City's Construction Boom Racing Onward And Upward

New construction in Greenville continued to outstrip all former years as the total value of new buildings for 1955 moved to $2,370,500 at the end of November. That was nearly $400,000 ahead of the previous high year of 1950 when the new construction total for the entire year came to $1,984,300. The new record is expected to be pushed even higher when December totals are added and the final building report for the year is issued. Building Inspector George Gardner reported today that 11 permits for dwellings were issued during the month of November. The total value of the houses came to $121,500. Three commercial permits were issued last month and their value came to $280,000. For the year 164 permits for construction of dwellings have been issued and 16 permits for construction of commercial buildings. Total value of the housing units authorized through November is $1,918,300. That is almost as high as the total for all new construction in the second high year of 1950. It is more than the final total for 1954—third highest year in the city's history. That year the building inspector authorized $1,914,200. Some 22 commercial buildings have been authorized during the present year, also, and their total value comes to $482,200. Permits for two big commercial units were issued last month. A new telephone building was authorized and construction on that building has begun at Fifth and Pitt Sts. The Daily Reflector was also issued a permit for construction of a building. The newspaper's new home is now being built on Cotanche St. Building permits are obtained for all new units constructed within the city limits. For that reason, Gardner pointed out, the actual totals do not give a true picture of new dwelling and commercial construction carried on in the Greenville area. Houses built in subdivisions which are later annexed into the city are not counted in the totals. The same is true of commercial buildings built outside the city limits. In addition, Gardner noted, the construction carried out on the college campus requires no building permit and thus does not count in the totals. City school buildings, such as the new high school which was begun on Elm St. this year, are not counted in the total new construction.

Fast Scramble In Air Defense Test

WASHINGTON (AP)—Flying units scrambled aloft and civilian volunteers sped to ground observer posts last night in a surprise coast-to-coast test of the U. S. and Canadian defenses against mass air attack. The alert was called off shortly after 7 a. m. EST today, with no more advance word than was given on the order to intercept. The test, called "Operation Crackerjack," was directed by the Air Defense Command, headquartered at Colorado Springs, Colo. That command simply gave out word that the exercise had been terminated at 7:06 a. m. EST. Before that, the "raiding" was over came and the Strategic Air Command whose big bombers provided the "enemy" force. There was no immediate list of targets nor estimate of the defenders' degree of success in warding off attack. Involved in the operation were units of the regular U. S. Air Force, the Air Reserve, the Air National Guard, Navy and Marines, in addition to Canadian forces and some 400,000 members of the ground observer corps. Orders from the Pentagon called for the flying Guardians to duty for a period "not exceeding four days," one top officer said, and nobody in the National Guard Bureau would have been greatly surprised if the operation had run for days instead of hours. The test was being run under a blanket of virtual secrecy, but fragmentary information indicated that interceptor jets on the East and West coasts scrambled skyward minutes after the mock attackers—planes of the U. S. Strategic Air Command—were detected heading their way. Directing the operation was the Air Defense Command, headquartered at Colorado Springs, Colo. Officers said the main purpose of the drill is to check on the effectiveness of radar tracking and interceptor defenses under winter conditions. The Air Defense Command said there will be no disclosure of specific numbers of men and planes involved. In New York, a spokesman for the Eastern Defense Command at Stewart Air Force Base said mythical enemy attackers swept "in force" from over the Atlantic. He said the first wave of "attackers" was met by personnel who normally man the all-weather interceptors based along the Eastern Seaboard. In Washington state an operations officer with the 25th Air Division at McChord Air Force Base said interceptors throughout the area were "real fast" in getting into the air.

War Games Cost Thirty-Two Dead

FT. POLK, La. (AP)—Exercise Sagebrush, America's military rehearsal for an atomic war defense, killed 32 of the 140,000 servicemen taking part in the huge maneuvers. Fighting in this country's biggest war games since World War II ended Sunday night. The Army and Air Force are moving most of the 110,000 soldiers and 30,000 airmen to their regular bases. The Army said most deaths came from car, truck and tank accidents. Military vehicle accidents killed 18 men, while civilian traffic crashes killed another seven. Two drowned and a helicopter crashed, killing more. Lightning electrocuted a chronic disease and a parachute jump, according to the Army, each claimed one life. Two more deaths are under investigation. One man died from a broken neck from "unknown causes," and the Army is "unsure" about details concerning the death of the second man. Umpires decided Sunday night that the U. S. troops in Exercise Sagebrush had successfully repulsed an invasion by "aggressor" forces. This ended the fighting phase of the maneuvers, which took place on seven million acres in western Louisiana. In a second order, the Supreme Court upheld a jury finding in U. S. District Court here that Eastern also was negligent and liable for damages. The court's vote on this order was 7-2. In a third order, the high court unanimously refused to interfere with a Court of Appeals ruling that the government's liability was limited to $15,000 per death, the maximum under Virginia law. This ruling was based on the finding the government's negligence occurred in the control tower, which is in Virginia. In another action yesterday, the high court unanimously set aside a sentence imposed on Amos Reece, Negro, for rape of a white woman in Cobb County, Ga., pending state court consideration of his protest that Negroes were excluded from grand and trial juries that heard rape charges against him.

Deceased Pilot Hailed As Hero

WEYMOUTH, Mass. (AP)—Capt. Arthur C. Rubenstein, a Marine Corps pilot from Brooklyn, N. Y., today was posthumously hailed as a hero for steering his disabled craft away from a residential area before it crashed. Capt. Rubenstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Rubenstein, died when his jet plane crashed and burned several hundred feet from a cluster of homes shortly after 11:45 a. m. takeoff from the South Weymouth Naval Air Station yesterday. Witnesses said the flier swerved his plane to one side to avoid several homes as it was coming down. He was attached to a Marine air group at Cherry Point, N. C.

Buster Keaton Critically Ailing

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Buster Keaton, 60, the comedian with the deadpan expression, lay in critical condition today in a veterans' hospital suffering from a gastrointestinal ailment. He has been hospitalized since last Saturday. A hospital official said a hemorrhage had been stopped but Keaton has been in a coma part of the time.

AFL-CIO Hears Labor Secretary

NEW YORK (AP)—Secretary of Labor Mitchell said today organized labor has both a duty and responsibility to speak out with a "loud and clear" voice in politics. Mitchell's remarks prepared for the convention of the merged AFL-CIO indicated, however, that he expects labor support to be given to Republican party policies rather than to those of Democrats. His speech like one delivered by President Eisenhower yesterday to convention delegates via a long-distance hookup from Eisenhower's Gettysburg headquarters, said labor unions have a right to deal in political issues. Eisenhower said that in such expression the rights of minorities in unions having "differing social, economic and political views must be scrupulously protected and their views accurately reflected." The President and his labor Cabinet officer appeared to be answering, in part at least, the expressed fears of some Republicans that unions are taking too active a political role. The speeches also signaled an administration effort to vie actively with the Democrats for the labor vote in the 1956 campaign. Gov. Averell Harriman of New York a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination next year, said in another speech prepared for the convention today that "we need more, not less, participation by working men and women in American political affairs." Harriman saw "a glorious opportunity" to increase national production by 50 per cent in the next decade and thereby improve living conditions. But "to get this expansion, we must have wise and progressive policies," he said. "It is up to labor to make its voice heard to be sure we have those policies," he added. Mitchell said AFL-CIO leaders have denied they will "try to control the votes of union members" but will keep members informed on political issues. Nobody, he said, can object to that kind of political activity. Eisenhower's address was hailed as a "very fine message" by AFL-CIO President George Meany. Walter Reuther former CIO chief now an AFL-CIO vice president, said, "It refutes completely the Goldwater line." Reuther referred to Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz.), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, who has spearheaded a Republican group critical of union political activity. Goldwater has charged the AFL-CIO plans "slush funds" to capture control of the government through the democratic party. He has said the AFL-CIO has no right to endorse a presidential candidate. Mitchell said that combining the AFL and CIO should lead to improved labor-management relations. He expressed hope that the AFL-CIO and industry could reach a "live-and-let-live" agreement to reduce strikes and make for smoother collective bargaining.

Plans Being Drawn For Additions To Schools

Plans and specifications for additions to the Pitt County Training School at Grimesland and the Bethel Union School are expected to be ready to submit to contractors in time for bids to be opened next month. This report was made at a regular meeting of the County Board of Education yesterday. Plans are being drawn by architect J. W. Griffith Jr. for a gymnasium at each school, four additional classrooms at Bethel and 12 new classrooms at the Pitt County Training School. A delegation from South Ayden School appeared before the board. To present their school needs, which they said included principally a gymnasium, new classrooms and a cafeteria. The board advised that it expected to be able to take care of a large part of these needs with funds expected from the state. These funds will be the last allocation from the $25 million state bond issue. The board also discussed Grifton School's needs due to the increase in the number of families which have moved to that town recently. According to the Grifton school committee their most urgent need is a gymnasium, with additional classrooms to be required later on. The board took no action in the matter. It was announced that the county schools will close December 22 for the Christmas holidays and reopen on regular schedule January 4.

Airline, Gov't Are Held Liable

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court says the federal government and Eastern Air Lines are jointly liable for damages for negligence in the death of 55 persons in a 1949 airplane collision here. The high tribunal in brief orders yesterday ended long litigation over the issue of liability, but lawyers expect further legal controversy between the government and Eastern as to which pays how much. The decision came in a test case. About 45 other damage suits are pending. An Eastern DC4 and a P38 fighter collided as both tried to land at the Washington National Airport. The P38 was flown by Bolivian pilot Eric Rioz Bridoux. He was the only survivor and later was absolved of blame. The Supreme Court unanimously affirmed a decision by the U. S. Court of Appeals here that the government was liable for negligence of Civil Aeronautics Administration tower operators at National Airport. In a second order, the Supreme Court upheld a jury finding in U. S. District Court here that Eastern also was negligent and liable for damages. The court's vote on this order was 7-2. In a third order, the high court unanimously refused to interfere with a Court of Appeals ruling that the government's liability was limited to $15,000 per death, the maximum under Virginia law. Highway Commission Feels No Criminal Intent No Charges In Bridge Fire

An official of the State Highway Commission said here today that no criminal charges would be placed against two men who admitted starting a fire which severely burned a highway bridge near Bell Fork yesterday afternoon. The two, Arthur Ayres and Kenneth Ross, both of Route 2, said the bridge caught fire accidentally from a small pool of gasoline they had ignited nearby. This morning, J. G. Gibbs, of the Highway Commission, said, in his opinion, "there was no criminal intent" in connection with the burned bridge. The bridge is located about three miles east of Bell Fork on a rural paved road. "We do not plan to prosecute criminally," Gibbs said, and added, "any civil action will have to come from our legal department in Raleigh." Ayres and Ross told investigating State Highway Patrolman Richard Taylor that they had been squirreling hunting near the area and came to the bridge about 3:45 yesterday afternoon. There, the two said, they found two five-gallon cans, apparently filled with gasoline. Ross, patrolman Taylor reported, said he then poured a small quantity of the fluid on the ground near the bridge and lit it with matches given him by Ayres. The blaze flared up suddenly, the two said, and caught the bridge and they ran to their 1940 model pick-up truck nearby to go get help. Ralph Porter, of Colonial Heights Greenville, said he came over a hill and found the bridge ablaze. A 1946 pick-up truck, he added, was leaving the scene. Porter called the Highway Patrol to report the fire and patrolman Taylor in turn notified the Greenville Fire Department. Ayres and Ross returned to the scene a short time after Taylor and the firemen arrived and admitted setting the fire. Neither has ever been employed by the Highway Department. Damage to the structure, which did not collapse, was extensive and the highway was closed to traffic. Only one of the gasoline cans was found, Taylor reported and near it was a pool of burned matches. Gibbs said yesterday that the entire bridge would have to be rebuilt.

'Ax' Poised Over Tobacco Exports

WASHINGTON (AP)—American tobacco exporters pressed today for a decision on disposition of eight to nine million pounds of American flue-cured tobacco, some of it already en route to the Far East and all of it sitting under the ax of pending higher import duties to the Philippines. The new duties—contained in the revised U. S.-Philippines trade agreement—go into effect Jan. 1 and would virtually double the cost of the tobacco already purchased in the States for shipment to the Philippines. J. B. Hutson, head of Tobacco Associates, a group representing American exporters, said there is uncertainty whether the tobacco will be permitted to enter the Philippines before the new duties take effect. He said he had been trying for several weeks to get a final word from Manila. Some of the big shipment, he said, will be held meantime at other Far East ports, and some other lots in U. S. ports may not be sent. The tobacco, sold at about 50 cents a pound for delivery before Jan. 1, would fall under a 45-cent-a-pound duty if it isn't admitted before New Year's. The original 4 1/2-million-dollar cost would thus be boosted by levies of $3,880,000 to $4,140,000. Philippines President Ramon Maguayssa said he is considering the case. Some U. S. official sources pointed to a Nov. 11 ruling by the Philippine Customs Service, providing that the date when an import vessel arrives within a Philippine port of entry shall be considered the date of its importation. But other views were that shipments would not be considered completed until they had been unloaded and released by customs. The Church of Our Lady of Lourdes was held last week by the excommunication of two women after "beating Nov. 16 of Mrs. Lula B. Ortemond, who teaches one of the integrated religion classes in this pro-segregation area. A church spokesman said there were fewer Negro students than usual yesterday, but added it was expected since they feared reprisal or intimidation. The Most Rev. Jules B. Jeanmard, bishop of Lafayette in southern Louisiana, made the decree of excommunication last week. He lifted it Thursday saying he had learned that the two women repented their act. Mrs. Ortemond has filed assault and battery charges against two sisters, Mrs. Etta B. Romero and Mrs. Lota B. Menard, identifying them as her assailants. FIVE-DAY WEATHER FORECAST FOR N. C. Temperatures will average near normal, becoming mild Thursday through Saturday. Precipitation moderate, average about half inch, occurring Thursday or Friday, and again over weekend.

Penalty Eased In 'Goof Ball' Case

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP)—Arthur L. Owen of McCormick County was sentenced to four years and a $4,000 fine in Federal Court here yesterday for selling "goof balls" to truck drivers. The sentence was suspended on payment of $400 and Owen was placed on probation for five years. Owen, who operates a roadside restaurant, pleaded nolo contendere to the charges. He told Judge C. C. Wyche that he took 1,000 of the pills from an unidentified truck driver in payment for gas. L. L. Blanton of the U. S. Food and Drug Administration testified that he and another agent went to Owen's place and on two separate occasions were able to purchase the pills which came in a matchbox.

All Departmental Heads Retained

Heads of all Pitt County governmental departments were reappointed yesterday by the county commissioners in their regular monthly meeting. The reorganization therefore, amounted to no more than as far as any department change was concerned. All department heads will continue to serve in their regular capacities. The commissioners, in addition, also voted to contribute $50 to the Aswell Training School in Kinston and $250 to the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association. Christmas holidays for county employees were scheduled for from noon December 23 through December 26. Court House offices also will be closed January 2, in observance of New Year's and the commissioners' January meeting will be held the following day. A sum of $500 was turned over to the county by Frank Wooten from Drainage District No. 4.

Safety Council Confers Today

RALEIGH (AP)—Ways of halting the mounting highway death toll will be discussed during the second annual meeting of the governor's Traffic Safety Council today. Around 400 delegates were expected to attend the session which gets under way this afternoon. Among the scheduled speakers were Gov. James M. B. Hunt, Commissioner Edward Scheidt, National Safety Council Representative George E. Grotz, and John O. Moore, director of crash injury research at Cornell University. John C. Whitaker of Winston-Salem chairman of the board of the R. Reynolds Tobacco Co., also was among the key speakers.

Wake Forest Students Burn Effigy Of Tribble

WAKE FOREST, N. C. (AP)—The Wake Forest College campus was quiet today following a demonstration last night in which a crowd of students burned College President Harold W. Tribble in effigy in protest of reports of a move to de-emphasize athletics here. Some 400 to 500 torch-carrying students shouted, "Down With Tribble." The demonstration lasted about an hour and a half. Tribble assured the group, "There definitely has been an effort to de-emphasize athletics at Wake Forest." Leaders of the group of aroused students were believed to be forming a committee to confer with Tribble regarding the athletic situation. Tribble said he would be glad to see them and pass along their report to the board of trustees. The college newspaper, Old Gold and Black, which publishes every Monday, planned to come out with an extra edition today on last night's demonstration. Carrying signs saying they wanted "big time athletics" and "Preston gone, Rogers gone, Tribble next," the students repeatedly chanted "Why can't we get great athletics like we used to?" and "We don't want to be in the North State Conference." Dr. Tribble spoke to the students for about a half hour as police kept them in fairly good order. Tribble told the crowd, "No effort is being made at Wake Forest to de-emphasize athletics." He stated he personally favored the retention of football Coach Tom Rogers, Athletic Director Padon "Pat" Preston, and the entire athletic staff. He also specifically mentioned baseball Coach Taylor Sanford whose team won the national intercollegiate crown last summer and basketball Coach Murray Greenon. The resignations of Rogers and Preston were announced by the college last Saturday. Although Wake Forest's enrollment is only about 1,600 the Baptist college is one of the strongest members of the powerful Atlantic Coast Conference. The North State Conference consists of smaller schools in North Carolina. Dr. Tribble advised the students to form a committee to meet with him any time it desires. He said such a committee could be formed "without fear of retaliation" and that he would pass on any feelings of the student body to the board of trustees. Some members of the crowd said they understood Preston was promised $7,500 a year when he took over as athletic director two years ago. They wanted to know why his salary was $6,500. President Tribble replied, "We have been working toward that." He added there was an $8,000 deficit in the athletic budget last year, and it was made up by digging into other funds. When Dr. Tribble went back into his house, the students marched to football Coach Rogers house two blocks away and shouted for him to appear. Informed he was out of town, the students then marched another two blocks to the girls dormitories, shouting "Panthers," and "Beat State." Wake Forest plays county rival N. C. State in basketball in Winston-Salem tonight. No attempts were made to enter the girls dormitories and the crowd soon broke up.

Edwards-Hudson Vows Pledged In Double Ring Ceremony

AYDEN—In a private ceremony, which was performed on Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home, Miss Deloise Jean Hudson became the bride of Rodney Franklin Edwards.

Candelabra, flanked by floor baskets of white mums and gladioli, formed the setting for the double ring ceremony which was performed by the Rev. James Edward Danford of Greenville.

Mrs. James W. Everett, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and during the ceremony "Serenade" and "O Perfect Love" were played.

Allen Jackson Hudson, the bride's brother, lighted the candles.

The groom had at his best man James Thomas Sautter of Farmville.

Miss Wilma Hayes Lloyd of Farmville, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a black woolen suit with a boxy coat, a pink blouse and matching hat and a corsage of pink carnations.

The bride, given in marriage by her cousin, Carroll Eugene Lloyd, of Farmville, was dressed in a French blue woolen suit, fashioned with a boxy coat. Her blouse was of light blue nylon and the other accessories were black. She carried a white Bible, which was topped with a purple orchid.

The mother of the bride chose a grey woolen suit for her daughter's wedding, with which she wore a light blue blouse and black accessories and also a corsage of pink carnations.

The groom's mother wore a brown crepe ensemble with matching accessories and a yellow corsage.

Mrs. Edwards is the daughter of Mrs. Allen Linuar Hudson of Ayden and the late Mr. Hudson, and also a graduate of Grimesland High School.

Mr. Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Thomas Edwards of Farmville is a graduate of the Farmville High School and an employee at the A&P Tea Company in Greenville.

Immediately following the ceremony the mother of the bride entertained at an informal reception.

The guests were greeted by Mrs. H. A. Jolly and introduced to the receiving line, composed of the members of the wedding party.

Crawford united in marriage Miss Ramona Pollard and Mr. Sherrel Glen Frantz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgel Frantz of Riverton, Utah. Miss Pollard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Pollard of Greenville, Route 2.

White candelabra, baskets of white gladiolus, and white pom poms were used against a background of palm and greenery to make a lovely setting.

Nuptial music was furnished by Mrs. Mable Ann Worthington, organist, and Mr. Gilbert Windham, soloist, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Jesse Pollard, the bride wore a gown of white slipper satin with a Peter Pan collar edged and designed with seed pearls. Tapered sleeves extended to a point over her wrists and were also edged with seed pearls. The tight fitted bodice with self-covered buttons dipped to a point in the front. The fingertip tulle veil was draped from a cloche of lace which was outlined with seed pearls. The bride's bouquet was a cluster of white carnations centered with purple orchids.

Mrs. Rachel Wintamute served the sister as matron of honor. Misses Margaret Cuthbert and Kathryn Tucker were bridesmaids. The attendants wore identical waltz length dresses of pale blue satin brocade. Silver glitter bands with attached veils were used as headpieces. They carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations with pink glitter ribbon.

Mr. Donald R. Cunningham, of Melvin, Arkansas, served as best man. Ushers were Kenneth L. Utz, Gerald W. Parker, Patrick T. McGovern, and Michael Lollis, all of Camp Lejeune.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown were hosts at a reception at their home. The mantel was banked with an arrangement of magnolia and white candles. Pink flowers and pink candies centered the bride's table, which was covered with a white linen cloth. A tiered wedding cake and punch were served at each end of the table by Mrs. Belle Pollard and Miss Bernadine Ballance.

Mrs. Frantz was graduated from Greenville High School and is presently employed in Greenville as a bookkeeper.

Mr. Frantz graduated from South Summit High School in Riverton, Utah, and is serving in the U. S. Navy and now stationed at Camp Lejeune.

For traveling the bride chose a purple suit with black patent-leather bag and shoes and a winter white hat and gloves. After a wedding trip to points south the couple will temporarily make their home in Greenville.

Entertain Members Of Women's Club

A program of music by the Greenville High School senior girls' trio was the highlight of a meeting Friday when the Junior Woman's Club entertained members of the Woman's Club at the clubhouse. The trio, composed of Barbara Conway, Annette Dunn and Betty Hedrick, sang three selections—"Silent Night," "Count Your Blessings," and "Let It Snow." Miss Ona Shindler, high school music director, was pianist. Mrs. Tom Vicars, Junior Woman's Club president, was in charge of the program. Guest of honor for the occasion was Mrs. R. P. Rogers, in recognition of her election as president of the 18th District of the N. C. Federation of Women's Clubs. On behalf of friends, Mrs. J. B. Spilman presented her a brief case. Mrs. Clara Moyer Shackell, Woman's Club president, reported that 500 telephone calls were made to Greenville citizens reminding them of Safe Driving Day. Mrs. Vance Perkins, Garden Club president, announced that the club will hold a Christmas show beginning Saturday at 11 a. m. at the Woman's Club and the public is invited to attend. The show will be open until 10 p. m. Saturday, and from 2 p. m. until 6 p. m. Sunday. Mrs. Perkins described one special feature of the show, a "Christmas Shop," where homemade candles, gifts and decorations will be sold. She said there will be no admission charge, but a silver offering to defray expenses will be taken. Mrs. Sam H. Mitchell is chairman of the project. Mrs. James Lafferty, president of the Newcomers Club, sent a check to the Woman's Club to help pay for repairs recently made to the club building. Prior to the program a coffee hour was enjoyed, with the refreshment table featuring decorations in keeping with the Christmas theme.

Clam's Heart Is Factor In Study

DURHAM (AP)—The reactions of a clam heart may provide a clue to the source of migraine headaches, according to a Duke University physician. Dr. E. Charles Kunkle, specialist in neurology and internal medicine, told of the reactions of the clam heart to a powerful body chemical over a nationally telecast medical program (Medical Horizons) last night from the Duke Medical Center here. Dr. Kunkle said the chemical, acetylcholine, is produced by nerve fibers of the body, apparently in order to dilate arteries in certain parts of the body. He added that doctors think arteries in the head swell and contract abnormally during migraine headaches, and suspect acetylcholine may be the culprit. The clam heart, being extremely sensitive to the chemical, reveals if even a tiny amount is present in spinal fluid taken from a patient during a migraine attack. Dr. Kunkle, who appeared along with Dr. Ewald Busse, Duke psychiatrist, admitted this could furnish only indirect evidence as to the action of acetylcholine, and that finding of an antidote to its effects "is a problem for the future."

Graveside Rites Held For Bennie Chambers

Graveside services for Bennie Lundy Chambers, 66, were held at the County Home Burial Plot Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. R. B. Crawford, pastor of the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. Mrs. Chambers died early Saturday night from injuries received when struck by a car on the Bethel highway near House Station. Mr. Chambers was a native of Johnson county and had lived in the House Station community for the past 12 years. He was a farm worker. Surviving is a sister, Mrs. E. L. Coper of Durham.

Plan Amendment To Ass'n Rules

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Law schools rejecting the application of a qualified Negro would be excluded from the Ass'n of American Law Schools, under a proposed amendment to the group's constitution to be offered at its convention in Chicago this month. Philip Mechem, secretary of the association, said a two-thirds vote is needed for amendment. The 110-school membership is drawn from law schools throughout the nation. Mechem said a committee named to study racial discrimination forwarded the proposed amendment to the general membership. The meeting is set for Dec. 28-30. General George Custer's last stand on the little Bighorn took place June 25, 1876.

Full-Time Use Of School Facilities

At the White House education conference last week the proposal to make 12 months use of public school facilities received more attention than it previously has been accorded. The proposal by no means received full approval of those who attended the conference, but at least it was brought to the attention of both school officials and the public through the conference.

As a result, it is only reasonable to expect that further consideration will be given the idea of utilizing public school facilities year-round rather than only nine months as is now the case in most states.

The idea of year-round instruction program in public schools is looked upon at present as a radical proposal. To be sure it is a major change from the present method of operating public schools. But if the demand for school facilities is to be met in the face of rapidly growing numbers of students, it is going to require radical changes in our public school system.

Twelve months use of the present physical facilities of public schools could go a long way toward alleviating the pressure on existing classrooms. Likewise the inauguration of a six-day school week to replace the five-day week could afford better utilization of existing facilities.

It is obvious that such changes in the public school system would bring about many problems which would have to be solved before the transition could be made. More teachers would be required, different school schedules would have to be worked out for students, and in general the entire method of operation would have to be revamped. In all probability it would take at least a year and probably longer to work out the details on paper, and probably twice that long to put the change into effect even on an experimental basis. Yet the proposal appears to have merit and should not be discarded without an exhaustive study by public school officials.

The individual states must find a solution to the growing shortage of public school facilities. While a transition to the 12-months system of operating schools is not likely to solve all the problems, on the surface at least it appears to offer the solution to at least some of the problems now facing schools.

The Reflector would like to see local and state school officials in North Carolina give serious consideration to the proposal.

Somebody Should At Least Start It Going

It was more than a month ago that officials of North Carolina's Department of Conservation took action supporting a move for a joint airport in the eastern section of the state. Since that time there has been no official action by a local governing board in the affected area to indicate local interest in the matter.

If the eastern section of the state is to secure the quality air service it needs and should have, it must come through a joint airport supported by several major communities in the area. The past decade has shown clearly that even the larger of eastern Carolina's cities cannot alone secure the type air service they need.

By its action, the Department of Conservation and Development in effect notified the eastern section of North Carolina it would throw its full resources, behind any effort to develop a joint airport. The Department, with all its resources, cannot, however, take the initial step. That step must come from communities within the eastern part of the state. Once efforts to construct a joint airport in this area are renewed, the Department of Conservation and Development can be looked to for aid.

Greenville, along with Farmville, Rocky Mount and maybe another town could well make the initial step toward new endeavors to bring a joint airport to reality. But if each city waits for the other to take the initiative, there is no telling how long before work toward securing the airport will begin.

As a starting point, Greenville's City Council could reaffirm its interest in a joint airport in this section of the state by passing a resolution expressing appreciation for the action of the Department of Conservation and Development, and appointing a representative to work with other cities in this area in laying the groundwork for such an airport.

In such an airport to give official sanction to new efforts in such an airport to give officials sanction to new efforts to form a joint airport for several municipalities in this section of the state. Until local government support of the project is assured, there is little which can be done toward preparing the frame work through which the airport will be organized and constructed.

While Traffic Safety Stressed, Another Dies

Another fatal highway accident, the 16th during 1955, has been added to Pitt County's highway record.

It brings the total highway deaths for the year in the county to nine more than were recorded last year, and pushes the county record one step closer to an all-time high in highway deaths.

This latest fatality in Pitt County came only two days after S-D Day when there was not a single highway accident recorded in the rural section of the county. It also came during the period when special emphasis has been placed on safe driving throughout the state.

The remaining few weeks of 1955 will be a crucial period in Pitt County's highway record for the year. Highway traffic will be as heavy as at any other time of the year. We have also entered the period of the year when days are shortest and consequently the number of vehicles on highways after dark have increased. It will take a major effort by the motorists of Pitt County, but every possible effort should be made by law enforcement officers and motorists alike to see that the county does not suffer another highway fatality during the remainder of the year.

Unless more care is taken to curtail the rate of slaughter on the highways of the county, 1955 will be marked down as the worst year on record for highway fatalities

Personalities That Are In The Headlines

By LYNN NISBET
I.C.C. — In the turmoil of congressional investigations and justice department activities around Washington such routine items as filling vacancies on the Interstate Commerce Commission are apt to be overlooked by the news correspondents.

The investigations are conducted in a distinctly partisan political atmosphere. Each party is anxious to get publicity favorable to its interests and which can be used as ammunition in the upcoming campaign.

Inquiry among news correspondents and minor government officials, none of whom wanted to be quoted by name elicited information that Edward H. McMahon of the North Carolina Utilities Commission is practically certain to be named to one of the vacancies on the Interstate Commerce Commission. He is expected to get the full seven-year assignment, succeeding Monroe Johnson of South Carolina, whose term expires on December 31.

Already at the top of the list for one of the places, McMahon's prospects were enhanced by the recent resignation of Chairman Hugh W. Cross—which fended the Eisenhower administration another appointment and to some extent diluted pressure from other areas of the country for recognition.

Newsmen and others in Washington contacted by your reporter still confess puzzlement as to how McMahon got at top of the list, but most of them accept as fact he is there. Information is his appointment, effective January 1, will be announced almost any day. It has been cleared all the way through usual channels. There remains only the routine process of getting signatures on the form papers.

CAUDLE — Indictment by a St. Louis Federal grand jury of Lamar Caudle former assistant attorney general, surprised most of the Washington folks your reporter was able to contact. The Wadesboro lawyer, who had been fired by President Truman, has been investigated by congressional committees and other agencies during the past three or four years.

Results of these investigations had seemed to confirm opinion held by most of those who know Caudle that he was naive and inexperienced in the ways of big time operators; that perhaps he had been used by some of his "friends" as a tool, but that he was not conscious of wrong doing. Attitude of the Washington folks who know and like him is to await further evidence before deciding whether his suitability to urging of friends led him to condone illegal actions, or whether his case is being revived at this time for partisan political purposes in the 1956 national campaign.

One reporter suggested that the family name of Caudle might have direct relationship to the dictionary definition of an old English and seldom used word. The dictionary defines "caudle" as "a warm drink made of wine or ale spiced or sugared, and mixed with bread, eggs, etc."—comforting and harmless. Those characteristics, which are common and appreciated in small towns throughout North Carolina and the whole South, do not fit into the cut-throat politics of the national capital, now or several years ago when Lamar Caudle was one of the high ranking officials in the Federal government.

ICE—BREAKER—Ralph Scott has broken the ice with the first positive announcement of candidacy for major office in the 1956 elections. He has declared his purpose to seek the nomination for congress from the sixth district which embraces Alamance, Durham, Guilford and Orange counties.

His challenge was immediately accepted by Carl T. Durham, who has represented the district for the past 16 years. That assures a real contest in the district, with candidates from Durham and Guilford counties likely to join the Alamance and Orange entrants. Dan K. Edwards, former mayor of Durham and later assistant secretary of the army, is rated a likely candidate and there are half a dozen prospects in Guilford.

Guilford is in position to dominate the district especially if the county could unite on one candidate. In the 1954 Democratic primary for congress Guilford cast about 42 per cent of the total district vote—and gave Carl Durham a five to one majority over its own resident, H.C. Sprinkle. In the general election last time Guilford cast 47 per cent of the total vote, about 45 per cent of the Democratic ballots, and gave Carl Durham a two-to-one majority as the Democratic nominee.

Chances are that regardless of who or how many get into the race interest will center largely on Durham and Scott. The fact that Carl Durham has been in Congress for 16 years and is in line for chairmanship of the military affairs committee, with special emphasis on atomic energy and stock-piling of defense materials; and Ralph Scott is a younger brother of U.S. Senator and former Governor Kerr Scott, with a record of three terms in the State Senate in his own right justifies prediction they will attract more attention than other candidates.

Other Editors Are Saying... Truman Likes To Talk

(Henderson Dispatch)
Harry Truman evidently revels in having the spotlight turned upon him by reason of the fact that he is one of the country's only two living former presidents. He likes to talk and likes to get the reaction from what he has to say. But for his status, little attention would be paid to his comments on any subject.

For our part, we think both he and the Democratic party would be better off if he had less to say. He recently advised the nation to pray for peace in this atomic era in world history and we hope he take his own advice to that extent.
But Harry said more "Just recently," he commented, "we had fits over Communists, but there are not enough Communists in the United States to put in your eye." How he arrived at that conclusion would be interesting to know. It is recalled that when congressional investigations during his administration were turning up people like Whitaker Chambers and Alger Hiss, he referred to those developments as a red herring. One wonders exactly what would have to happen to convince the ex-

President that the Communists are infiltrating the government he once headed, are boring into our educational system and reportedly even into our religious faiths.

What would he say about the Rosenbergs, who were executed for treason for turning over military secrets to Russia? Dr. Oppenheimer, who was adjudged a security risk in the Atomic Energy Commission and deprived of his connection with that agency, and others?

Is it a reasonable conclusion that Truman is dealing with his confidence of self-security that he is burying his head in the sand as the ostrich and merely wishing, or if he just chooses to ignore the Red menace that not only lies at our door but is working in our very midst, if evidence that pops out every so often is to be accepted.
Truman isn't making Democratic votes by his much talk. He is only confirming the convictions of those who long ago lost confidence in him in his theories and his leadership, and may even be driving away some who have been inclined to support the party.

An Education In Hitchhiking

Hitchhiking can be a poor man's education.

That statement comes primarily from a 2710 mile tour I embarked on in the tender age of 16. Said Tour encompassed the states of Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Mississippi again, Alabama again, Florida.

From northern Virginia to Greenville was an easy day's journey. The next step however, was a somewhat different story and an omen of things to come.

Heading west from Greenville, I passed through Raleigh, Salisbury, Siler City, Hickory and finally wound up just at sunset in the fringes of the Smoky Mountains. Business was slow and I was picking out a spot in a nearby cornfield to spend the night when a kindhearted traveling salesman picked me up and carried me into Asheville.

Notebook On Life

Will We Lose Gravity, Too?

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone comments of a pavement Plato: Can you recall, as a child, how you liked to stretch out on a small grassy hill, and then roll down it?
Can you remember how, when you reach the bottom, mind reeling, you had a strange feeling of terror that you were about to fly off into space—and how you dug small hands into the sweet-smelling earth and hugged it hard to keep this from happening?

I have this same feeling on reading that the U.S. government is sponsoring research to find a way to counteract gravity. In this battle of science versus gravity I am pretty much on the side of gravity.
Gravity is one of man's oldest and best friends. It may set him down hard occasionally, but at least he knows where it will set him down. But science? I don't know. If science takes over gravity, it is hard to figure where we'll all be set down eventually.

Over the centuries gravity has shown a steady and dependable sense of responsibility. You know what it will do. But who can tell what science will do next? It is as unpredictable as a flea at a dog show.
Gravity was a fact of life long before, as legend has it, an apple dropped on Sir Isaac Newton's noggin. All Newton did was to get up and single-handedly pass the law of gravity.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GREATEST USE OF GIFTS
Some of the most famous bells have been made out of old discarded cannon. The scourge of war would pass over a region and there would be abandoned and broken cannon. And at last the cannon would find their way to the bell-maker's foundry and be melted and be recast as bells. The same iron constituted an instrument of death in one generation and in the next generation cried joyfully to the countryside to come and worship and hear the good news of God's grace.
Things are not good or bad in themselves so much as they are good and bad in their use. Every power given us can be enlisted in the service of God, and every power of body, mind, and soul can be handed over to the service of the devil. Beauty leads some people into happiness and others into unhappiness; it puts some women at the center of a happy home and it leads others into lives of sin. Money makes some men benefactors and other men ravaging wolves. Physical strength leads some men to humane service and other men to violence.

It is the use we make of what we have that really counts. The difference in men is not so much the difference in gifts but the difference in the use they make of whatever gifts they happen to have, be these great or small. And in a world presided over by a sovereign and loving God, the greatest use we can make of gifts is in his service.

This law has been more influential than any statute ever passed by congress.
It has kept the sun and moon and earth in a whirling balance for a time beyond the memory of man. It causes the acorn to drop and be covered by falling trees and thus starts a fresh forest. It holds Clark Gable's ears in place, and is a big factor in keeping Marilyn Monroe in her present pleasant shape. It pulls down the rain and the snow to water the world. It turns mountain rivulets into rivers that swell the mighty sea.
It gives a man confidence that when he stretches out a foot it will rest upon his base instead of floating up and banging his head against the ceiling.

Union Drive In Dixie Meets Opposition

By RAY TUCKER
MIAMI, Fla. — An aggressive drive to unionize the South's burgeoning industries by the newly merged AFL-CIO forces has aroused almost as much concern in this territory as the attempt to force mingling of the white and colored races in public schools and parks.

The anti-segregation movement, if successful, will upset ancient and well-established social patterns. The labor campaign, which stands high on the new union organization's schedule for 1956, will disturb and possibly revolutionize the traditional and somewhat paternal relationship between employees and employers. It threatens the South's current economic gains.

Both threats come at a time when the South is enjoying unprecedented prosperity because of radical changes in manufacturing processes and transportation that offset the former handicap of long hauls to market. Ironically, too from a political standpoint, the leading candidates for the Democratic Presidential nomination have expressed sympathy for both of these disturbing and foreign (that is, northern) invasions.

REUTHER'S PLAN Walter P. Reuther, who will head the industrial organizing unit of the unified labor camp, has long yearned to organize Southern factories, both large and small. It will be a bright feather in his large cap, and possibly entitle him to the presidency of the merged union when George L. Meany retires from that office. Meany is 61. Reuther only 48.
Having obtained the first contract for a modified guaranteed annual wage from the automobile industry—labor's greatest advance in many years—Reuther now looks around for new worlds to conquer. Unionizing the generally unorganized South represents the only major field for fresh triumphs.

OPTIMISM OF TOP LABOR LEADER Meany himself has given the signal to his ambitious aide. In the AFL executive committee's final report before the merger, he devotes considerable space to this project. He says: "This past year (1955), several organizing campaigns were conducted by teams of AFL organizers and national and international union representatives. These campaigns centered mostly in the Southern area of the United States, principally because of the subsidized migration of industry from the Northern states.
"Notwithstanding the odds due to legislation, the press and popular opinion formed through the years, the results of our intensified and progressive organizing in the South have been more than encouraging. The latest report shows the vote for unions is overwhelming the nonunion vote.
"Prospects for the future appear excellent for a clear-cut change for successful organizing results in the South."
SPECIFIC AIMS With greatly increased funds and hundreds of additional walking delegates, Reuther and Meany seek certain specific aims. They will try to defeat or repeal right-to-work closed-shop laws. They demand a $1.25 hourly minimum wage, as against the current $1 through court action, they want the Federal Contract Law providing higher pay to be broadened so that it will affect vast areas instead of restricted localities. ## Surge Of Sales Is Promising

By ELMER ROESSNER

Nothing short of catastrophic weather can now prevent Christmas shopping from setting a new record this season. The surge of sales since Thanksgiving has begun to fulfill some of the most extravagant expectations.

Earlier forecasts that total retail sales in December may be close to 20 billion now seem better than ever.

New sales record for a single day may be set in many metropolitan areas today and these records may be topped again next Saturday. While store traffic may be even greater on December 17, most merchants do not expect another sales record. By that time the big-ticket gifts will have been largely purchased and shoppers will be concentrating on the small end of their gift lists.

CONFIDENCE BEGETS CONFIDENCE

Sales are high for three reasons: 1. Personal income is at the highest level it has ever been. On a basis of government statistics, income per household may now be at a rate of $5,750 a year.

2. Confidence is high. Few people are beset by economic fears; most are willing to spend both ready cash and to pledge future income in installment purchases.

3. Merchants, realizing the first two points, have extended their stocks and stepped up advertising programs. The wide selection of goods in most stores today, plus vigorous promotions, is activating the urge to buy.

Retailers entered the holiday season with more unalloyed optimism than in any previous year. The National Retail Dry Goods Association surveyed 211 stores, with an aggregate annual sales volume of more than $2 billion. Of these, 19 per cent expect Christmas sales to be even with a year ago, 28 per cent look for a 5 per cent increase, 18 per cent are planning on a 10 per cent rise and 35 per cent are counting on gains of 11 to 20 per cent.

Not a single store reported that it expected a drop. Of these, 19 per cent expect Christmas sales to be even with a year ago, 28 per cent look for a 5 per cent increase, 18 per cent are planning on a 10 per cent rise and 35 per cent are counting on gains of 11 to 20 per cent.

Man Questioned In Triple Slaying

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—Authorities today questioned a 23-year-old Michigan man arrested on a traffic violation charge in connection with the October slaying of three Chicago boys.

Police Chief James Parker of nearby Holly, who arrested him, and two state police detectives said there was no evidence to link Owen Robert Moser of Fenton, Mich., with the slaying.

Moser is held in Oakland County Jail on a charge of possessing an unregistered firearm. Parker said he found the gun in Moser's car when he arrested him on the traffic charge Saturday.

Parker said Chicago police were "mistaken" in reporting he had told them Moser had signed a statement admitting the triple slaying and added, "I don't know where they got that idea."

Moser has admitted he was in the Chicago area about the time the boys disappeared, and he has admitted picking up two or maybe three boys and taking them for a ride, Parker said. "We think he may know more than he's telling, but that's all he has told us."

The three boys — Robert Peterson, 14, John Schuessler, Jr., 13, and his brother Anton, 11 — disappeared Oct. 16. Their bodies were found in a forest preserve ditch Oct. 18.

Parker said Moser admitted living in a rooming house in Homewood, Ill., 25 miles south of Chicago, and working in a coffee shop there from January to mid-October, when he left for Fenton, Mich. State Police Detectives Charles Lelf and Melvin Kaufman said he specifically denied any connection with the triple slaying.

Georgia Governor, Head Of Georgia Tech 'At Odds'

ATLANTA (AP)—The governor of Georgia and the president of Georgia Tech were at odds today after a decision by Georgia's Board of Regents to permit Tech to play Pittsburgh in the Sugar Bowl.

"Pitt was a Negro player on its squad."

The office of Gov. Marvin Griffin charged President Blake Van Leer of Tech failed to consult the governor before accepting the Sugar Bowl bid for Jan. 2.

Ben Wiggins executive secretary to Griffin also said the governor felt Van Leer acted "properly" to handle students who staged a riot early Saturday in protest against Griffin's request that Tech be pulled from the Sugar Bowl.

Van Leer replied that he had informed Griffin Nov. 26 that Tech intended to accept a Sugar Bowl invitation if it was offered. He declared the governor said that was "fine."

Concerning the student demonstration, Van Leer said: "I suppose I get paid for being the goat on things like that."

The Tech president promised to investigate the demonstration and expressed "deep regret" at the occasion of Tech students who participated.

The verbal tiff came only a few hours after the Board of Regents yesterday rejected the governor's request to remove Tech from the Sugar Bowl on the racial issue.

The board at the same time set up a racial policy for athletic teams that are members of the university system of Georgia. It provided:

1. That in out-of-state games Tech, Georgia and other units of
2. That in the state of Georgia itself there will be no mixed teams or mixed audiences.
3. That "no contract or agreement shall be entered into for an athletic contest in any state where the circumstances under which it is fulfilled are repugnant to the laws customs and traditions of the host state."

Charles J. Bloch of Macon, Ga., head of the regents' Education Committee, which prepared the policy resolution, said no team of the university system could take part in a nonsegregated game in the Sugar Bowl after Jan. 2, 1956, because Louisiana laws and customs call for segregation.

Griffin said the regents decided to permit Tech to play next month in the Sugar Bowl because of a "prior contract." He commended the board for a strong resolution which he said "will prevent breaches in Georgia's traditions in the future."

Little League Court Hearing Set Tomorrow

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP)—A hearing is set in federal court here tomorrow on a plea by Little League, Inc., for a permanent injunction to prevent Carl E. Stotz, former Little League commissioner, from setting up a rival organization.

Last Rites Thursday For James T. Adams

James Thomas Adams, retired farmer, 94, died at his home Tuesday morning at 8:30.

Funeral services will be held at the home Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be in the Mack Smith cemetery at Shelburne.

He was a son of the late Martha Briley Adams and Thomas Blout Adams of Pitt County. He was married to Miss Mary Hodges in 1880.

Surviving are five sons, Bill, Ernest, Howard and Hyman Adams; 17 grandchildren, 46 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

Federal Judge Frederick V. Pollmer issued a temporary restraining order yesterday, repeating an earlier suggestion that Stotz and Little League officials try to settle by arbitration rather than in court.

"All I am interested in," said the judge, "is saving Little League baseball for the youth of America."

Stotz, fired last month from his $14,000-a-year job with Little League, has filed a $300,000 breach-of-contract suit. He later announced the opening of "Original Little League" headquarters in Williamsport, Va.

Burley Tobacco Prices Continue Record Levels

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Tennessee's burley tobacco growers happily lined their pockets with Christmas spending money today as their leaf continued to bring fat prices at the auction centers.

Roger'sville, in upper east Tennessee, reported the state's top unofficial price average yesterday, $60.50 per hundredweight on 302,818 pounds handled. This was $4.72 above last week's statewide average.

Nearly all markets reporting shared in the price rise. The lowest average reported was $55.59 at Clarksville, a gain of $2.81 from last week.

Greenville, as it has all seasons, led in volume, moving 730,590 pounds at an average of $59.21 per hundred.

N. C. Docks See More Tonnage Of Cargo Moved

The monthly report of Col. Richard S. Marr, executive director of the State Ports Authority, reveals that 217,590 cargo tons had been moved here through last month. The total for all of 1954 was 104,837 tons.

Eighteen ships called here in November, the largest number for any one month.

Import tonnage last month was boosted by shipments of Philippine mahogany, guano and steel products. Big export items included scrap, wood pulp and dried milk.

Gains, Losses On Market Balanced

RALEIGH (AP)—Price gains and losses were about balanced on the cured tobacco markets of the North Carolina-Virginia Old Belt yesterday. Light to medium sales volume was reported.

The Federal-State Market News Service said 11,554,786 pounds was sold on the belt last week at an average of $52.31 per 100 pounds, a drop of 59 cents from the previous week.

Dec. 16 was named as the closing date for the South Boston, Va., and Richmond Markets. Only Greensboro has not announced a closing date.

Honus Wagner Dies In His Sleep

PITTSBURGH (AP)—John (Honus) Wagner, 81, all-time great shortstop who became a legend in his lifetime died in his sleep today.

Members of the family were at the bedside when he passed away at his suburban Carnegie home, only a few miles from Forbes Field, where he achieved lasting fame with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"He just slept away," a member of the family said.

Wagner had been in poor health several years. Two months ago he slipped and fell in his home. He had been bedfast since and went into a coma about 10 days ago. The family said his death was the result of complications from the infirmities of old age.

Wagner, sometimes called the greatest player in baseball history, was a bandy-legged barrel-chested Dutchman. He finished a 21-year major league career in 1917 with a lifetime batting average of .329. His final public appearance was last April 30 at Schenley Park.

He began his baseball career when another brother Al Wagner got him an offer of $35 monthly to play for a Steubenville, Ohio, ball club.

Wagner's agility in the field and sharp batting eye soon became known throughout the baseball world. He was with a Paterson, N. J., club in 1897 when Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Louisville (Ky.) Colonels purchased his contract for $2,200. Three years later Dreyfuss moved his National franchise to Pittsburgh and Wagner went with him.

After his retirement as a player, Wagner operated a sporting goods store in Pittsburgh for several years. In the '30s he returned to the Pirates as a coach and served until the club put him on pension in the winter of 1951.

His widow, the former Bessie Smith and two daughters survive.

Saxton Hiked To Top Rank In Ring

NEW YORK (AP)—Johnny Saxton of New York, Duilio Loi of Italy and Fred Galiana of Spain were elevated today to top ranking in their divisions in the latest boxing ratings of Ring magazine.

Saxton, an ex-champion, replaced another deposed welterweight king, Tony DeMarco of Boston in the No. 1 contender's berth in the 147-pound class. DeMarco, who was stopped last Wednesday for the second time by champion Carmen Basilio, dropped to third. Basilio was named "Fighter of the Month" by Editor Nat Fleischer.

Loi, who recently defended his European lightweight title and has a long victory streak alive, was made the leading challenger for champion Wallace (Bud) Smith. Jimmy Carter, the ex-champ, was demoted to second.

Galiana who captured the European featherweight crown from France's Ray Famechon, jumped from eighth to first among the challengers of 126-pound ruler Sandy Saddler.

France's Charley Humez moved back from third to second among the middleweights while Argentina's slugging 160-pounder Eduardo (KO) Lausse, climbed from fourth to third.

The retirement of Toronto's Earl Walls and the defeat of Germany's Heinz Neuhaus by light heavyweight Gerhard Hecht created two vacancies in the heavyweight class. They were filled by Johnny Summerlin, Detroit, in seventh place and Harold Carter, Linden, N. J., in the ninth spot. Ezzard Charles, former heavyweight king, was dropped to eighth.

Other heavyweight ratings behind champion Rocky Marciano were (1) Archie Moore, (2) Bob Baker, (3) Nino Valdes, (4) Tommy Jackson, (5) Jimmy Slade, (6) Johnny Holman and (10) Franco Cavicchi.

ECC Swimmers Stun Two Out Of Three Big Foes

East Carolina's swimming team began its 1955-56 season last Thursday with a three-day road excursion that brought Pirate victories over Wofford (59-25) and Davidson (43-41) and a defeat at the hands of a powerful Clemson squad (52-32).

The two-year-old Buccaneer organization, vastly improved, placed in every event of the three contests. Coach Raymond Martinez called the trip "successful" and pointed out that the team had already bettered last year's record.

Against Wofford, the Bucs stole the show, taking every event except the diving trials. Pirate aquamen won the 300 yard medley relay, the 220 free-style, the 50 yard dash, the 220 individual medley, the 100 yard dash, the 200 yard backstroke, the 440 free-style, the 200 yard 20 lbyczcz mr735aes 6.

breast stroke and the 400 yard free-style relay. "We had enough points by the time the meet was half over, to win," stated Martinez, "so we didn't use any of our top boys in the diving events."

In the Davidson match, East Carolina swimmers racked up points in the opening medley and 220 free-style events, then made a clean sweep of the back-stroke and breast-stroke contests. Winning these four events, the Pirates had the tilt in the bag and had chalked up victory number two before action had proceeded in every event and every man on the squad participated.

Freshmen shine

Harold McKee, a freshman, stunned the Davidson aggregation by taking two first places. In the 220 and the 440, McKee was well ahead of the fold. Another freshman, Ken Migette from Oriental, took first place diving honors with several beautiful and difficult performances from the board. "This boy," claims Coach Martinez, "is positively amazing! The only diving he ever did before coming to East Carolina

Bucs Looking To Meet With Powerful Phillips "66" Oilers

Coach Howard Porter, with tongue in cheek, said he hopes to put on a good show against the Phillips "66" Oilers Thursday night in Wilmington.

"They're one of the greatest aggregations in basketball," he commented, "and our boys will be seeing their calibre for the first time."

Yesterday, the Pirates worked hard and long and are placing much importance on the game. Under the direction of Porter and Earl Smith, the cagers, winners over Guilford 77-67 Saturday night in the opener, worked on their shooting and fast break.

Captain J. C. Thomas and company seemed anxious to meet the Oilers. They know they'll be riding in fast company and just hope to keep within talking distance. "Why they beat Wake Forest some 25 points last year," Thomas said resolutely.

Don Harris, the Bucs' talented forward, said, "I want to see 6-11 Darling (Chuck) in action. He was a two-time All-America and two-time All-AAU."

Porter hasn't anybody to counter with the Oilers height. The AAU champions can field a five averaging 6-7. The Bucs will rely on speed to make the game close.

There is a hot duel brewing at one of the Bucs' guard positions. Freddie James of Churchland, Va. started against Guilford but Tim Smothers, a freshman giant, saw extensive action there in relief. Porter commented after the game that Smothers had shown him more than he had expected. The 6-5 Reidsville product canned six points and his rebounding was instrumental in the victory.

ECC's fine forward combo of Harris and Nick Nichols continued to pace the attack in yesterday drill. Both recorded 16 points in the opener and were sparkling on defense. Nichols had a hard time getting started in that one, but soon found the range. At one time, he hit three baskets in a row.

Porter said today that he intends to substitute freely to let everyone play. Marlon Hales, second string forward, will be returning to his home for the first time since his high school days. He co-captained the New Hanover Bulldogs to the state AAA crown back in 1950-51.

The Bucs can't afford to put too much stress on the Oiler game. They have two tough North State Conference games coming up here this weekend with Catawba Friday night and Lenoir Rhyne Saturday night.

"We won't sacrifice a conference game just to beat the Oilers if we thought we had a chance," Porter said. "Catawba could be tougher than folks think and there's no doubt as to the potency of the Lenoir Rhyne crew."

Sugar Ray Has Edge On Bo'jo In Coming Fight

CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, the 35-year-old challenger, may be the underdog, but he has some psychological advantage in his middleweight title bout with champion Carl (Bobo) Olson Friday night.

Youth prevails for Olson, who has an eight-year age edge at 27, a factor making him a 3-1 favorite.

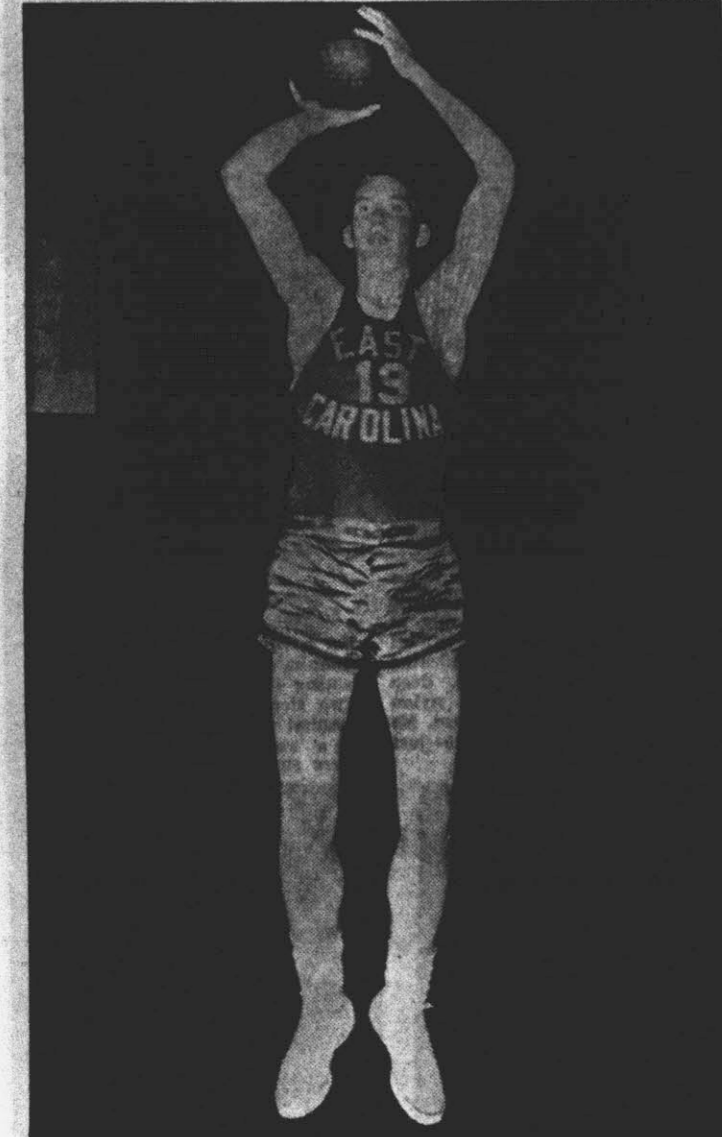

Yet Robinson approaches the balding titleholder from San Francisco and all that his domestic scene is tranquil.

Olson has been training for his fourth title defense with his wife seeing a divorce, certainly a disturbing circumstance although the stoical Bobo doesn't know it. Robinson is here with his wife and 6-year-old son.

Furthermore, Olson still has to convince a lot of experts that Archie Moore didn't hurt more than his jaw with a third-round knock-out in Olson's abortive attempt to capture the 176-pound crown.

Olson has had two 10-round victories over a pair of journeymen pros, Jimmy Martinez and Joey Giambra, since that blasting by Moore. Bobo looked anything but impressive against Giambra, taking a close decision.

Olson's loss to Moore at New York last June 2 was only the second time in his career he has been knocked out. The other time was by Sugar Ray, who halted Bobo in the 12th round of their first meeting at Philadelphia Oct. 26, 1950.

IMPRESSED COACH—Tim Smothers of Reidsville impressed Coach Howard Porter with his performance against Guilford Saturday night. The 6-5 freshman will see action against the Phillips Oilers in Wilmington Thursday night.

UCLA Fined For False Pretenses

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—UCLA was fined $1,000 yesterday by the Pacific Coast Conference for "enticing an athlete under false pretenses."

It was the maximum fine possible. The athlete was not named. H. P. Everest, University of Washington faculty representative and PCC spokesman, said the Bruins athletic department offered an academic scholarship to a prospective athlete. The student enrolled but didn't get the scholarship, he said.

The conference athletic directors and faculty representatives ruled that UCLA had made an unauthorized pledge. Athletic departments may not offer academic scholarships, which the university itself must process.

San Francisco Bids For Basketball Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Free-wheeling San Francisco, bidding for a second straight NCAA basketball championship after soaring out of virtual obscurity a year ago, gained an overwhelming vote of confidence today from the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

The Dons, first in the Associated Press preseason poll, were again rated the nation's No. 1 team.

They won both their games last week and stretched their winning streak to 28.

San Francisco's 63 first-place votes gave them almost a 200-point edge over second-place Kentucky. The Dons collected 1,023 points, figured on a basis of 10 for first, 9 for second etc. Kentucky pulled in 847, North Carolina State 550.

Kentucky, with a 1-0 record, and N. C. State with a 2-0 mark each gained seven first-place votes. Iowa, the defending Big Ten champ and 1-0 to date, polled 10 first-place votes, but fell down in the other listings to finish fourth, just two points behind the Wolf-pack.

Utah, Alabama, Dayton, Illinois, Duquesne and Brigham Young round out the top 10. Only the Illinois have yet to make a debut and that's scheduled for tonight against Butler.

Duquesne the NIT champ got started last night, thumping Carnerpie Tech 61-25.

Seven of the top 10 are holdovers from last season's final poll, which listed San Francisco, Kentucky, LaSalle, N. C. State, Iowa, Duquesne, Utah, Marquette, Dayton and Oregon State.

The leaders with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. San Francisco (63) 1,023
2. Kentucky (7) 847
3. N. C. State (7) 550
4. Iowa (10) 548
5. Utah 506
6. Alabama (12) 275
7. Dayton 224
8. Illinois 221
9. Duquesne 220
10. Brigham Young 132

The Second 10:

11. Holy Cross 124
12. Oklahoma City (10) 121
13. George Washington 112
14. Marquette 86
15. West Virginia 86

ACE—Kenneth Migette, a freshman from Oriental, sparked Pirate divers to victory at Davidson last weekend, and was outstanding against Clemson and Wofford.

Trouble At Clemson

After disposing of Davidson and Wofford (both of which soundly trounced ECC last season) the Bucs moved on to Clemson. The South Carolina Warriors were extremely powerful last year, losing only once to N. C. State and once to North Carolina. Clemson had the same team back this season and experience served to bring them a win over the Bucs.

The South Carolinians took the opening medley and the 400 free-style to earn enough points for a triumph. East Carolina boys placed or won every other event, and completely shut out their hosts in the breast stroke competition. The sensational duo of Frank Moore and Jack Koeberling racked up their third consecutive sweep, both boys finishing the event 10 yards ahead of the nearest Clemson man.

New Baylor Grid Coach Thrilled

WACO, Tex. (AP)—Sam Boyd who said "I'm the luckiest son-of-a-bitch that ever lived to get this job" took over as head football coach of Baylor University, his alma mater, today.

He succeeded George Sauer, who retired from coaching but will continue as athletic director. Boyd was given a three-year contract at an undisclosed salary.

In a move so sudden it left Boyd virtually speechless, the Athletic Committee of the university yesterday voted unanimously to elevate Boyd from end coach to head coach and to meet Sauer's request that he be relieved of part of his dual job as coach and athletic director.

Dr. W. R. White, president of Baylor, said Sauer made the request prior to the football game with Southern Methodist Nov. 19. But it had been a well-guarded secret.

Boyd, 41, was a star end on Baylor teams of 1936, 1937 and 1938 and the passing combination of Billy Patterson to Sam Boyd wrote bright history in Golden Bear grid-iron annals. In 1938 he caught 44 passes from Patterson.

He became Baylor freshman coach in 1950 and in four years compiled a record of 16 victories in 20 games, having an undefeated team in 1953.

Sauer, who has a five-year contract starting next year was coach of Baylor for six seasons, showing a record of 38 victories, 19 defeats and 3 ties.

Wallace Wade Is Rose Bowl Guest

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Wallace Wade of Durham, N. C. will be among a group of Brown University football alumni who will attend the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., on Jan. 2.

Wade was a guard on the 1915 Brown team which lost 0-14 to Washington State in the first Rose Bowl game 40 years ago.

Brown University said expectees of the Brown and Washington State 1915 team members and their wives will be paid by the Rose Bowl and Tournament of Roses committees.

Eradication Of TB In Pitt Said Not Impossible

"With the continued cooperation of all the people we can eradicate tuberculosis from Pitt County in 20 years." Thus stated Pitt Health Director Dr. Walter C. Humbert this week, as he described the emphasis now being placed by health authorities on eradication of diseases, especially communicable diseases. "Inasmuch as TB is a No. 1 communicable disease problem in Pitt County we are going to single it out for eradication in man and in cattle within the next 20 years," Dr. Humbert declared. The health director noted that the idea of eradication of TB by a group of determined people is not a goal that cannot be attained. "Rabies has been completely eradicated in animals in England, Australia and New Zealand by complete cooperation of all the people and by strict quarantine laws. It is true these lands are islands, and therefore have better control measures, but in a sense this hemisphere is an island and if everyone truly and sincerely desires to rid this land of pestilence it can be done." Dr. Humbert continued "As I look at it here in Pitt County, with the great work being done by everyone here in fighting TB, if we all continue to work together for detection, cure of patients and careful watching of all suspects, it is not wishful thinking to state that in 20 years, or by 1975, we could eradicate TB from Pitt County. If all the people around us did the same, we could eradicate TB from this state and from the nation." He noted that with the development of cure and prevention for so many diseases that the challenge today is no longer control of a disease, "but complete eradication."

Blames Bird For His Severe Cold

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — A man says a bird gave him a cold

He was a passenger on a bus whose windshield was broken when a guinea hen crashed through. He said the glass of the hen struck him and caused "great pain and suffering." He also alleged he got a severe cold from drafts through the windshield. He sued the bus company for $2,500.

Bank Financed A Stage Coach

LA MARQUE, Tex. (AP) — The La Marque State Bank is probably the only bank in the nation with a mortgage on a stagecoach. The bank advanced the money so that the La Marque Junior Sheriff's posse, an organization of boys and girls between the ages of 7 and 14, could buy a 12-year-old stagecoach for use in parades.

Taipei Booms, Confidence High

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—There is a great building boom in and around Taipei and property values are rising steadily. The reason is a popular belief that the Communists never will be able to seize Formosa and that the Reds will not dare bomb with the U.S. 7th Fleet guarding it. Despite the frenzy of building, the housing shortage remains acute in Taipei. It has a population of 700,000 compared with 200,000 at the time the Nationalists took over from Japan in 1945. It is possible for a mentally deficient woman to have a child of normal intelligence.

Fess Parker Happy Crockett Fad Dying

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD — The Davy Crockett craze is on the wane, and nobody could be happier about it than Fess Parker. He says. Observers of juvenile fancies can tell you that large numbers of the younger set have abandoned their coon skin hats for the mouse-ear hats of the Mickey Mouse Club or other fads. Although interest in Davy Crockett has by no means died, it no longer is at the white heat it reached earlier this year. "I'm just as happy about that," said Fess Parker, Walt Disney's personification of the king of the wild frontier. "What's this? Could Fess hate Davy?" "Gosh, no," he replied. "I could never hate Davy Crockett. Not when Mr. Disney gave me 10 per cent of the sales of Davy Crockett merchandise. Not when my record of 'The Ballad of Davy Crockett' sold 1,200,000 copies. "No sir, I couldn't be mad at Davy. Why I've got a new house up in Benedict Canyon. You might say it was the house that Davy built." But, as a practicing actor, Fess knows that a career based on a fad cannot last. That has been discovered by many others who have known flash fame, from Frank Sinatra to Hopalong Cassidy. "It has been said that I helped contribute to the demise of Hopalong Cassidy," Fess observed. "In return, I would be happy to step aside for something new like the Mickey Mouse Club. It seems to me that Mr. Disney has something real good there, a show that can develop the Mickey Roneys and Judy Garlands of the future." He told how he had observed the decline of enthusiasm for Davy. "Fan mail fell off although it bounced up to previous highs when Fess appeared in the keel boat episode on Disneyland a few weeks ago. He'll have another new chapter on TV Dec. 14. What has changed is the children's attitude toward him. "I noticed it when I was in the parade at Disneyland for the opening of the Christmas circus," he remarked. "It wasn't an apathy by any means; there was real interest on their part. But it wasn't the wild reaction that I used to get."

American Health Good Last Year, Better In 1956

NEW YORK, N.Y.—In 1955 the health record of the American people appears to be exceptional, according to the statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who base their statement on the experience so far this year. Furthermore, it is stated, the outlook for 1956 is also very favorable.

The death rate for the year, 9.2 per 1,000 of population in the United States, will be about equal to that for 1954, which was the lowest on record. This marks the eighth successive year for which the death rate for the country has been below 10 per 1,000 population. In 1945, only one decade ago, the death rate was 10.6 per 1,000 population, one-sixth above the level for 1955.

A notable feature of the 1955 record is another substantial reduction in mortality from tuberculosis. For the first time the death rate from this disease will have been somewhat less than 10 per 100,000 of the population. This represents a decline of about one-tenth from the previous year. Just one decade ago, in 1945, the tuberculosis death rate was almost four times the 1955 level.

Mortality from influenza and pneumonia continued at a low level in 1955. Although there have been outbreaks of influenza within the last decade, the general trend of mortality has been sharply downward. In 1945 the death rate from these conditions was 47 per 100,000 population, not far from double the present figure.

In 1955 there were about 29,000 cases of poliomyelitis in the country, compared with about 39,000 for the year before. For most of 1955 the weekly incidence of the disease was below that for 1954. The margin between the two was most appreciable during the summer and early fall months, the period of the year when the incidence of the disease mounts rapidly.

Among the communicable diseases of childhood, there was an appreciable reduction in the number of reported cases of measles. For scarlet fever there was little change from the year before, but there was an appreciable rise for whooping cough. The number of reported cases from diphtheria, already at a relatively low level, continued to decline. The combined death rate from these conditions of childhood was under 1 per 100,000 population during the year.

The 1955 mortality record for the major chronic diseases was about the same as that for 1954, according to the statisticians.

There was little change in the death rate from cancer, which continues to account for about one-sixth of the total mortality, the statisticians note. On the other hand, the death rate from the cardiovascular-renal diseases showed a small rise, practically all of which occurred in mortality from coronary artery disease. There was practically no change in the death rate from diabetes.

The accident fatality rate during 1955 was practically as favorable as in 1954. The record for occupational accidents was about the same in the two years, but home accidents showed a moderate decline. In contrast, the death rate from motor vehicle injuries rose. The suicide rate in 1955 increased somewhat, but that for homicides dropped slightly.

Infant mortality continued to improve in 1955 and the rate will be about 26 per 1,000 live births, a new low for the United States. "One decade ago, in 1945, the rate was almost 50 percent higher," the statisticians report. "Maternal mortality during 1955 remained near the low level of the year before, somewhat over 5 per 10,000 live births. In contrast, the rate for 1945 was just four times as high. The record for improvement in infant and maternal mortality is particularly significant in view of the high birth rate in the postwar era."

Commenting on the favorable health record for 1955, the statisticians note that the American people are particularly health conscious.

"With the rapid growth of hospital, surgical, and medical care insurance," they point out, "increasing numbers are giving early attention to signs of illness, thus securing the advantages of early diagnosis and treatment."

Fall Convention Set In New Bern

Jehovah's witnesses "The New World Society", will be holding their fall convention in New Bern on December 9, 10, 11 at the Shriners Hall, it was announced today by the local presiding minister, Mr. W. E. Manning.

Mr. Manning said, "This three-day convention will be in answer to many people on 'What is a Qualified Minister?' All of Jehovah's witnesses who have dedicated their lives to Jehovah God are ministers, but the thousands that are daily becoming witnesses do not fully understand what it means to be a 'Qualified Minister', which is the theme of our convention."

On Friday evening of the assembly, at which hundreds from Eastern Carolina will be attending, the witnesses will discuss from the Holy Bible why Christ said it was lawful to do good works on the sabbath. After several Bible sermons have been given and readings from the Bible the witnesses will be instructed as to what it means to live a Christian life every day.

Saturday morning will find the witnesses calling from door-to-door, in the assembly city, giving three-to-eight minute sermons on world conditions and the Bible's answer for their remedy. At this time they will also be inviting everyone who would like to see this evil world pass away and God's kingdom by Christ Jesus set up to hear the highlight sermon of the convention, "Overcoming the Fears of This Generation," by E. A. Dunlap, the convention supervisor. The afternoon will find them assembled at the Shriners Hall for a baptismal service. Saturday evening will resume the gathering to hear sermons and see demonstrations performed on "Right Kind of Ministers."

Mr. Manning invites everyone in and around Greenville to come to all the services for the three days as there will be neither admission charges or collection plates passed. He put great emphasis on the invitation to hear the main talk on Sunday at 3 p.m.

Blight Of Drug Addiction Costing American Millions, Ruining Lives

Editor's Note — By the most conservative estimate, dope is costing Americans something like 350 million dollars a year. But that doesn't include the deadly tally in shattered, twisted lives, in crime associated with the craving for drugs. Here's the story behind plans for a congressional probe of the whole problem, first in a series of three stories.

By ROGER D. GREENE
WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Federal agents were puzzled. They had reason to suspect the Pon Wal, smiling, 64-year-old operator of the Fragrant Flower Garden Shop in San Francisco's Chinatown, was peddling the white death called heroin.

But how?

Day after day, U. S. Treasury agents watched "on Wal" delicately moving among his flowers. Customers were few. None were known addicts. None was of a type to arouse suspicion.

Pon Wal knew he was being watched. He nodded and smiled blandly at the agents as they passed his shop. Occasionally, in plain view of the T-men, he wrapped an expensive orchid corsage or a dozen roses and summoned a commercial messenger boy to deliver the package.

Agents stopped the messengers and searched them. Nothing. They examined the packages. Nothing through Chinatown, the agents again went through the routine of intercepting a messenger and examining the box of flowers.

"Roses, nothing but roses," one of the federal men growled. Then he gave a low whistle.

They flocks of white powder had spilled down the stem of one of the roses. Cautiously attached to the stem was a thin green capsule. The T-man wet his finger, touched it to the powder, tasted it and grimaced.

"Heroin—pure heroin. Let's go!"

Thus, through long surveillance, federal operatives found the evidence needed to arrest Pon Wal and eight confederates in a multi-million-dollar narcotics ring that had been smuggling heroin into the United States from Red China.

Locked in a constant battle of wits with international dope smugglers, agents of the Federal Narcotic Bureau and the U. S. Customs Service share the almost impossible task of trying to keep illicit drugs—opium, heroin, cocaine, morphine and marijuana—out of this country.

Drug addiction is a blight that the government estimates costs 350 million dollars a year, while twisting and wrecking the lives of thousands of the victims it has "hooked."

Harry J. Anslinger, chief of the Federal Narcotics Bureau, calls the habit "murder on the installment plan." It ravages body and soul, reducing its victims to a zombie-like existence of living death. That's the human side.

Financially, it is a devastating drain on the nation's economy. Here's why: The narcotics bureau estimates that the country has 60,000 addicts—a figure that other sources say is far too low. Even using the conservative figure, this still adds up to a whopping 330 million dollars a year just to buy drugs.

That's because federal authorities say it costs an addict $15 to $60 a day to satisfy his craving, or a minimum of around $5,500 a year. But this isn't the whole

Can Laugh Now, On Losing Plate

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky. (AP)—It wasn't funny then, but Sam Hundley laughs now about losing his lower plate and coughing it up five weeks later.

He swallowed the false teeth when he suffered a stroke.

Rundley's difficulty in eating and drinking was blamed on the stroke until a coughing spell and a pounding on the back by his wife brought them up.

Dr. C. A. Wood said the chompers apparently had lodged in his esophagus.

Quality Made Up For Quantity

WALTERS, Okla. (AP)—Quality can't make up for a lack in quantity—even in a whisky raid.

Sheriff Bill Dyer netted only 45 drops of whisky when he trapped a bootlegger on a dead-end road. But the sheriff said the quality of the liquor was much better than the usual "red label" seized.

Can Laugh Now, On Losing Plate

That means the original ounce of heroin, costing $60 in Hong Kong, will be sold to addicts in Washington for $8,750—a tidy profit of 14,600 per cent.

The vastly inflated price of dope is a tribute to the job the narcotics bureau, and police in big cities, are doing to hold down smuggling and peddling. But no authority has any illusions about enforcing an air-tight defense.

Officials say they sometimes lie awake nights thinking what might happen if international traffickers could find a major breach and exploit it long enough to flood the country with dope from Red China.

In pre-Communist days, China executed 1,000 dope peddlers a year in efforts to stamp out opium addiction. But only recently, Communist China offered to sell 500 tons—a million pounds—of heroin on the open market.

Anslinger says he is convinced the Reds are trying to unload vast quantities of the poison in this country in return for American dollars needed to strengthen the wobbly Peiping regime.

Anslinger's agents concentrate on breaking up dope rings inside this country. The Customs Service has the responsibility of stopping smuggling, and it's an enormous task.

Staff Elected For High School Paper

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland School

Last Monday the first paper staff meeting of this school year was held, under the supervision of Mrs. Dorothy Hardy. Last year's editor, Edna Flake, presided at the meeting and the staff was elected by everyone interested in newspaper work.

Those elected were: editor, Joan Flake; co-editor, Dorothy Harris; business manager, Shirley Clark; circulation manager, Yvonne McLawhorn; art editor-in-chief, Shirley Garris; sport editors, Julie Lewis and Harold Harris; religious editor, Minnie Anderson; creative editor, Grace Lloyd; joke editor, Joyce Jenkins; community news editors, Christine Joyner and Anne Harris; chief reporter, Florence Harrell; printers, JoAnn Harrington and Margaret Mae.

Publication of the Christmas edition of "The Clapper" is already underway.

chicken filled the air of the home ec cottage Thursday when the FHA officers of the Belvoir chapter enjoyed an appetizing meal during lunch hour. The menu included fried chicken, creamed potatoes, butter beans, snap beans, tossed salad, rolls and butter, tea or coffee, and chocolate pie.

Purpose of this luncheon meeting was to discuss the business of the club. The officers decided to buy curtains and blinds for the kitchen in the cottage, and they discussed other minor business.

Those present for the luncheon were officers: Linda Lou Garris, president; Sheila Wooten, vice president; Iris Smith, secretary; Evonne McLawhorn, treasurer; Shirley Clark, historian; Barbara Jenkins, parliamentarian; Dorothy Harris, devotional leader; Anne Harris, reporter; and the club advisor, Mrs. Dorothy Gurganus.

The juniors are selling a new, filtered type of light bulb to make money for their senior trip. We are truly sorry that one of the juniors, Virginia Pollard, will not be with us until after Christmas, due to an attack of rheumatic fever. Virginia has to stay in bed at all times, so she would be glad for any of you to visit her. If anyone wants to send her a card or write to her, her address is Route 6, Box 165, Greenville.

The juniors sponsored the Carolina Partners in the Belvoir-Falkland auditorium on November 30. Although it was rather chilly, everyone enjoyed the songs just the same. They are looking forward to the day when their class rings arrive.

Another six weeks have elapsed which means we have received those dreadful "tattle-tale" report cards that have caused much worry for the students who had hoped to improve their scholastic standings.

Not all students worried for there were this time, as every time, those

Top 10 Financial Stories Of Year Stirred Public

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Ten business stories above all others captured the public's fancy in 1955. They moved out of the financial section and into the front page.

Here — just one man's opinion — are the 10 top business and financial stories of the year:

1. The amazing business boom. Most people thought 1955 would be a good year. But few foresaw how good it would be. Production records fell in many lines — steel, electric power, autos, oil, rubber. Consumer spending, backed by record incomes, went to new heights. But so did consumer debt. More people had jobs than ever before and got better pay. Business optimism grew as the year went along. Expansion plans show business betting billions on the future.
2. The Ford stock sale. The last of the giant family-owned companies announced it would let the public buy voting stock — but will retain practical control within the family.
3. The stock market's wild year. The bull market was severely buffeted several times. Early in the year the public were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Jersey Standard Oil, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward. While ignoring split rumors, American Telephone & Telegraph marketed a record 650 million dollar issue of convertible debentures.
4. The stock splits that were made. Around 100 companies split their stocks. Among those interesting the public were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Jersey Standard Oil, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward. While ignoring split rumors, American Telephone & Telegraph marketed a record 650 million dollar issue of convertible debentures.
5. Lay-off pay. The auto makers, among others, granted a modified form of lay-off pay to supplement state unemployment benefits. Wage scales climbed during the year. Factory take-home pay rose, and the AFL and CIO got married.
6. Auto production and sales race. Cut-throat rivalry in Detroit filled the highways with splashing new cars in record volume.
7. Credit curbs. To stave off inflation federal agencies tightened up on mortgage terms, let credit get scarcer and money dearer. But prices of materials and some consumer goods began rising in the second half of the year. The cost of living edged a trifle higher.
8. Bumper profits. Record earnings and dividends were recorded. General Motors was set to report profits in excess of one billion dollars — a "first" for any corporation.
9. Proxy fights. Embattled stockholders fought management of several companies. Public fancy was

'Clipper Girls' Have Ended Era

CEDAR SPRINGS, Mich. (AP)—Two newspaperwomen who, with their weekly paper, built this tiny hamlet into the red flannel capital of America, have ended an era of journalism.

Over a period of 23 years, Nina E. Babcock and Grace E. Hamilton built up the weekly from a four-page paper serving 400 to a publication of some 16 pages read by 2,300. But recently they sold The Cedar Springs Clipper.

Miss Babcock from Sedalia, Mo., and Miss Hamilton of Coppers-town, N. Y., came to Cedar Springs from New York during the depression. "We used to catch an occasional glimpse of a red flannel hanging below a man's trouser leg," said Miss Babcock.

"We couldn't recall anyone who still wore them and then, in 1932, we chanced to see a feature story in the New York Sun commenting on the hard winter and wondering facetiously where the red flannels had gone," she says.

Miss Babcock wrote the Sun telling them Cedar Springs merchants still carried them, the story was picked up by The Associated Press and the orders began to flock in on a nationwide basis.

For two winters local merchants filled the orders. Then, their stocks depleted, the two women found a red flannel manufacturer operating in Winstead, Conn and persuaded the company to take over the orders.

Now Cedar Springs has a red flannel factory of its own—thanks to the "Clipper girls."

Claims Lipstick Just A Nightcap

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Albert Goudal, 33, who claims service in Indian, Spanish-American War and Mexican campaigns, came to San Francisco Hospital as a traffic casualty.

Knocked down by a car, he had a broken arm, a black eye and lipstick prints on his bald head.

Explaining the lipstick, he said, "I was just having a nightcap in the neighborhood tavern."

CAMERA SHY—This 33-day-old baby hippopotamus sticks close to its mother, Betsy, at Prospect Park Zoo in Brooklyn. The father, Dodger, gave up rule of case shortly after baby arrived. Betsy has been so ferocious, zoo keepers haven't been able to determine baby's sex.

Immunity Offer Is Argued Before Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court hears arguments today on the constitutionality of a law aimed at compelling witnesses to testify in national security cases under a grant of immunity from prosecution.

This first challenge to the validity of the 1954 immunity law was raised by William Ludwig Ullman, a former Air Force major and one-time Treasury employe who has figured in congressional investigations of alleged Communist spy activity in the government.

Ullman, 47, was convicted of contempt of court and given a six-month jail term last March after he twice had refused to testify before a New York federal grand jury. U. S. Dist. Judge Edward Weinfeld had granted him immunity from prosecution in connection with anything he might tell the grand jury, which was looking into wartime espionage in Washington.

Ullman appealed and in April the U. S. Court of Appeals in New York unanimously upheld the constitutionality of the immunity law. The court also affirmed Ullman's jail sentence, but he has remained free in $5,000 bond pending the outcome of his appeal to the Supreme Court.

The immunity law applies to witnesses before grand juries, the courts and congressional committees. It provides that when a witness is reluctant to testify for fear of self-incrimination he may be directed to speak with assurance he would be immune from prosecution as a result of anything he might say. Continued refusal to testify then is grounds under the law for contempt proceedings.

In refusing to answer questions before the grand jury, Ullman contended the government was invading the immunity law as a device to entrap him into a perjury charge.

FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover testified at a Senate investigation that Ullman photographed secret documents at the Pentagon for Soviet agents. In other congressional hearings, Elizabeth Bentley, a former Communist courier, named Ullman as part of a Soviet spy ring.

Doctor Charged In Wife's Death

CHICAGO (AP)—Police yesterday charged a doctor with murdering his wife after, they said, he admitted giving her sedatives and beating her unconscious.

The murder complaint against Dr. Hobart H. Todd, 43, charged his wife Hazel, 45, met her death "through a beating" administered by her husband. The complaint was filed by suburban Skokie authorities, where Todd has a home.

Police said Todd admitted after several hours questioning that he administered two sedative injections to his wife, beat her, and then summoned aid four hours later.

By that time, police quoted Todd as saying, her "body was cold."

Firemen told of arriving at Todd's $50,000 home in Skokie at 8:20 Saturday night and finding Mrs. Todd on the bedroom floor clad in a nightgown. The doctor, wearing pajamas, sat on a nearby bed.

William Griffin, Skokie police chief, said Todd was incoherent and lapsed into a coma. After spending the night in a hospital under police guard, he was questioned by authorities.

Griffin said Todd related this story: He gave his wife an injection of morphine at her suggestion Saturday afternoon and later gave himself one. He said both were in a "highly nervous condition."

He and his wife started quarreling over money. His wife slapped him, he said, and he slapped her,

Her Daddy Made Task Difficult

OMAHA (AP)—The teacher assigned students to write a one-hundred word news story and allowed five words leeway.

Next day, the daughter of a public-school principal reported to the teacher she was having difficulty with the assignment, couldn't make it fit as to wordage.

"You have a little leeway," the teacher reminded.

"I know," the girl said. "When I first wrote it I had exactly 100 words. But after daddy got through typing, it had 149 words."

OUT ON A LIMB

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Judith Ann Conley's luck seems to be all bad. The 13-year-old suffered a broken left leg in an accident. Nine weeks later she fell off a restaurant stool and broke the same leg.

NO-FAN MAIL

SIDNEY, Neb. (AP)—Chief of Police Sol Willis got a fan letter of a sort. It was a postcard, mailed from Grand Island, Neb., with this unsigned cryptic message: "Drop Dead"

EXCHANGED VOWELS

HEYBURN, Idaho (AP)—When Wilda Burch of Heyburn got married, she exchanged vowels as well as vows. Her bridegroom was Gordon Birch.

POOL OF LIGHT—There were two reasons for this view of the President's House in New Delhi, India. It was Premier Nehru's birthday, also Diwali, Hindu Festival of Lights.

THE QUICKSILVER POOL

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

Often when Wade came home after one of these meetings he was tired, tense, eager to release himself in talk with her before returning to his own bed. And these times she was coming to value, as she might have valued the confidence of a brother of whom she was fond. In this role of listener she could give herself gladly, and even find satisfaction of a sort.

Lora turned on her side, watching him from the warmth beneath the quilts.

"Is it going well?" she asked from the first she had found Wade entering into the spirit of secrecy that bound the Circle and its doings. He seldom talked of what went on at Morgan's. Thus she took care never to ask a pointed question, but only those of a general sort which would reveal her interest without making her seem to pry.

"We've had wonderful news from the middle west," he said. "Norwood has received a report of the draft, being stopped in several sections, or at least so successfully resisted that it has been postponed."

"I hope this is managed without violence," Lora said anxiously. "There's been no talk of I believe. Of course, one can't make that absolutely sure. The human element is too uncertain. But Norwood assures us there will be no armed revolt, if that is what you mean. Often a quiet show of force is all that is necessary. And desertions are on the increase all the time."

Lora lay quiet, wishing she might ask more direct questions. She obtained details which would quiet her doubts and enable her to understand better what was happening.

Wade changed the subject carelessly, as if he might have said too much. "Adam is down with another bout of fever. I dropped in to talk to him tonight, but he was in bed with his shivers and sweats, and much too miserable to discuss politics."

"You aren't planning to draw Adam into this, are you?" Lora asked uneasily.

"Why not? He can't be any lover of war after what he's gone through in prison."

She turned beneath the covers. "I've heard him storm about the way men aren't enlisting. And I think he'd like to shoot every deserter. He seems bitterly intent on winning the war on the Union side. It might be just as well not to talk to him about these things. He could cause you trouble if he liked."

"Perhaps you're right," Wade stared into the fire again for a space of time lost in his own thoughts.

Suddenly Lora said, "You're afraid of Morgan Channing?"

"Why should I be afraid of Morgan Channing?" Wade asked coldly.

"There was no turning back now. He was already angry, so perhaps this was the time to go ahead, to step boldly into the dark labyrinth."

"I'm not quite sure why you're afraid of her," she said. "Jemmy calls her Morgan Le Fay and says she's like that plotting queen. And of course, there are those who say she has always wanted you and that she'd cheat and lie and steal to get you."

He put his hand upon her shoulder, pushing her back against the pillow. "What are you mean! ing about? Say what you mean!"

"There was a time something happened," she said not moving though his fingers hurt her shoulder. "A time I don't understand—up there in the woods. Perhaps it isn't true at all. Perhaps it's just one of those stories that goes around. About you and Morgan?"

His fingers tightened. "Jemmy? Jemmy's been telling that beastly story again?"

"Then it's not true?"

He let her go and turned away. For a long moment the only movement in the room was firelight flickering on the ceiling. Then he got up and went toward the door without speaking.

Lora slipped out of bed, her long braid swinging against her back as she hurried across the room. She stepped between Wade and the door, her shoulders against it, pity and understanding welling up in her. Now—now she was beginning to see all he said, ugly pattern.

"So that's why you turn away from Jemmy? Because he told his mother and because you think Virginia . . . But it isn't true Wade! I don't believe it! Virginia knew her sister. She'd have forgiven you for whatever happened. I think she'd have forgiven you anything."

"It wasn't a matter of forgiving." His tone was so low that Lora could barely catch the words. "She wanted me to have whatever I wanted most in life. If she came to believe—it was just the sort of thing she would have done."

Lora put her hand across his mouth. "No! You mustn't say it. You mustn't think it. And you mustn't go on blaming Jemmy for something he did so innocently." He drew away from her hand. "I blame only myself. But when I look at the boy I remember. Now, if you'll let me by—"

For the first time she understood fully his inner torment which was so much worse than she had imagined. It was one thing to suffer the tragic loss of a dear one, but something far worse if you carried as well a sense of guilt about her death.

She wished she might fling her arms about his neck, cling to him, try to heal and comfort by the very nearness of her body. Perhaps even dispel the doubt and confusion that was part of her own being at times with the physical reality of caresses. But she would not play the Morgan role. She slipped away from the door and ran barefooted back to bed.

Once again warm beneath the covers, she held her breath as he went out, heard him close her door, go softly down the hall. She listened intently as another door opened, closed again, and only then did she relax in relief. It was his own door, not Virginia's. (To Be Continued)

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

United Church Women, an arm of the National Council of the Churches of Christ and representing some 10,000,000 American church women in the major Protestant denominations of the country, have pledged themselves to continue a number of social-political activities in the year 1956. These include: work to modify the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act so as to "eliminate such undemocratic practices as inequalities in the quota system, discrimination based on race and naturalization provisions which create second-class citizens; rejection of proposed censorship of motion pictures; opposition to any form of universal military training in peacetime, including the compulsory reserve system"; ratification by the U.S.A. of the U.N. Genocide Convention; continuation of disarmament talks within the framework of the United Nations; support of the right of self-determination of peoples not now self-governing—this "regardless of political expediency." Mrs. Theodore O. Wedel, of Washington, D. C., a leader in the Protestant Episcopal Church, is the new president of United Church Women, succeeding Mrs. James D. Wyker, of Mount Vernon, Ohio.

Dr. Willa B. Player, vice-president in charge of instruction since 1952, has been named president of Bennett College, pioneer Methodist college for Negro women, Greensboro, North Carolina. She succeeds Dr. David D. Jones, resigned because of ill health. Dr. Player, a native of Akron, Ohio, has been a member of the Bennett faculty since 1930. She was educated at Ohio Wesleyan University, Oberlin College, the University of Grenoble (France) and the University of Wisconsin. She earned her doctorate in education at Columbia University.

State Record In GI Home Loans

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—A new state record for GI home loans was set in November, according to J. D. DeRamus, regional Veterans Administration manager.

DeRamus said 629 loans were approved for a total of $6,996,235. He said the number of loans has remained fairly constant, but that the average price per house—$12,000 in November—has risen with the veterans' income level.

Quicker QUAKER for that split-second sweetness!

PEACH TORTE PIE

- A) 3 egg whites + Salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- B) 1 cup Quaker Granulated Sugar
- 1/2 cup salted cracker crumbs
- C) 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 cup chopped walnuts
- D) 3 cups drained sliced peaches

Beat A until stiff. Add B gradually until mixture "peaks." Fold C into egg whites; spread in well-greased pie tin, higher at sides. Bake in slow oven 40 minutes. Cool. Fill with D, serve immediately.

Yes, you actually get The Thunderbird Y-8 engine in the '56 Ford

And this Thunderbird Y-8 is the standard eight in all Ford Fairlane and Station Wagon models, at no extra cost!

Now you can have the power you've always dreamed about . . . and in a family-size Ford! When you order an eight-cylinder Ford Fairlane or Station Wagon model you get the Thunderbird Y-8—the very same engine that made Ford's Thunderbird famous.

Thunderbird Y-8 power makes uphill feel like downhill . . . distances disappear. You pass in instants when instants count. And when you want take-off power you get it . . . and now!

You get a 4-barrel carburetor and dual exhausts. As in all Ford engines, you get a 12-valve ignition system for fast all-weather starts . . . low-friction, high-compression design for more miles from less gas. And, above all, the new Thunderbird eight is a Y-8 engine with deep-block build for quieter, smoother performance . . . longer engine life.

In addition to Thunderbird lightning, Ford for '56 offers you the Thunderbird look! In every long, low line—every graceful contour—you can see it's a blood brother of the fabulous Thunderbird, America's most exciting car! What's more, you get Ford's exclusive Lifeguard Design for added protection. Come in and Test Drive the fine car at half the fine-car price!

Funds Formula Scheduled Today

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Board of Education was slated to get a formula today telling how 25 million dollars in school building funds should be distributed to local school units.

The money is the last half of a 50-million-dollar school bond issue approved by the state's voters in 1953. The first 25 million was allocated to the counties according to a strict mathematical formula.

However, the General Assembly instructed the State Board of Education to work out a plan for distributing the remaining 25 million by taking three key factors into consideration. They were: school needs of the counties, their ability to meet those needs, and efforts being made locally to meet the needs.

A special committee headed by J. A. Pritchett of Windsor had planned to offer its formula Nov. 25. However, this target date was postponed so the committee could get information on what local school bond issues have been approved since June 30.

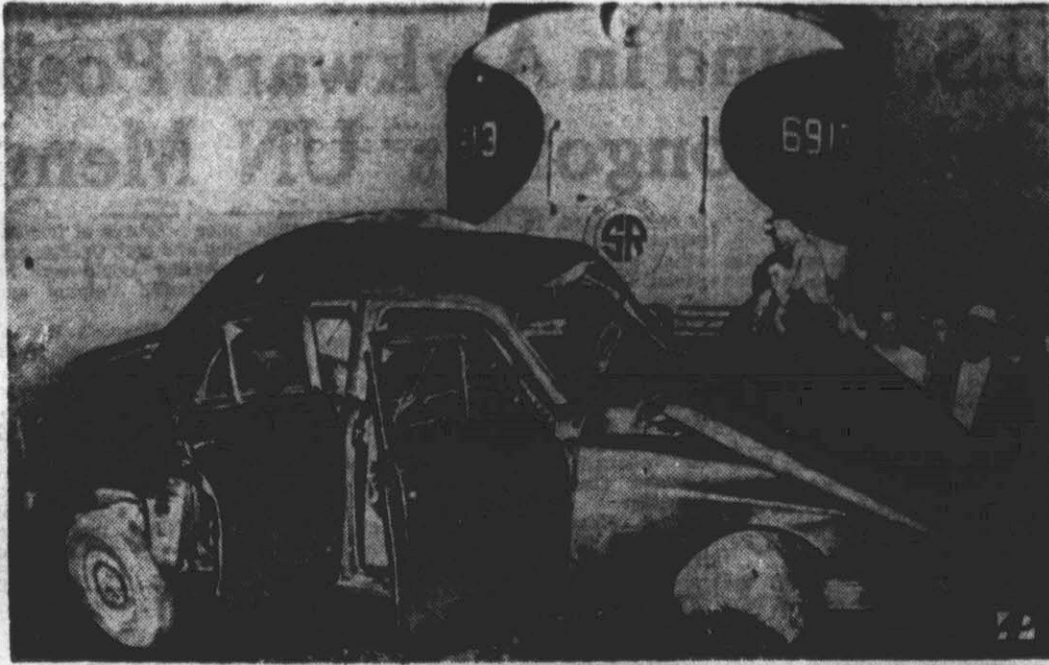

The committee's formula must be approved by the board and also by Gov. Hodges.

Found Bootleg On His Premises

Pitt County ABC officers today announced the arrest of George Gorham, Negro, of 107 Reade street on a charge of possession of non-tax paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

Gorham, who has been released under $200 bond, was taken into custody after officers found a gallon and a half of illegal liquor on his premises.

Resumes Hearing On Association

RALEIGH (AP)—Insurance Commissioner Charles Gold resumed a hearing today into the stock distribution methods followed by the State Hospital Assn. of Tarboro when it tried to become a stock accident and health company.

Larry P. Eagles, president of the nonprofit hospital and medical association, was on the stand when the hearing recessed Nov. 23. He was expected to resume his testimony tomorrow.

Gold said he thought the hearing would conclude tomorrow.

Last February Gold authorized the association to convert into a stock company. However he ordered the conversion halted last summer when evidence was uncovered that the names of many policyholders had been forged on stock transfer certificates.

Eagles testified that he and J. R. Owens, secretary of the association, had asked company agents to buy back as much stock as they could because he and Owens wanted to gain control of the company.

He testified that as soon as he learned stock transfers had been forged he notified the district collector and the Insurance Department.

The number of people entering U.S. mental hospitals rose from 85 per 100,000 in 1931 to 111 per 100,000 in 1951.

Chemists And Engineers To Hear Buchanan

Dr. John M. Buchanan, head of the Division of Biochemistry, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will address chemists and chemical engineers of the Eastern North Carolina Section of the American Chemical Society at the December meeting to be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Hotel Kinston, Kinston. Prior to the meeting there will be a dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Buchanan's talk will describe the chemical processes by which purine compounds, which are of unusual importance in the building of living tissues and in body metabolism, are synthesized by the tissues of the body. Radio-active tracers were used extensively in establishing these reaction sequences. Dr. Buchanan's research has included work on the biosynthesis of biological compounds, especially purines and glycogen, as well as work on the isolation and purification of enzymes.

Dr. Buchanan, a native of Indiana, obtained his education at DePauw, the University of Michigan and Harvard. From 1943 until 1953, with the exception of two years at the Medical Institute in Stockholm, Sweden, under a National Research Council fellowship, he served on the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania, advancing from instructor to full professor. In July, 1953, Dr. Buchanan assumed his present duties at M.I.T.

Tokyo Populace Now 8 Million

TOKYO (AP)—Tokyo's population has soared over the eight million mark, an official of the government statistics bureau said today.

He also said the nation's population reached 89,369,277—fifth highest in the world. Only China, India, Russia and the United States have more. The figures are based on the census taken last October.

Tokyo's population was 8,033,529, trailing only London and New York City, the official said.

The number of first admissions to mental hospitals in the United States rose from 106,000 in 1931 to 171,000 in 1951.

So Many Awards Offered TV Shows

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—There are now, by incomplete count, at least 30 annual awards offered by a variety of organizations for performances in television.

Everybody is constantly saying there are too many and let's cut down or let's have only one that's as big as Hollywood's Oscar. But when the award dinner is scheduled and the invitations issued, nearly everybody files in happily to consume a martini and roast beef.

One can't possibly cover all of them, of course. But there's something fascinating about an award. Thus it was interesting to drop around and chat with Deems Taylor, chairman of the board of judges for the first awards of this season. A total of 26 were granted in the annual Sylvania Awards.

The committee of nine judges viewed kinescopes for days and nights before reaching its decisions, announced at a large dinner last week.

"A word I do not like," said Taylor, "is 'best.' It's invidious. After all, it wasn't a dog show where one could say 'best of breed.' We found so many excellent entries that one would rather settle for the word 'outstanding.'"

The judges, in acting on a wide range of recommendations submitted to them, chose the $64,000 Question (CBS-TV) as the outstanding new television series of the year. One woman judge had somehow managed never to see this program before.

"She was fascinated," Taylor said. "She agreed, with the rest of us, that the program is not a study of human greed, as some critics have suggested, but is a study of human nature. It has tremendous human interest."

One surprising thing was discovered by judges in granting an award to The Voice of Firestone (ABC-TV) as the outstanding musical series. It's the only series of purely musical programs on a national TV network, Taylor said. So it couldn't very well lose.

Two awards were especially interesting. These were to Robert Alan Arthur for writing the "most original play" in "A Man Is Ten Feet Tall" and to Sidney Potter, a Negro, for the "best performance by an actor" in the same show.

This drama was the last presentation of Television Playhouse (NBC-TV) before—the regret of many constant viewers—it went off the air last October.

CIRCUS ELEPHANT FALLS DEAD.—Big Jewel, 51-year-old four-ton elephant of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, lies on a road near Orlando, Fla., where she fell dead. Myrt, another elephant, nudges the fallen giant in an effort to arouse her, and Benny White, the circus superintendent of elephants, examines her. But Big Jewel is beyond help. The night before, she was hit by an automobile at West Palm Beach but was able to move on to Orlando with the rest of the show's elephant herd. (AP Wirephoto).

Sea Serpent Is Washed On Beach

VENICE Calif. (AP)—A marine "whale" washed ashore yesterday. It is 16 feet long, has a head resembling a snake's, a fin tail, and, when it was alive perhaps a week ago, must have weighed about 800 pounds.

Old-time mariners and lifeguards say they think it is a sea serpent. "I've lived around the ocean for 18 years," said Norman Bishop, former lifeguard, "and I've never seen anything like this thing, whatever it is."

Pellegrini Voted Player Of Year

RALEIGH (AP)—Bob Pellegrini, Maryland's All America center, has been named Atlantic Coast Conference football Player of the Year. Pellegrini, 21-year-old senior from Yatesboro, Pa., led halfback teammate Ed Vereb, 163 points to 74, in balloting conducted by the ACC sports writers Assn.

Bob Pascal, Duke halfback, finished third with 58 points. Votes were counted on a basis of five points for first place, three for second and one for third.

The honor was another in a long string won by Pellegrini during the past season. Big Bob, a 225-pounder who measures 6-3, was the anchor man in Maryland's tremendous line.

Freedoms And Rights Being Staked Out More Clearly

By KARL E. BAUMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Freedoms and rights of citizens are being staked out more clearly by the courts.

Some champions of civil liberties interpret recent decisions as portents of a banner year for them.

With the historic "separate but equal" doctrine of racial segregation dead as a matter of law, courts have been moving into other fields, particularly the controversial question of whether a citizen has the legal right to face his accusers.

He always has had this right in criminal cases, where all the evidence is taken in public and put on the record. But he hasn't had it in all things, such as when he seeks a passport. It's been the practice in passport cases, as in the government loyalty-security program, to rely, in part at least, on "confidential information."

Courts recently have handed down two major decisions on the "face-your-accuser" issue.

The most sweeping came Nov. 22 from U. S. Dist. Judge Luther W. Youngdahl of the District of Columbia.

Youngdahl ruled that in passport cases the State Department must put everything on the record so that the applicant "may have the opportunity to meet it and the court to review it."

Unless the government appeals and gets this decision overturned by higher courts, it means the State Department no longer can use anything in its confidential files in deciding passport applications.

In a 2-1 decision Oct. 26, the U. S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco struck down an unconstitutional Coast Guard regulation for screening suspected subversives off ships.

The regulations prevented the accused persons from knowing the source or identity of his accusers.

In discarding them, the court majority rejected the same general argument that the government has used in defending the federal employment security program.

Lawyers generally feel that sooner or later the Supreme Court will come face to face with the issue. Judge Youngdahl said confidential information "is of unquestionable importance to executive officers in performing their duty, but it should be confined for use in obtaining factual data which may itself be used of record."

"When the basis of action by any branch of the government remains hidden from scrutiny and beyond practical review, the seeds of arbitrary and irresponsible government are sown," he said, adding:

"More and more the courts have become aware of the irreparable damage which may be, has been, and is, wrought by the secret informer and faceless tale-bearer whose identity and testimony remain locked in confidential files."

In the field of racial discrimination, the courts have moved far beyond the Supreme Court's 1954 decision holding unconstitutional separate public schools for whites and Negroes.

In separate decisions Nov. 7, the Supreme Court seemingly sounded the death knell for racial segregation in all places supported by public funds. It did so by affirming a decision by the U. S. Court of Appeals in Richmond that segregation is illegal in public parks and playgrounds, and by reversing decisions by two lower federal courts which upheld segregation on public golf courses. The court acted without hearing arguments on the ap-

Mr. and Mrs. Ben G. Tucker, Earle and Bill Tucker have returned from a trip to Washington, D. C. and a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ollie J. Russell in Galestown, Md.

Mrs. A. B. Young and daughter Rita Jean of Henderson were guests Sunday of Mrs. Addie Uzzell.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Tucker and son Glenn spent the weekend in Star with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Stout.

The "Bloomers," Grifton's newest garden club, met on Tuesday night in regular session at the home of Mrs. Tony Harris. Mrs. Lefroy Cherry, president, had charge of the business meeting and discussion was had on the possibilities of a float in the Christmas parade. This was rejected.

At the program hour Mr. Jerry Insope brought an interesting discussion and demonstration on fall flower arrangements which were later auctioned off to meet the expenses of the workshop. He also gave some pointers on Christmas arrangements as seen at the recent show in Kinston. Group pictures were made to be used in the Grifton Times after the program.

Two new members, Mrs. Robert McCotter and Mrs. Becky Worthington, were welcomed.

At the social hour the hostess served Coca-Colas, salted nuts and candy. There were twelve members present.

Plans To Attend Banking Seminar

Dr. James H. Stewart, of the Social Studies department of East Carolina College, will attend the Central Banking Seminar at the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Va., December 7-10. Sponsored by the Bank to give firsthand information on the operation of money and banking in this district, the seminar will feature discussions led by officials of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and of the Board of Governors, Washington, D. C.

Special attention will be given to the problems of formulating and executing credit policy by the central bank consistent with the dynamic American economy and the federal budget and debt. Historical background and theoretical basis for central banking will be subordinated to analyses and discussions of procedures of the last twenty years, and principally of the post-Korea years. The interdependence of open market operations, discount rates, and reserve requirements and also their integration into the tax and debt-management policy of the federal government will receive attention at several sessions.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond with branches at Baltimore and Charlotte, is one of the 12 federal reserve banks in the United States. It coordinates banking activities in the fifth Federal Reserve District, including Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina. Most of the colleges and universities of this district are sending representatives to the seminar.

Dr. Stewart joined the faculty of East Carolina College in 1951. During World War II, he served in the U. S. Navy, after which he had a teaching position at Washington and Lee University. A native of Kentucky, he holds the M.A. and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Kentucky.

Jenkins Accepts Education Post

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, vice president of East Carolina College in charge of instruction, has accepted an appointment to serve on the Southern Council on Teacher Education of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

The Council is composed of three members from each state represented in the Southern Association. Also appointed to the Council at the recent meeting of the association at Miami Beach, Fla., were Dr. James E. Hillman, director of the division of professional service, State Department of Public Instruction, and Dr. William H. Cartwright, professor of education at Duke University.

Brakeless

When the Highway Patrol says not to drive without brakes it means it. Beruth Numa Jenkins, 36, Negro, of Grifton, has discovered.

On Sunday, patrolman Shep Newman, of Lenoir County, stopped Jenkins and gave him a ticket for operating a car which had no brakes.

Then, Sunday night, Pitt patrolman Richard Taylor stopped Jenkins and gave him another ticket—again for no brakes.

But that wasn't all. At 8:30 a. m. yesterday Taylor stopped Jenkins again. And what for? Why driving with no brakes, of course.

Jenkins now has another choice: to pay $35 and court costs or go to the roads for 30 days. And he still has Newman's ticket which hasn't been dealt with yet.

Negroes Boycott City Bus Lines

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A boycott which cut Negro patronage of city buses by about 85 per cent yesterday was in force again today and showed signs of continuing even longer.

Police investigated a report by Manager J. H. Bagley of the Montgomery city bus lines that a small-caliber rifle bullet struck the rear of a bus last night in a Negro district.

A hymn-singing Negro throng estimated by police at 5,000 shouted approval last night when spokesmen urged them to continue the boycott in protest to segregated transportation facilities.

The issue was brought to a head by the arrest Thursday of Mrs. Rosa Parks, 42, who refused to move to the rear of a bus. She was fined $14 yesterday for violating a state law requiring Negroes to sit in the rear of buses. Later she was released in $100 bond after announcing she would appeal the fine.

The crowd at the mass meeting last night shouted approval of a resolution which said the boycott would continue until bus patrons are no longer "intimidated, embarrassed and coerced."

Negro spokesmen said a "delegation of citizens" is ready to meet with city and bus line officials in an effort to develop a "satisfactory and equitable" program.

They did not indicate if they might settle for anything short of an outright end to segregation in city buses.

Despite a cold drizzle throughout most of yesterday, thousands of Negroes who normally ride the buses stayed home from work, walked or caught rides in jammed Negro taxis.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, taking its cue from the courts, recently ruled out racial segregation of interstate passengers on trains and buses and in their public waiting rooms and rest rooms. It gave railroads directly involved in the proceeding until Jan. 10 to carry out its order.

A variety of cases bearing on civil liberties are pending in the courts. One of them may decide whether Congress can engage in "exposure" for exposure's sake, with no legislative purpose directly in mind. The issue here is whether a committee can require a witness who doesn't invoke the privilege against self-incrimination to tell about Communist ties in the distant past.

U.S. Found In Awkward Position On Outer Mongolia's UN Membership

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The United States has been backed into an awkward position in the United Nations in the dispute over Outer Mongolia's claim to U. N. membership. The dispute could be part of a process to make the whole Chinese representation question blow up in American faces.

Nationalist China, in the U. N. seat claimed by the Chinese Communists, threaten to veto a package deal on the admission of U. N. members because that package includes the Mongolian People's Republic, a Soviet satellite.

The United States opposed the Mongolian application too. But now the United States is in the position of having to try to persuade the Nationalist Republic to veto in the Security Council a deal which a majority of U. N. members want to go through. Such use of the veto would be ammunition in the Communist campaign to drive the Nationalists out of the U. N.

The United States got off one hook by deciding to abstain in the vote on Outer Mongolia's application. It got onto another hook with the Nationalist Chinese threat.

The government of Chiang Kai-shek recognized the Mongolian People's Republic in 1946, shortly after the Chinese Republic and the Soviet Union signed a treaty of friendship and nonaggression. But the next year Mongolian troops invaded the Chinese province of Sinkiang, China, protesting to the Security Council, accused the Russians of instigating an aggression. After that, the Nationalist Chinese changed their minds about supporting Outer Mongolia for U. N. membership.

The picture has become extremely complicated. In 1946 the United States backed a package deal which would admit Mongolia. The Soviet Union blocked it. Now the Soviet Union supports a package deal which the United States reluctantly accepts.

The Soviet Union is making propaganda for the point that the United States found Mongolia qualified for membership in 1946. But this propaganda does not mention the Nationalist switch. That might provoke discussion of the 1947 invasion.

Some diplomats seem puzzled about the United States attitude. But it seems possible that Outer Mongolia, once a source of friction between China and both Czarist and Communist Russia could well be that again between Peking and Moscow.

The Mongolian People's Republic, 31 years old last week, is a creation of Soviet Communists by the way was paved by Czarist imperialism. It is even more than a satellite of Moscow than — say — Bulgaria.

Lying between Soviet Central Asia and China, it is a landlocked area more than twice the size of Texas. It has little more than 100,000 people, 85 per cent of them nomadic herdsmen.

The country long was a target of Russian imperial ambitions in northern Asia. Long before communism took over, Russia was colonizing areas which once were Chinese and now are Soviet republics in Central Asia.

After the Russo-Japanese war in 1905, the Russians agreed with the Japanese on recognizing special Russian privileges in Outer Mongolia. One entrenchment, the Russians fomented an independence movement and Czarist troops moved in.

After the Russian revolution, Soviet forces seized control of the nationalist movement there. In 1922 the country was proclaimed a people's republic first nation to pattern itself on the Soviet model. A Soviet-Chinese conference that year agreed the Russians would withdraw their troops, but the Russians stayed and next year crossed into China's Sinkiang Province. This got off even more severely damaging to Chinese-Soviet relations.

By 1920 Soviet influence was entrenched in Outer Mongolia.

Pravda, form... Minister Sir Winston Churchill, and British Minister of State Anthony Nutting were the latest to sound off.

Addressing a rally of Young Conservatives at Woodford, England, his parliamentary constituency, the 81-year-old Churchill said he thought the British government should "seriously consider" canceling the projected visit of Khrushchev and Bulganin to Britain in April. He qualified this by saying Britain should not "take any violently stupid decision" on the question.

Referring to anti-British remarks by the top Russian leaders, Churchill termed their current Asian tour an "exhibition — there is no other word."

"It certainly has been a surprising spectacle and one which Her Majesty's government will no doubt study carefully before they allow it, with suitable variants, to be repeated here," he said.

Prime Minister Eden extended an invitation to Khrushchev and Bulganin at the summit conference in Geneva last July. No specific date has been set.

Churchill cautioned his audience that the behavior of the Soviet leaders "must not lead us to suppose that Russian power and capacity are not growing in many other directions."

In their swing across India and Burma, the Russian leaders have made numerous attacks on the British, who formerly ruled those two countries. On one occasion

Khrushchev said the British sat "on the necks" of the Burmese before Burma got independence. On another occasion he said:

"They (the British) made profits while you starved. As representatives of a European nation, we are ashamed about what those other Europeans did before."

In India, Khrushchev accused the British, French and Americans of unleashing the German attack on Russia in World War II.

Nutting, chief British delegate to the United Nations and a leading spokesman on foreign affairs, called the Soviet leaders' remarks in Asia "childish nonsense."

"Happily, I believe that the world is in the long run more interested in performance than propaganda," he told a meeting in New York of the Pilgrims of the United States of America, a British-American friendship organization.

From the Russian side, Pravda blasted the British Foreign Office and press for making "indecent sallies" against Bulganin and Khrushchev. Deputy Editor Yuri Zhukov, writing from Taunggyi, Burma, accused American, British and French correspondents accompanying the two Russian leaders of "foul intentions" in reporting the tour.

"One may agree there are some in London who do not like at all the fact that the peoples of the former British colonies are establishing friendly relations with the Soviet Union," Zhukov's article in the Soviet Communist party organ said. "But this cannot be an excuse for indecent sallies which the unified monopoly press and even official spokesmen are making so often."

British-Russian Word War Continues To Rage

LONDON (AP)—The British-Russian word war over speeches by Nikita S. Khrushchev and Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin in the Far East continued unabated today.

Pravda, form... Minister Sir Winston Churchill, and British Minister of State Anthony Nutting were the latest to sound off.

Reached Accord Before Hearing

RALEIGH (AP)—A disagreement between the Carolina Power & Light Co. and its Public Housing Authority customers has been settled.

The Utilities Commission had scheduled a hearing on the dispute today but announced the settlement yesterday.

It said CP&L has agreed the housing authority may make full use of check meters. However, the housing authorities agreed they will not resell power they buy from CP&L to their tenants for a profit.

The differences arose when CP&L filed a new rate schedule for housing authorities.

The Raleigh, Asheville, Lumberton, Goldsboro, Wilmington and Eastern Carolina housing authorities protested.

The power company said the change was necessary because some housing authorities were reselling electricity. The housing authorities complained the change would mean an increase in their power bills.

CP&L withdrew the proposed increase, but provided a rider allowing authorities to adjust the rates of tenants who use more than a normal amount of electricity. However, the authorities may not engage in selling electricity.

Hollywood Signs A Talented Girl

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A 19-year-old girl who can fly a plane, assemble an automobile and has been a model is officially launched today on a contract movie career.

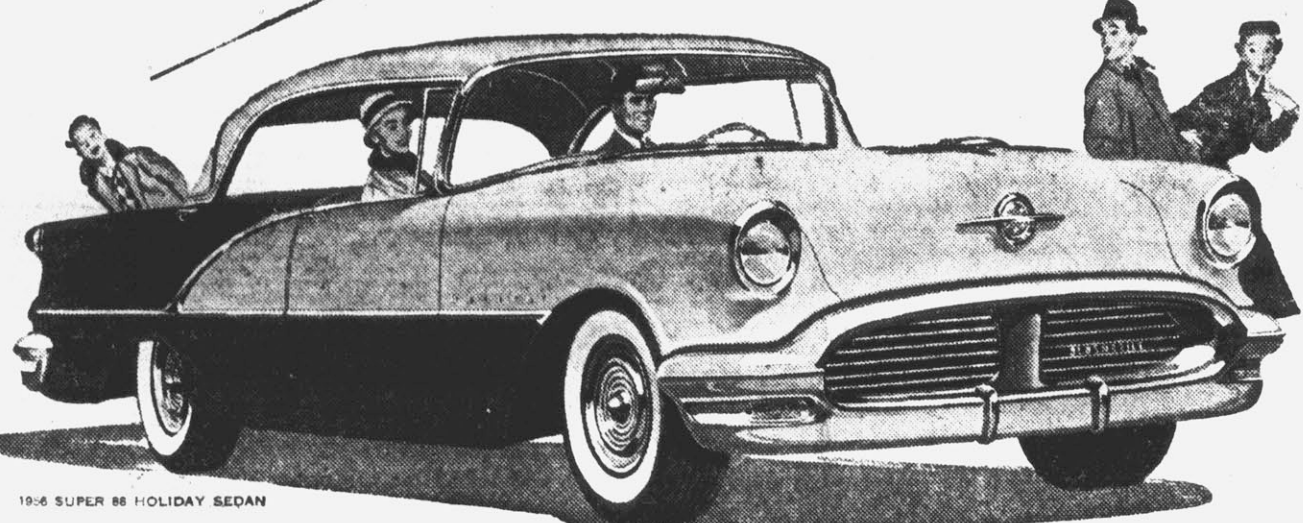

A Janet Lake as a minor, had a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio approved in Superior Court yesterday. She starts at $200 a week and the contract has options over a seven-year period which would increase her salary to $1,000 a week.

Miss Lake, born Janet Mary Leney in Norristown, Pa., is also capable of doing secretarial work and once considered sociology as her life's work. She was modeling in New York when an M-G-M talent scout saw her picture in an advertisement.

Michigan claims that the world's first concrete road was built in Detroit in 1907.

California has more automobiles than any other state — 4,879,210 — with New York second — 3,893,980.

Band Helped Excite The Christmas Spirit

By ROSEMARY EAGLES
GREENVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

In early December the spirit of Christmas begins creeping into one's bones. The big parade last Friday evening heralded Santa's approaching visit and everyone from cradle to the rocking chair set, the OHS crowd included, got very excited.

The Greenville High band was busy playing "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town." The majorities, minus two who were recuperating from hospital visits, were led by Ginger Ross.

The band has participated in two other Christmas parades, in Farmville, Nov. 28, and Ayden, Nov. 30.

The boys in the parade marching under the Monogram initiation sign were a scream! Only those who letter in one or more of the seven sports at the high school are allowed to even participate in the initiation. Those who get in the club consider it a real honor.

The Band Booster's Club is sponsoring a sale of Christmas trees. The trees will be on display at the band room on December 10. Anyone interested should contact one of the members. The proceeds will go for new music or for repairing equipment.

Miss Ora Shindler has kept her mixed chorus in practice for the annual Christmas concert next Sunday night. The chorus will perform a human Christmas tree on the stage. Annette Dunn and Marie Eason are the soloists this year.

Sure sounds like something's up when comments like, "Gee, I forgot to smile" or "Sorry, I'm keeping mine for someone appreciative, my mother!" are floating around in the halls. Of course, school pictures have arrived.

The annual staff is busy boosting the sales because this is one of the few ways they have of making money to print this year's annual.

The Electrical Engineers sponsored the Friday night dance. A good crowd attended.

Explorer Scouts from the East

Carolina and the Tuscarora councils participated in the "Citizens Now Conference" at East Carolina College December 1-3.

The scouts were entertained with a dance Friday night. Music was provided by the "Midnighters." Angus Duff, conference chairman, was presented at the dance. Several of the Greenville Explorers and their dates attended.

After the Explorer Scout Dance Marietta Northrop, Margaret Ruffin, Carol Tadlock and Ginger Lang ran over to Stuart Best's house, pajamas in hand, for a slumber party.

They had so much fun they giggled all night and were up for a three o'clock snack. "We listened to Marietta make up poems all night, too," Stuart laughed.

Ann Moore, Ruth Young, Jane Perkins, and Lillian Moye went to Raleigh Saturday. They had a gay old time going up and accomplished some Christmas shopping.

Eight members of the local Christian Youth Fellowship went to Raleigh Friday for their state convention. Those attending were Judy Jolly, Roy Martin, Milly Bowden, Sarah Ewell, Don Conley, Iona Jones, Nancy Harris, and Joyce Sutton. Friday night they attended a banquet. Saturday they attended sessions, study groups, and a communion service.

Joanne Eagles spent the weekend with her cousin near Macleesfield. Friday night she saw South Edgemore High beat Hookerton. Saturday she went to Raleigh and saw the North Carolina State and Penn State basketball game.

No one worries about afternoon entertainment anymore. The Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church has remedied this situation. Every afternoon a crowd of teenagers heads for the recreation room at the church, located at the back of the fellowship hall.

The Methodist Youth Fellowship led by President Jo Hendrix, presented the project before the official board. The church then provided the room with two ping pong tables, four tables and chairs, a drink machine, candy and a record player.

The room is open from 3:30 until 5:30 Jo Hendrix stated. "We feel that this is helping the students to be real ladies and gentlemen."

Teen Center In Church Basement

A teen center, where high school students may enjoy recreation after school, has been established in the basement of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Enjoying ping pong, above, are Whit Brown and Sebastian Bridges, at the far table, Mickey West and Billy Sermons. Looking on are Ginger Ross, Jo Hendrix, president of the Methodist Youth Fellowship which proposed the idea for the teen center, and Lem Cox, East Carolina College student from Goldsboro who is serving as director of the recreation room. A ping pong tournament was begun yesterday. Students from each grade will compete for the class championship and there will be a play-off to determine the overall champion. # Labor Giant Seen As Political Power

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leaders of the newly merged AFL-CIO pool the idea they will try to form a labor party or capture one of the existing political parties. Nevertheless, that time may come. Whether it happens—since the AFL and CIO, although now combined into the biggest labor organization in history, are just starting their future factors now unpredictable.

Among the factors are: (1) whether they can stick together; (2) what changing times bring; (3) how influential they are in the political field as it now stands; (4) how well they increase their membership and can influence its political thinking; and (5) the possible personal ambitions of some of the leaders who now may have none.

Starting right away the combined AFL-CIO, claiming 15 to 20 million members will be a far more powerful force in American politics than either separately.

Their new strength will get its first big test in the 1956 elections when and if they back one of the two candidates for president. But they will work in state and local politics too, and speak to Congress with one voice.

Some Republican politicians—particularly Sen. Goldwater of Arizona seem to have misgivings about labor's support next year. The AFL and CIO backed Adlai Stevenson in 1952. Goldwater said Sunday the AFL-CIO "had no right" to endorse a presidential candidate in 1956.

President Eisenhower, who beat Stevenson in 1952, said in saluting the AFL-CIO yesterday that labor organizations have a legitimate interest in politics. But he cautioned they should be sure they "ac-

Moscow Shut Door On McCarthy's foe

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Leroy Gore, former weekly newspaper publisher and long-time foe of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), says his unsuccessful attempts to visit Russia during a European trip were frustrating—"but they had their lighter moments."

"Many of the Russians I met felt sorry for me," he said in a telephone interview yesterday from his home in Sauk City, Wis.

"They thought that Joe McCarthy had me exiled from the United States, and I couldn't go back."

Gore founded the "Joe Must Go Club" in Wisconsin which in 1954 campaigned to force a recall election of Wisconsin's junior Republican senator. The recall campaign failed to gain the required number of signatures on petitions.

Gore said he decided on trying to visit Russia while touring the Midwest with the Soviet farm delegate on this summer. He applied for a visa July 28.

"I had a little passport trouble," he said. "The State Department didn't want to give me one until I had my visa. But Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.) straightened that out."

Gore, a Republican who says he's now thinking about running for Congress himself but won't decide for a month or so, said officials at the Soviet Embassy in Washington suggested he pick up his visa in Europe to save time.

"It wasn't at Amsterdam," he said, "so I went on to Copenhagen. I waited there a month and American consular officials broke some sort of precedent by sending a bluntly worded query to Moscow asking for information on my visa. The Russians didn't give me any reasons. They just didn't say anything."

"All the Russians I met, 50 or so, seemed very disappointed that I couldn't get to visit their country. But apparently it was one of those cases where I learned more about the country from not being able to visit it than I would have on a tour."

Gore said he gained the impression that the Soviet hierarchy is made up of "queer, very frightened people."

"It seems to me obvious that they are afraid of getting too many Americans in their country, talking to their people."

What about the Soviet opinion of Sen. McCarthy, as told to a widely known anti-McCarthy newsmen?

"They looked at me and smiled kind of shyly," Gore said, "and told me that they couldn't really time telling the world how big and time telling the world how big and strong and smart they are."

Whistling Swans Flew Off Course

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—A flock of whistling swans, blown off course en route to the South Atlantic for the winter, landed for a rest and food on Lake Sherwood in the Santa Monica Mountains.

Once seen over most of North America, the big swans now breed chiefly in northwest Canada and Alaska. They migrate to the Southern coastal states in winter. Their route ordinarily is far north of here.

The whistling swan is distinguished by a light musical note for a call and sometimes is referred to as a whooping crane.

Strangers—with a Mutual Friend!

Anyone who owns and drives a Cadillac will find this a familiar scene.

For it is not at all unusual for Cadillac owners to salute one another as they pass on the highway... or to exchange approving nods as they wait at the traffic light.

Cadillac owners, you see, know that they have at least one mutual friend... in the Cadillac car.

And the chances are that if they were to meet, they would find they had a great deal more in common than just their affection for the "car of cars."

For Cadillac owners, taking them by and large, are people who share a keen appreciation for the finer things in life.

And, generally speaking, they are people of sound judgment and unusual practical wisdom.

They have learned, for instance, how reasonable a new Cadillac can be insofar as original cost is concerned.

They have seen for themselves how economical a Cadillac is to operate through the miles... and how dependable it is through the months.

And they have savored that final reward for choosing the "car of cars"—Cadillac's extraordinary resale value.

Perhaps, in view of these remarkable facts, the time has come for you to meet this wonderful friend of America's most demanding motorists.

We'll be delighted to introduce you at any time you find convenient—and to supervise a personal demonstration on the highway.

Why not come in today?

Monday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH In Police Court Monday, Judge Charles E. Whedbee disposed of 21 cases, three of them involving assaults with deadly weapons (bottles and knife) and one the carrying of a concealed weapon (pistol).

Louise Tripp, Negro, 707 Roosevelt street, assault with a deadly weapon (bottle), 60 days in jail, and she is not to molest or harm the prosecuting witness, Louise Forbes. The judgment also provides that she is to pay $7.50 medical bill and court costs; and stay away from Snook's Place for two years.

Louise Forbes, 707 Roosevelt street, assault with a deadly weapon (bottle) same sentence as in the Louise Tripp case.

Carrie Hines, Negro, 161-A Cotanche street, assault with a deadly weapon (knife), 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of costs and $10 medical bill for Ivory Johnson.

Failure to yield right of way: William E. Byrd, West End Circle, case not pressed with leave; Myrtle M. Tucker, Rt. 2, Winterville, prayer for judgment continued on payment of costs.

Drunk: Charlie McLawhorn, Negro, 309 Reade street, 30 days or $10; Clarence Powell, Negro, 1108-B Pitt street, 30 days or $10; William Stancil, Rt. 6, Greenville, $10; Roosevelt Rogers, Rt. 5, Greenville, $10; Harvey D. Joyner, 555 East Fifth street, south, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of costs and $5 to Mr. Vernon; Gray Hardy, address unknown to police, 20 days, capias was not to issue until December 6.

June Clark, Negro, Grimesland, assault on a female, not pressed. James R. Redmond, Negro, 30 days on the roads for violation of a court order.

Marvin Rollins, Negro, 4 Pitt street, 30 days, suspended on payment of costs and he is not to harm the prosecuting witness.

Willie June Clark, Negro, Grimesland, temporary insanity of an automobile, 60 days on the roads, suspended on payment of costs and good behavior for a year. Joe Hollis, Goldsboro, paid costs for speeding.

Norwood Conway, 1212-B Cotanche street, old police offender, was found guilty of non-support of his family and the court gave him six months on the roads for violation of a court suspended sentence.

William N. Lovitt, Negro, 1700 S. Pitt street, concealed weapon, 30 days, suspended on payment of $50, and the pistol was ordered confiscated and sold according to law.

Billed For $583 In Paint Prank

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The University of Southern California has sent a bill for $583 to its cross-town rival UCLA for damages caused when someone dumped blue paint on USC bandmen during the school's annual football game last month.

The paint was dumped from atop a Coliseum tunnel as the band passed below. Said UCLA Dean of Students Byron Atkinson yesterday:

"The only clue that UCLA had anything to do with the halftime prank is a Bruin rooters cap." The Associated Student's at UCLA, where school colors are blue and gold, say they'll pay only if proof is given.

Japan's Big Dam Is Taking Water

SAKUMA VILLAGE, Japan (AP)—The 492-foot-high Sakuma Dam—ranking among the 10 biggest in the world—started taking water from the Tenryu River into its 320-million-ton capacity reservoir.

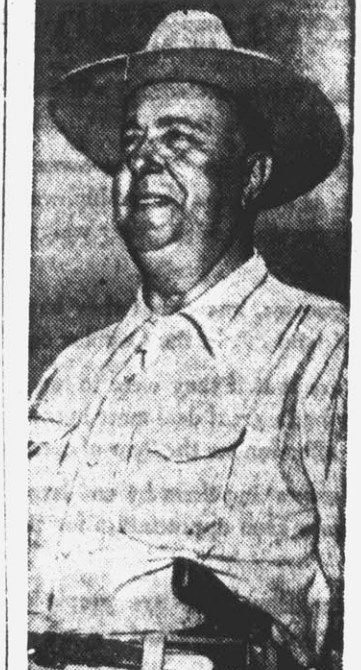

The dam was constructed largely by the American engineers which built the Pine Flat Dam in California.

The construction — often called Japan's TVA project—required 20 million Japanese man days of work in 31 months. Eighty-five Japanese workers were killed during construction.

HOOKS AND BAIT CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Somebody broke into the E. H. Peckinpaugh Co. fishing equipment store yesterday and stole 20,000 fish hooks.

A few dozen live minnows were taken.

Experiments have shown that hogs gain weight faster, especially during hot weather, if given night lights.

Prefers Peanuts For All Occasions

AP Newsfeatures PORTALES, N.M.—Tired of the same old thing for dinner? Just serve peanuts, advises Editor Gordon Greaves of the Portales Daily News.

"Have you tried stewed peanuts?" asks Greaves, probably the world's most enthusiastic peanut fancier. "Delicious! You just pull 'em right out of the ground and steam 'em."

Greaves is highly peanut conscious, his favorite variety being the locally grown Valencia peanuts, one of the main crops in the rich farming area served by his newspaper. Through his column, "By the Way," the editor keeps cooks in his county thoroughly informed on peanut recipes. He advocates the use of peanuts in just about every dish, commenting:

"I have eaten peanuts in the hull, raw, roasted and stewed, and they are good any of these ways. I have eaten them in pies, in candied sweet potatoes and of course in peanut butter, which can be used as an ingredient in many recipes. I especially like popcorn popped in peanut oil."

His favorite salad is called 3-P and is composed of peas, pickles and peanuts.

Greaves' youngest daughter is named Peanut but he says sadly: "My wife calls her Patricia."

Grandma Shoots 8-Point Buck

SALISBURY, Md. (AP)—Mrs. Howard Calhoun, a 66-year-old grandmother from nearby Delmar, told her son and son-in-law last night she might go deer hunting again "so I can shoot one for each of you and register them in your names."

Grandma Calhoun nailed an 8-point, 110 pound specimen at 50 yards yesterday.

Her son, Claude E. Calhoun of Delmar, and her son-in-law, Charles E. Rounds, of Salisbury, still have their first deer to get this season.

Mrs. Calhoun has been hunting for about 12 years. She took it up, she said, on the recommendation of a doctor who prescribed hunting as a way of relaxing nervous tensions.

Audience Awards Slated Tonight

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The first audience awards banquet tonight will give movie awards voted by the paying theater goers.

Ballot boxes were placed in theater lobbies throughout the country from Nov. 17 to 27 for the fans to vote their choices for best actor and actress, most promising new male and female performers and the best picture released between Oct. 1954, and Oct. 1955.

Statuettes will be presented to the winners by such film luminaries as Grace Kelly, Alec Guinness, William Holden, Bette Davis and Walt Disney. George Murphy will be the master of ceremonies at the affair at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

The range of the golden eagle extends from the arctic to southern Mexico.

Builders Freeze Foundations

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Refrigeration is being used to assure firm footing for military buildings in the Arctic.

It's like an engineering version of the old story about selling refrigerators to Eskimos. "Keep the permafrost frozen solid and foundations will stay solid," says Dr. Arthur Casagrande, consultant to the chief of U.S. Army Engineers. He is one of three specialists who came here to test methods of the Alaska District engineers.

Permafrost is the perpetually frozen earth that lies from one foot to hundreds of feet deep under the arctic tundra. In early arctic work heat entered the ground after the tundra was broken, the permafrost melted and foundations slumped.

Now, 30-foot pilings are set in holes. Cooling coils are placed around each piling. They freeze the piling back into the surrounding permafrost in a few days.

With the foundations in as solid as ice construction can proceed. The first floor is raised about four feet above the tundra to allow free movement of winter cold over the ground and avoid thawing by heat from the buildings.

Stricken While Driving Truck

DURANT, Okla. (AP)—Thomas Culvahouse of Port Worth, Tex., drove home to see his parents yesterday but paid no attention to a pickup truck parked near the side of the road.

He drove on to the home and was greeted by his mother. He asked for his father and learned he had left more than three hours ago. The mother was concerned.

Culvahouse drove back down the road and found his father, John McAllen Culvahouse, 60, dead behind the steering wheel of the pickup. Authorities told the son his father ran off the side of the road two miles north of here, apparently stricken with a heart attack.

Sentenced With Congratulations

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Goldie Shuld of Oklahoma City asked Common Pleas Judge Carl Traub last week if his sentence for liquor possession could be deferred a week. "I'm about to become a father," he told the judge.

Oklahoma is constitutionally dry. Judge Traub agreed a man should stick close to home during a blessed event.

Shuld reported to the court yesterday with cigars for all. "Everything's fine," he told the judge. "It's a girl."

"Congratulations," said the judge. "Thirty days and $200."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved forward today to a new record high mark.

Yesterday the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1 at $181.50, equal to the old record set Sept. 23 and today at noon the average was ahead 50 cents at a new high of $182.

The rise carried prices up 1 to 3 points in a few cases. Most changes either way, however, were rather small.

The steels were the most active division, as they were yesterday, and they were joined in trader favor by the motors and oil plus many individual issues.

Business was brisk at times and maintained a pace only slightly under the 2,440,000 shares traded yesterday.

Among higher stocks were U. S. Steel, Santa Fe Railroad, Chrysler, American Smelting Texas Co., Boeing, Du Pont, American Tobacco, RCA, U. S. Gypsum, and American Cyanamid.

Beverly Copper & Brass dropped back 1/2 at 74 1/2, immediately after directors declared a dividend of 75 cents as compared with $1 a year ago.

J. C. Penney fell 5 points on news that directors had declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents against 65 cents previously and an extra of $1.25 as compared with $1.35 a year ago.

A block of 10,500 shares of Consolidated Electronics Industries traded at 33 off 1/2.

CHICAGO (AP)—Salable hogs 23,000 25-50 lower on butchers weights under 220 lb around 25 lower early on shipping account, but later sales and bulk all weights 50 lower; trade moderately active at decline; only fair outlet to shipper buyers but good demand by local interests; hogs fully 25 low-34; most mixed grade lots No 1 to 3s 190-220 lb butchers 10.75-11.50; a few hundred 11.75 with sizable No. 1 and 2 end; 84 head lot No 1s 190 lb at 11.75; a 60 head lot mostly No 1s 212 lb 12.00; most No 2 and 3s 230-250 lb 10.00-10.75; a few 230 lb early to 11.00; most 260-320 lb 9.50-10.00.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog markets were steady to 25 lower today. Tops of 12.75 at Castle Hayne; 12.00 to 12.50 at Rocky Mount; 12.25 at Tarboro, Enfield, Goldsboro, Beulaville, Snow Hill, Nuhunta, Farmville, Mount Olive, Mount Gilred, Siler City, Micro, Elizabethtown, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Clinton and Fayetteville; 12.00 at Kenly, Tabor City, Dunn, Whiteville, Shalotte, Clarkton, Warsaw, Newton Grove, Bailey, Smithfield, and Lumberton.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Harlow H. Curtice announced today that General Motors is immediately extending its sales agreements with its retail dealers from one year to five.

The president of the nation's largest manufacturing corporation announced this major policy change in a Senate Judiciary Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee resumed public hearings on GM operations. The committee is making what it calls a case study of the huge industrial firm.

Curtice said the 17,000 GM retail dealers throughout the nation were receiving telegrams announcing the policy change.

The one-year dealership agreements previously had been sharply criticized as one-sided by former and present GM dealers in testimony at the hearings.

Curtice said "the public has been grossly misinformed by widespread publicity given to the misleading statements made by witnesses including the few complainant dealers who have appeared before this committee."

The GM president said the longer sales agreements were decided upon because of this misunderstanding "and the possible damage to General Motors good will."

HALIFAX, N.C. (AP)—The Halifax County Board of Education's advisory committee on education had before it today a request that county children be admitted to county public schools on a nondiscriminatory basis "as soon as practicable."

The Halifax chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People presented the request yesterday at a meeting of the Board of Education and its advisory committee. An estimated 25 Negroes and 35 whites attended.

Among the Negroes was Charles A. McLean of Winston-Salem, an NAACP field secretary. He did not speak at the meeting, but afterward, in response to a reporter's questions, said he was opposed to Gov. Hodges' proposed program of voluntary segregation.

Also attending was W. W. Taylor Jr., of Warren, president of the committee on education. He made no public comment.

The Rev. S. L. Bullock of Enfield, Negro member of the Advisory Committee on Education, expressed his "personal and Christian viewpoint" that desegregation could not be forced and that he favored a process of evolution in segregation over a period of 10 to 15 years.

SUNDERLAND, England (AP)—Mrs. Neville Quinn has bought another twin perambulator and this one she says she'll keep.

In 1944 Mrs. Quinn had twins Ruth and Anthony, bought a double pram, but sold it when they began to toddle.

John and Peter came in 1951—another double pram, also sold when the boys learned to walk.

Nor Mrs. Quinn, 35 has had Anne and Elaine. She and her husband also have two nontwin offspring.

nocent pedestrians. Dastardly peeping Toms will be leering in the 12th story windows of apartment buildings. Frantic mothers will be bewailing into the air, "Junior, you come down off that cloud right now, and fly to the grocery store for me. I'm sorry I ever bought you those anti-gravity shoes."

Frankly speaking do you feel the human race is ready to do away with gravity? The thing we need to do most in our troubled era is to keep both feet solidly on the ground. In this gravity is a big help.

DETROIT (AP)—While North America was alerted in a test of air defenses last night, it looked on Detroit's Woodward Avenue as if an enemy were attacking from underground.

Explosions rattled this shopping main stem over a six-mile stretch. Manhole covers were flung into the air, some as high as 20 feet, and roaring flames flashed from the uncovered manhole mouths.

One manhole cover hit a passing automobile underneath and another narrowly missed a streetcar, but no one was injured.

Chamber Of Commerce Plans Business Education Day In '56

Greenville's Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a Business Education Day for the city in 1956, according to a recommendation adopted by the Board of Directors at a regular meeting last night.

The recommendation was made by the Chamber's Education committee, which recently met with Ron Bailey, district manager for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, to discuss the possibility of promoting such a program here.

It was explained that a Business Education Day would be a day devoted to a study of business firms by school teachers in the community who will spend their time seeing business in operation and talking with top executives of host firms.

Details of the plan will be worked out by the Chamber and the project will be included in the program of activities for 1956.

The directors also accepted the recommendation of the Nominating committee to amend the by-laws and provide that the retiring president in any year will automatically become an ex-officio member of the board of directors for one year following the expiration of his term.

Manager Willard T. Kyzar reported today that the Chamber expects to have "a good representation" from Greenville at the industrial development conference to be held as well as an appraisal of the opportunities in the area and state.

Manager Kyzar reported that response in the balloting for new directors has been "good" so far, but "a good many members have still not mailed in their ballots." Voting closes Monday.

WINS HONORS

Sidney E. Briley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Briley of 804 West Fourth street, has been designated a Distinguished Military Student at North Carolina State College. The announcement was made by Col. Richard R. Middlebrooks, professor of Military Science and Tactics at the college.

Colonel Middlebrooks stated that this distinction is awarded to cadets who have demonstrated leadership, ability, high moral character and academic proficiency.

Briley, who is a senior at State College, has been in the Army ROTC program for three years, and upon completion of his college course, will be commissioned as an officer in the U. S. Army Reserve.

He is currently serving as a Cadet Colonel and Regimental Commander with the ROTC, and is a 2nd Lieutenant of the Scabbard and Blade, national honorary society whose membership consists of outstanding ROTC advanced course officers.

He is also treasurer of the college student government, an officer in Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity and a member of the Blue Key national honorary fraternity which recognizes outstanding qualities in character, scholarship and service, placing emphasis on leadership in student activities.

PLAY TONIGHT

Greenville High' Phantoms will open their 1955-56 basketball season tonight at 8 o'clock when they meet Goldsboro in the Greenville High School gymnasium.

Five returning lettermen from last year's team will form the nucleus of Coach Boley Farley's 1955 edition of the Green Phantoms.

However, it is questionable as to whether two returning starters from last year's team, Harold Edwards and Ike Riddick, will see action in tonight's opener.

Both received injuries during the football season which will keep them out tonight.

The game will be preceded by a Junior Varsity game which is scheduled to begin at 6:30.

NO CONFUSION IN AIR DEFENSE TEST

By THE ASSOCIATE PRESS

Carolinas air defense personnel today straightened their helmets and settled into the exacting routine of a surprise alert action—"Operation Crackerjack," which was flashed from Washington early last night.

The story from Carolinas points was one of generally smooth and speedy action as Air National Guardsmen manned their jets and civilian workers jumped to their posts to scan the skies.

At the Charlotte filter center, teen-age civilian volunteers were attending a class conducted by military personnel when the alert was sounded. Class was dismissed and the volunteers were at their posts within seconds.

Gas Explosions In Detroit Sewers

DETROIT (AP)—While North America was alerted in a test of air defenses last night, it looked on Detroit's Woodward Avenue as if an enemy were attacking from underground.

Explosions rattled this shopping main stem over a six-mile stretch. Manhole covers were flung into the air, some as high as 20 feet, and roaring flames flashed from the uncovered manhole mouths.

One manhole cover hit a passing automobile underneath and another narrowly missed a streetcar, but no one was injured.

Police said the explosions were

Ask Courts Open Negro Schools

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A white college professor and his wife have asked U. S. District Court to order two Negro public schools here to enroll their son and daughter as pupils.

Robert W. Rempfer, an associate mathematics professor at predominantly Negro Fisk University, and his wife filed an amendment yesterday to an integration suit before Federal Judge Elmer D. Davis.

The couple sought admission for their son, Richard Fleming, to Washington Junior High and for their daughter, Jean Trudy, to Pearl Elementary.

The amendment was to a suit filed Sept. 23 by relatives of 21 Negro children, seeking admission for them to attend White Elementary, Junior and Senior High Schools.

Defendants were listed as the City School Board and principals of the schools involved. They have until Dec. 19 to file answers to the amendment.

The amendment said, "The schools are readily accessible to and are used by Negro school children residing in the areas . . . but the facilities afforded by the schools are denied by the defendants to the infant plaintiffs . . . or other white children similarly situated."

The Rempfers sought unsuccessfully last year to get school board permission for their children to attend Negro schools. The amendment said both children were refused admission to the Negro schools at the start of the fall term.

forehead against the ceiling.

That's the big virtue of gravity. You can count on it. If a barber or a symphony conductor stands too long in one position, gravity may give him varicose veins or fallen arches over the years. But name me any blessing in this world that doesn't have its faults if it isn't used wisely!

The repeal of gravity promises certain advantages to commercial aviation and space explorers.

But if science does come up with a new anti-gravity force of substance I hope they keep it under laboratory control and don't sell it like cotton candy at a circus.

If they do, I predict chaos. The skies above our streets will be full of lunatic jawwalkers dropping chewed-up apple cores on the heads of us old-fashioned in-
