Administration's CAA Changeover May Start Probe

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles J. Lowen Jr. succeeds Frederick B. Lee as civil aeronautics administrator today in a disputed administration change that may set off a congressional inquiry.

President Eisenhower accepted Lee's resignation Saturday from the $15,000-a-year job and named Lowen, now deputy administrator, to succeed him.

The change-over was preceded by widespread reports in aviation circles that the 49-year-old Lee, who had been with the Civil Aeronautics Administration for 10 years, was being squeezed out by Commerce Department officials Lee had been administrator since March 1953.

A spokesman for the Commerce Department, parent agency of the CAA which deals with civil aviation matters, said there would be no immediate comment.

Last week the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Assn. expressed "serious concern" at reports Lee was being pressured out. J. B. Hartranft, the association president, decleared the CAA had become "a political football."

Sen. Magnuson (D-Wash), chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, has proposed an investigation.

Yesterday Charles Parker, executive director of the National Aviation Trades Assn. added his voice to the demands for a congressional inquiry of what he termed Lee's "ouster."

"I'm amazed that the Eisenhower administration, with all its talk of fair play, would stoop to such a thing," he said.

Lee himself told a newsman, "I wish I understood all the motives behind this."

He said his first hint of trouble came with the appointment of Lowen, 40, a Denver Republican, last May. He said Lowen told others in the CAA that "I'm working for Rothschild (Undersecretary of Commerce Louis S. Rothschild)," not for Lee.

Rothschild called him to his office last month, Lee related, and told him they "weren't getting along" and had "come to the parting of the ways." Lee added: "I couldn't have been more surprised."

Then last Wednesday, Lee said, Secretary Weeks demanded his resignation within two hours. Lee said he wrote a letter to Eisenhower instead, enclosing his resignation but making clear he wanted to stay in his job.

The White House made public an Eisenhower letter to Lee dated Saturday when the resignation was accepted effective at once.

The President praised Lee for "your years of conscientious service as a government official." It added, "I can well understand the reasons which prompted your letter . . . and can only accept your request" for resignation. The letter did not explain farther.

Boy Facing Charge Of Knife-Murder

BETHEL—A 16-year-old Negro boy is being held in Pitt County jail without bond facing charges of murder.

The youth, who will be taken directly before the Grand Jury this week, was identified by Chief of Police Walter Gray as George Ralph Carroll. He is alleged to have fatally stabbed a 15-year-old Negro boy, Joseph Lee Brown, following an argument Saturday night. The incident was said to have taken place around 7:45.

Chief Gray said his investigation indicated that a group of boys were arguing in Jenkins' Store in Bethel shortly before the fatal stabbing took place. The store owner told the boys to leave and the argument apparently continued outside, Gray said. Witnesses told the chief that Carroll was arguing with Joseph's brother, Charlie. During the course of the argument Carroll is alleged to have stabbed Joseph Brown with a long blade pocket knife.

Chief Gray said the Brown boy was stabbed in the chest. He was taken to Bethel Clinic and died shortly after he arrived. Doctors said an artery leading to the heart was severed.

Carroll was picked up at his home by Bethel police and Deputy Sheriffs Jasper Lee Mills and Duke Andrews.

The accused youth told the officers that he drank a pint of wine some time before the fatal stabbing took place. Gray said a knife, believed to be the one with which Brown was stabbed, was found in a field about three blocks from the scene of the crime. The blade of the knife was broken, Gray stated.

No inquest into Brown's death is planned. Carroll will be taken before the Grand Jury some time this week.

Syrian Outposts Raided In Night; Fifty-Five Slain

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israeli troops attacked Syrian outposts overlooking the Sea of Galilee during the night, killing 55 Syrian soldiers for the loss of four Israelis, officials said today.

Israeli sources said 29 Syrians were taken prisoner in the fog-shrouded battle on the northeast shores of the lake.

Twelve Israeli soldiers were wounded.

The attackers occupied four Syrian outposts, blew them up and then withdrew. The action was launched on an eight-mile front last night to silence gun positions Israel claimed fired on fishing boats and an Israeli police launch Sunday. No one was hurt in that incident.

Israeli military sources said army units moved in a four-pronged advance aimed at four Syrian positions along the eastern bank of the Sea of Galilee. The positions were in the Kursi Naquart and Beth Habeq sectors and in the sector where the Jordan flows into the Sea of Galilee.

The river leaves that sea again to the south to continue its way toward the Dead Sea.

The attacking Israeli units were supported by two detachments to block the approach of Syrian reinforcements.

U.N. truce observers rushed to the area to investigate at the first word of the Israeli attack. A U.N. spokesman said the situation in the area was quiet now.

"Israeli forces advanced against the Syrian positions to silence the batteries responsible for the unprovoked attack and secure the security of Israeli citizens engaged in their lawful occupations," the Foreign Ministry declared.

Israel claims her territory includes the entire Sea of Galilee, a lake about 13 miles long and 3 to 7 miles wide along whose shores many of the events in the life of Jesus Christ took place. Syria holds the northern half of the lake's eastern shore. A narrow strip along the southern half is held by Israel.

The Israeli attack took place along this eight-mile northern stretch. The spokesman said the Syrians shelled Israel's Ei Geb settlement, in the southeastern shore strip, but that there were no casualties in the settlement.

One of the Israeli soldiers who took part in the operations gave this account of it:

"We took the Syrians completely by surprise from the side from where they did not expect us. At first they were panicky, but then put up some strong resistance.

"Those who did not fall in the fighting or were captured fled towards the Syrian mountains bordering the Sea of Galilee. All the wounded prisoners were immediately transferred to hospitals."

Later an Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman said:

"Quiet reigns on the Sea of Galilee this morning. Israeli fishermen set out to cast their nets as usual. The Syrian batteries which for so long and so often have attacked Galilee's peaceful fishermen have been silenced. If the Syrians keep quiet, the Sea of Galilee will remain quiet."

Report Few Gains Of Desegregation

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The Southeastern Advisory Board of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People reported yesterday it has found little progress toward desegregation in the heart of the South.

The board said it found little satisfaction in the picture in Mississippi, South Carolina, Georgia, North Carolina, Alabama and Florida. Mississippi presented the most discouraging picture in the Southeast, it said.

The 31-member board said Southern officials charged with carrying out the U.S. Supreme Court integration ruling "are doing everything possible to circumvent and defy it."

In some sections, the board said, it found "there is not only defiance of the law but open and inflammatory appeals to passions, ignorance and prejudice" and a "seeming indifference or apparent inability of local agencies to protect the constitutional rights to life and liberties of citizens."

But the board found some areas of satisfaction.

It said Tennessee is the most "hopeful" of the Southeastern states with integration already started in one school system.

Alabama officials are trying to reduce political disenfranchisement the board said, while in some sections of Florida, "there exists a climate of goodwill and relations which would present an excellent opportunity for integration to take place almost immediately."

The board condemned newspapers which it said print "slanted news (which) sing a song of hate, helping to build up the climate in which deeds of violence are committed."

The only newspaper named in this connection was the Jackson Miss.) Daily News.

The board reported the following state-by-state breakdown on the findings in the Southeast:

Mississippi — Most discouraging picture in Southeast. "A complete breakdown of law and order" blamed on top officials "and most of the so-called responsible citizens —banded together in a vicious conspiracy."

South Carolina—Offers little encouragement for Negro leaders.

Georgia—"One of the most defiant states." Gov. Marvin Griffin "irresponsible and ambitious man."

North Carolina — The governo has "chosen to flout the law" b the citizens of many communities willing to integrate.

Alabama — Little action toward compliance with the Supreme Co ruling.

Florida — —Disappointment tha this state "has done so little" for school integration.

U. S.-Helped Indians Are Told It Is Exploitation

By HAROLD K. MILKS

NEW DELHI India (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev today told Indian peasants in a model village being improved with U.S. help that they are victims of "exploitation and discrimination."

The excited crowds at Sonepat, 40 miles north of New Delhi, hailed the Soviet Communist party boss and Premier Bulganin with shouts of "long live the Russian emperors" as the two walked for nearly a mile along lines carpeted with rose petals.

The village is the showplace of India's community development program, a joint Indian-U.S. technical cooperation plan.

Khrushchev told the applauding crowd, who listened to a translation in Hindu, that "peasants everywhere have been deprived of education and other facilities of life." But the peasants in Russia, he asserted, "have political power and have built themselves materially and spiritually to the greatest extent possible."

The Red party chief recommended "the collectivization of agriculture and its speedy mechanization so that you may have more leisure for studies and other enjoyments."

More than 100,000 Indians from the surrounding area packed Sonepat to see the Russian visitors, who returned to New Delhi yesterday from Kashmir.

Many influential Indian leaders were upset by Khrushchev's weekend outburst of support for India's claim to the disputed state in the Himalayan foothills.

The Soviet leaders met Prime Minister Nehru later in the day for what informants said was the second discussion of the wording of a communique to be released before Bulganin and Khrushchev leave for Afghanistan Wednesday.

Bulganin and Khrushchev have scheduled a news conference for tomorrow. They will answer only selected questions submitted in advance.

Khrushchev's declaration supporting India's claim to disputed and partitioned Kashmir is worrying some Indian leaders.

They fear the declaration of the Soviet Communist party boss may fire the controversy between India and Pakistan on the status of the border state.

Khrushchev, speaking Saturday during a visit to Kashmir, asserted:

"The question of Kashmir as one of the states of the Republic of India has already been decided by the people of Kashmir. This is the people's own affair."

Khrushchev's statement drew a prompt reply from Pakistan Premier Chaudhri Mohammed Ali.

He said in Karachi the speeches of the Russian leaders indicated "they were now bent upon making Kashmir a toy in a far more dangerous game which is bound

French Reds Stand To Gain Seats In Election

PARIS (AP)—A wide split in the 1951 anti-Communist alliance of middle-of-the-road parties today promised the Reds more National Assembly seats in the coming French general elections.

The voting will be Jan. 2.

In most districts anti-Communist parties had formed two or more alliances instead of the single solid front which froze the Reds out in many districts in the last voting. The Communists lost 67 seats in that poll.

The split resulted from the feud in the Radical Socialist party between former Premier Pierre Mendes-France and Premier Edgar Faure.

Under the French electoral law, a party or alliance winning a majority in a district gets all the seats. The anti-Communist split made majorities in such districts unlikely, in which case the seats will be distributed on a basis proportional to the vote each party gets. Such a distribution generally increases the Reds' winnings.

With a record number of voters registered a record 5,000 or more candidates wee expected to file for the 627 Assembly seats before the deadline at midnight tonight.

The large number of candidates also favored the Communists, who always present a solid front.

The deadline for registration of voters ended at midnight Saturday. New voters swarmed to get their names on the rolls and it was estimated that 30 million persons now are eligible to vote.

Four main political groupings have emerged in the maneuvering for voting strength. They are:

1. A left-of-center alliance headed by former Premier Pierre Mendes-France. It lines up the Socialists, the Radical Socialists controlled by Mendes-France and parts of two smaller groups under a "Republican Front" banner These groups are allied in more than a third of the 95 departments (counties) and election districts.

2. A right-of-center alliance led by Premier Edgar Faure and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay. Allied are the Radical Socialists supporting Faure, the Catholic Popular Republican Movement (MRP) and most of the right-wing independent groups. Elements of this grouping were represented in well over half the districts.

3. The Communists, entering their own candidates in all districts. They have been cut off from alliances by other parites as they were in the last general election in 1951.

4. The "Poujadists," a new faction led by Pierse Poujade, 34-year-old bookseller who heads the union for the Defense of Small-shopkeepers and Tradesmen (UDCA). Poujade has conducted a campaign against tax laws and UDCA claims 800,000 members The Poujadists have no alliances but are expected to attract an important part of the right-wing vote

Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Rally of the French People (RPF), which took the largest single group of seats in 1951 by electing 118 deputies, was virtually out of the picture.

Wake Forest 'Pot' Kept Boiling Hot

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — A faculty meeting was scheduled here today as the controversy over Wake Forest College's administration mushroomed.

These developments occurred during the weekend to keep the issue a hot one:

1. More than 100 wake Forest alumni of eastern North Carolina met yesterday in Goldsboro and unanimously passed a resolution asking the school's board of trustees to dismiss President Harold Tribble.

2. A special committee of nine appointed by the trustees to study the school's administration met in Greensboro Saturday. Committee Chairman Andrew J. Hutchins declined to announce the committee's findings, but said they will be turned over to the trustees at their next meeting Dec. 22.

There was little known concerning the faculty meeting other than that it was mentioned in one of three resolutions passed by the group at Goldsboro yesterday.

That resolution said, "This group requests that in the event a vote of confidence is called for Dr. Tribble at tomorrow's faculty meeting that it will be by secret ballot."

Although the special committee named by the trustees was picked Nov. 16, much of the controversy apparently stems from the resignations submitted Dec. 3 by Athletic Director Pat Preston, and Tom Roger, head football coach.

Dr. Tribble has said he will cooperate fully with the investigating committee. He said he "regretted that the agitation of recent months should assume such proportions as to hinder and retard our development program in this crucial year of removal."

In June, Wake Forest will move to its new campus at Winston-Salem.

Hutchins also released the names of his committee. They are Mrs. J. Melville Broughton of Raleigh, widow of the late senator and governor; O. O. Allsbrook of Wilmington; Dr. J. B Willis of Hamlet; the Rev. Donald G. Myers of Reidsville; Dr. Vernon W. Taylor of Elkin; Dr. Carl V. Ryner of Leaksville; . C. Bridger of Bladenboro, and W. W. Staton of Sanford.

Four named as an advisory committee are E. L. Davis of Winston-Salem, president of the general alumni association R. P. Burns of Roxboro, president of the lawyers alumni association, Ed Harrell of Newton, president of the Deacon Club, and Hiram W. Ward, Lexington attorney.

Hutchins said, "Such information as gathered will be the property of the board of trustees and will be presented to the board of trustees at its next meeting and acted upon and disseminated as it may see fit."

At the Dec. 22 meeting of the trustees the resignations of Preston and Rogers will be major business.

When Basil Watkins of Durham, president of the trustees, named the investigation committee, he said the probe will have "particular reference" to the college administration's relationships with the faculty employes and students; with "the many loyal Wake Forest alumni," and with "friends of the college generally."

A second resolution passed by the Goldsboro group read: "This meeting goes on record as a vote of no confidence in Dr. Tribble because it is our feeling that Dr. Tribble has lost the confidence of the students, faculty and alumni."

The third resolution said: "That we request the Wake Forest board of trustees to vacate the office of president of Wake Forest College by dismissing Dr. Tribble and that the office be filled by an alumnus of wake Forest who has the confidence of the faculty students and alumni and the Baptist denomination of the state."

Cooperate In Raid On Bootleg Still

State Highway Patrolman R. E Tayloe, Grifton Constable Walter Joyner and ATU agent Joe Fowler cooperated Saturday in the destruction of an illegal distillery and 500 gallons of mash just over the Craven County line.

Taylor and Joyner located the still and then called Fowler from New Bern. The latter arrived with 10 sticks of dynamite and the still was destroyed. It was located about 100 yards off NC 118.

Bade Farewell, Killed Himself Before Family

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Army Pvt. James W. Willis, 21, of Rt. 7, Fayetteville, bade goodbye to his wife and two children at the Fayetteville bus terminal Saturday night, stepped back a few feet and shot himself twice in the head.

Horrified passengers screamed and other onlookers fled as the .22 pistol rattled to the pavement and Willis slumped.

Willis died in Ft. Bragg Hospital yesterday.

Coroner Alph Clark, who ruled suicide, said Willis apparently was despondent because his family was leaving. The coroner said he was told that Willis had talked heatedly with his wife as she sat with their two children and her sister preparatory to leaving for Springfield, Tenn. The coroner said Mrs. Willis' grandmother had been reported in dying condition in Tennessee.

Louisiana Argues Hazard To Health

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Attorneys for the NAACP say sworn statements that desegregation will wreck the New Orleans school system, create a health menace and ultimately harm both white and Negro children "are not based on scientific fact."

The statements were entered in the record of a Federal Court suit by a group of school and medical officials in behalf of the Orleans Parish School Board

But attorneys for the National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People say they do not plan at present to challenge the statements unless they become an issue in the desegregation suit

"We are merely stating our case on a legal point of view," said NAACP Atty A. P. Tureaud yesterday. "We are asking for compliance as speedily as possible with the U.S. Supreme Court decision banning segregation."

The NAACP suit against the school board is the first major test of Louisiana's new segregation laws, adopted in 1954 to sidestep the historic segregation decision

Louisiana contends that it is constitutionally within its police powers, guaranteed by the 10th Amendment, to continue segregation as a matter of "health, welfare and morals."

The affidavits introduced in the suit seek to bolster this contention by claiming that immediate desegregation would create a public health menace, particularly from venereal disease lower educational standards and put the Negro children at a "tremendous educational and psychological disadvantage."

Tureaud said the NAACP would present counter arguments if and when the three judge Federal court decides that the statements from the school board are an issue in the suit

The court already has taken the case under advisement.

Demos Maneuver On West Coast, GOP Eyes On White House

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democrats maneuvered on the West Coast while Republican eyes focused on the White House today

Interest in White House doings centered on President Eisenhower's preview for congressional GOP chiefs of his forthcoming State of the Union message and on the President's health, newly examined over the weekend

On the West Coast Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), in Los Angeles, accused California Democratic party leaders yesterday of trying to freeze him out of the state primary election next June

Kefauver who says he'll announce soon whether he'll seek the Democratic presidential nomination next year, evidently referred to endorsements by top California Democrats of Adlai E Stevenson for the '56 nomination

"Most of the efforts of the party leaders in California have been directed toward keeping me out of the Democratic primary," Kefauver told newsmen.

"I don't think that is a good thing The only chance the people have to express their opinion is in the primary."

In Oregon some Stevenson backers were reported getting no encouragement from the Stevenson camp in efforts to place his name on the state primary ballot

A candidate's name can go on the ballot there, without his consent, if a petition carries the signatures of 1,000 voters. One early signer of petitions started by two Reed College students was Oregon State Rep. Maurine Neuberger, wife of U. S. Sen. Richard L Neuberger. She says she will support Stevenson for the top nomination, and hopes Kefauver will be nominated for vice president

Howard Morgan Democratic state chairman, said he telephoned Stevenson campaign leaders Saturday and "none of them mentioned that Stevenson had decided to enter the Oregon primary."

Stevenson, meantime, received a pledge of support from Sen. Murray (D-Mont) and Murray's assurance that Montana's 16 convention votes would go to him next year

However, there were indications that Stevenson was not making as much progress in Southern states as some of his friends hoped Dixie hostility cost Stevenson four states in that area in 1952

Sen. Russell (D-Ga), who as a presidential candidate three years ago got many convention votes from the South said he believes it is still too early to tell how that area will go next year

Republicans studied the report by Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, Eisenhower's personal physician, that the President's general condition was "good" in his convalescence from his Sept 24 heart attack but that he should "slow down" his activities.

Snyder indicated it would be mid-February before Eisenhower knows from a physical standpoint whether he's in fit condition to run for another term in the White House.

Some Republicans have been urging Eisenhower to declare his intentions soon so potential presidential candidates will know where they stand.

One high government official who had been mentioned as a possible GOP presidential candidate if Eisenhower doesn't run, J. Edgar Hoover, was reported to have turned thumbs down on the idea

The FBI chief was quoted by Sen. Jenner (R-Ind) as saying "he didn't want to jeopardize the position he has built up for the FBI by getting into politics."

Jenner said he personally sounded out Hoover at the request of an Indiana Republican leader the senator did not identify.

Ignorance About Other Countries Shocks Visitors

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

War brides from Australia, Europe and the Orient are shocked at the ignorance of the average American about other countries, says Nina Pulliam, confirmed globe-trotter, author and publishing executive.

Blonde, petite Mrs. Pulliam is the author of "I Traveled a Lonely Land" (Bobbs Merrill), a lively account of her four-month trip by plane, truck and horseback through the vast and little chronicled land of Australia. She traveled with typewriter and camera, and fell in love with the koala bears, the kangaroos and all the flora and fauna of the land Down Under.

Wife of Eugene C. Pulliam, publisher of the Indianapolis Star and News, Mrs. Pulliam has visited 77 countries thus far, usually accompanied by her husband, and she customarily sends back dispatches to the News and six other papers in Indiana and Phoenix, Ariz. Says she:

"There are a few places I haven't seen yet, but I intend to cover them all before I stop—and revisit the ones I liked best."

This alert and vivacious travel fan has built a career of excitement, adventure and solid success on her early interest in journalism. She wrote for a farm journal while still in college, joined it staff on graduation and joined the Pulliam organization when the editor of the farm magazine was asked by Pulliam to "send us your best man."

The "best man" turned out to be a blue-eyed, golden-haired slip of a girl, who helped the publisher reorganize a number of newspapers in Oklahoma before she became Mrs. Pulliam. Despite her strictly feminine appearance, Mrs. Pulliam has a keen business mind, is an officer of the publishing company, and has specialized in the business end of publishing almost from the start.

FIT THE PART

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP)—Charlene Measures, 17, was scheduled to play the lead in her high school play enacting a "tomboy who liked football." A few hours before curtain time, however, Charlene was sidelined with a broken finger. The reason: she broke it in an offtackle smash in a sandlot football game.

The belief that a mentally deficient girl can be cured by marriage is tragically false, experts say.

RAN IN FLAMES

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The living room floor of a basemen. apartment burst into flames yesterday when it was being smeared with gasoline to remove a coat of paint Robert Logsdon, 22, suffered second and third degree burns over most of his body. He reportedly had to cross the 12-by-14 foot room to the only exit. Three other persons suffered less severe burns.

There are an estimated two billion tons of low grade iron ore within 10 feet of the surface in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Oratorio Presented For Large Audience

Presented yesterday afternoon in the Wright auditorium before an audience of approximately 2,000 people from various parts of Eastern North Carolina, a performance of Handel's "The Messiah" was a major event of the pre-holiday season at East Carolina College.

Dr. Elwood Keister of the East Carolina faculty directed the oratoric, which was sung by six soloists from the college and a chorus of two hundred men and women from the campus, Greenville, and nearby towns.

The oratorio was presented this year with accompaniment by organ and piano. George E. Perry played the Conn electric organ installed in the Wright building during the summer months. Mrs. Eleanor Toll was pianist. Both are faculty members at the college.

Soloists selected to appear in the arias of the Handel work included two vocalists from the college staff and four students of music. August Laube of Greenville and New Bern, bass; June Crews of Creedmoor, soprano; Gerald Murphy of China Grove, tenor; and Frances Smith of Robersonville, soprano, were student soloists. Cynthia Mendenhall, supervisor of recreation at the college Student Union, and Ruth Lambie, director of the East Carolina Nursery School, altos, represented staff members among soloists.

This year's performance of the Handel oratorio, always a favorite of the Christmas season, was the fifth annual presentation to be given at East Carolina. Dr. Keister's expert direction and the excellence of the performances by soloists and choir made this year's program one to be remembered because of its inspirational and artistic qualities.

Dr. Wallace I. Wolverton, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Greenville, made a short prayer to close the afternoon's performance.

Calls For Free Medical Schools

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Medical schools should charge no fee at all in the opinion of Alexander G. Ruthven, president emeritus of the University of Michigan.

Ruthvan, writing in the Journal of the Michigan State Medical Society, said: "There are brains on both sides of the tracks, and they should be fully utilized in medicine. Ability and ambition to achieve success are not related to the economic status of the parents."

Will Community Chest Fall Short?

Will the local Community Chest cupboard be bare next September when local service agencies of the Community Chest go to look for funds to finance the last four months of their annual operations?

We certainly hope the answer to that question is an emphatic NO, but the way the current Community Chest funds campaign is going, the question may have to be answered in the affirmative.

The campaign to raise funds for the local Community Chest has been going on for several weeks now. Many solicitors have received a good response from the people they contacted and have made their reports. Others have not been as fortunate in getting contributions from the people on their lists.

As things now stand, collections for the local Community Chest operations for next year stand slightly below $10,000. For its campaign, the local Community Chest set a goal of only $15,300, which is extremely modest when compared with the goal of Communtiy Chests and United Fund organizations in cities of comparable size The goal is based on the amount needed by the Community Chest agencies to carry out their respective programs during the coming year. If only two-thirds of the goal is reached—that's all that has been reached so far—the agencies will either curtail their programs to make the funds last over the entire 12 month period, or they will have to do without funds the last four months of next year.

Neither of the alternatives is in the least desirable.

Many people of Greenville already have made generous contributions to the local Community Chest. Many others who could well afford to make contributions haven't given a penny. Activities of Community Chest agencies benefit everyone in the Greenville community either directly or indirectly. The only way to assure the continuance of the programs of these several agencies is to provide for them financial support through the annual Community Chest campaign.

Given Enough Time, Ike Can Name Candidate

Would-be Republican candidates for President are going to be caught in the old political squeeze play. It should not be surprising if next summer sees President Eisenhower practically hand-pick the man who will head the GOP national ticket.

President Eisenhower is playing his cards close to his chest. It is almost certain he will not consider a nomination for a second term; but there's an outside chance he might. Until he definitely announces his decision, the GOP hopefuls can't do too much campaigning.

Most of the would-be candidates for the Republican presidential nomination will be candidates only if President Eisenhower is out of the picture. Therefore they can't do much pre-convention campaigning. With the possible exception of Sen. Joe McCarthy from whom we can expect most anything, there doesn't appear to be a potential candidate who would want to vie with Ike for the nomination.

As a result, other possible candidates are having to take a back-row seat. The best they can do is to line up support on an "if-Ike-doesn't-run" basis, and that kind of support isn't effective. If the President remains silent on his political intentions until next spring, there will be little time for other candidates to really get a pre-convention campaign rolling.

The man who receives Eisenhower's endorsement will be far ahead of the pack in the race for the nomination. Whether or not he can be overtaken by another hopeful will depend a great deal on the number of weeks between the time President Eisenhower officially voices his intentions and the time the GOP convention convenes.

Leasing 5-Acre Site Sounds Like Good Deal

Greenville moved a step closer to the realization of a new Army reserve armory the other night when the City Council gave its approval for the construction of the armory here and made available a suitable site for the new facility.

The site the Council picked is a part of the City-County airport property which will be at the intersection of the airport road and the new bypass. If the County Commissioners follow suit in approving the $1 a year lease on approximately five acres—and there is no reason they shouldn't—there is no reason to believe the CAA which still has a say-so in the airport property will block the use of the site.

It will mean officials of the local reserve unit can report that property for the new armory has been secured on a satisfactory basis, and the wheels can begin to turn to get the money for the new facility.

Neither the county nor the city will make a bad deal by leasing the five-acre site for a dollar a year if the federal government comes through with the $160,000 appropriation to cover the cost of building the armory.

Opinions In Brief

GREENSBURG, KAN., SIGNAL: "There is a paradox in this thing called newspapering. Newspaper people meet deadlines if they have to go without sleep and meals. Occasionally, however, a breakdown makes it impossible to meet the deadline. It is then the phone starts ringing(and impatient, even angry voices inquire, 'What's going on down there? Can't you get a paper out on time?' At the moment it seems unreasonable to people who have been working around the clock. But it is also a warming thought. The town is waiting for the newspaper."

SAN DIEGO, TEXAS, FACTS: "New sources of financial support must be found for our country's private elementary and secondary schools. The high standards of the independent schools are threatened because of inadequate income to meet rising costs of operation. The independent school does not generally receive direct support from government—local, state or federal. This is as it should be."

JEFFERSONTOWN, KY., JEFFERSONIAN: "The choice seems to us to be plain, we can have socialism (an opening wedge for communism), with government in the saddle to over-govern and inhibit us all, to the point of destroying initiative and ambition—or we can have free enterprise, and such other freedoms destined to live or die with it."

BUFFALO, S. D., TIMES-HERALD: "'The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away' could be paraphrased to read 'the government giveth and the government taketh away. The main point of difference, however, is that the Lord giveth out of the bounty of His goodness, while the government can only 'giveth' back part of what it 'taketh' away."

Pitt Continues To Be The Tobacco County

Both of Pitt County's tobacco markets ranked in the top five markets of the Eastern Belt so far as poundage sold during the 1955 season is concerned. In poundage of the two markets, Pitt again led the counties of the Eastern Belt in the amount of tobacco sold.

Greenville's market, selling 77,566,000 pounds ranked third among the markets of the belt according to goverment figures, while the Farmville market which sold 30,508,000 pounds ranked fifth in the belt.

The Wilson market continued on the top of the heap with sales amounting to a whooping 92 million.

During the past season Pitt continued to hold its place of superiority in tobacco sales as well as in tobacco production among the counties of the Eastern Belt. While the big Greenville market has long been near the top in annual poundage figures, Farmville's market has become of increasing signficance over a period of years. This season it out-sold the Smithfield market by a million pounds, and likewise sold more tobacco than the markets of Tarboro and Washington combined.

Re-Division Study Of Escheats Made

By LYNN NISBET

ESCHEATS — The State Board of Higher Education is giving some study to revising the distribution of escheats. The subject is lively interest right now because of probable availability of more than half a million dollars in excess railroad freight rates collected under an ICC authorization that has been overruled by the Supreme Court.

The constitution provides that all escheats shall accrue to the benefit of the University. There has been for years the feeling on part of other State supported colleges that they should share in the distribution.

When the constitution of 1868 was adopted there was no other State supported college except the University at Chapel. Hill. Institutions at Raleigh, Greensboro, Boone, Cullowhee, Greenville, Durham Elizabeth City, Fayetteville, Winston-Salem and Pembroke all came along later. Friends of these institutions insist that it was the intent of framers of the constitution that escheat funds should be used for higher education. Since the university was the only existing unit, it was named in the text

When the Consolidated University was formed in the early 30's State College at Raleigh and Woman's College at Greensboro began to share in the fund—but only the income from that part of it which accrued after the consolidation. The Chapel Hill unit still derives entire benefit from the fund which had accumulated prior to consolidation. Distribution of income from the joint fund to the three units is on basis of enrollment.

PURPOSES — The escheats income is now limited to scholarships, by resolution of the board of trustees. Until a few years ago the fund was available for student loans and certain special purposes A small allocation was made, for example, to complete the memorial to er at State College The trustees concluded that such products were not appropriate uses of the fund, and it should be restricted solely to aid worthy students to obtain an education.

SOURCES — The escheats fund derives from varied sources Residue of estates not claimed in certain trust funds; excess charges by utilities not recaptured by the original payers, and numerous others There are statutory time limits as to when such funds shall be delivered to the university, and longer time after that in which rightful individual owners may prove their claims and get the money.

The principal of the fund is invested by Wachovia Bank & Trust Company as fiscal agent for the University in approved securities, a substantial part being in Federal and State bonds. The yield is not as high as in some other investments, but in the handling of public money the emphasis is upon safety and security rather than upon revenue.

ENROLLMENT — Approximately half the students enrolled in State supported colleges are in units outside the Consolidated University. Estimates provided the advisory budget commission last fall which are believed to have been fairly accurate, show the University at Chapel Hill with 5,000; State College 4,300 and Woman's College 2,200—a total of 11,500 for the university system.

The other nine State supported colleges estimated a total of 10,500, distributed as follows: East Carolina, 2,600; Appalachian, 1,000; Western Carolina, 800; A&T, 2,500; N.C. College, 1,400; Winston-Salem, 800; Elizabeth City and Fayetteville, 600 each; Pembroke, 200.

PROBLEMS — The new State Board of Higher Education is concerned with problems involving financing all these colleges, with arranging curricula so as to eliminate duplication as far as possible, and with fitting each of the schools into an overall program of higher education.

It is know that the board has not reached the point of specific discussion of particular items. It is also known that suggestion has been made that income from escheats probably should be devoted to the whole field of higher education, just as proceeds from sale of swamp lands are devoted to the public schools.

The University trustees are expected to resist any effort to divert the escheats money to other colleges. On individual voting they can out number the combined trustees of the other institutions. There are 100 UNC trustees elected by the General Assembly, and four ex-officio members of the board. The other nine colleges have a total of 101 trustees, mostly appointed by the Governor but with several ex-officio members--who are also members of the UNC board

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

YOU NEED TO PRACTICE

I you have ever admired a great musician enough to ask him the secret of his skill, you probably discovered that the main part of his answer could be summed up in one word—practice Good musicians are almost always terribly serious about practicing. They devote more hours to it than we would suspect, and are likely to resent having to miss any practice time A whole day's loss of practice makes a perceptible difference; a week or a month's loss might be unthinkably serious.

The truth is, we all need to keep in practice in those areas of life that count most. It is always easy to get out of moral practice, and the real trouble with many men and women who have gone wrong is just that. They have missed their moral practice. They have stopped distinguishing right from wrong until gradually they can no longer tell the difference At last for them, there was no difference. Distinctions became fuzzier and fuzzier until they suddenly find their lives in a mess from which they would give anything to escape

All good habits need practice —courtesy, temperance, generosity, prudence, gratitude, love, prayer, worship, and the rest Don't ever let them get rusty We can't all be the best musicians; we can all attempt to be at our best morally and spiritually.

Business Today . . .

Each According To His Means

By ELMER ROESSNER

A bill to provide broad Federal aid to public schools will be offered to Congress next month by the Eisenhower administration Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told the White House Conference on Education last week.

A majority of delegates approved. They want help especially in building schools. Delegates proved. They want help especially in building schools. Delegates said only two or three states can meet their needs for the next five years.

Until now, costs of building schools have been borne almost entirely by states and political subdivisions. If the American people, in their wisdom, want to transfer some or all of the burden to the Federal government, it may be all right. (It probably won't be, but for the sake of this column, let's pretend.)

But if we lay off the costs on Uncle Sam, we ought to understand the economics of it.

IN THE END, THE TAXPAYERS

To some, Federal aid to schools will seem like a wonderful bonanza. Local taxes won't have to be increased.

But whether states their subdivisions or the Federal government pays for building schools, the Federal government pays for building schools, the taxpayers foot the bills. The Federal government can't just print money and pay contractors and builders. So if local taxes are not increased to meet the rising need for educational facilities, then Federal taxes must be increased or—to be more realistic—expected cuts in income and excise taxes can't be made.

Federal aid might reduce costs slightly, since the double watchfulness of both state and Federal grand juries might minimize graft. On the other hand, Federal architecture goes in for a lot of expensive doodads. Look at any post office.

And while we can't have new schools unless taxpayers pay for them, either through local taxes or Federal levies, it does not necessarily follow that all taxpayers would pay as much either way. In fact, many would pay more; many would pay less.

FROM EACH

The per capita income tax payments differ greatly. For instance, in 1950, the latest year for which figures are at hand, residents of Delaware paid an average or $343. In Mississippi—where there are presumably as many children of school age per family as in Delaware—the per capita payment was $31.

Per capita payments in the District of Columbia (where all those government workers live) were $211; in Nevada, $200; in Connecticut $189, and in California $164. In Arkansas, they were $39; Alabama, $49; North Carolina, $54, and in Georgia, $5

Thus, under a program of Federal support for education, people in Delaware, the District of Columbia, Nevada, Connecticut and California would be paying for schools in Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama North Carolina and Georgia.

And if Federal aid were based on a "means" test, there would be no help for New York Connecticut and Nevada, which appear to be able to finance their own schools, while there would be maximum aid for states whose school financing is in a mess.

This may be quite fair, just and democratic. But it sure fits in Karl Marx's idea of "from each according to his means, to each according to his needs."

FEW OTHER DIFFICULTIES

There are some other problems connected with Federal aid to education. Many Congressmen would vote for funds only to those states that forbid segregation in schools. This would put Congress in the position of bribing states to obey the Constitution.

In the past, Congress has insisted on attaching conditions to appropriations. It voted an Interior Department appropriation only on condition that none of it be paid to Michael Straus, Reclamation Commissioner; it has held up Voice of America money until the chiefs acceded to Congressional prejudices, and it has delayed other appropriations until policies were changed or certain favorites given jobs.

So it is not impossible to expect that appropriations would be used to make teachers teach certain truths, such as that all Democrats—or Republicans—are scalawags.

List Of Suggested Gift Books

NEW YORK (AP)—When your television set goes blooey, what do you do while you're waiting for the repair man to come and fix it?

Do you get cross and upset? Why not protect yourself against these tragic lulls in livin'? Why not buy yourself a book, and sit down and read it? What if it does make your lips tired? You probably could use a little more exercise.

Now, don't say, "I've already got a book." Every home that yearns for a two-car garage ought to have room for two books, too. You can find space for the extra one somewhere.

As a matter of fact, why not really surprise a friend this year and send him a book for a Christmas present? He'll talk about it for days and days.

To help you pick the right one, we have made a list of suggested Christmas books for folks you've heard about. And so, kiddies, here we go—all in fun:

"A Charmed Life." — President Eisenhower.

"Beyond Desire." — Winston Churchill.

"So Near and Yet So Far." — Adlai Stevenson.

"The Frontier Years." — Sophie Tucker

"The Smiling Rebel." — Sen. Estes Kefauver.

"A Man Called Peter." — Princess Margaret Rose

"How Far the Promised Land?"—Carmine DeSapio.

"The Power of Positive Thinking." —The governor of New York.

"A Slight Sense of Outrage."—The governor of Georgia.

"Run Silent, Run Deep." — The governors of Ohio and Michigan.

"Meet Mister Eisenhower." — Mrs. Eisenhower.

"No Man is an Island." — Mail me a copy.

"The Dawn of Personality." — Fred Allen.

"Personal Power Through Creative Selling." — —Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

Where Ike Relaxed Presidential Grip

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower's relinquishment of control and guidance of the Republican Party is reflected most vividly in his failure to furnish leadership in framing policy on two of the nation's most explosive political and economic problems—labor and agriculture. His seeming indifference is most disquieting to GOP strategists.

Although the newly united labor movement which backed Adlai E. Stevenson solidly in 1952 as separate components, intends to intesify its political organization and activity, leading Republican spokesmen appear determined to drive it into the Democratic column.

Ike, perhaps, could not control the anti-labor utterances of Senator Barry Goldwater of New Mexico, although he heads the Senate Republicans' Policy Committee. Nor could he silence Senator William F. Knowland of California, although he holds such a prominent and responsible post as Senate Minority Leader. But if Ike were actively at the helm, it is probable that they would have consulted him before antagonizing such a potentially influential voting bloc.

AFFRONTS TO LABOR But Harold E. Stassen's outburst against labor really floored the practical politicans of both Parties. For one thing, the Minnesotan went far afield from his role as White House adviser on disarmament. Secondly, he is virtually a member of the inner White House family and is supposed to be a Presidential favorite.

It was expected that Ike would try to offset these affronts in his message to the combined AFL-CIO convention. He did not satisfy them. He simply said that they had the right of every American to engage in politics, but urged them, in effect, to be reasonable, not emotional, in choosing sides.

With the Democrats planning a grandstand play to the workingmen, especially if Harry S. Truman dominate the convention, this neglect at the Republican "summit" could prove serious.

BENSON TO SUBMIT FORMULA Eisenhower has seemingly shown the same disinterest in a farm program to half falling prices He has not huddled with Secretary Ezra Taft Benson since his return to Gettysburg. It has not been brought up at Cabinet meetings at Camp David.

Benson has promised to submit an agricultural formula at the January session of Congress So far, however, it contemplates nothing new or striking He will advocate the old scheme of a "soil bank," which is a palliative rather than a solution He will favor more exports at competitive prices, especially of wheat and cotton, but the State Department blocked such a surplus disposal effort when he tried it last year.

Meanwhile, the White House will oppose the farm bloc's and the Democrats' demand for a return to 90 per cent parity price supports instead of the current flexible figures

WARNINGS TO WHITE HOUSE Republican politicians and editors have flooded the White House and Capitol Hill with warnings of impending defeat in farm states unless the Administration bestirs itself on this issue. The corn-cattle-wheat belt, they point out has 156 votes in the electoral college, with 266 necessary to win.

Truman won 120 in 1948. Although he lost almost all the great industrial states, as well as four Southern commonwealths to Strom Thurmond, the farm vote enabled him to nose out Thomas E. Dewey. Ike carried every farm state.

But 1954 and 1955 election returns herald an ominous reversal. In 1954, the Democrats won the Minnesota and Michigan Governorships. The Republicans squeezed through in gubernatorial contests by only 25,000 in Iowa, by 36,000 in Wisconsin, by 1,000 in Wyoming. Indiana turned out many Republican Mayors less than two months ago.

BLEAK PRICE PICTURE The bleak price picture darkens the political canvass. When the GOP was winning these narrow 1954 victories, hogs were selling at about $18.35 a hundred, cattle at $26 a hundred corn at $1.51 a boushel. Today's prices are about $12 for hogs, $21 for cattle, $1.10 for corn. Wheat is also down

How, ask down-to-earth Republican leaders here and throughout the country, can we win, even with Eisenhower, if we slap labor in the face, and do nothing for the farmers? And what is Ike going to do about it?

Inflation Has Many Reasons

By ROGER W. BABSON

NEW YORK CITY — There are many reasons for inflation. Most important has been the fact that inflation comes when the supply of money exceeds the supply of goods.

We Have A Choice

The above can occur either by (1) an increase in government or private credit which results in higher prices and higher wages, or (2) an increase in the circulation of money which can have the same effect as more money this latter comes as a result of boom times such as are now being enjoyed by New York and other large cities.

Contrariwise, if unemployment increases and advertising appropriations decrease retail trade will decline and inventories accumulate. Then the supply of goods will increase, credit and money will tighten, wages will decline, and we will have deflation. It's the old story: "We cannot have our pie and eat it too." We can choose between full employment with higher wages and higher prices, or unemployment with lower wages and lower prices.

Today's New Factor

Since World War II, another very important cause of inflation has become operative. This may be called a psychological cause; but it is really due to the talk about "Atomic Bombs," "Hydrogen Bombs," and "Guided Missiles"

To scare us into demanding greater expenditures for defense and a willingness to be taxed therefor, we are fed with this probable fact—namely: If World War III should now come, the 20 largest U.S. cities with 30,000,000 innocent U.S. people would be wiped out.

Saving Becoming A Lost Art

Constant talk of this sort in the press and over the radio is destroying the American habit of thrift, substituting therefor a spending craze. Before we heard of Atomic Bombs people would get a mortgage for only about 60 per cent of the cost of a house. Their ambition then was to pay up this mortgage and have the house "free and clear." Furthermore, most mortgages were written for a term not exceeding five years.

Now, as a bribe to voters, the government offers or guarantees credit so that a new house can be mortgaged for 95 per cent to 100 per cent of the cost, with from 20 to 30 years to pay the mortgage. In view of the talk that "World War III is inevitable —although it probably will not come for five years"—people are reasoning as follows.

"World War III will wipe out both me and my house,—then I'll never have to pay the mortgage. Or else the inflation coming with or after World War III will cause the value of our dollar to go down to ten cents. In that case, if the house and I continue to exist, I can pay this mortgage with these ten-cent dollars!" The same reasoning applies to enjoying automobiles, TV sets, washing machines, and even luxuries now on borrowed money, rather than waiting until World War III when one would have neither these things nor the money and would perhaps get killed to boot.

"Eat, Drink, And Be Merry Now"

Although the above is very contary to the way we old people were once taught, yet it is the way young people are now reasoning. I hate to admit it, but it may be logical reasoning under the terrible threat of World War III. This threat our boys are today being fed by their superior officers while in army-training. Surely this is the basic reason for the prosperity which I find today in New York and the other 20 cities which we are told are liable to be destroyed.

In addition to the above economic reasoning, there is an important political influence, — one which both Republican and Democratic leaders recognize. This is that in order to "stay in" or "get in" office hey must have, or promise, full employment and prosperity NOW. In order to give this to the voters, the government must supply more credit, favor higher wages, and make it easier for the voters to buy—without money—houses, automobiles, and anything else they want. This means more inflation

Greenville Garden Club Sponsors Annual Weekend Yuletide Shcw

Tables were set for all types of Christmas parties and celebrations. In the foreground is a table all ready and festive for an eggnog party. The cloth in green, fringed in white, and the napkins are a gay red against the gleaming silver of the punch bowl, cups and other dishes. In the table's center, evergreens and red Christmas balls surround the red candles. In the background of the picture, a table is set for a children's party, complete with Santa Clause punch bowl and cups on a bright red, white and green cloth featuring poinsettias. Evergreens and red berries, with red candles, center the table, and two Santas stand posed at on end.

Numerous ideas for Christmas table decorations were on display at the weekend show. This one combines pink poinsettias in a frosted base surrounded by Christmas balls, and flanked on either side by pink tapers in silver holders.

Christmas came early to the Woman's Club this year as the Greenville Garden Club sponsored its annual Christmas show there Saturday and Sunday.

Christmas trees, Santa Clauses, angels and all sorts of Christmas characters and symbols were there, in suggestions for Yuletide table decorations, swags for the front door, ideas for wrapping packages and for giving festive Christmas parties.

Tables were set gaily for all sorts of festivities, while others held many ideas for table decorations, Christmas foods, gifts and cards. Christmas trees lighted the four corners of the dining room.

All items on display were made by members of the Garden Club, under the direction of Mrs. Sam H. Mitchell, chairman for the show.

Colors ranged from the traditional red and green to soft pinks and golds, and everywhere there were bright Christmas balls, tinsels, sequins and candles.

A refreshment table was featured in the Cotten Room which provided a pink and white setting, and across the hall gift items made by Garden Club members were for sale.

No admission was charged, but a silver offering was taken to defray expenses.

Jungle-Fighter Fatally Stricken

CONCORD N.H. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Frank D. Merrill, 53, famed World War II jungle fighter and New Hampshire's public works and highways commissioner since 1949, died of a heart attack in Fernandina Beach, Fla., late last night, Gov. Lane Dwinell announced today.

The governor said Merrill collapsed and died almost immediately at a motel in the Florida town, about 30 miles north of Jacksonville.

Merrill and State Highway Engineer Richard Burnell and their wives, were returning to New Hampshire from a meeting of the American Assn. of State Highway Officials in New Orleans.

Merrill was the leader of "Merrill's Marauders," behind-the-lines fighters who plagued the Japanese during World War II.

Merrill was appointed highway commissioner by the then Gov. Sherman Adams, now presidential assistant in the White House.

Under his administration New Hampshire moved into a toll road program.

He leaves his widow, Lucy, and two sons Frank D. Merrill Jr., a student at the New England College at Henniker, N.H., and Thomas, a prep school student in Lebanon N.Y.

Christmas swags combining native and exotic greenery, fruits, shining balls and fancy ribbons were one of the features of the Garden Club's annual Christmas show Saturday and Sunday at the Woman's Club. Reflector Photos by Edwina Haymes).

Jas. Butler Is Keynote Speaker At Chapel Hill

Alumni Secretary James W. Butler of East Carolina College was keynote speaker Saturday afternoon at the Southeastern Sectional Conclave of Alpha Phi Omega, held at Chapel Hill. The two-day sectional meeting opened at 2 o'clock and continued through Sunday noon.

In addition to workshop sessions during the afternoon and evening Saturday, the banquet session was to feature an address by Dr. M. R. Disborough, national president of APO of Louisville, Ky.

The Kappa Upsilon Chapter of APO at East Carolina College is an active service fraternity, Butler is chairman of its advisory committee.

Final Effort In Light Bulb Sale

A final house-to-house light bulb sale will be conducted by the Jaycees tonight, Project Chairman Ed Bass said this morning.

Representatives of the club will visit homes which have not been contacted so far in the campaign. Money from the sale is to be used for purchasing Christmas food baskets to be distributed to needy families during the holiday season.

Each of the bags contains one 100-watt bulb, two 50-watt bulbs and two 75-watt bulbs. The bags are sold for $1 each.

Bass said that approximately 1500 bags of bulbs have been sold so far. The Jaycees have approximately 500 bags remaining to be sold.

Below Freezing

The temperature in the Greenville area last night dropped to 19 degrees, 13 degrees below freezing, the low record for the season.

The temperature here at 8 a. m. today was 23 degrees. The highest temperature here yesterday was 42, the Coastal Plain Tobacco Research Farm reported.

Mental Hearing In Store For Suicide-Talker

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A mental hearing was the prospect today for 45-year-old Asa Beck who despite his severe rheumatism crawled 250 feet up a television tower yesterday to attract attention to what he termed his family's plight.

Beck, a resident of nearby Guthrie, said, "I was going to jump by sundown unless they could help us." State troopers finally coaxed him down after he had been there more than an hour.

He declared his wife and six children were starving. Judge Mildred Patterson, who convicted Beck for failing to provide for them, said, however, his family "was better off now than it has ever been."

Guthrie spent the night in the Oklahoma County Detention Ward. Mrs. Patterson said officers planned to sign papers calling for a mental hearing.

She said Beck had been "using his family's welfare check to buy a car and other things."

Beck tossed away his crutches, scaled a six-foot barbed wire fence and climbed hand over hand up the 1,572-foot tower of station KWTV.

"Every one of my family ought to be in a hospital," he sobbed to rescuers. "They're sick from pneumonia and they don't have enough to eat."

Beck said he was "framed" on the child abandonment charge and was told to leave the state. Upon his return from California a few weeks ago, he said, he found his wife and six children near starvation. His oldest is 18. Beck said his wife Ruth had lost 56 pounds.

He said that because of his crippled condition he has made a living for years by making artificial flowers and selling them in Oklahoma City. At present he is unemployed.

Five Charges In Auto Accident Face Occupants

Five charges were placed against the Negro occupants of a 1951 sedan yesterday after the vehicle went out of control on N C 11 one mile south of Greenville and wrecked in the yard of the Burney W. Moye residence.

State Highway Patrolman R. E. Taylor said the driver, Carl Davis Bush, 32 of Route 3, Greenville was arrested for drunk driving, careless and wreckless driving and exceeding 65 miles per hour.

In addition, two other passengers, Willie James Chapman, 31, of Route 3 and William Taylor, 43, of Route 1, Ayden, were charged with public drunkenness.

Bush and Willie Cox, 46, of Route 2, Winterville, the vehicle's fourth occupant, received head lacerations. Chapman was unhurt but Taylor received injuries to the collar bone and shoulder.

The car appearently was headed toward Greenville on N C. 11 about 11:45 a. m. when it went off the right shoulder of the road, skidded back onto the highway, tore down a sign on the left side and crashed upside down after rooting up the yard at the Moye home.

The vehicle travelled 513 feet after first going out of control.

Taylor, who was headed South on 11, came upon the wreck seconds after it happened. The occupants, he said, were just crawling from the wreckage when he arrived.

A radio call brought the Fire Department Rescue Truck and the injured were transferred to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Earlier, about 9:30 a. m., a car operated by Virgie Hayweed White, 27, Negro, of Norfolk, failed to make a curve just west of Stokes and overturned.

State Highway Patrolman James Boykin said neither White nor two others in the car were injured. No charges, Boykin said, were placed against White.

Tot Succumbs To Burn Injuries

DALLAS (AP)—A 3-year-old girl who liked to twirl around and make her favorite cotton skirt stand out in a circle died last night of burns suffered when a gas fire set the swirling skirt afire.

Witnesses said little Martha Lou Whitworth, thinking the whole house was on fire at the time of the accident Saturday, led her little brother, Tommy, 2, outside. There Mrs. Whitworth, who had been talking with a neighbor, saw her child afire and slapped futiley at the flames and tore the blazing clothing.

Not Guaranteed To Halt Wrecks

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—To ease a traffic hazard at the junction of U.S. 441-State Road 20, safety engineers erected a new stop sign.

Thirty minutes later a truck driver saw the sign and applied the brakes. The brakes jammed and the truck overturned. He wasn't hurt.

Kitchen Table Is Family Treasure

MIAMI, Okla. (AP)—One of the most treasured possessions of Mrs Emma Schubert is a plain, wooden kitchen table.

The 60-year-old table served as an altar for Oklahoma's first Catholic bishop, Theophile Meerschaert, when he made a missionary visit to the Quapaw Indian tribe in 1892. It was later used by many ministers.

C-of-C Group At Raleigh Session

Seven members of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce are attending a state-wide industrial development conference in Raleigh today.

They are Bancroft F. Moseley, president; Leonard P. Bloxam, chairman of the Industrial committee; B.B. Sugg, Jr., vice president; A. Hartwell Campbell and E. Jack Wallace, members of the Industrial committee; Daniel R. Saleed director; and Willard T. Kyzer, manager.

Some 300 persons from all sections of the state were expected to attend the all-day conference in the Highway Commission auditorium. Ways and means of procuring more industries for all sections of the state and plans for working out closer coordination between the various development groups engaged in industrial development activities highlight the meeting.

Execution Ends Bandit's Career

RAIFORD, Fla. (AP) — Florida's electric chair today ended the 20-year seven-state bandit career of Samuel Hornbeck.

The 36-year - old robber, jail breaker and convicted murderer died for the 1953 slaying of a Jacksonville police officer who was actually shot by someone else.

The switch was thrown at 8:35 a.m. and Dr. Mark Adams prison physician, pronounced him dead at 8:43.

Hornbeck was calm as he went to the chair and made no statement. He made no special requests last night or this morning but asked for a cup of coffee a few minutes before he was taken to the death chamber.

The Jacksonville officer, Thomas A. Robinson, Duval County patrolman, was killed by a bullet fired by Hornbeck's pal, Myron Goldman, but Florida law makes all participants in a robbery guilty if anyone is slain during the commission of the crime.

Goldman was slain in the Dec. 17 gun battle on the edge of Jacksonville after police surprised Hornbeck and Goldman in the act of robbing a tavern.

Hornbeck fled but was captured after a 20-mile flight in a stolen car.

Hornbeck's criminal activities had extended into Alabama, Kentucky Georgia, Minnesota, Nebraska, Indiana and Florida.

$500,000 Suit Opens For Olson

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The trial of a $500,000 breach of contract suit against Carl (Bobo) Olson and Sid Flaherty, his manager, starts today in the court of Federal Judge Oliver Carter.

Herbert Campos, Honolulu dairyman claims in his action that Olson is bound by a 1949 contract to pay him one-third of all his purses from July, 1951, until July 15, 1959.

Olson was dethroned as middleweight boxing champion in Chicago Friday in a second-round knockout by Sugar Ray Robinson.

Bucs Crush Lenoir Rhyne 79-60 For Third Win

ECC Takes 40th Battle Without Defeat At Gym

By BRUCE PHILLIPS
Reflector Sports Editor

J. C. Thomas and Don Harris, a couple of precision marksmen, led East Carolina to its third straight North State Conference win here Saturday night over Lenoir Rhyne, 79-60.

The veteran duo scored 26 points apiece in the victory that sent East Carolina out front in the loop race. Lenoir Rhyne came into the game having lost only to Atlantic Christian. High Point and ACC swapped victories in an early two-game series, and they're tied for second place.

The Pirates' triumph was the 40th such on the local court. East Carolina hasn't lost a home game since the Carolina exhibition in 1952.

The play of the locals Saturday night was just in reverse from that of Friday night against Catawba. In that one, the Portermen were lucky to win, but against Lenoir Rhyne the outcome was never in doubt after the first half.

With Harris and Thomas doing most of the damage, the Pirates pushed out front 15-5 in the first seven minutes. Lenoir Rhyne's Raeford Wells began hitting to bring the Bears within six points, 27-21 at the 6:42 mark.

Safe Margin

The locals stretched the lead out once more, however, and went down for the halftime rest with a comfortable 36-26 advantage.

After intermission, East Carolina's inspired cagers ran away with the game. Thomas and Harris couldn't miss and other members of the Bucs started finding the range.

The closest the visitors came in the second half was 63-48. It was through the mercy of Coach Howard Porter that they advanced this near. Porter substituted freely, allowing every members of the 12-man squad to participate.

Guy Mendenhall and Nick Nichols were big factors in the win, although they did not set any houses afire with their scoring. Mendenhall, the 6-5 Cary sophomore, dunked 12 points and was magnificent in rebounding. He picked 10 off the boards and did a fine job on Lenoir Rhyne's Bob Ortmyer. The latter was supposed to be the Bears' second big scoring weapon but was held to five points. He was held scoreless in the first 25 minutes of play.

Nichols suffered his worst night of his career on his shooting. Many of his shots fell way short but he made up for the decline in rebounds.

Smothers In Good Performance

Freshman Tim Smothers turned in his best game of his young college career, bagging nine rebounds and holding Wells under 25 points—the first time that has been done this season. Wells came into the tilt averaging 26 per contest.

Lenoir Rhyne's Floyd Propst was also outstanding for the losers. The Jacksonville trickster pumped in 20 points from the outside with his famous one-hander to keep his club from worse defeat.

East Carolina's shooting was superlative. The Pirates took 55 shots from the floor, hitting on 32 for a percentage of .56. They made 15 out of 26 from the free throw line for 58 per cent. Thomas had the best average from the floor, hitting nine out of 12 for 75 per cent. The Pirate captain also had the best free throw accuracy, making eight out of nine.

G-Men Invading Goldsboro Court Tomorrow Night

Coach Boley Farley's basketballers, currently toing battle among the AAA ranks, will invade Goldsboro tomorrow night to face a rugged squad of Quakes, which the Phants upset 53-50 in their season opener last week.

Pacing the Greenies against the Big Blue will be 6-1 senior center Billy Johnson. The scrappy Johnson, filling the big shoes of crippled Harold Edwards in very able fashion, has collected 23 and 21 points in Greenville's first two season tilts. He has also been top rebounder for the G-men.

Jerry Drum, Wayne Eidson, Ray Hardee and Tommy Key Norris will join with Johnson to form the starting members of the crew tomorrow night. These five boys, with aid from reserve guard Mack Roebuck spelled defeat for the Quakes last week, but will not be rated to putt a repeat performance tomorrow.

Seniors Ike Riddick and Harold Edwards, suffering new troubles from old football injuries, are still playing their basketball on the sidelines. Sprained ankles have prevented the two veterans from participating in either of the two contests played thus far by Greenville.

Coach Farley will not use Edwards or Riddick until the injuries have cleared up sufficiently to assure safety for the boys. They are still on the bench at the present and only tomorrow night will tell whether they are ready for action.

A 73-51 loss to a powerful Rocky Mount team last Friday night in GHS gymnasium proved that lack of height can be a serious drawback for the Phants. However, it also gave several G-men a chance to prive their worth in the clutch. The locals never stopped fighting and delivered 25 points in the final quarter. Jerry Drum poured in 13 points for the night's work, showing a fine scoring potential.

Ring Gladiators To See Very Busy Week

By MURRAY ROSE
The Associated Press

Featherweight Champion Sandy Saddler, getting set for a possible title fight soon with Manila's Flash Elorde, meets veteran Davey Gallardo in a nontitle 10-rounder at San Francisco tonight.

The tall, thin New Yorker soundly drubbed Red Top Davis in his last defense on Feb. 25 in Madison Square Garden. Elorde outpointed Sandy in a controversial nontitle scrap in Manila July 20.

Lulu Perez, once the top-ranking featherweight contender and now a lightweight, clashes with Italy's Paolo Rosi in a television 10-rounder (DuMont TV) at New York's St. Nicholas Arena tonight. Perez has a 33-7-1 won-lost-tie record. Rosi's record is 19-3-0.

Gil Turner of Philadelphia and Jackie La Bua of East Meadow, N.Y., are the middleweight headliners for the Wednesday night radio-television show (ABC - TV, radio, 10 p.m., EST) at the Syracuse, N.Y., War Memorial Auditorium. Their records: Turner 51-10-1; La Bua 25-7.

Ralph Dupas, 20, third-ranking lightweight contender, and Ludwig Lightburn 21, up-and-coming British Honduras boxer-puncher collide in the Madison Square Garden feature Friday night (NBC - TV radio, 10 p.m., EST) Dupas, unbeaten in his last nine has a 57-6-5 record. Lightburn, beaten only by welterweight contender Ike Logart this year, has a 35-6 record.

The fighting Flanagan brothers of St. Paul both box Thursday but in different cities. Welterweight contender Del Flanagan stays in his home town for a 10 with middleweight Jimmy Martinez of Phoenix. Lightweight Glen Flanagan jousts with L. C. Morgan of Chicago at Troy, Ohio.

Bobby Dykes, Miami Beach middleweight boxer, owns a drive-in restaurant.

Hal Edwards Is Unanimous Pick

Greenville high school's Harold Edwards was chosen a unanimous selection for an end post on the 1955 All-Northeastern Conference football team, as announced by the News and Observer yesterday.

The lanky 6-4 terminal earned praise from coaches, fans and sportswriters during early season performances, in which he sparked the Phantoms to wins over Jacksonville and non-conference Beaufort. He was injured in the Beaufort contest and suffered an ankle ailment that plagued him throughout the season, causing him to miss the final three games altogether.

Despite his costly injuries, Harold Edwards convinced the officials of the Northeastern loop that he was deserving of a place on the mythical super team. His prowess in both the defending and offensive aspects of the game made him a top choice among the league's All-Stars.

ECC To Play In Cage Tourney

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—The Parris Island Marines will be host to seven college basketball teams next week for the first Parris Island Christmas Invitational Tournament here Dec. 21-23.

Taking part will be the Marines, Erskine of South Carolina; Elon, High Point, East Carolina and Pfeiffer from North Carolina, Georgetown from Kentucky, and Piedmont from Georgia.

ECC Has Slim Edge In NS Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North State Conference basketball teams play 13 games this week, but only two of them are loop contests.

The first conference action goes off tomorrow night when Elon is at Guilford. East Carolina is at Appalachian Thursday.

Both games could affect the top end of the standings. East Carolina and Elon share lead honors with perfect conference records East Carolina has won three and Elon one.

Elon defeated High Point 106-101 Saturday in its first conference start. East Carolina took a surprise 79-60 victory over Lenoir Rhyne.

Catawba starts the week off tonight at McCrary and High Point entertains Pfeiffer.

Atlantic Christian, the defending champs pulled into third place with a 100-79 win Saturday night over Catawba. The Bulldogs now have a 3-1 mark.

Guilford has a busy week in view. The Quakers meet Elon and two Southern Conference foes, Virginia Tech and Davidson. They face Tech Wednesday in the Greensboro High School gymnasium, then travel to Davidson Thursday night.

The conference standings with overall figures in parenthesis stack up this way:

East Carolina 3-0 (3-1); Elon, 1-0 (4-1); Atlantic Christian, 3-1 (5-1); High Point, 2-1 (6-2); Western Carolina 1-1 (5-2;) Guilford, 0-2 (0-4); Lenoir Rhyne, 0-2 (3-2); Catawba, 03 (0-7) and Appalachian, 0-0 (1-3).

This week's schedule:

Tuesday—Elon at Guilford, Carson-Newman at Appalachian.

Wednesday — Virginia Tech vs. Guilford at Greensboro, Pheiffer at Catawba.

Thursday—East Carolina at Appalachian, Guilford at Davidson, Naval Air Station at High Point, Pfeiffer at Lenoir Rhyne, Western Carolina at Rollins.

Friday—High Point at Newberry.

Saturday—High Point at Georgia Teachers.

Tax Hunting To Keep Local Governments On Run In '56

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Tax hunting will keep state and local governments busier than ever next year just trying to catch up with their own growth.

It's getting harder to find a new tax source or to squeeze more out of an old one, while the way the legislatures and city fathers spend the money they collect or borrow, and the purposes they favor, are likely to set off more debates than ever.

Much of the taxes they do collect will have been earmarked in an earlier era for some specific purpose or application. This will leave the fathers next year wondering where to find the money to provide the new services demanded by the ever-blossoming population.

The state and local governments are falling farther behind — and therefore borrowing more to make up the deficit—in financing through taxes the new schools, highways, water and sewer facilities that the rush to the suburbs and the mechanization of America has made their people desire and expect.

And in seeking new tax sources the states and local governments must compete with the federal government. The U.S. Census Bureau reporting on 1954, its latest figures, gives federal tax collections as 62 billion dollars and state and local taxes as 11 billion each.

The states are spending money much faster than that, and their debts are mounting. The Census Bureau reports that in mid-1953 state and local debt totalled 34 billion dollars. By mid-1955 this had soared to more than 43 billion.

The federal government, curious about the trend, asked the state and local units about their building plans for the next 10 years and found that those already visualized came to almost 28 billion.

Cities and their new suburbs, where the demand for services is the loudest, are having the most trouble keeping even. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce, studying the tax problems of 481 cities with population of 25,000 or more, reports that in 1954 they spent almost six billion dollars while taking in less than six billion, only four billion of which was directly from their own tax collections, and borrowing two billion to make up the deficit.

Half of total state tax collections in the nation are already earmarked, the Tax Foundation a non-profit organization in New York which acts as a private watchdog reports today. In 24 states, the legislatures had "a voice in the expenditure of less than 50 per cent of fiscal 1954 tax collections."

The foundation holds that "the fact that legislatures exert control over only 50 cents of each dollar imparts an unhealthy rigidity to state budgets."

Delaware was the only state that didn't earmark some part of collections. In Rhode Island only 6 per cent was dedicated to some purpose, but this ranged up to 89 per cent in Alabama. More than 75 per cent of tax revenues were earmarked in Colorado, Kansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Texas.

Highway user taxes — gas tax, vehicle registration, drivers license —are earmarked for highways at least in part in all states except Delaware and Rhode Island. In 32 states the entire proceeds to to the highways.

Gas taxes bring the states 2 billion dollars a year, the American Petroleum Institute says.

Education gets support in 28 states from a wide variety of taxes set aside for the purpose. Included are proceeds from sales taxes, income—both individual and corporate, tobacco parimutuel, alcoholic beverage and soft drink taxes. But the tax foundation says the tendency is to abandon earmarked taxes for support of local public schools in favor of schemes such as per pupil allotments from the general fund.

Special Mission For Czech Govm't

VIENNA (AP)—Western diplomats believe Communist Czechoslovakia has the job of spearheading the Soviet bloc's new economic war with the East—even to the extent of sending mannequins abroad.

At the frontiers of Western Europe, Czechoslovakia has begun a large-scale offensive to capture markets in the Far and Near East, in neutral countries and in underdeveloped lands where trade has been largely a Western monopoly.

Czechoslovakia apparently has been relieved of trade obligations to the satellite bloc. The first indication came in Prague's recent deal to supply arms to Egypt. Since then, diplomats have been finding other evidence:

Czechoslovak engineers, designers, architects and decorators have a green light to produce goods that live up to Western tastes and meet the competitive standards of Western producers. An instance is the export of low-cut evening gowns. Behind the Iron Curtain, women in low-cut dresses are declasse.

Czechoslovak salesmen are out in large numbers drumming up business. They include mannequinns exhibiting the latest models of the state-run fashion house. Czechoslovakia is buying supplements in foreign newspapers to advertise her goods.

Chapel To Honor U.S. War Dead

LONDON (AP)—Each morning in St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral a verger unlocks a glass case and turns a single page in an open book two feet high.

The book lists, in large letters, the names of the 28,000 U. S. airmen, soldiers and sailors who died in World War II while fighting out of bases in the United Kingdom.

Each day two fresh pages are exposed for cathedral visitors to read. When the verger gets to the end of the 474 pages he starts all over. Every 237th day the name of each of the Americans comes up for view.

The book has taken on a special interest because cathedral authorities have just completed plans for an American memorial chapel, to be a conspicuous part of the majestic building after the last of the war damage has been repaired. The chapel will be come the book's home.

All the money for the chapel has been collected in Britain—about $280,000.

Highways Taking Too Big A Share

IOWA CITY Iowa (AP)—Iowa is out of step in highway financing, Robert H. Johnson a University of Iowa economist says.

Johnson says road costs now take 3.3 per cent of Iowans' personal income, compared with the national average of 1.8 per cent. He points out that though Iowa ranks fifth in the nation in mileage of secondary roads and seventh in total street and highway mileage, the state is 16th in number of vehicles, 21st in the income of its people and 22nd both in size of population and land area.

Robert Fulton's steamboat, "Clermont," began regular service in 1807.

ONE HAPPY FAMILY:—Traditional animosities are forgotten by dog and cats living together as one happy family at Birmingham, Ala. Gypsy, a dog which had weaned her own puppies recently, took over the duties of mothering three kittens when their mother deserted them. The mother cat came back a few days later to take up where she left off but the dog wouldn't let her come near at first. But Gypsy finally relented and now allows the cat to help nurse, wash and de-flea the kittens. (AP) Wirephoto).

Faulkner Story Amazingly Interpreted By Frank Coe

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—It was inevitable that Fred Coe, one of the most imaginative producers of television drama, would eventually try to interpret a work by William Faulkner, one of the most complex of American writers.

To at least one viewer he succeeded surprisingly well with "The Sound and the Fury" on "Playwrights '56" (NBC-TV). More significant than the success achieved by Coe and his staff of bright young people, however, was the fact they're willing to try difficult things. On such people rests the reputation of television as a serious artistic medium.

It's always dangerous to say what a work by Faulkner is "about." He writes principally about the South—a South that some maintain never existed outside his imagination. But his themes transcend regionalism and are universal to human experience. In "The Sound and the Fury" he was concerned with decadence: how matriarchy and rigid obeisance to conventional morality can create it.

The fatal flaws in three doomed generations of a family were most effectively portrayed by Lillian Gish, Franchot Tone and Janice Rule. Ethel Waters, as the family's aged Negro retainer and only stabilizing influence in the household, was superb.

"The Sound and the Fury" was the sixth "Playwrights '56" production of the season. In retrospect, not all have been successful. But all have been marked by superior casting and staging.

Television is an omnivorous monster, consuming many talents and dramas at incredible speed. A dramatic series such as "Playwrights '56," appearing every other Tuesday with "Armstrong Circle Theater" in the alternate spot, tends to be judged on one performance — and forgotten for a while.

As any performer or artist must be judged on the long-range development of his work, so must a weekly or biweekly television theater. Judged over-all, "Playwrights '56" is giving outstanding performances.

Can Easily Find Bank's Hot Spot

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—James Vanderveer, building engineer in Abilene's new Citizens National Bank, can tell the temperature at any of 13 points in the bank from his office.

By pressing a switch on an electrically-operated thermometer he can find out the outside temperature, the temperature in the president's office, the board room, the lobby, and other rooms as well as in various ducts and pipes which carry hot and cold air and water.

Police Arrested 159 In November

One hundred and fifty-nine persons ran afoul of the law in Greenville last month and wound up under arrest.

Included in the total were five aggravated assaults two breaking and enterings, 11 larcenies, three auto thefts and one rape. In addition 49 others were cited to court for traffic violations.

Of the 159 arrests, 68 were white men and 84 Negros. Seven Negro women and one white woman were arrested also.

The department's five vehicles drove 13,388 miles during the month and 298 complaints received were investigated by officers. Thirty-three arrests, or an average of about one a day, were made for public drunkeness.

Speeds Changed By Light Of Day

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan will have chameleon-like signs to warn motorists of new statewide speed limits.

The signs are treated with reflectorized paint so that the warning of the 65 mile limit during the day will change to 55 miles at night under the glare of car headlights.

About 3,000 of the signs will be posted over the state's trunkline system.

Questions And Answers On Newly-United AFL-CIO

By NORMAN WALKER

NEW YORK (AP)—Here are some questions and answers on the new united labor organization, the AFL-CIO:

What is it?

The AFL with 108 national unions and the CIO with 30 have banded together in a single association of unions.

How big is it?

The Labor Department, in a recent official report, estimated AFL membership at 10,900,000, the CIO's at 5,200,000, for a total of over 16 million. But officials of the new AFL-CIO claim only 15 million.

Why have they merged

Union leaders say pooling resources and strength will give organized labor more power in bargaining with employers, organizing more workers in unions, and influencing state and national politics.

There is room for argument here. Some students of labor affairs feel the natural competition between two organizations tended to keep both more on their toes.

Will it actually increase labor's power?

It will to some extent. Affiliated unions will have the same autonomy as under the separate AFL and CIO. Any one of them can pull out at any time.

But AFL-CIO officials at the local, state and national level naturally will speak with more upswings and influence than formerly.

A similar situation would be if the two main business associations combined, the National Assn. of Manufacturers and U. S. Chamber of Commerce. The fusion would not necessarily mean increased power but it would certainly point that way.

Will union labor be more radical or more conservative?

Traditionally the AFL has been more conservative than the CIO. It appears likely that in the blending of the two a middle ground will be reached with the organization inclined to a bit more moderate course.

This has already been indicated in resolutions adopted by the AFL-CIO convention and in suggestions that the AFL-CIO should work out a "live-and-let-live" arrangement with American industry.

Who are the top active AFL-CIO officers?

George Meany, 61-year-old ex-plumber, has been elected president and William Schnitzler, one-time bakery worker, secretary-treasurer. Both held similar posts in the AFL. Meany will get $35,000 annual salary, chnitzler $33,000, the same pay they drew with the AFL.

What has happened to Walter Reuther, the former CIO chief?

Reuther, stepping aside for Meany to become one of 27 AFL-CIO vice presidents will still head the 1,200,000-member United Auto Workers union and continue to be a very powerful influence, possibly second only to Meany. Reuther was well received in initial AFL-CIO convention appearances.

Where will the AFL-CIO have its headquarters?

A new, four-million-dollar building is being made ready for occupancy in Washington. It's just across a park from the White House. All employes of both organizations are being retained and merged into one staff.

What about John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers and other unions now out of the AFL-CIO?

The 75-year-old Lewis, founder of the now-merged CIO, has at one time or another been a power in both the AFL and CIO. He has held aloof of the AFL-CIO and said the merger can't endure. Nevertheless, the miners someday may join up.

Independent railroad unions are actively considering entering the AFL-CIO. They are the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, with a combined membership of nearly 300,000. The Labor Department estimates the aggregate membership of unions outside the AFL-CIO at 1,800,000

What is the new organization's official name?

It's the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations. The separate AFL and CIO couldn't agree on a new name so to get around what was a real quarrel they just kept both. Eventually, they may trim down this cumbersome title.

How about mergers within the merger?

A good deal of this is expected. For instance, the two textile workers unions are talking of a consolidation. Separate paper workers units and meat industry unions have similar plans.

Where are the areas of possible disagreement in the merged setup?

The old feud among union leaders about craft vs. industrial organization still lies smouldering. This is the issue that led to the secession two decades ago to found the CIO.

Basically, it's this. Some unions such as the carpenters and plumbers feel that anyone in their craft should belong to their union. In industrial organization all workers in a particular establishment are organized in a single union, even whatever plumbers or carpenters are among them.

This is going to be a continuing problem which Meany, in the final analysis, is going to have to referee. About 70 of the former AFL unions and all of the former CIO unions belong to an internal pact known as the "no raiding" agreement. It binds signatory unions to submit all jurisdictional disputes to a neutral's binding decision.

The agreement has worked well, as has a separate, similar deal among the building trades unions. Meany's job will be to get the unions which have refused to go along with such arrangements, such as the teamsters, to line up.

Politics is likely to be an issue too. Some leaders of former AFL unions are Republican-inclined and may balk at any attempt on the part of the majority of union chiefs who prefer the Democratic party to make a formal choice between presidential nominees in the coming campaign.

Carolina Merchants Looking At One Of Biggest Yuletide Buying Sprees

By The Associated Press

Carolina merchants can chuckle right along with Santa Claus this Christmas season. It looks like shoppers are on their biggest buying spree ever.

An Associated Press survey of Christmas shopping in the two states indicates that the customers are plentiful, eager and loaded—with money or ready credit. Merchants generally estimate their business this season will top last year's by 5 to 20 per cent.

Prices are reported about the same or slightly higher all along the line. Toy prices are mentioned as somewhat higher in several cities, but there is general agreement that the quality of toys has improved also.

A few shortages have cropped up, principally in luxury items and toys. But most retailers think they will be able to re-stock as necessary.

Nor is there much concern about having enough extra help. The labor supply is plentiful almost everywhere.

The big downtown stores in the larger cities feel that they're not losing much, if any, business to suburban shopping centers.

There have been few really unusual promotion stunts in the Carolinas. One Charlotte theater has shown free morning movies, for children only, on Saturdays, enabling Mother and Dad to shop with less distraction. A theater at Hickory will have morning shows, at 15 cents a head, for the kids after the schools close for Christmas. Almost every community of any size has had, or will have, a parade of some kind. Probably the biggest was Charlotte's Carrousel parade, on Thanksgiving Day.

Several Wilson merchants said they don't think unusual promotions pay off in agricultural areas such as Eastern North Carolina. Farm folk, they said, don't go for the ballyhoo employed in metropolitan areas but respond better to a more subtle approach.

One feature of this Christmas shopping season is the emphasis on women's hosiery—seamless, full-fashioned and stretch nylon. Throughout the Carolinas department stores and women's specialty shops have plugged hosiery as a main attraction for customers. Most of the unusually heavy advertising has called attention to sharp price reductions, but some of the top fashion stores emphasize instead the idea that hosiery is the most desirable gift for women.

Charles Dudley, executive vice president of the Charlotte Merchants Assn., said "The high volume early buying by pre-Christmas shoppers seems to assure a new high total of sales by a wide margin over any previous year at Charlotte. Activity at the Credit Bureau of Charlotte also is at a record level, which indicates that much of the Christmas shopping is being done on credit by holders of charge accounts."

Some Charlotte merchants say fast buying already has resulted in some re-ordering, and wholesalers' reserve supplies seem short. They report exceptionally large stocks of toys and, along with the customers, are impressed by the ingenious designs of the new toys.

At High Point, where dollar volume is expected to be from 10 to 20 per cent above last year's level, merchants were amazed by the big turnout of customers when the stores began staying open nights early in the season.

A finance company at Hickory, where estimates of an increase in sales range from 5 to 20 per cent, reported it is making small loans to "a better clientele this year than ever before."

"A large number of people with very good credit ratings are asking for loans which is unusual," the company said "and applications for loans are higher now than last year at this time."

The situation at Fayetteville was not quite so encouraging, due to the absence of about 26,000 soldiers stationed at nearby Ft. Bragg. The airborne troops have been in Louisiana for Operation Sage Brush, and it has caused a definite slump in business.

Trade officials at Fayetteville appeared surprised that activity held up as well as it did. They said this suggests that per capita buying is up substantially over last year, and that it has started earlier. There were some predictions that when all the soldiers have returned, total sales for the season will amount to up to 20 per cent more than in 1954.

Wilson merchants think their gross sales will match those of 1954, but they did not expect to set a holiday record. "Business is not what it should be," one merchant commented.

Officials of the South Carolina Chamber of Commerce say retailers in their state may be headed for a record year. One merchant in Columbia reported that buyers are more quality-minded, but are willing to pay the price.

Christmas savings clubs turned loose a record 1½ million dollars in York County, S.C., and this is reflected in early shopping at Rock Hill and elsewhere.

Charleston businessmen are pretty well agreed that conditions are decidedly better than last year. There was no post - Thanksgiving lull, such as that of 1954. About the only shortage reported was in suede leather merchandise.

Greenville, S.C. shoppers are spending freely but are looking for better values. More expensive items, particularly toys, are in demand.

One retailer remarked, "Customers are in a happy frame of mind generally."

Highway Covered By Roofing Nails

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A 30-pound can of inch-long roofing nails fell off Glen Allen Crosby's truck and scattered over the road. Police said Crosby recovered a ladder that also fell off his truck but ignored another motorist's suggestion to sweep up the 4800 nails.

The result—12 flat tires and a three-hour sweeping job while traffic was detoured around the spot.

Crosby was picked up, brought back to the scene and handed a broom to help the angry motorists in the cleanup job Saturday. He then was charged with littering a public highway and having no operator's license.

Cabbie Held In Probe Of Murder

OMAHA (AP)—A former taxicab driver, who gave conflicting accounts of his activities the night coed Carolyn Marie Nevins, 20, was slain was held for questioning today.

Detective Inspector Ernest Brown said the man denied the slaying when he was questioned after Bill Billotte, Omaha World-Herald reporter, received a tip that the man had said while sitting in a bar: "I killed that broad."

He said the man first told police he was at home that night then said he couldn't recall where he was. The man had a scratch on his cheek which he could not explain, Brown said.

Carolyn, a junior honor student at the University of Omaha, was shot four times sometime between 10:55 p.m. Friday and 4::10 a.m. Saturday. Her body was found by a driveway leading from the campus.

She was last seen sitting outside the university's main building waiting for her father to pick her up in the family car. Her father was delayed and when he reached the university she was gone.

Killing Charged Over Burial Site

WARTHEN, Ga. (AP)—A 45-year-old man was accused today of killing another man with his car in a churchyard after an argument over where to bury a child.

Sheriff J. B. Garrett said Stonewall Jackson was held on a murder charge in the death of Sol Andrews, 62.

Garrett gave this account:

Some 18 Negroes went to the churchyard for the funeral of a child. An argument develo ed between Andrews and Jackson as to where the child should be buried.

Jackson jumped into his car chased Andrews and ran him down. He was arrested an hour later near Sparta.

Garrett could not identify the child nor say whether it was related to Jackson or Andrews.

Rhee Complains Japan Helped At Korea's Expense

SEOUL (AP) — South Korean President Syngman Rhee said today, "Some officials in the (U.S.) State Department are determined to build up Japan at the expense of Korea."

Rhee told The Associated Press this was a major obstacle in a previous American attempt to mediate Japan-Korea differences and said the complaint still holds.

In the State Department the 80-y e a r-old President declared, "there are those who blindly love Japanese and who fail to suspect what they (the Japanese) say. Who believes Japan except you Americans?"

Rhee smilingly demonstrated his unchanged passionate distrust of Japan during the first face-to-face interview he has granted since his defense chiefs threatened to shoot or sink Japanese fishing boats which v e n t u r e inside the Rhee Line. The line is a no-trespassing zone proclaimed by South Korea from 60 to 200 miles off her shores.

Rhee said the threat to shoot or sink stands as "a fair warning," and added, "As far as I am concerned we are trying to avoid an incident or clash . . . Why should the Korean navy want to shoot Japanese or make trouble if you calmly analyze it?

"But if they come with a patrol boat or navy boat, we don't care what happens, we want to defend ourselves."

Rhee also declared:

1. "I have not decided whether I shall be a candidate for re-election" next year. He charged pro-Communists and pro-Japanese are "raising money in Japan to have one of their friends in my place." It is considered almost certain Rhee will run for a third term.

2. The recent Geneva foreign Ministers conference has made those who believe in conferences with the Communists realize that "such conferences will never get us anywhere. They serve to put the United States and the rest of the free world in a very humiliating position, as each failure reveals the relentless march of the Communists toward their unrepudiated objectives."

3. The United States "should not go along blindly with Soviet Russia, Great Britain and France and such countries which are already gripped by C o m m u n i s t hands largely. The French government is wobbly because the Soviets pull the strings."

SINK OF INIQUITY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—The Earl Bryson Co., house movers, reported someone broke into a house they were preparing to move and stole the kitchen sink—nothing else.

For more than 50 years Canada has led all other countries in the production of nickel. It's 1954 output amounted to more than four times that of the rest of the free world combined.

Eight Christmas Assistants To Begin Postal Work Monday

Eight Christmas assistants will begin work at the local post office next Monday, Postmaster J. Knott Proctor has announced.

Proctor said several of them may begin work this week, "depending on the rush." The Christmas assistants will work on the delivery trucks and as city carriers to help out the regular staff during the Christmas season, one of the busiest for the post office. In addition, one man will be stationed in the post office lobby to receive Christmas cards.

The postmaster again reminds patrons to mail early and to make sure their cards and packages are completely and correctly addressed. He said all cards should be separated into local and out-of-town bundles for convenience. The cards should be tied in bundles so that the addresses all face one way, and a label designating whether it is for local or out of town delivery should be placed on top of each bundle. These labels are being provided this year by the post office and may be obtained at the office windows or in local stores.

It is suggested that greeting cards be mailed first class, or with three-cent stamps. Proctor said this will mean the cards will receive preferred handling, they may be sealed, they may contain writing and they will be forwarded or returned without charge.

Parcels must be packed and wrapped carefully to arrive in good condition, the postmaster cautioned. They should be tied with heavy cord and should be addressed on only one side. Parcels may be marked "Do Not Open Until Christmas."

Return addresses should be placed on each package and on each greeting card mailed first class. Letters may now be enclosed in third or fourth class parcels, but postage at the first class rate must be paid for each letter, and must be placed on the outside of the parcel.

Stamps should be purchased in advance of mailing to relieve congestion at the post office windows and to save the individual time waiting in line, the postmaster said. He urges all patrons to bring their mail to the post office and not to hand it to the city carrier or put it in their mail boxes at home, as "the carriers will be loaded to capacity."

Proctor emphasized again the importance of mailing early, as there will be no deliveries on December 25 and 26 except special delivery mail and late-arriving gift parcels. Star routes, railway and highway post offices will operate on regular Sunday schedule Christmas Day, but there will be no rural delivery or window service December 25 and 26.

A package of solid platinum the size of a pound block of butter would weigh approximately 22 pounds.

President Advised To Slow Pace Of White House Work

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower settled down for a brief working stay at the White House today while his physicians' advice to take things easier raised new questions about his future politic ' plans.

He called in Republican leaders of Congress to discuss legislative proposals he will make when Congress reconvenes, and invited the visiting President of Uruguay, Luis Batte Berres, and his wife to a White House tea in the afternoon.

His legislative proposals may set the basis for the party's 1956 presidential campaign.

All the signs indicate the President will offer a program geared primarily to the "peace and prosperity" theme which Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall has been sounding for months.

High on the Eisenhower list may be a broadened farm program aimed at halting falling agricultural prices.

Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, the House minority leader, already has forecast proposals offering compromises with the Democrats on highway and school construction —two controversial issues left over from the last session of Congress.

Martin also has forecast tax reduction if the budget is balanced.

But Sen. Knowland of California has come out for debt reduction instead of tax cuts, and has indicated his own farm views may not parallel those of Eisenhower.

A weekend medical report said the President still is recovering normally from his Sept. 24 heart attack. But his personal physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, said Eisenhower has shown signs of "fatigue" after some of his busier periods at Gettysburg. Arrangements now call for a complete rest period from noon until 2:30 p.m. each day, with no interruptions. Otherwise there will be no changes in his schedule.

Snyder suggested the President wait at least until mid-February before deciding whether he feels physically able to seek a second term.

Meantime, Eisenhower went ahead with his announced schedule.

Tomorrow he will meet both Republican and Democratic congressional leaders for a review of defense and foreign policies before returning to his Gettysburg farm and office to continue his convalescence.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH), who had said Saturday he hoped Eisenhower would announce his second term plans shortly after Jan. 1, said yesterday he is "still hopeful" the decision will come before the Feb. 11 deadline for filing in New Hampshire's primary.

Republican Senators Ives of New York and Watkins of Utah took an opposite view. They said Republican hopefuls should not "crowd" Eisenhower for a decision until he can decide for himself.

And Harold E Stassen, the President's special assistant for disarmament, said Eisenhower could even wait until next June or July, if need be, to decide.

Eisenhower underwent a complete physical checkup at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital Saturday. There was nothing in the subsequent medical bulletin that ruled out the possibility of his running again.

But Snyder said that if he were the President and had to decide, he would wait another two months, until the middle of February at the earliest.

He said it is impossible to assess how much another four-year term would take out of the President in physical terms.

A formal medical bulletin asserted:

"The executive responsibilities have imposed a heavier tax upon the President than an ideal convalescent program would incorporate. Then, too, the weather (at Gettysburg) has not been too good." At the same time the bulletin said Eisenhower's participation in both office and farm activities has been carefully supervised "so that no harm has resulted."

The President took a complete rest yesterday, remaining in the seclusion of the residential part of the White House with Mrs. Eisenhower.

There was nothing the physicians found unusual in the Saturday examinations. The doctors reported the President "sleeps well, rests well and relaxes easily during the day," and his pulse, temperature and blood pressure are normal.

Self-Styled Christian Can Qualify As Moslem

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—Even if you call yourself a Christian, you also may qualify as a good Moslem.

"Millions of Cnristians in this country are true Moslems," said Sheikh Daoud Ahmel Faisel, spiritual leader of the Islamic Mission of America. "They just don't know it."

That may sound incongruous to some people, steeped in grade-school notions of the bloody Middle Ages Crusades against so-called "infidels" of Mohammed, but it is the brotherly attitude of Mohammed's followers today.

Basically, it always has been.

"The average American simply knows nothing about Islam," Sheikh Faisel said. "It is the religion of Christians and Jews and all who believe in one true God and who have surrendered to his will and guidance of his laws."

But in the United States, he said, there has been little recognition of the Jewish-Christian roots of Islam, or that Abraham, Jesus and Mohammed are all seen equally as prophets of the faith.

"Prejudice, egotism and ignorance have robbed many of the truth about Islam," the Moroccan-born Islam said. "Some sneer and joke and mock, because of greed for power, fear of exposure, or the evil idea they are better than everyone else."

In North and South America, the only two major continents to which Islam has not spread in vast numbers and influence, Sheikh Faisel's mission as the representative organ for Moslems has set these objectives:

"The propagation of Islam, the true faith . . . the defense of the faithful . . . the reestablishment of peace, love, good will and human brotherhood through relief in the oneness of the one true God as revealed in Islam."

Practicing Moslems constitute only a small minority in this country—about 100,000 by Sheikh Faisel's estimate—but he believes the spirit of Islam is moving rapidly toward wider acceptance.

"Within the next few years, I see it coming," he said. "This is the best educated nation on earth, and people are willing to see the truth. Eventually Islam will be the governing basis of America."

There are fairly large Moslem communities in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Phoenix, Washington, D.C., New York City, Detroit and Dearborn, Mich.

Moslem societies, clubs and academies are scattered throughout this region. The finest mosques are in Sacramento, Dearborn —and a new one in Washington.

Ten Fled Jail, Took Records

IAEGER, W.Va. (AP)—Police are looking for 10 men who smashed out of the town jail yesterday but they face one big obstacle.

Authorities don't know who the escapees are, because they took the jail records with them.

State trooper C. N. Otto quoted officials of this little McDowell county community that the jail had about 20 occupants Saturday night virtually all of whom were booked for being drunk.

Sometime before dawn Sunday, while there was no guard, the group of 10 managed to smash the lock and hustle to freedom.

Inertia In AEC Charged Hiding Non-Secret Data

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

CLEVELAND (AP)—"Inertia" on the part of the Atomic Energy Commission is partly to blame for keeping certain releasable documents on peacetime uses of nuclear energy on the hush-hush list, a consultant to the commission said today.

"A number of significant declassifiable documents still remain buried in the files because of inertia of the AEC or lack of interest on the part of the authors," declared Prof. Raymond L. Murray of North Carolina State College, an authority on the design of atomic furnaces.

He made the statement in an address prepared for a nuclear engineering and science congress being sponsored here by 26 American engineering and scientific societies.

Concerning information that already has been released, Murray declared that, in one sense, there is "too much" of it—that is, he said, it has been released without separating the wheat from the chaff so that research workers are apt to be confused by it.

"The volume of reports, papers and books is such," he asserted, "that the average worker in the field cannot readily distinguish useful and reliable references from those that are based on incomplet investigation, are speculative, or purely descriptive.'

One reason for the situation, he said, is as follows:

"The demand for information just after (World War II) prompted a number of scientists and engineers to prepare papers for delivery at various meetings. Both the classification (secrecy) problem and the type of audience restricted these authors' remarks to mere generalities.

"The texts of the talks were published by the Atomic Energy Commission, however, and continue to be listed in bibliographies of nuclear energy, giving weight to the documents that is far beyond their true merit.

"Papers of a similar sort continue to be listed and thus given equal recognition with work of a more permanent nature."

Hero's Welcome For Returning Kentucky's 'Exile'

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Roger Ladenburger, University of Kentucky student, was given a hero's welcome when he flew in yesterday from a most pleasant "exile."

Ladenburger was given a one-way ticket to Miami Friday, ostensibly to do business with the Kappa Sigma fraternity's national president.

Arriving in Miami, Ladenburger got the word of the trick, but Kappa Sigs in Miami, who learned of the gag in advance welcomed him to their quarters.

An anonymous donor paid his return fare.

Back in Lexington, Ladenburger said the pledges were merely getting even for his laying on the paddle too vigorously in initiations

He said he was forced to take the Miami trip with just one alternative: being stripped and tied to a fountain in downtown Cincinnati.

Lost Twins Are Found In Woods

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Two 10-year-old brothers mingled tears prayers and shouts for help yesterday while lost in thick woods for five hours.

The disappearance of Ronald and Donald Scott touched off a giant search by about 500 men before they were found 3½ miles from where they vanished while looking for a Christmas tree.

The twins were red-eyed from weeping and shivering from the near-freezing cold but otherwise unharmd.

They became separated from their parents Mr. and Mrs. Otis Scott in a hilly section near Grant's Mill east of Birmingham and weren't located until about 8:30 p.m.

"We walked a while and cried a while," said Ronald. "Then we lay down and slept a while. We prayed and prayed."

When they were returned to their home at Irondale, their father said jokingly:

"I've been calling you."

"Boy, we've really been calling for you," the brothers answered.

Group Completes Special Course

Certificates were presented 38 members of the Greenville Utilities Commission departments on Friday night at the final session of a course on Community Relations, jointly sponsored by the Utilities Commission and East Carolina College.

The course continuing through nine weeks was conducted by members of the college administrative staff and teaching faculty under the direction of Dr. Leo W Jenkins, who presented the certificates Friday.

A large attendance of the Utilities Commission employees at a dinner enjoyed a program presented by East Carolina College students in a program prepared and introduced by Dr. Keith D. Holmes. The certificates were awarded at the conclusion of the program with Superintendent of Utilities Leonard Bloxam presiding as toastmaster.

Members of the Utilities Commission present as guests in addition to the instructors of the several courses included Chairman J. Roy Martin, Dr. Karl B. Pace, Reynolds T. May, and John G. Clark Sr.

The dinner meeting was held at the Moose Hall.

Cotton Growers Will Vote Tomorrow On Crop Control

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nation's cotton growers vote tomorrow whether to accept federal acreage and marketing controls on their 1956 crop. Whatever they decide, the support price for cotton is almost certain to be cut.

As in nine earlier cotton referendums since the support program went into operation in 1938, federal controls will become effective only if approved by two thirds of the farmers voting.

Cotton growers have favored controls by a margin of about 9 to 1 in all previous votes. Controls were approved last year by 92 per cent of the 346,542 farmers who voted.

Because of a growing cotton surplus and a big 1955 crop, Secretary of Agriculture Benson is almost certain to cut next year's cotton support price if controls are approved.

If controls are rejected, price supports will drop automatically to 50 per cent of parity, the standard fixed by law as giving farmers a fair return in relation to their poduction costs.

Supports now are at 90 per cent of parity but under the flexible support system they could be set next year anywhere between 75 and 90 pr cent.

Regardless of tomorrow's vote, price supports will be available only to growers keeping within their acreage allotments. If controls are rejected, however, growers would not be subject to marketing quotas and penalities for marketing overproduction.

Under marketing quotas, growers can sell all the cotton produced on their alloted acreage.

The flexible support system approved by Congress last year would affect cotton growers for the first time next year if they approve controls. Benson would determine the exact support figure, possibl ynext month. Agriculture Department experts have said the support price could drop to 80 to 82 per cent of parity.

Benson already has set the 1956 cotton acreage allotment at 17,391,304 acres. This is the acreage he calculates will produce a crop of 10 million bales, the minimum he can ask under the law.

The 1955 allotment of 18,183,000 acres also was calculated to produce 10 million bales. Increased duce 10 million bales.

Acreage allotments are based on the average yield per acre for the past few years.

The huge 1955 crop, added to the surplus on hand from previous years, has piled up a supply of more than 25 million bales. The normal supply is 15,600,000 bales.

Annual domestic consumption is estimated by the Agriculturt Department at nine million bales and exports at three million bales.

Separate votes will be held tomorrow for growers of upland cotton in 21 states and growers of long stable cotton in about six states, mostly in the west.

The department will announce the results tomorrow night.

Hearing Set For Accused Killer

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—A preliminary hearing was set here today for Ernest Monroe, 37-year-old Negro charged with murder.

Monroe, a paroled convict, is charged in the slaying of John Clarence Turner, 40, white, whose cut and beaten body was taken from the Rocky River Thursday night. Turner and Monroe worked on a chicken farm near here.

Cabarrus Sheriff E. E. Logan said Monroe has been charged with murder and has been held without bond.

Monroe was recently paroled from Central Prison where he was serving 30 to 45 years for armed robbery.

Officers quoted Monroe as saying he and Turner drank and gambled together and that he cut Turner's throat with a butcher knife and hit him in the head with a hammer during an argument.

Sheriff Logan said Monroe told him that he put Turner into his car and drove to the bridge on the Poplar Tent Road where he threw him in the water.

Coroner Clifford H. Brown said an autopsy showed Turner drowned and that he was unconscious when he entered the water.

December Swim

An unidentified Negro man apparently decided a December swim was preferable to arrest and thus escaped arrest by ABC officers at the site of an illegal distillery Saturday afternoon.

ABC men said the still, located near Perkins Cross Roads, was in operation when they approached but that the Negro set out across a four-foot deep stream as they approached.

The still, a 50-gallon complete copper unit, 200 gallons of mash and five and a half gallons of liquor, were destroyed.

Saturday night ABC arrested Alonza Williams, 49, Negro, of 612 Pamlico Avenue and charged him with possession of non-tax paid liquor. Williams, who paid a $500 fine in Federal Court two months ago for transporting whiskey, was released under $300 bond.

Fire Took Lives Of Four Children

BURNSVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Fire has taken the lives of four children of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Keener. The blaze swept the family's home early yesterday.

Only three of the family of seven escaped—Mr. and Mrs. Keener and a 7-year-old son, Larry.

The dead were: Margaret Keener, 25; Virginia Keener, 19, Harold Keener, 13, and J. D. Keener, 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Keener and Larry were admitted to a Burnsville hospital for treatment of burns and shock. Keener was reported to be in a critical condition.

The blaze started in the early hours of the morning while the family was asleep. The log house with a frame room adjoining in the rear was soon reduced to charred remains.

Neighbors said Keener, a logging contractor, made an effort to reenter the house. Intense heat drove him back.

Funeral service for the four Keener children were held at 2 p.m. today in Keenersville Chapel Baptist Church.

Fire Forces 90 To Leave Hotel

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A fire burning out of control nearly two hours caused an estimated $200,000 damage in downtown Miami yesterday and forced 90 guests to evacuate an adjoining hotel.

Nobody was seriously injured.

The cause was not determined but J. W. Davis, chief of the Miami Fire Prevention Bureau said "We're not dispelling the possibility of arson."

The fire was discovered about noon in a building which housed a men's clothing store and a shoe store. The nearby Roberts Hotel was damaged by smoke and water.

No Brush-Off By Contest Judges

CARMEL, Calif. (AP)—Theater manager Ray Thome put up a blank canvas with brushes and oil paints nearby and a note asking Carmel residents to try their hand at painting during breaks at the movies house.

After a few weeks with the canvas full of varied designs, Thome decided to enter the painting in a contest — just for laughs.

A few weeks later, to his amazement he was told the painting won third prize in a contest and would be hung in a San Francisco art gallery.

Says Cigarette Tide Is Turning

RALEIGH (AP)—The cigarette industry will grow to "new dramatic peaks in the 1960s," says a top official of the Philip Morris Tobacco Co.

The prediction was made by Robert Norris, director of personnel and community relations for the firm, during a weekend meeting of the N.C. tobacco Advisory Council.

Norris said the tide is turning in the tobacco-health controversy. He stated cigarette consumption will be up 2 to 3 per cent this year.

He declared, "The fact of the increase is much more significant than the rate, particularly in a year when there is no sharp increase in the smoking age groups."

Council officers re-elected were Chairman L. Y. Ballentine of Raleigh, Vice Chairman Fred S. Royster of Henderson, and Secretary W. P. Hedrick of Raleigh.

Parked Car Is Lost To Blaze

A car, parked in front of a rural home, caught fire and burned early Sunday morning.

The vehicle belonged to S. L. Moore, Greenville Route 3.

Highway Patrolman Corporal C. E. Whitfield, who investigated, said that Moore told him he parked the car in front of his house on the brick kiln road near Grimesland around 7:30 Saturday night. Around 1 a.m. a passing motorist saw that the car was on fire and woke Moore and his family.

Moore said the fire was out of control when he got to the vehicle. He told the patrolmen that he did not know how the blaze started but it was believed to have kindled inside the car.

The owner stated that the car is fully covered by insurance. The vehicle was a total loss.

Whitfield said his investigation of the fire is continuing.

Masked Robbers Take $55,000 From Jeweler

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — Two masked robbers wearing rubber gloves held a jeweler and his wife captive in their home through the night and then yesterday morning looted the jeweler's store of an estimated $55,000 in merchandise.

Police theorized that the men may have had accomplices.

Police said Joseph K. Fodor 58, told them he closed his shop at 5:30 p.m. Saturday and he and his wife Nellie, 48, had dinner before parting, she to go home and he to visit his ailing mother in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

Arriving home, Mrs. Fodor related, she was accosted by two men, one with a revolver and the other with a metal bar. Threatening her with death they taped her wrists and demanded the keys to the store and the combination of the shop's safe.

Mrs. Fodor said she gave them the combination, which she kept in her purse, and told the pair her husband had the keys. Then, she said they shoved her into a closet.

Fodor said he was knocked down when he entered the house at about 9:15. The robbers taped his arms and took his keys.

"They told me they had been checking on me for six months, and knew just what I had in the store," Fodor said. "One of them told me—'Mr. Fodor, you should carry more insurance, then you wouldn't lose anything."

Fodor was put in a separate closet from his wife.

Fodor said there were three telephone calls early in the morning. The robbers answered them and aftrwards left the house.

The Fodors freed themselves about 20 minutes later and called police.

Fodor said the men took about $55,000 worth of jewelry from the shop, $400 in cash, a diamond ring he valued at $3,000, Mrs. Fodor's ring valued at $1,500 and miscellaneous articles from his home and shop.

Executives Sick And Didn't Know

CHICAGO (AP)—If you're an executive, you may be sick and not know it.

A study conducted by the University of Michigan's Medical School and Institute of Industrial Health among 500 business executives who submitted to physical examinations, revealed 41 per cent showed symptoms of ill-health, says a report in Science Digest.

Gastro-intestinal disturbances showed up in 45 per cent of the individuals and cardio-vascular disease in 24 per cent. Nose and throat ailments were evident in 18 per cent.

Four cases of previously unknown cancer were found, with 27 cases of high blood pressure peptic ulcers, 12 gallstones, 8 organic heart conditions and 3 diabetics.

THE QUICKSILVER POOL

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

On Monday Lora walked up the hill to call on John Ambrose. They were sitting chatting comfortably, when a great knocking sounded at the door. John opened it to admit an excited, breathless Morgan.

"The woods are on fire, the wind has come up and the smoke is blowing this way!" Morgan cried.

They followed her without question, hurrying up the driveway to the house. Morgan shouted to John to go round the back, and dragged Lora upstairs.

She ran toward the empty rear bedroom and Lora followed her onto the balcony and stood beside her looking out over the tree-studded hills. As was its custom on Staten Island, the wind had come up suddenly and fire on the opposite hill had seared its way to the valley, leaving a black path behind it. A great flaming area was visible.

Lora choked as a gust of wind blew the white smoke their way. Morgan twisted her hands together.

"If this wind holds my house is in the fire path! And we've nothing but brush around. Something must be done!"

She was already running toward the stairs and Lora hurried after her. "I'll get Wade."

"Get Adam too. Every man you can find. I'll have the stable boy give the alarm."

Lora plunged breathlessly down the hill, tripping now and then over a root across the path, sparing herself not at all. The smoke haze had not yet crept down the hill. Mother Tyler sat at the open window where her chair had been wheeled.

"There's a fire coming up through the woods toward Morgan's house!" Lora cried as she ran into the yard. "Peter must go up there and I'm going to fetch Adam."

"Lora!" Mrs. Tyler cried from her window, and the girl turned impatiently in mid-flight.

"I can't stop now," she told the old lady. "If Wade comes home you'd better send him right up there. They may need every man they can raise. I'll come back as soon as I can."

She had seen woodland fires at home.

When she reached the Lords' she did not wait for the polite ringing of the bell to be heard, but pounded on the door and shouted for Adam.

He came at once, with his sister behind him. He still looked sallow from his recent attack of fever, but at least he was well again.

"There's a fire coming up the hill toward Morgan's house," she told them. "If the wind stays as it is now there may be real danger."

Adam assured Serena that there was nothing she could do and came with Lora at once. Together they started toward the hill path and Lora had to trot to keep up with Adam's longer stride.

"You'd better go home," he advised. "And keep a watch-out. If this thing gets out of control it could burn its way down this side of the hill, too. Through the Channing grounds and the upper curve of Dogwood lane make a natural fire-break which may help."

"I'm going with you," Lora said. "There'll be things I can do at Morgan's and they'll need every hand."

He threw her a quick look, but offered no objection. They saved themselves for fast climbing and did no more talking until they reached the level of the pool and stopped a moment for breath. Adam did not look too fit, and Lora regarded him doubtfully.

"Perhaps you shouldn't be doing this. After all, you've been ill and —"

"Don't trouble being sorry for me. I'm all right," he said shortly. "Let's get on." They hurried upward again.

Ambrose and Peter were already at work. Clothilde, the French housekeeper, and the other women servants were drawing water from the well, while men stood on ladders throwing pails of it on the roofs of stable and servant's quarters nearest the danger. Over everything hung the ominous white haze and the air was uncomfortable to breathe.

The bells of rival fire companies could be heard clanging up the hill and in a few moments the horses of the Zephyr Co. appeared pulling the heavy engine up the drive, while volunteer firemen overran the grounds. A few were equipped with red hats and shirts but most of them had come dressed as they were when the alarm sounded. Hose was quickly lowered into the well and volunteers manned the hand pump.

Lora stood for a few moments watching the single, thin stream of water begin the doubtful task of watering down the space of brush back of the Channing grounds. The second fire company had arrived shortly after the first, but its men stood idly by, watching the progress of the fire up the hill. It was likely that they would not lift a finger unless the first company agreed to "slice the melon" by sharing the insurance company's reward. The sight made Lora indignant, but she knew there was no way to oppose this ridiculous system. Not even if the house burned down.

She went to work in the kitchen, setting a huge coffee pot on the stove. The reviving powers of the brew would be needed in the hours ahead while all hands worked at the emergency.

Through the kitchen window she could hear the not too distant crackling of the flames. The stifling smell of the fire now pervaded the entire house and her eyes smarted constantly.

Morgan came up from the cellar carrying a stack of gunny sacking to be taken outside and soaked with water, in the event of hand-to-hand fighting with encroached flames. She glanced at Lora, apparently taking her efforts for granted, and ran outside at once with her burden.

Lora found big china cups kept for the use of the servants and filled them with the steaming liquid. These she set on a tray and carried outside to serve to whoever needed a respite. Again and again she made the trip for the coffee was accepted gratefully wherever she went.

Sinatra Aims High In Fabulous Career

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Frank Sinatra marks his 40th year today at the peak of his fabulous career. Judging from his future plans, he'll be aiming for even greater heights — and perhaps an appearance behind the Iron Curtain. Nothing has seemed impossible to Sinatra in his first two-score of years. He is now working on plans that extend to 1960.

One of his pet projects is an international goodwill tour.

"I've been wanting to do this for a long time," he said between scenes of his first independent production — and first western, "Johnny Concho."

"I'm trying to arrange it now so I'll have three weeks off between my next two pictures. I'd like to go out with two typically American stars — a name they all recognize like Gary Cooper and a girl like Marilyn Monroe. We'd put on a show in each of the world capitals for the benefit of children in that country. If it can be arranged, I'd like to do it in Moscow, too.

"The tour could be set up through Variety clubs, which have branches in foreign countries now. For instance, I understand Nehru is an honorary member in India, and perhaps that would help in making arrangements.

"I think such a tour could do a great amount of good in promoting friendship for the United States."

He figures to end the trip in Bombay and then go directly to Spain, where he'll make Stanley Kramer's "The Pride and the Passion" with Cary Grant.

Before that, he'll perform in the musical remake of "The Philadelphia Story." It's called "High Society," and Frank will co-star with Bing Crosby and Grace Kelly.

Sinatra, who is in the Oscar running again with "The Man with the Golden Arm," returns from Spain next summer for a three months' rest. Rest, he says! He'll probably use the time to play some night clubs. Then in the fall he goes to Paramount to play the life story of comedian Joe E. Lewis.

Rhode Island, the nation's smallest state, has the shortest motto — "Hope."

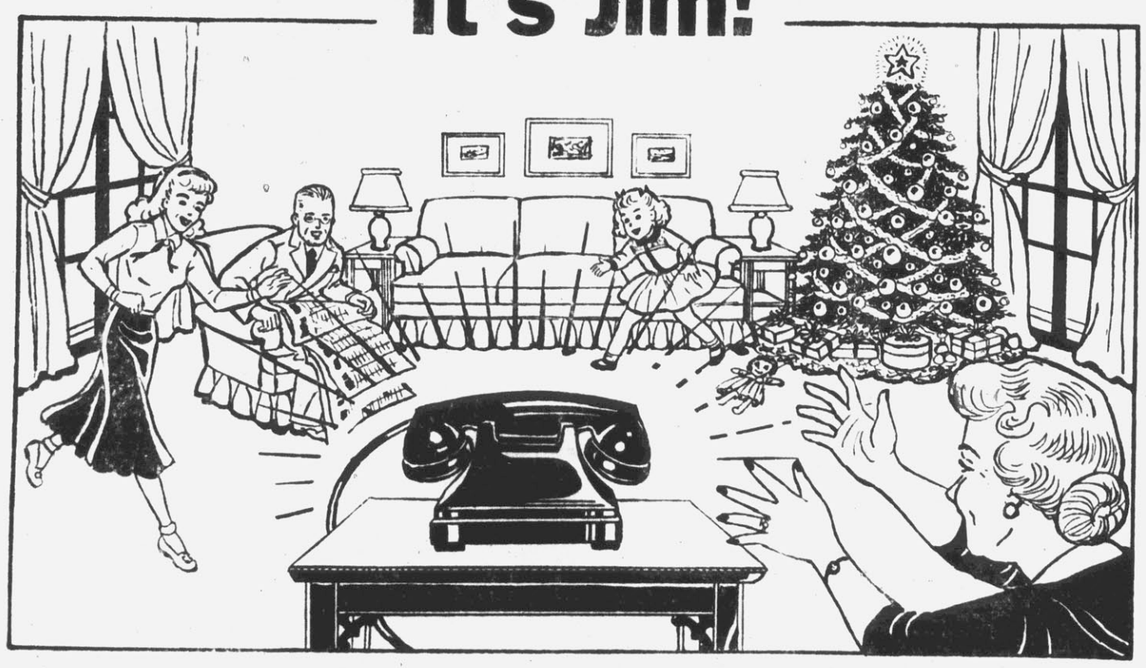
B. THE TONE OF THE PHONE

It's Jim!



When you're expecting a long distance call, you almost can tell by the tone of the phone . . . that's him now!! How much it means when someone special calls long distance! The whole family rushes to get in a word. And for a few minutes, it's like that someone special is right here with you. Small wonder so many people visit by telephone during the Holiday Season. Come to think of it, isn't there someone you want to visit . . . by long distance telephone?

Make your long distance calls early if possible. And whenever you call, call by number. It's much faster.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — A moderate amount of selling today sent the stock market down.

The decline in the early afternoon went to between 1 and 2 points at the most. The bulk of the changes in either direction were fractional.

The market opened lower, and then there was a recovery from the lows within a short time.

It was suggested in Wall Street that concern over President Eisenhower's health that brought a slowdown order from his doctors was perhaps a factor in the selling at the start today.

All divisions were lower including the steels, motors, railroads, rubbers, oils, coppers, chemicals, aircrafts, radio-television and airlines.

Clinton Foods was ahead fractionally on news that the company plans to liquidate and pay out cash to stockholders.

A block of 19,500 shares of Marathon Corp. traded at 32½ off 1½. Benguet Consolidated Mining traded a block of 57,000 shares unchanged at 1⅞. Nine thousand shares of General Motors was sold at 47⅛ off 1⅛.

Owner Can Get Car Back If He'll Answer Questions

A 1948 Oldsmobile being held by the highway patrol will be returned to the owner for the asking.

All the person who owns the vehicle has to do is answer a few questions which Highway Patrol Cpl. C. E. Whitfield will ask.

The questions, of course, will include such dillies as: Why did the driver of the car attempt to outrun the patrolman Sunday, then finally abandon the vehicle and hightail it into the woods? or, Why did the car carry license plates registered to a 1951 Pontiac?

If the owner clears up thoes two little items satisfactorily the car will be returned with no hard feelings.

Cpl. Whitfield said he met the car in the Bell Arthur section Sunday afternoon while he was patroling the area. The vehicle was traveling at a high rate of speed and the driver was operating it in a reckless manner, the patrolman stated.

Whitfield took off in pursuit and the suspicious vehicle turned off the road, crossed a yard and finally stopped in a field, almost turning over. The driver jumped from the car and ran into the nearby woods, Whitfield stated.

The mystery car was towed in and has been stored, according to the patrolman.

Just in case the owner doesn't show up to answer the baffling questions, an investigation is now being conducted to find him.

As the police wagon sped toward headquarters, officers said the man picked the lock on its rear doors jumped out and fled down an alley

Full Inquiry Into Bridge Collapse

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—A State Highway Department official has promised a complete technical inquiry into the collapse of the Haw River Bridge near here.

Five persons were injured, at least two seriously, when the northern half of the structure gave way Saturday. Three automobile plunged into the Rocky River bed.

District Superintendent L. H. Hunter of the highway department said that the span of the bridge worked on last week was intact and was not involved in the collapse. Hunter promised the investigation.

Highway Patrolman L. B. Smith Jr. said two cars apparently sideswiped near the bridge. One of them apparently hit the bridge supports, he said, causing the collapse. Two southbound cars plummeted into the river behind the first car. The northbound vehicle made it to safety.

A Burlington Negro, 39-year-old James Moore, was taken to a Chapel Hill hospital in critical condition. The other injured, all Negroes, were listed as:

Mary Moore, 38, of Liberty; Alice Moore, 7, Burlington; Helen Wallington, 18, Rt. 2, Elon College, and Raymond Wallington, Burlington.

German POWs Arrive In Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Fifty-seven German prisoners of war freed by the Soviet Union arrived in West Berlin today. They were the first to reach Western territory in two months.

The latest returnees were part of a "large group' which ADN, the Communist East German news agency, reported arrived in the Soviet zone during the weekend. nounced 600 prisoners would reach the West German border tomorrow.

The Russians abruptly stopped the repatriation of prisoners Oct. 20, after 5,836 had reached West Germany and an undisclosed number had been freed in East Germany. Previously the Russiand had promised Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to turn loose 9,626.

The Soviets gave no explanation for their interruption but it was generally viewed as pressure of the West German government to speed up the establishment of diplomatic relations with Moscow. So far, however, the Bonn regime has not nominated its first ambassador to Russia.

Top State Dept. Press Officer Died Yesterday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Suydam, 64, the State Department's chief press officer, died of a heart attack yesterday — less than two months after his wife died.

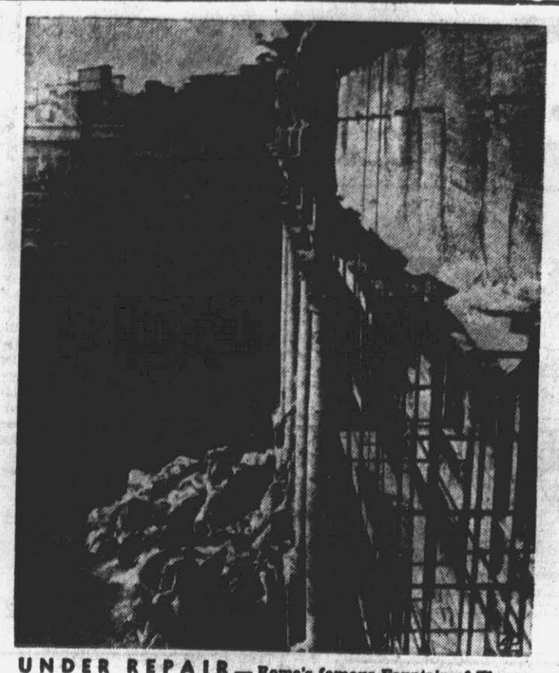
Secretary of State Dulles last night praised Suydam for "great ability, coupled with a kindly personality and high sense of public duty."

As spokesman for the department, Suydam had accompanied to several international conferences, including the recent Big Four foreign ministers meeting at Geneva. He had directed the State Department's press section since Oct. 1, 1953, and was on leave of absence from his post as chief editorial writer of the Newark, (N.J.) Evening News.

Mrs. Suydam, the former Anne Hamilton Gordon of Baltimore, died Oct. 15.

Red Propaganda Is Stepped Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Russia's East European satellites have stepped up their propaganda campaign against Western radio broadcasts, Radio Free Europe reports. The increase has been evident since the Geneva summit meeting last July and includes intensified attacks in newspaper and magazine articles and in official radio broadcasts, Free Europe said yesterday.



UNDER REPAIR — Rome's famous Fountain of Three Streets, built in 1762 and famous for legend that tourists who toss a penny into it will return, undergoes repairs.

UN Delegates Continue Membership Deadlock

By A. I. GOLDBERG

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—U. N. delegates left their membership deadlock to behind-scenes talks today and launched a concerted drive to get agreement in the Political Committee by nightfall on the scope of future disarmament negotiations.

Any decision on disarmament must be approved by the General Assembly, which is scheduled to adjourn next Friday.

The committee had before it a U.S.-British-Canadian-French resolution proposing that the big-power Disarmament subcommittee give priority early next year to proposed preliminary inspection programs.

These include President Eisenhower's open-sky proposal for Russia and the United States to make aerial inspections of each other's country and exchange defense plant blueprints, to avert surprise attacks. Soviet proposals for ground inspection teams also would be given priority.

The Russians announced last weekend that the proposals were unsatisfactory because they do not include Soviet demands for prohibiting atomic weapons and for specific armaments cuts.

Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, Security Council president, postponed until tomorrow further council debate on admitting 18 new members. The council split Saturday night on the procedure for handling the question in both the council and the Assembly.

Soviet Russia's all-or-nothing stand, compounded by its suspicions that the Western countries might doublecross it to keep out some of the five Communist applicants, brought a new veto threat on the whole deal from the Russians. Munro ordered the recess and asked the council delegates to reflect on the consequences of failure of the membership dal—already approved by 52 Assembly delegations.

Air Guard Jet Plane Crashes Near Charlotte

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A Pennsylvania Air National Guard jet plane ran out of fuel and crashed near Charlotte yesterday. The two men aboard parachuted safely, both landing more than a mile from the wreckage of the plane.

The pilot was Lt. T. E. Nott of Charlotte, a student at the University of Pennsylvania. With him was Lt. Thomas J. Harmon of Chester, Pa. Harmon, while serving with the Army Air Corps in World War II, was injured when shot down by Japanese airmen in the Philippines.

They left Andrews Air Force Base at Washington on the second leg of a flight from Philadelpsia to Charlotte. The T33 "flamed out" a few minutes away from the Charlotte Airport. The men decided not to try to land it there for fear of damaging property or injuring someone at the field.

The plane narrowly missed two houses on Wilson Grove road, near Mint Hill in Mecklenburg County.

Fast Write-Off On ACL Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The office of Defense Mobilization has awarded a fast tax write-off certificate to the Atlantic Coast Line Railway Co. of Wilmington, N.C. The railroad will buy $5,047,000 worth of new freight cars with the aid of a fast tax write-off.

Of the total cost, 85 per cent will be amortized for tax purposes in five years, rather than the usual 25.

Hennis Freight Lines, Inc., of Winston-Salem, N.C. received a tax write-off on 60 per cent of the cost of a $150,000 motor freight terminal.

Blizzards Strike Northern Europe

LONDON (AP) — Blizzards struck parts of northern Europe today. Avalanches buried homes in Norway and huge snow drifts trapped nine glider pilots on the Shropshire slopes of England.

A Norwegian steamer, the Reias, snapped a rudder in a storm off the Atlantic coast of Ireland. A Royal Navy antisubmarine ship and a British freighter went to her aid.

The Liberian freighter Pleiades, ran aground on the Spanish coast near Tarifa lighthouse in Gibraltar Straits.

Although much of Europe had fine weather, the first real heavy snows of winter swept over Scandinavia. Temperatures reached 29 below zero in northern Norway.

A father and his 3-year-old daughter were killed when an avalanche smashed their home on Flakstad Island, in northern Norway. Three others in the family escaped.

The British glider pilots were caught 1,600 feet up on Long Mynd in Shropshire. The seven men and two women are living in a small club hut, eating canned food and breaking up packing cases for firewood. They have a telephone line to the village of Church Stetton though.

Group Discusses Industrial Lures

RALEIGH (AP) — Methods of attracting new industry were discussed at a statewide development conference today.

Several hundred persons were on hand for the day-long session of lectures and questions and answers.

Winston-Salem banker Robert M. Hanes, who also is chairman of the state's Commerce and Industry Committee, presided over the sessions held in the auditorium of the Highway Commission building.

CIVIL AIR PATROL TO MEET THURSDAY NIGHT

The Greenville Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol has changed its meeting date to Thursday of each week at 8 o'clock at the Greenville Airport. Capt. Charles E. Steinmeyer is commandant of the squadron. Gus Bestedt is public information officer. Cadets, senior members and friends of aviation are invited.

Fire Sunday At Furniture Store

An overheated stove pipe set a fire which brought firemen to the Reese Furniture Store on 14th St. around 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

The pipe led from a stove in the downstairs portion of the building through the second floor rooms. The fire caught in the upstairs section.

Firemen used booster lines from two high pressure trucks to fight the blaze. In addition, heavy lines were laid but were not needed.

Furniture in the building suffered little fire or water damage. However, some smoke crept into the main showroom downstairs.

The call to the blaze came at 10:55 a.m.

Saturday, firemen were called to Nelson Hopkins' on the Falkland highway when a chimney caught fire. Damage was minor.

Saturday night a chimney caught fire at the Jess Moye farm about eight miles east of Greenville on U.S. 264. The blaze was extinguished before extensive damage resulted, however.

Yesterday morning the fire fighters were called to 200 Manhattan Ave. to a smoking chimney. No damage resulted.

not only to aggravate discord between Pakistan and India but also to heighten world tension."

Both India and Pakistan have claimed Kashmir since they obtained independence from Britain. Kashmir's Hindu maharaja acceded to India in 1947, but the population of the state is predominantly Moslem. Demands that the state be incorporated into Pakistan touched off hostilities. A cease-fire agreement in 1949 ended fighting between tribesmen and Indian army units and the state now is split by a demarcation line supervised by U.N. military observers.

Indian and Pakistani government leaders have been deadlocked on the conditions of a plebiscite in which the people of Kashmir would decide their future but relations between the two countries on the issue appeared to be improving in recent months.

One influential Indian commented:

"If Khrushchev had deliberately set out to light a fuse to fresh discord between India and Pakistan at a time when our problems seemed to be simmering down, he could not have done a better job of it."

Government sources said there would be no official comment on Khrushchev's speech — at least until the party boss and Premier Bulganin have left India Wednesday. Grim-faced, Prime Minister Nehru made no statement when he returned from south India to entertain his Russian guests again until they leave by plane for Afghanistan.

But if Khrushchev's statement disturbed Indian leaders. there was general agreement that it would appeal strongly to the Indian masses.

It followed other attacks by the Soviet Union as the staunch friend of the Indian people.

There was speculation here that the Khrushchev statement on Kashmir might provoke Pakistan into fresh action on the dispute, probably within the United Nations.

Another controversy kicked off by the Russian visit to India was joined yesterday the Chinese Communist party newspaper Peiping People's Daily. The Red China radio broadcast an article saying U. S. Secretary of State Dulles "exposed his own ugly colonialist face" by terming Goa a Portuguese province.

Dulles and Portugal's foreign minister, Dr. Paolo Cunha, issued a statement in Washington Dec. 2 denouncing remarks by Khrushchev and Bulganin as designed to "foment hatred between the East and West." They said they had discussed various statements by the Russians, including "allegations concerning the Portuguese provinces in the Far East."

The reference to "provinces" and Dulles' associating himself with the Portuguese minister in a statement on Goa incensed the Indians. They claim the territory on India's coast is part of their country. Dulles' denial that the statement represented any shift in America's "hands-off" policy did nothing to appease the Indians.

Expanded Rocket ProgramDecreed

WASHINGTON (AP) — "A substantial expansion" of this nation's medium and long-range rocket development program has been ordered by Secretary of Defense Wilson.

Wilson placed Deputy Secretary Reuben Robertson in over-all charge. The three service secretaries will direct the programs within their own departments.

Wilson said that as far as U.S. officials know, Russian "progress has been about as expected" in the rocket field. He added that the recent Soviet hydrogen explosion "had nothing to do with" speedup of the U. S. missiles work.

Also, he said, expansion of the rocket program will not mean cuts in spending for conventional weapons.

It was reported that the Air Force will continue to have primary responsibility for developing a rocket with a range up to 5,000 miles.

The Army and Navy, it was said, are pooling their efforts in the development of a medium distance missile with a range of 1,000 miles.
