of the birds now at 25. Four young birds were hatched this spring in a wildlife sanctuary in Canada.

The big cranes once numbered in the thousands but hunters and the advance of civilization brought their number to a low of 15 in 1941. There were 24 in 1953, then the total slumped to 21 last year when three cranes disappeared.

The whoopers winter at a sanctuary on the Texas Gulf Coast. They now are protected by strict regulations in both Canada and the United States.

Russell Proposes Reserves Revision

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) proposed today a new revision of the military reserve plan strongly urged by President Eisenhower and the Pentagon.

As he outlined it in an interview, it would include a volunteer system for teen-age reservists but would omit authority for compulsory reserve drills for past and present service veterans. The Pentagon has asked for both features.

"I believe this is closer to what the administration wanted than I first thought," said Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

He called the committee into closed session today to vote on details of the legislation aimed at building up a combat-ready reserve of 2,900,000 by 1960.

Russell has maintained that it is unfair to require former servicemen to serve with active reserve units while many other young men never don uniforms.

The Pentagon asked originally for authority to give discharges other than honorable to any such man who does not keep up his reserve obligations. The House turned down this request, but did reserve authority to recall such men for active duty of up to 45 days.

In lieu of either of these forms of compulsion, Russell has proposed a special bonus for service veterans who agreed to undertake active reserve duty.

There has been no Senate dispute over the administration proposal to allow as many as 250,000 draft-age youths yearly to volunteer for six months' special active training. They would agree to serve 7½ years more in the reserve, and would be exempt from the regular draft. The current draft service is two years.

Russell offered to make these changes in the bill passed by the House:

1. Eliminate a provision saying youths could not volunteer for this special reserve until they had completed high school or attained 19. The Pentagon proposed to open the plan to all youths from 17 to 18½.

2. Permit trainees to be assigned to National Guard units. The House junked such a provision after an earlier version had been amended on the floor to bar assignment of reservists to Guard units which practice racial segregation.

3. Eliminate a House provision that cut the present eight-year reserve obligation to six years for men who had been drafted or volunteered since the date of the Korean truce, July 27, 1953.

Patrol Troop Commander Warns Of 2 Changes In Motor Vehicle Laws

Capt. S.H. Mitchell, Commander of Troop A, State Highway Patrol, yesterday issued a warning here concerning two new changes in motor vehicle laws.

Cited by Mitchell were General Statutes 20-129.1 and 20-140.1. The former, in brief, says that all trucks, including pick-ups, must have as part of their equipment two reflectors, one on each side of the rear of the vehicle and one stop light.

The second law, passed along with the first at the recent General Assembly, gives patrolmen the authority to arrest anyone guilty of careless and reckless driving at drive-in restaurants, drive-in theatres, supermarkets, parking lots or any place open for public use, whether privately owned or not, where vehicles can be driven.

Vegetable Load Disturbed Peace

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A load of vegetables got a ticket today for disturbing the peace.

Residents near an outlying shopping center complained to the Montgomery County sheriff's office that noise from a parked refrigerator truck was disturbing their slumber. Deputies couldn't locate the driver and were afraid to turn off the refrigerator motor.

So they hung a ticket on the truck charging the driver with disturbing the peace.

STRAGGLES HOME

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 20-pound, yellow-and-black ocelot, missing from a Washington pet shop for nine days, straggled home last night.

Adelle Hall, wife of the pet shop manager, heard a "crying" in the shop's back yard. There was the ocelot, a large American spotted cat, hungry, weary and lean. She and her husband baited a cage and promptly captured the animal.

Broke In Same Place Too Often

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)—Richard P. Cincotta, 21, was arrested early today for breaking into the same apartment with monotonous regularity.

Police said he admitted entering an unlocked apartment on Pleasant Street on July 6 and taking a watch valued at $50. He said he sold it for 50 cents to get eating money.

He returned the next day, he was quoted as saying, and stole a pair of dungarees, leaving his old pants behind.

He re-entered the same apartment yesterday and said he stole a $75 camera. He said he sold it for $5 but received only $1.50 as a down payment. Cincotta was quoted as saying he needed the money to pay for a meal.

He was arrested in a restaurant.

Driver Cited In Traffic Mishap

A 26-year-old Pitt County farmer has been cited for following too close as a result of an auto accident on Greene Street at 6:22 p.m. last night.

Frank E. Manning, of Route 6, was charged by investigating officers Johnny Piver and J. E. Gurganus after his car struck one operated by Leland Earl Taylor, 25, of 309 E. Gum Road. No injuries were reported and damage to both cars totaled and approximate $30.

Tot Left In Car Started It Up; Killed A Woman

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—A 2-year-old girl, left alone yesterday in a car which was parked with its engine running stepped on the accelerator and killed a woman who was preparing to take her for a ride.

Police said Mrs. O. H. Beal, 52, a close friend of the child's parents, was knocked down and dragged 30 feet. She died in a hospital two hours later.

Mrs. Beal had placed Pauline Marie Galley in her car and had gone into the child's home to get her a pair of socks. She was returning to the car and was in front of it when the accident occurred.

The car was equipped with an automatic transmission, and police said it apparently had been left in gear.

The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer S. Galley, witnessed the accident. The child was not hurt.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved narrowly today, much of the time in a lower plane. Fractional changes were the rule, but a handful of stocks posted sharp gains and losses.

Interest in the market was at a relatively low ebb. Trading hit a pace a little better than two million shares for the day. Yesterday's total in a mixed market was 2,630,000 shares.

Activity peaked up when prices advanced in the steels and motors, and many individual issues were sought out. The railroads and chemicals had more than their share of losers. Some tobaccos did well.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube ran up around 4 points at one time. Sears Roebuck, off 3 1/2 yesterday after directors declared the usual dividend, lost around a point today.

American Telephone, up 1 1/2 yesterday, gained between 1 and 2 points today at a ne which price for the year.

A block of 18,200 shares of Avco Mfg. traded at 7 up.

First Sale For Power Of Atomic Generator Soon

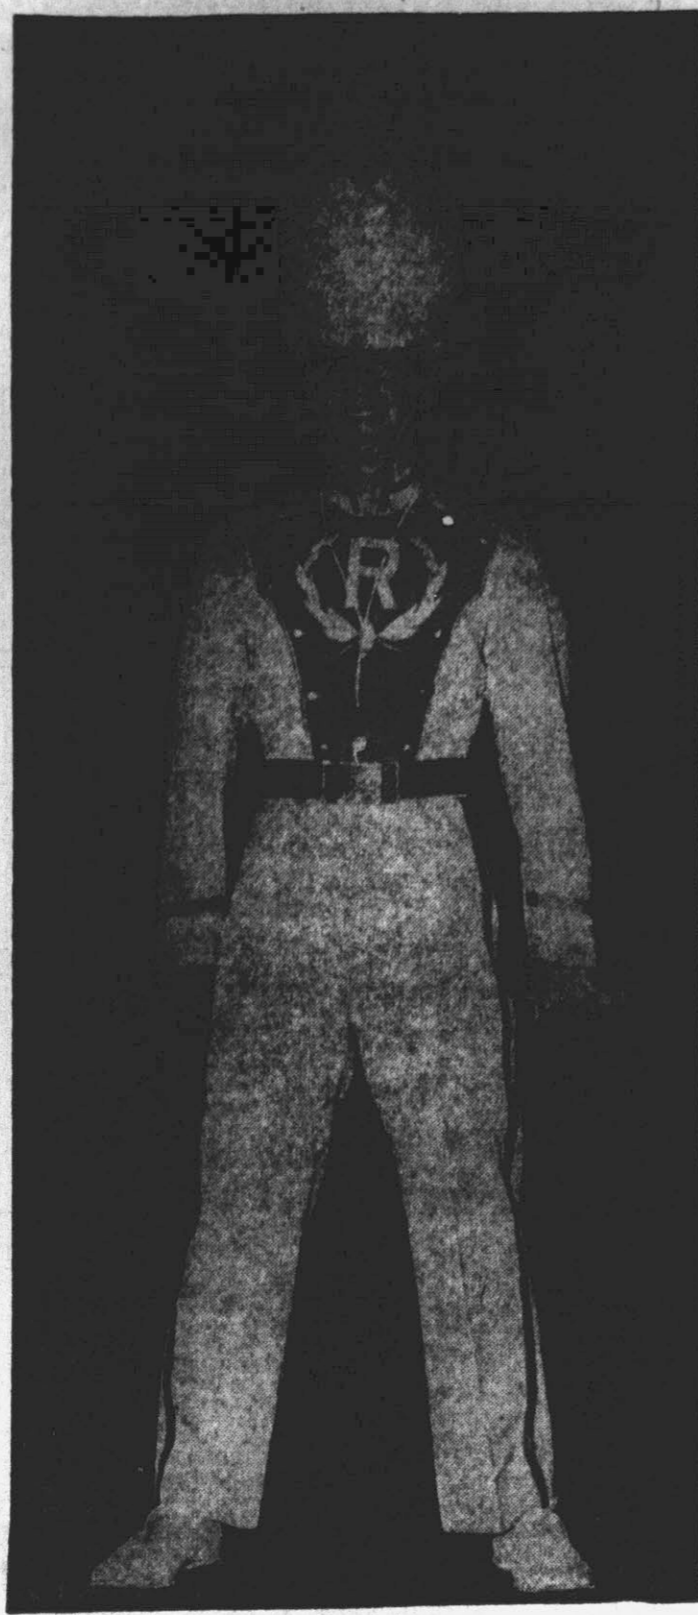

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission today announced plans for the first government sale of atomic-produced electric energy and said it would be introduced into the Niagara-Mohawk Power Corp.'s public utility system "in the near future."

The commission said it has set a price of 3 mills a kilowatt-hour after studying recommendations of interested public power organizations and after consulting with the Federal Power Commission.

As the AEC explained it, steam from a prototype submarine reactor at West Milton, N.Y., will be channeled into a 10,000-kilowatt turbine generator to produce power which will be sold by the AEC to Niagara-Mohawk.

The generator was installed and will be operated by the General Electric Co. at no cost to the government, the AEC said. The reactor is a prototype of that which is to be installed in the Sea Wolf, this country's second atomic submarine scheduled for launching at Groton Conn., on July 21.

ECC Summer Music Camp Set For Opening On Campus Sunday

Robert Ellwanger, Rockingham high school senior and one of the state's outstanding drum majors, will serve as instructor of drum majors at East Carolina College's second Summer Music Camp, July 18-31. He will enter the college as a freshman in September and will study with the aim of becoming a band director. Chosen the best all-around senior boy in the Rockingham high school last spring, he was an officer of the school band and a member of the chorus and the dramatic club, served on the student council, and acted as president of his class in his sophomore and senior years.

East Carolina College's second Summer Music Camp held on the campus will open Sunday, July 17. Activities will cover a two-week period ending July 31.

More than 250 musicians from schools in Eastern North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia have been accepted and will enroll Sunday at Wright Auditorium between the hours of 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., according to an announcement by Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, Camp Director.

A 150 piece band, to be organized on the campus, will be directed by Herbert L. Carter, East Carolina College band director. The Summer Camp Chorus will be in charge of Dr. Ellwanger of the college faculty, director of the East Carolina Choir. Other college music faculty who will participate are Edmund Durham, Donald Hayes, Paul Hickfang, and George Perry.

Majorities, 115 in number, will have as instructors Toni Gill of Elizabeth City and Ardis Messick of Washington, N.C. Instructing the Drum Majors will be Robert Ellwanger of Rockingham, N.C., and George Baird, band director at Roanoke Rapids.

Two concerts are scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Sunday, July 24th, and 3:30 Sunday, July 31st, in Wright Auditorium. Both will be open to the public.

Day students, who are commuting to the camp from Greenville and nearby communities, should complete their registration between the hours of 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday at the Wright Auditorium. The first rehearsal is called for 8:30 p.m. in Wright Auditorium, Monday morning, July 18.

Governor Names 8 As 'Directors'

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges has named eight men he wants stockholders of the state-owned North Carolina Railroad Co. to elect as directors.

He also named John W. Umstead of Chapel Hill to represent the state at the stockholders meeting in Greensboro tomorrow.

The railroad owns the track from Charlotte to Goldsboro, via Greensboro, which is leased to the Southern Railroad.

The governor nominated as directors Carl Pritchett, Dunn; J. Lee White Concord; Paul Stoner, Lexington; Frank Hutton, Greensboro; George H. Clark, Leaksville; Jonathan Woody, Waynesville; Clyde Gordon, Burlington; and John M. Morehead, New York.

The governor also requested yesterday that the directors elect Morehead as president and elect the following other officers: John Ker, Warrenton, secretary; treasurer: Hugh McAulay, Charlotte, attorney; and Marshall Bennett, Raleigh, expert. Current president is Bobo Langston of Charlotte.

Hodges asked that the following be named to the railroad's Finance Committee: Harris Nelson Sr., Spray; Faison Thompson, Goldsboro; and Hiram Worth, Greensboro.

Mail Campaign To Lure Industry Wins Approval

A direct mail campaign to interest industries in locating in Greenville is to be carried out by the local Chamber of Commerce.

This program, recommended by the Chamber's Industrial Committee, was adopted by the organization's Board of Directors at its regular meeting Monday night.

The Directors also accepted an offer of cooperation in their industrial activities from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and invited that group's liaison officer, W. H. Watson, to attend the next meeting of the Industrial Committee.

An appropriation was voted to the Civic Affairs Committee for the Fire Prevention Week program, sponsored each year here by the Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the local Fire Department. As yet no date for the campaign this year has been announced.

The Board gave its unanimous endorsement of the Merchants Association's trade promotion program and offered its full cooperation in carrying out the campaign.

The Board also voted to endorse the Farm Bureau program and, through its members, to urge farmers to turn out to vote in large numbers in the referendum to be held July 23.

In the absence of President Bancroft Moseley, Vice President J. B. Kittrell Jr. presided at the meeting.

Nat'l Carbon Plant Has 10th Anniversary Today

The Greenville plant of National Carbon Company today marked its 10th anniversary during which time it has achieved the outstanding safety record of two and one-half million man-hours without a lost time accident.

W. G. Hennessey, plant manager, in announcing the safety record highly praised the 130 employees of the plant for achieving the significant industrial safety record. "I consider it an outstanding record," Hennessey asserted.

In recognition of the milestone reached by the plant employees in their safety record, a dinner for all employees will be held August 1. A number of management representatives of National Carbon Company will be in Greenville for the occasion.

The National Carbon Company began operations in Greenville on July 13, 1945. For four years it manufactured survival kits for the navy and in 1949 shifted its efforts to the production of dry cell batteries which it has been manufacturing for the past six years.

In pointing to the 10 years perfect safety record of the plant, Hennessey praised the efforts of employees to prevent accidents and likewise the work of the regularly established safety committee which is composed of employees of the plant.

Czechs Release Soldier Seized 39 Days Ago

WALDHAUS, Germany (AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia today released a U. S. Army sergeant they seized 39 days ago, while he was on sightseeing trip along the West German-Czech border.

The soldier is Sgt. Walter T. Winter of 1616 McPheerson St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Two Czech border police turned Winter over to West German guards at this frontier point in Bavaria. The Germans in turn handed him over to two U. S. Army Intelligence agents.

Wearing the same civilian suit in which he was arrested June 5, the clean-shaven soldier grinned as he crossed the frontier. In his hands was the movie camera he was using when he was nabbed.
