Strides Lengthen In Medical Recovery

Ike Steps Up Work

DENVER (AP) — Recovering President Eisenhower takes a look today at how things are going in the national defense field after passing a few more important milestones toward recovery over the weekend.

Secretary of Defense Wilson and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were flying out from Washington for a military affairs conference with the President at Ft. Monmouth Army Hospital.

The meeting — Eisenhower's fourth at the hospital with administrative leaders — is part of the program of steadily increasing official activity the doctors are permitting. Sessions with other key government men are scheduled for later in the week.

Wilson and Radford were meeting with the President in the wake of their encouraging new developments in his convalescence from a Sept. 24 heart attack.

For the first time since he entered the hospital, Eisenhower on Saturday was out of bed and sat in an easy chair for 15 minutes. Yesterday he was in the chair for 30 minutes — and he got a report there on the new floods ravaging the Northeastern states, and on the federal government's relief activities.

Attendees lifted the President from his bed and back again. Through his chief aide Sherman Adams, Eisenhower later sent word to the stricken areas that all necessary steps will be taken under the disaster relief laws to provide help for the flood victims.

The President's physicians announced that daily cardiograms — tracing heart repair progress — no longer will be taken because of the steady improvement in his condition.

That decision came 26 hours after Friday's cardiogram showed that Eisenhower's heart performance had "stabilized at a satisfactory level" — apparently sooner than the doctors had expected.

From now on cardiograms will be taken "at less frequent intervals," the hospital said. There was none Saturday, and one yesterday showed the situation "stable and unchanged from his previous record."

Col. Thomas W. Mattingly, an Army heart specialist who flew here from Washington a few hours after Eisenhower's attack, is returning to his post at Walter Reed Hospital in the capital. A medical bulletin from the hospital late yesterday carried the now familiar encouraging note — the chief executive continuing to "progress satisfactorily without complications."

The doctors also reported that the President's bed again was rolled out onto an open terrace near his eighth-floor room, and that he got 40 minutes of sunshine and fresh air. Mrs. Eisenhower sat with him on the sun deck.

For his earlier session in an easy chair, Eisenhower doctored himself out in gay bow tie — red with blue polka dots — snapped into place around the collar of yellow pajamas. The somewhat garish ties with pajamas reflect a jovial mood and always get a laugh from the President's visitors.

ADA Has 'Advice' For GOP, Demos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prospects for the Republican presidential nomination figured prominently in political talk yesterday.

And "advice" to both parties came from Chairman Joseph L. Rauh Jr. of Americans for Democratic Action, a political action group espousing New Deal and "Fair Deal" principles. Rauh told a New Jersey state ADA convention.

Republicans should "drop" Vice President Nixon as a 1956 presidential possibility because, Rauh said, the independent voter will "never swallow him."

Democrats should remember they are the "party of liberalism" and that compromise and timidity have never won elections for them in the past, any more than they will in 1956.

Nixon's name cropped up in New York with the arrival of California's Gov. Goodwin J. Knight for a series of speeches at GOP meetings. Knight had been criticized by Nixon supporters in California for his announced plan to lead the state's big delegation to the Republican National Convention next year as a nominal candidate for president, even if that pitted him

Knight said "I'm not a candidate for president" even if President Eisenhower doesn't seek re-election.

Child Injured In Traffic Mishap

A four year old Negro child received bruises and abrasions when he apparently ran into the path of a car on 14th Street early last night. William Cox, the injured child, was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was admitted for observation. Police listed his address as 507 15th Street.

Driver of the car which struck the Cox child was James Robert Little, 35, of 204 Arlington Drive. He was travelling east on 14th Street at the time of the accident. No charges were placed against Little by investigating officers J.E. Gurganus and W.R. Eiks.

Meanwhile, in an accident Saturday, damage estimated at $109 was done to cars operated by J.L. Whitchard, a city police officer, of 807 Albermarle Avenue and Jo Faye Beddard, 19, of Winterville. No injuries were reported from the accident, which took place on Dickinson Avenue and no charges were made by investigating officer W.C. Flake.

N.C. Editor Dies At Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — William T. Polk, a North Carolinian who turned from law to editorial writing, was found dead in a Washington hotel yesterday.

Polk, 59, apparently died in his sleep from natural causes, Washington police said. An autopsy was to be performed today.

Polk, who had been associate editor of the Greensboro (N.C.) Daily News for the past 14 years, had been attending a conference of the National Editorial Writers Assn.

tion, and "Nixon is all right with me if he's nominated. It depends on what the President's wishes are."

New York's Republican Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits said on a TV program it would be "logical" to assume his state's GOP delegation to the convention would offer former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as a "favorite son" candidate for president.

Harold E. Stassen, the President's special assistant on disarmament, said on a separate TV program that "I do not consider myself a candidate" even if Eisenhower doesn't run.

Sen. Butler (R-Md) said it will be harder for the GOP to win if Eisenhower doesn't seek re-election. "But I think it can be done."

Gov. Lawrence Wetherby of Kentucky, at Point Clear, Ala., for a conference of Southern governors that opens tomorrow, said today the odds favor the South voting solidly Democratic in 1956. And, he told newsmen, he sees Adlai Stevenson as the winner in presidential balloting if Eisenhower doesn't run.

Carmine G. DeSapio, New York's Democratic national committee man who is pushing Gov. Averell Harriman of New York for president, said after a West Coast trip 48 hours before the election, "surprising" large amount of pro-Harriman feeling in California. Sen. Ellender (D-La) said he hopes Harriman, once a foreign aid administrator under President Truman, does not win the Democratic nomination because he is "the type to give away all we've got."

ASC Elections Slated Tuesday

Pitt County farmers will elect their Agricultural Stabilization Committee tomorrow, ASC Secretary James Meredith has announced.

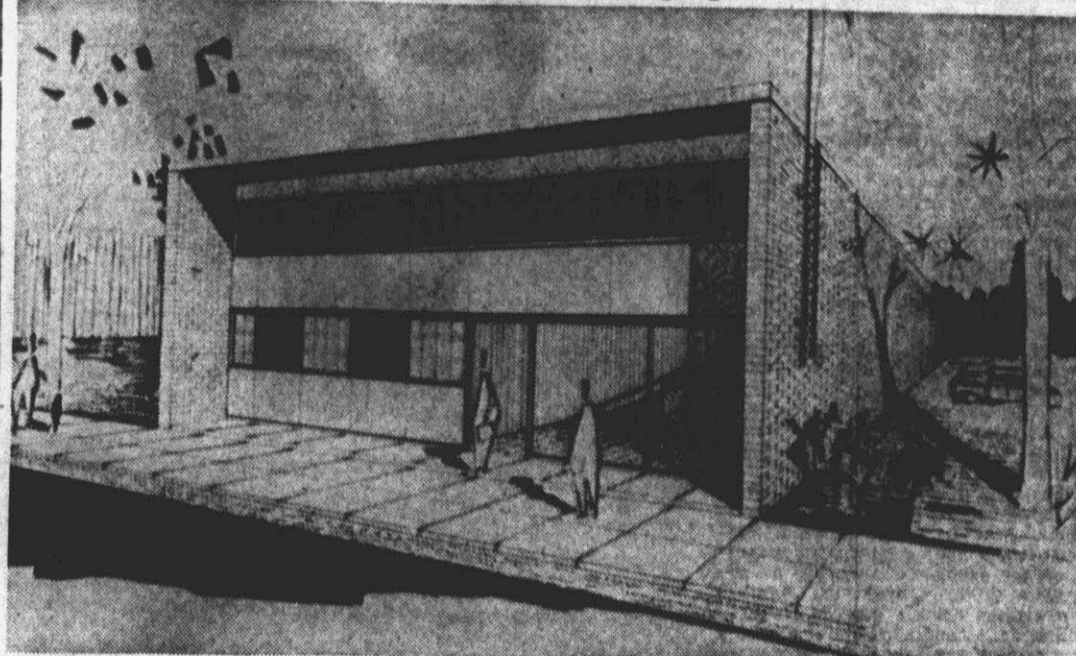

Three men from each area are to be chosen in the balloting, which begins at 9 a.m. and ends at 5 p.m. Polling places for tomorrow's voting will be: Ayden and Ayden B. Town Hall; Beaver Dam, D. M. Crawford's Store; Belvoir, Dupree Brothers Store; Bethel, New Town Hall; Carolina, Stokes School House; Chicod A. H. H. Porter's Store; Chicod B. Grimsland Town Hall; Chicod C. NEW REFLECTOR BUILDING—Pictured here is an architect's drawing of the new Reflector Building which will be constructed as a part of the expansion program for the newspaper announced today. The new two-story building will be located on Cotanche Street between Third and Second. The Reflector also announced today the purchase of a 32-page press which will be installed in the new building.

Daily Reflector Announces Expansion Program Ahead

The Daily Reflector today announced plans for a major expansion program which will include a new building and the installation of a 32-page press.

The announcement was made by D. J. Whitchard, Jr., president and publisher of the newspaper.

Construction of a new two-story building to house the newspaper's offices and mechanical departments will begin immediately, Whitchard said. The building will be located on Cotanche Street between Third and Second Streets, and will be of modern masonry, steel and concrete construction. The structure will contain approximately 7,600 square feet of floor space which will afford the newspaper one and one-half times the operating space it has in its present building on Evans Street.

The Reflector recently purchased a 32-page press which will enable the newspaper to double its present page capacity. The press was purchased from the News and Observer Publishing Company, and was formerly used by The Raleigh Times. The mechanical operation of the Times was combined with that of the News and Observer three months ago following the purchase of the Times by the Observer Publishing Company.

The installation of the Press will mark the second time in less than 10 years in which the Daily Reflector has doubled its press capacity. The 16-page press now used by the newspaper was installed in 1947 replacing an eight page press which had been used for a decade prior to that date.

The expansion program will likewise mark the second time in a decade that the Reflector has found it necessary to increase its physical plant to take care of growing operations.

The property on which the new Reflector building will be erected extends through the block from Cotanche to Reade Streets and in addition to the building will afford ample parking space for employees and customers of the newspaper.

The new air conditioned building will be of modern construction throughout. On the first floor of the building will be located the advertising, business, circulation and distribution departments of the paper as well as the pressroom and stereotype department. The second floor of the structure will be occupied by the newsroom, photographic and engraving departments and composing room.

In addition to greater page capacity the installation of the 32-page press will afford the newspaper increased speed for printing its editions, and likewise enable the newspaper to offer its advertisers multi-color printing on designated pages in the paper.

The building is expected to be completed and ready for occupancy next spring. General contractor for the building is P. S. West, a construction company of Greenville, Architect of the newspaper plant was Billy Griffin of Goldsboro.

Boykin said that the charge of assault with a deadly weapon placed against Little was in reference to the car. He added, too, that a passenger in Little's car, Clyde Willis, 39, Negro, of Route 2, was also charged with being drunk and, in addition, with carrying a concealed weapon, a .32 caliber revolver.

The two Negroes were lodged in county jail here following the accident.

Driver Held As Car Strikes Pedestrian

A Negro man, Robert Lee Little, 31, of Route 3 Washington, has been charged with driving drunk, no operator's license and assault with a deadly weapon after his car was driving ran off US 264 west of here yesterday and struck a woman pedestrian.

Injured in the accident, which occurred about 3 p.m., was Mrs. Leola Mae Smith, 43, of Route 6. She was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Fire Department Rescue truck where her injuries were diagnosed as a fractured right ankle, four fractured vertebrae and lacerations of the right arm.

Mrs. Smith was reported to have been walking toward Greenville about eight miles east of town when the car driven by Little came up behind her, crossed over the highway to where she was walking on the left and struck her.

State Highway Patrolman James Boykin, who investigated the accident, said Mrs. Smith was walking in accordance with traffic regulations and was on the dirt shoulder of the road when struck.

At 5 a.m., his car left the home of wealthy friends in the Paraguayan capital, where he has been staying since his exile from Argentina a month ago. He was headed for the estate near Villarrica where the Paraguayan government has promised to intern him.

More Rains For Flooded States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Predictions of more rain today and tomorrow brought new fears to wide areas of Northeast states still staggering under floods and washouts caused by heavy weekend downpours.

The toll of persons known or presumed dead in six states rose to 38. Property losses mounted into untold millions.

The American Red Cross said about 6,900 families have been affected in the storm sectors — 3,200 in Connecticut, 1,600 each in New York and New Jersey, and 700 in Pennsylvania.

Hops for a breather to clean up the flood damage of the four-day rain faded when the U. S. Weather Bureau in Boston predicted two more days of rainfall except for "some periods of letup."

The bureau alerted eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island to watch rising water levels in the Connecticut River. These areas had been mainly spared Hurricane Diane's punch of last Aug. 18-19.

Although rain was expected to end during the day in upper New York state, the Weather Bureau said heavy rains in the Adirondacks might cause a second cresting of the big Mohawk River. Schenectady, Greene and Ulster counties in the Catskills appeared to have suffered the worst damage.

The floods caused havoc to transportation of millions. Much rail service was halted highways were closed bridges knocked out and power lines down.

Revised figures on fatalities showed 15 dead or presumed dead in Connecticut; 11 in New York; Pennsylvania 7; Rhode Island 3; and New Jersey and Massachusetts 1 each.

Thousands of residents were evacuated from flood areas by helicopter, boat, auto and individual rescue efforts.

Continuing rain caused worry in New Jersey too.

The big chore ahead was cleaning up and getting ariated transportation moving again. Roads were blocked throughout the area, particularly in Connecticut.

There was a threat too to employment until flooded factories could get out from blankets of mud. The weather was freakish. A two-minute twister tore through the Red Bank, N.J., area yesterday afternoon. Snow fell in western Massachusetts, southern Vermont and northern New York.

A new hurricane, Katie, bore down on Haiti and the Dominican Republic. She was not expected to bother the U.S. mainland, however.

Katie's older sister Diane set the pattern for this weekend's unnamed storm. The toll of Diane's flood deaths two months ago was 169 dead, 30 missing and damage estimated at 1 1/2 billion dollars.

Connecticut again was the hardest hit, both in life and property. Three U.S. Rubber plants in Naugatuck were knocked out and the company said 5,000 workers would be out of jobs temporarily. Connecticut suffered 13 dead or presumed dead, New York 10, Pennsylvania 7, Rhode Island 3 and New Jersey and Massachusetts 1 each.

Danbury, Conn., reported more than 11 inches of rain from Friday through Sunday, a record. But other cities were considerably below that figure.

Diane's surprise assault produced a battle-tested rescue and relief team. With more warning, because this weekend's disaster developed slower, this team went smoothly into operation again. The Army, Navy and Coast Guard mobilized a heavy Civil defense and the Red Cross sprang into action.

As the weary mayor of Ansonia, Conn., William T. Sheehy, put it: "There's a limit to the punishment people can take."

Pastor Leaving

The Rev. J. A. Nelson, who on November 20 will observe his ninth year here as pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, resigned yesterday. His resignation, which has not yet been accepted by his church, is to take effect November 27.

The Rev. Mr. Nelson is leaving Greenville to become pastor of the Olive Chapel Baptist Church, a rural church near Apex, from which he said he has received "a unanimous call."

During his 28 years in the ministry, the Baptist pastor has served only four different churches.

Fast Round-Trip By Jet Airliner

SEATTLE (AP) — Boeing's 707 strato-liner flew round-trip across the country yesterday in less time than it takes conventional airliners to cross the nation one way.

The 707 took 3 hours and 58 minutes to fly from Seattle to Washington D.C. at an average speed of 622 miles per hour.

After a brief stopover in the national capital, the first American commercial jet air transport flew back to Seattle in 4 hours and 8 minutes at an average speed of 570 miles an hour.

This means that it took 8 hours and 6 minutes of elapsed flying time at an average of 581 miles per hour for the transcontinental roundtrip.

Evacuation Goes On For Flooded Norwalk, Conn.

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Helicopters hovered overhead. Weary policemen, firemen, National Guardsmen and military police patrolled the road. Thousands of the curious milled around the city, creating traffic jams.

Where the bridges were down and houses demolished, crowds stood staring in disbelief. The principal business area was hit hard. Stores and houses hung precariously over the swirling Norwalk River.

This was Norwalk, a city of 60,000 that has suffered the backlash of hurricanes but which until this week had escaped comparatively unscathed.

The greater part of the city was without light and power. Some 400 citizens were bunking down in schools and other civic centers, living or Salvation Army and Red Cross rations and not knowing whether they could get back into their homes or whether their homes any longer existed.

There were evacuations going on by boat, by bus, by Army Snorkel trucks, and every other possible means.

In the business area, the Norwalk River, tore away at factory and house foundations, hurled automobiles against embankments, and bashed down a stone bridge.

The building that housed the local radio station collapsed. WNLK operated from its transmitter station on a 24-hour basis, giving bulletins almost every few minutes.

From all over the city area came frantic calls for help.

Mayor Irving Freese, touring the stricken area at night, shone his car searchlight on a pond in a city parking lot. He saw a woman clinging to a part of the porch wrenched from her home.

Lt. Stuart Black of the National Guard who was with Freese, dived in and brought the woman near shore. The mayor dragged the exhausted guardsman and the woman to safety.

Her friends in the court circle said that the meetings of the last few days are nothing more than a royal way of enabling her to say goodbye to an old friend of the family," the paper asserted.

The Rev. W. J. P. Cox, vicar of the Anglican church near the home of Townsend's mother, let it be known his parishioners are in for a disappointment if they think Margaret might marry Townsend.

Members of the Anglican clergy began choosing sides. Some were willing to perform a Margaret lodge said Princess Margaret had ordered breakfast, in bed.

There was still no official confirmation of what most of the public believed to be true — that the princess had said "Yes" to the handsome aviator. But the four-million-circulation Sunday newspaper The People cautioned its readers that, assuming the marriage had been arranged was "a big mistake."

Margaret and Mrs. Willis interrupted the visit with Townsend to attend church with Queen Mother Elizabeth at Windsor Castle's Royal chapel. Unsmiling and tense, Margaret omitted her customary waves and smiles as she drove past the crowd of 400 curious waiting near the Willis home.

Townsend went for an early morning horseback ride today. To newsmen's questions about the romance, he replied sharply: "Leave it will you?"

Storm Clouds Rise In Margaret's Romance

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret returned to London today from a weekend in the country with Peter Townsend amid reports of increasingly opposition to their marriage in royal circles and some sections of the Church of England.

Hundreds of Londoners assembled at the gate got only a fleeting glimpse of the princess as she drove through the Clarence House gates in a Rolls Royce, accompanied by her lady-in-waiting, Lady Iris Peake, and her bodyguard, Detective Fred Crocker. Only a few minutes earlier, the Queen Mother had returned from Windsor Castle.

Townsend is expected to return later in the day to the home of the Marquis of Aberavenny in Lower Square where he is a guest during his leave from his post in Belgium.

There still was no official word on whether the Queen's sister and the supposed engagement was the handsome air force hero will marry — although millions of Britons are convinced they will.

The Duke of Edinburgh, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, was said to be a witness strongly against a union between the 25-year-old royal beauty and the divorced Royal Air Force hero, who will be 41 next month.

One newspaper quoted 83-year-old Princess Marie Louise, a granddaughter of Queen Victoria, as saying such a marriage would be unthinkable.

There were unconfirmed rumors, that the Archbishop of Canterbury, the top relate of the established Church of England, would voice his disapproval publicly if made official.

Members of the Anglican clergy began choosing sides. Some were willing to perform a Margaret lodge said Princess Margaret had ordered breakfast, in bed.

The East Carolina College chapter of Pi Omega Pi, national honorary business education fraternity, has for the second time been designated the outstanding chapter of the organization in this country and in recognition of the honor will receive here Thursday, October 20, a trophy presented by the fraternity.

Since 1952 the national award has been presented each year to the chapter judged most outstanding in its activities. The Beta Kappa Chapter at East Carolina was chosen as the first recipient and has just been selected as top organization for 1954-1955 among 96 chapters in this country. It is the only chapter to be cited twice for the national merit award.

Mina M. Johnson of Muncie, Indiana, national president of Pi Omega Pi, will present the trophy to members at a dinner meeting of the fraternity at the Greenville Country Club, October 20. John W. Hudson of Kinston, president of the Beta Kappa Chapter during 1954-1955, will accept it for club members.

The Beta Kappa chapter at East Carolina carries on during the academic year a varied program of activities, including raising funds for a college scholarship, serving as a sponsor of the annual Pitt County typewriting contest staged at the college for students in public schools, and issuing a yearbook for student and alumni members. Dr. Audrey V. Demsey and Lena C. Ellis of the college business education department are faculty sponsors of the group.

Red Oak News

Plans are underway for one of the best Harvest Auction Sale and Suppers ever held at the Red Oak Community Building. The date is Wednesday night, October 19th. Supper will be served from 5:00 o'clock until 7:30 at which time our friend and auctioneer, Reginald W. Aikson of Scotland Neck, will call for the first bid on the many items the men and women of the church have especially prepared for this auction.

About ten months ago, Mr. Ola Kittrell put a special mark on one of his good cured hams to be offered in this sale. Mrs. Jarvis Tripp has beautiful and delicious sweet-pickled peaches; Mrs. Tyson has prepared some good old-fashioned grape preserves, and all the good cake-bakers and candy-makers will have plenty of their wares for sale.

Circle No. 3 will have two quilts, lovingly fashioned by their own hands with hours and hours of work. They are, today, having an old-fashioned Quilting-Bee and will have their quilts on sale at the auction.

A beautiful handmade baby-blue shawl, many beautifully dressed dolls, canned goods of all kinds, dressed poultry, eggs, etc., will keep the auctioneer laughing, talking and teasing our guests to dig deep into their pockets to help a worthwhile cause. All proceeds will go on the building fund. You will have a wonderful evening if you will come out and have a delicious fried chicken supper with all the accessories and stay for the sale. While you are waiting for 7:30 o'clock to come you will be entertained by the "Gospelers" and "The Calvary Quartet" from Rocky Mount and our own "Barber-Shop" Quartet and "Joyce, the Artist."

Make your plans now to come. Please don't forget the date—Wednesday night, October 19th, beginning at five o'clock. We'll be looking for you!

Eugene was lifted in a sling from the building and swung across the street to the roof of a supermarket.

"When the helicopter started to rise I swung toward a telephone pole," he said. "At the last moment I cleared. I wouldn't do that again even if I had to."

The Reflector Is Happy To Announce

It is with a great deal of pleasure that The Reflector today announces the beginning of a major expansion program of its physical facilities. We are convinced the move will play a large part in making The Reflector a better daily newspaper for the people of Pitt County.

Our confidence in the continued growth and development of Pitt County has been a factor in the decision to enter into this expansion program which will require a major capital outlay.

During its 73 year history, The Reflector has not been content merely to keep pace with the times in Pitt County. It has constantly endeavored to stay ahead of the times, and through its own efforts and the efforts of the people of the county to build Pitt into a better community in which to live.

The support which the people of Pitt County have given The Reflector over almost three-quarters of a century has made possible the existence of the newspaper. Indeed, that support has in a large measure been responsible for the progress which the newspaper has made, and it will continue to be responsible for the progress The Reflector makes in the future. We are profoundly grateful for that support, and this newspaper pledges its continued untiring efforts to give the people of Pitt the best possible home newspaper.

Through this expansion program which will include a new building and the installation of a 32 page press, The Reflector will be able to improve its daily product. The new facilities will enable the newspaper to afford better service to both its readers and advertisers. It will make possible the printing of more pages in daily editions, which will afford more space for the coverage of local, state, national and international news. At the same time the more modern facilities which the expansion program will include will enable the newspaper to print its daily editions in less time, thereby improving the newspaper's distribution to readers throughout the county. The new press will also enable the newspaper to offer its advertisers multi-color printing for advertisements on designated pages.

The expansion program has been planned over a period of the past few years. It has been prompted by the fact that the newspaper has rapidly outgrown its present facilities, and by the fact the newspaper has utmost confidence in the continued growth of Pitt County in which it wishes to share in the years ahead.

We look forward to the completion of this expansion program with the full realization it will enable The Reflector to better serve the people of Pitt County.

Water Conservation Is More Than Mere Talk

In spite of a great deal of talk about water conservation in North Carolina during the past few years, a relatively small portion of Tar Heels fully appreciate the need for protecting and preserving our water resources.

Water always has been plentiful throughout the state. North Carolinians have taken their streams, rivers, artesian wells and underground supplies of water for granted. Pocosins by the hundreds have been drained, canals and ditches by the thousands cut to siphon off the water to larger tributaries, and rivers and streams polluted with deluge which would make city garbage dumps look like clean places.

And all this has been going on in North Carolina while cities have been growing and taking more water for domestic use; while industrial expansion has required additional billions of water annually; and while the state has been developing its most aggressive campaign to attract new industry.

North Carolina still has ample supply of water. There is no need to worry about sufficient supplies to meet present demands. But it is obvious the present comfortable water supply of the state will not continue indefinitely unless more concrete steps toward water conservation are taken.

Surely we have had several cities to suffer from water shortage during long dry spells. Millions of dollars have been spent by North Carolina municipalities in developing new water supplies in recent years. Yet, when the emergency passed, the critical water situation was soon forgotten.

Ample water resources have been one of the key factors in attracting new manufacturing plants to the state in recent years. It will continue to be an asset to the state in industrial development only so long as a favorable balance between water supplies and demand for water is maintained.

Unless adequate measures to safeguard our vast water resources for the coming decades, North Carolina will see its dream of a vast industrial area pop like a muddy bubble in a polluted river.

We Continue To Lose Our Needed Graduates

Educators have voiced concern over the fact that less than half the teachers turned out by North Carolina colleges every year are entering the teaching profession in the state.

Alarming as that particular situation is, it is only part of a more alarming overall picture. North Carolina colleges are not only turning out teachers every year, but they are also turning out engineers, doctors, lawyers, business administration majors, commerce majors and graduates in a dozen other specialized fields. Far too many of these young people are being attracted to other states and other geographical areas by better job opportunities than they see in their native state. North Carolina is suffering by this annual migration not only the loss of its young people, but the loss of a great deal of talent which the state could use to advantage.

Whose fault is it? Nobody's; or should we say everybody's.

Perhaps North Carolina hasn't offered its young people the opportunities which other states offer. Or perhaps it is that North Carolina just hasn't taken the time to impress upon its young people the opportunities which the state has to offer. Still again it may be a combination of the two.

Whatever the reason, it is obvious that North Carolina needs to make a greater effort to keep its young people at home rather than having other states attract the cream of our crop of youngsters.

Main Thoughts At Education Meetings

By LYNN NISBET
CONCISE — Opening and closing statements made by the men who presented composite reports of the several regional education conferences held throughout the state to the general meeting pretty well summed up the matter. The in-between reports on ways and means to best effectuate the program were important, only as they related to these main points.

The regional and state conferences considered six questions, which also will constitute the agenda of the national White House Conference next month. The first question was "What should our schools accomplish?" The final question was "How can we obtain a continuing interest in education?"

Reporting on sentiment expressed at the regional meetings on the first question Dr. J. W. Shirley, dean of the school of general studies at State College, said he was impressed and somewhat disturbed by the fact the people seemed to feel that education will solve all of our problems. He is fearful that hope had been kindled that when problems are not solved the people may lose faith in the value of education.

Reporting on the last point Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, vice president of East Carolina College, said he had found that the people have great faith in education, but he also was somewhat disturbed at the menace to that faith by reason of lack of understanding on part of the public. The gist of his report was that "the public interest will exist only with adequate public information about the schools." Not just the football scores and the beauty contests, but real news about what the schools are teaching, what the teachers and pupils are doing.

It is recalled that Dr. Jenkins said essentially the same thing in an address before the Eastern North Carolina Press Association about two years ago.

Some tax-levying authorities and administrative boards with relationship to public schools and other matters like do business behind closed doors. Opinion of those who attended the state meeting and as reported from the regional meetings on education was preponderantly in favor of complete publicity on all matters related to public schools.

General thinking of the school folks seems to be that the people will support a program for education when properly presented, almost regardless of the cost, but they should not be expected to finance a school system about which they know nothing except what a few self-appointed manipulators deign to tell them.

RELATIONSHIP WITH THE UNSEEN

Every truly religious person believes that God has revealed Himself to man. Those who hold to the Jewish faith and those who hold to the Christian, maintain that God has revealed Himself through the Bible. In these holy books, God's character and purpose have been made known to his children.

But did revelation cease when the last word of the Bible was written? Did God disclose his purposes up to that time and then cease to do so? No true believer entertains such a view for a minute. We all believe that God is continuing his revelation to every one of us. The Bible is God's public revelation. There is private revelation which He constantly makes to us as individuals. The Spirit of the Lord, as it is called in the Old Testament or the Holy Spirit as it is most often referred to in the New Testament, is God's wisdom and power operating among men right now disclosing the will of God, interpreting his purpose, revealing the depth of that wisdom which is set forth in the Word of God itself.

Politics Are Affecting Business

By ELMER ROESSNER
Business, not politics, is the province of this department. Nevertheless, the recent Wall Street fluctuations have shown politics affect business deeply.

So, entirely in the interest of business, this department suggests that Dwight D. Eisenhower will not be a candidate for President next year; that if he is a candidate he will not be nominated, and that if he is nominated, he will not be elected. This will be true even if doctors pronounce him in perfect health.

The reason is that Mr. Eisenhower's associates and boosters have been building up a certain kind of personality and because this personality fits a large part of Mr. Eisenhower's nature, he has helped give depth to the facade.

Mr. Eisenhower has been presented to the public—psychologically—as every father's son, as every mother's child. His loyalty to his friends, his integrity, his coolness under criticism and his eagerness to do what is right fills every father's dream of what his son should be. His faithful church attendance, his affection for his wife and family his respect for womanhood and—boy!—those dimples make him the prototype of every perfect boy-child.

And—ask your psychiatrist how this happens—at the same time Mr. Eisenhower fulfills the father image of almost everybody. If all the great psychologists in the world—instead of just a few of them—had been handling Ike's public relations, they could not have built a greater facade—if, indeed it is a facade and not the real man.

So the people of the United States are going to be as protective about this man as they are about their children and their father. They will not let him take the slightest risk of his health. The people who love him most would vote against him. Curiously, if the occupant of the White House had a different personality, reactions might be different. If General Douglas MacArthur were President and stricken with a serious ailment, his supporters would be likely to keep pushing him on even unto death. He is not the son-father image; he is the Savior type that dies for everybody. But Ike is our baby and our daddy and we can't help but protect him from the blasts of this harsh world.

Era Of Those Fringe People

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone comments by a pavement Plato: This has been called the Century of the Common Man but it is more truly the "Century of the Fringe People."

The fringe folk are the product of a civilization that tends to put everything in containers. It looks for health in a vitamin capsule and entertainment in canned laughter.

A fringe man is one who dwells on the edges of real knowledge. He knows a little bit about everything, and not very much about anything.

He skirts the surface of life. He wears the kind of suit he has been told makes him look "sincere." He belongs to the political party which is most popular among his neighbors.

If he visits New York, he only wants to see the hit Broadway shows. If he reads a book it has to be on the best seller list, and it has to be in digest form. He watches only television shows that have a high rating, and he attends only those movies he has been told are good. He won't attend a concert by a young unknown. The artist must be famous.

The fringe man's biggest goal in life is to be popular with everybody. So he tries to placate and please everybody; to do his best naturally has to reduce his own personality to the status of an every-smiling zero.

This is why so many Americans drink so much at cocktail parties.

The yearning of the fringe people to be liked reduces their conversation to such banal platitudes they find it impossible even to listen to each other's verbal soothing syrup under the influence of something stronger.

"Be yourself" is an old and comfortable saying. It is sound advice, too, men-

Total U.S. Crop Near Record

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — Although prolonged drought and heat, together with hurricanes and floods, have sharply cut yields of corn, soybeans, grain sorghums, tobacco, vegetables, and other crops, I still look for a total U.S. crop output this year of near-record size.

A number of summer crops already have been harvested, and the final official tallies probably will not differ materially from the published estimates. Although the total wheat crop of nearly 917,000,000 bushels is down 20 per cent from the 1944-1953 average, total supplies for the current season are huge, since the carry-over last July topped a billion bushels by a sizeable margin. Most of it, however, was in government hands. This fact, plus the government loan on the 1955 crop, may result in higher average wheat prices later in the season.

The barley crop is the second largest on record, some 366,000,000 bushels. This is enough to go around. Flaxseed also is in plentiful supply, with the crop the third largest on record. The record total hay crop—108,500,000 tons—should meet most of the requirements. Another record-breaker is oats, with an output of 1,636,000,000 bushels—and, incidentally, the highest-quality crop in years.

The unfavorable weather conditions also harmed the country's corn crop this summer. But corn is sturdy and weathered these beatings well. Despite sharp losses, the indicated crop of 3,113,467,000 bushels is a little above the ten-year average. Total supplies for 1955-1956 will be unusually large, in view of the substantial carryover. This should keep prices from kicking over the traces, and make for favorable livestock feeding ratios. Efficient hog and cattle producers should benefit.

Soybeans—“Johnny-Come-Lately” wonder boy among U.S. grains—also took a drubbing from the elements this summer, but came through with flying colors. Barring further damage, a record crop of around 388,000,000 bushels is in the works; this would be 13 per cent above the 1954 output and 62 per cent over the ten-year average. Over-all supplies of this versatile bean appear somewhat heavy to me, and I doubt that prices will make sustained progress on the upside, over the near term at least.

Despite record small plantings, the U.S. cotton crop may amount to 12,873,000 bales, which would be only moderately under the ten-year average. Including the August 1 carryover of some 11,100,000 bales, total supplies for the current year are top-heavy. Cotton buyers, however, may have a hard time since the bulk of the carryover is in government hands. Free supplies will dwindle as the season works along and prices probably will average higher.

Dr. Warren's promise that this year with an indicated output of around 18,900,000 bags—9 per cent above average. This means plenty of the Boston specialty for all hands. The U.S. rice crop may amount to about 48,700,000 bags—an amount easily sufficient for all requirements. The late potato crop (grown in 29 states) of 313,527,000 bushels is about average size, and should have no difficulty meeting late fall and winter needs. Prices should work higher later on.

All this adds up to fairly good times for the American farmer, although prices of farm products for the first eight months of this year averaged about 5 per cent lower than in the corresponding period of 1954. Efficient, well-managed farms are still making money, despite the fact that the cost of things the farmer buys is still relatively high. The going, of course, is tough, and always has been, for the small, inefficient farm; but, as I view the situation, American agriculture is doing well.

Since 1956 is a presidential election year, the farmer's well-being will top the agenda when Congress convenes in January. Whether high, rigid supports will be restored, or the flexible system further extended, remains to be seen. I again forecast that the real need is for a long-term solution. Meanwhile, farmers should continue to work faithfully, serve their God, and vote in accordance with their basic convictions.

Harriman Is Given Much Consideration

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Although Adlai Stevenson is the nostalgic and sentimental favorite for the Democratic Presidential nomination next year, the current consideration of Governor Averell Harriman of New York results from certain practical politician's cannot win, even against an Eisenhower substitute on the Republican ticket.

Besides their personal and political friendship, this is the principal argument which Carmine G. DeSapio, Tammany boss and Harriman's Secretary of State, makes in his conversation and correspondence with Party leaders throughout the country.

"Pick a winner, not a one-time loser" is his advice and warning. Recent equivocation on the Stevenson candidacy by Harry S. Truman, Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York and Harriman himself suggests that the astute Tammany strategist's propaganda is having the effect which he expected. They have transformed the Democratic convention into an "open affair" instead of a "closed shop" for Stevenson. DEMOCRATS' CHANGED PSYCHOLOGY—Eisenhower's illness and possible retirement from politics has changed Democratic psychology. It has convinced them that they have they have at least a 50-50 chance to recapture the White House, barring unforeseen mishaps. It has also sent them to a study of the 1952 Presidential returns, and their conclusions are not favorable to a Stevenson renomination.

Here are the Eisenhower majorities in six states which a Democrat must carry—two or three at least if no all-in order to have any chance of rounding up a majority of the electoral vote: New York, 845,000; New Jersey, 358,000; Pennsylvania, 269,000; Ohio 600,000; Stevenson's own state of Illinois, 444,000; Michigan, 320,000; California, 700,000.

It will require an almost miraculous Democratic surge and reversal against the Eisenhower record for a ticket headed by Stevenson to reverse those GOP figures.

HARRIMAN SHOWING IN NEW YORK As against Stevenson's poor showing in New York and other industrial states, DeSapio recalls that Harriman carried the Empire State for the Governorship by approximately 11,000 votes. He ran well in both rural and urban areas. Moreover, he defeated an extreme, able and likable Senator, Irving M. Ives, who had the wholehearted support of the GOP organization and patronage army which Thomas E. Dewey had built during his 12-year regime at Albany. Although President Eisenhower kept Dewey from the struggle, the Dewey exhorters tried to depict the outcome as a vote of confidence in the Administration.

In short the Harriman victory represented a turnover of almost 900,000 votes in a two year period in the state with the largest delegation to the convention and a preponderant vote in the electoral college. DeSapio doesn't see how Democrats who want an all-sense a winner can act up their noses at these cold cut and figures, despite Stevenson's acknowledged ability and winning personality.

NEW YORK GOVERNOR'S DISADVANTAGES

Harriman has several disadvantages in seeking re-nomination. The so-called "loyalty oath," which almost forced the Virginia and South Carolina delegations to walk out of the 1952 convention, was sponsored by his supporters. He also favored enactment of Fair Employment Practices legislation. Thus, he is not too popular in the South.

But Democratic politicians count on Dewey returning to the old homestead next year, especially if Ike does not run. Such issues as "Trumanism" and tideland oil may not be present to help the GOP. In fact, Chief Justice Earl Warren's ruling against public school segregation is expected to hold southern states in line for the Democrats. If Harriman can cop the nomination, they doubt if he will lose any southern electoral votes.

And, a further indication of Harriman's Trumanian thinking, "Ave" hedged on both the "loyalty oath" and FEPC in a recent television interview. He has become a "regular fellow," not a New Deal zealot and fanatic.

Rare Oil Field Explosion Kills 3

WILSON, Okla. (AP)—A bomblike oil field explosion, common more than 25 years ago but rare now, killed three Oklahoma City oil well shooters and injured six others here Saturday night.

glycerin exploded with the force of a 5,000-pound bomb as they prepared to loosen underground oil sand from the well.

What caused the explosion probably will never be known. Police think the nitro, a jelly-like substance, was detonated when wires accidentally touched it before it was lowered into the well.

The victims were William G. Chandler, 28; Russell G. Sullivan, 48; and Harold E. Brill, 34.

Local Company Begins Work On Big, New Building

Pictured above are participants in ground breaking ceremonies for the new White Chevrolet Co. building which is to be located at West End Circle. Mrs. Josie White (foreground with shovel) broke ground for the new building. From left to right are: Jack Spain, secretary to Sen. Sam Ervin; Leroy Cherry, contractor; Willard T. Kyzer, manager of Chamber of Commerce; Roy Martin, Greenville Utilities Commission chairman; Mrs. Cora Powell, executive secretary of the merchants' Association; R. W. McKenzie, president of the Greenville Automotive Dealers Association; Howard Hodges, Jr. vice president of the Merchants Association; Bancroft Moseley, president of the Chamber of Commerce; J. M. White, district manager of the Chevrolet Motor Division; City Manager James S. Hughes; Walter Harrington, president of the White Chevrolet Co.; J. W. Griffith, architect; P. E. Miller, zone manager for the Chevrolet Motor Division. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Plans for construction of a new building to house White Chevrolet Co. have been announced today by the company president, Walter Harrington.

The structure is to be built on property owned by White Chevrolet in the West End Circle area. The company's used car department was recently moved to the property.

Harrington said the new building will contain approximately 23,500 feet of floor space, nearly twice as much as the 13,200 square feet in the present building.

The lot on which the building is to be located will be more than twice the size of the present area. Harrington said the new building is to be 140 feet wide and 135 deep and is to be constructed on a 250 by 400 foot lot.

Completely air conditioned offices, snow room and parts department are to be located on the front of the building. The service department is to be constructed to the rear of the building with the paint and body shop separated from the remainder of the building by a fire proof wall. The used car lot will be adjacent to the new building.

The entire building is to be of concrete block with red brick veneer.

White Chevrolet was begun as Pitt Chevrolet Co. and was purchased in May, 1932 by J. J. White and W. S. Brown. White served as president until his death a few years ago.

Julian White, Jr. now serves as vice-president, secretary and treasurer of the concern.

In announcing the plans for the expansion, Harrington said the company has "faith in the future of the automobile business and in the growth of business in general."

The expansion is being carried out "to provide better facilities for the use of our customers and friends."

Chas. Cobb Speaks To Third St. School PTA

Charles Cobb, president of the Pitt County Mental Health Association, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Third Street School Parent-Teachers Association last week.

The speaker discussed the proposed local Mental Health Clinic and stressed benefits to be derived from such a clinic here.

Cobb called for volunteers to assist in a campaign beginning today to raise $10,000 in local funds for financing the clinic. "Donations have been made by several local concerns and funds will be forthcoming from state and federal sources," he said, "but $10,000 will still have to be raised locally before the clinic will become a reality."

Cobb was introduced by Mrs. Keith Holmes, vice president of the PTA and program chairman for the evening.

Mrs. Thomas Hannaford, chairman of the Membership Committee, reported a 21 per cent increase in membership over last year, and Mrs. Herma Stancill's third grade was announced winner for the highest percentage of membership enrollment.

Mrs. Sue Rouse was elected treasurer of the PTA to fill the post vacated by Mrs. Pete Avery.

Third Street PTA cast its allotted votes for Gibsonville as the site for the new state office building of the North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Mrs. Robert Tunnell, chairman of the Budget Committee, presented the year's budget, which was adopted as presented.

Plans for the Halloween Carnival to be held October 28 were outlined by Mrs. Kenneth Brown, chairman of Ways and Means. Mrs. Brown said the Carnival will begin with a bicycle parade and close with a square dance.

Mrs. Holmes announced the November meeting will be held on the tenth of that month at 7:30 p.m. in the Wahl-Coates school auditorium, when all the city PTA organizations will meet together. Mrs. Ellen Carroll, state PTA public relations representative, will be in charge of the program in connection with American Education Week.

Mrs. Vance Perkins' room won the attendance prize.

Mrs. M. P. Bailey, president, presided over the meeting.

Boulders Pound Valley Buildings

ELLENVILLE, N. Y. (AP)—New floods over the weekend brought another bombardment to Ellenville—by boulders.

They swept down the Catskill mountainsides in torrents of water. They undercut banks and embankments, filled creek beds and tumbled into buildings and automobiles. Some of them weighed as much as half a ton.

Day and night their dull booming echoed through the valleys.

Col. John T. O'Neill of the Army Engineers said the boulders were something unique in his flood control experience. There was a followed Hurricane Diane last August.

The Army Engineers spent 1 1/2 million dollars clearing them from creeks and repairing roads and bridges. Now they have the job to do all over again. O'Neill estimates it will cost another million.

When the first boulders were heard during the weekend, people were quickly evacuated from a residential area on the east side of town where a brook flows. The stream rose. Boulders ate at its banks and undermined buildings. When the water spilled over, the boulders crashed into cars and houses.

They battered a bottling plant previously damaged by Diane's floods. O'Neill said they "chewed the framework up like putting it through a meat grinder."

Couple Drown In Raging Torrent

REDDING, Conn. (AP)—For six hours the woman clung to a tree in the raging Saugatuck River while 30 rescuers made one attempt after another to reach her. Then, with the rescuers only 30 feet away, she was too exhausted to hold on longer.

She let go and was swept down the river.

Rescuers said a car carrying the woman and her husband went in to the river. She got out and caught hold of a tree about 500 feet from shore. Her husband was believed drowned.

The couple was tentatively identified as Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Phoenix of Redding. Rescuers brought floodlights to the scene and first tried to reach the woman by boat. This failed. Albert Venning, chief of the West Redding volunteer fire department, started to swim out to her but the water was too swift.

Finally a network ofadders and ropes was extended outward to a point where rescuers were only 20 feet from the woman. It was then that she let go and was not seen again.

India produced 70 to 80 per cent of the world's supply of mica—about 54,888,000 pounds a year.

Reflector Sports Editor
CULLOWHEE, Oct. 15 — East Carolina's Pirates, with quarterback Dick Cherry serving as executioner, cut down Western Carolina here tonight, 14-6, in a big North State Conference upset.

The fabulous Cherry, known throughout the loop for his fine passing arm, took to the ground ways to score one touchdown and set up another. He bulled over the 1 for the Buc's first score and spun 17 yards to the 9 to ready the second one.

The Pirates of Coach Jack Boone went into the fray a touchdown underdog but had the 3,000 fans on hand convinced by the first period that the odd-makers had goofed. The Greenville gridgers showed more of the spark that carried them to victory over Elon in their homecoming game last week to completely devastate Western Carolina's homecoming.

The home crowd had only one opportunity to raise their voices, that coming in the final period when Western Carolina saved its face from a whitewashing. The Catamounts pushed over one score and threatened to tally again.

From the very outset when the Catamounts' Miller fumbled on the kickoff and East Carolina's J. D. Bradford recovered, the tide was in the Pirates'.

It was almost 12 minutes later, however, before the Pirates moved in for the initial kick. The Catamounts had the ball deep in their own territory and were forced to punt on third down. Hustling Dick Mondis almost blocked the kick which would have set the Pirates back 10 yards.

Bobby Perry, wearing the pinstriped one yard to the 28. Cherry's first pass to halfback Gary Mattocks fell incomplete for 13 yards and a first down at the 15. Perry was thrown back to the 16 but Cherry's jump pass to Bill Holm set the yardage back and then some to the 8. Fullback Bob Maynard went off right tackle to the 2 and another first down. Mattocks got a yard and then Cherry sneaked for the touchdown behind a fine block by center Louis Eason. Milton Collier covered.

The remainder of the first half saw Western Carolina play the visitors on even terms. Cherry kept the Catamounts a safe distance from the ECC goal with his quick kicking. Twice he got off boos that went out within the 10 yard line.

WCC looked as if it was moving goalward once but a great defensive play by tackle Ray Overton and end Ray Pennington snuffed the attack. Tommy Lewis, Cat quarterback, had just completed a toss for 30 yards and the Pirates were again when Overton and Pennington started chasing him. They ran him down for a 24 yard loss.

The 7-point halftime advantage just put more fire into the Pirates who returned after intermission to rack up a score in less time than it takes to tell it.

Cherry kicked out on the Cats' three yard line and the Pirate defense held, forcing the home team to kick. Carol Swanger's punt rolled off the side of his foot and went out of bounds on his own 30.

Headed scores.

Cherry sent Mattocks, who incidentally played a great game at left half in relief of injured Jim Henderson, off tackle to the 26. Cherry then faded to throw, was rushed and seemingly trapped for a big loss. The Elon defender fought off his tacklers and twisted to the 9. Emo Bardo shot through left tackle on the next play and into the end zone for the T.D.

Collier's placement was true again for the extra point and East Carolina led 14-0 with nine minutes left in the third period.

Western Carolina got its touchdown with only 3 1/2 minutes left in the contest. Lewis got the ball rolling by intercepting Cherry's aerial on ECC's 30 and returned it to the 20.

Lewis ran the option to the 17 and then down to the 14. The hard-working signal caller elected to carry again and picked up seven yards to the 7. Here, the Catamounts hit a momentary streak of bad luck as they were penalized 15 yards for clipping, placing the pinstriped back on the 34. Lewis, however, wasn't to be denied. On the next play he hit Swanger on the 5 and the big halfback dove into the end zone.

Beyv Of Top Backs For Lenoir Rhyne

A bevy of backs on front-running Lenoir Rhyne's surprising North State Conference football team were enjoying the awe of the rest of the league today.

The Bears clipped by Guilford Saturday 34-13 to remain atop the league standings with a perfect 3-0 record. But what drew the admiration was that in the victory all of the Lenoir Rhyne touchdowns were scored on runs of 55 yards or more.

Lenoir Rhyne moved closer to the conference crown after second place Western Carolina was dumped 14-6 by East Carolina. Defending champion Appalachian defeated Catawba 21-19 in the other league game while in the one non-conference contest Newberry whipped Eor 19-6.

Lenoir Rhyne still has three conference foes remaining, Western Carolina, Elon and Catawba. A victory over Western Carolina this Saturday would assure the Bears 0, at least a tie for the title.

One other conference game Saturday has Elon at Catawba. The non-conference tilts have Emory and Henry at Appalachian, East Carolina at East Tennessee and Guilford at Wofford.

Lenoir Rhyne's long runs were by Bob Miller, a 92-yard punt return. Bill Ackard 88 yards on a lateral and 65 yards on a punt return. Walter Cornwell, 68-yard run, and Harold Bullard, 55-yard jaunt.

Quarterback Dick Cherry sneaked for one touchdown and Emo Bardo went over from the three as Eor won Cherry's passing also was a highlight.

Appalachian spotted Catawba a 12-0 lead in the first quarter before roaring back to win. Newberry's Paul Davis scored his team's three touchdowns as Elon took its fifth straight loss of the season. Davis recorded two touchdowns runs of 79 yards apiece.

The record books say Al Singer's 171-day reign in 1930 was the shortest in the history of lightweight champions. Wallace "Bud" Smith can break the record Wednesday night at Cincinnati.

If Jimmy Carter wins back the title for the third time (also a new record), Smith will have held the championship just 112 days since June 29. Carter is an 8-5 favorite. Just for comparison, here's how long the other men who dethroned Carter lasted as champions.

Lauro Salas (May 14, 1952 to Oct. 15, 1952) 154 days.
Paddy DeMarco (March 5, 1954 to Nov. 17, 1954) 257 days.
Smith won the crown June 29. Carter first won the title by knocking out Ike Williams May 25, 1951.

Duke Slated For Top Ten Ranking

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It's a good bet that Duke's undefeated Blue Devils will move into the nation's top 10 college football teams when the Associated Press ratings are announced tomorrow.

Duke, 11th last week, caught fire in the second half Saturday and came from behind to whip Ohio State 20-14. Ohio State was No. 14 and the mythical national champion last year. It was the fourth victory of the season for the Blue Devils, who next play host to Pittsburgh.

Also causing a stir in Atlantic Coast Conference football circles was the work of halfback Ed Vereb who led undefeated Maryland to a 20-7 league victory over North Carolina. He tied ACC records for most touchdowns and most points in a single game when he scored 13 points on three touchdowns. The 6-foot, 185-pound senior from Pittsburgh, Pa., now shares those marks with Lloyd Caudie of Duke, Drener Gusk of Clemson, Ronnie Waller of Maryland and Bob Pascal of Duke.

ACC records go back only three years, when the league was formed by seven members of the old Southern Conference, who later admitted Virginia.

Vereb also is within 12 points of the ACC single-season scoring record of 54 points shared by Caudie, Pascal, Bernie Faloney of Maryland and Dick Bielski of Maryland.

It's easy to score through the holes that line of offense opens up," said most vocal sideline last Saturday's victory which left the Terrapins with victories in all their five games, including two in the league. Their next opponent is Syracuse, which surprised with a 13-0 victory over Army.

North Carolina State and Virginia came out of the losing column for the first time last Saturday, although State had to be content with a 13-13 tie with Wake Forest.

One of Wake Forest's touchdowns was scored by Wake Forest's Bill Barnes, the league's sixth-ranking individual scorer with 20 points.

Ahead of him in order are Vereb with 42, Pascal with 30; Bernie Blaney of Duke, Billy O'Dell of Clemson and Mike Caskey of South Carolina, with 24 apiece.

Fullback Jim Bakhtiar scored one touchdown and kicked two extra points as Virginia stopped its arch rival, Virginia Military Academy, 20-13.

Clemson and South Carolina were idle in preparation for their additional Big Thursday game this week at the South Carolina State Fair in Columbia.

The week's schedule:
Thursday — Clemson at South Carolina.
Saturday — Pittsburgh at Duke, Maryland at Syracuse, North Carolina at Wake Forest, North Carolina State at Villanova, Virginia vs VPI, Roanoke, Va.

Three Grid Giants Emerge

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press
Out of the rubble of fallen giants of college football today there emerged three shining lights—three teams that well could fight it out for the mythical national title.

Michigan, Maryland and Oklahoma all undefeated and all powerful could go all the way. Yet, even these three are not invulnerable.

The Wolverines still have a solid five-game Big Ten schedule to face starting with Minnesota this week. After that, they have Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio State, any one of which could rise up and whip them.

Maryland heads northward this week for a game with fired-up Syracuse, which trounced Army 13-0 Saturday. If the Terps get by Syracuse they'll have a clear path.

Oklahoma, with a streak of 23, goes against another undefeated outfit this week—Colorado. The possibility of another Big Seven team beating Oklahoma seems remote.

But then look what happened to Notre Dame. Georgia Tech, Texas Christian, Washington, Rice and Princeton. All were favored at one time or another and all had been undefeated. But when the blackest Saturday of the football season was over, all had tumbled.

Notre Dame hadn't even had its goalposts crossed until they came upon Michigan State. The Spartans cracked Notre Dame's 11-game winning streak and did it emphatically 21-7. Gerry Planus, the goal of last year's game when he missed two extra points in the Irish's two-point triumph, was the big man for the Spartans; this time he scored one touchdown set up another and kicked three extra points.

Georgia Tech, scourge of the Southeastern Conference, dropped a 14-12 decision to Auburn, and its conference lead along with it.

Texas Christian, boasting one of its best teams in years, came across on the hands of a young Texas A&M team 19-16.

Washington still at least one of the favorites for the Pacific Coast Conference championship, was beaten by Baylor 19-7.

Freshmen Girls Finish Study On Good Grooming

CHICOD—Freshmen girls at Chicod High School have recently completed a study unit on "Good Grooming," climaxed by a day at the Greenville Beauty School where good grooming problems were discussed and each girl received a shampoo, manicure and facial.

In school the girls experimented on each other as to the best methods of shampooing hair, manicuring nails and styling hair. Professional information concerning these phases of good grooming was obtained at the Beauty School from Mrs. Julia Harris, the school's supervisor.

These pictures were taken during the visit to the Beauty School. Reports from the high school reveal that the study unit created much interest on the part of the entire student body, and today many of the girls have a "new look" around the campus.

Betty Lou Reel was thrilled at the change in her appearance after her visit to the Greenville Beauty School. She recommended to each of her friends that they study good grooming and decide what styles are best for them.

U.S. Oilmen Are Re-Discovering European Market

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—American oilmen are re-discovering that Europe from which Columbus sailed to discover America.

While atomic and solar energy are being harnessed economically, oilmen say, Europe is going to need more oil as a quick source of the energy it demands.

American oil companies, in addition to shipping oil to Europe, have invested 750 million dollars in plants there since the war, multiplying its oil refining capacity eight times. Jersey Standard Oil's house organ, The Lamp, says this year will see 26 catalytic cracking and reforming speed up output. It predicts that within the next 20 years oil consumption there will double.

A trained cosmetician offers her know-how as she discusses with Edna Cates, Chicod high school freshman, about hair styles suitable for the various types of faces.

Economists of the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York say consumption of energy from coal, oil and water power is equivalent to 18,000 pounds of coal a year for each person. In Europe per capita energy consumption is equivalent to 5,500 pounds a year. But it is rising fast in Europe because of the striking increase of late in the standard of living there.

Europe has higher real wages now. Autos and motor scooters multiply on its roads. With this new prosperity has come a desire to substitute machinery for manual labor—a yen which used to be considered chiefly American.

European farmers now look more favorably on mechanization. Factory owners have put in power equipment, thereby raising productivity, and thus hiking their profits and the pay of their employees.

Europe still gets 68 per cent of its energy from coal and 10 per cent from hydroelectric plants. Oil provides 20 per cent, with natural gas making up most of the rest.

Atomic energy is likely to be developed commercially in Europe before it is here because the costs of older forms of energy are higher there. But in the next 10 years, Jersey Standard believes, the atom will supply only one fourth of Europe's increased demand for electricity. Three fourths must come from increased consumption of the conventional energy sources.

American oilmen busily observing Oil Progress Week right now may be comforted to hear that the New York bankers think that in the next 50 years the fossil fuels will still be the world's dominant source of energy.

Mrs. Julia Harris, Greenville Beauty School supervisor, discusses good grooming problems of teen-agers with freshmen girls from Chicod High School.

Liquor Sales In September Jump

RALEIGH (AP)—State liquor sales jumped 9.16 per cent last month compared with sales during September last year.

ABC Chairman Tom Allen reported yesterday that September sales totaled $35,417,419, an increase of $454,664 over the previous September's sales.

Mecklenburg led with sales of $832,933 followed by Greensboro, $511,340, and Asheville, third at $418,458.

Patsy Smith, another high school freshman, is given instructions on the proper care of hair. This visit to the Greenville Beauty School climaxed a study unit on good grooming for the Chicod freshmen girls.

When She Lays, No Stopping Her

ELIZABETH CITY—When Edward Scott's crossbred hen starts laying, there's just no stopping her!

Pasquotank County Agent S.L. Lowery says that Scott swears the hen has laid 418 eggs in 365 days. Scott, who farms in Providence Town ship, keeps all his hens in cages and keeps a record on all of them. He says the prolific layer pays no attention to moulting. She just keeps on laying.

The Red Cross has nearly two million volunteer workers.

Stamford Couple Walked Into Flooding River

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)—It was so dark that you couldn't see the waters of the Noroton River sweeping over the Camp Avenue bridge. And the howling of the wind made it impossible to hear them.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fox of New Canaan started to cross the bridge on foot. They walked right into the water, which swept them into the river.

For grabbed a tree near the road. His wife was swept down stream about 100 feet until she grabbed some bushes and hung on.

Manuel Caccavello, who lives nearby, heard their screams above the howl of the wind. He tied a clothesline around his waist and, with the aid of other rescuers, waded into the river.

He reached Mrs. Fox and held her up for about half an hour before volunteer firemen came along and pulled all three out. Just after this, while rescuers were still standing on the shore, playing flashlights on the angry water, a car drove onto the bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Murphy of Stamford didn't know they were in trouble until it was too late.

As Mrs. Murphy tells it: "It was very dark and we had just about got onto the bridge when we realized that this wasn't just one of those puddles like the others we'd been going through."

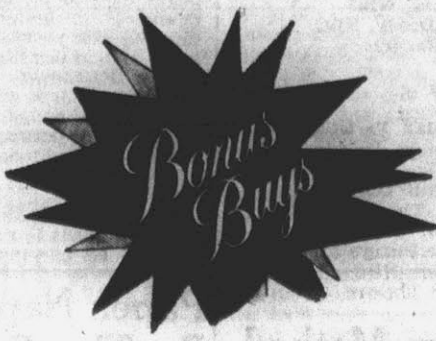

"Almost immediately, the car started to swerve. My husband broken, and Mrs. Murphy said, "We went tumbling and floating in the water for about 100 yards downstream."

Her husband grabbed a tree and they both hung on until rescuers reached them.

VOTE FOR THE LEFT

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The Swedes have voted overwhelmingly in favor of continuing to drive on the left hand side instead of on the right as in most other lands. The referendum was designed to test public opinion in advance of parliamentary action on the question.

His Own Method To Tell 'When'

BREVARD — Carl Allison of the Cherryfield community has his own unique way of determining when his hogs are tops for the market. Transylvania County Assistant Agent Robert L. Love explains that Allison has a board fence around his corn self-feeder with a hole large enough for the hogs to enter. When they get too big to get through the hole, they are at the right weight to bring top price and off to market they go.

tally and physically. But the current runs the other way today. We seem caught in a pattern of social conformity, and fearful of breaking out.

"Be like the other fellow" more nearly describes our aim—or perhaps "Be like you think the other fellow expects you to be."

Such an aim is self-defeating, because it cannot be self-satisfying and can only turn a man into an uneasy-smirking clod.

The fringe people seek always to be in the swim and they end up drowning in their own pitiful ignorance. They pretend to culture and they have no culture.

It is better to write one poor poem than to memorize Shakespeare. It is better to play a musical saw yourself than merely be able to identify every melody in Beethoven. To own the smallest talent is greater than to be a cultural hanger-on.

America is producing too many half-enlightened innocent bystanders in every field, and too few doers.

What the Century of the Common Man needs is more men who dare to be uncommon.

Paper Napkins By The Carload

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Airmen at Ellington Air Force Base are drying their hands luxuriously with paper napkins.

Seems someone in the supply department struck the wrong digit on his typewriter when filling out an order. Instead of two bundles of napkins he ordered two carloads.

Although only 63 per cent of American families live in single family homes, 90 per cent of all home accidents occur in such homes.

Dandelions are found most abundantly on the warmest areas of the ground and buried heating pipelines often can be traced by their concentration.

Pinky Lee Unafraid Of Competition By Disney

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A sensitive fellow is Pinky Lee. He has long been the butt of other comedians' jokes. This has hurt him deeply. He longed for the time when he could have their respect. "I'm not a suave comedian, like Herb Shriner or George Gobel or Jack Benny," he says. "I've got a speech impediment. I'm ugly. So I do things that make people laugh at me and then feel sorry for me. Little wistful things that might bring a tear to your eye. For years he lingered on the fringe of top stardom, rising from burlesque to night clubs and movies and then television. But he never really clicked big until NBC slotted him in an afternoon program for children. The Pinky Lee show took off like a shot and soon overpowered even Howdy Doody in the daytime ratings. Then along came a little mouse to scare him. Well, it wasn't just any little mouse, it was the mighty Mickey. Backed by 15 million dollars of sponsor's gold, the Mickey Mouse Club was scheduled on ABC opposite Pinky. People said the Walt Disney show meant curtains for the little comic. Pinky began working even harder. He already had a Herculean schedule—six half-hour shows a week. And he couldn't walk through his chore. He was knocking himself out like a trooper throughout each show. Even so, he stepped up the pace, brought in new gimmicks. "The climax came when I had to give a commercial for Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck watches," he said. "Imagine, plugging the opposition on my own show! The only way I could get through it was to say, 'buy a Mickey Mouse watch so you can tell what time the Pinky Lee show is on.' "That was the day I collapsed." He had even done 18 shows in two weeks, trying to get ahead to go east for the "Held" spectacular. That was canceled and he took a week's rest. Now Pinky's back to the old six-a-week routine and he hopes he can hold out until June. Next season he'll seek an easier schedule. But he isn't surrendering to the Mouse. "I think Disney is a great creator," he says. "But you must remember that kids are loyal. They love me and I love them. I know they'll stay with me."

Premium Grade Uranium In Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Austin Statesman says premium grade uranium ore is being mined and shipped from a central Texas location near Burnet 80 miles northwest of here. The newspaper quoted Steve Steinhauser of the Austin office of the Atomic Energy Commission as saying that samples from the mine contained pitchblende. "But we don't know how much," the AEC man said. B. E. Robinson, a consulting geologist, estimated at least 700,000 tons of ore will be available from the mine. The Statesman said one sample tested as high as 2 per cent uranium.

Nuclear Power For Italy Slated

Extermination Camp Of Nazis Is Now Museum

OSWIECIM, Poland (AP)—Auschwitz-Birkenau, the concentration camp where the Nazis exterminated four million persons is open to the public—the Poles have turned it into a museum. You drive past the little black gibbet where Rudolf Hoese, the commandant, was hanged on a scaffold so small it needed four steps to reach the ground. It stood halfway, exactly, between his fancy villa and the biggest crematorium. The Poles didn't waste much wood on it. You come to a swampy meadow. At the far end is a stagnant pool, bubbling from time to time. The Polish guide says: "This was a mass grave. Nobody knows how many bodies were burned here in the open and buried." Not far away one sees the rows of barracks which made up Birkenau, the real death mill. It stretches starkly ahead, miserable in its sameness. One barrack is like another. After one has seen the three tiers where humans lay like cattle awaiting death, there is no point to repeating the process. In the Auschwitz headquarters building one sees a mountain of human hair taken from victims to be used for mattresses and for weaving textiles and rugs; a mountain of shaving brushes; a pile of children's toys and shoes; a weird collection of wooden legs. The victims were Jews, Poles, Gypsies and others the Nazis considered undesirable. Today one hears only the shuffle of feet. Five thousand adults and children go through the "museum" every Sunday on guided tours.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
Shandy opened the door of the cottage for Lois.

"You didn't lock it?"
"I never thought. Here in the country it seems unnecessary."

"I think," Shandy advised her, "I'd lock it after this. No use—"

Lois turned quickly, in a panic. "Good night, Shandy. Thanks for dinner."

"I won't stay," he answered her unspoken comment. "You needn't be so alarmed like a fool, can't you?"

He laughed softly. "You can't have it both ways. You'll have to figure out just what you think of me. All I want is to look around and make sure everything is—"

His hand was on the light switch. He let it drop, turned off his flashlight, moved forward.

"What?"
"Quiet." His voice was hardly more than a breath. "Someone in the patio saw a light. No stay here."

She heard him fumble with the bolt on the Dutch door.

In spite of his injunction she followed him, groping her way across the room. Her hand brushed his arm, closed around it.

He peered over his shoulder. A flashlight made a path in the patio, brushed the trunk of the big elm tree.

She gripped his arm tighter, struck an ornamental on the table and knocked it to the floor. In the patio the flashlight was switched off.

Shandy was moving forward and Lois' hand tightened on his arm.

"Stay here," she whispered. "He may be armed."

The intruder was running now. The gate in the fence creaked as he opened it and then clanged shut. Shandy switched on his flashlight and he swore as he felt in his pockets.

"What's wrong?" she asked. "That lock is automatic and I left my key at home."

Lois brought him here and he ran through the patio, unlocked the gate. She saw the flashlight moving in a wide arc as he swept the woods. And then someone was breathing beside her, labored, rapid breathing. But there was no other sound. She stood stock still, afraid to release her own breath.

To make a movement. There was only the darkness and the heavy breathing, so terribly near her. Then the faint sound of cloth brushing against cloth. The intruder was moving away from her toward the open front door. Even in the midst of her panic her mind followed that almost noiseless withdrawal. How well he knew the cottage, to be able to cross the room in the dark without blundering into the furniture.

And then the cottage was empty. The labored breathing was gone. Lois let out her pent-up breath in a gasp and filled her lungs deeply. She was shivering.

The gate in the fence creaked again and Shandy's torch threw an arc of light across the terrace.

"Well," he said when he returned. "I guess that's that."

"Shandy!" She clutched at him with both hands. "You're shaking." He drew her into his arms. "Nothing to worry about. Whoever it was got away."

"He just slammed the gate," she told him. "He doubled back and came through here. I could have touched him. He's someone who knows the cottage well, Shandy."

"Oh, I'd met him before that, at a meeting of some kind right after I moved to Stovenville. He was making a speech and everyone turned out for it. And then of course, the whole village knew him, more or less. I mean, we spoke on the street and all that. But it was in 1946 that we really got acquainted. Of course, I was engaged to be married to another man then."

With a lazy movement Carol turned so that the eyes which were so nearly yellow met Lois'. "I was going to marry Shandy Stovenville until he came back from the war like that. Then he didn't think it was fair to me. But I guess he's never really gotten over it, poor darling. He was terribly generous; he knew I loved this house and he sold it to Roger, but he always stayed near by. I don't mean there was anything—wrong. Devotion to find many opponents. He finally got desperate enough to buy a grocery store here and installed a table and a couple of extra chairs to attract some opposition.

Among his customers, Weaver is able to spare a few to keep the checker board busy. If a game is going on when a customer drops in he tells him to get what he needs—and make his own change.

"Yes," she said. "It was someone who lived here."

His hands dropped. "I'll have a new lock put on for you tomorrow. Better prop chairs under the doorknob tonight. You can set the telephone on the floor right beside the couch. My number is 211 and ring three times."

He switched on the lights and stood looking down at her. Without warning he gathered her into his arms, tipped back her head, bent over her. Then he laughed, kissed her cheek lightly and went out.

Carol Brindle lay on the couch in the library wearing a filmy dress like a cloud, her tawny hair bright in the sunshine that touched her golden arms. She was, Lois thought, almost a beautiful woman. The trouble was that you could not get at her; it was hard to tell whether she was clever or whether there was simply nothing to find behind that languorous exterior.

When she turned from Roger's widow to his secretary, Lois was aware of a shock. Ethel sat bent over the open notebook on her lap. The flaxen braids were as severe as ever. The sun was cruel to the pockmarked face. As usual her stockings were twisted, her shoes were run down at the heels, her cotton dress looked as though she had put it on without pressing it.

"He made me feel attractive," she had said of Roger Brindle.

Unless one had a deeper awareness than one was ever likely to have of another person's inner needs, it was always difficult to account for the mutual attraction between outwardly incompatible people. Ethel was no only infinitely less attractive than Carol, she was essentially dreary, without the heaven of humor, without a scrap of charm. What could have possessed the man?

Lois found her eyes resting speculatively on Ethel. If it had been Joe Hattery prowling on the terrace the night before, Joe who had looked in her window, did Ethel know of his activities? She must know if her husband left the cottage at night. Perhaps, by dropping a hint, it would be possible to stop him. Peeping Tom or something worse?

Lois brought her mind back to the job at hand. The notes for the article were not advancing. Carol was perfectly willing to talk but it was obvious that she wanted the story to deal primarily with her marriage to Roger, with his devotion to her.

"You met him in 1946," Lois prodded.

"Oh, I'd met him before that, at a meeting of some kind right after I moved to Stovenville. He was making a speech and everyone turned out for it. And then of course, the whole village knew him, more or less. I mean, we spoke on the street and all that. But it was in 1946 that we really got acquainted. She also called attention to the sub-district workers council being held on Thursday in Kinston at St. Mark's Church for Sunday School workers.

Mrs. David Parker, assisted by Mrs. Sam Nelson, presented an interesting program on "Indian Americans" and the part the Methodist Church has in their way of life.

An interesting Bible contest was enjoyed prior to the refreshment hour. This was conducted by Mrs. Claud Hart. The winner was Mrs. Gardner. Hot spiced tea, sandwiches and cookies were served to the 18 members present.

On Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 Mrs. Thurman Williams and Mrs. Richard Nelson entertained informally

Mrs. Harvey has been for sometime confined to her home and guests were received in her bedroom. Here pretty arrangements of garden flowers were used. The honoree was wearing for the occasion a dainty corsage on her bed jacket. Pleasant conversation, recalling old times and the new changes of the town, was the entertainment of the afternoon.

Guests were served apple pie with ice cream. Assisting in the serving were little Misses Edna Nelson and Jane Cobb.

Guests were Mesdames J. H. Barwick, R. E. Nelson, G. T. Gardner, G. Tucker, W. C. Mewborn, T. E. Gaskins and Adele Patrick.

Johnston County Assistant Agent, O.W. Tarlton says that Smith sprayed all of his crops except eight rows which he left for a check. He primed, cured, and graded 40 sticks from each plot and weighed them. The MH30 treated sticks weighed 104 pounds while the untreated sticks weighed only 80 pounds.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was higher today, the first time it has been able to break the jinx of a Monday decline since the President's heart attack more than three weeks ago.

Prices were strong in some instances with gains running to around 3 points at the best. Losses were scattered and reached a point only occasionally.

The advance lacked vigor, however, and the pace of trading was quiet, moderate. Nevertheless, it was better than Friday's 1,840,000 shares, lowest in a couple of months.

The greatest demand today was for the steels, motors, coppers, and some railroads and oils. Air-traffic was higher and quiet. The chemicals were featured by Du Pont which opened on 1,800 shares back from its best. Du Pont has been strong recently on Wall Street rumors.

Also high were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Low's Aircraft, Lockheed, American Telephone, Anaconda Co., Kennecott Copper, Magna Copper, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco, Southern Railway, Illinois Central, and Standard Oil (N.J.).

Attribute Death To Heart Attack

Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse today announced that Leo Williams, 37, of Greenville, found dead in his car Sunday morning, died from a heart attack and that no inquest would be held.

"There was no sign of foul play whatsoever," Rouse said this morning.

Williams was found in a car parked near his 14th Street rooming house early Sunday morning. He had been dead for several hours.

Early reports had indicated that Williams, a carpenter, seldom parked his car in the position where it was found. This morning, however, Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs said a neighbor had declared that it was not unusual for Williams to park his car at the spot where he apparently died.

Williams was found on the front seat of the automobile with his head toward the left side and his legs doubled up on the seat. Several pints of liquor were found in the vehicle also.

A former bread salesman, Williams is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Williams, of near Ayden; three sisters, Mrs. Arthur Lee Byrd of near Ayden, Mrs. Latham Stocks of near Greenville, and Mrs. Albert White of Greenville; two brothers, Leroy and Irving Williams of near Ayden.

Cripple Robbed

An elderly Negro man was overpowered and robbed of $24 in a 14th Street store Saturday afternoon.

W. S. Harris, the victim, told police that an unidentified Negro, who had been frequenting the store all day, was talking with him at the time the robbery occurred. Harris said his assailant suddenly thrust his hands into his (Harris') pockets, grabbed a wallet containing the money and fled.

The robber was described as being in his mid-thirties, Harris, who is crippled, struck his assailant with a crutch but failed to stop him.

An investigation by Greenville detectives is continuing.

Rule Suicide In Russian's Death

NEW YORK (AP)—The gun death of Alexei Minaev, a Russian clerk, has been officially listed as a suicide.

Dr. Milton Helpen, the city's chief medical examiner, issued the finding yesterday after an autopsy.

The clerk's body, a bullet through the brain, was found Saturday afternoon in the plush Park Avenue headquarters of the Soviet Union's National delegation.

Police were notified six hours later, and then only when the Russians wanted the body removed from the building.

Helpen accompanied a detective to the delegation headquarters and later, in a preliminary report, said the clerk had apparently placed the barrel of a .45-caliber automatic in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

Helpen noted he had no authority to be in the building officially Russian territory but was acting on a Soviet request. He described the Russians as cooperative.

He told him, he said, that Minaev had come here with his wife Zinaida 10 months ago. Since then, he said, he had been "dependent."

The Russians had no objection to an autopsy, Helpen said.

Guidance Workshop Held At Robinson High School

WINTERVILLE—Some 30 teachers and principals representing 11 schools attended the first workshop of the Guidance Group of the Pitt County Negro Unit at Robinson High School Thursday.

Highlights of the workshop were a socio-drama, "I.Q. High: Ambition Low;" and a tape recording of an interview with Dr. Ray Thompson, counselor-trainer from North Carolina College, who spoke through a microphone.

Program "Dr. Frank Fuller," briefly on "A Minimum Testing Guidance Counselor at East Carolina College, supplied materials for the group to inspect.

The workshop was evaluated with the following conclusions:

Trained counselors are needed; the school guidance program should be sold to the parents; a technique should be used in guiding and interviewing pupils; objectives set up by teachers should be made known to pupils; and a minimum testing program in a school should include reading readiness tests for grade one, general intelligence tests for grade three, achievement and intelligence tests for grade six interest inventory, achievement and academic tests for grades seven, eight and nine, and achievement tests for grade twelve.
