Map All-Out Safe-Driving Campaign In Pitt County

Pitt County, which hasn't marked up a traffic fatality in more than a month, was hoping today that tomorrow's S-D (Safe Driving) campaign would bring a continuation of that record.

Not since the weekend of October 24, when two died as the result of separate accidents, has anyone been killed in Pitt County traffic. Those deaths however, sent the 1955 toll to 15, more than 100 per cent over last year's death rate of seven.

Pitt will not be alone however, in tomorrow's emphasis on chalking up at least one accident-free day. A presidential proclamation from the Washington White House has set aside December 1 as the day on which all citizens will attempt to pass at least one 24-hour period without a single traffic accident.

Drives, under the direction of Jack Gates, of Farmville, have been conducted in practically all Pitt communities in an attempt to focus public attention on safety for tomorrow.

But tomorrow won't bring an end to the safe driving efforts of the S-D campaign. The safety spotlight, which last year was focused nationally for only one day—December 15—has been extended this year to cover a period from 10 days preceding tomorrow until 10 days following S-D day.

All county law enforcement agencies as well as civic leaders have been cooperating in an attempt to put the drive across.

Speeches, including radio and television appearances by Highway Patrol personnel, have been conducted. Other safety representatives have appeared before both civic and youth groups.

City police have begun distribution of printed notices, to be placed under the windshield wipers of parked cars, bearing the S-D day message.

Women's groups have been attempting to canvass as many areas as possible in an effort to bring widespread attention to the S-D campaign and placards and posters too, have been distributed to merchants.

Still other preparations are being expanded on the national scene. Some communities, such as Ashland, Ky., and others, have challenged nearby cities to see just which can chalk up the best S-D Day record.

In Charlottesville, Va., the fire whistle will blow for 30 seconds during midmorning in order to call attention to S-D day.

Last year, when S-D Day was held only during one 24-hour period, a noticeable drop in traffic accidents was recorded.

This year, as one citizen put it, "We've got to do even better. Our very lives depend on it."

Education Conference Subcommittee Upholds Local Control

Advise Federal Govm't Keep Out

WASHINGTON (AP)—A subcommittee report to the White House education conference today called on the federal government to keep its fingers out of local school affairs.

Discussing the role of the U. S. Office of Education, the report said: "The contact of the federal government should be confined to state level contacts and not made directly with local (school) boards."

The report, presented to a general session of the conference by James D. King of Brownwood, Tex., represented the consensus of the nearly 2,000 conference participants. It came up through a series of roundtable discussions.

The report said that "consideration should be given to the strengthening of the position of the Office of Education in keeping with the importance of education to the nation."

The report, one of six to be presented to the conference, had as its topic: "In what ways can we organize our school systems more efficiently and economically?"

Minority reports which the subcommittee considered important enough to be presented recommended:

1. State financial help for qualified students to "meet the tragic shortages in teaching, medical arts and scientific professions."

2. "A sound, equitable tax base between administrative units."

3. State provision of "desirable services over, above and beyond the capabilities of local districts to provide a basic program."

4. A study of the practicability of the 12-month school year to make fullest use of school buildings.

5. Studies of "nonteaching duties and ways to free the teacher to exercise her primary responsibility for instruction."

6. Fiscal independence for local school districts under state law.

but that improvement still is "desirable and necessary."

A number of the 1,800 participating delegates—some observers—grumbled that the first of the giant conference's reports last night was too generalized.

There were those who thought the delegates should have given solid backing to modern theories that emphasize adapting the child to his surroundings. But others thought the report should have called for concentrating on the traditional classical studies.

The report treaded gingerly between the two lines. It said that "in each school an appropriate balance must be maintained . . . to insure wholesome, all-around development of the individual."

The report, summarizing roundtable discussions on "What Should Our Schools Accomplish," was prepared by Dr. Adam Bennion, an apostle of the Church of the Latter Day Saints in Salt Lake City, and Dr. William Carr, executive secretary of the National Education

Assn. They came up with a 14-point program including the middle-of-the-road position on curriculum and another which suggested teaching "ethical behavior based on a sense of moral and spiritual values."

Amplifying this point the report said the schools must help youngsters "apply ethical values which will guide their moral judgments and their conduct, and to develop the recognition that these values stem from, among other sources, their spiritual and religious convictions."

It added, that, on this point, "more time is necessary for the development of a common viewpoint."

The report called also for emphasis on the teaching of these things: "appreciation for our democratic heritage . . . intellectual curiosity and eagerness for lifelong learning . . . respect and appreciation for human values and for the beliefs of others . . . an awareness of our relationships with the world community."

"All children," the report said, "should be free to seek the truth wherever it can be found."

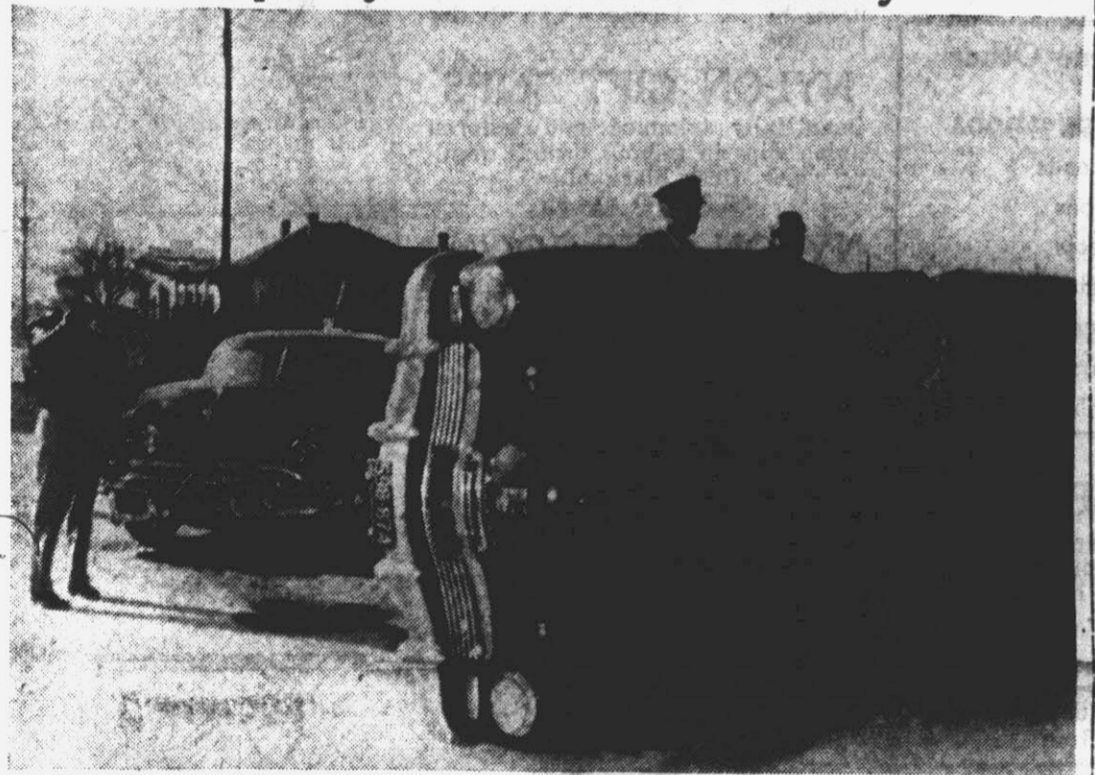

The report was received with polite applause but no one rose to comment.

Neil McElroy, head of Procter & Gamble and general chairman of the conference, told a news conference yesterday that the administration had ruled that the position of delegates on the question of segregated schools would have no bearing on payment of travel expenses to them. The conference is financed from a congressional appropriation.

Clarence Mitchell, Washington director of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, had raised the question of challenging payment of federal money to people who "do not support the Constitution" by opposing integrated schools.

Mitchell reportedly was pursuing the question further with the comptroller general.

Couple Injured In Collision Yesterday

ELDERLY COUPLE HURT—Police officer Marvin Buck peers into the overturned vehicle in which two elderly persons were injured yesterday at the intersection of Wilson and Chestnut Street. The hole in the windshield of the car in the foreground was caused when Mrs. Mary E. Yost, 70 of 1202 Dickinson Avenue was thrown partially through it. Both drivers, John Ashley Tripp, 78, of Circle Drive and Jessie Lee Daniels, 22, Negro, of 1202-C Davenport Street, were cited for traffic violations. (Reflector Photo by Bob Hilldrup).

W. Berlin Blockade Possible

BERLIN (AP)—U. S. officials said today "blockade" conditions could arise at any minute as a result of the Russian change in the rules on divided Berlin.

A senior American official said the Soviet authorities have made it clear that:

1. The East German Communist Republic (DDR) which surrounds Berlin is completely sovereign.

2. The Eastern Soviet sector of Berlin itself is now part of the DDR.

3. All the laws of the so-called DDR now apply to the quarter of Berlin which once was called the Soviet sector.

The net result, American officials said is that West Berlin is more isolated than it has been since the 1948-49 blockade.

The American viewpoint, derived from a talk Maj. Gen. Charles L. Dasher Jr., U. S. commandant, had yesterday with Soviet Maj. Gen. P. A. Dibrova. Dasher delivered a protest against East Berlin Communist police detention of two American congressmen Sunday.

Dibrova told Dasher East Berlin is now "the capital" of a sovereign state—the DDR. The Russian added that his government no longer regards East Berlin as an "occupied" sector.

This was taken by American officials to mean that the 1945 Potsdam agreement on the rights of the Allied powers in Berlin is a thing of the past. That could lead, they said, to measures which would restrict movement of Allied personnel into East Berlin and it could also have a further repercussion on travel to the West.

Benson Slashes Burley Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today announced a 1956 control program to reduce planting of burley-type tobacco 15 per cent.

The secretary said a "big over supply" made the reduction necessary.

Benson proclaimed marketing quotas for burley—subject to approval by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in a referendum Dec. 29.

Under this program, planting allotments totaling 263,550 acres would be allotted eligible farmers. This compares with 310,000 allotted under a similar program for this year's crop.

Growers must approve quotas—with their sharp acreage cutbacks—in order to have price support aid for the crop next year.

Hodges To Give 'Report' Tonight

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges will review the past year of his administration in a report to the people tonight over a network of radio and television stations.

His address will be delivered at 8 o'clock and will last for 30 minutes. It will be non-political. Eight TV stations and a host of radio stations plan to carry the address.

Senator George Doubts Avoiding Foreign Policy Debate Possible

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ge.) said today he doubts any effective agreement can be reached between Republicans and Democrats to block off 1956 campaign discussion of critical foreign policy issues.

"I don't think you can keep people from talking," he said. "You can't keep any candidate from expressing his opinion. I doubt that it would be practical to try to declare any phase of foreign policy off bounds in the campaign."

Secretary of State Dulles told a news conference yesterday he does not exclude the possibility of a later agreement between the two major parties—similar to informal understandings he said had worked very well in 1944 and 1948—to keep out of the campaign vital issues bearing on security.

But he said any such agreement would be difficult before the Democratic presidential nominee is selected next August.

Asked if he thought the performance of the Republicans in 1952, when they were the challenging party, came within his definition of proper discussion of foreign policy, Dulles replied:

"I think if you will examine the record of the Republican party over the past three presidential campaigns—'44, '52, '52—you will find that it constitutes a very sound and admirable record to follow."

Asked if he thought the performance of the Republicans in 1952, when they were the challenging party, came within his definition of proper discussion of foreign policy, Dulles replied:

"I think if you will examine the record of the Republican party over the past three presidential campaigns—'44, '52, '52—you will find that it constitutes a very sound and admirable record to follow."

Sen. Sparkman of Alabama, the 1952 Democratic vice presidential nominee and a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called the idea "desirable but nearly impractical."

George, who heads the Senate Foreign Relations group, said in a telephone interview from his Georgia home he was happy to hear that Dulles welcomes "constructive" criticism.

George added that he hopes future criticism is on the level that it won't disturb "basic relations" of cooperation between Democratic leaders and Eisenhower officials or threaten "established policies" in American dealings with other nations.

Congratulates New Ruritan Governor

AT RURITAN MEET—Ruritan National President Frank Kellan (right) of Princess Anne, Va., congratulates John Worthington, of Eureka, following Worthington's election here yesterday as district governor of the Greenville-Goldsboro District. District Ruritan Officers Named At Convention

John A. Worthington, a former Pitt County resident and now an agriculture teacher from the Eureka Club, was elected governor of the Greenville-Goldsboro District of Ruritan National here yesterday as area Ruritans held their annual convention.

Worthington replaces D. R. House Jr. of Fictious.

Highlighting the meet, which began yesterday afternoon and ended following a banquet last night, was an address by Ruritan National President Frank Kellan, of Princess Anne, Va.

Kellan addressed the more than 150 delegates on the topic, "Community Service," and said he was proud of the work which the rural service group is carrying out in each of their communities.

Youth work by the Ruritans also drew praise from Kellan. "The youth of today," he said, "have their eyes upon you, the men, the leaders in your communities. Ruritan clubs can be proud of the fact that all money raised by any club through a project remains in the community and returns to the people of the area by way of community service."

Community service award was won by the Bath Ruritan club and presented by the Rev. W. M. Howard of Greenville. Attendance award went to the Pinetown club.

The evening speaker, Charles McCullers, manager of the Kinston Chamber of Commerce, spoke on the topic, "We Must Understand."

McCullers urged Ruritans toward understanding "in that we may better perform our services to the community."

Other distinguished guests present at the sessions included William H. Brake, of Rocky Mount, past National President and James W. Butler, alumni secretary at East Carolina College.

FLOORED HIM—George Worthington, 21, was sentenced on a charge of assault after his 18-year-old wife testified he came home drunk, ripped out the telephone punched their 3-month-old baby and threatened to kill everyone in the house. She said the threat ended when Worthington's mother-in-law floored him with a blow to the head.

Nehru Says India Not Swayed

CALCUTTA, India (AP)—With the Soviet Union's two top leaders listening, Prime Minister Nehru said today the world need not fear that his Russian guests will draw India into the Communist bloc.

He told an enormous crowd, here to welcome Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev, that India is sticking to its "basic policy" of not joining any "camp or alliance."

Then in an apparent reference to the blocs against the West by Khrushchev and Bulganin in previous speeches in India, Nehru declared:

"We try to be friendly with all countries whether we agree with them or not. That is the reason why we refrain from criticizing other countries, even when we disagree with their policies, unless circumstances compel us to explain our viewpoint."

Millions of wildly enthusiastic Indians packed Calcutta's streets and parks to greet the two Kremlin chiefs. The turnout was believed the greatest in India since the funeral of the late Mahatma, E. Gandhi.

Thousands upon thousands had trekked hundreds of miles from Bihar and the interior of West Bengal.

Nehru in his speech conceded that "the great welcome our guests have had in India has alarmed some of our friends in other countries, who can not help thinking in terms of rival camps and military alliances."

"I have often said that we do not propose to join any camp or alliances," he declared. "That is our basic policy."

THEY CAN RIDE—Two armed men who robbed the Denver Tramway Co. office yesterday should have solved their transportation problem for several years. In addition to $97 in cash, their loot included 9,086 bus tokens, valued at $1,353.

House Damaged In Sudden Fire

Fire raced through a wall of a frame dwelling on Second Street yesterday afternoon and considerably damaged downstairs and upstairs portions of the house.

The house, located at 212 E. Second St., was occupied by J. A. Cherry and owned by the J. S. Willard estate.

Firemen said the blaze was believed to have started when an electrical wire shorted in a wall which separated the living room from the kitchen of the house.

However, the flames roared up ward within the partition and heavily damaged a low-ceilinged bedroom in the upstairs portion of the house.

Fire fighters, who were called to the blaze shortly before 4 o'clock, battled the flames for approximately 30 minutes before bringing them under control.

They used fog lines from a high

Ban Peronistas

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The government today issued a decree restoring the newspaper La Prensa to the Paz family. At the same time it ordered dissolution of the Peronista party.

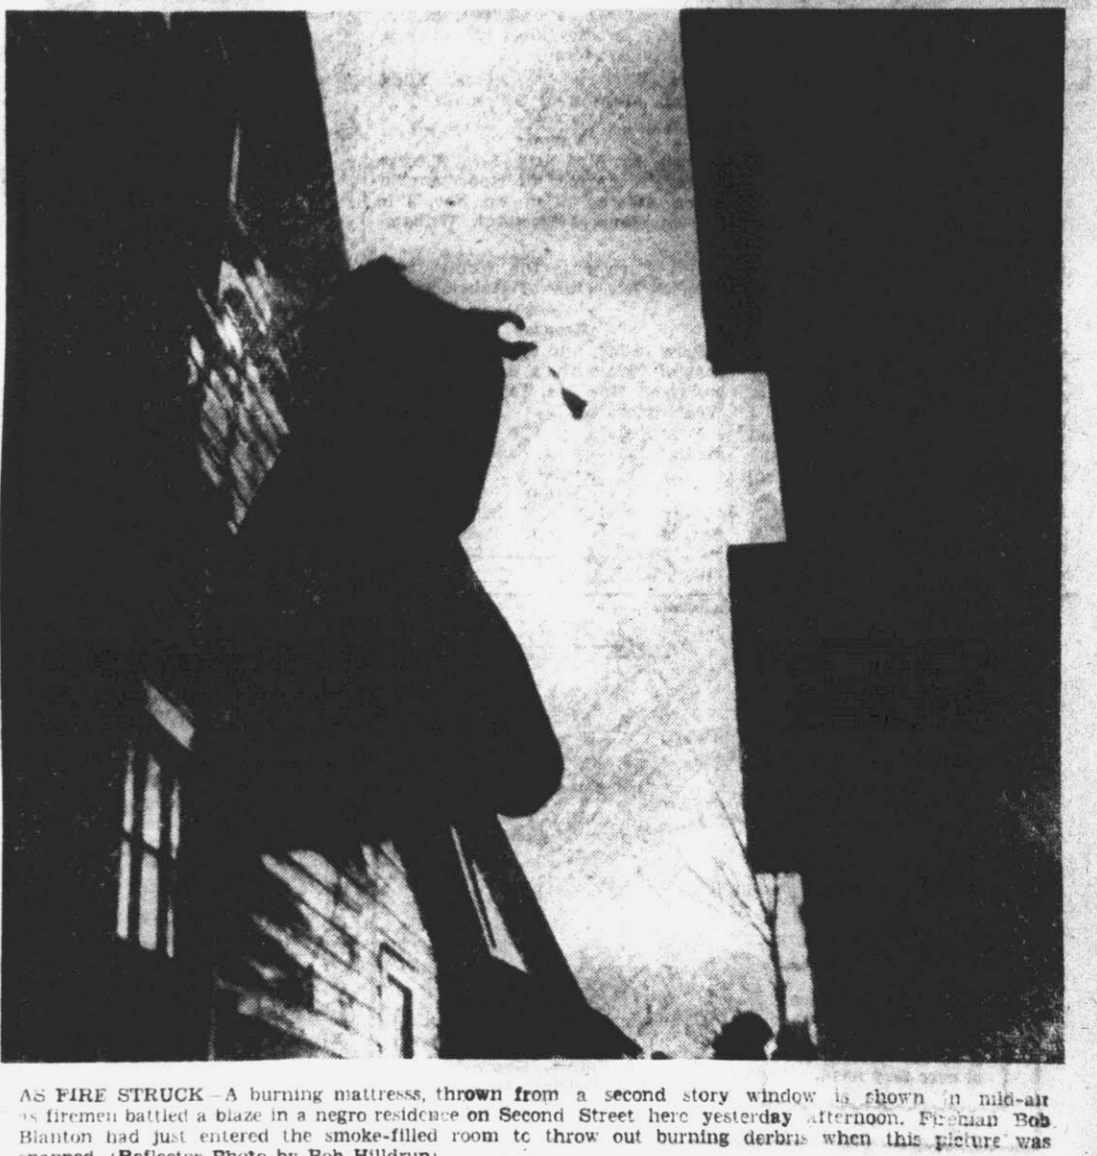

The decree of provisional President Pedro Aramburu spelled a finish to the totalitarian political machine which Juan D. Peron organized six years ago to smother the opposition and tighten his reign.

Expropriation of La Prensa in 1951 was one of the steps Peron took to clamp his control on the nation.

Mrs. Whichard Gives Program For Lydia Wooten Class

The November meeting of the Lydia Wooten Class of Jarvis Memorial Church was held Monday night at 8:00 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Walter Cherry, RFD 3, with Mesdames John Karsnak, Paul P. Hatchelor, J. L. Simmons, and E. L. Baker as co-hostesses.

Mrs. Paul Hatchelor, 1st vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. M. W. Maxwell. Mrs. J. L. Simmons gave the devotional. She read the 100th Psalm and presented briefly the many "Pathways to God" that are found in everyday lives. She closed with a prayer.

The roll was checked and the minutes of the last meeting read and approved. The secretary passed a card to be signed by the members present and sent to Mrs. Maxwell, who is recuperating from an operation.

The treasurer's report was made and dues collected. Recent improvements made in the classroom were noted with approval and praise from each member. The committees responsible were thanked.

After some discussion, the class agreed to take the same family as last year to be helped at Christmas. Mrs. J. L. Simmons is to report at the next meeting regarding this.

Mrs. David Whichard III gave the program. She read two selections from the book "The South as it was" and "The South as it is." He reviewed some of the recent history of the state and encouraged the Tyson-May group to "continue the good work of keeping alive the history of the community and state."

A brief memorial service was held in memory of the late Rev. J. N. Byrum of Battleboro. Miss Veneta Cox of Greenville was unanimously elected second vice-president after Mrs. G. A. Rouse presented the Nominating Committee's report.

A picnic dinner was served at the conclusion of the day's program. Among Greenville people at the reunion were Misses Lina and Angela Tyson, Mrs. Sude Grimmmer, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Tyson and J. P. Tyson, Mrs. Annie Planagan and Mrs. Mamie Ruth Holloway.

that were timely and beautiful—the first, a poem by Eva Rose York entitled "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again," and the other a prayer, "Thanksgiving," by Edward Miller. Mrs. Whichard spoke of the approaching Christmas season as being a time for more friendliness, good neighborliness, and giving a little more of ourselves in the things we do. A round table discussion was enjoyed by all.

During the social period delicious refreshments of spiced cake with whipped cream, salted nuts and coffee were served by the hostesses.

Information has been received in Greenville that a small organ given by a group of friends of the late Miss Lois V. Gorrell for twenty-five years a member of the East Carolina College faculty is now in use at the new Baptist Church in Taichung, Formosa.

Miss Gorrell was a member of the department of music at East Carolina, where she taught violin and piano. She joined the staff in 1920 and taught at the college until her retirement in 1945.

Arrangements to have the organ placed in the Formosan Church were made some time ago by a group of twenty of Miss Gorrell's close friends at the college, in Greenville, and elsewhere. Miss Lelia Higgs of Greenville has received from Miss Mary Sampson, a missionary who has just returned to her work after a year's furlough, a letter which tells of the value of the organ to the congregation.

Committees appointed were: decorations—Mrs. S.B. Tucker, chairman; Mrs. L.W. Cherry and Mrs. H.R. Rogers; and food—Mrs. Howard Clay chairman, Mrs. Glenn Hardee and Mrs. O.S. Kittrell.

Mrs. Lillie Little, home agent, gave the demonstration on buffet meals, and displayed a variety of Christmas gift items.

A report on winter lawns, bulbs and peonies was given by Mrs. Martha Forrest, and club members gave a vote of thanks to Cleve Hardee for cutting the grass and pruning shrubs around the club building.

It was reported that on November 17 a group of club members met and cleaned the community building, washing windows, cleaning cabinets, stoves and refrigerator. It was also reported that proceeds from the ham and turkey supper held recently will be used for club building improvements.

Fifteen members and three guests were present for the meeting, for which Mrs. Charlie Hardee and Mrs. Kay Stokes were hostesses.

H. A. McLawhorn Funeral On Thursday

Haywood A. McLawhorn, 48, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, following several years of illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Winterville Baptist Church Thursday afternoon at three o'clock by the pastor, the Rev. E. G. Cole. Burial will be in the Winterville Cemetery. The body will remain at the Wilkerson Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of services.

Mr. McLawhorn, son of the late Alfred and Sophia Brown McLawhorn, spent all his life in the Winterville community. He attended the Winterville Schools and was graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1931. He was a member of the Winterville Baptist Church and had served on the Board of Deacons. He was a farmer.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mildred Stroud of Kinston, to whom he was married in 1937; a son, Thomas Haywood McLawhorn and a daughter, Sophia Stroud McLawhorn of the home; a brother, Alfred McLawhorn of Winterville; and three sisters, Mrs. Corinne E. Williams of Winterville, Mrs. Ben H. Dixon of Rocky Mount, and Mrs. E. Manly Jackson of Greensboro.

"In one large assembly room," Miss Sampson writes, "we remarked about the lovely small Japanese organ—a pump organ with six stops. . . . I immediately noticed the simple but lovely brass marker on one side saying, 'This organ is given for the glory of God and in memory of a consecrated Christian friend, whose life was music itself—followed by Miss Gorrell's name and the dates of her life. It is a wonderful addition to the effectiveness of our work . . . and on behalf of the entire church I wish to express again our gratitude. As it was given so it will be used, for the glory of God.'"

Soloists Named For 'Messiah'

Soloists for the annual presentation of Handel's "The Messiah" at East Carolina College have been announced by Dr. Elwood Keister of the college faculty, director.

Presented each December for the past four years to usher in the Christmas season on the campus, "The Messiah" will be performed this year Sunday December 11, at 3:30 p.m. in the Wright auditorium. A large audience from localities throughout Eastern North Carolina is expected to be present.

A chorus of more than two hundred vocalists from the campus and the Greenville area will participate in the performance.

Miss June Crews of Creedmoor and Miss Frances Smith of Robersonville, both students in the college department of music, will appear as soprano soloists; and Miss Ruth Lambie, director of the Nursery School at East Carolina, and Miss Cynthia Mendenhall, supervisor of recreation at the East Carolina Student Union, as alto soloists.

Gerald Murphy of China Grove, tenor, and August Laube of New Bern, bass, students of music at the college, will sing solo arias for men's voices.

The oratorio will be presented with organ and piano accompaniment. The newly installed Conn electric organ in the Wright auditorium will be used December 11 for the first time at a college performance of "The Messiah."

Mrs. Eleanor Toll, pianist, music department faculty members, will be accompanists.

30 Years Ago Today

November 30, 1925
In a recent interview Robert H. Wright, president of East Carolina Teachers College, gave out the information that the college is already booked to its capacity for the fall term of 1926. "This means," President Wright went on to state, "that for the next nine months we must spend a good portion of our time writing girls that we cannot take them into the college next year. Last year we turned away more than 500 girls. If these girls were coming here to acquire social polish it would not be so bad, but there are more than 1700 white teachers in North Carolina with less than a high school education teaching more than 80,000 white children. These are the conditions that make the situation tragic."

MYF Has Meeting
ROBERSONVILLE—The Methodist Youth Fellowship held an informal but a very interesting meeting Sunday evening. The meeting opened with a discussion of the remodeling of the church.

Miss Peggy Ward, program chairman, had as her theme "Christian Friendship" and she gave examples of Christian Friendship in daily life.

During the social hour which followed, Miss Gai Hamrick, Miss Jean Grandall and Miss Christine Wetherington served refreshments to the members of the MYF.

Report On District Meet Given By W.C.T.U. Officers

The Greenville Chapter of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union met Thursday evening, Nov. 20, at the home of Mrs. J. N. Williams on Fifth Street. The guests were welcomed on arrival by the hostess and invited into the reception hall, which was beautifully decorated with fall flowers.

The president, Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick, presided. The meeting was opened with singing the hymn "Some Glad Day." Prayer was led by Mrs. Gladys Seville.

The devotional was given by Mrs. P. P. Brooks, scripture reading from St. Matthew, 7th chapter, verses 8-17. She urged a careful study of the Gospels. She also read an interesting article entitled, "Being a Christian," by Bishop Stephen Neel, steps to take to be like Jesus Christ. The minutes were read, and the treasurer gave her report. Mrs. A. W. Baker gave the current events. An interesting report of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union district meeting recently held at Wilson was given by the president and Mrs. Lela Carson.

The guests for the evening were Mrs. L. S. Dixon, Mrs. B. W. Mosley, Mrs. W. I. Skinner and Miss Myrtle Stancil.

In closing, Mrs. Kirkpatrick read a very inspiring article entitled "The Arm of Love," after which the meeting adjourned with singing the hymn "Blest Be The Tie." The guests were invited into the dining room where the hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. A. Turner and Mrs. John Montgomery, served punch, assorted nuts, mints, party sandwiches, and cheese straws. The December meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. J. C. Galloway on Student Street.

Women of the Moose
Greenville Chapter No. 1306, Women of the Moose, held their regular meeting with Senior Regent Bonnie Singleton presiding.

Plans were made to have the Christmas party Dec. 10th at which time husbands of the members are to be entertained. The Senior Regent also appointed a committee to buy the gifts for the Christmas party the Greenville Lodge 888, Loyal Order of Moose, is sponsoring for the needy children with Earline Ooghill as chairman. A shower was given for Mildred Causey following the meeting. Refreshments were served, after which the meeting closed in ritualistic form.

No Real Losers In College Contest

For the 17 communities which are still in active competition for the fat prize of the new four-year Presbyterian College in North Carolina, it will be a long wait until December 6, 1956 when the site for the new college is announced.

For the past several months a number of cities and towns have been extremely active in their efforts to be chosen as the site for the new college. Obviously, from the stiff requirements officials have set up for the site to be chosen, there remains a great deal of work to be done by the competing communities in the coming year. The community which is finally chosen as the site for the new college will find the reward worth every ounce of effort.

Already Muddy Waters Stirred Anew By ICC

Trying to climb on the integration bandwagon, the Interstate Commerce Commission sought to out-court the Supreme Court with its sweeping order to end racial segregation in interstate travel.

Not only did the order ban segregation on buses and trains, but it likewise included waiting rooms and other terminal facilities.

In direct conflict with the laws of several states which govern intra-state travel, the new ruling by the ICC is destined to cause much confusion and many conflicts over the jurisdiction of state and federal authority.

Most railroad and bus companies are engaged in both intra-state and interstate travel. Passengers traveling within the state and those traveling through the state in most instances use the same facilities of the transportation company. Certainly it will be impractical for such companies to build separate waiting rooms and other facilities for inter-state and intra-state passengers. In North Carolina and other states where the state law is in direct conflict with the new ICC ruling, companies will find themselves violating state laws if they comply with the ICC order, and will also find themselves violating the ICC order if they comply with the state laws.

The situation might be summed up in one question: Will the individual state continue to have jurisdiction of their own intra-state travel, or will another of the state's rights be summarily taken over by the centralized federal government?

North Carolina certainly should make it clear to the affected transportation companies that it expects its state laws to be adhered to in respect to intra-state travel regardless of what the ICC says about interstate passengers. Unless the individual states take a firm stand and indicate their determination to uphold their existing laws and regulations, they will be handing over to federal authority another of the rapidly disappearing state powers.

Heroic Sea Rescuers Of Past Had Basic 'Tools'

The dramatic helicopter rescue of sailors from a stricken freighter on the rocky Nova Scotia coast brought to mind exploits of the lonely band of lifesavers who long ago manned lifesaving stations along the Atlantic coast.

Those rescuers of bygone years didn't have the advantages of radio, telephones, electric lights or even power boats, much less helicopters to aid them on their missions. The tools of their trade were the dory, hefty oars, strong backs and the grit to face the roughest seas. The stories of their deeds still live along the outer banks of North Carolina where many a seaman was snatched from the very door of Davy Jones' locker by these men of the Life Saving service.

Literally scores of sailing vessels went aground on the treacherous Carolina coast during the years prior to the turn of the century. Literally hundreds of seamen, stranded on the decks of their foundering ship were rescued by this hardy band of men who have all but disappeared.

Buffeting high winds in a helicopter and dodging rocky cliffs to rescue men from the tossing deck of a modern freighter is certainly no feat to be taken lightly. But modern sea rescue operations are tame indeed to the exploits of those men of half century ago who relied on skill, courage, oars and skiffs to rescue sailors from sinking ships.

Safe-Driving Day Has Significance For Pitt

Thursday has been designated Safe Driving Day. Whether it is S-D Day in fact or in name only depends upon millions of motorists across the nation who get behind their steering wheels of their autos tomorrow.

In Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina and throughout the 48 states, the emphasis tomorrow will be on the driver. Sharp eyes will be counting the accidents, deaths and injuries which are set down in statistics books on this Safe Driving Day. It would be a feather in the cap of Greenville and Pitt County if we could get by Thursday without a single traffic accident in the city or county. We have done it on many ordinary days. Why not do it again on Safe Driving Day.

The people of Pitt County have already contributed more than their share to the more than a thousand deaths and the almost 10,000 injuries suffered in North Carolina so far this year. The least we can do is come up with a clean record for Safe Driving Day.

put forth. Even the other communities which put forth great efforts to get the college and are passed over by the committee which choose the site will find themselves better off for the energy they put forth in an attempt to attract the new school.

The people of Greenville and Pitt County are well aware of what a college can mean to a community. Indeed, East Carolina College is one of the outstanding assets of Pitt County. Were it not for the college, Greenville would find its whole cultural and economic life changed. East Carolina College—if an educational institution can be compared to an industry in an economic sense—is one of the larger industries in this part of the state. The investment in its physical plant, its payroll, and the money it turns loose in the community compare favorably with the largest industries in the eastern part of the state.

The new Presbyterian College, while it will not be as large as ECC, will compare favorably with a major industrial installation so far as the economy of the community in which it locates is concerned.

Only one of the 17 communities now competing for the new Presbyterian College can be the winner in this biggest contest held among North Carolina towns in many years. But all 17 of the communities stand to profit by their own efforts. The energy put forth to get the college will not have been wasted. It could well put the community in line for some other prize even if it is not the much sought after college.

Dolly Madison, The N. Carolina Beauty

By LYNN NISBET
INTERLUDE — A sort of beauty contest, in which a girl child born in North Carolina eight years before the Declaration of Independence was pitted against the field of all comers before and since, with another girl born in the tobacco belt more than 150 years later as the chief contender, is a delightful interlude between phases of more serious consideration of weighty problems.

It all started when a smart, alert publicity man in California directed a lot of questions about North Carolina to Charles Parker, director of state advertising. One fellow wanted to know is "Who do you regard the most beautiful woman from your state, past or present?"

Parker sought some help on that, as well as other questions. Some of his advisers nominated Ava Gardner, presently at height of fame as a movie star. Others nominated Dolly Madison, wife of the fourth President of the United States. There were numerous other entries but Parker settled for Ava and Dolly as chief contenders—and decided the weight of evidence was in favor of Dolly.

Lots of folks didn't like that decision and some who did not object to the dominance accorded the White House hostess of a century and a half ago, objected to spelling of her name. The issue (?) made the editorial columns of several daily newspapers.

The erudite ivory tower boys on the Greensboro Daily News devote major part of a column to insistence that if the Madison dame is to be included there ought to be an extra "e" in the spelling of her name. The News insists, upon authority of Mrs. John Larkins Pearson, that the name should be "Dolley."

"DOLLY" — All of this occasioned some research into the history of some of America's famous women. Preponderant evidence, from such sources as the Encyclopedia Britannica, the American Educator Encyclopedia and the World Book of Knowledge, is that a girl child was born in the family of John Payne, a Quaker resident, of what is now Guilford county, on May 12, 1768, was given the name of Dorothy. When Dorothy was quite a child the family moved to Virginia, and her Quaker father freed all his slaves years before Abraham Lincoln issued his political-military emancipation proclamation.

All the records indicate that the Payne girl of the late 18th century had many of the physical attributes which have made the girl of the mid-20th century a box office attraction. Somewhere along the road the sedate "Dorothy" became the popular "Dolly."

In her early 20's Dolly Payne married John Todd, a Virginia planter. He died in 1793. The next year she married James Madison, another prominent Virginian who later became secretary of state in the cabinet of President Thomas Jefferson. Mrs. Jefferson died some years before and the President called upon the wife of his secretary of state to serve as official White House hostess during his tenure from 1801 to 1809. She continued in that capacity of White House during the tenure of her husband as President from 1809 to 1817. Dolly Madison served as official White House hostess longer than any woman in history, eight years for President Jefferson and eight for President Madison. Closest rival for White House Hostess tenure was Eleanor Roosevelt, who had a little more than two years.

Before and after her White House experience Dolly Madison, without benefit of either the "e" or the more dignified "Dorothy" exerted considerable influence on national affairs.

CONTRIBUTIONS — She is credited with large part in saving the original Stuart portrait of George Washington when the British invaded the capital city in 1814. She is further credited with main responsibility for editing Madison's papers on the Constitutional Convention.

From 1817, when they retired from the White House, until 1836 when Madison died, they lived at their Montpelier estate in Virginia. After the death of her husband she returned to Washington in 1837, as the World Almanac expressed it, "a welcome but impecunious social leader." She is credited with sending the first private message over Sam Morse's telegraph in 1844, and participation in dedication of the Washington Monument in 1848.

The record further shows that she sustained her "impecunious" status by selling to the Federal government certain papers of her famous husband for some $78,000 between the time of his death in 1836 and her death in 1849.

This North Carolina born girl, whose intelligence and political know-how matched her "buxom beauty," immortalized by such authority as Washington Irving, exerted considerable influence on the policies of the first ten Presidents of the United States—from Washington through Polk. Although the record indicates she did not dare to stick out her neck much before the administration of fellow-statesman, Andrew Jackson.

In addition to her place in the ranks of beauty contestants, as proven by testimony of Washington Irving and extant portraits, the Tarheel-born Dorothy Payne, who became famous as "Dolly Madison," proved that she had brains as well as busts. No other woman, and very few men, exercised as much influence over the policies and ideas upon which the government of the United States is founded.

A Pig Is So Doggone Temporary

(Durham Morning Herald)
Strange isn't it, some of these ideas people get. Stranger still how they persist, not just through one man's life, but through generations and through centuries.

Take the popular ideas about a horse. Mention the animal and those who remember when not only every farm had its horses, but town folk kept them too, will begin talking of the fine traits of the horse—his intelligence, his spirit, his faithfulness. For a long long time the horse has lived with the dog, in man's opinion at least, as man's best friend. Man has depended upon the horse and loved him, and the horse has responded magnificently by trust and affection. Talk about animal intelligence, and one promptly thinks of the horse, the dog, and the cat among the domesticated beasts (we pass over for the time being the moot question of the cat's domesticity).

As we browsed through one of the current magazines a day or two ago, an advertisement of an encyclopedia caught us up sharp. In emphasizing how much one's knowledge would be increased by reading this encyclopedia, it chose to demonstrate by comparing the intelligence of the horse and the hog. We don't have to tell you which the encyclopedia (quoting a Columbia professor's findings) said is the smarter. If the professor's studies had confirmed the long-standing opinion of the human race, this advertisement would never have been published.

We haven't the slightest idea about how to go about determining the I.Q. of pigs and horses. Maybe the hog is smarter than the horse, which has let himself be harnessed and broken for work, be hitched to a wagon and mud hole, be saddled and ridden to bounds and to war and to store and to church. Maybe the animal which lets a man boss him around and work him like a horse does really isn't so smart and the hog which waddles from mud hole to mud hole, though as though it was the greatest labor imaginable has considerably more sense than we've given him credit for.

That theory holds only until cold weather, however. For then the hog is slaughtered for his meat. The horse, on the other hand, is stabled and blanketed, fed and watered. He gets an apple and a lump of sugar from affectionate hands. When he is old and can work no longer, he still keeps his stall and his feed trough, and gets attention as long as he lives. Maybe the pig is smarter for the day. But we still think the horse is smarter for the long pull.

Same Leopard, Same Spots

by Bob Hilldrup

It Isn't All Ticket-Giving

The wind came out of the north and the rain, cold and miserable, pelled down out of the night sky. Lights from the Highway Patrol car focused momentarily on an old sedan, parked in the mud of the roadside.

The patrol car passed, then made a quick "U" turn and drew up behind the parked sedan. A middle-aged Negro knelt in front of the parked car, struggling in the mud as he attempted to jack-up the vehicle's front end.

The patrolman got out. "Flat tire?" he asked. "Yasuh," said the Negro. "Let's see if we can't do something about it." The patrolman squatted in the mud beside the flattened tire and picked up a wrench.

The patrolman wore no raincoat and the fall rain clung to the gray of his uniform shirt. Quickly, he spun the wrench and the useless tire came off. With equal dispatch, he fitted the spare to the axle and spun the nuts tight again. The tire change was completed.

Signs Of The Times: Hanging on the newsroom wall is a tiny bit of cardboard with a scrap of paper pasted onto it. Paper reads: "If you can keep a level head in all this confusion you just don't understand the situation." Amen.

Christmas Cheer: Policeman was standing on a corner. Nearby, a group of young men, obviously unaware of his presence, began to get more and more rowdy.

Policeman approached group. Noise died away. "Boys," policeman said, "you better hush that fuss or you ain't going to get to see Santa Claus." The group, obviously impressed by the hidden meaning, broke up and dispersed.

Few Sharpshooting Cowboys

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—In the wild and woolly West, it seems, there was nothing wilder than a cowboy's aim.

Millions of American kids today take it for granted that the oldtime cowboys were faster than lighted lightning on the draw and practically never missed their target in a gunfight.

"The plain fact is," says Herbert O. Brayer, "that cowboys as a group were generally poor shots. And it is all too true. They couldn't hit the broad side of a barn!"

Brayer, alas, is no mere killjoy bent on overturning youthful idols. He is recognized as a top authority on the Wild West, and spent years going through court records and getting sworn testimony to debunk the legend that the average cowboy was an artist with a sixgun.

The result of his researches, proving that cowboys missed more often than the hit, are carried in the January issue of the magazine "Guns."

Here are a few of his disclosures:

Item: The famous Texas cattleman, Charles Goodnight told Brayer: "I've known hundreds of the best and worst cow punchers in the business, and the number of real working cowboys who could hit a man at 50 feet with a .44 or .45 you could count on your fingers and toes. But some of them were pretty fair shot with a rifle—and some were damn good!"

"The best shots in the cow country certainly were not the cowboys—they were the ones who usually got shot! It was the professional gun slingers who spent their time learning to draw fast and shoot straight with the fastest cowpoke was busy branding, driving up the drags repairing fences, or busting steers out of the bush.

"If there was a gunfight in town in which someone was badly hurt or killed, you could almost bet there was a pro-gambler, or one of the outlaws who found safety on the frontier."

Item: Jim Shaw, a veteran trail rider who became president

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE WORD OF GOD IS PRECIOUS

In 1886 Henry M. Stanley published in an English newspaper a list of books with which he started to travel across Africa as he searched for Livingstone. His list consisted of 76 books—historical, scientific, classical, and fictional. At the end of 300 miles, he had ordered the castling away of all books save one on navigation, and almanac, a set of Shakespeare, Sartor Resartus, and the Bible. Afterwards he had to give up Shakespeare, and as the journey went on and the necessity for conserving the strength of the men who were bearing the burdens increased, all books were thrown away except the Bible.

What a marvelous literature humanity has produced through the centuries. Yet if we had to give up all these books we could do so if we could still keep the Bible. How horrifying to think of giving up Homer, Dante, and Shakespeare. Think of the satisfaction and beauty which would go out of life if the books which these men produced were to be lost. But think what would happen to the soul of man if God's supernatural directives, the moral principles which have laid down the comfort of his promise and the hope of eternal life which He holds up to us in the Word of God, were to be taken from us. Then we would become as beasts of the world.

The Bible is our most precious possession. Almost everybody owns a Bible, but only those possess it who have taken its teachings into their hearts.

Groton Bitter Over Living In A Shadow

Ray Tucker is on vacation. The following contribution deals with the rivalry between two vigorous communities, one of which invariably gets the credit for much that goes on in the other's area. It is a condition existing between close-by towns elsewhere in the country.

GROTON, Conn.—Take it from the residents of Groton, a fast-growing community in southeastern Connecticut, it's no fun basking in some other town's reflected glory, especially when no one mentions your name—or if they do, as the Irishman said, the mispronunciation on the radio networks. They call the place Gro-ton, as in Gro-ton, Mass., instead of Grah-ton, as it is pronounced in Connecticut.

Groton residents are a little bitter about it. When the news involves the nation's largest submarine base it's almost invariably called "The New London Submarine Base." The Base is mostly in Groton (a small part of it in the adjoining town of Ledyard) and it isn't even on the same side of the Thames River (that's They-mes, not Terns no matter what they call the one in London England) as New London. Ever Mr. Truman, when President, in mentioning that he was going to be present at the laying of the keel of the world's first atomic submarine, the Nautilus, all to difficulties in this situation. He said he was "going to New London" to participate in the keel laying.

MISTAKE IRKS GROTON That keel laying took place at the shipyard of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp., and the big yard happens to be located in Groton, not New London. Again, Groton blood pressure jumps another notch or two when nationally circulated news refers to "The Electric Boat at New London, Conn." The former President heard plenty about his slip when he got to this southeastern Connecticut area—possibly before he got there. In the midst of the chore of welding his initials on the keel-plate of the Nautilus, he laughingly remarked he'd "learned" that Electric Boat is not in New London, but rather in Groton. That statement made the news wires and Groton residents grinned again, for a change.

Groton, according to the 1950 Federal census had 21,896 residents but it's a thriving community, busting its buttons with new population these days. Estimates of its actual population today vary a lot, and most of them are probably no more than inspired guesses. But most every one figures it has passed to the 25,000 mark, and may be up to 26,000 or 27,000.

LAND AREA OF THE TWO TOWNS Because of geographical considerations, Groton probably has a larger land area than New London, the city so often getting the credit for Groton's installations. For Groton the town has more than six times the land area of New London, and New London, in land area, is the second smallest municipality in Connecticut. In the 1950 census New London had 30,551 population. In the 1960 census, it's safe to say, it won't show much growth in population. For it has but 3,452 acres of land within its borders. Groton has 22,331 acres of land. New London lies along the west bank of the Thames River, about six miles long and not more than a mile and a half wide at the widest point. It hasn't elbow room to grow within its own borders.

Groton, on the other hand, has many wide open spaces. So for that matter has the town of Waterford which completely surrounds New London except on the Thames River side. Population growth in this immediate area hence drifts to Groton and to Waterford, and both towns are growing like weeds. Groton, right now, is in the throes of debating a change in government, from the

Complaints By The Customers

By ELMER ROESSNER

Everybody has troubles. When woes of auto dealers were chronicled here, grocers complained they had worse problems. As we recorded the difficulties with their suppliers and customers. Since then we have been hearing from some of the customers.

They love grocers—both big and small. They couldn't do without them. But, it seems, there are a lot of practices they could pass up. Such as:

Many run short of advertised items. When newspapers and magazines are carrying big advertisements for various products, stores often run short. Sometimes they try to sell their own brands instead.

When stores run short, it is usually cheap brands they are out of. They often lack 29-cent canned tomatoes and 21-cent tuna, but they always have the 25-cent tomatoes and 37-cent tuna.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES A PROBLEM

Whatever grocers do about fruits and vegetables seems wrong. Shoppers complain that many service stores and some self-service markets insist customers take "run of the farm" produce. If there is a rotten apple or a putrid onion many retailers expect shoppers to accept. If along with the good, if a woman wants a large mushroom for stuffing, she has to take small ones along with the big. Some supermarkets allow shoppers to select their own produce and this causes late-comers to complain that "everything is all picked over."

Prepackaged meats are another source of complaints. Many women—especially the shy type—like them because they don't have to display their ignorance of meat cuts to the butcher, because they can see approximately what they are getting and because they can save time.

On the other hand, many women complain that the packaging sometimes conceals excess fat, bones and blemishes.

Some prepackaging, housewives complain, takes advantage of the fact that women think six ounces is half a pound. One store displays packages of sliced cheese, luncheon meats and sausage at 35 cents for six ounces. That makes the pound price over 92 cents—which is quite a bit for bologna.

BEHIND THE WHITE DOOR

Some housewives are very suspicious about what goes on behind the refrigerator door in those places where meat is cut and chopped. Most of the suspicion arises because they can't see what's happening, but one woman told us:

"The woman ahead of me picked out two flank steaks from the showcase and asked to have them ground. The butcher took them behind the white door and came out with a package of chopped beef. After the woman had left another butcher came out and put the two steaks back in the showcase."

The same little woman says that the market advertised a special on sirloins one day and when she arrived there were none on display. When she asked to see one, the butcher said, "Sorry, the cutter is cutting porterhouses now."

"You go in there and tell him he's cutting a sirloin right now," the shopper snapped. She got her steak.

Another complaint is that check out clerks sometimes slip in—and charge for—extra items. They are usually common things, such as the patron may have picked up and forgot. It helps boost the store's dollar volume. Your correspondent, didn't believe this until he did the family shopping the other day. Came home with a seven-ounce package of Münster cheese he had paid for but had never seen before.

Ah well! As the girls say, we couldn't live without the grocers.

Virginia's Legislators Meet In Special Session

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The Virginia Legislature meets in special session today to consider the school segregation problem, the biggest issue to face the mother of states in more than a century.

The 140 lawmakers were summoned to session by Gov. Thomas B. Stanley in an effort to preserve the traditional Southern way of separate school facilities for Negro and white pupils.

The legislators will be asked to set in motion the machinery for amending the state constitution to permit subsidization of private schools.

Virginia is one of seven Southern states that have defied the Supreme Court and signified a desire to find a means of getting around the May 1954 ruling abolishing segregation in the public schools. The other states are Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, South Carolina and North Carolina.

In Georgia and Mississippi constitutional amendments have been approved that open the door to possible abolition of public schools. But among Virginia legislators there seemed to be a strong undercurrent of feeling for preserving the public school system regardless of the eventual legal outcome of the attempt to get around the court's decision.

Under a plan recommended by a legislative study commission, local authorities would be given wide discretion in handling the school problem. The plan would permit integration if the localities so wished. But areas that wanted to keep separate facilities would be allowed to "assign" pupils to schools for reasons other than race—health and aptitude, for example.

Should this not work out or should there be integration in some sectors, a parent might receive a tuition grant from the state to send his child to a private school.

But before this could be done, the state constitution must be amended to permit such subsidization. Today's special session was called to set up a statewide referendum on holding a convention to do the amending.

Iron Burned Its Way Downward

TURNERS FALLS, Mass. (AP)—Mrs. Jeanette Lowe, a third floor resident, went out and left her iron on.

The iron burned through the ironing board, fell to the floor, burned a hole in the floor and dropped into the second-floor apartment of Mrs. Stephen A. Brozo.

The fall of the iron broke the electrical connection or it might have caused more than a smoldering fire, said firemen who were called to the scene.

Retail Car Dealers Demand Freer Hand

WASHINGTON (AP)—Spokesmen for the nation's 40,000 retail car dealers, complaining of "pressures," today renewed their plea for a freer hand in dealing with auto manufacturers.

A score of dealers, members of the National Automobile Dealers Assn. (NADA), were invited to return for further testimony before a Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee.

Frederick J. Bell, NADA president, contended yesterday that what he called "one-sided" contracts deny dealers rights as "independent businessmen," and give the Detroit auto executives virtual control over the investment of every dealer.

The subcommittee is engaged in what Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) terms a study of the economic influence that huge General Motors Corp. exercises in the auto industry.

Bell said the manufacturers, in rebuffing suggestions by the dealers for "correction of unfair practices," have subjected them to "factory pressure, threats and coercion."

Asserting the manufacturers "are rugged, toughly competitive and smart," Bell declared: "We are in no way interested in fighting to preserve the business of a lazy man, an inefficient man, or a man who permits his so-called shrewdness to overbalance his business ethics."

What auto dealers want, he said, is "to be toughly competitive, to sink or swim, rise or fall on their own merits and in accordance with rules that are clearly understood, universally applicable and not subject to drastic change with every shift of wind that blows from Detroit."

Bell said GM profits annually range from 15 to 20 per cent while the retail dealer average slumped from a peak of 6 per cent in 1950 to less than 1 per cent last year.

He said many dealers have lost their franchises because they are forced to take any quota of cars sent them by the manufacturer. This has led to "bootlegging" and other sales abuses, he said.

Feeling Pinch Of Steel Shortage

RALEIGH (AP)—State highway construction projects are feeling the pinch of the structural steel shortage.

Chief Highway Engineer W. H. Rogers Jr. said yesterday that the road program also is threatened by a shortage of other materials, including reinforcing steel and cement.

He added, "From what suppliers tell me next year is going to be the most critical we have had."

Rogers said that if the steel shortage situation doesn't improve "we are going to have to change our designs to eliminate use of steel as much as possible. Then I guess we would run into a shortage of cement—that's also in short supply."

Even if Congress votes for an expanded federal aid highway program, he said, it will take a year to get the program under way because of shortages of materials and engineers.

Rogers pointed out that on road bids opened yesterday, contractors were estimating deliveries of structural steel at from July to September of next year. He added, "there is no assurance they will get it then."

Commissions Go To Four AFROTC Students Monday

Four students who completed their work in the Air Force ROTC detachment at East Carolina College at the end of the fall quarter received Monday of this week commissions as second lieutenants in the U.S. Air Force Reserve. They will soon be called into active duty in the U.S. Air Force to begin training as pilots or observers.

Lt. Col. Lewis J. Partridge, professor of air science at the college, administered the oath of office and presented commissioning documents to the students.

Those who were commissioned are John W. Hudson of Kingston, Donald K. Burton of Washington, George B. Rose of Newton Grove, and Ben W. Britt of Mount Olive. Hudson received from Lt. Col. Partridge a certificate as an outstanding Air Force ROTC graduate. During the fall quarter he served as Cadet Colonel of the East Carolina AFROTC detachment.

Felt Duty Bound To Arrest Wife

LEWISTOWN, Mont. (AP)—City policeman Thomas Powell felt he had a duty and he did it—arrested his wife Denise.

He gave her a citation for careless driving and causing an accident. No one was hurt.

Powell said his wife posted $10 bond in police court, then forfeited it without trial—and that she "still was a little burned up" at him.

STATE AGAIN TO DOMINATE THE ATLANTIC

No matter how you focus it, you get the same old picture. North Carolina State will again be the big bully in Atlantic Coast Conference brawls this winter.

Ev Case's Wolfpack will again carry the biggest stick and, with a little difficulty, beat off Duke and North Carolina, the two toughest challengers. It'll be Case's 10th year at the West Raleigh and he's sure to round out the decade with another winner.

There are four big reasons why State should take its fifth straight conference title. First, there's Ronnie Shavlik, a 6-5 senior with pore sticks for legs. He's everybody's pre-season All-American and he has proven his worth as a scorer, rebounder and team player.

Secondly, there's Vic Molested, a senior guard who's swift as a prairie fire and as smart as they come. He plays the back-court like nobody has at State in some time. Phil DiNardo is a big defensive genius who makes up for lack of grace in hard labor under the baskets, and that's four. Lastly, but not least by any means is one Bob Seitz. This sophomore monster stands 6-11 and grasps rebounds like picking cherries from a tree. Experienced hands like John Maglio, Cliff Hafer, Nick Pond and Lou Dickman also give the club an outstanding bench.

In a recent poll, six of the ACC coaches gave their honest appraisals of how they look at the coming season. Six of the eight said State would again win. Clemson's Banks McFadden anticipates a winter of violence and upsets, and foresees UNC and Duke putting the squeeze on the Pack. Case modestly picks Duke for the championship role.

DUKE TO CHANGE STYLE OF ATTACK

Coach Hal Bradley has for the first time in years a big man on his squad. In the past, the Blue Devils have been strictly a race-horse team that depended on sprinters for points Bradley admits that this type of offense is given away to ones built around height.

He's got a real steeple in 6-10 Tony Buhowsky, who needs a lot of polish but can rebound like mad now. Bradley also has Junior Morgan and he's the big if in Bradley's present plans. Morgan is the 6-7 center who tore a knee cartilage in the Catskill summer league and is still questionable.

Right now, it appears that Captain Joe Belmont, at 5-11, will be the only starter under 6-3. Ron Mayer, the 6-4 senior who can out-jump an African bushman, is one of the forward. Mayer averaged a neat 21.7 points last year.

"We'll be as good as last year," Bradley recently remarked. "and if Buhowsky and Bobby Mc Harris come along we'll be real good." The Blue Devils staged a better than average campaign in 1954-55, winning 20 and losing eight. Anything close to that this season will likely satisfy Bradley.

Several All-ACC teams have been picked. There are about 10 different players who might sift out as the season's top five. Shavlik is a unanimous choice, along with Mayer and UNC's Len Rosenbluth.

These three and Wake Forest's Lowell (lefty) Davis and Maryland's Bob Keesler comprise a pretty fair country ball club. There are many more who might move into the center ring. Molested of State, Belmont of Duke, Jackie Murdock of Wake Forest, Bob Miller of Virginia, and Bill Yarborough of Clemson, to mention a few.

Scorewise, Yarborough is probably the outstanding player in the league. He was the nation's fourth leading scorer last year with a 28.3 average. But the outstanding player from the point of all-round ability is Shavlik. He set a new rebounding record for the Pack last season and dunked points at better than 20 a game.

That, when you start handing out honors you can't neglect Rosenbluth who averaged 25.5 as a sophomore, or Davis who scored 21 points a game last winter, or Mayer who is a tremendous all-round floor man.

From this corner, we see State, Duke, UNC, Maryland, Wake Forest, Virginia, South Carolina, and Clemson finishing in that order.

Grifton Cagers Drop 2 Games To Southwood

Grifton dropped two non-county contests last night to Southwood on the Grifton field of battle. The boys fell 72-36 and the girl cagers were downed 54-48.

Taking high-scoring honors for the night was sensational Dawn Smith who scorched the nets for 39 points in the girls' game for the losers. Grant, of Southwood, led the way for the victorious squad, with 33 markers.

Charles Casey racked up 15 points to pace the Southwood boys to a win over the Grifton males, who have been able to defeat one team in five tries.

The Southwood contest was the fifth for both the boys and girls of Grifton. They have met only one county aggregation, Stokes, and chalked up a double win in that match, thus remaining undefeated in county-conference competition.

Stokes-Pactolus Is Edged By Beargrass

The Beargrass boys and girls cagers swept to a double victory last night over the Stokes-Pactolus cagers in a non-county match.

Despite a 52-45 defeat, the Stokes-Pactolus girls claimed high-scoring honors. Nina Perkins, playing her usual dead-eye basketball, pumped in 27 points to lead both the boys and girls in that department. Her efforts were not strong enough, however, to ward off the mounting Beargrass offensive that piled up 15 points in both the third and fourth quarters.

Again, in the boys' contest, a Stokes-Pactolus cager took scoring laurels, but could not bring his team victory. Clayton Barnhill racked up a total of 22 markers to lead both quintets. Beargrass started the game off with a bang by dropping in 17 points in the opening quarter to completely dominate the game. The losers were never ahead.

Buc Aquamen Face 3 Foes

East Carolina's Pirate swimmers leave Greenville tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock to begin a three-day affair that will pit them against Wofford, Clemson and Davidson in the opening meets of the 1955-56 season.

The squad will be at full strength for the Thursday event, with the exception of Claude Tyson, a diver, who has dropped out of the aggregation because of grade difficulty. Tyson, according to the coach, was one of the top divers on the swimming crew and will be sorely missed.

Coach Raymond Martinez seems enthusiastic about his boys and stated yesterday that, "as a second-year team we're going to give some of these established squads a tough time." Martinez began ECC's first swimming team last season.

The holiday lay off has made us a little rusty," the young pool mentor said, "but after today we should be in as good condition as we were before. We'll be ready for those first three matches."

Wofford will be the opening Buc-cancer enemy and the meet will take place at 7 o'clock Thursday night. Afterwards, the locals will invade Clemson in South Carolina, on Friday, for a 3:30 match. They will return to meet Davidson on Saturday at 2:30, in the Wildcat pool. Martinez has commented that the Pirates could "come back with three wins if we swim our best."

Porter Continues Shuffle Players For Guilford Fray

Coach Howard Porter continued to experiment with his 15-man squad in yesterday's workout as the opener with Guilford Saturday night approaches.

The cage bossman shuffled the first five several times with just about everybody getting to run some with the nucleus of the 1955-56 team, Don Harris, Nick Nichols and J. Thomas.

Tim Smothers, the 6-6 Reidsville giant, worked the center spot along with Guy Mendenhall. Smothers is looking good, according to Porter, and should help the club in the rebounding aspect.

Joe Yogi Plaster returned to heavy duty yesterday and scrimmaged some. The 6-8 tower has been out over a week with a bad ankle. He is a fine rebounder, as his height might indicate.

The over-all shooting picked up yesterday as Harris, Nichols and Thomas made the nets sing. Harris is hitting better than ever with his pulverizing one-hand jump shot and driving lay-up. Nichols has improved his hooks and scores well from around the circle.

Thomas, the club's only senior, has taken over the role of leader and sets up plays well. He is deft with a one-hander from the outside and will be counted on to loosen up zone defenses usually used against the Pirates.

Yesterday, Thomas shared guard duties with a long list of eager candidates. Among them were Freddie James, Waddell Ingram, Maurice Everett and Harold Ingram. Porter and assistant coach Earl Smith directed the Pirates through several defenses they believe will be used by Guilford. The coaches also spent a great deal of the practice polishing their own offense.

Tarheel Chosen Clemson Captain

CLEMSON S. C. — Clemson's 1956 football team will be captained by Charlie Bussey, Henderson, N. C.

Bussey was elected yesterday. Joe Wells of Columbia was named co-captain.

Bussey, a 134-pound understudy for quarterback Don King, starred in several Clemson clashes, this season. Wells set a new Atlantic Coast Conference single game rushing record, reeling off 175 yards, against Furman.

Losing Coach Acclaimed By Players, Officials

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Don Faurot just finished the worst football season in his coaching career—9 losses in 10 games—but his players acclaim him "the best coach in America."

University of Missouri officials back them.

Strange happenings in a period when a flock of coaches—and even a coach's wife—have been hanged in effigy by disgruntled fans?

Faurot, inventor of football's split-T formation, drew some alumni fire during the disastrous season but you wouldn't have known it at the annual Missouri football banquet last night.

Dr. Elmer Ellis, the university president, read two brief papers. One from the institution's athletic advisory committee was a resolution commending Faurot and others responsible for the athletic program and recommending that

Rumors Persist Belair Stud Is On Auction Block

NEW YORK — Despite a denial by an executor of the estate, there were persistent reports today that Belair Stud, including the great Nashua and other races horses of the late William Woodward Jr., valued at 5 million dollars, will be put up for auction within 90 days.

Several New York newspapers published the report, with the Daily Mirror stating that the familiar red and white polka dot colors of the Belair Stud under which two generations of the Woodward family raced their thoroughbreds, would be retired.

The Mirror story, under the by-line of sports editor Dan Parker, said the decision had been reached by executors of the estate left by Woodward, a prominent sportsman-socialite who was shot to death accidentally by his wife last Oct. 30.

John W. Ludewig, one of the executors, denied the report, however.

Odds On Basilio Take Dip

BOSTON — Welterweight champion Carmen Basilio a battle scarred veteran unbeaten in more than two years, returns a courtesy and risks his title against young Tony De Marco tonight in a rematch of one of the year's best slugfests.

Basilio, a 28-year-old ex-Marine from Canastota, N.Y., rules only a slight favor to retain his title in his first defense since lifting it from the 23-year-old bomb-throwing Bostonian in a sensational brawl last June 10.

Odds dropped from 9-5 to less than 7-5 on Basilio against De Marco, who held the title only 70 days—the shortest on record. The Boston Garden bout is scheduled for the championship distance of 15 rounds, but few experts figure it will go the distance.

Basilio, with an undefeated string of 14 fights, is returning a courtesy by meeting De Marco on the challenger's home grounds. Tony made his first defense of the title in Syracuse, N.Y., and lost the crown on a 12th round TKO.

The champion also will be out to halt what could become a string in the last two weeks title fights champions have lost the crown in first defenses. De Marco stopped Johnny Saxton, making his first defense of the championship in the 14th round April 1, and then lost to Basilio. All told, 11 welterweight champions have lost their titles the first time they've put them on the line, and seven have regained them.

The bout will get under way at 10 p.m. (EST) and will be broadcast and telecast nationally (ABC-TV and radio), with Boston and New England TV blacked out.

The prospects of another bristling punching duel and De Marco's fine showing in training has resulted in a brisk ticket sale. Promoter Sam Silverman expects a near capacity crowd of 13,000 and gross receipts of about $190,000—far more than the record Boston gate of $154,000 for the Jimmy Carter-Tommy Collins fiasco in 1953.

Basilio, with the champion's 40 per cent take of the net gate, plus the same percentage of the $50,000 radio-television money, figures to collect about $80,000, with De Marco getting half that amount. De Marco, received about $60,000 and Basilio $30,000 for their first meeting.

Since winning the title, Basilio has gone 20 rounds in competition, outpointing Italo Scorticchini and Gil Turner in over-the-weight affairs. He has an overall record of 47-11-7 with 21 knockouts and never has been stopped.

De Marco has had only one fight since losing his title—a quick, first round TKO over Chico Velaz in Boston Sept. 14. His record is 41-5-11 with 26 kayos. He has been stopped three times.

The Boston slugger, who has appeared in only 13 main bouts, appears in the best shape of his career. His handlers claim that most important since his title loss was a nose operation to correct a deviated septum.

"He couldn't breath right during that fight," said trainer Sammy Fuller. "He had to stop to get air after letting to with a few shots. He's a 100 per cent better fighter now and is ready to go the distance. If he gets the chance, he'll go for a knockout. But no crazy, wild stuff like the last time."

In their first battle, De Marco hurt Basilio in the first and third rounds and went head-hunting for a knockout.

Pep Again Gives Lumps To Gault

TAMPA, Fla. — Former North American bantamweight king Pappy Gault of Spartanburg, S.C. got his lumps for the second straight time from Willie Pep here last night.

Pep former featherweight champion from Hartford, Conn., won all 10 rounds. Pep weighed in at 127 1/2. Gault at 124. Pep also won a one-sided decision in their last meeting some months ago.

In another scheduled 10-round bout, Benny Deaton, 160 of Spartanburg, was stopped in three rounds by Jimmy Gegerle, 160, of Minneapolis, Minn.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

Matters in the Tyler household were no worse, though little better than they had been. Mother Tyler had decided not to die after all, but merely to remain in bed as an invalid. However, she consented now to sit up, demanded constant waiting on from Ellie, and wanted Wade at her side too much of the time.

These days Jemmy was the one happy member of the household. He and Hamlin the puppy even stole away from the house some times on Sundays, because Adam was full of dog knowledge and was aiding Jemmy in the development of Hamlin's personality and every day good manners. Sunday rules had relaxed a bit for them all, now that Mrs. Tyler was bedridden. At Lora's suggestion they had taken to going to church, instead of conducting gloomy prayers in the parlor. This for the moment, was their only contact with social life.

Mother Tyler's constitution was probably ironclad. She could make herself ill if she tried, but she would probably never will herself to go down in complete defeat. It was Wade who would be more likely to give in under the strain.

One day Lora took a walk down Dogwood Lane and had tea with Serena Lord, a childhood friend of Wade's. She asked Serena's help in unravelling the mystery of Virginia's death. Serena glanced at her uncertainty and then came to a decision. "There are some who say her death was not an accident. Perhaps that is something you ought to know."

Lora blinked in amazement. "You might as well know what has been rumored, though you needn't believe it. I'm not sure that I do myself. But there have been whispers of suicide."

"Suicide? But why? Surely Virginia wouldn't..."

"Wade admitted to some quarrel with her a week or so before her death—something he blamed himself for. That was strange because Virginia was never the sort to quarrel. However, there is Mrs. Tyler to consider. I suspect that she did her best to make Virginia unhappy. Perhaps she succeeded beyond her hopes."

"But Mother Tyler has only praise for Virginia now," Lora protested. "She keeps holding her up to me as a model wife."

Serena lost her tolerant attitude for the first time. "Of course! She has to find some way to make you unhappy. Oh, but she makes me furious, that old woman! I can be generous to Wade and even to Morgan—but I can only see blame as far as Mrs. Tyler is concerned. She would go to any lengths to gain her own ends. Why do you suppose Wade and Virginia had separate rooms in that house? His mother took care of that. Anything to keep them apart. She told Virginia that Wade didn't sleep well at night; he had never been strong. Separate bedrooms were a necessity. Since Virginia was never one to stand up to her, an more than Wade could stand up to her, that was the way it was. Virginia had been brought up with her parents as servants on the premises and she lacked Morgan's strong-headed ways. But we've talked of unhappy things long enough. Lora, I've just tried to give you the glimpse of the past that you asked for. The present is something else. The present is you, my dear. And, frankly, I think you're the very best thing that has ever happened to Wade. Much better for him than Virginia."

"Two weeks ago Mrs. Channing invited me up to her house for tea."

Lora could sense Wade's stiffening. "You declined, I trust?"

"I accepted, I saw no reason for declining. I don't want to carry on old feuds. The matter Mrs. Channing wanted to talk to me about is bigger and more important than any small feud."

He rose impatiently to replenish the fire. "Have I not enough worries at this time, Lora? Must you add to them by striking up a ridiculous friendship with this woman who has done nothing but injure me?"

"This is scarcely a friendship," Lora said. "I believe you are as interested as I am in any plan which might lead to a halting of this dreadful war."

"And what has Morgan Channing to do with such plans?" he asked over his shoulder, prodding the fire with impatient thrusts of the poker. "Why should she even care?"

"I'm not sure why." At least,

Lora thought she had caught his interest and she went on quickly: "Perhaps she likes the sense of power she gains from mixing in politics. Perhaps she's in love with this Murray Norwood and is interested for his sake. I don't know. It might even be that she has holdings in the south that will eventually become worthless or lost to her altogether if the war goes on. Is that possible?"

Wade set the fire screen in place and wiped his hands on a linen handkerchief. "It seems quite likely. Nicholas left her considerable property in the south, and if I know Morgan, she would dare anything to cling to her wealth. But is so selfish a motive any reason why we should trust her?"

"Don't you see, Wade?" Lora leaned toward him earnestly. "It doesn't matter if her motives are selfish providing they are sincere. There are very definite plans afoot which this Mr. Norwood is mixed into. Mrs. Channing says even Governor Seymour approves of them and will be behind them unofficially."

"And where do I fit into this little fantasy?"

"Mr. Norwood needs you. He needs men here on the island who are liked and have some influence. There are ways in which you could help."

"Influence—?" His laughter was unbelieveing.

"You have only to talk to him. Nothing more if you decide against it. Let Morgan know when you would be available for a meeting with him at her house."

In the silence of the room the distant, insistent ringing of a small silver bell reached them.

"I have to see what she wants," Wade said wearily. "Ellie has probably gone to bed by now."

Lora put a quick hand on his arm. "First, tell me, Wade—you will see Mr. Norwood? Perhaps there's nothing to all this, but you'll just talk to him—"

"With Morgan behind him, and in her house?" Wade asked. "Indeed I will not. I'll have nothing to do with the matter, or with either of them."

But at the sleighing party held the next week Lora saw Wade engaged in deep conversation with Norwood. Who had brought them together this time? She suspected Adam Hume was the mediator.

Two Frustrated Cowboys Return

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Two cowboy fans rustled some mounts and headed west, but they had horse trouble when the police posse caught them on the outskirts of town.

The pair stole two horses from a ranch, one a lively black mare and the other a steady old sorrel. The mare bucked off the young wranglers so persistently that when the police caught them they both were riding the sorrel and using the black as a pack horse.

In their two packs were eight sticks of dynamite with fuse at tachment, 128 rounds of pistol and rifle ammunition, one rusty rifle and two hunting knives.

The boys, 14 and 16, were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Over the years—as any owner will tell you—Buick has always had a great ride.

But each year, Buick engineers find new ways to better it.

And in the 1956 Buick comes a ride well beyond anything that has gone before — the sweetest ride, by far, in all Buick history.

We could tell you the why of it . . .

About a brilliantly engineered new chassis of extra brawn and heft and precision balance . . .

About new direct-action, deep-oil shock absorbers that snub jars and jolts with full, firm authority — and add new levelness to the car's all-coil springing . . .

About new V-bracing and new housing rigidity that bulwark the full-length torque-tube drive — bringing new swerve-free steadiness . . .

Even about a whole new magic of angles and linkage in the front-end geometry to gift you with a new surety of control and impart a track-true "sense of direction" to the front wheels.

But that's just a telling of it. Only in the driver's seat can you get the feel of it. Only there, too, can you sense the mighty sweep of Buick's great new 322-cubic-inch V8 engine, now stepped up to an all-time high in power and compression.

It's the '56 Buick — Best Buick yet

And only there can you really know the thrilling double-action take-off of today's new Variable Pitch Dynaflo® — the spirited action that gives you instant getaway response at merely part throttle, plus utter smoothness through every inch of travel.

Come in for a visit, this week — just to sample at firsthand the sizzle and thrill and ride sweetness in the best Buick yet.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century — optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW

By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Temperature Is Matter Of Pride

OCALA, Fla. (AP)—Ocala has two weather bureau stations, one north of town and one downtown and in recent weeks the latter has been as much as 12 degrees warmer than the northern one. But the temperature from the outskirts is the one the bureau sets out on its wires and the chamber of commerce wants it to change and use the warmer, downtown temperatures. Anyway, it wants the downtown station used during the winter months. No comment on what should be done in the summer.

The United States produces 70 percent of the world's passenger motor cars.

Flamingos Have Lobster Pink

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—If the pink and vermillion tints on San Diego zoo flamingos seem striking, it's because they have been fed ground lobster shells regularly for two years.

Dennis L. Fox, professor of marine biochemistry at the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography explained that some of the pigment of the lobster shells had been retained in the flamingos to brighten up their coloring. The ground shells were in addition to the usual diet of grass pellets, millet, rice and dried files.

SINS OF THE CHILDREN

CONWAY, Ark. (AP)—Youngsters who roam the streets of this Arkansas city after 11 p.m. are likely to get their parents in trouble. People under 18 years old must be off the streets by 11 o'clock. Parents of violators are subject to a fine of between $1 and $25 and a jail sentence of from one to 30 days.

The Escalante Utah's river of arches, makes such sharp loops and turns in places that it can travel half a mile yet be only 80 yards from where it started.

College Faculty Members Attend Number Of Education Conferences

President John D. Messick of East Carolina College is representing the college at a meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools November 28 - December 1 at Miami Beach, Fla.

Several staff members have just returned to the campus after attending during the Thanksgiving holidays conferences on education held in various parts of the country.

Dr. Edgar Hirschberg of the English department was a delegate to the South Atlantic Modern Language Association at Daytona Beach, Fla., last weekend. As a participant in a panel on the teaching of freshman English, he discussed the role of literature in instruction.

Emma L. Hooper, also of the English department, attended the National Council of Teachers of English in New York City during the holidays.

Other faculty members who were delegates at regional or national meetings include Norman Cameron, who was a delegate to the Southern Business Education Association in St. Petersburg, Fla.; Dr. Robert E. Cramer, who represented East Carolina in Indianapolis, Ind., at the National Council of Geography Teachers and the biennial convention of the national geography fraternity Gamma Theta Upsilon; and Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, who attended the annual convention of the National Association of Schools of Music in St. Louis, Mo.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market today completed its recovery of the losses sustained since the sharp break of Sept. 26 following President Eisenhower's heart attack.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was up 60 cents to $181.50, the historic high achieved Sept. 23 just before Eisenhower's illness.

This means that the estimated loss of 13 billion dollars in the quoted value of securities wiped out in the first "blue Monday" was recouped. The Sept. 23 break was the sharpest single daily fall since Oct. 28, 1929.

The market was higher from the start today as key issues scored gains mostly ranging from 1 to 2 points with some issues ranging beyond that.

Airports were leaders from the start but later turned irregular. In heavy subsequent trading airlines took the toe with steels and rails.

Santa Arrives In Grifton Friday

GRIFTON — Santa Claus will arrive in Grifton Friday when the Merchants Association sponsors the annual Christmas parade. The parade is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m.

Featured in the procession will be two bands, from Grifton School and from South Ayden School, five floats, children with decorated bicycles, horses and other pets.

Floats have been entered by the Boy Scouts, Lions Club, Boat Club, Future Homemakers of America, and 16th Club. In addition, a number of professional floats will be sponsored by local merchants.

There will be a color guard from the VFW, and a number of out-of-town farm equipment and automobile dealers will have farm machinery and cars in the parade.

An added attraction will be Miss Superpower who will ride in the procession.

Santa will arrive in a fire truck. Prizes will be given for the best float, decorated bicycle and the best horse.

The parade will form at 2 p.m. at the school lunchroom, and at 2:30 begin its march up Queen Street, to Highway 11 and back down McRae Street.

Bulb Sale Begins Thursday Evening

Dr. M. W. Aldridge, Junior Chamber of Commerce president, is shown to the right above as he sells Mayor W. L. Wheelbee the first bag of electric light bulbs to open the annual sale. Looking on is chairman of sale Merle Bass (left). Jaycees will sell the bulbs from door-to-door Thursday and Friday nights. Proceeds will be used by the club for providing Christmas baskets to be distributed to needy families. Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor.

Hal Boyle . . .

of the Wyoming Stock Growers Assn., said: "I only knew a half dozen real cowboys who were experts with revolvers. My brother could put five out of six bullets into a playing card at 50 feet, but I've seen him miss completely against a live target at 20 feet."

Item? Many cowboys preferred rifles or shotguns to revolvers, and as early as the late 1870's many ranchers forbade the carrying of firearms on the range, during roundups or while on the trail. If on rare occasions they needed a gun they hired one. They didn't depend on their own cowboys.

Groups of cowboys got in a gunfight in a Dodge City, Kan., saloon. More than 100 shots were fired, and the only casualty was a cat. The cowboys could have done better with rocks or bean shooters.

Item: One shooting fracas in New Mexico in 1884 a 19-year-old Mexican boy killed four cowboys and wounded six others, then holed up in a dove hut and fought 80 besieging cowboys to a draw. Some 4,000 shots were poured at him, but at the end of 33 hours the boy surrendered unharmed on his own terms and got off scot free.

Item: Many cowboys kept their guns in such poor condition that if fired they were more likely to blow up themselves than their quarry. In 1887 U. S. Deputy Marshal Timothy Tooms of the Dakotas said: "Most cowboys are very slow in drawing and unless they take plenty of time to sight their weapons have little chance of hitting even a stationary target."

Item: In 1,020 shooting incidents in 13 cowtowns between 1879 and 1890 Brayer found only 84 cowboys were killed while shooting at each other but 286 cowboys died with their boots on while battling non-cowboys.

The truth is that many of the cowboys were teenagers who wore a saxon only as a badge of manhood—and really didn't know quite how to handle it if they tried to use it in a hurry.

Of course, kiddies, you already knew that the Indian was a pretty poor shot, too. Or did you? Any good modern archer today could overshoot the bow-and-arrow Indian of a century ago.

Jaycee Members Map Larger Light Bulb Sale

Junior Chamber of Commerce members will peddle 2,000 bags of light bulbs in a door-to-door canvass of the city tomorrow and Friday nights.

Chairman of the project Merle Bass said he will sell the light bulbs will begin at 7:15 tomorrow night.

Bags will be sold for $1 each and the bags are to contain five bulbs each. Bass said each purchaser will receive one 100 watt bulb, two 50 watt bulbs and two 75-watt bulbs.

Any of the light globes which prove defective will be replaced, the chairman declared.

Slogan for the sale is to be "Put a light in a needy home for Christmas" and proceeds will be used by the Jaycees to provide Christmas baskets for distribution to needy families during the Christmas season.

Bass noted that the Jaycees prepared only 1,000 bags of globes last year and the entire amount was sold before all the town had been covered. For that reason the number of bags was doubled this year. "Judging by previous year's sales we are expecting the canvass to be a success this year," Bass declared.

"We urge all local citizens to purchase at last one bag of light bulbs when contacted either Thursday or Friday night and thus share in providing Christmas joy for some needy home during the coming holiday season."

Bass said the big effort in the sale will be made Thursday night but portions of town not covered that night will be reached on Friday night.

Anyone not contacted during the sale who wishes to purchase a bag of light globes may contact Harry Douglas at 4481 or 4739 or they may call Bass at 3607. Arrangements will be made to deliver the globes.

Local Christmas Savings Checks Total $43,273

Today, First Federal Savings and Loan Association mailed Christmas Savings Club checks totaling $43,273 to its members who have saved various sums ranging from $1 to $5 a week during the past year.

The checks went approximately 950 people who participated in the Christmas Savings Club plan.

Since the club was begun by First Federal Savings and Loan in 1937, it has grown appreciably. The first year a total of $1,600 in checks were mailed to members of the club early in December. The amount showed a steady annual increase and last year the savings club distributed $41,000 to members shortly before Christmas.

The $43,273 distributed to club members today was a record high for the club.

pressure truck to fight the fire and laid heavy duty hose lines to back up the high pressure truck.

The fire fighters extended ladders to the high second story windows of the house in order to reach the flames in the upper portion of the house. Fire did quite a bit of damage to the upper room. The downstairs rooms received considerable water damage.

Fire department officials said the light fixture in the base of the wall they noted that fuses for the house were of a greater amperage than should have been used for the dwelling.

Damage was said to have been partially covered by insurance.

A second late evening call brought firemen to the home of John Warner at 805 E. First St. around 12:30 last night when an electric stove shorted out. Damage was minor.

Shivering Cold

If you think it was cold last night you're right.

The weather observer reports that the mercury dropped to a shivering 23 degrees during the night, that's nine below the 32 degree freezing mark.

In fact it was cold all day yesterday with the thermometer moving up only to the 39 degree mark at its highest point during the day.

The weather was somewhat warmer than yesterday, however. At 9 o'clock this morning the mercury had risen to 35 degrees.

Last night was not the coldest night this week. The thermometer skidded one degree lower on Monday night. Low that night was 22 degrees.

QUESTION Having read a recent story about a boy on a bicycle seriously injuring an elderly man, I'm wondering if I could get the same kind of Liability insurance on my son's bicycle as I have on my car.

ANSWER Your own Automobile Liability insurance can be broadened to include your son's bicycle but there are several ways to write the protection. Better see a good agent.

If you'll answer your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be no charge or obligation of any kind

Sorry, Firemen Are Out Hunting

YORK, Pa. (AP) — Mrs. Cletus Bents saw smoke puffing from her neighbor's farm home yesterday and called the volunteer fire department at New Salem, a mile away.

"I'm sorry," she was told, "but all the firemen have gone hunting." (Pennsylvania's deer season opened Monday.)

Mrs. Bents' call had been taken by Harry Noss, who runs a gas station in New Salem and also takes all the calls for the volunteer firemen.

Noss figured he'd have to get somebody to the fire, so he tried to call the volunteer unit in Jacobus, six miles distant. But two women were talking on his 10-party line and refused to give it up, he said. Noss waited a bit, then tried again. The women were still talking and still in no mood to stop.

After another wait, this one lasting over 10 minutes, he got through to West York, also six miles away.

When the firemen got to the scene, the house, owned by George Sheets, was burned down.

Couple Injured In Car Collision

An elderly couple was injured yesterday when their car overturned after being struck by another vehicle at the intersection of Wilson and Chestnut streets here.

Mrs. Mary E. Yost, 70, of 1205 Dickinson Avenue, received facial cuts and other injuries when her head smashed through the windshield of a car driven by her brother-in-law, John Ashley Tripp, 78, of Circle Drive. Tripp too, suffered facial lacerations.

Investigating police officer Marvin Buck said Tripp's car was headed east on Wilson Street, passed a yield the right of way sign and was struck broadside by a northbound car driven by Jessie Lee Daniels, 22, Negro, of 1202-C Davenport Street.

Daniels, who was unhurt, was cited for failure to keep a proper lookout and Tripp for failure to yield the right of way.

Tripp's car was listed as a total loss and damage to Daniels' vehicle was estimated at $700.

Three Taxed For Game Violations

In Magistrate's courts last week, three men were found guilty of hunting without licenses and taxed with court costs, County Game Protector J. O. Teel reported.

Greenville Magistrate Heber Savage taxed Tom Peterson, Negro, Rt. 3, Grifton, with $9.50 court costs. Ayden Magistrate C. G. Moore had two cases. He taxed Heber Braxton, Ayden, with $9.50 court costs, and Robert L. Garrett, Negro, Grifton, $9.50 court costs.
