RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina farm leaders are in favor of a proposed soil bank program under which farmers would receive payments for removing a part of their land from production.

Baltimore Lad Is Poster Boy

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis today named 5-year-old Tommy Woodward of Baltimore as its poster boy for the 1956 March of Dimes.

Dulles Expected Begin Plans For Far East Trip

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles, returning from Geneva tomorrow, is expected to start arranging promptly a trip to the Far East.

James and Young Haddock were passengers in a pick-up truck operated by Truman Haddock, 36, of Ayden Route 2 when it collided with the Pennsylvania car. The Magees were traveling alone at the time of the accident.

The Magees' car was apparently coming from Washington on US 264 and Haddock headed toward Greenville on NC 43.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
November 16, 1925

Eight scouts shared the honor of being the first Ayden boys to attain the ranks of First Class Scouts while five scouts were promoted from Tenderfoot to Second Class rank at the Court of Honor held in Ayden High School Tuesday afternoon. The scouts who were awarded the coveted First Class Badge were Senior Patrol Wm. McKinney; Scribe, Robert L. Cannon; Patrol Leaders, Foy Barwick, Ralph Collins, John Sawyer and Second Class Scouts Beverly Sauls, Ray Johnson and Thomas Turnage. Tenderfoot Scouts McRay Stokes, Russell Britt, Robert Lang, Leon Dunn and Jack Collins were advanced to Second Class Scouts. In addition to the advancements made Waldo McLawhorn, Dump Patrick, William Smith, Thomas Worthington, Mark Tripp, Raymond Hart, James Cannon, William Bullock, Lindsey Stallings and Robert McKinney were admitted to the troop as Tenderfoot Scouts. While the Ayden troop has been in existence only a year, they have made tremendous strides and may well be proud of the record they have made. John Coward, M. McKinney and John Wilcox conducted the Court of Honor, assisted by Scoutmasters Sawyer and Long.

News From Ayden

By MRS. JAMES EVERETT Mrs. MARVIN McCOEMICK

Mrs. Ross Baker, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Collins, has returned to her home in Fairmont.

W. P. Shelton was a Washington, D. C. visitor during the weekend.

Miss Christine Stokes and Simon Barnes of Durham and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Stokes and son Charles were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Everett.

Mr. and Mrs. V. F. Dunn and son Charles of Goldsboro were the weekend guests of Mrs. W. B. Tyson.

The Auxiliary of the American Legion Victory Post No. 289 will hold its monthly meeting November 16 at 7 p.m. in the Legion Hut in Ayden. Supper will be served.

Due to the Thanksgiving holidays the meeting has been moved up a week.

Plans for the Special Gifts to Veterans Hospital in this area will be made. Gifts to veterans, for their families, provide much cheer and good will during the Christmas season. Please attend this meeting and support the Auxiliary's work in this project.

Mr. Fohleman, pastor of the Ayden Methodist Church, will speak after the business meeting. His address will be "For God and Country."

On Friday afternoon Mrs. W. W. Salsbury was hostess to her bridge club and other guests when she entertained at three tables of bridge at her home on N. Lee Street.

The Thanksgiving motif was used in the decoration scheme.

During the game Coca-Colas and potato chips were served, and at the conclusion of the party a congealed salad plate with assorted sandwiches, date bars and hot coffee were served the guests.

The prizes were given to Mesdames B. G. Taylor, C. Y. Griffin and Fred Yorks.

The guests included Mesdames Taylor, Griffin, Yorks, J. D. Cannon, S. M. Edwards, Sam Pierce, L. C. Baldree, James W. Everett, J. D. Gardner, Allen Johnson, M. C. Phillips, and John Perkins.

Mrs. T. Staton Ross entertained the Odds and Ends Bridge Club at a two course bridge party at her home on E. Third Street on Saturday evening.

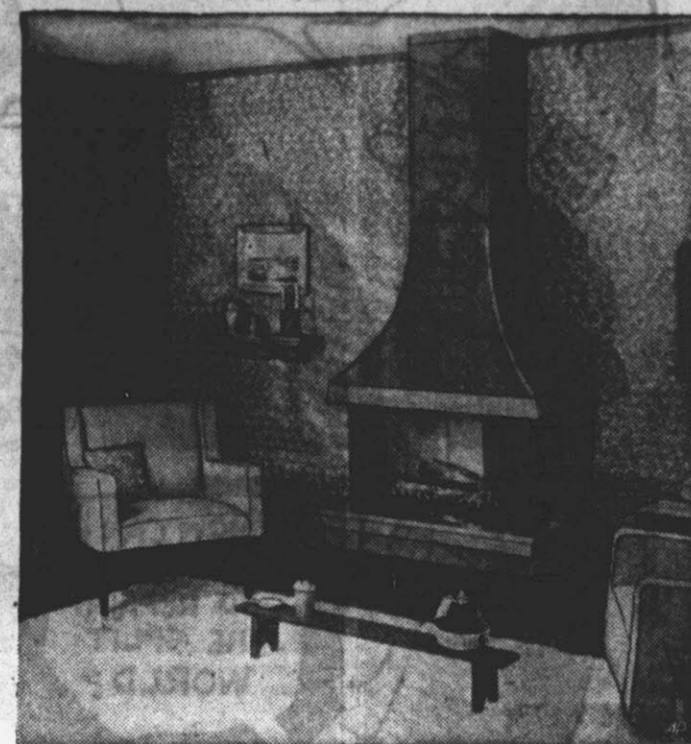

Floral arrangements and the Thanksgiving motif were used in decorating the home where two tables of bridge were in play later in the evening.

Mrs. Rosa J. Little was given a decorated tray for the club high score prize and Mrs. M. C. Phillips received a pitcher for the guest high. The runner-up prize, a letter rack, went to Mrs. Helen L. Jones.

During the game the hostess served salted nuts and Coca-Colas to Mesdames Little, Phillips, Jones, Kath Brunson, James W. Everett, Jack M. Collins, Misses Clyde Stokes and Edith Dunn.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. SAREUTHER, Real Estate Editor

PREFABRICATED FIREPLACE—You can set it up in any room.

Old man winter is beginning to send a few advance chills through the cracks and crevices around our windows and doors to remind us that it's a good time to start a blaze in the fireplace. Nothing like an open fire to recall your savage (or at least Boy Scout) background. You have no fireplace? Well, Hal Boyle says you can't throw a log on the television! Maybe you'd like to look into prefabricated fireplaces. Everything seems to be prefabricated nowadays — meals, cocktails, grass for the lawn (you can buy it in rolls) — so, even fireplaces come in a package. A prefabricated fireplace can be set up in almost any room. It has an Underwriters' Laboratory approval for safety, can be installed in four to six hours, calls for no expensive masonry work, and if you want to tackle the job you can make it as do-it-yourself project. The smell and crackle of logs on the andirons seem to be big factors in making a house a home. Some people are afraid of the crackle. For example, this writer has a mother who bothers farmers for miles around to get her a nice stock of white birch logs for her fireplace. She says white birch does not crackle and throw sparks all over her carpet. Bless her, but we'll take oak logs any day. The more noise and sparks the merrier. Just spread an old rug in front of the hearth and let the logs sputter.

You can get prefabricated logs, too. They have them at most hardware stores.

Prefabricated fireplaces are made of outer shells of prime coated steel, ready to take paint to match any interior. Stainless steel trim gives the setup a smart accent. The firebox is lined with suitable ceramic material to stand the heat and the unit comes equipped with a flexible hearth screen to keep sparks from jumping into your lap.

The chimney for this kind of a fireplace can be installed against any wall surface — combustible or not. It can be recessed into the wall or kept above the floor (raised fireplaces seem to be swanky in the newer houses) and the firebox is big enough to take logs 27 inches long.

Youths Arrested In Larceny Case

Two area youths have been arrested in connection with the larceny of fender skirts from White Chevrolet Co. property, city police reported today.

The two, Robert Lee Brantley, 17, of 2001 Dickinson Avenue and Kenneth Ray Wells, 16, of Route 2, were picked up in connection with a larceny reported Saturday.

Freedom To Do As He Wishes

OMAHA (AP) — The cops found $646.11 in cash in the pocket of Angelo DeMelelo, itinerant railroad worker. They took him to the station for "safekeeping."

Angelo was asked by Judge Patrick O'Connor why he didn't put his money in a bank. He replied:

"It is too much bother to write checks. I am no criminal. I am an American. We Americans have freedom to do as we wish as long as we obey the law. Yes!" Police quickly released him.

India estimates there are a million cases of leprosy in the country. Between 5 and 10 per cent of normal children are far sighted.

Adlai's Campaign Began Years Ago

Adlai Stevenson has made it official now that he will be the man to beat for the Democratic nomination come next summer.

The announcement by Stevenson has been long awaited in political circles although there was little doubt about what the statement would contain. Although Stevenson's hopes for once more heading the Democratic ticket have been shaken somewhat during the past couple of months by Gov. Harriman of New York and former President Truman, it is obvious that he is still running several lengths ahead of his nearest opponent for the nomination.

The announcement made yesterday should enable Stevenson to strengthen his lead.

Stevenson, in effect, has been running for the nomination and for the office of president since 1952. Even after his defeat by President Eisenhower in the 1952 election, Stevenson continued to campaign quietly looking forward to 1956. He has continued to do so, and that quiet campaigning has made him a stronger candidate than he was at the time of the last election. At the same time, Stevenson has been following an intensive program pointed toward grooming himself for the presidency of the United States. He made a careful study of foreign situations in trips abroad, and he has kept abreast of domestic problems as well.

In spite of the fact that he will have to overcome Harriman, Kefauver, and various other candidates and factions within the Democratic party in order to receive the nomination next summer, it is apparent from his announcement that he intends to fight hard for the nomination if it is necessary to do so. He does not contemplate—if we interpret his statement correctly—that the nomination will be handed to him at the 1956 convention.

While other hopefuls in the circle of possible Democratic nominees continue to be coy, Stevenson has firmly stated his intentions and may be expected to follow up the announcement by intensifying his campaign for the nomination.

Whether his opposition for the nomination strengthens its position or begins to wilt as Stevenson begins anew his campaign remains to be seen. At any rate, his announcement this week assures there will be no dearth of political activity from now until convention time.

Complacent Farmer Is Worrying Them

By LYNN NISBET
APATHETIC FARMERS — L. Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, and Alonzo C. Edwards, a past president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, along with other recognized agriculture leaders are somewhat concerned about the complacency of farmers, particularly tobacco growers, in view of the existing economic conditions.

Two straws which indicate a direction of breezes in this overall situation are the membership rosters of the two main farmer organizations, the Orange and the Farm Bureau.

The older, and so far as North Carolina is concerned the much smaller Orange, is holding its membership but not increasing it. At the recent state meeting in Goldsboro formal resolutions were adopted and there were expressions of keen interest in long range programs, but less concern than had been expected for immediate action.

The Farm Bureau membership drive, ahead of the state convention scheduled for next week has admittedly been going slow. The roster of 1954 may be maintained, but the hoped for increase seems very unlikely. There is chance there may be an actual loss in total membership in this state.

Lack of desired support for these major organizations might be due to several factors. Individual farmers may be disappointed at results accomplished and feel that the membership dues represents waste of money. It might be that money among farmers is scarcer than in recent years, accounting for reduced membership and smaller attendance at state and national meetings.

When considered with other factors, the evidence is that many farmers do not fully realize their plight or the conditions they may face them next year and the next.

TOBACCO — The tobacco situation is unique. Tobacco growers have fared better this year than for a long time. Bumper crops of good quality, plus easy marketing processes and rigid support prices have put more money into the pockets of tobacco growers than they expected early in the season.

Optimism is a characteristic of farmers. If one year is bad, there is faith the next will be good; if one year is good, there is confidence the next will be as good or better. Consequently the rank and file of tobacco growers are happy and are impatient with the economists who point out pitfalls ahead.

Such as certain acreage reduction somewhere between 12 per cent and 20 per cent of the planting. Stepped up production by its two methods of culture cannot be expected to make up for all of this reduced planting. The 1956 crop will be less, and if sold at the same average price per pound will yield from $25 million to $50 million fewer dollars gross return to the growers. This year's leaf crop yielded around $50 million, with a large part of the yield to growers represented in loans at support prices. A poor crop next year on 12 per cent to 20 per cent less acreage, and lower prices because of heavy carry-overs and other factors might cut the gross yield as much as $100 million. Chargeable against that gross return will be almost certain increased total costs of production, further reducing the net yield to farmers.

That is admittedly a pessimistic view but farm economists insist it is not an improbable result. They insist, also, that there is no excuse for apathy or complacency on part of tobacco growers.

One day, when I was in college, I was talking to a girl majoring in pharmacy. We were discussing school and I happened to mention an American lit course I was taking. "American lit?" she exclaimed in dismay. "How can you stand it?" I couldn't tell her it was a requirement, because I had elected it, and she thought I was crazy.

"What good will it do you?" she cried. "Maybe not much," I replied, "except add to my personal satisfaction because I'll know a little about it. I'll know what Poe's diversified than many people realize. Poultry products have moved into second place in the total state farm income brackets, with more than $100 million a year. Dairy products have increased in importance, and there are hundreds of farmers who depend mainly on hogs and beef cattle for their income.

Poultry prices have held up fairly well, but the margin between cost and selling price has narrowed, and is approaching the vanishing point. Whether because of or in spite of control exercised by the State Milk Commission, the margin in dairy products is narrowing, too.

Prices for feeder stock and cost of feed for beef cattle when butted against the market prices for beef, leave the cattle raisers on the short end of the deal. Dozens of hog raisers are seriously weighing costs against returns to determine whether or not they will go out of business or try to ride out the present unbalanced relationship between the two ends of the dilemma.

CONCERNED — Conclusion is that tobacco farmers are not greatly concerned but ought to be. Cotton, peanut and poultry farmers are concerned, but not sufficiently alert to the problems facing them. Hog and cattle farmers are in distress and know it, but hardly know which way to turn for relief. The net result is that too few people are really active in doing something about the situation, too many are waiting for somebody else to bail them out of trouble. Any those somebodies are apparently more interested in making political capital out of the conditions than about really helping the farmer.

Other Editors Are Saying . . . High Court's Second Mistake

SECOND MISTAKE (Richmond News-Leader)
A great deal has been written, over these past 16 months, about the massive error committed by the United States Supreme Court in May of 1954 in its two decisions of May 17, the court threw away the Tenth Amendment, rewrote the Fourteenth Amendment, and usurped the prerogatives of Congress in administration of the District of Columbia.

But relatively little has been said of the court's second mistake, which was a mistake in tactics.

First the court would stab us in the back, a year later it would shoot us in the head. It would be less painful that way. The idea was that over a period of 12 months, opposition to integrated schools would calm down; we were to have a cooling off period; we would be soothed and lulled into an easy compliance.

It is evident now that the court's slick strategy has miscarried. Far from calming down, opposition is growing daily more resolute. Far from cooling off, the heat of resentment grows more intense.

In September of 1954, the opponents of integration could not possibly have rallied 2,000 persons to a meeting in Norfolk. Yes, last Thursday night, far more than 2,000 turned out to jam the Norfolk Auditorium in a demonstration against mixed schools. This meeting was called by the Defenders of State Sovereignty and Individual Liberties, which now has 30 organized chapters in Virginia and a membership of more than 5,000 persons. Within the next few weeks, other chapters will be established in Brunswick, Louisa and Culpeper.

The same story is developing throughout the South. The "year of grace" has proved to be just that, though in not quite the way the court envisioned. It has accorded the South an opportunity to pass new laws, and to establish a new legal defense against invasion of State and local responsibilities. More than this, the year has provided an opportunity for the South to learn a little something—though a bitter one—about the hard way of Washington press has struggled manfully to conceal the truth—of what massive integration can mean in terms of educational levels and social problems. The white parents of the District have had to learn this the hard way—and they have fled into Arlington by the thousands. This fall, Washington schools are 63 per cent colored—a startling gain of two full percentage points in a single year. White parents remaining in the District are grouping themselves in ever tighter residential lines.

We begin to take heart. We can say now to the NAACP that it will have to fight a hundred times harder for every inch of ground that it gains; and we can say to the Supreme Court with more than mere bravado the South has just begun to fight.

Who Would You Say, Are You?

Why do so many students today want to take just those courses they think will do them "some good"? By that they mean courses that will enable them to get out on their own. Practical courses, they call them.

One day, when I was in college, I was talking to a girl majoring in pharmacy. We were discussing school and I happened to mention an American lit course I was taking. "American lit?" she exclaimed in dismay. "How can you stand it?" I couldn't tell her it was a requirement, because I had elected it, and she thought I was crazy.

"What good will it do you?" she cried. "Maybe not much," I replied, "except add to my personal satisfaction because I'll know a little about it. I'll know what Poe's

"Raven" is and I might even remember what Transcendentalism is if I should ever read the word or hear it mentioned sometime later."

"Umph!" she grunted. "All I'm interested in is that $125 a week I'm going to make. That's starting salary for a pharmacist," she emphasized.

That's wonderful. Who wouldn't like to start work with a salary like that? But why does she have to limit her knowledge to just the field of pharmacy? Though she might acquire a superior knowledge of that subject, will she really understand her fellow man if all she ever studies is biology, chemistry and prescriptions? Will she know anything beyond science of the world we live in—its beginnings, its struggles, its accomplishments, its failures, its problems and its people? What "good" are Latin and the classics? What "good" is literature? Why take history, or Greek mythology? Why on earth struggle with philosophy? And why take biology when you're a journalism major?

Thomas Riggs, Jr. in "The World of Books" answers this question—what "good" is it to know these things?

"No good. They will make you no money; build no houses; win no wars.

"But what are they about, at any rate?" "About men and women, in the human condition, between birth and death.

"Is there any truth in them?" "As much as there is in men and women. No more.

"And what's that to me?" "Who would you say, are you?"

Notebook On Life

A Whale Of A Difference

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—A fable: An old man in a small boat by the fringe of a river bending to the sea was patiently netting minnows.

Time had made him a philosopher of sky and land and water. A boy rowed up to him and said, "Teach me to catch whales."

"Why?" asked the philosopher. "My father Angelo, is a tuna fisherman," explained the boy. "But I do not wish to fish for the tuna. I want to catch a whale."

"I know your father, and I understand why he doesn't search for the whale," replied the philosopher. "But why did he send you to me?"

"I don't now," said the boy. "He only told me that if I couldn't be happy with tuna and must seek the whale I should go and take lessons perhaps from the minnow man. Can you help me?"

The boy's face was ecstatic. "I know your father, the tuna fisherman, and I also know why he has never hunted the whale."

Then he said as he sent him forth: "You have learned all I can teach you about what must be done. Nothing is left for you to do."

The boy, now grown to young manhood, left him. He sought and found the blowing whale.

Years later in middle age, stumbling on one leg, the boy came back to the philosopher, and sat in his boat and said half-reproachfully:

"I'm tired of hunting whales. You never searched for whales yourself, did you? Why not?"

And the old man answered placidly, "No. The nature of the minnow taught me all I needed to know. But some people have to dare the whale. Each must learn in the only way he can find it out."

The other fishermen watched and wondered as the old, old philosopher and his former scholar.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
Do You Possess Or Own?

A wealthy woman building a palatial home asked her interior decorator to advise on the color of the books she should have in her library. She wanted to have finely bound volumes, the color of which would match rugs, curtains, and wall finish. It made no difference to her what was in the books. The color of the binding alone was significant.

One sometimes goes into the homes of people who own only a few books but who have mastered these books. Abraham Lincoln read few books, but the few he read were of excellent quality and greatly influenced his life.

There are some people who own books and others who possess them. The woman who wanted the bindings of her books to blend in with the color scheme, simply owned books; Abraham Lincoln who read a few and almost memorized them, possessed these books. Some people own beautiful gardens but hand the making and tending of these gardens over to someone else. Legally these people own these gardens, but perhaps some illiterate chap who pulls weeds and cultivates and loves flowers deeply, really possesses the garden.

Who owns the landscape over which we look as we drive over through the country? Well, the owner of property could be discovered by examining courthouse records; but we possess the landscape if we love the beauties of nature and see in these beauties the handwriting of an all-wise and beneficent Creator.

Stevenson's appeal for a swap of military blueprints, he said: "It proves that, contrary to many people's belief, the United States was no more of a threat to peace than the Russians, despite three years of our 'get tough' policy."

Now, Stevenson regards the Administration's handling of foreign questions as a "mess." He will soon elaborate on that one-word indictment, and furnish a preview of the Democrats' forthcoming strategy in this field.

Stevenson himself will quip as well as thrash as he did in 1952. Suggesting that there was a quality of "appeasement" in our eagerness to negotiate with Moscow, he has joshed Ike for pleading with Zbuzkov, a third-string Communist, to please believe that the United States wants peace.

"NEARER TO GLOBAL WAR" The Democrats will contend that our position throughout the world is less secure than it was when the Republicans took over the White House. They will also insist that we are nearer to war of a global nature.

Geneva has not solved the basic problem of German unification. On the contrary, they maintain that a spirit of overoptimism after the Summit Conference has enabled Russia to capitalize on her smiling, friendly facade. Our Allies have been softened up, they say, and neutral look more kindly on the Kremlin.

An off-again-on-again attitude in the Middle East, so runs the Stevenson refrain, has permitted Moscow to obtain a foothold in Egypt behind our "Northern Tier" Alliance. It has alienated two historically friendly peoples—the Arabs and the Israelis—and threatens to expand into a more extensive conflict.

CYPRUS, MOROCCAN DISPUTES

Highway Is Building Big Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER

There's a neat little boom building up in Latin America. Oh! In fact, before it's over, it may be quite a big boom.

It is being generated by the Inter-American Highway.

Oh, that? Isn't that the road they started talking about around the time the Panama Canal opened—that road that was only a dream for so many years?

Yes, that's when they started talking about it, and it was little more than a dream for the next three or four decades. Now, surprisingly, it reaches almost to South America and given a little more time, will reach the Straits of Magellan.

HERE'S WHERE WE ARE NOW

What's been done so far will be rounded up for the record on November 23 when a United Nations study on transportation in Central America will be presented at an inter-governmental meeting at Managua, Nicaragua. Reports will show the only gaps between the U.S. and South America is 25 miles in Northern Guatemala, 130 miles in Costa Rica and 11 miles in Panama.

Those last 11 miles are tough; they are across the Darien Peninsula in Panama, a jungle long regarded as the habitat of fierce natives and fiercer animals. A recent survey, however, indicates the most fearsome things are mosquitoes.

After these gaps are closed, there will still be a lot to be done. Except for the Darien, many roads are substandard, according to the American Automobile Association, and south of Panama there are only fragmentary stretches and ephemeral promises. However, there is a $400,000 road program in Guatemala over and above the Inter-American Highway a $20,000,000 program in Peru, including a project to connect the highway with the headwaters of the Amazon. A project in Bolivia to complete 500 miles of road to connect Cochabamba and Santa Cruz, and a plan to pave the principal Chilean roads and to surface feeder roads with gravel.

American aid has been large. Los Norte Americanos are paying two thirds of the international highway costs. Congress, before it adjourned, voted $62,980,000 to help close those gaps.

WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU

This will open new vistas, literally, for those of us who love auto travel. When the Inter-American Highway is completed and patroled and motels and something-else stands blossom along the shoulders, a new world of motoring will beckon. There will be new places to see, new dishes to taste new people to know.

Other benefits may be even more important. Americans may be able to buy at their supermarkets many delicacies now found only in swanky specialty shops. Rare fruits, fabrics and handicraft may become more abundant and less expensive. The highway will provide fast, flexible transportation of those articles.

A DREAM EMBODIED

When a rich, two-way traffic flows over this highway, Pan-American may be more than a dream wandering through marble halls in Washington and a dozen Latin-American countries. It may become something real, adding to the prosperity of people on both sides of the Rio Grande, and uniting aspirations for prosperity, peace and unity.

NEW AD MEDIUM: BAR STOOL COVERS

If an advertising man ever gets to the first thing he may do will be to paint a sign on the Pearly Gates urging the purchase of XXX Halo Polish. No place is safe from their artistry.

For instance, an advertising agency is now offering to put advertising messages on plastic slip covers for bar, restaurant and soda fountain stools. It's certainly an opportunity for any firm that wants to get its ad message sat upon.

'Peace' Slogan May Have Hollow Sound

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON Democrats politicians now believe that they can knock out the word, "Peace," from the "Peace and Prosperity" slogan with which the Republicans had hoped to remain in power after the 1956 election.

Adlai E. Stevenson, leading contender for the Democratic Presidential nomination, has furnished the tip-off. A few months ago, he was urging more impatient politicians to await further foreign developments before assailing the Eisenhower-Dulles program. After all, he pointed out, they were trying to carry out the Roosevelt-Truman idea of collective security.

STEVENSON'S CONTENTIONS The only possible point of attack he argued, would be the means and the success with which they implemented and executed predecessor policy. Referring to the Geneva Summit Conference and

Stevenson's appeal for a swap of military blueprints, he said: "It proves that, contrary to many people's belief, the United States was no more of a threat to peace than the Russians, despite three years of our 'get tough' policy."

Now, Stevenson regards the Administration's handling of foreign questions as a "mess." He will soon elaborate on that one-word indictment, and furnish a preview of the Democrats' forthcoming strategy in this field.

Stevenson himself will quip as well as thrash as he did in 1952. Suggesting that there was a quality of "appeasement" in our eagerness to negotiate with Moscow, he has joshed Ike for pleading with Zbuzkov, a third-string Communist, to please believe that the United States wants peace.

It has alienated two historically friendly peoples—the Arabs and the Israelis—and threatens to expand into a more extensive conflict.

CYPRUS, MOROCCAN DISPUTES

Our support of Britain and France in the Cyprus and Moroccan disputes respectively, has cast us in the role of sympathizers with imperialism, colonialism and commercialism. It has thrown Nehru and other Asian statesmen into the arms of Red Russia and China.

Even the termination of stalemate in Korea and Indo-China were unsatisfactory, according to this theory. We agreed to—or accepted—permanent Communist control of North Korea and North Indo-China as marshaling bases for future aggression against free nations.

Thus runs the Democratic attack on the contention that the GOP has brought "peace." It is true, and they recognize it, that the Communists are largely responsible for this tragic state of affairs. However, in politics it is results that count, and blame usually falls upon the Party in power at the time.

Chicod Seniors Off On New York Trip

By IVA LOU BRUNSON
Chicod High School

Bye, bye; take care of yourself, don't get your feet wet! Those are the words spoken by the mothers and fathers of our seniors this morning as they left for New York via bus. They left at 5:00. They are to go to Mount Vernon and tour it after which they will enjoy a picnic lunch. Then on to Washington City to see the spots of interest. After touring Washington they head for New York. They plan to arrive home sometime Sunday.

Our juniors are really working. Our junior boys supply the supplies and the girls cook. The result—delicious candy to sell. Believe me, these girls are good cooks.

Chicod's students are not only learning reading, writing, and arithmetic, but also a little "bug learning," "plant learning," "bird learning." Yes, our biology classes have been enjoying field trips and walks in the woods looking for leaves of which they are making a collection. They seem to be enjoying their classes under Mrs. Cozart.

The boys are hard at work preparing for a Tool Identification Contest. Good luck boys. Hey you win! They are also busy working on their projects of cedar chests, chests of drawers and many other beautiful pieces of furniture. Some of the boys went to Maury to observe a Parliamentary Procedure Program, accompanied by Mr. Rufus Warren.

Crack, Crack, what's that? That's what I asked myself Saturday evening about 6:00. After a short investigation, I found that it was the Black Jack Choir opening steamed oysters on the school back campus. Boy! Did they smell good!

Some of our F.H.A. girls attended a F.H.A. Rally in Greenville last Thursday night. Hazel Wilson and LaRue Mills gave a pantomime.

Thursday night is open house night here at Chicod. We have our PTA meeting after which the parents are invited to visit the rooms.

Hazel Wilson went to Greenville to represent the school in a speaking contest on the subject, "I Speak For Democracy." She was accompanied by Mrs. Cargile, English instructor. We think she had a good speech and hope that she will win.

Mary Ida Gray and many of her friends had a wonderful time Saturday at her home when she celebrated her birthday. She received many nice gifts.

The Sophomore Class in Home Economics had a Christmas party yesterday. It may have been early but they had a wonderful time. They were served sandwiches, peanuts and lemonade. Merry Christmas!

This is Book Week and our library is very nicely fixed with neat displays. We are looking forward to a lot of good reading.

The high school turned out for a lively pep rally Friday afternoon. The yelling was heard for miles as we warmed up for our oncoming games.

'Dog' Days For Clerk's Office

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—These are the "dog" days in the Orange County clerk's office. Yesterday six new applications for incorporation were filed. The applicants: Cocker Bldg. Co., Pomeranian Bldg. Co., Poodle Bldg. Co., Scotty Bldg. Co., Spaniel Bldg. Co. and Terrier Bldg. Co.

The incorporators, all in the building and subdividing business, are V. David Leavin, Anthony T. Sangermano and E. W. Schrader. Explained Schrader, "We're all dog lovers from way back. I've been raising Irish setters for a long time myself." Dogs will be more than welcome in the new subdivisions, he said.

OWN CORONATION LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The University of Louisville homecoming queen is arranging her own coronation. Miss Doris Goodnight, 19, named queen Monday, happens to be chairman in charge of arrangements for halftime ceremonies at Saturday's game with Toledo University. "I had no idea I was ordering flowers for myself," she said.

Mock Attack By Jet Planes Show Cities Vulnerable

FT. POLK, La. (AP)—The United States learned a sharp and realistic lesson today about the vulnerability of its cities to atomic attack by jet bombers.

A comparative handful of swift bombers, streaking inland at low altitude, evaded an elaborate radar warning system and waiting interceptor planes and aimed simulated nuclear bombs at air bases located in Southern states from Florida westward through Louisiana and northward as far as Virginia.

They were "enemy" aircraft participating in the giant Exercise Sagebrush, a "tactical" maneuver to test application of modern ground and Air Force weapons and tactics to battlefield fighting.

When the aggressor planes set off this mock war with their strike last night, defending forces had ample warning that trouble was coming. Only the time of attack remained a surprise. Yet initial reports indicated that a substantial number of the attacking planes foiled radar warning systems and suddenly appeared over target airfields before fighters could raise to intercept them.

Radar did pick up the images of some of the fast-flying bombers and there were some interceptions. But, for the peace of mind of defense planners of the nation, the first reports suggested that too many of the enemy succeeded in their mission.

Hear Warning Of Govm't Business

GREENSBORO (AP)—A warning against the effects of government business upon free American enterprise was sounded by speakers at yesterday's leaders' workshop, bringing together Chamber of Commerce representatives of the Carolinas and Virginia.

Walter B. Petravage, manager of the business relations department of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce at Washington, said many persons are unwittingly hacking away at "basic concepts of American life"—a free people living in a free economy under limited government. He led a round table discussion on "Economic Understanding."

Government action in the fields of education, medical care, etc. should be measured as to whether it takes away any of the individual's rights to manage his own business. This was the suggestion of Charles W. Harbaugh, director of sales promotion for the membership division of the national chamber.

Host for the meeting at Woman's College was the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce. It was the 18th in a series of 25 which the U.S. Chamber is sponsoring throughout the country.

Nixon Taking A Florida Holiday

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon arrived at Palm Beach International Airport last night and went at once to Delray Beach where, he said, he hopes to get in five days in the sun.

He and his wife came here from Washington. They will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Earl Wallace Jr. Nixon said he was here on no particular mission but that he merely took advantage of an opportunity to get away from his official duties and would spend much of the time on the beach with "perhaps a little golf."

ASHAMED MAINLA (AP)—A Japanese straggler who was captured early this month after 11 years in Luzon jungles hanged himself today, a Philippine army spokesman said. Seaman Noboru Kinoshita, 33, previously had asked Filipino army guards to kill him because he was ashamed to return to Japan in defeat.

CONFUSED TREE COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Mrs. Hope Coggins may have a confused pear tree. She said weather in the 70s prompted the tree to burst into bloom yesterday.

Passion Play Committee Project Is Endorsed; March Presentation Set

At a meeting Tuesday night at the First Presbyterian Church, 28 persons representing 13 Greenville churches voted unanimously to endorse action of a group meeting last week in the St. James Methodist Church to constitute the Greenville Passion Play Committee. The committee will be composed of two official representatives from the membership of every white Protestant church in Greenville and its environs and the minister of each of these churches.

W. H. Watson of St. James Methodist Church was elected to serve as chairman; Leslie Garner is vice-chairman. Mrs. Chester Walsh of Memorial Baptist Church is secretary, and Herman Nobles, West Greenville Presbyterian Church, treasurer. Mr. Watson has served as chairman since inception of play.

Dates for the third annual presentation of the Passion Play in Greenville were set for Wednesday, March 21 through Saturday night, March 24, prior to Palm Sunday, March 26.

Dr. J. A. Withey and Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert of the East Carolina College will again direct the dramatics and the music for the production, which will be held in Wright Auditorium at East Carolina College.

Mr. Watson appointed committees to begin work immediately on plans to enlist all churches, to begin raising funds to underwrite the production in order that admission might be free to everyone and to begin selection of cast.

Finance committee, headed by J. A. Taylor of Immanuel Baptist Church, will include Leslie Garner, St. James Methodist; Ed Ratcliffe, Jarvis Memorial Methodist; D. A. Blue, Presbyterian; Ebert H. Bennett, Eighth Street Christian; Joseph D. Carawan, for Matton Army; John David Cannon, Pentecostal Holiness; Stephen F. Walters, Free Will Baptist; Mrs. Sam Johnson, Grace Free Will Baptist; Thurston Wynne Jr., Red Oak Christian; E. S. Webb, Memorial Baptist; Clarence Johnson, Hillsdale Baptist Mission; Uran Cox, Chiscol Presbyterian; Herman Nobles, West Greenville Presbyterian; Cliff Rhodus, Meadowbrook Presbyterian; and Earl Alder, Hollywood Presbyterian. Others will be added as churches cooperate in the Passion Play plans and program.

Clarence Johnson of Hillsdale Baptist was appointed to head the publicity committee with James Butler, alumni secretary and sports news director of East Carolina College; David J. Whichard III, Daily Reflector; A. Hartwell Campbell, WNCN-TV; Charlie Crone, WGTC; Roy Hardee, News and Observer correspondent, serving on the committee.

Floyd Nobles will head the music committee to invite choir members and singers from various churches to participate in the choir.

S. J. Waters, Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, will head the costume committee with J. D. Adams, Pentecostal Holiness Church, committee chairman for Make-Up. Sam Johnson, Grace Free Will Baptist Church, chairman, Rev. Malloy Owen, St. James Methodist Church, and Lt. B. T. Lewis, Salvation Army, will serve on the Dramatics committee and will begin immediately to assist Dr. Withey, director, in selecting cast.

Joseph D. Carawan, Salvation Army, appointed to serve as chairman of the Props committee, also received the list of props needed.

The scenery committee as other committees will be composed of members from each participating church with Harding Sugg of the First Presbyterian and J. G. Gibbs of Hillsdale Baptist Churches to direct their immediate activities in selecting scenery from former productions and preparing new sets for the 1956 presentation.

Jimmy Smith of the St. James Methodist Church will head the printing and programs committee.

Lighting will be handled, as in last year's performance, by Jack Edwards.

Rev. Rashie Kennedy will serve as chairman of the spiritual committee and a real religious experience for each participant in the pageant and each person who attends is the desire of the steering committee and this special committee.

Capt. J. N. Crane, ROTC officer at East Carolina College, of the Eighth Street Christian Church brought from Germany pictures of the Passion Play at Obermagau and newspaper stories of the cast.

The next meeting of the steering committee will be held Tuesday night, December 13 at Grace Free Will Baptist Church at which time every pastor is invited to attend with two representatives of each church.

Credit Women Hold First Meeting Of New Club Year

The Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club held a regular meeting Saturday morning, Nov. 12, at the Old Towne Inn. Mrs. Elliott Johnson, president, welcomed the 30 members present to the first meeting of the new club year.

Committees for the coming year were announced and introduced by the committee chairmen who outlined plans for the coming year. Year books were distributed and Mrs. Augustus Schmidt, attendance chairman, distributed desk and pocket calendars to each member.

Mrs. Cassie Sawyer, sunshine chairman, gave her committee's report and requested each member to bring clothing and old magazines for the welfare project. These articles are to be brought to the next meeting or left at the Punch & Judy Shop.

Miss Elizabeth Deal, program chairman, announced that Mr. John Clark, president of the Pitt County TB Association, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting.

The club voted to send contributions to the TB Association and the Pitt County Mental Health Society. Mrs. Thomas Coghill reported on attending bosses night in Kinston and Mrs. Polly Dail reported on Rocky Mount bosses night.

The next breakfast meeting will be Nov. 25.

Rosemary Clooney Says Motherhood Full-Time Job

By DOROTHY ROE
 AP Women's Editor

Some of today's mothers ought to be spanked, says Rosemary Clooney, singing star of movies and pop records and now a completely doing mother herself.

"I have no use for mothers who spend all their time trying to get away from their children, after they have them," says the blue-eyed, golden-haired Rosemary, who in private life is Mrs. Jose Ferrer. "I'd die—just simply die—if I couldn't see Miguel every day, and as many times a day as possible. He's not a pet to be kept in a cage, he's a part of the family group."

Miguel is the husky 9-month-old son of the Ferrers, and to date he is one of the most traveled infants in the country. He had his own passport at the age of 4 months. He has accompanied his parents to England, back to New York, on to Chicago and California. In a few weeks he will be taking off again, with mom and pop, for Spain.

"I believe a baby's place is not in the nursery, but in the living room," says Rosemary. "We have Miguel right in the middle of everything, and he thrives on it. So do we. When he's taken to the nursery, it's bedtime."

The question of what to do with Miguel arose last summer, when Rosemary was booked to play the Palladium in London.

"I went to our pediatrician," says Rosemary, "and asked him if it would be all right to take Miguel along. He said he wouldn't advise it. So I said, 'Isn't it more important for a baby to be with his parents than to be kept safe but lonely in a sterilized nursery?'"

"Then the doctor agreed with me, and so Miguel became a world traveler."

The answers to everyday insurance problems

By Herb Lee

QUESTION When I buy insurance by phone and the agent says I'm covered, is he telling me the truth or must the insurance wait till I pay the premium?

ANSWER He's telling you the truth. He issues a "binder" memo which protects you. Of course if you didn't pay within a short time he'd be stuck with the earned premium due his Company.

If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be no charge or obligation of any kind.

Apple Pickers Systematized

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State University experts have devised a plan they say will increase efficiency of apple pickers by 5 to 10 per cent. Here's how it works.

Picking crews are divided into three groups. One unit stands on the ground and picks all the apples within reach, then moves on to another tree.

The second group follows along with six-foot stepladders, covering the zone from six to 12 feet on the tree.

Finally come the tall ladders experts — the "clean-up" squad — who work best at high altitudes.

SUDDEN END
CLEVELAND — Toolmaker Victor Doubek, 50, and Mrs. Ruth Zajowski, a 43-year-old widow, got a marriage license yesterday at Lakeside Court House. Shortly after they drove away in Doubek's car, it slowed and came to a stop against a utility pole. Doubek had died of a heart attack.

Jewel Box Store Is Styled For Customer Convenience

The Jewel Box, Greenville's newest retail store, will have its formal opening here Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

Located at 410 Evans Street, the new store was designed by Al Zika of Miami, well known designer of jewelry stores and features a new idea in open displays of jewelry.

IRV. LEVINSON

Styling of the new store is centered around customer convenience with most modern fixtures for eye-level display of merchandise together with a modern lighting design for jewelry stores. The progressive styling followed throughout in the new store includes an open front design as well as a new trend in color schemes for jewelry stores.

The armed forces, which are guarding key points in industrial centers of the country to prevent any outbreaks of violence, were posted last night in the big Retiro railroad station in downtown Buenos Aires. Firemen also were assigned to the station. Unconfirmed reports said the railway workers would join the strike today.

The government outlawed the strike, and warned that those inciting the walkout would be jailed. Those arrested were said to include high officials of CGT. They were held incommunicado.

The strike picture across the country looked about like this: Essential services such as light, power, and transportation were scarcely affected. This also went for restaurants, movies, bars, and a host of lesser activities.

Unofficial but generally accurate reports gave these percentages of absenteeism in the Buenos Aires area:

Meat plants, 100 per cent; glass working, 100 per cent; soap plants, 100; rubber, 95; petroleum, 90; breweries, 90; textiles, 80; metal working, 75; chemicals, 70; leather, 40; bakers, 35; food workers, 30; electricity 30; paper workers, 20; public power, 15; printing, 10; train workers, 5; other transport workers, 5; wood workers, 5. Industries in Avellaneda, Azul, San Martin and San Justo — all near Buenos Aires — were totally closed. But in the interior cities of Misiones, Chaco, La Pampa and Mendoza, work was reported normal.

Zika said the store is "designed throughout to give the most advantageous display of merchandise and has been developed around the most modern features in show windows, heating, air conditioning, color schemes, fixtures and equipment."

Calvin Jackson of Kinston was general contractor for the new store. Greenville's Jewel Box is the newest unit in the 54-store chain operated by the Jewel Box Associates in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia, and Florida. The chain started with one store established in Greensboro in 1923. New W. Cohen of Greensboro is president of the organization. Larry Cohen of Greensboro is vice president, and Louis Green of Fayetteville is secretary-treasurer. Murray Fitterman of New Bern is supervisor of Jewel Box stores in eastern North Carolina.

Manager of the new Greenville store is Irv Levinson who came to Greenville from Montgomery, Ala. Levinson has been in the jewelry business for the past 21 years. Prior to coming to Greenville, he was manager of a jewelry store in Montgomery for six years. A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, he was engaged in the jewelry business in Chicago, and attended the Gemological Institute of America in Los Angeles prior to going to Montgomery.

PAUL GARLAND

Two special features have been arranged by the manager for the formal opening of the store Thursday. A diamond display valued at several hundred thousand dollars has been arranged for the opening. Thursday evening at 8 o'clock Sammy Bland of the TV Jewel Box Jamboree and members of his cast will present a special concert at the store. Among the jewels on display at the store will be a 25 carat diamond, valued at $75,000 and said to have been the property of Diamond Jim Brady. The collection also includes a diamond and platinum bracelet formerly owned by Mae West and valued at $10,000. Another unusual item is a diamond cut in the shape of a heart. A special police guard has been detailed to stand watch on the diamond display which is insured by Lloyd's of Lond.

Bland a native of Rocky Mount, has been featured on Jewel Box Jamboree television program for the past 20 months under sponsorship of the four Jewel Box stores in this area. He has created a large television following during that time and has ranked high in popularity polls of local programs taken by WNCN.

Personnel of the new Jewel Box in addition to Manager Levinson will include Paul Garland, assistant manager; Mrs. Joe Clark, credit manager; Mrs. Sue Bailey, office manager; Mrs. Joyce Barnett, sales lady; Harrell Barrington, salesman; and Roy Savage, porter.

Here with their wives for the opening of the new store tomorrow will be the following members of the Jewel Box organization: New W. Cohen, president; Larry Cohen, vice president, both of Greensboro; Murray R. Fitterman, manager of the New Bern store; Arthur A. Benth manager of the Rocky Mount store; Joseph W. Strauss, manager of the Wilson store, and city manager will cut the ribbon. Robert E. Doolittle manager of the Kinston store. for the formal opening of the new store at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. James S. Hughes, Greenville's ing.

Peronista Labor Bosses Face Major Struggle For Survival

By BRUCE HENDERSON

Buenos Aires (AP) — Argentina's anti-Peron government and Peronista labor leaders were still locked in a struggle for supremacy today. Thousands of workers obeyed the Peronistas' general strike call, but other thousands ignored it.

The new provisional government headed by Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu, which took over Sunday after ousting Maj. Gen. Eduardo Lonardi from the presidency, arrested 146 persons in the Buenos Aires district alone for inciting people to strike, capital police said. The Aramburu regime met the strike challenge in a showdown fight with the big General Confederation of Labor (CGT), which was the main support of Juan D. Peron, Argentina's former dictator. The government declared the strike, which started at midnight Monday, "is falling."

But the fact remained that the walkout hit hardest in some of the more essential industries, such as meat packing metal working and petroleum. The question seemed to be who could last the longer — the government faced with steadily dropping stocks of meats and other supplies, or the workers who are losing more pay every day.

The government outlawed the strike, and warned that those inciting the walkout would be jailed. Those arrested were said to include high officials of CGT. They were held incommunicado.

The strike picture across the country looked about like this: Essential services such as light, power, and transportation were scarcely affected. This also went for restaurants, movies, bars, and a host of lesser activities.

Unofficial but generally accurate reports gave these percentages of absenteeism in the Buenos Aires area:

Nat'l Farmers Union Is Loudest Foe Of Sec. Benson's Farm Philosophy

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Reporter
WASHINGTON (AP) — "I've of a had case of the Benson blues."
These were the words farmer Robert Lee of Larimore, N. D., used to get across at a recent Senate Agriculture Committee hearing how he felt about Secretary of Agriculture Benson and the Eisenhower administration farm program.

A lot of farmers — and Republican politicians as well — have the same kind of blues if what they told the senators is more than a dozen hearings in major farming areas — and agrarians in interview — is an accurate gauge.

The most outspoken criticism of Benson was voiced at hearings in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Oregon and Texas. It was generally sharpest and most frequent in areas where the National Farmers Union is strongest.

This farm organization has long been critical of Republican farm policies. It has been closely associated with Democratic policies and leaders. Charles F. Brannan, secretary of agriculture under President Truman, is its top official.

But in states like Iowa, California, Indiana and Ohio, where the rival Farm Bureau Federation is strong, Benson seldom was mentioned by farmer witnesses. Questioned on the side, most farmers would say the GOP farm chief was not very popular "out my way."

Many farmers would say they admired Benson for his "sincerity, honesty and courage in standing up for what he believed to be right." But they would add they did not believe his policies offered much hope for farmers in a farm situation dominated, they said, by surpluses and overproduction.

Local and state Republican leaders would not allow themselves to be quoted by name. But most of those interviewed expressed a belief that the party would lose heavily in farm states if Benson continued as secretary.

On the other hand, strong support for the secretary was found among business and professional men and white collar workers in urban areas.

Benson was given little moral support by members of his own party among the committeemen at the hearings. His only outright defense came from Sen. Holland, a Florida Democrat.

Republican Senators Thye (Minn.), Young (ND) and Mundt (SD) were more aggressive than most Democratic senators in attempting — during cross-examination — to point out weaknesses in present programs as a basic feature of the administration farm program.

There was a strong tendency among farmers to associate the flexible support program — which often was referred to as the "sliding scale" — with Benson rather than with President Eisenhower.

Much of the farmer criticism of Benson — even in more conservative farming areas — reflects a feeling that flexible supports will not do the job which the secretary claims they will do.

Farmer-critics contend that in times of surpluses of most products, such as now, farmers actually tend to produce more rather than less when price supports are lowered. They say the farmer's reaction is to grow more to offset the effects of lower prices.

Many find fault with Benson because he set up and then withdrew measures designed to prevent the diversion of surplus wheat, corn, cotton, rice and peanut land into the production of other crops this year.

Benson has emphasized a need for farmers to become more efficient. Some farmers have interpreted this as indicating that the secretary believes that all "small and less-efficient farmers should be squeezed out of farming."

Earlier in the present administration, Benson policies had strong backing from the American Farm Bureau Federation. The Senate Committee hearings showed that many Farm Bureau members do not now believe his policies are adequate.

While willing to stick with flexible supports, these farmers and leaders say new measures are needed.

Many of them are advocating a "roll bank" plan under which farmers would be required to take a uniform percentage of their land out of production.

COLLECTOR ITEMS
LOYAL, Okla. (AP) — Two ancient automobiles stolen from Mrs. Lottie Doherty two years ago were back with the owner today. The Oklahoma Crime Bureau tracked them down in the hands of other ancient car enthusiasts who bought them through want ads. One is a 1918 Model-T. Parents of three boys now in military service made restitution to the buyers and the cars were turned over to Mrs. Doherty.

Good Reader 'Shocked' By Institute's Test Of Ability

Editor's Note—The writer, covering the Institute on Reading for The Associated Press, got into the swing of things himself and received a severe shock. Following is his account of what he learned about his own reading ability.

By HERMAN R. ALLEN
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It runs out I'm not a very good reader. For one kind of reading, that is—probably the most useful kind.

From years of editing press copy, I'm pretty fair at detailed reading, hunting for misspelled words and misplaced commas.

And, from years of glancing at publicity handouts, "see if this is anything we want," I'm pretty good at quickly grasping general content.

It's the in-between kind of reading that throws me—rapid reading for detailed content, like studying or reading a serious magazine article, the kind most people do the most of.

To get a better idea of what the Institute on Reading being held here this week is about, I asked Dr. Emmett A. Betts if he'd test my reading ability. Dr. Betts is director of the Betts Reading Clinic at nearby Haverford, Pa., which is sponsoring the institute.

Dr. Betts shifted his corn cob pipe to the other side of his mouth and said he'd be glad to.

"First," he said, "we'll check your vision."

He whipped out a gadget something like a flashlight, held it about 18 inches from my face and moved it toward my nose.

"Tell me when you see two lights," he said.

I told him.

"Hum," he said in the tone of voice the dentist uses when he is about to tell you all the upper teeth have to come out.

"Now," he said, covering my right eye "follow the light with your left eye."

He moved the light in a circle about a foot in diameter and I tracked it diligently.

We repeated the performance with the right eye and Dr. Betts hummed again.

"I hate to have to tell you this," he said, "but you have a visual handicap. No defect in your eyes, you understand, but you just don't use them properly. Like walking. Some people use their feet properly. Some don't. Some use their eyes properly. Some don't. You don't."

Dr. Betts explained that I should have seen only one light until it was about two inches from my nose. It doubled up for me at about five. The left eye tracked the light smoothly, but the right moved in jumps and starts.

A further test proved that I am just near Washington, my regular "right-eyed." That is, my right eye controls the motion of both eyes. I see him as soon as I get home I'm unable to control itself properly, going to.

Dr. Betts said recent findings indicate a majority of schoolchildren may suffer from this handicap.

He handed me a reprint of a magazine article marked "Reading Time: 3 Minutes." A really expert reader, he said would read and comprehend it in two minutes; the average businessman should read it in three; a very poor reader would take five. It took me almost four minutes.

Dr. Betts named a vision therapist near Washington, my regular "right-eyed." That is, my right eye controls the motion of both eyes. I see him as soon as I get home I'm unable to control itself properly, going to.

Farmville Guard Unit Has Openings For Young Men

FARMVILLE — There are a number of vacancies in the local National Guard unit which are open to eligible young men 17 years old and above, commanding officer of the 1st Lt. Jack McDavid said today.

The National Guard unit, Co. H., 119th Inf., 30th Division, was recently organized locally and has been growing rapidly. Efforts are now being made to obtain an armory locally which will serve as a permanent home for the National Guard company.

Temporarily the unit is being housed in the boy scout hut. Additional rooms are being constructed on the hut for use by the Guard.

"The National Guard offers many advantages to the young man who prefers to remain at home while serving his country," Lt. McDavid said. "Today every young man has an eight year obligation to his country. In the army he must serve two years active duty and six years reserve."

The commanding officer noted that in the new reserve program a young man may now serve for six months with pay of $50 per month and then serve the remainder of his eight year obligation as a reservist which includes the National Guard.

"The guard he meets once a week for two hours, attends camp 15 days during the summer and receives a full day's pay for his drill and summer encampment time," McDavid stated.

"He pointed out" that a young man who desires to join the guard may also go on active duty for six months at $75 per month or at the pay rate of the rank he holds in the guard. After his six months of active duty he may return and complete his reserve obligation in the National Guard unit.

"Perhaps the greatest advantage of being in the guard is being able to continue your job or education while serving your obligation," McDavid told eligible young men.

Bookmarks Are Seal Reminders

All books borrowed from the Sheppard Memorial Library and the Pitt County Bookmobile in the next few weeks will contain a bookmark reminding their readers to buy and use Christmas Seals.

Bookmarks placed in every book taken from the library will contain information on the 1955 Christmas Seal Sale which begins today and continues until Christmas. Funds from the sale will be used to support the tuberculosis control work of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association which supplied the bookmarks.

Sheppard Memorial librarian Elizabeth Copeland said that she and her co-workers "are glad to participate in distributing this particular Christmas announcement."

"The public education program of the tuberculosis association is one of its most important. We librarians like to think that we are in a position to help directly with the association's educational projects, which are part of its control program. We and all library users know that we support this and all the association's health-protecting activities with every purchase of Christmas seals."

Won't Prosecute Susan Hayward

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Jill Jarman has decided not to prosecute screen star Susan Hayward, who Miss Jarman said socked her with a hair brush.

"I've been through a humiliating experience that I want to forget," Miss Jarman told Dep. Dist. Atty. Van J. Whiteside yesterday. She withdrew her request for a battery complaint against Miss Hayward.

Miss Jarman earlier told police she dropped in for coffee Nov. 3 at actor Don (Red) Barry's home only to become engaged in a wrestling match with the pajama-clad Miss Hayward.

Short Stay Of Court Sentence

BOSTON (AP) — Federal Judge George G. Sweeney yesterday deferred sentence against a convicted bookie so way to get back to Lynn by the defendant.

After Krosky's client Henry G. Ryan of Lynn was sentenced to a month in jail and fined $500, the lawyer advised the judge:

"I have no way to get back to Lynn (10 miles from Boston) Ryan drove me down and if he can't drive me back, I'm stranded."

Judge Sweeney commented: "You're quite an optimist."

Then he deferred sentence a few hours so Ryan could drive Krosky to Lynn.

Although cows on lush pastures give much milk they tend to lose weight unless they are given supplemental feeding.

Files $2 Million Suit For Libel

SANTA MONICA Calif. (AP) — A two-million-dollar libel suit has been filed against Rave magazine by screen actress Terry Moore.

An article concerning the actress and the opening of the Hilton Hotel in Istanbul, Turkey, in the October issue of the magazine was "malicious, false, libelous and degrading," the complaint alleged.

Miss Moore's attorney Jerry Giesler said the actress took exception to a reference about a picture taken of her by a Turkish cameraman.

Curtain Of Air Is Store 'Door'

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Kroger Co. today opens a store without a front door.

The supermarket's customer passes through an "air curtain." The movement of air in the curtain forms an invisible wall, keeping the heat in and insects out. Kroger said it is the first supermarket in the United States to employ the air curtain unit developed in Switzerland.

Folding doors replace the air curtain at night.

Trans-Ocean TV Is Still Long Way Off

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—The optimistic prophets of television frequently talk of regular trans-oceanic TV as inevitable in the near future.

Viewers of Wide World (NBC-TV) had a brief glimpse of five transoceanic television last Sunday when a pick-up from Havana was technically successful on American TV screens. An airplane flying figure-eights more than two miles aloft served as the relay station bridging the 230 miles between the Florida mainland and Cuba.

It was the first live video link from Cuba into the United States by radio from this country to Cuba. The Cuban Station CMQ brought its viewers the World Series this year and last year by the same method.

The images relayed by airplane on Wide World were not as good as the usual TV picture. But viewers had a satisfactory look at the Havana skyline and harbor and Capitol and at 200 Cuban students participating in a pageant.

The pick-up was far from being an intimate view of Cuban life, however. Its spirit failed to match the pioneering spirit displayed in the technical aspects of the event.

From now on I'm going to keep an eye on Alcoa Hour (NBC-TV). For one and another reason I'd missed seeing this Sunday evening (9 p.m., Eastern time) drama program until the other night when along came a TV adaptation of F. Hugh Herbert's Broadway play "A Girl Can Tell."

"A Girl Can Tell" is a pleasant bit of fluff, but as played by a superior cast it was high television entertainment. Diana Lynn is my personal nomination for one of the best actresses on the TV screen today. Among actors, so are William Redfield and Paul McGrath. Every once in a while you suddenly realize some very fine actors are overlooked in the preoccupation with the content of TV dramas.

Fire Losses Now Total $63,631

Fire losses for the first ten months of 1955 have amounted to $63,631.52, Fire Chief George Gardner reported today.

During October the department answered three calls to fires which came in from alarm boxes, 11 telephone calls to fires, one false alarm and five rural calls.

Eleven calls for the rescue unit were received last month and firemen stood by while two lots were burned off in the city Chief Gardner reported.

MIDGET PROGRAM CONCLUDING ANOTHER FINE YEAR

The midget football league has finished its regular season play and the semi-final playoffs are being conducted this week. The traditional Thanksgiving championship game next Thursday will conclude the program for this year.

Those who make such a program possible and those who put so much time and effort into it are to be commended. The program has been perfected into a smooth-working, highly-competitive thing out of which many youngsters received wholesome play and a new sense of sportsmanship.

The sponsors, the Exchange Club and the City Recreation department, make the program possible financially. They pick up the tabs for uniforms, balls and other equipment. The sponsorship involves no re-stitution whatsoever, so their backing is certainly a big public service.

Warren Carroll, director of the recreation department, does a fine job of supervision besides lending a hand with the coaching of the Red team. He receives great support from his right hand man Neely James Neely who is one of the busiest men in the town. He has a mail route in the morning and is on the job at the park every afternoon.

He has many duties, the office work alone enough to keep him occupied. But when someone was needed to keep facts on the midget football teams and see that the results of every game were well publicized he volunteered. What more he's done a grand job.

This year's program has been the best ever according to Neely. He attributes this to the best coaching staff the program has ever had. The roster of coaches include Carroll and Lynn Barrier of the Red team, Byrd Homphries and Tom Shuts of the Blue team, Fred Williams, Ken Hall and Lem Cox of the Gold, Jack Windley and Charlie Briggs of the White team.

"These fellows have given their time because they're interested in youths and like to have a hand in preparing them for future athletics," Neely commented.

Neely also singles out the fine officiating as a factor in the better program. "We've had good calls all season. We have several boys from East Carolina to thank for giving their time and energy without pay in this respect," he said. Neely pointed out particularly Marshall DuVal, Fred Floyd, Jimmy Shine and Epps Ready as helping hands.

Neely and Carroll, along with all the coaches, look for another fine year in 1956. They like to leave you with the idea that these youngsters of the midget league are the high school and college stars of tomorrow.

Look in on their games when you can. You'll get a bang out of the spirit and big league fashion.

INDIANS' CHANCES HANG ON THIN THREAD

The Old North State league and Lenoir Rhyme gets our vote for the "Switch of the Year" award. A year ago this time, Appalachian was pacing the conference and Lenoir Rhyme had not won a single loop game.

This past Saturday, Lenoir Rhyme assured itself of at least a tie for the 1955 championship and Appalachian in near the bottom of the heap without a Chinaman's chance. What's more, Coach Clarence Stasovich's Bruins stand in excellent position to sweep all honors which just goes to prove that a fighter can come of a cold deck to win.

Now, only Catawba's gritty Indians stand in the Bruins way. Coach Clyde Biggers' Tribe scalped porous Guilford 33-20 last week to keep its hopes alive. Lenoir Rhyme and Catawba meet in Hickory Thanksgiving Day in the year's final conference activity.

Actually, Catawba's hopes hang on the thin thread of an intelligibility. Western Carolina defeated Catawba 29-6 but it was later discovered that the Catawbas used a player scholastically ineligible. Conference rules leave the thing up to the offending school. Western Carolina has indicated that it will not announce its decision until the conference meets in December.

Thus, if the Indians win in the Thanksgiving Day meeting and Western Carolina forfeits its win over them, Catawba would share in the title. Catawba's conference mark at the moment is 3-2, same as East Carolina's.

Incidentally, the Pirates have also assured a place among the top three. If Catawba gets beat by Lenoir Rhyme, Coach Jack Boone's idle forces would move into sole possession of second place.

Tatum Sees Strain Eased With Early Bowl Deals

By GEORGE BOWEN
COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Coach Jim Tatum, an expert on post-season college football bowls, believes the recent trend to have games taken off some of the Coast Jim Tatum's Maryland team was chosen officially yesterday as representative of the Atlantic Coast Conference to play Oklahoma of the Big Seven. It will be the sixth trip to a bowl, five with Maryland, for Tatum in 11 years of college head coaching. The other was with Oklahoma the year before he switched to Maryland.

Tatum was instrumental in arranging an agreement by the Atlantic Coast Conference and the Big Seven to furnish representatives to the Orange Bowl in 1953.

The Rose Bowl has a similar arrangement with the West Coast and Big Ten leagues. The Cotton Bowl's host is from the Southwest.

"One reason for such conference tie-ups is we thought it could eliminate bowl prospecting before the season is over," said Tatum.

"Our squad knew, for instance, that if it showed to be the best team in the ACC it would go to the Orange Bowl."

"Now, most everything is cut and dried. Instead of the college, the conference makes all decisions.

"One of the greatest parts of the tie-up is that there is no chance for the players to put the college in a bargaining position. The conference decides how much we can spend and how we can spend it. While we get the check, we have to account for expenses to the conference which shares in it."

"Before, the college had a lot more money at stake and would have to seriously consider if the players would not go to the bowl. Now the squad doesn't have to vote. They belong to a conference and it's automatic."

On the money angle, Tatum pointed out that when Maryland went to the Sugar Bowl after its undefeated 1951 season, it was a $125,000 check at stake which had to be shared with no one. Two years ago when it went to the Orange Bowl under Atlantic Coast Conference auspices it netted only $1,100.

The ACC splits the bowl money three ways. After the specified expenses are subtracted, the competing college takes half. Of the remaining, the conference itself gets one quarter and the other three-quarters is divided equally among the seven other members.

If the competing member spends more than the authorized expenses, it must take the money out of its share and this materially reduced Maryland's net two years ago.

7-Foot Giant Is No Ring-Master

By STERLING SLAPPEY
LONDON (AP) — The trouble with Ewart (Pottie) Poitgieter who weighs as much as a couple of light-heavies, is that he can't hit any harder than a welterweight.

Not that there's anything timid about welters, you understand. But a guy who stands 7-3 and weighs 325½ should be able to punch with more authority.

Pottie, a 21-year-old South African, is that big and his punches were that futile last night as he plodded through 10 rounds against Canadian James Parker a mere 6-3 and 225.

Referee Charles Davidson, the lone judge under English rules, declared it a draw and left the 12,000 spectators laughing and booing.

Most of the ring-side observers saw Parker the clear cut winner. The Associated Press card favored the ex-cowboy from Canada 7-3.

At best, Poitgieter was a disappointment in the bout which was to serve as a test of his ability in his bid for a U.S. appearance. Pottie had knocked over all nine of his previous foes as a pro, but Parker, rarely active these days, was his first experienced or accredited opponent.

There wasn't a sign of a knock-out punch throughout the fight. It was only a matter of Parker trying to reach Pottie's chin while avoiding the giant's swipes.

Pottie proved a reluctant giant, falling to use his weight or huge arms—capped by 1½-inch fists—to advantage.

Parker 27 and fighting for only the fourth time in two years, landed about 50 shots on the big guy and if he had been able to muster a harder wallop, could have felled Pottie like a tree.

Grimesland And Chicod Split Bill

Chicod and Grimesland opened their Pitt County Conference basketball cards last night by halving a twin-bill. Chicod won the girls game, 67-55, while Grimesland won the boys' tilt, 59-33.

Patsy Mills paced the winning girls with 37 points. Becky Mills had 30 for Grimesland.

Frankie Singleton and Happy Elks led the visiting boys to victory, getting 19 and 17 apiece. Garland Cox had 18 for Chicod.

Trial For G-Men Of Next Year

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer
Coach Guy Lewis' Phantom footballers continued work yesterday in preparation for the final match of the season for GHS in Roanoke Rapids. Greenville will be trying to improve a 3-6 overall record and a 1-4 loop slate.

The Greenies spent some time on offensive maneuvers Tuesday afternoon besides their usual skull drill and calisthenics. Several underclassmen who have been giving a good account of themselves in past games are seeing trial action with the squad this week and are expected to do a lot of playing against the Yellow Jackets. Ends Tommy Mallison and Billy Boyd Cox may carry the lion's share of duties at that position, as Coach Lewis plans to season some of next year's players.

Edwin Wilkerson, a regular at one of the end posts, is a junior and will probably hold down his spot during most of the contest. In the line, reserve center Albert Crawford will probably fill in for senior Jack Calhoun. Roy Martin, another junior, will undoubtedly see battle at one of the tackle slots. Barney Barrett, who has been a Phantom standout at guard, despite an arm injury, will be back next year and will probably work one of the positions Friday night.

The Green backfield will lose only one regular this season but that loss will be a big one. Captain and halfback Pete West has been a strong threat to enemy defenses since his conversion from guard to the backfield.

Mack Roebuck, a sophomore who took over the quarterback duties when Jerry Drum was forced out of the lineup early this season, has performed well and will command his crew this weekend. With him will be Robert Howell, another underclassman, and Billy Sermons, a junior.

Bobby Edwards may run from West's position at intervals during the Roanoke Rapids fray.

Gold Mites Top Blues By 13-7

The favored Gold midget football team yesterday earned a berth in the annual Thanksgiving classic by defeating a stubborn Blue eleven, 13-7.

Gold's opponent in the holiday game will be determined by the Red-White game to be played tomorrow in the Elm St. Park.

The Gold team drew first blood yesterday, driving 75 yards for the score. The drive was set in motion when safety Kroghie Anderson intercepted a Blue pass on his own 5. With fullback Randy Bass showing the way, the regular season champions drove to the Blues' 26 as the first period ended.

Moving mostly on the ground, Gold penetrated to the 16 and then Burt Ayloik took a flat pass and slammered to the 3. Don Speight, halfback, crashed over for the six points. Quarterback Jack Whitley sneaked for the point-after and the Golds led 7-0.

Score Again
The Golds tallied again before the Blue team cracked the touchdown barrier. The Gold eleven held on their own 19 and took over to march goalward.

At the end of the third period, the Golds had the ball on their 28 and were shifting into high gear about this time. With Speight, Bass, Billy Neal James and Whitley carrying the mail, they marched to the 10.

James scored on an off-tackle play but the Golds were holding and the play nullified. With the ball back on the 25, Whitley passed to Bass for the T.D. Try for extra point was no good.

Harry Forbes did the Blue scoring honors a few minutes later. His 3-yard smash climaxed a 65-yard drive. Forbes also added the extra point.

Gold coaches cited Ricky Suave, Jack Foley and Burt Aycock for good jobs in the line. Anderson, James and Billy Kimbrough played well in the defensive secondary. Speight, Whitley and Bass were the winners' offensive guns.

Wright, Johnson, Duff, sumrell Forbes and Evans looked good on defense for the Blues. Erskine Duff was the workhorse on offense. He received a lot of help from Forbes, Wright and Ray Corbett.

Winterville Basketballers Split Beargrass Twin Bill

Winterville high school opened its basketball season last night in Beargrass in non-conference twin games. The boys defeated their hosts, 55-51, in a hard-fought match that saw center Jack Sawyer take scoring honors for Winterville with a total of 24 points. Leading the parade for Beargrass was guard Phil Peaks who dumped in 18 markers.

The Beargrass girls team handed Winterville a 46-32 defeat in the second game. Polly Cowan of the home squad led the scoring with a 15 point performance. Pat Tripp of Winterville and Dean Phelps of Beargrass tied for second place with a total of 14.

WILSON COUNTY TOBACCO FARMS & FARM EQUIPMENT AT AUCTION

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1955

FIRST SALE — 10:30 A. M.
THE HAGANS FARM — Located on the Old Black Creek Road 4 miles from Wilson and 3 miles from Black Creek, N. C.
Containing 258.6 acres of land, this farm is located in one of the richest farming sections of North Carolina. Of this total acreage, 222.6 is in open land. The soil is suitable for any crop and is especially adapted to the growing of fine tobacco, corn and cotton. The farm carries a tobacco allotment of 42.7 acres. Its buildings include 6 modern dwellings, 11 well constructed tobacco barns, 3 pack houses, 3 barns used for the storage of corn and hay and all necessary buildings for the complete operation of a farm of this size. The property has been sub-divided into seven tracts to enable you to purchase as little or as much of this fine land as you desire. Every acre is in a high state of cultivation. You will find no waste land here. There is no money to be spent for improvements to buildings or to the land.

Free Bar-B-Cue Dinner

SECOND SALE — 1:30 P. M.
THE PECAN FARM — Located 4 miles S. E. of Middlesex, N. C., 2 miles from Oak Grove Church.
This farm containing 126.3 acres is a real money maker. Long noted for its excellent pecan bearing orchard, it is also one of the finest stock and grain farms in this section. Of the total acreage, 96.4 is in cleared land. The buildings on the property consist of one modern 4-room dwelling, one tobacco barn and one pack house. Sub-divided into small farm tracts in order that you may purchase the size tract to fit your needs. The farm carries a tobacco allotment of 11.4 acres, which can readily be transferred to any other farm in Wilson County.

Are you in need of farming implements or equipment? If so, here's your opportunity to bid on some of the most modern up-to-date equipment used in the state. The sale of these implements will commence immediately following the sale of the Pecan Farm.

Pleasant Grove Church Honored

ASHEVILLE (AP)—North Carolina's rural Baptist church of the year — Pleasant Grove Church near Rutherfordton — has almost doubled its small but active membership in the past 2½ years.

Its pastor during that time has been the Rev. Sam H. O'Neal, whose church was selected as rural church of the year last night by the North Carolina Baptist State Convention here.

Grouped as runners-up were Waco Baptist Church of Waco, Red Hill Church of Plkton, West Edgecombe Church of Rocky Mount, and Reepsville Church of Vale. Next were March Church of Mount Olive and Mount Carmel Church of Chapel Hill.

The Pleasant Grove Church, which has a membership of 291, has received 120 new members during the past 2½ years. From July 1, 1954 to June 30, 1955, it baptized one new member for every present church member.

The little church also is "four-star" — reaching its members in the Sunday school, training union, woman's missionary union and brotherhood. It has a vacation Bible school each year, and cradle roll and extension departments which take care of persons unable to attend regular services.

THE QUICKSILVER POOL

SYNOPSIS
Newly married Lora accompanied her husband, Wade Tyler, to his family home on Staten Island after nursing him back to health from a serious wound he received while fighting as a United States Marine. She meets Wade's autocratic mother, Amanda Tyler, and Jenny, son of Wade and his dead first wife, Virginia. Amid the growing tension between Wade's mother and Lora, the bride learns that Virginia died by drowning in a pond near the Tyler home. Lora finds Wade mourning for Virginia and asks him to tell her what she was like. After learning more of Wade's earlier life, Lora promises Jenny a surprise for Christmas. The surprise is a puppy despite the opposition of Wade's mother to having pets in the house.

CHAPTER NINE
Lora sat at ease, looking about the room. Pale roses bloomed against the light green of the carpets. The room was so long that two fireplaces were necessary. Each with its marble mantel and gilt-framed circle of mirror about. Fires burned behind elaborate andirons. Fires in a room like this when there was no company!
Every wall was graced with paintings, but they were of foreign buildings, or woodland scenes, instead of the usual family portraits which most people hung in parlor and drawing-room. Turning about in her chair, curious and interested, Lora saw that the only portrait in the room was a large one which hung behind her on the wall at the far end of the room. This picture was oddly framed by dark green velvet curtains which cut down past the single standing figure of a woman, setting it off effectively though hiding whatever else the artist might have painted in his picture.

The figure in the portrait stood beside long french doors and there was a glimpse of white columns beyond, so the picture must have been painted in this very room. The woman was strikingly beautiful, with great dark eyes that seemed to challenge the observer. She had been painted in a yellow gown that set off her dark beauty but did not detract from the center of interest—her arresting face. Studying the picture, Lora did not doubt that it was Mrs. Nicholas Channing, she was a woman to be reckoned with. If Wade had quarreled with her it must have been a resoundingly good quarrel to say the least.
She heard the turning of a knob just then and swiveled about in her chair to stare with innocent attention at the fire in the nearby grate. She did not glance up until the original of the portrait stood beside her.
"Mrs. Tyler?" said a cool voice which carried no hint of welcome in it and Lora looked into a face that was far less beautiful than that of the woman in the portrait. Indeed, the artist had flattered Amanda Tyler accept it in her household," said Mrs. Channing directly.

Lora raised her chin ever so slightly. "I see no reason why she should not accept it."
The woman in the chair opposite relaxed against its back and her laughter was sudden and rich and unrestrained. Morgan Channing did not laugh like a well-bred lady and Lora was relieved at the sound.
"I'll confess that I didn't expect to like you," Mrs. Channing said. "But I think I'm going to."
Lora's look must have been one of inquiry because Mrs. Channing smiled wryly and went on:
"How does Wade feel about this fighting, now that he's had a taste of it himself?" Mrs. Channing asked.
"He hates it, too," Lora said. Mrs. Channing, as a near neighbor, if not a friend, probably knew well enough that Wade had gone to war driven by the pain of his wife's death. He had not wanted to fight, but only to escape—perhaps even in death itself.
Mrs. Channing nodded sympathetically. "There are many of us here in the north who are bitterly opposed to the war. We feel it should never have been fought and that the sooner it is stopped the better for our country as a whole."
"But how can it be stopped?" Lora asked. "It's too late now."
The other woman was silent for a long moment. Then she shrugged. "Let's not talk about gloomy things. Tell me, how do you like Staten Island? Has Wade taken you to any parties yet? There's quite a social life here, you know."
Lora sipped her tea and spoke readily of the inconsequential.
After the stiff meals at the Tyler house it was a relief not to guard her tongue. She had, of course, seen little of the island, she explained, but the prospect of a social life sounded like fun. She hoped Wade would be willing to enter into it.
"He was gay enough in the old days," Mrs. Channing said thoughtfully.
"Then you've known him for a long while?"
Again there was a flicker of surprise across the moody face. "All my life. And I can assure you that once he is out from under his mother's wing he is popular enough. Especially with the ladies."
Was there a faint scratch behind her words? Lora was not sure. At any rate, time was flying and she did not dare stay away too long. As soon as she could manage it, she would say she must go, and Mrs. Channing rose to accompany her to the door.
"Then I may really have one of the puppies?" Lora asked. "Of course, I wouldn't want to take it now. But perhaps you could instruct your gardener to bring it down to our house Christmas morning?"
Mrs. Channing's hand paused within reach of the crystal door-knob. "My gardener?"

Lora was puzzled. "The man they call Ambrose is your gardener, isn't he? I spoke to him down by the gate as I came in."
"Gardener? I—suppose he is." Mrs. Channing let her hand drop to her side, and now there was wry amusement in her eyes. "How like the Tylers not to inform you about such things! He is also my father."
Lora could only stare. "But he— he called you Mrs. Channing most respectfully."
"He likes his little joke," the other woman told her drily. "In return, I call him Ambrose, and our masquerade serves me nicely at times. It saves me embarrassment with guests, since he prefers to remain what he has always been—a gardener."

her outrageously in his painting. This woman's mouth was too large, albeit the lips were as red as the painted ones of the picture and she had a faint hump to her large, straight nose. Only her eyes were the eyes of the portrait, dark and arresting, but far more vital in life.
Lora gave her hand into the long-fingered one that was held out to her. Mrs. Channing barely touched her fingers and then withdrew her own hand quickly. She went to sit in a damask chair opposite Lora and regarded her guest with a look that was appraising and far from friendly. Unlike the vivid figure in the portrait, she wore black with a great hoop skirt; black relieved only by the jade of her long earrings, and the jade and gold brooch at the V of her gown.
"It is very kind of you to see me," Lora faltered, sensing for the first time that there might be effrontery in her appearance here. If Wade brooked no friendship with the Channing household, it was equally possible that Mrs. Channing bore him a similar ill-will.
"I will tell you at once why I'm here," Lora said. "I would like very much to purchase one of your puppies. I want it for Jenny Tyler."
A hint of surprise flickered across Mrs. Channing's face and there was a barely perceptible softening to amusement of her full red mouth.
"I will gladly give you your choice of a puppy if you can make

Parents Visited College Sunday
Approximately five hundred parents of students attending East Carolina were guests on the campus Sunday afternoon, as the college observed Parents' Day. Events included a talk by college President John D. Messick, a series of teas in campus residence halls and the Faculty-Alumni building, and a program of music.
Higher education and education on the elementary and secondary levels present a tremendous responsibility, President Messick told parents at a meeting in the Austin auditorium. More and more money is demanded as the schools expand, he explained.
Higher education, he said, pays in dollars and cents. He gave facts and figures showing that the college graduate may expect greater financial returns than those with less

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices were mixed today in a fairly active stock market.

The average level of prices was hovering near a new record high mark.

Losses ran to around 4 points while gains went to around 3. Most changes either way were small in the early afternoon.

Most of the activity in the market was centered in individual issues rather than in groups.

The pace was around 2,500,000 shares for the day as compared with 2,500,000 shares traded yesterday.

Johns-Manville raced ahead as directors proposed a two-for-one stock split. The stock was up 3 1/2 when trading was halted briefly.

It reopened on 4,000 shares up 4 at 96 1/2, and then it traded with a gain of between 3 and 4 points for a considerable time.

National Steel, which raised its dividend and disclosed plans for an expansion program involving 200 million dollars, opened on 3,500 shares up 2 1/2 at 72 1/2 and continued trading around that figure.

General Motors opened on 15,000 shares off 1/4 and then lost some more. Chrysler, on the other hand, was up 2 at the start and then held fairly close to that advantage.

GM was yesterday's most active stock off 1/2 while Chrysler was second up 3 1/2.

American Hawaiian Steamship, off 3 points yesterday, was a heavy loser again today. In the previous month it had gained around 45 points.

Mother And Son Charged With Bootleg Trade

A mother and son have been arrested and charged with possession of non-tax paid whiskey for the purpose of sale, the Pitt County ABC office reported today.

Curtis Lee Moyer, 18, Negro, and Elma Lee Moyer, 38, Negro, both of 1211-A Pitt Street, were arrested after officers searched their residence last night and found two and one-half gallons of bootleg.

The whiskey, officers reported, was concealed in a cabbage bag which in turn was hung on a clothes line in the home.

Participating in the raid were, in addition to ABC men, Deputy Sheriff Jack Russell and Detective Roy Harris.

David J. Frederick, 43, Negro, of Washington, was fined $25 and costs for no operator's license.

Charges of assault with a deadly weapon against Eugene Lloyd, 22, were not pressed with leave.

Biologist Talks At Meeting Of Pactolus Ruritan

PACTOLUS—Jack Larimer, district biologist for the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission was the principal speaker at the Pactolus Ruritan Club's supper meeting Monday night.

He showed a film and discussed wildlife conservation in the state. He stressed the value of planting special shrubs for shelter and feed for wildlife. W. Connor Eagles introduced the speaker.

President R. W. Tripp announced appointment of Noel Lee Jr. and D. R. House Jr. as delegates to the Ruritan National Convention in Atlanta next January.

Tickets were distributed to members for the Greenville-Goldsboro district meeting in Greenville November 20.

Christmas Seals Being Distributed Over County

Pitt County's 1955 Christmas Seal Sale began today with the delivery of seals in the morning mail to county residents.

The annual sale, which will continue until Christmas, represents the yearly appeal for funds to carry on the year-round tuberculosis control work of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association.

Organizations in every area of the county are assisting in the seal sale under the direction of John G. Clark, president of the Association, and Dr. Karl B. Pace, Seal Sale chairman. Judson Blount Jr. is serving as Bond chairman, assisted by J. T. Marston, Dr. Dan Wright and Jerry Adcock.

County chairmen include Miss Tabitha De Visconti, Farmville; Mrs. Harry Stillman and Mrs. J. L. Jenkins, Ayden; Mrs. Cecil Satterthwaite, Pactolus; Mrs. W. F. Stokes and Mrs. J. B. Congleton, Stokes; Mrs. Earl Trevathan, Fountain; Mrs. J. T. Dupree, Belvoir; Mrs. Bruce Strickland and Mrs. Louise Webb, Bell Arthur; Mrs. Woodrow Wooten, Falkland; and Mrs. Edward Reeves, Grifton.

Though no definite goal has been set, president Clark said it is hoped that $12,000 can be raised through the mail sale of seals and bonds.

Approximately 8,000 letters containing seals were mailed to county residents under the supervision of W. C. Leggett, superintendent of county buildings and grounds. Ten of the letters contain gift certificates for items donated by local merchants.

The letters were stuffed by college students and members of various women's clubs in the city and were addressed by business students at Greenville High School under the direction of Miss Laura Bell.

From December 12-17 members of the Service League will man booths in the post office and on December 18, 19, 20 and 21 at the post office.

Funeral Set Friday For George S. Pate

Mr. George S. Pate, 51, of New Bern, died in Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill Wednesday morning at one o'clock. He had been ill for the past two months.

Funeral services will be conducted at Epworth Methodist Church near Vanceboro Friday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock and burial will be in the church cemetery. The body will remain at the Wilkerson Funeral Home and will be taken to the church one hour prior to the time of services.

Mr. Pate spent most of his life in Craven County and had been living in New Bern for the past ten years. He was employed by the State Highway and Public Works Commission. He was a member of Epworth Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Sarah Jones Pate; three sons, Donald Lee of New Bern, Ronald of the Epworth community, and Walter Pate of the home; a daughter, Judith Pate of the home; and two grandchildren.

Grandson Of Mrs. Clyde Willis Dies

Sidney Dolan Willis, nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Willis of Baltimore Maryland, died at 6:15 o'clock Tuesday night at a Baltimore hospital. He was injured on the school playground Tuesday morning. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Sidney was born in Williston, N.C. and had been living in Baltimore for the past three years, where his father is stationed with the Coast Guard. Sidney was son of Willard and Lucille Willis, formerly of Williston. He was in the second grade.

Surviving are his parents; two brothers and a sister, Willie Michael, Kerry Luther, and Vickie Lynn Willis, all of the home; and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Clyde Willis of Greenville.

That his conference assessment is in this week. The N. C. Annual Conference will close next Sunday.

Colored News

Sally Branch School P.T.A. met with a majority of the homes represented. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mr. Wade Johnson. Highlights of the business session were: (1) Parents went on record as supporting the Mental Health Clinic; (2) to be represented at the District and State P. T. A.; (3) purchasing a bulletin board.

After the business session, the meeting was turned over to the chairman of the program committee, the program consisted of an address by Rev. H. Herring of Conetoe. His subject was "Unity." He stressed:

- 1) Together we stand, divided we fall;
- 2) There is strength in unity;
- 3) Man is the masterpiece of creation;
- 4) Man is the climax of creation;
- 5) Put God in all your programs;
- 6) Stand for truth and right;
- 7) Love one another.

Prof. Batts of Conetoe High School followed this address with some interesting remarks.

Rev. P. H. Mumford, pastor of York Memorial Church, wishes to remind all members that the conference year will close next Sunday.

Therefore, each one is asked to see to it that he or she is ready to meet the conference which will convene Wednesday, November 23, in New Bern.

Regular services will be held at York Memorial Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Children's baptism will be held at the 11 o'clock service. All boards will make their reports the same hour.

The Senior Choir of Mt. Calvary will meet at the church for rehearsal Saturday, Nov. 19, at 8 p.m.

The Amiable Social Club will meet Thursday at 8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Anna Murphy, 610-A Hudson St.

The Wiggins Gospelaires of Kingston will sing at Pitt County Training School, Grimesland, Thursday night at 8 o'clock. Please help your school by paying the generous admission fee.

The public is invited to attend a pre-Thanksgiving entertainment at Sallie Branch School Thursday night, Nov. 17.

Two Inducted By Local Rotarians

Two new members were inducted into the Greenville Rotary Club Monday night as J. B. Kittrell Sr. had charge of the induction and program.

Kittrell introduced the "baby Rotarians" Gene West and Jack Marston to the club adorned with baby bonnets and rattlers. Following the supper, Kittrell reviewed the accomplishments of Rotary International during its past 50 years. "Rotary has always emphasized the ideal of service," Kittrell said. He pointed out that fellowship and friendship are also cornerstones of the civic organization. In Rotary, he told the new members, "you are embarking on a new and noble enterprise, and adventure in service through Rotary."

"It's a pleasure to call at the bank!"

"Everyone there is so helpful, and when I haven't time to stop in myself, I always can bank by mail. I simply fill out a mail deposit form, at home, when I choose, enclose my deposit, and send the envelope off with the postman. It's really convenient!"
