Scott Raps Reduction Of Water Conservation Work

RALEIGH (AP)—U.S. Sen. W. Kerr Scott today voiced strong criticism of a Hoover Commission report which proposes a drastic reduction in the federal government's participation in conservation of water resources.

Hoover Commission recommendations that water resources should be developed to give a maximum contribution to the general welfare. However, there was disagreement as to following commission recommendations on how this should be accomplished.

Witnesses were split on some of the other recommendations. There was almost unanimous opposition to a proposal that the construction of headwater dams for flood control purposes be taken from the Soil Conservation Service and turned over to the Army Corps of Engineers.

District Deputies Officially Visit Greenville Chapter O. E. S.

Miss Alva Ray Taylor, District Deputy Grand Matron of Greenville, and Mr. Preston A. Cuthbertson of Kinston, District Deputy Grand Patron of the Seventh District of the Order of the Eastern Star of North Carolina made their official visit to Greenville Chapter No. 149 on Tuesday evening at the regular meeting.

The chapter room was tastefully decorated for the occasion with beautiful arrangements of fall flowers in the emblematic colors.

After the officers' opening march and the ritualistic opening, Mrs. George Smith, worthy matron, requested the conductress and associate conductress, Mrs. Martha Forrest and Mrs. Julia Harris, to present and escort the deputies to the East, where they were given a hearty welcome. Mrs. Blanche W. Jackson, Grand Adah of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina O.E.S., was presented, welcomed and seated in the East.

When the business of the chapter was dispatched, Miss Alva Ray Taylor, D.D.G.M., was presented. She explained that she came as the worthy grand matron's representative. She presented the chapter with a purple stone, reward for the dollar per member that the local chapter gave to the Rainbow Camp this year. She explained phases of the work and gave helpful suggestions. For her talk she chose the subject "Watch." She read verses of scripture from the Bible that contained the word "watch." She applied this to our daily lives. Her speech was an inspiration to all present.

Mr. Preston Cuthbertson, D.D. G.P., gave a short talk on the subject "Love" that was enjoyed by all. He complimented Miss Taylor on her work as district deputy grand matron.

Mrs. Jackie Kinsaul of the Farmville Chapter sang "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep Thee," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Virginia Strickland. This was a special tribute to the two deputies.

Prior to the meeting Miss Taylor was presented a lovely yellow chrysanthemum corsage and Mr. Cuthbertson was given a yellow boutonniere.

Following the messages by the deputies, Mrs. Sadie Carrington presented Miss Taylor with a gift of crystal in her chosen pattern. Mr. Preston Cuthbertson was presented a gift from the chapter by Alfred Kennedy. Each expressed their appreciation for the gifts.

Mrs. Nell Moore, representing the past matrons and 25-year members, pledged their support to the deputies in a very lovely poem.

The members assembled in the Fred Stokes dining room for refreshments following the meeting.

The table was artistically decorated with flowers in the star point colors. Punch, iced cakes and nuts were served. Mrs. Lillie Briley and Mrs. Beulah Staples were co-chairmen. Mrs. Hugh Ragsdale was in charge of decorations.

Here To Study Pitt's Rabies Control Program

Earl H. Wells, recently appointed dog warden of Harnett County, is here to study Pitt's rabies control program, Health Director Dr. Walter C. Humbert said today.

The Harnett Department has just organized a rabies control program, and Wells is spending four days here studying various phases of the local program including stray dog survey, operation of the pound, house registration survey and vaccination clinics. Dr. Humbert said Harnett will set up a rabies control organization similar to Pitt's.

This is the third county this year, and the ninth altogether, which has sent representatives here to study the local rabies control program.

Mrs. Kyle Presents Program For Semi-Centi Book Club

The Semi-Centi Book Club met in the attractive home of Mrs. W. E. Hudson Tuesday, September 27, at 8 p.m.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Peggy Kyle, well-known radio and television personality. She recited several original poems which she plans to incorporate into a book. In her amusing manner, she related the circumstances under which many of her poems were composed. Mrs.

Kyle also read excerpts from Elizabeth Sparks' new book, "North Carolina and Old Salem Cookery," a cookbook that is more than a collection of recipes since it contains little legends about people and their eating and a great deal of North Carolina history.

Mrs. Robert Russ, vice-president, presided over the meeting in the absence of the president, and welcomed three new members, Mrs. Joe Stone, Mrs. Clay Burnette and Mrs. James Harris.

During a brief business session, Mrs. Cliff Taff was elected into the membership, and the meeting adjourned.

The hostess, assisted by her guest, Mrs. Don Callaway, served delicious coconut cake, assorted nuts and coffee.

One Vote Makes A Lot Of Difference

Most people jealously guard their right to vote in elections, but there are far too few who are as conscientious about exercising this privilege of voting as they are concerned over maintaining their right to vote.

In a good many matters which are brought directly to the people for ballot box decisions, only a handful of voters turn out to help make the decision. The remaining eligible voters are willing to leave to others the burden of getting to the polls and casting a ballot.

Usually the reaction of these stay-at-homes is that their vote wouldn't make any difference in the outcome

Host Of Dark Horses Scheduled To Emerge

If the sudden turn in President Eisenhower's health picture has caused a flurry of potential presidential candidates in Republican ranks, it has caused no less of a flurry in Democratic ranks.

Eisenhower is without question the most formidable personality in the GOP so far as a man to head the 1956 ticket is concerned. Most aspirants for the Democratic presidential nomination realize that. They also realize it would be much less difficult for the Democratic nominee to win a victory over most any other GOP standard bearer than it would to tackle Ike in a presidential race.

The foregone conclusion that President Eisenhower will not seek re-election will cause in Democratic ranks a scramble for the presidential nomination just as it is already causing in Republican ranks.

Prior to Saturday when President Eisenhower suffered the heart attack the leading candidate for the Democratic nomination was Adlai Stevenson, with Gov. Harriman of New York and Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee holding second and third places. For the past year, most powers that be in the Democratic party had been gradually pitching tents in one of the three camps. From now on, however, we may expect to see more encampments being erected around other candidates within the Democratic party.

With Eisenhower out of the picture in the 1956 presidential election, Democratic leaders will be more confident of a victory regardless of whom the Republicans nominate; and by the same token regardless of whom the Democrats nominate. This situation may cause concerted pre-convention campaigns to push into the national spotlight individuals who heretofore have been dark horses among the 1956 possibilities for the nomination.

While President Eisenhower's condition is expected to bring forth a split in GOP forces as individuals jockey for positions prior to next year's convention; it is not unlikely that a similar situation will develop within the Democratic ranks.

Who knows; we may have two dark horses heading the major party tickets come next fall.

Influence For Peace In Dealing From Strength

Improvement in East-West relations is not due to Soviet good will. It is due to the policy of strength adopted by the free world.

Those were the words of Nationalist China's foreign minister George Yeh in his foreign policy address to the United Nations Assembly this week.

They were words which saw Russian, Indian, Polish and Czechoslovak representatives of the U. N. stalk out of the U. N. meeting rather than sit and listen to the Chinese Nationalist representative.

Certainly no truer words were ever spoken. The improvement in East-West relations has been prompted by the fact that the free world has been able to deal with the communists from strength rather than from weakness. Had the free world's position not been backed up by military might equal to or superior to that of the Kremlin and its communist satellites there would have been a much different reaction on the international situation.

While there has been evidence of a changing attitude toward the West by Kremlin leaders within recent months, there is no question in our mind but that such an attitude was prompted by the military strength of western nations.

During the past four decades dictators and warlords have risen up to conquer the world. Prior to World War I free European nations sought to negotiate with militaristic Germany; but they were negotiating from weakness rather than strength. During the late 30's leaders of the nations sought to reach a peaceful understanding with Hitler and his partners in crime, but they had little military strength with which to back up their position.

Since World War 2 free nations have dealt with communism with growing strength. As the military strength of the free world has become more formidable, our progress in reaching an understanding with communist leaders has shown improvement.

The day may come when the free nations can lay down their arms and be comforted by the feeling that Kremlin leaders have a genuine desire to live in peace with the rest of the world without conquering the rest of the world. But that day is still many years in the future.

of the question to be decided.

There have, of course, been many instances in local elections throughout the country in which one vote made the difference. The most striking of these came this week in the city of Waco, Texas, which has a population of more than 85,000 people.

The voters of Waco were called upon by their municipal government to decide at the ballot boxes whether or not the city should make a charge to local residents for sewer service. We do not know whether the people of Waco favored the city's making such a charge, or were opposed to the proposal. We are confident, however, there were many Waco voters that had definite feelings toward the matter and yet did not take time to vote in the referendum.

The result of the election showed 3,880 voters were against the proposal and 3,879 were in favor of it. There was only one vote difference in the outcome.

In a city the size of Waco, there probably some 30,000 registered voters, and probably several thousand others who are eligible, but have not properly registered. The election results show that less than 8,000 of these voters went to the polls to decide the important question. Only 3,880 people or approximately 4.5 per cent of the total population of Waco decided at the polls which course the city should follow.

The result of the Waco referendum points up vividly an important lesson for all Americans in the importance of participating in local elections.

Candidacy Question Is Looming Larger

By LYNN NISBET

WHO IS "IT"? — The most frequently asked question in political circles is "Who will be the next Governor?" Next in order of frequency is "Who will run for Lieutenant Governor?" Third is "Will Senator Sam Ervin Jr. have opposition in the primary?" GOVERNOR — Luther Hodges, who moved from political obscurity to capture the nomination for Lieutenant Governor and succeeded to the top office. Third is the death of Governor William Umstead last November, is a long odds favorite to win nomination and election for a full term in his own right. A primary contest seems more likely than it did a few months ago.

Governor Umstead's death complicated this situation. At least half a dozen men had contemplated with reasonable hope of success entering the gubernatorial primary in 1956. All of them except Henry W. Jordan of Randolph apparently have abandoned the idea. (At least their activities are in a state of "suspended animation.") Jordan is still toying with it.

A highway commissioner by appointment of Governor Cherry and highway chairman by designation of Governor Scott, and in private life a textile executive, he is rather a middle-of-the-road man. The historic record is that in almost every election he has picked the wrong horse. He has chosen a middle-man when confronted with choice including ultra liberal and extreme conservative.

Governor Hodges is also classified as a middle-roader. Ultra-liberals cannot forget he has long been affiliated with big business, and ultra-conservatives have charged that he has been aligned politically with the liberal element of the party of which Senator Scott is the recognized leader and spokesman. LINE-UP — Hodges does not have a tight organization or political machine, although astute observers credit him with perhaps the largest personal following of any man in the state, with possible exception of Kerr Scott. There has been evidence some months ago that Hodges and Scott might form an alliance. That appears very improbable now. Most of the encouragement being given Dr. Jordan comes from what is commonly called Scott faction in the party.

Senator Scott doesn't have a cohesive organization as those headed by the late Senator Simmons and Max Gardner, but it is more potent than any other political "machine" in the state, much stronger than during any of his campaigns or his tenure as Governor. Major credit for building the organization goes to Ben Roney, Senator Scott's administrative assistant who served in the same capacity in the governor's office under Terry Sanford, who managed Scott's primary campaign last year.

It is very unlikely that this organization will inject itself into the next gubernatorial race. Experienced observers question whether it is strong enough to buck a popular trend, and such influence as may be exerted will be toward preventing any other group from gaining prestige. Elimination of a major contest in 1956 will give other factions no opportunity to organize. It is axiomatic that political machines come out at candidates and, like individuals, gain strength through using their muscles.

It looks from here and now like the strategy of the Scott group will be to get its exercise by blocking out interference rather than by attacking ball carriers, thus being able to claim substantial credit for the touchdown. For that reason it seems unlikely that Scott will actively support opposition to Governor Hodges. Senators Ervin and Scott are making a good working team. It is a safe prediction that he will not have formidable opposition. Your reporter cannot quote Senator Scott, but he can quote folks high but he can quote folks high up in his organization, to the effect that he will do all within his power to assure the reelection of his colleague.

LEUTENANT GOVERNOR The widest open race for statewide office is the lieutenant governorship. Kiddy Brewer, Right business man, is an avowed and active candidate. At least half a dozen others are on the prospect list. Joe Eagles of Wilson, Alonzo Edwards of Greene, Vivian Whitfield of Pender, Settle Bunn of Nassau and Alton Lennor of New Hanover are most frequently mentioned.

Strong effort is being made in some quarters to clear the field for Eagles. This effort is directed mainly toward eliminating Edwards as the chief threat to Eagles because of his claim to the farm vote. Eagles is a three times senator from Wilson county, a tobacco grower and warehouseman, a dairy farmer and breeder of beef type cattle. Edwards is an eight times representative from Greene county, operates large farming interests, is past president of the N.C. Farm Bureau, former member of the State Board of Education and presently on the advisory budget commission.

Eagles and Edwards are in the race the farm vote will be split. Looks now like Edwards perhaps has more popular support, but Eagles has more strength with political and financial leaders.

The Scott organization is standing on the sidelines watching this brewing contest for the No. 2 place on the state ticket with keen interest, but there is no indication it will inject itself into the fracas. None of the suggested candidates "belong" and there is little likelihood the Scott organization will put up a candidate of its own.

Other Editors Are Saying ... All Doomed

(The State) A few years ago hoodlums killed a man on a New York street. A Tennessee couple aided the victim, vainly calling for help from spectators who callously watched the murder. The Tennesseans bitterly denounced the city for brutal indifference. They might have said a people so degenerate did not deserve to survive. William Faulkner probably would have dismissed such a view as an ignorant conclusion drawn from false premises or prejudiced minds.

That's fair estimate of Faulkner's condemnation of Mississippi because of a stupid but common crime. Mr. Faulkner is a Mississippian of an ilk the South knows only too well. Post-Colonial Blue-stockings loathed for English applause by deprecation of their own America, and these Southern snobs find a cheap key to approval by abusing the people they live with. His condemnation got the sort of applause he craves. But it is well that the divisions and groupings of humanity have not been tried in a cosmic court for their crimes. How would we fare for our Indian episode? The Russians for their pogroms? The Germans under Hitler? Doom the Greeks for poisoning Socrates and the Jews for crucifying Jesus. And oppressed as well as oppressors, colored as well as white, for man never has prospered nor too miserable to inhibit fury. They killed a Ghandi; the Japs raped a hemisphere; Chinese military evaporation under Communist tutoring. Senoys massacred their rulers with a ferocity unknown to whites. Walking through the jungle of history, it is hard to declare it indicative. There are many stopping places of horror, indicting every people of every age. And if we were to adopt Faulkner's attitude, we would wipe them all out. Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, Communist and Capitalist—for every group can overmatch a thousand-time its significance and terror the Mississippi killing.

WITN Won Race With Series

Last night I made two phone calls to get the scoop on Washington's TV station, WITN. The calls were to W. R. Robertson of Washington, general manager of the station, and John Reid of Tarboro, publicity director of the telephone company.

The calls were prompted of course by the fact that the station came on at 9:30 Tuesday night with network programs and telecasts the first game of the series yesterday afternoon. Because the microwave link has not been completed between the studio in Chocowinity and the transmitter in Grifton, no telecasting can be done from the studio as yet. So for now it's network only.

For the duration of the world's series WITN will be on only for the games. When the series is concluded the station will start telecasting at three in the afternoon and sign off at 11:10 in the evening.

"We were operating at about 50 per cent efficiency yesterday," Robertson said. "The antenna and the transmitter need additional tuning." Reports on the signal in Greenville varied. One man said he received channel 7 with no rabbit ears or outside antenna. Another said that even with rabbit ears he could receive no signal.

At our store on Cotanche Street with rabbit ears we received a fair signal; good enough to enjoy. At home it was just fair, with an outside channel 4 antenna.

After hearing the phone company's report from Tarboro I was amazed that the station came on the air on schedule. John Reid said that Ione completely ruined a microwave unit which had been installed in Grifton. Water was three inches deep in the transmitter room. The entire unit had to be junked. "It was only through the cooperation of American Telephone and Telegraph, Western Electric and Graybar Electric Company that we were able to replace the equipment on time," John said.

Personnel of the phone company deserves special credit. The men have worked around the clock, as well as members of the WITN staff.

An interesting sideline is that we would have still seen the series even if WITN had not made it. WNCN had made arrangements with NBC to telecast the games, although the local station is no longer affiliated with NBC.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

'Mr. Smerdley' Is A Rarity

By HAL BOYLE WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) — There are many unusual characters in this community of artists, writers and intellectuals. But "Mr. Smerdley," the only one in the neighborhood who sleeps in a Dutch oven, is perhaps the most unusual.

In an area teeming with watchdogs, Smerdley has the distinction of being the only "watchcat." He is a pet ocelot, a kind of tropical wildcat, owned by Arthur Kennedy the well known Broadway and Hollywood actor.

Kennedy bought the wildcat which came from Peru, as a 5-week old kitten on the West Coast while completing a starring role in MGM's film, "Trader." Ocelot raising has become something of a fad on the West Coast, where two clubs devoted to the breed have been organized.

The ocelot, a tree climbing cousin of the common cat, is known scientifically as felis pardalis, flourishes in Central and South America, once ranged as far north as Georgia. It is a beautifully spotted and barred animal of a tawny hue that, when full grown, is 3 1/2 feet long and weighs 25 to 35 pounds.

These are ominous facts in the Kennedy household, for Smerdley at eight months is growing up fast on his daily diet of a pound of horse meat, two cans of baby food, and a spoonful each of vitamins, cod-liver oil and calcium.

Smerdley, who has developed a formidable armory of fang and claw, shows no interest in learning tricks and his main ambition in life seems to be to grow up a normal wildcat.

"We are enjoying a tentative relationship with him right now," said Kennedy, rubbing a deep scratch on the back of his hand. He and his wife are currently wondering if Smerdley wouldn't become more amicable on a diet of strained spinach instead of horse meat.

Smerdley, while resenting adult handling, is quite amicable to the two Kennedy children—Laurie, 10, and Terence, 12.

"He also is quite a television fan," said Kennedy. "He particularly is fond of watching sports, such as football games, and likes to stay up for the late movie. But he doesn't care for Westerns—too much shooting in them—and is indifferent to British pictures, which he seems to find too slow and talky. He grows when he wants the program changed."

His role as a watchcat hasn't been tested in action against a burglar. But the ocelot, who has radar-keen hearing, growls, hisses and spits at the approach of any stranger.

Smerdley, part of whose resentment against life may stem

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS HERE AND NOW

A great many of us are convinced that we could do much better in life if only we were someone else. "If I were in his position," you hear someone say, "I'd soon make things hum around here" or else, "Just give me his income, and I'll show you what generosity really is." "No wonder he's so successful," someone else says. "Look at his background and training."

Predictions are dangerous, but a safe one is that if we wait until our ship comes in to make the big change, we are never going to make it. One of the greatest lessons of human life comes from doing our best with what we have where we are. It is too easy to waste our lives marking time until we can make a new start. The only way to make a new start is to start.

Perhaps this is nowhere more true than in our moral and spiritual lives. We would like to do better. We know that we could do better. We are sure that when conditions are right, we will do better. Meanwhile, right here in the same old rut—well, what can we do?

Remember the Lord's words to Moses: "The place whereon thou standest is holy ground."

Jurist Warned Of A 'Personal' Ruling

By RAY TICKER

WASHINGTON — Acquittal of the defendants in the Mississippi "whistle" slaying of a Negro boy gives pertinence to a Federal Judge's warning against the two opposing factions in the racial controversy, white extremists of the Ku Klux Klan order and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The warning was given by Judge Ashton H. Williams of the United States District Court at Charleston, S.C. It was delivered in a suit brought by the NAACP to force desegregation in South Carolina's state parks, beaches, public recreation grounds, etc. It was a direct result of the Supreme Court's decision on public school desegregation.

Judge Williams regarded his statement as so important, especially his holding that the Supreme Court grant was "personal" rather than "racial" in its scope, that he asked newspapers within his jurisdiction to publish it in full. Most of them did so. HIGH-PRESSURE TACTICS DENOUNCED The jurist expressed confidence that the South would solve the problem, if reason prevails. Then, he deprecated and denounced both Ku Klux Klan and NAACP high-pressure tactics.

He declared that KKK-ers will be jailed if they adopt the violent program of their "misguided" predecessors in the 20's. But he believes that most former members of the hooded organization now condemn revival of the night-riding and cross-burning movement.

In criticizing efforts to force and exploit the Supreme Court decision by the NAACP with the aid of Northern politicians, lawyers, publicists and funds, Judge Williams voices the viewpoint of Southern interests which strive to settle this question equitably and practically. With him, many prominent Negroes deplore attempts to aggravate and capita-live on this grave social problem for personal, political or racial aggrandizement.

PERSONAL RIGHTS "Reports indicate," said Judge Williams, "that they (NAACP) will resort to any means to carry out their purposes. It must be kept in mind that the rights given to Negroes by the Supreme Court are personal and not race."

He declared that Negroes will be persuaded by unlawful means or otherwise to exercise the rights given them by the Supreme Court. Judge Williams' comment on the "personal" nature of the Supreme Court's holding, if correct, means that its advantages do not apply to Negroes as a race, a social group or a special class of citizens. Otherwise, it would be "class legislation" of the worst sort.

"If the Negroes," he continues, "wish to accept segregated schools, parks and so forth, it is legally for any one, by misrepresentation undue influence or threats,

Antiquated Patenting Records

By ELMER ROESSNER

Corporations often spend large sums developing inventions, then discover the results were invented and patented before. D.D. Andrews, U.S. Patent Office spokesman, disclosed.

In fact, he said, half of the applications filed at the Patent Office are for patents already invented.

Part of the trouble, he conceded, grows from antiquated classification systems used by the Patent Office. Speaking at a recent meeting of the American Chemical Society in Minneapolis, he urged industry to co-operate with the government in developing a new classification system that would make patents more readily available.

However, much of the trouble is chargeable to industry because it does not help itself to government services available. Mr. Andrews said. The Patent Office now maintains a public search room in Washington, D.C., where researchers, inventors or their representatives may examine a complete file of patents arranged according to subject. This file is a duplicate of the one used by Patent Office examiners.

In addition, he pointed out, the Patent Office will supply, for a nominal fee, a list of patent numbers in any classification. With such a list a researcher can order copies of patents that seem to apply to the problem at hand.

Failure of corporations to find out what inventions have already been made in a particular field wastes more than money, Mr. Andrews said. It dissipates the time and skills of some of the finest inventive minds in the world.

The Patent Office, Mr. Andrews said, has a program for modernization of its classification system. "It would be most helpful," he added, "if inventors and industrial organizations would come forward first with their searching needs, next with their experience with present search facilities and, finally, with criticisms and suggestions for insuring an adequate access for all to the wealth of scientific and technical information represented by 2,750,000 U.S. patents already issued and the 40,000 new patents that will be issued each future year."

NEW PICTURE TUBES ON EASY PAYMENTS NOW

Credit selling has entered the television repair field. General Electric has announced it will finance new picture tubes.

When a repairman finds a householder cannot afford to buy a new picture tube when needed, all he need do is get the customer to sign a contract. He installs the tube, G.E. pays him and takes over the task of collecting the tidy monthly payments from the customer.

Other tube manufacturers are eyeing the plan—not being heavily promoted in the trade press—and may come up with similar gambits.

FINDS AMERICA BECOMING A MIDDLE-CLASS NATION

Dr. Marcus Nadler, an outstanding economist, has written a booklet on "The Structure of the American Economy" which the Hanover Bank of New York is distributing to customers.

A new type of capitalist society is being born in America, Dr. Nadler writes. An economy is evolving which has no parallel anywhere in the world, he holds. America is steadily becoming a nation of middle-class people as the number of persons in the highest and lowest income brackets thins.

But no place in his 32 pages does Dr. Nadler explain that it was planned that way—largely by Franklin D. Roosevelt and associates. The Roosevelt Administration fastened the program whereby the poor are given money and assistance and workers are given backing or organization for higher pay. Meanwhile, the rich, the successful and the hardest-working are being pushed down to middle-class level.

We are fulfilling a dream of a man who died in 1883 and who had written, "From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs." Won't mention the man's name. Might embarrass Hoover.

Unveiling Statue After 28 Years

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Benny Bufano's statue of St. Francis of Assisi, which lay for 28 years in a Paris warehouse, will be officially unveiled in San Francisco next Tuesday.

The dedication and blessing of the statue by the Most Rev. Merlin J. Gulliole, auxiliary bishop of San Francisco, will climax the celebration of the feast day of St. Francis of Assisi, patron saint of San Francisco.

Roger Fry, the late English art critic, called Bufano's work "the most significant piece of sculpture done within 500 years."

The completed statue stands 16 feet high, not counting the pedestal, and weighs 12 tons. It was chiseled out of a 32-ton block of black Swedish marble Bufano found in Paris.

The story of the statue goes that the rather unworldly Bufano wrote wealthy California friends, seeking their support for the proposed work. They promised to underwrite the project—if the design was approved.

Confident and absorbed with his ideas, Bufano sent off the design, bought the marble and started to work. A year and a half later, he was finished and decided to open his stacked-up mail. A letter more than a year old informed him the design had been rejected.

So the great statue went into a warehouse, where it stayed until early this year when patrons of the church collected enough money to pay the bills against it.

The French Line, as a gesture of friendship to the United States and to a prominent artist, brought the statue to San Francisco on the liner Washington last June free of charge.

It has been placed on the steps of St. Francis Church.

U. S. Has Potential Crisis On Its Hands In Middle East

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has the makings of a first-class crisis on its hands in the Middle East, with the danger of a new Arab-Israeli war in the background.

That is the reason Secretary of State Dulles has sent George Allen, his assistant for Middle Eastern affairs, on an urgent mission to Cairo.

Allen has the evident task of trying to persuade Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser not to import such a volume and variety of arms from Communist Czechoslovakia as would upset the delicate power balance between the Arab states and Israel.

Dulles is understood to have sought to impress the dangers of the situation upon Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov in New York. He reportedly argued that a flow of Soviet bloc arms to the Middle East now would violate the spirit of the Geneva Big Four meeting and create new tensions in the world.

Allen was prepared to warn the Egyptian government that if it brought about a radical change in the Middle East power balance the United States would be compelled to review its policies of cooperation with Egypt in the field of economic development—the current U.S. aid program is 43 million dollars—and in policies governing world cotton supplies. The major part of Egypt's foreign income is derived from cotton exports.

At the same time Allen was in position to argue that the United States had offered to sell Egyptian arms in small quantities which it was believed here would not create new Middle East tensions and enlarge the dangers of a new war in that area.

Allen left for Cairo, by way of Athens and Beirut, Lebanon, yesterday afternoon. In Athens he was to urge the Greek government to cooperate with Turkey in seeking to ease the dispute of the two nations over the island of Cyprus—a source of Middle East troubles unrelated to the Egyptian arms problem.

In Beirut it was understood that he would seek to dissuade Syrian leaders from joining Egypt in an arms race with Israel.

mized the importance of the Allen mission. He called it "more or less routine."

Premier Nasser said Tuesday that his government had made a deal with Czechoslovakia to trade cotton for arms. He said Egypt could not accept the restrictions imposed on arms shipments from the West. The United States had offered limited supplies for cash and for defense use only.

Afraid Robbers Had Friends

CHICAGO (AP) — When Edward Sczesny, 21, took a job at a gasoline station last Friday his employer told him he was replacing a man who quit after being robbed. "I'll take my chances," said Sczesny.

He was on the job five minutes when he was robbed by gunmen. "We'll see about this," Sczesny said, and got an automatic pistol.

He was held up Tuesday by two gunmen, who took $51. He emptied his pistol at them as they fled. Police yesterday picked up a man who appeared at a hospital for two minor gunshot wounds.

Sczesny quit his job, explaining: "Some of those robbers' friends might come around looking for me."

Alston Shaken By Big Home Run Barrage

Dodgers Facing Another Day Of Southpaw Diet

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—Dreary indeed was the Brooklyn outlook today as the Dodgers striving to win their first world championship again came to grips with their nemesis New York Yankees in the second game of the 1955 World Series.

Downed in yesterday's opener by a left-hander, the kind they've blasted all over the National League during the regular season, the Dodgers faced the same southpaw dose today. Yankee Manager Casey Stengel, encouraged by lefty Whitey Ford's victory despite an admittedly mediocre pitching performance, came right back with Tommy Byrne (16-5).

Manager Walter Alston of the Dodgers was shaken somewhat by the Yankees' savage home run barrage that blasted his ace right-hander Don Newcombe off the hill and powered them to a 6-5 victory. But he decided to entrust Billy Loes (10-4), another right-hander, with the "get even" assignment.

Fair and sunny weather was predicted.

With one game in the bag, the odds went up on the Yankees to make it six straight series victories over the Dodgers. The American League champions are now 9-5 to take all the marbles and 6-5 to take today's game despite the continued absence of Mickey Mantle from the starting lineup.

The ailing center fielder, still unable to run hard on his torn right thigh, reported after a light workout before yesterday's game that he didn't think he'd play at all in the series.

Yesterday's 63,869 cash customers saw a whale of a game.

Five home runs were blasted by both sides one short of the record for one game. Three of them were hit by the Yankees, two by first baseman Joe Collins and one by left fielder Elston Howard. They drove in all but one of the Yankee runs.

Newcombe, Brooklyn's pride and only 30-game winner, was the victim of all New York's homers and runs and all but one of their nine hits before finally shuffling off the mound in the sixth inning.

Ford was the winner, but he was no ball of fire either. The only little 18-game winner was tall for nine of Brooklyn's 10 safeties, including home runs by Carl Furillo and Duke Snider. He also issued four passes but was good enough when he had to be except in the eighth inning when the Dodgers struck back for two runs to cut the Yankees' lead to one run.

The last Brooklyn run was an electrifying steal of home by Jackie Robinson that ignited the only real argument of the afternoon. Yankee catcher Yogi Berra argued Plate Umpire Bill Sumner's decision, insisting he had tagged Robinson but the American League umpire stood firm.

The turning point of the game came in the fourth inning. With two on and one out, Yankee Billy Martin made a dazzling stop of Pee Wee Reese's wicked smash to his left and turned it into a double play.

Weathering a storm in the eighth, he was removed by Stengel.

Bob Grim sealed the victory with a scoreless ninth.

Odds On Yankees Are Now 9-5

NEW YORK (AP)—It was 9 to 5 today that the New York Yankees would win their 17th World Series after defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers 6-5 in the first game.

The Yanks also were favored at 6 to 5 to win today's game and take a 2-0 lead into Ebbets Field for the third game on Friday.

Ayden, Farmville Clash Tomorrow

Red Devils Must Pull Upset If They Are To Win

Coach Eibert Moye's Farmville Red Devils play host to the Ayden Tornadoes tomorrow night in Farmville, in what promises to be one of the Coastal Conference's most exciting and important contests.

The two teams, being located close together in this section of Pitt county, are arch rivals and perform savagely against each other annually.

This weekend, Coach Moye's boys will be aiming for an upset victory over their favored opponents. Hard luck has been plaguing the Red Devils, they took a smashing 33-0 defeat last week at the hands of a mighty Morehead City squad on the coast.

Practice this week has been concentrated mostly on defense and the fundamentals of blocking and tackling. The backfield, led by 128 pound speedster Ervin Allen, will be in top condition for the coming scrap. Mack Holmes, Johnny Dixon and Billy Eason will form the rest of the attack.

Coach Moye stated recently that two of the top men of his defense will be on the sick list Friday night. Bill Haire, injured earlier, and Dave Braxton, who is suffering from the flu, will probably not see action. Other than these two, the Red Devils will be ready to fight it out with their old foes from Ayden.

Ayden Strength Lies In Tough Defensive Line

Ayden's Coastal Conference Tornadoes will travel to Farmville tomorrow night to meet loop rivals, the Red Devils, in a contest that has been rated the top attraction in that league this week.

Coach Stuart Tripp's chargers, after battling to a 0-0 deadlock last weekend against another loop opponent, Robersonville, have been working lightly on regular rudiments of the game in drills for the past several days.

It is feared by the Tornado coaching staff that first-string halfback R. L. Collins, the team workhorse and offensive leader, will not see action against the Red Devils because of an injured leg. Freshman ace Sammy Manning filled in for the sidelined Collins last week and played a great game for his squad. He will probably get the nod again Friday night.

The top strength of this Ayden squad rests in the power of a fast, tough defensive line that can also hold its own on offenses. Lathan Dennis and Burt Tripp, both outstanding last week in stopping the Ram attack, will be present to give the Red Devils a bruising weekend. Ike Barboro, a powerful, savage-tackling guard, will add his weight and line play to the group.

Farmville's running attack, celebrated for its speed, will be a real test for the defensive forward wall that Coach Tripp has been relying on all season. The Devils boast of the running feats of little Ervin Allen, who scored four touchdowns and extra points in an earlier game, and will be sending him against the Tornado defenses frequently Friday night.

GHS Footballers Have Last Day Of Heavy Drills Before Pam Pack Game

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer
Greenville high school's head mentor, Guy Lewis sent his chargers through their last day of heavy drill yesterday at their East Greenville practice field. The Phants will take things easy today in preparation for the Washington contest tomorrow night.

Again, as during the earlier days of this week, the Green Terrors emphasized the importance of hard tackling, blocking, and slippery ball carrying. Coach Lewis and his assistants, Vaughn Fowler and Stanley Jones, have stressed the basic fundamentals in practice sessions for several days, hoping to prime the Phantom machine to perfection by Friday night.

The Green backfield, composed of quarterback Jerry Drum, halfbacks Tommy Morris and Bob Shackford, and fullback Billy Sermons, have worked hard and steady during the past three days on deception, passing and a running attack. Other candidates for the first team backfield are Mack Roebuck, Jimmy Kelly, Charles Staton, Robert Howell, John Arnold and Charlie Smith. Also, end Ike Riddick, an understudy quarterback to Drum, has been filling in at that position.

Coach Vaughn Fowler's linemen, sparked by big Howard King, Pete West and Wade Jordan, have been taking their knocks in head-on-tackling drills, blocking scrimmages and defensive maneuvers in general. It has been a bruising week for the Phant forward wall, but the coaching staff feels that the results may be even more bruising to the Washington Pam-Pack. Fred Nobles, Barney Barrett, Peter Hudson, Ike Riddick, Billy Johnson, Angus Duff and several others have been the big men in the line thus far for the Greens.

Washington, a Northeastern Conference opponent for Coach Lewis' squad, will invade Greenville this weekend in search of their first loop win. They were defeated earlier in the season by New Bern and Elizabeth City, two league powers. The Phantoms have a 1-1 record in conference competition, winning against Jacksonville, 12-6, and dropping a 21-7 contest to the Kinston Red Devils last week.

Pirates Turn To Defensive Drills

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Editor

Following their usual pattern of pre-game preparation, the East Carolina Pirates overhauled the defense in Wednesday's workout in anticipation of a good Catawba offense this weekend.

Head Coach Jack Boone directed his Bucs, losers of two out of three games to date, through a spirited defensive scrimmage with the entire squad taking part.

A first unit of ends Tommy Waggoner, Ray Pennington; tackles Jerry Brooks, Waverly Cusson; guards Ken Burgess, Dickie Mondak; and center Lou Hallow was very successful in stopping a team of freshmen running Catawba offenses.

Pass Defense

In pass defense drills, backs Jim Henderson, Erno Boado and Dick Cherry were impressive knocking down the aerials. The other member of the backfield, Harold O'Kelly, backed the line with Hallow.

During the two-hour scrimmage, stress was given passer and kicker protection. These two rudiments of the offensive game have been very poor in the Bucs' three games. The passing attack has been almost nil because of inability of the blockers to hold out the defense until the quarterback had a chance to throw. With the defense in pretty good shape, the Buc mentors still are confronted with the problem of offense. This week they've been trying several combinations but at the moment it looks like only one probable change in the line-up for Catawba this weekend.

Popov Out

Peppery guard Paul Popov of Kinston received a bad cut over his eye in the Lenoir Rhyne game and will likely miss the Catawba tilt. The cut required eight stitches to close. Ken Burgess, starter in last week's game at left guard, will move over into Popov's spot and Dick Mondak will start at his old left guard position.

Still exhibiting wares that made him a standout in the Lenoir Rhyne bout is Robert Lilley, Tarboro freshman. He has been alternating with O'Kelly at the fullback job and will see plenty of action this weekend.

Three QB's

Boone has three boys working the quarterback spot, Cherry, Gary Mattocks and Milton Collier. All three are able passers and capable ball-handlers. Cherry and Mattocks, especially, are known for a hot-hand occasionally.

Rigney Reports To N. Y. Giants With Title Win

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Lean Bill Rigney turned over his glossy credentials to the New York Giants today, a Little World Series championship that climaxed one of the finest managerial jobs of the season.

Named to succeed Leo Durocher as the Giant skipper just five days ago, the 37-year-old Californian last night brought Minneapolis its first junior series title in history in a 9-4 victory over Rochester of the International League. The game was the deciding seventh of the series.

It was a regal sendoff for the former Giant infielder, who returns to the New Yorkers after just two years apprenticeship in the American Assn.

His 1955 record at Minneapolis was letter perfect, a season's championship and a sweep through the playoffs in the face of trials which once threatened to put the Giant's No. 1 farm club on te skids.

The club was almost torn apart by Giant player recalls early in the season and by a chain of injuries later on. But Rigney glued it together in what Miller General Manager Rosy Ryan called "one of the greatest managerial jobs I've seen."

Rigney, hard-hitting and alert in the image of his predecessor at New York, yet with a personal warmth that held the unrestrained loyalty of his players, passed out the bouquets handsomely.

"The boys never let up, never quit trying. And the big man all the way was Al Worthington."

Worthington, the right-hander who won three playoff games and wicked lefts that caught Fullmer and Rigney, was ticketed for a starting job with the Giants next year.

But the series-winner against Rochester, it was the Miller's celebrated wrecking crew that cleaned up. Bob Lennon, Carl Sawatski, Monte Irvin and Don Bollweg all clouted homers. Lennon's coming with two on in the fourth to give Minneapolis a lead it never lost.

Lennon drove in five runs to lead the Miller attack on Cot Deal, Duke Markell and Floyd Woodbridge, with Deal taking the loss, his first after five post-season victories for the International Leaguers.

Floyd Mellere, who surrendered only two hits in six innings of relief, was the winner. Rochester routed starter Bud Byerly with two runs in the first, including a homer by Howie Phillips.

Campanella And Martin In 'Feud'

NEW YORK (AP) — A bitter feud is developing between Brooklyn catcher Roy Campanella and New York second baseman Billy Martin and if they happen to come in contact with each other in today's second World Series game, it wouldn't surprise anyone to see them come up swinging.

It all started when Martin proclaimed a couple of days ago that Campy was gun shy—that is, he felt back on contact plays. Campanella laughed that one off, but when Martin tried to steal home unsuccessfully in the Yanks' opening 6-5 victory yesterday, the Brook catcher really got annoyed.

"Any time that shrimp thinks he's going to run over me, little as he is, I'll break every bone in his body," growled the usually amiable Campy. "Just let him take two steps toward me and I'll take care of him. He's been too smart for too long."

When Martin came out of the dugout after being tagged out, he made a threatening gesture toward Campanella, but Roy was on his way to the dugout by then, so it didn't mean anything.

"If it had been a regular-season game instead of a World Series, I'd have punched him in the nose," snarled the scrappy Martin. "That was the second time he hit me in the neck with a tag."

Martin was referring to an incident in the '53 series when he ran into Campy, only to be tagged out.

Appraisal of Martin's remarks, Campanella grunted:

"I missed tagging him where I wanted to by about three inches. I'd like to have tagged him in the teeth."

Boyd Upsets Fullmer In Rugged Bout

CHICAGO (AP) — The Windy City, which hasn't produced a title contender in the ring since the days of Johnny Bratton, may have one in middleweight Bobby Boyd.

Boyd, a lanky 21-year-old Negro managed by Bernard Glickman, a Chicago awning company executive, was in the ring with a hornet at Chicago Stadium last night and handled himself well, all things considered.

His opponent was stubby Gene Fullmer, 23, a ranking middleweight from West Jordan, Utah, by way of Ogden. From opening bell, Fullmer acted like a blacksmith trying to take out his ire on an anvil.

His crowding, falling style placed Boyd under continuous bombardment. Boyd, with good combinations shot across sharp rights and wicked lefts that caught Fullmer as he charged opening a cut under his eye and bloodying his nose.

There was plenty of action for the national television audience and the sparse ringside gathering of 1,573 that contributed to a net gate of $1,896. Boyd, outweighting his vicious-swinging foe 161½ to 155, gained a well-earned unanimous 10-round decision.

The edge was close on all three official cards. Referee Tony Zale favored Boyd 97-96, Judge Harold Marovitz 97-94 and Judge Lou Capperelli 96-94.

It was only the second loss absorbed by Fullmer, whose stamina was impressive and haymakers starting. He has had 33 scraps, winning 19 by knockouts. If he had ever connected solidly to Boyd's head it may have had the same effect, as being sandbagged.

Fullmer was swinging so hard that at one time, in the seventh round the momentum of a missed right sent him plunging halfway through the ropes.

He ran into a Boyd left in the third round and went down. Zale picked up the count and continued it appeared as if he was to have to the mandatory eight, but Fullmer bounced up immediately and it was more of a slip.

RAE FOLEY

SYNOPSIS

Death of Roger Brindle, an extremely popular syndicated newspaper columnist who wrote of the people he knew in his New England hometown of Stowe, opens new chapters in the lives of his young widow, Carol, and the people of whom he had written so well. These include Albert and Bessie Kibbee and their son, Clyde, and Joe and Ethel Hattery, all of whom live in cottages on the grounds of the Brindle home. Another cottage occupant is Shandy Stowe, the reputedly wealthy former owner of the estate. On the heels of learning of a cryptic note regarding Roger's death, Shandy is told by Carol that a ghost writer, Lois Fleming, is going to help her write a series of stories on Roger. Shandy had known Lois years before. Lois arrives in Stoweville 10 days before she is expected. Paula Case, Roger's niece, tells Lois she is to occupy the cottage in which Roger had done his work. Shandy reminds the writer that she supplies the "intuition" on their long search for her war-missing husband who was killed.

CHAPTER TEN

Shandy dismissed the question of Lois' early arrival and went back to the point that interested him most. "Do you use that intuition of yours in ghosting?" "Oh, don't be ridiculous. Ghost-writing is merely telling another person's experience as he would tell it if he were trained. There's no much nonsense about it. People who live at first hand don't often have a talent for communicating experience. The Churchills are rare birds. After all, writing is a craft like any other. There's no more reason that a doctor or a lawyer or a politician or an explorer should be a writer than that he should be a musician. An honest ghost reflects his subject. That's all there is to it."

"But he also has to understand him." Shandy was still studying her. "You have been ill," he said, and there was more friendliness in his voice. "Pneumonia she told him. She was all right now except that she had not quite picked up her strength. A few weeks of country air ought to do the trick. His eyes went around the room. They haven't fixed the place up. That cracked windowpane should have been removed. They haven't even emptied the ashtrays."

He walked across the floor, his step faintly uneven, and shook up the pillows on the long couch which still held the impression of Roger Brindle's head, as though driving from the cottage the last vestige of the man's presence. The simple gesture seemed queerly ruthless. Something dropped to the floor as he moved the cushions, something that had lodged in the frame of the couch. Outside the window a shadow moved and Lois started. Her nerves still weren't what they might be, she thought, and there had been a furtive quality about that movement. Shandy said, "Joe Hattery has come to replace the windowpane. And high time. With the place locked up, nothing could be done before."

They watched while the small man outside scraped putty and lifted the glass onto the ground, taking quick sidelong looks at Lois and Shandy and around the cottage. When he had gone, Shandy said, "Carol asked me to bring you to lunch. It's a bit early but let's get out of here and walk for awhile." Lois opened her handbag and collected a handkerchief, cigars and compact. When she looked up, Shandy was holding the door open for her and the thing that had dropped from the couch was gone.

the thing that looked like a bullet. Shandy steered her around the side of the cottage. Questions hovered on her lips. She wanted to know why he had sold the house he loved and now lived "like a hermit." She wanted to know why he had not married the girl to whom he had been engaged seven years before, the girl to whom he had been afraid to return because of what the war had done to him: his lameness, his mutilated face. And she dared not ask her questions of the stranger he had become.

They strolled out of the scalding heat of the sun into the shade of the woods. As they passed the stone cottage that belonged to the Hatterys they heard someone moving in the shed beyond. Lois had a curious impression that Shandy shed away, then he turned deliberately and looked in at the open door. A woman with flaxen braids wound around her head, a shabby skirt with an irregular hem and a sweater with holes in it, stood looking down, in her hand a forgotten cigar. Lois followed the eyes of the absorbed woman. She was looking at the broken pane of glass propped against the wall. Shandy moved and his shadow fell on the floor. Without turning around, the woman laid the windowpane on the ground, picked up a hammer and deliberately smashed it.

They had gone some distance, climbing up into the woods, before Shandy spoke. "That, of course, was Ethel Hattery, faithful, the dependable, the noble secretary." "I didn't know," Lois said irrelevantly, trying to reconcile Roger Brindle's word portrait with the living person "that his secretary was pockmarked. Otherwise, she'd be rather pretty." As Shandy leaned forward to light her cigarette the sun fell on his face through the clearing between the trees. "I'm so glad your scars have all gone. Of course, they were never as bad as you thought but it's wonderful to have them vanish almost without a trace." His hand went to his face. He caught his breath. "Didn't you know that yourself?" she asked, shocked by something she saw in his eyes. "Oddly enough, I didn't."

"Is that," Lois demanded furiously, "why you have withdrawn into your shell like a turtle? Go home and take a look at yourself. Even Paula, who seems to think anyone over twenty-five is decrepit, described you as distinguished looking." "Good girl," Shandy encouraged her in a mocking tone. "Stay right in there, pitching." Lois closed her lips firmly on what she had been about to say. (To Be Continued)

Heart Disease Deaths Showed Drop During '54

WINSTON-SALEM — "Both the total number of deaths and the rate of deaths per 100,000 population from diseases of the heart and blood vessels dropped in 1954, as compared with 1953, but they still kill more than one-half of the people who die in this country each year," said Dr. Jon G. Smith of Rocky Mount, president of the North Carolina Heart Association at Winston-Salem today. In a report to the membership at the annual meeting being held Thursday and Friday in Winston-Salem, Dr. Smith stated that "The 1954 figures published by the National Offices of Vital Statistics also make it plain that heart diseases continue to take a heavy toll among people in the most productive years, the ages under 65. In this age group there were 232,750 deaths during 1954. This was 35.2 per cent of all deaths occurring under the age of 65 or more than double the number caused by cancer, the next leading cause of death in the under-65 age group.

Several hundred North Carolina physicians and volunteer workers are meeting in the twin-city to hear reports of latest developments in heart research and to make plans for the annual heart fund campaign which occurs each year in February. "February is heart month and Sunday February 26, 1956 will be HEART SUNDAY," reported Dr. Smith.

The following is a breakdown of the six leading causes of death in 1954 in North Carolina:

1. Diseases of the Heart and Blood Vessels 16,037
2. Cancer 3,768
3. All accidents 2,502
4. Influenza and Pneumonia 1,211
5. Immaturity 794
6. Nephritis and Nephrosis 652

Total deaths in North Carolina last year reported by the State Board of Health were 31,482.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW By FAGALY and SHORTEN

"Between Us Folks" By Bill Aldridge

CRICKET HATCHERY—Ever since hearing some of the fishing boys tell how the fish went after cricket bait which they bought from J. C. Youngblood on the Falkland Highway, my curiosity has been at a high ebb wondering how they were raised. Last week while in Farmville calling on plumber C. B. Masburn, he escorted me to the rear of his shop to show me a sideline hobby which he was embarking upon. It is the hatching of crickets and I asked C. B. how it was done. He just takes a pan and fills it with sand and places it at one end of the cage and the females automatically select the pan of sand to lay their eggs. The eggs are invisible to the eye and at frequent intervals the container of sand is placed in the brooder and the eggs are hatched out. Soon as C. B. finishes his hatchery behind his garage he will really get under way, providing his wife, Frances, doesn't change her mind. THE LAST LAUGH—Forgotten the gent's name who has a cottage on ten foot pilings on Broad Creek near the Washington Country Club but he is enjoying the 'last laugh.' He was really kidded by the other cottage builders about his ten foot pilings and it does look like a spider. Miss Lone put a stop to the 'jabber' and right now a cottage is going up beside him and it will be on ten foot pilings. The gent really rode out lone high and dry. THAT "BOOGER" SCALES—Phoned "Booger" Scales to inquire how the Jayces made out on the garbage can racks. He informed me that they sent out three teams and said—"Bill, you know I got an 8 lb. 10 oz. baby boy last night... the wife is doing fine... I made such a racket at the hospital they told me to hush or they would throw me out of the hospital. Boy, I'm really happy... waited long time for this. Not that I don't love my two little gals... you know how it is... done bought him a baseball, bat and glove... Lee Folger gave him a "supporter" just the right size... asked Dr. Haar if I could take him to the World Series today, but he told me I would have to wait until Saturdays game—We sold 410 racks and mighty proud of the way the Greenville people supported our project—Gotta go see my boy, goodbye!" TAG-ALONG—An exclusive hunt club held a fox hunt and instructed members to bring only male hounds. However, one influential gentleman owned only a female, so she was allowed to run with the pack. A fox was started and the huntmen followed for an hour, then lost the pack completely. One of the hunters saw a farmer in the field and asked, "Have you seen anything of a pack of hounds and a fox?" "Sure, just a minute ago. They were going that way." "What were they doing?" "Wal," said the farmer, "the fox was running fifth." COME ON DOWN FOLKS—Due to the fact that we are changing our paint line to Dutch Boy and Glens, we are selling our complete stock of Sherwin-Williams paint at COST. Take advantage of this saving. Folks, before you stick your neck out on interior or exterior decorating, let EDWARDS HARDWARE show you how to save money. Mr. Farmer, let us supply you with your builders hardware and building supplies. Good price on truck covers.

Top GOP Fund Raisers Are Told Not To Count Ike Out

By FRANK O'BRIEN
WASHINGTON (AP)—A Cabinet member was reported today to have told a group of important fund raisers for the Republican party there is no definite reason at this time to think President Eisenhower cannot run for a second term.

They were told, said one who attended, that Eisenhower alone can and will decide whether he will run in 1956.

The Cabinet member was not named.

His report was echoed within hours from a number of top-level administration and GOP quarters in a sudden lifting of the gloom that settled over the Republican 1956 presidential outlook after Eisenhower was laid low with a heart attack Saturday.

The outburst of optimism that

Eisenhower might yet lead the party's ticket in the 1956 presidential race was based on an assessment in high administration quarters here that Eisenhower's heart attack was "the lightest kind that a man can have."

This did not jibe with the medical bulletins from Denver, which at first described the attack as "mild" and later as "moderate—neither mild nor severe." Also, it appeared to ignore the fact that Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist, told reporters that fingers must be kept crossed for the first two weeks after the attack due to the possibility of complications.

The optimistic outlook did not jibe, either, with reports from Denver, where personal friends said it would be "unthinkable" to subject Eisenhower to the burdens of a 1956 political campaign and another year in office.

But the widespread nature of the belief—or hope—that Eisenhower may run again was indicated by the Associated Press poll. Of 116 GOP state chairmen and national committee members reached, only 12 said firmly Eisenhower should not run again. Five said he should; the others awaited further developments.

There were perhaps practical political reasons for the optimistic reports here. They could head off any major quarrel over continuing present policies, or keep up the level of campaign contributions, or dampen any party-weakening scramble for the 1956 presidential nomination.

Nevertheless, the optimism seemed genuine, whether or not well founded medically.

A participant at the fund raisers meeting, involving chiefly big New York money names, said the Cabinet member told the meeting:

"The President has not per se been knocked out of the 1956 presidential race by his heart attack. The President has had the lightest kind of this sort of attack that a man can have.

"There is no reason why, with a few changes in his manner of living, he should not go on. There is no reason in the attack why he should not be a candidate next year. He must stop thinking of himself as an iron man and get more rest.

"Whether he will be a candidate or not will be entirely up to him. He and he alone will decide, and there is plenty of time for that. But there is nothing in what has happened to eliminate him as the 1956 GOP candidate."

Meanwhile, it was learned that at today's National Security Council meeting and tomorrow's Cabinet meeting the Cabinet and chief Cabinet advisers expect to be able to put the administration in order for the duration of the President's absence.

Three Of Demo Party's Top Men Meet At Ranch

STONEWALL, Ark. (AP)—Three of the Democratic party's top men ate breakfast together at Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's Pedernales River ranch here today and probably had a lot to say about politics.

In addition to Johnson, Senate majority leader, they were Adlai Stevenson, titular head of the national party, and House Speaker Sam Rayburn who hopes to get the South back into the Democratic column in 1956.

They spent the night as Johnson's guest after Stevenson's lecture before a crowd of 5,500 at the University of Texas in Austin last night.

Stevenson steered clear of serious politics in his speech, and refused to answer most reporters' questions, saying he had promised not to talk politics before his non-partisan lecture under auspices of a University of Texas student committee.

Asked if he still intended to wait until November to announce his political plans, Stevenson's reply was "Yes."

Also asked if he intended to reply to Gov. Allan Shivers' statement that he could not support Stevenson if he is the party's nominee in 1956, Stevenson's reply was "I haven't the faintest idea."

Stevenson won more than half a minute of applause and laughter at a job in his speech which did not mention Shivers by name, but which was an obvious reference to their political enmity.

The 1952 presidential candidate had disclaimed his qualifications to speak on "America, the Economic Colossus," saying he was not a full-time expert on such matters.

"Must I conclude that you young Texans asked me to speak because I am a full-time Democrat?" he asked. The audience laughed and cheered.

In 1952, Shivers repudiated Stevenson when the Democratic candidate refused to uphold Texas' "Lands Claims."

Much of Stevenson's 50-minute paid lecture stuck closely to the general subjects of trade and aid, and the need to back up talk about trade with other nations with performance.

It would suffer a staggering blow if the uncommitted third of the world turns to communism. He suggested a carefully administered program of economic and technical assistance to nations that need it.

Wreck Reported From Honolulu

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP)—The accident happened in Rawlins, Wyo., but police say the speedy report went by way of Honolulu.

A ham radio operator saw the accident on Highway 30 about 23 miles west of Rawlins and broadcast an appeal for aid. The message was picked up by another amateur operator in Honolulu, some 2,200 miles west of here.

The Honolulu operator relayed the appeal, which was received by a ham here and reported to police Officer Freeman Calvert, who sent a Teletype message to Rawlins, said the entire transmission took less than 20 minutes, probably quicker than if a witness at the crash scene had driven directly to Rawlins.

U. S. Fighters Share Rabarscope With Reds

YUMA, Ariz. (AP)—Sharing a radarscope with a Soviet fighter pilot is a little close, but it's old stuff for members of the Alaskan Air Command's hot rocketry team now in Yuma.

Headed by Col. Ronald D. Hubbard of Warren, Ohio, the team carries the Alaska Air Command's hopes against seven other crack units in the U. S. Air Force worldwide air-to-air rocketry competition scheduled here Oct. 3-7.

"When we are on the job in Alaska," Col. Hubbard said, "Siberia is only 28 miles away. If they go out over the Bering Sea, so do we. And that puts us even closer together."

Intelligence reports put Russian air strength east of the Ural Mountains well in excess of 10,000 aircraft of all kinds and some of them are as close as they can get to the North American continent for what Col. Hubbard termed frequent "spoofing" missions.

These are runs into the Alaskan radar surveillance to see what kind and how quick a reaction results. The purpose is to test the alertness and probe for weaknesses in the defenses.

A director of operations for the Alaskan Air Command 11th Air Division, Col. Hubbard is very conscious of this.

"We always scramble when we pick up Soviet aircraft on our radarscopes," said expert radarman Capt. Patrick F. Donnelly of St. Louis, Mo.

"While we are keeping them in sight, it is easy for both our flight and the Russians to be within an inch of each other on the glass." He did not say exactly how close they would be but even 28 miles is close for a couple of jets.

Col. Hubbard said:

"As we would probably be the first to be tried if this country were ever hit by an air attack, I'd feel a lot better if we took first in this meet."

COURT COATS
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A. W. Sagart operates what is laughingly known as the town's worst men's clothes shop. It's the stock of coats he keeps for persons who show up in federal court coatless. He's U. S. Marshal for the Western District of Texas and the rule is that everybody has to wear a coat in court.

No Gore, Just Brilliant Syrup

STORRS, Conn. (AP)—The nurse on duty at the University of Connecticut infirmary jumped to her feet when a student walked in, his white shirt spotted with red.

"What's wrong?" she cried.

"I'd like to have this silver removed," the student said, holding out his hand. He explained the red on his shirt was strawberry syrup. He works in an ice cream shop.

Mother Says Its Safer To Raise Kids On Boat

"HAVE A BITE" . . . Shirley Gray wife of Canadian painter Jack L. Gray, feeds her son, John 2 1-2, aboard the cruiser they call home. The dog is visiting from a boat docked alongside the Gray's boat.

AP Newsfeatures

The safest place to bring up a youngster, says the wife of a young Canadian artist, is on a boat. "Seasickness came naturally to my 2½-year-old John," says Shirley Gray, pert, brown-eyed wife of marine painter Jack L. Gray, who has just completed a successful one-man show in New York. "We live on a boat the year round, and it's no trouble at all raising children on board ship. It's really safer than letting them play in a yard where they might get out on the street. I just put a life jacket on John and if he falls off—which he never has—he'd float." In fact, she adds, she'd like to have three more children. "And when they grow up, we'll have a crew." As it is, 27-year-old Jack does all the piloting and other nautical tasks connected with maintaining the chartered 62-foot cruiser while he's sailing around looking for a likely spot to paint. The Grays have lived on boats all the five years of their marriage, except for several months after John was born in a hospital in their hometown of Halifax, Nova Scotia. Says Shirley "My parents weren't happy about my marrying an artist. And they were aghast at my living on a boat. Now, of course, they think it's a wonderful. At first the boat was a novelty to me. Now I don't think I could be happy in an apartment away from one. "You never get lonely on a boat. And I have been lonely in an apartment. As for backfence gossip, well, you can get it when you're tied up at a dock, like here at the Flushing Bay Boat Basin with hundreds of other motor yachts. You borrow sugar back and forth and talk." When the baby grows to school age, Shirley says, "we're going to dock where we want to send him to school and pay taxes and take sea trips only on weekends." Like most couples, the Grays want to build their own home—and the prime specification is 62 feet from stem to stern. "That's a good-sized boat," says Shirley, "and we'll need the room. And I want real furniture, not the built-in kind usually found on boats. We're rarely in heavy enough sea to warrant it, but if we had to we could screw the furniture down. "And almost more than anything, I want a nursery, a real nursery. That's for the crew, of course," she laughs.

Business Asset Was Too Clever

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—They were good for business—in more ways than one—but a northern Wisconsin resort operator's pet coons had to go. Fishermen came to the resort to see the coons. Once there, they bought minnows. Then they bought more minnows, because the original minnows had a way of evaporating from the bait buckets. Then someone caught the coons at their thievery: one swiping minnows while the other performed.

Cornell University recently received a "grangerized" copy of a rare Charles Dickens biography from William G. Mennen. Based on a 1789 British tradition, "grangerized" means a biography which has blank pages for later pictures and letters to be added after publication.

Telephone Back After 25 Years

RUFFIN, S.C. (AP)—This small rural community has telephone service again after more than 25 years. A new rural cooperative is furnishing the service. Ruffin residents long ago had the old type of wall phones that had to be rung with a hand crank and these formed a fairly complete network for the town.

'Brightest' Boys Debate Outcome

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Suppose that upon graduation from high school you won one of the most famed scholarships of all time, were headlined throughout the nation as "the brightest boy in America," and educated accordingly.

Would it have any significant effect on your later career? Two men, now in their early 40s, had that unique experience. One says it was a significant factor in landing him in his present job as an aeronautical research scientist. The other, a physics professor, says he believes his career would have been pretty much the same without the scholarship.

Wilber B. Huston and Prof. Arthur O. Williams Jr. were the only winners of a scholarship set up nearly three decades ago by Thomas Alva Edison. Newspapers hailed the winner as the nation's brightest boy. He was selected from candidates quizzed by a board of prominent men. The scholarships were awarded in 1926 and 1930, then discontinued because of Edison's death. The first winner, in 1926, was Huston, then 16 and freshly graduated from Lakeside High School in Seattle, Wash. Williams, who had just completed his studies at East Providence (R.I.) High School was chosen in 1930. Both automatically won all-expense education at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and received widespread publicity. Where are they today? Huston is a civil service scientist, engaged in research for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics at Langley Air Force Base, Hampton, Va. Williams is teaching a few courses and specializing in theoretical physics at Brown University in Providence. Says Williams:

"I think my career would have been pretty much the same even if I hadn't won that scholarship. I don't believe it would have made much difference." One difference that it did make, however, was that Williams received his undergraduate education at MIT. He later returned to Brown for graduate study, and it was in this period that he decided to devote himself to an academic career. He took his Ph.D. in physics at Brown in 1937. In the fall of 1937, he joined the faculty of the University of Maine. Five years later he returned to Brown, and now lives quietly in Barrington, R.I., with his wife and a 12-year-old daughter.

Huston joined a small research laboratory run by Theodore Edison, son of the inventor, after his graduation from MIT in 1933. The background of the Edison scholarship caught up with Huston while he was in the Army during World War II. The ranks of scientists working for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics had been depleted by the war, and in 1944 the committee sought to fill the gaps with especially qualified service personnel. Huston was chosen because of his education under the scholarship. In 1945 he was given an honorable discharge and continued his work under federal civil service. Today Huston's job is with the maneuver loads branch of NACA, which tests the strength, buffeting ability and air speed measurement of military and civilian planes in the panning stages. He is married and the father of four boys. Even though 25 years have passed, Williams still winces at the label, "America's Brightest Boy." "That was a purely publicity label," he says, "and really had nothing to do with the Edison scholarship. I have always known I was not a prodigy. As far as I can see, I'm just a fellow of average career in academic work." Huston, similarly modest, says only that the past 26 years have been extremely kind to him and "I shall always be grateful to

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Railroads provided the buying spark today in the stock market.

By early afternoon, prices were up from 1 to 3 points while losses went from 1 to 3 points at the outside.

The rise today was the third straight since the major break that came Monday on news that President Eisenhower had suffered a heart attack.

The trading pace was unusually slow as compared with the three previous days. It was well below yesterday's 3,780,000 shares. Monday's total was a giant 7,720,000 shares.

The market opened higher with a brief rush. Thereafter prices turned mixed and leaned lower. That trend was replaced by a gradual improvement headed by the railroads.

Among higher stocks were New York Central, Northern Pacific, United Air Lines, American Telephone, Anaconda Co., American Tobacco, Youngtown Sheet & Tube, Chrysler, Boeing and North American Aviation.

Lower were Standard Oil (NJ), U.S. Gypsum, American Smelting, Du Pont, International Paper, and Zenith radio.

Counselor Looks To Needs Of 900

Mothers with two or three children or teachers with 20 or 30 pupils feel that their burden is heavy and their hands are full, but Miss Gloria Blanton, counselor at the Baptist Student Center for East Carolina College, in Greenville, has 900 Baptist and Baptist preference students on her mind and in her heart.

Miss Blanton, who is a member of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club, serving as its president in 1952-53, has an active program planned at the Student Center and at the Memorial and Immanuel Baptist Churches for their week-day and Sunday activities.

Supper forums, morning watch and vespers are often followed by a recreation program including ping pong, games piano and record playing, and general good fellowship at the student center, 404 East Eighth Street. The N.C. Baptist State Convention purchased this "home away from home" several years ago, giving Miss Blanton a definite location for students programs off campus.

As for her work, "I love it," she says. "The Baptist students at ECC are wonderful people with whom to work, and the Greenville people are so cooperative, too," she added.

Formal Education
The Christian education worker holds a master's degree in Christian Education from Columbia University, graduating in the summer session of 1954. She came to work in Greenville in 1947, the same year she received a B. A. degree Cum Laude from Wake Forest College.

GLOBIA BLANTON

She also received special counseling training at Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem.

Miss Blanton is an active member of the BPW Club, and Mrs. Blair Cox Wheelless, spearheaded what Pitt Polio Chairman June H. Rose has termed "the most successful polio foundation drive," raising more funds than in any previous year.

She has served the club as Publicity Committee chairman, editor of the Club Bulletin, International Relations Committee chairman and in other capacities on special committees and programs.

She represented the local group at the biennial convention of the National Foundation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., in Boston, and she has attended several state conventions and district meetings, appearing as a speaker on many programs.

Dupree was taken into custody by Rocky Mount police yesterday. Local officers questioned him and today said that Dupree had been charged with the break-in. He is being charged also with the theft of a gun from Otis Tucker, Negro, of Greenville.

Local police had been seeking Dupree, whose local address is 1211-A Pitt Street, since the Diana Shop robbery.

BOSTON (AP)—Stage actress Katharine Cornell is scheduled to undergo an operation today for the partial removal of a lung lobe. She entered New England Deaconess Hospital yesterday where her physician, Dr. Richard H. Overholt, described the ailment as a "small, chronic lung abscess." The hospital said she will be able to fulfill a planned November tour.

Calls For Early End To Campaign

Howard Hodges, co-chairman of the Pitt County Farm Bureau membership drive, today called on Farm Bureau workers and Pitt farmers to wind up local Farm Bureau membership campaign as rapidly as possible.

At the same time, Hodges urged Pitt farmers to join the local Farm Bureau organization. "So far our membership campaign is not 25 per cent completed," Hodges said. "This year and next year are going to be all-important to farmers and business of Pitt County and we need to present a united front through the Farm Bureau."

Membership campaign co-chairmen Hodges and Charles Gaskins announced today a tentative deadline of October 15 has been set for the end of the Pitt membership drive of the Farm Bureau. The organization this year is seeking to get Farm Bureau memberships in Pitt County above the 4,000 mark.

U. S. Troops Are Going Into Italy

BRENNERO Italy (AP) — U. S. combat troops leaving Austria entered Italy before dawn today for NATO duty. Their mission: to help the Italian army plug a gap in Western defenses by Austrian neutrality.

The new arrivals are the first Americans combat troops to be stationed in Italy since October 1947 when the 88th Infantry Division was deactivated as a combat unit. American soldiers based at Leghorn and Naples are from service units.

Crossing the Austrian-Italian border through historic Brenner Pass was a convoy of 214 officers and men under Lt. Col. William W. Hawke of Terryton, Tex., commander of the 1st Battalion of the 350th Infantry Regiment.

The convoy was the vanguard of some 5,000 Americans who will form a new Southern European Task Force Command under Brig. Gen. John H. Michaels. It will operate under Italian Lt. Gen. Clemente Primieri, NATO's commander of land forces in southern Europe.

Two soldiers — Sgt. Thomas E. Curry of Delaware, Ohio, and Pfc. Vernon D. Fletcher of Moultrie, Ga. — were first across the border. The convoy headed for Vincenza, 150 miles southwest of here, to set up headquarters in concrete Italian army barracks.

The Americans are pulling out of Austria under the independence treaty signed by the Big Four with that country last May. Some engineering and other units left ahead of the combat troops.

Prison Inmates Refuse To Eat

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP)—Thirty-seven inmates at the state penitentiary passed up their fifth successive meal last night in protest against outmoded quarters and the possibility of punishment for rioting in July and August.

The men are drinking large quantities of water, apparently to assuage the hunger pangs, and a prison physician is checking them regularly.

Marie Dionne Is Back In Convent

QUEBEC (AP)—Marie Dionne, one of the quintuplets, is back at the Roman Catholic convent she left 16 months ago.

Authorities at the convent of the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament said Marie, now 21, had been permitted to return Sept. 12 as a novice instead of starting again as a postulant. She also resumed her religious name, Sister Marie-Rachel.

She first entered the convent in November 1953 but left in May 1954 because of poor health and extreme homesickness. She cannot become a permanent member of the order until she has served as a novice for two years.

Evades Query

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) parried the question last night as to whether he might be a candidate for the presidential nomination.

In answer to a query from his audience at the University of North Carolina, Knowland said any statement he might make on his candidacy would be "premature." He made the same declaration at a brief supper talk.

Knowland expressed the hope of everyone that the President would recover soon and completely. Until then, he said, "any other statements would be premature."

"We trimmed them twice ourselves at home," said Kennedy. "Each time we had to quiet him with a couple of nembutal capsules."

"There hasn't been a rat in the area since the day after he came," Kennedy said.

"Whither Smerdley? A zoological expert told the actor no ocelot ever made a completely satisfactory pet. Ocelot lovers disagree with this emphatically.

"I adore him, but he is a problem," admitted Mrs. Kennedy, who bears a few scratch scars herself. "The only one he is cuddly with is Laurie."

"He isn't very attractive," agreed her husband. "But he is absolutely fascinating to watch. That's his only charm."

"We're going to keep him as long as we can. Every time I mention giving him to a zoo, our daughter simply cracks up." Unconcerned about his fate, Smerdley just keeps on switching his tail, growling . . . and growing, growing, growing.
