

Atomic Researchers Announce Key Discovery

'Anti-Matter' Found

By BENNIE TAYLOR AP Science Reporter BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Atomic scientists today announced the discovery of a particle which annihilates the basic unit of all matter. The discovery was made in experiments utilizing the University of California's largest atom smasher, the bevatron. It was announced jointly last night by Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence, famed nuclear scientist, and the Atomic Energy Commission, which financed the $15-million-dollar machine. The new particle, sought for a generation by researchers, is the antiproton. Although it is a powerful annihilator of matter, it constitutes no threat as a super-weapon no new hazard to the world. Instead, it opens up the way for exciting new discoveries about the nature of matter. Conceivably some of these may lead to great new practical achievements of the future. Its immediate value, said Prof. Lawrence, is that it clears up

Flood Area Promised Federal Aid

Hard-Hit Northeast Is Still Counting Toll; At Least 42 Known Dead

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Connecticut, hardest hit of the six Northeast states in weekend floods, continued today to tally up the damages. A team which included Dr. Owen Chamcoerlaia Dr. Emilio Segre, Thomas Ypellantis produced the new particle by bombarding a copper atom with ordinary protons of very high energy, 6.3 billion volts. Out of this bombardment, they said, came a proton pair, one positively charged the other negative. They shot out at a speed of better than 100,000 miles per second. They traveled only a few feet, then collided and vanished. Just what happened in this disappearance is not yet known, Dr. Segre said, but they probably turned into mesons, which are short-lived breakdown products of atomic disintegration, then into X-rays, which are energy as distinguished from matter.

Overton were elected to the board for three year terms. Rouse this morning noted that the Community Chest goal has not been met for the past two years. "We hope to meet our goal this year and we want everyone to contribute as generously as possible,"

Widespread Hunt In Slaying Of Boys

CHICAGO (AP)—State, county and city police today pressed their widest investigation of its kind in a quarter century as they sought to solve the ghastly slaying of three young boys whose naked, mutilated bodies were found piled in a forest ditch. The boys—Robert Peterson, 14, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother Anton Jr., 11—were strangled and beaten, apparently Sunday night, a few hours after they set out from their homes for a downtown movie. Their bodies, with legs intermingled, were discovered yesterday in Robinson Woods, just outside Chicago's northwest limits. A hundred law officers scoured the woods today for clues. Other police were tracing movements of the youngsters from the time they left their middle-class neighborhood on the Northwest Side to see the Walt Disney movie "The African Lion" in the Loop Sunday afternoon. An autopsy last night indicated the boys had been dead 36 to 40 hours when they were discovered but that they had not been molested sexually as first believed. However, Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, an associate of the Cook County Behavior Clinic, said: "The person who could commit such an act as this one is one to whom the act itself is a gratification of the sex urge." Coroner Walter E. McCarron called it "the work of a madman" or a gang of older boys. He theorized from marks and dirt on the bodies that the boys were held captive in "some filthy place," bound and gagged with strips of adhesive tape and then dumped in the forest preserve. Victor Livingston, a liquor salesman, saw the bodies when he parked his car in the forest preserve to eat his lunch. The oldest boy, Robert Peterson, had been slashed across the head 14 times, probably with an ax or a hunting knife, police said. The coroner's office said the Schuessler boys had been hit on their faces with what appeared to Hard-Hearted?

RALEIGH (AP)—So cops are hard-hearted, are they? Just you ask Mrs. Catherine Peelle of Columbia, S. C. Mrs. Peelle became ill here last Friday while returning home with her two little girls, Kay, 7, and Marie, 5, after visiting a sister in Fortsmith, Va. Mrs. Peelle drove into a parking lot, Raleigh Patrolman A. Bunn was called to the scene. He drove Mrs. Peelle and the two children to Rex Hospital. The mother was admitted to the hospital and treated for pneumonia. What to do with the children? Officer Bunn called the Travelers Aid Society. It was unable to find a place for the two little girls on such short notice. "Well," said Bunn, "I just told them I'd take them home with me." He did. Mrs. Bunn also works, but the little girls were cared for with the help of a neighbor. The Bunn's will say "goodbye" to their little guests today. They were held yesterday that Mrs. Peelle has recovered sufficiently to be taken home and that a brother was coming for the family. "Anybody would have done it," said officer Bunn.

Royal Family And Primate To Meet

LONDON (AP)—Britain's royal family dashed off in all directions today, going about its usual round of official duties just as if the nation wasn't in a furious tizzy over Princess Margaret's romance with Peter Townsend. Margaret flew from London in a pouring rain to present new colors to a regiment at Bulford, in the west of England. The Duke of Edinburgh, the Queen's husband, drove to Barking, outside London, for an industrial inspection trip. This afternoon he was to attend a meeting of the Physical Recreation Council in London. Queen Elizabeth II stayed home at Buckingham Palace, to receive Dr. Albert Schweitzer and confer on the Alsatian medical missionary and Nobel peace prize winner the Order of Merit, one of Britain's highest honors. Townsend drove away in the rain from the Lowndes Square flat where he is visiting, carrying a suitcase and a pair of spurs. A keen horseman, he presumably was going riding. Despite the "business as usual" air, observers figured the royal family had been deep in discussions of the romance since the return of the Queen from Scotland yesterday. It was doubtful if even high ranking court officials knew exactly what was said in the talks. There was still no indication when—if ever—an official statement would be issued on the romance. Chief attention focused on the dinner tonight which Margaret, the Queen and other members of the royal family were to attend at Lambeth Palace, home of the Archbishop of Canterbury across the Thames from the House of Parliament. The tabloid Daily Mirror, which has spoken out in favor of the princess' romance, carried this headline: "Margaret dines tonight with primate who won't marry her to Townsend." Also invited were all the church bishops who along with the royal family were to attend the pre-dinner dedication of the palace chapel, damaged in the war and now repaired. Townsend was not on the list. The foreman thought with all present was certain to be the ro-

Hospital Truck Said Overloaded

GOLDSBORO (AP)—A highway accident that seriously injured seven Negro women mental patients was investigated further today. Twenty-two inmates of the State Hospital for the Insane here were standing in the 1 1/2-ton truck's bed when the staked siding collapsed as the truck rounded a curve yesterday. The seven women were hurled out. The truck was seriously hurt, suffered pelvic and leg fractures. The others were cut and bruised. The women were on the way to Lemuel H. Hines' farm to pick cotton. Hines was driving the truck. Highway Patrolman Earl Merritt said the truck was overcrowded and its siding was "not substantial." He estimated the truck was proceeding at a safe speed of 20 m.p.h. when it was about when the siding gave way on a paved rural road near Rosewood, about six miles from Goldsboro. About 200 of the hospital's 3,000 patients are sent out daily to pick cotton. Farmers pay $3 a hundred pounds, and the money goes into the hospital's general fund.

Reinstated, But Suit Will Go On

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP)—The United Mine Workers has reinstated George H. Livengood, a Uniontown coal miner it expelled in 1949 after he filed suit in federal court in Washington asking for an accounting of the union's retirement and welfare fund. Livengood said yesterday he received a letter from the Special Membership Committee of the union's International Executive Board informing he has been reinstated as a member of Local 6308. He said the letter gave no reason for his reinstatement other than to say an investigation of his case had been made and he had been found "eligible for restoration to membership." Last Sept. 30, he filed another suit against the union in Washington, its headquarters. He claimed $75,000 for lost wages and other compensatory damages. He said he was unable to get a job as a coal miner during the period of his expulsion because of his nonunion status. He told newsmen yesterday he had no intention of withdrawing the suit. He said that he may even take further legal action against the union, depending on future developments. The damage suit has yet to be tried. Livengood said he tried repeatedly to get a hearing on his expulsion but never succeeded.

Normal Turnover Hoped To Reduce Payroll Ranks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department hopes normal turnover among its civilian workers will help it meet a goal to shave 68,000 civilians from its payroll without resorting to layoffs. Secretary Charles E. Wilson told a news conference yesterday that he expects a cut in the civilian work force to play the major part in a drive to save half a billion dollars and hold defense spending within 34 1/2 billion this year. The expected reductions in the civilian payroll were outlined in a memorandum last week providing "a guidelines" for efficiency. Wilson emphasized that the big-scale layoffs of civilian employees is planned. The secretary said most of the reduction would result from "attrition"—the normal turnover caused by workers reaching mandatory retirement age, resigning leaving because of ill health or dying. By the simple procedure of not replacing these, the present civilian employee payroll of about 1,154,000 could be cut.

Faure Emerges Winner In Test

PARIS (AP)—Twice victor in National Assembly votes on his North African policies Premier Edgar Faure appeared able today to look forward to a month's respite from parliamentary attack. He won his latest victory last night with a 308-254 vote of confidence from the Assembly on his plans for restoring order and promoting political reforms in Algeria. The 54-vote margin surprised even his most optimistic supporters. Nine days earlier he had carried off an even more surprising 477-140 endorsement of his Moroccan policies. Each time, he came back from what looked like certain defeat. Each time he benefited from special circumstances, but his own nimble parliamentary footwork also contributed to his successes. With the two voting hurdles behind him, Faure now should be able to concentrate on applying the reform programs for Morocco and Algeria which the Assembly approved. In voting confidence in the government, the Assembly approved the same resolution it had turned down last Friday on a procedural vote. Faure's troubles were far from over, however. A big segment of his support has slipped away from him and his enemies are waiting only for an opportune moment to give him the ax. He got a number of votes yesterday from deputies who announced they opposed his policies but hesitated to plunge into another government crisis now.

Hurricane Katie Turning Into Atlantic Squall

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Katie ran out of wind far out in the Atlantic today and spread out into an area of squalls. The season's 11th tropical storm was last reported about 330 miles south-southwest of Bermuda and 850 miles east of the Florida coast. It was spinning north-northeast at about 21 m.p.h. but had winds of only 40 miles an hour. "As the storm continues to lose its tropical characteristics there will be some spreading out and distortion of the circular wind pattern but with no increase in winds," said the Miami Weather Bureau. Few tropical storms develop after Oct. 15 and forecasters believe Katie might well be the last of the 1955 season.

Can't Remember Much About It

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—After losing some valuable jewelry here, a visitor from Belfast, Maine, wrote police. "I either left them in the restaurant where I ate breakfast or in the tourist home where I stayed," he said. He gave the address of the tourist home but it was about a 15 minute ride to the Lexington trotting track. The house was painted grey. At the restaurant where I ate I sat at a table...

Campaign Money Still Unclaimed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—In a straightforward legal manner, the Citizens Fidelity Bank & Trust Co. advertised the following deposit as being unclaimed in its vaults: "Rank & File Committee for the Re-election of Roosevelt, 307 Francis Building—$13.91." The advertisement which Roosevelt yesterday didn't say which Roosevelt or which re-election.

Superintendent Takes Own Life

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Rev. B. Reid Wall, superintendent of the Methodist Home for the Aged here, shot himself to death yesterday at the home, authorities said. Dr. W. M. Summerville, Mecklenburg coroner, ruled the death a suicide and said relatives and friends could offer no reason for the act.

Georgia Att'y General Charges 'Subversion' In NAACP Work

ATLANTA (AP)—Georgia Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook charged today that "subversion" is involved in the anti-segregation crusade of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People. He implied that he would seek to have the organization outlawed in the state. In a presentation of what he called "the ugly truth about the NAACP," Cook declared that the organization is "misnamed" and that "the real design is to force upon the South the Communist-inspired doctrine of racial integration and amalgamation." He said his statements were based on long investigation by his staff and the staffs of Rep. Davis (D-Ga.) and Sen. Eastland (D-Miss). He added that he would welcome a chance to prove them in a court of law. In a speech prepared for delivery before the Peace Officers Assn. of Georgia he said he wanted to make clear that "the issue involved is one not of race but rather of subversion." He charged that activities of the NAACP "and its local fronts pose a serious threat to the peace, tranquility, government and way of life of our state." He proposes, he announced, to ask the Legislature in January to take appropriate action on "the subversive nature of these activities." Observers saw in this language the threat of an effort to have the NAACP banned in Georgia. Cook claimed the NAACP work has exploited the race issue—"but" "for their more nefarious purposes." They have used the issue he alleged to "dupes naive do-gooders, fuzzi-minded intellectuals, misguided clergymen and radical journalists to be their pawns." Rep. Davis said Cook had asked him for certain information from the House Un-American Activity Committee files. "I furnished the information requested," he said, "but I don't remember the various names on the list." Davis added that he had not seen a copy of Cook's speech but was confident "it merely recites the facts taken from the committee records." Cook cited "the record" as showing that the NAACP "was neither founded nor is presently directed by colored people." "It was originated," he went on, "in New York City 46 years ago as the brain child of a Southern scoundrel, journalist and Russian-trained revolutionary named William E. Walling. Its principal personalities during its early years were descendants of the rabble-rousing abolitionists who fomented the War Between the States, a conflict which could have been avoided but for the activities of those abolitionists." "Of its five founders only one was a Negro—a Communist-Sympathizing lawyer named W. E. B. DuBois whose record of participation in Communist, Communist-front and subversive organizations and activities taken from the files of the Committee on Un-American Activities of the U.S. House of Representatives requires eight pages of single-spaced, typewritten copy to outline, x x x x." "DuBois was director of research for the NAACP until 1949 and now is referred to by its officers and members as the organization's 'honorary chairman.'" "Walling said DuBois was not an attorney and 'is not nor has he ever been chairman or honorary chairman of the NAACP. He added that DuBois resigned from the NAACP in 1934 but returned about 1944 as director of special research. This arrangement was terminated in 1948 Walling said. Cook continued, "In addition to Walling and DuBois, the other NAACP founders—all white—were Dr. Henry Moskowitz, socialist Oswald Garrison Villard, grandson of abolitionist William Lloyd Garrison and Miss Mary Overington White also a descendant of an old-line abolitionist. The first president of the association was a white Boston lawyer, Moorfield Storey, who was identified in his youth with the abolitionist movement and who served as secretary of the original race-free, Massachusetts-Suffolk County, Mass. The Georgia official asserted: "From that day to this, Southern hating white people with long records of affinity for affiliation with front, fellow-traveling and subversive organizations activities and causes have directed and subsidized the NAACP. Its present president Arthur B. Spingarn of New York City, is a white man as are a large number of its current officers, directors and principal contributors."

Later Parade Time For Santa Scheduled

Time of this year's Christmas parade was changed from 4 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. on December 2 by the Merchants Association Parade Committee which met yesterday to make preliminary plans for the annual Yuletide procession. Chairman Jack Whitchard said the time of the parade was changed because the committee felt "it would be better for the merchants and it would also give more time for school children and other participants in the parade to prepare for it." Whitchard also reported that the committee hopes the Christmas lights will be turned on for the first time at the beginning of the parade. The same route as last year will be followed again by this year's procession, beginning on Dickinson Avenue at Ninth Street, proceeding to Five Points up Evans Street and ending at the armory. Children's prizes will be offered for small ponies, dogs and other pets, costumes and decorated bicycles. Twelve of the Christmas scenes prepared last year for floats will be used again this year in addition to new floats prepared by various city organizations. The committee hopes to have ten or more bands in the parade this year, if possible. James L. Harris Jr. has been named assistant chairman of the Parade Committee; Warren Carroll is in charge of the floats; H. F. Steinbeck is responsible for securing bands; and Daniel Sand is in charge of publicity for the parade.

"Communism versus Christianity" is the theme of a movie to be shown Saturday night in Austin Auditorium.

Entitled "Dead Men On Parulough" the 45-minute film tells the story of a minister who was killed by the Reds in Korea. A brief song service will precede the showing, beginning at 8 o'clock. Admission is free.

The purpose is to give the American people the facts about Communist policy toward the Church in China and Korea. "Dead Men On Parulough" is brought to Greenville by World Vision, Inc., interdenominational missionary organization. "It is important that American Christians know that Chinese and Korean Christians are now being persecuted—even martyred—by the Reds," local church leaders emphasized.

The Rev. Leonard W. Topping, minister of First Presbyterian Church, will preside. The Rev. Robert E. Crawford, minister of Greenville Free Will Baptist Church, will read the Scripture. The Rev. C. C. Crith, minister of First Pentecostal Holiness Church, will lead the prayer. The Rev. J. Mally Owen, minister of St. James Methodist Church, will introduce the film, and Robert H. Gibbons will lead the audience in singing.

An offering will be received to cover expenses with the remainder going to the mission work of World Vision, Inc.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR October 19, 1925

Mrs. A. M. Moseley was hostess on Tuesday morning at a bridge luncheon in honor of Miss Frances Whedbee bride-elect. The attractive home of Mrs. Moseley on Fourth Street was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The dining room was beautiful with its decorations of red roses and dahlias. Nine tables were arranged for the games. The table prizes were Dresden pin cushions. Mrs. Moseley presented her honoree with a piece of crepe de chine lingerie. After a number of progressions a tempting luncheon was served.

ECC Circle K Club Inducts Five Members At Supper Meeting

At the Circle K Club's bi-monthly supper meeting at Respos Brothers last night, Kiwanis Club Vice President J. Ed Waldrop inducted five East Carolina College students as members. President Gary Scarborough presided.

The new members are Dave Carson of Wilmington Merle Teachey, Wilmington Charles Simmons, Kenly, Dock Smith, Princeton and "Buddy" Rhodes of Windsor. The Greenville Kiwanis Club sponsors the Circle K Club, composed of ECC students. Dr. John O. Reynolds and Dr. James E. Poindexter of the college faculty are advisors to the club.

O'Brien Edwards, a Circle K Club director, reported about his trip to the recent Carolina Kiwanis District convention at Winston-Salem.

The ECC Circle K Club's membership is by invitation. The members take active parts in campus and community life.

A recent study indicates that errors made by typists increase from an average of 11 per hour to more than 95 per hour when the temperature rises from 78 to 96 degrees.

Mrs. Galbreath Is Speaker For Atheneum Book Club

Mrs. Reid Perkins delightfully entertained the Atheneum Book Club at her home on Summit Street on Tuesday. A delectable luncheon was served to the members and guests, Mrs. Louis Gaylord Sr., Mrs. Howard King, Mrs. Tom Galbreath of Kinston and Miss Mattie Barnes.

Beautiful arrangements of gladioli, chrysanthemums and other fall flowers in the living room and den and open fires added a note of cheer and warmth. The den was a lovely appointed table centered with a signal tower and tiny boxcars, carrying out the theme of the speaker. On the dining table a miniature railway station bordered with dwarf fall flowers and berries, and miniature boxcars and engine was most effective.

Mrs. Perkins presented her sister, Mrs. Tom Galbreath of Kinston, as guest speaker. Her subject, "You Can Not Lose a Rooster," was very interesting and informing. Railroad were first operated in the United States in 1825 and at that time the population was only 12,000,000 with five large cities. Railroads have contributed much to the growth of the nation. Today there are 2,000,000 freight cars traveling in all directions, and the amazing thing is the any one of these can be traced a any time. The longest straight railway track in the United States is in North Carolina, between Wilmington and Hamlet.

A short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Reid Perkins. The club voted to make a donation to the Mental Health Clinic. After distribution of books the meeting adjourned.

The bride is a graduate of Robersonville High School, Class of 55. After a wedding trip, the young couple will make their home in Windsor.

WMU President Speaks At Meet

Using "Speak unto the children of Israel that they may go forward" as her text, Mrs. Gordon Maddrey, president of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Union, spoke to some 400 WMU members from all parts of the county Monday night at Immanuel Baptist Church.

Mrs. Maddrey told the women they should always study God's word first, and then study the mission field. She said that after study comes prayer, and "from prayer the women give and then they go." She emphasized that they should encourage young people to "go" also.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. James S. Hughes who also gave the devotional. Mrs. J. A. Neilson led in evening prayer and Mrs. Norman Wilkinson rendered a solo, "Suffer the Little Children" by Ruth Hausman.

Representatives from the local Hildeale and Memorial Baptist churches were present for the meeting, as well as representatives from Robersonville, Bethel, Ayden and Grifton.

A reception was held at the church immediately following the meeting.

For Accuracy, Add Six Boys

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—If any historians of expositions are reading this, correct your figures from $23,324 to $23,330.

The State Fair of Texas Saturday said it broke a world one-day exposition attendance record with 233,330.

Today it was putting a letter from Miss Patsy Turner, Mount Pleasant, Tex., into its records.

Miss Turner said the fair should increase its official figure by six because she saw that number of boys avoid the turnstiles—and avoid paying admission—by climbing the fence.

Plan Inviting Princess In '57

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Princess Margaret of England is still footloose and fancy free in 1957, she'll likely get an invite to an Oklahoma shindig.

The Bicentennial Commission planning the state's 50th birthday celebration met for the first time yesterday. One of the first suggestions was to invite Princess Margaret.

"The English flag might have once flown over Oklahoma because it was part of the Carolina territory in 1683," said R. G. Miller Oklahoma City columnist and commission member. "We may get Princess Margaret over here—if she isn't married by then."

A million certificates for proficiency have been issued to people who participated in the Red Cross Water Safety program during the past year.

$15,000 Suit For Wrong Number

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A $15,000 "wrong number" damage suit was filed here against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. yesterday.

W. D. Adams and wife claimed in their petition that their home telephone was incorrectly listed as the night number of a transfer company.

They alleged they have been awakened constantly at night by calls for transfer service.

Thief Spoiled Their Honeymoon

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A Kansas City bridegroom is offering a reward to a thief who just about ruined a honeymoon trip to California.

The honeymooning couple, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Sharick, stopped at an Oklahoma City restaurant yesterday while they were eating, a burglar ransacked their auto and stole $1,000 worth of clothing—including the bride's wedding trousseau.

Sharick announced later he won't prosecute if the clothes are returned. He'll even give a reward. "We are desperate," he admitted.

Correction

In Police Court last Friday, the court found William R. Griffin, 2801 Jefferson Drive, guilty of driving drunk and fined him $100 and costs. The judgment provides that he is not to operate a motor vehicle for one year. Griffin gave notice of appeal to Superior Court. Judge Charles E. Whedbee recommended that Griffin's operator's license be suspended pending outcome of the appeal.

Accidents cause more deaths among boys 10 to 14 years old than any other single cause.

Responsibility Is The City Council's

City fathers seem to feel that they have no responsibility in the Lakewood Pines problem for the installation of water and sewer if the project has the approval of the Utilities Commission.

The councilmen's position seems to be this: If the commission approves the running of utilities lines to the area its none of the council's affair.

That's the only conclusion that can be reached from the council's actions. When the matter first came to their attention, the councilmen referred Lakewood Pines to the Utilities Commission to work out sewer and water arrangements in conformity with the sub-division ordinance.

Later the Utilities Commission voted to furnish water to the area if it is taken into the city. The councilmen are apparently accepting this as a fulfillment of the subdivision ordinance requirements and it seems the matter of annexing the area will be voted on in the near future.

In spite of the independence of the Utilities Commission the City Council is still the ultimate authority for the city of Greenville. They are the duly elected representatives of the people. They even appoint members of the Utilities Commission.

The Utilities Commission's action in agreeing to furnish water to the subdivision immediately was made contingent upon Lakewood Pines being annexed by the city. While we do not feel that the Utilities Commission should have made such a commitment, it remains within the authority of the Council to determine whether Lakewood Pines is required to conform with the subdivision ordinance before being annexed by the city.

By simply requiring Lakewood Pines to comply in full with the subdivision ordinance, the City Council will have carried out its responsibility to the citizens of Greenville by upholding the city's ordinances. Under no circumstances should the Utilities Commission deviate from its heretofore most satisfactory policy of extending water and sewer facilities to new subdivisions only if and when property owners agree to bear the expense of such installations.

It is up to the Council to boldly accept its responsibility to the public and see that the city's ordinances are properly enforced.

Poultry In N. C. Is Big Business Today

By LYNN NISBET

CHICKENS — The poultry industry in North Carolina has moved into big time, credited with more than $100 million of gross agricultural income last year. It was appropriate that a large part of the fall meeting of the State Board of Agriculture should be devoted to that phase of the overall economy.

Besides discussing and tentatively adopting regulations for the voluntary inspection program authorized by the last Legislature, board members heard their newest colleague report on experiments in developing a new breed of chickens.

Atwell Alexander of Stony Point who had just been sworn in as a board member, told about a new type which his outfit has developed through years of experimentation called "sex-linked" or "sex-link." It is a small black variety which has the unique quality of distinction at one day old between roosters and pullets. The markets demand broilers and fryers rather than big hens, and experience has proven that little roosters do not develop into broilers as rapidly as pullets. Distinction of sex the first day saves a lot of money in feeding chicks for weeks before determination can be made in the general purpose breeds.

The new breed, or hybrid, has not been widely publicized pending longer experience records, but board members agreed that it might have tremendous impact on the poultry industry. Alexander said he is not yet ready to hatch the chick for sale.

HURRICANE — Next to poultry the hurricane damage to agriculture claims attention of the board. There was agreement that damage to farms and crops, though not so spectacular, was hundreds of cents more than damage to other property. Residuary efforts of salt water on land and deaths of livestock from eating spoiled feedstuffs accounted for large part of the total loss, but does not show up in immediate estimates.

DUST — Even the experienced farmers who compose the board membership were surprised by the report of George Kittrell of Corapeake about surface dust preventing germination of pure grass seeds sown on areas that a few days before had been covered with water. Sun and wind had so dried out the surface soil by the time horse drawn and motor-powered equipment could get into the fields because of soft sub-soil, that there was not enough moisture to germinate the seeds.

In that connection up-staters noted that while the eastern area was getting excessive rains, 20 inches in two days reported in some sections, the piedmont was suffering from drought.

CONTRAST — The board of agriculture was concerned mainly with its own problems, but it is an interesting note that when New Bern and Washington were reporting two to six feet of water on normally dry streets, Statesville and other communities in that area were facing a definite water shortage.

This fact injected a humorous note into the otherwise very serious discussion. When A.B. Slagle, board member from Macon county, suggested one solution might be for all the low-landers to move up into God's country where floods would not bother them, Claude Hall of Roxboro and Charles Phillips of Thomasville were quick to point out their part of the country didn't have enough water for the folks who are already there.

INSURANCE — Back to the serious side of the picture. Consensus of the board membership was that some kind of disaster insurance MUST be made available to the people. If privately managed profit-motive companies cannot provide, the government must step in—as it did for war-risk insurance a decade or so ago. If government can provide insurance for manufacturing plants in abnormal conditions, it ought to provide similar protection for farmers and individual property owners against natural disaster, they said.

FREEDOM — This catastrophe insurance question raises question about the importance of precedent in governmental action. Times without number your reporter has attended meetings of official boards and commissions where the subject of freedom of information was under discussion, and unanimous opinion was that the particular case deserved consideration but favorable action was withheld because it would establish a precedent that could be pleaded where need for action was less obvious.

The State highway commission, the board of education and other agencies have denied admittedly reasonable requests because of the precedent involved in that issue is involved in catastrophe insurance against hurricanes and floods.

The same idea is present in Governor Hodges insistence that North Carolina be given the same consideration in Federal relief funds for storm damage to highways as may be given to other States and to municipalities for highway and street repairs.

In that connection it might be noted that the terrific impact of the latest "flood" storms upon New England may result in larger Federal aid to North Carolina. Federal officials at the recent Greenville regional civil defense conference admitted that the far-reaching devastation of hurricanes Diane and Iona in New England would speed up relief activities in North Carolina. Last week's fluke visit of an un-heralded flood in New England, with accompanying losses of life and property far greater than North Carolina has suffered, may further speed relief measures. There is no question of partisan politics involved. The speeding-up will be due entirely to recognition of the need, which is more eloquently demonstrated in the New England concentrated population areas, than when dispersed over the thinly populated areas of this state.

About The Governor's Pace

(Greensboro Daily News)

It takes a jet plane, and then some, to keep up with Governor Hodges.

Last week, his secretary, Ed Rankin, told a visitor to the Governor's office that His Excellency had nine speeches scheduled in a period of five or six days. His itinerary called for hops, skips and jumps all over the face of North Carolina.

As one Raleigh correspondent termed it, he was "hopping like a political candidate in the final stage of a red-hot campaign."

Is all that hopping necessary? The Governor thought not during his first few months in office. Succeeding a man who worked himself to death, Luther Hodges promised in his inaugural address to delegate authority and give as much time to the "thinking" or executive side of his job as to the running around and speech making. That happens, however, to be hard to do. The Governor, according to his secretary, accepts only about one out of ten speaking invitations extended him; that provides some measure of his popularity and the demands made on his time.

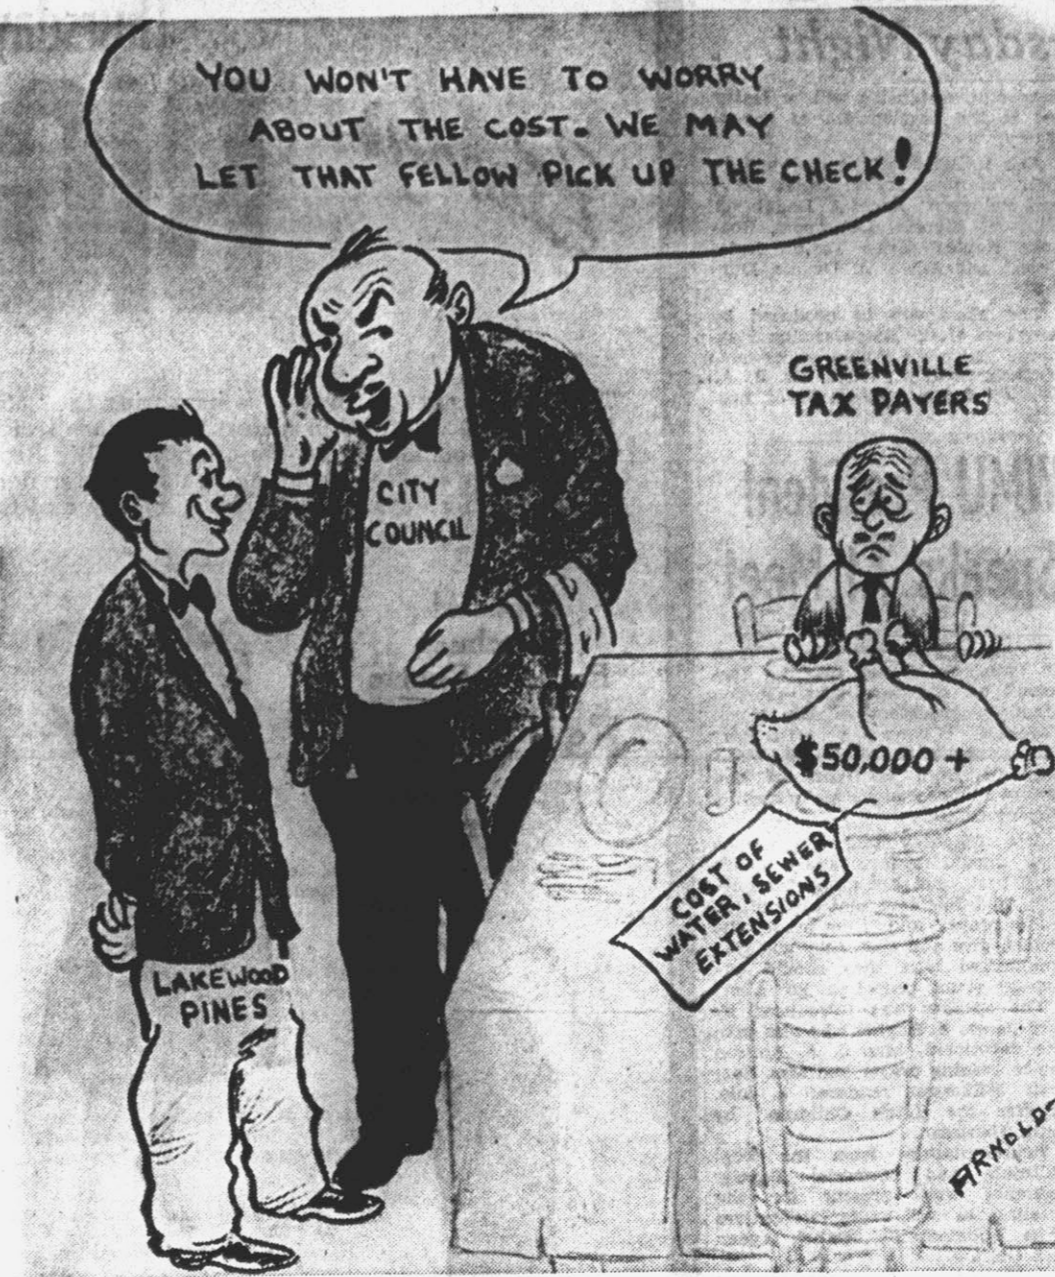

One of the Governor's prime function involves ceremonial and speech-making tasks. A Governor, if he is able, ought to get out and mingle with the people of North Carolina. But he has other important duties too. He must give time to the serious, continuing problems now facing this state and he cannot do that with an overly heavily schedule of fish fries and barbecues. His engagements ought to undergo more careful screening, especially since his time has been imposed upon lately. (On one occasion he found that a whole round of speaking appearances had been planned for him in one community where he had anticipated only one speech.)

In several fields of endeavor, the chief executive needs to focus, at specific intervals, his whole-hearted and undivided attention. Several of these fields are as follows: (1) multiple school problems, including integration as well as burgeoning school population; (2) water resources; (3) flood protection against various ranges of hurricanes; (4) re-organization of state government, especially in the field of taxes and duplication of services; and (5) Operation Bootstrap, the industrial procurement problem.

State commissions, we believe are already at work in most of these areas and the Governor, of course, cannot do much more than he already has done to push them along. What we would emphasize, though, is that Governor Hodges ought not to expend his energies on relatively unimportant speech making around the state; rather, he should conserve them for the major policy-making decisions which will face him in the months ahead. North Carolina needs a lieutenant governor; it needs a chief executive who will not impair his health unnecessarily in the performance of secondary duties.

If We Forget The Subdivision Ordinance . . .

by Don Schlien

Named For A Fictional Feline

Everybody knows you should never feed a stray dog or cat. They'll make themselves right at home. But we did, and saw many days when we were glad Rhubarb came to stay at our house.

He was a stray, scrawny, flea-bitten kitten with a broken tail, a most pitiful sight to see, but he came up our walk with his tail pointing high and a cool disregard of two frolicking pups on the lawn. Both capering canines made a pass at the kitten, who angled. That issue is involved in catastrophe insurance against hurricanes and floods.

His name, Rhubarb, is easily explained: I was reading H. Allen Smith's story by the same name when this slightly fey feline came on the scene. With a good diet and applications of flea-powder he flourished. Rube never did learn dogs were to be feared. Seemed to take a delight in picking on them. One afternoon, I was weeding the lawn and Rhubarb was in the near-at-hand trash box when a beautiful white Spitz showed up. The dog didn't see the cat, but the vice versa was all too true; Rhubarb watched the visitor as though it were open season on dogs. As each opportunity presented itself Rube moved closer on the unsuspecting victim: first behind a tree, then a bush, another tree. The Spitz came snuffling ever nearer until it seemed impossible for him to be ambushed. . . then, at the last minute, Rhubarb jumped up with arched back, bristling tail and a short, explosive hiss. His victim was so startled he nearly stumbled before gaining a safe distance from the scene of his surprise. You never saw such a smug cat.

What Every TV Viewer Needs

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — There are several gadgets on the market that will enable a listener to tune out a television commercial.

But they do little to help the veteran video viewer in his real predicament. Your hardened TV fan no longer rants against commercials as he did in those far-off pioneer days when Hopalong Cassidy first rode into our living rooms on a 12-inch screen.

The TV addicts have developed a protective mechanism similar to that acquired by husbands married to talkative wives. The moment a really boring commercial begins to flash on the screen they turn off their ears, and they sink into the same restful torpor they would if they were listening to a long-winded dinner speaker.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
ALL THINGS WELL
A prominent business man told the story recently of a little girl who had brown eyes but who had so greatly admired her mother's blue eyes that she prayed one night that the color of her eyes might be changed. The next morning, she jumped out of bed, ran to the mirror, and when she discovered that her eyes were still the same color said, "Well, God said No."

There are two points to this story. The first one is that some people feel that the only way for God to answer a prayer is by giving us exactly what we ask. Experience proves, however, that God's mercy to us is never more graciously manifested than in the denial He sometimes accords our petitions. Some of the things we pray for would ruin us and the world in which we live, if we got them.

The second point of the story about the little girl is that when she grew up she went as a missionary to a part of the world where brown eyes are greatly admired and blue eyes are detested. She looked upon as evil eyes. All of which is a reminder of the fact that God's arrangements of affairs proves best after all. When we are young, we are pretty sure that the Creator could have done quite a few things better: now, with fifty or more years behind us, we are ready to echo the Biblical statement that He doeth all things well.

An Enforced Role Weakens Nixon Race

By RA TUCKER
WASHINGTON — Vice-President Richard M. Nixon's enforced assignment as "Acting President" threatens to weaken him as a 1956 Presidential nominee, if President Eisenhower eventually agrees with medical and political and popular opinion that he should not run again. It is an ironic but a realistic dilemma that confronts the Californian.

In presiding over meetings of the Cabinet and National Security Council, Nixon must express his ideas or major domestic and foreign questions, inasmuch as he cannot always be sure that he voices the President's views, especially when details are involved.

He regards himself, and is so regarded, as a referee or umpire between conflicting factions, and the lot of such officials is always hard. He must antagonize or at least differ from one set of powerful, and strong-minded men. On the other hand, if he tries to maintain a neutral or hands-off position he will be accused of straddling and fence-sitting for political purposes. For, no matter how scrupulously the V-P aims to behave, he has been catapulted into the role of a leading candidate for the 1956 nomination. He has who is known in racing as the "pole position," at least in the minds of his numerous rivals.

U. S. Farm Situation Worsening

By ELMER ROESSNER

If the American farm situation has been critical—economically and politically—it is rapidly getting worse.

ITEM: This year's harvest is heading toward the second biggest on record.

ITEM: Foreign countries are growing more this year, so export markets are shrinking and competition is worsening.

Good fall weather, the Department of Agriculture reports is fulfilling earlier predictions of good crops. While soybean, flax-seed potato, sugar beet, sweet potato and hops crops may be less than forecast earlier, cotton, hay, sorghum grain, rice, peanut, tobacco, corn and dry bean crops will be larger.

Meanwhile, the government's Foreign Agricultural Service has compiled this summary of foreign production compared with 1954: Cotton: importing countries, UP 400,000 bales; exporting countries, UP 1,700,000 bales.

Wheat: importing countries, UP 250,000,000 bushels; exporting countries, UP 190,000,000 bushels.

Tobacco: importing countries, DOWN 5,000,000 pounds; exporting countries, UP 30,000,000.

The FAS states: "The situation adds up to a continuing tough problem for U.S. agricultural exports. A few years ago other countries could not produce the food and fiber they needed and much U.S. farm production moved as foreign aid. But those conditions are long since gone. The United States today faces new realities." The FAS underscores the last three words.

The Service has one morsel of encouragement: foreign purchasing power is continuing to climb and peoples abroad are consuming more agricultural commodities.

There is no easy answer to our farm problem. It seems we are going to have a lot more farm production than we can eat or wear. Our customers are producing more of their own and raising larger surpluses with which to compete with us in other markets. It appears that we will not be able even to give away some of our surplus.

The best guess as to what will happen is this: To prevent further surpluses, the government will try to cut plantings back further next year. To gain farmers' agreements, it will have to offer handsome support prices for the lesser amounts grown.

Agate consumers will pay more in taxes to keep prices up, making them pay more for farm products. That's unpleasant, of course.

Anybody with a better idea is pretty sure to get a hearing.

NEWSPAPERS IN VAN

IN FASHION DRIVE

Newspapers will largely be relied upon in the clothing industry's forthcoming campaign to promote men's and boys' wear, according to Willard W. Cole, Chicago merchant and president of the new American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear. Magazine, television and radio advertising also will be used, Mr. Cole told a meeting of the American Association of Newspaper Representatives.

FORESEES WHOLE NEW COIN-IN-SLOT ERA

Theories and analyses offered yesterday at the famous Boston Conference on the deep-dish market. Already on the way, he said, are machines that will cook and dish up hot meals in factories, schools and office buildings; automatic groceries selling "atomically preserved" packaged foods in apartment buildings and housing developments; vending machines "branch department stores" in suburban areas and small shopping centers; and automatic drive-in diners on highways.

It sounds as if future Americans will be able to go days without ever seeing a waiter.

Byrnes, Wallace, Ickes Became Too Big For Breeches: Truman

By ED CREAGH
WASHINGTON (AP)—The important thing to remember, says Harry S. Truman, "is that the President is the only person in the executive branch who has final authority, and if he does not exercise it we may be in trouble."
And so out of his Cabinet in the aftermath of World War II went Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. They all, in Truman's opinion and his own phrase, got too big for their breeches.
The former President tells the story in the current installment of his memoirs, published in Life magazine. Most of it has been told before but there are some new insights—notably a feeling by Truman in 1946 that Wallace might well become a tool of the Communists.
Truman fired Wallace for making a speech critical of administration foreign policy. He tells of calling the then secretary of commerce to his office and listening to Wallace lecture on "the beauty of peace."

"I have never doubted Henry Wallace's sincerity or honesty of purpose," Truman says, "but after this conversation I was afraid that, knowingly or not, he would lend himself to the more sinister ends of the Reds and those who served them."
Wallace later, in 1948, was to run against Truman on a third party ticket with Communist support.
"It must have been difficult for him in later years," Truman comments, "to acknowledge the aggressive character of the Communists but he had the good grace to express his full support of my policy when, in 1950, I decided to support South Korea against the Red attack."
Truman says Byrnes, his own choice for secretary of state, tried to assume the responsibilities of the President—to make foreign policy and to keep Truman himself "completely in the dark" about developments at the Moscow conference of foreign ministers in 1945.
The former President has told before—and Byrnes has disputed his version—of scolding the secretary of state and telling him, "I'm tired of babying the Soviets."
In the memoirs, Truman says Byrnes accepted this dressing-down and didn't talk of quitting until some months later, when a stomach ailment developed. Truman mentions in passing that the invitation to Gen. George C. Marshall to succeed Byrnes was relayed by another general—Dwight D. Eisenhower.
As for Ickes Truman says the late secretary of the interior struck him as "a trouble maker . . . a scold and a gossip," but "I was fond of him, in a sense, especially because he was not a special interests man."
They clashed when Ickes opposed the President's nomination of Edwin W. Pauley to be undersecretary of the Navy—and, says Truman, "I could not, as president, tolerate that."

He said Ickes threatened to quit in the hope of being talked out of it—but Truman accepted the resignation on the spot.
On more general subjects Truman says:
1. He "never had any doubts" that the atomic bomb should be used as a military weapon. And so he ordered its use against Japan. This, he says, "forced Russia to reconsider her position in the Far East" and leap into the Japanese war just before it ended.
2. Some sort of special election should be held—probably by the Electoral College—to fill the vice presidency when the vice president succeeds to the presidency. As it is now, the speaker of the House is next in line, after the vice president, for succession to the White House. Until Truman's administration the Congress adopted his proposal that this be changed.
Truman says Byrnes, his own choice for secretary of state, tried to assume the responsibilities of the President—to make foreign policy and to keep Truman himself "completely in the dark" about developments at the Moscow conference of foreign ministers in 1945.

Proclamation

With a world-wide struggle now going on between the forces of democracy and totalitarianism, and with our government engaged in an action with other peace loving nations of the world to preserve the democratic way of life, it is appropriate and most imperative for all our schools to emphasize the important position that education plays in "Government Of, By, and For the People."
This year, the North Carolina Teachers Association in cooperation with the National Education Association, the American Legion, the United States Office of Education, and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers is making a special effort to emphasize in our schools the responsibilities and obligations of citizenship. This is indeed an appropriate program at any time in our history, and I endorse this program, and I want to urge that all of our citizens join with the teachers and students of our schools in the ceremonies designed to impress firmly in our minds the true significance of the American Way of Life and the true meaning of "Government Of, By, and For the People."
Therefore, I, William L. Whedbee, Mayor of Greenville, North Carolina, do hereby proclaim November 6-12, 1955 as American Education Week.
Signed: W. L. Whedbee
Mayor

Stole $145,000 From Her Safe

OMAHA (AP)—"They really cleaned me out," said Mrs. Margaret Kellogg today, motioning to a big bedroom safe from which two masked gunmen had taken $125,000 in jewels and $20,000 in cash.
The robbers smashed their way into the big brick home on Omaha's fashionable West Side last night while Mrs. Kellogg, 58-year-old banker's widow, and three women friends watched television upstairs.
The women said the gunmen were nervous and confused, but when they spotted Mrs. Kellogg, who had come to the head of the stairs, one shouted, "She's the one we want," and dashed up.
Mrs. Kellogg retreated to her bedroom but the bandit slammed the door and the hand of the door panel, jammed a pistol in Mrs. Kellogg's back and ordered her to open the big, old-fashioned safe.
The two men laid a bedspread on the floor and tossed the jewels and money into it. The jewelry included a diamond dog collar for one of Mrs. Kellogg's three pet chihuahuas.
During the confusion, one of the women, Miss Gladys Rohrs, slipped out, alerted neighbors and called police. A neighbor fired at the fleeing pair with a target pistol and police arrived shortly afterward, but the gunmen escaped safely in a waiting car driven by a third man.

Demo Gatherings Are Announced

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic National Committee announced today a new series of fund-raising dinners and party gatherings, with Gov. Averell Harriman of New York listed for four speaking appearances in the Northwest.
Harriman, one of three Democrats most prominently mentioned for their party's presidential nomination next year, will speak in Seattle, Wash., Dec. 21; Oregon City, Ore., Dec. 22; and Lewiston, Idaho, Dec. 23. He also will appear at a luncheon Dec. 22 in Eugene, Ore., and attend a University of Oregon convocation there the same day.
Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, other top-ranking prospects for the presidential nomination, are down for one speech each and may be booked for others later.
Stevenson will address a $100-a-plate dinner the Democratic National Committee is giving in Chicago Nov. 19. Kefauver will speak at Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 29.
Congressional, state and other party leaders have been booked for some 30 affairs between Oct. 21 and Dec. 23.
Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler's itinerary, previously announced as including an appearance with Harriman at a dinner in Des Moines, Iowa, next Saturday, has now been extended to include trips to Scarborough, Maine, Nov. 1; Waterville, Maine, Nov. 7; Chapel Hill, N.C., Nov. 11; and Albuquerque, N.M., Nov. 22.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Ross Vardon, long-time principal of the Greenwood School, Wakefield, who died last Sept. 29 ordered that the headstone on his grave be marked:

The order was contained in Vardon's will, filed for probate yesterday.

Whooping Cranes At Game Refuge

AUSTWELL, Tex. (AP)—Three whooping cranes, vanguard of an expected flock, were sighted on Aransas National Wildlife Refuge yesterday by refuge manager Julian Howard.
Howard said he saw the birds, two adults and a youngster, from a refuge patrol boat just before noon. He said the young whooper was hatched last June near Great Slave Lake in northwestern Canada.
Last fall he said, 21 adults that had flown north in the spring came back with no young. The cranes are America's tallest waterfowl and scarcest species.
Canadian wild life officials spotted six young on the nesting range this summer.

Get-Married Hat Sent Princess

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Dallas hat designer—manufacturer Richard Englander has sent a "get-married" hat to Princess Margaret of England.
"It's something blue for her to wear," said Englander yesterday, adding that the hat was fashioned after Texas' state flower, the bluebonnet.
The creation is a pearl-trimmed, blue satin shell in the shape of a heart, symbolic of romance, said the designer. The size is adjustable.

Briefly Alarmed Over Passenger

BALTIMORE (AP)—Driver Francis Hartlove brought his No. 6 bus to a quick stop the other day after a female passenger cried:
"Wait! Hold everything until I get my clothes off!"
Hartlove spun around in his seat. The woman, fully clothed, finally managed to get her bundle of laundry through the rear door and off the vehicle.

Public Transportation Tied Up 200 Days, And It Hurts

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—This city without mass public transportation for nearly 200 days because of a strike, and its residents say the effects can be summed up in one word—bad.
When the operating employees of the Scranton Transit Co. walked out April 5 in a dispute over wages and fringe benefits under a proposed new contract, Scranton reacted mildly. It had had transit strikes before. But they had all been settled quickly.
This one is different. The housewife, the laborer, the driver, the store owner—all have suffered.
A survey of downtown merchants revealed almost unanimous agreement that business had been hurt, particularly at night.
Drivers face a daily battle for parking space. The morning and evening rush hours bring traffic jams.
Members of the AFL Transit Workers Union operate "courtesy" cars to aid the former bus users. At home they are living on reduced family budgets. They want to return to work badly.
But they hold out against company offers, now unknown, to increase their average hourly pay, which was $1.05 before the strike. The union originally sought a 35-cent increase. The company asked the men to take a cut. Both sides are known to have modified their demands.
The courtesy cars operate only with full loads. And they don't begin to match the scheduled timing or reliability of the buses. The courtesy cars offer rides free of charge to people who must get to work or be somewhere at a certain time. Its customary, however, for riders to hand over a gratuity.

With winter approaching, the demand for rides will increase until it reaches a peak in the Christmas season that one merchant says he expects to be "one of the worst."
LOVE NOTES
TOKYO (AP)—Russia may be trying to woo Japan by sea. Japanese police say sealed bottles with messages to the "dear Hokkaido people" have been washing up on the shores of Hokkaido, Japan's northern island.

Phants' Triple Threat Back Joins List Of Sidelined

Jerry Drum To Be Out Of Play For Rest Of '55

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer

It was learned today that Greenville high school's regular quarterback for the earlier part of the 1955 football season, Jerry Drum, will definitely not see action for the rest of the year. The husky Phantom triple threat has suffered an attack of glandular fever and physicians have ended his football days.

This blow follows a heap of earlier losses to the Green crew. For various reasons, the Greenville team has lost all but one of its regular starting backfield (as connected over the first several games). Missing from the roster are Drum, Bob Shackelford, Charlie Smith and Tommy Key Norris. All of these boys were classified as starters at one time or another during the season.

Sermons Injured Friday

The remaining first-stringer of aid, fullback Billy Sermons who has really been the Phants' biggest offensive gun, suffered a sprained ankle in last Friday's Elizabeth City scrap and has not seen action during any of this week's drills. He is expected to be ready though, for the coming tilt with New Bern this Friday night in Greenville.

Though Sermons has dressed for every practice session this week, Coach Guy Lewis has seen fit to keep the big fullback on the bench and out of danger. Co-captain Pete West, whose positions have been guard, tackle and linebacker during the many shifts in the Greenville line-up, is now running at Sermons' fullback position.

Drills Feature Offense

Drills this week have featured offensive attack in the Phantom attack. The rest of Lewis' present backfield include John Arnold and Robert Howell at halfbacks and sophomore Mack Roebuck, who is alternating at quarterback with Ike Riddick.

Coach Lewis and assistant coaches Vaughn Fowler and Stanley Jones kept yesterday's session on a light basis, restricting the rough work to a thirty-minute scrimmage.

Taking over West's guard slot will probably be little Peter Hudson. He performed well in drills and has been a hustler throughout the season. Other linemen are Harold Edwards, Howard King, Wade Jordan, Billy Johnson, Edwin Wilkerson and Ike Riddick.

Syracuse Coach Isn't Even Dreaming Of Terp Upset

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Upsets are heady fare, but they don't make a football team. This is well known by Ben Schwartzwalder, coach of the Syracuse Orangemen, who meet Maryland of the Atlantic Coast Conference Saturday.

Expecting Syracuse to upset Maryland—even though the New Yorkers turned the trick against Army last week—would be like expecting Johnny Vander Meer to pitch a second consecutive no-hitter, back in 1938. Schwartzwalder may have his dreams but he's keeping them hidden.

The Syracuse coach figures his men will need to show much improvement, to down Maryland. He rates the Terps along with West Virginia as the nation's two top teams.

Maryland, meanwhile, is forced to make a show of its depth in the backfield. Plagued by injuries at fullback, Coach Jim Tatum is preparing a second converted halfback—Phil Perlo—for the position. And ready to back up Perlo is still another erstwhile halfback, Dick Burgess.

Fast-rising Duke now ranked fifth nationally in the Associated Press poll, could be doubly embarrassed by a defeat at the hands of unranked Pitt. Coming on the heels of complaints by Ohio State's Coach Woody Hayes about the validity of Duke's first touchdown last week, it could take starch as well as steam out of the Blue Devils. So far, the Dukes are trying not to think about what others think of them. Coach Murray Grayson has suggested that Pitt is stronger even than Ohio State.

A milder upset could come tomorrow when South Carolina and Clemson play their annual Big Thursday game to start off the ACC schedule for the week. Clemson is favored by seven points but the Tigers haven't won a game from South Carolina since 1948.

Garwick coaches, however, are not encouraging superstitions. A sign in the South Carolina dressing room says: "Hard blocking and tackling not jinxes, win football games." The teams, both in good shape, planned brief workouts today.

The other conference game rates pretty much a tossup with Wake Forest playing North Carolina at the "D-ace" homecoming. Wake Forest has been holding secret practices this week and getting in plenty of hard work. At Chapel Hill, sophomore quarterback Ron Marquette, who broke bones in his wrist in Monday's practice, is feared out for the season.

N. C. State, battered in a series of go-tos with Southern teams, travels to Philadelphia in hopes of winning its first victory of the season against Villanova. The Wolfpack, which worked out lightly yesterday, planned offensive and defensive scrimmages today.

Trainers said tackle Darrell Dress who has been sidelined with injuries for two weeks, will be back in action Saturday.

Virginia, with one Old Dominion opponent down and one to go plays Virginia Tech at Roanoke. The Cavaliers' Iranian back, Jim Bakhtiar, is expected to carry the load. He gained 126 yards last week against VMI the first Virginia regular to break 100 yards in a single game since 1952.

Defense Is King Of 1955 Football

Entire ECC Squad Joins In Rough Hour Of Scrimmage

By BOB HOOBING
The Associated Press

Defense is king in college football this year—that's why Michigan and Maryland are setting the mid-October pace.

The Wolverines and the Terrapins top the nation's grid giants by making their breaks while on defense and capitalizing on them. You can't prove their strength by their yardage totals.

In its last three games, Michigan has scored only one of eight touchdowns on a long drive. Four of its scores were set up by fumble recoveries, one by an intercepted pass and another by a blocked kick. The six usually were within 20 yards of the enemy goal.

Today's grid hopes are most safe, entrusted to resolute young men who are trained primarily in the art of harassing enemy runners and passers until they commit mistakes—with the help of jarring tackles.

Michigan, for example, has forced ten opponents to fumble 19 times and has recovered on 11 occasions. The Wolves have intercepted eight passes and allowed only 2 completions of the 46 aerials launched against them. They have yielded a mere two touchdowns.

An arrowing 13-12 opener with Missouri convinced Maryland of the need to make adjustments. With revamped defenses the Terps won a bone-rattling 7-0 decision over favored UCLA Sept. 24.

Unbeaten, Oklahoma, ranked third in the current AP poll, traveled only 24 and seven yards for two touchdowns in its important 20-0 victory over Texas because of pass thievery.

And for the best throttle job of the young season, look at Navy's 21-0 victory over a fine Pitt team. The Midcets held Pitt to 50 rushing yards, gave the quarterback time to try only one pass which was intercepted and turned loose ends Ron Beagle and Earl Smith for their kick-blocking routine.

Ohio State, national champion a year ago, already has been beaten twice despite the fact it has much of last year's personnel. Stanford gambled on the relentless hounding of Ohio's All American halfback Howard Cassidy and emerged with a 6-0 triumph. Cassidy got only 37 yards and the Bucks got nowhere.

Duke reshuffled its defenses at halftime held Cassidy to 40 yards, and called for a 20-14 margin over Ohio State last Saturday. After intermission Ohio managed 84 yards rushing and 14 passing while Duke converted two fumbles into scores.

The East Carolina Pirates turned their sights to the East Tennessee encounter this Saturday with a rough hour of scrimmage yesterday in which the entire squad took part to regain their starters' berths and the action there is intense.

Coach Jack Boone, Jim Mallory and Earl Smith directed the Bucs, winners in their last two outings, through the offensive tactics as the entire attack was given the once-over.

Coach Smith briefed the club on the East Tennessee scouting report and coaches Boone and Mallory pointed out weaknesses displayed in the 14-6 win over Western Carolina last weekend.

Cherry Faces

Dick Cherry was the pacemaker into day's drills as he has been in the Pirates' last couple of games. The Little All-America nominee did most of the passing, hitting his receivers with deadly accuracy.

Cherry's faking and running also appear to have taken on the old touch and because of it the Pirates are enjoying a two-game winning streak after losing three in a row.

The club looked smart in the long drill and is showing the season's epitome for spark. Many of the starting jobs are wide open and in most cases it's a thin line separating the first two candidates.

The Pirates' running game was sharp yesterday. The regulars beat a third unit employing East Tennessee defense into the ground. Halfbacks Erno Bado, Gary Matlocks, Bobby Perry and Bobby Gay ate up big chunks of yardage.

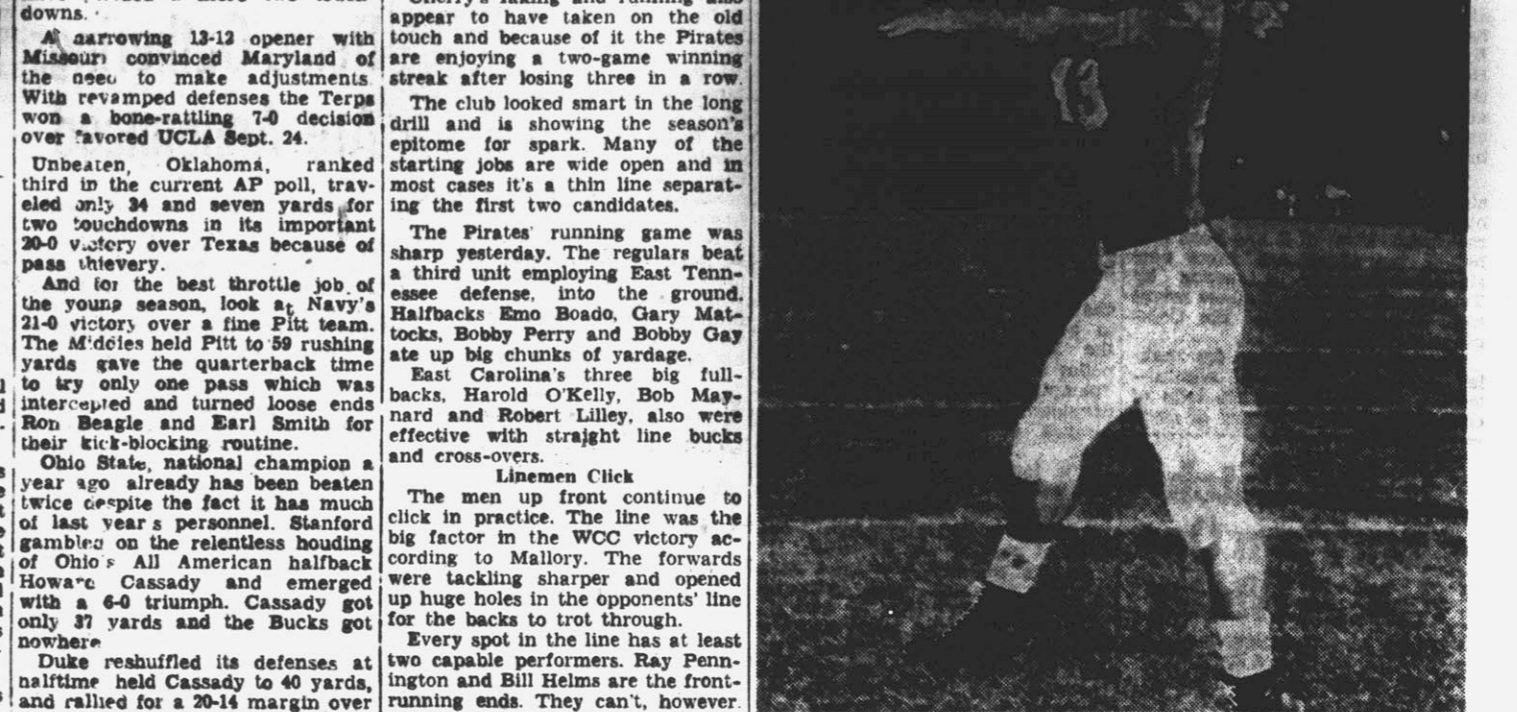

East Carolina's three big fullbacks, Harold O'Kelly, Bob Maynard and Robert Lilley, also were effective with straight line bucks and cross-overs.

Linemen Click

The men up front continue to click in practice. The line was the big factor in the WOC victory according to Mallory. The forwards were tackling sharper and opened up huge holes in the opponents' line for the backs to trot through.

Every spot in the line has at least two capable performers. Ray Pennington and Bill Helms are the front-running ends. They can't, however, afford to let up a minute with J. D. Bradford and Tommy Jones working behind them.

Former Greenville Resident Is Seeking Legislative Seat

A former Greenville resident, the daughter of Mrs. Nannie E. Evans who lives at 707 East Fourth Street is a candidate for the Kentucky State Legislature this year.

Mrs. Earl W. Roles of Louisville, Ky., formerly Nannie Evans of Greenville, is seeking office for the first time in the state House of Representatives. She is a Republican.

Mrs. Roles, married to a surgeon and the mother of three children, is a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College where she majored in education and minored in history. While working for her state college, and teaching, she won a scholarship from the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs to the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts where she studied painting, which is still one of her main interests.

Following the art study in New York she received a four-year teaching fellowship at Columbia University, and spent a year abroad supervising Columbia students. While in Europe she attended the London School of Economics, sitting in on lectures by Harold J. Laski.

While teaching in New Jersey she met and married Dr. Roles, a native of Philadelphia. They moved to Louisville in 1945.

Mrs. Roles says she never thought of running for office until she was approached by the Republican Executive Committee and the nominating committee for Louisville and Jefferson County. Though new to politics, Mrs. Roles is familiar with working with the public. As wife of a surgeon, she has just gone out of office as president of the auxiliary to the Jefferson County Medical Association, and has just assumed duties as president of the American Association of University Women in Louisville. She is a member of two Republican women's clubs, the Crescent Hill Woman's Club, the League of Women Voters and the P.T.A. She is also a Sunday School teacher at the Crescent Hill Christian Church.

John Wayne Played In Supporting Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — By his own admission, John Wayne was playing a supporting role in a TV drama, "Rookie of the Year," starring Pat Wayne.

No star has ever been happier taking a back seat to a younger actor. Pat, of course, is John's son. Both were appearing in a Screen Directors' Guild Playhouse show, directed by John's long-time mentor and Pat's godfather John Ford.

Between scenes, the proud father declared, "Yes, I certainly hope Pat wants to be an actor, though it's early for him to decide—he's just 16."

"But it would be so easy for him if he does want to act. You should see the fan mail he's getting already. Stacks of it. That's just from having his picture in the fan magazines."

"And acting comes easy to him. Shucks, he had a scene in 'The Searchers' that was a terror. He had to come bursting in and tell me and Ward Bond the whole story. We interrupted him with questions, but he kept on going. Ford let it run and the kid did the scene perfectly."

Besides "The Searchers," which the Waynes just finished, Pat has also appeared in "The Quiet Man," "The Young Mr. Lincoln" and "Mister Roberts." All were Ford pictures. Says the veteran director: "He's a fine boy, he does a wonderful job."

Pat's father agrees. But although he hopes for an acting career for his son, Wayne figures there's no hurry.

Pat was up for the role of Gary Coole's son in William Wyler's "Friendly Persuasion," he said. "It was a fine role, but I didn't want him to take it. He would have had to miss the football season at Loyola High, as he did last year."

I think it's more important for him to play ball if he's going to be an actor. It's important for him to learn athletics. By playing a good American game like football, he'll learn how to move, how to get along with other men."

"Pat's in no hurry. I don't want him to be a child actor. And a man can't really get ahead in this business until he's 30."

Nepotism In About Half Of U. S. Business Firms

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—Many a businessman has looked forward to the day when he could add "a son" to the firm's name. And many a corporation executive has looked around in his organization for a job with sufficient prestige for his son-in-law.

It is that as good for the business as it is for the relative? Placing relatives in responsible jobs with first regard for their kinship rather than for their merit or qualification goes by the name of nepotism. It's been around a long time, in politics and business, and the name originated in church practices of an earlier day.

In a family-owned business it's the family's own affair-how nepotism works out. The "a son" can be a family indulgence. Quite often the son does a good job, sometimes better than Dad did.

In a publicly owned corporation, nepotism is the concern of the many stockholders, as well as others in the management. Curious as to how much nepotism there is in business in this country, the American Institute of Management, a nonprofit foundation, studied the directorates and executive rosters of 28,000 companies. It found nepotism in about 12,000. It is interesting that many such corporations are excellently managed, the Institute nevertheless pointed out that "chronic nepotism has caused the failure of many enterprises and companies, stunted the growth of many others, delayed and hampered still others."

Trouble can arise within the corporation, the Institute holds, because the choice of relatives for top positions more or less defeats any program of executive development. Also it breeds jealousy. Other executives see little chance for advancement. Sometimes it leads to struggles for control.

There is the steep federal and state inheritance tax. This often keeps the chief owner of a large company from passing control to his children, or leaving them as much as an estate in other forms as he would like.

He tries to see that they inherit top positions, even if the tax collector gets most of the proceeds of the stock holdings.

Advises Checking Loan Prices

RALEIGH (AP)—Before selling their cotton, North Carolina farmers should check the value of each bale against government loan prices.

This advice was offered yesterday by State Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine, who said he was concerned over reports that Tar Heel farmers are selling cotton below support prices.

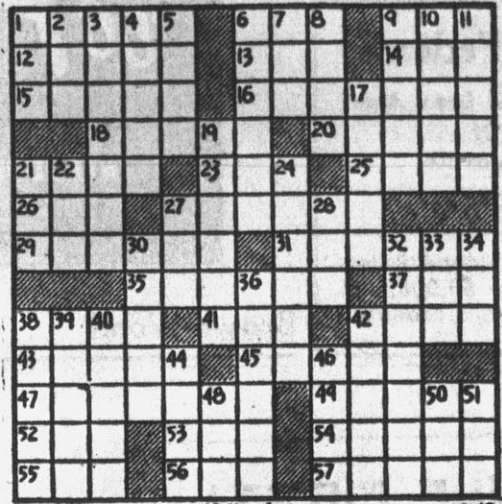

He advised growers to have their cotton graded at the government's free classing office in Raleigh. He said he had been informed that many farmers have been selling a cent or two under support levels "and that some have sacrificed their cotton at prices as much as four or five cents a pound less than the loan rates." He pointed out this means losses of $5 to $25 a bale.

Hare Today, Gone Tomorrow

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The time is coming when you won't find hide nor hare of the San Juan rabbit in the U.S.A.

Pennsylvania has just joined the list of states banning the importation of Peter Rabbit's big cousin Pedro because of his bad habits and a fatal weakness.

The San Juan rabbit not only is hard on the farmer's crops but his nocturnal digging encourages erosion. And worst of all, like European rabbits he's subject to myxomatosis, the dread virus that has virtually cleared western Europe of hares.

Five Generations Before The Bar

FINCASLE, Va. (AP)—John James Allen has on his office wall the law certificates of his great-great-grandfather his great-great-grandfather, his father and himself. The oldest was made out in 1790 and the second in 1818. His great-grandfather's is especially interesting—he was president of the Virginia Supreme Court (1851-1865) and a Congressman. Grandfather got his certificate in 1854. Father was the only one not named John James Allen. He was William Ross Allen, licensed to practice in 1892. The present John James Allen got his certificate in 1922.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN
Lois was still at Albert's and Bessie's cottage when Dr. Thomas arrived in the interval Jane had talked in a low tone to Clyde. The doctor looked around, his brows shooting up when he saw the first Mrs. Brindle.

"Well, Jane, good to see you. I heard you had come back. Planning to stay long?"

"Just a visit," she said.
He studied Clyde, a puzzled, speculative frown between his brows and shot a sharp glance at Lois. Stirring things up, his expression said clearly. He was beaming when Bessie opened the bedroom door and came out.

"Well Bessie, what's the trouble here? Tell Doc all about it."
Bessie's face was ravaged. "Albert, is in a state of collapse. His heart is racing and he's an awful color like death. I can't understand it when he just lies there. What tires him so? And he keeps his door shut as though—as though we were to blame for what happened."

"Anything special upset him?"
"He was talking to Mr. Fleming when—"

The doctor turned to Lois and seemed about to speak. Then he picked up his bag went into the bedroom and closed the door. After a few moments he opened it again.

"Need someone to give me a hand," he said and Clyde followed him into the bedroom. Almost immediately the boy came out.

"What was it?" his mother asked.

"I don't know. Dad—didn't want me around."

The color drained out of Bessie's face. Awkwardly she put her hand on his arm. "He's just sick, Clyde. Sick people are apt to get fancies."

He summoned up a smile that did not succeed in concealing his hurt. "Let's face it. Dad doesn't seem to like me very much."

Something broke in Bessie's face. "He does too like you," she said fiercely. "Anyone would like you. There's not a kinder, more considerate, sweeter—tempered boy—"

Clyde patted her head. "All right Mom, skip it. If I can't do anything here— he went out of the cottage, shoulders bent, a big, ungainly, slouching figure stamped with defeat.

"It's not fair," Bessie cried "for Roger always to come ahead of Clyde. It's enough to make the boy bitter and—"

Jane dropped into a chair and lighted a cigaret. "You know, Bessie, there are times when I grow weary of having Roger blamed for everything that goes wrong. After all, Clyde owes him a great deal."

Bessie looked at her, opened her lips, did not speak. She smoothed down her apron with fingers that shook.

"And you've got a lot to answer for yourself, Bessie," Jane went on. "If Albert put Roger first, you've put Albert first. If any boy ever had to be satisfied with left-overs it's Clyde. And he is like his father in a lot of ways. You might think of that. Enormously like him."

Bessie's lips quivered and she pressed them hard together. For the first time Jane's face revealed neither compassion nor tolerance and Bessie seemed visibly to cower, shrinking from the woman who had been her lifelong friend.

Jane added abruptly "Do you love the boy?"

Lois was paralyzed with embarrassment. This was the second time within an hour she had become involved in an intimate scene.

"Yes," Bessie said, choking. "Oh, yes! I guess I have kind of neglected him; I guess I have a lot of arrears of love to make up to him, but I do love him, Jane."

"Then, why not let him know it before it's too late," Jane said fiercely.

Dr. Thomas came out of the bedroom. "I've given Albert a hypodermic. He's asleep for awhile. But don't let anything get him excited again." He spoke to Bessie but his eyes were on Lois. He shifted them to Jane. "And don't you make another attempt to see him, Jane. Doc's orders. I don't know what you are up to but ever since you reached Stoweville there's been gossip. You're trying your best to blacken the name of the finest man God ever made and I'm not going to let you do it."

Again Lois was conscious of the strong core of serenity in Jane's nature. Her strong hands were clasped loosely in her lap. Her big mouth had lost its lines of humor.

"I came to Stoweville," she said quietly, "to find the answer to a question I won't be driven out until I find it."

"And what's the question?"
"Who turned on the gas heater in Roger's cottage the night he died?"

"Roger," Doc said distinctly, "died of a heart attack in his own bedroom."

"Nothing of the sort," Jane said briskly almost impersonally. "I know where he died and how. And I'm in this to the end. I'll fight if I have to."

There was no mistaking her intentions. Doc Thomas studied her, thinking hard. Then he flung out his arms in a gesture of surrender.

"I don't know why you are doing this, Jane; why you couldn't let Roger rest in peace. But if you've got to know the truth, I'll tell you I've tried my best to protect his reputation. But if you want to smear him, I suppose you won't be satisfied until you succeed. Roger did it himself."

"I thought that plagued Lois as she walked along the path concerned her own responsibility in the matter. Had Roger Brindle taken his own life, as Dr. Thomas declared, or had he been murdered, as Shanny Stowe believed?"

It was murder she had the responsibility of any decent citizen. She couldn't sidestep it. If you believed in anything at all, you had to believe that a killer must be stopped.

But why would anyone want to kill Roger Brindle, America's best loved man; the man who according to everyone, devoted his energies to trying to give people what they wanted. It was not for profit. No one gained financially; even his wife had been left almost without resources; and the people whom he had sheltered, as a stalwart tree shelters plants and vines, were left destitute. In a very real sense everyone had lost by his death.

The crime itself was fiendishly clever because of its very simplicity. No clue. No weapon. A gas fireplace turned on. But why hadn't Roger noticed the odor of escaping gas? Even Doc Thomas could hardly have covered up a head injury if Roger had been knocked unconscious before the murder.

Lois shut her eyes to help her concentrate. Two nights before Roger's death an attempt had been made to shoot him. And no one had made any reference to the bull's-horn through the window-pane. A fantastic conspiracy of silence—Two nights later someone had tried again. And succeeded.

Not an impulsive crime, not the result of a moment of emotional storm. A patient business.

No one whom Lois could put a finger on could possibly have killed Roger.

Perhaps Dr. Thomas was right and Roger had killed himself. Certainly there was the internal evidence of his column, of his fatigue of his loss of faith in his world; there was Jane's evidence of his depression, his secret drinking.

But someone had shot at him two nights before, shot at him with Shanny's missing gun. That was evidence that could not be argued away. Evidence of intention to kill.

Snake Set Fire To Field Stump

SANFORD, N. C. (U)—A snake short-circuited an electric fence and set fire to a stump on the farm of J. M. Coggins.
Coggins said he noticed a column of smoke rising from one of his woodlots. He found that a stump had caught fire where a black snake had made a circuit between it and the fence. The snake was burned to a crisp.

gives you more miles per gallon...more miles per quart

Gulf No-Nox burns clean. Here's proof: Note the black deposit on plate at left, caused by the "dirty-burning tail-end" of gasoline—the part which Gulf refines out in making new NO-NOX. But see how clean new NO-NOX leaves the plate at right. Now—in your own car, see how new NO-NOX can give you more miles per gallon in the kind of short-trip, stop-and-go driving you do most.

Gulfpride Select works clean. Here's why: Most conventional oils are refined only to the stage shown in A. But New Gulfpride Select is further refined by the Alchlor Process—removing up to 15% more of the carbon-formers, in B...C contains the new super-refined oil that gives you more miles per quart because it has natural viscosity (body)—contains no artificial thickeners that break down in service.

Together they give you thousands of extra miles of new-car performance...new-engine economy

Gulf now brings you not just a gasoline... not just an oil... but a great new gasoline and a great new motor oil which, working together, boost each other's efficiency.
This new Gas-Oil Team will help your car retain all the horsepower you paid for— help you enjoy thousands of extra miles of new-car performance.

City Officials Appear Before Local Forum To Discuss Municipal Govm't

City Manager James S. Hughes, City Councilman S. Eugene West and Utilities Superintendent Leonard P. Bloxam appeared on a panel at a public forum on city government sponsored last night by the local Provisional League of Women Voters in cooperation with the Greenville Unitarian Fellowship.

Approximately 25 local citizens were present for the session, held in the City Council room in City Hall. Mrs. Bill Sermons served as moderator for the panel.

The city manager outlined the manager-council form of government, giving its history and its operation. He stated that this plan is "an attempt to resolve the conflict between democracy and efficiency."

Hughes asserted that today many cities are suffering from economies which are not well thought out, and it is the responsibility of the city manager to recognize and bring to the attention of the council any old plans and laws that should be removed from the books. The city manager pointed out that he cannot assume responsibility that rests with the city council, but he can point out to the council goals to be strived for.

HUGHES

West speaks for Council

Councilman West stated that the City Council is like a board of directors, and it proposes to have a successful city operation, saying all the money it can for the city and taxpayers. He pointed out the recent action of establishment of subdivision regulations, "requiring the property owners to comply with regulations that will save the city a great deal of money."

He noted that one of the most important problems that confront the council is the adoption of the annual budget. He explained that the city manager makes out the proposed budget which must then be approved by the council.

Utilities Superintendent Bloxam said that "Greenville should feel proud of its Utilities Commission, as it ranks third, east of the Mississippi, among municipally operated utilities." He explained the organization, function and operation of the commission, adding that through the years the commission has employed consulting engineers to make studies of the system and laying out of production, cost of operation and determining beneficial changes. He noted that it is

'Credits' Talked By Association

Members of the Greenville Service Station Association discussed at length "Credits" at their regular meeting last night at the Silo Restaurant.

Ed Hicks gave a report on the western divisional meeting of the North Carolina Service Station Association which he recently attended in Charlotte. It was announced that an eastern divisional meeting will be held in Raleigh October 25 and several members of the local association have indicated they plan to attend.

The next meeting of the group will be held November 23.

Grifton Student Is Council Head

Earl Hughes of Grifton has been elected president of the Pan-Hellenic Council at Atlantic Christian College, it was announced by the college today.

Purpose of the council is to serve as a governing board and to foster good will among the Greek letter organizations on the campus. Membership on the council is made up of the president and one representative from all sororities and fraternities.

Few Violators Of Hunting Laws

The season for hunting squirrel opened last Friday with many hunters in the woods and there are evidences of a plentiful supply of the rodents in Pitt County.

Pitt County Game and Fish Protector J. O. Teel said that out of 35 hunters checked on opening day, only two wildlife law violators were apprehended. Checking 25 hunters the next day, the officers said they caught only one violator. The offenders were found guilty in magistrates' courts of hunting without a license or with an improper license.

Magistrate Frank E. Brooks found J. D. Williams, Rt. 1 Greenville, guilty of hunting without a license and taxed him with court costs, $5.00.

Magistrate Luther Moore found James Perkins, Negro, Route 1 Grimesland, guilty of hunting without a license and taxed him with $9.50 court costs. The magistrate taxed Leander Banks, Negro, Washington, guilty of hunting with improper license, with $9.50 court costs.

Officers Elected By Pitt Realtors At Tuesday Meet

D. G. Nichols was elected president of the Pitt County Board of Realtors meeting Tuesday night. Jack Wallace was named vice president, and Frank Dall re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Jack Wallace and Sam Nelson reported on the state convention held in Pinehurst from October 6 through October 9, and presented a trophy given the Pitt Board by the N. C. Association of Real Estate Boards for having the largest percentage of increase in new members for the past year.

Other business taken up at the meeting was a decision to campaign for new members; a regular monthly dinner meeting will be held on the third Tuesday of each month.

New members attending the Tuesday meeting were J. B. Smith and John D. Orier.

Many Charges Face Local Man

A local man is lodged in Pitt County Jail under $13,500 bond after a hearing before Judge George Fountain of Tarboro yesterday.

Avery Lee Haddock was placed under the bond after the hearing on charges of burglary, intent to assault, peeping tom and damage to property. He was arrested by sheriff's deputies in Norfolk, Va.

The warrants charging the acts, which were alleged to have taken place on September 4, were signed by his wife, Mrs. Onnie Haddock, whose address is given as 208 N. Library St.

Hal Boyle . . .

commercial. But he made one mistake. He let the boy stay up after bedtime one evening listening to some later programs which have commercials carrying different messages.

Three days later when the minister called at the home he heard the little tyke galloping around the living room cheerfully belting out:

"Zilch's is the beer for me, boys, Zilch's is the beer for me."

Despite such occasional embarrassing mishaps, a gadget to turn out commercials isn't the TV industry's major needed invention.

What is needed is a gadget that will pay no attention to commercials but instead seek out a flash on good programs.

Television has numbed more faster than any other form of free entertainment ever offered the public, not excepting bundling and trial marriage.

It is still afflicted by many forms of blige, including too many cash-and-carry quiz shows to which the contestants come poor as church mice and leave rich enough to endow a cathedral although none has done that with his winnings as yet.

But anyone who still brags, "I never look at television - it's a complete waste of time," only shows ignorance. He is like a man who refuses to have electric lights in his home because he has heard electric lights are used to illuminate shooting galleries or gambling dens.

The truth is that television is growing up faster than many of its viewers. It has an increasing wealth of worthwhile things to watch.

Just this week Jose Ferrer and a fine cast put on a memorable performance of "Cyrano de Bergerac," a romantic French drama that has broken every love-sick college boy's heart for half a century. It was good theater, it was well-advised, and millions saw it. But others are still complaining, "I didn't know it was going to be put on."

Just last month there was a surprise "sleeper" drama, "A Wild From the South," a splendidly done Irish play by James Costigan, starring Julie Harris. It was as good as anything seen on Broadway in an average season. But millions who would have enjoyed it missed it because they either didn't know it was being put on or had no way of knowing in advance it was top quality.

A program-scanner gadget would end such disappointment. It would filter out the trash and when it found something really good light up, ring a bell or cry out: "Don't miss this!"

That's the kind of gadget serious TV viewers say they need most today.

Tally Incomplete

Final results in the Agricultural Stabilization Committee elections held in Pitt County yesterday had not been completely tabulated this morning, ABC secretary James Meredith said.

Final results of the balloting, in which farmers elected three men from a list of 18 candidates from each community to serve as committeemen, should be ready for release tomorrow, Meredith said.

Cases Heard In County Court

Douglas Filmore, 30-year-old Negro of 1314 Clark Street, was fined $100 and lost his driver's license yesterday in County Court upon conviction of driving drunk and careless and reckless driving. He filed an appeal to Superior Court.

In other cases, Charlie Thomas, 30, Negro, of Bethel, paid $20 and costs for possession of non-tax paid whiskey. Paul Frank, 38, Negro, of Route 1, Robersonville was fined $100 and costs for driving drunk and no operator's license.

Clyde Willis, 37, Negro, of Route 2, received 90 days on the roads for a second offense of driving after his license had been revoked. Larry Ross, 17, Negro, paid $25, costs deducted, for carrying a concealed weapon, to wit, a straight razor.

William Curtis Whitehurst, 20, of Route 5, paid $25 and costs for no operator's license. James Arthur Brown paid costs for assault with a deadly weapon. Tommie Thigpen, 40, Negro, of Stokes, paid $100 and costs and lost his license for 12 months for driving drunk and speeding 65 miles per hour.

Irvin Ross, 36, Negro, of Route 1, Bethel, paid costs and $130 to prosecuting witness for assault with a deadly weapon. The cases of David McDuffy, charged with assault on a female and assault, were continued.
