Education Conferees Endorse Construction Help

Call For Federal Aid

By HERB ALTSCHULL WASHINGTON (AP)—A new drive for federal school aid, particularly in construction, seemed to be rolling ahead today in the wake of its impressive endorsement by the White House Conference on Education.

As the four-day meeting ended last night, Secretary of Welfare Folsom told the 1,800 delegates President Eisenhower was ready to ask Congress for a broadened and improved program of federal aid for school construction.

A few minutes earlier, the conference had greeted with ringing applause a statement that the delegates had approved a stepped-up aid program by more than 2-1.

The leaders of the 600,000-member National Education Assn. hailed this report and five others as "nothing short of marvelous."

John Buford of Mount Vernon, Ill., the NEA president, labeled the conference "one of the greatest ever held."

Labor union leaders, who had threatened a floor fight if the conference's position on federal aid wasn't strong enough to suit them, apparently were satisfied with the outcome.

The conference report agreed with Folsom's statement that the aid should be distributed among all the states and that the states should decide how it should be spent.

The report called on the states to spend the money "only on a basis of demonstrated needs."

Folsom's statement, which he said followed a conference with the President, followed the same general pattern. The secretary said:

"Federal assistance, while nationwide in scope, benefiting all states, should be distributed according to need."

Dr. William G. Carr, the NEA's executive secretary, told a news conference he thought the conference would have three positive results:

1. It will lead to "stiff action" in solving many pressing school problems.

2. Many people will be made more aware of educational needs in hundreds of places.

3. It will help speed passage of a bill by Sen. Kelley (D-Pa.) to provide 400 million dollars a year for distribution by the states to distressed school districts.

Carr approved the conference's stand on "elevating teachers' standards" and on refusal to "cut back to the three R's."

Folsom drew applause when he said: "If we are to meet our classroom needs soon enough, the federal government must help raise some of the funds for (school) buildings."

He also was applauded when he told the delegates: "I am confident in the weeks ahead this administration will present to Congress a broadened and improved program of federal assistance to help erase the classroom deficit and dispel this shadow over our children."

He gave no details.

It was Mrs. Pearl A. Wansmaker, Washington state superintendent of public instruction, who announced that the delegates "approved by a ratio of more than 2-1 the proposition that the federal government should increase its financial participation in public education."

Of those supporting federal aid, she said, "the overwhelming majority" approved using federal funds for school building construction.

But only about half, she said, supported federal help in school operation—paying teacher salaries, buying textbooks, etc.

"A very small minority," she said, "was opposed to federal aid for education in any form."

Caudle, Connelly Charge 'Politics'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Matthew J. Connelly and Theron Lamar Caudle, Truman administration officials accused of conspiracy to defraud the government, blame their indictments on politics.

A federal grand jury investigating alleged tax frauds during the administration of former President Truman returned the indictments yesterday.

Connelly, 48 who was appointed secretary for Truman, said in New York the charge was caused by "a little group of willful men now in power in Washington" who "have called Harry S. Truman a traitor."

"Now because of my association with him they are calling me a crook," said Connelly, now a public relations man.

Caudle and Connelly said they were innocent of any wrongdoing. The grand jurors also indicted Harry I. Schwimmer, a former Kansas City lawyer, on the same charge yesterday.

Schwimmer previously was indicted on a perjury charge. Caudle, 51, a Wadesboro, N. C., lawyer, headed the Justice Department's Tax Division until he was fired by Truman for having outside interests incompatible with his government duties.

Wyllis Newcomb, special assistant attorney general who has charge of the inquiry, reporting the indictments said that "the work of the grand jury by no means is finished."

Connelly said in a statement he defied the "group of willful men or anybody else to produce one shred of evidence that I have committed any offense against good morals or ethics, or that I have violated any law of the United States."

Caudle, who had been a grand jury witness here just before the indictments were returned, said: "The Republicans have held me over as a scapegoat and public sacrifice again, for the coming national election. I deeply feel that there should be a congressional investigation of my indictment and it would be open and free to the public."

Ellis N. Slack former assistant to Caudle, and Irving Sachs, St. Louis shoe wholesaler, were mentioned in the indictments as co-conspirators, but not as defendants.

Group Gathers To Plan Organizing Safety Council

Preliminary plans for forming a safety council in Pitt County were made yesterday as officials from several Pitt communities met with law enforcement officers and other citizens here.

Attending the meeting were Mayor W. L. Whedbee of Farmville, Charles Edwards of Greenville, Bob Martin of Bethel; Slade Congleton of Stokes, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson, Greenville Police Chief S. G. Gibbs, Capt. S. H. Mitchell and Cpl. C. E. Whitfield of the Highway Patrol, W. T. Kyszer of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, Roy Hardee and Dave Whitchard.

Preliminary plans are to form the new Safety Council shortly after the first of the year. Membership in the council will be open to any resident of the county and the purpose of the council will be to promote safety in each community throughout Pitt. Monthly meetings of the council will be held at various programs will be planned for the prevention of traffic and other accidents in Pitt County.

The council will be organized with county-wide officers and likewise a chairman for each community in the county. Speaking for the group which met yesterday, Cpl. Whitfield said, "With vigorous law enforcement and a progressive educational program pointed toward the prevention of accidents, Pitt County still has had 15 highway fatalities in 1955. Through the efforts of a Safety Council similar to those organized in a number of other counties, we feel that a greater interest in safety and accident prevention can be promoted among the people of Pitt."

The organizational meeting of the new Safety Council, he said, will be held early in January but the exact date of the meeting has not yet been set.

Says Few Fired As Security Risk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-Sc) said today testimony received by Senate investigators "kind of stomps on the numbers game" he has accused Republicans of playing with the federal employe security program.

"It looks like the Republicans won't be apt to bring this up in any campaign in the future," Johnston said. He referred to the number of federal employes listed as fired as security risks under a May 1953 order of President Eisenhower.

Johnston's Senate Civil Service subcommittee was told yesterday that more than 90 per cent of the 3,886 employes listed as fired under the security program up to last June 30 were discharged under "regular civil service or normal departmental procedures."

Paul E. Hadlick, subcommittee counsel, said only 342 of the total were fired pursuant to the President's executive order and that not all of these cases involved disloyalty or subversion.

The President's order setting up the security program provides for dismissal not only of persons with questionable loyalty backgrounds, but of drunks, blabbermouths and others deemed unreliable.

Hadlick said—and the testimony so showed—that some of the 342 are now back working for the government, either in the agency which originally fired them or with some other agency.

Sen. Neely (D-W.Va.), another subcommittee member, said in a separate interview the hearings have shown the administration's box scores on security dismissals were "a political hoax."

He added that it had thrown "a shadow over the reputations of a multitude of innocent people as free from Communist taint as George Washington ever was."

Sen. Carlson (R-Kan.), only GOP member of the subcommittee, declined comment on the testimony. But he said during the hearings the President's order had brought about "additional study" of the files of federal employes.

Employes had been removed after its issuance even if they were not fired under it, he said.

Child Dies Of Burns In Mishap

A four year old Craven County child died at Pitt Memorial Hospital this morning from burns suffered at her home yesterday.

Dead is Lilla Rubell McLawhorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah McLawhorn, of Route 1, Grifton, The McLawhorns, though listing a Pitt County mailing address, live just over the line in Craven County.

Coroner Griffin Rouse said this morning that it was doubtful if an inquest would be held. Rouse, along with investigating deputy sheriff H. Byrd, said the child and a five year old brother apparently were alone at home at the time the accident occurred.

The fire started, Rouse said, when the child either came in contact with a stove or a lighted match. Her five year old brother, the coroner added, managed to extinguish the flames and then ran a mile to where his parents were working in the fields.

Military Budget Decision At Hand

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower, nearing the point of final decision on next year's military budget conferred today with Secretary of Defense Wilson and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Eisenhower drove the three miles from his farm home to his post office building offices over roads made slippery by an early morning snow.

Wilson and Radford said the going was slippery on their 80-mile drive from Washington, but complimented James D. Freeman, Wilson's chauffeur, for his driving skill. Freeman made the trip in two hours and 15 minutes. He has been driving military officials for 20 years.

Wilson and Radford joined the President at 9:32 a.m. EST, just two minutes late for the appointment and seven minutes after Eisenhower drove up, attired in a camel hair topcoat.

Top defense officials have forecast the 1956-57 fiscal year will call for spending at about the present rate, 3 1/2 billion dollars a year, for defense purposes.

Agreement on a final budget figure may be reached next Tuesday, when Wilson will return with Budget Director Rowland Hughes for another conference with the President.

Military spending undoubtedly figured in yesterday's top-secret session of the National Security Council, attended by Wilson, Radford, and more than a dozen other key officials at Camp David in the Catoctin Mountains.

Eisenhower went to and from the chilly mountaintop retreat by car from his Gettysburg farm.

At the Eisenhower farm here something new has been added—a pony.

Newsmen learned late yesterday that the 5-year-old brown and white pony was presented as a gift to the President's three grandchildren by J. R. Lackey of Asheville, N.C., earlier in the week.

The pony's name, Little David, which happens also to be the name of the President's oldest grandchild, David and his sisters Barbara Ann and Susan already had another pony, Tony, presented by a Texas friend.

Governor Hodges To Speak Here

Gov. Luther Hodges has accepted an invitation to speak at the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce Distinguished Service Award and Bosses' Night dinner January 25.

The announcement of the governor's acceptance was made last night to Junior Chamber of Commerce members by Ben L. Rouse who is chairman of the special event.

Rouse said that final plans for the dinner meeting are not yet complete but Gov. Hodges has definitely accepted the invitation to be principal speaker of the evening.

A highlight of the evening will be the presentation of the Distinguished Service Award to some outstanding community services during the year.

Attending the January meeting will be Jaycees, each of whom may bring their employer as a guest, and other special guests.

Hookerton Man Hints Candidacy

FREMONT, N. C. (AP)—A. C. Edwards of Hookerton, state representative from Greene County for the last 16 years, strongly indicated last night that he will be a candidate for lieutenant governor.

He said in an interview with the Goldsboro News-Argus just before speaking here that an announcement will be made after the first of the year.

J. R. Peeler, president of the Fremont Rotary Club, introducing Edwards as the speaker for the club's rural-urban banquet, called him "the next lieutenant governor of North Carolina."

Edwards is a member of the State Advisory Budget Commission.

Rescued Diver Is Set To Go Again

SOLOMONS, Md. (AP)—Amazing Joe Tallarico, apparently unharmed after being trapped nearly nine hours in the chilly depths of the Patuxent River said today, "I'm ready to go down again right away."

The 35-year-old Navy diver walked unassisted last night from a decompression chamber where he had spent four hours after being lifted from the floor of the river, 120 feet down.

Tallarico, a former Chicagoan with 10 years' experience as a diver, was caught below when his lines became fouled on an anchor attached to a test mine he had gone down to recover.

Fifteen other Navy divers worked in relays to free him from waters off the naval ordnance laboratory test facility about 70 miles southeast of Washington.

Afterwards Tallarico told newsmen: "The toughest part was the cold. After I had been down four hours I got disgusted—I thought I never would come up again.

"Did I say any prayers? Plenty of them."

Tallarico's slender, dark-eyed wife Carmela pressed through the circle of newsmen and rushed into her husband's arms. Joe kissed her fervently. Then at the request of cameramen he kissed her again. He patted her shoulder as she fought back tears.

Tallarico dived from a Navy launch yesterday morning for a routine job, requiring not more than 18 minutes.

He had been in the water about 15 minutes when he reported his lines fouled around the anchor. Boatswain Mate William G. Fisher of Williamsport, Pa., went down and found Tallarico literally pinned to the mine.

"I struggled for almost 30 minutes, and I had almost worked Tallarico's lines clear when the tide grabbed me and pulled me away," Fisher said. "It was an awful feeling to have to come to the surface without him."

Other divers went down, one after the other, but could not even reach Tallarico in the now-rushing tide.

Finnally Chief Gunner's Mate Gray Renegar managed to get to Tallarico and the slow process of bringing him to the surface—along with the mine on which he was snagged—began.

Only 2 Reported Traffic Mishaps In S-D Day Drive

Only two reported accidents, both of them in Greenville, marred yesterday's all-out attempt by law enforcement officers to make S-E (Safe Friday) Drive, the safest one for motorists in history.

Both accidents however, did property damage only and no injuries were reported.

A major victory in the war on traffic accidents was chalked up however, by Pitt County's State Highway Patrol. Not a single accident was reported to patrolmen from midnight Wednesday until last midnight.

Traffic was heavier than usual, State Highway Patrol Cpl. Carl E. Whitfield said, but "Pitt County motorists cooperated splendidly and only a small number of arrests were made for traffic violations."

Whitfield also cited Pitt citizens for "more enthusiasm" than was shown on S-D day last year. All patrolmen in Pitt worked extra hours yesterday on their own time, Whitfield said, and were high in their praise of the motorists who showed a great deal of interest in safe driving.

Across the state however, things didn't go quite as well. Two people were killed and 28 injured throughout North Carolina.

Nationally too, things were not as good as safety officials hoped. At least 65 persons died in traffic accidents across the nation and final reports had not been compiled early today.

By comparison, in 1954 when S-D Day was conducted on a nationwide basis for the first time, only 51 persons were killed.

This year, with backing from President Eisenhower and even more cooperation from state and local government officials in all 48 states, safety workers had hoped to lower the toll considerably.

Narcotics Law Violator Given Prison Term; Doctor Criticized

LUMBERTON, N. C. (AP)—John W. Brookshire 60 of Elkin, was handed two prison terms, one suspended, here yesterday for violating narcotics laws.

In passing sentence, Superior Court Judge Malcolm Seawell spoke out against Dr. J. R. Johnson of Elkin, who he said "made it possible for you to procure morphine substitute almost at will."

Judge Seawell sentenced Brookshire to 3 to 5 years for possession of narcotics not in the original container and to 5 years for possessing a hypodermic syringe for injecting narcotics. The second term, to begin at the end of the first sentence, was suspended for 5 years on the conditions that Brookshire not possess or use narcotics except as administered by a physician.

Brookshire's case was continued from last August because of his health.

Photostatic copies of 13 checks Groves of Gastonia totaling $5,130 were seized by Grew Williams, a narcotics agent. Groves now is serving a 5-year sentence in the Federal Narcotics Hospital at Lexington, Ky.

Williams testified Groves' wife told him her husband paid Brookshire the money for narcotics.

Judge Seawell said Brookshire purchased 13,824 quarter gram tablets of morphine substitute from July 5, 1954, to Aug. 23, 1955 prescribed by Dr. Johnson, and during his illness by Dr. Raph M. Cook of Elkin.

Forgery Charged To 18-Year-Old

Charges of forgery have been placed against an 18-year old Negro, city police announced today.

The defendant, Curtis Moore, 18, Negro, of 611 Vanderbilt Street, was arrested yesterday in connection with the alleged forgery of three checks, each for $40.

Two of the checks were forged on Sylvester Wilson and the third on William E. Jones. Moore is charged with attempting to cash two of the checks at Hatem's Store and the Dickinson Avenue Branch of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co. and with cashing the third at Dee's Clothing Store.

CHIEF HAD ACCIDENT

FAIRBOURNE, Ohio (AP)—This city, like others throughout the nation, observed Safe Driving Day yesterday. And it had a special significance for the police chief. Chief J. M. McCalla was involved in the first accident of the day—a minor one, however.

Rep. Fountain Addresses Boy Scout Councils

L. H. Fountain, Democratic Congressional representative from Tarboro, today told the Eastern Carolina and Tuscarora Councils of Boy Scouts of America that "your training and Tuscarora Councils of Boy of America is the very essence of what good citizenship training should be."

Rep. Fountain's remarks were part of a speech in which he stressed the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship. He was speaking at a meeting held at East Carolina College.

The Congressman told his youthful audience that "the free and democratic government under which we live is the richest reward that responsible citizenship can offer."

He cautioned that citizenship includes duties as well as rights. As examples, he pointed out that the right to vote carried with it a duty to exercise the franchise; that the right to trial by jury includes a duty to serve on the jury when called; and that the right of a citizen to protection from foreign enemies includes a duty to bear arms if necessary.

Congressman Fountain urged his listeners to be guided by their Boy Scout training in later years, saying that "there are no more excellent standards of good citizenship than those created."

"A good citizen is made, not born," he declared. "We may come equipped at birth with blue eyes or red hair or big ears, and there isn't much we can do about these things. But we are not born into this world as either good or bad citizens, so there is something we can do, in his hand which offers its people so much, to grow and mature into good citizens."

Rep. Fountain was speaking to approximately 125 Explorer Scouts and their leaders from 26 counties at the third annual Explorer's Conference for Boy Scouts.

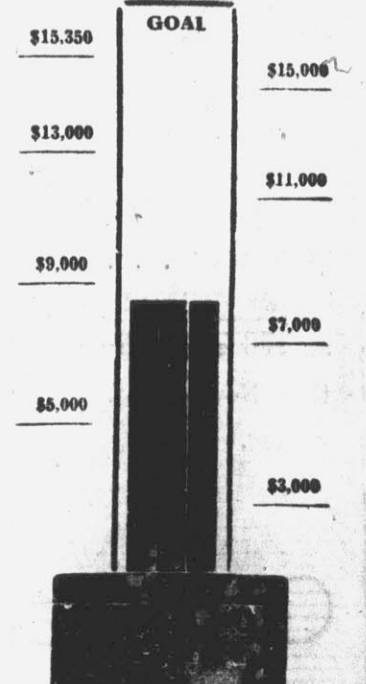

The conference opened yesterday and will continue through Saturday. Last night the scouts heard Secretary of State Thad Eure who made the opening address for the conference and this morning Dr. John B. Bennett, director of religious activities at ECC, spoke to the Explorer Scouts.

Discussions groups were held among the scouts yesterday and today.

Tomorrow afternoon Ralph Moxo of Wilson, Scout Executive, will summarize the conference events.

Tours of the college campus are planned for the youngsters tomorrow morning with members of the Alpha Phi Omega, under the leadership of the fraternity president, Dock Smith, acting as guides.

Aptitude tests and an activities program directed by James B. Mallory of the college coaching staff are also on the agenda for tomorrow.

Christian Science Society
The completeness and integrity of God's creation including spiritual man will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon entitled "God the Only Cause and Creator" will include the following verse from the King James Version of the Bible (Matt. 7:18): "A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit."

Among the correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be the following (359:16-22): "It is false to say that Truth and error commingle in creation. In parable and argument, this falsity is exposed by our Master as self-evidently wrong."

The Golden Text is from Isaiah (45:18): "Thus saith the Lord that created the heavens: God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it, not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord, and there is none else."

"The Dead Sea Scrolls" was the subject of the program presented by Mrs. F. D. Duncan to the Inter Se Book Club when it met on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. H. Henderson.

"The Dead Sea Scrolls" comprise the most significant religious discovery in recent history," stated Mrs. Duncan. She then gave a description of the discovery, early in 1947, of the ancient manuscripts. She said, "Further investigation has produced more scrolls, and also the excavation of an ancient monastery will bring new illumination to the study of biblical literature and will provide new sources of understanding of the world of the earliest Christians."

Mrs. Joe Taft gave a brief hobby talk.

Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Leonard Bloxam and Miss Mary Huxford.

The hostess, Mrs. Henderson, served a sweet course with coffee.

Methodist Men Have Ladies Night

BETHEL—The regular monthly meeting of the Methodist Men's Club met in the Fellowship Hall of the church at 7:00 o'clock on Monday night.

The president, Dave Speir, presided at the meeting. He introduced the other officers after which Dr. C. G. Garnton led the group in the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "Blest be the Tie."

He then gave the invocation.

The members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service served a delicious ham supper with green beans, Harvard beets, sweet potatoes, Golden Glow salad, hot rolls and coconut squares.

After the meal, the group was directed to the Sunday School auditorium for the program. The Rev. C. P. Womack introduced Wallace Lee of Durham, better known as Wallace, the Magician. His many tricks of magic were thoroughly enjoyed by the group and fascinated them.

Approximately 100 attended the supper.

The League will meet at 6:30 p.m. under the direction of Mr. Mark Case. At the 7:30 p.m. worship the choir will sing the hymn "Peace! Be Still." The pastor's sermon topic will be "Christian Credentials" (Gal. 6:17).

Monday at 5:30 p.m. the East Carolina Free Will Baptist Student Fellowship will meet at the church parlour for vesper services and a supper. Monday at 7:30 p.m. the Y.P.A.'s will meet with Mrs. Mary Hawkins, 106 Contentnea St.

Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. there will be evangelism classes at the home of Mrs. John Langley and at 4:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Alice Oates.

Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. there will be prayer services and evangelism classes. At 8:15 the choir will rehearse.

There is a nursery for children up to three years of age at the 11 a.m. worship.

CAP RATED PILOTS TO HOLD MEETING SUNDAY

A special meeting of the Civil Air Patrol rated pilots has been called for Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Greenville airfield. Capt. Charles E. Steinmeyer will preside. All rated pilots are requested to attend.

The answers to everyday insurance problems*
By Herb Lee

QUESTION: Is it permissible to move insured furniture clear away from a property where there is a fire? Is it still insured?

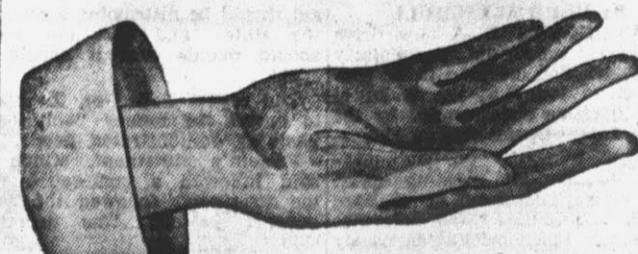

ANSWER: It would actually be the duty of the insured to move any undamaged furniture to a safer place. The insurance would remain in force temporarily at the new location.

If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answer and there will be no charge or obligation of any kind.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
December 2, 1925

On Thursday afternoon a large and enthusiastic meeting of the Woman's Club was held in the annex to the Model School. Mrs. R. L. Carr, chairman of the Library Committee, told of the marvelous growth of the Public Library. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore announced a demonstration in Christmas candy making, to be given in the Domestic Science laboratory at the high school on Dec. 17. Mrs. Woodard, chairman of the Literary Department, good attendance and much interest in the bi-weekly programs. The study course follows is "Good Books" put out by the University of North Carolina. The club voted $10 to the Woman's Auxiliary to the American Legion, to help with their Christmas at Otter. A musical program followed the business meeting. The choruses by the High School Glee Club were well rendered and showed careful training by their efficient teacher, Miss Eugenia Thomas. A charming vocal solo by Miss Helene Hiza, who always pleases her audience, ended one of the most enjoyable meetings of the Woman's Club.

Honored At Shower
BETHEL—Mrs. A. D. Brown, Mrs. E. E. Briley and Mrs. Harvey Taylor honored Mrs. J. T. Burrus at a shower one night last week. Lovely arrangements of red roses and yellow chrysanthemums were used in the house for the occasion.

The honoree was presented a corsage of baby articles tied with pink ribbon.

The guests enjoyed playing several stork games and prizes were awarded to the winners. Mrs. Burrus then opened her many nice and useful gifts and expressed her appreciation to each.

The refreshments consisted of chicken salad sandwiches, pimento cheese sandwiches, potato chips, individual cake and punch.

Fifteen ladies attended the shower.

To Spend Christmas In Canal Zone
Mrs. Ann De La Mater leaves today for Carlsbad, New Mexico, where she will be joined by Mrs. Eva Losey and with her will travel by air to Mexico, Guatemala, and Panama, and spend Christmas with relatives and friends in the Canal Zone. Mrs. De La Mater, while in the Canal Zone, will be the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Lt. Col. and Mrs. James O. Crutchfield, and children, Carol Ann and Paul. She will return via Miami at the end of the year. Her son, William De La Mater, now visiting in Mexico, will meet her in Texas.

Grass Roots Opera Co. Here January 23

Prefaced by a covered dish supper, the Greenville Music Club met Monday evening at the E.C.C. Alumni House.

After Mrs. Dink James, the president, called the business meeting to order, Mrs. E. A. Striplin presented the idea of a "Hymn of the Month" to the club, which promptly sang two verses of "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God."

Mrs. George MacMillan was introduced as a potential new member, and Madame President accepted her application. Dr. Stanley Walker, chairman of the Opera Company, reported the Grass Roots Opera Company would perform "The Barber of Seville" in Greenville on January 23. A matinee and evening performance will be given followed by a reception for members of the cast in the Wahl-Coates School cafeteria.

Miss Eunice McGee and Mr. George Perry gave reports of their experiences at the district meeting of the State Federation of Music Clubs in Manteo.

The program for the evening was presented by a group of musical celebrities known as "Mr. Vornholt's Madrigal Songsters". The piece de resistance was a community sing, with accompaniment by the following instrumentalists: Mr. H. L. Carter, base clarinet; Mr. Ed Durham, clarinet; Miss Beatrice O. Haunsey, flute, and Mr. Howard Danfelt, bassoon.

Discuss Planned Adult Classes

Plans for adult classes in the various school communities were discussed by the Pitt County vocational home economics teachers at a regular meeting in the Winterville home economics cottage this week.

Several teachers gave reports or read letters concerning the securing of a specialist in various fields to assist in carrying out the adult program during January, February and March.

Mrs. Anne Hodges, chairman, presided at the meeting, and refreshments were served by third year home economics students Alice Waters and Geraldine Mills.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. Margaret Elliott, Mrs. Eunice Casey, Mrs. Dorothy Gurganus, Mrs. Lucille Mayo, Mrs. Sara Perkins, Mrs. Jo Ross, Miss Elsie Seago and Miss Alva Ray Taylor.

Round Table Pays Tribute To Mrs. White, Deceased Member

On Tuesday afternoon, November 29, the meeting of the Round Table opened with the following tribute to a beloved member given by Mrs. J. E. Winslow and gratefully accepted by the group:

"In the afternoon of November the 10th, 1955, Mrs. Milton White slipped quietly away from Pitt Memorial Hospital into her Heavenly Home, leaving behind an example of a rare and radiant Christian spirit."

"Mrs. White was proud of being a member of the Round Table and was loved for her faithful and loyal devotion to her friends. Her home-going carries a sense of loss and members of the Round Table will miss the presence of one who was admired and loved by all for her unselfish service to friends; for her deep religious conviction; for her sweet, gentle and sincere ministries to all those with whom she came in contact."

"Her memory will be held in high esteem; her years of Christian service; her admirable influence for all that is fine and good will ever be treasured by those whose privilege it was to know her."

Sunday School meets at 9:45 a.m. with Jimmie Spain directing. At 11 o'clock the church will gather for the morning worship with the pastor in charge. Samuel Johnson will render a solo during the morning worship. Under the direction of Henry Hagans the league meets at 6:30. Evening worship is at 7:30 with the pastor in charge. The choir will render special music with Samuel Johnson directing.

The Men's Fellowship meets on Monday night at 7:30. Come for a period of good fellowship and singing. Samuel Johnson wants the men to tryout for a good men's choir. Jimmie Spain has something special to announce to the men. Come and bring a friend.

The Good News Club for boys and girls meets every Tuesday at 4:00 p.m. with Mrs. Johnson in charge. She gave a good report for last week with over fifty children and twelve workers present.

The prayer service on Wednesday night at 7:30 has a few vacant seats for those who have not been attending regularly. Don't come unless you feel the need of united prayer with your fellow Christians. At 8:00 p.m. on Wednesday everyone, adult or youth, who likes to sing and who desires to help with the choir, is invited to be present. Samuel is working hard to build a strong choir. Come and help him. High school and college age young people who sing or have sung in the glee club are invited to come. The choir is mixed with adults and young people.

"Heart felt sympathy is extended to her family with these words of comfort, 'Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of the Lord.'"

Mrs. R. A. Fountain Jr. was gracious hostess in her lovely home on Fifth Street. The beauty of the home was enhanced by beautiful dried arrangements, cut flowers and glowing logs in the fireplace.

Mrs. Fountain had as her special guests Mrs. Johnnie Overton, Mrs. C. L. Lupton of Greenville; Mrs. Earl Trevathan Sr. and Mrs. F. D. Turnage of Fountain; Mrs. Bimford Walker, Mrs. William Ward Jr. and Miss Mary Ward of New Bern.

Mrs. Fountain, program leader for the afternoon, presented her daughter, Mrs. William Ward Jr., and accompanied her at the piano when she sang two beautiful numbers, "Can't Help Loving That Man" from "Show Boat" and "Ave Maria." The second part of Mrs. Fountain's program, a talk on Tryon's Palace, was given by her friend, Miss Mary Ward.

Miss Ward prefaced her remarks by announcing that the restoration is expected to be completed by November 1956. The building, furnishings and hangings will be authentic and very beautiful.

Lieutenant Governor William Tryon first arrived in New Bern December 24, 1764. In the spring of 1765 Governor Dobbs died and within four days after Tryon became governor he decided to recommend New Bern as the permanent capital of North Carolina. In December 1765, a bill was passed to erect a combined Capitol and Governor's residence on 12 lots in New Bern. John Hawks, an Englishman and America's first professional architect, designed and supervised its construction at a cost of 15,000 pounds in proclamation money. In 1767 the first brick was laid. By the middle of 1770 the governor and his family moved into the palace. It was in 1798 that the main building and one wing burned.

Miss Ward spoke on the beauty and size of the building and the social and political life of North Carolina during that period. It was a very interesting and informative discourse followed by an enlightening round table discussion. During the social hour guests were invited into the dining room where from a beautifully appointed table they were served delicious floral ices, party cakes and nuts by Mrs. Johnnie Overton. In the den Mrs. William Ward Jr. served punch and cheese straws.

Girl Scout News

Girl Scouts of Troop 45 were invested in a service at Elmhurst School recently. Present for the service were parents and relatives.

The girls were presented Girl Scout pins for completing the tender foot rank. Mrs. Sherman Parks, troop leader, and Mrs. J. W. Baker, assistant leader, made the presentation, after which the girls formed a horseshoe circle and repeated the Girl Scout promise, slogan, laws and motto.

A social hour followed the investiture service, and games were played and refreshments were served.

Comparing Promises And The Record

With Secretary of Agriculture Benson hopping from pillar to post about the country talking about the Republican farm program and how well it has worked; and in the next breath asking every Tom, Dick and Harry what to do to alleviate the plight facing the farmers, we can't help but recall the farm plank in the 1952 Republican platform.

Foremost in the GOP farm plank in the 1952 campaign platform was the boastful assertion: "The Republican Party will create conditions providing for farm prosperity and stability."

In 1952 a great many farmers probably believed a Republican administration would provide just what the platform said. During the past three years, however, farmers throughout the country have had a rude awakening.

The Republican administration has created many conditions on the national domestic scene, but none of them it seems has contributed either farm prosperity or stability. During the third quarter of 1955 the nation's farm income was $3.8 billion . . . 27 per cent less than the nation's farm income was for the same quarter of 1952 when the campaign promise was made.

Then there was the Republican assertion that GOP leaders favored "a farm program aimed at full parity prices for all products in the market place." Well, they may have aimed at that, but as in many other cases conditions have proved their aim was extremely wide of the mark. On October 15 of this year the parity ratio for farm products stood at only 82 percent. But considering the passive farm program which the Republicans have pawned off on the American people it's surprising the ratio is that high.

There were other farm planks in the Republican platform too. The one which said "We do not believe in restrictions on the American farmer's ability to produce" was probably still ringing in their ears when the proposal was offered to take hundreds of thousands of acres out of production during the next few years.

And how has the Republican Party carried out its assertion, "We support a constructive and expanded soil conservation program"? The record shows that in 1953 the Eisenhower administration cut the Democratic budget of agricultural conservation payments by 16 per cent and the soil conservation service operation fund by 10 per cent. The next year the administration budgeted 23 per cent less for agricultural conservation payments than the last Democratic budget and slashed SCS operations by 18 per cent.

Campaign promises can create a rosy picture in the midst of a heated political battle. But by comparing those promises with performance which follows the campaign one can get a startling contrast.

We're Looking For Cold Climate Around Berlin

As winter begins its siege it is becoming apparent that the cold war between East and West is destined to become colder even after the brief thaw that began after the summit meeting in Geneva.

There can be little doubt that the detention of two U. S. Congressmen by the Russian-controlled East German police was an indication that the Kremlin has handed down orders to turn the coolers on again. If there were any question about who controls East Germany still, the fact that a Russian officer had to give the order to release the American officials should have removed the doubt.

It should not be surprising if the East-West relations in divided Berlin further deteriorate during the coming months. It is not likely the situation will reach the crisis of the well-remembered air lift period, but the Allied nations in Berlin should be prepared for more Russian outrages.

Well-Rounded Body At Education Meet

By LYNN NISBET
DIVERSIFIED — While the delegations from the several states to the White House Conference on Education were heavily loaded with professional educators or those directly related to the administration of educational institutions, there was wide diversity in background and in opinion.

Breakdown on the entire delegation is not possible. But personnel of the table to which your reporter was assigned for the discussions illustrates the composition of the conference.

There was Mrs. Theodore S. Chapman, former school teacher, now active as a mother in the District of Columbia PTA.

Dr. Wilson M. Compton, former president of the University of Washington, presently director of one of the nation's major foundations in international relations, and a member of the New York delegation.

Mrs. Marion F. Crawford of Montana, housewife and mother, former school teacher.

Dr. John Dawson, president of Adrian College at Adrian, Michigan, a Methodist minister.

Mr. Larry Dennis, assistant to President Milton Eisenhower of Penn State.

Msgr. Sylvester J. Holbel of Buffalo, N. Y., directing head of several Catholic schools, and with wide interest in the whole program of education—parochial, private and public.

Dr. Joe A. Mason, superintendent of the Niles Township High School in the Chicago suburb of Evanston.

Mr. Claude L. Puchell, assistant superintendent of public instruction for the State of Georgia.

Rev. Joseph N. Stadler of San Diego, California, head of a Catholic school.

Dr. Chester Swanson, superintendent of the schools of Oklahoma City, a former Duke graduate student (where he won a couple of degrees) and one time teacher in the Durham schools.

And sitting in as an observer but not taking part in the discussions was Miss Geneva A. Kennedy of Cresco Iowa.

These names mean nothing to most North Carolinians, but the distribution of the residence and occupations of the participants is significant.

Conclusions reached have not been announced and it is quite likely they will be discussed for months and years to come in local group meetings and in editorials. The eleven persons at our table constituted about one half of one percent of the total conference membership. Our conclusions had to be weighed and integrated into a composite report.

The North Carolina delegation did not have a headquarters room or any place to caucus and agree on statements. So it was that 24 tables got perhaps 34 different opinions about the progress, the success, the failures and the needs of public schools in our state.

Your reporter was proud of the record of North Carolina in nearly all the standards approved at our table for public school administration, with possible exception of our indirect method of obtaining county and local boards of education.

In everything else—State supervision or control with local participation both in administration, curriculum and buildings; objected to Federal aid if it carried Federal control and other points, North Carolina seemed to fit the approved pattern almost to a T.

And here is what boasting gave place to blushing. Despite the fact that North Carolina has and has had for years the kind of system the professionals seemed to desire for all the states, your reporter had to confess that our State ranks low in the literacy tables, low in salaries paid teachers, low in percentage of high school graduates going on to college, and low in numerous other categories.

Several of the conferees wanted to know why. Your reporter could not tell them. Dr. Joe Mason, the Illinois high school superintendent, might have suggested one part of the answer when he said that the public schools are essentially community institutions, and the degree of state or Federal financing and control is in direct relation to local interest and efficiency. Although it seems other states want to follow the North Carolina plan of centralized control, there is the question whether even that degree of restrictive control is conducive to the most efficient school operation, as judged by results reflected in statistics.

Whether this national White House Conference on Education will accomplish anything else, it has demonstrated the acute interest of the people all over the country in the public school program.

Veteran Washington newsmen, who have seen conferences and conventions come and go without concrete achievement agree that this is one of the most serious-minded and workiest groups they have ever seen. One reporter who represented several mid-western papers said he was flabbergasted when politicians from that area declined to have pictures made or give interviews because they were too busy with matters under discussion at their tables.

Other Editors Are Saying... A Proposal Worthy Of Study

(Kinston Free Press)
In the White House Conference on Education a proposal advanced by C. Brantley Aycock of Kinston that schools be used on a year-around basis to conserve manpower (teacher) and to partially meet the classroom shortage, is worthy of further study and possible testing in pilot areas to see what its real merits are.

The plan was first suggested by John E. Woolen, Jr., principal of Southwood School, two or three years ago and was taken up by Aycock and offered at the current conference as a possible solution for some of the pressing problems facing the public schools. Basically the plan calls for full usage of the schools on a six-day basis, making it possible for one-third of the student body in a given school to be out of school for about one-third of the time. Advocates of the plan say that the better teachers would be able to function all the time and that higher academic standards could be maintained. The teachers would get a month's vacation, and those not in service could be taking college work to increase their academic standing during the lay-off periods. Actual details of the plan have not reached the point where they are ready for a full test, but with a little further study the program might be tested in an area where an isolated school unit might make it fairly easy to check its merits. In congested areas a single test school would cause confusion with neighboring school schedules and inter-school sports and other activities.

Year-around usage of the schools, however, might be the answer where many communities do not have the money to build new and larger schools on the scale the current population trends demand. Rural schools, under mechanized farming no longer have to cater as much to the use of children in farm operations as they did two decades ago. Many city schools operate on a year-around basis now, with summer school classes for high school students.

It is new and revolutionary, but will it not take new and revolutionary ideas to meet the modern needs of public education? Perhaps if this idea does not catch on, there will be others forthcoming at the current conference which will move the Nation nearer a solution of the pressing problems of adequate classrooms and teachers for record enrollments in every state in the land.

Tarheels Make Salty Sailors

Writers of fiction and real-life have made quite the splash over the seamanship of Nantucket natives and their neighbors. Less well known is the skill of our own boatmen along the North Carolina coast. Someone should do something about it.

For nigh on 40 years I've been living with the delusion I was pretty salty only to learn otherwise in the space of a mere four hours aboard a fishing boat. The skipper of one of those little craft at the piers of Broad City showed me something in the way of seamanship and seaworthiness I'll never forget.

It was like this: A party of four (including myself as a guest) went Gulf Stream fishing aboard a small boat owned and operated by one Theodore Lewis. We were something over 35 miles out when the overcast sky became menacing and the wind made waves too choppy for fishing, so Theodore turned his craft landward.

Waves were running from ten to twelve feet high; spray made it impossible to see any distance forward. But then I was interested so much in what was up front as the spectacle astern. Those waves were moving faster than the boat, and racing in from behind. Each time the boat was lifted on a crest it lost headway and slipped almost sideways into the following trough. Our skipper devoted most of his attention toward keeping the stern of his boat toward the oncoming mountains of water. . . spinning the wheel one way then another, racing his engine, then slowing it; a great display of calmness and level head for anyone who could take an objective viewpoint at that moment. Unhappily my imagination is on the active side and for over four hours I was picturing what would result from our little miscalculation, or if the boat failed to respond to the rudder in time. We shipped some water.

There were times when walls of water blotted out the horizon. . . too many times. It was a very lonely ocean. Visibility poor, but somehow the skipper found each buoy in his slow course to the sound.

I learned this . . . one can calmly watch potential peril race toward them and then move on; once, twice, a dozen or a hundred times. But there is a cumulative effect in which tensions and fear can rise into the ascendancy. After a while I couldn't watch those angry pursuing waves; instead, I sat up forward under the cowling and tried to think of other things.

When we could see calmer waters ahead I asked Theodore how our squall compared with others he'd gone through in his boat. He told me he had seen worse.

Other fishing parties were out that morning, too; and they all checked in safe.

I've been in worse weather (at sea), but on ships. In retrospect it was as safe as being in church when compared with a small boat in a squall.

Notes from the Notebook On Life

Japanese Are Baseball-Crazy

NEW YORK (AP)—Gil McDougald, the distinguished young New York Yankee infielder, has returned from a goodwill baseball safari to Japan in top condition except for a bad case of writer's cramp.

"Everybody in Japan is baseball crazy," McDougald said. "They're playing catch during the lunch hour on the roof of the building across the street. He must have been 60 years old."

The Yankees, who dropped the 1955 World Series to the Brooklyn Dodgers, did considerably better against Japanese ball clubs. They won all but one of their 20 games, and that ended in a 1-0 tie, called after the 10th inning on account of darkness.

As a matter of fact, one of the pleasantest things about the trip to the Yankees was that the Japanese, who are the soul of courtesy, never mentioned "Brooklyn" or "Dodgers" once. "I never saw fans so polite," observed Gil. "They never hooted us a single time."

The stands were completely packed — almost like a morgue — until the Japanese fans started a rally or a Yankee hit a home run. Then they'd go wild.

The Yankees found the national pastime of Japan essentially the same as the American national pastime except the Japanese use an all- dirt field and use a

FACING THE LIGHT

Have you ever realized that if you look toward a light you see no shadow? The man who walks toward a light leaves darkness behind him. It is only when people turn away from the light that they turn their faces into the darkness.

It is strange that when God set about to create the world, the first thing He created was light. We have often read the dying Goethe who, in his last few moments called to them to raise the shades. "More light, more light," cried Christ was life and the dying man. We read in the Gospel of John that in Jesus Christ was life and that life was the light of men.

The first thing God gave the world was light; the last thing many of us want is light. We turn from it and walk in prejudice. We turn, from the light of purity and walk in lust. We turn from the light of love and walk in hate. "Let there be light" — this was the first in God's plan for us, and last so often in the plans we make for ourselves. Let us have our own way, let us have the appeasement of our appetites, let us have power over others — these we believe are life's greatest values.

Jesus in his teaching had much to say about light. He called himself the light of the world, and he called his followers the light of the world also. He bade men walk in light, to walk in the light of day before the darkness of night overtook them.

Let us always remember that if our faces are turned toward the light, darkness is always behind us.

The German Ambassador's Rash Gesture

By MORDAUNT HALL

Ray Tucker has returned from his vacation and will write a column for tomorrow. He will resume his regular schedule on Monday. This final guest column was contributed by Mordaunt Hall, long a New York newspaperman.

Recent reviews of Walter Lord's book, "A Night to Remember," the story of the sinking of the Titanic on her maiden voyage, brought to the mind of this former New York Herald reporter an experience he had in New York the day following the torpedoing of the Cunarder Lusitania May 8, 1915, three years after the Titanic disaster.

Seven or eight reporters were at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, hoping to get an interview with Count Johann von Bernstorff then German Ambassador to the United States. He had had the temerity to advertise in newspapers warning Americans not to sail on the Lusitania and therefore had much to explain to the press. Most of the waiting reporters had been assigned to interview the Ambassador on other occasions, but on that day he denied himself to all, even the representatives of the German journals.

RIGHT WAS MIGHT IT was plain that if the reporters did manage to catch Von Bernstorff he would have a tough time, but he counted on escaping from them by slipping out of a side door. Albert Keller, general manager of the hotel, said that he did not know when the Count would leave the Ritz. However, as time went on he finally told two reporters that the Ambassador had decided to leave for Washington on a 5 P. M. train. Another reporter and myself quickly engaged a taxicab to be ready to give chase to Von Bernstorff's vehicle, which also was to be a public conveyance.

Too Eager For Those Big Profits

By ELMER ROESSNER

In the privacy of their clubs, several economists have asked whether corporations are making more in taking too much profit this year.

The answer may be nearer the affirmative than you suspect. Corporation profits, as reported here November 11, are almost certain to set new all-time highs this year. During the first nine months, profits of 74 leading corporations were running 31 per cent ahead of 1954, with the textile and apparel industry up 88 per cent and steel profits 85 per cent higher, auto-parts companies 72 per cent up and other industries with lesser but still breathtaking gains. Only the electronics industry showed a dip.

"The steel industry must be crazy," one economist said. "Why didn't it hold prices down—or do anything to keep those profits down?"

Total corporation profits before taxes may reach $45 billion this year. That would be $10 billion more than last year and almost $4 billion more than 1951.

WHAT MAY HAPPEN
Right now production is high, corporations are expanding their plants and under any rule of equity they are entitled to fair profits. Even then, a sharp increase in earnings may result in bitter consequences.

Here are three important possibilities:
1. Organized labor, aware of the high profits, will have renewed courage in demanding higher pay next year. And many labor leaders will enjoy embarrassing the Republican Administration by calling strikes.

2. Congress, with a Democratic majority, will be less inclined to grant tax relief to high-profit corporations. If any tax cuts are possible in 1956 being an election year, the legislators are now more likely to pass benefits to small, voting taxpayers than corporations.

3. Corporation customers will resent those high profits. This will be true of industrial customers—buyers of steel, chemicals and other commodities—as well as ultimate consumers. But corporations may be losing their best allies on the politico-economic front: small companies and ultimate consumers.

BIGGEST SOURCE OF TROUBLE
Strikes, taxes and customers' doubts all may be of less consequence than the political repercussions.

Some politicians will be quick to seize upon corporate profits as an issue. In fact, some have already made grasps in that direction. "Has YOUR income gone up eighty-five per cent," rabble rousers will shout to steelworkers. "Are YOU making fifty-six per cent more than last year?" they will ask auto workers.

These appeals may affect state and local elections, as well as national elections and union negotiations. They may provide ready-made platforms for left-wing candidates.

This brings up a curious point. Big corporations, with their control over prices and spending, could limit their profits very easily. Reducing profits is usually easier than increasing them.

Furthermore, with their status of economists and public relations men to advise them, they surely understood the consequences of the sharp surge in profits.

Why, then, are they taking them? Is 1955 get-away year? Have their experts foretold a swing of the pendulum to the left? Do they fear voters will turn against incumbents and veer toward tax-and-spend and "health candidates"?

This department doesn't know. But it does know that many corporations have been acting as if they think this is the time to get it while the getting is good.

INTERESTING IDEA
EXECUTION DIFFICULT
The Arlington, Va., Chamber of Commerce has an idea: a special tax on discount houses.

The County Board has agreed to consider its proposal. Just now it is trying to figure some way to put a tax on discount houses that won't bite other merchants whenever they cut a price or hold a sale.

would at least slap the Count's face. But they were probably too surprised.

I repeated the banging on the window of the next coach through which he had to pass, but this time, after I introduced him in the same loud tone to the passengers, he sought refuge in the men's washroom, into which he was swiftly followed by the correspondent of a German newspaper, who had a breathless interview there with the Count.

OLD HERALD RULE BROKEN
For years it had been an iron-clad rule on the Herald that foreign ambassadors under most circumstances were to be treated with kid gloves. That came from the owner, James Gordon Bennett. Hence, when I was writing my story of the interview, the German Ambassador, the City Editor Frank Pierson, came up behind me and said:

"Young man, remember he's an ambassador!"

Stokes-Pactolus To Present A Pageant

By MARY EDNA HAWKINS
Stokes-Pactolus School

The school is in whirl of activity planning for the annual Christmas pageant. The teachers with the cooperation of the students at Stokes-Pactolus High School put this program on every Christmas just before the holidays begin. The scenery this year was outlined by Mrs. Dorothy Taft and she and Mrs. Elise Mozingo, who is in charge of the scenery, are working hard on it. The pageant was written by our sixth grade teacher, Mrs. Mozingo. In charge of the music are three teachers, Mrs. Dorothy Taft, third grade teacher, Miss Betty Frances Sudden, the commercial teacher, and also the homeroom teacher of the tenth grade, and Mrs. Gullford Lewis, the high school science teacher. The glee club is furnishing the music. It is made up of about forty students from the eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades. A small choir from the elementary grades will assist the glee club in the pageant. The stage has been decorated. The sky is made of thin cheese cloth with a light blue tint. It has stars on it made of cardboard sprinkled with gold dust. There are far away pictures of the city of Bethlehem in the background. The manger and the floor covering is being taken care of by the Agriculture boys under the direction of Mr. Marion Nobles. The pageant will be given Thursday, December 15, in the Stokes-Pactolus High School auditorium.

First Presbyterian Announcements

The General Meeting of the Women of the Church will be held Monday night at 8 o'clock in the Church Parlor. Mrs. S. M. Crisp will present the history of the Women of the Church for the year 1955. Mr. L. W. Topping will install the newly-elected officers for 1956. After the meeting a social hour will be held to honor Mrs. J. W. Hassell and Miss Ellen Williams. Mrs. Blanton Little and Mrs. Roy Coburn will be in charge. There will be an Executive Board meeting at 7:15 in the Pastor's Study.

December 4-10 has been set aside by the General Assembly as Church Paper Week. A church paper in your home will help you, your family and your church as it informs you of the accomplishments, trends and issues of the church-at-large. It is hoped that every family in the church that does not already have a church paper in the home will subscribe to one during this week. Sunday will be observed as Universal Bible Sunday. Sponsored by this church in cooperation with the American Bible Society, this special day is the time for emphasis upon systematic and prayerful Bible reading, and upon the world-wide scope of the American Bible Society's mission as an agency of the Christian Church. Last year the General Assembly contributed $22,487 to the Society's service of translation, publication, distribution of the Holy Bible. As you contribute to your church a percentage of your gifts go to this vital benevolent cause.

The Session will meet Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Church Parlor.

The following men will serve as ushers during the Sunday morning worship service for the month of December—J. L. Smith, Fred Webb, McDonald Carr, Brooks Beddingfield.

The Young Adults are planning a progressive supper for Thursday, December 15. All young adults are urged to make plans to attend.

The Senior High Fellowship and the Pioneer Fellowship will meet Sunday night at 8:00 for supper and fellowship. The seniors will continue their program on "Vocations" and the pioneers will present the play "The Meaning of Christmas."

The Westminster Fellowship of East Carolina College will meet at the Manse, 401 E. 9th St., Monday at 8:30 p.m. for vesper program, fellowship and supper. Miss Natviada Sesena of Cuba and Miss Angela Santana of Spain will give a program on Christmas in Spain and Cuba.

The nursery for little children during the 11 o'clock church service is sponsored by Circle No. 2, Mrs. J. G. Clark Sr., chairman.

The choir will meet for rehearsal Thursday at 7:30 p.m. The Senior Class of the Sunday School needs a piano. If you have a piano which you could loan or give to the Sunday School, please call the church office 2823.

Christian Church Announcements

The first Sunday in December is annually observed by the Disciples of Christ as "Woman's Day" in which the cause of World-Wide Missions is lifted up as well as the important place of womanhood in the total church program.

The youth programs will begin at 8:00 Sunday evening for a period of recreation and supper will be served at 8:00. Miss Colleen Coleman of California, president of the international CYF, will address the CYF after supper. The DSF will have a discussion on segregation.

The circles of the CWF will meet as follows on Monday:
No. 1 with Mrs. Phillip Averette at 3:30;
No. 2 with Mrs. J. R. Carrington at 3:30;
No. 3 with Mrs. W. H. Woolard at 3:30;
No. 4 with Mrs. T. I. Wagner at 3:30;
No. 5 with Mrs. Preston Cannon at 3:30;
No. 6 with Mrs. Herman Evans at 8:00;
No. 7 with Mrs. R. E. Cramer at 8:00;
No. 8 with Mrs. W. H. Smith, Mrs. Ruth Harris assisting, at 8:00;
No. 9 with Mrs. S. R. Spain at 8:00;
No. 10 with Mrs. James Mallory at 8:00;
No. 11 with Mrs. E. R. Sermons at 8:00.

The following young people attended the first State Convention of Youth for the Christian Church of N. C. in Raleigh on Friday and Saturday: Don Conley, Nancy Harris, Joyce Sutton, Judy Jolly, Milly Bowden, Sarah Ewell, Roy Martin, Peggy Efrid, John Carrington, Al Averette, Joyce Gwaltney, Richard Ziglar and Iona Jones.

Immanuel Baptist Announcements

Dr. J. Allen Easley of the Southeastern Seminary at Wake Forest will fill the pulpit for the morning and evening services on this Sunday. Sunday School will begin at the usual time. Dr. James L. White will sing "A Star Was His Candle" by Del Reigo. The Youth Choir will rehearse at 5:30 Sunday afternoon. Fellowship supper is at 6:00 followed by Training Union at 6:30. Evening worship begins at 7:30 with Dr. Easley again bringing the message. The Youth Choir will present special music. The evening worship will be followed by a baptismal service. Rev. Hartwell Campbell will have charge of this service. Mrs. Worth Grant will be the speaker at the BSU Forum Monday at 7:30 p.m. At 7:00 the Weeks Circle will meet at the church. The General Meeting of the WMS will begin at 8:30 Monday night. Mrs. R. F. Parties, Programs At Winterville High

By LINDA NICHOLS
Winterville School

Those wonderful Thanksgiving holidays are still being talked about around school. To hear the various comments, one would think that the "rest spell" the students had pitifully needed so badly was seemingly forgotten by a sudden increase of the tempo of dates, dances, and parties. Now everyone is counting the precious days until Christmas and more holidays.

Friday night held in store a big "shindie" for a number of Winterville's teenagers as well as ECC students, as they headed to Walsenburg for a skating and bowling party. Margaret Baker, Frances Lloyd, Trilby Lee Smith, Betty Jane Nichols and Frances Sutton were only a few who were seen flying around dangerously on skates, bowling and setting up pins.

There's nothing quite equal to a slumber party for having a delightful time, so Joy Faulkner, Janet Allen, and Nancy Jackson gathered at Carolyn Allen's home Friday night to prove it. Catching up on the "latest" occupied a great deal of their time.

The doors of the community building were swung open Saturday night as the Teen Age Club sponsored a dance. Numbers of energetic teenagers enjoyed free dancing, eating, and playing ping pong from 7:30 until nearly 11 o'clock.

Saturday the community building will be opened again, so "you-all" come.

The Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Helen Vaughn, is now in the midst of preparing for a Christmas program which will be presented within the next three weeks. Several of the selections to be sung will include "O Holy Night," "White Christmas," and "We Wish You A Merry Christmas."

Work on "The Searchlight," our school annual, is in full progress as historian Peggy Mobley, testatrix Jeanette Moyer, and prophetess Faye Mills work diligently preparing articles for the approval of the annual's editor, Janice Stox.

It's a shame that Janice and Elva Worthington couldn't have brought some of Miami, Fla.'s sunshine back with them after visiting the sunny state during the holidays. They visited their sister, Nancy, who is a sophomore at the University of Miami.

Other "goers" over the weekend were Barbara Evans and Peggy Craft, who went to Virginia, and Geraldine Mills, who had an enjoyable visit at Plymouth.

Not to be left out in all the goings on — Sherrill Garris, along with others, went to the late show in Greenville Wednesday night and Ruby Lee McArthur had a glorious time at the dance held in the Enterprise Warehouse with music furnished by the "Midnighters."

"Macbeth this" and "Macbeth that" is the general interest of the seniors now, as they are reading one of Shakespeare's many famous contributions. A majority of the students are enjoying the drama, but they jokingly complain of having a hard time trying to keep awake, since twelfth grade English is taught first period after lunch. They are, however, beginning to appreciate Shakespeare's imaginative power over words and his great ability to portray character.

Four new practice teachers came to Winterville Tuesday and are now observing in various classes. They are Faye Lanier and Clifton E. Boyd who are majoring in business education and Percy Rogerson and Howard Holcomb whose major is science.

To prove further that all spare moments were filled over the holidays, one senior girl even went hunting! She had good luck too, as she shot at a rabbit but missed and killed a bird instead — good alms, huh?

Aero-Pioneer Is A Charity Case

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The man who built the airplane engine for the Wright brothers' first flights at Kitty Hawk, N.C., is in Los Angeles County Hospital—a destitute charity case.

Charles E. Taylor, 87, was admitted to the hospital Nov. 19, suffering from asthma and general debility. It was reported yesterday that he still receives $800 a year from a fund left by the late Orville Wright, who, with his late brother Wilbur, made the pioneer flights in 1903. He apparently has no other source of income.

Taylor went to work in the Wrights' cycle shop at Dayton as an $18-a-week mechanic.

A hospital spokesman said the county may place Taylor in a sanitarium or rest home unless a private benefactor comes to his aid.

Afghanistan Seen Likely Plum For Communist Bloc

WASHINGTON (AP)—American officials are watching Afghanistan with some apprehension that it might fall like an overripe plum on the Communist side of the Iron Curtain.

They see no definite signs that this is bound to happen. But they view it as a conceivable result of Afghanistan's recent inclination toward Moscow amid the quickening Soviet interest in the Middle East.

There is no plan of direct U. S. action to keep it from happening. Rather, officials said U. S. policies of friendship and economic aid continue while U. S. diplomacy works indirectly to patch up Afghanistan's border dispute with Pakistan which started the whole trend.

In the meantime, two old hands at shaking international political plum trees, Soviet Premier Nikoita Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev, will be in the Afghan capital of Kabul in a couple of weeks after visiting India and Burma.

What is it that makes Afghanistan, a nation of 12 million in an area the size of Texas, so important? Aside from the East-West struggle for the loyalty of those 12 million people, there is little at stake so far as Afghanistan's resources go.

Little but fruits and wools are produced on its 270,000 square miles of rocks and windswept plains. Its world trade is a mere drop in the bucket.

But Afghanistan's geographical location makes it highly important. The Khyber Pass is there. Conquerors shooting for the Indian subcontinent ever since Alexander the Great have swept through the Khyber Pass in an end run around the towering Himalayas.

If Afghanistan were to become a Soviet satellite—an event officials see as unlikely—it would mean:

1. Russia would be 500 miles closer to the Arabian Sea. Long before the Communists came, Russia coveted the Middle East's warm waters and year-round ports.
2. A wedge would be driven into the northern tier of Middle East nations friendly to the West.

Santa 'Evicts' Federal Judge

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Santa Claus has shoved a federal judge right out of his courtroom in the post office building here.

Judge Frederick V. Follmer said that when the first of December rolled around the post office asked him to vacate to make room for the flood of Christmas mail.

The judge made it clear that he was all for the holiday spirit, and that he understood what the post office was up against, but thought it would be nice to have his courtroom all the year 'round. As it is, he must call a December recess.

Linda Darnell Is Filing Divorce

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Mexican attorneys for movie actress Linda Darnell have announced she would file divorce proceedings against her husband, Phillip Liebmann, in the first civil court of Juarez, Mexico, today.

Reached at the San Antonio hotel in Juarez, across the Rio Grande from this border city, Miss Darnell told the El Paso Times she was there for business purposes "which I prefer not to discuss."

The Mexican attorney told the Times Miss Darnell will ask the divorce on grounds of incompatibility.
Miss Darnell, 32, and Liebmann, 40, president of Liebmann Brewery, Inc., of New York City, were married in February, 1954.

The experts acclaim LINCOLN

NEWSWEEK... "The 1956 Lincoln is a completely revamped car... longer, lower, and wider... with 285 horsepower and styling patterned after the experimental 'Lincoln Futura.' Biggest innovations are safety features, developed after years of crash-testing... a safety-flex steering wheel, spring-resistant door locks, optional safety belts."

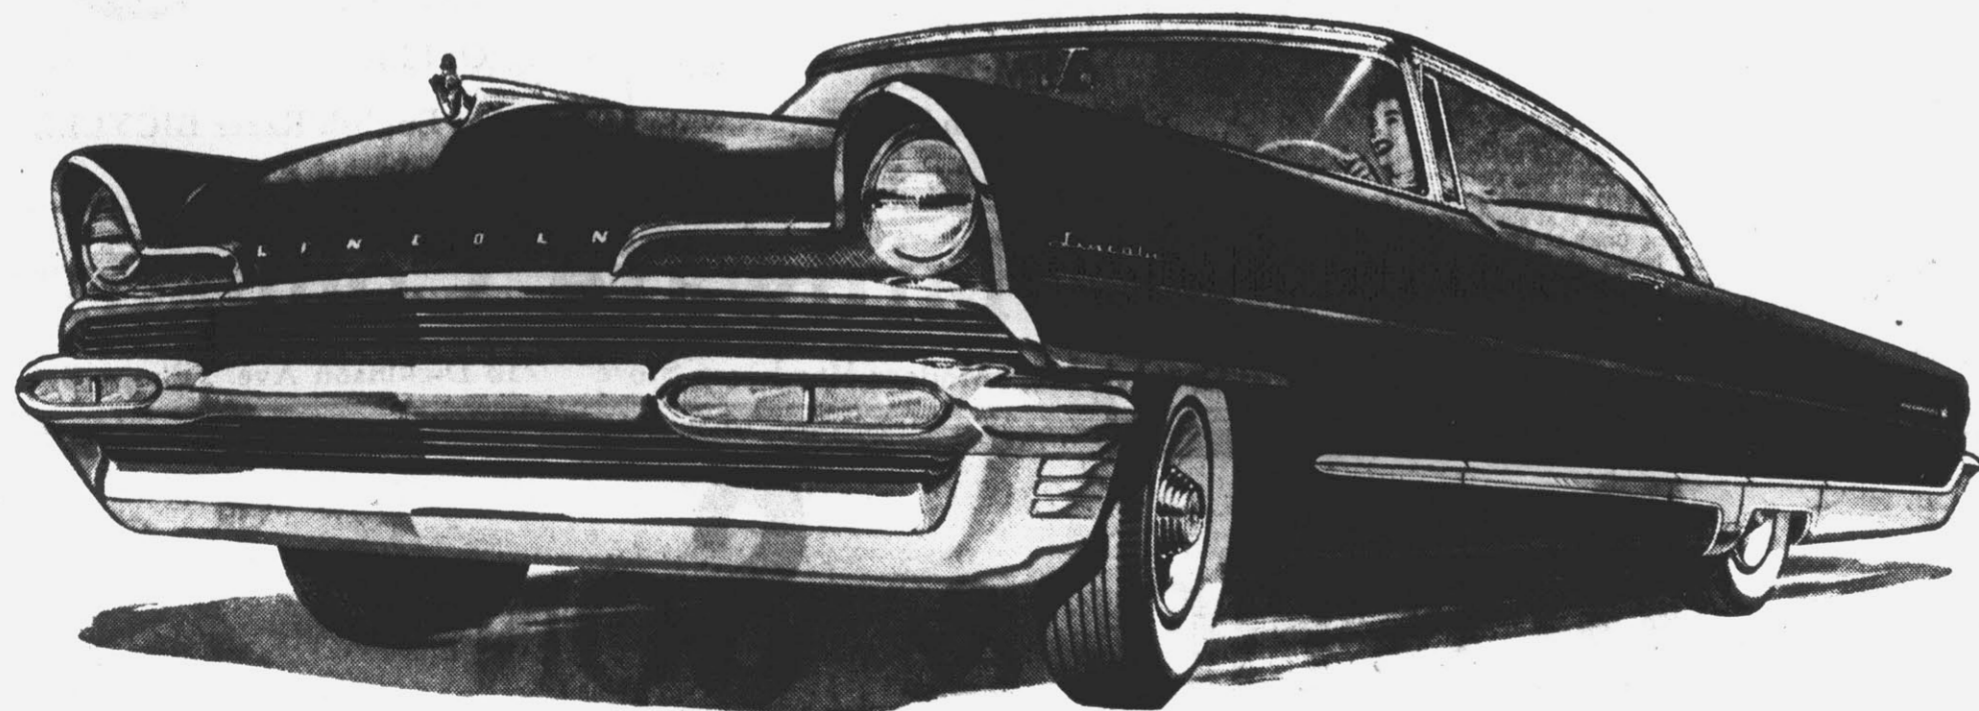

WALL STREET JOURNAL... "The new 1956 Lincolns meet a smash response... Completely restyled, longer and more powerful... one of the few makes to feature a major re-do in looks for 1956. Head lamps are hooded. Larger taillights slash forward... 'Jet-pod' bumper guards house oval-shaped exhausts on both sides."

COLLIER'S... "Lincoln's attempt to penetrate the big-car market more deeply is based on more than prestige. Lincoln is a big car, yet... it conveys an impression of small-car maneuverability... barely five feet high, it has a ground-hugging appearance. Horsepower boosted to 285, and there are new safety devices."

VOGUE... "Fashion news arriving by car: the Lincoln's body is new, its engine is new, its safety wheel is new, and so are the airplane-type toggle switches. With the exception of airport limousines and the like, this is one of the longest cars in America. Handsome accessory to fashion, too, as it happens."

... and the public agrees!
LINCOLN FOR 1956

Fine car buyers are so enthusiastic about this new Lincoln that there has been, literally, a waiting list for these cars since announcement day. And the demand is still mounting. To be sure of driving the Lincoln of your choice at an early date, come in soon.

Another Lincoln "First"... The Robot-Top... The 1956 Lincoln Convertible has the first completely automatic self-locking top—for the quickest, easiest "top-up, top-down" converting ever. No handles or levers to struggle with... nothing to touch but the control.

THE QUICKSILVER POOL

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

There was alcohol among bottles and jars on a shelf, and Lora turned the old woman quickly over on her stomach, pulled the covers up to her waist and pushed her nightgown so that her thin back lay bare. If there was one thing Doc had taught her how to do well, it was to give a back rub to a bedridden patient. She went vigorously to work, rubbing and kneading with palms and strong fingers, seeking out nerve centers, relaxing knotted muscles.

The stiffness went gradually out of her patient, gradually the old woman relaxed and resisted Lora's hands no longer.

"You're going to feel wonderful now," Lora said. "You're even going to stop being indignant with me for helping you."

When she had completed her ministrations and had her patient covered and warm again she hurried to the kitchen for a basin of warm water, winked at the alarmed Ellie, and returned to wash Mrs. Tyler's face and hands and comb her thin, snarled hair. Through it all the old woman lay with her eyes tightly closed, weak, helpless, with her impotent anger fading in spite of herself.

Lora went to the window "My father believed in fresh air," she said as she opened the shutters. Mrs. Tyler drew a deep lungful of cold fresh air and shuddered through her entire being.

"Now what do you plan, may I ask?" she demanded fiercely of her tormentor.

Lora laughed out loud. "There! I knew I'd have you feeling better. You sound practically like yourself. Would you like to sit up in bed for a while and read? Here's your Bible on the table and I'll fix the lamp for you. You may have your bell back now and I'll return to my own work."

"Work?" Mrs. Tyler echoed. "What work?"

Lora paused in the bedroom door. "Right now I'm taking that dreadful picture of a dead bird off the dining room wall. My sure it is giving us all indignation."

Mrs. Tyler pulled herself up in bed. "I will not have that picture touched! Do you hear me? That painting!"

Lora put her hands stoupcly on her hips. "How can you stop me if you stay tied to your bed?"

She whirled out of the room and returned to her task, tingling from the encounter. She set a newspaper on a chair and climbed up to take the picture from the wall. She was holding the thing in her hands when Jenny came running in, just home from school. Usually he went straight through the house and around to the yard where Hamlin had a home in the stable. But when he saw the dining room door ajar and Lora balancing on a chair with the picture in her hands, he came in to find out what she was doing.

"Hello, Jenny," Lora held up the picture for him to see. "This is not going to stare at us any more while we're eating," she told him. His eyes widened. "What will Grandma say?"

"She has already said it. Oh, dear—there's a dark blotch on the wall where the picture has hung for so long. We'll have to find something right away to cover it. Have you any ideas, Jenny?"

"We could take a picture from somewhere else, he suggested.

"Maybe the one of the Parthenon from the library. But then I suppose that would leave a spot on the wall there. Or the Three Graces one from my room. I'm awfully tired of that. Or—Lora, I know! There's a lot of old stuff in the attic. Pictures, too, I think. We could go up and find something."

Jenny said, "I know a good one that Morgan Le Fay painted." He scuffed through the dusty pile, finally calling out, "There!" He brought out a garden scene, with a stiff little girl in flounced skirts daintily sniffing a spray of lilac.

"There! This is the one Aunt Morgan did. That's my mother in the garden. Mama liked it. She used to have it hanging in the downstairs hall. Let's put this one up, Lorie."

Lora regarded the picture with some doubt. True, it was bright and gay and if the hand which painted it had been less than expert, it was still preferable to the picture of dead game. But she did not want to hang a picture of Virginia, even when it so little resembled Virginia, where they must all look at it every day. Especially since that picture had been painted by her sister Morgan. But how was she to explain the matter diplomatically to Jenny?

He was already lugging it toward the stairs, however. "I like this one. Let's go down Lorie. It is cold."

She started after him uncertainly, wishing now that she had never tampered with the picture until she had another ready to take its place.

"Of course your mother liked the picture, because Morgan was her sister. But we can't expect your father to like it as much when it isn't a very good painting. You know how he—well, he doesn't exactly approve of your Aunt Morgan."

"Oh, yes, he does," Jenny said, resting the frame on the floor near the trap door. "He likes her a lot, really. Else why would he be kissing her the way he did that day in the woods? Bring your candle for the stairs Lorie."

She followed him, stricken. This was just talk from a small boy, Jenny had a vivid imagination at times and didn't always distinguish between truth and fantasy. But she had to ask the question that came to her tongue.

"When did this happen, Jenny? How long ago?"

He answered her gullelessly. "Oh, that was last year—no, before that. Before my mother—" He broke off and started down the steep flight ahead of her still carrying the picture.

She went after him, blowing out the candle as she reached the bottom step, and closed the door carefully behind her. She kept her voice steadily casual, as she asked the next question.

"Can you remember, Jenny, whether you ever told anyone about this?"

"I told my mother," Jenny said, his interest still on the painting. "Lorie, I like this picture. If you don't think it's right for the dining room could I have it in my room? Could that old Three Graces one go down in the dining room for now?"

"A very good idea," Lora said, relieved to have the problem so easily settled.

They went into his room to remove the old picture and hang Morgan's water color in its place. All the while Lora kept a careful guard on her thoughts, her expression her words. Not for a moment must Jenny suspect the turmoil within her. It was as if she feared that the moment she stopped working actively at something she stopped pretending to be busy, a whole dark field of thought might engulf her, and she was afraid of what it might bring.

"Hello, Jenny," Lora held up the picture for him to see. "This is not going to stare at us any more while we're eating," she told him. His eyes widened. "What will Grandma say?"

"She has already said it. Oh, dear—there's a dark blotch on the wall where the picture has hung for so long. We'll have to find something right away to cover it. Have you any ideas, Jenny?"

"We could take a picture from somewhere else, he suggested.

"Maybe the one of the Parthenon from the library. But then I suppose that would leave a spot on the wall there. Or the Three Graces one from my room. I'm awfully tired of that. Or—Lora, I know! There's a lot of old stuff in the attic. Pictures, too, I think. We could go up and find something."

Jenny said, "I know a good one that Morgan Le Fay painted." He scuffed through the dusty pile, finally calling out, "There!" He brought out a garden scene, with a stiff little girl in flounced skirts daintily sniffing a spray of lilac.

"There! This is the one Aunt Morgan did. That's my mother in the garden. Mama liked it. She used to have it hanging in the downstairs hall. Let's put this one up, Lorie."

Lora regarded the picture with some doubt. True, it was bright and gay and if the hand which painted it had been less than expert, it was still preferable to the picture of dead game. But she did not want to hang a picture of Virginia, even when it so little resembled Virginia, where they must all look at it every day. Espe-

Meaning of Discipleship

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 9:7-23.

King Herod heard of all that Jesus had done, and he was curious. Some thought that Christ was John the Baptist, risen from the dead. Herod said: "John have I beheaded; but who is this, of whom I hear such things?" And he wanted to see Jesus.

Jesus' disciples, back from their mission, reported all they had done. Then Jesus and the disciples retreated to the wilderness. They were followed by multitudes as usual, and Jesus preached the kingdom of God to them and healed those who were in need.

When it grew late the disciples asked Jesus to send the multitude away so that they might find food and lodging. They had but five loaves and two fishes, they said. Jesus ordered the people to sit down by fifties, and He fed them all with the loaves and fish.

"Whom do people say that I am?" Jesus asked His disciples. Some say John the Baptist, some Isaiah or one of the prophets, they answered. He asked Peter, "Whom say ye that I am?" Peter said, "The Christ of God." MEMORY VERSE—Luke 9:23.

Meaning of Discipleship

SELF-DENIAL ESSENTIAL TO FOLLOWERS OF CHRIST

Scripture—Luke 9:7-23.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE NAME of Herod appears frequently in the New Testament. It was Herod the Great who, after the birth of the Christ Child, ordered the babies of Bethlehem killed. Herod put John the Baptist to death, and both Jesus and Paul were tried before Herod.

Herod the Tetrarch, we read, had heard all that Jesus had done and he was curious about Him. Some had told him Jesus was considered to be John the Baptist risen from the dead. Others said He was Elijah or one of the older prophets come back.

This Herod said, "John have I beheaded; but who is this, of whom I hear such things?" and he asked to see Him. We are not told whether he did indeed see Jesus at this time or not.

When the twelve apostles returned from their missionary journey they told Jesus all that they had done and He took them and went privately into a desert place. They were not long alone, however, for the multitudes followed them and Christ spoke to them of the kingdom of God, and healed those that were in need. Now when the day was near its end the disciples came to Him and would lose his life for the Lord's sake would save it. That he who would be ashamed of Jesus' words, He, when He was in glory, would be ashamed of him.

About eight days later Jesus took Peter, James and John and went up into a mountain to pray. We are told this probably was Mount Hermon—10,000 feet high. The apostles were sleepy, but as Jesus prayed, His countenance was altered and His clothing was white and glistening.

Two men talked with Him—Moses and Elijah. When the three friends awoke, they beheld the glory of the Lord and the two men with Him, Peter suggested that they build tabernacles there, one for Jesus, one for Moses and one for Elijah. A cloud covered them, and they were afraid, but a voice came out of the cloud saying, "This is My beloved Son; hear Him." When the cloud had passed Jesus was alone.

Next day a man came to them asking that Jesus look upon his young son who was possessed by a tormenting spirit. He had asked the disciples to help him but they were powerless, so Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit and healed the child. However, even these close asked Him to send the people away to the nearest town so that they might find food and lodging for the night. He told them to feed the people themselves, but they said they had only five loaves and two fishes.

Jesus told them to have the multitude sit down in fifties, then he took the bread and fish, blessed them, and not only fed all the multitude, but had baskets of food left over.

Alone with His disciples while He prayed, Jesus asked them, "Whom say the people that I am?" They told Him the same as had been told to Herod. Then Jesus asked the disciples, "But whom say ye that I am?" and Peter answered at once, "The Christ of God."

He told them to tell no man that, and then said: "The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain, and be raised the third day."

Also He told them, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow Me." And further, that who would save his own life would lose it, and he who friends of Jesus were not without common faults. John came to Jesus to tell Him that a man who was not one of their number was casting out devils in Jesus' name, and that they had forbidden him to do so. But Jesus said: "Forbid him not; for he that is not against us is for us."

A man came to Jesus saying, "Lord, I will follow Thee whithersoever Thou goest."

Jesus said: "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay His head."

To another man Jesus said, "Follow Me," but the man said he would after he buried his father. To still another to whom Christ said, "Follow Me," the answer was he would, but only after he had bid farewell to his family.

To these two Jesus said: "No man having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." If we would follow Jesus, we must not put it off, it cannot wait. We must be prepared to forget ourselves, even as He did, take up our crosses—whatever they be—and follow His footsteps, whatever the cost.

Ron Beagle, Howard Cassady Repeat To Top '55 All-America Selections

NEW YORK (AP)—Ohio State's Howard (Hopalong) Cassady heads one of the most versatile backfields ever selected on the Associated Press 1955 All-America football team announced today.

Cassady, a holdover choice along with Navy end Ron Beagle, is joined by Earl Morrall of Michigan State, Jim Swink of Texas Christian and Tommy McDonald of Oklahoma in the backfield.

The Buckeyes owe their second straight Big Ten championship to Cassady winner of the Heisman Memorial Trophy, who was the clutch runner of the year despite the special defenses set for him each week. He also can pass.

Morrall the nation's leading punter, ran the Spartans' intricate multiple offense with rare genius. He was equally proficient as a runner, passer, blocker and was terrific on defense.

McDonald, who with Swink gives the team two junior backs, is the breakout runner who made the national champion Sooners an awesome ground power.

Swink was the most exciting runner of the campaign, springing from virtual obscurity into the role of the top scorer (125 points) and most dramatic distance gainer.

The remainder of the team lists Howard Schnellenberger of Kentucky at end with Beagle, Frank D'Agostino of Auburn and Paul Wiggin of Stanford at tackles, Jim Brown of UCLA and Pasquale (Pat) Bisceglia of Notre Dame at guards and Maryland's Bob Pellegrini at center.

The team, selected on the recommendations of AP regional boards on the basis of the full season, avoids preseason hallyhoos and high pressure publicity campaigns.

For that reason, players like Michigan end Ron Kramer, UCLA guard Hardiman Cureton, Notre Dame quarterback Paul Horton, Auburn fullback Joe Childress and Mississippi State halfback Art Davis did not make the grade.

That's not a reflection on the future potential of these fine players, but an honest appraisal of comparative performances in the 1955 college season.

Veteran football observers tabbed Brown, a tremendous lineman, not only superior to Cureton but also the key to Rose Bowl-bound UCLA's fine season. On defense, he had no peers.

Bisceglia got the nod over Iowa's great Calvin Jones for the other guard position because of the amazing contribution the 25-year-old Navy veteran made to Irish success. It took a major effort to fashion a new forward wall this year for Notre Dame and the foundation was built on Bisceglia—defensive quarterback, right side linebacker and running guard on offense.

Pellegrini made the play of the year in the Terps' 7-0 triumph over UCLA. As Bruin fullback Doug Pelters got to the Maryland goal line, Pellegrini wrenched the ball from him and recovered to start his team toward victory.

D'Agostino did a similar fine defensive job for Auburn as the main cog in a big, tough line.

Wiggin was the one man who really held Cassady in check as a runner this year.

Schnellenberger was an outstanding pass receiver and fine defender who always gave his best. He caught 20 passes for 287 yards and six touchdowns during the season. An exceptional blocker, a nd crashing defender, Beagle grabbed 30 passes for an academy mark to account for 451 yards and four touchdowns.

The second team is composed of John Faluck, Pittsburgh, and Tom Manztig, Michigan ends; Calvin Jones, Iowa and Bruce Bostey, West Virginia, tackles; Bo Bollinger, Oklahoma, and Scott Suber, Mississippi State, guards; Hugh Pitts, Texas Christian, center; and Bob Davenport, UCLA, Jon Arnett, Southern Cal, Gary Glick, Colorado A&M and Don Schaefer, Notre Dame, backs.

The third team includes Henry Gremminger, Baylor, and Joe Tumminello, Louisiana State, ends; Norman Masters, Michigan State and John Witte, Oregon State, tackles; Jim Parker, Ohio State, and William Meigs, Harvard, guards; Steven Delatorre, Florida center; and George Welsh, Navy, Jim Brown, Syracuse, Charley Horton, Vanderbilt, and Ed Verhey, Maryland, backs.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Atlantic Coast and Southern Conferences were well represented in the honorable mention list of the 1955 All-America football team selected by The Associated Press.

Honorable mention players from the two conferences, by position, included:

Ends—Will Frye, North Carolina; Darrell (Sonny) Sorrell, Duke; Russell Dennis, Maryland; Walt Brodie, William and Mary; Paul Thompson, George Washington.

Tackles—Mike Sandusky, Mary-

Slower Blue Devils Quint Seen

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Duke opens its basketball season tonight at home against Clemson, but the fast-paced Blue Devil attack of past years is expected to be slowed down this season.

The reason for the slowdown is Tony Bukowsky, a 6-9 center. The Blue Devils have been without a tall center in past years and Coach Hal Bradley used speed to make up the difference. Added height under the basket, Bradley says, will take some of the emphasis off of speed.

The Bukowsky affair is one of two conference games tonight. The other finds Maryland at Virginia. Wake Forest is at George Washington in a nonconference battle.

Any doubt that North Carolina State wouldn't be the team to beat in the ACC this year was dispelled last night when the Wolfpack ran over Florida State 82-63 in N.C. State's Reynolds Coliseum. North Carolina's young and talented squad opened with a 91-72 win over the McCrary Semipros and South Carolina flattened The Citadel 90-50. All were nonconference games.

Bob Seitz, a 6-11 center, and Nick Pond led the Wolfpack scoring with 16 points each. But guard Jim Oler of Florida State topped all scorers with 26 points. The win was N.C. State's 13th straight, including 12 straight from last season.

Jerry Vayds topped North Carolina's scoring with 30 points, followed by Tommy Kearns with 18. Joe Quigg with 14 and Pete Brennan with 13 were next in line for the Tar Heels. Kearns, Quigg and Brennan are sophomores.

South Carolina apparently has found a scoring punch to make the Gamecocks dangerous in Grady Wallace, a 6-4 junior college transfer. He bucketed 32 points, hitting 13 of 34 shots. The Bulldogs' best effort came from guard Ronnie Hannah with 10 points.

Gullford of the North State Conference was the victim of a 105-53 scoring spree by Virginia Tech. The Gobblers were led by John Quillen with 24 points and Bill Matthews with 20. It was the first time a VPI team had scored more than 100 points.

Western Carolina came through with an 84-83 victory over Carson Newman in Jefferson City, Tenn., in a nip-and-tuck game. Bill Scott was Tony Magialo who bagged 29 points for the winners.

The Elon Christians defeated strong Belmont Abbey 90-83 behind the shooting of Ben Kendell who got 23 points. Roger Marcell led Belmont with 21 points.

Other games involving North Carolina teams tonight, in addition to the ACC tilt, have Furman at Charlotte against Davidson and Catawba at Wofford.

Rash Of Upsets In Cage Season Start

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO, No. 1 team of 1954-55 and the NCAA champion with 26 straight victories in the book, shows off tonight on a fresh college basketball season already cluttered with wreckage left by a rash of upsets.

Notre Dame Wisconsin, Louisiana State, Arkansas Fordham and Idaho State were chopped down right off the bat as the first big weekend of the season got underway last night. A loss at this stage of the long, long season isn't fatal, of course, but irritating.

But should San Francisco and All America Bill Russell, the Don's 6-10 center, be knocked off by little Chico State, it would be a fantastic upset. The Dons are favored to repeat as national champs and have almost the same team that ripped through a 29-game schedule with only one defeat; (by UCLA) last season.

Detroit rocked the Irish 77-71, beating Notre Dame last night for the first time in a 25-game series.

dating back to 1911. Bill Ebben, a 6-4 junior, scored 32 points for the Titans, who figured to bring up the rear in their own Missouri Valley Conference race.

Butler defeated Wisconsin of the Big Ten for the first time in 15 years 67-63, but had to rally to regain the lead in the last two minutes.

Southeast Oklahoma dumped Arkansas 68-64. Jim Spivey scored 22 for the winners. St. Joseph's (Pa.) defeated highly regarded Fordham 82-71 with 6-4 Bill Lynch scoring 25. Utah State disposed of Idaho State favored for a fourth straight Rocky Mountain title 68-64 despite Les Rob's 27 points as an Idaho State rally ran short of time.

Louisiana College topped by Max Smith's 22 points, got almost half its points at the free throw line—hitting 40 of 60—to beat LSU 84-79.

Only three teams among last season's top 10—LaSalle, No. 3; North Carolina State, No. 4; and Dayton, No. 5—were active last night and each won handily.

LaSalle, with All America Tom Gola graduated, defeated Millersville 88-70 as Jim Pollard made his coaching debut. Charley Singley was high with 18.

North Carolina State, bamed from NCAA title play by probation last year, looked every bit a favorite to repeat as Atlantic Coast Conference champ. The Wolfpack made Florida State their 13th consecutive victim 88-63. Ron Shavlik scored just 10 points, alternating at center with 6-11 Bob Seitz, who shared the honors with teammate Nick Pond as each hit 18.

Dayton followed seven-foot Bill Uhl, who scored 16 to pepper Pepperdine 75-55.

Martinez Hopes For Title Bout

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Vince Martinez of Paterson, N.J., grinded in hopeful anticipation of a welterweight title bout after taking an easy third-round knockout win over Ernie Greer, of Oakland, Calif., last night.

The classy fourth-ranked welterweight, who weighed 149½, toyed with Greer for two rounds and then put the 146-pound Californian down with a ripping left hook and a followup right. The bout, scheduled for 10 ended at 3:14 of the third.

It was Martinez's 19th straight win and his second in eight days. The early pace was slow, but Martinez promptly opened up on Greer when Referee Joey August and some of the estimated 3,500 fans called for action.

After the fight, Martinez said he expected to be fighting Welterweight Champ Carmen Basilio soon. When shown an Associated Press story quoting Basilio as saying, "Martinez talks too much. Let him fight someone good and prove himself," Martinez just grinned.

Martinez said earlier, after watching on television as Basilio defended his crown against Tony DeMarco, that he could beat either of them. "But I'd rather fight Basilio he's just my style."

Local Promoter Gus Cozza offered an $80,000 guarantee to the winner of the Basilio - DeMarco fight for a title match against Martinez here in March.

Kinston Battles For State AA Championship Tonight

Kinston's Red Devils, winners of the 1955 Northeastern Conference football crown, tackle a powerful Hendersonville squad tonight in Raleigh for the State AA championship.

Frank Moe's gridders roared through the loop this season without a defeat, under the command of quarterback Poo Rochelle, racking up impressive wins against some of the toughest competition the league has offered in many years. They downed Greenville's Phantoms 21-7 early in the campaign.

Employing a multiple offense that features flashes of the T as well as the single wing formations, Kinston rambled to victories over Washington, Elizabeth City, Roanoke Rapids, New Bern, Jacksonville and A.A. Goldsboro, among others. They have been defeated only once this season, that loss coming in a 7-0 battle with Raleigh.

Tatum Is Chosen ACC Football Coach Of Year

RALEIGH (AP)—Big Jim Tatum, builder of bowl teams and national championship contenders at the University of Maryland, today was named Atlantic Coast Conference Football Coach of the Year.

For guiding his Terrapins through the season unbeaten and into a Jan. 2 Orange Bowl date with Oklahoma, the much-honored Maryland coach got the nod of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Assn., in a close race with Earle Edwards of North Carolina State.

Tatum polled 165 points on the basis of five for a first-place vote, three for second-place, and one for third.

Edwards, whose improved State Wolfpack compiled the Raleigh school's best won-lost record since the 1950 season, finished a strong second with 120 points.

Clemson's Frank Howard beat out Tom Rogers of Wake Forest for third place in the voting, 59 points to 54.

Cuban Hopes To Turn Tables

NEW YORK (AP)—Isaac Logart, the new Cuban wonder from Camaguey hopes to turn the tables on Virgil Atkins of St. Louis in their 10-round welterweight scrap at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Atkins won a close decision over Logart last August at St. Nicholas Arena. Logart's only defeat in seven 1955 bouts, Atkins is unbeaten in his last nine starts.

The bout will be nationally televised and broadcast (NBC) at 10 p.m. (EST).

Souchak Pacing Havana Tourney

HAVANA (AP)—Sharp-shooting Mike Souchak of Crossinger, N.Y., led the way into the second round of the $18,000 Havana Invitational Pro-Amateur Golf Tournament today.

The former Duke University football player posted a 7-under-par 65 yesterday to take a 3-stroke lead for the first round.

Christmas has truly become a "season" rather than a "day." Christmas really begins where Thanksgiving leaves off, and December 25th is the climax to weeks of anticipation and planning.

To make your picture story of Christmas as complete and true-to-life as possible, now's the time to list some of the scenes you'll want to be sure of recording... addressing cards, Junior's letter to Santa, wrapping gifts, the postman delivering packages, bringing home the tree and decorating it, and many more. And then, of course, there will be plenty of picture subjects Christmas day.

Be sure your camera is in A-1 working order because you certainly don't want to ruin any Christmas pictures. See that the lens and the inside of your camera are clean. Use a soft brush or lint-free cloth. Be sure the batteries in your Flash-oider are fresh. It would be wise to get new ones now if you've had some trouble with your camera, you'd better bring it in and let us give it a thorough check-up.

There's no charge for this service, and you're under no obligation to have any repair work done.

Stock And Market Reports

New York (AP)—The trend was slightly lower in the stock market in moderate trading early this afternoon.

Gains and losses were in fractions throughout most major divisions, with a few key stocks moving around a point either way.

Chemicals, however, were mostly higher and the drug group showed some fair gains.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel and Oungstown Steel, and Tube were off fractionally. General Motors slipped almost a point while Chrysler and Studebaker-Packard were off in fractions.

In the drug group, however, Schering and Merck were up around a point. American Cyanamid Allied Chemical Dow Chemical and Union Carbide were up slightly while Air Reduction was off.

Westinghouse was down around a point while International Paper and American Tobacco moved up a point or so.

The rail group was mainly off, with a few gainers. Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred dropped about 5 following news of a new plan to wipe out around 20 years in dividends arrears through an exchange offer. The stock gained 4 1/2 yesterday.

Northern Pacific, however, went ahead better than a point.

Aircraft stocks remained mixed and quiet despite news from the Pentagon that a new directive would permit this industry higher temporary profits on defense contracts.

Volume was estimated about two million shares for the day compared with 2,370,000 yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 20 cents at noon to $180, with the industrials off 40 cents, the rails off 10 cents and utilities up 10 cents.

Another Turkey Shoot Tomorrow

Another in the series of turkey shoots being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Greenville Golf Range beginning at 2 o'clock.

Shots are $1 each and proceeds from the project are to go to the Greenville High School bus fund.

Jack Whichard, chairman of the shoot, urged local citizens to participate in the affair.

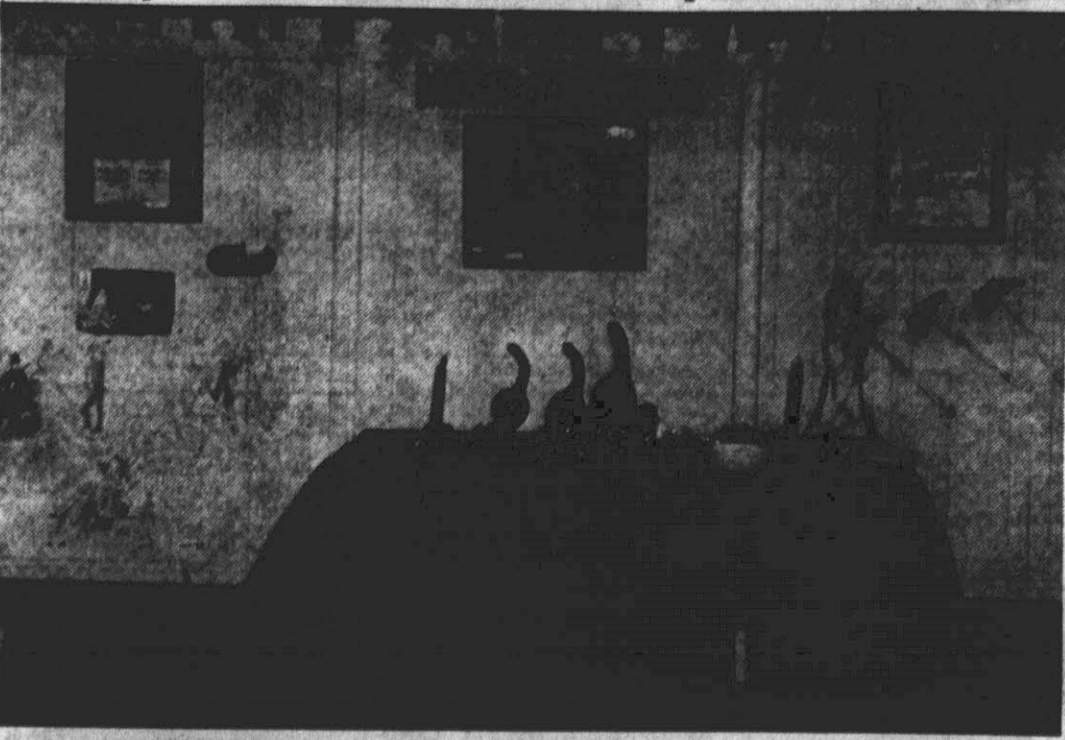

"We have had good participation in recent shoots and we are expecting a large turnout tomorrow," Whichard declared.

Approximately 15 persons will participate in each round of the shoot and the individual who places the most shot in the bulls eye of his individual target wins a turkey.

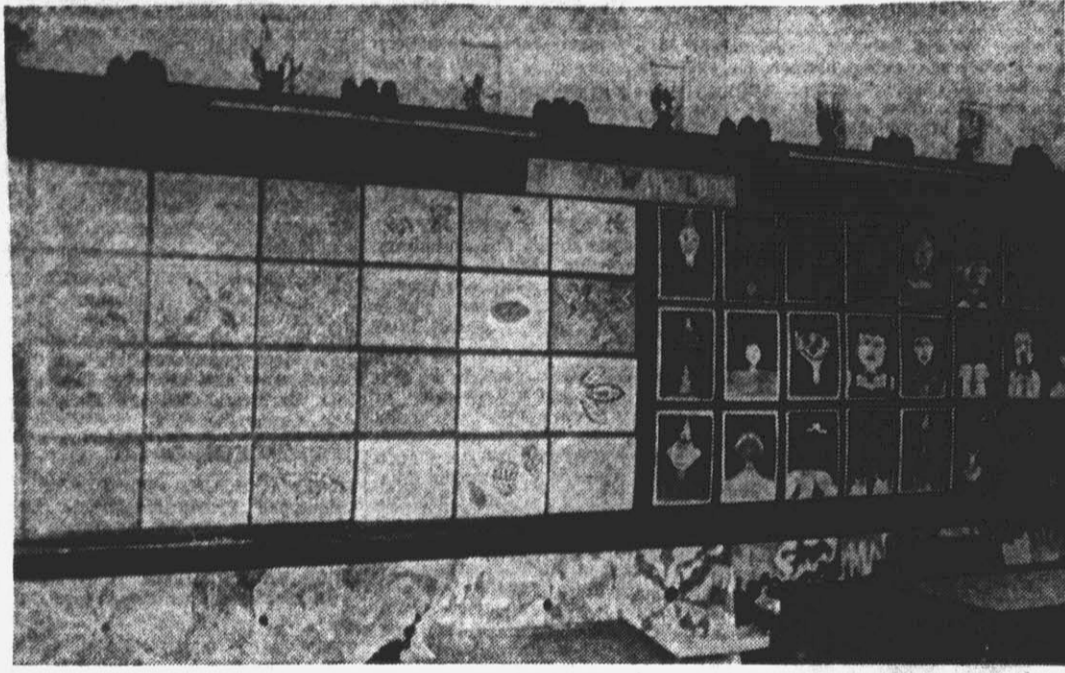

Whichard said the turkeys weigh between ten and 12 pounds.

Participants are asked to bring their own shot guns but a few guns will be available for those who do not have their own. Shot gun shells will be furnished by the Jaycees.

Farmville School Holds 'Open House'

Farmville School held its annual open house for parents last night, and all rooms were festive with various colorful displays made by the students. This display, in Mrs. L. P. Thomas's 4th grade, was entitled "The Forward Look," and was composed of spatter-painting, crayon and tempera paint artwork. On the molding above the pictures are shadow boxes holding dried arrangements.

Another art center, which was on display for some time in a downtown Farmville business establishment, was on exhibit in Mrs. Laura Tanner's eighth grade room. The articles, all made by the students, included Christmas decorations for the home, soap carvings, woodcutting, paintings and crayon art. Reflector Photo by Edwina Haymes).

Wyatt Benjamin Pollard, 48, died in Tayloe Hospital in Washington Thursday night at 10:35 o'clock. He had been in ill health for the past five months and critically ill for five days.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Saturday afternoon at two o'clock and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. His pastor, the Rev. Kenneth Loney, assisted by the Rev. D. J. Little, Pentecostal Holiness minister of Greenville, will conduct the services.

Mr. Pollard, son of the late Wyatt and Lydia Bullock Pollard, was born and reared in the Belvoir community. He spent most of his married life near Greenville and had lived near Washington for the past two years. He was a farmer and a member of the Church of God at Chocowinity.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Bertie Pollard; two daughters, Mrs. James E. Link of Newport News, Va., and Margie Jean Pollard of the home; five sons, Billy R., Earl, Bobby, Franklin, and Joe S. Pollard, all of the home; three brothers, Freddie Pollard of Tarboro, Ryan S. and Jesse Pollard of Belvoir; and a sister, Miss Fannie Pollard of Belvoir.

Funeral Saturday For Mrs. James Littleton

Mrs. Neta Parkin Littleton, 53, died at Onslow County Hospital Thursday at 1:10 p. m., after being critically ill for two weeks.

Funeral services will be held from the home in Swansboro Saturday at 3:30 p. m. Rev. Maurice Norman will officiate. Interment will follow in the Ward Cemetery, Swansboro.

Sold Nearly $1,000 Worth Of Light Bulbs In House-To-House Canvass

Almost $1,000 worth of light bulbs were sold last night as Greenville Jaycees began their house-to-house canvass of the city selling the light bulbs to raise funds for Christmas baskets for needy families.

Merrill Bass, chairman of the Jaycee Christmas project, this morning expressed his appreciation to the people of the city who purchased light bulbs last night. The canvass, he said, will be resumed tonight at 7 o'clock in the residential areas of the city which were not covered last night.

"Tomorrow, Bass said, the Jaycees will sell light bulbs from a float at the corner of Evans and Fourth streets in downtown Greenville. "We'll begin selling light bulbs downtown at 8:30 Saturday morning," Bass said, "and we'll keep the sale going until we sell out."

Price of the bulbs is $1 per bag and each bag contains two 50 watt bulbs, two 75 watt bulbs and one 100 watt bulb.

Weather observers at the Lower Coastal Plain Experiment Farm reported that the low last night was 25 degrees. Wednesday night the mercury had fallen to 20 degrees, Monday night it was 22 and Tuesday, 23.

High temperature yesterday moved upward also. The top mark was 46 degrees for Thursday. Wednesday the high mark was three degrees lower.

The weather observers reported that the temperature stood at 37 degrees at 8 a. m. this morning—five above freezing.

AYDEN—Mount Olive Missionary Baptist Church, 715 West Avenue, held its regular worship service on Nov. 27. The subject "Choose Ye This Day" was taken from Joshua 24:15. At 3 p. m. the service was held at Morning Star Holiness Church for the purpose of raising money to help on a scholarship fund for Mr. Robert Blount, who is studying Religion at Shaw University. Rev. W. M. Dixon brought the message. The captains from various groups and churches are cooperating nicely. The amount raised for the occasion was $72.36. The drive is being continued through the month of January. Everyone is asked to contribute.

slightly lighter and smaller ball. "You can't knock it as far, and that bothered us a little," admitted McDougald.

He gave this assessment of Japanese big league play: "They are fine in the infield, but seem to lack throwing strength from the outfield. The fans were particularly impressed by the way Hank Bauer could pick up a line drive to right field and throw and catch the runner at first. "At bat the Japanese try too hard to powerhouse the ball instead of depending on coordination."

But the most mysterious thing he found in the way baseball is played in the mysterious East was the pitching.

"They use a hesitation ball," he said. "It was our biggest problem. The pitcher slows up at all stages of his windup, and depends on his windup to deceive the batter rather than on the spin or the speed of the ball. And every two or three innings the pitcher, worn out by his windup, would be replaced by a new pitcher."

An American pitcher, when he is relieved during a tense game, goes right to the show, then hurries home to pick a quarrel with his wife—or kick his dog around.

"But when a Japanese pitcher is jerked," said McDougald, "He goes to the sidelines and pitches warmup balls for another 15 minutes. I suppose he does it to save face in front of the crowd. Anyway, nobody boos him."
