Score Most Surprising Triumphs In Normally GOP Indiana

Demos Show Muscle In Off-Year Elections

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democrats ousted a cluster of Republican city administrations in Indiana, upstate New York, Connecticut and elsewhere in yesterday's off-year elections. Republicans made gains here and there.

Two of the feature races went according to advance expectations. In Kentucky, A. B. "Happy" Chandler made a political comeback by defeating Republican Edwin R. Denney for the governorship. Chandler, a former U. S. senator and baseball commissioner, returned to the governor's post he last held in 1935-1939. He had been out of political office for 10 years.

In Philadelphia, 57-year-old Richardson Dilworth, a veteran Democratic warhorse swamped Republican W. Thacher Longstrech, a 35-year-old political neophyte, in winning election as mayor of that city. GOP stronghold by 132,000 votes. The remainder of the Democratic ticket, with one exception, swept into office with Dilworth. Longstrech had received the personal endorsement of President Eisenhower.

Democrats scored their most surprising triumphs in normally Republican Indiana. Incumbent Republicans were toppled in Indianapolis and South Bend. Muncie, Evansville, Michigan City, Marion, New Castle and Bloomington, among others.

Over all the Democrats reversed the lineup of Indiana mayors — from 70 Republican and 32 Democratic before the election to 72 Democratic and 30 Republican.

In New York, the Democrats racked up a net gain of two mayoralities. They wrested control in Troy and Schenectady and six other smaller cities. The Republicans, in turn, defeated Democratic mayors in five cities. A Democrat also went down before an independent in New Rochelle. The Democratic victory edge in Troy and Schenectady was slim and contests appeared likely.

In neighboring Connecticut, Democrats uprooted an eight-year-old Republican regime in Waterbury. They also elected a mayor in Norwalk, turning out an independent, Bridgeport voters reelected Jasper McLevy, a 77-year-old Socialist, to his 12th straight term as mayor.

Democratic leaders in New York and Connecticut hailed their city hall gains as indicating a "trend" pointing toward victory in the state and national elections next year.

In Arkansas, Democrat Woodrow Wilson Mann, a 40-year-old insurance man new to politics, whipped Republican Mayor Pratt C. Remmel of Little Rock. Remmel was seeking his third term.

In Massachusetts, Democrat O. Gerald Lucey was trying for his third term as mayor of the shoe city of Brockton, but he lost to Gajmar E. Peterson a Republican former city councilman.

In New Jersey Republicans lost three Senate seats to the Democrats but held control of the State Legislature. A. Paterson, Edward J. O'Byrne returned the city to Democratic control, downing last term's F. Titus, the Republican incumbent.

Things went as expected in Virginia, a normally Democratic state. The Democrats remained firmly in the driver's seat in the General Assembly, but they were unable to overcome State Sen. Ted Dalton, the GOP's most consistent vote getter and a gubernatorial threat to the Democrats in 1957.

In Mississippi, Atty. Gen. J. F. Coleman, a Democrat, was elected governor. He had no Republican opposition.

In Detroit, 29-year-old John D. Dingell outtraced 11 other candidates to win the Democratic nomination for representative from Michigan's 18th Congressional District. The seat was held 23 years by his father, who died last September. Dingell will face Thomas E. Brennan, a 36-year-old attorney who won the Republican nomination in yesterday's special primary. The election to fill the vacant House seat will be held Dec. 13. The district usually goes Democratic.

In many places the majority battles were fought on a non-partisan basis. Boston voters gave John B. Hynes a third term as mayor after a campaign in which he called credit for "restoring the dignity and prestige" of the Hub City. Hynes defeated John E. Powers, Democratic leader in the Massachusetts Senate. Hynes, too, is a Democrat.

Delays By U. S. Said To Blame

Egypt Says Postponements Forced Buying Arms From Communists

CAIRO, Egypt (U. S. — Egypt charges Washington's "postponements and promises" on requests for arms forced her to buy weapons from the Communists.

The government statement was Egypt's explanation of a move which suddenly spotlighted a growing struggle between the West and the Communist bloc for leadership in the rest of the Middle East. Egypt's declaration was an effort to refute a remark by U. S. Assistant Secretary of State George Allen to the effect Cairo suddenly turned to the Communists for arms while negotiating with Washington.

(In a dispatch from Washington, the New York Herald Tribune said the United States was giving top priority consideration to asking the U. N. Security Council to embargo all arms shipments to the Middle East. This was said to be one reason why Washington is reluctant to sell arms quickly to Israel to match Egyptian purchases from Czechoslovakia.)

The embargo plan was said to have been worked out in consultation with Britain and France in Geneva and the three Western capitals. The Herald Tribune said the Soviet Union likely would veto the embargo proposal in the Security Council but that such action would "expose Russia to the world as a munitions merchant bent on gambling with the lives and security of millions of people."

In Geneva, the United States and Britain were reported to be in high level talks within 48 hours to chart their next moves against Russia's diplomatic offensive in the Middle East.

Diplomatic officials in the Swiss city said high priority was being given to a suggestion that either President Eisenhower or British Prime Minister Eden or both appeal directly to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin for Russian cooperation in maintaining peace in the Middle East.

The Egyptian statement gave this account of Cairo's arms negotiations:

Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser first asked for U. S. arms in October 1952 but by October 1953, "not a single piece of military equipment" had been received from the United States.

Nasser warned U. S. Ambassador Henry Byrnes last June Egypt would stop behind the Iron Curtain for armaments if certain military needs were not filled by the United States. Washington's reaction was a demand for 27 million dollars in cash for the list of Egyptian dollar reserves.

These U. S. Egyptian negotiations "dragged from June until September with nothing except promises forthcoming."

On Sept. 27 Egypt announced a cotton-for-arms deal with the Communist-governed Czechoslovakia. Egypt is reported to be receiving submarines and shipsloads of fighter planes, tanks, and heavy guns under this deal.

The Egyptian salvo in the diplomatic battle between Russia and the West came shortly after renewed gunfire cracked on tense Egyptian-Israeli border. The two sides gave different versions of the clash.

Molotov Slams Door On Accord

By JOHN NIGHTOWER

GENEVA — The hard, emphatic words of V. M. Molotov announcing Russia's firm rejection of all Western offers of German unification by a free vote precipitated a new East-West crisis today.

Speaking with the obvious authority of the Soviet government — he had just come from Moscow — the Soviet foreign minister indicated to the Big Four conference yesterday there are only two kinds of Germany that interest him, a divided Germany or a Communist-dominated Germany.

The speech astonished U. S. Secretary of State Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Faure who had been built up to expect some concessions by Molotov's remark he was bringing from Moscow better baggage.

They immediately adjourned the session to consider what to do and say next.

They arranged to meet today to make a choice between two courses — formally accepting Molotov's stand as final, or trying to devise some formula to keep the talks here going.

A French spokesman said the whole conference might as well be broken off today.

West Germany's Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano was ready to tell the Western ministers that as far as the Bonn government is concerned, the "Geneva talks could end now."

Other Western diplomats did not support this view. They pointed out that disarmament and other points on the agenda had not yet been dealt with on the ministerial level.

Barring some conciliatory gesture by Molotov to follow up on tough declaration — something not impossible in view of past Soviet incoherence — these conclusions seemed inescapable:

1. The cold war is still on in a big way. The Soviet Union has thrown its full power behind Communist East Germany, but has made a bid for worker support in West Germany. This, coupled with Russia's bid for power in the Middle East through sale of Communist arms to Egypt, indicates her expansionist policies are still operative.

2. The "spirit of Geneva," born at the summit conference here in July, has collapsed like a balloon. American Press Officer Henry Strydom, said the Soviet's position "tears up" the directive agreed upon by President Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Bulganin, and the other summit leaders for the foreign ministers to consider free elections to unify Germany.

3. The Soviet stand may strengthen the Atlantic Alliance — of Geneva spirit. One Western diplomat said, "If this is the kind of Soviet policy we are up against it is a good thing to know it."

4. The impact of the opposed East-West policies on public opinion inside Germany is a critical consideration.

At the moment Western leaders seem confident of popular German support for their insistence on a reunified Germany free to choose its own political system and foreign alliances.

But Molotov challenged this confidence.

The Western diplomats were struck hard by the implication that Russia does not intend to yield a position of power in Germany or anywhere else.

Molotov denounced the German unification plans of the West as being designed to accomplish the "remilitarization not only of Western Germany but also of Eastern Germany, and at the same time to draw not only Western Europe but also the whole of Germany into the North Atlantic bloc directed against the Soviet Union, and not only the Soviet Union."

He said the proposal for free elections ignored the fact that two Germanys now exist which are suspicious of each other.

He said the only way to bring these two Germanys together was to create a council from their two legislatures to work out the problem themselves. This would give East Germany with 16 million people an equal voice with the West German Republic of up to 30 million.

Panel Suggests N. C. Safeguards

NEW BERN, N. C. (U. S. — Recommendations for state action to minimize damage from future hurricanes should be ready to submit to Gov. Hodges by the first of the year, the director of a hurricane study project said yesterday.

Director Pearson H. Stewart told a Citizens Advisory Panel meeting here that he will have some preliminary suggestions ready for a second panel meeting to be held here early next month.

The group of 26 Eastern North Carolina residents adopted two proposals at yesterday's meeting. It asked the State Highway Commission to build future highways in low-lying areas so as to form dykes against tidal waters, with flood gates to let out rain water.

The panel also approved a request to the governor take steps toward a disaster insurance program.

The citizens' group is working with the governor's Hurricane Rehabilitation Committee and the staff headed by Stewart on the problems caused by hurricanes. Damages from this season's Connie, Diane and Ione will be studied as a basis for recommendations to hold down effects of future storms.

Preservation of the Outer Banks, the string of islands and sandbars protecting the state's mainland from the ocean, should be "our number one project," asserted Hugh Harris of Pamlico.

He said the Banks "are our first line of defense and if we can preserve them we can preserve our shoreline around New Bern and around Oriental."

Earl Topping, Hyde County agent, said he believed highways could be built up to offer protection at little added expense. "They should be so routed as to help us protect our farm lands," he said.

Mayor L. S. Blades of Elizabeth City made the proposal for study of disaster insurance. John Farrell of Wilmington, panel chairman, said he thought "all of us would like to see private companies handle" the disaster insurance "if they will."

Blades suggested a partnership deal might be worked out between the companies and the government, with the government assuming part of the risk.

Bigness In Business Is Investigated By Solons

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (U. S. — The Senate antitrust subcommittee plans to explore today operations of General Motors Corp. in fields other than automobiles.

Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) said one of the giant corporation's activities to be covered would be its "dominant position in the manufacture of locomotives." He commented that many persons were unaware of the full extent of GM's far-flung production.

T. K. Quinn, New York businessman and author who is a sharp critic of big corporations, will complete his testimony as the subcommittee begins its second day of the GM study.

A subcommittee aide explained it had been decided not to release names of future witnesses in advance. That was done, he said, because most of them either dealt with GM in some way or are competitors.

"Some of them are reluctant to come at all," the aide said, adding that a number had to be subpoenaed.

The subcommittee yesterday heard Quinn assail GM as "entirely too big" and took testimony from economists on the concentration of production in the automobile industry.

Donald A. Moore, professor of economics at Michigan State University, said the number of companies had dwindled from 88 in 1921 to six at present. General Motors now produces about half of all the cars turned out by the six, Moore said the franchises under which most retail car dealers operate are "peculiarly one-sided" documents with all the advantages accruing to the manufacturer.

He said many dealers complain of being forced to take too high quotas of cars, but added there is "nothing to stop" this practice.

The economist said that, in the present situation, practically all of the price competition in car selling must be shouldered by the dealers.

Asked if it would not be better for consumers if manufacturers made across-the-board price decreases, Moore said this undoubtedly would benefit consumers.

But he commented that if the big three — GM, Ford and Chrysler — were to get into a price battle, it would be for the lives of the three remaining independent manufacturers.

Parker said he needs the information to answer questions popped by a radio network planning a series of programs on various states.

Replies To Rumor On Colonial Heights Annexation

Hughes Denies Exception To Policy

City Manager James S. Hughes told members of the Utilities Commission last night that the annexation of Colonial Heights into the city limits was not an exception to the city's subdivision ordinance as has been rumored in Lakewood Pines.

The Lakewood Pines area south of Greenville is now being considered for annexation into the city limits. Utilities Commission members have told representatives of the area that the commission will furnish water lines as soon as practicable if city fathers see fit to annex the area.

Hughes told the commission members that "it was being talked around Lakewood Pines that the annexation of Colonial Heights was an exception to our usual subdivision policy."

"I also understand that one or two of the commissioners have made that statement to residents of Lakewood Pines," the city manager, who is also a member of the Utilities Commission, declared.

"I did it," said Commissioner Reynolds May.

"Could we have a little discussion without it going into the paper?" May asked a reporter.

He was told that it was a public meeting and no promises could be made.

"Well, let's just drop it," interrupted Commission Chairman J. Roy Martin. "Is there anything else to come before the board?"

Hughes explained that the city's subdivision ordinance requires that a subdivider put up the money for water and sewer installation in a subdivision. A certain proportion of the money is refunded as each house taps on until eventually, if the subdivision builds up, all the money is returned. If the area has not built up sufficiently in a 10-year period the subdivider forfeits the remaining money.

Under the policy 100 feet of water and sewer line are justified for each lot, Hughes stated. In Colonial Heights there were half again enough houses to justify the installation of the lines.

"You have 94 houses in the area and 6,000 feet of line are required," he declared.

Thus, the city manager pointed out, it would have simply been a matter of accepting the money posted by the citizens in the area and returning it to them immediately.

Colonial Heights residents agreed to pave the streets and conform with the subdivision ordinance in every way, Hughes said.

The area was annexed by the City Council sometime ago.

In Lakewood Pines, the number of houses would not justify the number of feet of water and sewer line required to serve the area, Hughes pointed out. Some 9,300 feet of line would be required and at present there are only 31 houses in the area.

In fact, he noted, there are only 53 lots in the entire residential section.

The Lakewood Pines area annexation is expected to be considered by the city council at their regular monthly meeting Thursday night.

Earlier the city attorney had been requested to contact the attorney general's office to determine if the method of annexation is legal. City limits lines must be extended along Evansville to the area where they would branch out to take in the residences.

The attorney general expressed an opinion that the move would be legal.

Other Business

The commission also heard a financial report from Business Manager Larry Brown and Superintendent Leonard Bloxam's monthly report.

Bloxam told the commissioners that repairs to a sewer outfall line across Gretna Mill Run had been completed. The line was damaged by recent high waters in the stream.

Installation of water lines in Colonial Heights is 60 per cent complete and work is in progress on the installation of utilities lines in an additional section of Englewood, he declared.

Three-phase power lines have been installed in Brookgreen and concrete walls in a sewer pumping station in Hillside are being extended to avoid flooding of the pump, Bloxam reported.

Bloxam said that attendance at public relations classes currently being conducted for utilities employees is continuing and an average of 40 persons have attended each of the classes.

He noted that an indoor grease pit had been constructed at the power plant.

The commissioners approved a contract for installation of water and sewer in the Highsmith subdivision adjacent to Colonial Heights in line with the subdivision ordinance.

Civil Service Commission's Statement Termed Fantastic

Inherent Power Of Secrecy Is Claimed

WASHINGTON (U. S. — A claim by the federal Civil Service Commission to "inherent power" under the Constitution to withhold public information was labeled "fantastic" today by Rep. Moss (D-Calif.).

"There is no inherent power to withhold information, and certainly not on the broad basis claimed by the Civil Service Commission," he contended in talking with news men.

Moss is chairman of a House government operations subcommittee investigating information practices by federal agencies and complaints that officials are overworking their "confidential" stamps.

After hearing testimony from the CSC yesterday, the committee transferred its attention today to the Post Office and Treasury Departments.

The claim to "inherent power" by an executive agency, under the broad constitutional grant of authority given the president, was quickly questioned by committee members.

Moss termed the contention, made by CSC Counsel Lawrence V. Meloy and backed by Chairman Philip Young, "the broadest claim of authority" to be asserted by any federal agency.

In dealing public information practices of the CSC, Young said his directive to informants was to make all information possible available. But the committee produced a regulation from the CSC handbook stating that all information was government property and must be guarded by employees.

Moss said this dual instruction created an unreconciled conflict — one says to employees they must cooperate, and the other says you're fired if you do."

Young conceded "it may be this needs some clarification. We'll be glad to review it and see if we can't improve it in the light of our stated position."

Young and Meloy contended that their constitutional power to withhold information "flows" from the Constitution, and from "the inherent power of the executive branch of the government to carry out administrative functions."

Both officials, however, disclaimed abuse of the power. They said it applied only to confidential matters necessary to protect individuals — such as medical records of job applicants, and security investigations of federal employees.

Young also testified his agency complies with all "reasonable" requests for information, but reserved the right to decide what was "reasonable."

He amplified this to say that "legitimate" new men probably would have their requests granted, but that he would not necessarily give a list of names and salaries of government employees, for instance, to "anyone who walked in the door."

He defended his position as a policy of protecting employees from "rackets," bill collectors and compilers of "sucker lists."

Suggests Science As Core Of Curriculum

"Science should be the core of the elementary curriculum with reading, writing and arithmetic used to help develop children around this core," Dr. John G. Navarra told approximately 125 Pitt County elementary teachers gathered yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of Joyner Library at East Carolina College.

Dr. Navarra, science instructor at the college, spoke to the group in an informal lecture-demonstration in which he noted several experiences which may be used with children to develop basic science concepts. These included concept of "the big, round earth," gravity, day and night and the fact that "we live in an ocean of air."

He stressed the fact that science, which he defined as "the child's interpretation of his own environment," should be used to get children to read more, to write more, and to listen more. Science cannot be an isolated program," he declared. "It must be shot through the entire classroom program all day long, all year long."

The instructor who holds his doctorate from Columbia University and who was the first man in New Jersey to have a kindergarten primary teaching certificate said that elementary science is unique and should not be high school science "watered down." One reason the elementary science program is not always successful, he pointed out, is that it is not geared for the elementary classroom. He emphasized that, though there are sets of rules or formula for teaching "science" should be built around the experiences of children, and the best science materials are the "junk materials" those things we have at hand or which are easy to obtain."

This is Dr. Navarra's first year at East Carolina. Previously he taught in the natural science department at Columbia University and served as consultant to nursery schools in some of the worst sections of New York city.

He is the author of a book, "The Development of Scientific Concepts in the Young Child," which is a case study of his own young son; and he recently collaborated with Dr. Gerald Craig, author of the state-adopted elementary science books, on a new science book for the sixth grade level.

Presiding at yesterday's meeting was William Berry, building principal at Bethel and chairman of the county group of seventh grade teachers.

Dr. John G. Navarra, East Carolina College science instructor, yesterday spoke to Pitt County elementary teachers in a lecture-demonstration on approximately 125 teachers heard Dr. Navarra, who came to East Carolina this year from Columbia University where he taught in the Natural Science

Grant Franchise

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Utilities Commission today issued an order granting the Public Service Co. of North Carolina a franchise to supply natural gas to the Pittsboro and Sanford areas.

The action drew a strong dissent from Commissioner Sam O. Worthington who protested that the commission's decision "has possibly closed the door to any opportunity for natural gas service for Eastern North Carolina for years to come."

Worthington objected to giving the Sanford area to Public Service because the North Carolina Natural Gas Corp. had asked for permission to serve the area as well as most of the eastern part of the state. North Carolina had stated it needed the big market afforded by brick companies in the Sanford area to make its proposal financially feasible.

Giant Bomber Explodes In Air

MARLIN, Tex. (U. S. — One of the nation's best A-bomb carriers, a sleek B47 bomber, exploded in the air near this central Texas town last night and today air rescue teams were searching for bodies or survivors.

Rescue teams said markings on the plane showed it was from Biggs Air Force Base, El Paso. At Biggs, officers refused to concede it was a Biggs plane although reporting one of their B57s, attached to the 97th Bomb Wing, was many hours overdue on a routine training flight.

The 200,000-pound craft, with a wingspan of 116 feet, normally carries a crew of three-all officers. The wreckage was spread over a mile and a half and five large pieces of wreckage burned well into the morning.

What happened to the crew was a mystery. Early this morning, searchers were unable to find any bodies or pieces of bodies.

The explosion rocked this part of Texas for many miles. It lit the sky as far away as Waco, 25 miles to the northwest.

Landscaping Is Topic Of Pickwick Club Paper

On Tuesday, Nov. 1st, Mrs. L. M. Boyd was hostess to the Pickwick Book Club. Her home on Charles Street was made especially attractive for the occasion by the use of chrysanthemums and an unusually beautiful arrangement of roses in an antique silver bowl.
Mrs. Henry L. Rivers was unable to personally address the group because of illness. Mrs. W. H. Watson read her very informative and superbly written paper on "Landscaping." Mrs. Rivers stressed the importance of securing efficiency, beauty and neighborliness in landscaping without losing individuality. She further emphasized that in order to use the right plant in each location, it is essential to know quite a lot about it. Mrs. Rivers made a list of the shrubs and trees that grow particularly well in Greenville. This proved a great help to the members, especially at this time when all are thinking of fall planting. The group also enjoyed examining the specimens Mrs. Rivers cut and identified from shrubs in her yard.

Mrs. Boyd served a tasty and seasonal dessert, mince meat tart topped with cream and hot coffee. Mrs. S. T. White II presided over the business meeting. The club voted to donate to the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

Books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.
Mrs. T. G. Ward was a guest for the afternoon.

All This Growth Is A Sign Of Health

The new building record already set by Greenville during 1955 is something for the city to crow about.

In slightly more than 10 months this year the city has issued building permits which show that 1955 will be by far the greatest year for building in the history of the city. During the previous record year, 1950, permits were

Kremlin Has Problem Keeping Ducks In A Row

Soviet Premier Bulganin and his Kremlin cohorts are finding a good many thorns in their sides these days. One might suspect they are beginning a trek through the proverbial briar patch.

Production problems within the Soviet Union itself are causing them no little concern according to reports received outside. Russia's relationship with its most powerful ally, Red China, while superficially on the most friendly terms may be causing concern to Kremlin leaders. Of equal concern to those who now reside inside the iron curtain are attempts of satellite nations to exclude themselves from the iron ring, or at least open passageways through it.

Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia is proving one of the really aggravating thorns in the side of Kremlin leaders. He has time and again defied the authority of the Kremlin. His friendly overtures toward Western nations have brought him gestures of friendship from the West, putting him in an enviable bargaining position with the Soviet leaders. At the same time, Tito's position has attracted no little attention from other satellite nations within the iron curtain. It has been the source of a growing unrest among the people of these nations.

Tito's latest move in endorsing the West's demand that the Kremlin give its satellite nations of Eastern Europe independence and freedom of action certainly added insult to injury so far as the Kremlin is concerned. Through Tito the Western powers are apparently being successful with an old Soviet trick . . . using the wedge to split the solidarity with which the nations of the bloc stand.

Tito's endorsement will strengthen the demand in such countries as Hungary, Bulgaria, Albania, Romania, Czechoslovakia and Poland for more freedom of national officials in determining the policy of the individual country. They will still take orders from the Kremlin; but perhaps after a few holes are opened in the iron curtain, others will come about more easily.

The iron curtain, like the metal from which it takes its name, will deteriorate very slowly; but it will deteriorate.

Flag-Waving Has Never Sounded Out Of Style

Maybe this is a case of looking backward too far, but we can remember a time when the American flag was flown not only in business sections, but by home owners, on national holidays.

Big dwellings usually had a staff for large-size flags, and even the small and medium-size houses often had a flag displayed on special occasions.

Days like George Washington's birthday, the Fourth of July, Flag Day, or Armistice Day . . . they were all occasions to be marked by showing Old Glory.

Somewhat people seemed to feel a special sort of way about those holidays. Not that they were any more patriotic than people are today, but a national holiday was truly a holiday and a flag in front of the house was just one way of shouting it to the world.

Outside of the flags owned by business concerns, government offices and a few organizations, we don't suppose there are twenty privately-owned flags in the homes of Pitt County today. But it would be nice if those who do have flags would fly them Friday . . . it might take a little hunting around the attic or closet to do it, but it would be nice.

Friday is Armistice Day, and it celebrates all the times Americans in uniform won the right to peace, if only for a short time.

It is a day worth observing, if only by showing the flag for which so many have died.

Opinions In Brief

OPINIONS IN BRIEF ANNE

ANGOLA, IND., REPUBLICAN: "Our educational problem is two-pronged: a lack of proper classroom space and a shortage of teachers. . . The Federal government is now taking about one-third of people's income and turning it to the local communities as a small fraction at a great cost in the charge of handling. If the Federal government should return to the states certain percentage of income taxes collected the state, under local supervision, could meet the tremendous problem confronting it."

WILDWOOD, N.J. LEADER: "We have become so accustomed to paying "hidden taxes" that we may not as a general rule think of them when we go out shopping. Something of the same thing is true in reverse when we take home our pay envelope. We have become so accustomed to deductions for withholding tax, unemployment insurance and social security premium that we actually have begun to think of our "take-home pay" as being our real salary."

PAMPA, TEXAS, DAILY NEWS: "Everything the government gets into the business of trying to distribute the milk of human kindness, the milk turns sour. There is no substitute for individual responsibility."

issued by the city for construction amounting to $1,984,200. Permit issued so far this year already have topped the $2 million mark and of course will go higher before December 31.

It is significant that while commercial building contributed a portion of the record-making construction, dwellings and apartment units accounted for the major part of construction were authorized through October. Permits were issued for the construction of 153 dwellings and 16 apartments. That's an average of slightly more than three and one-half homes being constructed every week in Greenville for the first 10 months of the year.

Continued construction of new homes can mean but one thing. More people are moving to Greenville to occupy the new dwellings or to live in the dwellings formerly occupied by families which have moved into new houses. During the past five years Greenville has not been a boom town like some other small cities, but its growth has been steady as the building records of the city will show.

While construction of dwellings has made up the major part of construction begun in the city this year, the 19 permits issued for construction of commercial buildings during the first 10 months for an average of almost two new commercial buildings a month for the period. While the city is growing in terms of houses and people, it is likewise growing in the number and size of businesses.

The new building record already established for 1955 in Greenville is indicative of a healthy condition of growth within the community.

Was Dr. Bluford The Main Target?

By LYNN NISBET
TARGET—The interruption of Governor Hodges' speech at A&T College last Friday by snickering, foot stamping and hissing on part of the student body, has been a major topic of conversation in capitol square circles.

Opinion is unanimous that the interruption was definitely staged in advance and that probably some of those who participated failed to realize the implications and significance of the event, but somewhat thoughtlessly joined in the exhibition.

A good many people doubt that Governor Hodges, either as a person or as chief executive of the State, was the primary target. The thought is that if the speaker had been any other white person the same thing might have happened. The main purpose according to this line of thinking, was to embarrass and discredit President F.D. Bluford and the college administration.

It has been apparent for several years, much more so for the past twelve months, that the extremists among the Negroes bitterly resent Dr. Bluford's moderate approach to integration and his evident pride in the achievements of the college as a segregated institution. Similar resentment has been expressed against the white man business manager of the college and the fact that the majority of the trustees are white.

The paradox there is so obvious many people have overlooked it. Like not being able to see the forest for the trees, or to see the name of North Carolina spread across a map of the state in letters so big they get lost beside the names of the towns and counties printed in small type. The same groups which have insisted upon a complete Negro administration for A&T and other colleges are now demanding that there be no complete white schools operated by the State.

NEW APPROACH—Spokesmen for NAACP were quoted some time ago as saying there might be a cessation in institution of law suits to enforce integration and the problem approached from a different angle.

Is the new approach to be the heckling of public speakers who do not say just exactly what the integration extremists want said? Is the plan to get more publicity out of incidents like that at A&T than can be obtained from institution of lawsuits, and further arouse emotion and passion in an effort to more quickly force action? Will this program, if it is a planned program, serve the best interests of the people of North Carolina?

These are some of the questions which are asked. The answers vary widely, except on the last point. There is unanimous opinion that the result will not be improved.

Other Editors Are Saying . . .
A Primer On Foreign Policy

(Hertford County Herald)
In this troubled world in which we live not many of us ordinary persons, such as the likes of us here in the Roanoke-Chowan who have our days filled with the problems of making enough money to meet our payments on new automobiles or the new television set or the new bath room added to the home or saving up to give the kids a college education, have the time to keep up with the news from the far corners of the earth and qualify as experts on foreign policy.

That, most of us are content to leave to the global flyer, Mr. Dulles, our Secretary of State, and to his helpers, all of whom we hire with our tax money to deal with this country's problems with the Russians, the Arabs, the Malaysians, the Chinese, the Japanese and other assorted foreign people.

The problems are many complicated and complex. It is too much to expect that the farmer and business man of the Roanoke-Chowan should know the answers for the many problems of foreign policy that arise to threaten the peace of the world and this nation. And the same applies for the editor of a small-town newspaper.

Nevertheless, none of us should overlook or forget the core of all the world's troubles and the basic facts which are responsible proved conditions, either in educational opportunities or race relations.

Minority groups can gain temporary control by fluke of elections or court decisions, but minorities cannot retain control in a democracy. Financial barons of the period between 1890 and 1910 discovered that to their sorrow, as did labor barons of the period between 1930 and 1950. In politics the Thad Stevens crowd in the late 1860's and the Joe McCarthy wing during the early 1950's found out the same thing in the same hard way.

Preponderant sentiment in North Carolina is in favor of equality of opportunity for all people but control by expressed will of the majority. Imposition of laws or policies contrary to majority opinion by force will not be long tolerated. And when the pendulum swings back it may go farther in the other direction than most people would like. At least that's what the folks around capitol square are saying.

POTPOURRI—Wade Bruton, assistant attorney general, was looking through an inactive file of personal papers the other day and found a telephone directory of friends and family of Hank Fort, German, dated April 1, 1946. He was stationed for some 15 months at Weesbaden, a few miles from Frankfurt, with rank of lieutenant-colonel, and in the directory he found many names of friends and family of Hank Fort. He is engaged now in re-establishing contact with some of them.

Edwin Fou, Raleigh Insurance man Wake county legislator, was asked how his campaign for State Auditor is progressing. "Well I have to wait until the last Saturday in May to answer that," he said. Which gave more color to the rumor that he will seek the office held by his father from 1934 until his death in 1947, and since occupied by Henry Bridges.

Carl Durham, congressman from the sixth district, has made an outstanding record with his service to the nation in developing atomic energy and stockpiling military materials. He confesses he is proudest of a job accomplished as county commissioner of Wake county years before he went to congress. He was largely instrumental in getting WPA funds for extending an electric power line from the University of North Carolina plant at Chapel Hill to Bechtel Oaks in 1933, that becoming the first rural electric line in the United States built by federal funds—some two years before the REA act was adopted. The University still owns and operates the line and they all have a great deal to do with one's happiness. But we make a great mistake when we attempt to answer these questions by comparing ourselves or other conditions with other people and their condition.

What difference does it make whether or not we have a lot of money, provided we have enough to live without too much discomfort? Has it ever occurred to you that many of these social successes are desperately frustrated and unhappy and that a lot of money, consequently, people are happy and contented in their souls?

Be yourself. Measure yourself by your own highest aspirations, and above all try to find out what the eternal standards of measurement are and see how you stack up against them.

Forget about man-made standards; think about God's standards.

By RAY TUCKER
ROME (AP)—A talented but not too well-known sculptor outside of art circles in America and Europe—Beniamino Bufano of San Francisco—believes that our great modern structures will be recognized some day as rivaling or surpassing Europe's more famous buildings.

He thinks that New York-Chicago skyscrapers the university buildings of the South, Middle and Far West and our windowed factories compare favorably with St. Paul's and Westminster in London, with Notre Dame and the Chartres Cathedral in France, and the storied structures on Rome's seven hills.

No Special Mold For Heroes

Conquistadores. Say it again and again, and a ghostly array of armored giants will pass before your mind's eye. Here and there a gaunt and weary warrior, an occasional primitive cannon, carts laden with the loot of empires, footsoldiers plodding across the pages of history. . . Their swords, daggers, armor and untrustworthy fire-arms earned them a place among the immortals of America.

Fearless beyond compare, the epitomes of greed and ambition, about 2,000 of these adventurers conquered empires that could count millions of subjects. Cortes never had more than 1500 Spaniards in his command when he defeated tens of thousands of Aztecs and took their capital by storm. Pizarro with less than 400 soldiers marched into the heart of the Inca Empire, seized its ruler and claimed all for Spain. Quesada, with only 166 men, crossed 500 miles of swamps and wild mountains to defeat the native Chibchas and found the present capital of Colombia. Balboa claimed an entire ocean for Spain; Cabeza de Vaca tramped across 10,000 miles of what is now the United States and a great part of Mexico, procured a South American where he made another 1,000-mile trek across the Brazilian jungles to Paraguay. Orellana crossed the Andes from Peru, traveled 3,000 miles down the Amazon to the Atlantic coast of Brazil.

History has never seen such men. You would think they had been cast from a special mold to fill the heroic roles they were to play. Not so.

These conquerors came from among the lower classes. Not a really noble family among them. The adventurers who served in the ranks were as representative of the poor and middleclass as you could find anywhere in the Iberian peninsula during the sixteenth century.

Were they tall, powerfully-built fighting men as would "naturally" match the super-human feats of their saga? I don't know. I only know what I saw.

In St. Augustine, Florida, the first Spanish settlement in North America (founded 1565), there are a few pieces of armor dating back to the approximate time of the Conquistadores. Among them is a complete suit of Spanish armor. It would fit a boy standing maybe 5 feet three or four inches tall.

Today's adults are almost universally of greater height than their parents and a lot of today's young people are already taller than their mother or father. Looking at it from that aspect it seems logical to assume the 16th century peoples could have been "small" by our standards.

Maybe they weren't physical giants as we envisage them. But the spirit of the Conquistador was here and could match the best in Norse or Greek mythology.

Today's adults are almost universally of greater height than their parents and a lot of today's young people are already taller than their mother or father. Looking at it from that aspect it seems logical to assume the 16th century peoples could have been "small" by our standards.

Maybe they weren't physical giants as we envisage them. But the spirit of the Conquistador was here and could match the best in Norse or Greek mythology.

No Special Mold For Heroes

Conquistadores. Say it again and again, and a ghostly array of armored giants will pass before your mind's eye. Here and there a gaunt and weary warrior, an occasional primitive cannon, carts laden with the loot of empires, footsoldiers plodding across the pages of history. . . Their swords, daggers, armor and untrustworthy fire-arms earned them a place among the immortals of America.

Fearless beyond compare, the epitomes of greed and ambition, about 2,000 of these adventurers conquered empires that could count millions of subjects. Cortes never had more than 1500 Spaniards in his command when he defeated tens of thousands of Aztecs and took their capital by storm. Pizarro with less than 400 soldiers marched into the heart of the Inca Empire, seized its ruler and claimed all for Spain. Quesada, with only 166 men, crossed 500 miles of swamps and wild mountains to defeat the native Chibchas and found the present capital of Colombia. Balboa claimed an entire ocean for Spain; Cabeza de Vaca tramped across 10,000 miles of what is now the United States and a great part of Mexico, procured a South American where he made another 1,000-mile trek across the Brazilian jungles to Paraguay. Orellana crossed the Andes from Peru, traveled 3,000 miles down the Amazon to the Atlantic coast of Brazil.

History has never seen such men. You would think they had been cast from a special mold to fill the heroic roles they were to play. Not so.

These conquerors came from among the lower classes. Not a really noble family among them. The adventurers who served in the ranks were as representative of the poor and middleclass as you could find anywhere in the Iberian peninsula during the sixteenth century.

Were they tall, powerfully-built fighting men as would "naturally" match the super-human feats of their saga? I don't know. I only know what I saw.

In St. Augustine, Florida, the first Spanish settlement in North America (founded 1565), there are a few pieces of armor dating back to the approximate time of the Conquistadores. Among them is a complete suit of Spanish armor. It would fit a boy standing maybe 5 feet three or four inches tall.

Today's adults are almost universally of greater height than their parents and a lot of today's young people are already taller than their mother or father. Looking at it from that aspect it seems logical to assume the 16th century peoples could have been "small" by our standards.

Prospects If Eisenhower Can't Run

By ELMER ROESSNER

If Dwight D. Eisenhower announces that he does not choose to be a candidate in the election 363 days from today, there will be long series of consequences affecting all business.

Some of the consequences will arise from the fact that the unity of the Republican Party—which has been nothing to marvel about anyway—will fade away. In fact, we are likely to have a whole series of little Republican Parties, each striving to outdo the others and the Democrats as well in bids for popular support.

Democratic unity may be no greater; in fact, it may be less.

WHAT WE MAY EXPECT . . . It is, of course impossible to predict exactly what such a situation would produce, but there are some likely developments:

1. Chances for a cut in income taxes will improve, and the cut may be larger than otherwise. Vote-buyers in all groups will be highly conscious of this prime way of gaining friends and encouraging political contributions.
2. Farm supports will be larger and firmer. Again, with less party unity, few Congressmen will care to flout the farm vote.
3. Congress will be inclined to do a lot of spending in other directions where such action will reflect to the personal credit of those who sponsor and vote for such proposals.
4. There will be less effort to balance the budget. Political hopefuls will be willing to risk a little more inflation to gain wider support.

COUNTERACTIONS READY When Mr. Eisenhower was stricken, the stock market fell; when it became apparent his recovery was likely, the market rose. Therefore, if he is announced he will not run again, there may be another dip.

However, this possibility has been discounted in part, by Wall Street, so that the market reaction may be violent. On the other hand it is likely that business would become somewhat cautious if Mr. Eisenhower declines. Corporate executives, not knowing what treatment their companies may expect from a different kind of man with money, will be inclined to postpone capital commitments until after the election. This would slow down business.

But if there is any dip, it is certain that government spending will be stepped up. The executive branch is likely to accelerate expenditures of funds already appropriated and all the blocs in Congress will support programs for more government financing of roads, housing, public buildings, reclamation, etc.

A Busy Week Noted By Chicod Students

Chicod School

Toot, toot! Rat tat tat! No, I'm not going crazy. That's the sound of our band. We have just organized our's this year. I don't know much about it and I guess they are doing just fine, but when did the moos of cows, and the squeaks of pigs become a normal sound around school?

Everyone is suffering from sore feet from the Teenage Sock Hop held last Friday night. The "ole juke box" was really rocking. It seems that every one had a good time. There aren't too many sore toes.

Our Junior Class must be very determined to visit New York next year. They are now digging sweet potatoes to earn money. Earlier they tied tobacco and sold goods of different kinds. I hope they reach their goal. (I'm a junior myself.)

Many of our students visited our Capital City, Raleigh, last week to see the Ice Capades. The eighth grade chartered a bus and went. I hear they had a good time. They were accompanied by their teachers, Mrs. Kathryn Edwards and Charlie Moye.

All the FHA girls, high school teachers and practice teachers were invited, by the sophomore home economics girls to a tea last week. They served lemonade, cookies and some dainty mints.

The new FHA officers were installed in an inspiring service Thursday. The new officers are: president, Shelby Haddock; vice president, Betsy Spain; secretary, Freddie Cox; treasurer, Eloise Mills; song leader, Mary Jean Bryant; historians, Evelyn Haddock, Mary Ann Edwards and Alice Faye Wiggins; parliamentarian, Pat Mills; reporter, Della Ann Stokes, and pianist, Peggy Dixon.

The third year home economics girls are working hard on their winter suits and seem to be making fine progress.

We're all excited. We play our first basketball game Friday night. The girls and boys are working hard to have a great team this year. The whole school is behind them.

The cheerleaders are coming out in new uniforms this year. We are very proud of our school colors. The cheerleaders have a new squad member this year, Betty Lou Reel. Nancy Sue Dixon, Peggy Jean Dixon, Alice Faye Wiggins, Kathy Porter, Shelby Stocks and Iva Lou Brunson are the other cheerleaders.

All our group pictures came back for the yearbook and are very good. The teachers had theirs made in their classrooms. The class officers had theirs made in or on some kind of vehicle. As it looks now we will have a very nice yearbook. All of us agree that Hazel Wilson, editor of the yearbook has done an excellent job.

This week is American Education Week. Our parents are out visiting our school to see what we are doing.

Our teachers attended a local NCEA meeting Monday afternoon after school, where they discussed the problems of teaching, spelling, and the use of phonics in school. They met in the home economics cottage and were served hot coffee and cookies by Mrs. Anne Hodges, the home economics teacher.

Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Groet in the evening's activities were Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Griffing and Mrs. John Duke of Ayden. In attendance were around twenty-five young people.

SEASON'S END BRINGS SAD TIDINGS TO COACHES

The last game of a football season is usually sad for the coach, whether his team wins or not. Because, in most instances, at least one valuable player completes his college grid days.

Such is the case of Coach Jack Boone at East Carolina College. Last Saturday night's finale brought to a close the career of his most outstanding protégé, Louie Hallow of Goldsboro.

The big senior Human graduates in may with a B. S. degree in Physical Education. He's going to leave a lot of slack in the Pirates' 1956 club as he is generally considered one of the finest center and defensive linemen even to don the East Carolina colors.

His agile, explosive type of football has impressed fans from Johnson City Tennessee to Tampa, Florida, and has earned him a chance with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Pro Football League. He is expected to talk contract with Ram officials very soon and will be leaving in July to join the club for pre-season practice.

According to his coaches, he has the makings of a professional. "There's no question about his staying with the Rams, unless he gets hurt," Coach Boone said. "He's the best pro prospect we've ever had here."

Line coach Jim Mallory, who thinks Hallow is the finest line-backer he's ever seen, said, "He could be great with them. He's big enough, tough enough and, as anybody who's played against him will readily verify, good enough."

Coach Earl Smith, another assistant coach, commented, "He has the best chance of any center in this area of sticking in pro football."

A REAL ALL-ROUND COACH'S PLAYER

"Hallow is a very consistent player, good blocker, tackler and is heady," Boone continued. "He loves contact and possesses a real desire for the game. These things, plus his natural skill, make him a great performer."

"He is one of the best downfield blockers we've ever had here. His ability to diagnose plays on defense also makes him outstanding. I've seen very few players who could diagnose plays, but he's one of them. He has sort of a sixth sense, and where that ball is, he is."

As an illustration of the coach's confidence in Hallow, the Pirates would go up the middle on trap plays and where the play called for double team blocking, Boone would use only Hallow to do the job, leaving the other would-be blockers free.

Mallory, who has probably worked closer with Hallow than anybody else in the past three years, says, "There isn't a better center in North Carolina and he's the best line-backer that has been in the North State Conference in many a day."

"He played about 56 minutes in each of our games and carried out his assignments every time. He held our defense together. When he was out, you couldn't tell it was the same ball club."

"One big reason he's so effective, he doesn't get hurt," Mallory continued. "He used less tape than anybody on our team. Also, his willingness to sacrifice and to give the game all he's got caused him to stand out over others. Football would be a better game the nation over if there were more players like him."

Coach Smith is just as high in his opinion of Hallow as Boone and Mallory. "He's the best center I've ever had anything to do with," he said point blank. "He is a great defensive quarterback and has football sense. He has that line-backer's nose to smell plays and defends very well against passes up the middle."

HALLOW FOR CONFERENCE, STATE, NATIONAL HONORS

The coaching staff and many other Pirates supporters are plugging Hallow for post-season honors. He appears a shoe-in for All-Conference laurels and is a good bet for All-State.

Boone thinks he is good enough for Little All-American honors, as do lots of others who have watched him play. Among whom are Bobby Hicks, assistant sports editor of the Tampa Tribune, a daily of more than 100,000 circulation. Hicks saw him play last week against Tampa. The folks up at East Tennessee also think a lot of the big fellow. Boone said several of the coaches there declared him the best line-backer they'd ever seen.

Hallow has received notices from many North Carolina scribes. Moses Crutchfield of the Greensboro Daily News, Herman Helms of the Charlotte Observer and Bob Brooks of the News and Observer, to mention a few.

We go along with the general consensus of feeling that if Hallow isn't Little All-American and All-State material, nobody in North Carolina is. He has been outstanding in every game this season. Without him, East Carolina would have really experienced a bad year.

Boone, Mallory and Smith sadly shake their heads when they think of next year and the task of replacing him. Surely he is one of East Carolina's all-timers.

Tiger Jones To Fight Saxton

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ralph (Tiger) Jones, an old favorite for armchair boxing fans, meets Johnny Saxton in a scheduled 10-round bout tonight at the Oakland Auditorium.

It'll be the second meeting between the two. If it's as close as the first, one television viewers (ABC-TV) are in for a pretty fair evening's entertainment.

Saxton who since then has won and lost the welterweight championship, got the decision in the initial meeting on a verdict as close as you could make it—one point.

Griffith Putting Together A Dressen-Style Ball Club

WASHINGTON (AP)—Calvin Griffith, the Washington Senators' new president, promised today to keep on dealing until he has Chuck Dressen's kind of ball club—youth, swift and eager.

Griffith made his first move yesterday, a four-for-five player swap with the Boston Red Sox. Right now, he's in the midst of negotiations with the Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees.

Nobody on the Washington club was willing to talk about what possible trades may be cooking, but it was considered likely that the two key players being offered by Washington are infielder Pete Runnels and pitcher Mickey McDermott.

Dressen, who took over as Washington's manager last season, likes a team that can field well, bang out singles and run. He won't turn down a long ball hitter, but he'd prefer the other sort.

The Senators figure the acquisition of Karl Olson and Neil Chrissy from Boston could give them a potentially speedy, sharp-hitting outfield, along with Carlos Paula, a Cuban Negro who impressed the Washington management last season.

Thus, the club's big problem now is in the infield.

Dressen and his aides are enthusiastic about young Jose Valdivia, who played well as a rookie shortstop last season. And they're satisfied with Roy Slevers at first and Eddie Yost at third.

That leaves second base, a position filled capably last season by Runnels. But Pete is a bit slow and has some difficulties making the double play pivot. The Senators, therefore, reportedly are eyeing the Yankees' Gil McDougald and the Indians' Bobby Avila.

Avila, although none too sharp on the double play pivot either is a good glove man and he can hit. He won the American League batting championship in 1954. McDougald is an excellent all around player. The Yankees might be willing to swap him for Runnels, a shortstop before moving to second.

Runnels hit .284 last season. McDougald .285 and Avila .272.

McDermott is considered likely to go because he and Dressen reportedly don't get along very well.

Golds Favored In Playoff

The Gold eleven proved the class of the Midget Football League in regular season play concluded last week. The team will also be heavily favored to cop the playoffs which get under way next week.

The Golds will meet the Blue team on Tuesday and the winner moves into the annual Thanksgiving Championship game in College Stadium.

Coaches Fred Williams, Ken Hall and Lem Cox have built the club into a well-balanced team with no individual stars. This system of team play has kept them on top since the season opened.

The Golds have won four, lost one and tied one. Among their victories is a game in the Halloween Exhibition Bowl.

The Golds have been well-trained and no serious injuries have occurred. Being able to keep their first eleven in good condition has also been a winning factor.

Starters Play Good

The starting backfield has played good ball all year. Tall Jack Whitley is one key man at quarterback. His passing has been one of the Golds' biggest threats all season. The running trio of right half Billy Neal James, left half Randy Bass and fullback Donald Speight has also been outstanding.

The Golds' starting front consists of Charles Taft and Burt Aycock, ends; Lannie Smith and Richard Taft, tackles; Johnnie Bryson and Jack Foley, guards; and Stuart Picklen, center. All have played well and been responsible for holding the opposition to 30 points while their offense romped for 90 points in seven games.

Reserves Do Job

The reserves have turned in creditable jobs, also. In the backfield, Roy Jones, Kroghie Andersen and Billy Kimbro have played a lot. Shelton Brown, Gordon Aycock, Sherron Bennett and Ricky Suave are linemen who've seen a lot of action.

The Golds will lose Randy Bass, Fred Williams, Lem Cox, Ken Hall, coaches.

Williamston high school's Green Wave travels to Windsor Friday night to meet non-conference foe, Scotland Neck. The Scotland Neck crew is a member of the Chowan Conference and is tied with Murfreesboro for the championship of that loop. This indicates a rugged match for the Greens.

Coach Roger Thrift's boys finished their Albemarle league schedule with a 2-2-1 record and has only two remaining games this season. After meeting Scotland Neck, they will journey to Robersonville to battle Weldon.

All of the Williamston home contests, during the later part of the year, are being played at guest fields, due to the condition of their own football field. A new gymnasium is being constructed at the site of the Green gridiron and a different location is being found for the field. It will be in use by next season.

Robersonville In Big Homecoming Game On Friday

Robersonville's Rams play host to the Penue (Rocky Mount) eleven this Friday night to climax Homecoming festivities for RHS at 8 o'clock.

Coach Bob Lee, who has had his charges undergoing long defensive sessions during the week, foresees a tough game this weekend. He stated Monday that his team would be in good shape, having most of the regulars in uniform "for a change." Lee's line will play an important role in meeting the Penue threat, for the visitors are reportedly strong in quick-opening power smashes.

House Leader

Robersonville's forces will depend heavily on the running of Fullback Don House. The tusk back has been the Ram offensive punch throughout the season and scored two touchdowns and an extra point last week to lead his team to a 20-13 win over Selma. Tailback Murphrey Smith will share the running chores with the big fullback.

The Penue defense is supposedly quite stingy with scores to opponents and will give the Ram offensive machine a real test.

Eppes Concludes Season Thursday

Eppes high school's Bulldogs will end their 1955 season, Thursday night, as they tackle the P. W. Moore Lions of Elizabeth City at Guy Smith Stadium. The visiting Elizabeth City squad is undefeated, boasting a 7-0-1 record.

Drills this week for Eppes featured defensive line work, as Coach Foster and Daniels hope to stop the high-powered EC attack. The Bulldogs are expected to be in top shape Thursday night, with the return of Rudy Streeter and William L. Moore. Both boys were absent last week, when Eppes dumped Wilson, 14-0, in Wilson.

Only one injury will mar the local line-up. Joe Baker, a defensive stalwart in the Wilson contest, was hurt last week and may not see action Thursday. John Jenkins and Fred Outerbridge are expected to lead the offensive parade against P. W. Moore.

Nominate Six More Players For All-America

Richmond, Va. (AP)—Six more football players have been nominated for All-America consideration by the Southern Conference regional screening board.

The six include quarterback Tommy Theodore of Richmond, halfback Dickie Beard, end Grover Jones and guard Jim Locke, all of Virginia Tech and halfback Budgie Broome and freshman tackle Pete Davidson both of The Citadel. They were nominated after outstanding performances in last weekend's action.

'Skull Drill' For Greenville Eleven

By BILLY ARNOLD

Coach Guy Lewis began practice yesterday for his Greenville Phantoms by initiating a one-hour skull drill. During the blackboard session, the youthful mentor expressed confidence in his crew that they could take the coming game with Wilson.

Tuesday was defensive day in the Green camp, with tackling and pass defense heading the list of maneuvers. There were head-on-tackling drills, and also exercises that sent the backfield through a gauntlet of tacklers. Running well in the warm-up practices were Big Billy Sermons, Phantom fullback, and Pete West, co-captain and halfback.

Secondary Was Weak

Greenville's defensive secondary has been weak all season according to Coach Lewis, and was one of the main reasons for the 57-0 rout suffered at the hands of Goldsboro last week. Our line played probably the best game of the season," Lewis stated, "but tackling was not good in the secondary."

The Green defensive backs were a major part of the tackle drills yesterday and also underwent some exercises in pass work.

Offensive Drills

Tomorrow, the Greenies will work in light equipment, and will stress an offensive attack. Phantom opponents may see plenty of passes from the long arm of quarterback Mack Roebucks. The 135 pound sophomore has been improving steadily with every contest and will be working on his airmail much of the time this week. Roebuck's most consistent receivers will probably be Ike Riddick and Edwin Wilkerson.

Linemen who will probably start against the AAA Wilson eleven, are Jack Cahoun, Barney Barrett, Howard King, Roy Martin, Angus Duff, Riddick and Wilkerson.

THE QUICKSILVER POOL

Newly married Lora accompanied her husband, Wade Tyler, to his family home on States Island after nursing him back to health from a serious wound he received while fighting as a Union soldier. She needs Wade's automatic mother, Amanda Tyler, and Jenny, son of Wade and his dead first wife, Virginia. Wade forbids Lora to walk up the hill near the house but offers no explanation.

CHAPTER THREE
Lora went upstairs more puzzled than hurt. The web of mystery that the members of this household seemed so busy weaving troubled her.

A light, scratchy tap called her to the door and she opened it to find Jenny standing there holding a plump bottle of liquid. Grandmother had sent it, he said, for her to rub on her hands.

"Do I have to call you 'Mama'?" Jenny asked.

"I used to have a little brother just a bit younger than you. He used to call me 'Lorie,' and that was a pet name my father used, too. So why couldn't he be brother and sister, and then it would be all right for you to call me Lorie?"

He considered the matter solemnly, but he did not say what he thought of the name. "Would you like to see my turtles?" he asked, and Lora expressed immediate enthusiasm.

"I used to have some turtles myself when I was a little girl. Run and get them while I move things around."

He was back almost at once with a pan which contained rocks and sand and a sunken saucer. Jenny set it on the floor and Lora let her unpacking go so she could be introduced to the three little brown-shelled creatures who had been jarred into pulling in their heads and feet.

"That one's Sir Lancelot," Jenny said, pointing, though the three looked exactly alike to Lora. "And that's Merlin over there on the rock."

"Don't you have a dog or a cat, too?" Lora asked.

"Oh, no. Grandmother doesn't like animals. My grandfather kept too many. But turtles are very quiet, so she doesn't mind them."

"Now I've met Merlin and Sir Lancelot, but you haven't told me the name of your third turtle."

"That's Guinevere," said Jenny, and prodded the queenly one into a scramble across the sand.

"What—no King Arthur?" Lora asked lightly and was surprised at the stricken look Jenny gave her.

"King Arthur died," he told her. Then he picked up the pan abruptly and carried it away, and though she left the door ajar, he did not return.

Warrant Is Out For Dan'l Boon
RADFORD, Va. (AP)—There is a warrant out for Daniel Boone's arrest in Montgomery County, Virginia dated August 4, 1775. Boone and a fellow named William Cowan, owed Alexander Baine, a Fincastle merchant, 45 pounds, 18 shillings and 10 pence plus 50 shillings damages. The legend is that this debt was for supplies used by Boone in his westward trek. The warrant was never served and it explains why on the back. "Go to Kentucky," it says. Judge C.W. Crush has a photostate of the warrant.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Robert L. Manley pleaded guilty to indictments of four burglaries at a laundry.
Dist. Judge Edmund Duggan asked him why he picked on that particular place.
"I had a grudge against the laundry," Manley said. "I went there one day just past closing time and a man wouldn't give me my clothes."
Duggan gave Manley 10 years.

MISS INFORMATION

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—Failure to keep his two juvenile partners in crime informed caused the downfall of a modern Fagin. He did not tell the youngsters where he stole the tires he wanted them to sell for him. Police were called in when the boys tried to sell the tires to the same firm from which they were stolen.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U) — The stock market, was higher today with a few leaders displaying unusual strength.

Outside of the exceptionally wide gainers, prices were up between one and two points at the best. There were small losses scattered in the list.

Trading was quite brisk at a pace around 2,500,000 shares for the day.

General Motors was extremely active. The new stock, resulting from the three-for-one split of the old, opened on 35,000 shares up one at 47 1/2, and 1/4 was active later at that figure. Directors declared a $1 year-end dividend on the stock Monday after the close.

Union Pacific a split candidate, was bid up in a great flurry of activity in the second hour. One block of 1,000 shares went at 170 up 5 1/2, and the stock almost doubled that gain within a short time.

International Paper ran into a lot of disappointed selling in the first hour after directors declared the usual cash and stock dividends. The stock quickly lost between 5 and 6 points but rallied from its lows.

Boeing was in demand on the strength of the order by American Airlines for 30 jet transports worth 135 million dollars.

Olin Mathieson Chemical, which disclosed plans to get into the aluminum business, was higher from the start.

Brokers took note of the arguments between Democrats and Republicans over the significance, if any, of the elections. No great market impact was found.

RALEIGH (U) — (NCDA) — Hog prices 25 to 50 lower. Tops of 13.75 at Beaufort, Goldsboro, Rich Square and Rocky Mount; 13.50 at Castle Hayne, Hamilton, Tarboro, Enfield, Kenly, Shallotte, Farmville, Snow Hill, Mount Olive, Mount Gilead, Elizabethtown, Micro, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Lumberton, Fayetteville and Clinton; 13.25 at Smithfield, Tabor City, Dunn, Clarkton, Nuhuma, Warsaw, Whiteville, Newton Grove and Bailey.

RALEIGH (U) — (NCDA) — Central North Carolina poultry markets: fryers and broilers steady, farm price 20, no f.o.b. plant sales reported; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 53-55.

Asheville fryers and broilers steady, farm price 20, f.o.b. plant 21 1/2; eggs steady, A large 48-50.

YOUNG VICTIM — WHITEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Three year old Art Pizer Jr. was killed yesterday when he ran in front of an automobile, the Highway Patrol reported today. The accident occurred on a rural road 4 1/2 miles south of Hallsville.

The oil filter on your car will remove a pound or more of sludge from the oil in 5,000 miles of driving.

Says U.S. Lags In Its Training

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (U) — A member of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy says Russia leads America in training new engineers and physicists.

Otherwise, he said, this country leads Russia by two years in applying atomic energy to peacetime uses.

Rep. James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) told the Knoxville Sales Executives Club last night that "our only deficit is in graduating young men and women as engineers and physicists. Future indications point to 400,000 less persons in this field than Russia will produce."

Reporting on the recent international peacetime atomic exhibition at Geneva, Switzerland, Van Zandt said atomic energy is advancing rapidly "not only in the field of power, but in agriculture, medicine, and numerous other fields."

He added that the U.S. atomic submarines, Nautilus and Seawolf, already are outdated by new advances.

Asked about the ability of the United States to continue atomic research and progress without foreign uranium deposits, he declared: "This nation can exist entirely with deposits available on the North American continent."

Missing Youth Returns; Just Took A Joyride — CHESTER, S. C. (U) — Ralph Harris Webb, 16, rested his tired feet at home here today while authorities checked his story. An apparent joyride in the family car resulted in a widespread search for the high school boy, missing since Sunday.

Highway patrolmen said they picked up Webb last night as he was walking along a highway near Jonesville in Union County. He had been walking since 5 a.m. that morning, officers quoted him.

They said young Webb told them he was returning home when he ran out of gas and had to abandon the family automobile near Chesapeake. The vehicle was found. The youth also reportedly related he had driven from Chester to Asheville, N.C., and Kingsport and Knoxville, Tenn.

Missing Youth Returns; Just Took A Joyride

Rejected Plan — COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio voters in Tuesday's election decisively rejected a CIO plan for supplemental layoff pay and bigger unemployment benefits.

Unofficial returns to Secretary of State Ted W. Brown from 11,506 of the state's 11,626 polling places showed the double-barreled union proposal lost by 63 per cent.

The count was: yes 857,067, no 1,436,099.

Union officials expressed better their Ohio defeat would delay but not prevent the simultaneous payment plan from going into effect on the June 1, 1954, deadline under General Motors and Ford guaranteed annual wage pacts.

Such labor contracts, designed to give jobless workers 60 to 65 per cent of their take-home pay, are conditioned on approval of dual payments by states in which two-thirds of a company's employees work.

Grifton Seniors To Stage A Bake Sale

By DAWN SMITH — Grifton School Classmates of Faye McElhannon are glad to see her back in school. Faye has been out for the past week with streptococcal throat. Members of the junior class presented her with a pair of plush white dogs as a get-well gift.

Lonnie Jackson has returned home from a three day visit with friends in Kentucky.

Lynda Koon celebrated her fifteenth birthday by giving a party Saturday night at the school gym. Delightful refreshments were served to her guests. Various recreations were enjoyed by every one!

The Senior class will hold a Bake Sale on Saturday morning to earn money for the class treasury. Cakes, pies and cookies will be sold. The "Baking Center" will be located in the front of Don Casey's shop.

Mrs. Paul Bradley, senior English teacher, has been needing a hammer lately, for the "poor-old" seniors are now studying "The Canterbury Tales" by Chaucer. Maybe we should pity Mrs. Bradley because she is the one who had to pound it into our brains. Needless to say, that is a tremendous job.

The first joint Future Homemakers of America and the Future Farmers of America Rally will be held tonight at Greenville High School. Each member is invited to come and bring a guest. There will be a short business meeting. Afterwards refreshments will be served and those present will enjoy dancing and other recreation.

The boys who received suits were Jimmy McLamhorn, Robert Reaves, Billy Reaves, Jesse Wade, J. C. Adams, Donald Cannon, Troy Dennis, Gilbert Quigley, Herbert Purkin, Wayne Ervin, Earl Tucker, Braxton, Linwood Branch, Tommy Bogey, Fred Taylor, Walter Craft and Lonnie Jackson.

April virus in November. Take a virus away from a New Yorker this time of year and what have you got left? Only a guy with a lonesome feeling. A virus is more than a form of social prestige here. It's a social necessity.

The common cold is highly uncommon in New York. A gent who isn't fast enough to latch on to a virus is expected to stay healthy.

Now about our uncivilized weather. Other cities enjoy a climate. We don't really have a climate. We have a series of used up and discarded weathers from other areas.

It is possible to find seven different kinds of weather in San Francisco on an average day. But what does San Francisco do with all its weathers when it is through with them? It stirs a wind and blows them to Los Angeles.

So does Canada. So does the Middle West. So does Florida. So does Europe. This is the world's melting ground of weathers.

Maybe Tucson, Ariz. can try an egg on the pavement during a heat wave. We can't do that. The humidity won't allow it. But we can bust an egg on the sidewalk and soft boil it. Can any other city honestly make this claim?

Smog? We mail our surplus to Los Angeles.

If you come here from out of town and get homesick for your favorite virus or favorite weather, don't complain. Wet your finger and hold it up. Good or bad, wind will blow it this way soon. Everything blows to New York City.

Just Call Her Dead-Eye Dot — WHEELER, Okla. (U) — Mrs. Dorothy Hendrix, deputy treasurer of Okfuskee County, has a new name today.

"It's 'dead-eye Dot'" in recognition for her pistol-shooting ability. Mrs. Hendrix found a wolf prowling in her back yard, grabbed her .22 caliber pistol and plugged the critter five times.

She snipped off its ears, took them to the courthouse and collected $2.50 — the first woman in the county's history to receive a bounty payment.
