'Should And Can Balance Budget' This Fiscal Year Says Humphrey

But Treasury Secretary Says Still Too Early To Pledge Tax Cut Backing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, using words he has cherished ever since he took office 2½ years ago, now says the government "should and can" balance the budget this fiscal year.

But he added at a news conference yesterday that is "entirely too early" to pledge himself to recommending tax cuts when Congress returns in January.

The official summer budget revision by the Treasury Department stopped $1,700,000,000 short of Humphrey's optimism about the budget outlook. The Treasury still predicted a deficit of that amount by the end of fiscal year 1956 next June 30.

That was 700 million dollars lower than the figure President Eisenhower forecast in his budget message to Congress last January. The cut was based on the following revised estimates:

1. Spending will total $63,800,000,000 this fiscal year—$1,400,000,000 more than the January estimate, but 700 millions less than spending of 64½ billions in fiscal 1955 ended June 30.

2. But the government's income will be swelled enough by the rapid economic expansion now in progress to more than overbalance the rise in the spending estimate. Receipts for the current fiscal year are now estimated at $62,100,000,000—$2,100,000,000 above the estimate made last January and $1,800,000,00 higher than the fiscal tax yield of $60,300,000,000.

3. The budget deficit is now estimated at $1,700,000,000 for the fiscal year, instead of the $2,400,000,000 forecast in January. The deficit for fiscal 1955 was $4,200,000,000.

The new deficit would be the lowest in five years, and would be only 3 per cent of total spending.

Even so, there was every indication that the $1,700,000,000 red ink forecast was little more than official caution. The budget review text said it was possible that "a balanced budget will be brought into sight as the year unfolds."

And Humphrey, obviously enjoying what he was saying read the following statement, made jointly with Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes, to newsmen:

"If there is ever a time when our budget should be balanced, it is now.

Americans are enjoying new peaks of prosperity . . . but this simply emphasizes the need for wisdom and restraint, in both public and private affairs.

"Everybody knows that no family can continually live largely beyond its means. It is worse for government to do so. History shows how continued heavy deficits contribute to inflation, with rapidly rising costs finally resulting in destruction of all values . . .

"Barring some unforeseen development, we think that we should, and that we can, balance the budget this year."

This brought immediate questions about tax cuts. Humphrey refused firmly and repeatedly to say the improved outlook necessarily meant taxes could come down next year. Just as firmly, he declined to say tax cuts would not be made.

Democrats in Congress have said they will initiate tax cut legislation early next year, regardless of the administratiin attitude.

Barely Finished Marathon Swim

KINGSVILLE, Ont. (AP)—Marathon swimmer Ray Muench climbed out of Lake Erie early today after completing a 22-hour swim across the 18-mile passage between Pelee Island and the mainland.

He was barely able to stumble up to a sandy beach. The swim marked the end of an amazing example of endurance by the 29-year-old Windsor man. It took him more than four hours to complete the last mile.

For most of that time, he rolled helplessly in the lake swell, within sight of a crowd of about 100 persons who had waited more than 10 hours to welcome him.

Hurricane Edith Is Cold-Hearted

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Edith, still carrying 80-mile winds, displayed eccentric behavior far out over the Atlantic today.

The storm, fifth of the year and third this month, has clung to the development stage for two days, a longer period than usual. All her hurricane force winds are on the northeast side, with only gales to the southwest.

This slow development, said forecasters apparently is coming about because Edith's heart is cold. An Air Force hurricane hunter plane dropped several instruments into the eye which radio the temperature, pressure and humidity.

"The eye is not quite as warm as could be expected, and this seems to be an inhibiting factor in the storm's development," said Gordon Dunn chief forecaster in the Weather Bureau's storm warning service here.

At 11 a.m. EST the center was located at approximately latitude 25.5 north, longitude 63.3 west, or 970 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C. It is moving toward the northwest at 12 miles an hour and probably will slow down to about 10 miles an hour for the next 12 to 18 hours.

Hurricane force winds—75 miles an hour or more—extend outward about 70 miles from the center toward the northeast. Gale force winds reach 150 miles to the north and east and 75 miles to the south and west.

Its position at 11 a.m. placed it almost due east of Miami and just under 1,000 miles at sea.

Caution was advised for shipping. A slow increase in intensity was predicted.

Last night Edith was within 100 miles of the area where Hurricane Diane was plotted Aug. 12. Diane, sweeping northwestward five days behind Hurricane Connie, lashed the populous Northeastern states with torrential rains, causing damage estimated at $1,600,000,000 or more.

Rodman Sees No Immediate Need

RALEIGH (AP)—Atty. Gen. W. B. Rodman disagrees with Utilities Commissioner Sam O. Worthington on the need for a special session of the Legislature immediately to deal with the school problem.

Rodman told newsmen yesterday the situation calls for "calm and serious thought not precipate action."

"The Legislature directed the appointment of a commission to study the whole thing," Rodman said. "It's just begun its work. I think the average legislator could very properly feel he'd like the commission to have full time to study and make its report. Then I think the legislator would like adequate opportunity to study that report before he was called to act on it."

Worthington who served in the 1955 and many previous legislatures, had stated he thought the Legislature should be called to consider a constitutional amendment which would allow use of public funds to support private schools. Rodman has expressed doubts that segregation can be maintained in private schools if they are supported with public funds.

Farmville Mart Has $46.60 Day

FARMVILLE—The local tobacco market averaged $46.60 in selling 844,946 pounds of leaf for $393,743.73 on yesterday's opening sales.

The figures were announced this morning by Sales Supervisor Charles S. Edwards.

Edwards said that Stabilization Corporation got 54 per cent of the leaf sold on the market yesterday.

The overall quality of the leaf was better than last year and there was a little more moisture in the tobacco, according to Edwards.

Top grades of tobacco were weak and there was more demand for common grades. The market strengthened some yesterday afternoon.

Edwards noted that the Farmville market sold some 141,000 pounds more yesterday than was sold the first nine days of last year. That was due to the short schedule and early opening last year.

Bar Association Needs A Lawyer

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The American Bar Assn., says it needs a lawyer to handle its affairs.

The organization's House of Delegates, which molds policy for the ABA's 58,000 members, defeated a suggestion yesterday to change its bylaws and permit appointment of a layman as adminis-trator of its Chicago headquarters.

The proposal had been advanced by the Board of Governors to give it wider discretion in filling the $20,000-a-year post.

Fogging Machine Works Overtime Against Insects

Greenville's fogging machine is working overtime now in an effort to rid the city of the swarms of mosquitoes which have appeared here since Hurricanes Connie and Diane blew over.

Pitt Health Director Dr. Walter C. Humbert said today that the machine is being operated for six or seven hours each night, instead of the usual three hours, in an attempt to eradicate the mosquitoes.

He noted that the city is being besieged not only by the native mosquitoes which have multiplied during the recent wet weather, but the area has also been invaded by two species of the salt marsh mosquito, blown in from the coast.

Fogging operations are hindered by the damp atmosphere, Dr. Humbert said. "The effect of the insecticide is lessened by the amount of moisture in the air and ground; therefore we are having to increase our operations."

He noted, however, that the salt marsh mosquitoes are unable to reproduce in this fresh water area, "and we will be bothered by no new generations of this species."

Neither the native nor the marsh mosquitoes are disease carrying insects.

The health director declared that other towns in the county, as well as in adjoining counties have reported mosquitoes are becoming a nuisance. Greenville and Fountain are the only Pitt County towns operating fogging machines.

Georgia-Florida Prices See Slip

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—Gross sales and prices slipped somewhat Thursday on the Georgia Flue-Cured Tobacco Belt at the seven markets remaining open.

Average prices on heaviest volume grades were from $2 to $4 a hundred under the previous day as final sales were held at Douglas and Valdosta.

Season sales totaled 210,584,406 pounds for an average of $46.65.

Auction bid averages per 100 pounds Thursday on a limited number of representative U.S. grades:

Leaf: Fair orange 49; low lemon 46; low orange 43; low variegated 37; poor orange 38; poor variegated 33; poor medium green 34.

Nondescript: Best heavy 26; best dark green 25; poorest dark green 20.

Local Market Sees Slow Opening Day Thursday

Leaf Sale Averages $45.54

Opening day sales on the Greenville Tobacco Market yesterday brought farmers an average price of $45.54 on one of the slowest opening days of the market in several years.

The Stabilization Corporation received between 50 and 51 per cent of the entire offerings on Greenville's five sales yesterday.

Official figures for the first day sale of the 1955 season released by Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee showed Greenville sold 2,040,778 pounds of tobacco and paid farmers $929,508.47 for the average of $45.54.

Yesterday's opening average was slightly more than $7.50 under the average price paid for tobacco on the opening day of the Greenville market last year when the average was $53.11. Sales yesterday were marked by a small demand on the part of purchasing companies for most grades of leaf.

Prices in most grades gained some strength as the second day of the season progressed this morning and the stabilization take appeared to be dropping off. Sales yesterday afternoon showed signs of strengthening and this morning bidding was more brisk on the part of company buyers than was the case yesterday.

Imperial Tobacco Company, which was not represented on Eastern Belt sales yesterday, had full buyer representation on the Greenville market this morning. Whedbee said Export Tobacco Company, which had no buyers in the Eastern Belt either yesterday or today, is expected to have full representation on sales Monday.

Common grades of tobacco appeared to be gaining strength on sales in Greenville today and there were some signs of strengthening in the better grades of leaf although Stabilization was still getting a large portion of top quality leaf.

An estimated one and three-quarter million pounds of tobacco were on warehouse floors in Greenville for today's sales. All warehouses reported full sales, and Whedbee said full sales are likewise expected for Monday.

Although yesterday's opening day average was down from last year's opening in Greenville, farmers who sold tobacco here yesterday carried home almost $600,000 more than was the case on the first day of the auction season last year. On the opening day in 1954 only 364,190 pounds of tobacco were sold in Greenville for which $193,410 was paid out. That compared with more than two million pounds sold yesterday and over $929,000 paid for purchases.

Whedbee said full five and one-half hour selling days are expected to continue on the Greenville market at least through next week.

Eastern Belt Has $47.86 Average In Opening Day Sales

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Growers received an average of $47.86 per hundred pounds for the 14,297,168 pounds of tobacco they sold on markets of the big Eastern North Carolina Belt on opening sales yesterday, the Federal-State Markets News Service reported today.

The price average was $5.47 down per hundred pounds from last year's opening figure, but the total pounds sold exceeded last year's opening sales by nearly four to one.

Sales were expected to continue heavy for the next few days.

The Federal-State Market News Service estimated yesterday's opening sales on several individual markets at from $45 to $50. The service said 30 to 60 per cent of the baskets offered were placed with the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. under government loan.

On opening day last year the 17 Eastern Belt markets sold 3,606,870 pounds, averaging $53.33. Losses in grade yesterday were mainly $4 to $10 per hundred pounds. The practical top price was $64. Only 10 per cent of last year's opening day sales went to the Stabilization Corp.

The percentage going to the government was higher and prices were lower than expected. W. P. Hedrick, tobacco specialist with the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, had predicted an opening day average of between $52 and $53.

The percentage of poor to fair leaf increased sharply in comparison with last year. Lugs and primings were sold in much lower proportions. Principal sales consisted of poor to fair leaf, low to good primings and fair to good lugs.

Meanwhile, there was no marked change in sales on the South Carolina markets and North Carolina Border Belt markets. Prices and quality were generally the same as on Wednesday. Changes in grade averages were mostly $1 to $3 per hundred. There were, however a few more increases than declines.

Gross sales Wednesday totaled 8,553,670 pounds, averaging $54.01, a drop of 60 cents from Wednesday. Stabilization Corp. receipts amounted to 29.1 per cent of gross sales.

South Carolina markets sold 4,774,332 pounds at an average of $54.01 while North Carolina markets sold 3,779,348 pounds, averaging $53.88.

Hears Insurance Firms Cancel Beach Policies

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The storm - harried North Carolina coast, already nursing big rehabilitation headaches, is facing another problem—insurance policy cancellations.

During a disaster aid meeting of about 85 southeastern North Carolina officials yesterday, Brig. Gen. Edward Griffin, state director of civil defense, promised to take up with Gov. Hodges and the State Insurance Commission, a report that insurance companies are cancelling contracts with beach policy holders.

During the two-hour conference state officials told the group:

1. To organize trained civil defense units to cope with storm emergencies, particularly in unincorporated areas;

2. To file the federal aid applications as swiftly as possible;

3. To reassess the value of sand dunes because high level federal Civil Defense Administration officials doubt their worth;

4. That small administration loans can be arranged for those who are still paying off on Hazel borrowings;

5. Arrangements also can be made for those who can't continue payments on Hazel loans.

Griffin, also head of the state disaster committee, was sent to Wilmington by the governor to hold a meeting on storm problems.

West Germany Offers To Help

BONN, Germany (AP)—The West German Red Cross today offered help to the victims of America's flood-stricken Northeast.

In a telegram to the American Red Cross, the German organization asked to be advised what it could provide.

Hodges Calls For Generous Gifts

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges has called on Tar Heel citizens to contribute generously to the special fund drives being conducted by Red Cross chapters in North Carolina to assist victims of the Northeast floods.

Hodges said in a prepared statement yesterday that "our damage" from the recent hurricanes "has not been so great as that suffered by our neighbors to the northeast." He added, "To help finance this vital relief the Red Cross is currently asking for a minimum of eight million dollars" in its nationwide drive.

K. C. Lattimer, director of the Red Cross' services in North Carolina, said the organization will spend an estimated $150,000 in North Carolina as a result of the hurricanes.

He pointed out that nearly 500 persons will need long-term rehabilitation assistance, including refurnishing, rebuilding and repairing of homes, medical and nursing care and occupational needs."

Planning Board Names A By-Pass

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

The by-pass adjoining the southeastern edge of the city has a new name.

Planning Board members last night selected Greenville Boulevard as the name for the highway.

Last month the board called for suggestions from local citizens as they sought to name the thoroughfare.

They found a long list facing them when they gathered last night. Included were: Speed St., Pineview Drive or Road, Greenville Turnpike, Eastern Pines Drive, Eastwood Road or Drive, Greenland Drive or St., Wayland St., Greenview Drive, Inland Road, Longacres Drive or Road, Southern Blvd. and Circle Blvd.

Greenville Turnpike was suggested by Mrs. J. W. Tyndall of Greenville.

Planning Board members indicated they preferred boulevard instead of turnpike and thus they selected the new name.

The name will apply to the road from the by-pass intersection with U. S. 264 to its intersection with N. C. 43. The city limits border the highway along portions of the way and will soon engulf the by-pass at one point.

Also coming up for discussion last night was the matter of establishing set-back lines for the city's streets. The board voted to ask the Zoning Commission to meet with them at the next Planning Board meeting to begin work on an overall city-wide plan for set-back lines.

Also discussed was the fact that lots were being sold in a certain section adjoining the city for which no plat has been approved by the Planning Board or City Council. City Manager James S. Hughes was instructed to look into the matter.

Ervin Distrusts Soviet Attitude

SHELBY, N.C. (AP)—U.S.Sen. Sam J. Ervin has called on the United States to keep up its guard and remain strong militarily despite Russia's apparent new attitude toward this country.

Speaking to a joint session of the Shelby and Kings Mountain Kiwanis clubs last night, Ervin said he doesn't trust the new Soviet attitude. He said he believed Russia may be only trying to lull us into a false sense of security. He warned that this could mean only a change of policy not a change of heart by the Russians.

Truck Loaded With TNT Hits Tree; That's All

SENECA, Ill. (AP)—A truck loaded with TNT rolled driverless three blocks down main street yesterday, struck a tree — but that's all.

Passersby gaped helplessly as the big semitrailer marked plainly as an explosives carrier, rolled down the street of this north-central Illinois town of 1,200.

The vehicle brushed against a parked car and fire hydrant before smashing into a tree.

Earl Dornick of Joliet, Ill., the truck driver had parked the vehicle after picking up the explosives.

He set the brakes and went inside. Slowly the truck began to move. The collision with the tree caused an estimated $2,500 damage to the truck's cab.

Tar River Tops 16 Feet; Still Rising

This summer house belonging to Frank Dail, 213 N. Jarvis St., is submerged as the flooding Tar continues to rise. Dail's home, located on higher ground nearby is still high and dry, however. (Reflector Staff Photos.)

Pitt County's highways remained free of water today, the Highway Commission office here reported, but the muddy Tar River was continuing to rise.

This morning the river's level stood at 16.09 feet, more than two feet above flood stage, and was continuing to rise. The river will cross the Bethel Highway if it reaches 19 feet.

Fred Edwards, of the Highway Commission, reported meanwhile that "everything is all right" in this vicinity. Edwards added however, that heavy rains in Beaufort County yesterday had pushed water over some roads but that all of these apparently were still open.

All equipment sent to other counties to assist in flood and reconstruction work from Hurricane Diane, has returned, Edwards said.

Meanwhile, yesterday's showers brought the total of rain during the month of August here to almost 12 inches, far above normal. Average annual rainfall in this area is about 55 inches.

Up To $900 Millions Offered Flood Disaster States

WASHINGTON (AP)—Six Northeastern states, struggling to rebuild flood-wrecked towns and factories, have been given another hefty lift from a sympathetic federal government.

President Eisenhower yesterday made available up to 900 million dollars for loans to reconstruct, repair or replace defense industries.

A preliminary estimate by the Army Engineers set damage at $1,600,000,000 in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Lt. Gen Samuel D. Sturgis, chief of engineers, made a personal reconnaissance of the stricken area. He spoke of "appalling" loss of life and "utter destruction." He forecast "one of the biggest toughest rehabilitation jobs since the one Noah faced the great flood of biblical days."

The President's latest flood relief move was made at his Denver summer headquarters after a flying visit to the flood area and conferences with state governors and federal officials.

Before leaving Washington Wednesday, the President had marshaled the resources of a host of government agencies to help in reconstruction of public facilities and to aid the homeless, the farmers, small businessmen and others.

On top of this emergency relief program — which may cost more than 100 million dollars — he ordered the loan program to spur restoration of the defense industries.

The plan also calls for granting of accelerated tax writeoff privileges to cover new capital investment. The loans — to come out of an Office of Defense Mobilization fund — are to be available to defense and defense-supporting firms which cannot obtain commercial loans on reasonable terms.

Army Engineer units were busy helping dispose of flood debris and repair damaged roads, bridges and like facilities. Sturgis said one of the most pressing tasks facing federal disaster workers is the removal of dangers to health and safety.

With this disaster "fresh in the minds of the public," Sturgis said, this would be a good time to consider the problem of better flood protection throughout the nation. He said the country still is a long way from "even the degree of flood protection the engineers are now technically capable of providing."

He said he would ask for about $750,000 for a survey of ways to guard the vulnerable Eastern Seaboard area from floods caused by hurricanes. He estimated adequate flood protection of this sort might cost about 150 million dollars.

While the government relief drive gathered momentum private groups were responding to Eisenhower's call for everybody to dig down and help. The National Assn. of Manufacturers wired the governors of the six states, offering "whatever facilities . . . may be useful to you in meeting the great flood emergency." The Austrian Embassy announced that 1,000 medical kits would be donated. And two New Hampshire cities, Laconia and Claremont, "adopted" the Connecticut towns of Putnam and Winsted, arranging to send them food, clothing and money.

In Massachusetts Gov. Herter extended throughout the entire commonwealth a state of emergency he previously had proclaimed for five of the worst-damaged counties. It was explained the action was mostly to expedite handling of federal emergency relief funds and supplies.

Lewis-Kemp Vows Spoken In Double Ring Ceremony

FARMVILLE—Miss Lois Grey Kemp of Burlington and Farmville became the bride of Alex Murdoch Lewis Jr. of Morehead City in dignified services Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Farmville Baptist Church. Miss Kemp is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Kemp and Mr. Lewis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Lewis of Morehead City.

The Rev. E. C. Chambiee of Burlington, pastor of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony, assisted by the Rev. E. W. Holmes. A lovely pink setting formed the background for the wedding. Basters of pink asters and chrysanthemums, burning pink candles in candelabra, and kentia palms were used to decorate the church. Pews were marked with bows of pink satin ribbon.

Mrs. Haywood A. Smith, organist, and Mrs. Bernice B. Turnage and Mrs. James M Chambiee of Burlington, vocalists, presented a program of wedding music, beginning 30 minutes prior to the ceremony. Mrs. Smith played "The Evening Star" by Wagner, "Ave Maria" by Schubert. "O Perfect Love" by Barnby "Traumerei" by Schumann, and "Calm As The Night" by Bohm. Mrs. Turnage sang "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte. Mr. Chambiee's numbers included "I Walk With God" by Brodsky and "O Lord Most Holy" by Franck. "To A Wild Rose" by McDowell was played softly during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white French imported hand-clipped Chantilly lace and gossamer nylon tulle. The entire bodice, scoop neckline and sleeves were enhanced with delicate traceries of pearl and sequin embroidery. The bouffant skirt cascaded into a magnificent train of lace edged nylon pleated ruffles. Her fingertip, two tiered veil of imported nylon illusion was caught to a tiara of lace encrusted with pearls and iridescents. With her gown she wore the bridegroom's gift, earrings of cultured pearls. Her pink bridal bouquet was of stephanotis, centered with two natural orchids, showered with valley lilies and pink ribbons.

The bride's only sister, Mrs. Janie K. Murdock of Burlington, served as her matron of honor. She wore a traditional length blush pink dress, featuring a petal top, pouffe-draped long torso of taffeta, sweeping skirt of nylon net and a stole of taffeta. A matching headpiece and shoes were worn and the matron of honor carried a cascade arrangement of pink cymbidium orchids and pink sweetheart roses, showered with pink lace, tulle and ribbon.

Mrs. Lewis chose for her bridesmaids Miss Ethel Horner of Burlington, Miss Mary Elizabeth Carr, Mrs. Charles L. Van Meter of Winston-Salem and Mrs. Wallace Warren of Dunn. Their gowns were identical to that of the honor attendant's and they carried cascades of pink cymbidium orchids and sweetheart roses.

Misses Jean and Janette Hoxie of Haverstown, Pa., twin nieces of the bridegroom, were junior bridesmaids. They wore gowns of blush pink taffeta and net, designed with high necklines, puffed sleeves and bouffant skirts matching sashes. Their headpieces and smaller floral arrangements were similar to those of the honor attendant's and bridesmaids'

Samuel E. Lewis of Charlotte was best man for his brother; and groomsmen were Douglas Kemp of Atlanta, brother of the bride, Arthur S. Simmons Jr. of Wilson, John L. Humphrey and James A. Smith, both of Morehead City.

For the wedding, the bride's mother chose a teal blue lace dress over light blue taffeta. She wore matching lace mitts and shoes. Her hat was of blue velvet petals and she wore an orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in a navy silk dress with bead trim, navy accessories, and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. E. C. Chambiee of Burlington and Mrs. Manly Liles directed the wedding. Mrs Chambiee chose a gown of light blue organdy, and Mrs. Liles' dress was of grey and pink sheer. They wore corsages of pink cymbidium orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bridal couple and their attendants greeted guests in the vestibule of the church.

For a wedding trip to New York City, Mrs. Lewis changed to a beige shantung sheath dress with matching jacket. She wore a beige and brown feathered hat, brown skin shoes and matching bag. Her corsage was the orchids lifted from her bouquet.

Mrs. Lewis was graduated from Farmville High School and attended Mars Hill and Wake Forest Colleges, graduating with a B. S. degree in sociology at Wake Forest. At present she is employed with the Alamance County Welfare Department as a case worker.

Mr. Lewis is a graduate of Morehead City Schools and spent three years in the Coast Guard. He attended East Carolina College and this fall will enter the University of North Carolina to continue his education for a B. S. degree in Business Administration.

Miss Lola Grey Kemp honored her attendant at luncheon at her home Saturday at noon.

In festive pink and white surroundings, a delicious luncheon of chicken salad, tomatoes, deviled eggs, pickles, tea rolls, and lemon pie was served.

Tomorrow is the last day Sheppard Memorial Library patrons may return overdue books without paying fines.

This week is being observed at the library as Forgiveness Week and all books, no matter how long they are past due, may be returned and no fines will be charged.

'Books and Stuff'

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

We assume that Dollar Day, Connie and Diane have occupied you enough during the past two weeks so that you didn't miss us too much. But just in case you haven't noticed—but we certainly hope you have—we've taken our annual two weeks off just lately, and that's why "Books and Stuff" hasn't appeared since the first Friday in August. We're now back regularly again, and will keep on with our usual weekly stint as long as you—and The Editor—can stand the strain. . . .

New Arrivals

Since we left off, several new books have come in for reviews, which will appear soon. . . . Chief among them and causing the biggest stir is Robert Penn Warren's newest opus, "Band of Angels," the Literary Guild's choice for September, about the very acute situation a young and beautiful girl finds herself in during the Civil War after she's discovered she's a slave. . . . The review, to be written by our good wife, will be in this column next Friday—we hope. . . .

Also just arrived from World Publishers is Margaret Webster's "Shakespeare Without Tears," in a new edition. . . . We recommend it highly to anyone who is even a little interested in The Bard, and especially to those who happen to be listening to our "Shakespeare on TV" broadcasts every weekday afternoon at 4 o'clock. . . . Miss Webster's approach, we're flattered to say, is the same as ours. We regard Shakespeare as a living, vital dramatist who is just as alive today as he was 300 years ago, as does Miss Webster, whose book certainly will help you see what we mean. . . .

Bible Story

From World Publishers again comes an interesting little item about the increase in sales of their Bruce Rogers World Bibles, which sell at a cool $150 apiece bound in cloth, and for $225 in leather. . . . After the "Bible Grandmother," Mrs. Catherine Kreitzer, won $32,000 on TV, answering questions about the Bible, twelve requests for Bruce Bibles came in all in a bunch, which represents quite some interest at $150 to $225 apiece. . . . Mrs. Kreitzer made America Bible-conscious, and now this week the little Negro girl from Maryland is making America spelling-conscious — which certainly is good news for us poor English teachers. . . .

Reward for the Little Engine

Most of us who have children have read, sometime or another, the wonderful book called "The Little Engine That Could." It's about a little engine that chugged up a mountain towing Christmas toys after all the bigger engines had failed, saying, "I think I can, I think and can, I think I can" on the way up, and "I thought I could, I thought I could, I thought I could" on the way down. . . The author has recently been discovered, and after over forty years she's going to get paid—all this time she hasn't received a cent of royalties. She's now 101 years old, her name is Mrs. Frances M. Ford, and she lives right outside Philadelphia. She wrote "The Little Engine" in 1912 under the pen-name of Uncle Nat. Finally a friend has proved who Uncle Nat was, and Mrs. Ford is going to start collecting royalties on her Little Engine—and we certainly hope she lives a while longer so she can enjoy them. . . .

Threat From Missouri

Ex-President Harry S. Truman has been talking about his speaking tour next month, when he's going to lambast the Republicans, no doubt. . . . He's also been doing something else besides thinking up speeches. He's been writing his memoirs, and we hear from the publishers, Doubleday, that the first volume, to be entitled "Year of Decisions," is coming out on November 2. . . It deals with his career up to 1946, and is going to be serialized in parts in The New York Times, The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and Life Magazine. Vol 1, will run 608 pages, so you can look forward to a nice long evening's reading with H.S.T., come November 2. . . .

Wren Will Ride Sea-Going Ship

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—More than a year ago a tiny wren fell on a freighter's deck 200 miles at sea.

Harry Clausen, carpenter aboard the American President Lines' Shooting Star, fed the famished and exhausted bird.

He put it in a cage. But soon he allowed it freedom of the ship as the vessel called at Adak; Okinawa, Japan and San Francisco.

In Seattle Clausen took the wren 25 miles inland and turned it loose. Next morning the bird was pecking at Clausen's cabin door for his morning ration.

The bird can keep going to sea with Clausen as long as it wants. And he figures he should have picked a more fitting name than Stupid.

Pleads Guilty, Scared, Broke

ATLANTA (AP)—Alex Lane, 21-year-old Negro, was in traffic court yesterday charged with driving 60 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone.

Judge Charles Wofford asked Lane how he pleaded.

"Guilty — scared — broke — and I got four children," answered Lane.

Judge Wofford ordered Lane to attend the court's driver training school in lieu of paying a fine.

President Turns To Fishing Again

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower takes another crack at trout fishing today—and plans to turn chef on the bank of the stream if his luck is good.

He arranged an early start on a drive to the ranch of Bal F. Swan at Pine, Colo., about 45 miles southwest on a fork of the South Platte River. Swan a Denver businessman, is an old friend of Eisenhower and the stream always is well stocked for the President's visits.

The President and his party usually set up camp in a pine tree grove just off the river. He and the others fish until they have an adequate mess of trout, then Eisenhower ties an apron on and turns to another favorite hobby—cooking.

The President got in his last previous round of trout fishing a week ago at a Rocky Mountain ranch across the Continental Divide at Fraser Colo. He caught several there, including a 17-inch two-pounder.

Combining work with vacation, Eisenhower yesterday took another step in providing for rehabilitation of flood-devastated Northeastern states.

He authorized up to 900 million dollars in federal loans to defense plants in the disaster areas. The program covers repair or replacement of such plants in cases where private commercial loans are not available at reasonable terms.

The President also approved a tax amortization speedup where rehabilitation of defense plants in the flood areas is undertaken. That permits a more rapid depreciation for tax purposes.

Sinatra Failed To Show, Loses Big Film Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Frank Sinatra has been replaced by Gordon Macrae in the lead role "Carousel," 20th Century Fox Studio's film version of the Rogers and Hammerstein musical.

Sinatra didn't report for work at the "Carousel" location at Booth Bay, Maine, this week. Last night the studio announced that Macrae was given the role. He was instructed to report to the studio Monday for pre-recording sessions.

On Sept. 2 he will fly to Booth Bay for three weeks' shooting. Shirley Jones, Macrae's co-star in "Oklahoma," will play opposite him.

Sinatra told newsmen in the East that he left the location because the film is being photographed in two processes. He said he did not intend to make two pictures at once.

Truman Believes Peace Is Ahead

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry S. Truman told a group of seven newsmen from the Far East yesterday he believes that eventually "peace will come to the entire world."

The former President added, in response to a question, that he couldn't forecast when it would come.

He said "Liberty is a continuing fight. We've got to keep after it. Each generation can add to it."

Connecticutt Industrial Area Is Just Shambles

By JAMES DELIN

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — The Naugatuck Valley, known as Connecticut's "industrial lifeline," is as smashed by floods as though a Panzer division traveled its length with all barrels blazing.

"It looks like the end of the world," muttered an old man on Torrington's East Main Street, shaking his head unbelievingly at the damage.

"I'm near 80, and I thought I'd seen everything, but never anything like this."

From Torrington, down through Thomaston, Waterbury, Union City, Naugatuck, and on to Seymour, Ansonia and Derby, grim scenes still unfold a week after the waters struck.

Waterbury presents one of the starkest pictures in its so-called "Brooklyn" section.

There the search for bodies still goes on in the masses of debris.

The scene is concentrated on a knocked-out railroad bridge.

So powerful were the floodwaters that freight cars on the bridge were knocked about like egg crates.

One green and yellow box car was thrown into a tenement house, ripping away the side of the building. The green and yellow car stands on a red car, which in turn settled on top of a black open freight car.

Wedged against what's left of the bridge are tons of lumber and other wreckage.

"There are still bodies in there," said George Russell, a Health Department inspector.

A concrete highway bridge just below and parallel to the railway bridge still stands. But against it lies an uprooted six-family tenement.

Other houses simply evaporated. You see a foundation here, a sink there. That's all that tells you that Riverside Street once was lined by homes.

Even residents of Waterbury are barred from this roped-off disaster area, patrolled by National Guardsmen. Only those on emergency duty are permitted in.

Bulldozers and cranes remove the wreckage, almost piece by piece. And as they do, another body turns up. Civil defense workers go through the area spraying buildings still standing with DDT the way a farmer sprays his orchard.

The floods, ironically, now are producing virtual duststorms as the mud dries.

Even in the center of the city, flooded but less hard hit than the Brooklyn section, the dust stirred up by traffic and winds is such that traffic policemen wear masks.

In Torrington, the voice of a tough-looking policeman quavers as he says:

"We've never had anything like this—not in the memory of the oldest residents or anywhere in the records."

Right in the center of the city was a European-style bridge that held eight stores, four on either side. The bridge is gone and so are the stores.

That cut Route r, one of the main east-west arteries crossing the state. One Bailey bridge has been installed, and another will be soon, but for a while yet they will be open only to trucks on the reconstruction job.

The water swept down Torrington's East Main Street, reaching to the marquee of the Palace Theater, flooding the A&P supermarket and scores of other business establishments.

"I live on the top floor," said the old man. "I woke up and looked out and all I could see was yellow water. Motorboats were going around, taking people out of windows."

Good Samaritan Turned Robber

SANDWICH, Ill. (AP) — A good Samaritan turned robber and took $270 from Robert Dieterline.

It happened this way, related police chief Carl Water:

Dieterline, of Sandwich, had a flat tire Wednesday near Sandwich. A motorist stopped to help. After they repaired the tire the unidentified motorist kicked Dieterline in the stomach and took his wallet containing $270.

Dieterline scribbled the license number of the fleeing auto on a towel. But he couldn't read his scribbling when he went to police to report the robbery.

Flying Debris Kills Young Boy

STROUDSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Flying debris from a dynamited bridge abutment fatally injured Jon Keifer, 16, yesterday and less seriously injured five others, including four children.

The dynamiting was being done in preparation for the erection of a new bridge to replace the West Main Street structure over the Pocono Creek, damaged by the floods.

Police said the fragments escaped a protective net.

Revenue Official Cites Returns By Tax Agency

GREENSBORO (AP) — Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews continued a round of speeches here today with an address at the dedication of the new Internal Revenue Service building.

Tonight he completes the round with an address to the certified public accountants of the state at a dinner here.

Last night Andrews told the Kiwanis Club that for every dollar spent to operate the Internal Revenue Service the nation gets from $25 to $40 in return.

He said the credit for the big return on the agency's spending goes to the attitude of the citizens of the country and the attitude of IRS employes.

Andrews said 97 per cent of the people voluntarily comply with tax laws and IRS employes are "trying very hard to make ours a service that the administration can be proud of both as to its efficiency and integrity."

He said when the Eisenhower administration took office the IRS was "pretty well demoralized. The people in it were no longer proud of it."

Counties Added To Disaster List

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges was advised yesterday that Tyrrell and Washington counties have been declared disaster areas by the Small Business Administration.

Eleven other Tar Heel counties already have been given similar designation. Home and business owners who suffered hurricane losses are eligible to apply for government disaster rehabilitation loans at 3 per cent interest. The SBA has opened offices in Wilmington and New Bern to process loan applications.

Urgent Plea

A second appeal for funds to aid in the northeastern flood disaster areas was issued today by Pitt County Red Cross Chairman James S. Ficklen Jr.

All contributions should be mailed to the Pitt County Red Cross Chapter, P.O. Box 586, Greenville. Each contribution should be earmarked, "For Flood Relief."

Ficklen said that needs "are so pressing" in the disaster areas that there is not time to organize a campaign for solicitation of funds, and there will be no direct solicitation for money. "It is estimated that Red Cross relief costs will run to about five million dollars," the chairman noted, "more than the agency has available, and appeals are being made all over the country for contributions to the Red Cross so that the disaster needs might be met."

Canada Host To Russian Group

MONTREAL (AP)—Nine Russian farm representatives began a tour of eastern Quebec today after a month-long, 12,000-mile-long look at the United States.

The Soviet visitors received a mixed greeting on their arrival yesterday. Members of the Soviet-Canadian Friendship Society applauded and threw kisses when their plane landed at nearby Dorval Airport. Ukrainian organizations distributed leaflets charging the Communists with enslaving 100 million Europeans and shouted against their visit.

Three members of the 12-man party making the trip from the Soviet Union remained in the United States. The nine who came here will visit Quebec, Ontario and the wheat-growing plains of Manitoba and Saskatchewan. They will wind up their trip in Ottawa Sept. 9.

Yesterday they toured Montreal by chartered bus and exchanged formal expressions of good will at the office of Mayor Jean Drapeau. Last night the federal government stuffed them with a dinner of turkey ham, salmon, tongue and French pastries.

KNEW FIRST AID

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — Quick action by Kenneth Nordstrom, 16, saved the life of his 3-year-old niece Marva Dean Allen yesterday after she was bitten by a rattlesnake. He sucked the venom from the wound, then rushed her to San Pedro Emergency Hospital. After treatment, she was pronounced in good condition.

Greenlease Ransom Money Offers Clue

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Another of the missing Greenlease ransom bills has turned up but the FBI won't say whether it is making any real headway toward solving the two-year-old mystery.

James Milnes, agent in charge of the FBI here, reported last night a second $20 Greenlease note had been found this month. It was discovered by an FBI agent at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis Tuesday. The federal bank handles receipts from hundreds of banks in several states.

Milnes declined to say whether any more of the missing $303,720 had been found or whether the FBI was near a solution of the case.

The investigation was stepped up with the discovery of one of the bills Aug. 4 by an airport attendant at Minot, N.D.

There have been signs the Minot discovery represented the FBI's first real break in the case. The FBI is reported to be checking on the movements of certain figures in the ransom mystery and their associates.

Three other Greenlease bills previously reported found are believed Austin Hall, the kidnap-killer of to have been from the money Carl 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease of Kansas City, spent shortly before his arrest.

The FBI is known to have serial numbers of the $10 and $20 bills in each packet of the record $600,000 ransom paid in the kidnap-murder in September 1953.

Hall insisted, just before he was executed with his accomplice Bonnie Brown Heady, that he had nearly all the ransom when arrested in St. Louis Oct. 6, 1953.

The policemen who arrested Hall, Louis Shoulders and Elmer Dolan, are serving prison terms for lying about their handling of the suitcases from which slightly less than half of the ransom money was recovered.

YOUNG VICTIMS

SEOUL (AP)—The two-week-old encephalitis outbreak in South Korea has taken the lives of 29 children of 92 stricken.

Find Boy Caught In Refrigerator

DETROIT (AP)—Missing for two hours, 4-year-old Gary Patterson was found jammed between two narrow shelves when his mother opened the refrigerator last night to get a bottle of milk.

Nine-days-old baby sister Linda had cried for food. This may have saved Gary's life.

The boy's disappearance had touched off a police search.

"He was frothing at the mout when I found him," Mrs. Thomas Patterson said.

Taken to a nearby hospital, Gary was warmed and sent home.

He couldn't explain how he wedged himself into the narrow shelf space but he insisted:

"Somebody shut the door on me."

Cautious

COLUMBIA (AP) — Detectives today continued their investigation of an $8.50 check drawn on the "Bank of Anywhere, Anywhere, U. S. A." and cashed yesterday by a Columbia service station operator.

The operator said the check was presented confidently by a man, about 65, who had received $6 worth of service to his automobile.

The operator said he was "suspicious" but the man quickly gave him a phone number to call for verification.

The voice on the other end of the line, the operator said, assured him there was such a bank but advised him "not to cash the check for more than $25." After some discussion, the cautious operator agreed to $8.50.

Tobacco Prospects Still Look Good

While the tobacco market opening on the Eastern Belt yesterday was not up to the hopes of most people, it can be truthfully be said that the opening was about what most people had expected.

There were some discouraging signs on Thursday's sales, but they did not come as a surprise. It was a foregone conclusion that the Stabilization Corporation would receive in the Eastern Belt a large quantity of tobacco on the opening sales just as it did on the Georgia-Florida, South Carolina and Border markets. It was likewise expected that the big companies would show little demand for leaf on the opening sales.

Of course it is disappointing when the opening average for the belt drops below the opening average of the previous season, but with the great quantity of tobacco carried over from previous seasons plus the bumper crop which is being offered this year, we could hardly have expected prices to excell those of last year. As always, it is simply a matter of price being regulated by the relationship of supply to demand. Only in this instance we have government support prices which place a floor under the amount which must be paid for leaf.

Despite the lower opening averages and the large amount of leaf going to Stabilization, there are likewise encouraging factors which still brighten the outlook for this tobacco selling season.

Pitt County's tobacco crop is generally of better quality than it was last year. As in most other areas, Pitt has produced more tobacco per acre this year than last, and in spite of an acreage reduction Pitt's farmers will have more pounds of better quality leaf to sell this year than last. On the overall basis, it costs no more to produce the 1955 crop than it did the 1954 crop. These factors—even considering a slightly lower average price than last year—bring us to the conclusion that dollar-wise the farmer should receive more for his 1955 crop than he did for his 1954 crop.

Revised estimates of poundage which will be made within the next few weeks will indicate there is not as much tobacco as had been anticipated earlier in the season. This condition, coupled with the fact that competition for leaf has increased as selling progressed on southern markets, indicates a stronger demand and accompanying higher prices for tobacco as the season goes along.

Admittedly there are weak spots in sales on the Eastern Belt. But overall prospects for a successful season this fall appear most encouraging.

A Simple Proposition Is Really Complicated

Senator Kerr Scott's suggestion that this country sell its food surplus to Iron Curtain countries is most reasonable when, as he points out, we have offered to trade military "secrets." In terms of security, the lack of food is at least equal to the lack of knowledge of military capabilities. So, there isn't much to argue about on that score.

And the Senator is right again when he offers those Iron Curtain countries as a good outlet for our surplus foods. The problem of selling those items in over-production has been growing year by year.

One question was left unanswered in Scott's Goldsboro address to the Wayne Dairy Cooperative: who will do the selling . . . the federal government or private business organizations?

If it should be a private business, they will have to do business with U.S.S.R. governmental officials. It is questionable too whether the Russian trading organization would be ready to pay the world market prices on surplus items for they'd know full well they were "dealing from strength" inasmuch as this country was the one so anxious to dispose of its merchandise.

Then there is the question of exchange. In dollars, rubles, pounds or "items and raw materials for which we have a need"? The Soviet valuation of the ruble is several times its actual value on the world's markets. Manufactured items (for trading purposes) we turn out more profusely and of better quality than the Sovietized industry. Raw materials might be the answer; but there again they could also conflict with established world markets as well as involving a dairy products corporation with the problem of selling Iron Curtain ores, metals or fuels. The simple proposition expounded at Goldsboro becomes more and more complicated.

Another element is involved should the food-for-goods deal be consumated: Russia has a poor reputation for keeping contracts of this sort even with its own satellites. The satellites themselves, while probably being preferable trading areas are handicapped with Sovietization of their productive system; which means delays in delivery and unsatisfactory (by our standards) products they could exchange.

Back in the '30's there was a saying "you can't do business with Hitler"; and it could apply today just as well to the Iron Curtain.

So much for the deterrents of private citizens attempting to do business with the "other side."

How about putting it in the hands of a government agency? We say no.

Government in business has caused enough headaches and points the nation's economy in the very wrong direction of socialism.

Maybe an intergovernmental "food bank" that could deal directly with private interests as well as governmental interests would be the answer. Senator Scott has been promoting that idea too. That sounds more realistic than attempting direct sales and trade negotiations with the world of the Iron Curtain.

Varied Topics For Convention Groups

By LYNN NISBET

FISCAL CONTROL — W.E. Easterling, secretary of the Local Government Commission, explained improvements in the new county fiscal control act for the benefit of county commissioners at the Asheville convention. The 1955 act clarifies many sections of the old law, he said. Among significant changes is a simple definition of "surplus"—the available cash left in a fund after all commitments have been met or accounted for.

The functions of the county accountant are clarified and in some instances increased. The new law also requires county commissioners to adopt a budget resolution, showing sources as well as appropriation of public money, instead of the former simple appropriations resolution.

DEBT — Easterling gave some interesting figures on the local debt situation. The total debt of local governments on June 30, 1946, was $240 million. On June 30, 1955, it had risen to $396 million. Of that amount the counties owed $179 million in 1955 compared with $100 million in 1945. Almost 80 per cent of county debts contracted within recent years was for school buildings.

Admitting that he is "rather conservative" about borrowing money, he said he is not disturbed about the North Carolina situation. While the total county indebtedness had increased 79 per cent in ten years, the agregate valuation of property more than doubled—from $2 billion 840 million to $5 billion 943 million. He warned against the policy of pyramiding bond issues thus increasing the debt service burden. Bonds should be scheduled for retirement at a rate that would keep the debt service item fairly stable from year to year. That requires careful planning far in advance, but it can be done.

RETIREMENT — On October 26 the members of the Teachers' and State Employees' Retirement System and about fifty local government retirement systems administered by the State will vote on the question of merging with the Federal Social Security program. A handbook is being prepared and will be distributed within a few weeks explaining the advantages of the merger and the processes of voting.

Nathan Yelton, executive secretary of the State administered systems and designated agent to supervise the election, gave the county commissioners at the Asheville convention some data on the subject. He reported that there are 32 counties in the State-Local system; 60 counties which have adopted Federal Social Security; two counties with their own distinct systems, and six counties without any retirement benefits provided for employees.

Yelton explained that present members of the retirement systems would lose no benefits which have been "bought" by previous payments into the system, but would gain all the added benefits of the Federal plan. There will be a slight increase in the payments required to be made by employers and employees alike. Workers will contribute 3 per cent of their salaries to their own retirement plan and 2 per cent to the federal system. That 2 per cent will go to 2½ per cent in 1960, and under present laws will jump one-half of one percent every five years until it reaches 4 per cent in 1975.

It was emphasized that the merger does not give the Federal government any more control over the State systems than it now has. The law under which the election is to be held requires that a majority of the full membership must approve the deal, not just a majority of the votes cast.

Uniformed policemen and firemen are not eligible for Federal social security benefits, and the Attorney General has been asked to rule on the status of sheriffs, deputies, ABC enforcement officers and similar types of local officers.

HODGE—PODGE — Local legislative acts amending or changing state wide laws have brought about a hodge-podge situation in taxation policies. Henry Lewis, assistant director of the Institute of Government, amazed the county commissioners with his stories of absurd local provisions. There are 39 different methods of figuring discounts for prepayment of taxes, he said. In one county there are three applicable acts—the county has one plan, and two municipalities have methods different from the county and from each other.

One county has a law providing that if a tract of land is bought for an industrial installation, the tax valuation cannot be changed in ten years—either up or down—regardless of what happens to it. A multi-million dollar building would not increase the value, nor would the removal of timber or existing buildings lower it. Some counties exempt farm crops stored for shipment anywhere from taxes for one year, while adjoining counties exempt such produce only if stored for foreign shipment, and some offer no tax concessions.

Assessed values are just as diverse as tax policies but without as specific statutory authority for the differentials. Numerous local acts have either permitted or required postponement of revaluation in many counties. In some there has been no attempt toward equitable adjustment in more than 25 years, such "revaluation" as has been accomplished having been by across-the-board increases of a fixed percentage. That gets more taxable values on the books but does nothing to alleviate injustices.

Good Conduct, Good Govm't

GOOD CONDUCT AND GOOD GOVERNMENT
(The Wall Street Journal)

At first glance it might seem that to tell a Government official he may accept no gift or entertainment that "might reasonably be interpreted" as tending to influence his judgment would offer an insubstantial guidepost for his conscience.

Presumably an invitation to tea or a Christmas candy-box can pass as a social courtesy while a food freezer or mink coat cannot. But there is still no clear-cut dividing line to mark what might reasonably be misinterpreted. Each man is still to be left with his own decision.

There are few clear-cut dividing lines anywhere in the new code of ethics put forward by Secretary Weeks for the officials and employes of the Commerce Department.

Private business transactions, for example, are prohibited if they "tend" in any way to interfere with the performance of duty or may "reasonably be expected" to reflect discredit on the Department or become a source of embarrassment. In general, all Commerce Department employes are to avoid private activities that "may reasonably be expected to result in a conflict of interest which would tend to prevent the employe from exercising impartial judgment on behalf of the Department."

This is not a standard that will appeal to those who want rules laid out in precise array, nor will it be very helpful to men who need laws to tell them what is permissible. Yet for all that, it seems to us about the only standard to which both the public servant and the public can repair in the search for good government.

All that sad mess in Washington a few years back did not come from a want of laws; it came from a disregard—almost a disdain — for the requirements of propriety. Indeed, in this realm precise laws can be the enemies of good conduct. To set out precisely that such and such a gift is permissible to receive but one worth a dollar more is not—to so define what is proper is to remove from a man the burden of making his own decision and to deprive the public of freedom to make its own judgments about the conduct of its public servants.

The essential difference between the tone of our Government today and that of the recent past is not in any stricter adherence to legal statutes. Nor is it necessarily in the absence of men who may act without propriety; such there will probably always be. The difference is that the Government today does have a regard for the proprieties quite apart from the legalities.

These things are admittedly hard to judge, for what may seem reasonable to one man may not to another. And a code thus based is a harsh one because it deprives a man of the easy landmarks of well-defined law. Nonetheless, a code that demands the most from our consciousness of good conduct cannot lead us far from good government. And it may well be the only thing that will lead us to it.

But He Has Strong Backing

Somebody Told Me

The Noble Experiment Failed

Notice to all married couples who consider their mate to be messy: I conducted an experiment to prove that there was some junk around the house and it failed!

Notice of this experiment appeared in a column over a year ago. There was one particular drawer in the kitchen that seemed to be a catch all. So I took a large paper bag, emptied the entire contents of the drawer into the bag.

Next time Wife Rachel looked in the drawer she was amazed to find it empty. But she knew what had happened.

"OK," I said to her, "if you want something that's in that drawer, just ask me. I have all of the stuff put away in good shape."

So every time I thought about that bag full of junk I laughed to myself. And, living up to Dagwood's statement "Husbands are a sorry lot," I often brought this up in a crowd in order to rib W.R., who is as good natured as anybody could be.

But I tried this one time too many. Last weekend at the beach, in between slaps at the mosquitoes, I was telling the story.

W.R. came up with the squelch: "That bag had valuable things in it. I've found it and have been in it several times since you tried to hide it."

That goes to show you what a person will do to get even. W.R. had kept that information from me, just waiting for me to get in a crowd and tease her. It must have been three or four months that she waited to get me in the right position.

Junk is an interesting phase of married life. It seems that opposites attract when it comes to being junky. Either the husband or wife is junky, with the other one objecting at first. That's a good way to develop ulcers. Trying to fight something you can't beat.

There are some couples I know that are lucky enough to be neat. The others influence each other slightly, but one never wins the other over completely. One will become junky a little and the other will become a little neater.

A survey should be made of junky people and the garbage truck should make an extra run to take care of a little of it.

And I thank you.

Items In Poor Man's Almanac

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Items from the poor man's almanac:

If you think today's teen-agers do nothing but hang around street corners, you've got the younger generation all wrong.

A survey by Lester Rand, head of the Youth Research Institute, showed 7 out of 10 American teenagers hold down part-time jobs or earn money on the side. The chief sources of income: Working in drug or grocery stores, typing at home, baby sitting, ushering in movie houses.

Some 81 per cent of the teenagers receive a regular weekly spending allowance from their parents, but three per cent earn their full support themselves.

Being a teen-ager today like everything else costs more than formerly—and it costs more to be a girl than a boy. The survey showed that girls in the 13 to 15 age bracket outspend boys $2.72 a week to $2.11. The weekly spending of girls 16 to 18 years old averages $7.04, that of boys $6.93.

Teen-agers who date regularly spend an average of $5.55 a week on social activity.

When you get a new dog, do you put a great deal of thought into the selection of its name? Remember, the wrong name may give your pooch a lifelong inferiority complex.

There are changes in fashion in dog names as well as human names. Who today would have the heart to name his dog Fido or Rover?

A poll by a kennel ration firm showed the most popular canine names now are Blackie, Smoky, Skippy, Pal, King, Spot and Tuffy. Such once-popular names as Towser and Prince were far down the list.

And whatever happened to dear old Tige?

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FAITH AND CONDUCT INDIVISIBLE

In the description of our Lord's temptation recorded in the Gospel of Matthew, we find that the Tempter began two of his temptations with the words "If thou be the Son of God."

We need to remind ourselves that the first thing the tempter tries to do is to destroy the religious faith of the intended victim. This he tried to do when he tempted Eve in the Garden of Eden. Injure or destroy one's religious conviction and it will be only a short time until that person is doing what he wants to do and excusing himself for any kind of misbehavior. The serpent cast doubt into Eve's mind regarding God's sincerity of purpose and tried to cast doubt into the mind of Jesus regarding his own divine nature and God's purpose for his life.

What does all this add up to? Simply this—that religious faith is the strongest bulwark we have against moral temptation and that if we lose our religious faith we shall probably very soon relinquish whatever moral principles we now have. We delude ourselves if we believe that we can have strong and stable morality apart from religion.

Religious faith and sound morality belong together and neither can exist without the other.

Retailers See Gains In '55 Sales

By ELMER ROESSNER

Retailers sold an average of 8 per cent more in the first half of this year than in the first half of 1954, a Department of Commerce analysis shows. This is twice the rate of increase of 4 per cent by department stores, as calculated by the Federal Reserve.

However, the average for all stores was boosted by the enormous gains in the automobile industry. Those fellows who sell new cars in lavish showrooms are just as much retailers as the Joes and Marys who operate corner groceries in the Department of Commerce's eyes. And motor vehicle dealers signed up sales 20 per cent higher in dollar volume than in the first half of 1954.

Other big gains were made by lumberyards up 22 per cent; furniture stores, up 18 per cent; shoe stores, up 12 per cent; dry goods and general merchandise stores, up 11 per cent; family clothing stores, up 10 per cent, and floorcovering stores, up 10 per cent.

Drinking places held even with a year ago, while liquor stores did 2 per cent less business. Others to show declines were bakery products stores, down 5 per cent; delicatessens, down 2 per cent; florists, down 1 per cent, and miscellaneous apparel, accessories and specialty stores, down 5 per cent. Book stores like drinking places held even with the same months last year. Moral, anyone?

Household appliance and radio stores, and feed, farm and garden supply stores also held even. All other lines made gains from 1 to 9 per cent.

$12,500 CAPITAL TO MAKE EACH JOB, STUDY SHOWS

For every worker in American business, there is a capital investment of $12,500, according to an estimate of the Machinery Institute.

Because of wear and obsolescence, there must be an annual investment of $450 more per worker to maintain jobs already in existence, the Institute calculates. And because of the annual increase of 400,000 jobs, an additional $5 billion in capital investment is required.

SURVEY SHOWS WHEN STORES WANT GOODS

Retailers may now get better-timed deliveries of women's fashion apparel. A joint committee of the National Retail Dry Goods Association and the Association of Buying Offices polled stores on (1) when stores wanted first deliveries and (2) when they wanted peak deliveries. The answers were separated by regions.

Now manufacturers may know just when fashion stores in each of the four regions of the country want their merchandise. Its up to them.

DOMES OF PLASTICS FOR CITIES ON WAY

Enclosure of ball parks and even cities in weather-tight domes may not be as far away as most people think.

The U.S. Air Force and the University of Illinois have developed "pneumatic bricks," consisting of plastic pillows about three feet long and four-inches wide. They are held firm by an air pressure of only two pounds. If made from such plastics as polycoated mylar the walls of bricks need be no thicker than a human hair and they could be sealed together to weatherproof an entire community.

GHEE AND GEE-WHIZ BUSINESS NEWS NOTES

Butter oil, a gift from the United States, is now known as "American ghee" in India, the Foreign Agricultural Service reports. While yellower than the pearly white Indian ghee, it has become equally popular.

Shipments of wooden lead pencils during the first half of this year were 10.4 per cent above the same 1954 period, the Lead Pencil Manufacturers Association reports.

The French dairy industry has started to offer milk in "Tetra-Paks," opaque containers made in Sweden. The containers are in half and one-liter sizes. The French still prefer vin ordinaire.

Rayburn Split Up Texas Conservatives

by RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Speaker Sam Rayburn's latest act of collaboration with the Stevenson-Butler liberal faction has split Democratic Conservatives of Texas so violently that the lone Star State may return to the Democratic fold next year although it voted for President Eisenhower by more than 200,000 in 1952. The story of Texas intrigue dramatizes the desperate attempt of the Party leadership to regain its grip on the South.

The central figure in the Rayburn-Stevenson-Butler coup is Wright Morrow, who was recently deposed as Democratic National Committeeman on the direct order of National Chairman Paul M. Butler. Oddly, although Governor Allan Shivers joined with Morrow in carrying Texas for Ike, he acquiesced in the beheading of his associate. It has caused considerable indignation throughout the State.

'KITCHEN" CONFERENCE When Morrow decided to declare for Ike in 1952, he offered to resign as National Committeeman. But the State Committee refused to accept his resignation, and so notified Stephen A. Mitchell, then Democratic National Chairman at Stevenson's selection. Butler is also a Stevenson booster.

Mitchell, however, declared the office of Texas National Committeeman to be vacant, and refused to recognize Morrow at committee meetings, thereby punishing him for his desertion. But he took no action against Shivers or the State Committee, which had adopted formal resolutions in favor of Eisenhower's election.

Butler then began negotiations with Rayburn and Shivers "to bring Texas back into the fold." At the $100-a-plate dinner honoring Rayburn last winter the three held a conference in "Sam's kitchen" where he prepares culinary and political dishes for his friends. At this conference, Butler laid down the law which Rayburn and Shivers have now executed.

SURRENDER TO STEVENSON-BUTLER FACTION Butler said that Shivers would be welcomed back, and the deserting Texas Democrats seated at next year's convention, if Morrow were ousted. His successor, he stipulated, must be "satisfactory" to Rayburn, Shivers and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson. Even then, Butler added, he must be a man who did not vote for Ike.

Morrow was cashiered last month by the State Committee as a result of this ultimatum from the national leadership. He was "jettisoned," says the Dallas News, "... in the traditional manner of heaving a serf off the sleigh to stay the pack of pursuing wolves." In other words, it was a surrender to the Stevenson-Butler faction.

Agreeing with most Texas newspapers in condemning the coup, the News says further: "The national Party is in the hands of the Roosevelt-Truman-Stevenson Democrats. The Democratic Party can get nowhere without a voting degree of harmony. For that matter, Texas can get no recognition at the national convention without sufferance from the national control."

SHIVERS' EMBARRASSING POSITION Shivers apparently realizes his embarrassing position. At the recent Governors' Conference at Chicago he praised Ike's record and said he would not support a Stevenson type of candidate. He has been generally condemned by the Texas press for what appears to be a "sell-out."

"The rift between Morrow and Houston Chronicle, "is causing considerable cleavage in conservative ranks. It weakens them at a time when they were trying to organize for next year's political battles."

Even more seriously from a national political standpoint, it raises the question of whether Eisenhower can again win Texas' 23 electoral votes, which could be decisive in a close 1956 election.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the Texas episode is that the seemingly shy and kindly Stevenson, through the Mitchell-Butler chain of command, insists on retaining control of the Party machinery in this interim period. Moreover, Clayton Fritchey, editor of the Party's national publication, The Democratic Digest, was an adviser and ghost writer for Stevenson at Springfield during the 1952 campaign.

Archie Moore Would Make A Good Politician

If lightweight champ Archie Moore ever gave up the ring, we're sure he could make good as a politician or a business man. Because he sure knows how to sell a bill of goods . . . like his Sept. 20 bout with heavyweight king Rocky Marciano.

The fight was a born loser . . . you just don't arouse a lot of interest when you mix an old campaigner like Moore, an average boxer with a once-in-a-while good right hand, with a young dynamo like Marciano.

But this fellow Moore went into a song-and-dance routine as soon as the bout was arranged in June . . . and he hasn't stopped performing yet. He has, through public boasting and directed insults at Rocky, kindled a small spark into a glowing flame.

The latest load of coal was the hassle over the $100,000 forfeit pact and the refusal of a return bout. The State Athletic Commission of New York refused to okay a private paper calling for a return match within 90 days and a provision that Moore put $100,000 in escrow to guarantee the second fight.

The way the agreement was to work was if Moore won 100 grand of Moore's $250,000 purse would be held out to guarantee Rocky a second chance. If Moore didn't meet Marciano again within 90 days the hundred G's would go to Rocky.

This was just another of Moore's ingenius publicity stunts that has interest balloned to where there will hardly be a seat left in Yankee Stadium come fight night. All this scuffling is getting more results than Moore ever dreamed. He has not only succeeded in getting the fans stirred up but has the heretofore soft-spoken Rocky throwing out threats.

Moore sagaciously picks the most ideal times to do his boasting, when Rocky and important heads are conveniently around. Like at the official signing ceremonies the other day in the big town. Marciano was shocked out of his wits when Moore turned to him before TV cameras, radio mikes, newsmen and boxing officials with, "Rocky, I do expect to win your title."

Rocky retorted, "Archie, you sure have created a lot of interest in this fight, I'll be ready on Sept. 20 for the fight of my life."

Even though Moore has done a tremendous job of selling this fight, aren't many folks around that'll take Moore at odds 3 to 1. Marciano should, if records and past performances mean anything and of course they do, put Moore away. When he does win, all Moore's business finesse will not earn him a second go at the title.

Great Battle in AL; Sewed Up in Nat'l

There is approximately one month of play remaining in the major leagues Looming in the American League is one of the closest and bitterest pennant chases of all time. Last year the Indians of Cleveland set a record in winning 111 games to beat out the Yankees by eight games, although the New Yorkers won 103 which is ordinarily enough to cop the flag.

With the way the race is going now, no team will win over 100 games Someone has already said they figured 93 or 94 games will win the pennant.

Here's how the team stood a year ago today as they prepared for their final month of battling and how tney finished:

PITCHING—Rip Coleman, 24-year-old New York Yankee rookie, checked the Indians with seven hits and with the aid of Bob Grim defeated Cleveland 5-2.

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Writer

On rainy days, it's a lot of fun to drag out the record books and browse. On this particular damp afternoon, the East Carolina College football record sheets of 1954 revealed delightful food for thought.

Who do you suppose had the best rushing average of the backs last fall? Well, it was fullback Harold O'Kelly. The hard-charging High Point star gained 6.8 yards per clip.

Or maybe you'd be interested in knowing that Gary Mattocks, Southern Pines quarterback, completed 79 per cent of his passes? Or that Claude King, now departed, averaged 50.9 per punt in '54

The more we probe, the better it gets. Although Dick Cherry was missing at the QB post, the other signal-callers (besides Mattocks) Boyd Webb and Milton Collier had high-ranking passing percentage marks of .45. Also, only three of their aerials were intercepted.

Hayes Top Scorer

John (Toppy) Hayes scored the most points, 30, for the North State's third-placed club. King was right behind him with 27, nine of those via the extra-point boot. O'Kelly had four touchdowns for 24 points and three others, James Henderson, Emo Boado and J. D. Bradford, had 12 points each.

Hayes and O'Kelly were the workhorses, carrying the mail for 357 and 354 yards respectively. King had 269 yards in 66 rushes after recovering from an injury which kept him out of four games.

Hayes' rushing mark was 5.1, King's 4.1, Boado's 4.6, Tom Allsbrook's 4.4, Henderson's 5.1, Bobby Perry 3.9, James Stanley's 5.1, Bob Maynard's 3.1, Harry Rainey's 2.3.

If about this time, your head's too full of figures to see straight, have an aspirin and we'll continue.

Rhodes Top End

End Larry Rhodes caught the most passes, nine. He gained 68 yards with them for an average of 7.5. Many others ate up more yardage, however. Hayes and Henderson averaged 35 yards for their snags. The latter caught six and Henderson two.

Boado flagged six passes for 122 yards and a 20.3 average. O'Kelly caught six for 105 yards and a 17.5 average. Bradford and Bill Helms had four catches for 41 and 30 yards respectively. Bill Cain caught two for 29 and Harry Rainey, Bob Maynard, King, Allsbrook, Bobby Gay and Perry had one each.

Greenville's Perry had the best kickoff-return average. He scampered back with two for 56 yards, a 28-yard average. Hayes received 10 for 187 yards and an 18.7 average. King returned three for 43, Webb four for 39, Collie three for 30, O'Kelly two for 22, Gay one for 16, Allsbrook one for 22, Stanley one for 10 and Boado one for eight.

Swishy-Swashy Boado

Boado was the leader in punt returns. The swishy-swashy Wilmington runner gathered in 11 and swishy-swashied back for 190 yards, a neat 17.3 average. Perry had the next best average, 16.2 in two receives. Hayes averaged 12.6, Mattocks 15.2, Henderson 9.2 and Collier 12.

An afternoon enjoyably spent!

Yankees Do It Again; This Time With Unknown Player

By JOHN CHANDLER
The Associated Press

Ol' Casey Stengel and rookie Rip Coleman were taking the bows for the New York Yankees today, and whether you love 'em or hate 'em, you've got to admit that when the chips are down the Bronx Bombers usually come through.

Manager Stengel calmly selected Coleman, an almost unknown 24-year-old lefty just up from Denver, to oppose the Indians in the first game of their crucial three-game series at Cleveland last night. The result was a 5-2 Yankee victory. New York now rides in first place by 1½ games over the Chicago White Sox, who dropped a 6-1 decision to the Washington Senators.

The loss dropped Cleveland two full games behind New York. Early Wynn the Cleveland starter, was hustled to the showers in the second inning after allowing four runs.

More heat was taken off the Yankees when the best the fourth-place Boston Red Sox could do was split in a double-header with the Detroit Tigers. Detroit won the opener 6-1, and Boston grabbed the nightcap 6-4, falling five games behind New York.

In the other American League contest, the Kansas City Athletics conked the Baltimore Orioles 9-2.

In the National League, the Brooklyn Dodgers were slapped down by the Cincinnati Redlegs 8-5 and 6-5. It was the first time the Bums had lost a double bill this year, and coupled with Milwaukee's 2-2 victory over the New York Giants it left the Braves 11 games behind Brooklyn in second place.

Philadelphia nabbed a pair from the St.Louis Cardinals 11-9 and 8-3. The Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1.

The Yankees called Coleman up from their American Assn. farm, and he made his first start Aug. 15 going 5 1-3 innings to beat Baltimore 12-6. In his only other appearance also against Baltimore Aug. 20 he pitched a third of an inning to preserve a 3-2 victory for Bob Grim.

It was the other way around last night when Coleman got into trouble with two away and a run home in the eighth inning. Grim came in and applied the stopper the rest of the way. Joe Collins's two-run homer was the big blow of the Yankee second inning and Andy Carey contributed one in the sixth. Al Rosen homered for Cleveland in the sixth.

Bob Porterfield of Washington won his third game from the White Sox. The Senators knocked out Connie Johnson with a four-run fourth inning, and collected 13 hits in all. Minnie Minoso drove in the only Sox run.

Ned Garver won the Detroit opener. Ray Boone and Charley Maxwell backed him up with a double and homer apiece, each batting in two runs. The second game was Jackie Jensen's show as he became the first American Leaguer to drive in 100 runs this year. The Boston outfielder accounted for four runs with a homer and bases-loaded single.

Kansas City collected 13 hits, while Art Ceccarelli limited the Orioles to four, including a two-run homer by Hal Smith.

Johnny Klippstein gained his third victory over Brooklyn, but had to be relieved with two out in the ninth inning of the opener by Hershell Freeman. Wally Post slammed his 32nd homer in the second inning to get the Reds off in front. In the nightcap Freeman relieved Joe Black in the seventh, and got credit for his fifth victory although he left for a pinchhitter when the Reds scored two runs to break a 4-4 tie in the ninth.

Philadelphia won its sixth straight overcoming a six-run deficit in the opener. Robin Roberts registered his 21st victory in the opener, surviving a four-run Card outburst in the first inning and a five-run splurge in the fourth when Wally Moon hoisted a grand-slam homer. Saul Rogovin won the nightcap as the Phils came from behind again. It was Del Ennis night, and he celebrated by getting three hits in the opener and a double in the second game.

It appeared as if Jim Hearn would beat the Braves, but Milwaukee routed him in the seventh inning with all their runs on three walks and two singles. Warren Spahn tossed a six-hitter at the Giants.

Bobo May Not Find Joey Pushover In Non-Title Go

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Left-hooking Joey Giambra takes on Middleweight Champion Carl (Bobo) Olson tonight in a televised fight which could turn out to be a better-than-average nontitle scrap.

Olson, back in his own division after his thumping by Archie Moore in an ill-fated shot at the light heavyweight crown two months ago, is the favorite. The odds, though, were a tight 2½-1 despite the champion's great popularity here.

Young Giambra, bidding for a return to the national ratings, was impressive in workouts all week. His left hook was sharp. Olson has been bothered by other left-hookers. Giambra showed a good right, too, plus supreme confidence. He held the No. 4 ranking in the middleweight division before entering the Army.

The fact he's had nowhere near Olson's experience in the professional ring—45 bouts to 71 for the champion—was pooh-poohed by his manager, Mike Scanlan.

"He's got the know-how," says Scanlan. "I hope he can catch Olson with that left hook and knock him down. If he does, he'll take him all the way out of there."

The fight will be Olson's second since his third-round knockout by Moore. Bobo's manager, Sid Flaherty, says he's ready to cut loose. Olson earned an unspectacular decision over Jimmy Martinez at Portland, Ore., two weeks ago, but Flaherty insists he'll be sharper against Giambra.

"This might not go all the way," Flaherty adds. "This kid is good, but my boy is the best in the division."

The national television (NBC) is scheduled for 7 p.m. (9 p.m .EST) and you'll have no trouble telling the fighters apart. Giambra is a good looking dark-haired boy with a crewcut, Olson still has his prominent bald spot.

If you're scoring at home California uses the 11-point system. That means you split 11 points each round score the even ones 5½-5½.

If it goes 10 rounds, your total score must be 110.

Deliverance and Return

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Ezra 1; 2:64-65; Isaiah 44:21-45:13.

More than 100 years before Cyrus, the Persian king was born, Isaiah prophesied that God would speak to him and tell him to free the Jewish captives. They were to return to Jerusalem and there rebuild God's temple.

Cyrus also ordered that all vessels of silver and gold that Nebuchadnezzar had rifled from the temple and put into the house of his gods, were to be returned to the Jews and restored to the temple.

Although Cyrus did not know God whose word came to him, he made proclamation that the Jews should go back to Judah. All men were to help them with silver, gold and goods to aid in the rebuilding.

So the Jews, numbering 42,360, with priests, Levites, men and women singers, porters with their mules and horses —all who had been torn from their homeland joyfully returned to it.

MEMORY VERSE—Isaiah 45:22.

Deliverance and Return

PERSIAN KING CYRUS IS TOLD BY GOD TO RELEASE THE JEWS TO RETURN TO JUDAH, REBUILD TEMPLE

Scripture—Ezra 1; 2:64-65; Isaiah 44:21-45:13.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE EDITOR of Peloubet's Notes, Dr. Wilbur M. Smith, D.D., tells in this lesson of his experience in his visit in 1937 to Jerusalem. He was aided in his efforts to find his location in the newer portion of the city by a young Jewish woman who had left the United States and a lucrative teaching position to return to Palestine. She thought God must have directed her to go there, she explained.

As our lesson is about the people of Judah returning to their homeland after years of captivity, the joy they expressed must have been that of thousands of persecuted people fleeing from Europe to Palestine during and after the dreadful Nazi persecution and annihilation of many of their race.

For the first time in centuries the Jews now have a homeland to which they can go and feel safe.

More than 100 years before the birth of the victorious King Cyrus of Persia, the prophet Isaiah prophesied that God would talk to Cyrus and tell him to free the Jewish people and let them go back to Judah to rebuild God's temple, which Nebuchadnezzar had destroyed.

It was in the first year of the reign of Cyrus that the word of the Lord came to him. He immediately put forth a proclamation saying, "Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and He hath charged me to build Him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah.

"Who is there among you of all His people: his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel (He is the God,) which is in Jerusalem."

He then asked that every man help the people of Judah, with gold, silver, beasts and "freewill offerings."

"Then up rose the chief of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests, and the Levites, with all them whose spirit God had raised, to go to build the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem."

The whole "congregation together" were 42,360, we are told, although there may have been many more. The king had ordered that the temple vessels that had been taken by Nebuchadnezzar and placed in his heathen temples were to be returned to the Jews and replaced in the rebuilt temple.

The Lord had forgiven His people their sins, and now has restored them to their homes. In the midst of their rejoicing and zeal to again build His temple, did they think of their sinning that had brought them to disaster, and resolve to be true to God and sin no more?

Do we, when we have sinned and been forgiven, resolve with all our hearts not to transgress again, but to deserve the benefits that are ours? If so we shall not have studied these lessons in vain. Let us resolve to be good and do good, for God is love, and Jesus will be with us and help us.

MARRIAGE for THREE

By: ELIZABETH SEIFERT

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

That evening Adam reached home on time and came into the house as usual, asking if dinner was ready.

Ann knew at a glance that he'd seen the deputy. She told him she'd have dinner on the table in five minutes.

"What's all this?" he asked, pushing her sewing out of his way on the couch. "Curtains?"

"I'm making a dress—a skirt, rather—to wear during Fiesta."

"Like those squaw skirts and things at the Pins and Needles?"

"More or less like them," she agreed.

"I've had it in my mind to buy you one of those outfits. Seems all the dames have 'em. I noticed a blue one in their widow, all ruffles and stuff—a really pretty blue."

She stood with the casserole in her hands. "Do you have any idea of what that shop charges for a Fiesta dress, Adam Laird?"

He folded his newspaper. "They've got enough goods in 'em to cost quite a bit for yardage."

She set the brown dish down. "They do cost quite a bit," she agreed. "Why Adam, their prices run as high as a hundred dollars or more."

"Well, other girls have 'em. And those big silver belts, too."

"Oh, sure," she cried. "You'll hand out a hundred for a cotton dress and another fifty for a Concha belt. What's got into you, anyway?"

He sat down at his end of the table; she took her chair. "Most girls would jump at the chance of a present like that."

"Well, I'm not most girls. I'm your wife, and when you let your extravagance run away with you, I have to make up for it." She was thinking of their baby, the baby they couldn't have, because it was too costly, with the hospital and all.

"I'm earning good money, Ann. You don't have to worry." He handed her her plate.

"You told me that once before . . ." She broke off. She pointed to his shirt pocket. "I know you've got a court summons about a gas furnace."

"Space heater. Not a furnace."

"You still seem to have done something wrong."

"OK. So I'll go jail, and from there I'll move to the poorhouse." He needn't have snapped at her!

"But it is extravagant, Adam to pay such a price for a dress. If it were a suit, or a coat—and then that flashy car!"

He put down his fork and thrust his thin, brown face toward her, his blue eyes blazing. "You wanted a station wagon!"

"Yes, I did," she agreed. "But not a Chrysler! My heavens, Adam, that thing's bigger than this house!"

He groaned, and began to eat. "I'm building you a new house," he growled. He glanced up at her. "Is something wrong with that, too?"

She sighed. "I don't think I want to quarrel with you, Adam."

"Sometimes," his tone was reasonable almost calm, "I wish you would quarel, Ann. A real good row might clear the air and get whatever's wrong with you out into the open where I could—"

"There's nothing wrong with me, Adam Laird!"

He shrugged. "O.K. If you say so."

Building, Ann discovered, went much faster in New Mexico than it did in Missouri. One need not wait on the weather. With no basement as such, the house went up amazingly fast. It sat on a slope, and was on two levels. The lower held the heater room and a second room which was variously spoken of as the "office," by Ann, and as the "ski room," by Pinky.

Pinky had, as Ann prophesied, got quickly over any peeve. Within days, she was back on the old basis. Ann suspected that Adam had made some sort of apology for her. Pinky liked the new house and was interested in its least detail; it was she who insisted that Adam, when he installed the house plumbing should also pipe the front lawn for sprinklers.

"You have to, if you want grass!"

"Yeah but do we want grass?"

She gave him a push—not a gentle one; he almost fell over. "You won't want to cut it, young man, but you're going to have grass!"

One might think, Adam decided, that he was building Pinky's house, she was so interested in its every aspect, every detail. She was a help, though—she thought of the resale value, the buyer-appeal, of every feature. "I'm not planning to sell this house," he told her, to see what she'd say.

"Won't you show it to people so they'll hire you to build them one just like it?"

"Well—"

"Sure you will. You don't plan to carry a long beard up the mountain to that Project, do you?"

Adam did not plan on that. Already he was considering a change to doing his own contracting work solely. But why should Pinky be so interested in his plans and just how was it that this girl seemed to put his own ideas into practical form?

Maybe they were her ideas in the first place. He wouldn't quibble about that; they were good ideas. The light fixtures of Mexican tin work was an example.

One evening she took him into the Gift Shop at La Fonda to show him what she meant. He whistled at the prices. "For tin?" he cried in real pain.

"You idiot! We don't buy them here! The thing to do is to go down to Juarez for them. You can get the same thing for a third, sometimes less."

"Except for the small fact that Juarez is three hundred miles away."

"Well we could drive down there over the week end," she said sensibly, "but I've an even better plan."

She knew a man, she said, who lived at the hotel. He flew his own plane, he'd often invited Pinky to take a trip with him. She could agree, asking to go to Juarez, and while down there she could pick up Adam's tin fixtures.

"He'd love you using him and his plane to do a favor for another man," said Adam idly. That was a Saturday afternoon. In the shade of a leaning, skinned-bark cottonwood, Adam had set a door across saw horses, and was planing the edge with long rhythmic sweeps of his arms. Pinky sat on a bag of cement and watched his clever hands, thoughtfully picking up the curls as they fell away from the gleaming blade. The smell of new lumber was about them in the warmth; Ann was at the rear of the house, talking to Hermann about the way the door to the kitchen stairs should open.

"I'd not let on to the fly-boy," Pinky was saying "that there was another man." She dropped her voice in an intimate way that always made Adam's spine shiver Deliciously.

"I'll go ask Ann what she thinks," he said quickly. Pinky watched him lope away, and played with her shaving curls.

Ann said indifferently that the Mexican fixtures would probably be all right. No, she didn't have any other ideas.

Adam had good reason to puzzle about Ann's behavior those days. He didn't know what had got into the girl! If she had a grievance, why didn't she speak it out? If she didn't want Adam around, why not say so? He'd not hold any woman against her wish.

There were those who did like his company—namely, Pinky. He was seeing a lot of Pinky those days. Had Santa Fe been Kennerly, Ann would have heard many tales But of course, it wasn't Kennerly.

Pinky wasn't Linda, either This "thing" was entirely different from that "thing." With Linda, except for one time out at the lake, Adam had never carried his feeling into expression. That affair had ended without there ever being a recognition of it as an affair. He'd seen to that for Ann's sake.

But now he had no such scruples. Pinky was different. More demanding, more challenging—more hotly exciting than Linda's smooth charms had been. You must always "do something" where Pinky was concerned.

While with Ann—

Consider 'Twin' For Superliner

SOUTHAMPTON England (AP)—U. S. authorities are considering building a twin to the huge 70-million-dollar superliner United States.

Clarence Morse, U.S. Maritime Board chairman who arrived here last night aboard the 53,329-ton United States, said the "serious talking stage" has been reached in discussions about building a vessel matching the pride of the American merchant fleet in size and speed.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels remained strong as the stock market kept moving upward early this afternoon.

Gains ran to around three points in active trading that was heavier than yesterday's pace.

Copper stocks lost ground as profit-taking got under way after yesterday's good rise prompted by Anaconda's additional hike in the price of copper.

Railroads were irregular although they leaned to the upside. Chemicals were up and some oils rose substantially.

Bethlehem gained around 3 points while Crucible and Wheeling Steel were up around 2.

Other gainers in this group included U.S. Steel, Republic Steel, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Among the coppers, Anaconda and Magma, big gainers yesterday dropped around a point. Another loser was Phelps Dodge but American Smelting was up around a point.

Santa Fe, New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio were on the upside but Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western tilted down.

Sperry-Rand was heavily traded on the downside in a continuation of Wednesday's disappointment over the size of the dividend of the newly-merged company.

Bulova Watch however continued yesterday's upward move, picking up another 2 points. Texas Gulf Producing and TXL Oil also were two-point gainers. Standard Oil (NJ) and Texas Co. were u more modestly.

Deaths Ruled Murder, Suicide

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP)—Surry County Coroner Fletcher Harris has ruled murder and suicide in the deaths of J. Franklin Martin, 41, and his wife Florence, 34, yesterday.

Harris said Martin fatally shot his wife at her mother's home here then turned the pistol on himself, firing a shot into his temple.

Harris said the Martins had been separated and Martin had followed his wife to Florida in an apparent attempt to affect a reconciliation.

The coroner said Martin had left instructions that he was to be buried beside his parents.

Harris said no inquest would be held.

Bootleg Charges For Rural Man

Pitt County enforcement officers last night charged a 36-year-old Negro with possession of non-tax paid whiskey after three gallons of the illegal spirits were found on his premises.

Recognized for court September 6 was Claude Crandall, of Route 3, Washington. Crandall makes his home on the Sticks road.

Participating in the raid were ABC officers J. M. Ward, Walter Taylor, Grimesland police chief F. D. Alexander and Chicod constable Ben Forrest.

THE PHANTOM

Inquest Delayed Here Yesterday

A coroner's inquest scheduled for last night into the deaths of two men killed near Stokes August 11 when their car collided with a train was postponed suddenly yesterday afternoon. It has been rescheduled for tonight, 8 p.m., at the court house.

This morning, Cpl. Carl E. Whitfield, investigating State Highway Patrolman, said the inquest was postponed when it was learned that the fireman on the train, J. W. Hanes, of 1405 Eastern Street, Rocky Mount, was on a run to South Carolina and could not be here on time.

Killed in the accident were Billy V. Carswell, 24, of Morganton and Ezell V. Poole, 34, of Route 2, Conover. They died when their car and an Atlantic Coast Line freight collided near Stokes about noon on the 11th.

Whitfield listed the engineer of the train as H. G. Barrow, 47, of 1000 Long Street, Rocky Mount. Both he and the conductor, Connie V. Priest, also of Rocky Mount, have been summoned to appear tonight, Whitfield said.

Seek Increase In Water Rates

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Water Co. wants to increase rates to its customers in Morehead City, Beaufort and Snow Hill.

In an application filed with the Utilities Commission yesterday, the company said it is not earning a fair return on its investment. The water systems at the three towns were purchased last year from Carolina Power & Light Co.

Prizes Awarded Local Residents

Mrs. Aubrey Tilley is presented the two nylon covered comforters she won yesterday when she was called by the "Welcome, Travelers" television program and correctly answered a question, "Who was the American Revolutionary officer for whom Greenville was named?" Her answer of Gen. Nathaniel Greene won for her a $100 Savings Bond presented by the sponsors of the program, plus the comforters from the Greenville Chamber of Commerce. They are being presented to her here by Bancroft F. Moseley (left), Chamber president; and Willard T. Kyzer, Chamber manager. The salute to Greenville on the CBS network show was arranged through WNCT. (Reflector Photo by Edwina Haymes.)

To Teach

Mrs. Leuyard E. Ross will teach the first grade group in the new cooperative private school to open here September 6. The school is being operated for children who are ready for first grade but are ineligible to enter public school because of the age regulation. Mrs. Ross is a native of Greenville, the former Anne Vanza Dunn. She attended the Greenville city schols, St. Mary's Junior College and graduated from East Carolina College in 1953 with a B. S. Degree in primary education. During 1953-54 she taught first grade in New Bern. Her class for the coming year presently consists of 16 children, but the quota is 20. Parents interested in enrolling their children should call Mrs. Norwin Pierce, 2538, or Mrs. Joseph Wall, 1288.

Notes Pupil Assignments To New Elmhurst School

City School Superintendent J. H. Rose today issued a notice to all children who will report to the Elmhurst School when the new term begins next Thursday.

Those children who should report to the new school include:

All new first grade children of that area who have been registered for the Elmhurst School.

All children who attended Brookgreen school last year, with the exception of those who were promoted to the eighth grade. Those from Brookgreen who were promoted to the eighth grade will report to the high school building.

All children assigned to Special Education.

Any children from the other schools of the city who requested transfer to Elmhurst and whose transfer has been approved.

Rose directs all Elmhurst students to assemble at 8:30 a. m. in the school auditorium where directions and room assignments will be made.

PRICE IS RELATIVE

CALGARY (AP)—A sign in Bernard Talbot's store says: "Antiques at bargain prices." Next to it is a Chinese ming dynasty vase, 18 inches high, tagged $12,000. Talbot says that's a bargain, he thinks he could get $20,000 for such an item at auction in England.

Jaycees Asked Help Rocky Mount Drive

The Junior Chamber of Commerce last night was called on to support efforts by Rocky Mount to have the proposed four-year Presbyterian college established in that city.

A delegation from the Rocky Mount Jaycees appeared before the club to make the request.

Rocky Mount Jaycees are spearheading a move in that city to have the college established there. The group pointed out that Greenville in all probability will not be considered since this town now has a college.

A spokesman for the group told Greenville Jaycees that Rocky Mount is the largest city in North Carolina without a college. Local Jaycees pointed out, however, that other cities in this area are also bidding for the college.

President Warren Aldridge appointed J. B. Kittrell, Jr., Ben Rouse, and Jack Whichard to study the matter and to gather information concerning the school. The committee is to report back next meeting.

The Jaycees also discussed holding weekly meetings of the club rather than the present bi-monthly sessions.

However, it was pointed out that the change would mean amending the club's by laws.

The club secretary was instructed to notify each member of the organization 10 days before the next meeting that a discussion will be held on the proposed change.

Local Group Home From Asheville Conventions; 2 Named To Positions

Two County Commissioners, their wives and County Auditor Reginald Gray, have returned from Asheville and the state convention of the State Association of County Commissioners and County Auditors.

Attending the meet in addition to Gray were Mr. and Mrs. J. Vance Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. B. Alton Gardner. Commissioners and auditors from throughout the state were present for the meeting which ran from August 21 through 24.

In addition, Perkins was elected a director from this district and Gray was selected to serve on the nominating committee for the Auditors' Association.

Highlighting the sessions were addresses by W. B. Rodman, state attorney general and I. Beverly Lake, assistant attorney general who will retire in September.

DECENT RESCUE

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Patrolman R. C. Kinstley rescued a woman in Corpus Christi Bay, explained why he wore his pants when he dived in: "I didn't want to get arrested for indecency. That's a $25 fine."

Says Judge Too Easy On Income Tax Evaders

ST. LOUIS (AP)—T. Coleman Andrews, internal revenue commissioner, has accused the nation's federal judges of breaking down law enforcement by being too soft on sentencing tax evaders, the Globe-Democrat reported today.

Edward O'Brien of the Globe-Democrat, reporting from Washington on an interview with Andrews, said the commissioner also disclosed he doesn't intend to single out racketeers for tax prosecution when the "primary crime" is violation of state or local laws.

O'Brien said Andrews told him the federal judges are "doing more to break down law enforcement in this country than all the racketeers."

In Philadelphia, Loyd Wright of Los Angeles, retiring president of the American Bar Assn., said:

"The federal bench is composed of men of high integrity. There are a few, perhaps, that are lax."

He added that he thought it was "too bad that Mr. Andrews has seen fit to levy a blanket indictment."

Wright said that if Andrews had been quoted correctly, it was "a disgrace for a man in his position to do that."

Andrews was quoted as saying: "It's getting to be rarity for anybody to go to jail for tax fraud.

"It got better for a while but recently it looks like it has gone completely the other way. I see this happening every day.

"Taxpayers are rapidly getting the idea that evasion goes relatively unpunished, so they ask why they should be meticulous on their own returns."

County's School Buses Inspected

One hundred and thirty-nine Pitt County school buses got a complete safety inspection yesterday by members of the Highway Patrol in preparation for the coming academic year.

State Highway Patrol Cpl. Carl E. Whitfield and Patrolman D. L. Minshew checked the buses at the Winterville shop and found all in perfect order.

Points checked by the two officers included horn, brakes, windshield wiper, stop signals, exhaust system, emergency doors, tires and window glass. The buses, Whitfield said, will be issued Monday.

With the patrolmen during the check was Leland Forlines, chief mechanic. "These men have done a tip-top job," Whitfield said.

All buses, the corporal said, will be inspected once each month during the school year by Highway Patrolmen and are removed from service at once if any defect is found.

Frank Bacchi, retired maitre d'hotel at the Manger-Vanderbilt, gives this picture of "Diamond Jim" in action:

"First he'd have a couple of glasses of orange juice at the bar — he never drank liquor. Then he'd begin a meal with two dozen big oysters trimmed with crabs. And he'd enjoy the aroma of cooking while a whole chicken was being broiled over charcoal for him on the chef's wagon beside his table. With the chicken he'd have Virginia ham and mushrooms. He didn't talk much while he ate. He always wore those diamond studs in his shirtfronts and diamond buttons on his cuffs and vests.

"Nobody would believe how big the diamonds really were."

Oddities in the mailbag: Champagne is regarded by many as an ancient beverage. . .Actually it was invented by a French monk named Dom Perignon in the 17th Century. . .It isn't true—the old legend that the grapes for the finest wines are pressed by bare feet. . .Emperior Charlemagne banned the custom as unsanitary in the year 809 . . .Comic Phil Harris says he's read so much about the bad effect of drinking that he's considering giving up reading.
