Iran's Premier Wounded By Fanatic Moslem Gunman

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Premier Hussein Ala was shot and wounded by a Moslem fanatic today. A spokesman said later, after Ala was hospitalized, that his condition was not serious. Ala had removed his shoes, in accordance with Moslem custom, and started to walk across the carpeted floor of the Shah Mosque when the gunman stepped up to him, said a few words and then fired. The Premier, accompanied by some of his Cabinet was attending the mosque to mourn the death of Mostafa Kashani, son of Ayatollah Kashani the Moslem religious leader who played a major part in establishing Mohammed Mossadegh as premier and ending British control of oil properties in Iran. Ala was instrumental in ousting Mossadegh in August 1953. Ala, a veteran of Iran's diplomatic service and a former ambassador to the United States, was named last April 7 to succeed Gen.

Fazlollah Zahedi when the general retreated because of ill health. Ala then was minister of court to the Shah. He is 72 years old. He was rushed to the Iranian Railways Co. Hospital in Tehran. While he was Iran's envoy to the United States, from 1945 to 1950, Ala presented Iran's complaint to the U.N. Security Council against Russia for refusal to withdraw Soviet troops from his country in 1946. The complaint was the Council's first major case. When he returned to Tehran, Ala became foreign minister, then premier for one month in 1951. His government was ousted by a dispute over handling the nationalization of Iran's oil industry. Ala's 1951 predecessor as premier, Gen. Ali Razmara, was assassinated by a religious fanatic. Known sometimes as "the pocket premier" because he is only slightly over 5 feet, Ala has pursued a steadily pro-West, anti-Communist policy. Only last month his government brought Iran into the Baghdad defense pact with Turkey, Iraq, Pakistan and Britain.

Admit Forgeries In Stock Transfer

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Hospital Assn. case of Tarboro moved into its second day of hearing today with the state expected to present more testimony concerning the firm's alleged stock manipulations. Insurance Commissioner Charles Gold predicted the hearing would run into next week. Because some of the lawyers have other engagements, the hearing will recess tomorrow and resume Monday. Atty. Gen. W. B. Rodman and are presenting the case. At yesterday's opening session, Gold heard four former agents of State Hospital Assn. admit they forged the names of the company's policy holders to stock transfer certificates.

Harry C. Robinson of Crescent Beach, S.C., admitted forging signatures to a big batch of stock He told Gold that Larry P. Eagles of Tarboro, president of the association knew some of the certificates had been forged. Others who told Gold they signed names of policyholders to stock transfer certificates were Mrs. Ethel Williamson of Fayetteville, R. L. Lowder of Cooleemee and Louis Ray Moore of Salisbury. The hearing stemmed from an order issued by Gold last summer. He stepped in and halted the company's plans to convert from a non-profit hospital and medical service association into a stock health and accident insurance company. His order was appealed to Wake Superior Court, which returned the case to Gold for a hear-

Seize Control Of Peronista Union

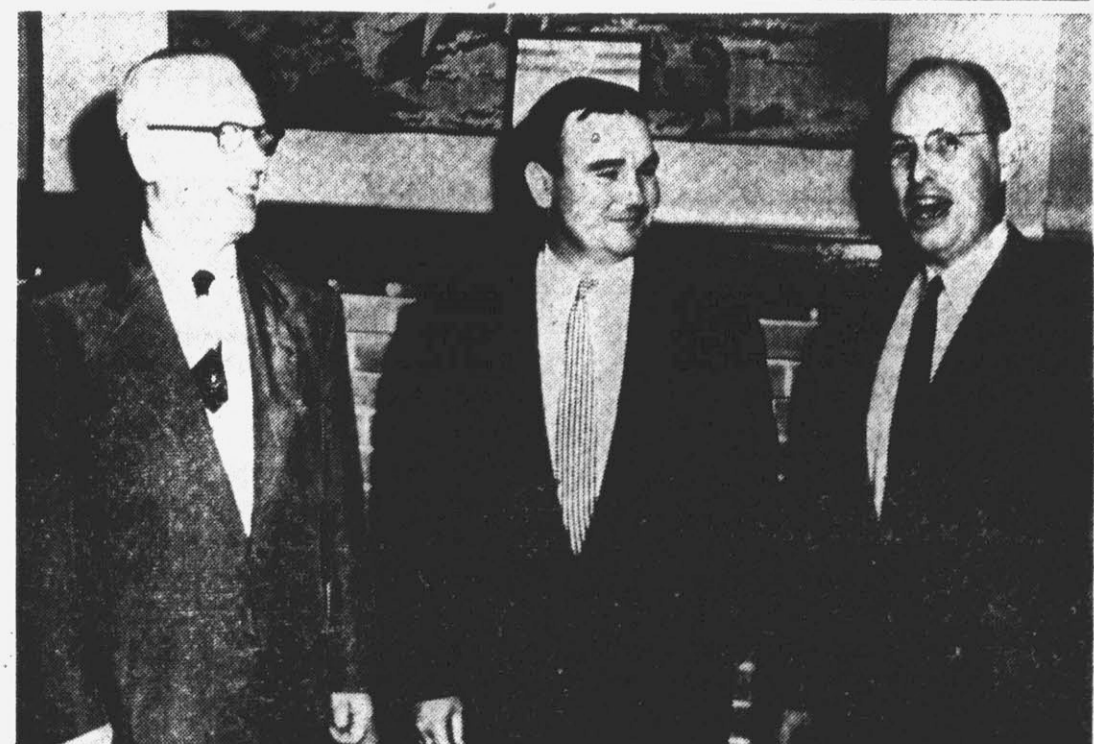

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu's new Argentine government, using tank-supported Marines and army troops, last night seized control of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT), backbone of the old Peron regime. The government made its surprise move as a fizzling general strike by CGT kept key meat-packing plants closed and hit other important industries. Essential services were unaffected.

Simultaneously with the swoop by the troops on CGT headquarters here, police arrested about 100 leaders of the trainmen's unions who were preparing to call a railroad strike. Failure of the railroad workers to join the three-day-old strike was one of the main reasons why the walkout had missed its sponsors' goal of paralyzing the nation. The government appointed Navy Capt. Alberto Patron as interventor (administrator) for CGT, which claims six million members. A government decree said all officials of the central organization and its member unions had been removed from their posts. A commission was named to investigate CGT.

Chest Campaign Is Officially Opened

Chairmen and special gifts solicitors officially launched the 1955 Community Chest drive last night with a kick-off dinner meeting at the Rotary Building. The Chest workers heard Sam Underwood, Community Chest president, describe the work done by various participating organizations. They were also challenged by J. B. Kittrell Sr., special gifts chairman, to complete the drive to raise $15,350 within the allotted time. General Chairman Ben L. Rouse told the group that plans are to complete the solicitations within a ten-day period. At the end of that time, he said, all collected funds will be turned in and final tabulations made. Rouse also distributed special gifts cards to each of the solicitors and urged the workers to contact the individuals assigned to them. Rouse told the solicitors that even if everyone gives the same amount as last year the drive will still be short by about 10 per cent. Last year the drive ended approximately $1,800 short of the goal of $15,350. A similar goal has been set this year. For that reason, the chairman said, donors must be asked to give more this year or more people must be contacted if the goal is to be met. In addition to the special gifts solicitation a house-to-house campaign will be conducted by the Service League. In the business area a general business solicitation campaign is to be conducted. Also a special employee solicitation drive is to be carried out in the larger businesses. Special campaigns will be conducted among city and utilities employees, in the city schools and at the college.

GENEVA (AP)—East and West squared off today for a new round of the cold war for Germany. Closing statements at the Big Four foreign ministers yesterday left no doubt the struggle, concentrated for three weeks in the Palace of Nations here, will be transformed into a wider conflict of international politics and propaganda directed from Moscow, Washington, London, Paris and Bonn. The foreign ministers' conference ended with the spirit of Geneva, born four months ago at the summit conference here, torn to tatters. There was no decision to hold another session. Each side blamed the other for the total failure of the talks to produce any constructive agreements on German reunification, a disarmament and the removal of Iron Curtain barriers. After polite but tough exchanges in a 3 1/2-hour final session, the foreign ministers began pulling out for home. U. S. Secretary of State Dulles headed for Washington aboard President Eisenhower's plane Columbus III. It was learned Dulles will tell President Eisenhower he believes Russia eventually can be brought to accept German reunification on Western terms. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov arrived at the Geneva Airport in a cheerful mood, thanking the Swiss for their hospitality and referring to "tasks which could not be accomplished" at the talks. French Foreign Minister Adolphe Pinay flew to Paris and British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan was due in London. The most authoritative comment possible from the Western side was that it will take weeks, possibly months, to tell which side won. Much more was at stake at the meeting than agreements on the points directly at issue. From this broader perspective, several results can be listed before the conference. 1. The Soviet government was shown to be following a much tougher line in relations with the West than at the summit conference in July. 2. A demonstration of Russia's no-compromise attitude, even on minor problems of East-West relations, can be expected to counteract the softening influence of the Geneva spirit on Western policies. 3. An equally uncompromising attitude of the West on basic problems such as German unity and disarmament controls showed Russia the West is not willing to buy a settlement with the East at the cost of large concessions. 4. The cold war is still on—and seems likely to continue for a long time—in the sense that Russia seeks to drive Western Powers out of Germany and the United States out of Europe while the West wants to roll back Soviet power. Dulles, Macmillan, and Pinay came here with the conviction Molotov would meet their propositions on German unity and European security with conciliatory gestures and minor concessions. Molotov made it clear Russia would not yield an inch in Germany. Thereafter speeches on both sides were directed at capturing public opinion. Molotov charged the West with putting up plans for rebuilding militarism and destroying the "social gains" of the Communist regime in East Germany.

Editors Believe Adlai And Nixon Leading Field

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Adlai E. Stevenson are the most likely to win the 1956 presidential nominations in the view of most delegates attending the Associated Press Managing Editors Assn. convention here. By a ratio of almost 4-1 newsmen from all sections of the country predicted President Eisenhower will not seek re-election.

They see the farm problem and foreign policy as the two issues which will figure most heavily in the 1956 campaign. These are the highlights of a poll of the editors taken at the meeting and tabulated today. They were asked in a written questionnaire whether they believed President Eisenhower will run or not; if not, whom do they consider the three persons most likely to win the Republican presidential nomination; whom do they consider the three most likely to win the Democratic nomination; and what they think the major issues will be. They were not asked to express personal preferences. Not all of those voting answered every question. The editors voted Chief Justice Earl Warren of the United States the most probable rival of Nixon for the GOP nomination. Of 186 managing editors participating in the poll, 86 listed Nixon as most probable Republican president, 77 listed Warren. Nixon received 61 votes as the second most likely candidate and Warren polled 39. The vote for Stevenson on the Democratic side was overwhelming. He was listed by 77 editors. Next was Gov. Averell Harriman of New York. He polled 14 votes. Harriman got 101 votes as the second most likely choice.

Cold Wave, Wind And Snow Over Wide Area Northern States Are Chilled

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A cold wave, with biting wind and blinding snow in some areas, swept across the northern part of the nation today. Winds sent the arctic air across the plains into the north-central region and southward and eastward. Gale force winds swept off the Great Lakes and dropped from one to five inches of snow over western New York. Highways were blocked, trees were toppled and there were numerous power failures. At least two deaths and several injuries were attributed to the eastern storm. Wind gusts of 68 m.p.h. were recorded. Snow drifted to three feet in some areas. Routes 5 and 20 in New York were closed in spots. Key streets held traffic to a crawl. At least 30 schools were reported closed in Erie and Genesee counties in western New York. Northern Midwest areas also had fresh snowfalls ranging from one to three inches. Temperatures dropped sharply in many Midwest areas which had reported near-record high readings Tuesday. Chicago's weather changed in 24 hours from a sunny 71 Tuesday to a chilly, windy 17 last night. Wind gusts of 60 m.p.h. were reported and full gale warnings were posted for Lake Michigan. Oklahoma City's plunge was from 77 to 16 degrees. The freezing line extended from western New York southward through central Tennessee, into northern Texas, across northern Arizona and thence northwest to the central Oregon coast. It was still below zero in parts of Montana, northern Wyoming and sections of the Dakotas. It was below at Havre, Mont. There were heat records in sections of the Southeast yesterday with readings mostly in the high 70s and low 80s. It also was mild in wide areas of the East. Two women were killed in Detroit yesterday in accidents caused by winds up to 50 m.p.h. One man was crushed when a 30-foot concrete block wall toppled. Wind ripped a sheet of steel roofing from a construction worker's hands and knocked another man off a scaffold. Sheriff's officials in Wisconsin estimated some 18 duck hunters were stranded or missing on ice-choked waters near Horicon and Green Bay. Several others were rescued yesterday. Snowfall this morning was reported over most of Minnesota, northwest Wisconsin and Lower Michigan, most of the Far Northwest and the western plateau region.

In Sight

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Budget Director Rowland Hughes said today after a meeting with President Eisenhower that it looks as if the federal budget can be balanced in both the present and the 1956-57 fiscal years. The present, of 1955-56 fiscal year, expires next June 30. Top administration officials have said in the past that taxes can be cut if the budget is balanced and stays in balance. Hughes declined to predict, however, whether balancing of the budget will mean a tax cut. He said the balance will not be achieved at the expense of military strength and power. And he said spending estimates will not be affected by the failure of the Geneva conference to settle East-West differences.

Curbing Failed To Meet Requirement

Reports that sections of curbing recently installed along Pitt St. from Fifth to Dickinson Ave. have been rejected were confirmed today by City Manager James S. Hughes. Hughes said that approximately 180 feet of the newly installed curbing was too low to meet the existing street paving. It meant that an existing concrete base on the street had to be removed in order that the paving could be made to line up with the curb, Hughes said. Cost of the corrective work is to be borne by the consultant engineering firm of Rivers and Rivers, which contracted for the engineering work on the street widening job, according to the city manager. He stated that the total cost of the work has not been estimated as yet. An alternative to tearing out the concrete base to line up the street would have been to break out the newly installed curb and repour it at the proper level, Hughes said. However, corrective job being carried out "will be suitable," although "we would have preferred to have the curbing raised to the proper level," he declared. In addition to having to remove the concrete base, Hughes said that the soil base under the concrete was found to have been unsuitable in spots and those portions are being dug out and replaced with a firmer base. That would not have been necessary if the concrete had not been removed. The city manager stated that the error in placing of the curbing was not a construction error. The curb was placed at the height directed by the engineers. Hughes said a proposal by the engineering firm that the curbing be raised and the area beneath filled in with concrete mortar was not accepted and the present plan was finally agreed upon. It was the second corrective street work which the city has received at no cost within the past few days. The city manager stated that two blocks of paving on Cotanche and Second streets have been resurfaced by White Construction Co. without charge to the city. The paving, which was laid two and one-half or three years ago, "did not hold up as it should have," Hughes declared. He said that the paving "started going bad soon after it was put down and has been continually getting worse since." A regular resurfacing coat was applied to the two blocks.

Harty, president of the Newcomers Luncheon Club. W. T. Kyzer, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, will serve as host to the judges. The parade will begin at 5:30 p.m. at Dickinson Avenue and Ninth streets. It will proceed, under the Christmas street decorations of silver garland streamers, wreaths, bells and toyland scenes, down Dickinson Avenue to Five Points, then up Evans Street to the armory where it will disband. Christmas lights will be turned on immediately preceding the procession.

Forest Fire Fighters Are Kept On Run Over County

Pitt County Forest Ranger N. S. (Kic) Tyson and his firefighting equipment have "been on the jump" from one woods fire to another since Wednesday morning. A woods fire of unknown origin on the Buck land in the McGowan's Crossroads community did considerable damage yesterday morning. Forest rangers had the blaze under control by 4 p.m. A fire in woods on the Crandell land beyond Stokes, yesterday afternoon, that burned over a large area was reported to have been "started by children playing with matches."

A broom sedge and field grass fire in the Pactolus area finally burned itself out yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Mrs. Hazel Manning, observer in the forestry tower near the television station about 9:30 today reported heavy smoke in the Port Terminal area of Pitt County. Extent of the fire there had not been ascertained. Pitt County Forest Ranger Tyson today warned farmers and rural dwellers not to burn any brush during this change in the weather and resultant high winds.

Workmen above pour a new soil base for paving on Pitt St. Additional work was required on the job because the newly installed paving for the street widening project was placed too low. City Manager James S. Hughes said the engineering firm which handled the job has agreed to bear the cost of the corrective work. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Mrs. Ragsdale reported that progress was being made in the plans for landscaping the grounds of Sheppard Memorial Library, a project being done under the direction of the Garden Club. This club had previously voted to have some part in the work, and directed the treasurer to send in the donation at once.

Mrs. Cuthbert made interesting announcements concerning forthcoming attractions at the college and urged the members to attend. The hostess, who was also program leader for the afternoon, presented her son, Louis W. Gaylord Jr., as the speaker. Claiming him as one of their own, the club was especially happy to have him bring the program, and he gave a most interesting and informative talk on wills. He prefaced his remarks by asking the two questions, "Have you made a will?" and "Do you need to make a will?" He discussed these as they were directly applicable to women, and the general discussion which followed was evidence of the interest in the subject. No program of the club year has met a more ready response or been more genuinely enjoyed. The club felt indebted to both hostess and speaker. Sports Writer Al Hirshberg Was 'Pushed' Into Broader Field

By BOB HILLDRUP
Reflector Staff Writer

Outside of the "yankee" accent, there's little else to distinguish Al Hirshberg of Boston, Mass. from any other proverbial "man in the street." Appearances can still be deceiving however for Al, brother of East Carolina College professor Dr. Edgar Hirshberg, is one of the nation's top free-lance writers.

The awesome list of magazines that have carried the Al Hirshberg byline includes such family stand-bys as Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Reader's Digest, Redbook, McCall's, Sports Illustrated, Sport, True, Family Circle and Coronet.

Al, who was here to visit brother Ed earlier this week, began the journalistic career that was to lead to by-lines in the top national magazines as a campus correspondent for the Boston Post in 1930.

Then a student at Boston University, Al covered all the collegiate happenings for the Post and continued to do so following his graduation.

In 1935 he landed a position on the Post sports staff and stayed there except for World War II duty until 1952 when he began writing all his time to free-lance writing.

Upon returning from Navy duty in the Pacific where he participated in five invasions, Al took up a baseball bat, covering the Red Sox at home and away.

It was while Al was covering the Sox that Boston won the 1946 pennant and then lost to the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series.

"I'll never forget that one," he said. "Watching Johnny Pesky holding the ball while Enos Slaughter came home with the winning run and the championship."

It was shortly after his return from the Navy, in 1947 to be exact, that Al and Milton Gross, now a New York columnist, collaborated on a story about Holy Cross' national champion basketball team.

That story sold quickly under the Hirshberg by-line and the trend for future writing was established.

In 1950 Saturday Evening Post took a story on Billy Goodman, North Carolina's contribution to the Red Sox and Al appeared firmly established as a magazine writer and sports staffer for the Post.

In 1952 however, the Post was sold and the new management transferred Al to the city room. The change wasn't to his liking so the next year Al found that free-lancing, TIMELY ADVICE—Al Hirshberg (center), one of the nation's leading free-lance writers for major magazines, gives a bit of timely advice to his brother, East Carolina College professor Dr. Edgar Hirshberg as the latter cultivates his lawn at Deal Place in Greenville. formerly a sideline, had suddenly become a full time occupation.

Al's writing still consists mostly of sports articles but he isn't above branching out into entirely different fields. The December issue of Coronet, scheduled to hit the newsstands soon, will carry his by-line over an article concerning a kid-ney operation.

Books too, have played a part in the Hirshberg writing career. His latest, and one that hit the New York Times best-seller list, was "Fear Strikes Out," the story of Jim Piersall, a Red Sox star and his battle with mental illness.

Also published recently was the first in a series of 12-16 year old youngsters, "The Battery For Madison High," another baseball story. "Varsity Double Play," a sequel to "The Battery For Madison High," should be out soon and even more sequels may follow.

In addition, "The Red Sox, The Bean and The Cod" (1947), "The Braves, The Pick and The Shovel" (1948) and "Great American Athletes of Today—10th Series" (1947) appear under the Hirshberg by-line.

The years of covering sports for newspapers are filled with memories for Al, now 46, who says, "I'm still a newspaperman at heart."

Ted Williams, Boston's perennial hero, is, in Al's opinion, "far ahead of anyone as a player . . . better than Musial."

Carl Erskine, the great Dodger pitcher, is another top-notch in Al's book, particularly for his work in combatting juvenile delinquency.

Of Jackie Robinson, another Dodger star and the first Negro ever to play major league baseball, Al says, "I think he'd make a great manager. He's got a remarkable personality and he really took a beating when he first came up to the majors."

A writing schedule doesn't present a problem for Al. "I write when I feel like it," he says. "Of course, when I feel like it I keep on writing but there's no use to do it over and then have to write it over."

BUILDING COMPLAINT
SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—It's getting to be a habit at the home of John McGurgan.

Five times within three months a brick was hurled through a window of his home. And he told police he can't understand why his windows are a target for the brick tosser.

Glimmer Of Hope Was Magnified

The balmy breezes and soft lullabies that surrounded the summit conference at Geneva a couple of months ago certainly were not the least bit in evidence at the Foreign Ministers conference in the same city which was ended yesterday.

Should Waste No Time Finding Head For UNC

The executive committee of the University of North Carolina Board of Trustees had little choice but to accept the resignation of President Gordon Gray who has been on leave from the University for several months. The executive committee, the trustees and others throughout North Carolina have long since realized that the job of president of the Greater University is a full time job. It requires the full energy of an extremely capable administrator to discharge the duties of the office. Without the attention of a full time president, the University and its program is bound to suffer.

Gordon Gray has done a commendable job for the Greater University during the five years he has been president of the institution. We are confident the University could have continued to progress under his leadership. But when he chose to return to a federal government post, it was apparent that the University could ill afford to again try to get along with an absentee president.

Safe Driving Day Has Big Meaning This Year

Safe-Diving Day, December 1, is a date that should be marked in red on the calendar of every motorist throughout the nation. That's the date an all-out effort will be made to prevent traffic accidents across the country. The success of Safe Driving Day will depend, of course, on the individual motorist. Last year on Safe Driving Day the number of auto accidents took an appreciable decline, but there were still accidents, injuries and deaths on the highway. This year the goal will be to hold the number of accidents below those of S-D Day 1954.

From November 21 through December 10 a special safe driving campaign will be carried on in the 48 states. It will extend into every county and every community. The response the campaign receives from individual citizens will determine its success.

In Pitt County highway accidents this year already have taken twice the number of lives that were lost in traffic mishaps last year. The County is now only four deaths short of an all-time record for the number of people killed on its highways in a 12-month period. Particularly in Pitt, where the number of traffic deaths has already risen far too high this year, it behooves motorists to pay close attention to this safety campaign.

While it is important that the county have no accidents on S-D Day, December 1, it is equally important that the county hold down its number of accidents throughout the rest of the year. Such a goal can be realized only if every motorist takes special precaution to make every day Safe Driving Day.

Like Something Out Of A Horror Comic Book

The story read like a horror comic book, or a scene from TV show where the cops were tracking down a mad killer. But this time it wasn't fiction. It was real.

A young man with a long record of trouble with the law for his brief span of years is behind bars charged with murder. The murder of his own mother who died along with 48 persons in an airliner in which the youth planted a carefully constructed bomb.

Investigative officials who unraveled the tangled thread in the mysterious explosion and subsequent crash of the airliner are indeed to be commended. Were it not for their work the crash likely would have gone into the records as another air disaster, cause unknown. As it is, the story has been told and the explanation for the crash has been given the public.

Horrible as it is, it is of utmost importance that the cause was determined. The person who caused the death of those 44 innocent victims will be given his just punishment under the law. Of equal importance is the fact that airlines and law enforcement officers will now intensify their efforts to prevent a similar bombing of an airplane in the future.

The 44 who died a flaming death in the crash cannot be brought back. But the fact that the case has been solved may prevent others meeting a similar fate in the future.

and the West which was said to have been created at the summit conference was indeed short-lived.

About all that can be said of the most recent conference to bring about an easing of international tension is that the Representatives of the West and Russia met, talked and continued to disagree. It is clear that Molotov went to Geneva with no intention of making any effort to pave the way for the reunification of Germany. There is no chance that the Western powers will allow the communists to take over all Germany, and the Kremlin obviously has no intention of allowing the East German people to make any free choice.

It is also apparent from the meeting that the Kremlin intends to maintain as long as possible the barriers which now exist between East and West. They know full well that once these barriers are broken by the free movement of people and information, their hold on the people they now have in captivity will likewise be broken.

The war of words between West and East will be no less frigid by virtue of the Geneva conferences . . . both at the summit and on the Foreign Ministers plateau . . . than it has been in the past. The Kremlin has yet to indicate its desire to negotiate with the free world in good faith with an eye to easing world tension. There was a glimmer of hope at the summit conference which was magnified into a real ray in the minds of the people of the free world. It should be clear now that we over estimated the importance of the progress made at the summit conference, and what we mistook for a change in heart on the part of Kremlin leaders was merely a change of outward appearance.

Short On Ideas For Answering Problem

By LYNN NISBET
AGRICULTURE — Witnesses from North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland testifying before the Senate committee, exhibited keen recognition of the problems facing agriculture but were short on specific recommendations for solving them. This despite the admonition reiterated by Sen. Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, committee chairman, that the committee knows the questions and wants some help in answering them.

The No. 1 item is disposition of the farm crop surpluses produced under government urging during the years of the Korean war. Senator Ellender said that while the problem is recognized, he feels that farmers should be commended for complying with government requests for production reduction rather than "kicked" around for creating surpluses that plague the economy in peace time.

For the long range, the need is for controlling production to keep it more nearly in line with demand. That calls for acreage reduction for many crops. Then the major worry is what to do with the acreage taken out of production. Obviously, it is unfair to allow a tobacco farmer, for example, to plant diverted acres in wheat, or a wheat farmer to plant his diverted acres in cotton in competition with the areas which specialize in these crops.

The correct answer to the problems of cross compliance and use of diverted acres may lie in the difference between getting a bill and not getting one in the net Congress," Ellender said. Support prices and production control were the other two major issues. Testimony was almost unanimous that support, either rigid or flexible as to per cent parity, must be tied in with limit on production. Experiences with support prices without control proved disastrous, and figures were presented showing that flexible parity support resulted in increased surpluses.

GOAL — The objective of the committee as explained by its chairman is to make farming so attractive and profitable that farmers will not have to engage in other occupations to make a living.

When North Carolina witnesses pointed to the need for other employment through development of small industries, Chairman Ellender reminded them that his committee had to look at the national picture and in few other states was there opportunity for such offside industrial work. And when spokesmen for the beef cattle industry of southwestern Virginia and poultrymen from the DelMarVa area emphasized local problems, the chairman reminded again that his committee was concerned with the nation and that local matters should be handled through State legislation.

BIQ—LITTLE — Throughout the testimony, frequently arose the different problems and different approaches to solution affecting the big farms and the little fellows on family-operated farms. It was put in evidence that the average farm in Wisconsin contains 3,300 acres. The average in Louisiana is 90 acres, and in North Carolina less than 50 acres.

Majority opinion of the witnesses was that while a congressional act would have to apply to all areas, it should provide special consideration for the little fellows in acreage allotments, government credit and other phases of aid to agriculture. A preliminary statement by Chairman Ellender and prepared statements by D.W. Colvard, dean of agriculture at State College, and Harry B. Caldwell, master of the State Grange got the major problems in the record. Other witnesses were asked to deal with these main points and not repeat the statement of the issues. Sitting as members of the committee were Senator Kerr Scott and Rep. Harold Cooley, chairman of the House committee on agriculture.

DEMOCRATS — It was a Democratic group and every so often there crept in side comments about the attitude of the Republican administration. There was no much joy manifested for Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson, but Chairman Ellender commented that "we seem to have a State Department which is much more concerned about the welfare of other nations than about the American farmer."

There were two North Carolinians and one Louisianian sitting on the committee, but there was no indication of sectional approach. The problem is nationwide and the front-bank folks manifested as much concern for the welfare of the farmers in Kansas and California as for those in Louisiana and North Carolina.

Which might add emphasis to the claim that the Democratic party is really the national party, the Republican party being more sectional—despite claims in some quarters to the contrary. Senator Ellender and Representative Cooley, chairman of the Senate and House committees on agriculture made it clear they were not sectionally selfish in dealing with the problems confronting their respective groups.

Other Editors Are Saying . . .
Something Besides Tobacco
(Goldsboro News-Argus)
If the tobacco allotments for next year are allowed to stand at the 12 per cent reduction already approved, we must have bigger reductions in 1957 and in 1958. That is barring the miraculous unexpected of a very poor crop year next year or the equally miraculous opening up of the foreign markets of Red China and an increase in consumption here at home.
If the picture of supply and demand stays like it is, we must face this sobering realization: Our tobacco acreage must be cut at least a third from what it is now in the next three years.
Full comprehension of this fact should have a deterring effect on the investment in tobacco farms.
That might be well for our business men and for our section. Eastern Carolina has been classed as the greatest undeveloped region of potential and possibility along industrial lines. Our preoccupation with tobacco has in part explained this situation. Tobacco since the control program was inaugurated has been a sure investment. One could buy tobacco farms and be as sure as one can be on this earth that he was going to get a good dividend each year on his purchase. He could be sure that he would be able to make more on his money than in practically anything else that was immediately open for investment.
Now don't get us wrong. We are not saying that the returns on tobacco have been too large. Far from it. What we are saying is that we have paid so much attention to tobacco we have neglected to develop the opportunities that lie in the "Acres of diamonds" about us.
All of us have seen this. The young professional man, attaining a competency and wishing to invest for the future, has bought tobacco land.
The young business man on getting some money ahead, has bought tobacco land.
The business man in general in Eastern North Carolina is quite likely to be also a tobacco farmer. That is all right. It is fine. But the over emphasis and interest in tobacco has meant that capital did not look around for new opportunities at home. We have not taken advantage of our resources of water and land and forests to develop new products and new processes.
It was just too hard to interest people with money in anything but tobacco farms.
Now we are up against it. Tobacco farming as it declines in extent and importance will force us to put our money somewhere else, to do our own part and share in establishing processing plants for agricultural products, in establishing our own industries. We must use our imagination, our brains in finding new places to safely invest the money we have been putting in tobacco land.

What Does Freedom Sound Like?

by Bob Hilldrup

When To Improve On Silence?

A bit of philosophy has caught our eye and we think its message is worth passing along. It comes to the Reflector by way of the Rocky mount Evening Telegram and is credited to the High Point Enterprise. Said story goes thus: Seems there was once a bright young man who just loved to talk. No, that he ever said anything, he just talked. Then suddenly, his friends (such as he had) noticed that he had lapsed into a silence that would make the Sphinx look like a chatterbox. Why? They wondered. His reply is a classic. He said in happened up in Vermont that a stranger appeared at a country store. He found a group of glum-looking men seated around a stove and saying nary a word.

Being a personable soul, he attempted to start a conversation. His first remark drew no answer. Neither did his second. Finally he demanded if there was any law against talking in those parts. "Well," ventured one of the Vermonters slowly "It's this way. We have a rule here that unless a fellow can improve on the silence, he says nothing." A lot more folks could benefit from that prescription these days. If there is one thing you learn in the newspaper business, it's that people are funny. Funny, that is, in the peculiar sense of the word. Every now and then some well-meaning soul will bring in an item of news for inclusion in the paper. Most people are quite considerate about this matter but occasionally someone will come along who not only wants his "item" included just as he wrote it but also wants to read it again before it goes to press. Those same few folks, and they are a rarity, wouldn't think of trying to defend themselves in court—they'd get a lawyer; they wouldn't think of trying to draw a set of house plans—they'd get an architect; they wouldn't think of trying to fly a plane—they'd get a pilot and yet, somehow, they seem to feel that they and they alone know how a news story ought to be written. Of course, these folks are in the vast minority. Most of them that bring things in do so with items that have real news value. But it just goes to show—people are funny.

Notebook On Life

From An Optimist Into Cynic

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — The surest way to lose all faith in human nature is for a man to get a black eye or a broken hand in a small household accident. Nothing turns an optimist into a cynic faster. No matter how simple or logical your tale of woe is, neither friend nor foe will believe it. In fact, if you do hurt yourself at home, you might as well tell a great big whopping fib about it. Most people may still regard you as a liar, but they'll at least credit you with being an imaginative liar. On just a little household accident," I told him, feeling I shouldn't upset his day with worry. "You mean a little household argument," he replied heartlessly. "Maybe that'll teach you not to talk back to your wife." I made a dignified mental note never to borrow $1,000 from him, even if he begged me on his knees. When the second fellow, solicitously inquired about my injury, I murmured something about "falling off a ladder." "I'll bet you got it falling off the wagon," he remarked. The third man didn't even bother to ask. He felt he already knew. "Don't tell me you caught it in a door," he said, "unless it was a swinging door." After a number of others stopped me to find out the reason for the bandage, I gave up hoping for sympathy. I realized that people don't want the real truth in such cases. They are looking for entertainment.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
"BLESSSED ARE THE PEACEMAKERS" — "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God." But who are these peacemakers? The men in the Kremlin cry out that all they want is to establish peace in the world. Hitler was always talking about peace, and so was Mussolini. But what kind of peace did they want? They wanted the peace which comes from the acceptance by the whole world of their ideas. They were devoted to peace but they wanted peace only on their terms.

the world when Jesus was born, but it was the peace of heavily armed legions marching across the world. The Bible speaks about peace and says that it exists among men of good will. There can be no peace so long as a man's life is in any sort of bondage. If a man is in bondage to his creditors, he has no peace. If a man is in bondage to a job he hates, he has no peace. If a man is in bondage to his appetite, he has no peace. Peace and freedom go together, and freedom must be seasoned with good will.

The peacemakers are those who overcome evil with good, who go out of their way to reconcile enemies, who build bridges of understanding between peoples. Blessed are the peacemakers.

Warren's Star Falls; Nixon's Brighter

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Earl Warren's star has fallen from the political sky with the same speed that has marked the rise of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, assuming that President Eisenhower's health eliminates him from active politics. These conclusions, which prevail among GOP professionals, have nothing to do with the qualifications or "electability" of either Californian. They are based on the practical down-earth considerations which move the 10 or 20 bosses in the "smoke-filled backroom," who always make the final decisions while 1,500 delegates and their wives mill around shopping or sight-seeing in such convention cities as New York, Chicago or San Francisco. Warren's elimination comes at a particularly bad time for the scared Republicans. In view of Democratic gains in the recent local and state elections, they realize that they must put forward their best man, and they regard the C.J. as second only to Ike. REACTION IN SOUTH Chief Justice Warren, however, would receive hardly a single Southern delegate because of the Supreme Court's rulings against segregation in the public schools and state parks. Of the two decisions, it is probable that the one on management of state recreational facilities hurts him most heavily. Apart from constitutional factors there may be some semblance of validity for the school decision because of Federal contributions to education. But, in the opinion of Southern lawyers and politicians, there is no legal or moral ground for judicial interference with state-owned parks and beaches and other vacation spots. Indeed, several eminent Southern jurists have expressed open defiance of the high tribunal on this issue. Their language, although couched in judicial terms, was sharp—a verbal Fort Sumter.

FURTHER BARRIER TO WARREN NOMINATION There is another barrier to a Warren nomination, in the opinion of Party leaders who are not influenced by partisan thoughts alone. For Warren to head the ticket in view of these controversial racial rulings, would be to precipitate a clash as bitter and disruptive as the religious prejudices which erupted in the Hoover-Smith contest of 1928. It would do the nation no good. Another politically explosive decision escaped notice because of the emotion and excitement stirred by the prohibition of recreational segregation. The Supreme Court, decided in favor of several public power co-operatives in a controversy with the private utilities over disposition of Kilowatts. Many GOP conservatives in the North, Middle West and Far West regard this as indication of an ultra-radical trend of the Roosevelt-Truman brand. It is doubtful

Japan's Impact On Markets

By ELMER ROESSNER

If you are a shopper and in the course of your Christmas spree you see an article that makes you say, "Gee, I didn't know they could make them at that price!"— Or if you are a merchant and a distributor offers you a line at a price so low you wonder if it's "hot!"— Look the item over carefully. You may find these words: "Made in Japan." Nipponese manufacturers and exporters are sending a stream of goods into this country, many of them pitched for Christmas sales. (Rosary beads are an important item.)

SOME BETTER, SOME WORSE Some of the merchandise rolling in is a shoddy imitation of American goods. Other articles are the work of superb craftsmen. One example: Harry L. Tepper, Ronson collector, testified before the Tariff Commission that Japanese cigarette lighters are often counterfeiters of Ronson lighters. The resemblance is so great, he said, that buyers frequently send them to Ronson for repairs. A different kind: Many fans have purchased Japanese 35 mm. cameras because they judge them superior to celebrated German makes.

Most of the imports fall some place between. J. William Tanaka, an attorney representing the Japanese Chamber of Commerce of New York, has asked the government to reduce tariffs on cellulose articles, antimony ware, hats, knives, slide fasteners, wood or bark products, paper, buttons, dolls and dolls' clothing, toys, buckles, inexpensive cigarette lighters, beads and umbrellas. He said these articles present no substantial, direct competition with American manufactures.

POTTERY, TEXTILES, RADIOS The Japanese are also sending in porcelain, pottery, toys, ornaments, costume jewelry, thread, textile products and radios. New York's largest department store is advertising a made-in-Japan portable radio powered by one 45-volt and one flashlight battery for $22.94. A wholesaler is offering another small portable—direct from Japan in large orders only—at prices for retail sales at $20. No much plied cotton yarns on come in from Japan that the Thread Institute has asked the Tariff Commission to raise barriers against Japanese spinners. An arbitrator imposed $60,000 in penalties on three New York blouse manufacturers who contrary to contracts with the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, imported 5,676,000 blouses from Japan. The National Association of Blouse Manufacturers has asked the government to increase the duty on blouses. This year's import of blouses may total 36,000,000 a fifth of the total market.

HOW, WHAT AND WHY The reason Japanese manufacturers can pay for shipping around the world and still undercut American makers is, of course, the low Nipponese wage scale. H.B. Lerner, executive director of the National Association urging higher tariffs to keep out Japanese blouses and thereby protect the jobs of American garment workers, said "It is difficult to believe that Congress can support a domestic work week of forty hours at one dollar per hour in the face of Japanese wages of five dollars a week without any hourly limitation." Washington concedes that letting Japanese imports flow in at present rates will cost Americans jobs, profits, votes. But barring them will cut Japan's dollar income, reducing its power to buy American goods, thereby costing Americans jobs, profits, votes. In addition restricting Japanese imports may restrict the Nipponese economy and force Japan to seek trade deals with the Communists. Should, therefore, a shopper buy Japanese goods? If the articles are shoddy imitations, of course not! But what of finely crafted items at less than the cost of comparable American goods? A buyer—whether consumer or retailer—can console himself with the fact that the problem is already in the hands of the government. Beyond that point, only conscience can be a guide.

Girl Scout Council To Require About $5,500

Pitt County Girl Scout Council will operate during 1956 an approximately the same budget as this year, involving a sum of about $5,500, according to a report at the regular Council meeting Monday.

L.M. Buchanan, who replaces Mrs. W.A. Harrington as chairman of the Finance committee, reported that the Greenville Community Chest has approved the sum of $4,400 for Girl Scout use in 1956; the Farmville Community Chest will again give $750; and Bethel will contribute $150. In addition, Fountain, Grifton and Winterville will have fund-raising drives and will contribute funds to support the program.

Mrs. Louis W. Gaylord, Jr. reported on a meeting of the Camp Hardee committee November 1. She said that three double-unit prefabricated houses recently purchased from the government have been transported to Greenville, stored and insured. The committee discussed the proper location of the new buildings, the clearing of the building sites and the use for each building. The committee expressed appreciation to Fred Webb for a $25 donation toward transportation of the new buildings, and to T.W. Rivers for making a plot map of the camp site without charge.

Mrs. Gaylord announced the resignation of the camp caretaker and stated someone has been secured in his place.

Mrs. Charles A. White, council president, reported on the conference she, Executive Director Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Mr. Proctor and the Rev. La Fon Vereen of Farmville had with James Murphy, a camp consultant from the national Girl Scout office, last week concerning the development of Camp Hardee. The consultant is to submit a written report to the council in December.

Mrs. Proctor described a training course to be given in Rocky Mount in January for council members and troop leaders which will qualify its graduates to train new leaders. She said the course will be valuable to anyone working with young people in any capacity and urged local participation.

Mrs. White reported on the efforts of she and Mrs. Proctor to organize Girl Scout and Brownie troops in Ayden. Although sponsoring organizations were available and interest among girls was high, the president said no leaders could be found at present.

Mrs. W.E. Hudson was welcomed as new Service League representative and Mrs. Amos Evans as new representative from the Leaders Club.

Mrs. Ed Batchelor, chairman of the Troop Organization committee, announced that Mrs. Jimmy Lee is new leader of an Intermediate troop at Third Street School. Mrs. Sidney Mills is her assistant.

The council will not meet in December, except in case of emergency.

Tense Days Before Those Report Cards

By MELVIN BOYD
Grimesland High School

Study halls are quiet; classrooms have perfect order; teachers are irritated by that last minute familiar plea, "What can I do to pass?"—You guessed it. This is the last week before report cards go out and everybody is "heading for the last roundup." A few students are trying to crowd six weeks work into one week; others are trying desperately to pull a B average up to an A; and still others are trying to keep the average at its present point. No matter which category you fall into, the day of reckoning will be the Monday after Thanksgiving—report card day.

Keeping a office in tact takes many hours of work. Mr. Bailey, our principal has a hard job of teaching a class and coaching basketball and keeping the office too. Annie Kite and Barbara Mills have been selected as assistants. They keep the office in their spare time. Annie answers the phone, runs the duplicating machine, delivers messages. Barbara answers the phone and does other jobs. It really keeps them busy. Annie also carries the mail to the Post Office.

Shirley Singleton, a sophomore, and Carolyn Sue Sutton, a seventh grader, made the honor roll last marking period.

The third year home economics girls have started a new unit, "Special Problems in Food." They are trying to understand better the problems of nutritional and food as they affect the community. They are also trying to learn the ways food regulations protect the consumer.

Some of the girls made a survey of some stores in a small community concerning the foods that are most often purchased by the consumer. The findings were: fruits—apples and oranges; meat—pork; vegetables—cabbage and potatoes (fresh); garden peas and corn (canned); cereal—corn flakes; bread—flour. They have found that the people of our community are not eating the foods that make us happy and healthy.

Their findings of food regulations include, floors and walls clean, merchandise on the shelves dusted, foods protected from flies, and proper refrigeration.

All the girls are going to strive to improve their families diets and their own diets. They are hoping the people of our county will try to improve their health as they are.

An Amazing Fact
Statistics show that the average junior at Grimesland High School does 214 pages of written work during a four week period, if he is taking 5 courses. That is an average of 11 pages a day and does not include study or reading work.

One teacher grades an average of 300 papers per day or about 6000 pages per month. Another teacher figured her work to be about 293 papers per month, which makes an average of 146 pages per day. The work of teachers varies according to the subject taught. Those who think that teachers have it easy should look into the pictures further.

FISH CONTEST WINNERS . . . We are pleased to announce the winners for our annual fish contest which ended November 15th. Registrations were good but catches weighed in were down considerably because of the hurricanes and inclement weather. Here we go — W. D. Tucker, 1043 Rock Spring Drive, rang the bell for $35.00 with a 5 lb. 20 oz. large mouth bass. Caught with a Peck's Popper at Tranters Creek. Mrs. C. E. Blair, 401 Holly St., was disqualified with a 7 1-2 lb. catch because she had failed to register one day in advance of catch. Small mouth bass, $15.00. No winner because no one registered a catch. Ray Nichols, Rt. 1, edged out W. O. Moore by 1 oz. for $25.00 with a 1 lb. 1 oz. blue bream. Ray made his catch with a Catawba worm at Chocowinity Creek. Congratulations to you winners and just drop by the store and Cliff will write out your check.

COMMUNITY CHEST DRIVE . . . Chairman Ben Rouse of the Community Chest Drive has advised me that the drive is about to get underway. The Greenville quota is $15,350.00. The purpose of the Community Chest Drive is to eliminate a lot of charity drives so that a citizen will only have to contribute once a year. Of prime importance is the fact that when you give to this drive the greatest portion of your dollar stays right here in town. Money from the Chest helps support the Teen Age Clubs, Service League and Charity Fund, King's Daughters, Christmas Fund, U. S. O., United Seaman's Fund, and White and Colored Boy and Girl Scouts. When you are approached, please share with others and give a little. Everyone giving just a little will put Greenville over its quota.

ABOUT TOWN . . . Only 38 more shopping days before Christmas. . . December 2nd there will be a Santa Claus Parade at 5:30 P. M. for the kids. Plans have been made to make this the largest and best parade yet. There will be a flotilla of floats and ten bands. . . Cold natured Leon Moore, Jr., went duck hunting down on Back Creek last Friday A. M. He half froze till his eyes almost frosted out. To try and keep warm, Leon kept blowing his duck caller. Finally a flock of duck came in that would make a hunter's heart sound "Dixie." But Leon was so frozen that he couldn't move his fingers to release the safety catch on his gun. Results, no duck. Leon, next time you go hunting, see us for a hand warmer. . . Dan Saeed is the Jaycee's State Committee called "Operation Bootstrap." The purpose of this operation is to create local industries to process products raised in this area and manufacture materials that local factories purchase from out of State.

CALLING ALL FARMERS . . . Now that the tobacco season is over it's time to start thinking about your irrigation system for next year. Would appreciate you fellows getting in touch with me so I can get out in the open again. This inside work and being "general flunky" for Cliff is about to kill me. Here are just a few farmers that you might check with as to the performance of our Ames equipment, and I don't have to throw my hat in before I go in their home. See Bruce McLawhorn, Dale Laughinghouse, John Peaden, J. D. Hice, George Bland at Vanceboro and Howard Mayo at Farmville. Be right—get set now for a profitable year.

Spirits Undampened By That Slow Start

By DAWN SMITH
Grifton High School

Hi Everybody,
Well, our first basketball game of the season didn't turn out as well as we had anticipated last week. Both the boys and girls lost but our spirits are definitely not dampened. Many teams, when they lose, say, "Oh, those old referees were crooked" or "that team plays like a gang of horses" but that wasn't the case here. I want to hand it to Maury High; they really show determination and aggressiveness, which are both essential qualities for a ball club of any description. I think the referees did a good job of calling a fair game for both teams.

The Junior Varsity girls preceded the Varsity girls game. Grifton girls won a decisive victory so we didn't go home entirely empty-handed.

Monday night the "Bulldogs" played here against Hookerton High. The Grifton girls won 48 to 46. That game was a thriller all the way through. Our boys didn't come out as well as we had hoped. They lost 68 to 44, but they are still trying hard. I give them A for effort there!

Between the girls' and the boys' games the cheering sections were entertained by the Grifton Band, who incidentally are becoming better every day. With our consistent support they can become as good as any band in our county.

I believe everyone who is interested in Grifton School was pleasantly surprised and happy to see not only new bleachers on the stage and a new scoring table in the gym but the floor newly varnished as well. It looks much better now. On behalf of the student body, I'd like to thank whoever was responsible.—Mr. Bright?

One afternoon this week I noticed our cheerleaders practicing. They are showing up much better now. Give them a few more practice sessions together and we might even have the county's best cheerleaders. Monday night they showed up extra well. We had a pep rally Monday afternoon and from the way everyone chimed in on all the cheers maybe we should have a rally before each and every game!

We still need your attendance and cheering support at our ball games. I'm sure if you would come on out you'd have a good time. We had a nice crowd here Monday night but we would love to be confronted with the problem of where to seat everybody. You can rest assure we would find some place.

We are now trying to organize a Girl's Tri-Hi-Y Club here in Grifton. I hope all the girls eligible for membership will join and become an active member of this worthy organization. Grifton needs more clubs to meet the needs and interests of the school as well as to entertain the expanding student body. I, for one, don't believe there could be a better club to be organized than the Tri-Hi-Y since it is a Christian organization for those interested in carrying on God's work. See you next week.

Death Said Due Heart Attack

A Negro man, Roy House, about 65, collapsed and died at his home near Ayden early yesterday.

Pitt County coroner Griffin Rouse said death apparently was due to a heart attack and that no inquest would be held.

House, who lived with a Willie Dixon, was found dead just outside his residence.

Hal Boyle . . .

"You know I heard of a guy who did that and actually broke five in his hand. Imagine it—five bones."

Still another questioner was satisfied when I told him my hand wasn't hurt at all was just wearing the bandage to pay off a bet.

"How did I break my hand? Why, defending a lady's honor, but please don't ask me whose." I crisply informed a middle-aged secretary. I felt a little guilty when she patted my shoulder and said:

"Bless you, there aren't many men like you left in this world."

Editor's note: Enough of this quibbling. Tell us the truth. How did it happen?

Boyle's note: Well, if you really must know I banged my hand against the wall deliberately—so I'd have an excuse to get out of carving the Thanksgiving turkey this year.

Editor's note: Knowing how lazy Boyle is, we'll accept this story as gospel true.

Mites Clash Today For Big Thanksgiving Day Classic

Two midget teams clash today to decide which club will battle the Golds on Thanksgiving day in the annual Little League classic to be held in College Stadium. The Reds will face the Whites in a semi-final match this afternoon at four o'clock at Elm Street park.

The Whites, coached by Jack Windley, have had had luck all year, compiling only a 2-2-2 slate in regular season play. They captured the third spot in the league. Big Jeff Fountain, a huge half-back, has been the White spark all year and may push his team into a championship tilt on Thanksgiving. However, their opponents are favored by a touchdown.

The Red squad, coached by Warren Carroll and Lynn Barrier, racked up a 3-2-1 record for the campaign and are generally rated as a strong favorite in today's contest. Leading the charge for the Reds will be Larry Roberts, John Adams, Don Joyner, Bill Wade and Bill Moye.

Winners of today's fray will tackle a powerful Gold aggregation which dumped the Blues 13-7 in the first semi-final contest on Tuesday. Randy Bass, Jack Whitley, Ricky Suave and Jack Foley are standouts who were factors in the win.

Team Undeclared In 41 Games

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—Forty-one straight football games without a defeat—a streak possibly unequalled in the nation—have produced some problems for the East St. Louis High School.

It's becoming more difficult each year to schedule games. "It's tremendous the way they stay away from us," said Fred Cameron, head coach.

Pupils have adopted "a ho-hum attitude" toward winning. It takes a powerhouse opponent to draw a large crowd at home games. Most of the 1,400 pupils can't even remember when the Flyers last lost a game, to nearby Belleville High on Thanksgiving Day, 1951. Belleville, unbeaten in nine games this year takes on the Flyers this Thanksgiving Day, too.

Byrne's Comeback Took Most Ballots

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—On June 15, 1951, the New York Yankees announced they had given up on left-hander Tommy Byrne, the wild man of the American League.

They had kept him season after season since 1940 despite his erratic course and lack of control. Finally they sent $25,000 along with Byrne to St. Louis for veteran Stubby Overmire.

Four years later Byrne, in his second hitch with the Yankees, hurled a five-hit 4-1 World Series triumph over Brooklyn. His World Series start was a reward for his

Newk Stands On $30,000 Terms

BROOKLYN (AP)—Right-hander Don Newcombe and Vice President Buzzy Bavasi of the world champion Brooklyn Dodgers agree the big 20-game winner merits a bigger salary — "But not," says Bavasi, "the $30,000 Newk wants."

Newcombe and Bavasi sat down today at Ebbets Field yesterday, but both denied the conversation had anything to do with the 1956 contract. It was about the weather and many things, including a personal business venture Newk's considering, but paychecks? "Who, us?"

First of all, Bavasi said, Johnny Podres was present (to talk over his draft status) and "you just played at once."

Secondly, said Buzzy, "what is there to discuss? When the time comes, we will mail him a contract. He did a fine job last year and deserves a raise. I'm sure he'll be happy."

Newk wasn't so sure. "It's true we didn't get around to talking contract," he said. "We kidded a lot. We always do. But there's one thing I'm not kidding about—and that's the $30,000. I think I'm worth it."

brilliant 16-5 won-and-lost record during the regular season. Byrne, the 36-year-old alumnus of Wake Forest College who still makes that North Carolina city his home, bagged 90 out of a possible 99 votes to easily gain the American League Comeback-of-the-Year honors for 1955.

Byrne's joint catcher Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who won the National League comeback honors, beating out his teammate Don Newcombe 57 votes to 35.

Campanella, who had slumped to .207 in 1954 because of a crippled left hand, rebounded with a fourth-place .318 mark that included 32 home runs and 107 runs batted in.

Byrne had no opposition whatsoever. The remaining 19 ballots among the members of the Baseball Writers Assn. were widely scattered.

Byrne's comeback at 36 is one of the most dramatic in a decade. He did not make the grade with the Browns and also failed with the White Sox and finally the Senators.

After a mediocre record with Charleston of the American Assn., he caught on with Seattle of the Pacific Coast League in 1954, pulled himself together, revised his pitching pattern and won 20 games. Desperate for pitching help needed to overhaul the Cleveland Indians, Stengel recommended the purchase of Byrne late last year.

Phantoms Stress Offensive Play

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Writer
Offensive football was stressed yesterday in the camp of the Greenville Phantoms, as Coach Guy Lewis and his assistants, Vaughn Fowler and Stanley Jones, continue to try to whip their team into a winning combination. The Greenties meet Roanoke Rapids in the latter's home field this weekend in the final game of the 1955 season, for Greenville.

After the usual skull drill, the Green gridders took to the practice turf Wednesday afternoon and were pummeled through head-on-tackling drills by Pete West, Ike Riddick and Angus Duff. Billy Sermons and Robert Howell also looked good in the tackle exercises.

Following the defensive drills, Coach Lewis placed a strong emphasis on offensive blocking. The backfield was pin-pointed by the young mentor as a weak blocking unit and put the four first-stringers and their substitutes through a thorough blocking session. Billy Sermons, Mack Roebuck, Pete West, Robert Howell and Bobby Edwards were among those in the drill who showed improvement.

Linemen also had their hands full of blocking duties during most of the afternoon. Guards, tackles, ends and centers blasted away on the heavy blocking sled, improving their charge and contact. Howard King was impressive in the sled exercises, as was Ike Riddick, Barney Barrett and Roy Martin.

Senior end Harold Edwards, who has been out of the Phantom line-up for the past three weeks because of an ankle injury, will not perform against the Yellow Jackets Friday night. The 170 pound co-captain was hurt in the second contest of the season in Beaufort and was again injured in the Elizabeth City game several weeks ago. An ankle ailment has caused his absence.

Bobo's Wife To Sue For Divorce

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Carl (Bobo) Olson, wife of the world middleweight boxing champion, says she will file suit for divorce today on grounds of extreme cruelty.

"This thing has been building up and Sunday he walked out without a word," Mrs. Helen Olson told newsmen.

She didn't explain that walkout of the balding boxer who's been flying home to her from all his eastern fights—once so quickly he left surprised sports writers without any comment. That was after his abortive effort to lift the light heavyweight title from Champ Archie Moore.

Bobo was unavailable for comment. Sapiro, said: "We have plenty of grounds. The suit is the culmination of a situation that has been building up for some time."

He said Mrs. Olson, 26, would seek custody of the four children, $2,000 a month and "her fair share" of what Sapiro estimated at more than $300,000 in community property.

There has been no indication of marital troubles. The Olsons were married in Honolulu, 1946. Their children—three boys and a girl—range in age from 2 to 9.

Long Johns For Sooner Players

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Those Nebraska Cornhuskers aren't going to catch the Oklahoma Sooners short.

Trainer Ken Rawlinson attended a rummage sale here yesterday and bought 444 pairs of long underwear. He said the players would wear them if its cold for the game in Lincoln Saturday.

And that's not all. Rawlinson will carry along 30 chemical hand-warmers. They'll be used by subs on the bench but during timeouts the waterboys will rush them out to the 11 players on the field. Cloth gloves also will be part of the cold weather paraphernalia.

Other precautions against the cold will include jugs of hot sweetened tea.

Spieser Chalks Up TKO Win

CHICAGO (AP)—Chuck Spieser's confidence, as well as his ranking as a light heavyweight contender, got a boost last night when he made quick work of veteran Paddy Young.

The muscular former NCAA champion from Michigan State floored the experienced Young with a left hook in the first round and felled him three times in the second before Referee Frank Gilmer stopped the slaughter at 2:45.

A ringside gathering of 1,411 fans, contributing to a net gate of only $1,720 at Chicago Stadium, and a national television audience watched Spieser gain a probable next shot at Floyd Patterson in his campaign for Archie Moore's lightweight crown.

Truman Gibson, secretary of the International Boxing Club, said he thought Patterson, top ranked contender, and Spieser, rated No. 9 before meeting Young, would make a fine match later this winter with the winner earning a chance at Moore.

However, Spieser's Manager, Hec Knowles, a shrewd Chicago businessman who once piloted Chuck Davey, said he would prefer a rematch with Willie Pastrano.

Pastrano, last July in Chicago Stadium, handed Spieser his only setback in seven starts since he was discharged from the Air Corps, but the young New Orleans stylist now has grown into a full fledged heavyweight.

Spieser won the other six bouts since leaving the service by knock-out and has a record of 17 victories in 20 fights as a pro. He outweighed Young, a veteran of 64 fights, 171 pounds to 168.

Indians Play Christy And Hunter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
William and Mary plays Christy and Hunter this Saturday in Raleigh—another way of saying that W&M will have to stop two of the hottest scabbacks in the Atlantic Coast Conference when it plays North Carolina State.

The two sophomores who have carried the scoring load for the Wolfpack this season, have racked up 14 of State's 26 touchdowns. Dick Christy, with a rushing average of 7.3 yards in 76 carries, is tops in the ACC. He's scored four touchdowns and passed for two more. Dick Hunter, who has eight touchdowns, tops the 'Pack in that department and has averaged 5.4 yards in 58 rushing attempts.

State, which has won three last four and tied one, can square its season record before facing powerful West Virginia next week to end the year. W&M has won once in seven tries.

The double-barreled charge for North Carolina—which is host to Virginia—is halfbacks Ed Sutton and Ken Keller. The pair are leading ground gainers for the Tar Heels. Sutton has a 6.4 average in 42 carries. Keller 3.3 in 79. Buddy Sasser will back him up with his average of 3.2 yards in 48 attempts.

Iranian fullback Jim Bakhtiar will lead Virginia's Cavaliers, who will be playing North Carolina for the 60th time. The Cavaliers, who wound up heavy work yesterday polished up their pass defense. Four of the five TD's they gave up in their last two games came on passes. Virginia will be out for its 27th victory in the series, having lost 30 and tied three.

Maryland looked today for the release of varsity quarterback Frank Tamburello from the hospital, where he has been since early this week with a neck infection. It seems more likely he will see action this week as the Terps wind up their regular season against George Washington.

Wake Forest, which also ends its season this week, may yet be without its ace passer when it travels to Duke. The injured shoulder of quarterback Nick Consoles has shown little improvement, and the ACC's leading passer has been unable to do any throwing.

Duke, however, saw Sonny Jurgensen who has been hobbled for several games with injured ankles, work out in full equipment yesterday. The Blue Devils held a long dummy scrimmage to brush up on pass defense for the Deacons. Duke closes out its season next week against North Carolina.

At Clemson, the Tigers went through final paces for the Auburn game Saturday at Mobile, Ala. Clemson will be relying on the passing of Don King and Charlie Bussey and the running of Joel Wells, Billy O'Dell and Joe Pagliel. It's the first of two road games closing the season for the Tigers, who face Furman next week.

Two Ties Mark Bowling League
In the Industrial Bowling League of Greenville, two ties hold the first four teams in a deadlock for first and second positions. The Greenville Mills squad and White Chevrolet are tied for top spot in the loop with a 13-5 record. Carolina Dairy is tied with State Highway squad number Two for second place, with both teams holding a 10-8 slate.

FWB Conference Meets Near Fountain

FOUNTAIN—The 207th session of the North Carolina Central Conference of the Original Free Will Baptist Denomination met Wednesday and Thursday of last week with the Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Fountain. A record crowd was present for the two-day session. The Rev. N. Bruce Barrow of Lucama, moderator, presided over the meeting.

The Central Conference is composed of fifty churches situated from Rocky Mount to Washington and from Kinston to Williamston with a membership of approximately 100,000. The valuation of church property within the Conference is $800,000.

The Conference is the oldest one existing in the United States of the Free Will Baptist Denomination.

The Rev. R. P. Harris, pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Rocky Mount, was pianist and Rev. Henry Melvin of Winterville was musical director for the conference.

Wednesday morning session opened at nine-thirty o'clock with Rev. M. A. Woodard of Winterville giving the devotion, followed with an address of welcome by M. E. Godwin pastor of Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church, and lives at Dunn. Rev. N. D. Beamon of Snow Hill gave response.

Rev. L. B. Manning of Fountain delivered the introductory sermon, followed by lunch served on the church lawn.

The afternoon session opened at one o'clock in the afternoon with Rev. P. C. Wiggs of Belhaven giving the devotion.

Thursday morning session opened at nine-thirty o'clock with Rev. J. B. Nason of Beva giving the devotion. Rev. Ralph Osborne of Washington delivering the conference sermon, after which lunch was served in the Fountain School gymnasium.

The afternoon session opened at one o'clock with devotion given by Rev. Michael Pitt of Snow Hill.

Rev. R. B. Crawford of Greenville brought greetings from the national association and presented recommendations concerning the national program. A partial report from the national body included a budget of $324,000 for an eighteen-month period, more new churches, parsonages and educational buildings, and re-affirmed Baptist principle of government.

The Rev. D. W. Alexander of Bethel brought a report from the North Carolina State Convention, showing growth and expansion of Free Will Baptist activities over seventy of the one hundred counties in the state. He reported the acceptance of a revised edition of the North Carolina Treatise of Faith and Practice, a questionnaire for candidates for the Gospel ministry and official changing of the names of two state institutions. The orphanage has been changed from the Free Will Baptist Church Children's Homes; and Mt. Allen Junior Col-

N.C. Disaster Plan Cited As Working Model

RALEIGH — North Carolina's Natural Disaster Relief Plan, based on lessons taught by Hurricane Hazel, tested during Connie, Diane and Ione, developed, published and distributed by North Carolina Civil Defense, has met with unanimous praise and commendation from government officials and the American Red Cross, State Civil Defense Director, General Edward F. Griffin disclosed today. Governor Hodges recommends it to all local governments as an example to follow in developing plans for relieving natural disasters, stating that the plan has his full approval, and has been "carefully prepared in an effort to save lives, reduce property damage and promptly restore order if a disaster caused by natural forces should strike our state."

American National Red Cross Area Director, K.G. Lathimer Atlanta, says it will be adopted as a model for coordinating Red Cross efforts with those of government agencies in natural disaster operation.

Federal Civil Defense Administration is recommending it in other states as a model plan as approved by its disaster specialists. "Our experience with Hurricane Hazel disclosed lack of coordination, poorly defined lines of responsibility and a lack of knowledge, before disaster strikes, as to what may be expected from the various agencies," General Griffin said.

"This plan we have prepared and distributed, if properly implemented at state and local level, precludes the possibility of a repeat performance. It was put to the three times before publication, and we know it works.

"The time to study it, however, is now—not after warning comes, that another disaster is approaching," he concluded.

The plan, in booklet form, has been sent to mayors of North Carolina cities and towns, county commissioners, local Civil Defense officials, Council members, Red Cross, and all participating government agencies.

More Abnormality Risks For Premature Infants

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE AP Science Reporter

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Premature babies apparently face a higher risk of mental or nerve abnormalities than full-term babies, a new study reported today.

The more premature or tinier the infant is at birth, the greater the risk, said the report to the American Public Health Assn.

This indicates the importance of preventing prematurity, and of closely observing premature babies to detect any abnormalities and trying to counteract them, the study finds.

The report is based upon a study of nearly 500 premature infants and 500 full-term babies born in Baltimore and given careful physical and behavioral examinations at about 9 months.

It was made by Hilda Knobloch, M. D., Rowland Rider, Sc. D., Paul Harper, M. D., and Benjamin Pasamanick, M. D., the Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health, Baltimore.

The occurrence of abnormality increases as the birth weight group of the baby decreases, the report said.

At 40 weeks of age, the over-all incidence of serious nerve abnormality, including possible cerebral palsy and obvious nerve defect in the premature babies was more than 9 per cent or about six times higher than in nonpremature babies.

The premature babies as a group indicated 3.6 per cent mental deficiency, both borderline and other defects, compared with 1.6 per cent for full-term babies.

Half the babies weighing less than 3 1/2 pounds at birth showed mental or nerve defects, and some had a major vision defect.

TVA Celebrates New Steam Plant

KINGSTON, Tenn. (AP)—A celebration today marked completion of what the Tennessee Valley Authority calls the world's largest steam plant for generating electricity.

Equipment delays have postponed actual completion of the plant until later in the month, but employees already had scheduled the celebration so TVA decided to let 'er rip.

The Kingston steam plant will be the fourth which TVA has put in full operation since 1951. It was built principally to satisfy the tremendous power demands of atomic installations at nearby Oak Ridge. Three other steam plants are under construction.

The plant will burn a 50-ton carload of coal every six minutes, or enough to heat four good-sized homes in Knoxville all winter. Its total annual coal consumption will be more than four million tons.

It will use more than one million gallons of water per minute, more than is used for all purposes in New York City, in its nine steam condensers and other water-cooled equipment.

It cost nearly 200 million dollars, and required more than 22 million man-hours of planning, designing and construction.

It will have a rated capacity of 1,600,000 kilowatts energy, 15 times the capacity of Norris Dam, TVA's first hydroelectric facility which was completed 19 years ago. Even this, however, is 400,000 kilowatts short of Oak Ridge power needs, and the remainder is made up by other TVA facilities.

When the Kingston plant's ninth and last generating unit goes into operation, it will boost TVA's steam-generating capacity to a total of more than five million kilowatt. This compares with a total hydro capacity of the agency's system of about 3 1/2 million kilowatts.

The plant has been producing at part-capacity since the first unit went into operation last Feb. 8.

Other steam plants completed by TVA since 1951 are Johnsonville, in west Tennessee; Widows Creek, in northeast Alabama; and Colbert, in north Alabama.

Always Lured By Recruit Posters

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Capt. John S. Bromley never could pass up a recruiting poster. At the age of 17, he saw a poster urging him to "join the Navy". He did. After four years with the Navy and the Marine Corps, as a medical technician, he was discharged in 1946 and returned to his home in Meadville, Pa.

But the civilian fling lasted less than a year. He passed another poster, suggesting he join the Air Force. He did, winding up in Japan as a sergeant until 1949. Then he passed another poster. "Join the Army." The transfer was arranged.

He was sent to officer candidate school, and then to Korea for 18 months.

Now, he's at Fort Knox, test-flying wrecked airplanes — after they've been rebuilt.

The truck overturned and blocked the road. When Lowe arrived to unscramble the traffic jam, he found the motorist had carved off chunks of the meat. All that was left was the head.

Tearful Reunion With Detained Bomb-Killer

DENVER—The wife of John Gilbert Graham, charged with murder in the dynamiting of a commercial airliner that carried his mother, held a tearful reunion with her husband last night.

Dark-haired Mrs. Gloria Graham, a 22-year-old mother of two children, visited him in the Denver County Jail for the first time since his arrest early Monday.

They talked 20 minutes through a screened barrier under the eyes of two guards. Mrs. Graham left in tears, shielding her head from photographers with a white scarf.

Graham, 22, was scheduled to be arraigned today.

He is accused of planting 25 sticks of dynamite aboard a United Air Lines plane that crashed Nov. 1 near Longmont, Colo. All 44 persons aboard were killed.

The complaint specifically charges him with the death of his mother Mrs. Daisie King, 54, of Denver.

Before her visit Mrs. Graham talked to newsmen. She said she wanted to "clear up some misunderstandings in earlier stories."

"I still can't conceive it," she said.

"First let me explain one thing that is wrong. Jack didn't forge any insurance policies at the airport that night. His mother asked Jack to buy three policies. She gave him the money.

"I don't know what the amounts were, but one policy was made out to us, another to Jack's sister Mrs. Helen Hablutzel in Alaska, and the third to Jack's aunt Mrs. Helen Smith in St. Genevieve, Mo.

"He took the applications over to his mother and she signed all three. I've forgotten the denominations of each of them."

J. J. Tracy, Colorado representative of Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Assn. of Omaha, declined comment on Mrs. Graham's statements regarding signatures on the insurance policies.

First information at the time of Graham's arrest was that Mrs. King did not sign the forms for $37,500 insurance.

Graham spent most of his time in his cell yesterday reading paperback novels, inquiring about the weather and asking guards to hurry up his meals.

Movie-Goers Are Being Polled On Preferences

Greenville movie-goers now have opportunity to vote their preference in pictures, performances and most promising new personalities.

Beginning today (Thursday) ballots are being distributed in the theaters to permit Greenville movie patrons to participate in this nationwide audience awards election—the first ever held, Pitt Theater Manager H.G. Sturm stated. Balloting will continue through November 27.

Twenty nominations in five categories were made by exhibitors from a list of all pictures released in this country between October 1, 1954, and Sept. 30, 1955. These nominations are listed on the ballots handed to movie-goers. Blank spaces on the ballots provide for individuals voting for their favorites

Ban Bingo For Fund-Raising

KIAMESHA LAKE, N. Y.—The United Synagogue of America has banned bingo or other games of chance for fund raising.

The ban was contained in a code of synagogue practice adopted yesterday at the group's convention.

The organization's executive director, Rabbi Bernard Segal, said that in the past congregations have been guided by state laws in regard to bingo, but added: "In the spiritual life the end does not justify the means."

The convention represents 585 congregations and about a million Jews of the Conservative branch of Judaism in the United States and Canada.

Hitchhiked Back To Give Self Up

EAST LANSING, Mich.—A repentant fugitive hitchhiked from Montana on crutches to give himself up to police yesterday on a 15-year-old bad check charge. The prosecutor agreed to dismiss the charge.

Police said the 47-year-old man, painfully crippled by arthritis, seeks to re-establish himself in the community. They withheld his identity.

He was also wanted for breaking parole, but officers have recommended that his parole be extended. A decision is expected within a week.

Police said a warrant for his arrest on the check charge lapsed several years ago and that checks needed for evidence have been lost.

"I wanted to get a clean start in life," he told police, "and the only way was to come back and face the consequences of my mistakes. I was tired of running."

He said he talked the matter over with his 17-year-old son, who recently enlisted in the Navy.

"We thought that if I had to return to prison I could serve my sentence and be out by the time my son gets out of the Navy so we could be together again," he said. "He's a fine boy and I hope someday to earn his complete respect."

Jury Passes Hat For Aged Father

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—A Criminal Court jury yesterday passed the hat for $15 to aid a 62-year-old man after acquitting him of a charge of failing to provide for his 10-year-old daughter. The charge against William L. Hardy was brought by his former wife Mrs. Una Briner, 51. He told the jury he was working as a furnace salesman on a commission basis but that sales were so bad he earned only $1.94 last week.

There are more than 70,000 Navajo Indians, compared to 7,000 in 1867, says the National Geographic Society.

THE QUICKSILVER POOL

Newly married Lora accompanies her husband, Wade Tyler, to his family home on Staten Island after nursing him back to health from a serious wound he received while fighting as a Union soldier. She meets Wade's autocratic mother, Amanda Tyler, and Jimmy, son of Wade and his dead first wife, Virginia. Amid the growing tension between Wade's mother and Lora, the bride learns that Virginia died by drowning in a pond near the Tyler home. Lora finds Wade mourning for Virginia and asks him to tell her what she was like. After learning more of Wade's earlier life, Lora promises Jimmy a surprise for Christmas. The surprise is a puppy despite the opposition of Wade's mother to having pets in the house. Lora makes the acquaintance of Mrs. Morgan Channing and begins to learn of the relationship between her and the Tylers.

CHAPTER TEN

Lora could find no words when Mrs. Channing revealed that her "gardener" was her father. She made an effort to recover from her surprise and moved again toward the door. But Mrs. Channing turned back.

"Wait a moment!" she cried, and went swiftly toward the end wall of the drawing room where the portrait hung her back as if it's rustling over her wide hoop. A long green cord with a tassel on the end hung down along one side of the picture. Mrs. Channing reached for it and as she pulled, the velvet draperies parted to reveal the entire portrait. The artist had painted a second woman who sat in a low chair, looking up at the figure in yellow. The second girl wore pale green and she was young and pretty, but with none of the arresting quality of Morgan Channing.

"My sister," Mrs. Channing said "Virginia."

Lora was too startled to speak. This was Wade's wife; the woman who had come first in his life, the woman he wanted her to resemble. She stared in fascination at the sweet, young face of the girl in pale green. Virginia had light hair with a golden touch to the ringlets about her face. She held an embroidery hoop in her small hands with the needle poised above it as if she had just paused to look up at her sister. "I was never very fond of her," Mrs. Channing said carelessly. "She was a silly, rather insipid little thing. I never understood what Wade saw in her." The challenging gaze shifted suddenly from the portrait and fixed Lora candidly. "You are nothing at all like Virginia. How did Wade come to get over his great love?"

The suddenness of the question shocked an equally candid answer from Lora. "He wants to think I am like her," she admitted.

Mrs. Channing's unrestrained laugh rang out again. "This may be amusing to watch! Considering your behavior over this puppy, Wade could be in for a jolt one of these days."

"Not if I can help it," said Lora stiffly. Suddenly she wanted to get away from this woman and this room. But Mrs. Channing would not release her so easily. She walked to the door with Lora and opened it.

"We are going to be friends," she said confidently. "I have offended you now. But you'll forgive me in time. You will forgive because you are as direct as I am. Come see me again when that mausoleum becomes too much for you."

"Wade—Serena Lord is giving a party on Christmas evening and we are invited. It's to be a dance and late supper." She held the note out to him.

He shook his head. "Naturally, we cannot go."

"But why not?" she asked in surprise. A party and dance at Serena's sounded exciting and lively. A sudden desire for gaiety surged up in her.

"After all," Wade said, "there is a period of mourning to be observed for your father. And I have not felt like indulging in frivolity myself for a long while."

"Papa didn't believe in mourning," Lora told him quickly. "He never wanted me to wear black or go around with a long face." She went to him, put light hands on his arm, gently pleading. His eyes softened and he bent to press his cheek against hers in mourning.

"You are a wheedling one," he said. "But you have forgotten that I cannot dance thanks to my leg."

"I won't dance either," she promised. "I'll sit beside you and we'll watch all the bright things that are happening, together. It will be wonderful just to dress up and—"

"Dress up?" he repeated. "But, my dear, you have no gown that would be suitable to wear. Christmas eve is almost upon us and I understand a seamstress cannot be had at this time."

For just a moment her hopes fell. Then she lifted her chin in a gesture of determination.

"I have the material now—that lovely garnet satin which is intended for a party gown. I can make the dress myself. I know just the style I would like. Please let me, Wade."

Lora could not wait to be off to her own room, where she could spread out the rich material on her bed, loving the shine, the feel, the very smell of it. There was something heady about the scent of new material. She would make herself the most beautiful gown she had ever possessed. She would be a credit to Wade at the party, and that would please him, be good for both.

At dinner Wade mentioned the party casually and Mrs. Tyler expressed some disapproval, but not opposition. Plainly she did not like the idea that Lora meant to make the gown herself, but she was surprisingly moderate in her remarks. But later she halted Lora to her room and said, "You are still an outsider in this house. A stranger. You have not even begun to integrate yourself with our manner of life. It even seems to me that you are a stranger to my son. I do not know what reason drove you into marriage with him, but I think it was not love."

Lora sat very still. She had not expected this perceptive turn of mind in Wade's mother. But she had no secret to conceal. Wade knew about Martin. In the moments when he was completely honest he knew this had been a marriage of two lonely people who needed something to cling to. But it was impossible to explain this to Wade's mother.

Mrs. Tyler continued, her tone steady and cold. "I will now tell you a certain truth you should know before you make friends with the woman who lives in that monstrous house up the hill. From the time Morgan Ambrose grew into adolescence everyone knew that she had set her cap shamelessly for Wade. It was quite plain that she meant to have him at all costs. If I had not... prevented it... he might well have married her."

Somewhat this "truth" which Mrs. Tyler seemed to think so important did not particularly shock or disturb Lora. After all, with Wade's charm, why shouldn't a girl like Morgan have been attracted to him? But that was all so long ago. Why should it matter now or be considered a reason for carrying on a feud? She went on to a point which interested her more.

"Did you object to his marrying Virginia?"

"There was a sudden bleak note in Mrs. Tyler's voice, but a little to Lora's surprise she answered the question and with a ring of honesty.

"I did not see that coming," she confessed. "The danger from Morgan seemed so much more imminent that I did not expect such a rebound."

"But since Virginia was the sort to make Wade a good wife, why should you have minded?"

Mrs. Tyler sat a notch more proudly in her chair. "It was hardly fitting for Jason Cowie's grandson to marry a servant girl. The shock for me was very great."

Lora felt a flash of pity for the girl Virginia. She was beginning to feel that she knew Virginia rather well.

"At least her marriage could not have been as bad for you as if he had brought Morgan here," Lora said drily.

The old lady made a gesture of repudiation and the gems in her rings sparkled fiercely in the firelight. "I saw to it that he would not bring her here."

"But this is all so much water under a long-ago bridge. None of it matters now."

"You think it does not matter that Morgan has never in her life given up the pursuit of something she wanted?"

"I don't believe she wants Wade," Lora said stoutly. "It seemed to me that she does not even like him very well."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market turned in a mixed performance today, the third day that prices have more or less marked time in the shadow of the old record high.

The range of change went from 1 to 3 lower to 1 to 2 higher. There were few features in trading by early afternoon.

Volume was somewhat under yesterday's 2,460,000 shares. Aircraft provided one bright spot with a runup in prices in the second hour. Boeing was the leader on the rise and pushed its gain to around 2 points at the best.

Railroads were the most depressed of the major groups with a few losses of 1 to 3 points. Here is how the rest of the market acted: steels steady to higher, motors lower, rubbers mostly higher, mail orders down, radio-televisions higher, utilities mixed, coppers mixed, chemicals lower, oils lower, airlines lower, movies higher, building materials higher, and distillers were unchanged to lower.

American Hawaiian Steamship, quite strong in the last month, dropped as much as 7 1/2 points today. It was off 8 1/2 points yesterday.

Fullman was strong as Southern Pacific announced plans to buy 10,700 freight cars from an unnamed source. Among large early blocks were General Motors 3,000 shares off 1/4 at 51, Seaboard 7,700 off 1/4 at 46 1/2, and Avco Mfg. 17,300 unchanged at 4.

Nichols School P.T.A. The parents and teachers of the Nichols School community held its regular P.T.A. meeting at the school under the leadership of President McKinley Taft and Principal Gaston Monk. The major theme, "Preparing the Child for Better Living," was lively discussed by the members, as a prepared panel of teachers led the discussion. The theme, sub-divided into four parts, represented the first four stages of childhood: "Prenatal" by Mrs. M. P. Smith; "Postnatal" by Mrs. L. M. Graves; "Pre-adolescence" by Miss Orela Hargroves; "Adolescence" by Mr. F. M. Moore. Miss M. L. Dupree summarized the topic after the emotional, intellectual, spiritual and physical aspects had been discussed. Comments were made by Mrs. Lena Haddon, Mrs. Bessie Dupree, Mr. Midgette and others.

Mrs. V. M. Monk and the first grade presented an entertaining playlet, "Mother Goose and Her Children." Taking part were the following pupils: Dorothy Parker, Beverly Monk, Francis Boyd, Lana Kay Hall, Mildred Randolph, James Dupree, Johnnie Eborn, Charles Mercer, Melvin Hopkins, Charlie Barrett Jr., Bettie Mae Vines, Joan Ward and Gwendolyn Graves.

Leading in singing the school song were Mary H. Monk, Clementine Ebron, Gloria Jean Monk, Melba Jean Hall, Edward Lee Moore and Farney Moore III.
