Administration Military Policy Sharply Rapped By Gen. Ridgway

Air-Nuclear Weapons Program Criticized As Failing To Meet Practical Need

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon today took the secrecy label off a letter by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway sharply challenging the basic military policy of the Eisenhower administration.

In one of his last official acts as Army chief of staff, Ridgway lashed out with particular vigor at what he described as the administration's overemphasis on the "air-nuclear weapons"—atomic and hydrogen bombs.

Ridgway addressed his letter to Secretary of Defense Wilson, who ordered it made public today after its contents had been leaked into print.

In its strictly military phases the letter was essentially a restatement of criticisms Ridgway had voiced piecemeal and in less pointed terms for months before he retired June 30.

But the paratroop general gave his contentions new emphasis by putting them all together in a compilation and relating one argument to the others.

The 10-page study of the relative military positions of the United States and its free world Allies vs. the Soviet bloc made two main contentions:

1. The Communists are pursuing their worldwide aggressive course along lines not likely—and probably not intended—to bring nuclear weapons into play.

For that situation, Ridgway said, the free world needs "immediately available joint military force of hard-hitting character in which the versatility of the whole is emphasized and the preponderance of any one part is de-emphasized."

2. Some time between 1958 and 1962 the Reds will have developed such nuclear weapons and delivery capability that the "United States nuclear-air superiority will have lost most of its present significance."

Quick Accord By West's Leaders

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN PARIS (AP)—The Western Big Three foreign ministers agreed quickly today on their position and strategy for the historic Geneva meeting with Russia's top political and military leaders.

The list was submitted to the ministers by diplomatic experts from each delegation yesterday.

The ministers convened in the French Foreign Ministry.

Pinay did not disclose what subjects the West intends to bring up at Geneva but they were almost certain to include German reunification, European security, disarmament, and French Premier Edgar Faure's new disarm-and-develop scheme to help backward states.

Pinay said he and the two had discussed Faure's plan and added, "We've all had that general idea for some time."

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor A record-breaking $690,725 budget was tentatively approved last night by the City Council.

The city fathers approved the budget after voting to raise the tax rate for the coming year by seven cents. That will bring the rate from the $1.25 per hundred dollar valuation paid by Greenville citizens this year to $1.32.

With the additional amount raised by the tax increase and with increases derived from adjusted tax revenue estimates for the coming year, the councilmen were able to wipe out the $11,896 deficit which had been facing them for some time.

At an earlier budget work session the city fathers had voted to ask the Utilities Commission to turn that much additional over to the city for the coming year. The request was turned down by the commission.

The councilmen found themselves faced with another item when they voted for final consideration of the budget last night, however.

City School Superintendent June H. Rose asked that the city construct a walk way along Elm St. for use of students who will attend the new Brookgreen school next year. The council members were told by City Manager James S. Hughes that the proposed sidewalk would cost $10,840.

Councilmen voted to place half that amount in the budget and half in contingency. The school board will be asked to bear half the cost of the sidewalk construction.

Largest In History The budget is the largest in the city's history. It is included a five per cent across-the-board salary increase for city employees. Also included is a $4,400 item with which city fathers hope to win an agreement with the Utilities Commission for combining a city engineering department with the commission's engineering department.

Also approved is $3,300 to purchase and operate a fogging machine, a device for mosquito control and a $900 item as the city's share of the amount needed to set up a mental health clinic locally.

The city fathers included funds for one additional policeman and for an additional patrol car for the police department. They cut a requested tractor-shovel from the street department's budget but included a motor grader to replace the present grader.

The appropriation for the development of Green Springs Park was increased to $1,000 last night. Originally $2,000 had been requested heavily for about a minute.

From his death row cell some 60 feet from the gas chamber, he was accompanied by the Rev. W. H. Jackson, prison chaplain, and Warden Bailey.

September Date For Polio Shots

Second free inoculation of the Salk polio vaccine will be given here in September.

This action was recommended by the Polio Committee of the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society last night, and accepted by the Society.

Speaking today for the Polio Commission, Pitt County Health Director Dr. Walter C. Humbert stated that after reviewing all facts, the committee decided the second injection of the vaccine could best be administered after school opens in the fall.

He said the second shots probably will be given on Thursday and Friday, September 8 and 9, to the 3,330 first and second graders who received their first dose in April. The same schedule as for the first injection will be followed, and the vaccine will be administered by physicians of the county medical society, assisted by Health Department nurses, school teachers and parents.

"The Governor's Polio Committee has recommended that inoculations be made available right now to all who can take them," Dr. Humbert said, "but because so many children are scattered for the summer, the schools are closed and people are on vacation, it has been decided by our committee that best results can be obtained here by waiting until school opens again and by following the same procedure for administering the vaccine as we followed in April when the first shots were given."

He asserted that the waiting period will not "in any way" lessen the protection and effectiveness of the vaccine. "According to a letter from Dr. Salk, children who receive the second inoculation in September will, in the end, get a much higher degree of protection than if they had gotten the shot in May as originally scheduled."

The Health and Safety Committee, Dr. Mildred Southwick, chairman, will have charge of the August program which will be held August 11 in the Woman's Club.

Church Circles Hold July Meetings BETHEL—The July meeting of the Sarah Whitehurst Circle met on Monday, July 11, in the home of Mrs. Howard Keel with Mrs. Jim Andrews and Mrs. J. O. Warren co-hostesses.

Mrs. E. C. Whitehurst, spiritual life leader, read the second Commandment. She listed five images and stressed that we should always put God first. The program was given by Mrs. Whitehurst, taken from the Guide Book of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. The goals, by-laws and duties of the officers were explained. She read the Constitution of the society and stated that the purpose is to unite all women in the church and to promote a Christian community all over the world.

Mrs. R. N. Simmons, chairman presided at the business session. Mrs. D. C. Carson Sr. read her secretary's report which stood approved. There were 18 members present. The budget for the ensuing year was read and routine matters discussed.

Mrs. C. G. Garrenton gave a history of the local Ladies Aid Society which was organized in 1904. The reading was very interesting and she stated that the society was changed in 1940.

For the social hour, the hostesses served strawberry shortcake to the members and one visitor. The next meeting will be in August with Mrs. J. C. Williamson.

The regular monthly meeting of the Sallie Tucker Circle of the Bethel Methodist Church met with Mrs. James A. Manning. There were 13 members and one visitor present. The meeting opened with Mrs. O. H. Roebuck Jr. reading the devotion. After the scripture and a few remarks, a timely prayer was said.

Mrs. Burton R. Ayres, program chairman, introduced Mrs. D. T. House Jr who is president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. Mrs. House had as her topic "A Guide to the W. S. C. S." She read the purpose of the Society, reviewed the work and goals of its organization. The minutes of the charter meeting were read and facts of the early society were presented. She gave a list of the officers and the ten secretaries.

During the business, Mrs. Ayres presided at the meeting. The secretary, Mrs. W. C. Bonner Jr., read the minutes of the last meeting and had the roll call. The treasurer, Mrs. Manning, read her report from the Men's Supper which was held in June. Other matters were discussed and transacted. The benediction was pronounced.

The hostesses served ice cream, cookies and nuts to her guests.

Mrs. Reba Harris and Mrs. Fred Moringo were hostesses to the Business Women's Circle of the Baptist Church in the home of the former on Monday night.

Business was conducted by Mrs. W. E. Andrews due to the absence of the president. The secretary, Mrs. Harris, read her report and twelve answered roll call.

Mrs. Virginia J. Spencer gave an interesting devotion after which she introduced Mrs. J. P. Harris who gave the program. Her topic was "All Roads Lead to London." This was a discussion of the International Baptist Convention which will be held in London a few days in the future.

Mrs. Harris explained the program, the speaker and the topics of discussion which will arise at the meeting. There are over 100 nations which will be represented. Mrs. Harris was in attendance at a convention in 1928.

The hostesses served strawberry ice cream, cookies and nuts.

Fall Suit Jackets Designed To Please All

By DOROTHY ROE AP Women's Editor NEW YORK (AP)—Whether you like your suit jackets long, short or medium-fitted, semifitted or loose, you'll be able to suit yourself next fall.

Every conceivable jacket length, from the briefest boleros to seven-eighths length tunics, will be in the shops next fall, as has been ascertained by members of the nation's fashion press winding up a week of New York fall fashion previews.

Adele Simpson shows five different suit and costume silhouettes in her fall collection of smooth styles for sleek sophisticates. These range from a tiny curved bolero which cups the bust to a long tubular tunic coat reaching almost to the skirt hemline. In between are the 26-inch fitted jacket, the short box jacket and the straight, loose fingertip-length little overcoat—all worn with either sheath dresses or slim skirts. Whether her jackets are long or short, whether bells form a cuff around the hips or a band beneath the bustline, all of Adele Simpson's sheath dresses are carefully shaped with slim, easy midriff and due allowance for natural bosom curves. Most of her skirt-and-jacket outfits have matching or coordinated overblouses, fitting smoothly around the hips.

This pint-size but mighty designer likes high colors for fall such as American beauty red and forest green, in addition to ever shade of brown, from café au lait to black coffee. She espouses the long, lean look, though she herself is less than five feet tall. For dinner and cocktail wear she likes short sheaths of metallic brocades and for more formal wear shows long, slinky floor-length gowns in dazzling janes and brocades, often with matching fur-trimmed jackets.

'Books and Stuff'

By DR. ED HIRSBERG

This is a big week for Shakespeare in the United States, and we might as well let you know right now that we have been beating our brains out—such as they are—over the course in Shakespeare we will be giving over television, beginning on August 15, right after Dr. Martha Pinel finishes her highly successful run on "Contemporary Drama," currently to be seen at 4 p. m. every afternoon.

Her shoes are going to be hard to fill, but we will do our best. Why this is a big week for The Bard—aside my our projected TV venture—is that the American Shakespeare Festival Theatre and Academy opened last Tuesday in Stratford, Connecticut, and bids fair to become the centre of Shakespeare activities for the entire country. . . . The ASFTA will not only produce Shakespeare's plays under the best possible conditions in a new, specially built theatre at Stratford. It also will train American actors to do Shakespeare's roles so that they can be acted properly and effectively in the American theatre without the assistance they always have needed from English actors.

The aim of the Shakespeare Festival Academy, writes Lawrence Langner, its founder and head, "is to arrive at a unified expression of 'Elizabethan' style as we understand it in terms of our historical knowledge of the period, plus those strong but subtle modifications that take place as a result of the so-called 'national genius' of our American actors and our audiences." For American Shakespeare at its best, go to Stratford, Conn., where "Julius Caesar" will alternate with "The Tempest" for most of the summer—and we wish we could go along, if you do get there.

Big Futures

The big boys in the book club field will dominate the scene come October, when both Thomas E. Costain and John Gunther come crashing through with book club selections—both in the same month. . . . Costain's "The Tontine" will be the Literary Guild's offering, and Gunther's "Inside After" will be the Book-of-the-Month's. . . . Gunther now has been inside Europe, Asia, and Latin America, in addition to the U. S. A., all for the BOM Club—he certainly gets inside 1's of places, and he's also sold over two million books describing them, a nice way, we think, to make a living. . . . Costain also has not done so bad. "The Tontine" will be his fourth Literary Guild book. . . . The others, if you remember, were "The Black Rose," "Son of a Hundred Kings," and "The Silver Chalice," the three of which have sold almost six million copies.

Other Mediums

Former best-seller "Not as a Stranger," about the troubles doctors have doing this and that, has just emerged as a movie, and is not wowing the critics in New York, where it is currently showing. . . . And last week we saw something over TV about a Black Stallion, based on a novel by Fultizer Prize-winner William Faulkner called "Knight's Gambit." It came through the TV medium poorly, we thought—nothing like what Faulkner wanted "Knight's Gambit" to be, which

"Miss Farmville" Present At N. C. Beauty Contest

FARMVILLE—Miss Harriet Hobby will be present at the beauty contest, at which "Miss North Carolina" will be elected this week at Wilmington. The event is sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Miss Hobby, who has a position with the A. C. Monk and Company, was picked as "Miss Farmville" over six other contestants in a local contest two weeks ago.

Miss Hobby was accompanied to Wilmington by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rouse.

The contestants put in their first appearance Thursday morning at an informal breakfast. A parade was held Friday morning at 10:30 in Wilmington. Final judging will be made on Saturday night. All of the contestants will wear evening gowns, with the exception of the ten finalists. The winner will be crowned and entertainment will follow the contest.

Miss Hobby, who attended Mars Hill College, will give a dramatic reading as her part of the talent contest. She will wear a white bathing suit, with cherry red print, when the contestants appear in bathing suits, and will wear a light pink evening gown.

Women of the Moose Elect New Members

Greenville Chapter No. 1308, Women of the Moose, held their regular meeting Thursday night with Sr. Regent Bonnie Singleton presiding. The meeting was held in the Moose Temple. There will be a committee chairman's meeting Thursday night, July 21, at 8 o'clock in the Ladies Lounge. All committee chairmen are asked to be present.

The meeting closed in ritualistic form.

Seek Unknown In Ambush Shooting

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N. C. (AP)—Haltax County law enforcement officers continued a search today for an unknown person who shot a young farmer in the back from ambush last Saturday.

The shooting took place about six miles west of Roanoke Rapids off Highway 158. Dep. Sheriff J. W. High said practically a whole load of No. 6 or 7 shot struck James E. Hockaday, 26, while he was operating a tractor on a small farm just off the highway. Hockaday was hospitalized here but his condition is not considered serious. Officer said Hockaday could offer no reason for the shooting.

New Spectacular Show Series For TV In Fall

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—With increasing frequency these days the television industry is making news that bears as many absorbing angles as a cubist painting.

Now NBC-TV announces that next Oct. 3 it will begin presenting five hour long live dramatic shows a week in color from Hollywood. The hour will be from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m., Eastern Time, Monday through Friday. And it won't be soap opera.

"With one stroke of a pen we are ordering into being a theater on a national scale," Albert McCleary, the show's over-all producer, said in an interview. "For 50 years people have been asking, 'Why not a true American theater?' Now we are creating a true American theater."

Time will tell about that, of course. But certainly the scope of the proposed show is impressive.

Two big color studios in Burbank, Calif., will be in almost constant use to produce 48 weeks of this steady stream of shows, with one unit blocking in one studio while another is performing in the second. It will absorb the efforts of 20 directors, 240 playwrights, between 3,500 and 4,000 actors and technicians.

McCleary, a quick, intense man, says he is interested in "big name" actors and well-known plays at the same time he is carrying out one of the most intensive hunts for new talent ever known.

"I have no hesitation in doing, for example, 'Romeo and Juliet,'" he says. "The fact a play has been done before on TV doesn't matter if it's a good play. I'm interested, as another example in 'Moby Dick.' But I'm just as interested in a new play by an unknown writer."

McCleary seeks new acting talent as avidly as writing talent. "I don't hesitate to forecast," he forecasts cheerfully, "that 10 years from now the big stars of the American theater will have come from our shows."

Lichens grows more widely over the earth's surface than any other kind of plant.

Miss Salisbury Wins In Swim Suit Parade

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Thirty-four young Tar Heel beauties moved into the second round of the Miss North Carolina beauty pageant today, their hearts and eyes set on Saturday night's crowning of the winner.

For at least two of the girls today's activities could mean a head start on the others toward the coveted Miss North Carolina of 1955 title. These two came up with preliminary victories in yesterday's first round judging.

The two are Miss Chapel Hill, Joann Brown, and Miss Salisbury, Star Starling. Miss Chapel Hill, flashing dimples and dazzling brown eyes, was named winner in the evening dress phase of the contest.

Miss Salisbury, whose hometown furnished the 1953 queen, won the parade of swim suits.

Other contestants participated in the theatrical talent, singing and recitation phase of the judging, but here the selection of a winner was apparently less easy. Judges said a tabulation would have to be made before the winner could be picked.

Today the beauties breakfasted early, then staged rehearsals for the other events on the second-day program. Twelve of them will participate in tonight's activities, including music, dancing, recitations and monologues.

At stake for tomorrow night's winner is a free week's vacation at Atlantic Beach near Morehead City, a free wardrobe half a hundred personal appearances, and finally a trip to Atlantic City later this summer to represent the state in the Miss America Pageant.

Miss Betty Jo Ring, Miss North Carolina of 1954, will crown the winner at the pageant ball at nearby Wrightsville Beach.

Postal Act Will Be Discussed At Institute Here

An institute of instruction on the Postal Field Service Act of 1955 will be conducted here for postmasters and their assistants Monday.

The meeting, to be held in the auditorium of West Greenville School from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m., will be conducted by the staff of the Regional Personnel Office from Raleigh.

Postmasters or assistant postmasters at all offices of first and second class are invited. Staff of the district office and a representative of the District Superintendent of Postal Transportation Service will be on hand.

Another such meeting is also being held at Chapel Hill on Tuesday for that section of the state.

County's Tax Increase Is Reasonable

In spite of the fact we are reluctant to see local taxes go up, the six-cent tax increase for this year approved by the County Commissioners appears reasonable.

There are many taxpayers who are irritated by the 95 cent rate for this year compared with the 89 cent rate for the past year. Nevertheless, the county's taxpayers are much better off than they would have been had the rate been set at $1.06 which was the estimated levy necessary to meet initial budget requests from individual county departments and offices.

At 90 per cent collections on the county's property valuation, each cent of the tax rate brings in an estimated $6,100. Half of the six-cent increase is directly attributed to increasing the amount which goes to the Pitt Memorial Hospital fund to defray operating losses suffered by the hospital. When the county issued bonds to construct the hospital, the voters in adopting the bond likewise adopted a resolution authorizing an annual special levy of up to five cents to defray operation costs of the institution.

Last year was the only year in which the full five-cent hospital rate had not been levied. The special hospital tax last year was only two cents. This year the Board of Trustees of the institution requested the Commissioners to put the rate back to the maximum, and the Commissioners complied with the request.

The other three cents of the tax increase will produce from taxpayers approximately $18,400 to be used for defraying operation expenses of the county government. The Commissioners could have set a lower rate by further cutting departmental budgets, but already some departmental officials have suggested the budget cuts which were made may decrease the efficiency with which the county departments can operate.

The Commissioners might have made the increase smaller by increasing their estimated collections from 90 per cent to 91 or 92 per cent, but time has proven that the safe method is to base estimated revenue on the basis of 90 per cent collections in local government.

If the economy measures adopted by the County Commissioners in tentatively approving the budget prove successful this year, it should pave the way for more efficient county government operations in future years.

Its Success Depends Upon Active Support

Like other cooperative programs, the success of the trade promotion campaign being sponsored by the Greenville Merchants Association will depend to a large degree upon the support the program receives from individual merchants and businesses in Greenville.

The current campaign is the most ambitious yet undertaken by the Merchants Association. The people of Greenville individually and collectively stand to benefit immensely by the program. But to receive the potential benefits the program offers, the people of Greenville must first give financial support to launch the effort.

Fundamentally, the idea behind this program is to make the people of Greenville's trade area aware of the facilities and services offered to them by merchants, business houses and professional firms of the city. Sound in its concept, the success of the program will be directly proportional to the support it receives from local merchants, business firms and professional men.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
TAKE A FIRM STAND

There is a type of psychological adviser who tells people that the way to solve their problems is to stop fighting their impulses and to give in to them. To fight impulses, they claim, is to encourage the setting up of complexes and frustrations. Let yourself go, cry these counselors, and all will be well.

The wiser type of psychologist has always advised precisely the opposite. And in this advice he has the support both of human experience and of the Word of God. The wise psychologist urges people to face their impulses, to resist their evil tendencies, and to do something about the problems which these impulses create. If you feel dependent, don't give in to dependency—resist it. Smile whether you feel like smiling or not. Say the joyful word when what you want to say is the hateful word. Laugh when everything within you is urging you to snarl.

Do you find yourself tempted by certain persons, places, and things? If so, avoid these persons, places, and things. This is not cowardice; this is just plain common sense. If you are associated with people that irritate you, just sit down sometime and remind yourself that even these people have quite a few good qualities, some of which, indeed, you may lack. St. Paul said, "If there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things."

No Early Relief For Taxpayers

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—A close examination of current handling of "money" matters by the White House and Congress promises no real relief for taxpayers within the foreseeable future, possibly not for a generation. There may be small and sporadic tax cuts, but these will be only pre-election tidbits.

A substantial easing of world tensions at Geneva next week, military and diplomatic experts believe, might permit us to reduce defense expenditures by $10 billion or $12 billion annually. The Pentagon might be able to struggle along with a budget of $20 billion instead of $32 billion for the 1956 fiscal year.

But even if this dream is realized—and few think that it will be—the budgetary savings on war preparations will be eaten up by essential expenditures for domestic improvements, which were deferred during the depression, World War II, the Korean conflict and the armament race with Russia. For a quarter of a century, we have had to neglect or skimp on things of the body and spirit politics.

EXPERTS' ESTIMATE—The experts' latest estimate of the five-year cost of Federally financed schools, hospitals, highways, river and harbor deepening and improvements, reclamation and conservation projects, totals at least $50 billion, possibly more.

This figure will offset any trimming of defense charges. And there is no assurance of economy in the field of war. Despite Eisenhower-Dulles efforts to surround the Geneva conference with an aura of hope and confidence they are talking for political, psychological and diplomatic effect.

It may come as a surprise, too, but, as Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia charges, the Eisenhower Administration has won no medals in the economy line. Congress has shown far greater zeal for economy than the Budget Bureau.

Education Board Should Feel Free To Ask Help

During the past several weeks a number of county and municipal school systems have appointed special study groups to delve into public school problems in connection with the Supreme Court decision declaring segregation unconstitutional.

So far the Pitt Board of Education has given no indication of making such a move. Of course it is entirely up to the Board of Education to determine whether such a special study group could prove advantageous to Pitt County in coping with circumstances which might be expected to arise. The Reflector has full confidence in the Pitt Board of Education in coping with the more complex problems which the Supreme Court decision has spawned just as it has coped with difficult educational problems in the past.

At the same time we realize the fact that the Board's business of administering public education in the county will become increasingly more pressing as time goes on. The special problems brought about by the high court action will increase the heavy burdens of the Board. While the Board of Education cannot delegate or escape its responsibility in this comparatively new situation, it should feel free to call upon local citizens to help share the preliminary fact-finding work upon which eventual decisions will have to be based.

Even under normal circumstances the Board of Education has a terrific responsibility and an abundance of work to do. Under these new, and more complicated situations it may find a study group beneficial to the Board as well as to the county as a whole.

Operating Costs of Government

WASHINGTON—Here is the spending record of Congress versus the Budget Bureau. For actual operating costs of the Government for the current fiscal year, Ike's financial agents asked $47,968,074,170. The House increased this figure by about $200,000,000. The Senate cut it by $2.3 billion. As finally passed, the total was $311,000,000 less than the Budget estimates.

When Congress finished with appropriation bills still pending such as foreign aid and related measures, it will probably undercut White House requests by a $1 billion. There was politics as well as economics behind the Democratic majority's reductions. They will pose as the conservative money party in next year's elections.

STEEPEST REDUCTIONS—The selective nature of the Congressional cuts shows a curious change on the part of the controlling Democrats. They apparently seek to wipe out major inclusions against the Roosevelt-Truman regime.

The steepest reductions were applied to Commerce ($121,000,000); to National Defense ($350,000,000); and to public works ($417,000,000). Treasury, Post Office, Labor, Health, Education and Welfare were cut by $65,000,000.

As to Commerce, Congress concluded that Sinclair Weeks agency was performing too many free services which private industry should finance. On Defense, it figured, ironically that it understood the nation's military needs better than General Eisenhower. It trimmed public works money normally a pet Congressional project, in order to curtail Federal expansion in this field.

Despite these relatively picaresque savings there is small hope for taxpayers relief, barring a miracle at Geneva. Neither major party can boast of its handling of money.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

JUSTICE BREAKDOWN (Wilson Times)

When a defendant goes into a court of justice charged with some crime, he is either guilty or innocent. There is no middle ground.

In each case some law enforcement officer has made an arrest. And usually that officer is called to the witness stand to give his version of what happened. Regardless of the testimony given, and regardless of the seriousness of the crime, we in North Carolina are to believe that the officer who makes an arrest is tending to thwart if not destroy justice.

In too many cases the law enforcement officers are being tried rather than the defendants. Officers do make mistakes. They are human, and being human, they do tend to err.

But any county or town which has officers who deliberately go to a witness stand to tell an untruth about any defendant should dis-

Passing Thoughts For Friday

Following yesterday's column on the qualifications of a young man, date-wise, several young men have promised to give me information on qualifications of a girl. The interesting fact I'm waiting is whether or not the boys will put looks ahead of personality on the list.

Recently I was talking to an out-of-town business executive who employs quite a few girls. Now and then he has to bring them in for reprimand. Nothing serious, usually, he says, but they just get a little lax as most of us do at one time or another.

The girls always tune up and cry. On the many occasions he has had to reprimand girls, they have always cried with only one exception. Funny thing to me, how emotionally different the two sexes are.

Recently I was talking to Major Bill Turcott, home on leave before being transferred to California. Bill is a jet pilot.

"What's it like to break the sound barrier?" I asked him. "Nothing to it," he said. Although on the ground the sound may be heard for 30 to 40 miles, the pilot doesn't hear it. In fact, he wouldn't know it, except for the slight dipping of the plane.

At sea level the barrier is broken at over 700 MPH, while at 40,000 feet up it's broken at a little over 400 MPH.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

Surprise In Moody's Appointment To Utilities Body

By LYNN NISBET

MOODY—The appointment of Ralph Moody to the Utilities Commission was consummated with the dramatic finesse from which Governor Hodges has gained a reputation. Capitol newsmen and others who like to believe they can anticipate appointments, and persons directly interested in many of the issues which come before the commission, had speculated on the selection of a man to replace Fred Hunnicutt, whose term expired in February and who is retiring. Some two dozen names were mentioned—but not Ralph Moody's.

Close associates of Moody in the Department of Justice and no intimation of the appointment in advance of the public announcement late Tuesday. Although associates, prospective litigants before the commission and the public, were surprised, the reaction has been a mixture of 50-50 per cent commendatory. The halt of one percent which was not happy is made up of those who regret losing his services in the Attorney General's office.

Moody in his middle fifties, left a lucrative law practice in Cherokee county 20-odd years ago to become a State Government career man. He served for several years as counsel for the appointed assistant attorney general in 1945. It is known that the late Harry McMullan leaned heavily upon him in matters of constitutional law, and that on most subjects they shared a common philosophy.

Opinions expressed by State officials and lawyers practicing before the Utilities Commission is that he will strengthen the charge such officers immediately.

If we are to allow the destruction of faith in our law enforcement officers in a court of justice, then we are being parties to the destruction of the very foundation of our social and legal life. Society needs protection against those who can't abide by the rules. Officers are hired to protect society. A man's reputation is precious to him, and when the reputation and veracity of an officer is attacked, the officer's fitness to hold his position is at stake.

Our courts ought to do something about this matter of making scoundrels out of the officers and heroes out of the defendants. If we cause the general public to look upon officers with suspicion and distrust, then we have done a real disservice to all our people.

For the most part officers are honest and fair. The scoundrels are soon weeded out. We realize that a honest officer can make a mistake. But in case after case in court, the officer is attacked, and juries are prone to wonder sometimes just who is on trial, the officer or the defendant. And those watching the trial are subject to the same confusion.

When we destroy faith in law enforcement officers, then we have destroyed their effectiveness at the same time. Impeaching testimony is one thing, but calling officers names which indicate untruthfulness is another.

So long as we allow the present trend to continue, then so long will we witness a breakdown of justice. None of us wants an innocent man punished. Justice for each defendant is the ultimate goal of each case. It is not merely justice for the defendant which we must consider, but society is due ample justice too.

We ought to stop this practice of trying officers instead of the defendants.

Business Today

Small Town Monopoly

By ELMER ROESSNER

What many have long suspected—that small-town business is controlled by a group that keeps prices up and competition out—is largely confirmed by a case study by William T. Kelley, assistant professor of marketing, Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Kelley's case is a town he identifies only as "Collegedale," a community of 2,000 persons, an agricultural collecting center and the seat of a liberal arts college. Merchants' main competition is "Citytown," a manufacturing community of 50,000 about 20 miles away. Except for food stores there's only one of a kind in retail lines. Local businessmen keep it that way. When outsiders try to start competition, townfolk, under "strong social pressure," refuse to sell or rent space. When outsiders succeed in renting side-street locations, they usually fail—and fail fast. The social solidarity of the town keeps customers away, and even wholesalers refuse to supply them.

The town oligarchy, incidentally, is related closely by marriage, financial and social ties. Prices charged in Collegedale are appreciably higher than charged in Citytown. A popular brand of canned soup is 12½ cents in Citytown and 15 or 16 cents in Collegedale. Cleaning and pressing a man's suit is 80 cents in Citytown; $1.12 in the village. Retailers charge "manufacturers' priced" prices in Collegedale.

However, pricing is not overdone. Prices are never high enough to drive customers to Citytown, nor to tempt outsiders with enough capital to buck the local monopoly. Conceivably, a large chain could locate outside the main shopping area and with intense advertising and price promotion, crack the little monopoly.

Professor Kelley who reports on his study in the current issue of New York University's "Journal of Retailing," observes that while there may not be overt collusion among local merchants, each is on friendly terms with colleagues and channels of communication are very free. Furthermore Federal and state anti-trust laws are rarely enforced on the local level.

Price cutting, Mr. Kelley finds, is frowned upon in Collegedale. Anybody who sold 25-cent boxes of aspirin for 24 cents, the reader gathers, would find ants in his cream at the next strawberry festival.

CAPTURES PITCHES ON FILM AND TAPE A darned ingenious device is disclosed by Harry Martin in Retailing Daily. When a Midwestern buyer comes to New York, he brings along a movie camera and a portable tape recorder. On film and tape, he records the pitches that salesmen make to him.

When the buyer gets home, he shows movies of the dresses he has bought and plays the seller's description and sales pitch. Store employees become supercharged with the selling points of the garments.

This idea need not be limited to the garment trade. Buyers in all lines can use it to stimulate retail salespersons. And manufacturers could provide such pictures and sounds of their own personnel. And stores could use hidden microphones to record the techniques used by top personnel in making sales, and then play the recordings back to teach others. There's almost no limit to the uses of film and records.

INQUIRIES INDICATE BIGGER TRAVEL YEAR

A sharp increase in auto travel is reported by the American Automobile Association. In the first quarter of this year, 7 per cent more people and more auto clubs for outings than asked in the same period a year ago. Routing requests are a good index of travel volume.

The largest increase was in requests for routes to Mexico. They were up 105 per cent. There was a slight drop in inquiries about routes to California, Eastern Canada and Alaska.

Old Traditions Of Hill Country

By HAL BOYLE

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP)—Leaves from a touring notebook:

Girls, if you want to be sure you'll have plenty of pork chops all your life, marry a man with hairy legs. Hairy-legged men make the best hog raisers.

Mother, if your child is crying with colic, it can be relieved by rubbing its stomach with a bone from a pig's foot.

So the mountain people here believe in the old days anyway—and some of them do.

Bill Postlewaite, young weekly newspaper publisher here, makes a hobby of collecting quaint remedies and superstitions that have been handed down for centuries among the Southern Highlanders.

He has a living museum of hillfolk lore highly popular with tourists. Here are a few random samples:

For baby chicks—"To have good luck raising baby chicks, throw the hatched egg shells over a house top."

For earache and headache—"Blow tobacco smoke in each ear."

For warts—"Warts may be removed by rubbing each wart with a bean split open, then burying the bean halves under the drop of the house for 7 days."

For chicken pox—"Have the person with the pox lie down on the ground and run some chickens over him."

To keep away disease—"Wear a strip of flannel around the body."

For slobbering children—"To stop a baby's slobbering, go to the brook and get a minnow's tail."

Of course, later, when he grows up, he may go to Harvard and swallow goldfish for fun.

Poison day—"The most poisonous day of the year is the 27th of August," just why this particular day has this odd distinction no one seems to know.

For rheumatism—"Take the bark of a cherry tree, put it in corn whiskey and drink it." Well thought of. If, in an emergency, the victim feels a twinge of rheumatism when no cherry tree is near, he is said to be afforded some relief if he forces down a bit of whiskey without the bark. He can always get the bark another day.

There is a legend in Africa that old elephants, feeling death near, travel to a secret burying ground to die—and that anyone lucky enough to stumble into this pachyderm cemetery would find a king's ransom in valuable ivory.

The legend, ridiculed by naturalists, arose because the remains of wild elephants who die natural deaths in the jungle are rarely seen.

The same thing is true of black bears, which now abound again in the Great Smoky Mountains. Where do the bears die?

"I have never found the skeleton of a bear except one that was shot or had been run over," remarked Jack Huff, who has spent his life in these mountains and perhaps knows them as well as any man alive.

"What happens to them? I have a theory that, when they get sick and old they go into hibernation, and simply don't last through the winter. They covered up in their holes, a skeleton is why you never see the skeletons."

If Huff's theory is true, the bear is more fortunate than most wild creatures. Nature allows to few the privilege of dying asleep, peacefully in bed.

proof.

Rival distillers and a good many ABC folks think the bootleggers will refill the legal bottles and continue sales of off-brand stuff at odd-hours and to minors, with less chance of apprehension because of the legalized sales. They further contend that the very problem in liquor law enforcement is not the one-pint sales, but the gallon and multi-gallon sales at prices far below the legal rate of $19.20 per gallon. One man, obviously not nameable, said he could buy 8-gallon jugs of kags at $25 apiece. He didn't say whether he had to make a deposit on or return the containers.

Another angle to the whole question is the profit motive. Bootleggers are in the business solely for profit. The ABC stores are in the business ostensibly for control, and more of the original control advocates are wondering if the profit motive

S.C. School Hearing Opens Before Federal Court Today

By ALDERMAN DUNCAN
COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—A Federal District Court begins hearing today the first grade school segregation case since the U.S. Supreme Court's May 31 decree that segregation must be ended as soon as practicable.

The question before the three-judge court was what to say now about ending segregation in the Summerton school district of Clarendon County, one of this state's 162 other school districts were involved directly.

What the three-judge court does say, however, could set a pattern in the South. The proceedings were watched closely by state officials from Virginia to Texas.

In considering the Summerton case, the court may take local conditions into consideration in arriving at an order to the school trustees.

The enrollment in the Summerton primary and high schools last May was 2,479 Negro pupils to 297 whites.

The district trustees have said they will close the schools rather than mix white and Negro pupils. They have the backing of the community's white population.

The Summerton case was one of the five in which the Supreme Court held that racially segregated schools are unconstitutional. It went to the Supreme Court on appeal after the three-judge court first held in 1952 that separate schools were legal as long as facilities were equal.

Composition of the three-judge court is the same as it was in 1952. Members are John J. Parker and Armistead A. Doble of the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals and George Bell Timmerman, district judge here.

In a Circuit Court ruling yesterday, Parker and Doble joined in reversing Timmerman in a Columbia bus segregation case. Timmerman had held that his court lacked jurisdiction to try a Negro woman's suit against the South Carolina Electric and Gas Co. The woman claimed she was wrongly forced to move to a seat in the rear of a bus because of her race.

Timmerman based his dismissal on the ground that the Supreme Court had not expressly repudiated the old "separate but equal" doctrine. School segregation cases, he said, did not set a precedent in the public transportation field.

The Appellate Court said, however, that "we do not think that the separate but equal doctrine . . . can any longer be regarded as a correct statement of the law."

Most of this year's legislation followed a pattern set by New York last year. After hearing a committee report on charity abuses, the New York Legislature adopted a law requiring charity organizations to register with the State Department of Welfare.

The synod adopted plans for a campaign to raise three million dollars beginning next year. The new school is expected to involve an outlay of about five million dollars.

Flora Macdonald College was chosen as the site of next year's meeting.

The first contingent of the 3,100 of the 187th, stationed in Japan five years, arrived at Camp MacKall N. C., early yesterday. Since then the planes have landed at regular intervals. The operation is to end Sunday.

By then, the Revenue Department hopes to open a special auditing unit in the building housing the Internal Revenue Bureau in Greensboro. Federal returns filed by self-employed persons will be examined and transcripts made for comparison with state returns in Raleigh.

C. G. Freeman of Greensboro, who retired last year after 23 years as chief auditor of the federal tax headquarters in Greensboro, will head the state's new audit unit. In addition, the staff will include a chief clerk and four auditors.

Legislatures Are Today Fighting Charity Rackets

CHICAGO (AP)—Legislatures in four more states cracked down this year on charity rackets, said to be fleecing the public of up to 120 million dollars annually.

Income tax statistics show that an average American family does out about $88 a year to charities ranging from lonely street corner beggars to nationwide drives.

An Associated Press survey shows that Maine, Utah, New Mexico and Oklahoma either adopted new charity laws or made existing laws tighter this year. At least five states already had laws to monitor charity operations. Proposals for charity laws in eight other states were either defeated, killed in committee actions or are still pending.

Most of this year's legislation followed a pattern set by New York last year. After hearing a committee report on charity abuses, the New York Legislature adopted a law requiring charity organizations to register with the State Department of Welfare.

Tell Off Boss To Avoid Breakdown

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Want to avoid a heart attack because of worry at work? Then tell off your boss—factfully.

Or as Dr. David Gelfand puts it: "Get it off your chest, low your stack."

Dr. Gelfand has a unique job. He heads the cardiac work evaluation unit at Philadelphia General Hospital under the sponsorship of the Heart Assn. of Southeastern Pennsylvania and in 2 1/2 years of careful study has examined 438 men and women.

Nearly all of the patients are referred to the unit by industries anxious to determine the heart victim's capacity for work—whether he be tired businessman or frustrated ditchdigger.

Dr. Gelfand said 46 per cent of the patients—each examined by a cardiologist, a vocational counselor, a medical social worker and a psychiatrist—have a psychological factor which "is a basic insecurity."

"Resentment that is not expressed goes into the cardiovascular system," he said, "where it tightens the blood vessels. Continued insult to blood vessel tissues results in permanent hypertension from competent instructors in the crafts, gym work, letics, including track, baseball and basketball. LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dr. Henry David, secretary of the National Manpower Council, says that if women continue to take jobs at their present rate, the day may come when men won't have to work at all. He told a regional conference on womanpower yesterday that female employment has increased 125 per cent in the last 10 years. Man's employment has increased only 55 per cent.

Elks Sending 12 Boys To Camp

Greenville Elks Lodge will again this summer send 12 worthy boys from eight to 15 years of age to the North Carolina Elks Camp for Boys, near Hendersonville, for two weeks.

Camp for Boys Committee Chairman Dale Gidley said the Elks will pay all expenses, provide transportation to and from camp, with a member of the lodge in charge. Each boy is to be provided with $5 spending money. Elks lodges in Wilson, Rocky Mount, Washington, Kinston and New Bern also will send a dozen boys to the Elks' Summer Camp. The boys will leave the morning of July 31 and travel in motor buses.

The boys will receive daily instruction from competent instructors in the crafts, gym work, letics, including track, baseball and basketball. The youngsters will go on mountain hikes and picnics and will visit other camps in the mountains.

A record 2,700,000 mink skins were sold in the United States in 1954.

By then, the Revenue Department hopes to open a special auditing unit in the building housing the Internal Revenue Bureau in Greensboro. Federal returns filed by self-employed persons will be examined and transcripts made for comparison with state returns in Raleigh.

C. G. Freeman of Greensboro, who retired last year after 23 years as chief auditor of the federal tax headquarters in Greensboro, will head the state's new audit unit. In addition, the staff will include a chief clerk and four auditors.

Board Set Up For New Church Gift Foundation

BARIUM SPRINGS, N.C. (AP)—A board of directors for the newly established gift foundation was named here yesterday at the closing session of the 152nd annual meeting of the North Carolina Presbyterian Synod.

The North Carolina Synod Foundation was established to "simulate the making of gifts to Presbyterian causes, and at the same time provide a vehicle for the management of such gifts."

Given three-year terms on the board were Archie McLean of Rocky Mount, the Rev. J. M. Murchison of Concord, Charles G. Rose of Fayetteville, John Williams of Raleigh, the Rev. Chester Alexander, Burlington, and D. M. Calhoun of Elizabethtown.

W. Roy Robinson of Gastonia, Joe Grier of Charlotte and Tully D. Blair of Winston-Salem were named to one-year terms.

The new four-year college approved during the meeting will provide during the meeting still Wilmington, Orange and Fayetteville presbyteries.

Plans for the new school were adopted but selection of site probably won't be made for a year, synod officials said. Fayetteville, Southern Pines, Kinston, Kenansville and Laurinburg have bid for the school.

The new school will be a consolidation of Peace Junior College at Raleigh, Presbyterian Junior College at Maxton and Flora Macdonald College at Red Springs.

Named to at-large seats on the college's board of trustees were Dr. Harry Moffett of First Church,

Troops Continue Disembark From Huge Transports

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—Troops of the 187th Regimental Combat Team (RCT) disembarked from huge Globemaster transport planes today as Operation Gyroscope—called history's biggest airlift—continued during its final phase.

The 38 Globemasters are returning the troops from Itazuke Air planes of the 18th Air Force a Force Base, Japan. The same week ago began flying 3,900 men of the 508th Regimental Combat team from Ft. Campbell, Ky., to Japan as replacements for the 187th.

The first contingent of the 3,100 of the 187th, stationed in Japan five years, arrived at Camp MacKall N. C., early yesterday. Since then the planes have landed at regular intervals. The operation is to end Sunday.

Larry Jackson Leads Cards To 6-1 Win Over Brooklyn

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Larry Jackson, one of those "Who he?" guys the St. Louis Cardinals unveiled in the first game of the exhibition season last spring, is still a mystery man for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

It was Jackson who worked the first three innings of the Florida game, teaming with Floyd Woolridge, Barney Schultz and Herb Moford to shut out the New York Yankees. Hardly anyone ever has heard of the four pitchers "kill them."

Only Jackson has stuck all the way with the Cards and he's picked the Dodgers, of all people, to prove he belongs. The 24-year-old right-hander had them playing dead again last night winning 6-1 after shutting out the National League leaders for 1-13 innings.

Jackie Robinson's double and Carl Furillo's single spoiled a second shutout for Jackson against the Brooks.

The defeat pared the Dodgers' lead over Milwaukee to 10½ games. The second-place Braves brushed off Philadelphia 7-1. New York's Giants edged up on the Chicago Cubs 3-2 and Cincinnati walloped Pittsburgh 18-1.

In the American, Cleveland pulled to within four games of New York by beating the Yanks

5-4 and third-place Chicago moved to within a half game of the Indians by sweeping a two-nighter from Washington 13-4 and 5-2. Boston split with Detroit losing 6-0, then winning 7-3. Baltimore swept its evening-night twin bill at Kansas City 10-7 and 6-4.

Stan Musial, the fellow who won the All-Star Game, hit his 20th homer and Wally Moon smacked his 12th as the Cards pounded six Brook pitchers for 11 hits in support of Jackson's fifth victory. Until the ninth the Brooks got just two hits off the youngster—both by Roy Campanella, back for the first time since June 28 after a knee injury.

Al Rosen and Larry Doby each hit homers for the Indians, with Rosen's blow touching off a two-run rally that won it in the eighth. Al Smith singled in the big run after Rosen's clout had tied it 4-4. All New York's runs were off Bob Lemon. Ray Nariecki won in relief. Jim Konstanty, the Yanks' ace fireman, suffered his first defeat.

A seven-run fourth inning, which included triples by Jim Busby and Orestes Minoza, packed away the opener for the White Sox. Dick Donovan won his 11th in the nightcap as the Sox slugged rookie Ted Abernathy to break a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning. Jim Rivera doubled, Wally Dropp singled and Sherm Lollar homered in the rally.

Successive seventh-inning home runs by Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen eased the Red Sox home in the second game at Detroit after rookie Frank Lary had six hits in the opener, retiring Williams four straight times. The Tigers gave Lary five runs in the first inning on doubles by Harvey Kuenn Ray Boone and Jim Delinger.

Milwaukee stayed on Brooklyn's trail as Buhl spaced five hits while fanning 12 Phils. Bobby Thomson and Hank Aaron homered and Andy Pafko contributed a two-run single. Andy Seminick's homer in the ninth spoiled the shutout.

The Giants drew to within a game of the third-place Cubs, setting up their final two runs with stolen bases. Don Mueller homered for the first New York run off loser Bob Rush.

Everybody got in the Cincinnati hitting act to pound the Pirates. Johnny Temple had 5-for-7, including a bases-loaded triple, and Wally Post hit two homers.

Two late-inning rallies pushed the Orioles to within a half game of seventh place. Gus Triandos belted his second homer of the game with two on as Baltimore scored six runs in the seventh inning to win the opener. The Orioles clipped the A's for five runs in the eighth inning of the nightcap with Davy Philley knocking a two-run homer.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—You can say this much for Ezzard Charles: whatever you might think of his vilify as a prize fighter, he's the most grimly persistent cuss the heavyweight division ever saw.

As recently as last September, Tigers gave Lary five runs in the first inning on doubles by Harvey Kuenn Ray Boone and Jim Delinger.

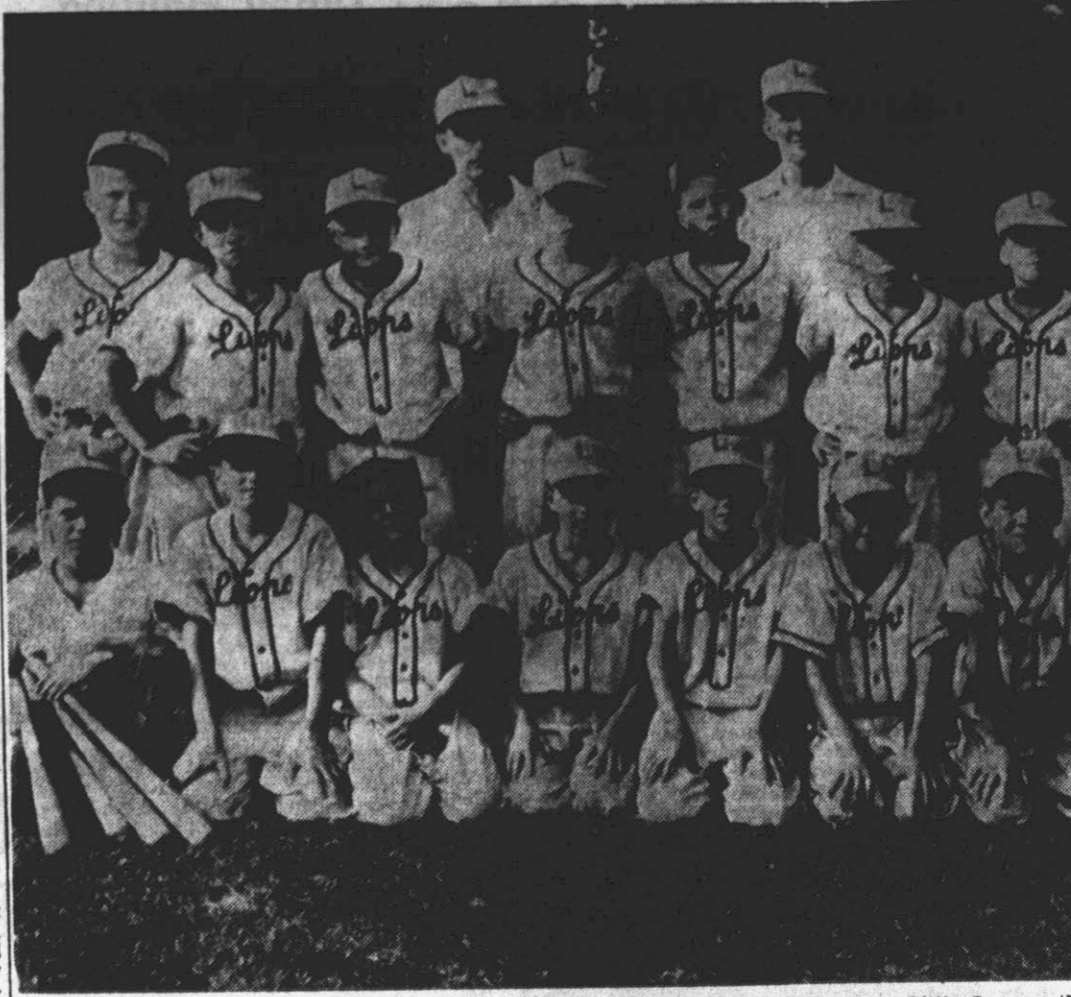

And yet, here old Es is back again, like a man on a cocked stick. We'll be the last to contend that he was a wolf with a curly tail against young Paul Andrews the other night in Chicago. But he did win over a very promising young man, and the official who voted for Andrews must have been looking at another fight.

As a reward, the former champion has been assigned the unenviable task of trying to cool off Hurricane Jackson in Syracuse next month. If he does score a decisive victory over the wild man from Long Island, what do you think? Why nothing much except a fellow named Ezzard Charles sticking out as the most logical candidate to fight Marciano yet again providing the Rock beats Archie Moore Sept. 20.

Before you scream foul, look over the list. Jackson tops the new since he recently wiped out an earlier defeat by Jimmy Slade. He's a tireless, rugged customer, if slightly erratic in his thinking and he promises to give Es a very hard time. But say that the veteran does master him, who is around after that for Es to conquer?

Nino Valdes, beaten by Moore? Holman, licked by Es in a return go only a month ago? Floyd Patterson, only 20 and 170 pounds? Or shall we bring Don Cockell back against Es? Of course, if Moore should lift the crown, there will be nothing to worry about for a time, because Archie is committed to give Rocky a return shot. We are only assuming that things will come to the worst.

North State Lions Lead Pack

The Lions sort of figure they've got the second half championship of the North State Little League coming to them. They lost the first-half flag by one game after leading the pack most of the way and this time it's the same old story, only a little better in the Lions' favor.

At the moment they lead the division with a 6-2 record and have only to defeat the Jaycees tomorrow afternoon to wrap it up. Kiwanis, the club that tossed them out last time, has already been eliminated as a contender.

Coaches Joe Dudley and Jack Windley speak openly about how pleased they are with the teams' showing. "We've played good ball this half, as did we the first half, but this time our chances appear a lot brighter," Windley said.

McArthur Big Factor

Both coaches are quick to point out probably the biggest factor in the team's success—Allen McArthur. He had just finished his third win a two-hitter over the Kiwanis. The little righthander had pitched five and one-third innings without giving up a hit.

But hitless games are old stuff to Allen. The fastballer owns the only perfect game in Little League. He sat the Jaycees down without a hit and permitted no man to reach first. He has won three games without a loss.

The Lions have one of the best pitching corps in Little League. Mac McKenzie, Tadpole Cates, Rommie Brock and David Miller join McArthur as stoppers. All are righthanders and play other positions when not pitching because of their valuable hitting.

"We have the leading four hitters in the league on our team," Windley pointed out. "Brock is pacing everybody with a .42 mark, followed by Leo Starling with .419, McKenzie with .404 and McArthur with .391. We also have another fine hitter in Miller who has an even .300 average."

Balanced Team

This kind of power is also balanced by good defense, according to Windley. "We think we have the best infield in the circuit and our outfielders are capable defenders," he declared.

Windley named his usual starting lineup as follows: Rommie Brock, catcher; Leo Starling, first base; Rob Moffet, second base; Mac McKenzie, third base; Ernest Larkin, shortstop; David Miller, Tadpole Cates and Lonnie Staton, outfielders.

Valuable reserves that Windley singled out are Bob Hughes, Elmer Dale, Robbie Powell, J. D. Taff, Tommy Campbell and Badger Johnson.

Favorites Advance In Atlanta Tourney

ATLANTA (AP)—There were no upsets—and only one close call—in the four top-seeded players moved into the semifinals of the National Clay Courts Tennis Tournament.

Defending Champion Bernard Barsten of San Angelo, Tex., was extended yesterday when young Jerry Moss of Monterey, Calif., defeated him six games to four to win the second set. Barsten had the first set stashed away 6-3 when Jerry's forcing game sent him into an extra set where he rallied 6-4, 6-1.

Barsten is seeded No. 4 here. Ahead of him, in order, are Tony Trabant of Cincinnati, the Wimbledon champion; Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., and Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N.J.

Women's quarter-finals and doubles play featured today's program. Semifinal matches are booked for tomorrow.

Trabant took out sixth-seeded Sam Giammalva of Houston, Tex., 6-2, 6-1, 6-0.

Richardson, against Jack Frost, fifth seeded from Monterey, Calif., won 6-4, 8-4, 6-1.

Johann Kupperberger, the South African Davis Cupper and second seeded foreign entry, gave Moylan a rough time in the first set before succumbing 6-8. He dropped the final two sets 6-0, 6-0.

Moylan and Trabant met in the semifinals. Barsten and Richardson were set in the other bracket.

Top-seeded Barbara Breit from North Hollywood, Calif., swept past Audrey Brown of Southern Pines, N.C., 6-1, 6-0, to lead the women into the quarter-finals. Yola Ramirez of Mexico City, top-seeded foreigner, took Carolyn Ligouri of Brooklyn in two love sets, 6-0, 6-0.

Third-seeded Jean Clark of Birmingham, Ala., defeated Mary Lou Vash of Chicago 6-0, 6-3; Mimi Arnold, unseeded player from Redwood, Calif., upset seventh-seeded Laura Lou Kunnen of St. Petersburg, Fla., 6-3, 6-2; and Miami's Karol Fageros, fifth-seeded beauty, defeated Sara Turber of Evansville, Ind., 6-1, 6-1.

Dorothy Head Knode of Alameda, Calif., Pat Shaffer of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Janet Hopps of Seattle are the other women's quarter-finalists.

Little Kenny Joyner and Mac Griffin combined their pitching talents yesterday afternoon to hold the Pepsi-Cola team to three hits as they led their Moose mates to a 3-2 win.

Jack Whitley of the Pepsi gave up only one safe hit in the entire game for the Pepsi, but that hit came at an opportune time for the Moose club. Donnie Joyner's single in the third drove home two runs. The other run by the Moose was scored in the first when Donnie Joyner reached base on an error, went to second on a passed ball, stole third, and scored on a grounder.

Two errors, a walk, and a single by Whitley gave the Pepsi one run in the last half of the first. Another run came in the sixth on two errors, but Griffin held the Pepsi down without scoring another run.

No player on either team was able to get more than one hit.

Chico Carrasquel Swats Two Homers; Feels Better

CHICAGO (AP)—Shortstop Chico Carrasquel, tormented by criticism of his seeming lack of hustle and batting slump, should be off the Chicago White Sox hook today.

The 27-year-old Venezuelan, once hailed by many experts as "the greatest fielding shortstop around," came off the bench last night to smash homers in each game of a double-header as the Sox swept the Washington Senators 13-4 and 5-2.

Chico also played errorless ball and appeared to be regaining some of his old fire after taking his lumps from newspaper columnists and gathering splinters on the bench for nearly a week in a psychological move by Manager Marty Marion.

"These home runs, they feel good to hit," smiled Chico. "But you know last year I hit .265 and now I'm hitting same. Also I run to take a ground ball back of the mound and there is a close play at first, but runner he is safe. Then first day they saying Chico a bum."

Chico seems puzzled by it all, but those two homers—his 7th and 8th—may do wonders in pulling up his spirit. The boos he has been getting from the fans, the benching from Marion and the critical attention he has been getting in print—all these may have appealed to his pride or made him mad enough to start hitting homers.

His pair of four-baggers against the Nats may be his way of showing he now means business.

"I hope he's returning to form," said General Manager Frank Lane. "I was thinking Chico was getting too tired to play baseball."

The Sox blasted seven runs in the fourth inning of the first game, won by Mike Porcinoles on a three-hit relief chore. Dick Donovan took the decision in the nightcap, his 11th win of the campaign and sixth straight.

The Sox moved to within 4½ games of the league-leading New York Yankees and recorded their 10th and 11th victories over the Nats this season—10 of them in a row—against one defeat.

Snider, Erskine Out Of Lineup

BROOKLYN (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers went into the minors for another pitcher today after learning that Carl Erskine will be out of action at least 10 days and that Johnny Podres again has injured his left shoulder.

The Dodgers declined to say why they plan to bring up, but said they probably would make a decision today.

Erskine, suffering from a sore right elbow, was ordered by his doctor yesterday to take a rest. Later club official said they don't expect him back for at least 10 days.

Podres looked strong in the early innings against the St. Louis Cardinals last night, but he injured his shoulder pitching to catcher Ed Burbrink.

The injury-riddled National League leaders were further crippled when Duke Snider, the league's top man in batting in runs with 88, came down with what was described as summer flu. He didn't play last night and is expected to be out three or four days.

On the bright side was the return of Roy Campanella, who got two of the Dodgers' four hits off Larry Jackson. Jackie Robinson and Carl Furillo also returned to action.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

PITCHING — Larry Jackson, Cardinals, rookie right-hander one of only two pitchers to shut out Brooklyn this season beat the Dodgers 6-1 on four hits giving up two in the ninth when he lost his bid for a second whitewash.

HITTING — George Kell, White Sox, had 3-for-4 in both games of twinning double-header, driving in three runs, in 13-4 and 5-2 victories over Senators.

Ezekiel and The Earlier Captivity ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—II Kings 24:1-21; 25:1-21; Ezekiel 1:1-3; 2:1-4; 3:1-15; 11:14-20; 12:20-28.

In the reign of Jehoiachin, king of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, besieged the city of Jerusalem. The king himself came to Jerusalem, and Jehoiachin, his mother, his wives and all his princes went out to meet him.

Nebuchadnezzar carried the king, his mother, the princes and all the able workmen to Babylon in captivity. He also carried away all the treasures of the house of Jehovah which Solomon had placed in the temple.

After 27 years as prisoner, Evilmerodach (or Merodach), Nebuchadnezzar's successor, visited Jehoiachin in prison, and spoke kindly to him. He restored his rank, admitted him to the royal table, and gave him an allowance.

Ezekiel had visions from God, telling him to go to his captive people and tell them that if they would keep His statutes, he would finally restore them to their homeland.

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 124:1-2

Ezekiel and the Earlier Captivity

GOD TOLD HIM TO GO TO HIS PEOPLE IN BABYLON AND GIVE THEM HOPE AND COURAGE IF THEY WOULD KEEP HIS STATUTES.

Scripture—II Kings 24:1-21; 25:1-21; Ezekiel 1:1-3; 2:1-4; 3:1-15; 11:14-20; 12:20-28.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. THE LAST KING to sit upon the throne of Judah was Jehoiachin, who began his reign when he was 18 years old, reigning for only three months and 10 days when he was taken captive by Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon.

The Lord told Ezekiel to "go, get thee to them of the captivity, unto the children of thy people, and speak unto them, and tell them. Thus said the Lord God, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear."

We are told that he "did that which was told him in the sight of the Lord." Nebuchadnezzar's strong army came and besieged Jerusalem. Hoping to propitiate the king of Babylon, no doubt, Jehoiachin took his mother, his princes, etc., and went to meet Nebuchadnezzar. It was useless. He, his family, and all his court were taken captive, with all the able workmen of the country, and carried away to Judah's first captivity.

Nebuchadnezzar also carried away all the treasures of the house of Jehovah, and the treasures of the king's house, and set in pieces the vessels of gold, which King Solomon had made in the temple, as Jehovah had directed. Only the poorer people of Judah were left behind.

MEMORY VERSE

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."—Psalm 46:1.

For 27 years the king remained a miserable prisoner, then, after Nebuchadnezzar's death, his successor, Evilmerodach (or Merodach)—the name is variously spelled—came to Jehoiachin and spoke kindly to him, restoring his rank, allowing him to dine at the royal table, and giving him an allowance to live in comfort until the end of his days.

Lord God. Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin. "For I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord God; wherefore turn yourselves, and live ye."

This, says Alfred Barry, "was a kind of foretelling of the pity which afterwards was to be extended to the captive people when the divine purpose had been achieved and the exile had done its work of chastisement and purification."

What hope and courage must Ezekiel have brought to his sorrowing people by God's words. Did the Lord's people heed Ezekiel's message? Many must have done so; a new spirit must have swept over the saddened hearts of those who listened to the prophet.

Pup Has Bite He Can't Scratch

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Rippy has a bite he can't scratch. But he's doing fine after tangle twice with a rattlesnake this week. When the black dog cornered the snake between two sheds Sunday night, the snake struck and missed. Then it disappeared down a hole. Wednesday night, the snake didn't miss, sinking its fangs into Rippy's jaw. After the dog was hospitalized, his owner, Morris Engnehl, declared war on the viper. "I've got all sorts of sprays and bombs," he said. "We used to have 10 or 12 frogs in the garden—and they've all gone. They say where there are frogs there's no danger of snakes. Apparently our snake has eaten them."

New Four-Jet Plane Unveiled

BALTIMORE (AP)—The SeaMaster, new four-jet naval plane, was unveiled in a test flight yesterday by the Glenn L. Martin Co. Martin spokesman said security restrictions prevented the disclosure of details of the flight which lasted two hours. Several months ago, it was indicated the SeaMaster was designed to cruise faster than 600 miles an hour at 40,000 feet and carry an atomic bomb. California farmers raised 9,998,000 turkeys in 1954—more than any other state.

PEST ACCORD

TOKYO (AP)—Red China and Bulgaria have signed an agreement in Sofia to cooperate in curbing insect pests and plant diseases. Peiping radio said today. The plan provides for exchange of experts and information. Summer's dog days get their designation not because of their effect upon dogs but because, in the ancient Greek world, the dog star rose during that period, although it rises at a different time today.

Unfinished Crime

By Helen McCloy

In a hot case here on Fifth Avenue, New York, Sara Deere had unwittingly bought the "Fire of the East" ruby. To Dodge police, Moxon had ingeniously secreted this fabulous treasure on the jewelry counter there, but before he could carry out his plan to retrieve it, death claimed him. While making this purchase Sara Deere unexpectedly met her neighbor, Gerry Hesse, and had accompanied him to a cafe, where in the milling crowd, Moxon somehow appeared. A cat-like Oriental man tried to be friendly with Sara in the cafe, and as she walked home, a man with limping footsteps followed her. Moxon had served in the China-Burma-India theater of the war and afterward had turned to criminal pursuits.

On her way uptown to visit her Aunt Caroline that evening, the slim store ruby pendant hung about her neck. Sara was approached by a strange man who courteously offered her a lift in his car. She refused it, politely. Arrived at her aunt's elegant, Edwardian home, Miss Deere found Edna Greel, a noted art dealer, already there. He at once spotted the ruby as genuine, a collector's item, indeed! While Sara told Clive and her aunt discussed the gem, her aunt's old friend, Dr. Gregory Sallust, arrived, and Sara recognized him as the man who had offered her the courtesy of his car.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

No one had heard the doorbell ring, but now there were footsteps in the hall and Clive cried out, "Hello, Greg! You're just in time to settle a dispute about a jewel!" Sara looked up. A tall, heavy man stood in the doorway. His face was the wide, flat face of the man who had spoken to her when she was looking for a cab only half an hour ago.

"Mrs. Larch," he bowed over Caroline's hand. "So sorry I'm late. I had trouble finding a cab and . . . His glance fell on Sara. Either his start of surprise was genuine or he was a consummate actor. His smile was slow, resigned, a little tired. "I've seen this young lady before."

"Of course," said Caroline. "She's my niece, Miss Deere. You've probably seen her here when I had a crowd for tea."

"No. More recently. On my way here, this evening, Miss Deere, I'm afraid I alarmed you."

In the familiar, lamplit room, the rather coarse face did not seem threatening at all. Obviously, he was an old friend of Clive's. Sara felt foolish and ashamed.

"I was overwrought," she confessed. "Something had upset me and I was seeing monsters in every shadow."

"I'm sorry," he said. "I had no idea of frightening you."

"You were kind and I was silly. Did you miss the cab yourself?"

"Yes. Someone came out of the apartment house and grabbed it just ahead of me. . . . What's all this about a jewel? Hardly my line, Dick."

"All the better," returned Clive.

"Too many expert opinions here, Caroline's and mine. We'd like an amateur's reaction."

He held out the red stone. In the flashlight its flash leaped and shook like a quiver of candle flame in the wind.

"Whew!" It was the same sound Clive had made. Sallust took the stone almost as gingerly as Edna. "Is it real?" demanded Clive.

"Does it matter? It's breathtaking whether it's real or not." Sallust walked over to the table lamp and held the stone under the light. "How can you tell?" he sighed. "It looks real to me, but I'm only a neurologist. I know nothing about jewels."

"Of course, it's real." For the first time Clive was impatient. "I doubt it." Caroline was dry. "To me the whole thing is a monument to bad taste—cheap vulgar, lawless."

Sallust's pale, opaque eyes went from Clive to Caroline and back again. "There's only one way to be sure." He put the ruby down on the card table. "Take it to Cartier's or Tiffany's and get a really expert opinion. Perhaps I can help you there. One of my patients is a vice president of . . ."

Edna Greel spoke quietly. "Perhaps it should be taken to the police instead. You see, Dr. Sallust, there's some question of its having been stolen."

"No!" The words sprang from Sara, unbidden.

Caroline said, "Why not?"

"This business about Gerry disappearing. I'd like that cleared up before I go to the police about anything else."

"Gerry?" Sallust looked at Caroline.

"A young friend of my niece who is missing," said Caroline. "He was with her when she acquired this so-called ruby in rather odd circumstances. At least, they were odd if the ruby is real."

"It was on sale at the hink counter in a ten-cent store. Just as Sara bought it a man with a criminal record named Moxon was run down by a car outside. It's possible that Moxon had stolen the ruby and hidden it in the ten-cent store temporarily."

"And then your niece's friend, Gerry, disappeared?"

"With the box that had held the pendant in his pocket. He didn't know that Sara had removed the pendant already."

"I see," said Sallust. "You're afraid the police would jump to conclusions. And makes things uncomfortable for your friend if they found him. On the other hand, without this information, they may not be able to find him at all and you can't run the risk of going about with what may be a priceless ruby. You must find out whether it's real or not. For your own protection, I'd be very happy to take it to Tiffany's for you."

"Thank you, Dr. Sallust," said Caroline, dryly. "But we really couldn't think of asking you to take such a responsibility."

Sallust laughed. "You don't trust me? I don't blame you. But surely you can trust your old friend, Dick-

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market marched ahead today with some showing of vigor in the early afternoon.

Strength was fairly well distributed with many individual issues strong on specialized demand.

The rise carried prices up 1 to 2 points frequently and on to around 6 points at times. Losses ordinarily were small.

Business was better than yesterday at a pace that topped two million shares for the day. Yesterday's 1,900,000 shares was one of the lower totals of the year.

Higher second quarter and first half earnings of Granite City Steel, Allegheny Ludlum Steel and Republic Steel sent those stocks ahead and stiffened prices in the steel division.

A good earnings report put Monsanto Chemical up, and many others in that section made progress.

Beeger Refrigerator, target of merger rumors, had a block of 1,700 shares up 2 1/2 at 54 and then shot ahead between 6 and 7 points.

Western Maryland Railway, up 1 1/2 yesterday, opened today on 1,000 shares up 2 1/2 at 43.

Boy Apparently Killed Self; Found In Search

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A four-day search for 13-year-old John Cooley ended at a sun-scorched body, a .22 caliber rifle, and three small notebook pages scrawled with the boy's bitter farewell.

Sheriff W. E. Leybold said the boy apparently killed himself after he learned that Avery Cooley, whom he thought was his father, was really his stepfather.

The air and ground search by more than 200 men ended yesterday beside a dirt road within sight of Las Vegas.

Officials said the body had been lying by the road about 36 hours. The search began after he failed to return home Monday from a bicycle ride. He apparently was still alive when possees were searching the desert for him.

Deputies said he may have watched them, from a hiding place, as they passed.

Part of the note found by the body concerned family strictness. It was signed "John Cooley or Beasley—which is it to be?"

Leroy Barnes Elected Head Of Volunteer Ass'n

The North Carolina Volunteer Fire Association held its annual convention at the Negro Elks Home in Bonner's Lane Tuesday. President C. R. Miller of Fayetteville presided.

Thirteen volunteer fire companies were represented at the meeting. The next convention will be held in Warrenton.

The usual races and other contests were not held at this year's convention.

The convention elected Leroy Barnes of Greenville president; L. L. Tuck, of Wake Forest, vice-president; L. E. Hall of Salisbury, treasurer; J. N. Lyon of Enfield, financial secretary; J. H. Bissell of Greenville, recording and corresponding secretary; Rev. D. A. Wilkins of Oxford, chaplain, and John Mincey of Wilson, statistician.

The Rough and Ready Fire Company was host to the convention. Leroy Barnes is captain of the company and John E. Bissell is treasurer.

West Germany Votes Army Bill

BONN, Germany (AP)—The Bundestag approved today measures to call up the first 6,000 volunteers for the new West German armed forces this summer.

In a three-hour session the lower house:

1. Gave final approval to a bill setting up a civilian panel with veto rights to approve the appointment of all officers to the rank of colonel and above.

2. Approved in crucial second reading the "volunteer bill," which authorizes the Defense Ministry to enlist a maximum of 6,000 volunteer specialists to begin the task of setting up the armed forces.

Both bills go to the Bundestag for final approval on July 22.

Fire Hoses Help In Traffic Jam

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Fire fighters used hoses and hundreds of gallons of water yesterday to break up a traffic jam at the approaches to Point Street bridge.

The bridge was opened to permit passage of a tugboat and when tenders tried to lower the draw spans, they found that the heat had expanded the steel and the bridge refused to close.

ALL HE CAN EAT
ENID, Okla. (AP)—Frank Capper is going to get all the ice cream he can eat for the next 12 months. A dairy here is making the gift to the 16-year-old boy as a reward for finding $700 in checks stolen from the dairy. They were in the street.

Several European countries report that the number of storks has been sharply reduced despite rigid protection for the birds.

N. C. Attorney General Denies Any Conclusions

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina attorney general's office "has reached no official conclusion" with respect to plans proposed as legal means for preserving school segregation.

Atty. Gen. W. B. Rodman said yesterday that a proposal by one of his assistants, I. Beverly Blake, that communities charter corporations to operate private schools "is one of many that have been put forward in different Southern states."

"Differences of opinion among authorities exist as to the validity or practicability of these ideas," Rodman stated.

Lake advised Tar Heel communities to prepare to operate private schools to avoid integration. He spoke to an Asheville civic club Wednesday night. He emphasized he was speaking as a private citizen, rather than as an assistant attorney general.

Asked for comment, Rodman said Lake had been "careful to point out" that his speech did not reflect "an official opinion of the attorney general's office."

Gov. Hodges, in reply to a request for comment, also stated that Lake "was speaking as a private citizen and not as a state official." The governor said Lake's proposal "seems to be primarily a legal matter," and referred further comment to Atty. Gen. Rodman.

Rodman said his office has reached no conclusion on various plans proposed to preserve segregated schools. He said he would refer "before rendering opinions which might otherwise be prejudicial to the benefit of the studies being made in the state and the knowledge which may be gained from the suits and hearings now taking place in South Carolina and Virginia."

He pointed out that Lake is in Columbia, S. C., today and an observer at a Federal District Court hearing involving one of the suits on which the U.S. Supreme Court based its decision that segregation is unconstitutional. Rodman added that he and Lake also will attend hearings in Richmond relating to a segregation suit there.

Lake worked on the brief North Carolina filed with the court in the segregation cases and handled the state's oral arguments before the court.

Rodman said he feels strongly that members of his staff should be free to express their personal opinions, although it should be made clear that they are not official positions. In answer to a question, he said, "I have not and I will not" ask Lake to refrain from further expressions of his views.

"It is always difficult for state officials to express private opinions on such a difficult subject," Rodman said.

He pointed out that the function of his office is to "advise as to the law," not to formulate policy.
