

Election Results Heavily Favor Merger Of System

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

City and county employees, with the exception of ABC employees, voted overwhelmingly in favor of the merger of their present state retirement system with social security.

The eleven city employees eligible to vote in the referendum all voted for the change and Utilities workers, who voted in a separate referendum, approved the change with 80 voting for it and 25 against.

Forty-seven county employees voted for the merger with four voting against. One did not vote.

However, the 16 ABC employees disapproved the measure with five voting for the merger and 11 against. Thus the ABC employees will continue to come under the state retirement system alone while other county employees will be included under the new merged system. The ABC group was voting as a separate unit.

In Farmville, the new system also received the overwhelming approval of the town's employees. Out of 27 eligible voters, 23 were for the new system. Three voted against it and one did not vote.

Elections were not held in Ayden, Grifton and Bethel.

State employees assigned to Pitt County voted at their individual offices in the referendum. In order for state workers to come under the system it must be approved on a state-wide basis.

Teachers are also voting on a state-wide basis. Wire reports today indicated that both state employees and teachers would approve the merged systems by a wide majority.

In the Greenville city schools 138 employees were eligible to vote in the referendum. Of those 137 voted for the new system and one failed to vote.

The new system will cost employees no more than they pay at present. The five per cent of their salaries which they pay into the state retirement fund now will be split with

Formula On Germany And To Insure Peace Is Big Goal Big Four Open Historic Meeting

GENEVA (AP)—Russia and the Western powers opened another historic, and not too hopeful, conference here today to see whether they can agree upon a formula for unifying Germany and securing permanent peace in Europe.

Foreign ministers of the big four nations settled down to work in the council room of the palace of nations at 4:15 p.m.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan of Britain and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay had agreed beforehand to press Russia's V. M. Molotov to accept German unity on Western terms.

They were prepared to confront the Soviet diplomatic chief with a two-part program, offering to guarantee Russia against German aggression in future if Russia will agree to merge East and West Germany through nationwide free elections. The Western ministers are convinced a free German vote would be overwhelmingly anti-Communist.

Barring a reversal of established Soviet policy, Molotov was expected to insist that before Germany can be unified new conditions must be created in Europe by abolishing the North Atlantic Alliance and building up a new European wide security system.

But looming before the foreign ministers—although not taken into account in preconference planning—was the fear that Middle East tensions would flare into full-scale shooting war.

New frontier clashes between Israel and Egypt have heightened these fears as did recent shipments of Communist arms to Egypt from Czechoslovakia.

Officials in Washington today described the Middle East as the most critical theater in the cold war. State Department spokesmen said they had new information that Soviet bloc sources have made several approaches to Israel to supply arms to Israeli forces.

Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay were expected to protest to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov about the arms being sent to Egypt since they deem the Russian government responsible.

Israeli Premier Moshe Sharett headed here from Paris to make his own protest to Molotov and to press for Western arms and protection for Israel. He conferred in Paris yesterday with Dulles and Macmillan.

These two and Pinay were reported to have decided against rushing arms to Israel or formally guaranteeing its security at this time. They evidently hoped to redress the situation by other means.

The Western ministers have arranged to confer regularly among themselves in order to maintain the solid front they consider their greatest single source of strength in dealing with the Russians.

The four ministers are meeting in the Council Room of the Palace of Nations where the Big Four annual of government laid out general objectives at a summit conference three months ago.

It was that gathering of government heads which developed particularly between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Bulganin, the cordial relations and de-clarations for peace which have come to be known the world over as the "spirit of Geneva."

Now Dulles, Macmillan, Pinay and Molotov are putting that spirit to the hard test of turning generalities into concrete accomplishments.

At the outset was the possibility of dispute on what to take up first. The heads of government assigned as the first topic "European security and Germany."

Originally the City Council spokesman Leonid Ilyich told a press conference last night European security is the "basic question." It was understood Molotov wanted to take that up first.

The Western ministers, on the other hand, decided that unification of Germany is the basic question. They were prepared to argue that until Germany is reunited there can be no real security in Europe.

Some Western diplomats thought, however, that the more cordial spirit of East-West relations to the extent that he would not make

Heart Stopped For 20 Minutes

SMITHFIELD, N. C. (AP)—A young woman's heart for 20 minutes after it stopped beating has related the dramatic account of how she came back to life and is expected to recover.

Dr. Wayne H. Stockdale said yesterday Mrs. Marjorie Barbour Raynor, 30, of Four Oaks, a community near here is "completely rational and can expect a complete and normal recovery if no complications develop."

He described the case "a miracle of the Master's work upstairs."

Mrs. Raynor was in critical condition when brought to Johnston Memorial Hospital here last Friday after being injured in a three-car wreck. She had suffered contusion of the heart and other internal injuries.

Dr. Stockdale quickly began an operation. He made an incision of the abdomen to reach the heart and other vital organs.

Before the incision was completed, however, the heart had stopped beating, he said.

Fog Lingers

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Drizzly gray palls of smoke and fog hung over the eastern outskirts here for the second straight day today, obscuring hundreds of motorists and a reported 16 million dollars in several armored cars.

Yesterday's choking smog caused widespread asthma attacks which caused two deaths and sent 350 other persons to hospitals for treatment.

Charly Hospital which treated most of yesterday's asthma victims, said these seeking relief dropped off to a handful today.

Thick patches of the dark mist clouded the stretch from the Lake Pontchartrain bridge to the junction of Highways 11 and 90.

Coughing police patrols on foot guided motorists away from the fringes of the smog or stopped them before they entered the most blighted sections.

One truck driver was ordered arrested when he ignored police orders to stop and roared past a patrol car.

Acheson Asserts Foreign Policy Poorly Handled

NEW YORK (AP)—Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson has asserted from a long self-imposed political silence to his party superior to the Republicans in foreign policy leadership. He blasted GOP Secretary of State Dulles.

Acheson declared that Dulles has displayed "almost a classic illustration of the way a leader among free nations should not proceed."

Acheson's attack came almost simultaneously with a warning from another former Democratic secretary of state, James P. Byrnes, that the time has come to halt political attacks on the nation's diplomats. The views of both were set forth in magazine articles Acheson writing in Harper's and Byrnes in Collier's.

Said Byrnes: "If the men and women of our diplomatic establishment continue to be the objects of political attacks, of ridicule, neglect and mismanagement, if public confidence is not reinvigorated in the quality and dedication of their service, the result could be national disaster."

Acheson wrote that the Democratic party has "shown the superior capacity" to lead the country to "intelligent, vigorous foreign policy."

Acheson, secretary under former President Truman, lauded Truman in praising the record of Democratic leadership in foreign policy after World War II.

"The sweep coherence and energy of all that was done is hard to grasp from a mere catalogue of measures," he said. "It lies, I think, in the boldness and imagination, the creativity of the thinking, perhaps most of all in the sustained will which those in charge maintained and communicated to the country."

"This stemmed straight from President Truman himself."

Attorney General's Office Submits Opinion Annexation Plan Is Apparently Legal

Annexation of Lakewood Pines by taking into the city limits a narrow strip of land along Evans St. Extended would apparently be legal, a letter from the attorney general's office indicates.

The letter, addressed to City Attorney R. B. Lee and signed by Assistant Attorney General T. W. Bruton, was released today by Mayor W. L. Whedbee.

The mayor had earlier asked the city attorney to request an opinion from the state attorney general's office concerning the legality of the move.

Representatives of the area appeared before the council at their last monthly meeting concerning the annexation but the matter was deferred until an opinion was received from the attorney general's office.

Councilmen discussed holding a special meeting to consider the Lakewood Pines request for annexation when the attorney general's opinion was received but so far no such meeting has been called.

Originally the City Council told the area representatives to work out the water and sewer installations with the Utilities Commission in order that the area might comply with the subdivision ordinance.

Utilities Commission members told the group that it could do nothing until the area is annexed. However, if it is annexed, they told the group, the utilities would run water lines into the area.

Five GHS Students In Merit Scholarship Test

Five Greenville High School students are participating in the National Merit Scholarship Contest program which got underway yesterday in 10,000 American high schools.

The students competing with more than 50,000 youngsters over the country for one of 350 four-year college scholarships to be awarded the country's most promising seniors are Linda Whitchard, Susie Pope, Lella Davenport, Betsy Karsnak and Pete Eaton.

The first of two examinations was given yesterday, and was administered locally by Ward James, Greenville High School English instructor. The 4,000 seniors in the nation who survive this first test will be eligible for a second examination January 14, 1956. Top scorers on the January test will be screened by a board to pick the scholarship winners, who will receive from $100 to $2,000 a year to attend any college of their choice.

All candidates are taking the same two tests, designed to show their ability to take advantage of advanced education. All tests are being sent back to the Chicago testing center where they will be machine-graded.

The students competing were picked by their local principals as the most promising five per cent of each senior class. At Greenville High School, James commented, "I feel we stand a very good chance of going right to the top."

Ex-Postmaster Found Innocent

John S. Chapman, former Grifton postmaster, yesterday was found not guilty of charges of violating the postal laws.

The five counts were tried before Federal Judge Don Gilliam in Washington, N. C. yesterday afternoon.

In addition, the judge dismissed four other counts charging the former postmaster with signing and mailing false reports to the post office and a capital addition in Gastonia all in North Carolina.

Sens Scott and Ervin of North Carolina announced yesterday the Public Health Service approved the appropriations. Costs for the project are $100,000. In addition to the Gaston Memorial Hospital at Gastonia; $50,000 for the Arson County Public Health Center at Wadesboro; and $33,350 for the Hoke County Center at Raeford.

More Sites Are Offered College

SNOW HILL—Two additional sites in Greene County have been made available without cost, to the trustees of the new Presbyterian college for Eastern North Carolina.

The sites, consisting of approximately 100 acres each, are along the U. S. Highway 258 bypass south of Snow Hill. One is being offered by the J. C. Exum family and the other by J. Exum and Co.

Announcement of the offers was made by George W. Edwards Wednesday night at the initial meeting of campaign workers who will canvass the county for pledges for the Greene County Educational Foundation, Inc. The Foundation has been established as a means of assuring continuing support for the new college if it is located in Greene County.

H. Maynard Hicks, Finance Committee chairman, said his group was encouraged by several large pledges which were made at the kickoff meeting and expressed confidence that the people of Greene County would make the pledge-card campaign successful.

Faure Demands Third, Riskier Confidence Vote

PARIS (AP)—Premier Edgar Faure, recent victor in two crucial tests at the National Assembly, today demanded a third and even riskier vote of confidence.

The result could throw him and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay out of office at the very start of the Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Geneva.

Backed into a corner by defeat on two procedural questions, Faure shut off further debate until tomorrow by demanding a vote of confidence. Until the vote tomorrow, the Premier, a master of political maneuvering, had an opportunity to cast about for additional support.

Had a decisive vote been taken this morning, he probably would have been beaten.

The point that the Big Four foreign ministers were starting their meeting in Geneva today seemed to have caused no hesitation among deputies who want to throw the government out.

It was the same way last week when the Premier asked for a vote of confidence on Algerian policy. He won that one easily 308-274 after the deputies had a weekend for reflection, though on a preliminary procedural question they had defeated him 305-274.

Faure asked for a vote of confidence this time after the deputies voted 289-286 to take up a Socialist resolution refusing their confidence.

Earlier, the Assembly refused 303-275 to give priority to a mild government formula "taking note" of government declarations on its general policies.

Technically, the vote tomorrow will be on this government resolution.

But actually it pits opponents of Faure's plan for a general election in December, at least under present electoral laws, against those in favor.

President Plans State Of The Union Report Works On Annual Message

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower called two aides to his hospital room today for a start on the January State of the Union message outlining his legislative program to Congress.

The recuperating President quite likely won't be back at his White House desk on a real working basis until about the time the annual message goes to the lawmakers.

But associates say he is eager to get the ball rolling on a preliminary draft.

For his first conference looking toward that draft, he called in retired Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, who is in charge of White House liaison with members of Congress, and Kevin McKann his chief speech writer.

They will get his ideas on the legislative program at a brief meeting, then return to Washington to begin actual writing of the message.

Aides said it still is too early to tell whether Eisenhower will be able to deliver the lengthy message in person.

The President's recovery has progressed to a point where he now is doing more and more unassisted walking from his bed to his chair and back again in his room at Fitzsimons Army Hospital.

It wasn't until last night that anyone really close to the President ventured to discuss in public the possibility that he may not be a candidate next year.

Addressing a Republican rally in his home New Jersey county of Somerset, Bernard M. Shanley, Eisenhower's appointment secretary, said the President "will be able to deliver the message."

MM's Divorce From DiMaggio Is Final Today

NEW YORK (AP)—Marilyn Monroe's divorce from Joe DiMaggio became final today.

There was no sign of reconciliation, though the actress and the former baseball player had seen one another at various times since she obtained the California decree.

Columnist Earl Wilson, in the New York Post, quoted the blonde star as saying "marrying him was the farthest thing from my mind."

He said she asked her whether she had seen DiMaggio since he gave a party for her on her 29th birthday June 1.

"No, at least I haven't made any appointments to see him," Wilson quoted her as saying.

"You mean you've run into him accidentally?"

"I'd rather say 'No comment.'"

"If you have anybody you're serious about now."

Marine Pilot Is Killed In Crash

CERRY POINT, N.C. (AP)—A Marine jet pilot, 2nd Lt. Thomas Patrick Riley, was killed in a flaming crash between this Marine air station and Beaufort yesterday.

He was on a training flight in a F4F Cougar jet, the public information office here said. Fisher, on the North River said the plane passed over them in a long glide, trailing fire.

Riley, who was attached to Fighter Squadron 114 of the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing, was the son of Mrs. Anna Rita Riley of Newark, Ohio. His widow, the former Loraine Orschell of Rt. 5, Brookville, Ind. has been living at near-by Havelock.

Optimistic Over Textile Industry

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP)—Charles A. Cannon, president of Cannon Mills, has expressed optimism for the "immediate future" of the cotton textile industry, although asserting his hope that Congress will hike tariffs next year on Japanese textile imports.

Cannon spoke to 1,000 persons last night at the annual banquet here of the Cannon Mills Loyalty Club, made up of employees with the company 25 years or more.

Cannot said "The Japs have been flooding the United States with cotton yarn since Americans helped rebuild the war-devastated Japanese textile industry and lowered tariffs."

Nobel Prize Is Awarded Leftist Iceland Writer

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The 1955 Nobel prize for literature was won today by an Icelandic novelist, Halldor Kiljan Laxness.

A leftist, he is active in the Communist-sponsored international peace movement, which previously awarded him a literary prize. He has called the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "a society of war lunatics."

Laxness, 53, has been a candidate several years for the prize. Apparently the Royal Swedish Academy's year-overcome the dislike of his political leanings that at least some of its members had felt. He will receive $36,720 at the presentation of Nobel awards Dec. 10.

Laxness writes about the everyday life of the 150,000 persons of his native island in the North Atlantic.

Declares Sec. Benson Not Popular In S. C.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson came under fresh fire today as he abandoned plans for a European tour in order to work on farm program recommendations to Congress next week.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC), picturing Benson as unpopular with farmers throughout the country, said he thinks the Eisenhower administration will dismiss Benson as agriculture secretary next week in an effort "to save face" with the farmer.

"I haven't found one farmer in South Carolina who is for Benson," the senator said in an interview. A member of the Senate Agriculture Committee he has long criticized Benson and the administration's flexible price support program for farm goods.

Johnston said that even if it cost five billion dollars a year, it would be better to return to the Democratic-sponsored high price support system than let farmers "go under" as he said is happening to them now.

Benson announced after a White House conference yesterday that he will remain in Washington next month "to direct the continuing preparation of recommendations to Congress designed to strengthen, improve and refine the present agricultural program."

Sen. Benson was understood to have been at the White House at the same time as Benson leading to speculation that Nixon had a hand in Benson's change of plans. Benson had said less than two weeks ago he still expected to go on a European tour next month in an effort to promote U. S. farm exports.

Benson said he will again seek Congress approval of "several administration recommendations not contained in this year's budget" among these the administration's program for low-income farmers and repeal of marketing quota penalties on goods used on the farm where grown.

Also he said, "further study will be given to diverting to soil building, land conservation crop acreage not currently needed for food and fiber."

Israeli Claim 2 Penetrations By Egyptian, Syrian Soldiers

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israeli military spokesmen claimed today that Egyptian and Syrian military units had penetrated Israeli territory in two different demilitarized zones and said one Syrian soldier was believed killed.

The Egyptians were reported to have crossed into the El Ajza-Nizana zone near the Sinai border and entrenched themselves. This position the Israeli spokesman said, is in addition to the one near the El Sabha checkpoint held by the Egyptians for some time. It is about a half mile inside Israeli territory south of Beer-otagah.

Another spokesman earlier said a Syrian military unit entered the demilitarized zone near Dan in northern Galilee and clashed with an Israeli police patrol, then withdrew. He said the Syrians took the body of one man back

New Leadership Of Argentina Facing $178 Million Question

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's new leaders face a 178-million-dollar question—what to do with the huge foundation through which Juan and Eva Peron funneled well-publicized help to the poor.

The semiofficial Eva Peron Foundation, rooted in "Personalism," grew to vast proportions. It is now virtually an institution in this nation.

The provisional government quickly gave the foundation a new name, the National Institute of Official Action, and put it under the direction of a retired vice admiral, Walter Rentzell.

Beyond that, the foundation's future—and it's still the Eva Peron Foundation to thousands—is a question mark.

Mrs. Peron created it in 1945, fed by forced contributions from every worker, the organization flourished. Right now, says Von Rentzell, its assets total 2 1/2 billion pesos ($178,571,428) and it has 18,000 employees.

Argentina's "descamisado" Peron, and one reason was that she doled out millions of pesos through her foundation. Congress gave her power to handle its activities without having to account for income or expenses.

"The agency did not confine itself to helping the destitute who came asking succor. It acquired and began operating hotels, hospitals, grocery stores, and even summer resorts—all ostensibly for the benefit of laboring classes."

It set up nurseries for working mothers. It turned a downtown Buenos Aires building into a swanky furnished home for working girls.

The idea was to offer these services at cut-rate prices to people who otherwise could not afford them. Although millions of pesos poured in by the nation's citizens financed these services, propaganda made it appear the Perons out of the goodness of their hearts were doing all these things for their people.

Every worker had to give two days a year to the foundation. In addition, it received untold millions in contributions from labor unions and business firms. Government taxes on real estate, Mar del Plata's gambling casino also fed its coffers.

After Eva Peron died in 1952, her husband, aided by an eight-member board representing the General Confederation of Labor and the Labor Ministry, took over the agency.

Today Von Rentzell says its traditional activities are going right on—such as helping out in the port town of Ensenada, damaged by fighting in September.

"At the present time we can't talk of the future," the admiral declared.

Salem Methodist Church Is Scene Of Whichard-Hardee Wedding

In a candlelight ceremony Miss Joyce Dare Hardee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hardee of Greenville, N. C., and James Thomas Whichard Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Whichard Sr. of Norfolk, Va. pledged their marriage vows in the Salem Methodist Church in Simpson Sunday, October 23, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon with the Rev. J. J. Grimes, pastor of the church, officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with floor standards of white gladioli and fern, interspersed with wrought iron candelabra with tall cathedral candles. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

Prior to the ceremony Miss Janet Watson of Greenville presented a program of nuptial music, assisted by Miss Becky Reel who sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer" as the benediction.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, William A. Hardee, wore a gown of bridal satin, fashioned along the traditional lines with a fitted bodice and tapering sleeves ending in calla lily points over the hands. The basque bodice of Chantilly lace, designed with off-shoulder neckline of nylon illusion, was fastened in the back with miniature self-covered buttons. The bouffant skirt, worn over noops and erinoline, was of bridal satin with scalloped tiers of Chantilly lace, ending in a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was arranged from a satin bandeau outlined with pearls.

She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid and showered with white mums.

Miss Geraldine Mills of Grimesland, N. C., cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant.

She wore a full length gown of ice blue, styled with a strapless bodice of lace, topped by a stole, and three tiered net skirt over taffeta.

She had matching mitts and headpiece. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations tied with pink satin ribbon.

The bridegroom had as his best man his father, James Thomas Whichard Sr. of Norfolk, Va. Ushers were B. M. Whitehurst of Greenville, cousin of the groom, and Grover Haddock of Grimesland, uncle of the bride.

For the ceremony the bride's mother wore a navy blue silk dress, matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bridegroom's grandmother wore a black crepe dress, matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For her wedding trip the bride changed to a brown flannel suit with a white blouse, brown and white accessories and the orchid lifted from her prayer book.

Floating Shower

Miss Hardee was complimented with floating shower at Eastern Pines Community Building on October 19 by Mrs. James L. Hardee, Mrs. Grover Haddock and Mrs. B. M. Whitehurst Jr.

The clubhouse was decorated with arrangements of early fall flowers. The honoree presented with a lovely corsage of pink carnations.

She received many useful and attractive gifts.

Mints, nuts and cokes were served to the many guests throughout the evening.

Cake Cutting

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carrigan and Mrs. Bert M. Whitehurst Sr. entertained Saturday night at a cake cutting in honor of Miss Joyce Hardee and Mr. James Thomas Whichard Jr. The party was given following the wedding rehearsal at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carrigan.

The table was covered with a linen cloth and centered with a bowl of white gladioli and fern. On one end of the table was placed a three tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. On the other end was the punch bowl. Mrs. William A. Hardee presided at the punch bowl. After the bridal couple cut the first slice of cake, it was served by Mrs. Julius Whichard. Mints and nuts were also served.

Miss Hardee was presented a corsage of white carnations.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
October 27, 1935

The Greenville Public Library will enter on a new phase of its growth November 1. It was just two years ago that the library grew to such an extent that it was found necessary to keep open six days a week instead of three, as had been done for years. The library has grown steadily with Mrs. W. L. Hall as librarian, until it was found necessary to have a full time librarian. The aldermen, knowing the value of the library to the community, voted to increase the town's support of the library sufficiently to enable the committee to employ a whole-time librarian Miss Ora E. Fuller is to be the new librarian and will take charge November 1. Miss Fuller taught in Greenville High School last year. She is a graduate of a Kansas University and has done graduate work in the University of Chicago.

Open House At Umstead Hall

Approximately 750 guests attended Tuesday night an open house entertainment given by students living in Umstead Hall, new dormitory for men on the East Carolina College campus.

Guests were received by Marshall McLamb of Coala, dormitory president, and other officers of the residence hall. Students living in Umstead Hall conducted visitors on tours of the building.

Mr. Ray Martinez, of the college health and physical education department, who serves as dormitory counselor in Umstead, and Mrs. Martinez assisted students in welcoming and entertaining those who called during the evening.

A social hour was arranged for guests in the "Pirates' Den," recreation room in the basement of the building. This area, planned to make dormitory life more pleasant and home-like for students, made an attractive setting for the entertainment.

Umstead Hall, named for the late William B. Umstead, who served as Governor of North Carolina, was completed during the summer months and was opened for student use this fall.

The Tenth District meeting of the North Carolina Garden Club met in Tarboro on Tuesday, October 22.

Mrs. Sam H. Mitchell of Greenville was made director of the Tenth District. Mrs. J. B. Smith, also of Greenville, was made secretary. They were installed by the state president, Mrs. George Little.

Members of the Greenville Garden Club who attended were: Mesdames Rufus Keel, John Carrington, Frank Taylor, H. R. Rogers, Percy Wells, E. W. Cobb, J. B. Smith, H. C. Sugg, J. B. White, and J. H. B. Moore.

The Greenville Garden Club, the Lakewood Pines Garden Club and the Farmville Garden Club will be hostesses to the Tenth District in Greenville next October.

Miss Congleton Gives W.C.T.U. Devotional

On Friday, Oct. 21, Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick was hostess to the W.C.T.U. Her home was decorated with beautiful arrangements of fall flowers.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Kirkpatrick, with an opening hymn, entitled, "Onward Christian Soldiers." Mrs. W. R. Smith led in prayer.

Miss Jennie Congleton gave the devotional. Her scripture text was taken from the 26th chapter of Isaiah. She gave a very inspiring message on "Peace and Harmony." She spoke of "our beautiful garden of flowers, in which each has a place to fill, and will become the heavenly garden. As flowers have to be kept free from weeds and require water, so we require the living water to help us to fill our places in our carly garden of flowers." Mrs. Charles Runley gave an very interesting current events. She stated the National Slogan, "Set a Watchman" (Isaiah 21:26). She said that the duty of each W.C.T.U. member is to be concerned about the social drinking, drug use, and unrest, and to be watchman on the wall to serve at times to combat against these evil. This duty is to be a motive and not mere popularity, the speaker added.

A lovely poem was read by M. Kirkpatrick entitled "I'm At Home With The Lord."

A guest for the evening was M. Mary Moore of Goldsboro.

An invitation is extended to all members of the W.C.T.U. to be present at the roll call meeting at the home of Mrs. J. N. Williams, 422 Fifth Street, in November. The date to be announced later. This is a very important meeting of the year to collect dues for 1935 and 1936.

The meeting was adjourned with the singing of the hymn "Bless Be The Tie," after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

State Officer Makes Visit To Pocahontas

The Great Pocahontas of North Carolina, Mrs. Mildred Davis of Manteo, made her official visit to the local Council on October 25. Seventy members of the Council met at the Woman's Club for an annual banquet in her honor.

Mrs. Bettie Noss as Toastmistress welcomed the members and visitors, and Mrs. Minnie Davis of Elizabeth City gave the response. Special entertainment was given by a quartet, Mr. Ed Conway, Mr. Leslie Gardner, Mr. Harry Keller, and Mr. Thurston Wyrne, singing several selections.

After dinner door prizes were awarded each member present. The grand prizes were won by Mrs. Dora Roseman Mrs. Cassie Sawyer, Mrs. Reatha Dunn, Miss Jean Bright, Mrs. Minnie Davis, Mrs. Mildred Davis, Mrs. Carrie Jones and Mr. Eugene Woolard.

Immediately following the banquet the members assembled in the club room of the Woman's Club for their regular meeting. The meeting came to order with Mrs. Kathleen Russell, Pocahontas presiding, with all officers present. Great Pocahontas, Mrs. Mildred Davis, Past Great Pocahontas, Minnie Davis and Second Great Scout, Mrs. Ethel Parker, were introduced and escorted to honor seats.

Reports were given by the various committees.

Mrs. Mildred Davis gave a most impressive talk on Friendship.

After the meeting several amusing games were conducted by Mrs. Ruth Fox and her committee, and prizes were given.

Refreshments consisting of punch and cookies were served at the close of the evening.

Pactolus Students See Famous Movie

PACTOLUS—Mrs. Jessie B. Little's sixth grade and Miss Alice Sinitary's combination fifth and sixth grade students of Pactolus School attended the showing of the movie, "Ulysses," at the Pitt Theatre in Greenville Wednesday afternoon.

The picture is based on Homer's Odyssey about Ulysses leaving his island home of Ithaca and his later triumphant return to his country and the arms of his wife and recovery of his estate. Manager H. L. Sturm made special arrangements for the attendance of the school groups.

Semi-Cent Book Club Has Sewing Demonstration

Sixteen members of the Semi-Cent Book Club were graciously entertained in the home of Mrs. Frank Strawn Tuesday evening, October 25th, at eight o'clock. Beautiful arrangements of white chrysanthemums adorned the mantel and dining-room table. Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Leslie Garner, Mrs. Joe Brown and Mrs. John Gordon. Mrs. Cliff Taft was welcomed as a new member.

The president, Mrs. Frank Dail, called the meeting to order, and the secretary, Mrs. Norman Little, called the roll and read the minutes of the October 11th meeting. An appeal was made for housing accommodations for members of the all-state orchestra, which will be meeting at East Carolina College in January. In response to a letter from the local Mental Health Association, it was voted to make a donation for the new clinic.

The hostess introduced Mr. E. M. Bass, representative of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, who demonstrated the new Swing Needle Machine and attachments. Several members made attractive designs on the practice material, and the program was enjoyed by all.

Delicious orange sherbet, cupcakes, assorted candies and nuts were served in the dining room, which was decorated in the Halloween motif. Books were distributed by the book chairman, Mrs. Ed Harris, and the meeting adjourned.

Parade Floats To Be Planned At Meet Tonight

A meeting concerning floats for the Christmas Parade, December 2 will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the city courtroom.

In announcing the meeting, Warren Carroll, chairman of the Float Committee, said that representatives from all civic clubs in the city have been invited to attend. The clubs are being asked to sponsor a float pertaining to Santa Claus, the Nativity or other Christmas subjects in the parade.

Urging support of local organizations, Carroll said that "without the support of every civic group, churches and other interested organizations, Greenville will not be a community Christmas city."

New Incentive For Joint Airport Idea

The move for a joint airport for Eastern Carolina towns received a potent shot in the arm this week as the Commerce and Industry committee of the State Department of Conservation and Development offered its support in bringing to reality a joint airport for Greenville, Farmville, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Kinston and Tarboro.

With this tremendous boost, the communities involved should waste no time in seeking to effect an organization through which the joint airport could be made a reality instead of a dream.

Not since the initial effort to farm an Eastern Carolina airport died an untimely death a year ago have prospects for bringing such a dream to fruition been so bright. It has been no secret that Director Ben Douglas of the Department of Conservation and Development was bitterly disappointed when the joint airport for this section fell through. On several occasions in the past year he has made reference to the attempt to establish a joint airport, and encourage the promoters of the idea not to give up hope.

Now through the efforts of Douglas and Dallas Daily, head of the commerce and industry division of the Department of Commerce and Development, the support of the commerce and industry committee of the state organization has been placed behind a new joint airport proposal. It is time that local support for the project within the communities involved in the proposal be brought to the fore.

For several months now informal talks have been going on between representatives of the above-mentioned communities with an eye to undertaking anew the establishment of a joint airport. Although no tangible steps have been taken so far it must be said that important ground work has been laid for undertaking the project.

By now it should be accepted by communities throughout Eastern North Carolina that adequate air transportation for the area cannot be secured if every city and town seeks air service for its own small airport. That approach has been tried for too many years now and has not resulted in anything which approaches good air transportation for the area.

It should also be realized that adequate air transportation for this area is a prerequisite for the kind of industrial development the area as a whole and its individual communities are seeking. Until adequate air transportation within the area is assured, the industrial development will be seriously handicapped.

The only way the area can hope to secure the needed air service is through the establishment of a joint airport supported by a number of cities as is now proposed. It behooves not only the people of Greenville and Farmville, but those of Wilson, Kinston, Goldsboro, Rocky Mount and Tarboro as well to give their full support to this project. The sooner local support for the project is solidified in the individual communities involved, the sooner concrete steps toward the establishment can be undertaken.

'Fringe Benefits' Play Bigger Role

By LYNN NISBET

RETIREMENT — Retirement pay and other "fringe benefits" have become in recent years almost as important as the going salary or wage scale for employees of government and big private industries. Upwards of 50,000 employees of the State of North Carolina, including public school teachers, and several thousand county-municipal workers are voting this week to combine their retirement systems with the Federal system. Tabulation of the ballots has not been completed, but all advance information indicated preponderant majority in favor of the merger.

News reports of the election between representatives of organized labor and management of business enterprises have indicated increased emphasis on fringe benefits, having to do with retirement, health insurance and related subjects, rather than on the hourly or weekly wage scale.

When the State retirement system was inaugurated in 1941 it excluded elective officials and limited state participation to $3,000 annual salary. Subsequent amendments have included elective officials and raised participation to $4,200, in keeping with the Federal OAB scale. The plan for its voluntary retirement at age 60 forced retirement at age 65 except upon formal request of the employee's immediate superior and mandatory retirement at age 70 except by approval of the full board.

That rule applies to all State officials and employees except judges of the Superior and Supreme Courts. Judges pay no part of their retirement costs in cash contributions, and can retire on age and tenure basis or on disability and tenure at varying criteria but in most instances are subject to recall for special duty at emergency judges or judges.

CONGRESSMEN — The new scale of congressional pay, averaging about $20,000 a year net after Federal taxes makes that job much more attractive for full time. It used to be a congressman could spend his time or less in Washington and devote the rest to his private business. Now it is full time work, congress being in session a large part of the year and committee activities going on at other times.

Members of the Congress also participate in retirement benefits to which they contribute. Congressmen can retire at age 62 and draw an amount equal to 2 1/2 per cent of their salary plus number of years in congressional service.

Among North Carolina members of the Congress only Carl Durham and Herbert Bonner have reached retirement age. Durham is 64. Bonner 63. Senators Ervin and Scott are in their 60th year. Reys Barden and Chatham are past 55 and Shuford is just beyond 60. Carlie and Cooley are 58 each. Rep. Dent's age is not given in the Congressional Directory or the State Manual, but he is in the late 50's. Jones is 51. Alexander 43. Fountain 42 and Jones 41.

HAZARDOUS — One congressional secretary remarked that retirement and insurance benefits for congressmen ought to be higher than for other government workers because being a member of congress is about the most hazardous occupation in the Federal category. Senators face pretty well having to face reelection only every six years. Representatives must go to the voters every two years to seek renewal of their permits. Usually after two or three contests the members are not re-elected. That fact the North Carolinians are generally a well-traveled people, not everybody can just pull up stakes for the sake of touring the world.

Servicemen, merchant seaman and airline pilots are the biggest travelers these days, but like everybody else they're glad to finally settle down and "grow roots" in the community of their choice.

POITFOURRI — Hoke Norris, who used to work for the New York Observer and the Associated Press in Raleigh, went on to the editorial sanctum of the Winston-Salem papers, is now covering the nation on political stories for the Chicago Sun-Times. That is the Marshall Field paper and vigorously Republican. Norris has recently been in the Midwest, California and Texas and wonders where next.

There's a coffee-break story about one of the assistant secretaries of a Tarheel congressman. Other Editors Are Saying ... What The Chief Justice Said

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

The name of Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the United States, keeps coming up in connection with the Republican nomination for President in 1956, as a possible successor to Mr. Eisenhower at the GOP convention.

Thus far the most important endorsement of Chief Justice Warren has come from Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, as reported by Joseph A. Stewart. Also, The Alsops say that Mr. Humphrey told a group of Republican party fund raisers in Chicago that he thought the Chief Justice would be the strongest and best choice the Republican party could make.

Among the Secretary of the Treasury, who is so often spoken of as the strongest in the Eisenhower Cabinet, added, according to the Alsops, that "Warren will be hard to get."

The reason Mr. Humphrey said he "thought" that Chief Justice Warren would be hard to get goes back to last April 15. A poll had reported that the Chief Justice was first choice for the Republican nomination if President Eisenhower did not run for a second term.

1. When Earl Warren prepared and issued the following public statement from his office, his name has been used as a possible candidate for the presidency.

"This has been a matter of embarrassment to me because it reflects upon the performance of my duties as Chief Justice of the United States."

"When I accepted that position, I was with the fixed purpose of leaving politics permanently for service on the court. That is still my purpose. It is irrevocable. I will not change it under any circumstances or conditions."

"Be they many or few, the many useful years of my life have been dedicated to the service of the Supreme Court of the United States in which work I am increasingly happy."

It is hard to see how words could be any plainer than these. When a man of Earl Warren's stature and reputation for integrity, as his stand is "irrevocable" and that he will not alter it "under any circumstances or conditions," that is just about as final as a position possibly can be.

For the most part Supreme Court members, after their confirmation, have stayed out of party politics, and our highest bench has been the better for it. When Chief Justice Warren issued his statement so recently, it was a reminder of Gen. Sherman's "I nominated, I will not accept; I elect, I will not serve." He was acting in the traditions of the greatest court in the world.

A Forecast Heard In Kenya

Have you ever watched one of those ships on the horizon off one of the North Carolina beaches and dreamed of visiting far-away places? Places like maybe Trinidad, Kenya, Rotterdam, Belfast or Hawaii?

That yearning strikes most people at least once in a lifetime, usually many times. And despite the fact that North Carolinians are generally a well-traveled people, not everybody can just pull up stakes for the sake of touring the world.

Servicemen, merchant seaman and airline pilots are the biggest travelers these days, but like everybody else they're glad to finally settle down and "grow roots" in the community of their choice.

Notebook On Life

Milton's Difficult Position

By HAL BOYLE

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — How would you feel if you'd loved older brother suddenly were stricken ill, and people began to suggest that maybe you were the man to take over his job eventually?

This is the spot that President Milton Eisenhower of Pennsylvania State University finds himself in today. It is an embarrassing spot, and not at all to his liking.

With President Ike presumed by many to be out of the picture as a candidate next year is at stake, a quiet boom has developed in support of his younger brother for the got the travelling bug out of his system before World War II broke out. He sailed as a crew member on a number of cargo ships for maybe five years and saw a lot of the world in that time. Capt. John Durbin, Port of Spain-Cuba Glasgow Belfast Rotterdam, Hamburg, The Hague and maybe every port on the West Coast.

The U.S. merchant marine wasn't in very good shape then. Not like today, anyway. Charlie was sometimes caught ashore for weeks at a time, looking for a berth, and waterfront conditions didn't always guarantee prompt loadings or unloadings of cargo.

Charlie says he always had wanted to go to Hawaii, but never got around to it.

Of all his stories, the one that stuck best in my mind was an account of a brief stop at Mombasa, on the east coast of Africa.

A German cruise ship was docked there, and Charlie and some others from his ship went out to pay a call on the German sailors. Fortunately, some among them could speak English.

Below-decks the talk somehow veered to politics, and an American seaman made a disparaging remark about Hitler.

"Look," said one German, "we feel about Hitler like you feel about Roosevelt." And later, "We're nothing against America; we only want to be friends. But the British, they're always going to have trouble with them."

That was in May, 1938. You know what happened in September, 1939.

He said his company was leasing 12,000 miles of electronic communications wire connecting offices in 51 cities with a data processing center in Syracuse, N.Y. Each office will feed in financial and production data. An electric brain will instantly transcribe them into facts and figures, of which management can base decisions.

While a number of other national companies have data-reporting systems, none are believed to be as extensive and as fast as this one. The studies show, as this industry grows, the data will be like the day after tomorrow, will be at a distinct disadvantage.

APPAREL ASSOCIATION SEES GOOD 1956 FUTURE — Good business, the first half of 1955, predicted by the National Association of Shirt, Jacket and Sportswear Manufacturers. The prediction, the association says, will not be dimmed by the fact that national wage increase will be in effect in the first half of 1956.

WHOD BUY A SURREY WITHOUT A WHIP SOCKET? — The dealer who told us this doesn't know why it's true, but he says every woman buying an electric stove insists on a whip socket. While women buying gas ranges rarely want them.

Women, he adds, will pay considerably more for a timber on an electric stove but will pass it up when it is only a dollar extra on a gas stove.

And of the women who insist on timers on electric stoves, few ever use them, he believes.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DANGER OF SUCCESS — The dictionary defines success as "obtaining one's desired end, succeeding fully or in accordance with one's desires."

As a dictionary definition this is satisfactory, yet neither the dictionary nor any other book can adequately define success. For success varies with the individual. The Biblical dictum that to whom much is given, much is required, means that the measure of success, or one person is not necessarily the measure of success for another. He who starts high must go higher. The savage who learns how to read and write does well, but the man born with genius must go far beyond that to be successful.

"When I accepted that position, I was with the fixed purpose of leaving politics permanently for service on the court. That is still my purpose. It is irrevocable. I will not change it under any circumstances or conditions."

'Shaking' For Small Businesses

By ELMER ROESSNER

Small business may face a painful shaking-out period. The sound and fury of the shake-out may mean the weak ones may meet the inevitable reckoning sooner than they expect.

Reasons for expecting a shake-out are these:

The cost of borrowed money is rising. Banks are charging 2 per cent on prime business loans, and few small businesses are "prime" risk. The rate a year ago was 1.31 per cent. A small business may have to pay a bank from 4 to 6 per cent or a private lender from 6 to 8 per cent. A small company operating largely on borrowed money would require an unusual mark-up to survive under these conditions.

Defense spending is scheduled to be cut back half a billion dollars a year. Despite Congressional and State efforts, small firms have been given a disproportionately small share of defense contracts but, in event of a cut-back may face a disproportionately large loss.

The decline in farm income is hurting business that sell to farmers and farm communities, and these are largely small firms.

Small business is faring worst under the present squeeze of rising labor and material costs on one hand and of weakening prices of many products on the other. Small firms are finding it necessary to pay labor scales they had to voice in setting. They were agreed to by large companies only because the big corporations had figured out ways of surviving with higher labor costs. Many small firms don't have. Hedging and inventory accumulations can soften rises in prices of materials for companies that can afford those measures.

There is no way of assuring survival of small enterprises. Many are launched every day. Some flourish and become large; others find comfortable niches in which they can lead long and comfortable lives, and still more end in closure or failure.

As if it will always thus look, while the economic conditions will shorten the lives of those not destined to survive.

SULFATES MAY IMPROVE CHICKENS' DIETS

Inorganic sulfur may become a valuable feed additive for poultry, it is indicated by experiments with radioactive tracers conducted by Department of Agriculture scientists. Sulfur in sulfate form, the studies show, can "replace" to some extent, the sulfur in the diet.

The studies show, the sulfate form, the studies show, can "replace" to some extent, the sulfur in the diet. The studies show, the sulfate form, the studies show, can "replace" to some extent, the sulfur in the diet.

These acids are also often lacking in human diet.

ELECTRONIC NETWORK BRANT TO ASSIST IN DECISIONS

Small firms' difficulties in competing with large corporations is again illustrated by testimony before a Congressional committee by Don G. Mitchell, Sylvania president.

He said his company was leasing 12,000 miles of electronic communications wire connecting offices in 51 cities with a data processing center in Syracuse, N.Y. Each office will feed in financial and production data. An electric brain will instantly transcribe them into facts and figures, of which management can base decisions.

Appalled By The Supreme Court's Action

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Legal and security officials at Washington are amazed, "appalled" would not be too strong a term—at the Supreme Court's admission of a pre-Communist bias in the McCarran Internal Security Law in a pending attack on the constitutionality of that statute.

The document, which was signed by 369 "notables," deprecated in caustic language the anti-Communist activities of the Department of Justice in this country, and of Allen W. Dulles, Central Intelligence Agency overseas.

It depicts Communists as more to be pitied and associated with than proscribed. It appeals to the "spirit of Geneva," which Secretary Dulles' opinion, Moscow has violated again and again.

URGENTLY MIXED LIST Signs inside some who have been identified as Communists in won estimates. Some have taken refuge behind the Fifth Amendment when questioned about their Communist causes or movements.

Royal W. France, who first submitted the brief, virtually admitted in testimony before a Senate Committee that he acted mainly as a "honey for Fifth Amendment pleaders." He has represented Teachers' Union members who took this constitutional "out" in answer to queries about their Communist affiliations and activities.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL'S ACTION Although quite a liberal himself, Solicitor-General Simon E. Sobeloff refused the original request that the brief be filed with the Supreme Court. He held that the group's "interest seems too remote, indirect and contingent to justify consent."

For the Supreme Court to overrule the government's top law officer in this way—the Solicitor General is closer to the court than the Attorney General—is unprecedented. It has stirred speculation that Chief Justice Earl Warren's popularity will sag, making him unavailable for the Republican Presidential nomination under any circumstances.

NEW ERA OPENED: The anti-McCarthy brief follows closely the smiling and friendly line pursued by Moscow since the Summit Conferences at Geneva. Here are a few excerpts:

"We believe that a new era opened in international affairs at Geneva, which demands an accurate reappraisal of the role of the United Nations and the present danger found to exist when the Supreme Court upholds the Smith Act" against Communists.

Communism constitutes no threat to the United States. On the contrary, the signers believe that the McCarran Act is "the most terrible threat so far devised to freedom in the United States."

REFDS "MILD RADICALS" Admitting that Communists are mild radicals, the signers argue that "radicals in the past have often been wrong, but they have served a useful purpose, even when wrong in calling attention to evils that demand correction."

Finally, the brief contends that an individual has a constitutional right to belong to an organization "unfriendly" with Communism, and that he has no responsibility to ascertain the ideological views or activities of his associates.

Nor should he be required to withdraw even after he discovers that he is mixed up with Reds. "The signers believe that the nation's security at home and abroad would have been jeopardized to certain Federal Judges. They quote favorably the following editorial comment from the Wall Street Journal, referring to Federal Judges' authorization of jury eavesdropping by the Ford Foundation, the newspaper said:

"For a Foundation can no more disclaim responsibility where legal research funds are used for tampering with the jury system, than a doctor can disclaim responsibility if he uses his funds for research into structural engineering by blowing up some public bridges."

Pictures In Decorating A Home

by Mrs. Lillie Little
Pitt Home Agent

The most beautiful adornment a room can have is a selection of good pictures, well-framed, carefully hung and harmonizing with the other furnishings.

A well-chosen picture may complete a furniture grouping, introduce a pleasing variety of line and color, or attract attention to a center of interest.

Your point of view in judging a picture differs from that of the artist. He evaluates pictures as works of art on the basis of color, form, pattern or composition, and technique. The subject matter is usually secondary to him. As a home decorator, you consider pictures not only as works of art but also as decorative accessories. They must harmonize in spirit and theme with the over-all effect you wish to create. A picture may be a work of art, but unless it fits into your plan, it is not decoratively suitable for your home.

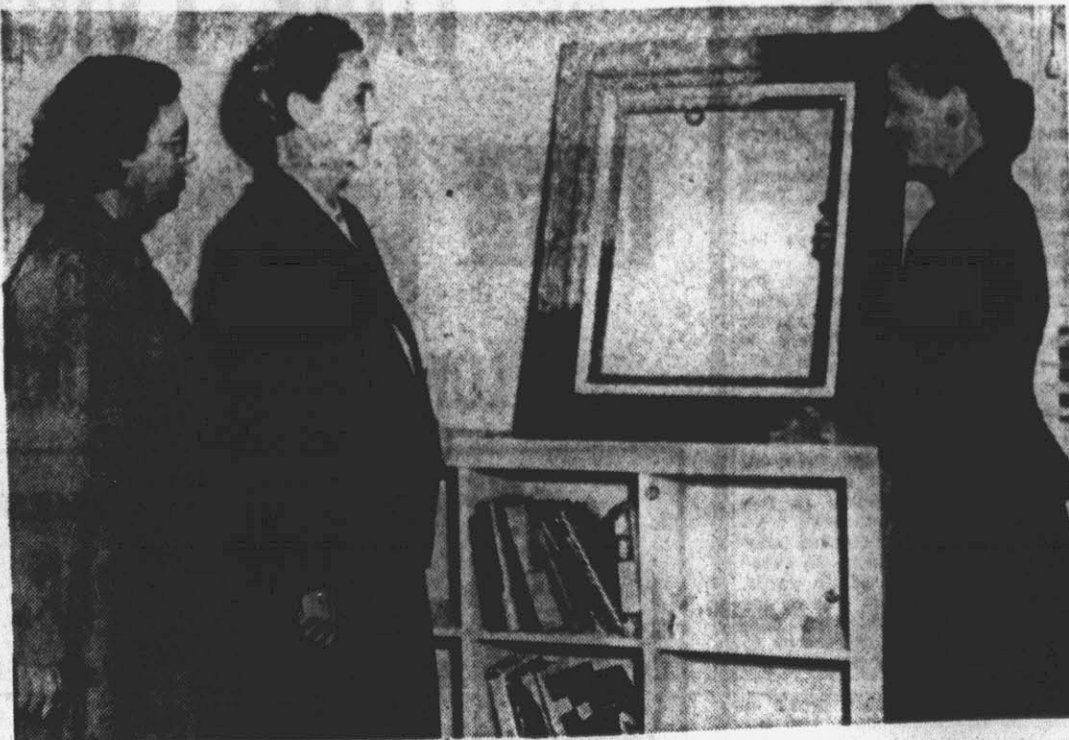

Acquire Good Taste
Good taste in pictures is not natural but may be acquired through careful study of them. If you can visit museums, art galleries and consult good books on pictures and illustrated magazines selection will be easier.

Every home is an individual problem. However, there are certain general points that will help in making wise selections. First of all, pictures must be beautiful. This may be achieved through the artist's use of line, pattern or color. Bare wall spaces are better than poor or tiresome pictures.

Since color is very often one of the most distinctive elements in pictures your selection must fit into your color scheme. In fact quite often you might be wise to plan your entire room around the colors used in a lovely painting. From whichever angle you work, the leading colors of the room are usually repeated in the picture or pictures you choose.

Wall Shape Important
The shape of the wall space will indicate the shape and size of the picture or group of pictures to be used. A tall, narrow wall requires a picture of these proportions, while a horizontal wall space calls for a broad picture or grouping. The lines of the furniture and the room will help determine the desirable lines of the picture. In fact, all three factors—pictures, walls and furniture—should bear a relationship to one another that is pleasing.

The type of room and the people

Selecting and hanging pictures in the home was the subject of this month's demonstration by Pitt Home Agents for the Home Demonstration Club of the county. The agents also told the club women how to refinish old frames. Here Mrs. Lillie Little (right), discusses frame refinishing with two club women, Mrs. Lewis Whitehurst of Sweet Gum Grove, (far left) and Mrs. S. B. Tucker of Red Banks. (Reflector Photo by Edwina Haynes).

using it must also be considered in making your choice. If you intend to create a gay-hearted, buoyant home, a warm, bright-colored picture may keynote the spirit. Landscapes, seascapes, pastarals and scenic photographs may introduce the feeling of quiet and restfulness you wish for your living room, entrance hall or stairway.

Feminine Pictures
Godey prints, floral prints or samplers suit the feminine room, while a masculine room deserves a sporting print, a surging seascape, a winter view or perhaps photographs of dogs and horses. Children's rooms may display historical or narrative pictures. Children particularly like drawings done by themselves or other children. A bulletin board properly placed will allow them to put up pictures that they like.

Family portraits are reappearing on the walls in many homes. They may be used very effectively in some places, especially if arranged in an interesting grouping. An excessive number of pictures of any type should be avoided.

All pictures in your room should hang at a uniform height on a level with the eye, or between five and six feet above the floor. This rule may be modified in hanging a picture over a high mantel or in unifying it with low furniture.

Hang Them Flat, Straight
Pictures and mirrors should hang flat against the wall and should, of course, hang straight. You will find that concealed picture hooks are best for hanging most pictures. If you must hang from picture molding use parallel wires for all but oval shaped pictures and the inverted v-shaped for these.

If two or more pictures of varying size are grouped together over a broad horizontal piece or group, the bottom frames should form a straight line. If your pictures are widely separated, or on different walls and above varying-sized pieces of furniture, then it is best to line up their top borders.

Mirrors and many other wall hangings may be used with highly decorative effect. The standards of good taste involved in selecting and arranging pictures also apply to the selection and use of them. The pictures you use in your home should be judged and selected with care just as clothing, pieces of furniture and other things in the home are selected with much thought and care. According to Miss Pauline Gordon extension specialist in housing and house furnishings at State College, "A picture which has no meaning to you should not be placed upon your walls."

Church Cooperating In Clothing Drive

St. James Methodist Church in Greenville is cooperating in "Pack A Parcel For Peace" for deserving refugees and others across the seas. Those in charge request that Greenville people who desire to donate cast-off clothing, shoes and other wearing apparel should take their package with them to St. James Methodist Church on November 4 at 10:30 a.m. This will be World Community Day, and the nation-wide observance is sponsored by the United Church Women. The promoters remind that there are millions of people overseas who need clothing for the winter months ahead.

Eighteen Students Attended TV Class

AYDEN—Eighteen senior English students from Ayden High School attended Dr. Edgar Hirschberg's class in Shakespeare on television at station WNCN Monday. The students asked questions concerning "Macbeth," the play they are currently discussing at school, and several appeared individually on the program with Dr. Hirschberg. Students attending the TV class were Phil Easden, Garland Bullock, Bobby Burney, Allen Dennis, Bobby Johnson, James Robinson, Jim Simons, Sonny Smith, Delano R. Wilson, Bobby Smith, Faye Bowen, Kay Braxton, Betty Lou Cannon, Connie Dunn, Mary Alice Hart, Carol Lynn Johnson, Jeri Jolly and JoAnne Williams. Mrs. C. C. Little teaches the high school class and Miss Betty Lou Small is practice teacher.

One-Man Art Show Is Opened Here In Gallery

A one-man show by John Scott Thomas, architect and painter from Rocky Mount, opened today in the art gallery on the second floor of Sheppard Memorial Library. The show is made up of 61 paintings and sketches, using water colors, pen and ink and crayons as media. The subject matter deals with life in many sections of eastern North Carolina, Florida, New Orleans, Europe and the South Pacific, where the artist was stationed during World War II. Thomas is a native of Rocky Mount and attended the public schools there. He studied at Birmingham Military School and graduated from the Georgia School of Technology with a B. S. degree in architecture. Later he studied at the Fontainebleau School of Fine Arts, France, and did graduate work in architecture at the University of Pennsylvania. Night classes at the Art Students League and the Grand Central Art School in New York City have also been part of his study of art. Thomas has worked with several architectural firms, and in the studios of Hildreth Miere and Austin Purvis in New York. During World War II he was with the 93rd U. S. Naval Construction Battalion in the South Pacific. Since the war he has been associated with Thomas, Harles and Shields, architects, of Rocky Mount. Thomas won the Burge Stevens prize and first prize in the Southern Intercollegiate Architectural Competition in 1924. Along with his architectural interest, Thomas has tried to direct his extra time toward painting and is interested in abstract painting. He has a studio at Caffey's Inlet and expects to retire from architectural work one day and devote his time to painting. Several of his water colors were exhibited at the sidewalk show here during the Fine Arts Festival, and a request was made at that time for his one-man show here. Regular gallery hours will be observed—from 2 to 5:30 p.m. daily, except Sunday.

TOMORROW IS DADS' NIGHT AT GHS GAME

Dads' Night, a thing Coach Guy Lewis hopes will become an annual affair, will be observed at the Greenville-Smithfield football game tomorrow night.

Some 30 fathers will get a ring side seat on the sidelines to watch their sons perform in the homecoming tilt. The honored will be introduced from time to time and be considered a part of the Phantom bench.

This is a big step in setting up something the local high school badly needs—a booster club that can get close to the players. Through the Dads, the GHS coaching staff hopes to influence more boys to play football and stimulate the desires of ones already playing.

"We want to create good mental attitudes, the desire in them to play football and get them believing in the sport the benefits it imposes," Lewis explained.

"The only way to do this is through the home. We've got to have the cooperation of the parents. We want to set up a Dads Club which would be active throughout the season and which would help us a great deal with individual boys.

"We've had too many fellows this year just quit football for seemingly trite reasons—maybe they don't like the coach, or have a girl, or just don't have the time. We think the answer is in the home. If the parents can get them in the right frame of mind, we can take it from there," he said.

The game will be something special in another sense also. The Greenville Jaycees are sponsoring the game and will be expected to purchase a new activity bus for the school.

This is certainly a meritorious project and should be supported. The Jaycees are selling pre-game ducats in a canvas of the city. Should they miss you, tickets will be on sale at the gate.

THEY ALMOST DIDN'T IN THE BEGINNING

One of the most eye catching items on the sports page yesterday was the post ponement of the Bobo Olson-Ray Robinson fight, previously set for Nov. 4 in Chicago.

Bobo was quoted as saying, "I'm naturally disgusted I've put in a lot of work for nothing."

Robinson's corner also was much put out about it although they didn't naturally kick up as much fuss.

While both fighters are mourning in their sorrow, they should be glad the fight is still on, (date changed to Dec. 9). They almost didn't make it.

Olson watched the Rocky Marciano/Don Cockell fight in "Frisco" and set his sights on the heavyweight crown. "I know I can fight better than Cockell," he told intimates, including manager Sid Flaherty. But he, or Flaherty, was persuaded that a victory over Archie Moore would be needless to mention the result.

He took a quicker entry to Marciano . . . and he took that one instead. Last July, in the same town, Robinson fought Rocky Castellani. He was floored for a nine-count in the sixth round and needed all the stamina, savvy and indomitable will at his command plus a split decision—to pound out a triumph in the next four rounds.

Thus the outcome of these two events dove-tailed nicely for this championship match. Had Olson beat Moore, or had Castellani been able to keep Robinson down, two other guys might have been fighting Dec. 9.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS—CARUSO, SHRINE COACH

New Bern high school coach Joe Caruso has been added to the Shrine Bowl coaches list for 1955 classic to be played in Charlotte next month.

This is Caruso' second years as a member of the game which pits the best schoolboy footballers from North Carolina against a group from South Carolina. He coached the 1944 team.

Caruso is from New Bern. He attended Elon College and was captain of the Christian team his senior year. He has coached for 17 years, winning state titles in 1947 and 1948 at Henderson. He was coach at Henderson before moving to New Bern. This is his fourth year there.

American tennis promoter Jack Kramer, due to arrive in Sydney today, is expected to make further approaches to Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewall, Australia's star Davis Cup players to reconsider a professional offer . . .

Jim Tatum lagged off Tuesday a report he will leave Maryland next year and coach Texas. This was rumor No. 605, and holds about as much water as the rest. The fellow who said this was Miami Herald sports editor, Jimmy Burns, the same Mr. Burns who had Tatum going to Texas A & M and North Carolina before. Never gives up, does he . . .

Correction: East Carolina had 10 home basketball games schedule for the coming season instead of nine. The 10th one is with Elon here on Jan. 7 . . .

Phants Look To Have Hands Full

By BILLY ARNOLD

Coach Guy Lewis yesterday sent his Greenville Phantoms through a full session of practice that included calisthenics, windsprints, blocking drill on the sled, running the gauntlet, tackling exercises and a short scrimmage.

Youngsters improving Lewis said that the Phantoms coaching staff is still stressing football for the youngsters at GHS. "We feel that the freshmen, sophomores and juniors are willing to work, and their eagerness to play football usually makes up for their lack of experience."

Billy Cox, Angus Duff, Kelly Barnhill, Billy Sermons, Mack Roebuck and Robert Howell are underclassmen who have been sparking Greenville drills during the past week. Senior gridders who still figure to be prominent in the lineup are Harold Edwards, Pete West, Howard King and Ike Riddick.

Assistant coaches Vaughn Fowler and Stanley Jones have stated at various times during this week that there seems to be a new and enriched spirit among the Greenville since the New Bern game last week.

Despite an awesome 41-7 loss, the Phantoms have been displaying plenty of fire and desire to take their Homecoming contest with Smithfield Friday night. The game is being sponsored by the local Jaycees.

Smithfield Is Tough "Smithfield," said Coach Lewis to-

Plodding Holman Flattens Smith In Seventh Round

MIAMI BEACH Fla. (AP)—John Holman the strong but slow Chicago heavyweight, made Boardwalk Billy Smith's return to the ring was a painful one last night. He flattened the New Jersey jockey with a right cross in the seventh round.

Smith was trying a comeback 10 months after Paul Andrews belted him into temporary oblivion in Miami. For five rounds he did all right, but the plodding Holman caught him in the sixth with a powerful left hook that laid him under the ropes for a count of nine.

Smith went down again for a four count before the end of the sixth, although Holman's punch seemed to have little behind it, and he couldn't manage to pull his wife together during the rest period.

At 1:43 of the seventh, Holman pounded a right hook to the jaw that finished the nationally televised fight in the Miami Beach Auditorium.

Wolfpack Improving As Time Marches On

By E. ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although few football coaches, to be sure, would care to play 154 games in a single year, many of them must envy the baseball manager his opportunity to iron out kinks in a team over a long season.

Coach Earle Edwards of North Carolina State, whose Wolfpack is yapping at the heels of most of the other schools in the Atlantic Coast Conference, might be one of the envious ones. Edwards points out that his team has improved steadily since the start of the season, finally winning one last week after coming close on three of four previous tries. Edwards suggests it's about time his boys reach their peak.

In Furman, N. C. State's opponent this Saturday, the Wolfpack is meeting a team that might well wish this season had never happened at all. The Hurricane has dropped six straight, and has managed to score only 25 points while its happy opponents were clicking out 218.

The Hurricane's freshman fullback, by the way, is Jim Christy, brother of State's sophomore flash, Dick Christy. Dick notes that his kid brother is bigger, but he's still like to show him who's boss of the Christy family.

Seniors on the Virginia football team also will be seeing a familiar face when the Cavaliers travel to Vanderbilt this Saturday. Art Gluepe, Vandy head coach, was the Cavaliers' coach back in 1952.

When they downed Vanderbilt 27-0 Gluepe began coaching for the Commodores soon afterward, and under his tutelage in 1953 they beat Virginia 28-13. For the over-all series.

Virginia has won six and lost five, with two ties.

With Carolina might like to remember three decades back, when the Gamecock first started playing Maryland. Those were lean years for the Terrapins, and South Carolina rolled up handy victories in three of the first four games. It's since 1946, when South Carolina edged Maryland 21-17, the Gamecocks have been on the short end.

They don't figure to do much better this week. Maryland, no slouch on offense, is first nationally in defense against running. In six games the Terrapins have allowed an average 52.3 yard per game against such teams as Missouri, Wake Forest, North Carolina and Syracuse.

JACK MAULTSBY

The other conference game involves a clash in statistics—or the irresistible force against the immovable object. Wake Forest, led by quarterback Nick Consoles and Charlie Carpenter, is tops in ACC passing offense. The Deacons have completed 70 out of 119 passes in six games, racking up an average passing gain of 149.2 yards per game.

The Deacons' opponent, Clemson, turned out to be first in the conference in pass defense. In five games, Tiger opponents have completed only 21 of 60 attempted passes, and have been held to an average gain per game of 62 yards.

Wake Forest also is one of the ACC's weakest members on pass defense, leading some observers to suggest that a lot of passing will be done by both sides.

Duke's opponent this week is strong in all departments, but especially in kicking. Coach Bill Murray has worked the Blue Devils this week in countering the kicking game Georgia Tech will be able to employ. This will be the 23rd meeting between the two teams, and Duke leads with 13 wins, eight losses and one tie.

North Carolina, which is host to Tennessee this Saturday, will have eight sophomores in the starting lineup. Coach George Barclay yesterday promoted to the varsity halfback Howard Williams, guard Hap Petzer and end Charlie Robinson.

Boone Says Bucs Will Hold Nothing Back

All-Out Against App Eleven

"We're not going to hold anything back, we're going just after the win," Head Coach Jack Boone said after yesterday's hard workout.

The East Carolina mentor was referring to the North State Conference title with Appalachian here this weekend. "Appalachian has a good club, big and fast, and plays a wide open, exciting type of football. They knocked us off in Boone last year, we want to get even Saturday," he continued.

Boone pointed out the fact that the Apps are in their hottest run of the season and East Carolina is riddled by injuries. Last week Appalachian beat Emory and Henry 26-0 while East Carolina was taking a 35-20 licking from East Tennessee.

Dreaded Spread

The Buc coach expects E. C. Duggins' Mountaineers to use their renowned spread as their biggest weapon. In 1954, EOC was holding a 7-7 point lead when the Mountaineers broke out the unorthodox formation and before the Bucs could recover Appalachian was in front. That's where they stayed.

Appalachian went on to take the conference crown worn by East Carolina just the year before.

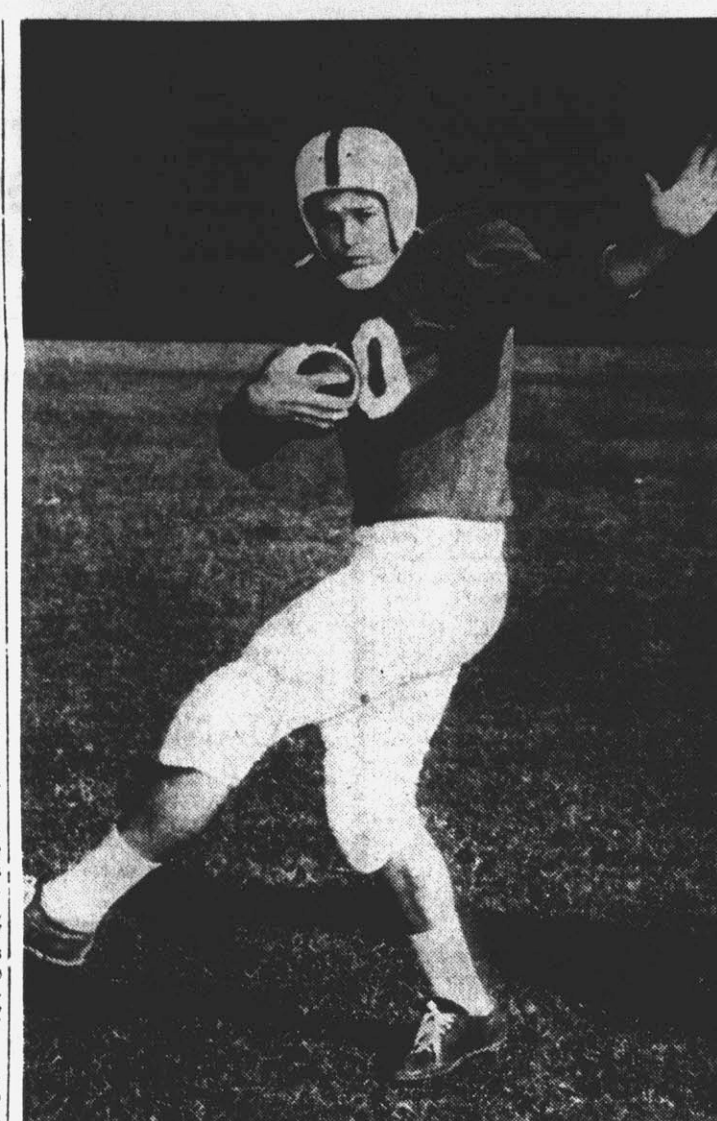

The local coaches are working overtime to get the Pirates ready. The team will be frightfully weak on backfield reserves with four halfbacks on the shelf.

Boone has moved fullback Harold O'Kelly to left half to replace Gary Matlocks, who sprained his knee and will be lost for the remainder of the season. O'Kelly, a High Point senior, played left half his freshman and sophomore years and is expected to make the change without losing any of his effectiveness. Sophomore Bob Maynard of Cary will step in at fullback.

Perry At Right

Yesterday, Bobby Perry was running at right half in lieu of Emory Boado. The latter also sustained a bad knee injury in the ETSC loss last week and will shoulder much of the offensive burden against the Apps.

Boone said he would use Washington's Charlie Bishop behind Perry. To rest O'Kelly, he stated that he thought he'd bring up a couple of freshmen boys.

WASHINGTON FLYER—Charlie Bishop of Washington is shown above. The fleet East Carolina halfback is expected to see plenty of action against Appalachian here this weekend.

MINNESOTA GETS FAIR ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Minnesota will be the scene of two USGA tournaments in 1956. The National Women's Open is set for July 26-28.

at the Northland Country Club in Duluth while the Senior Amateur for men is listed for Aug. 20-25 at the Somerset Country Club in St. Paul.

Family Trust Owns Tigers

DETROIT (AP)—A family trust took over the ownership of the Detroit Tigers baseball team today but it appeared only a matter of time before the famous American League franchise would be sold outright.

The list of bidders for the property now held in trust for the five children of the late Walter O. Briggs is growing longer. High on the list is another famous Detroit name—Henry Ford II.

Still hopeful of keeping the Briggs name on the fine stadium is W. O. (Spik) Briggs Jr., Walter's only son. But his efforts appear wrapped in legal red tape.

The ownership change to the trust fund was one of many legal technicalities surrounding the baseball franchise. The Briggs Commercial & Development Co. which held the baseball stock, was dissolved effective today under the terms of the Briggs will. And the stock went into the trust fund.

However there is a difference of legal opinion as to whether a trust can properly own such a precarious property as a baseball team.

Another legal question is whether Spik Briggs can be a proper bidder for the club since he not only is a beneficiary of the trust, he is one of three executors of it.

Briggs now on the Pacific Coast on a trip says he hopes to make another bid. He organized a syndicate and offered the development company three million dollars for the club six weeks ago but was turned down.

If Briggs can't get control, the field appears to be wide open. In addition to Ford the interested parties are known to be Bill Veck, former owner at Cleveland and St. Louis; James D. Norris, the boxing and hockey operator whose son owns the Detroit Red Wings hockey team; and the National Brewing Co. of Detroit and Baltimore.

Judge Decided He'd Better Go

UNION, S.C. (AP)—Magistrate J. Lee Gregory was watching television at the fire station when an alarm came in.

"I'll just sit here and answer the phone until you fellows get back," said the judge to the departing firemen.

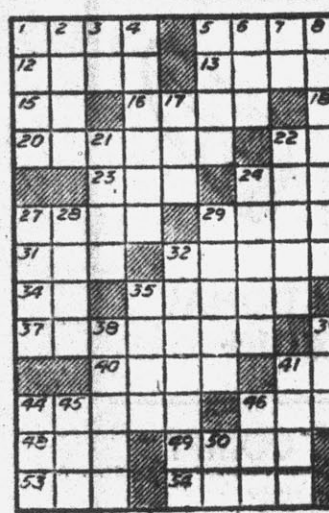

"You'd better get on this truck. It's your house," yelled the driver. Firemen found a badly burned room in the judge's oven and a badly scorched pot of beans on the stove.

Students have attributed some reports of fish and frogs falling with rain to waterspouts which may have sucked up the animals.

Money Displaces Cupid In British News Headlines

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (AP)—Money ousted Cupid from the spotlight in Britain today.

Front-page attention to Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend shrank to the vanishing point.

Instead, the newspapers went in for such headlines as "Butler Raids the Kitchen."

R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, yesterday hiked by 20 per cent the retail tax on everything from pots and pans to toothpaste and automobiles.

What's a royal heart pang compared with the sharp ache in your personal pocketbook?

The editors plainly were happy to have something to talk about other than the royal romance in which there were few developments visible to the naked eye.

These were limited to the 25-year-old princess, along with the rest of the royal family, was a dinner guest at the residence of the Portuguese ambassador. She left half an hour after midnight, smiling.

Townsend, the 40-year-old RAF group captain whose divorce is the obstacle, in the eyes of the Church of England, to a wedding, saw Margaret at her residence for an hour and three quarters before she went to the dinner.

3. Buckingham Palace disclosed, in response to an inquiry, that Margaret will pass up the annual royal film performance next Monday night. It will be the first time in nine years she has missed it.

No reason was given.

4. The first joke about the romance was cracked on a program of the state-sponsored British Broadcasting Corp.

Comedian Bill Kerr, pretending to read a newspaper bulletin said, "Britain facing another crisis—they had tea together again today."

The studio audience laughed like mad.

Hal Boyle . . .

government and business.

Never interested in government service on a purely factional level, he has served in high posts under every president from Coolidge to his own brother.

Those posts have qualified him as an expert in fields ranging from soil conservation to labor-management disputes, psychological warfare to government reorganization, refugee work to international diplomacy.

Among other things he is a director of two business firms.

He doesn't just hold an office, someone once remarked. "He absorbs it."

What does such a man do for fun? A work day that sometimes runs to 15 hours a day does not leave him much time to hobnob, but Milton likes to relax by fishing, reading detective stories, gardening and playing the piano.

Milton Eisenhower is 56 years old, a highly eligible age for a presidential candidate.

If President Ike voluntarily steps out of the political picture, would Milton head the plea of his new "discoverers" and step in?

The question is premature. But the presidential political lightning has struck twice in the same family several times before in American history. It conceivably could again.

Those near Milton Eisenhower feel sure of one thing. He would never consider taking a political step without at least the tacit consent of his old brother.

Middle East Regarded Most Critical Theater

By JOHN SCALLI

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top American officials said today the Middle East has become the most critical theater of the worldwide cold war.

These informants said Russia and its Communist allies undoubtedly plan to step up pressure in the months ahead, mainly by channeling weapons to Arab countries such as Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia. Also expected are new Soviet offers of economic aid.

Diplomatic officials said it was extremely unlikely the Soviets would head Western pleas to stop arms shipments to prevent a potentially disastrous Arab-Israeli arms race.

In fact, there was some evidence the Russians might be trying to foment trouble by spurring on both sides. The State Department said yesterday it had new information that "approaches have been made by Soviet bloc sources to Israeli representatives," apparently with the idea of supplying war gear to the Jewish state too.

The Western Allies appear to have no concrete program for countering the Soviet moves. The State Department is reported to feel its main role—for the present, at least—is to watch developments carefully while urging all concerned to remain calm.

Some top U.S. officials, however, are known to believe such a wait-and-see policy will be insufficient to meet the Russian challenge. They believe urgent priority attention should be given to the Middle East, perhaps in the shape of stepped-up American aid to Arab nations for irrigation and other development projects.

New Bicycles Will Reward Young Faith In Policemen

HUMBLE, Tex. (AP)—Two little boys and their sister are getting shiny new bicycles and their baby sister a tricycle because one of them has faith in policemen.

They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brown — Jerry Wayne 9; Charles, 12; Janet, 13; and Jane, 2.

Jerry Wayne read that the Roanoke, Va., police warehouse was stacked with unclaimed bikes. He wrote Detective Capt. Kermit E. Allman couldn't he please have one so big brother Charles could carry newspapers and add to the family income. He also told Allman about his sisters.

Illness prevents the father, a disabled veteran, from driving a truck more than part time. Mrs. Brown can't work. They live in a rural community near this south Texas town.

Mrs. Brown has been entering contests for years trying to win money for a bicycle. Jerry Wayne and Charles picked up bottles along the highway to get money for the postage.

Allman wrote Jerry Wayne that he was shipping not one unclaimed bicycle but three new ones and a tricycle for baby Janie this week.

They are gifts of the Roanoke Fraternal Order of Police and others.

Allman said he still remembers how badly he wanted a bicycle that his parent, were too poor to buy when he was a boy. He finally paid for one at 14 out of a $4-a-week newspaper route.

The night after the letter came, Mrs. Brown said her boy woke her several times to ask if he had been dreaming about it. She's having trouble getting him to go to school because he wants to be home when the bicycles arrive.

Jerry Wayne said he never had any doubts about hearing from Allman "because he's a policeman."

That's what he wrote Allman he wants to be when he grows up.

TRIUMPH OF THE BLENDER'S ART

Friends Urging Sen. Case Bid For Nomination

By JACK BELL.
WASHINGTON (AP)—Friends are urging Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) to bid for New Jersey's 33 GOP presidential nominating votes as part of a burgeoning "favorite son" movement in both major political parties.

The Case instance parallels that of some other staunch supporters of President Eisenhower who probably wouldn't have given a thought to any "favorite son" maneuver if a heavy attack hadn't cast doubt on whether the President will run again.

There is a growing belief among Republican strategists that if the President declines to run in 1956 he may give his blessing to a half dozen or more younger Republicans he might consider fit for top place on the ticket.

The general assumption is that any designation of this sort would include close associates like Vice President Nixon, Presidential Assistant Harold E. Stassen, U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. and Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

But leaders agree no such listing could ignore governors and members of Congress the President might feel share actively his philosophy of government and support his policies.

Among these Case has carved himself a niche in the Senate, along with some GOP colleagues from less politically powerful states such as Senators Allott of Colorado, Carlson of Kansas and Payne of Maine. Rep. Halleck (R-Ind.) has been spoken of as a presidential favorite in the House.

Among Republican governors, some strategists feel the President might like to designate Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin and George N. Craig of Indiana. Craig has said he won't be a candidate, thus clearing the way for a possible bid by Halleck for Indiana's votes.

Even if there is no presidential nod, Republicans seem likely to produce a bumper crop of favorite son candidates next year.

Among already indicated possibilities are Gov. Goodwin J. Knight of California, Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts, Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois, Gov. Fred Hall of Kansas and Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland.

Vamps Have Changed Since The Times Of Theda Bara

YESTERDAY'S VAMPIRE
Here is Theda Bara of the silent films in one of her famous torrid poses. Note the heavy makeup, smoldering expression, jewels, high voltage pose.

Millions Of Trees To Combat Desert Waste

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP)—Twenty-five million trees will be planted in the barren hills of the Holy Land as part of Israel's "war against the desert."

Keren Kayemeth, the Jewish national land fund which announced the new five-year plan, estimated Israel's desert areas total 287,500 acres.

The over-all program, of which the five-year plan is only a part, envisages 58,250 acres turned to forest, 106,250 acres into grazing land and 125,000 acres into agricultural settlement areas. A separate 75,000 acres of uncultivated land are planned for new settlements.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
Vampires have changed—and all for the better—since the days of Theda Bara, says Cell Chapman, designer of glamor clothes for modern charmers on and off the screen.

"Any woman can be a femme fatale today," says Cell. "All she has to do is make use of the modern makeup and fashion aids at her disposal, and act accordingly."

"The heavy makeup and sultry expressions of some of our earlier movie vamps used to be considered pretty fascinating. But today every woman knows all about makeup, and most of them also understand the magic of a neckline."

This designer, who creates gowns for some of the ranking stars of the movies and TV, says she likes today's style of glamor girl better than the high voltage vamp of yore. "Today's girls, with their natural, clean-cut look, are more appealing, more subtle and also more potent than the ladies of the leopard rugs and the ominous eye-lashes," says Cell.

"Girls such as Grace Kelly, Audrey Hepburn, Jeanne Crain don't suggest the old-fashioned vampire. But just listen to the opinions of modern men about them! I think they cause more male high blood pressure than all the more obvious charmers of the silent films."

Here are some professional pointers on how to choose a gown that will make you look like a modern Cleopatra, worked out by the knowing Cell through long experience in glorifying lovelies of stage and screen, as well as her regular and less famous customers.

1. When you are picking a party dress (or any dress, for that matter) consider first your own best attributes—beautiful neck and shoulders, a small waist, striking eyes, pretty legs or whatever. Then choose a dress that accentuates these attributes. If your neck and shoulders are your pride, by all means show them in an off-shoulder dress. If you have eyes of an unusual color, choose a dress in a color to match, or add an accessory to match.

2. If you have figure faults, such as heavy hips, concentrate attention elsewhere in the dress. Have the drapery or the focal point of interest above the waist.

3. Remember that the neckline is the most important part of any dress, from a flattery angle. It forms a frame for your face, and should be chosen with an eye to proportion.

4. Be sure the dress fits—and look at it in a full-length mirror, from all sides, when you try it on. People see your back also, you know.

5. Choose a color that makes you look pretty. If it's not your color, don't buy it.

6. You have to have a feeling that this is YOUR dress. You must feel comfortable and at ease in it—otherwise you cannot expect to look your prettiest.

7. By all means keep it simple, even if it is a formal ball gown. The most successful dress is the one that nobody remembers—they remember only how beautiful you looked in it.

More than 5,000 privately owned industrial organizations employ 250,000 scientists in their own scientific institutions.

Stock And Market Reports

N. Y. STOCK MARKET—The stock market made modest progress today after a halting start.

In the early afternoon, prices were up 1 to around 3 points in a few instances. Most gains were quite small as were the losses.

Trading was at a rather slow pace. That also was the situation yesterday when 1,600,000 shares changed hands in a lower market.

At noon the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 60 cents at $169.40. It was off $1 yesterday and 90 cents on Tuesday.

In the seven sessions before that, prices were higher in a strong recovery movement that followed the break on news of the President's illness.

Among the best groups today were the steels, motors, rails, copper, oil and chemicals. The aircrafts, which were under selling pressure yesterday, were slightly higher today without much demand developing.

Leading gainers included Southern Bell, American Telephone, U.S. Steel, General Motors, Allied Chemical, Glenn Martin, and Schering.

General Motors which lost 3 1/2 yesterday, rebounded today with a good gain. The company after the close yesterday reported the highest earnings in its history, profits approaching a billion dollars for the first nine months of this year. Third quarter earnings were equal to 90 cents a share as against 80 cents a year ago.

Houston Oil, up 3%, yesterday, raced ahead around 5 points today in active dealings. The stock in its price range is a split candidate.

New Haven Railroad directors announced plans to exchange its 5 per cent preferred stock for a new 6 per cent debenture.

RALEIGH (N. C.)—(N.C.D.A.)—Bog prices mostly 25 to 50 higher. Tops of 14.50 at Goldsboro, Beaufort, Tarboro, and Enfield; 14.25 at Mount Olive, Mount Gilead, Ellettsville, Siler City, Micro, Wilson, Kenly, Farmville, Snow Hill, Shalotte, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Rocky Mount, Lumberton, Fayetteville, Clinton and Rich square; 14.00 at Hamilton, Castle Hayne, Tabor City, Dunn, Clarkston, Nahunta, Warsaw, Whiteville, Newton Grove, Bailey and Smithfield.

RALEIGH (N. C.)—(N.C.D.A.)—Central North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers steady following decline of 3 cents, farm price mostly 15, few 20, no f.o.b. plant sales reported; Raleigh eggs steady, A+Large 83-85. Asheville fryers and broilers steady following 1 cent decline, farm price 18, f.o.b. plant 19 1/2; eggs steady, A+Large 48-50.

Specialist Talks Handling Of Pork

A demonstration on the proper cutting and curing of pork was given yesterday afternoon by a specialist from N. C. State College for farm men and women in the county.

The demonstration was presented by John A. Christian, specialist in animal husbandry, in the auditorium of the county agricultural building.

Christian showed how to cut and trim pork so as to utilize as much meat as possible. He also discussed the proper method of curing the meat.

Last Rites Friday For Jim Simpkins

Funeral services for Jim Simpkins, 64, will be held at the Wilkeson Chapel Friday afternoon at four o'clock by the Rev. B. C. Horrell, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Holiness church of near Greenville. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. Mr. Simpkins died Tuesday night following a heart attack.

Surviving are a son, Edward Lee Simpkins of the U. S. Army; a foster son, Ernest Lee Sutton of Greenville; a sister, Mrs. Lula Nichols of Chase City, Va., and a brother, Charlie Simpkins of near Greenville.

Colored News

AYDEN—Mount Olive Missionary Baptist Church, 715 West Avenue, held its regular worship service Oct. 23. The pastor spoke on "The Son Who Stayed At Home" (Luke 15:11). At six o'clock the B.T.U. discussed "How Can We Improve Youth's Mistakes With Wisdom?"

On the first Sunday night, Nov. 6, at 7:30 the church will have its annual Choir Festival. Choirs from surrounding churches have been invited. Mount Olive's heating system was installed last week.

On the fourth Sunday in November at 3 o'clock there will be a service at the Morning Star Holiness Church by Rev. W. M. Dixon, pastor. Three choirs will participate for the benefit of Mr. Robert Blount, a student in the School of Religion, Shaw University.

Church Conference is held every Friday night before the fourth Sunday.

Regular worship service is held every fourth Sunday. A successful financial drive was terminated Sunday night. Captains of the drive were Mrs. Lillie Moye, Mrs. Geraldine Bond, Mrs. Ruth Nobles, Mrs. Sophia Foreman, Mrs. Fannie Cox and Mrs. Hennie Sessions Edwards.

The pastor, Rev. L. A. Lynch, wishes to thank everyone for their cooperation.

WASHINGTON—Funeral services for Leon Randolph, funeral director here for many years who died Tuesday at Taylor Hospital, will be held at Metropolitan AME Zion Church Friday at 3:30 p.m. Rev. S. P. League, the pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in Cedar Dell Cemetery in Washington.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Naomi Randolph; six children, Mrs. Dorothy R. Merritt, Leon Jr., Louis, Theodore and Miss Margaret Randolph of Washington; two brothers, James Randolph of Petersburg, Va., and Louis Randolph of Philadelphia.

Les Gaylenettes Social Club will meet Thursday night (tonight) at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Love, 904 Douglas Ave., with Mrs. Rosa Merritt as hostess.

"Between Us Folks"

AT LONG LAST . . . State College finally won a game last Saturday when they beat Villanova and we State fans are very jubilant. From all indications it looks like the old Alma Mater is on its way to becoming a football power. Coach Earl Edwards is doing a great job. Since Wake Forest beat Carolina, the Baptists Hallow boys consider they have had a good season. Being a State fan, naturally I was pleased that the Deacons won because in most circles the Tar Heels are the favorite team. Carolina is like the British, they have never lost a game to hear them tell it. Carolina should learn to take their whippings like the Blue Devils.

HERE'S A LITTLE POOF . . . Our Dutch Boy demonstration will be held Friday and Saturday, November 4th and 5th. Saturday a drawing will be made for the four grand prizes. There will be treats for the children and souvenirs for the adults. Dutch Boy factory representatives will be present to demonstrate, arrange color planning, and give advice on painting. Don't miss these two Big Days at EDWARDS HARDWARE.

ABOUT TOWN . . . Mrs. Lena Fringle has returned from New York to see her daughter and grandchildren off to France. . . . Alton Buck and Clay Carter Studdert are a credit to the local Internal Revenue Dept. . . . Alex White, Jr., and his wife building out in Forest Hills. . . . Ed Tipton's Marathon sale went over in a big way. Sales were made in the wee hours of the morn'. This will enlighten Ed Rawl and Bill Corbett.

. . . The policeman's dance was a nice affair. Among those enjoying the festivities were John and Fannie Timberlake, Ed and Ethel Rich, Frank House and Jean McGowan, City Manager Hughes, Maryetta, the TV fashion lady, looked very charming in her attire for the evening. . . . J. C. Galloway had a fire out at his farm. The fire truck ran out of water and J. Robersonville News

Mrs. W. W. E. Page, Mrs. Ernest Mobley and Mrs. R. E. Grimes returned Thursday night after spending several days in Lynchburg, Va. and in Western North Carolina.

Miss Joan Manning of Raleigh spent the weekend with her stepfather and mother Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Robertson.

After visiting relatives in Greenville, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hardy, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Lawrence, and Bobby Hardy visited Mr. Hardy's sister, Mrs. J. S. Crandall, and family Sunday enroute to their home in Richmond.

Mrs. Murphy Smith is improving since her two week stay at North Carolina Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill.

Mr. Elliott Barnhill and Mr. Clinton Baker were in Danville, Va. on Thursday to attend the funeral of Mr. E. M. Burch.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rhine and children, Tommy, Sandra and Carolyn, of Warren, Ohio arrived in Robersonville Thursday night after being notified of the sudden death of Mrs. Rhine's brother-in-law, Mr. Bernice Nelson, 46, who died of a heart attack Thursday morning at 11:30 while in his store, Mrs. Rhine and her family visited her brother, Mr. Linwood Thomas, and their mother, Mrs. M. C. Thomas, until Sunday.

On Thursday, Mrs. Ellis Sparks and Miss Diana Sparks of Elizabeth City visited Mrs. J. M. Sparks who was confined to her bed for several days due to illness.

Mr. Henry G. Norman, a surgical patient in Park View Hospital, Rocky Mount, for two weeks, returned to his home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Ray James and children, Glenn, Connie and Janet, of Norfolk spent the weekend in Robersonville. Little Connie stayed for a longer visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John N. James.

Miss Sue B. Keel, Miss Gladys Bailey, Miss Joyce Worsley, Mrs. W. E. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Jab Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Adkins, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Keel attended the Homecoming at the Everett's Christian Church Sunday.

The Methodist Men had a supper meeting at the church Monday evening. The Rev. H. M. Archer of Houston, Texas, who is visiting relatives in Robersonville, spoke of the need of men to participate in the work of the church.

Eleven young people, accompanied by four adults, Mrs. Philip Keel, Mrs. Robert K. Adkins, and Mr. and Mrs. Hamerick, attended a sub-district meeting of the Methodist Youth Fellowship at Windsor Sunday evening. The colors of the rainbow were used in the church to carry out the theme. After a splendid program a social hour was enjoyed.

A "Quiet Day" was observed in the Methodist Church Tuesday. This preceded the Week of Prayer which will be observed by the W.S.C.S.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Norman have as their guest his brother, Mr. Marshall Norman, of South Boston, Va. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Taylor were in Williamsport Tuesday to see his sister, Mrs. James, who has been in Martin General Hospital for some time. She injured her leg when she fell in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred James and little son of Chapel Hill came Friday to spend the weekend with her mother, Mrs. Leroy Keel.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kornegay of Pink Hill visited their daughter, Mrs. Leighton Cochran, and her baby in the Martin General Hospital Saturday.

So Many Forget Their Bicycles

ROANOKE, Va. (AP)—Detective Captain Kermit Allman wonders why so many people abandon bicycles.

"We've got so many that if you open the door to storage room bikes fall out," Allman said. He said the cops are always happy when someone identifies a bike and takes it away.

day.

Mrs. Ernest Edmondson is a patient at Duke Hospital, Durham.

Mr. and Mrs. James Smith and children, Sylvia, Elliott, Jimmie and Aaron, of Newport News were the weekend guests of Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. George Matthews.

Mr. Clayton Davenport is improving after being confined to the house for a week.

Mrs. Allena Swain, who underwent major surgery at Park View Hospital, Rocky Mount, is recuperating at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Farmer. She returned to Robersonville about ten days ago.

Mr. Kelly Ayers and Mr. Daniel Knox, who were seriously hurt in an automobile wreck two weeks ago, are improving and they expect to return to their homes very soon. Both were on the critical list at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Bobby Mobley of Chapel Hill spent the weekend in Robersonville. Mrs. Cella Robertson has been confined to her bed for two weeks due to illness.

Bear Wrestlers Called It Quits

GRAND MARAIS, Mich. (AP)—Wildlife researchers have been studying bears, up close. Big bears they catch — 15 so far this year — in traps made out of big steel culverts. With the bear inside, they pump some anesthetic in, then attach their ear tags, record weights and measurements and depart while bruin is snoozing.

But there was a demand this year for a check on little bears. Some small steel traps were put out, and soon the news came: a cub was captured.

A research crew set out, with notebook, pencils, tapes and such — all the equipment needed with one exception. No experienced bear wrestler. That's what they needed most. With a couple of toes in the trap was a mature 315-pound black bear. And he was mad.

They managed to pin the bear, two falls out of three or thereabouts, and gather the vital statistics. But if you want an experienced bear wrestler look elsewhere for him. The research crew has retired.

Scrubbed Way Out Of Jail

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Here's one case that got cleaned up fast. When Gale Gumm couldn't raise a $15,000 fine for an assault and battery conviction, the judge gave him the choice of serving out the fine in jail or cleaning out the prosecutor's office.

Gumm literally scrubbed his way out of jail.

Champagne Trail Is 9 Miles Long

NEW YORK (AP)—The Bath and Hammondsport Railroad only nine miles long, as the nickname The Champagne Trail.

This tiny railroad, strictly a local enterprise, is located in the heart of the Finger Lakes region of New York state.

The title, Champagne Trail, is no misnomer. The line serves chiefly the wine and grape industry in and around Hammondsport and the Keuka Lake grape belt. It hauls glass bottles into the area and takes them out filled with wine.

The B & H line was originally built in 1875 as a narrow gauge line to connect Hammondsport with the six-foot gauge Erie at Bath. Today it is standard gauge and has 10 full-time employees with road and equipment investment of $160,000.

Michigan Claims Real Wilderness

ISLE ROYALE, Mich. (AP)—This untouched wilderness — jutting out of blue Lake Superior — is one of the few public sites in this country where one can wander without tripping over beer cans and spotting cigarette butts.

Instead the island's trails that wind through the primeval woods are littered with thimbleberries, Clintonia, wild orchids and trillium.

You don't see much of man because he's uncommon and most of the time is outnumbered by moose. For instance, only 2,830 people visited Isle Royale in 1952 while 41 million toured the entire national park system.

But then, there isn't much to do. All you can do is pull 10-pound lake trout out of the ice clear water, hike along paths framed by state-like pines and birches, look for greenstones along Lake Huron, watch an eagle soar above or a family of mink at your feet.

The trip from Grand Portage, Minn., takes only a couple of hours. Available boats can carry only a few passengers per trip. And the island's two lodges can handle only 125 persons.

Bridge Insured Against A-Bomb

ST. IGNACE, Mich. (AP)—Insurance companies have agreed to insure the substructure of the Straits of Mackinac Bridge for $5 million dollars against fire, earthquake and atomic attack.

The superstructure of the 100 million dollar span will also be insurable when completed in November, 1957.

Although no one knows how many American children are living in institutions, experts believe the number is smaller than the 95,000 recorded in 1950.

News From Fountain

Mrs. Leonard Hathaway and son Jimmy of Durham spent the weekend with her father, Mr. Jess Hinson.

Mrs. Linnie Morgan of near Crisp spent the weekend with her sister, Mrs. Osier Edwards.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lamm and children recently moved to Enfield from Fountain where Mr. Lamm is employed by the town as utility man.

Mr. Jack Harwood of Bridgeport, Conn. was overnight guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Sutton Tuesday.

Mrs. C. L. Owens, Wayne Bushman spent the weekend in Wallace visiting her sister, Mrs. William Browder.

The Young Peoples Leaders met in the home of Mrs. E. B. Beasley Wednesday night to hear Miss Hilda May of Rocky Mount discuss reorganization of the local Baptist Young People.

Thursday night the Executive Committee of the Community Building met in the home of the chairman, Mrs. Albert Bell. Further study of plans for completing the building were completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Moore attended the Pitt County 4-H Adult Leaders Club on Monday night in the auditorium of the Agricultural Building in Greenville. Mrs. Albert Bell was re-elected secretary and treasurer and Mrs. Alton Moore was elected vice-president for the coming year.

At the 11 o'clock morning worship service Mrs. Ruth Harrell Baker was welcomed into the fellowship of the Fountain Presbyterian Church by letter from the Macclesfield Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. E. B. Beasley is a patient in Pitt Memorial Hospital, Greenville. Mrs. Carrie Jefferson returned to her home Monday from Pitt Memorial Hospital, Greenville, to recuperate from medical treatment she underwent in the hospital for nine days.

Mr. Calvin Jefferson, Miss Hettie Gray Ramsay and her sister of Rocky Mount were supper guests of Mr.

Jefferson's mother, Mrs. Carrie Jefferson, Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Flanagan and daughter Jane of Greenville attended a birthday dinner Saturday evening for her father, Mr. J. M. Horton.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Flanagan moved to Greenville last week from Farmville. Mr. Flanagan is engaged in the nursery business with Graham Jefferson.

Miss Ann Staton Everett entertained at the Macclesfield Woman's Club in Macclesfield Tuesday night of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Morgan and children, Raymond and Jasper Jr., Miss Maybelle Davis and Mrs. Mattie Nichols spent Sunday in Jacksonville visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alton Ketchum.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Little spent Sunday in Roanoke Rapids visiting Mr. and Mrs. Smith's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Knott, and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Speight spent the weekend in Troy visiting Mrs. Speight's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Edwards.

Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Eagles and children, Jane and Joyce, of Lewisburg, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Williams and daughter Kippy of Nashville, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Eagles and children, Steve, Becky and Brenda, of Tarboro were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Eagles Sunday.

Mrs. R. A. Fountain returned to her home here Friday after spending a week in Kernersville visiting her sister, Mrs. E. P. Whitaker.

The A. G. Courtney Sunday School Class of Fountain Presbyterian Church met at the Fellowship Hall of the Fountain Presbyterian Church Monday evening at 7 o'clock with eight members present. In the absence of the president, Mrs. R. L. Peale, Mrs. Eloise Bushman, vice-president, presided.

From Athens To Movie Capital Is A Long Jump

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (U-P)—It's a long way from the strife of war-torn Athens to the glamor of Hollywood, but dark-eyed Irene Papas has made the trip.

Irene is MGM's latest candidate for stardom, and the first Greek girl within memory to make a dent in Hollywood. She is starring in her first film here, opposite James Cagney in "Tribute To A Bad Man."

What about this girl? Well, she has dark brown hair, long and wavy. She's a statuesque 5 feet 6 inches, weighs 130 pounds with a tiny waist. The Greek way to pronounce her name is "Ireeny." But she says you can say it American-style if you'd rather. The Papas is pronounced "Pa-pas."

She has smooth dark skin and classic features. The most remarkable feature about her are the eyes. They are black, deep and sad.

Although Katina Paxinou won an Oscar here, no Greek actress appears to have made a lasting impression on Hollywood. That seems odd, considering the vigor of the Greek theater.

Irene explained that the National Theater and dramatic school are supported by the government, which partially finances another training school. Standards are so high that actors have to possess licenses to act!

With rare exception, you can't act in Greece unless you have a high school diploma and three years' training in dramatics. What an idea—licenses for actors! This could revolutionize Hollywood.

Hey MGM bosses are so happy with Irene that she might well set off a Greek invasion rivaling the Trojan War.

It's no accident that she is able to express real emotion. For she grew up and reached maturity through the horrors of war.

She was 19 when war came to Greece.

"I was living in a small village when the Nazis invaded," she recalled. I had barely seen an airplane before so I didn't realize what an air bombing was. Suddenly the earth was erupting all around us.

"I just stood there and watched in wonder. Twenty of the villagers were killed. I can remember vividly seeing their bodies."

After liberation came civil war that ravaged Greece for years.

After her Greek training, Irene made some films in Rome. A film test made in New York by Elia Kazan prompted MGM to sign her.

A normal person can be aware of objects in almost a 90-degree arc while looking straight ahead.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures
STURDY, COMPLETE and low-cost, this two-bedroom house is planned for a small family. It covers only 939 square feet, which keeps it in the most economical construction bracket. Sketch shows how kitchen sink can be placed in corner window. Brick veneer and flush paneling are suggested for the exterior with a roof of asphalt shingles. This is plan H-301-P by the Homegraf Co., 11711 East Eight Mile Road, East Detroit, Mich.

Boatmobile Is His Dreamboat

DETROIT (AP) — Spectators along Lake St. Clair shores strain their necks when Leonard LePage takes his family for a casual cruise in his sleek, red "boatmobile." The "boatmobile" is an amphibious, 22½ foot auto that slides through the water with all the majesty of a yacht.

"It's just my 'dreamboat,'" LePage explains to bug-eyed spectators. "We've been sailing it in the Black River basin about two months."

LePage, a tool and die maker, built the 6,000-pound oddity out of the carcass of a '48 convertible.

Sick Child Often Better Off With Some Fever

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

"Jim had a fever last night, but I was able to break it with aspirin. Many a mother thinks there is something evil in a fever and the first thing she had better do is run for the aspirin bottle and get that temperature down as quickly as possible."

A fever means a child is sick. We certainly don't want a child sick, but if he is sick often he's much better off with some fever than without.

Let's take a look at what happens when a child gets an infection. Harmful germs enter his body and begin to grow. Before long some poisonous material from the germs is seeping into the child's body. This is a signal to the child's body that an enemy is invading and he had better fight back.

The signs that he is fighting back are what we call the signs of illness. The child is tired, he is not only willing to go to bed, he wants to. Every bit of his energy is to be used to fight his enemy; he's not going to waste any running around.

He is thirsty. He wants extra water to help flush out the germs. His temperature, pulse, and respiration all go up.

If you examined his blood you'd find an increased number of white blood cells. All this means more blood is being pumped around his body. This blood has extra oxygen in it from the fast breathing he's doing. It has extra white blood cells—the ones that kill germs. If the child didn't put up a good fight against his infection, we'd be much more worried about him. Suppose two children have the same infection. One has a temperature of 104, the other has a normal temperature. Which is the sicker child? The one with a normal temperature of course, because the germs in his body are not being met with any home defenses.

So if your child has a fever, don't make it harder for him to get well by bringing his temperature down. What you're doing is sending home the army as the enemy reaches the home shores.

Put a sick child to bed, keep him quiet, give him plenty of water to drink.

Nowadays we have many miracle drugs. The doctor may give your child a medicine that will help the youngster kill off the invading germs. When the germs are gone, the temperature, pulse and respiration will all return to normal because there is no longer a war to fight.

Once in a while a temperature may go needlessly high. A temperature of 104 or more is not necessary for good defense against infection. Such a temperature can be brought down to 102 or so with aspirin, but do not try to get it down to normal.

A few children have a tendency to convulsions with sudden high fevers. For such children temperatures need to be most carefully watched and not allowed to rise above 102 or so.

Demonstration Caused Bad Burn

NOGALES, Mexico (AP) — An American tourist came into a liquor store in this border town and asked the proprietor to show some of his wares.

He brought out some bottles, and she asked if they were really 100 proof, as the label said. "Test it," he said.

The woman held a match to the neck of the bottle. She went to the hospital with severe burns.

Rare Institution For Alcoholics

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A new rehabilitation center for alcoholics here is one of the few publicly-sponsored institutions of its kind, says Morris Barrett, the director. He thinks alcoholism is one of the most neglected public health problems.

Studies indicate there are 180,000 alcoholics in Michigan and the number is growing.

Wink Is Part Of Free Enterprise

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Winking was declared a part of free enterprise in a peace bond hearing between two clothing store owners.

One of the owners, whose store is three doors from the other, charged it took lusty swings at the chin of his competitor who "winks and nods his head when a customer starts into my store."

"I don't know how to wink," retorted the accused. He added that he was going to take winking lessons and hereafter "wink for wink" and "nod for nod" for enticing customers.

"After all," they agreed, "we believe in free enterprise."

KITCHEN STRATEGY—Darkroom chores go easier when you enlist the woman of the house as photo assistant. She's a natural to time the negatives in the soup and wash a sinkful of prints.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Now that camera fans are coming indoors and spending more time in their darkrooms here are an assortment of hints and ideas which proved handy for other photographers and which may be adaptable for your own kitchen, closet, bathroom or full scale darkroom.

An old-time enamel kitchen table top (when removed from a discarded table—makes a wonderful working top for any liquid operations... when you turn it upside down. The upright ledge all around is drip-proof and spill-proof when mixing and pouring solutions or when sloshing prints around in the trays.

For kitchen workers, the ironing-board closet can be converted into a handy storage cabinet with the addition of a few shelves. Of course, this means disposing of the ironing board and storing it elsewhere but it should be easy to persuade the wife to make the change... (says who?)

If you lose that argument, maybe it would be better at that, to add a matching kitchen cabinet in a convenient spot to hold supplies and equipment. A metal breadbox can be converted into a photo paper safe. And do you know where to get a nice, wide funnel for all your pouring? From the top of your drip coffee maker, that's where you could switch to tea or decide the family needs a new coffee pot after all.

In an emergency, a brown paper bag placed over a small wattage lamp can serve as a darkroom light.

Viscose sponges are used to squeeze a roll of film after washing to remove excess moisture for faster drying. They could be kept in a covered glass jar submerged in water so as not to pick up grit or dirt between chores.

Run a string or wire overhead running the full length of the darkroom. Harness this to the room light switch cord, then you can turn the light on or off them almost anywhere in the room with a minimum of fumbling, even with wet hands.

Fog board panels are the latest solution for adjusting quick shelves and hooks for equipment, and supplies as the need arises.

Then there's the idea offered by the photographer who stored things away between darkroom sessions... but couldn't find an item later except by a process of elimination through cabinets, closets and shelves. "Why not," he wondered, "a glass showcase like the stores have. Then you could locate any item instantly visibly, keep track of the amount of your supplies and the stuff would be protected from dust."

Saturation Point Believed Near In Durable Goods

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Consumer durables saturation—three big words that mean: How many more autos, TV sets, kitchen and laundry appliances can and will the American people buy?

The stock of durable goods they now own is the largest in history. At present they are spending $5 billion dollars a year for more.

Some economists fear that the saturation point may be near. They argue that most folk who need these things have them by now. But economists at the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York point out that "The American consumer, when his income rises, seems to possess an almost limitless capacity to use it." In the bank's quarterly review of business they also observe that producers are equally resourceful in inventing new and improved appliances and other products with which to tempt the consumer.

Both the number of families already possessing these gadgets and the amount being spent a year for more is impressive.

About 70 per cent of all American families own an automobile, and 12 per cent of these own more than one. At the moment Americans are spending $1 1/2 billion dollars a year in buying cars.

The housewife is now spending more than four billion dollars a year on kitchen and household appliances and two billion for furniture.

But the bank economists say this doesn't mean that the market for these goods is drying up. They note that in 1954 two thirds of all refrigerator sales were for replacement. And 83 per cent of new car buyers traded in an old car.

Economists at the First National City Bank of New York, estimate there are around six million prewar cars on the roads—candidates for scrapping.

The Chase Manhattan men also point to new fields far from the saturation point: clothes dryers and air-conditioners are owned by only four percent of our families, and dishwashers by three per cent.

The Vacuum Cleaner Manufacturers' Assn. notes today in Cleveland that factory sales of this product are breaking records this fall. In September sales ran 29 per cent higher than the year before, and for the first nine months of this year sales topped the like period of 1954 by 23 per cent.

The Radio-Ironics-Television Manufacturers Assn.'s president, H. Leslie Hoffman, predicts that eight million TV sets will be turned on this year, for a new record.

Give Americans more spending money and offer them new or better gadgets—and you've got yourself a sale.

ACCIDENT RATE UP
RALEIGH (AP)—Tar Heel industrial accidents for the 1954-55 fiscal year showed a big increase over the previous year, the North Carolina Industrial Commission reported today.

Ohio State University investigators have found that African violets grown under 18-hours-a-day of fluorescent light produced more flowers and produced them sooner than those grown in natural light.

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Rosemary Furrow and Lula Jane Cotter traveled 9,432 miles to the Arctic circle and back this summer—in a Model A coupe.

Mrs. Furrow is 52, Mrs. Cotter 60. The coupe is 25.

The Alcan highway isn't the best, Mrs. Furrow said. It's "like a washboard... gravel, you know... and washouts in the glacier areas."

"But we only had two flat tires," she added, "and not a speak of motor trouble."

Mrs. Cotter reported a bear once tried to get in a cabin where they were staying but after an investigation he trotted off without giving them any more trouble.

The trip lasted two months and was the culmination of five years of dreaming for the two women. Mrs. Furrow wanted to see Canada's White Horse Falls. She said her father and two companions shot the rapids in a canoe there in 1894.

"Mostly it was a test of stamina, though," said Mrs. Cotter. "Ours—and our 1939 automobile—and we both made it."

WERE WE SURPRISED!

We've never seen such an enthusiastic response as you and thousands of others have shown to Colonial's new SAV-A-STAMP premium plan during its very first week of operation. We felt sure the SAV-A-STAMP plan was good... just what you wanted. Now you've proved it! Frankly, your response has been overwhelming.

If you're one of thousands of Colonial customers who flocked to our stores last week to exchange your golden tapes for Sav-A-Stamps, we sincerely hope you were not inconvenienced by delays. We want to thank you for your patience and understanding.

We hope you have noticed, too, the special effort our Colonial employees have made to serve you during this first busy period. It is our sincere desire to make the new Sav-A-Stamp plan as helpful and convenient for you as possible.

Now... You May Exchange CS Golden Tapes Printed In Green Ink For SAV-A-STAMPS Through December 3, 1955.

WE WANT YOU TO GET FULL VALUE FOR THE CS GOLDEN TAPES YOU'VE SAVED.

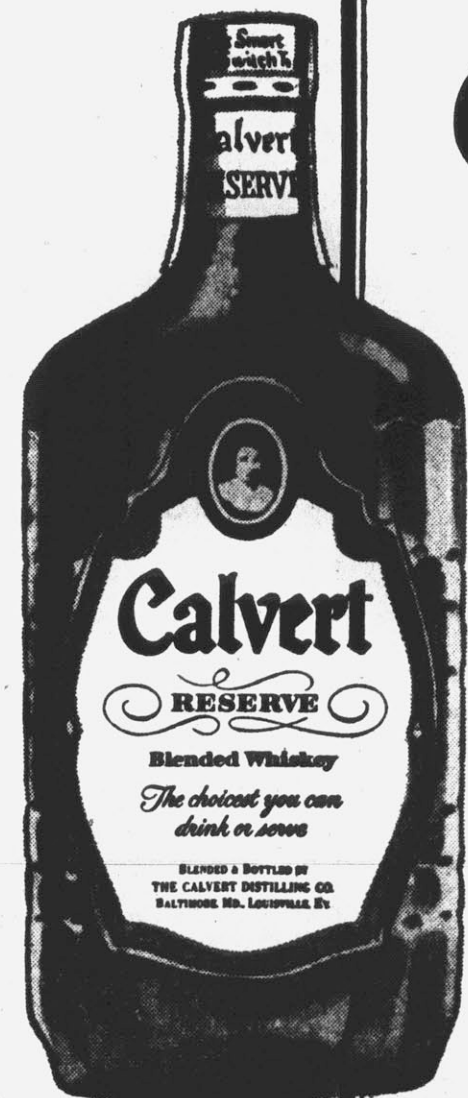

So, in order that your shopping trips to Colonial will continue to be the most pleasant anywhere, we're extending the period for turning in your golden tapes until December 3... two additional weeks to insure plenty of time for everybody!

Remember... If you still have golden tapes printed in green ink stuffed away in your kitchen drawer, you may redeem them for valuable free premiums, or exchange them for Sav-A-Stamps — 1 stamp for each 10c tape value, through December 3, 1955.

Food prices are lower...
Sav-A-Stamps are worth more... at Colonial Stores!

Foreign Ministers Unlikely to Agree on German Unity

No Substitute Fills Ike's Umpire Role

By ED CREAGH
Associated Press Writer

WHEN Harry Truman was President he kept a sign on his desk: "The buck ends here." Dwight D. Eisenhower dispensed with the sign, but after more than 2½ years in the White House he could ruefully conclude that his predecessor certainly had the right idea.

Advisers may advise, Cabinet members may propose—but when really big decisions must be made it is up to the President and only the President to make them. And that is why President Eisenhower's illness is causing many more problems in government than appear on the surface.

The Eisenhower administration is better geared to cope with this situation, probably, than any other has been. The President is a great believer in delegating responsibility—and a strict judge of whether the responsibility has been carried out. His "team" is accustomed to working on its own, without detailed instructions from the top. That is why Eisenhower's totally unexpected heart attack, for all the alarm and concern it created, failed to disrupt government operations. The "team" was able to carry on pretty much as usual.

Creagh

The shape of the administration's farm program ranks high among these in view of its political impact in an election year.

Spotlight on Geneva

In foreign affairs the picture is the same—as spotlighted by the foreign ministers' conference at Geneva. Secretary of State Dulles, of course, has considerable freedom of action. But on major issues to what extent can he commit the United States without a go-ahead from the President? And how can he possibly give a convalescent chief executive the background needed for decision-making?

Nature, the old adage goes, abhors a vacuum. To the extent that a vacuum exists in the realm of high state policy, there can hardly be a high official in Washington who does not hope—for reasons stronger than sentimental—for the speedy and complete recovery of President Eisenhower.

FLOODS: Repairs Undone

Northeast Revisited

Just two months after mopping up after the disastrous floods which followed Hurricane Diane, much of the Northeast this week found itself in a repeat performance.

The culprit this time was not dignified with a name, but three days of hard rain from immobilized and water-laden tropical air caused damage in some places just as great as that wrought by Diane.

The new floods left a dead and missing toll of over 40. Connecticut, as was the case with Diane, was hardest hit. Other states where overflowing rivers behind mountains of silty debris, wrecked homes and businesses, washed-out highways and railroads, broken bridges and snarled power lines included Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Aid Extended

The governors of states hurt most were advised by Sherman Adams, assistant to the President, that the "major disaster" declaration of two months ago had been extended to cover the new floods. This enabled the Small Business Administration and the Housing and Home Finance Agency in Washington to take steps to help flood victims.

Val Peterson, director of Civil Defense, inspected the area so he could take a first-hand report to President Eisenhower. From his sickbed in Denver, the President pledged all aid possible to the disaster area.

The Red Cross estimated 6,900 families were homeless or living in damaged dwellings.

Although staggering, the new damage came nowhere near the figure attributed to the Aug. 19 flood. In Connecticut alone that deluge took 74 lives and caused more than 215 million dollars in damage, compared to less than 20 dead and missing in the latest downpour.

Russians Expected To Be Unyielding

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

THE Big Three foreign ministers, approaching their new conference with Russia at Geneva next week, talked of cautious hope, but walked with the air of actors who have already done the same show a hundred times.

Vice President Nixon and Secretary Dulles agreed publicly that this was the best chance of progress toward peace in 10 years. Britain's Harold MacMillan wasn't insisting so loudly as just after the Big Four offer a step by step arrangement meeting that there "ain't gonna be no war." France's Pinay said publicly that Russia is now voicing the "Geneva spirit." At whether they wished to renew any rate a lot of its shine had worn off.

Germany's Brenano, who won't be sitting with the other ministers but who has a vital interest, seemed to take some hope from the fact that the Allies will have a plan under which Germany might be reunited under a European security system. There were no signs that he or the others expected Russia to accept the plan, however, and Erich Ollenhauer, West German Socialist party leader, said openly what most observers thought—that unity, and therefore a peaceful Europe, is not in the offing.

Roberts

Reds Won't Retreat

Most Westerners expect Russia to reply "Well, that might be nice, but..." Then she will go home with East Germany and the satellite states still neatly packaged under her arm, and wait for the Germans to stew a while longer. She knows there can be no European peace with a divided Germany, and she knows how to fish in troubled waters, just as she has been fishing in the Middle East.

Incidentally, the Middle East question will be in the background throughout the sessions and most likely will finally break into the open when the United States presses the Russians to walk softly lest they do just what the Communists have always tried to do—sponsor wars between others in order to weaken the outside world wherever possible for Communist infiltration.

Russia's effort in the United Nations to help embarrass France over the North African situation, and the spectacle of a tottering French government in an unstable France trying to help make world policy, is going to be an underlying source of friction throughout the meeting. Pinay doesn't think much of trying to do business with the Reds, anyway. He has merely acceded to French clamor for negotiations. This week's vote of confidence in the French Parliament does little to cover inherent French political weakness, which the Russians will be sure to play upon.

Plenty of Business
The United States will be up to both elbows in world affairs, not just European affairs, during the conference. Also at Geneva she will be discussing the points of tension with Red China.

The latter is pressing for a high-level conference and Dulles is holding off until he can tell something about Big Four trends and until Peiping promises to give some meaning to negotiations by renouncing any resort to force.

Russia, by pressing her views in the United Nations, apparently is trying to make that propaganda forum the chief arena for disarmament talks, instead of Geneva.

Diplomats seemed to think Russia needed easement from military burdens and therefore that there might be room for hope of progress in this field. But students of the Russian way were still pointing out that she would only make deals when they are decidedly advantageous to her.

Sidelights

● Because George Willie Hall forgot to wipe his moustache he now faces charges of moonshining. Observant alcohol tax unit officers in Oklahoma, Okla., became suspicious of Hall when they noticed traces of whiskey, mash on his bushy upper lip. They charged him with operating a still after discovering two barrels of mash and a 55-gallon cooler near his home.

● A car and 24-year-old George Baker collided in Washington, D. C., this week and the car came out second best. Although he was thrown over the hood, doctors declared pedestrian Baker apparently was unhurt. The car, however, suffered a crumpled fender, broken headlight and smashed windshield.

● In 1945 the W. R. McVeys of Denison visited the Texas State Fair and hitchhiked home because someone stole their car. This year they attended the fair again—and lost another car to thieves.

Quote

Don G. Mitchell, chairman and president of Sylva Electric Products, Inc., in disputing CIO President Walter Reuther's contention before a Senate-House economic subcommittee that automation will lead to unemployment unless compensating steps to increase consumption are taken: "I not only do not even remotely fear that mechanization or automation will cause unemployment, but I am concerned about the strong probability of a labor shortage in the years ahead unless the rate of mechanization is increased."

POLITICS: A Boiling Pot

Indecision in Dixie

Governors of 16 southern and border states met in Alabama this week for the 21st Annual Southern Governors' Conference. As will be the case whenever governors get together for the next 12 months, the first topic of conversation was presidential politics.

Groping for Direction

Veteran Associated Press political reporter Don Whitehead, after sampling gubernatorial opinion, wrote that the back-ground talk accompanying the conference made this fact clear: Southern Democratic governors—without a strong man to lead them and lacking a unifying issue—are groping for direction in the 1956 presidential campaign.

Whitehead found one Democratic governor, who asked not to be identified, stating that an effort is being made from Texas to organize a conservative Southern coalition which would be able to speak with authority in the Democratic National Convention, and thus have a strong voice in the selection of the nominee and drafting of a platform.

This source also said this effort "so far has received a cold reception." Although not discounting the possibility of future change, he added:

"The truth is there isn't a man or an issue to pull these people into an organized bloc at this time. There's no strong leader. And I can't see any issue which is going to bring about a Southern union."

Three Divisions
If the temper of governors at the conference accurately reflects political thought in home states, Whitehead decided that anyone trying to form a coalition of Southern states will have a difficult time. He saw this political lineup developing among Dixie governors:

1. One group—by far the largest—will be "loyal" to the Democratic party and its nominee, with strong indications that Adlai Stevenson is the front-running prospective candidate.

2. A second "small number," including Gov. George Timmerman of South Carolina, believe that a third party movement is a "strong possibility."

3. Texas Gov. Allan Shivers, who supported President Eisenhower in 1952, is the advocate of an Eisenhower type Democratic nominee and is in search of followers. Shivers already has announced his personal opposition to Stevenson as the Democratic standard bearer.

COURT: Another Reprieve

Chessman Wins

Caryl Chessman, under a sentence of death in California for seven years, has won yet another reprieve from the gas chamber.

The Supreme Court, although split 5-3, ordered a new hearing on the death cell author's claim his appeal before the California Supreme Court involved a transcript "fraudulently prepared" by the prosecution.

The high court said in ordering the new hearing it was not intimating any opinion regarding the validity of Chessman's claim. Justices Reed, Burton and Clark dissented. Chief Justice Warren, former governor of California, took no part in the case.

During his long wait in prison, Chessman wrote "Cell 2455: Death Row"—recently the subject of a movie—and "Trial by Ordeal," published last July. The books helped him finance his long legal fight.

In another action, the Supreme Court now goes free.

In Short . . .

Claimed: By the U.S. Navy, a new world speed record of 695 m.p.h. for its Skyhawk jet attack bomber. The high speed flight was made by Lt. Gordon Gray of La Jolla, Calif., around a circular 100 kilometer course at Edwards Air Force Base in Muroc, Calif.

Discovered: By scientists at the University of California atomic research laboratory, a long-sought particle of "matter in reverse" called an "antiproton."

Urged: By Secretary of Defense Wilson, an economy drive flood. In Connecticut alone that deluge took 74 lives and caused more than 215 million dollars in damage, compared to less than 20 dead and missing in the latest downpour.

Marines

New Commandant

"I'm very much excited and quite humble. It is quite a challenge."

That's the way Lt. Gen. Randolph McCall Pate responded this week to news he will become the 21st commandant in the proud history of the United States Marine Corps.

His appointment as successor to Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, who will retire at the end of this year, was announced by Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, immediately after a conference with President Eisenhower in Denver.

Pate, who now is assistant commandant of the Marine Corps, said he had no inkling of his selection.

The 57-year-old native of South Carolina commanded the First Marine Division in Korea during the last three months of the Korean War. For that fight and his subsequent salvage of Marine gear during the pull-back to the armistice line he was awarded the Army's Distinguished Service Cross.

Monastic Quiet Being Disrupted By Sightseers

By WILTON WYNN
CAIRO (AP)—Tourists are disturbing the solitude of monasteries where the Christian monastic movement began in the fourth century.

The government Bureau of Tourism has published a "map of Christian Egypt" showing all monasteries and Christian sites in the country. This is a new thing here. In the past, emphasis was on ancient Egyptian sites (pyramids, solar boat, Sphinx), Moslem sites (mosques, Al Azhar University), or relics of the reign of King Farouk.

Now the tourist department reports with pride that the Christian monastic movement began in Egypt. It invites tourists to monasteries dating back 1,700 years. Most monks welcome tourists but hermit monks object. "What's the use of trying to be a hermit, if all these tourists come out here?" growls Abdul Messih, who lives alone in a limestone cave.

Abdul Messih walked 3,000 miles down the Nile Valley from his native Ethiopia to begin life far from contact with any other human being. Once a week he walks six miles to Deir el Baramous, the nearest monastery, rings a bell and places a few straw mats in a basket lowered from the wall. These mats, which he has made during the week, pay for food given him by the monastery. Abdul Messih and a few others are the last of the Christian hermits. Most Egyptian monks long ago adopted the practice of living with other monks in monasteries. Four of the oldest monasteries are spread over the desert of Wadi Natrun between Cairo and Alexandria. In the fourth century they were far off the beaten path. Today, good roads bring the mud-walled monasteries within a couple of hours of tourists.

Monks of the Coptic monasteries generally rise at 3 a.m. to pray together till 10. The rest of the day is filled with work and study, including copying of ancient manuscripts by hand. The monks still use the Coptic language inherited from ancient Egyptians; most modern Egyptians speak Arabic.

The 4-foot-11-inch Mrs. Riviere holds the distinction of being one of the nine women helicopter pilots in the United States, and the only one with a helicopter instructor's license.

Daughter of a former Ohio congressman who is now a director of an aircraft division of the General Dynamics Corp., Marilyn learned to fly in a fixed-wing aircraft but sold her private light plane when she discovered the fun of helicoptering.

A few years ago when she was working toward her commercial helicopter pilot's license at Lockport, Ill., Marilyn eased her whirly bird down onto the crowded parking lot of an open-air theater 30 miles from her take-off spot. She can't remember the picture any longer, but she says she did stay for the whole show.

She put more aviation in her life in 1951 when she married Joseph Dyer Riviere, then a jet plane flier. Now he's in the brokerage business.

They have flown together only once, and Marilyn doubts that she and her husband will indulge in many more tandem flights.

"There always would be an argument," she says, "over who was going to fly with whom."

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

Albert Kibbee was silent for a long time after Lois told him Roger had been killed, but it was the silence of an active mind, thinking intently. "Someone killed Roger," he said at last, speaking tentatively as though testing the words the idea, "Killed him." After a pause he said, "Wanted him dead," and listened to the words. "That's not possible, Mrs. Fleming," he sounded reassured, convinced of the preposterous nature of the idea. "Simply not possible." He looked at her with his clear direct gaze, saw her expression and his eyes clouded. "Don't you see," he said, "persuasive," "no one disliked Roger. He was—he was—if you could only have known him."

"But someone disliked him very much," Lois insisted. "And I can't just stand back. You must see that."

"Yes," he said gently. "I see that. Now you say. And Carol knows." He was silent for a long time. "Not Carol," he said at length. "Not Carol, Mrs. Fleming. She doesn't have very deep emotions and as long as she was sure of her comfort—and she would always have been sure with Roger—she would never have done that. Never. Anyhow, she appreciated him. She helped him to realize that he was, Not like Jane. Or Paula Case. Paula is very different from her aunt. She's no good. She pursued Roger in the most shameless—his voice shook. "There's a evil in her. See the way Clyde follows her like a dog. Why can't he let her alone?"

"They are both young," Lois pointed out. "And your son is a lonely boy. Such a terribly lonely boy."

Albert's eyes were as blue as a midsummer day. "Like father—like son? I am afraid I have been unforgettably slow in seeing Clyde as he really is." He was looking at some inner version of his own. "Mrs. Fleming," he said urgently, "it's important that Clyde should not grow bitter and resentful. I hardly know—what he is capable of." His voice rose higher. "Find him for me, Mrs. Fleming. I want to see him."

Bessie, busily darning stockings, looked up quickly as Lois came out of the bedroom.

Lois told her in a low tone. "He wants to see him at once."

An expression of almost incredulous hope dawned on Bessie's face. Then it faded. "Clyde's such a good boy," she said. "So gentle." Automatically she dropped the darning egg into the heel of a sock, her hands shaking. "He went into the woods, up where you found Paula. Just because she went there the place is important, all of a sudden."

Impulsively Lois put a hand on the pump shoulder. "Don't worry. I'll find him and send him home."

"I don't know if I want you to," Bessie said and bent over her darning her chin quivering.

As Lois climbed laboriously up the path through the woods, Clyde came to meet her. It occurred to her that she had not worked out a plan of campaign. She was unprepared, and yet something must be done at once. Because Shandy's gun was missing.

She sat down on a fallen log and at her gesture of invitation Clyde sat on the ground beside her, clasping his knees in his big bony hands. Nature was really unfair, Lois thought, endowing Roger with so much charm and Clyde with none at all, when otherwise they were not unlike physically.

"I came to find you," she said at length. "Your father wants to see you. I think it has occurred to him rather belatedly that he hardly knows you."

"Now that Roger's gone," Clyde said grimly.

"Don't hate him so!" Lois did not know that she was going to say the words until they had been spoken.

Clyde looked up at her, a mirthless smile touching his big mouth. "Even dead I mustn't hate him. And he took everything I had: my father, my mother, my home, my girl—though I never had her really." He shifted his position so that his face was hidden. "Summers and vacations when other kids could go home I'd stay at school. I couldn't go home because it was Roger Brindle's home and there was no place for little boys. He might be disturbed. I used to lie awake nights planning what I would do to him when I was big enough. Do you know how many ways there are of killing? It's really a fascinating subject. I thought of dozens. I pictured doing each one of them—in detail. Of course, after I got in the army I discovered a lot I'd never thought of." He could keep his voice light but he could not keep it steady.

Listening to the thin voice of hate Lois was appalled.

"And now I've come back mother is ashamed of me. She keeps me out of sight. And Dad hates me because I am alive and Brin-die is dead." Lois said abruptly. "do you know how Roger Brindle died?"

"Thinking noble thoughts," Clyde said with a sneer.

"He was drunk when he died," she told him. "Drunk because it was the only way he could escape from his constant failure to achieve the perfection other people forced on him. So drunk that he could not have turned on that gas fireplace. He died because someone wanted him to die."

He did not move. She heard one sharply drawn breath. Nothing more.

"Drunk," he said at last in a tone of disbelief. The fact of Roger's being drunk seemed more incredible than the fact of his being murdered. He began to laugh. "Galaud high, Santa Claus tipsy! Bayard's face on the barroom floor. O, how marvelous!" He rocked with his wild laughter. "Does Paula know her plumed knight had a load on?"

Lois gripped his shoulder. "Clyde," she snapped "stop acting like a jealous fool and listen to me. I said that he was murdered! Do you understand?"

The eyes that were too small for his big face, the eyes that were so like Bessie's, met hers without wavering. "Murdered," he repeated. As he said it, it was a word like any other. "So what?" The attempt at flippancy failed miserably.

"We can't let it go," Lois said distinctly. "Not murder."

"But Dr. Thomas couldn't possibly have made a mistake like that?"

"He didn't make a mistake. He knows Roger was killed."

"But Doc wouldn't take a chance on covering up for anyone," Clyde protested. He added slowly, "Except Mrs. Brindle, perhaps. Or himself, of course."

"I wonder if you know that Paula ran away because she was afraid someone shot through the window two nights before Roger died, when Paula went to see him in his cottage. There was no harm done. You've got to believe that a young girl's infatuation for an old adze-writho never encouraged her, who refused to take her seriously. She told me that herself. It's true. But someone wanted him to die for that."

Clyde's face tightened. His eyes were on his clasped hands. He did not raise them.

"Clyde," Lois said urgently "we can't let it go on, you know. Because the gun has disappeared."

Still he did not move but, behind his closed face, his thoughts were racing. And quite suddenly he was afraid. She knew when the fear hit him.

He swung up to his feet, towering over her. "Mrs. Fleming, if you are worried about Paula, I promise you that nothing will happen to her. She's quite all right. But drop this now." His voice was so quiet that there was an interval before she realized that it was also threatening.

She turned and went back down the path aware that he was watching her. She controlled the impulse to run.

And there was no place for her to go. She had to get out of the woods and away from Clyde Kibbee. She could not return to her cottage because of the man and woman whom she had left there. Whose then? Jane, she thought. It's time Jane Brindle and I have this thing out.

Mighty Smart Con Had One Bad Break

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Let me sing you the ballad of "Highway Patrol."

This is another of those film pack-

a's "based on actual experiences of highway patrol officers in 48 states" (it says here).

It's popping up at various times all over the country and a couple of nights ago it popped up on NBC-TV's New York outlet. Its tires screamed in at 7 p.m. just as several hundred thousand kids were finishing supper and clutching for the TV set.

See, there's this con who escapes from a pen with another con, but the other con is wounded so this con slugs him on the back of the head and shakes him. He gets some clothes and dough from his contact and steals a car.

We cut to highway patrol headquarters and there's Broderick Crawford, the chief, tellin' his guys what a smart tough cookie this con is an' settin' up roadblocks for radio an' stuff. This con sure is smart because we cut back to him an' he has a flat an' ge still fixed an' slugs the guy who fixed it an' gets away.

This is one smart con because he knows the roads are blocked an' he stops his car by the road an' take out the car jack an' goes about 50 feet into the bushes. Along nist.

comes a highway patrol car an' out gets this young trooper with his 38 drawn. Gee, these cops are dumb. He turns his back to where the con is an' the con throws the jack an' hits him in the back of the head an' maybe killed him. What a wing on that con.

Eee, the con puts on the trooper's uniform an' tears off in the police car with patrol headquarters tryin' to contact their man on the short wave an' the con is smart enough to know they'll intercept him so he does a smart thing. He stops a school bus with two little kids in it an' warns the driver he'll blow his brains out if he squeals.

So they come to a roadblock. A cop gets on the bus an' the kids an' the driver talk 'em through the block. Gee, these cops are dumb. See, they get down the road a way an' the con makes the driver turn off an' stop. He slugs the driver on the back of the head but he don't slug the li'l kids. See, he's really sort of kind-hearted, guess, but everybody's against him an' everything.

Anyhow he puts on the driver's clothes an' drives the bus to this restaurant where he's arranged to meet his contact. All this time see, you see Crawford figurin' what the guy's doin', but always one step behind him. Crawford is a smart cop, though maybe not as smart as the con.

Anyway Crawford tears up to the restaurant an' the con uses his contact for a shield. He's got the drop on Crawford with a 38 an' why he don't let him have it I dunno except maybe then there wouldn't be any more series. So you hear the sirens screamin' an' all of a sudden the con's contact turns chicken an' whirls away. Then Crawford lets the con have it with his 38—ka-pow, ka-pow, ka-pow—sightin' those slugs right into the con. An' the con's body twitches as he falls.

See, after the last commercial Crawford comes on for a second an' says, "Obey the law." Aw, sure. Gee, that was one smart con. Except for that one bad break that they had to put in there, because the cops always gotta win in these things, the con would've gotten away to the city.

I wonder what's gonna happen next week.

New County Health Building Has Improved Facilities

This is the immunization room, equipped with examination table, dressing cubicle and utility cabinets. The building also contains a laboratory where various tests are made. All walls in the building are painted in pastel shades and the flooring throughout is of asphalt tile.

This is the new Pitt County Health building, just recently completed and into which health officials moved only last week. Though Health Director Dr. Walter C. Humbert reports that all equipment has not arrived and "we are still in the moving stage," the department is open and running on regular schedule. The new building was constructed at a cost of $82,052. It is a brick structure, fireproof and heated by hot air. The building is also air-conditioned. It has not yet been accepted by the Medical Care Commission. Dr. Humbert said an open house is planned for the latter part of November or the early part of December and the formal dedication of the building has been tentatively set for January. (Reflector Photos by Edwina Haymes).

This is one corner of the spacious lobby in the new building. The furniture is upholstered in green leather and the draperies are gray. Two sides of the waiting room are completely glassed in and the other two are exposed brick walls. Accordion extension doors allow the room to be divided in half. The electric clock, shown above, was bought for the building by the staff, which is also purchasing an iron railing for the front entrance to the building.

There are four examination rooms like this one in the new health building. This means that more patients can be treated with greater facility during the clinics. Each examination room is fully equipped with examination table, dressing cubicle, cabinets, sink and counter space.

Police Accused Of Store Thefts

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Five Los Angeles policemen are accused of burglarizing stores while on duty. All resigned immediately from the force and then were booked into jail on suspicion of burglary. They later were freed on writs of habeas corpus returnable Tuesday.

Accused are Lester M. Friday, 34; Charles H. Farnell, 32; Charles F. Brock, 31; Elmer Bolsters, 30; and former vice squad officer Frank C. Grossman, 32.

Said Police Chief William H. Parker:

"These men have got to know that one of the cardinal sins of this Police Department is the violation of the law they are sworn to uphold. If guilty, they will be prosecuted even more vigorously than others because of their sworn duty as upholders of the law."

Parker said items seized at some of the policemen's homes included movie projectors, cameras, auto tires, skin diving equipment, power tools and power lawn mowers. He added that Grossman and Farnell deny the charges but the other three admitted implication.

Part Of Salary To Go Into Bonds

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Natalie Wood, at 17 a veteran of 11 years as a screen actress, walked into Superior Court with her French poodle Fifi yesterday and had her new Warner Bros. contract approved. The approval order by Judge

John Gee Clark calls for compulsory investment of 10 per cent of the actress' earnings in savings bonds. Miss Wood earns $400 a week now and if all options are picked up she will earn $1,750 in seven years.

Her Biggest Tip Was Grave Error

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP)—Waitress Lottie Gillis has received her biggest tip but concedes it was a grave error.

A group of youths wearing jackets inscribed "Valley Cats" trooped into the cafe where Mrs. Gillis works. When they departed, they left a 200-pound tombstone.

The marble slab, which Mrs. Gillis turned over to police, bore the inscription: "Peter F. Fagan, Died Jan. 24, 1906, Age 49."

Ex-Champion Is Still The Best

BUENA VISTA, Va. (AP)—A Ellis Baker, Richmond lawyer, has retired as Virginia checker champion — but he is still top man.

Baker, who held the title for six years, relinquished it at the tournament here, but in an exhibition he beat Ed E. Chandler, of Richmond, the winner and A.M. Simpson of Danville, the runner-up.

Plenty of storage space is one big advantage the new building has over the old Health Department offices. There are three big walk-in closets lined with shelves like this one and each office is equipped with adequate cabinet and cupboard facilities.
